It's a wonderful life because his love turns our little house into a home!

It's a wonderful life because he turns our loving relationship into a marriage!

It's a wonderful life because he turns our profession into a ministry!

It's a wonderful life because even when we are sick, he becomes our doctor in our sickroom!

It's a wonderful life because when we are in trouble he becomes our lawyer in a courtroom!

It's a wonderful life because we walk in the light of his love every day.

No wonder the songwriter declared, We'll walk in the light. Beautiful light. Shine all around me by day and by night, Jesus the light of the world!

It's a wonderful life that God has given us. It began with a baby in a manger, but it was made complete on Calvary!

It's a wonderful life that began with swaddling clothes, but was made complete with a purple robe!

It's a wonderful life that began with a miracle birth and was made with a Sunday morning miracle.

I don't know about you, but I'm enjoying every day of the life God has give me because I once was lost but now I'm found, blind but now I see!

I see that that life being prepared in the garden!

I see that life being ordered on Calvary!

I see that life being sealed in a borrowed tomb!

But early Sunday, I see him rising to announce to the world, ''I am come that you might have life and have it more abundantly!"

It's a wonderful life!

It's a wonderful life!

No. 9616-Christmas

A Green Christmas

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 8, 2013

SCRIPTURE: "He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: he leadeth me beside the still waters." Psalm 23:2

Introduction

In the fall, as the leaves drop from the trees, have you ever noticed that there are a few trees that remain green? The beauty of spring and summer seems to fade out of existence until we stumble upon a single tree or two in the midst of all the leafless trees in the woods, that seem to stand tall and green when everything around it is barren.

Trees that are green all year round are called Evergreens. There are different kinds of Evergreens including: Pine, Spruce, Fir and Cedar among others. They are beautiful in any season because it appears that they are about the same color in deep winter or in summer heat.

When the landscape is devoid of color, the Evergreen adds a touch of life.

When everything around is dry, barren and dead, the Evergreen tree stands as a symbol that all is not lost.

When the wind blows the Evergreens deflect winds. In the North, residents plant Evergreens on the Northsides of their homes to catch snow and decrease wind speeds.

It's no wonder then that green is one of the colors of Christmas. Christmas comes right in the midst of winter - when the sky is often gloomy, the trees are barren, and the grass is brown. Offsetting this dreariness and emptiness are the bright colors of Christmas including green!

Green is in the garlands and the wreathes … and of course, it's in the Christmas trees as well. It's a color that cheers you up and speaks of the promise of life and hope. Green, especially the Evergreens remind us of a time to come - a time called Spring when flowers bloom, trees blossom, and the grass becomes green again.

The greenery of Christmas says – new life is just around the corner.
And, at just the right time, life will replace the death and decay.

That's the hope that the Christ child brings into every life, that though others have lost hope that there is a better day coming! Though sickness, death or present difficulties exist, our faith in God, helps us to stand alone in the middle of the winter of our discontent as an Evergreen, filled with hope and unscathed by the elements around us.

As Christians, we stand strong in our faith that God is in control of our lives and conditions. Though others around us lose their hope, like the mighty Evergreens, we stand firm and testify to his goodness everyday of our lives.

Exposition

This text focuses on David as he explains how God provides peace and nourishment for the faithful in the midst of difficult times

David's life was one living example of all of the extremes of life. He enjoyed the comforts of being king of a united Judah and Israel. He also knew what it meant to be a hunted man, always struggling for existence and survival. The range of his struggles took him from being a mere boy who faced lions and bears in the field to challenging stand before the giant Goliath. Though surrounded by his enemies on all sides he was fed and sustained by the hand of God. He was as target for death repeatedly but survived it all.

In all of these situations God provided David with his needs, sometimes in ways that appeared strange to others.

When he faced the lions in the field or stood before Goliath, David may have wanted a sword and shield but God gave him what he needed; a slingshot.

When he was being hunted by King Saul and had nothing to eat, he may have wanted a steak dinner, but God gave him what he needed; bread from the priests table.

In all of his experiences, David concluded that what God gave him was more than enough to sustain him. This prompted him to write, "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want!"

David's words did not mean that he did not desire anything, but that he would not be left in want of those things essential to his well being, including green pastures, still waters, an anointed head and strength for the valley of the shadows of death.

The idea of green pastures is a reference to shepherds that lead sheep to areas that would sustain them. Green is descriptive of the nourishing pastureland which could sustain sheep. It also suggests sufficiency. Not just "He leadeth me to pastures," but to "green pastures."

As sheep follow the shepherd and find green pastures, those who follow the Lord, also find nourishment, fulfillment and still waters.

The essence of Psalm 23:2 is that God will provide what we need and what God provides will help us to stand by faith, when others around us have given up.

That green Tree

Nearly every home will have some sort of Christmas decoration this season. Many will have Christmas trees. There are many artificial trees on the market, but there are thousands who want real trees. Whether real or artificial, most of them will be green. There is one type of Evergreen tree that the church needs more of and that's the Cedar Tree.

CEDARS MAKE GREAT WALL STUDS: One of the ways Cedar trees are useful is that the small ones are used to make wall studs in buildings. The walls in any building would collapse without them and if anyone tries to hang anything on a wall and does not find a stud to hold it; it falls. The church is that way. There are a few members who are evergreen wall studs. They are rarely seen or heard, but whatever the church does successfully hangs on their support. If a program or project succeeds, look behind it and you will find a few evergreens, holding it up and supporting it without whom it would all collapse.

CEDARS ARE KNOT FREE: Evergreen Cedars are generally knot free and they are rot –resistant. Cut one down and you won't find knots and the wood can last for years without rotting like others. The church needs more folks who are NOT-FREE: 1)Not afraid to step out on faith 2) Not stingy 3)Not Mess makers 4)Not afraid to work 5) Not –rotten. Evergreen Christians stay strong even though they have been in the church for many years; their joyful personalities and commitment to the church remains the same. They personify 1 Corinthians 15:58 "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord."

HUMMING CEDARS SING IN THE WIND: When other trees have lost their leaves and the wind blows nothing happens, except when that one cedar in the group catches the wind and seems to sing. Its leaves wave with the wind. It seems to hum or whistle. In fact there is a type of Evergreen called the Humming Cedar that actually loves the wind. The more the wind blows the more the humming cedar hums. The humming has a quieting effect on those who troubled by strong winds. The church always needs members who can hum when the wind blows. They are people who help bring calm into chaotic circumstances. They remind us to focus on God's face and give ourselves over to him. They remind us of David's words, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for thou art with me."

CEDAR CATCHES FIRE QUICKLY: Cedar is the type of Evergreen that campers love because it is filled with sap, catches fire quickly and it takes a whole lot of water to put it out. When the burns it makes noise; it pops and crackles, too. Wouldn't it be great if the church was filled with this type of Evergreen members-those with lots of spirit that say "Amen" quickly and who are filled with pop and crackle! There are some who won't catch the fire even if we doused them with gasoline and blow torched them! But there are others who are Evergreens. They praise God in the morning and in the evening, in good times and bad times; no matter what the time; they will praise the Lord!

TALL EVERGREENS HAVE DEEP ROOTS: A unique thing about Cedar Evergreens is that they may grow as tall as 300 feet, but it's important also that we note that for every foot the Cedar grows high its tap root goes down the same amount. This Evergreen stands in the midst of storms and does not topple over because it has deep roots that hold on. Christians should follow this example and get rooted in the word of God. When the storms of life rage, our rooted faith will hold us in place. The song writer said, "In time like these you need an anchor, be very sure your anchor holds and grips the solid rock!"

Evergreens stand

Finally, brothers and sisters we must consider that when we see the Evergreen trees of the Christmas season we should be reminded that our savior has promised to be with us forever!

In Bethlehem, Jesus was born, but in Jerusalem, just before leaving this earth, He told His disciples, "And lo I will be with you always, even to the end of the world."

That is a promise that will last forever!

When we think of Green we should think about forever!

When I think about Green I remember that:

Psalms 30:12 says, "O Lord my God, I will give thanks unto thee for ever."

Psalms 37:28 says, The Lord, "Forsaketh not his saints, they are preserved forever!

Psalms 52:8 "But I am like a green olive tree in the house of God:
I trust in the mercy of God forever and ever!

Psalm 61:4 "I will abide in the Tabernacle forever!"

Psalm 106:1 "O give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good and his mercy endureth forever!"

It is good to be an Evergreen because an Evergreen reminds us of God's provision "forever."

An evergreen seems to have a special anointing that allows it to stand in the cold or in the heat without losing its beauty!

It's that evergreen anointing that seems to prompt ever believer to how old a little while longer singing, "I will trust in the Lord until I die!"

It's the evergreen believer who can say, "I trust in God wherever I may be, out on the land or on the raging sea! Though come what may, from day to day, my heavenly father watches over me!"

Storms may rise!

Winds may blow, but I am forever praising His name!

As I close, consider the little boy who watched his grandfather buy a chest at the antique store. The boy was surprise to see grandpa bring home a chest that had to be a hundred years old. "Why did you buy that chest?" the boy asked. "Well, you see it reminds me of the Lord!" Puzzled, the boy asked why? Grandpa answered, "Well that chest is made out of an Evergreen wood called Cedar. When you put your clothes in it and close the doors around them, the bugs and insects won't bother them. It's got a special something in it that protects the clothes from all harm. When I think of that I think about how God wraps his arms around me and His anointing keeps the bugs and moths and ticks out of my life!'

I don't know about you brothers and sisters, but that's enough to praise God forever

We should praise the Lord forever because his:

—Grace is always sufficient; Love is always abundant.

—Mercy is everlasting and; promises are sure.

Whenever we see green we should start praising the Lord for the burden he's going to lift off our shoulder!

We should praise the Lord for the hill he's going to help us to climb!
We should praise the Lord for the bills he's going to help us to pay!
We should praise the Lord for the job he's going to help us to find!
We should praise the Lord for the home he's going to help us to buy!
We should praise him for saving our souls!
That's what He did when He went up to Calvary!
That's what He did when He died on an old rugged cross!
But early Sunday morning when he arose from the dead, he brought us all a chance to live with Him in a place where the pastures will always be green!
Forever!

9617-Christmas

A Red Christmas

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 15, 2013

SCRIPTURE: And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord.- Luke 2:10-11

Introduction

Have you ever noticed the colors of Christmas? There are many bright colors during the season and one of those colors is red. Red is the color of excitement and happiness. That's what Christmas brings to every family; a feeling of excitement and great joy.

We are attracted to the color red for many reasons that professionals have studied for years.

Red is the color of fire and blood, so it is associated with energy, war, danger, strength, power, determination as well as passion, desire, and love.

Red is a very emotionally intense color. It enhances human metabolism, increases respiration rate, and raises blood pressure. It has very high visibility, which is why stop signs, stoplights, and fire equipment are usually painted red. In heraldry, red is used to indicate courage. It is a color found in many national flags.

Red brings text and images to the foreground. Use it as an accent color to stimulate people to make quick decisions; it is a perfect color for 'Buy Now' or 'Click Here' buttons on Internet banners and websites. In advertising, red is often used to evoke erotic feelings (red lips, red nails, red-light districts, 'Lady in Red', etc).

Red is widely used to indicate danger (high voltage signs, traffic lights). This color is also commonly associated with energy, so you can use it when promoting energy drinks, games, cars, items related to sports and high physical activity.

Red is excitement! It is the color of joy!

During advent, Christians are especially joyful because it is the time we celebrate the birth of Christ.

Those who know the Lord rejoice in his goodness and at the same time are glad for the great blessings he has demonstrated.

As Christians, we face each new day with a spirit of joyfulness, but we are especially joyful at Christmas time. We know that whatever happens, our God is there for us. That makes us glad. The red colors of Christmas reflect our joy!

Exposition

This text focuses on the good news brought by the angel to shepherds watching their fields. It was news that would bring them great joy.

The announcement of Christ's birth was not an ordinary announcement. It was highly unusual primarily because it was announced by Angels themselves. The angels told them not to fear because they were bringing news of great joy. The Greek word for great is Megas, which means: big, enormous, and colossal. It's the word from which we get the English word Mega. When mega precedes something it is going to be super big. The angel announced news that was going to bring mega joy.

It would be mega joy for of Israel. It would be mega joy for the shepherds. It would be mega joys for every believer; that means mega joys for us. The good news, of course, was the birth of Christ. That is the same good news that lifts our spirits today.

The reality that God is with us, should lift our spirits and give us reason to be hopeful, cheerful and excited about life and all it offers.

Coloring Christmas

If we had to select a color to represent Mega-happiness or Mega-Joy, what better color could we pick than red, which has many shades, each of which speaks to what our God means to us.

LIGHT RED IS LOVE: The very first emotion that red stirs is love. It is often symbolized by light red. John 3:16 says, "For God so loved the world that he gave His only begotten son, that whosever believeth should not perish, but have everlasting life." This is what the light red of Christmas brings to our mind. The Christ child in the manger reminds us of God reaching down to love us and lift us up. When we are loved by someone we can feel them lifting us up. We feel loved when we can sense that those around us are trying to lift us and raise us. Even if a parent is chastising us, in a strange way, we still feel loved because we feel that the ultimate goal of the chastisement is to lift us up.

Despite our imperfections, Christ wants to lift us up in the eyes of God.

Despite our flaws and failures, Christ wants to help us achieve our maximum.

Despite our idiosyncrasies, Christ still wants us to succeed, according to his purpose.

He loves us unconditionally, practically and with only one purpose: to bring us to the altar as the spotless bride of Christ.

This is the kind of love that we sing about when we say, "Yes, Jesus loves me."

FADED RED OR PINK IS FRIENDSHIP: Pink is another shade of red. It suggests friendship and romance. When we see Pink it should remind us of the friendship of God and the fact that God will never leave us friendless or alone. That's why the song writer writes, "What a friend we have in Jesus, all our sins and griefs to bear, what privilege to carry everything to God in prayer." When believers consider their walk with God, they soon realize that he has shown himself to be our friend, even in difficult times. He has never left us alone.

He has shown himself a friend because he did not let us drown in our own sins, but he lifted us by his grace.

He has shown himself a friend because he did not allow the world to triumph over us when we failed in school, in business, in our marriage or in a life pursuit; instead he favored us with one more chance.

He has never left us!

He has never stopped blessing us!

He has never abandoned us.

He has never left us alone.

BRIGHT RED IS EXCITEMENT: The bright red color of Christmas stirs the excitement of the believer's spirit. We are excited when we peer beyond the dark and murky cloud that veils the glistening rays of a new day begun that we are able to resolve that despite the hard times I've seen and troubles I've endured, it's good to be here, Praise ye the Lord!

It's this excitement that prompts us to say, "I may not have all that my heart desires, but I thank the Lord for giving me what little I have, Praise ye the Lord."

I may not be of the best of health. My steps may be getting slow. My eyesight may be getting dim. But I thank the Lord for sparing my life and allowing me to see another sunrise!

It's this feeling of excitement that prompts us to agree with the song writer who wrote, "I don't know what you came to do, but I came to praise the Lord."

Praise him for waking me up this morning!

Praise him for clothing me in my right mind!

Praise him for giving me health and strength!

The blood

Finally, brothers and sisters when we see the color red we think of the blood of Christ, shed to save us from our sins.

Today, when we see the color red all around us and we see a Red Christmas. There is an old song called, "The Holly and the Ivy" in which one verse says, "The holly bears a berry as red as any blood, and Mary bore sweet Jesus Christ to do poor sinners good."

The Red of the holly berry symbolizes Christ's blood, shed for us on the cross.

It's all around us, a red Christmas! It's on the trees, ornaments and hangs from ribbons and table decorations.

Just as the red of Christmas is all around us, so is the love and power of God shown through the blood of savior.

When we see red we think of the blood because there is no other source to which we attribute our hope.

The red of Christmas is not about a jolly old man wearing a red suit, but about the blood of Christ that brings us hope. This is the hope that the song writer referred to when he wrote, “My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness.

I dare not trust the sweetest frame but wholly lean on Jesus name. On Christ the solid rock I stand, all other ground is sinking sand.”

There was a time when we saw red we thought of flamboyance, country ways and sin.

There was a time when we saw red we thought of bright lights and parties.

But one day when I was loss, he died upon a cross and the blood of Christ saved me.

Some may attribute their life’s journey to education, but I know it was the blood.

Some may think their hard work has brought them thus far, but I know it was the blood.

Some may envision themselves as the source of their own good fortune, but I know it was the blood.

There are some things in this world that we cannot attain without the blood.

There is a fountain from which you cannot drink, but the power of the blood brings you to that fountain!

There is a promise that you cannot claim, but the power of the blood allows you to claim that promise!

There is a hope that you cannot enjoy, but the power of the blood allows you to enjoy that hope!

The song writer asked the question, “What can wash away my sins?” Then he answered what every born again Christian already knows, its...

Nothing but the blood of Jesus!

What can make me whole again? Nothing but the blood of Jesus!

Oh precious is the flow that makes me white as snow, nothing but the blood of Jesus!

When you’ve been washed in the blood, you sing with new meaning, I know it was the blood. I know it was the blood that saved me.

I know it was the blood that took my hatred and turned it into love!

I know it was the blood that took my despair and turned it into hope!

I know it was the blood that took my disgrace and turned it into honor!

I know it was the blood that took my enemies and turned them into friends!

I know it was the blood that took my worries and turned them into confidence!

One day when I was lost, he died!

He died up on a cross! I know it was the blood that saved me!

He died to give me a chance to turn my life around!

He died to give me a chance to get a clean start!

But early Sunday morning arose, to guarantee my salvation!

9618-Christmas

A White Christmas

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 22, 2013

SCRIPTURE: Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool. Isaiah 1:18

Introduction

Have you heard the song, "I'm dreaming of a white Christmas." If you have, you are probably among the millions of Americans who sing this song annually. It is perhaps one of the most popular songs of the Yuletide season.

On the surface it seems to be a song about snow and weather, but there is a greater significance to the song which accounts for its popularity and durability. The lyrics are pretty simple:

I'm dreaming of a white Christmas
Just like the ones I used to know
Where the treetops glisten
And children listen
To hear sleigh bells in the snow

I am dreaming of a white Christmas
With every Christmas card I write
May your days be merry and bright
And me all
Your Christmases be white

Those lyrics are packed with some powerful imagery that goes far beyond just singing about snow and the weather. The attraction of the song has to do with the section of the lyrics that refer to being "merry and bright" - that's with people seek during the Christmas season, renewed hope.

This song was written by being Crosby in 1942, when Americans were watching their sons being shipped off to war not knowing whether they would come back home again. It was a dark time for both soldiers and their families back home. From foxholes in foreign lands shrouded by the darkness of the unknown, soldiers sent home Christmas cards packed with their desire to come home. In the midst of their darkness the thought of home brought them hope and inspiration and the dreams of a white Christmas elicited memories of a time when things would be once again merry and bright. By 1947 Bing Crosby had to re-record the song because he had sold so many copies of it that the original Masters had worn out. Today, sixty six years later, the world is still singing and dreaming about a white Christmas where days will be merry and bright.

If you have ever experienced a winter night after a snowfall you will notice that even though the night is black and the ground is covered with snow there is a certain brightness that fills the area. Sometimes the snow can be so bright that you have to shield your eyes, yet all around it there is darkness.

Christmas in the middle of the darkness of our times is a source of hope and cheer. This desire for a white Christmas is not so much a desire for snow as it is a desire for days it will be merry and bright. That's why people in the east who may be digging from beneath 15 or 20 inches of snow saying I'm dreaming a white Christmas. It's also why people in west who rarely see a single drop of snow are singing, I'm dreaming of a White Christmas. It is not so much about the snow as it is about the hope of days that will be merry and bright.

In Bethlehem a child was born who's very birth would bring hope to the world. The birth of the Christ child brought hope, peace, renewal and restoration to a world lost in confusion and despair. This child brought the hope that the world would once again see days that would be merry and bright.

As Christians, we celebrate the hope that the Christ child brings during this season and every day of our lives. The hope that our days would be merry and bright is the hope that sustains us throughout our Christian journey.

Exposition

This text focuses on the Prophet Isaiah as he speaks to a world consumed with the prospects of war, and offers hope of a day when the nation could once again look forward to things being merry and bright.

In Isaiah 1 the prophet paints a dark picture of the Israeli world. It had become obsessed with power, greed and immoral living while at the same time claiming to be a holy nation under God. He said wars, trouble and confusion would plunge the nation into a dark period.

While Isaiah talked about the darkness of the times, he also pointed to a better time when the favored relationship Israel had with God could be restored. It is the hope that he projects in verse 18 when he says, "Though your sins be as scarlet they shall be as white as snow."

He looked forward, to a time in the not so distant future, when the world would seek the Lord and his salvation.

God showed Isaiah a vision of a beautiful time that was coming. Its beauty is shared in verse 4, as Isaiah notes that it would be a time when men would transform their weapons into implements to better the world, that's the meaning of "beat their swords into plowshares." Instead of spending their resources building weapons, they will be transformed into means of feeding the hungry and providing for the improved quality of life of all.

He saw a time when the people of the world would have a sensitivity to human need, a spirit of brotherhood and a desire to live in accordance with the will of God.

He offered the hope that the day would come when things once again would be merry and bright.

The Prospect of Better Days

In the biblical context the people of Israel were not dreaming of a "White Christmas" but they were dreaming of days when their conditions would be merry and bright. And today, many of us may not literally dream of a white Christmas, but we rejoice in the Christmas season because of the sense of renewal that comes with it.

WE REJOICE ABOUT RENEWED HOPE: The world is filled with cynicism. We see so much of the "Ba Humbug" of the Ebenezer Scrooges of the world that it is easy for us to give up on the goodness of humanity. Yet, at Christmas time we see signs all round us that there are millions of people who generous, kind hearted and compassionate . What we see inspires new hope in us that better days are possible, days when everything can be merry and bright.

In Bethlehem Mary delivered the baby Jesus in a stable. She brought forth new hope into the world. The birth of the Christ through the newbirth or born again experience, inspires, motivates and pushes us to bring forth new dreams and hopes as well. There have been many people in life who have testified that they would have given up on their dreams and aspirations but the power of God within them encouraged them to bring forth. When Jesus comes into our lives he helps us to bring forth our potential. He brings forth the courage that we need to tackle tough situations and difficult times. Hebrews 13:6 says, So that we may boldly say, The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me. When Jesus comes into our lives, there is a spirit of boldness that envelops each of us until we begin to hope again.

OUR OPTIMISIM IS REKINDLED: It's not hard to be pessimistic when we see so much negativity around us. If we see failure, defeat, and trouble constantly we begin to expect trouble, suffering and pain from every experience. We can easily become pessimistic. Mary, was probably 13 or 14 years old when she was told she would go away to visit her sister, but when she returned three months later she would have to tell her prospective husband that she was three months pregnant. That prospect was not positive. She could see the trouble on the horizon, yet God went before her and spoke to Joseph and explained things in a way that made the days ahead bright instead of gloomy. Despite the stares from their neighbors and whispers Mary smiled and sang her song quietly to herself. She remained optimistic.

Today, there many who have learned how to be joyous, despite their difficulties. They say like Paul that they count it all joy to be in diverse circumstance that may include disappointment or suffering because they know that ultimately God's overwhelming purpose will prevail.

A White Christmas, in this context, is an optimistic Christmas. It is the belief that if there is darkness and suffering all around, the day will come when it will be merry and bright.

If there is sickness all around us, we can find a reason for joy.

It's optimism and faith that help us to sing, "I'm so glad that trouble don't last always."

WE LISTEN TO HEAR A WORD: Bing Crosby said a white Christmas is the time when "Children listen, to hear sleigh bells in the snow." However, believers listen at Christmas time, but it's not always for sleigh bells in the snow. Believers listen closely to hear a word of hope from the Lord. We see the wrappings, decorations and ornaments, but what is more important to believers is that their families and the world around them listen to hear a word from God.

When Jesus was born the believing world was waiting patiently for a message from heaven. It had been 490 years since they had prophets, divine encouragements or even condemnations. Between the Old Testament and the New Testament there was 490 years of silence.

But when Jesus was born, it was announced that Shiloh has come. Shiloh means message. Jesus was both the message and the messenger.

A White Christmas, in this context, meets that there is a word from God available to us. The birth of Christ reminds us that God is with us. This birth is the birth of Shiloh or the message.

As families make decisions about marriage, careers, children, business opportunities, morality and many other particulars, it is important that they seek the direction from God.

They want to hear a word because they know that When Shiloh comes; they will hear a word from God and have direction!

When Shiloh comes they can be sure about their decisions!

When Shiloh comes their doubts can be resolved!

When Shiloh comes God will move on the altar of the spirit and motivate them in a way that no other can!

It all happens when Shiloh comes!

A White Christmas

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that a white Christmas reminds us that though our sins be as scarlet, because of Jesus they can be as white as snow.

We are not dreaming of a "White Christmas" to get picturesque scenes painted on the canvass of our yards and on the rooftops of our neighborhoods.

We are not dreaming of a "White Christmas" so we can ride sleds, build snowmen or catch falling snowflakes because all of these can happen any time of the year.

We are dreaming of a Christmas where Christ is the center because it is his presence that is the source of our joy.

We are dreaming of world that wants to keep Christ in Christmas so that we have our emblem of faith and hope.

We can't celebrate Christmas without Christ because He is the reason for the season.

It is fine to have a beautiful Christmas tree that is decorated with pretty lights and candy cane, but we don't want to have Christmas if we can't have Jesus!

It is exciting to have tables full of food and the best cakes and pies in the world, but we don't want to have Christmas if we can't have Jesus!

It is an enriching experience to come home to give and exchange gifts and expressions of love, but we don't want to have Christmas if we can't have Jesus!

Christmas without Jesus is like a brand new car without gas!

Christmas without Jesus is like a cake made without sugar!

Christmas without Jesus is like a new toy, but the batteries are not included!

Christmas without Jesus is like a cell phone with no minutes, a computer with no internet connection, and a copy machine with no paper!

Christmas without Jesus is like a coffeepot with no coffee, a bank account with nothing in it; and a magazine with empty pages!

No wonder the prayer of every Christian is that the world will know Jesus because without Jesus there is no reason for the season!

When Jesus comes in your life, miraculous things start to happen.

We are dreaming about a Christmas that is merry and bright and filled with the Joy of the Lord!

When we have the joy of the Lord, He:

-Comforts us in our sorrow; Assures us in our difficulties!

-Strengthens us in our weakness; encourages us in our trials!

-Directs us in our decisions; Helps us in our duties!

-Anoints us in our ministries; defends us in our battles!

On his way to make our lives merry, bright, saved and sanctified, he stopped down in Bethlehem and made a stop in Nazareth!

He stopped by a place called Calvary and spent three nights in a grave!

On his way into our lives, he died on Golgotha's hill, but Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

No. 9619-Christmas

Coming Down from the Christmas High

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 29, 2013

SCRIPTURE: And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them. Luke 2:20

Introduction

Now that Christmas is over have you returned to your regular routine? It often takes considerable time to return to our regular routines because we spent so much time do what is not usual for us. To return to our regular routines we must bag up the trash we have collected and pack away the boxes of ribbons, bows, and lace. We must recycle our live trees and pack away our artificial trees and try to get back to our regular routines.

Have you stopped to consider what makes Christmas such an enjoyable season? A large part of it has to do with stepping out of our daily routines and spending time, energy and resources toward building relationships. More than any other time of year, at Christmas we renew and strengthen relationships with family, friends and with God.

On Christmas morning Facebook.com reported that it experienced three times the number of posts from users than usual. There were millions of photos posted. The highest among those photos posted were about family pictures, home cooked food and people enjoying relationships.

Many Christian homes spent a considerable amount of time focusing on Christ during the Christmas season. There are some homes that actually sang Christmas Carols, and read the story of the incarnation from the bible as a family. Many families attended special Christmas programs with the church and enjoyed a heightened sense of spirituality.

The Christmas season is a high that is refreshing and enjoyable.

However, as Christmas ends many people instantly begin to take down the decorations. The lights are removed from the houses. Christmas postcards are removed from the yards. Everything disappears. Even, the left over turkey is recycled into turkey salad, freezer bags are stuffed; and soon after Christmas, there is little sign that there was a Christmas celebration.

Coming down from the Christmas high usually means returning to our daily routine. For many people our daily routine excludes the things that bring us the most joy. When Christmas comes, it seems that we step out of the mundane and step into encouragement, family unity, high spirituality, giving, compassion, preparation and love. When Christmas ends, there are many that come down from that high and return to the ordinary.

What does returning to our usual routine mean if the ordinary lives that we live leave out the things that make us the happiest? What if our daily routines leave little time for family, friends, God, good food and fellowship? What happens if we return to that?

On the contrary, what if the spirit of Christmas continued all year? What if we visited family members all throughout the year? What if we cooked real food year round? What if we showed love to each other all through the year. What if the family gathered, prayed, sang, laughed and talked all the time?

If all that happened, then Christmas would never end! We would never come down from the Christmas high!

As the Christmas season ends and a New Year dawns, perhaps it might be a great idea to remove the decorations from our homes, but leave them up in our hearts.

Whatever it was that made Christmas so great to our families should continue all year. If that happens we will never come down from the Christmas high.

Exposition

This text focuses on the actions of the shepherds after they participated in the manger experience.

Shepherds, who were grazing their flocks, were interrupted to participate in the manger experience in Bethlehem. Their normal routine consisted of a rather dreary cycle of watching flocks by day and night. However, whenever the flocks were left unattended for long periods of time the possibility of losing some of their sheep always existed because either thieves or wolves were present. While they were inspired and strengthened by observing the manger experience in Bethlehem they returned to their fields still under the glow and charisma that came as a result of being in the presence of God.

Even though they went back to the fields, the excitement of what they experienced in Bethlehem never ended. It simply continued indefinitely. They returned, glorifying God. The Greek word for glorifying in this text is dox-ad-zo which means to cause the dignity and worth of a person or thing to be recognized or acknowledged. Thus, the shepherds went to Bethlehem to participate in the manger experience and they returned with an exciting testimony about what they had experienced themselves. Their testimony recognized and acknowledged God in such a way that his respect and reverence among the people was uplifted.

The joy of that night in front of the manger did not end in Bethlehem.

Their business as usual routine had been changed forever as their conversation and relationship was changed for their own betterment. Their return was not the end of the manger experience but it was the beginning of a lifetime of praise and glorifying that would never end.

What to do now

The shepherds returned to their daily routine, but they returned with a sense of excitement that electrified the dreary task of watching sheep! What can we do to keep the Christmas high all during the coming year?

WE SHOULD RENEW OUR HOPE: Many families struggle to survive all year. Life seems to be a daily battle to pay the rent, put food on the table and stay happy. During the year many become frustrated as so many things happen outside of their control; those frustrations often mean lost hope. Yet, at Christmas time, somehow our hope is restored for a few days. We can remember that though we have troubles God is still on the throne and will help us. That renewed hope gives us a high. But does that hope end when Christmas ends? Do we have to return to worry, frustration and sadness? Certainly not! We can take the decorations down, but we keep hope hanging on a pedestal in our hearts because the God we serve is not seasonal. He does not bless us only one season at a time, he blesses us continually! We don't have to return to worry because our "hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. We dare not trust the sweetest frame, but wholly lean on Jesus'' name."

RELATIONSHIP BUILDING SHOULD CONTINUE: At Christmas many people find joy because relationships are renewed. We heard from those that we had not heard from in years. On Christmas morning phone lines were over burdened and millions of text messages, twitter posts were sent. We were connecting, spreading cheer, showing pictures, catching up on family tidbits, seeing old friends and visiting family. Relationship building takes time. Often during our regular routine we little time for relationship building activities. We often have little time to fellowship with family and friends on their birthdays, anniversaries or important moments. There are many members of the family we don't speak to all year, except at Christmas and the relationship between family members thins. We seem to operate on the principle, "Anybody got time for that!"

Families that do things together stay strong. However, relationships require time to laugh, share, and support. It seems that we do plenty of that at Christmas, but should it end when the tree comes down? Should we routine to what we did without Christmas?

Relationships with God take time as well. At Christmas, we speak the name of Jesus freely in little phrases such as "Jesus is the reason for the season," and "Keep Christ in Christmas" and we boldly attest our faith in God. However, that should not be Christmas thing. It takes time to know God, just as it takes time to know family members. We should speak to him, about him and listen to him frequently, even when the Christmas season ends. When we that the Christmas high continues, long after the Christmas tree has been recycled to mush.

KEEP THE HIGH, GLORIFY GOD DAILY: When the Shepherds returned to their daily routine, it was obvious that they did not return to "business as usual." Certainly, they led the sheep to green pastures, protected them wolves and thieves and watched over them, but they returned with a new spirit. What they did should serve as an example to us. They did not let the Christmas celebration end! There was no babe in the manager or angelic choir singing in the heavens, but they keep the spirit of that night in their hearts and injected it into their daily routines.

The shepherds saw the fulfillment of God's promises and they testified to all that would hear them. They were told that something great was to happen in Bethlehem and God did not disappoint them. That's an example for believers today. When God has kept His promises to us, we should be willing to testify about his greatness with the full knowledge that he will not disappoint us. Romans 4:20 encourages every believer not to "stagger" when it comes to trusting in God.

We are on a high at Christmas because our faith and hope in Christ are renewed with our doubt or staggering. Since Christmas has ended, let's keep the high and continue glorifying him, even in our daily routines.

Don't Stop Expecting Great things from God

Finally, brothers and sisters we should remember that although Christmas is over, we don't have stop expecting God to do great things for us.

During the Christmas season we rejoiced at the thought that "God is with us." We saw the Christ child as a symbol of God's divine love being shared with mankind.

Yet, the shepherds showed us that we don't have stop glorying God because we have left the manger scene. They came to the manger, tired and weary, but they went home glorifying God.

The wise men came to Jesus one way, but the scripture says they did not return the way the came; they returned another way.

If we were in doubt about how our families would make it in before Christmas, but our doubts disappeared during Christmas, we don't have to come down from that feeling because God is the same God after Christmas that he was during Christmas.

We praised God and sang carols about his goodness during Christmas, but we don't have to come down. We can expect great things from God all through the days ahead.

After Christmas we should continue the Christmas high because:

—God expects us to keep the faith and never let go of our passion and love for Him.

—God expects us to resist the temptation to flirt with world as soon as we are out of mother's sight!

— God expects us to get up after we stumble and try again!

—God expects us to continue to worship Him and give him praise!

—God expects us to get up if we fall, fail or experience defeat!

—God expects us to keep trying, never stop striving and always move forward!

—God expects us not to doubt Him. As long as God is still on the throne,

This high that we feel is like the shepherds joy, it glorifies God every day!

It is glory that is bathed in expectation!

We won’t come down from our expectation that God can lift us up!
Even though Christmas is over we will continue to keep our faith in God.
Even though Christmas is over God expects you to remember that if you:
—Pray for Rain, we will keep our umbrellas ready!
—Pray for bread, we will grease the pan!
—Pray for a job, get our resumes ready!
We can’t come down from the Christmas high because God is able!
Keep the Christmas spirit; don’t stop expecting God to bless you!
Keep the Christmas spirit; don’t stop expecting God to make a way for you!
Keep the Christmas spirit Don’t stop expecting God to open doors for you!
Let’s do like the shepherds, let’s leave the Christmas season, glorifying his name!
His name is Jesus!
He came and died to raise our expectations and give us new hope!
He died on an old rugged cross to give us hope!
Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave offering us his love!

No. 9620- New Year

A year ending or a year beginning

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 31, 2013

SCRIPTURE: Enlarge the place of thy tent, and let them stretch forth the curtains of thine habitations: spare not, lengthen thy cords, and strengthen thy stakes; For thou shalt break forth on the right hand and on the left; and thy seed shall inherit the Gentiles, and make the desolate cities to be inhabited. Isaiah 54:2-3

Introduction

There are very few people who approach the end of any year and do not, at least for a few minutes, consider the road they have traveled. This is the time of our lives that we consider where we are and, like a runner in a race, measure how far we are from our goal and decide whether we should continue at the pace of previous laps or make a mad dash for the finish line.

How we see this point in our own history depends upon our attitude. We can view life as the pessimist and cheer the end of the year. The pessimist sees everything that did not go as planned. He sees the illnesses, deaths, disappointment, failures and shortcomings. The pessimist sees all of the frustrations, problems, defeats and bouts with loneliness and despair and greets the final fleeting moments of the year with welcomed, "Thank Goodness, this year is finally over."-The pessimist sees the clouds and thunderstorms and hears the thunder roll. The pessimists relives the weary nights of worry over finance and family, love lost and love gained. The pessimist can't wait for the year to end.

On the contrary the optimist, the man and woman who walks by faith, sees the year gone by from a different perspective. He sees how easy the impossible battle he fought this year, really was; and was not as impossible as everyone suspected. He sees the little victories and the major accomplishments. He sees the clouds, but he also sees the sun shining behind every cloud.

The man/woman of faith is not so foolish that he/she tries to ignore a few of the silly decisions we made this year or the wrong turns that we made along the way. He does not ignore the fact that he fell a few times, some by tripping others by shear foolishness on our part. The man of woman of faith, remembers all of this as well, but also sees the divine hand of God leading us every step of the way.

For the pessimist, the season of the year is Year's End. For the Optimist, this is the beginning of New Year; another chance to get it right, step in the right direction and correct mistakes of the previous. The optimist is not excited by the year's end, but is excited about the chance to begin again in a grander more fulfilling way.

As Christians, glance back at the past, but we gaze at the future that God has in store for us, "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."

Exposition

This text focuses on God encouraging Israel to prepare for God's continued blessing in the time ahead.

In this passage, Israel was at a very low point. They had gone through a succession of wicked rulers who had led them astray from God. The Kingdom had been divided and weakened. First the northern, and then the southern kingdom had fallen to their enemies. The land had been laid waste, the walls torn down. Even the temple of God where they worshipped had been ransacked and destroyed by their enemies.

Most of Israel's problems were self-inflicted in that they resulted from their failure to remain true to God and God hid his face from them. In 54:2-3 Isaiah calls them to: Enlarge the place of your tent, stretch your tent curtains wide, do not hold back; lengthen your cords, strengthen your stakes.

Even though the nation slipped in its loyalty, God still promised to bless them if they reorder themselves in the days ahead.

They were reminded that God has done great things for them in the past, but here Isaiah wants them to know that God is going to do even greater things for them in the near future. They could not see it then, but it was on its way.

The Prospects

At this point in the journey there is not time for pessimism. We must not dwell on the failures of the previous year. There are some families that have encountered physical sickness and death. There are others that have experienced strained relationships. These are not reasons to despair, but rather are reason to testify that if it had not been for the Lord on their side, they would not have been able to stand the trials and difficulties of these tough moments.

We look back, but not with pessimism, but with nostalgic repentance. The late Nat King Cole wrote a hit song that said:

Looking ba-a-ack over my deeds
I can see signs a wise man heeds
And if I just ha-ad the chance
I'd never make that same mistake again

Once my cup was overflowing
But I gave nothing in retu-u-urn
Now I can't begin to te-ell you
What a lesson I have learned

Looking ba-a-ack over the slate
I can see love turned to hate
But I know, oh yes I know
I'd never make that same mistake again

When we look back we realize that have been sustained by the eternal presence of God in our life situations this year. When difficult times were upon us this year, God was there. He was only a prayer away. If we made the mistake of not praising God, we should never make the same mistake again.

Someone can recall how the Lord lifted a burden from their shoulder and gave them renewed strength in the midst of weakness.

When Jesus told his disciples, Lo I'll be with you alway that meant exactly what it said; he planned to be with us continually.

When we think about how God has been with us continually, this is not the year's end, but the beginning of another year of our Walk with the King.

Try it God's way this year

Did you try things your way last year? Did it work out or could you have done better? If you could have done it better then the New Year gives you an opportunity to try again, but differently,

There are two ways to approach life goals. One is the way popularized by a song written by the late Frank Sinatra called My Way. In that song Sinatra boasts that he lived his life, My Way.

He is not alone. There are many who are trying the my way approach: living, loving and dying according to their own rules. To do it my way is to do it alone without any divine assistance. It is also a formula for unhappiness and often failure.

That's what happened to many people last year.

Some used or sold drugs or became addicted to something or someone.

Some lived so wild that they slipped way off course.

Some never got started; they procrastinated

Some nearly died.

As we reach the juncture in our journey, we look back and see that the "My way" approach usually forces us to move under our own power with God's favor.

A new year gives us the chance to work it out on the God side of life. That's when you decide to do it God's way.

Doing it God's way, you may still stumble, but when we do it God's way we may fall down..but He picks us up and we try again.

The bible says in Proverbs 14:12 There is a way which seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death.

Many now know that this is not the end of the year, but the beginning of the year that I will try life God's way.

Be Prepared to see Life Differently

Whether it is sickness, death, finances or disappointments, every person should prepare to see life from a different perspective.

Have you experienced misfortune during the year, don't dwell on. When others look down on you with an eye of scorn, just assume the attitude of the young man who wanted a limo but he could get was a Hooptie. One day at a red light he encountered a giant limo at red traffic light. It looked to be just a beat up Volkswagen. The brother in the Limo rolled down the window and started bragging that his car was the best car that money could buy. "It has ABS, airbags for all passengers, automatic climate control, onboard computer control system, photo chromatic glass, mini bar, a television with satellite dish and hydraulic shocks."

At this point the Hooptie owner rolled down his window and pointed, "But do you have live streaming video in there?"

The brother in the Limo had been dissed. He immediately bought live streaming video for his limo.

A few days passed by, and again the limo was at a traffic light when the limo brother spotted the Volkswagen again. He bragged about his limo and showed his rollaway king-sized bed.

"But does it have voice activated GPS?" asked the Volkswagen owner as he drove off.

Upset the limo owner hurriedly had a Voice activated GPS system installed. He laughed a few days later when he saw the little Volkswagen pulled to the side of the road with its windows all steamed up. Steam was even coming from the windows and water was dripping on the ground.

The limo brother knocked on the window and said, "I got a GPS system," The Volkswagen owner said, "You got me out of my morning shower to tell me that?"

God's kindness and favor will follow believers

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should consider that those who look forward to the future can expect his kindness to be with them every step of the way.

Isaiah told Israel that it had endured difficult days, but God reminds them to prepare to receive the kindness of God in a way that will not be interrupted!

Like Israel we must prepare to expand our tents in the year ahead.

Looking back, we have not acted in faith as we should have, but we won't make that mistake again!

Looking back, we have not given as we should have, but we won't make that mistake again!

Looking back, we have not worshiped as we should have, but we won't make that mistake again!

When it comes to our halfhearted service it is the end-of-the-year

When it comes to our new commitment to go all the way with the Lord, it's the beginning of the year!

When it comes to our frequent lapses in faith it's the end-of-the-year.

When it comes to our new decision to walk by faith and not by sight it's the beginning of the year.

Even though we didn't have room for him in our little tents last year, God was kind us!

Even though we often pitched our tents in the wrong places, God was kind to us!

Even though we often failed stake our tents with proper amount of study and prayer, God was merciful to us.

He looked beyond our faults and saw our needs. I don't know about you, but I'm glad that the kindness of God remains the same.

Because Gods kindness will not depart from us,

—There is no battle we can face that will stop us!

—There is no mountain that will be too hard for us to climb!

—There is no valley too deep for us traverse! —There is no night too dark for us to make it through!

—There is no crisis that we cannot control!

—There is no storm so strong that we cannot weather it!

—There is no enemy so frightening that we cannot defeat it!

I'm glad to know that, when I've failed, he still turns failure into success!

I'm glad to know that, when I'm weak, he still turns weakness into strength!

I'm glad to know that, when I have questions, he still provides the answers!

I'm glad to know that, when I am frustrated, he still gives me hope!

It sure feels good to know that even if I mess up, his kindness shall not depart from us.

It was a kindness that began in a manger down in Bethlehem and ended on an old rugged cross!

It's a kindness that makes miraculous things possible,

If I call on the name of Jesus!

You know him Jesus, who carried an old rugged cross!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who arose early Sunday morning!

No matter what comes this year, remember Gods kindness shall not depart from you!

No. 9621-New Year

Always

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 5, 2014

SCRIPTURE: A land which the Lord thy God careth for: the eyes of the Lord thy God are always upon it, from the beginning of the year even unto the end of the year. Deuteronomy 11:12

Introduction

Have you ever paid attention to the one word slogan that is posted outside of every Wal-Mart Store? In big giant letters the word Always is very visible everywhere. Wal-Mart's slogan is one simple word. Always. For many that's a commitment that means the company can be counted on for low prices always. Open for long hours and often 24 hours. Food? Medicine? Clothing? No matter what Wal-Mart seems to have it always.

God has a sign that hangs from heaven. It's as if it flashed in front of heaven...God-mart!

Whatever we will need this year God can provide it... Always

There is very little we can do in any given year that does not require the miraculous intervention of the divine. Whether its putting a safety net around our homes or creating opportunities for us on the job, God is busy 24 hours a day and seven days a week, making things happen for his people. Always.

That's what he did for us last year and will continue to do this year. He will never forsake us or leave us, even though sometimes we believe that what we have accomplished has been done without him.

As Christians, we approach the New Year with renewed hope and enthusiasm. We have the assurance that will be there for us. Always.

Exposition

This text focuses on Moses as he reflects on Israel's journey and considers the road ahead.

Moses, at 120 years old, had a wealth of experience. He served 40 years as a prince of Egypt. He served another 40 years as a humble shepherd. He spent the last 40 years leading Israel out of Egypt toward the Promised Land. In the course of that time he saw many changes.

As they paused, just before going into the Promised Land, Moses wrote, through the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, the Book of Deuteronomy. The name means A Second look. In it, he reminds them where they had been and then points them to where they are going.

In this text he notes that where they are going is different from where they have been.

Moses warned the people that as things change and opportunities of the future avail themselves, to remain faithful to God. He warned them not to forget where they had come from, and how they made it to their present destination. The only way they could lose the benefit of God's blessings would be to turn to ungodly living. Change is going to come, Moses said, but the people should not change their belief and faith in God.

Things will change, but despite the difficulties of the unknown, there was one certainty; he would be with them, always.

He's always there!

In the year ahead there are certain truths about God that should be reassuring to us:

GOD ALWAYS HAS NEW BLESSINGS: What makes customers return to giant superstores like Wal-Mart? Generally, it's because they have what you need, and offer new items, always. Women like to shop stores like Wal-Mart just to see what's in the store. (Men seldom isle shop, they look for specific items only, as a general rule.) Regular customers want to see what new in the store. That's the way God is for every believer. Every morning God has new blessings in store for us! Every morning believes should awaken with anticipation, "What great blessing does God have in store for me today." The same is true for every New Year, "What great blessing does God have in store for me this year?" Mentally, we can shop the isles of "God-Mart" and look at all the wonderful blessings he has available for our health, comfort, care and leisure. We know God has something new because Lamentations 3:21 says, "They are new every morning: great is thy faithfulness."

God has a new healing in store for us, Always!

God has a new financial blessing in store for us, Always!

God has a new restoration in store for us, Always!

GOD ALWAYS FOCUSES ON US: What makes super stores like Wal-Mart successful is that they always focus on the needs of customers in the community where they operate. Each community is different and so are its needs. They sell snow shovels in Alaska and Mosquito spray in Louisiana, raincoats in Seattle and snowshoes in North Dakota. They focus on the needs of their customers. However, God-Mart has Wal-Mart topped. God does have to conduct a survey to ascertain our needs, because he knows our thoughts. Psalm 139:2-3 says, "Thou knowest my downsitting and mine uprising, thou understandest my thought afar off. Thou compassest my path and my lying down, and art acquainted with all my ways."

Even more, we are always in His thoughts. God's thoughts about us go beyond just his ideas about us because God is constantly working his plan in our lives. He is working it, or thinking of us, even when we do not recognize his presence. In the year ahead,

God will do some thing for us, because we are always in his thoughts. That may include closing a door to direct us to a better open door. It may include allowing us to try things our way and mess up so that we will let him fix us up. It's all because we are in his thoughts and is always planning ways to guide us, direct us and nudge us in the right direction.

David thought about how God always thinks about us and wrote in Psalm 139:17 "How precious also are thy thoughts unto me, O God!" We should gain confidence when we year God say, "You are always on my mind."

GOD ALWAYS HAS WHAT WE NEED: One of the unique qualities of a Wal-Mart super store is that usually has a wide assortment of merchandise to suit every need. You name it, Medicine, automotive, gardening, eye care, groceries, jewelry, electronics, fast food, even banking is available at Wal-Mart- Always! Yet, even the best Wal-Mart store can't compare with God-Mart. Wal-Mart has many things we need, our God has everything we need. God scrupulously separates our needs from our wants and knows exactly what we need to both survive and thrive. Physiologically, we need food, clothing and shelter at the offset. Beyond that we need health care and emotional support. The scriptures indicate that God sees the need of even the most ordinary person. A widow woman who struggled to provide for family saw God meet her need by giving her what she needed on a daily basis. Christ saw the health care need of the man sitting by the pool for 38 years and provided it for him. The Apostles saw a lame man at the temple gate and answered his plea by saying, Silver and Gold have I none but such as I have, give I thee. Mary and Martha grieved over the loss of Lazarus and we see Jesus responding to their need in a unique way. The preponderance of scripture teaches that God sees the immediate need of every believer. Whether our needs are financial, involving the payment of loans, meeting daily demands or just making ends meet; God always sees our need. In the New Year, this should be a reason for hope for every believer. Therefore, the songwriter asks, "Why should I be discouraged? Why should the shadows come? Why should my heart be lonely and long for heaven and home? For Jesus is my portion. A constant friend is he. His eye is on the sparrow and I know he watches me."

Always with me

Finally, we must consider that when God says always, he means just what he says.

Moses told Israel that they were about to enter into a new future which was unknown to them, but God they should not be apprehensive because "the eyes of the Lord are always upon" them.

It is important to know when God says always, it is a clear distinction from when men say always.

When God says "Always" it is not a slogan, but a promise. When God says "Always" he has the power to back up that promise.

It is great when commercial outlets develop cute slogans that catch our imagination; they are great marketing plans, but nothing that man creates can actually be always.

A store may claim that it is always open, but it can't control storms, hurricanes and natural disasters.

A store may appear to have ample supplies of certain products, but there are an often time when its supply of our favorite items has been depleted, that's when always means a rain check until the next truck arrives.

Many super stores claim to always be open, but there are some that close on parts of special days such as Thanksgiving or Christmas.

That's why believers put their trust in God, because with him always means always.

Jesus told his disciples that "and lo I'll be with you alway even unto the end of the world," when he said always, he meant always."

The knowledge that our God never closes is reaffirmed in Psalm 121 when David wrote, "He that keepeth Israel neither slumbers or sleeps." He's always open, 24/7 and 365 days a year.

As we look at the New Year should assume a "no fear" attitude as we look at the prospects of the New Year, I will not fear! We know that no matter what comes, our God will always be by our side and has promised never to leave us alone!

That means, through any trouble or difficulty, the eyes of the Lord will always be upon us and he will not leave us alone!

If we fall upon misfortune, he will always be there and will never leave us.

If we fall upon temporary disgrace or public scorn, He will always be there when all others have abandoned us.

If we fall into sickness or despair, the eyes of the Lord will always be upon us and he will not leave us alone!

If our friends forsake us and family turns on us, the eyes of the Lord will always be upon us and he will not leave us alone!

This promise of God overrides the material and plunges us into the supernatural. It cancels the logical and pushes us into the realm of faith. It padlocks fear and unlocks hope and optimism.

As Israel prepared to march across the River Jordan they were filled with anxiety about approaching the unknown. They did not know what the future would hold, but they heard the word of God say, the eyes of the Lord will always be upon them.

Somebody today has crossed many rivers, but there is still one more river to cross!

You may not know what tomorrow will bring but you know who holds tomorrow. Listen to voice of God saying, I will never leave thee or forsake thee!

As we prepare to enter the first days of an unknown journey, we should remember that every step we take the eyes of the Lord are always upon us. Because God is always there:

— IMPOSSIBLE can become possible;

—IMPROBABLE becomes probable

—Mountains that stand in your way can be reduced to molehills!

—Rough places can be made plain, crooked places can be made straight!

Let us move into the new year with confidence that come what may from day to day! My heavenly father watches over me!

If I fall down, he'll pick me up! Always!

If I make a mistake, he will forgive me! Always!

If I stumble, he'll whole my hand! Always!

If I can't find my way, he'll guide me! Always!

That's why I'll say, "Guide me oh thou great Jehovah, pilgrim through this barren land. I am weak, but thou art mighty; hold me with thou powerful hand! "

Because the eyes of the Lord are always on us, he looked out for our salvation and picked up an old rugged cross!

Because the eyes of the Lord are always on us, He was buried in a borrowed tomb!

But Early Sunday morning!

No. 9622-Inspiration

Get on with it!

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 12, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Philippians 3:13-14

Introduction

How do you plan to move in the New Year? Forward, standstill, or backwards? When President Obama launched his 2012 re-election campaign he had a one word theme "Forward." It was followed by a period. The period, says campaign analysts mean there was nothing else to be said; no looking back. President Obama believes that government drives national changes which stimulate progress. With that belief he has used the considerable influence of the Presidency to drive changes in the way the nation views health care and the way it views relationships between consenting adults. Historically, in the USA government has been the driving force that responded to social needs whether it was FDR's new deal that developed Social Security or LBJ's Great Society that introduced the Civil Rights Act, Voting Rights Act and the welfare system as we know it today.

Government can be the driving force behind national changes, but it can only impact those things within its control. There are many areas in which we need to go forward, but no government policy or rule can make them happen. The government can order change that requires races to sit together in the same classroom, but it cannot make classmates love or even respect each other. The government can set up rules that force landlords to rent to all races, but it can't make the tenants neighbors. There are some changes that require divine intervention to make them happen.

On a personal level we have discovered that our personal progress has more to do with our own determination and the favor of God than it does with any other outside force.

If we go forward, it won't be the result of a political party or government initiative; it will be the result our faith in God and his favor being showered on us. Our faith is what helps us to spring back from errors and mistakes, as well as slips and falls. We are confident that the God we serve will not stop blessing us because we made a wrong turn or two. Neither will he abandon us because we strayed.

At this juncture, our resolve should be to reach forth and march to the beat of the divine drum-major.

We can dwell on how many mistakes we've made in the past or what was done wrong forever, but at some point we must he listen to the words of this verse: "Forgetting those things which are behind."

As Christians, our faith is in God. There is a bright future in front of us therefore we should "get on with it" without fear, procrastination or hesitation. Our goal this year should be Forward-period.

Exposition

The text focuses on Paul's Epistle to the Church at Philippi. While imprisoned in Rome he wrote this letter to the Christians in Philippi to tell them of the joy of serving the Lord and to encourage them to keep their minds focused on their purpose in life. These passages reflect three dominant themes that permeated Paul's ministry: Humility, intense focus, and a sure goal.

Paul's life was intensely focused on his goal. He chose not to focus on his past accomplishments, which included his education and training, conversion on the Damascus road, three missionary journeys, and the conversions of countless numbers to the faith. It would have been very easy for him, especially considering his confinement and approaching death, to dwell on the past and constantly reflect on his achievements. He chose to focus on the future rather than on the past. Whatever was done in the past remains as history, he chose, even in a moment of crises to always look to the future.

Paul knew what he wanted and where he was going. His goal was the prize of the high calling of God. It did not lay in the praise of men, or the accumulation of worldly things. He concluded that he would not be dissuaded in his journey. In Romans 8:35 he asked, "Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword?" Then he answered in verse 37,"Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us."

His goal in life was set, it was clear and in focus, he had decided to use his life as witness to the power of God and there would be no turning back.

Hindrances and Calls to Progress

There are many reasons that many of us have not claimed the promise that God has given us. It still remains waiting for our action.

FEAR OF FAILURE: Many do not claim the promises of God for their lives because they are afraid. Nothing worth having comes without risk, but many don't want to chance losing anything so they try to wait until there is no risk. Yet the cardinal rule of life remains, the greater the risk, the greater the return. The greater amount of faith that is needed the greater the reward.

Many have been putting off plans for college, career change, relationship improvements, personal health decisions and many other changes, because of fear that mistakes may be made.

So that business never gets started. That expansion never happens; the medical procedure is never done; that relationship never begins; or never ends the way we know it should. Why? Because we are afraid. That fear often causes us to miss opportunities God presents to us.

We have God's promises and they should be enough to encourage us to move without fear. Isaiah 41:10 puts it this way, Fear thou not; for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness.

God says the same thing to us that he said to Moses: don't be afraid, go down to Egypt, I am with you. Now get on with it!

God told Zacharias, Fear not and get on with it!

God told Joshua at the River Jordan, fear not and get on with it!

The woman at the tomb was told the same thing, Fear not, not get on with it!

Has God made us promises? Then we should seize the day and "Get on with it!"

DON'T DRAG UP THE PAST: There are many who are not going forward because they begin each New Year dragging the past with them. In many ways they are like the Israelites who began the march out of Egypt with bold faith, but dragged all of their history in Egypt with them. At every level of frustration they dreamed about the old days in Egypt when they had food and security. They kept dragging up the safety and security of the past and instead of going forward, they marched around in circles for 40 years. In fact, God let them wander until nearly every adult who had no faith died. When there was no one left to bring up the past, then they moved forward!

Today, there are millions who want to begin a new year but they keep dragging up Egypt. Family disputes, marital problems, financial difficulties, which caused problems in the past are dead weight if they are dragged into the future.

Paul put the subject in context when he said, ..Forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. Philippians 3:13-14. In other words, stop delaying your blessings…get on with it!

PREPARE TO MOVE FORWARD: Paul encouraged believers to reach forth to the things which are before. That is a call to action. That call is marching orders for believers to prepare to move.

It means get up from where you are and get on with it!

Life often knocks us down, but we are encouraged to arise and get on with your life, not wallow in self pity.

A great scene from the Movie Rocky showed Rocky on the canvass and his corner man shouting Get up!

With everything hurting and though badly bruised Rocky stands and says, "I ain't going down no more."

Succeeding in life does not mean that you won't be knocked down, but real success comes when you know how to rebound after being knocked down, pick yourself up and "get on with the rest of your life!"

The command to rise is personal. Get on with it!

To arise is to gather new strength, just as Samson who lost his strength and his sight, found new strength to do a final great work for the Lord.

To arise is to see a new perspective, just as Saul wallowing in the dust of despair on the Damascus Road, arose with a new look on life.

As believers, we must embrace God's word and then arise and get on with it!

Pressing on

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should resolve that, come what may, we will press toward the mark of the high calling in Jesus Christ.

Paul said, despite the difficulties of his times, he planned to press toward the mark of the high calling.

Today's generation calls this steady march forward a call to, "get on with it," but the old warriors called it pressing on.

These are the words that Johnson Oatman, Jr. had in mind when he wrote old hymn:

I'm pressing on the upward way, new heights I'm gaining every day;
Still praying as I'm onward bound, "Lord, plant my feet on higher ground."
Lord, lift me up and let me stand,
By faith, on Heaven's table land,
A higher plane than I have found;
Lord, plant my feet on higher ground.

Like the old warriors, we too must declare, "I'm pressing on."

I'm pressing on because, I want to enter that land on a far away strand, the beautiful homeland of the soul...and land where we'll never grow old."

I'm pressing on because, I want to be in the place where the wicked will cease from troubling and the weary will be at rest.

I'm pressing on because, I want to see that day when the mountains shall be made low and the valleys will be hollowed out.

I'm pressing on because, I want to be in that number when the saints go marching in.

I'm pressing on because, I want to put on my robe and walk with elders and see every inch of heaven from pillar to post.

I'm pressing on because, I want to see Abraham, Isaac and Jacob

I'm pressing on because, I want to see the streets paved with gold!

I'm pressing on because, I want to see the city that sits on twelve foundations with twelve gates made from solid pearls!

I'm pressing on because, I want to see the city where hearse wheels won't roll!

I'm pressing on because, I want to see the city where everyday will be Sunday and it'll always be howdy and never good-bye!

I don't know about you, but I want to see Jesus!

Jesus, the author and finisher of my faith!

Jesus, who said I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am, ye may be also!
Jesus, who died out on Calvary, but arose early Sunday morning!
Come and go with me to my father's house!
No more dying there!
No more crying there!
No more sickness and pain!
Come and go with me to my father's house!
There'll be joy, joy, joy!

No. 9623-Pastor Anniversary

The Tentmaker's Reward

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 2014

SCRIPTURE: Paul moved in with them, and they worked together at their common trade of tent making. But every Sabbath he was at the meeting place, doing his best to convince both Jews and Greeks about Jesus. Acts 18:3 (NIV)

Introduction

What should be the attitude of pastors toward their labor in the kingdom of God? Should they labor with the anticipation of being paid large salaries by the congregations they serve? Should they demand benefit packages, bonuses and perks as part of their salary packages?

The Gospel ministry is a calling of sacrifice, it's ministers plunge their bodies and souls into the building of the kingdom with God's pleasure as their only desire.

A general rule of thumb many successful pastors have followed over the years is: Ask for nothing, accepts anything given, and expect anything promised. With that as a foundation many pastors have proceeded to kingdom building, supporting themselves through secular employment or business pursuits, asking nothing of the ministry but obedience to God's word.

Not everyone agrees with that philosophy. Others see the minister as the proverbial ox that grinds the corn and therefore has a right on occasion to enjoy the fruits of his labor without a muzzling restraint. Hence, they believe in generous perks, trips, vacations, and enviable salary packages.

Very few African-American pastors can sustain themselves and their families out of the resources of the church alone, thus many of them are bi-vocational, working and pastoring at the same time. These pastors often work one or two full time jobs, spend the remainder of their time providing spiritual nurture for their congregations: Visiting the sick, attending church activities and meetings and providing counseling to those in distress.

Wise memberships recognize the bi-vocational nature of their pastor and do not place so many demands on him that he cannot maintain his own health and family, while ministering to them at the same time.

Yet, there are rewards for these dedicated men and women of God. Occasionally, churches double their efforts to help their pastors maintain their families in programs such as this one today. It is a way to say to the pastor that the church acknowledges his sacrifices and is aware that he makes no demands. Despite his lack of demand the church, through its own volition, helps him balance is personal needs with those of the congregation.

What is the reward of those who labor for the Lord? God's blessing. That's the pastor's example. He does not seek earthly reward, but he will humbly accept it. What he seeks is God's favor on earth and his reward in heaven. This should be the same goal of every believer.

As Christians, we should favor our pastors with as much support as needed. We should constantly lift them up in prayer and help provide for their need. They are tent makers who deserve their rewards.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul's practice of supporting himself rather than burdening the faithful with his support.

Spiritually, Paul was a laborer in the kingdom of God. He could easily be described as a church planter, a man who moved from city to city meeting in the homes of friends and establishing small churches that would promote the kingdom of God.

Despite his spiritual calling, Paul also had vocation; he was a tentmaker. Tent making was a skilled craft that was profitable in ancient times because everyone needed tents. When Paul visited a town, he found employment as a tentmaker to provide for his own needs. His vocation often kept him busy long hours as reflected in Acts 20:35. He often labored day and night. He notes that he accepted the hardship of providing for himself so that he would not be a burden on the believers who followed him. He told the Corinthians his reasons in 2 Corinthians 12:16. They were a wealthy congregation and some of the members wanted to sponsor him to give him time to help build the congregation. In Thessalonica he said he would not eat anyone's food without paying for it. (2 Thes. 3:8)

One of the primary reasons Paul decided to support himself is to remove any skepticism or doubts his motives for setting up the church. It would have been easier for him to accept the patronage of the believers, but it was better for the faith if he did not.

While Paul's choice was not a command to other ministers who would follow him over the years, it did establish an attitude about kingdom building that every pastor should adopt. The kingdom's work is always first; personal concerns are secondary.

His creed seemed to be: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness and all of these things shall be added unto you."

Tent Making Strengths

Paul's decision to serve as a tentmaker served as a model for servants of New Testament Churches. The theme can be summed up as, "Ask for nothing, accept what is given, expect anything promised." Three aspects of Paul's decision illustrate these truths.

TENTMAKERS SET EXAMPLES: Tentmakers set an example. When Paul decided to work in Ephesus from dawn to mid evening, he demonstrated his own generosity and spirit of industry. By this he showed that he came to serve rather be served. His choice was an example of priorities and balance in ministry. He said, "In everything I did, I showed you that by this kind of hard work we must help the weak, remembering the words the Lord Jesus himself said, `It is more blessed to give than to receive' " (Acts 20:35). There is a danger for ministers to elevate themselves above common labor to the point that they become godlike to their congregations. Those who have helpers who carry their bibles for them, wipe the sweat from their foreheads or wait on them hand and foot under titles such as "Armour bearers" and "Shield Bearers" should consider the example such actions give to their congregation. Like Paul, who followed Christ's example, those in ministry come not to be ministered to but to serve, not to receive but to give. Paul believed that his tent making approach helped the weak in faith, who frequently imagine that their next step in discipleship is to be supported financially by other Christians. If we follow this path then it will logically be expected that every service to the church must require financial support: organist, percussionist, ministers, financial leaders, singers, sextons, and a plethora of other areas of service. These attitudes are usually set by example of the ministry leaders.

TENTMAKERS ARE DETERMINED NOT TO HINDER THE GOSPEL: There is a skepticism among the general public that those in ministry are con-men who prey on the religious believes of others to trick them out of their hard earned money. That belief actually hinders the spread of the Gospel. That mentality also existed in Paul's time. This is why Paul was determined not to do anything that hinders the spread of the Gospel by pandering to the suspicions of doubters. Paul was careful to note that those in ministry have a right to be supported and to receive double honor, but he chose not to exercise that right because the Gospel's sake.

The laity in many areas is offended if those in ministry do not accept their support, making the humble principle of tent making even more difficult. In biblical times ancient philosophers and missionaries who were supported by fees, patronage and begging as well as by working. The Corinthians were offended that Paul did not accept their patronage and thus questioned whether he was fit to be their apostle. Even worse was Paul's choice of a demeaning trade in a society that despised manual work. Paul's stance had to do with the nature of gospel ministry. The gospel is a free gift. Paul is not "free" to choose whether to proclaim this gospel. So he chooses to embody the essential nature of gospel ministry (as a free gift) by giving his own ministry "free of charge," thus ironically getting his pay by taking no pay (1 Cor. 9:18).

Those in ministry walk a fine line between tent making and accepting congregational support. Many have found it best to ask for nothing personally: raises, vacations, bonuses, while at the same time accepting anything offered and expecting anything promised. It's not quite what Paul did, but it is true to his role as a model of humility.

TENTMAKERS STAY IN TOUCH WITH THE COMMON PEOPLE: As a tentmaker

Paul engaged in one of the lowest occupations. It was tedious work that was lucrative, but would never make him rich. It was shunned by the rich, but kept him in contact with the average person. Rolland Allen reminds us that "The hedge round the clergy is a very high and cultivated one . . . and consequently the restriction of ordination generally to men trained from youth within that hedge inevitably results in the clergy being more or less out of touch with the common experiences of common men. . . . The voluntary cleric carries the priesthood into the marketplace and the office." The bi-vocational minister understands the weariness of the workplace and the difficulties of labor. The tentmaker, in this area, is one who ministers among the people and is of the people, but he ministers for God.

Staying in touch with the common people is essential and it allows the minister to deal with real life issues rather than lofty ideas generated in their leisure. Tent making that views ministry as a gift is not only beautiful, but also expedient to reach this generation for Christ.

Closing

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must note that tentmakers don't expect to receive their reward from man, because those who serve well will get a crown of life.

Paul did not focus his efforts on achieving material success, but chose to focus fulfilling his mission.

As long as possible, wherever possible, he built his treasures in heaven where moth and rust could not corrupt them.

He knew whatever believer today knows: Serving the Lord pays off after awhile.

The same is true for those who are servants of the church today. The reward is great because their task is greater than the ordinary believer.

Maybe that's what the songwriter had in mind when he penned the words, "I'm going too work until my day is done."

There is no reward for those who sit on the stool of good intentions singing, I shall not be moved but only for those who use their God given abilities spread the Gospel of Christ.

Tentmakers run for Jesus knowing that if they run for Jesus and God will give you his joy!

What is the Joy of the Lord?

The joy of the Lord is going into race and knowing that before the race begins the victory is won!

The joy of the Lord is knowing that no matter how tough the enemy, we will be the victory!

The joy of the Lord is knowing that weeping might endure for a night, but joy comes in the morning!

The joy of the Lord is know that storms may rise and winds may blow, but we won't worry because God is still on the throne!

Those who know the joy of the Lord also have a testimony.
They want to tell the world about Jesus!
They want to tell the world that if there is problem, Jesus is the solution!
They want to tell the world that if there is a question, Jesus is the answer!
—If there is a disease, Jesus is the cure!
—If there is hunger, Jesus will feed them the bread of life!
—If you have thirst, there is living water!
—If you have a crisis, he has the needed miracle!
—If you have a thorn in your flesh, Jesus is the sufficient grace!
Tentmaker, tell the lost that He is still saving souls!
Tentmaker, tell the blind that He is still giving sight!
Tentmaker, tell the infirmed that He is still healing the sick.
Tentmaker, tell the skeptics that He is still alive today
Tell the world that over 2000 years ago that they crucified him on an old rugged cross.
Tell them that they buried him in Joseph's tomb, but Early Sunday morning the ground began to shake, the stone rolled away and heaven rejoiced as he arose from the grave with all power in his hand.
Tell the world that he is alive and lives.
He walks with me and talks with me and tells me I am his own!
Tell the world!

No. 9624-King Day

This dream I have

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 19, 2013

SCRIPTURE: "And he said unto them, Hear, I pray you, this dream which I have dreamed:" Genesis 37:6

Introduction

What is your dream? Have you ever shared it with anyone? What was their response? Do you have a dream? Our dreams represent the pictures we see of ourselves somewhere in the distant future. We dream of business success, professional achievement, family unity, peace, and spiritual power. We dream of victory! We dream of history making accomplishments. Often our dreams become the subject of mockery when we share them with others who doubt our capacity to achieve them or lack the capacity to clearly visualize them.

We've heard Martin Luther King's, "I have a dream" speech many times, yet when it was delivered repeatedly across the South, there were those who doubted that his words would ever come to past. Many could not envision an America where people were judged by the "content of the character" and not by the color of their skin. Many could not envision an America where racism would not be an acceptable norm or where war and violence would not be top tier responses to every situation.

In many ways, Dr. King was characterized as a misguided preacher who fought battles that he could not win with enemies that were the figments of his imaginations. To Southerners King misrepresented the culture of Dixie and painted a picture of segregation and the Southern culture that misrepresented reality.

In the Broadway musical Man of La Mancha, the character Don Quixote (From Cervantes' novel) is depicted as one who fought imaginary battles with windmills, thinking that they were giants who blades were actually great arms swinging to destroy him. The phrase "tilting windmills" usually refers to people who chase imaginary enemies or impossible dreams. A memorable song from the musical carried these lyrics:

To dream ... the impossible dream ...
To fight ..... the unbeatable foe ...
To bear ….. with unbearable sorrow ...
To run ……. where the brave dare not go ...
To right ….. the unrightable wrong ...

To love …. pure and chaste from afar ...
To try ….... when your arms are too weary ...
To reach ... the unreachable star ...

Those words characterize Dr. King's quest for America, but they also characterize the quest of others such as: Ghandi, Thoreau, Emerson and your great-grandpa. Your ancestors were not great men like Dr. King, but none-the-less, they had impossible dreams that were the subject of ridicule because they saw them as impossible dreams being dreamed by men who spent their lives in the fields "tilting windmills."

As Christians, we also dream. We didn't invent our dreams. Like Great Grandpa, our dreams are rooted in our faith in God. We believe that God will help us to achieve our dream if we continue to put him first. No one may understand this dream I have, but with God's help it will come to fruition.

Exposition

This text focuses on Joseph as he told his dream to his brothers.

He told of his dream that he and his brothers were binding sheaves of wheat in the field and suddenly his bundle stood up and all of those of his brothers bowed down to his bundle. In another dream he envision the sun, moon and eleven stars bowing to him. They correctly interpreted it to mean that Joseph dreamed of a day when his eleven brothers, father and mother would bow to him.

His dream irritated them. Yet, God kept giving him repeated dreams or flashes of his future.

In the biblical context dreams were personal and had implications. Individuals such as Joseph, the Butler and the Baker in prison had personal dreams. When told to others they seem impossible or improbable. A dream from an imprisoned butler who had lost favor with the king that he would one day be restored, was the subject of mockery. Joseph's dream of one day standing tall as his brothers bowed before him, was distant, too; especially since it came from a man locked away in a dungeon.

While individuals are given dreams about their futures others are given grander dreams that include whole nations. These visions were given to men such as Ezekiel who saw the people scattered like dry bones in a valley, but coming to life again after hearing the word of the Lord. John had a vision of the last days of the world and the coming of the Lord. They see pictures of entire nations and the world.

Such was the dream of Martin Luther King, it was dream bigger than himself and encompassed the entire nation in its scope.

He didn't give himself that dream. Like all others, in the biblical scheme of things, it came from God.

Christ's dream came from God. It involves the whole world and is powered by the spirit of God. As such, the dream of transforming the world by one carpenter and a rag tag collection of unlearned men from the most non-productive region of the nation could be realized. It could be realized, not because they wanted to make a name for themselves, but because what they wanted was the same as what God wanted and he helped make it happen.

They laughed the dreams and criticized for "tilting windmills" of their own making, but their response seemed to be "this dream I have, the world didn't give it and the world can't take it away."

What about our dreams?

YOUTH NEED DREAMS: There is a Joseph in every generation; these are boys and girls to whom God has hand picked for missions in the distant future. To even imagine the dreams, youth should be surrounded by mentors who will challenge them, feed their imaginations and help them to realize their potential. Think of the teachers who you learned to appreciate most. Included in the group were those who challenged you, pushed you beyond you own expectations and opened your mind. Youth need to dream. To do that they need to read, discuss, travel, study, experience different things and pray. In the course of these experiences, God will reveal to them his plan for their lives and give them a dream. Short of that they will only dream of being rappers or athletes to the exclusion of everything else. Every home should work to expand the mind of the children in its care: Turn off the TV, challenge youth to read, travel with them or see that they travel, experience and learn about the world around them. Bring them before the Lord constantly and speak favor over them. In time will open their mind and give them his dream, instead of the dream they saw on television.

SOME HAVE ABANDONED DREAMS: Instead of saying, "This dream I have, there are many who now say, 'this dream I had' because they have abandoned their dreams. God given dreams never go away, regardless of the circumstance. Joseph was thrown in a pit, sold into slavery, served as leader of Potiphar's house, locked up in prison and finally rose to prominence in Egypt, but the dream never went away, but the dream he had was not of his own making; it came from God.

There are many who have abandoned their dreams because the pursuit of the dream seemed too far reaching.

Is there anything too hard for God?

Is the possibility of failure so great that you believe that you and God cannot over come its threat?

Solomon Northup, in his book "12 years a slave" told of his refusal to give up on the dream of seeing his wife and children again, despite the horrors of slavery. He was beaten, sold away and abused, but he never stopped dream.

The rock group Fleetwood Mack, captured this idea in their song, "Don't stop thinking about tomorrow!"- Which became the theme song of Bill Clinton's presidential campaign in 1992. Yesterday's gone, it'll be better, don't stop thinking about tomorrow!

If we carry our dreams to full term, despite our fear of failure and discovery, God will bless us for the act of faith even though he frowned on the weakness that prompted our failure in the first place.

DON'T LET SATAN STEAL YOUR DREAM: Despite the criticism of his brothers,

Joseph would not allow their disbelief to steal his dream. Neither would he allow their personal attacks and deep pits to dissuade him.

Too many among us have stopped dreaming. We have given up altogether.

We once dreamed of owning a business, graduating from college or breaking the ceiling in one area of another. We ran into a few road blocks and some gave up. We see thousands of people today who live like mindless zombies with no hope, ambition, or dream. The devil stole their dreams.

Barak Obama and Hillary Clinton electrified the nation when the campaigned for the presidency in 2008 because of one thing; they helped people to dream again.

African-Americans were once again dreaming about possibilities. Women were once again dreaming that barriers could be overcome. The devil stole our dreams from us. Someone closed a door in our faces because were black or a woman or handicapped and some gave up. The devil stole our dreams from us the year we failed to graduate from high school, had a child out of wedlock, or faced failure in business or careers. Some rose to their feet in the aftermath, but many are still down.

God dreams persist

Finally, brothers and sisters we must come to the point that we remember that every believer that God given dreams are God powered dreams.

Joseph challenged his brothers to listen to his God given dream, and they watched as God empowered the dream over the years.

Dr. King and countless others who have lifted their voices to tell the world about 'this dream I have."

We must hear Frederick Douglass dreaming of our eventual freedom from slavery.

We must hear Booker T. Washington dreaming of the skilled and trained Negro workforce.

We must hear W.E.B. Dubois dreaming of the day when our thinking and intelligence would be self evident.

We must hear Marcus Garvey dreaming of the day when we would be proud of our blackness.

We must hear A. Phillip Randolph dreaming of the day when the working man of color would get his fair share.

We must hear Malcolm X dreaming of a day that we will thirst for freedom by any means necessary.

We must hear Harriet Tubman dreaming of a day, when journeys into slave country would no longer be needed.

We must hear Shirley Chisholm dreaming about a day when our leaders will be boss, black and unbought.

We must hear Jesse Jackson dreaming of the day when we move from the outhouse to the White house.

We must hear Thurgood Marshall dreaming of the day when justice will run down like waters from the Supreme Court

We must hear Condoleeza Rice, dreaming of a day when black women can become advisors to presidents.

We must hear General Colin Powell dreaming of a day when we shall study war no more.

Every believer must not forget the dream and what it really means.

We must say in the words of James Weldon Johnson:

God of our weary years, God of our silent tears. Thou who has brought us thus far along the way.

Thou who has by the might, led us into the light, keep us forever in the path we pray.

Lest our feet, stray from the places our God where we met thee.

Lest our hearts, drunk of the world we forget thee.

Shadowed beneath thy hand, may we forever stand. True to our God; true to our native land!

Every believer must remember that Godly dreams are made possible by the grace of God!

It is a saving grace that was forged in the beginning and finalized on a hill call Calvary!

It is a saving grace that was forged in the crucible of disparaging words, a crown of thorns and an old rugged cross!

It is a saving grace that could not be killed by nails, spears or mocking crowds!

It is a saving grace that revealed itself Early Sunday morning and even today inspires every believer to say, “this dream I have, the world didn’t give it and the world can’t take it away.”

No. 9625-Inspiration

Living after God's own heart

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

January 26, 2014

SCRIPTURE:"But now thy kingdom shall not continue: the Lord hath sought him a man after his own heart, and the LORD hath commanded him[to be] captain over his people because thou has not kept that which the Lord commanded thee. 1 Samuel 13:14

Introduction

How well do you know your own heart? Most of us suppose that we know our own natures, but do we really? Until we are tested in the crucible of circum stance we don't really know our strength or weakness. Until our lofty precepts are tried in the fires of reality we only have a clinical view of ourselves. Only those who have been tested know whether their nature is steel or mush.

It is easy for the man who has never felt the churning pains of hunger in his belly to point a finger at the man who steals a loaf of bread. It's just as easy for the man who has never been the object of the flirtations of an extremely attractive woman to pass judgment on one who has fallen victim and cheats on his wife. Likewise, it is easy for those who have felt the lugubrious sting of failure, isolation, abandonment and despair to shake their heads in disbelief at those who take their own lives or that of others.

We don't really know ourselves until the very moment that the values we profess are tested. We claim honesty as a virtue, it is tested when we pay our taxes. We claim humility until our pride is attacked, our honor questioned or our valor is placed in doubt. We don't what we do when faced with an angry and condemning public until the first stone is cast. Then we learn who we really are and strength of our natures.

There are a few people who are close to us who know us. Often they know us better than we know ourselves. These are the ones who are deceived by our outer appearance but know our nature. Sometimes it's a mother, a sibling or a spouse; but always God knows.

It is true, God knows us better than we know ourselves. He knows our thoughts, motives, fears and aspirations. Psalm 139:2 says "Thou knowest my downsitting and my uprising, thou understandest my thoughts afar off." God is not impressed with our exterior but he is concerned with our interior. God knows our hearts.

As Christians, we want to be more like Jesus. We want to be lost in His will and strong in our faithfulness of service. When we do that we truly be said be living after God's own heart.

Exposition

In this text David is described as man after God's own heart, despite his imperfections.

Saul had amassed a large Army to fight the Philistines. He sent for the Prophet Samuel to come and offer sacrifices to God to insure the victory. When, after seven days, Samuel had not arrived, Saul took it upon himself to offer the sacrifices. When Samuel arrived he learned what Saul had done and announced that God would punish Saul by ending his rule and would raise up a new leader, "A man after God's own heart."- A man willing to follow the will of God.

David did not have the physical attributes that appealed to the eye of men but he had a spirit that was inclined to do the will of God. It was that submissive spirit that made him a man after God's own heart. In contrast, Saul was strong willed and wanted to advance his own agenda

He was not perfect. He was flawed. He was an adulterer and a murderer.

Although David was obviously a lawbreaker there were three aspects of his life that made him a man after God's own heart:

—He paid strict attention to the law and worship of God.

— He admitted in the whole of his conduct, that God was King in Israel, and that he himself was but his servant.

—He was willing to carry out God's will despite his imperfections.

The phrase referred to his public conduct with respect to God, it is not an acceptance of his behavior as godly.

Living to please God

One of the Christian goals is to live lives that are pleasing to God.

THE GODLY ARE NOT PERFECT: If David's life is an example, it shows us that godly people are NOT perfect. There is a constant struggle among believers to walk the tightrope of faith. Temptations are everywhere. Like everyone else believers have demons that they fight to control. From time to time they pop up their ugly heads and the public sees them. Some have sexual appetites that would displease their friends in the faith if they knew their secret desires. Others have desires for fame and popularity that are so compelling that they often are tempted to cross the line of morality to acquire them. Greed is a dark passion that constantly tempts believers to toy with the prospect of embezzlement, tax cheating, and theft. The list of dark passions include feelings of insecurity, fear, and doubt. For some they include a secret desire to do crazy things and to flirt with danger and the unknown. This is often reflected in our choices of reading material, videos and collectibles that in some cases may be hidden away in private closets, websites and safe deposit boxes, protected by pass codes, keys and life locks.

To combat these secret demons Christians pray constantly for ourselves and for others whom we see are caught in the vicious circle. That's why we like to sing:

Yield not to temptation, for yielding is sin;?Each vict'ry will help you some other to win;?Fight manfully onward, dark passions subdue;?Look ever to Jesus, He'll carry you through.

Ask the Savior to help you; Comfort, strengthen, and keep you; He is willing to aid you, He will carry you through.

THE GODLY TRY TO FOLLOW GOD'S WILL: David, despite his flaws, wanted to carry out the will of God for his life. He knew God had raised him to his position for a divine purpose and it troubled him that he did not reflect that purpose in his living; yet he never tried to excuse his flaws by trying to make them divinely acceptable.

Sometimes we can get twisted views of God's will. A woman stood in front of the judge and tried to explain her strange habits. "Your honor she began, the Lord told me to do it. Before I left home I told the Lord to show me what to do. I opened my bible and I pointed to a verse that said, 'my God shall supply all your needs.' When I saw them pork chops laying there and nobody was looking I knew Lord laid them out there for me." The judge listened as the woman continued. "About that ring. Just before I left home I opened my bible and pointed to a verse that said, The Lord is my shepherd and I shall not want. When I saw that ring I wanted it. It was so shiny. I took it because the bible told me I shall not want." The judge praised the woman for her belief in God. Then asked her to come to the bench where she kept her bible open to the Ten Commandments. The judge said, point right here. The woman touched the bible and the judge said, "God's got another message for you, you pointed to thou shalt not steal. You got two years in jail!"

The Godly don't try to justify their flawed actions. Like David, they admit their flaws and return to their pursuit of his righteousness.

THE GODLY PRAY FOR RESTORATION: David recognized his own flaw and rather than make excuses or blame others, he asked for restoration. God restores us in two ways.

When we have failed or have become frustrated, it is God's presence that lifts up our bowed down head. Sometimes our failure is caused by our own sin. When David sinned he cried out, Create in me a clean heart, Oh God! and God restored him.

Often our weaknesses have caused us considerable loss, yet God also restores us. Sometimes our faith tests have resulted in losses, much like Job who lost considerable possession and family members. God did not bring back what was loss but restored his possessions and rebuilt his family to a point that it exceeded what he had loss in the beginning.?

We should be encouraged that God restores that which is lost to a believer and does it in a way that will better prepare him to promote the kingdom of God; often bigger and grander than before.

David was considered a man after God's own heart because though he was a flawed man, he continued to pray for restoration.

Our prayer should reflect the lyrics of Margaret Douroux who wrote,"I'm not asking for the riches of this land, And I'm not asking for men in high places to know my name.?Please— give me, Lord, a clean heart that I may follow Thee.

Living after God's Heart

Finally, brothers and sisters we should remember that those who live "after God's own heart" have learned to walk with the Lord.

Despite his imperfections, David never stopped walking with the Lord. That's what made him a man after God's own heart.

Guiding his fathers flocks as a shepherd, he walked with the Lord.

Slaying Goliath with his slingshot, he walked with the Lord!

Even when caught in his sin, he acknowledge his sin, asked for forgiveness and continued walking with the Lord.

If we walk with the Lord, He will give us strength for the journey.

If we walk with the Lord, we may meet sorrow, but God will take sorrow and turn it into joy!

If we walk with the Lord, we may make mistakes, but He will forgive and give us new chances!

No wonder the song writer declared, "Walk with me Lord, walk with me! While I'm on this tedious journey, Lord I want Jesus to walk with me!"

I don't know about you, but I have decided to keep my hand in God's hands!

If we walk with the Lord, we may meet defeat, but God will take defeat and turn it into victory!

If we walk with the Lord, we may meet confusion, but God will take confusion and turn it into understanding!

If we walk with the Lord, we may meet hard times, but God will take hard times and turn them into good times!

If we walk with the Lord, he'll lift us up when we stumble!

While I'm on this tedious journey, I've got to tell somebody...

I've got to tell somebody about Jesus!

I've got to tell them how He gave me brand new walk and a brand new talk!

I've got to tell somebody how He died out on Calvary!

I've got to tell somebody how He arose early Sunday morning!

His name is Jesus!

He walks with me and talks me!

If He walks with me..I shall not faint!

No. 9626-Men

My Father's Name

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 2014

SCRIPTURE: And I appeared unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, by the name of God Almighty, but by my name JEHOVAH was I not known to them. Exodus 6:3

Introduction

How old were you before you learned that your father had a name other than Daddy? There are many who didn't discover that diddly until they were six or seven years old. It just understood that mama's husband was called daddy.

Social scientists tell us that we get the name dad in a strange way: it most likely comes from the babbling on an infant who says "Da Da." Comics say that smart women tell their husbands that when the babu makes the sound "Da Da" that the child is calling for its father. When the mothers say the baby is calling for his dada, they always find that the father is not shy about saying that she is telling the truth. Dada seems to be the name for father in every language. In a Latin country daddy may be called Padre, but the baby still says dada. In America we may say, Father, but every infant says dada.

As we grow older dada becomes "Daddy" and finally, "Dad."

Dr. James Dobson once said that one the strongest memories he had was that of a child who said with his eyes, " Would you be a daddy to me?"

We have variety of names for father. Willam Buel Franklin says: If he's wealthy and prominent, and you stand in awe of him, call him "Father." If he sits in his shirt sleeves and suspenders at a ball game and picnic, call him "Pop." If he wheels the baby carriage and carries bundles meekly, call him "Papa" (with the accent on the first syllable). If he belongs to a literary circle and writes cultured papers, call him "Papa" (with the accent on the last syllable).

If, however, he makes a pal of you when you're good and is too wise to let you pull the wool over his loving eyes when you're not; if, moreover, you're quite sure no other fellow you know has quite so fine a father, you may call him "Dad."

There are many who don't celebrate Father's Day because their memories of father are not flattering. To some, father is just the name on a child support check, a blank line on a birth certificate, or a weekend visitor, but not a loving presence.

This thinking is reflected in many popular songs over the years. Lowell Folsum started it all with a song called Tramp in which he criticized his father severely but praised him for being a lover. Otis Redding and Carla Thomas later came out with their version of Tramp with Redding saying he had no money, bragged much and had little but he too was a lover.

Joe Tex also sampled Lowell Folsum's song with a popular song called, Papa was too. In it Papa was projected as a man who was poor, wouldn't work and covered the holes of his shoes with the daily news. His redeeming factor? He was a lover.

That may be why some angry mothers say, You just like your daddy! They mean it as an insult not a compliment.

Ironically, the first words out of the mouth of a spiritual babe is not dada, God or our Father. When we speak the word Father, God or Jesus we are speaking into existence our faith and trust in The Lord of the universe.

He has one name, but we call him by many names. They all mean he is our heavenly father. Just as a babe says dada and it means God, when we speak the name of Jesus, we call upon God, our Heavenly Father.

As Christians, we rejoice in the knowledge that God is as close to us as a godly father is to his son. We don't call daddy or dada, but we call Jesus, the son of the living God.

Exposition

This text focuses on God speaking to Israel to Moses describing how he will relate to them in the immediate future.

The Israelites were unique in their faith and belief in one God. They were familiar with God, but that familiarity was largely as El-Shaddai, the one who provided for all their needs.

In this text God prepares to move their knowledge and experience with him up to another level. The word "known" goes beyond simple intellectual knowledge. It implies an interaction such as in Amos 3:2 which says, "You only have I known of all the families of the earth." The new way Israel was about to know God would be not as El-shadda, but as Jehovah.

Israel would now know God as a partner in a covenant relationship with Israle as the one who will deliver them from Egypt and redeem the nation from its sins.

Jehovah is God's name. He revealed to Moses on Mt. Sinai when Moses asked him. God responded to the request with the words, "I am that I am." -Which means Yaweh or Jehovah.

The new God all along, but now they would know him in a more intimate way as the loving father committed to their deliverance.

Knowing father

It takes time for children to know their fathers; in that time they will become more than familiar with the various personality nuances that make their fathers so wonderful.

A KNOWING FATHER: It takes time for fathers to know their children and vice-versa. Absentee fathers reduce themselves to a name on a child support check or photograph on the wall. Too many have no relationships with their children. John

Ortberg, in his book The Life You Always Wanted, describes how we often feel when he writes:

I look in on my children as they sleep at night, and I think of the kind of father I want to be.

I want to create moments of magic; I want them to remember laughing until the tears flow.

I want to have slow, sweet talks with them as they're getting ready to close their eyes.

I want to chase fireflies with them, teach them to play tennis, have food fights, and hold them and pray for them in a way that makes them feel cherished.

I look in on them, he writes, and I remember how the day really went.

To know our heavenly father, Ortberg's idea still remains true, we must be willing to chase fireflies with him; that means to spend quality time with him where they only purpose is fellowship. This is done in worship, prayer and moments of meditation. It's what the song writer had in mind with the words, "I come to the garden alone, while the dew is still on the roses and the voice I hear falling on my ear, the son of God discloses. And he walks with me and he talks with me and he tells me I am his own. And the joy we share as we tarry there, none other, has ever known."

A TRUSTED FATHER: Children must be able to know that their fathers can be trusted. It is the essential nature of fatherhood to be a protector and provider. When children are sure about their father's love they rest easy and grow up happy and secure in their feeling. A child that has complete faith in his father is blessed. Fathers who the recipients of such faith are blessed as well. They trust that no matter what the problem, that their father will take care of the matter.

They never doubt for a second that their father has the ability to secure what they need. When a child prays to his heavenly father, it is the same. He/she has no doubt that God can answer their prayer. Adult believers must approach God as children in this respect. We must believe that no matter what our concern God can handle it and has the power to deal with it in the way that we ask.

A FATHER WHO HELPS: Fathers are providers and helpers. Every child should have a memory of being helped by their father in life, love and future. Fatherhood in this respect is a good thing because children know that they ask their father for anything an expect, if its in his will, that he will respond favorably. Roy Buck tells the story of a little boy who was tugging at a big rock and doing his best to lift it. He was grunting and pulling at it but it didn't budge. His father came along and asked him if he was having any trouble. He said, Yes, I am trying and trying and can't move the rock. The father said to him, Well, son, are you using all available energy? The boy replied, Yes, Father, I think I am. Then the dad looked at him and said, No, son, I don't think you are, for you haven't asked for my help.An important life lesson is that asking for help is usually a good idea.

Asking God is even better.

A personal relationship

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that we may have a variety of names for fathers, but what is important is that we have a personal relationship with them, just as we have with the Lord.

When we have a personal relationship with the Lord we are able to call his name with confidence that he will respond.

It's good to be able to call his name because there is power in his name. Maybe that's why Jesus told us that when we pray we should say, "Our father, which art in heaven!"

Let me tell you what can happen when you call on our father.

Those who have called on our faber have:

—won more victories

— Accomplished more feats

— Solved more problems and witnessed better results than anyone ever expected!

Our Father can:

—Make a difficult job a delight

—Make a bad marriage good!

—Make a feeble back strong!

—Turn a burden into a blessing

—Obstacle into an opportunity

If the world would just trust our father there is no telling what enemy can be turned into a friend or defeat that cannot be reversed…if we just call on the Lord!

That's why it's important for every believer to know that Lord for himself.

Every Man must know the Lord!

Every woman must know the Lord!

It's important to know many things in life, but when it comes to your soul salvation, you've got to know the Lord for yourself.

You might be able to explain that there are 66 books in the Bible, 39 in the Old and 27 in the New, but you must know the Lord for yourself!

You may be able to explain that the Bible contains books of prophecy, literature, history and doctrine, but you must also know the Lord for yourself!

You may be able to explain that the Bible has 3,586,489 letters 773,692 words, 31,173 verses, and 1,189 chapters but you must also know the Lord.

You may know that the longest verse in the Bible is Esther 8:9, and the shortest in the English language is John 11:35 Jesus Wept but you must also know Lord for yourself!

When you know the Lord for Yourself, you know that when you are:

—Sick, He will be a Doctor in your sickroom!

—In Trouble, He will be a Lawyer in your courtroom!

—Lost and confused, He will make a way out of no way!

—Hungry and thirsty, He will feed you with bread on high. That's why the old warriors cried out Bread of Heaven, Bread of Heaven, feed me till I want no more!

When you know the Lord for yourself, you know He will pick you up when you are stumbling!

When you know the Lord for yourself He will plant your feet on solid ground!

When you know the Lord for yourself, He will give you a new song to sing, a new walk to walk and a new talk to talk!

No wonder the song writer says, You got to know Jesus, know God for yourself! You got to know Jesus, you don't need nobody else!

Every saint should keep telling the world about the words of God, but we should also let the world know that we know Lord ourselves!

Tell them about Jesus!

Tell them how He lived on this Earth for 33 long years!

Tell them how He bore an old rugged cross!

Tell them how He died out on Calvary!

But, don't forget to tell them that, early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave with all power in His hands!

No. 9627-Inspiration

Put your game face on

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 2, 2014

SCRIPTURE: Have I not commanded you? Be strong and courageous. Do not be terrified; do not be discouraged, for the Lord your God will be with you wherever you go." Joshua 1:9

Introduction

Have you ever faced a tough situation that was make or break, win or lose? Those are the times when you felt like David facing Goliath. Facing tough situations requires a degree of courage and faith far beyond the ordinary.

Often our faces reflect the intensity of our focus on a situation. The enemy knows how to read faces for signs of fear and doubt. Two boxers who stand in the ring look each other in the face and growl at each other with the purpose of intimidating the other. One walks away with greater fear or with a renewed sense of strength. Players in a Poker game constantly watch the faces of the players at the table for signs that could lead them to victory.

Football players assume an intense focus on the game ahead that is usually referred to as their "game face." Contrary to popular opinion, football and basketball players don't usually put on their game face at the game, but in the weeks prior to game. During the game itself there is a different face the world sees.

If you walked into a professional sports locker room an hour before the start of a big game, you'd be surprised by the number of athletes who are in an easygoing state — playing videogames, lost in their music headphones, or, quite often, unconscious in a chair, grabbing a quick snooze. It would probably surprise many not familiar with it because we have been led to believe that we should approach Big Moments such championships, recitals or important meetings — with a mindset of gritted, focused intensity that we know as "the game face."

The pros say that we have it all wrong. They say practice is the right time for intensity and scowls; performance is the time for lightness and ease. Practice is the place to stretch, to make mistakes and fix them. It's the time to reach and repeat, over and over, until you've built the reliable skill. It's the place to experience and embrace the effortful frustration that's part of the building process.

The game face is for the practice. It is your preparation for the big fight, game or challenge.

On the field what is important is not your game face, but your performance. In the game you are not trying to prepare, you are trying to fight the fight. You are trying to be alert, and to react to all possibilities. The mindset for these situations is to be light, attentive and focused on the moment.

In the 1989 Super Bowl, Joe Montana, the 49ers quarterback who led 31 fourth-quarter comebacks in his career, in the fourth quarter with three minutes left and his team down by three points, he unexpectedly lifted his head from the huddle and stared into the stands — he'd spotted a familiar face from television. "Hey," Montana said, "Isn't that John Candy?" His teammates were in disbelief. But it makes perfect sense, because Montana had the right game face on: relaxed, attentive, and open. The 49ers went on to win the game in 20-16. The game has been listed as one of the top ten super bowl games of all times.

The pros put on their game face for their practices and preparation. Ironically, we often do it just the opposite, we treat the game as if it is the super bowl and often skip the practices or treat them lightly.

Facing the giants of life requires game face intensity and preparation. We prepare for challenges, difficulties, sickness, death, and family troubles prior to the actual occurrences. We prepare through prayer, bible study and worship. When the big moments come, it's time to execute.

Courage has many faces. It is the family that is dealing with terminal cancer. It's a spouse dealing with approaching Alzheimer's. It's the widow facing her last years without her husband. It's a child struggling to survive a bitter divorce. It's a family facing financial disaster as the bills come due, but the money runs out.

We prepare for these situations when we see them coming through intense preparation. That's when we put our game face on. When the moment actually arrives that's the time to remember our preparation, relax and let God do what He promised to do for us.

As Christians, we face each obstacle in front of us with the faith and knowledge that we have been prepared for battle and that our Lord will be with us every step of the way.

Exposition

This text focuses on Joshua as he is told by God to prepare for a great day; a great show of God's provision for his people

For Joshua, the time following the death of Moses was an extremely difficult time. For 40 years, Moses led the children of Israel. He made the big plays. It was Moses whom God used to bring down the 10 plagues of judgment on Egypt. It was Moses whom God used to stretch forth his rod over the Red Sea and cause the waters to roll back. It was Moses who prayed to God for the people to receive bread from heaven in the wilderness and delivered God's ten commandments. Now, Moses was dead and Joshua was the quarterback. God reassured Joshua that he would stand with him, just as he had stood with Moses. He was told to prepare for a victory; "This day will I magnify thee in the sight of all Israel."

Joshua went forth into the Promised Land with an intense focus on his instructions, but knowing exactly what God would do. He prepared to work the game plan. Under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit Joshua made many bold moves: The Jordan rolled back, the Walls of Jericho fell and it became obvious, day after day, that God seemed to work with Joshua to pull off mighty acts of faith, to the point that the people came to expect him to be a man used by God to make the big plays in their national life.

Joshua went forward with confidence and the look of courage on his face because God had promised to be with him where he went in life.

Game face situations

Christians have faced many challenging experiences in life, all of which have required them to put on their spiritual game face.

WE FACE DANGER WITH COURAGE: Prior to beginning his ministry, Jesus went into the wilderness for 40 days and 40 nights. There he prayed and prepared for the danger that was to come. He faced it with what appeared to be a calmness and remarkable self-control. In the wilderness he put his game face on. When he stepped forth, the world saw the face of courage. Joshua 1:6-7 says, "Be strong and courageous, because you will lead these people to inherit the land I swore to their forefathers to give them. Be strong and very courageous. Be careful to obey all the law my servant Moses gave you; do not turn from it to the right or to the left, that you may be successful wherever you go,"

When times get tough and you can't see your way, it's time to put our game face on!

When you look for help but only get hurt, it's time to put hour game face on!

When you seek satisfaction but only see sorrow ahead, it's time to put our game face on!

When you look for hope, but only get messages of despair, it's time to put your game face on!

Facing the fiery furnace, the three Hebrew Boys, put on their game faces and told the world our God is able to deliver us.

Facing a den of lions, Daniel put his game face on and remained confident that God could turn lions into kittens.

David met the cold hand of death many times, but he put on his game face and resolved, "Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil. "

WE MUST FACE INTIMIDATION WITH FAITH: As defensive and offensive players face each other at the line of scrimmage in a football game, one side tries to intimidate the other with scowls, frowns and threats. In some cases there are threats of bodily injury and, at the least, pain. Intimidated players usually fail to do their best in such situations. Life does the same thing to believers, but we are encouraged to be unmoved by intimidating presences. Joshua 1:9 says, "Have I not commanded you? Be strong and courageous. Do not be terrified; do not be discouraged, for the Lord your God will be with you wherever you go." If we are intimidated, we already defeated. "You can't achieve a victory if you are afraid of losing the game." A running back will never score touchdowns if he's afraid of being hit. A race car driver will never win a race if he's afraid he might turn over. A businessman will never achieve success unless he ventures into the unknown. We cannot be afraid to step out on faith. So, what's stopping you from achieve that goal? What's holding you back? It's usually our lack of faith. Don't refuse to pluck a rose because it is surrounded by thorns, try and let God do the rest. Face intimidation with faith and go forth with confidence that God will make a way.

FACE THE IMPOSSIBLE WITH OPTIMISM: There are times when it seems that all is lost, but we should face those situations with optimism. In Super Bowl 44 The Saints were behind Indianapolis by a score of 10-0. It was an impossible situation, but the Saints went into the record books by winning 31-17. It demonstrated a never give up spirit. That's the same spirit that every believer should take into the game of life. 2 Timothy 1:7 says, "For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind."

There is a courageous spirit that flows from the heart of the godly. That courageous spirit doe not mean that believers are never afraid, it means that they have the strength to do what must be done in the face of danger, ridicule or failure. Courage should not be confused with thoughtless actions, knee jerk responses, and foolish acts of bravado.

The courageous know what is right and after considering the costs decide to do what needs to be done to right a wrong, protect against evil or to bring about a rightful conclusion to a situation. Though the odds are great, courageous believers put on a positive game face and step out to claim the victory. Believers who have put their lives in God's hands develop a strong faith and capacity to boldly try what has never been tried and to go where no man has gone before.

We don't face the future alone

Finally, we must consider that we must face the days ahead with confidence that victory is within reach because we are on God's side.

The word says, I will not fear what ever comes.

This should be the attitude of every believer as we look at the prospects of beginning new directions or charting new courses of action.

Believers take courage as we face the unknown because we know the Lord has promised never to leave us alone!

Are you facing trouble or difficulty, put your game face on, and remember God will never leave us!

Put your game face on because If we fall upon misfortune his words remain true, I will never leave thee!

Put your game face on because If we fall upon disgrace or public scorn because we stand for him, his word remains true, I will never leave thee!

Put your game face on because If we fall into sickness or despair his promise is still true, I will never leave thee!

Put you game face on because there are times coming when family and friends will turn on you, but faith still holds true, I will never leave thee!

In the crucible of hard times, I have learned never to give up hope.

We must keep hope alive because without hope:

—There is no light at the end of the tunnel

—There is no rainbow at the end of a storm!

—There is no rest at end of exhausting day!

Put your game face on because our God can make the —IMPOSSIBLE become possible;

—IMPROBABLE become probable;

—Mountains that stand in your way be reduced to molehills!

—Rough places plain and the crooked places straight!

Put on your game face and step out with confidence that come what may from day to day! My heavenly father watches over me!

If I fall down, he'll pick me up!

If I make a mistake, he will forgive me!

If I stumble, he'll hold my hand!

If I cant find my way, he'll guide me! That's why I'll say, "Guide me oh thou great Jehovah, pilgrim through this barren land. I am weak but thou art mighty; hold me with thou powerful hand! "

The same hand that touched a blind man's eyes!

The same hand that healed a lame man and made him walk!

The same hands that were nailed to an old rugged cross in death..

Were the same ones raised in victory early Sunday morning!

Put your game face on everyday, for now we see through a glass darkly, but one of the these days, we won't need a game face, because we will see him face to face!

No. 9628-Inspiration

Wonderful Blessings Direct from God's throne

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 8, 2014

SCRIPTURE: The LORD hath done great things for us; whereof we are glad Psalm 126:3

Introduction

Have you ever stopped to think how God has wonderfully blessed our people? Sometimes, in the midst of our complaining we actually forget how good God has been to us. Despite the difficulties of our past, and obstacles that have been placed in our way we have been blessed in a wondrous way. We who were once slaves have made the treacherous climb out of physical bondage, forded the streams of racism and survived the bitterness of genocide and economic depravation. We have come a mighty long way.

The world has seen wondrous works that have resulted from the mind and soul of people of African ancestry. Despite our past, our accomplishments have been many and our contribution to the American culture has been great.

In 1926 Carter G. Woodson began the observance of Negro History Week as a week of helping African-Americans to become aware of our contributions to America and emphasizing our potential. Without an Act of Congress or a Presidential decree, Negro History week became a national observance beginning on the second Sunday of February. Woodson pushed the small observance and noted, "If a race has no history, it has no worthwhile tradition, it becomes a negligible factor in the thought of the world, and it stands in danger of being exterminated."

In 1976 President Gerald Ford urged the country to recognize Black History for an entire month and Negro History received its official government endorsement fifty years after it began. Now, for one month, it appears the nation tolerates African-American expression of race pride without tagging those expressions as "racism." Anything after that appears to be unacceptable.

When African-American Christians look back over our past, in the context of our racial struggle, we see clearly the accomplishments of our people in biblical times through the black people of Kenya, home of the Garden of Eden, or through Simon of Cyrene the Black man who carried the cross for Jesus. When we read God's word we see the the record of the wondrous work that God gave the world through people of African descent.

We should never forget his wondrous works, timely intervention, and the uninterrupted flow of blessings that have fallen upon us from the throne of God.

As Christians, we remember God's compassion and benevolence. We see his hand and mercy and give him praise for he has done wondrous works for those whose journey began in the land of Ham!

Exposition

This text focuses on David as he points to the sufficient reason that he has to be glad!

David had sufficient reason to be glad. His life was filled with outward signs of God's blessing hand.

From his rise from a mere shepherd boy to his powerful command of the armies of Israel, David had plenty to be glad about.

David pointed out in this text that the source of his gladness is the goodness of the Lord. This is the source of his great expressions of gladness which ranged from dancing in the street when he brought home the Ark of the Covenant or writing songs of praise. Gladness was a way of life with David. In this psalm David expresses gladness that God returned Israel from its captivity and brought laughter and joy to its lips instead of sorrow.

Even the enemies of the nation, described as the heathen took note of how God blessed them. David lifted God in praise for his how blessings and urged the nation to praise God because his actions toward them made them glad.

His journey from shepherd boy to king had been great; so was his praise because he had been wonderfully blessed.

Blessed Enough

We celebrate our heritage as a people because we recognize how far God has brought us and how much he has blessed us:

HE HAS BLESSED OUR JOURNEY: Despite the problems we face today God's hand is blessing our journey as a people. We relate to the children of Israel in the bible because they were once slaves and so were we. Likewise, they often failed to see how God perpetually blessed them despite their circumstance. They saw the obstacle of the Red Sea, but quickly forgot how God liberated a whole race from slavery. They saw Pharaoh's army attacking them, but they failed to remember how God prevented them from being attacked by placing a pillar of fire between them and the army.

At the Red Sea, they had reached a point of no return with their backs seemingly against the wall and God opened up a way out of no way.

Even today, we sometimes complain about the obstacles that are set before us without seeing the varied ways that God has caused the walls to tumbledown. Whether it was legal slavery, the separate but equal doctrine of Plessey versus Ferguson or the Brown versus the Topeka Kansas school board decision, it is obvious that each time we came before our Red Sea experience or faced destruction by the approaching armies of our enemies, God has stood in the gap on our behalf.

Every battle we have fought, we have done so realizing the presence of God without whom no victory could have been won.

IN HIS TIME GOD INTERVENED: Our history has taught us as a people that God intervened at the time of his choosing and in the manner that his will prescribes. Often rather than making sweeping changes, God chose to deal with us one day at a time, according to his time schedule; not ours.

On the journey from what Dr. John Hope Franklin calls "..Slavery to Freedom" God's presence was noted. Some wonder why He simply did not rain down the blessings needed for our people all at once instead of the trickle we seemed to enjoy. On Israel's journey, He could have provided them with large reserves of food and water, but in the meantime they would have forgotten about him. So, He chose to provide their blessings one day at a time. In the morning He provided them Manna. In the evening He provided fresh quail meat every day without fail. On the Sabbath He gave them enough to sustain them for two days.

If God had blessed us all at once, today we would not be a people who are close to God even when we are sinning. In our worst historic characters, at the core, there was a sense of respect for God. As a people we have stayed close to God, even though each generation seems to threaten to cut the umbilical cord that connects us.

Today, believers should look at Israel and remember how God works. He provides exactly what every believer needs, one day at a time. There is a storehouse, but it is not on earth. He maintains the warehouse that stores our blessings and delivers them on a daily schedule. Each day when we rise, it shouldn't take us long to recognize that God is blessing us. Each day, believers live and walk by faith. Whether the blessing we receive each day is a dollar or a dime....they still come, one day at a time.

GOD'S HAND HAS GUIDED US: As a people Israel constantly retold the story of their journey. When crossing the Jordan Joshua placed 12 stones on the shore as a marker for generations to come so that everyone would know how God helped the people to march toward the Promised Land. Today, whether it is during Black History month or in the sweltering heat of July, we need to tell all who will listen about the road we've traveled. Anyone who is attempting to move forward in life should be aware of the ground that has already been covered. There are many people who move through life like the person who sleeps through a long journey and awakens upon arrival. They know where they came from but have no idea what terrain they traveled. Each generation of any race should seek to learn about it's journey and to leverage that information in ways that help the present learn from the past. If we do not know the mistakes of the past we may be doomed to repeat them. Also, if we don't know the successes of the past, if we repeat them we think we are breaking new ground.

More importantly, we should know that every step of our journey as a people has been guided by the hand of God.

Wonderfully blessed

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that our people have been the recipients of God's blessing for generations and those blessings continue today.

God has used many people and situations to help us over the years, but we should never lose sight of the fact that it wasn't our wit, ingenuity or imagination that has brought us thus far, but the power of the almighty God.

Our faith in God has helped us to withstand the troubles of our of our history.

Our heritage is one that is filled with struggle and difficulty. Whether it has been our ethnic struggle as a people of color or as individuals striving to overcome our personal fights with life threatening situations, we have reason to celebrate because God has helped us to survive our difficulties and even to escape death itself.

It is no wonder then why the song writer would say, "If it had not been for the Lord on our side, tell me where would I be. Where would I be?"

By the thousands we have served as nannies and cooks, mentoring and tutoring generations of men and women who became the leaders of this country.

By the thousands we have worked by the sweat of our brows, tilling the fields, building the roads and fighting the battles for this nation's freedom!

By the thousands we have written the songs that have touched the heart of the nation and inspired it to move forward.

And yes, by the thousands we have given our blood.

We have shed so much blood that James Weldon Johnson wrote, "We have come over a way that with tears has been watered, We have come, treading our path through the blood of the slaughtered."

Yet, we stand today to sing gallantly, "I know the Lord will make a way!"

Who will tell the story of how God brought us a mighty long way?

Who will tell the story of how we marched through hardship and trouble into this present day?

Who will be willing to face tomorrow with confidence and say like Joshua, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord!"

I don't know what tomorrow will bring, but I know what God has done in the past. I know what God is doing right now!

"I do not know how long it will be or what the future holds for me, but this I know, if Jesus leads me, I will get home someday!

It doesn't matter what the future brings as long as the Lord is on our side! If the Lord is on our side there will never be a:

—CROSS that we won't be able to bear; MOUNTAIN that we won't be able to climb!

—ENEMY that we won't be able to defeat; BATTLE we won't be able to win!

—DARKNESS so dark that we won't be able to see the light!

—TRIAL that we can't make it through; TEST that we won't be able to pass!"

God has blessed us to stand on the rock of faith and testify to his greatness.

When we stand on the rock we are on secure ground. No wonder the song writer wrote: “On Christ the solid rock I stand, all other ground is sinking sand, I dare not trust the sweetest frame but wholly lean on Jesus name!”

On Christ, Mary’s baby and the lion of Judah!
On Christ, Ezekiel’s wheel in the middle of the wheel!
On Christ, My bridge over troubling water!
On Christ, who carried an old rugged cross to Calvary’s hill!
On Christ, Who died and was buried in a borrowed tomb for three days and nights!
And early Sunday morning arose from the grave, with all power in his hands!
On Christ the solid rock I stand, all other ground……
All other ground!
All other ground is sinking sand!

No.9629-Women

Blessed for Believing in God

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 16, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "And blessed is she that believed: for there shall be a performance of those things which were told her from the Lord." Luke 1:45

Introduction

Our community has been blessed by the presence of strong back women for generations; what is the secret of their strength? Samson was a strong man physically, but there was a secret to his strength. David stood before Goliath with only five stones a slingshot, but there was a secret to his strength as well. Esther stood boldly to champion the cause her people in a foreign court. What was the secret of her rise? Our history is replete with accounts of strong black women who withstood adversity, poverty and social annihilation to keep our families and communities together. While they appeared strong and fearless to the eye; they were just as vulnerable as the rest; yet they stood strong because they were held up by an unwavering belief in God.

No one saw her cry as she endured the sufferings of slavery, the pains of the great depression or humiliation of racial discrimination. No one saw the tears that dropped from her eyes as she scrubbed floors and waited tables and nursed the children of others. They saw a public face of strength, but secretly she leaned heavily on the Lord and believed that God would make a way.

Our community owes a debt of gratitude to black women because they are not only our mothers, but they are the network of first responders who help heal wounds in our community. In effect, every believing woman, regardless of race, is a social worker striving to respond to the needs of others, often to the neglect of their own.

We saw it first in the bible when Pharaoh gave a command to midwives to kill all the male Jewish babies. The women recognized that the order meant harm to the whole race and refused to do so. We saw it in Proverbs 31 as Solomon described the virtuous woman who rises early to not only take care of her family, but to care for others as well.

Women have been blessed for their sense of social responsibility that has led them to fight for change over the years. While the Civil War was being fought, Susie King Taylor and Harriet Tubman served as nurses. Thousands of others formed aide societies to help the poor and needy. Women such as Dorothy Height went beyond their own families and believed God for social change. Height led a national effort for civil rights after World War II, pushing for school desegregation, and voting rights. President Barack Obama called her the "Godmother of the civil rights movement." The roll call is endless, but all of these socially conscious women seemed to have one common thread; they believed that God would use them to make a difference.

Unwittingly, many have adopted the creed of the National Association of Black Social workers that challenges all socially conscious believers to: accept the responsibility to protect that Black community from individuals, organizations and practices that will hurt our race and to consciously use their skills in a way that will bring about social change one family at a time.

It seems that God has always touched a few women in every generation to answer this calling. No generation has been without great women who have championed our causes. However, the greatest champions are not in the history books. They are in our own families. Each family that looks into its own history won't have to look too long before it finds a long line of women who seemed to have been born for such a time as this.

As Christians, we salute the African-American woman for her sense of family and her spirit of social awareness that made her sensitive to the needs of others in our community. She has been sustained by her faith, and blessed by God because of her work.

Exposition

The words of this text were spoken to Mary as she pondered her role as the mother of the savior.

Mary was about 14 years old at the time she learned she was pregnant with the Christ Child. She was awed and afraid at learning that God had selected her for a divine pregnancy. "How can this be?" She asked. He answered her that the Holy Spirit would come upon her so that the child's conception would be divine. And then he gave Mary the added confirmation that nothing is impossible with God by telling her that her kinswoman Elizabeth who was old and barren was also pregnant.

When she saw her kinswoman Elizabeth, her soul leaped with joy. It was a confirmation of what the angel had said. She immediately recognized that God was about to change the course of all human history; the most important three decades in all of time were about to begin.

She was awed that God would occupy Himself with two obscure, humble women- one old and barren, one young and virginal.

Elizabeth said Mary was blessed because she believed God for his promises. She was blessed because she acted on her faith that God would surely perform what he promised.

Believing God

Our history reveals that we have been blessed because of the presence of believing, socially conscious women.

WOMEN OF FAITH RESPOND TO SOCIAL NEEDS: Elizabeth told Mary, "Blessed is she that believed." For Mary that meant her life would be directed in ways that would fulfill her mission. For black women historically it has meant that she has been shown ways to survive and thrive in every generation. Only because she was blessed was the black woman of our history able to take the scraps and turn them into gourmets. It was only because she was blessed that she could take breadcrumbs and turn them into dressing or bake possums and coons in giant pans and make them palatable by surrounding them with candied yams. Even today, it's only because she is blessed that she is able to juggle two jobs, care for her children and find time to fight cancer, feed the hungry and work with the church at the same time. God has blessed women with the sensitivity and ability to respond to social needs of their own families and then to others around them. A believing woman opens up her near empty purse to share with a hungry family. She feels the pain of homeless man and embraces hurting families near her. She may or may not have a degree from a college, but she senses the social needs of the people around her and cringes when injustice smothers one neighbor and when poverty strangles another. The woman of faith believes God will make a difference and acts. She is blessed not only because believed, but also because she responded.

WOMEN RESPONDERS HAVE BEEN BLESSED: Women who believe God are blessed continuously. The blessings that believing women receive come one day at a time. As they care for their own families and reach out to others, God takes care of them by providing for their needs on a daily basis. This is important to social responders who give so much of themselves to others. These are the believers who ascribe to the African Proverb "It takes a village to raise a child." They go even further, "It takes a village to save a family, heal a fallen warrior or help the wounded recover." The fact that God responds to the needs of responders daily answers the question, "While I'm taking care of the village, who takes care of me?" God blesses the social responder in the manner Jesus taught in the model prayer. Give us this day our daily bread. That means he gives us whatever we need for sustenance: food, clothing, shelter, emotional support or opportunity; one day at a time. As we act on each blessing we maintain the faith that the same God who provided bread and opportunity for us yesterday, will do the same today.

Believing women have learned to walk by faith. We trust that God will provide us with what we need, no more and no less. Since he has never let us down, we have no doubt that he will provide for us if we continue to live...one day at a time.

BELIEVING WOMEN ARE RISING: The world was blessed because of Mary's faith and today our communities are better because of women of faith who respond to social needs around them. Even women themselves are rising to an equal status in the mainstream of American community life. This rise is not accidental. It is the hand of God moving in the gender that is causing women to realize great success.

It is God's hand, moving in often unseen ways, that is putting the pieces of the puzzle together for women. God is lifting believing women into economic and social circles outside of their own community because they won't forget the huddled masses of their people who still need their help.

As they rise, believers who embrace God's law are shielded on all sides.

Believers who trust God have the assurance that God is protecting from all sides because God becomes a shield around those who trust him.

The knowledge that God is a shield about us helps us to feel secure in his hand. He is able to do for us what we cannot do for ourselves.

He can shield us on all sides because he can see the unseen dangers ahead; we cannot.

As women rise, they should not abandon the faith of the ages, that declares, "Rock of ages cleft for me, let me hide myself in thee."

That's why we rejoice in the knowledge God shields us on all sides.

Keep believing

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that women who reach out and touch others in faith must never lose sight that God is with them every day.

Every now and then women who help to heal the village, must share their testimonies with each other to encourage each other to continue their life's path

Those who have been touched by the hand of God perform a mighty work when they share what God has done in their lives with others.

There is nothing more encouraging to a person who faces the prospect of fighting cancer than to hear the testimony of a cancer survivor.

The encouraging words of persons who have overcome adversity serve as evidence that we too can do the same.

That's why it is important for every believer to share the benefit of their experiences in life with others.

Each time we testify about Gods greatness, power and strength, we provide a testimony that helps convince someone else that no matter how dark it gets, there is always a bright light in heaven.

Each time we testify, we say like the songwriter, He touched me, he touched me.

And oh the joy that floods my soul.

Something happened and now I know he touched me and made me whole.

As we look back on our history, we should consider ourselves unworthy recipients of God's grace. We should greatly praise the Lord because it is He who has helped us.

God is greatly to be praised because in our Egypt experience He fed and sustained us!

God is greatly to be praised because he made a way for us out of no way!

God is greatly to be praised because even today, He is blessing us!

Every day, God is blessing us!

Every day, God is still opening doors!
Every day, God is still wiping weeping eyes!
Every day, God is still raising bowed down heads!
Every day, God is still putting food on our tables!
Every day, God is still making a way out of no way!
We should praise the Lord because His:
—Grace is always sufficient; Love is always abundant.
—Mercy is everlasting and; promises are sure.
We should greatly praise the Lord for the burden He's going to lift off our shoulder!
We should greatly praise the Lord for the hill He's going to help us to climb!
We should greatly praise the Lord for the bills He's going to help us to pay!
We should greatly praise the Lord for the job He's going to help us to find!
We should greatly praise the Lord for the home He's going to help us to buy!

However, there is one more thing for which we should greatly praise the Lord; we should praise Him for saving our souls and washing us with the only solvent that can make our sins white as snow!

The songwriter asked, "What can wash away my sin? What can make me whole again? Nothing but the blood of Jesus! Oh precious is the flow that makes me white as snow, no other fount I know, nothing but the blood of Jesus!"

Jesus, the prized son of Palestine.
Jesus, the epitome of perfection.
Jesus, who is the Prince of Peace.

Jesus who died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

He is great!
He is great!
And greatly to be praised!

No. 9630-Men

Nethinim Man

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 23, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "And the rest of the people, the priests, the Levites, the porters, the singers, the Nethinims, and all they that had separated themselves from the people of the lands unto the law of God, their wives, their sons, and their daughters, every one having knowledge, and having understanding." Nehemiah 10:28

Introduction

We often hear some women say, "I don't need to no man, and I can take care of my children myself?" Is that really true? Has the black man become obsolete? Has his role as husband, father and mentor been diminished in America?

Black men have problems like men of all other races, but their problems are not representative of the entire gender. The image of the Black man is under attack. Gone are images of the strong black father of yesteryear who took nothing, but grabbed a shotgun to protect his wife, children and land. Gone are the images of men so proud that they would rather die free than live as slaves. Gone are the images of the hard working, God fearing black man who believed in teaching his children about God, keeping his word and giving an honest day's work for an honest day's pay. Gone are the images of the black father who understood the value of a dollar and saved to provide a future for his children.

Unfortunately, the image of the strong black man has been replaced with one of the angry, lazy, sloppily dressed, ghettocentric man walking the street with his pants below his butt wearing an old pair of underwear and a new pair of Jordans. This is the image, but there are still millions of strong Black men in America who are defending their wives, children and land. There are still millions of God fearing men who teach their children the importance of God and family and giving an honest day's work for an honest day's pay. Even though it's not shown frequently, there are millions of black men who live and breathe in professional circles and have mastered the art of investment and providing secure futures for their families.

These millions are the unseen men who spend time with our youth teaching them, molding them and pointing them in the right direction, one child at a time. There work is rarely reported, their deeds are rarely seen, but these men are the ones who remind our youth of the importance of keeping a clean record, striving hard and working to make something of themselves. It is these unsung heroes of our community that form the glue that help every African-American child remember, that no matter how far they go in life, or how well traveled or well spoken they become, the world never let them forget that they are black.

As Christians, Black men in America, like all of God's children must realize that they are part of the greater community of God. Color is not a factor with God, but failure to seize the moment under the favor and blessing of God is a condemnation that will follow any race of people. It is incumbent upon the men of each generation to mentor the youth of the generation that will follow them, one child at a time, to help them find their path to a greater community and to find God for themselves.

Exposition

This text focuses on a body of men selected to help rebuild the temple and restore the legacy of Israel as a people under God.

After living in exile for many years the Israelites returned to Jerusalem and began the tedious task of rebuilding their national life before God. The work was assigned to special groups of men who were given a holy charge and favor to perform their tasks.

For the worship the priests, Levites, porters and singers were selected.

For the greater work, another body of men was selected, called Nethinims. These were men assigned to the Levites to help carry out the mission. They performed the essential, but often unseen, tasks that needed to be done, often out of the sight of others. Their work was rarely noticed, but it was essential to the rebuilding of the walls and to the rebuilding of Israel as a God fearing race.

The Nethinims enjoyed a degree of favor even though there was no celebrity associated with their role. Ezra 7:24 says, "Also we certify you, that touching any of the priests and Levites, singers, porters, Nethinims, or ministers of this house of God, it shall not be lawful to impose toll, tribute, or custom, upon them." The Nethinims were included with the priests and Levites who were exempt from taxes, tributes or types of customary national impositions. The Nethinims performed a holy work that was on the level of importance that the priests and Levites shared.

These were the type men that Moses described who would be assigned to judge and handle the small matters in every community according to the law of God. Their character was described in Exodus 18:21 as, "Able men, such as fear God, men of truth, hating unjust gain…."

The Nethinims were not seen, rarely noted in official writings, or cited publically for their service, but they functioned in many capacities that were essential. Most importantly they enjoyed the favor of God for their divinely appointed mission and service.

The challenge

The challenge for the black community is to raise up a generation of young men and women who are proud of their own race, without hating others, and who reach out to assume their roles in the greater community as workers in the Kingdom of God. To accomplish this end, the African-American community needs an army of Nethinim men who will:

CHALLENGE YOUTH TO DREAM: No child will achieve anything they cannot first conceive. That's why a generation ago the Reverend Jesse Jackson, Sr. inspired a generation with the slogan, "If my mind can conceive it, and my heart can believe it, I can achieve it." Our community needs an army of men who will roll up their sleeves and help our children dream. Robert F. Kennedy said, as he ran for president in the 1960's, Some men see things as they are and ask why, I see things that never were and ask, why not?

That's what the Nethinim man must do. He must point a child to a high goal and ask, Why not?

Why not create a way to help young African-Americans to regroup and help themselves out of poverty? That's the question Dr. Leon Sullivan asked when he started OIC in America? He dared to ask, why not?

Why not become a great actor? So what if, as a youth, I stuttered and was very shy, why not? That's the question that James Earl Jones asked as he rose to become one of the nation's greatest actors. Why not?

Why not take boys and girls who sing on street corners and in school talent shows and make them millionaires? That's the question that Berry Gordy asked as he founded Motown Records and sailed into the history books and financial success.

This is what the Nethinims in the generations before us asked, "Why not invent a stop light? "

Why not pioneer open heart surgery?

Why not blaze new trails in science and technology?

Why not?

The man who mentors a youth helps that young person see his own possibilities. He opens an eye that will never close again when he helps a young person to ask, "Why not me?"

The Nethinim man will encourage youth to defy limitations and achieve greatness.

SERVE AS ROLE MODELS: The Nethinim men, as well as all other men who were asked to serve in a divine service were expected to be able, God fearing men who sought truth and justice. Today, the need for men to mentor young African-American men is even greater than before. Yet, there are millions of African-American men who spend little time with youth even though it is divinely ordered. Moses taught that the young were to be taught morning, noon and night. He taught that their instruction should never end.

This biblical mandate falls on the Nethinim man. He is not the bright star shining in the sky, but the ordinary man in every community. He is the coach, scout master, teacher, counselor, Sunday School teacher, advisor, tutor and team leader that is closest to this generation. The Nethinim man is an essential part of the community fight to teach the next generation. The Nethinims are not required to be smart, rich, famous or powerful. The most important ingredient is that they are able, God fearing, men who want to do the right thing.

The African-American community needs more Nethinim men. Youth need to be surrounded by men who can help them achieve their dreams. They need men who obey the law, respect women, take care of their own children, spend little time in trivial pursuits, know how to handle money, have a marketable skill, are pursuing or have attained the education needed for their profession, who are morally straight, and who believe in God and try to live a God centered life. The Nethinim man makes the perfect father, the perfect husband and the perfect role model for youth.

NETHINIMS MUST BE ADVOCATES: Each Nethinim was assigned to a Levitical service. The Nethenims were extensions of the Levitical order with respect to the things of God. Men of their caliber were selected to be the judges, to speak out against injustice and advocate for God. In a similar respect, today's Nethinim man must also be an extension of the divine order in the community.

The Nethinim man leads groups of men to sponsor workshops and retreats for young men to show them how to be better husbands and fathers. In these retreats, young men would learn how to earn the respect of their wives and direct the paths of their children.

The Nethinim man becomes an active presence in the lives of boys to help shape their values and ignite their dreams while they still have a yearning for learning and direction.

The Nethinim man works actively in the youth program of his church, lodge or fraternal order to reach the next generation with the benefit of his experience.

The Nethinim man will speak to the issues that destroy our youth such as crime, drugs, delinquency, and illiteracy. They will associate themselves with causes, projects and movements that will promote a higher order of living among our youth.

The Nethinim man will have at least one youth in which he invests considerable time and resources to help that youth achieve the greatest potential possible.

The Nethinim man will make it his duty to show one youth the path to God and stick with that person as he/she becomes an adult and guide them all the way through.

The goal of the Nethinim man is to reach one for the Lord. If each one, reaches one, our generation will be prepared for the future.

Favor of God

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that the Nethinim man does not receive much publicity for what he does, but he is showered with divine favor!

In biblical times, his service was recognized by being exempt from taxes, fees, customary demands. It was a way of showing favor for his service.

Today, God still showers favors on those who serve him and prove that they are able to withstand the fiery flames of the world with his character intact.

The Nethinim man is a man whose character has character has been shape and refined in the fires of life.

He is the man who has been tried in the fire and has proven himself to his wife and children by passing the tests that life puts before him. The nature of the tests varies from health issues to finances, relationships, career challenges or career difficulties.

Those who have weathered such storms know what it means to be tried in the fire. When we come through, like pure gold that is refined, all of the raw ore seems to float away leaving behind a purer spirit, a more sensitive nature, and a closeness to God.

These are the men who can stand tall but can reach low!

These are the men who defined not by the size of their wallets but by the depth of their hearts.

These are the men who are defined not by the physical strength of their bodies but by the moral fiber or their soul.

The Nethinim man is a great man, but the best man is our heavenly father.

Our heavenly father provides us with the best definition of father: when we need him he is there; when nobody else can; he can.

I have a father who can take:

—Sadness and turn it to gladness; Misery and turn it into delight!

—Failure and turn it into success; Loneliness and turn it into happiness!

—Poverty and turn it into riches; Defeat and turn it into victory!

No wonder the song writer wrote: ”I cannot take the lightning and flash it across the land. I cannot take a piece a clay and mold it into a man, but I have a father who can!”

I am reminded of the little girl who had nightmares when she was young and was always afraid in the night. In the middle of the morning when her fears got the best of her she’d cry out, “Papa, it’s dark, hold my hand!” No matter how many times she called him papa would get up and hold her hand every night. That picture of her papa sitting by her bed holding her hand, never left her mind, even after he died. Many years later she came to God. When the troubles of the world surrounded her she cried out “Lord, it’s dark outside! Hold my hand!”

No wonder the song writer declared, “Lord, hold my hand, while I run this race. I don’t want to run this race alone!”

I don’t know about you but I want Jesus to walk with me! He walked with my father, but I want Him to walk with me!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who rose after three days!

I want Jesus to walk with me!

No. 9631-Heritage

We don't look like what we have been through

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 2, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "And he brought us out from thence, that he might bring us in, to give us the land which he sware unto our fathers." Deuteronomy 6:23

Introduction

Have you ever considered the road you have traveled to reach your present? As a nation we think of our struggles against England, taxation without representation, the Boston Tea Party, Valley Forge, the Civil War and Depression and the World Wars. As a people, we think of the middle passage, slave plantations, a master's whip, sad spirituals, Civic Rights marches, back seats and close doors. As Families, we think of hard times, struggling mothers, sleepless nights, constant worry. To look at us now, no one would believe what we have endured to reach this point in our lives.

Booker Washington, the gentle giant from Tuskegee, once said in his book, "Up from Slavery," that we should judge a man by where he is now, but we must consider the distance he has traveled to get there. When we look at that journey we instantly relate to the words of James Weldon Johnson in "Lift Every Voice and Sing," that say, "We have come over a road that has been paved with the blood of the slaughtered." We don't look like it now, with a president in the White House who looks like us, Black elected officials everywhere, integrated churches, an army of Black attorneys, interracial marriages. In fact, we don't look like we've ever been through anything.

Looks are deceiving because African-Americans have been on a long journey led by the spirit of God to overcome many obstacles that have lead us to our present state.

African-Americans have made great achievements over the years despite hindrances. We have watched as God changed the laws written on paper that enslaved us while he wrote the law of hope in the hearts of each succeeding generation.

For decades, those who spoke for us loudly were legions of abolitionists and white attorneys who argued our cases before the courts of the land. Today, there are thousands of Black Lawyers who plead cases in the courts. Some have achieved notoriety: Thurgood Marshall, Johnny Cochran, Patricia Robert Harris, Barbara Jordan, Eric Holder, and Barack Obama. The challenges for Black attorneys still exist. Despite hearing 75 hours of testimony in 2013, the Supreme Court only heard 11 minutes from a black attorney. Those 11 minutes set marked a success, but it also highlighted a barrier that must be overcome.

Despite a history of legal deprivation, slavery, racism and denial of equal opportunity, God has changed the laws of this nation to lift our people. With a small army of banisters to speak for us the challenge is for this generation to "bring it" when it comes to delivering for our people.

Today, equal rights is the law of the land. The nation does not look as if there was ever a time when black woman could not hope to be a judge, or black man could hope to become attorney general. We don't look like what we've been through, but the historical record tells the story of our journey.

As Christians, we should praise God. We have not made it to the mountaintop yet, but from this plateau we can see that with His help we have come a mighty long way.

Exposition

This text focuses on the final instructions of Moses to the Children of Israel before they entered into the Promised Land.

At 120 years old, Moses was aware that the people would make it to the land of promise, although he himself would not get there with them.

In the first 14 verses of Deuteronomy 28, which means "a second look", Moses looks back over where God has brought them from and peeps over into the future as well.

The remaining verses of the six chapters provide a rationale to the people that explains the reason God brought them out of bondage in Egypt, forged a path for them through the Red Sea, sustained them in the wilderness and brought to the edge of Jordan.

Deuteronomy 6:23 notes that"... He brought us out from thence, that he might bring us in, to give us the land which He sware unto our fathers."

When Moses looked at the people, over a million strong, they did not look like the weary slaves whose hands built the pyramids of Egypt and whose backs bore the scars of Egyptian whips. When he saw them, they did not look they had endured 400 years of slavery and subjugation. Only, Moses, Caleb, Joshua and those who survived their 40 years in the wilderness knew their full story.

Today, the story must be told of the old warriors who worshipped by the light of lanterns and kept warm by wood burning stoves. The story must be told of the old warriors that kept the church doors open despite depressions, hard times and wars.

Like Moses when we look back, we must say to the world, "We may not look like it, but we have been through it; and it was the hand of God that brought us out!"

What We Have Been Through

One of the reasons Carter G. Woodson began what was known as Negro History Week in 1926 was to constantly remind our people of our journey and of the accomplishments of our people despite our difficulties. His hope was that each succeeding generation would remember the past and pick up the baton and carry its generation further.

Our people have come a long way despite hardships

When we consider the lifestyles of many of our people, it may be hard for those unfamiliar with our past to envision a day when these comforts were denied our people. It's hard for a young person to envision a time when Blacks drank out Colored water fountains, sat in the backs of buses and courtrooms, and were lynched for looking in the direction of white women.

Despite these hardships and the hand of God moved upon our people and we the peculiar institutions that enslaved us were methodically dismantled.

When Frederick Douglass stood and spoke eloquently before abolitionist groups, he did not look like he was a former slave. In fact, he spoke so well that some doubted that he had ever been a slave.

When Booker T. Washington challenged the notion that Blacks could not achieve, he dressed impeccably and spoke fluently and all who saw and heard him wondered how this man could have ever been a poor slave. He did not look like what he had been through.

When Barack Obama was sworn in as the 44th President of the United States, the whole world stared at him because while he represented a turning point in America history, he did not look like what the African-American people had been through.

When Moses spoke to Israel, the bible says his eye had not dimmed or nor had his strength of character waned. He did not look like a man who lived in Pharaoh's court for 40 years, in the wilderness of Midian for another 40 years and who had spent the last 40 years of his life wandering around in the desert. He did not look like what he had been through.

We may not look like what we have been through. Maybe that's why the old warrior's sang, "Nobody knows the trouble I see. Nobody knows, but Jesus."

Present appearances can distort reality. Moses spoke to Israel to remind them that although they stood on the banks of the Promised Land that they should not let their present appearance distort the reality that their successful journey was only accomplished by the hand of God. At a similar point in our history, the Reverend Joseph Lowery, one of the champions of the civil rights movement, offered the benediction at the inauguration of President Obama in 2009 and gave the nation a challenge just as Moses did in this text. He said, "We go now to walk together, children, pledging that we won't get weary in the difficult days ahead. We know you will not leave us alone, with your hands of power and your heart of love. Help us then, now, Lord, to work for that day when nation shall not lift up sword against nation, when tanks will be beaten into tractors, when every man and every woman shall sit under his or her own vine and fig tree, and none shall be afraid; when justice will roll down like waters and righteousness as a mighty stream." Like Reverend Lowery, we acknowledge that we have come a long way, but we still look to the day when justice and equality will be freely given to every man.

We still have battles to fight. Moses challenged Israel because, despite the fact that they had come through the wilderness, they still had one more river to cross. They had many battles ahead. Even today as we celebrate the miles we have travel we must concentrate on the journey ahead. There are laws on the books that must be challenged and new laws that must be written and interpreted to relieve and reprieve our race. We still need prosecutors who pray hard over every plea bargain; we still need judges who offer creative rulings that respond to each circumstance. We still need attorneys who are willing to fight the good fight before a jury rather than settle away a client's right so that they can earn quick cash and their next American Express payment. We still need attorneys who are willing to challenge law that make class and race distinctions in crime and punishments.

We, who have come so far on our journey, still have many battles to fight!

We, who were once slaves are now advisors to the president, governors of states, mayors of cities, and leading communities in thousands of elected positions across the nation.

We, who were once slaves in the wilderness of America have been uniquely sheltered, protected, and nurtured by nothing other than the hand of God.

In the wilderness, God has been our rock in a weary land.

In the wilderness, God has been our shelter in the time of storm. In the wilderness, God has been our way out of no way.

In the wilderness, God has been out of bridge over troubling waters; we may not look like it, but we have been through the fire and have made it thus far only by the Grace of God.

The Report

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that while it may not appear that we have endured a dark past, we are compelled to report that that we have come a long ways, trusting in the word of God.

Isaiah 53:1 asks the question, "Who hath believed our report? And to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?"

As Americans of African descent who have survived excruciating pain and torment in the crucible of the American social experience, we proudly stand to deliver the minority report.

Our report has been drenched in the word of God and is dripping with faith. It is a faith that despite the obstacles before us that the Lord has made a way!

Our report is that God has taken our leaders to the mountain top and has shown them the Promised Land!

Our report is that God has helped us fight our battles. Whether it was legal slavery, the separate but equal doctrine of Plessey versus Ferguson or the Brown versus the Topeka Kansas school board decision, we have fought every battle realizing the presence of God without whom no victory could have been won.

Our report is that the road has been rough and going has been tough and hills are hard to climb, but we started out a long time ago and there is no doubt in our mind, we've decided to make Jesus my choice!

Our report is that we have come through hills and valleys, we've come through slavery and discrimination and second class citizenship, but we still sing, "I don't feel no ways tired. I don't believe he brought me this far to leave me!

The minority report is that we have been sustained by our faith in a savior who was wounded for our transgressions and bruised for our iniquities.

The chastisement of our peace is upon him!

Our report is that he was crucified on an old rugged cross, but he early Sunday morning arose after three days and nights!

Our report is that He's coming back again!

When he comes back, justice will run down like waters and righteousness like a mighty stream!

Every valley shall be exalted and mountain shall be made low!

Until he comes back I will trust in the Lord.

I will trust in the Lord!

I will trust in the Lord... Until I die!

No. 9632-Inspiration

When your joy can be heard for miles and miles

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 9, 2014

SCRIPTURE: Also that day they offered great sacrifices, and rejoiced: for God had made them rejoice with great joy: the wives also and the children rejoiced: so that the joy of Jerusalem was heard even afar off. Nehemiah 12:43

Introduction

Has there ever been a time in your life when you were so excited that everyone around you knew it? When we have been blessed, especially after great sacrifices, we want the world to know about the blessing. In fact, we use every means possible to let someone know: we call others on the phone, post news feeds on Face book, send text messages, post tweets on Twitter as well as Instagram photos. When we have been blessed, we tell as many people as possible; we just can't tell it enough.

When do such moments come? Usually come when we have achieved something important after great. The greater the sacrifice associated with the accomplishment, the more joy we feel and the further our joy is heard.

Among the great joys of a family are the moments when a child graduates from high school, gets a college degree, gets married, buys the first house, signs a big contract or achieves a goal. When that accomplishment is associated with great sacrifice the joy is even more.

For African-Americans a great moment for a family involves a member of the family graduating from college. According to the journal of Blacks in Education, the college graduation rate for Blacks is at an all time high: 46% for women and 35% for men. Trade school rates for those graduating from career colleges and are even greater. All of these provide moments of joy for thousands of families who want to celebrate the accomplishment.

In 2010 Michelle Obama, went around the country telling every student who would listen about the sacrifice of her parents to help her become a college graduate. "What I can remember is my father getting up every day and going to work at the water filtration plant, even after he was diagnosed with MS, even after it got hard for him to button his shirt, and to get up and walk. See, I remember my parents sacrificing for us, pouring everything they had into us, being there for us, encouraging us to reach for a life they never knew."

She tells the story of her families sacrifice for dream with great joy that can be heard for miles and miles.

The joy we share as a born again believer in Christ is contagious. We talk about it, write about it and share it with others. Those who hear us can hear the excitement and passion in our voices. Whether it's healings, answered prayer or blessings, when we start talking about the goodness of the Lord, our joy can be heard for miles and miles.

Ask someone who has been miraculously healed to tell their story and the joy starts to flow.

Ask someone who has lost battles continuously, but finally found success to tell their story and watch as joy start to flow.

Ask someone who has finally found love to talk about it.. and take your seat.

When we are excited we have to tell someone. That's what happened when Jesus touched the life of the woman at the well. She had to tell somebody, so she ran through the streets of the city and cried, "Come see a man, who told me all I've ever done."

As Christians, we recognize that God has blessed us. Our testimony and witness can be heard for miles and miles: God is great and his mercy endureth forever!

Exposition

This text focuses on the joy of Israel at the celebration of the completion of the walls by Nehemiah.

The walls of Jerusalem lay in ruins for many years and caused heart aches to the people. On God's command, Nehemiah led the reconstruction of the walls in an unbelievable feat that took only 52 days. When the job was complete the people were excited because they had made such a sacrifice to insure that the walls and gates were completed. The ceremony of consecrating the wall and gates of the city was an act of piety on the part of Nehemiah, not merely to thank God in a general way for having been enabled to bring the building to a happy completion, but especially because that city was the place which He had chosen. Jerusalem thereafter became known as the "the holy city," and by this public and solemn act of religious observance, after a long period of neglect and desecration, it was, as it were, restored to its rightful proprietor.

The enthusiasm and excitement of the people that day was so intense that it could be heard for heard for miles and miles.

Miles and Miles

The text illuminates one great truth: The more we have sacrificed to achieve a goal the greater our goal which means our testimony goes further.

UNEXPECTED BLESSINGS: There is nothing more exciting than unexpected blessings! When you are recognized for achievement unexpectedly, a surprise birthday party, a welcomed, but unannounced visit; all of these are occasions for great joy.

Similarly, when we expect to have surgery only to find that the surgery is not necessary; we expect to lose and find that we actually gain; these are times that we are bubbling with joy. When God has given us more than we expected there is an overwhelming excitement. It's the kind of joy that the lame man healed by Christ felt when he was healed. He jumped and leaped with excitement about the goodness of the Lord.

In a similar sense, believers who have received more than they expected or requested from God should feel some level of excitement just thinking about the goodness of God.

When the Lord blesses us financially in a way that we did not expect, it's shouting time!

When a wayward child starts showing signs of hope, it's shouting time!

When a lost family member finds the Lord, it's shouting time and those who hear us can hear us for miles and miles.

WE CELEBRATE THE NEW US: We celebrate who we have become in the Lord More than anything, those who have found the Lord get excited each time they think about what they have become in the Lord. Who would have thought that the hottest girl in the senior class would be the coolest mother of the church? Who would have thought that Mr. Hot lips would ever open his mouth to witness for God? Who would have thought that the class failure would actually turn out to be one of the most successful members of his class? Individuals should also look back over the journey they have traveled. Today, many are ministers, deacons, deaconesses, and prominent civic personalities. When we think back we remember the way we were and recognize that this has not always been the case.. There have been changes. That's why 1 Corinthians 6:11 says, "And such were some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God."

We celebrate our lives in Christ! We talk about our new lives with great joy! We are excited and those who hear us can feel the passion in our voice and feel our joy for miles and miles.

IT'S HARD TO KEEP QUIET: It's hard to keep quiet when we feel the joy of the Lord. When we think of the hard times we have endured in our life's journey, it's hard not to tell someone about the favor God has shown us. Sometimes we can get loud! Sometimes we wave our hands! Sometimes we say Amen! Sometimes we stand!

Collectively our joy can be heard for miles and miles. Those who think we are too loud have trouble silencing us.

The scribes and Pharisees soon learned that true worship cannot be contained. Jesus did not make any effort to restrain his followers or tell them to stop praising his name; yet the scribes continued. That's when Jesus pointed them to the impossibility of muzzling a person who has been blessed and one who expects to be blessed.
When Jesus healed a man whose lives were plagued with demons he told them man not to tell anyone, but the man couldn't keep it to himself. There was somebody in the crowd, named Lazarus, who had been dead for several days but given new life, when he saw Jesus riding into the city, he just couldn't hold his peace.

There was somebody in the crowd, that had been blind, but the hand of Jesus touched him and made him whole, and he just couldn't hold it, he had to tell somebody.

There was somebody in the crowd, whose life had been made whole because Jesus passed by, and they couldn't hold their peace.

When Jesus has touched you and made a change in your life, it's hard to hear his named called and not respond with praise; the joy you share can be heard for miles and miles.

Let it be heard…

Finally, we must consider that when God has blessed us we are so grateful that our joy can be heard for miles and miles

A leper healed by the savior tried to keep his good fortunes to himself, but he had to come back and say thanks. His joy was heard for miles and miles.

The woman at the well found it was hard to contain her excitement. She ran through the streets of the city saying, Come see a man who told me all I've ever done!

When the Lord has picked you up and turned you around and place your feet on the right road, it's not hard to get excited.

Today, there are many believers who have a story to tell. There are many who can testify that they were between a rock and hard place, but they decided to step out on faith.

We must tell somebody that our God is a God whose:

-Power never weakens; GRACE never disappoints

-Love never leaves; PROMISES never fail

-Glory never diminishes; JOY never ends

-Foundation never shakes; TRUTH never changes

-Supply never shrinks; BLESSINGS never stop coming!

And when God picks you up, you ought to tell somebody.

Every child of God is encouraged to keep his hands wrapped in the winding chain and to walk the road to Glory.

There is only one road from here to glory, because I heard Jesus say, I am the way, the truth and the light!

We must tell the world that Jesus is the way!

We must tell them that God is able! Yes, he's able!

He's able to see our tears in the midnight hour!

He's able to see our concern for our families and loved ones!

He's able to feel our despair over our current situation and while we are still praying about it, help is on the way!

We must tell them that we have found that there may be wide roads and there may be side roads, but there's only one road between here and heaven.

On a hill far away, stood an old rugged cross, the emblem of suffering and shame!

To get to that cross you have to walk the road to Calvary!

We must tell the world that one day we walking the road to destruction, but we met

No. 9633-Communion

In the hand of the Lord, there is a cup

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 16, 2014

SCRIPTURE: For in the hand of the LORD there is a cup, and the wine is red; it is full of mixture; and he poureth out of the same: but the dregs thereof, all the wicked of the earth shall wring them out, and drink them. Psalms 75:8 (KJV)

Introduction

Have you ever considered that each of us has a purpose and destiny in life? In that context we can understand why God chose to make us the way we are and place us where we are in life.

There are many who often question God's wisdom when they consider the world around them.

Why was he born so tall? Why is she so short? Why is one man born into riches while another man is born into poverty? Why are some born healthy and others born sickly? Why do some seem to be blessed and others lack blessings?

We don't know the mind of God, but history has shown us that every life and every life situation is in the hand of God. He shapes events and circumstances to fit his divine will.

Every life is in the hand of God and each believer's life has a destiny or divinely ordered fate. In spiritual circles this destiny is called the Will of God. Our mission is described as our cup; its contents are the ingredients that test and demonstrate faith.

What is our fate? Mr. Webster says fate is the settlement of things ahead of time. Our fate is our lot in life, our fortune or misfortune our wealth or poverty.

What's in your cup? Each of has drawn a certain fate. Some were gifted to sing, dance, or to exercise unusual intellect. Some are tall some are short. Often we'd like to trade hands with someone else in the game. It appears the deal always favors them. They have the best hands and they always get the trump cards.

Those who have played the game of life a few years know that it's not what kind of hand you draw, but how you play your hand.

Whether fate deals us a full house or a strait flush, a hand full of trumps or no trumps at all, it is our obligation to play out our hand to the best of our ability.

All believers are in the hands of God. He has filled our cups and pointed us in the direction our lives should go to meet our destination

As Christians, we give God praise and glory for holding us in His hands and for filling our cups with His grace and love. We will praise Him for ever and ever.

Exposition

This text shows David explaining how mankind is held as a cup in the hand of God.

The text describes how God holds the world in his hand and how his dispensations of truth, mercy, justice and destiny are showered upon the earth.

The text shows the means by which His will is delivered on earth. The cup is the vessel or the conveyance in which our divine assignment and purpose is apportioned.

The cup contains a mixture. "The wine is red; it is full of mixture;" The fact that it is a full mixture means that the cup will contain that which brings happiness and joy and pleasant memories, but it will also contain intoxicants that could, if consumed disproportionately, throw our lives into a terrible mess.

The cup also contains the dregs, the parts of life that have no useful purpose but to destroy and leave bad taste.

God pours all of this into our cup at the same time: happiness, joy, pain, sorrow and the dregs of temptation and evil.

Believers strive to learn what are dregs and what is red wine and to avoid that which will destroy us, however, the evil relish the dregs and " wring them out" or seek after them.

The believer expects to find a degree of bitterness in his cup. Without any bitterness the believer might become drunk with the wine of the world and forget God. If every day is filled with sunshine, he may soon approach it with less appreciation. It is the presence of some bitterness that forces the believer to stay humble before our God.

The cup that believers receive is the mixture that God has apportioned for us; we should drink it, but leave dregs alone.

The Mixture

God has placed in each of our cups, a mixture that is unique to us. That mixture includes happiness, pain and temptation. As our lives unfold we sip from the cup and taste the nectar of our destiny.

THE CUP OF JOY: Every believer's cup contains joy. Joy, as a spiritual quality, is everlasting and helps believers throughout their lives. Joy is shown when a believer is in the best of health or is lying in a sick bed; the Christian is always joyful. Those who know the Lord rejoice in his goodness and at the same time are glad for the great blessings he has demonstrated.

This joy that believers share helps us to receive each day with an attitude that is different from that of the world. This is possible because we know that whatever happens, our God is able to deliver us. That makes us glad.

THE CUP OF PAIN: No believer moves through life without experiencing some element of pain. It may be physical or emotional, but some level of pain is everyone's cup. Struggle, suffering and adversity are commensurate to the life experience, inextricably bound to each breath. We are able to endure such situations because we know that God has promised two things: Never to leave us alone and to make every situation that comes our way, even the pain, work out to our good as it relates to the kingdom of God. We don't quite know how it works, but we know that there will be no life that does not experience some element of pain or sadness. It is in our cup. We can't sip around it and only consume the happiness. We are consoled, however, when we consider that if there is no pain, there is no gain. We are also consoled when we remember that after the pain passes, God will renew our strength and reward our patience, endurance and longsuffering with a satisfaction that will never end.

THE CUP OF TEMPTATION: It would be easy if our cups were only filled with joy and pain, but the mixture gets complicated when we include the dregs of temptation. Temptations are life's hot situations. These are those times when we face danger of a traumatic loss of life, liberty or the pursuit of those experiences that make life happy. Temptations occur whenever we are forced to make choices that will drastically impact the quality of our lives or that of someone close to us. Sometimes we create tempting situations. However, many tempting moments are not of our own choosing. Temptations are the testing ground upon which we discover the extent of our professed faith. There are many who have professed a faith in God that simply withers like an ice cube in the sun at the first sign of difficulty.

If nothing else, temptations can bring out the best or worse in us. That's why Jesus taught us to pray, lead us not into temptation. Temptations are the dregs in every cup. They are not good for us, but they are there. Our prayer is to avoid them.

The Cup of salvation

Finally, Brothers and Sisters, we must consider that Jesus himself drank from cup of salvation.

The biblical record is filled with accounts of the patriarchs, who also had cups.

Jonah tried to escape his cup. He ran when God told him to preach to the people of Nineveh.

David said, "My cup runneth over" as he explained the great blessings he received in life.

Job complained about the amount of pain in his cup, but he resolve, "Yea though he slay me, yet will I serve him."

Saul found his cup while he was a pilgrim on the Damascus road.

Every child of God should say to himself Lord, help me to accept my fate in life and the cup you have given me.

Some folks are dainty teacups; they've been born with the best of everything.

Some folks are thick mugs, the hallmark of the poor and struggling.

Some folks are paper cups; they run through their lives quickly and are destined for the garbage pail.

Some folks are plastic cups, too good to throw away and not good enough for constant use.

It doesn't matter what kind of cup you have, what is important that your cup is in the hand of the Lord.

In the hands, of the Lord there is a cup, let it remind you that our God is able, to be a shelter in a time of storm!

In the hands, of the Lord there is a cup, let it remind you that no matter what you may have gotten yourself into, God can bring you out!

In the hands, of the Lord there is a cup, let it remind you that it doesn't matter what type of chains hold you in bondage God is able to set you free!

In the hands, of the Lord there is a cup, let it remind you that you don't have to suffer under bondage for something you did a long time ago! God will set you free!

In the hands, of the Lord there is a cup, let it remind you that God is still giving second chances to those who have walked in the wrong direction!

Like any other believer, Christ's cup contained the same mixture of happiness, pain and temptation.

He had great moments as a child sharing ideas and teachings with the teachers or attending a wedding celebration of a friend.

He had moments of pain and sadness when He was rejected by his own hometown or ridiculed by crowds.

There were even moments when He was tempted. In the wilderness for 40 days and nights the devil visited him three times to try to lead Him astray.

Jesus had a cup!

In the garden Jesus looked hard into His cup and what He saw was more pain than joy. What He saw was more agony than ecstasy. He saw in His cup, His upcoming trial and crucifixion.

He begged His father to avoid the agony of Calvary, but carefully noted, "Nevertheless, not MY will but thy will be done."

Upon leaving the garden He was accosted by the temple guards. Peter jumped to His rescue and cut off the ear of one of the guards.

Jesus told Peter that He had accepted His cup in life and did not need to be rescued from the will of God.

Jesus had earlier said, "The cup which my father giveth me, shall I not drink it?"

The cup Jesus spoke of represented His own preordained fate.

It was not the cup Jeremiah spoke of in Jer. 17:7. This was the cup of consolation that was shared with all those who mourn, filled with sorrow for the loss of loved ones.

It was not the cup that Solomon spoke of in Proverbs 33:6 for this was the cup that was given to condemned prisoners, destined to die for transgressions of the law.

It was not the cup that David spoke of in Psalm 116: 12-13 when he said "What shall I render unto the Lord for all his benefits toward me? I will take the cup of salvation and call upon the name of the Lord."

It was not the cup spoke of in Psalm 11:6, for this was the cup of tribulation that only the unrighteous should share.

The cup Jesus referred to was His own destiny that had been pre-arranged from the beginning of time.

I hear Jesus saying to his followers, this may not be the end I desire but if it is the will of the father, and then His will be done.

This cup, holds the dregs of a painful death!

This cup, is the key element in the salvation of men!

This cup, is prerequisite to the forgiveness of sin!

This cup, is power of God unto salvation!

One evening on Calvary, Jesus drank the last dregs of the bitter cup and died! ... Died!

But Early Sunday morning..

No. 9634-Inspiration

Enjoy the ride

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 23, 2014

SCRIPTURE: They devoted themselves to the apostles' teaching and to fellowship, to the breaking of bread and to prayer. Acts 2:42

Introduction

If you are on your way to heaven shouldn't you enjoy the ride? There are many who are living the Christian life, but do not enjoy the life they live. Some Christians believe that being a Christian should mean that their lives should be a constant act of penitence. In fact, the old warriors of the church often made being a Christian a 100% downer. It seemed that being a Christian meant a long list of uncomfortable or undesirable things. Do you remember the list? Christians were not allowed to play cards or dominoes, read romance novels, play ball (on Sunday) or go to the movies. Christians couldn't wear bright colors such as red or hot pink. Lipstick was sinful and so was makeup. Christians could not could not cook or listen to the radio on Sunday. Christians could not do anything on Sunday except attend church, which lasted from early morning until late night. Christians had to stop all movement in a thunderstorm because "God was doing his work."

The list of taboos was so long that many people tried to avoid being a Christian like a plague. It seemed that Christians never enjoyed life because they never laughed, had fun or wore any clothes that were not "church" clothes.

While their list of taboos was long, the old warriors did in fact enjoy the Christian life. They simply had fun inside what they believed to have been the boundaries that God set for them. They enjoyed themselves in the same way a child that is not permitted to walk the street alone, can have fun in the back yard.

They enjoyed life within the limits set for them.

The limits have changed a bit today, but there are still limits. Many Christians play cards, but they won't gamble. Most Christian women wear makeup, but not too heavy. Christians still frown on very bright colors on Sunday, going to clubs, drinking and smoking. Men wear suits that are not black and women wear dresses above the ankle even as high as the knee. Many Christians cook on Sunday, if they cook, and many more go out to eat. Church worship services are considerably shorter, and no one will stay from morning until late night anymore. We still frown on chewing gum in worship, tieless men or women showing cleavage.

Despite the limits, most Christians enjoy the believer's life. Today, we have learned that the Christian life is not one filled with a long list of "Don't Dos", but is a list of "How tos." The world sees the Christian life as one that spends all of its time saying "Don't walk on the grass." Yet, the Christian sees his life in Christ as a person learning "how to walk on the sidewalk."

The Christian life is filled learning about God, fellowship, prayer and loads of fun. Christians play ball, bowl, camp, shoot pool, play card games, swim, fish, enjoy sports, watch movies, read books, travel, date, get married, have children, own businesses. Christians wear pretty clothes, listen to music, paint pictures and live a happy, abundant God centered life.

This is the life that Jesus talked about when he said, "I am come that they have life and have it more abundantly!"

The big difference between the Christian and the non-Christian is that Christians live their lives within the rules that God has commanded for every believer, always giving him praise for everything.

Believers cannot be so busy trying to accomplish their dreams and goals that they do not enjoy the ride? If you have a pretty home, but you are never there, what's the point? If you have a beautiful family, but you have no time for them, what's the point? If you have a nice car, but only have time to drive it to and from work, what's the point?

If there are roses in your yard, but you never take time to enjoy their beauty or smell their fragrance, what's the point?

It is possible that God poured out his blessings on the early church because they kept glad and sincere hearts. God wants more believers who are enjoying life, staying lighthearted and having fun in the process. Not only does it please God, it attracts people!

As Christians, we are on a life long journey toward heaven. Along the way we should enjoy every day, have fun and praise God all the way!

Exposition

This text focused on the lifestyle of early Christians.

The text made it clear that they did three things frequently: They studied the word of God, they fellowshipped together, had frequent meals together, and they prayed.

Verses 42-47 paint a picture of the life of early believers. It was one that was guided by the word of God, but at the same time filled with fellowship, fun filled gatherings and persistent prayer.

The text notes that they 'continued steadfastly" in the apostles doctrine. That means that they listened to the instruction of their religious leaders and used it to build a set of principles by which they lived. In everything they did they made sure that Christ would approve of their actions.

They lived in the world, but found joy in fellowshipping with themselves. The word used for "fellowship" means "community." They did things together as a Christian community, built houses, celebrated weddings, mourned deaths, and celebrated their individual accomplishments. Their fellowship was a God centered fellowship in which they strengthened and built up each other.

Included in that fellowship was the breaking of bread from house to house. This breaking of bread mentioned in this text was not a reference to Holy Communion, but to the receiving of their food; they went house to house. That too became a great fellowship and enjoyable time in which they came to know each other better

They continued in prayer knowing that they could only truly enjoy the Christian life if they were upheld by the power of God. They prayed together because they sought the grace of God upon each family and earnestly prayed for each other.

Verse 47 notes that they spent a considerable time praising God together. Their excitement and enjoyable life attracted others and they grew by the thousands.

Enjoy this life.

One way to understand life is to view it from the context of the fair. At every fair, there is usually an assortment of rides that attract your eye.

When we go to the fair the first question many children ask is, "What kind of rides do they have?" Others may ask, "What kind of food booths will be there?" Everyone goes to the fair for different reasons. However, for many, the joy of the fair is the rides. That's the way it is in life. Depending on our situation, we can define our lives by one ride or another.

SOME LIVES ARE LIKE CAROUSELS: The carousel has horses upon which a child mounts and rides. It goes up and down round and round. Life is like that because sometimes it seems that we are riding a carousel that goes round and round. It's a safe ride; it is filled with smiles and joy. There are even seats on the Carousel, so that the elderly can enjoy the ride with their grandchildren. The Christian life is like that carousel, it takes us around at a gentle pace, there are a few ups and downs, but its safe and the whole family can fellowship together.

SOME LIVES ARE LIKE FERRIS WHEEL RIDES: A Ferris Wheel is a giant wheel with baskets that takes riders high in the sky. A Ferris Wheel, like life, is cyclic. Life and Ferris Wheels turn in cycles and bring us to similar points again and again. At certain points in the ride of life, we go from feeling very secure to feeling very insecure. At the bottom of Ferris Wheel you feel pretty secure: there is a bar and a seat belt to secure you; but on the way up the seat rocks back and your feet dangle a little and you have a touch of worry. Sometimes the wheel stops at the top and your cage shakes and you feel insecure. Yet, at that high moment you can see further than you've seen before; its awe inspiring and a little scary,too. Many see lives as Ferris Wheels, they have been around many times; they have seen the highs and lows and felt the shakes, but they enjoy the ride!

SOME LIVES ARE LIKE TWISTERS: Every fair has at least one ride with names like "Dive Bomber, Loop de Loop, Hurricane and Twister." They are the ones that turn you upside down, fling you out in the air and snatch you back, while rolling you over and over and from side to side. Those who ride these rides test their own limits to get that rush of excitement. They know the ride will twist them, in fact, they expect to be twisted, turned and scared half to death. They feel safe however, because of the restraints, bars, belts and lock mechanisms that hold them in place. In life, there are many who dare to follow their dreams. It looks like the path they have chosen is a twister, a dive bomber; one that is sure to turn them upside down financially and emotionally. Yet, the believer steps out on faith that if it is God's will, despite the twists and turns they will be safe. They buckle up and enjoy the ride!

SOME LIVES ARE LIKE BUMPER CARS: The bumper cars are fun. These little electric powered cars go around in circles and are bumped by others. Surely that's a ride that everyone has experienced. Life's bumps, crashes and hits. There is no life that doesn't experience some type of bump or crash along the way. In fact, those who ride bumper cars expect to be hit hard by others, because there are some who enjoy bumping everyone else. Because we expect the bumps, we are buckled in safely with an attendant standing close by. The cars are no fun if they sit still there must be bumps to enjoy the ride!

SOME LIVES ARE LIKE ROLLER COASTERS: One of the scariest rides at a theme park is the roller coaster, some as high as 400 feet. They take the riders up and then send them on a speedy path down that is filled with twists, turns and cliffhanger curves. Roller Coaster rides are not for the faint hearted. There are many who enjoy the roller coaster because of the unknowns behind every turn. Life is often like a roller coaster ride. It begins quietly and begins to rise slowly and then there are times when we are plunging, turning and screaming for life. There are so many ups and downs in life. Yet, those who choose this life, keep returning because the enjoy the ride!

Ride Safely

Finally, brothers and sisters, while life presents us with many scary rides, we can enjoy the ride when know we are safe in the hands of the Lord!

Those who are patrons of the rides at theme parks keep returning because they trust that although the rides are dangerous that they are safe.

As believers we know that the road is rough and the going gets tough and the hills are hard to climb, but we feel that we are safe in the hands of the Lord, so we step out on faith and enjoy the ride.

Everyone ride is not the same, but everyone enjoys the ride!

There are times when we are afraid to get on a ride, but we go only when a friend says, "I'll go with you." Encouraged by the presence of a friend, we strap ourselves in saying, "Don't you leave me."

When we begin the ride of our lives, that's what the Lord does. He says, "I will never leave you alone."

Strap yourself in and get ready for the ride. I will never leave you!

When the world twists you and turns you up side down, I won't let you fall!

When life's roller coaster seems to carry you over a cliff, I won't let you crash and meet destruction!

When you've been crashed from the front and back and every side, I won't let the bumps stop you!

While you are on this ride our God won't leave you alone! That's why the old warriors sang, "I want Jesus, to walk with me!"

God won't let us alone to wallow in defeat.

God won't leave us alone to deal with the problems of our careers and families.

God won't leave us alone to shoulder the responsibilities without his strong hand!

Enjoy the ride, because the Lord is with us on every twist and turn we can:

—stay CALM in midst of crises

—have PEACE in the midst of problems

—enjoy GLADNESS in the midst of sorrow

—receive ASSURANCE in the midst of afflictions!

—press on in the midst of pain.

—be FRUITFUL in a time of famine!

Enjoy the ride because it scary your next few years seem, there were will never be a:

—CROSS that we won't be able to bear; MOUNTAIN that we won't be able to climb!

—ENEMY that we won't be able to defeat; BATTLE we won't be able to win!

—DARKNESS so dark that we won't be able to see the light!

—TRIAL that we can't make it through; TEST that we won't be able to pass!

You can enjoy every ride that life gives you without worrying about the cos, because you're wearing a free armband that that has been paid for in advance.

Your ticket to the abundant life of studying God's word, fun filled fellowship, breaking bread and prayerful living has been paid for by a man from heaven!

His name is Jesus!

Jesus, somebody here today knows him!

Jesus, the Lily of the valley!

Jesus, the Bright and Morning star!

Jesus, who gave himself as sacrifice for our salvation!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary and rose up early Sunday morning!

No.9635-Inspiration

And he stretched it out

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 30, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "And when he had looked round about on them with anger, being grieved for the hardness of their hearts, he saith unto the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it out: and his hand was restored whole as the other." Mark 3:5

Introduction

Have you ever had a dream and watched it crumble in front of your eyes? Was it the dream of a career? Relationship? Job opportunity? Our dreams drive us, without them our lives come to a screeching halt and we join what Thoreau calls the mass of men who live lives of quiet desperation. We need our dreams to feed our aspirations and to keep us going, but what happens if our hopes and dreams wither?

The poet Langston Hughes asked that question in his poem "A Dream Deferred" when he wrote:

What happens to a dream deferred?
Does it dry up like a raisin in the sun? Or Fester like a sore- And then run?
Does it stink like rotten meat? Or crust and sugar over-like a syrupy sweet?'
Maybe it just sags like a heavy load.
Or does it explode?

Lorraine Hansberry wrote a play about withered dreams which won her a critical acclaim, it was called, "A raisin in the sun." The play focused on a family that dreamed of buying a house in a nice neighborhood, but the dream withered when the neighbors in the white neighborhood offered to pay them not to move into their new house. The dream withered, like a raisin in the sun.

Withered dreams, impact us in many ways. Hughes says they can stink like rotten meat and make us bitter and distasteful people. They can also explode and make us angry, violent and vengeful.

What withers our dreams? Sometimes it's the fear of failure. We are afraid that we might try and might fail in the process. So our dream withers. Sometimes it's forces outside of us that wither our dreams. These are our enemies and adversaries who spend most of their time planning and plotting ways to prevent us from succeeding.

Satan attacks us in many ways and attempts to stop us from achieving our dreams.

He likes for us to believe that dream is impossible. He likes for us to conclude that the obstacles all insurmountable. Many back away from their dreams thinking they are impossible.

When we give up on our dreams, we lose hope. When we lose hope, our dreams wither, dry up, stink or explode!

As Christians, we rejoice in the fact that we serve a God who restore withered dreams if we bring them to help and do as he commands.

Exposition

This text focuses on Christ healing a man on the Sabbath Day.

Jesus was critical of the established church because it focused heavily on rituals and customs associated with the law and failed to get the big picture: Israel was called to be a river of God to the nations of the earth. They had abandoned that calling in favor of simply focusing on customs and rituals.

In this passage, Christ was challenged by his critics for plucking corn on the Sabbath, which was forbidden under the Mosaic law. The law prohibited all work on the Sabbath, including healing. In an "in your face" type action, Christ decided to demonstrate the hypocrisy of the religious leaders by healing someone right in front of their eyes, on the Sabbath Day.

There was a man in the temple who had a withered hand. Mark only notes that the man had a withered hand, but Luke notes that he had a withered right hand. Jesus asked the man to step forth and to stretch out his hand. The text notes, "And he stretched it out," – the man was healed.

The text has both an historic and prophetic application. Historically, the text shows Jesus defying the religious leaders; the healed man in this context, was just an instrument used to make a point. However, prophetically, the healing had implications for believers across the generations.

By healing the man's right hand, the healing assumed additional importance. The right hand, in the biblical context, is often considered the blessed hand.

Our hands represent the things we do, the work we try to accomplish and the goals we try to grasp. The right hand seems to speak to our blessed work.

Isaiah 41:13, For I the Lord thy God will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, Fear not; I will help thee.

Psalms 18:35, Thou hast also given me the shield of thy salvation:
and thy right hand hath holden me up, and thy gentleness hath made me great.

Ecclesiastes 10:2, A wise man's heart is at his right hand; but a fool's heart at his left.

A withered hand meant a withered work. A withered right hand went even further; blessed work had withered.

When the man stretched out his hand to Jesus he was made whole again.

Withered Experiences

There are many today who have fallen victims to withered experiences. These withered experiences, for the most part have stolen the good life away from so many people. Instead of pursuing dreams they have relegated themselves to lives of monotonous routine, doing the same thing repeatedly, with no end in sight. This was the case of the man with the withered hand. There is no history given as to when his hand was withered, only that he came the synagogue on a regular basis and existed anonymously. It wasn't until his condition caught the attention of the savior, that things changed for him.

How can we get the attention of the savior? The most effective way is through fervent prayer. When we pray we get God's attention. He hears us and he responds when we pray. When we get God's attention he usually answers us in a way that directs us toward his will.

Believers who sense themselves withering in their spirit, hopes and aspirations should pray to God for his spirit to identify what has withered us and stolen the joyous life we once know. We can't really do that ourselves, we can analyze, but only the Holy Spirit can show us what to do if we've lost the vibrancy, enthusiasm and passion we once had for God and for life itself! If something has dried up on the inside it's time for us to stretch it out before God. Just as he did that Sabbath morning, he can make us whole again.

Dealing With Mess

Dealing with mess and messy people can wither our spirituality. Messy situations and messy people can get into the mind so deep that it can prohibit true worship, prayer, praise.

Mess, like ashes thrown on an open fire, prohibits excited praise and service because mess smothers fires. There are some who cannot experience the presence of God in their lives because they are dealing with so much mess. If they try to pray at home, there is mess. If they try to pray at work, there is mess. Many have found that messy people come to church, too.

They come before God with so much mess, stress, drama and trauma that they extinguish their own fire. We have seen the victims of mess come to worship so angry with a family member that they can't benefit from the worship experience.

Mess withers our dreams and hopes because it gets us off focus. It changes the subject of our thoughts. That's why the Psalm 37:1 reminds believers to "Fret not thyself because of evil doers, neither be thou envious against the workers of iniquity."

Mess will ruin your marriage, career, and even push you away from God as you conclude, "I ain't going up to that church, it's just too many messy people." Surprise, Surprise, those same messy people go footballs, bowl, shop and hangout out with you. Messy people are everywhere! You can't avoid them, even the devil comes to church!

Job 1:6 says all the angels came to praise God "And Satan came also." If Satan is bad enough to bust up into heaven, you know he can hitch ride to a local church.

Don't let messy people wither your dream by pushing you away from God or interrupting your communication with God. Without God, you cut yourself off from your lifeline and your hope withers and dies.

To stretch out, out we must be humble

The man with the withered hand was obedient. He needed a healing. When Christ told him to stretch out his hand, it did not matter that it would have been embarrassing for people to see his condition that he probably kept hidden as much as possible; he did as he was told. When Naaman wanted a healing from his leprosy, he was told to bathe seven times in muddy water. He protested that it was humiliating and ridiculous for a man of his station to be seen bathing in muddy water; when he finally did as was asked he was healed.

We must be willing to stretch out and step out on God's word if we want his blessing.

The man with the withered hand was not hindered by pride. Pride often stands in the way and blocks the door of success for far too many people. There are many who are unemployed, but rather than take a job below the level to which they are accustomed, many choose to remain unemployed. There are many who find themselves in tight spots and avoid seeking help from members of their own families out of pride.

There are some who have encountered financial crises and choose to face a loss of dignity in the community and commit suicide out of stubborn pride. The Christian way, however, is a humble way. It is a way of life that places the will of God before our own desires, and places obedience to God first in our lives. In humble obedience we struggle to live for God everyday.

If we want our withered situation to resolved, we must be willing to stretch out and step on faith.

Let God do the rest.

Results of Stretching

Finally, brothers and sisters were must remember that when we stretch it out, God works it out in our favor!

The man with the withered hand was told to stand and he stood. He was told to stretch out his hand and he stretched it

When he stretched it out, God spoke to his situation!

If there is one truth about God that every believer knows, it is that when God speaks a word, it shall be so.

When God stepped out on the blackness of creation he spoke a word and said let there be light and there was light.

When God told Noah to prepare for a flood his word did not return void for it rained 40 days and 40 nights proving that when God speaks it shall be so.

When God told Moses to stretch out his hand over the Red Sea and that the people would walk across on dry land, it happened just as he said proving once again that when God speaks it shall be so.

When God showed Ezekiel the valley of dry bones and told that these bones can live again it wasn't long before Israel became a nation once again proving that when God speaks it shall be so.

The man with the withered hand stretched it out and Jesus spoke. Nothing more was done. Immediately he was healed.

Whenever God speaks we don't have to worry about it, his word will not return void.

The same is true when God speaks to our withered life situations; whenever God speaks it shall be so.

When God speaks to our doubts he turns them into confidence!
When God speaks to our weaknesses he turns them into strength!
When God speaks to our failures he turns them into successes!
When God speaks to our insecurities he turns them into assurances!
When God speaks to our difficulties he turns them into opportunities!
When God speaks to our defeats he turns them into victories!
When God speaks to our enemies he turns them into lifelong friends!
He stretched it out, before the man from Galilee
He stretched it out, before the man who healed the sick and raised the dead!
He stretched it out, before the man who carried an old rugged cross to Calvary!
He stretched it out to the man who was stretched out and hung between two thieves!
He stretched it out to the man who was buried in a borrowed tomb!
But early Sunday morning….

No. 9636-Inspiration

Some Things God Can't Do

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 6, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "Hast thou not known? hast thou not heard, that the everlasting God, the LORD, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? There is no searching of his understanding." —Isaiah 40:28

Introduction

Is there anything too hard for God to do? In our weakness we tend to believe that some things are beyond hope. In hospitals, when we hear a dire prognosis from a physician and read the reports, we quickly accept that a condition is beyond hope. In competitions when the scoreboard reveals an insurmountable lead by an opponent, we accept the inevitability of defeat with minutes still left in the game. In politics when the polls show a candidate with virtually no support, his supporters often prepare to throw in the towel, dismissing their candidate as a lost cause. These and other situations, have often been accepted as cases beyond hope. Yet, despite the impossibility of the situation, we have seen so many last minute reversals in our lifetimes to know that all things are possible. We have seen games change in the last two minutes. We have seen candidates with virtually no chance win elections. We have also seen those who have been pronounced terminal, live on for many years.

We have learned not to second-guess the power of God.

The power of God is immense and awesome. It is a limitless. That's good to know because every believer has the power of God working on the inside. This power directs us when we can't find our way and it restrains us when we are going a little too fast. This same power motivates us when we are slow to start and stimulates us when we need a little more inspiration just to keep going.

We have the power of God in us so we should not hesitate to work the power. What's wrong with dreaming big? What's wrong with dreaming of being the first woman president? What's wrong with dreaming of being the first scientist to find the cure for the common cold? What's wrong with dreaming being the best parent that the world has ever seen? A better preacher than your pastor? A better musician than the world's best? What wrong with dreaming of changing the world and bringing out peace? One thing the power of God does for us is releases us to dream and imagine.

If there are limits on what God can do, those limits would be self imposed. Jesus could do very few miracles in his hometown, not because his power was restrained inside the Nazareth city limits, but because the people there would not believe and allow him to release his power to help him. God is not man that he should fail, nor the Son of man that he should suffer defeat. Our God touches the hills and they tremble; he touches the mountains and they smoke. If ye believe in the littleness of God we will ask for little things and expect only little things. If we believe God is awesome, then we don't hesitate to ask for big dreams.

The question for believers is not whether God can perform a work, but whether we believe God can perform the work. People of faith are compelled to come before the throne of Grace with confidence that our God is omnipotent and has the power to help those who love and obey him.

There is no job God begins that he cannot finish. Neither is there a task too hard for him to complete. If this is true, then why are so many saints lacking? James 4:2 says, "….we have not because we ask not!"

As Christians, we know that all things are possible for our God. Yet, we also know that we cannot drink from the well of his power and favor unless we reach down our cup in faith. Until we act in faith, there will always be some things God can do that won't be done because of our lack of faith and action.

Exposition

This text focuses on the prophet Isaiah as he challenges the people of Israel to have faith in the prophecies God has revealed.

Isaiah had given the people great prophesies of doom, but he also gave them great reasons for hope and restoration. He made prophetic announcements about the coming of the Lord, his suffering and resurrection. He foretold the coming of the church and its persecution.

However, at the same time he prophesied that God would remove every obstacle in the way of the prophecy in every sense.

The prophet concluded by noting that the power and unsearchable wisdom of God is focused on and is daily engaged in strengthening, comforting, and saving his people to accomplish his will.

Nothing can stand in the way of God's will being performed in the lives of his people.

Some limits on God

It is true that God can do all things. We know this is true because Jeremiah 32:17 says, "Ah, Lord God! Behold, you have made the heavens and the earth by your great power and outstretched arm. There is nothing too hard for you." Yet, even with this knowledge we must admit that there are some things God can't do! Immediately, that seems to be a contradiction. How is it that God can do everything, but at the same time there are some things God can't do? Our God has laid out some rules for the giving of blessings and answering of prayers. There are rules he uses to determine who will be favored and who will not. And there are conditions he has placed on himself which limit what he can and cannot do within the limits of his own rules.

If God is working in us there is nothing we can't do if we release the power.

GOD CAN'T LIVE IN AN UNCLEAN TEMPLE: Our bodies are temples of the Holy Ghost. He lives within us, but since God is holy he can't live in an unholy temple or situation. 1 Corinthians 3:15 "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are." God can't work from within us if we are engaging in unholy relationships, practices and actions. In fact, he promises to destroy those who ask him to live in an unclean spiritual environment. To release the power, believers should first clean up their temple.

GOD CAN'T SHOW PARTIALITY: Acts 10:34-35 says, "...In truth I perceive that God shows no partiality. But in every nation whoever fears him and works righteousness is accepted by him." Every believer should know that what God does for one believer he can do for others. He is not partial. Neither is God prejudiced. He does not grant blessings based on race, creed or color. God can't be prejudiced.

GOD CANNOT BREAK HIS PROMISE TO YOU: If God has promised to bless us, that blessing will come. He cannot break his promise. Psalm 89:34 says, "My covenant I will not break, nor alter the word that has gone out of my lips." It means if God speaks something it will happen. That not only applies to blessings, but it also applies to punishments. If God has spoken it; it will come to pass. Believers should step out on faith knowing that if God promises something, he will make it happen.

GOD CANNOT PUNISH US FOR SINS HE HAS FORGIVEN: There are many who fail to act in faith because they do not consider themselves worthy because of past sins. However, Isaiah 43:25 says, "I, even I, am he who blots out your transgressions for my own sake; and I will not remember your sins." God will not withhold blessings from us because of past sins that he has forgiven. Believers should not let their past live restrict their present lives in Christ.

GOD CANNOT ABANDON YOU: There are many who fear stepping into the unknown because they believe they will be alone. However, believers should remember that if we are walking a path that is directed by God, he will not leave us alone. Deuteronomy 31:6 says, "Be strong and of good courage, do not fear nor be afraid of them; for the Lord your God, he is the one who goes with you. He will not leave you nor forsake you."

He just can't

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that there is one other thing about God that should encourage us and that is that God cannot stop loving us.

It is the nature of God to love his creation with an unconditional love that never ends, even though we often don't deserve to be recipients.

Jeremiah 31:3 says, "Yea, I have loved you with an everlasting love; therefore with loving-kindness I have drawn you."

An everlasting love continues for better or worse!

An everlasting love exists in sickness and health!

An everlasting love continues in wealth or poverty!

Because God loves us he cannot put a limit on what he will do for us!

Because God loves us he cannot put a boundary on how far he will go for us!

If necessary, our savior will give us a second or third chance to salvage the good in us.

God cannot turn a deaf ear to a sinner's plea to be forgiven!

Because God loves us, he will:

—Defend the orphans, support the widows and strengthen the weak!

—Comfort the dying and feed the hungry!

—Clothe the naked and visit the incarcerated!

We need to remember today that God cannot find a person so:

WEAK that cannot provide them strength

DOWN that he cannot pick them up!

DEFEATED that he cannot gave them the victory

DISCOURAGED that he cannot restore their hope!

LONELY, that he cannot gave them comfort!

TROUBLED, that he cannot give them peace of mind!

But there is one other thing we need to remember, and that is that God cannot find a soul so lost that he cannot save it.

John 3:16 says, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son, that whosoever blieveth should not perish, but have everlasting life!"

He came to show us that God cannot find a life so broken that it cannot be repaired!

He came to show us that God cannot find a hope so lost that it cannot be restored!

He came to show us that God cannot find a failure so great that it cannot be overcome!

He came to restore our faith because the only thing God really can't do is fail!

When he went to Calvary, he showed us a love that:

—Harbored no jealousy and exhibited no deceit

—Craved no greed and required no recognition

It was love that cannot be broken by the threat of death or failure.

It was a love that allowed wicked men to drive nails into his hand!

It was a love that allowed the ungodly to put a crown of thorns on his head!

It was a love that cannot be destroyed!

He died on an old rugged cross..

But early Sunday morning….

No. 9637-Easter

Seven words, Seven challenges

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 2014

SCRIPTURE: "Into thine hand I commit my spirit: thou hast redeemed me, O LORD God of truth." Psalm 31:5

Introduction

Is there a duty that we all have when we accept the challenge of the cross? On the cross Christ spoke seven last sayings that ring out across the centuries. Their mournful sound chimes out a challenge for all of believers today. These are challenges that have become duties in the fullest sense of the word.

When our Lord said, "Father, forgive them," in effect, he said to us, "Forgive your enemies." Even when they despitefully use us, and put us through terrible pain, be ready to pardon them. Be like the sandalwood tree, which perfumes the axe that fells it. Be all gentleness, and kindness, and love; and let this be our prayer, "Father, forgive them."

When he said to the dying thief, "Today shalt thou be with me in paradise" the need for repentance was underscored. It challenges us to ask the question, "Have we, like the thief on the cross, confessed our sins? Do we have his faith and his prayerfulness?" We have the duty of penitence and faith.

When he said, "Woman, behold thy son!" he taught us the duty to love our parents. No Christian must ever be short of love for his mother, his father, or to any of those who are endeared to him by relationships that God has appointed for us to observe. We see Christ on the cross showing love for his mother. It is our duty not to forget our mothers. She who bore us; should be bourn in her old age, and lovingly cherished even to her last breath.

Jesus Christ's fourth cry teaches us the duty of clinging to God, and trusting in God: "My God, my God." See how, with both hands, he takes hold of him: "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" He cannot bear to be left of God; all else causes him but little pain compared with the anguish of being forsaken of his God. From this we must learn that we have a duty to God. To cling to him, because we cannot bear this world alone.

The fifth cry, "I thirst," teaches us to set a high value upon the fulfillment of God's Word. We have a duty to thirst after the work of the cross and the fulfillment of God's will.

That sixth cry, “It is finished,” teaches us perfect obedience. When we hear these words we are reminded of our need to finish what we start in the Lord. We should leave out no command undone. We should keep on obeying until we can say, “It is finished.”

And that last word, “Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit,” teaches us resignation. Yield all things, yield up even thy spirit to God at his bidding. Stand still, and make a full surrender to the Lord, and let this be our watchword.

As Christians, we have heard the seven last sayings of Christ, but the blessing is not in hearing the words, but accepting them as our duty and actually carrying out the word of God in our lives.

Exposition

These texts are a reminder to believers of the attitudes and duties of every believer who chooses to take up his cross and follow Christ.

The seven last sayings of Christ on the cross, were not his last sayings on earth, for their were other words he spoke to people who saw him on the Emmaus road, to his disciples in lockdown and to thousands as he challenged them to “Go ye therefore.”

The cross sayings challenge every believer to step forward and assume the duty of living Christ every day!

What the saying mean to us

The seven last sayings on the cross send a message to believers in the form of encouragement because they come from a crucified savior who ultimately overcame and arose victorious.

OVERCOME YOUR FEAR OF BEING LEFT ALONE: On the cross Christ spoke what many feel when they face adversity; that they are being left alone. For many that is a great fear. Jesus was forsaken for a brief moment and he asked, why?
“Why hast thou forsaken me?’’ It is not the why of impatience. It is not the why of despair; it is not the why of doubt. It is the human cry of intense suffering, aggravated by the anguish of His innocent and holy life. That awful and agonizing cry of the loneliness of His passion! He was alone. He was alone with the sins of the world upon Him. Yet, he overcame his fear of being left alone and carried out God’s will. In so doing he taught us to be fearless. The person who stands in awe of another force is defeated before he begins. Christ’s cry showed that he is like us when we hurt, but his decision to carry out God’s will showed us the true meaning of David’s words, “The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life, of whom shall I be afraid?”

DON’T COUNT YOURSELF OUT: On the cross, many counted Christ out. Even his disciples watched from a distance. Not only had the critics counted the Christian cause out, but also they disassociated themselves from the cross! They counted themselves out! They had to be reminded of the words of Christ when he told them that he would be crucified but would rise again after three days and nights. They had to be reminded because they forgot.

Knowing that the victory was at hand Christ held no grudges against those who crucified him or those who lost faith. In fact, he said, “Father, forgive them.”

He refused to be counted out. He knew that victory was around the corner, so he forgave even the religious leaders who watched him. Matthew 27:36 says, “And sitting down they watched him there.” ”Then said Jesus, Father, forgive them: for they know not what they do . . .’’ (Luke 23:34). He asked forgiveness for their sin.

It’s a good thing that he did because a centurion in charge of the execution was saved; and a whole company of Pharisees, and much later Saul of Tarsus, who probably was in crowd of unbelievers that followed months later, was also saved on the Damascus Road.

We should not count ourselves out when adversity comes. Neither should we lose the capacity to forgive our persecutors because in such forgiveness the Gospel spreads.

Even when the world puts us on a cross we must remember Romans 8:28"And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose.”

Don’t count yourself out; a just man falleth seven times, and riseth up again:

WE HAVE A DUTY TO SHOW COMPASSION: On the cross, Christ showed that he both felt the pain of suffering himself and was concerned about others. In his own agony, he expressed, “I thirst.” Suffering from the pain of the cross he expressed that feeling of thirst for water, but also for mankind to know God and to know him fully. We see him place his own fate in God’s hands when he cries out “Father into thy hands I commend my spirit.”

Yet, while he is concerned about his own suffering he also shows compassion. Hanging in despair he cries out “Woman, Behold thy son.” In so doing he put his mother in the care of John. Then he responded to the repentant cry of the thief on his right and said, “This day shall you be with me in paradise.” Despite his own agony and suffering, he showed compassion for others.

The challenge for believers today is to do the same. To reach out to others and to feel their pain even while we feel our own.

Jesus bore two crosses in one. One for himself and one for the world.

One cross for the sinful nature of mankind and one cross for my personal misgivings.

One cross for the shortsightedness of the world, and one cross for personal near sightedness.

One cross for the wayward heart of the world, and one cross for my own hard and callused heart.

Perhaps that’s what prompted Dr. Watts to ask, “Was it for crimes that I had done, He groaned upon the tree? Amazing pity! grace unknown! And love beyond degree!

It is done

Finally, brothers and sisters, while we commemorate the last words of Jesus on the cross, we must remember his last saying, “It is finished.”

In a matter of hours what had begun in the beginning was coming to a close.

In a matter of hours, a journey that had come through 42 generations was reaching its end.

When we hear the seven last sayings we hear the final words on the cross side of salvation.

The first three words from the cross relate primarily to others, and Jesus spoke them between 9:00 a.m. and noon (Mark 15:25). First He asked forgiveness for those who were crucifying Him and promised to be with the penitent thief in paradise. He made provision for the care of His mother by John in his third saying.

The last four words refer to his personal suffering and were spoken between noon and 3:00 p.m. He uttered the cry of desolation, quoting Psalm 22:1 in the Aramaic language “Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani? that is to say, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?”

He expressed His thirst, (John 19:28) and issued the cry of victory in his final w ords, “It is finished” and “Into thy hands I commend my spirit.”

When Jesus said, “It is finished,” it meant his cross work was done, but there was more to be said and done.

Those words on the cross were not the last words. We know they were not the last words because His first words after His resurrection were, “Woman, why are you weeping?’ (John 20:15 NKJV).

He spoke many words after that. He commissioned the disciples to go to all the world.

He challenged them to teach, preach and baptize!

He also told them that a comforter would come.

His last words were, “But ye shall receive power..”

His last words contained a promise of empowerment when the Holy Ghost comes!

His last word is the last word!

God always has the last word!

We should remember the last words of Jesus:

—Who picked his own mother and was the same age as His father —Who went to school, but taught His teachers

—Who hungered for bread but was the living bread

—Who said He was thirsty but at the same time was the living water

—Who could walk through doors, while telling the world he’s was the only door!

We must remember his last words because when life’s problems give us sadness, it helps us to remember that God’s got the last word, because he can take your sadness and give you gladness!

If life has given you doubt, God’s got the last word, he can take your doubt and give you assurance!

If your troubles have given you bondage, God’s got the last word; he can take your bondage and give you freedom!

For every cross you bear, God’s got the last word!

For every ditch someone digs for you, God’s got the last word!

The world may declare, “Put him down!” But for every “put down” God’s got the last word!

They took the first word and nailed him to a cross. They heard him speak seven words and thought that was the last of the word.

On Calvary, Jesus dropped his head in the locks of his shoulder, but that wasn’t the last word!

They stuck a spear in His side, but that wasn’t the last word!

He cried out to his father, “Into thy hands I commend my spirit.” But that wasn’t the last word!

Even though they buried him in a borrowed tomb and he stayed there for three days and nights; that wasn’t the last word either, because Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

One of these old days he’s coming back again. When he does I want to be in the number who hears his last words to saints, “Servant, well done!”

No. 9638-Inspiration

Rise and Shine

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 20, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the LORD is risen upon thee. For, behold, the darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people: but the LORD shall arise upon thee, and his glory shall be seen upon thee." Isaiah 60:1-2

Introduction

Have you ever awakened at night and waited anxiously to see the sunrise? It also happens when you have spent a long fearful night in the dark and you can't wait to see the day break. If you have ever driven long hours in the night, you know what it means to look anxiously for the first signs of daybreak; because soon the sun will rise.

If we are not careful, life can create a black hole for each of us that will be so dark and bleak that we can never see the light of day. Do you remember what we were taught about black holes in space? Black holes are created by large stars that die by collapsing on themselves. As they die, they shrink smaller and smaller and become heavier and heavier. Their gravitational force becomes so strong that they pull nearby objects into themselves. A black hole, therefore, cannot rise and shine. Black holes pull other stars in and let nothing out-not even light. When we get in a black hole, we can't rise and we suck everyone around us down as well!

Have you been there? What's your black hole situation? Maybe it's when we keep working, but the bills keep getting higher and higher! Maybe it's when we make two steps forward and then make three steps backward! Maybe it's when we have been knocked down so much that we feel we can't get up! When that happens, we start to pull down everyone around us. Our energy and enthusiasm is zapped! Our hope is lost! We wish we could just go somewhere and sleep and then wake up and find out that this has all been a dream! Sometimes, when we are in this black hole, we get drunk or use drugs. Sometimes we just eat, eat and eat. Sometimes we shop and buy useless things. In the process, we pull everything and everyone down around us.

Those who have been there can testify that the only way they were able to get out of their own darkness and see the light of day, was to release the power of God in their lives and allow Jesus to shine upon them.

That's the strength of the resurrection message. The disciples came to the tomb at a point when their hopes were at their lowest and the fears were at their highest. They were in a black hole! The women came to Jesus in the dark, but they soon found the light of a new day.

As Christians, we should remember that just as the disciples came to Jesus in the dark, but arose to a new powerful life in Christ believers today should do the same. That's why the old warriors sang, "I came to Jesus as I was, weary, wounded and sad. I found in him a resting place and he has made me glad!"

Exposition

This text focuses on the prophet Isaiah as he encourages believers to look toward the coming of Christ and arise with new hope.

The 60th chapter begins as a word of hope after the sad picture that was painted in chapter 59. Isaiah 59:9-11 describes Israel as walking in darkness, being in prison, groping along the walls, having no eyes, groaning in anguish, and, finally, dead.

This chapter begins with a glorious command: "Arise, shine, for your light has come!"

P.G. Mathew says, "Isaiah anticipated such a Redeemer, describing him in various places as the Messiah, a Davidic king, the Suffering Servant, Immanuel, the Son of God, the God/man. This Redeemer is not a black hole; he is the Sun of Righteousness who rises with healing in his wings. He is high and exalted, the glorious One, the One who is thrice-holy, yet who also dwells with those who are contrite and brokenhearted. It is he who can give us life and light and enable us to rise and shine."

This power to help us shine is sprinkled throughout the book of Isaiah. Isaiah 9:2 says, "The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light: they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined," and Isaiah 59:20 promises, "And the Redeemer shall come to Zion,and unto them that turn from transgression in Jacob, saith the Lord." Isaiah 58:8 says, "Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thine health shall spring forth speedily:and thy righteousness shall go before thee; the glory of the Lord shall be thy rereward. It is accented by Isaiah 58:10 which says, "Then your light will break forth like the dawn, and your healing will quickly appear . . . then your light will rise in the darkness, and your night will become like the noonday." And here in Isaiah 60 we read, "Arise, shine, for your light has come, and the glory of the Lord rises upon you. See, darkness covers the earth and thick darkness is over the peoples, but the Lord rises upon you and his glory appears over you"

Our light has come! The Lord knows our terrible condition. It is time to rise and shine.

Light in darkness

Those who are trying to find their way out of their own black holes should not despair; there is hope. We should glean several truths for our daily living:

WE CANNOT RISE AND SHINE ON OUR OWN: It is virtually impossible for those who have fallen into darkness to find the light dependent on their own power alone.

Most of us depend on an outside stimulus to help us wake up each morning: an alarm clock, blowing of a train horn, birds chirping, or someone telling us to rise and shine. Without it we would probably oversleep. We have wandered into the darkness and fallen into a black hole, we need help. If that black hole is finances, we need financial help. If it is marital trouble, we need counseling. If it is an addition, we need intervention.

We are commanded by God to "rise and shine for your light has come," but we can't get up alone. We are like the woman in the Life Alert commercial, who cries out, "Help I have fallen and I can't get up!" –Once she bought a Life-Alert device she could get help at the push of a button. The key to answering the command to rise is to ask God to help you. If want to climb out of the black hole we should allow the power of God to lift us and help us stand. Can those who are dead in their sins rise and shine? Can people who are absorbed in themselves rise above their narcissism? Can the thief rise above his kleptomania? Not alone! But there is a redeemer who is willing to help you climb out. Maybe that's what the song writer had in mind when he wrote, "Ask the savior to help you, comfort strengthen and keep you. He is willing to aid you. He will carry you through."

WHEN WE LIVE AND ACT BY FAITH WE SHINE: When a person crawls out of a black hole and steps out on faith; he or she shines! He shines because Christ, the light of the world, shines through him. She shines because now everyone can see that it is obviously the power of God guiding her everyday. To shine means to arise out of an unholy situation, better, stronger, bolder and more confident. The believer who steps out of the debris of a failed relationship and continues marching forward, shine! The believer who is enduring an illness or physical handicap, but courageously plunges into the world anyway, shines! The person who steps out of an unholy lifestyle and begins a chaste, holy, restrained, and obedient life that is pleasing to God, really shines!

Galatians 5 gives us a picture of a life in the black hole, and what happens we we rise and shine. It's all in in four verses. Verses 19-21 describe life in the black hole: "Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are these; Adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, Idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditions, heresies, Envyings, murders, drunkenness, revellings, and such like:of the which I tell you before, as I have also told you in time past, that they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God."

The next two verses describe what happens when rise and shine. Galatians 5:22-23 read, "But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, Meekness, temperance:against such there is no law.

To shine means that husbands will love their wives, that children will obey their parents, and wives will respect their husbands. To shine means we will walk in the light of the gospel and live by God's commandments. To shine means to separate ourselves from the corrupt lifestyles and cultures of the world.

To shine also means that we are crippled by those who believe we cannot succeed; who talk about us and belittle our dreams. We are living a faith filled, obedient life and

God. We will be victorious and God will be glorified because we intend to shine!

EXPECT HATERS WHEN YOU RISE: Believers who have failed and are making moves to rise again, should be aware that not everyone will be happy to see them rise! When Jesus raised Lazarus from his black hole, there were many who were happy, but John 12:10 says that there were plots to kill Lazarus again by those who did not want him to shine as an example of Christ's power. Think of that! They hated and plotted on him just because he arose and was a shining example of God's redeeming power! We should not expect the devil to be happy about the fact that you have risen from your pity party and have decided to let God show you how to manage your life! The devil won't be happy that you no longer accept failure as your lot in life! The devil and his imps will hate on you every single day of your life. Don't get upset! God is shining in your life and the world sees it.

People will say that you have changed! They are correct, "If any man be in Christ he is a new creature, old things are passed away and all things become new!" Rise and Shine anyway! You

People who want to pull you back into that black hole, will say that you think you are more than they are! The are correct. They have accepted defeated you have decided that "Nothing shall separate me from the Love of God…in all these things we are more than conquerors!" Rise and Shine anyway!

Rise and shine and the glory of the Lord will come into your life. If haters don't like it; they have a problem!"

Looking for the Sonrise

Finally brothers and sisters, we must remember that those who have suffered through the long darkness of a spiritual night are strengthened when the SONrises!

The SON is the son of God and when he rises in any life, we rise and we shine!

Every child of God ought to be able to peer beyond the dark and murky cloud that veils the glistening rays of a new day begun and resolve in his mind despite the hard times I've seen and troubles I've endured, I will rise and shine and give God the glory!

I may not have all that my heart desires, but I thank the Lord for giving me what little I have, I will rise and shine!

I may not be of the best of health. My steps may be getting slow. My eyesight may be getting dim. But I thank the Lord for sparing my life and allowing me to see another another day, I will rise and shine!

I will arise and allow the Son of God to rise in my life every day.

To a world that is lost in darkness Christ comes as a refreshing SONrise.

The disciples saw the crucifixion and saw only the sunset. They saw the sunset but they forgot about SONrise!

Today many have seen a failure or frustration and have been so carried away by their failure that they have forgotten about SONrise!

Somebody stumbled along the way, but be of good cheer, there is a SONrise so, rise and shine!

Somebody has suffered along the way don't get discouraged, there is a SONrise; so, rise and shine!

Someone's family has been touched by the chilly fingers of death, hold up your head, there is a SONrise, so rise and shine!

At SONrise we learn that God can help us:

—Get up when we are down

—Keep going when we feel like stopping

—Live it up so we won't have to live it down

—Rebuild that which has fallen down

—Be happy in an unhappy world

—Be calm in the midst of the storm

—Do right when everything is going wron

At Calvary the disciples saw only the sunset, they could not see the SONrise!

They saw the old rugged cross, but they forgot that Jesus told them that if temple is destroyed he would build it again in three days. They saw the sunset but they forgot about the SONrise!

They saw Jesus lifted up between two thieves and they forgot that Jesus said "And I, if I be lifted up will draw all men unto me." They saw the sunset but they forgot about the SONrise!

They saw the soldiers pierce him in the side and they forgot that Jesus said No man taketh my life, but I lay it down. No greater love than this than a man would lay down his life for his friends. They saw the sunset but they forgot about the SONrise!

They saw the darkness over spread the sky and they forgot that Jesus said I am the light of the world. In the light there can be no darkness. They saw the sun set but forgot about the SONrise.

They heard Jesus call out to his father: "Why hast thou forsaken me" and they forgot John 3:16 "For God so loved the world that he gave is only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life." They saw the sunset but they forgot about SONrise!

They buried him in a borrowed tomb, but they forgot about the Sonrise!

But early Sunday morning the women can to the tomb and found he was not there.

They ran to tell everybody its Sonrise!

Lift up your heads, the Son is shining again!

Jesus, the Lord of Lords, is shining again!

Jesus, the King of Kings, is shining again!

No. 9639-Funeral

Rejoice

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

April 26, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "Rejoice in the Lord alway:and again I say, Rejoice." Philippians 4:4

Introduction

It is easy to be joyful when a child is born, but is it easy to be joyful with a loved one has passed away? It is easy to take a bundle of joy in our arms and feel the joy of the moment. A baby has so much potential and such a bright future ahead. We are thrilled at that moment. Yet, we don't seem to share that same happiness at the death of a loved one, no matter how saintly or close to God they lived. The spirit of joy seems to slip past us and fades in the shadows of death.

The ability to be joyful in any situation is a distinctive quality that everyone does not have, but most seek in the course of their lives. The humanity in us responds to pleasing outcomes or bright prospects. Conversely, it is our nature to feel emptiness when there is a momentary loss or if it is projected into the future.

As a general rule, we are thrilled when we can see the bright side of a situation. Believers go one step further, expressing a joy that issues from a faith that says, Whatever makes God happy brings me joy regardless of the circumstance for me. This is a vibrant joy that exists every day and grows continuously stronger.

We can only remember the perspective of Job about life's ups and downs. Job received both the good and the hard to swallow from God, but after he had received the worst declared, The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away; blessed be the name of the Lord.

As Christians, have learned to have a spirit of joy regardless of our situation, because we humble ourselves before the will of God. We revel in the knowledge God still loves us, and his actions are according to his divine plan and timetable. Therefore, even in our sorrow, we rejoice!

Exposition

This text focuses on the Apostle Paul as he announces his joy to the Philippians.

In A.D. 61- 63, Paul was in prison in Rome, about 10 years after he had founded the church in Philippi and about three or four years after he had last visited there.

Apparently he had begun to wonder if they had forgotten him (Philippians 4:10). Then Epaphroditus arrived from faraway Philippi with an offering of money. Paul was deeply touched. Epaphroditus had almost lost his life on the journey. When he recovered Paul sent him to Philippi with this beautiful letter.

As we read it in the aftermath of his life, it seems like a letter from the grave as he listed off the people whom he thanked.

In the first three verses of the text, he thanked those who labored with him, especially the sainted women, who labored with him as a preached the gospel.

In verse four, he encouraged those who were concerned about him to rejoice always in the Lord. Even with his imprisonment, he instructed them to rejoice. He began the verse with rejoice, and he ended it with rejoice.

In verse ten, he thanked those who care for him at every given opportunity. Although he often refused their help; they helped him anyway.

At verse 14, he said, "Notwithstanding ye have well done, that ye did communicate with my affliction." He commended them for dealing with him in his suffering and troubles.

His words to the Philippians were inspirational. He encouraged them to think positively, even about the difficult and disturbing possibility of his imprisonment and death. He summed it up by encouraging them in verse eight to: "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."

The words that lingered in their ears were: "Rejoice, Rejoice!"

What it means to rejoice

Paul used the word rejoice two times in the text. His deliberate redundancy calls attention to the word rejoice because inherent in its meaning are even greater truths:

INTENSE JOY IN THE LORD: Joyce or Joice is a Latin word that means the joy of The Lord. For generations mothers have named their daughters Joyce as a way of emphasizing their feeling that the little ones they brought into the world reflected the joy they shared as mothers as well their hopes of a life that would be lived in the joy of The Lord. For ordinary people, the joy of the Lord has a decidedly simplistic meaning. A life lived in the joy of the Lord is one that is lived in his presence and is dedicated to building his kingdom. It is a life that is lived in service to the church, building a godly family, and ministering to those who cannot help themselves.

Yet, when Paul wrote to the Philippians he did not tell them to joy in the Lord told him to rejoice. The significance of rejoice in this context is in the prefix "re" which has a double meaning and helps us to understand the subliminal suggestion Paul made this text.

Whenever the prefix "re" precedes a word it can have one of two meanings or both. First, "re" is an intensive prefix. It means that which follows is greatly intensified or operates on another level. A reborn man lives a fuller life. A restored kingdom is a greater kingdom. A revived dream is more intense! To rejoice in the Lord is to intensely serve him with a passion. Perhaps this is the meaning of Psalm 48:1 which says, "Great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised." To rejoice is not to just serve the Lord, but to serve him with a passion. It's living the Christian life and loving it!

THE JOY OF THE LORD-AGAIN! Secondly, the prefix "re" also means that something is about to be done again.

To repeat is to do the same thing again.

To remix is to use the same elements, shuffle them, and present them again.

To recite is to give an oral account again.

To remember is to call up stored information for current use.

To reenter is to enter again.

To "Re" anything means we are going to do it one more time.

So, when Paul urged the Philippians to rejoice he urged them revel in the joy of The Lord, again, but to do it more intensely than in the past!

To rejoice is the idea of celebrating and praising in hard times just as much or more than we did when situations were better.

The difference between the two in this context is a reflection of the circumstance and the promise.

LET THE LOVE CONTINUE: To rejoice in the context of this gathering today takes into account all of the troubles faced this Joyce has faced and indicates that the joy of the Lord must continue in the midst of good times or tough times, with an even greater level of intensity and faith.

We can rejoice when we remember how God has blessed us in the past as He brought us to the present. We feel happy all over again!

That's what this family will do. When they think of all the good times they have shared with this Joyce, they will feel happy all over again. They will rejoice!

They will get happy all over again when they hear her favorite song!

They will get happy all over again when her favorite television show is on the air!

They will get happy all over again when someone remembers a saying that she said so often!

This family has plenty of reasons to rejoice!

We can rejoice when see what God has done and is still doing today.

If God has blessed us before, He will bless us again, so we rejoice.

If God has healed us before, He can heal us again, so we rejoice.

If God has lifted us before, He can lift us again, so we rejoice.

We rejoice in the middle of hard times, even before we are delivered.

We don't have to wait until the battle is over, we can shout now.

Reason to ReJoice

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that since we have been promised that those who are absent from the body are present with the Lord, we should take comfort in that promise and rejoice!

We are tempted to experience depression and the blues and find it difficult to understand the joy of the Lord!

We should lift up our heads and realize that we are celebrating a tale of two Joyces today. One that lived among us, who cared for her mother, raised her children, served in the church and was a friend to the neighborhood.

This Joyce served and led a pious life until her body wore out and strength failed.

Yet, this is also the story of another Joyce, the born again Joyce who is absent from this earthly house, but present with the Lord. That's the Rejoice!

This Joyce had to cry sometimes, but in the Land of Rejoice, there shall be no more tears!

This Joyce had heartaches and bodily pains, but in the Land of Rejoice, there are no more pains!

This is not her fate alone; this happens to every believer who walks closely with the Lord!

We should rejoice as long as the Lord is with us.

When the Lord is with you, it won't matter how rocky the road or how high the mountain. When the Lord is with you there is:

-Peace in the midst of your Problems

-Calm in the midst of your crises

-Gladness in the midst of your sorrows

-Assurance in the midst of your affliction

I don't know about you, but I have decided that I will rejoice and lift up the name of Jesus because. If the Lord stands by me, he'll give me a:

-Light to shine in my darkness

-Straight path to walk, when I can't find my way

-Lift up when I've fallen down

-Strong hand to hold, when I'm feeling weak

Don't be discouraged!

There may be trouble all around us, yet we will rejoice in him because he brings us joy!

There may be confusion all around us, yet we will rejoice in him because he brings us direction!

There may be weakness all around us, yet we will rejoice in him because he brings me strength!

There is a spirit of defeat all around us, yet we will rejoice in him because he brings us the victory!

We will rejoice because God sent his Son to die for us on Calvary and wash away our sins!

We rejoice because early Sunday morning he arose with all power in his hands!

We will rejoice because our God looks down on us every day and showers us with blessings from heaven!

We will rejoice because the Lord is blessing us right now!
We will rejoice because he will never leave us alone!

—

On Saturday, April 19, 2014 Joyce Ann Simmons, This Joyce, was visited in her agony by the angel of death and told it was time to…rejoice in the presence of the Lord!

No. 9640-Inspiration

When you are down, Jesus shows up

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 27, 2014

SCRIPTURE: And as they thus spake, Jesus himself stood in the midst of them, and saith unto them, Peace be unto you. But they were terrified and affrighted, and supposed that they had seen a spirit. And he said unto them, Why are ye troubled? and why do thoughts arise in your hearts? Behold my hands and my feet that it is I myself: handle me, and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have. Luke 24:36-39

Introduction

Have you ever questioned God, if only for a moment? If you are like most believers, there were a few times in your life when you doubted that the promises God has made to the faithful will actually happen. In fact, when we experience sickness, financial loss, problems or difficulties, not just one regretful thought comes into our hearts, but many.

After Easter, the disciples were down in the dumps. They questioned all the promises that were made and were extremely poor in spirit.

Then Jesus showed up! He appeared in the midst of them and immediately they were afraid and thought he was a ghost.

They panicked. They panicked because he was not there, and then they panicked when he showed up.

We panic when we can't figure a way out of a situation, and we envision the worst. In a crowded theatre, the word fire shouted loudly can trigger panic. As people look for exits in crowded isles, each person envisions himself suffocating and dying a horrible death. At that time, many lose control, climb over others, scream, cry, run, kick and struggle for survival. Many have lost their lives in panicky situations, not all of them were life threatening, but they appeared to be.

Even if an emergency responder shows up, they still panic.

Crises can cause anxiety. Loss of a job or source of income can also be a panic situation. A health crisis can promote fear. Whenever panic occurs rational thinking and faith based actions are difficult.

Generally, we panic out of fear. We see the worst that can happen actually occurring, and we attempt to avoid that situation. When we panic there is disorder, disunity, mistrust and confusion. Even faith gets challenged when we panic.

For the disciples, the fact that Jesus died on Calvary was a panic situation. They were exposed to legal prosecution, loss of property and their families were exposed as well. Most of all, his crucifixion meant an end to their dreams of building the kingdom of God and freeing people from the shackles of bondage to the Roman empire. When Jesus showed up there was a different kind of panic. Their faith was shaken once again because they should not have been surprised. They should have expected him to appear as he said he would; their lack of faith caused them to panic again.

Is there a personal or family situation that is reaching the alarm stage in your life?

Are you about to lose it?

Before you push your panic button, why not try one last thing... stand still and see the Salvation of the Lord.

As believers, we have learned that God has a tendency to show up at the right time. When he shows up, he usually shows out. Don't panic. God is in control!

Exposition

This text focuses on Christ at the end of the resurrection day.

The crucifixion of Christ was a tremendous blow to his disciples. They had high hopes of establishing the kingdom of God on earth with Jesus as King and themselves as his royal court, some sitting on his left and others on his right. As the stone was sealed in front of the tomb, their hopes were also sealed, too.

Early Sunday morning the women came to the tomb to anoint his body with spices. They had hastily wrapped him without completing the process. When they left home, they fully expected to find Jesus' body just as they had left it. Instead, they found the stone rolled away.

The disciples enclosed themselves in a room and shut the doors. They were afraid for their lives. Since Jesus had been crucified, some concluded they would be next. It was a striking contrast to the boldness they had shown just a few days earlier. Peter was so strong that he cut off a man's ear at the garden and swore he would never reject the Lord. Now he was huddled with the others, shivering and afraid.

Their fear was equaled by their surprise when Christ appeared himself. He challenged them to look at his hands and his feet, to bring him something to eat and even invited them to inspect the nail prints in his hands and feet.

In verse 38, he asked the question, "Why are ye troubled? Why do thoughts arise?"

He asks the same question today.

Down in the Dumps

The disciples were at a low point. They felt the same sense of dread that Elijah felt after he had successfully challenged the prophets of Baal then found himself hiding under a Juniper tree. We appreciate their frustration but learn some essential truths from it all.

JESUS SHOWED UP WHEN THEY WERE AFRAID: To say the disciples were disappointed is an understatement. They were frustrated and frightened. Yet, when Christ showed up he reignited their faith and they were ready to stand boldly with him and for him.

In our own failures and let downs, our prayer is that God would show up in our spirit. When he does, he will inspire us to use resources that have been laying dormant for a long time.

When Jesus shows up, he inspires us to call upon energies and resources that have not been used in a long while. Someway or somehow we rise to the occasion with God's help.

Often we draw upon resources of spirit and strength that usually go unused.

God knows that sometimes we need a few frustrations to cause us to use what we have. In this context, our frustrations take on a new meaning.

While frustrations are crippling, in that they help us to draw upon our strengths, they are also healing.

While frustrations are retarding, in that they sometimes encourage the use of energies otherwise untapped, frustrations are also motivating.

While frustrations are bothersome because they enable us to improve present circumstances, frustrations are also helpful.

While frustrations are time consuming, in that the experience of learning from the momentary pause will save time in the future, frustrations serve a purpose.

The disciples arose from their hiding with a stronger faith, no longer held hostage to their own fears.

WHEN JESUS SHOWS UP, WE SEE THE BRIGHT SIDE: What makes being down in the dumps so disheartening is that we lose hope. That's what made the disciples locked behind closed doors such a pitiful sight. They lost hope. They saw Jesus crucified. They saw the tomb. They gave up. They saw no hope or redeeming spirit in their situation, until Jesus showed up. When Jesus showed up, they were able to see the bright side.

There is an old saying that behind every dark cloud, there is a silver lining.

The songwriter says, There is a bright side somewhere. In our disappointments, God always shows us his grace. In our sickness, tragedies and setbacks, God speaks plainly to our situation, and we find hope. That hope is in the promises of God.

The covenant that God makes with us is what keeps us going. We have his word that he will make a way for us out of no way and be a bridge for us over all of our troubling waters. Therefore, even if life gives us disappointments, we don't give up because God is still on the throne.

WHEN JESUS SHOWS UP WE ARE NOT ALONE: The disciples hid because they thought God had abandoned them. They felt they were all alone. They heard Christ on the cross call out to his father asking, "Why hast thou forsaken me?" It was only when Jesus showed up that their faith was restored, and they remembered all of God's promises to believers. Like the disciples, there are times when we feel all alone and abandoned. We feel that we have been forsaken by everyone even our parents.

Those are the lonely times that we can only call on God. Psalm 27:9-10 says, “Hide not thy face far from me; put not thy servant away in anger: thou hast been my help; leave me not, neither forsake me, O God of my salvation. When my father and my mother forsake me, then the LORD will take me up.”

The songwriter says, “What a friend we have in Jesus.” It is a testament to the fact that when all others fail God will be with us and strengthen us.

In Matthew 28, he said, “Lo, I’’ll be with you always, even until the end of the earth.”

When Jesus shows up, we have a friend.

Don’t lose hope

Finally, brothers and sisters, we who know God should not lose hope or be dismayed because God is still on the throne and he will show up on time.

The disciples locked away in their hiding place were at the brink of disaster. They had almost given up; yet in the middle of their dismay, Jesus showed up.

This should be a lesson to those who are dismayed and are on the verge of giving up. Be not dismayed. Dismay implies disillusionment.

When we are dismayed, we lack the courage that it takes to go on!

When we are dismayed, we lack the perception that it takes to see our way clear!

When we are dismayed, we lack the hope that it takes to believe that no matter how terrible it gets; the Lord will make a way!

When we are dismayed, our spirit gets low, and we hang our heads in defeat!

When we are dismayed, our smiling face is replaced by frowns and confusion.

But when Jesus shows up, he begins to turned things around.

We are inspired when Jesus shows up, because when nobody else:

—KNOWS, he knows; CARES, he cares.

—UNDERSTANDS, he understands; ABLE, he is able.

We know he is able because he is the same God who:

—Who rounded the earth in the palm of my hand

—Spangled the night with the moon and stars

—Batted my eyes and made the lightning flash

—Clapped my hands and made the thunder roll

—hollowed the valleys and bulged the mountains up!

Oh, brothers and sisters, these are perilous times in which we live, but we should not despair or be dismayed.

Satan may be in the saddle for a while, but remember God is still on the throne!

If you think the world is getting out of hand, just remember what the little children say: “He’s got the whole world, whole wide world in his hands!”

If the storms rise, be not dismayed

If the winds blow, be not dismayed

If your mountains get hard to climb, be not dismayed

If burdens seem too heavy to bear, be not dismayed

No wonder the songwriter declared, “Be not dismayed what ere betide, God will take care of you. Beneath his wings of love abide. God will take care of you!

He showed up, at the beginning of time when He said, let us make man!

He showed up, when he made ways for us out of no way!

He showed up, when he put food on your tables and answered our prayers.

He really showed up, when he picked up an old rugged cross and carried it to Golgotha's Hill.

He showed up, when he died out on Calvary!

Early Sunday morning, not only did he show up, but he showed out.

He arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

Don't despair, God will take care of you!

No. 9641-Christian Education

Isms

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

May 4, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "Study to show thyself approved, a workman that needeth not be ashamed but rightly dividing the word of truth." II Timothy 2:15

Introduction

Have you ever heard of an ism? It's an old saying in the African American subculture that refers to a teaching or belief that has no little or no proof, but seems to be right. Isms are so prevalent that every believer should consciously study the word of God with a hunger to avoid being misled.

There are two types of isms that believers should encounter most often. One type of ism deals practices and rituals among our people and the other deals with faith and religious issues.

There are many practices in the African-American church that are isms, but have little or no support in Scripture. One ism teaches that it is a sin for women to wear the color "red" to worship because red is the color of sin. This ism is supposedly based on Isaiah 1:18 which says, "Though your sins be as scarlet they shall be as white as snow." Today, red is still frown upon in many black congregations unless there are special occasions. It is an ism.

Another ism that is taught in black churches is "raising one finger" when someone leaves the building. It is a slavery era practice of excusing movement by indicating that the worshiper has to go to the restroom to do "Number 1." Supposedly, this is commanded by 1 Corinthians 14:40 which says, "let everything be done decently and in order." – There is no bible command to raise one finger, it's an ism.

An ism that is taken extremely serious in many African-American congregations is the supposed curse of death, sickness or bad luck that comes from touching the communion table. This is based on 2 Samuel 6:6 in which a man named Uzzah was helping carry the Ark of the Covenant when it began to fall. He touched it to keep it from falling and scripture says, "And the anger of the Lord was kindled against Uzzah, and God struck him down there because of his error, and he died there beside the ark of God."

The old-timers, having great respect for the Lord's Supper transposed this practice into the black church tradition. While believers should show great respect for holy things, there is no bible scripture that says a person who touches the communion table will die, become sick or have bad luck, - it's an ism.

Isms usually evolve from those who do not fully understand the bible. Some believe the bible is a series truths, each independent of the other and simply opening it and reading somewhere will bring truth. This is dangerous because out of context the there are passages that can misrepresent what God says. For example, those who support the death penalty quote Exodus 21:23-24 which says, "thou shalt give life for life, eye for an eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand." They do not read the words, of Jesus in Matthew 5:38 which say, "Ye have heard that it hath been said, an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth: But I say unto you, that ye resist not evil: but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other."

Isms develop whenever practices, beliefs or rituals derive their origins from loose or disconnect interpretations of scripture or doctrine. Isms make sense to the untrained believer who wants to follow God's command. They make no sense at all to those who have armed themselves with a full knowledge of God's word.

Those who believe, but don't study the bible seriously fall victim to isms and cute sayings that may be true, but are not word of God. Phrases such as "if you make one step, God will help you make two" or "God don't like ugly" or "Cleanliness is next to godliness" all sound great to the ears, but they are not in the bible. Those who don't study the bible usually become the victims of those who victimize them by selling them false hope based on blessed oils, anointed candles, and sacred cloths. Those who don't study are easily deceived because they don't study the word for themselves.

As Christians, we study the word regularly and systematically, with instructors of sound doctrine who can help us understand the world in which we live and our own life experiences in the context of God's word. Those who study will never fall victim to isms because they rightly divide the word of truth.

Exposition

Paul in his letter to Timothy, admonished the young minister to study that he might show himself a workman grounded in the doctrine of his faith and motivated by a Christian zeal, but according to knowledge.

Although Paul's letter was directed originally to Timothy, it is generally directed at every man, woman and child that professes Christianity. The admonition to study applies just as much today as it did in Timothy's day.

The need to become fully equipped ambassador's for Christ applies just much today as it did in Timothy's day. The need for thorough training in the doctrine of our church is just as pressing today as it was at the time of this text.

Why we should study

Therefore, it is important for believers to know the Word of God, in context, so that they do not easily become victims of isms. We should:

STUDY TO KNOW THE WILL OF GOD: Believers want to know the will of God, but the only way to know that is to study His word to know how he speaks. People have used many ways to try to learn the will of God for their lives. Some are very humorous and others border on the superstitious. Those who are undecided about what they should do with their lives usually seek assurances opening the bible and pointing to a Scripture and take their directions from whatever scripture their finger finds. A woman stood in front of the judge and tried to explain her strange habits. Your honor she began, the Lord told me to do it. Before I left home, I told the Lord to show me what to do. I opened my bible and I pointed to a verse that said, ''My God shall supply all your needs.'' When I saw them pork chops lying there and nobody was looking I knew Lord laid them out there for me. The judge listened as the woman continued. "About that ring. Just before I left home I opened my bible and pointed to a verse that said, The Lord is my shepherd and I shall not want. When I saw that ring, I wanted it. It was so shiny. I took it because the bible told me "I shall not want." The judge praised the woman for her belief in God. Then asked her to come to the bench where she kept her bible open to the Ten Commandments. The judge said point right here. The woman touched the bible and the judge said, "God's got another message for you, you pointed to thou shalt not steal. You got 2 years in jail!"

Strange as it seems, people try to find the will of God by contacting mediums, palm readers or calling the Physic connections. There are those who read tea leaves and fortune cookies, while others won't move until they read their daily horoscope to see what the stars say about the day ahead. It seems that some people will go to any lengths to find the will of God except talk to God himself.

God speaks to you in your quiet moments, during or after you have read or meditated on his word. Those who really want to know his will should study his word.

STUDY TO RECOGNIZE FALSE DOCTRINES: There are literally thousands of doctrines, teachings and beliefs floating around the world. Followers want to be sure that what they believe is consistent with the written word of God. "Just because a church door is open, doesn't make its doctrines correct." Some say it doesn't matter what church I attend as long as they believe in God. –That's an ism. Churches are not the same.

Three churches can sit next to each other, but be drastically different. One uses a black new world translation of King James and they call themselves witnesses; their bible has 66 books, but the verses differ from other. The second one is called Baptist. They use a black King James translation and their bible has 66 books, there verses read the same as most. A third church uses a bible too, but it has 81 books and theirs is called Catholic.

We have to seriously study to keep from being confused. One way to avoid confusion is to examine what you believe critically and ask questions. Challenge your teachers to separate isms from doctrine.

Recently, in Atlanta several hundred people formed a new religion called the National Church of Bey. According to Christianity Today, the religion worships Beyoncé' as a living goddess walking among mankind sent by God himself to speak to people and bring hope. . (Beyoncé' has no part of this cult, and does not support its claims).

On Sunday, the believers sing Beyoncé' tunes and praise her. They claim she has saved flawed relationships by insisting that partners put a ring on it. "Drunk in love" is one of the favorite praise songs. They don't claim that Beyoncé' is God but that she is sent from God and has performed miracles of raising dead relationships, hopes and dreams. They quote bible scripture bible scripture, but the "Beyable" their official bible will be their holy word. They fact that hundreds and worship Beyoncé' as a goddess and quoting bible scriptures to support it is an extreme example of an ism.

STUDY TO BE SURE: 1 Timothy 2:15 makes it clear, Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth.

To study the Word is to read it for understanding, compare it with other scriptures, visualize it with the help of historical background, and clarify it through repetitious analysis.

Most bible studies in the Baptist Church are done through the Sunday School and middle of the week bible studies. The church provides for each family, study materials, or books that give an explanation of the scriptures being studied to aid us in our private and family study. Each Sunday, teachers are present to answer questions and lead discussions on truths or points you have discovered in your study of the word.

Although bible study is essential to strengthening faith, there are too many Christians who neglect bible study. Even more unfortunate is the truth that there are many who lead in churches across the nation, whose witness is strong and powerful, but they neglect the church's bible study.

Those who don't study will be the likely victims of the newest ism. They are they prey of those who would victimize them using a mixture of their own ideas and bibles scripture, generally known as isms.

Study for Strength

Finally, brothers and sisters believers should study to build their spiritual strength and fortify their faith.

Paul encouraged youth Timothy to study so that he would have the courage to witness, the faith to endure trials, and the inspiration to deal with moments of desperation.

It has being the experience of most believers that The word of God:

—feeds me when I am hungry!
—Comforts me when I am lonely!
—Corrects me when I am wrong
—refreshes me when I am tired!
—Satisfies me when I am thirsty!
—Lifts me when I am low!
—Challenges me when I am indifferent!
—Sustains me when I am afraid!
—Directs me when I am confused!
—Motivates me when I am discouraged!

—Soothes me when I am dying!

No wonder the scriptures declare, “Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path.”

No wonder the songwriter wrote, “Hide your word in my heart Oh God.”

If you hide me in your word, it will:

—Bless me when I’m burdened —Cheer me when I’m sad

—Strengthen me when I’m weak

—Calm me when I’m troubled —Revive me when I’m weary! Hide your word in my heart oh God!

I don’t know about you brothers and sisters, but I’ve found that the answer to many of our problems is right here in the Bible. The mysteries of the universe are revealed in the Bible!

Don’t waste time on frivolous superstitions; the answer is in the Bible!

Don’t waste time on voodoo doctors and witchcraft; the answer is in the Bible!

Don’t waste time on false practitioners; the answer is in the Bible!

If you are looking for a medicine to cure sickness, let your fingers walk over to Jeremiah 8:22 that reminds us that there is a Balm in Gilead that’s good for the healing of the soul!

If you are discouraged because you don’t seem to have enough to make ends meet, turn to Psalms 37:25 which says, I have been young and now I’m old, yet I have not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging for bread!

If you are looking for courage in the face of adversity, turn to Psalms 27:1, The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life, of whom shall I be afraid?

If you are looking for a way to success, turn to Matthew 6:33, Seek ye first the kingdom of heaven and its righteousness and all of these shall be added unto you!

If you are looking for a way to be saved, turn to Romans 10:9, If thou shall confess with the mouth, the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart, that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved!

His name is Jesus!

Who died on Calvary!

Who arose after three days and nights!

That’s not an ism! It’s a bible-recorded fact!

Jesus is real and is alive today!

No.9642-Inspiration

When your dream gets kicked around

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

May 2014

SCRIPTURE: "And he said, the things which are impossible with men are possible with God." Luke 18:27; "For the king knoweth of these thing, before whom also I speak freely: for I am persuaded that none of these things are hidden from him; for this thing was not done in a corner." Acts 26:26

Introduction

Have you watched children play a game of kickball? It's fun to watch them chase after a ball and kick it from place to place. They laugh, scramble, reach the ball, then kick it, only so that it can repeatedly be kicked? The same is true of the game of soccer. The objective is to kick the ball, and handle the ball without hands until it can be kicked into the goal. When we are playing games, kicking the ball is the goal. However if the object of the game is our dreams, it is not a laughing matter. It isn't fun and certainly is not entertaining.

No one wants their dreams kicked around.

Has anyone ever kicked your dreams around?

Often young people get chuckles from their parents, and sometimes their teachers who are amused when they say they are dreaming about being brain surgeons, engineers, or math specialists. The adults who second-guess youth usually do so because they are peering carefully at their performance in the present without considering the potential of the young person that is speaking. If we have learned anything from history, it should be that we should ration the use of the word never. We should be careful when we way something can't be done. We shouldn't doubt the possibilities that exist for any person who sets his mind on a goal and decides to pursue it with everything he has within him.

Many of the people who set out to achieve a personal goal do so because they bring a controlled passion to their quest. It is a passion fueled by the spirit of God, controlled by his hand, and protected by his divine power. Christians should turn deaf ears to those who tell them that they can never achieve their goals because they know what the word of God says. They know beyond the shadow of a doubt that if they seek first the kingdom of God and its righteousness that all other things will be added unto them.

If God has spoken it; and God has empowered it; it shall be so.

As Christians, we know there will be scoffers who will ridicule our godly inspired dreams, but we are confident in our belief that if God has blessed our aspirations and has spoken it into being, his word will not return to him void.

Exposition

This text reflects on Paul as he stands before Festus and Agrippa telling how his quest to build the kingdom of God has been kicked around repeatedly.

Paul was often criticized for his unwavering faith in the kingdom of God. In this text he is granted a hearing before Festus and Agrippa to defend charges that his actions were seditious and deserved death.

Paul recited his life story as it relates to kingdom building. He told of his belief that Christians were spreading harmful beliefs about God and his attempts to jail them. He also told of his conversion on the Damascus Road. He told of attempts on his life, the accusations, and charges that were brought against him.

As he told his story Festus and Agrippa saw the dream of the kingdom, as described by Paul, being kicked around from town to town, community to community, and kicked around the religious leaders. Even Roman leaders were kicking around his faith as a new idea deserving of thought, but certainly not death.

As Festus listened to Paul, he said in verse 24, “Paul, thou art beside thyself; much learning doth make thee mad.”

As Agrippa kicked around the idea of being saved by Christ and being raised from the dead he said in verse 28, “Almost thou persuades me to be a Christian.”

They kicked around the idea of Christianity, but neither man embraced it as his own.

The idea of the resurrection of the dead seemed impossible. They kicked it around as an impossible dream.

In Luke 18:27 Jesus address the core reason that some only kick around godly inspired dreams: Anything that issues from the mind of men may be impossible, but that which comes from the heart of God is not impossible.

This text focuses on Jesus as he reminds believers that what seems impossible to men is possible with God.

There is no height that is too high for God to reach. There’s no depth so low that God cannot go beneath it. And there is no valley so wide that God cannot expand it. Lives in God’s hands can do the impossible, reach the unreachable, cross the uncrossable as they reach heights never imagined.

There is nothing that believers cannot achieve when God is paving their way.

The world may kick a believer’s godly inspired dream around, but the word of God remains true: all things are possible with God.

Kicked around

Believers learn to expect the devil to kick their dreams around. Believers should therefore consider the following:

WE MUST RESIST THE DEVIL: To succeed spiritually we must resist the devil.

The devil pushes us to promote ourselves in many ways. He promotes us to do things so that we can receive personal pleasure, credit, praise or power.

We are told that if we want to spiritually succeed we must resist these motivations.

We should ask the question, "Why am I doing? What I am doing?"

What is my motivation?

When it is over do I expect praise, credit or power?

If so, we are encouraged to resist devilish impulses.

The weapons we use to resist the devil are: faith and prayer.

The man or woman who operates on faith and prayer is able to resist the devil.

God will help us recognize whether an individual action is according to his will, when we pray before we act.

He will also help us to stand when the devil attacks.

To resist the devil we cannot afford to abandon our prayer lives.

If we went through this week without taking time to read our bible or share in a moment of personal prayer, our resistance was low.

Satan will find plenty of room to impose himself on our thoughts and actions.

He can't get a word in if we are constantly focused on the Lord and his kingdom.

Resisting the devil is the first-thing believers must do when the tries to kick your dreams around.

DON'T LET THE WORLD STEAL YOUR DREAM: Sometimes the world is envious of your dream and wants to take it from you. There are other times that the world around you desires to keep you in place by stealing your idea. They tell you that you don't really want that dream or how bad life will be for you if you actually achieve your dream. Don't let them steal your dream.

Consider the slave master who made a point of trampling on any dreams that his slaves would ever have of becoming free. Even when it came to the slaves dreams about heaven the master thought it important to trample those dreams too. One day the master called in his favorite house slave Tom. Tom said the master. I had a dream last night. The old slave who had a reputation for being quick-witted and wise, bowed his head, faked ignorance and said you did "Massa, let's hear bout yo dream!" The master said, "I dreamed that I died and there was some sort of mix up and I ended up in Nigra heaven. It was an awful looking place. There was Nigras everywhere. The streets were muddy. The buildings were falling down. Watermelon rinds and pig's feet were laying everywhere. It was a horrible looking place." The old slave was quick to answer, but he had to find a way to say it just right where the master, who wasn't too bright, would not feel insulted.

"Massa. I'se glad that you mention that, because it be a strange thang because I had a strange dream too. I dreamed I died and there was a mix up and I ended up in slave master's heaven.

It was a real pretty place. It had streets that were shiny and yellow like Gold. It had 12 pretty gates that were smooth and pearly white. They had rows and rows of big houses called mansions and they lined every street. There wasn't no trash laying around, no watermelon rinds and no hog pens. It was a real clean place.

There was just one thang that looked kinda strange ...there wasn't a single soul in the whole place!"

Don't let anyone kick your dream around by telling you that what God has inspired in your heart cannot become a reality.

MANY HAVE HAD DREAMS KICKED AROUND SO MUCH THAT THEY ABANDONED THEM: There are many who have great dreams for themselves, but circumstance has prompted them to cut that dream short. A student who dreamed of being a doctor aborted that dream when he stumbled upon the fact that certain anatomy and biology classes needed for his studies would be difficult. There are many who have dreamed great dreams but have abandoned them because the pursuit of their ideas seemed so far reaching.

Is there anything too hard for God?

Is the possibility of failure so great that you believe that you and God cannot overcome its threat?

If we carry our dreams to full term, despite our fear of failure and discovery, God will bless us for the act of faith even though he frowned on the weakness that prompted our failure in the first place.

God can make our dreams happen

Finally we must consider that the key to making our dreams happen, within his will, is prayer.

Prayer is the sincere desire of the heart and when that prayer reflects our desire to do the will of God we get God's attention quickly.

Those who are acting on grand visions that God has given them, must be reminded that the bigger your goal, the stronger the faith that is needed to achieve the goal. The world will try to kick your dream around

When the world prepares to kick your dreams around, you should prepare to meet its scorn with a giant sized faith.

Big faith is fed by regular worship and praise. To feed that faith our worship and bible study habits must change.

When the world tries to kick your dreams around, meet its opposition with prayer and faith.

I don't know about your experience, but I found out that prayer changes things!

Prayer can take a seriously ill body and make it whole again!

Prayer can take your failures and turn them into victories!

Prayer can take your blunders and turn them into blessings!
Prayer can take your fears and turn them into confidences!
Prayer can take your stumbling blocks and turn them into stepping stones!
Prayer can take your weaknesses and turn them into strength!
Daniel will tell you that prayer is good for the Lion's den!
The Three Hebrew Boys will tell you that prayer is good for the fiery furnace!
I know what prayer can do! I've tried it for myself!
Don't let anyone kick your dreams around because:
In Jesus' name, burdens have been lifted!
In Jesus' name, finances have been restored!
In Jesus' name, wounds have been healed!
Jesus, who died out on Calvary!
Jesus, who arose early on Sunday morning!

No. 9643-Cross

The demands of the cross

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, Louisiana

May 18, 2014

SCRIPTURE::"And he said to them all, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it: but whosoever will lose his life for my sake, the same shall save it." Luke 9:23-24.

Introduction

Have you ever stopped to consider the demanding ways of the Christian life? Years ago, many responded to the command "Take up your cross and follow me" under the false pretense that living the Christian life would be easy, troubles would go away and blessings would instantly start to fall from heaven. In the intervening time we have learned that "bearing the cross" makes many demands on us.

The demands of the cross require us to approach life and its challenges with a godly attitude that is not overwhelmed or frustrated by the present moment.

For Christ, the cross demanded that he suffer humiliation, ridicule, physical pain and even life.

For believers today, the cross makes similar demands. It demands obedience to God rather than man, a focus on the will of God rather than prosperity, and the expectation of opposition and struggle.

The demands of the cross bleed into life situations. The cross demands that teachers endure the rudeness of students and parents as they strive to instill values of godliness, industry and excellence in minds that may not fully understand the nature of your effort.

The cross demands resilience from those who reach out to help others because often those who are helped most are the first criticize and discredit you. We continue to help others despite the prospect that our compassion may not yield the desired result in everyone.

The cross demands tolerance for those who have to put up with the antics of the ignorant and uncouth among us. We are challenged to try to reason with them through the power of God.

The cross demands that we do as Jesus commanded us to do with the spirit of love as our motivation; recognizing and expecting frustration. The cross demands that we show love anyway.

In 1989 the following thought appeared in Reader's Digest. It seems to illustrate the demands of the cross in our life situations:

People are unreasonable, illogical and self-centered. Love them anyway.

If you do good people will accuse you of selfish ulterior motives. Do good anyway.

If you are successful, you will win false friends and true enemies. Succeed anyway.

Honesty and frankness make you vulnerable. Be honest and frank anyway.

The good you do today will be forgotten tomorrow. Do good anyway.

The biggest people with the biggest ideas can be shot down by the smallest people with the smallest pride. Think big anyway.

People favor underdogs but follow only top dogs. Fight for some underdogs anyway.

What you spent years building may be destroyed overnight Build anyway.

Give the world the best you have and you'll get kicked in the teeth. Give the world the best you've got anyway!

Cross demands that preachers do not become frustrated by disinterested masses who would rather watch a ball game than listen to the word. They must preach anyway

The cross demands that Choir directors not be overwhelmed with complaining singers who don't want to rehearse; direct anyway.

The cross demands that Sunday school teachers do not become apathetic about students who rarely study their lessons teach them anyway. It comes with the territory!

The cross demands that all believers expect a little rainfall and every so often a storm, but remember that behind every cloudy day a sunbeam is born!

As Christians, we accept the fact that cross makes demands on us every day. We take up our crosses daily, with the full knowledge that if there is no cross, there is no crown.

Exposition

This text considers Jesus in three circumstances: as he enquires what men think of him, as he considers his own suffering and death, and as he prompts his disciples to consider their sufferings for him.

In these three instances Christ painted a picture of the nature of the work, the manner of the testimony and attitude of the disciple. The nature of the Christian service will often be misunderstood as the public forms its own opinion of what a Christian is supposed to be, regardless of the facts. Christ healed many; fed crowds, and performed miracles and public opinion put him in every category other than the one he wanted. He was often frustrated by what people thought but was consoled to know that those close to him understood the true nature of His work.

He also told his disciples that if they were to share in the Kingdom it would require considerable self-denial on their part. The disciples took the challenge and went far beyond what Christ required and even gave their lives. The disciples and the Apostles, who followed him accepted the demands of the cross at face value.

The public had no idea, but Jesus knew demands of the cross and he wanted each of his disciples to know that bearing the cross could be costly, but there was no reward unless they were willing go all the way

Demands of the cross

Bearing the cross today makes demands on our time, talents and resources, yet believers do so willingly and cheerfully for the sake of building the kingdom of God.

THE CROSS DEMANDS SACRIFICE: Christ never painted a rosy picture to those who chose to follow him. He told them to expect to lose friends, money and prestige if they followed him. He also told them to expect to be persecuted by family, friends and the community in general. No one who followed Christ expected prosperity or riches in this life. They expected to help build the kingdom of God on earth and to eventually enter the kingdom of heaven. They were prepared for the sacrifices. Today, believers must also know that the cross requires sacrifice. It requires that believers give up some of their leisure time, redirect some of their talents and pour some of their money and properties into kingdom building. It will be a sacrifice, but it will be no greater than the sacrifices of Christ himself.

The cross demanded that he suffer for the sinful nature of mankind and for our personal misgivings.

The cross demanded that he suffer for the shortsightedness of the world, and for our personal nearsightedness.

The cross demanded that he suffer for the wayward hearts of the world, and for our own hard and calloused hearts.

The cross demanded that he die to for us.

Perhaps that's what prompted Dr. Watts to ask, "Was it for crimes that I had done, He groaned upon the tree? Amazing pity! Grace unknown! And love beyond degree!

THE CROSS DEMANDS COMMITMENT: Those who follow Christ must be committed. There is no room for the half-hearted. Unfortunately there are many who are not fully committed to the cross. These are those who respond in the perspective of the barnyard animals; the chicken, cow and the hog; that decided they would give of themselves to provide breakfast for the farmer. The chicken suggested that the farmer should be served a glass of milk a scrambled egg and bacon. At that suggested the Hog shouted, 'That's not a good idea. All the cow has to do is squirt some milk. All the chicken has to do is lay an egg, but for the farmer to have bacon, it will take the whole hog!" - In a similar sense the cross demands the whole hog! The bible describes the half-hearted as being "double minded." James 1:8 says, "The double-minded man is unstable in all his ways."

The cross demands a focused commitment with the full knowledge that whatever we experience along the way, Christ has already been there, too.

If we suffer and wonder why, we share that burden with our Lord, who also suffered and wondered why even though the royalty within him knew why.

On the cross, Christ asked his father, Why hast thou forsaken me?

If we wander into the wilderness in our own life experiences where we had to sort things out Jesus says, I've been there!

At the beginning of His experience He was tempted by the devil on three occasions, but He finally decided to follow the will of God.

Have you seen those around you lose hope in their ability to the impossible?

Jesus says, I've been there!

Peter walked on water, doing the impossible but lost hope and began to sink even though he was looking the master in the face.

When a storm arose on the sea, the passengers and crew began to worry and fret and lose hope even though Jesus was on board. Jesus even watched as Peter denied him repeatedly. He's been there.

The demands of the cross are frustrating, but we are not alone. We have a friend who has been there, but remained committed to the cross.

The joy of the Christian relationship is that it provides us an opportunity to share our experience with someone who has been there.

No wonder the songwriter says,

What a friend we have in Jesus.

All our sins and griefs to bear.

What a privilege to carry everything to God in prayer.

No cross, no cross

Finally, brothers and sisters we must note that while the cross makes demands on us, our reward is a crown.

While the cross makes demands on us, it is not without reward.

We have chronicled the long list of demands that the cross makes on us, but there is also a longer list of reward.

Crowns are the end result for those who suffer in the Lord!

Crowns are the final reward for Saints who are faithful in bearing the cross.

Gain is the final reward of those who forsook the world and chose to follow Jesus.

Pain is the agony of the cross, but gain is the ecstasy of the crown of life. But if there is no cross, there is no crown, if there is no pain there is no gain.

No warfare means no triumph!

No struggle means no success!

No tribulation means no jubilation

No fears mean no cheers

No devastation means no glorification

Those who meet the demands of the cross must also remember that their sacrifice demands a heavenly reward!

Revelation 2:7 "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God."

Rev. 2:11 He that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second death.

Rev 2:26 And he that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations:

Rev 3:5 He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels.

Rev 21:7 He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son.

There can be no cross without a crown!

The cross stands as a symbol of:

-Strength in the midst of weakness, but with that cross comes a crown of life

-Victory in the midst of defeat, but with that cross comes the wreath of victory

No wonder the songwriter declared, at the cross, at the cross, where I first saw the light and the burdens of my heart rolled away. It was there by faith I received my sight and now I am happy all the day!

Over 2000 years ago, the world saw a tragedy on a hill!

It was a tragedy because a good man was nailed to an old rugged cross!

It was a tragedy because a man who only tried to help people was persecuted by the forces of evil!

Salvation demanded that he die on an old rugged cross!

But Early Sunday morning victory demanded that tragedy be turned into victory!

Early Sunday morning he arose from the dead with all power in his hands!

No. 9644-Graduation

What is your Next Course?

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

May 25, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "But continue thou in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned them; And that from a child thou hast known the holy scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus." II Timothy 3:14

Introduction

Do you remember most of the coursework you have learned over the years? You learned your ABC's and then your 1-2-3's. The next course was to learn to form words and learn more of them; they called it vocabulary. Early you began to learn history so you could understand the world around you. Your science courses helped you to understand how the unwritten laws of the universe work in our daily lives.

Each course built upon the preceding course, all designed to reach a point that you attained a basic education of the mechanics of living in the modern world.

The courses we study in school run parallel to our life courses. We learn to speak, crawl, walk, write, think and to navigate the world in which live on a regular basis. Each phase of our lives introduces us to another course.

In our graduation we move from our childhood to our young adult years.

Our graduation is a mark of our maturity and ability to handle life on a different level. Some who graduate get a diploma, but are obviously not ready for the next course. They just have a diploma. That's what the residents of the town called "Not so bright." learned when they witnessed Eddie Joe's graduation. Eddie Joe had a hard time making it through high school as most of the people in the town did. When the role was called Eddie Joe found out that he did not make the cut. He would not graduate. At the graduation ceremony, he watched as members of his class received their diplomas. When the last class member marched across the stage, the class all stood and chanted, "Give Eddie Joe a chance!" The chant became louder and louder. Eddie Joe was called to the stage and given a one question test in front of the whole community, as his classmates chanted, "Give Eddie Joe a Chance." If he answered the question correctly he would graduate. They asked Eddie Joe the following question, "If you have five apples in one hand and five apples in the other hand, how many do you have?" Eddie Joe struggled for a moment then answered, "Ten." Instantly, the entire senior class shouted, "Give Eddie Joe another chance!" -Obviously graduation doesn't mean that everyone is ready for the next course.

What's your next course? You have been in school now for 2160 days.

•You have spent 12,960 hours in classes.

•That translates into 777,600 minutes.

•So far you've lived approximately 18 years.

You've been around 216 months.

•You have been breathing 936 weeks.

•You've been going through the motions for 6,552 days

•You've been here 157,248 hours.

•You've been taking up space 9,434,880 minutes.

•You've slept 52,500 hours.

•You've watched T.V. 12,173 hours.

•You've spent 7,488 hours eating.

• If You live the average lifespan of 70 years, or as the Bible says 3-score and 10, You'll...

•SLEEP.....24 YEARS

•WORK.....14 YEARS

• PLAY ..... 8 YEARS

• EAT ..... 6 YEARS

•DRIVE.....5 YEARS

•TALK.....4 YEARS

• GO TO SCHOOL.. ....3 YEARS

•SICK.....3 YEARS

• STUDY & READ.....3 YEARS

What is your next course?

As Christians, we know the importance of any graduation. However, we also know that it is our maturity in Christ that will determine the quality of our Christian life. In that respect, our next course is to move from dependence on the world to a walk of faith that is guided by the power of God.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul's instruction to young Timothy to make the next logical step in his ministry, but stay close to the word.

Timothy was a young man about to begin the next phase of his own life as a teacher and builder of the kingdom of God.

Matthew Henry says, Paul directed " him to keep close to a good education, and particularly to what he had learned out of the holy scriptures (v. 14,15): Continue thou in the things which thou hast learned. Note, It is not enough to learn that which is good, but we must continue in it, and persevere in it unto the end."

The idea of continuing in what we have learned and to grow in the faith was the instruction given to Timothy.

Those who take their next steps in life, but remain faithful to the word of God will not be tossed to and fro and carried about with every wind of doctrine, or become the prey of every hustler who waits to deceive with strange doctrines

As each individual embarks on the next course in life, they should "stay the course" with respect to the word of God.

The text makes it clear that if Timothy and even present day believers would stick to the biblical truths they have been taught thus far, they will well armed as they begin the next course of their lives.

Courses

Graduates will soon learn that life is all about choices. Life choices determine our eventual outcome. Our choices are our courses. They fall in two categories.

REQUIRED COURSES: There are many required courses in life. In high school those might include: English, Math, Sciences, Social Studies and various forms of P.E. College requires everyone to take an orientation and certain courses that are pursuant to your degree path. Life has a few required courses as well. Like college orientation, high school graduation presents you with your first course opportunity: "The school of hard knocks." It's where you are introduced to independent living and decision making without the daily direction of your parents. It's a required course. If parents make your decisions for you during this stage of your life, you are crippled. This is the time that you make your own choices and live with the consequences. Beyond orientation there are courses in your chosen direction that must be undertaken. Life offers you required courses as well. You have no choice about them. You have no choice of who your parents will be, your race, or where you will be born. You also have no choice about death because we all must walk through the valley of the shadow of death. Neither do we have a choice about judgment, because after this life there is a judgment. We have no choice in this area of our lives, they are required.

What is required of every believer is that he hold fast to the faith as he enters each course of life, even the required, courses and lean upon God for their understanding.

WORKPLACE PREPARATION: When Paul told Timothy to study it was an admonition to prepare for the work ahead of him. He was training to be a minister and he was challenged to study. The challenge to prepare for the workforce is a course that many will take after graduation. Whether graduates intend to fly airplanes, teach school, or repair automobiles they must prepare. In 2 Timothy 2:15 Paul told Timothy to "Study to show thyself approved, a workman that rightly divides the word of truth." In that same sense, every graduate should assume that high school graduation marks the end of basic education, but the next course is more focused. It may require vocational training or higher education. An automobile designer may require a college degree. An automobile repair technician may require special vehicle training. A nurse may require a four-year degree, an aide may only require focused career training. The course depends on the career goal, but one thing remains true, every graduate should take the next course of workplace preparation.

ELECTIVE COURSE: Elective courses are not required, but may be useful toward the completion of a goal. Graduates will face many electives in life, but should choose those that are related to their goals in life. Choosing electives in life is an important task because sometimes the things we choose to do can take us away from our goals. We elect to become a party hound and that choice could deter us from our goal. We elect to watch television all day and play video games, that choice will impact our life goals. We can also elect not to attend worship, bible study or prayer moments. Those choices will take us further away from God. We should choose electives that will bring us closer to our goals in this life as well as the life beyond.

RELIGIOUS PREPARATION: Graduation from high school does not mean graduation from God. There were many graduates who attended Sunday School, bible study and participated in church activities, until they graduated from high school. After graduation their bibles closed, their church attendance reduced to a threadbare existence and it all ended. Yet, religious preparation is a course that every graduate should not avoid because it is essential for their preparation for living in this world and in preparation for the next. In their school years graduates learned bible stories and select passages. In their graduate years they learned "Applied faith" as they studied "Life 101." Through study of the world graduates learn how God works in their lives and how to meet his expectations. It is a course that should not be avoided.

Final Word

Finally, brother and sisters, we must hear Paul's words again, "But continue thou in the things thou hast learned!" Go the distance…stay the course, fight a good fight, finish the course!

After Graduation, it is time to walk by faith.

When we walk by faith, we hear the voice of God!

When we walk by faith, we stand on the promises of God!

When we walk by faith, we move from high school to the Gospel College!

In the Gospel College

—My Principal is God the father.

—My tutor is the Holy Spirit.

—My counselor is Jesus.

In the Gospel College.

—Our textbook is the bible, for the word says, "These words shall I hide in my heart that I might not sin against God."

—Our field of study is the world, for Jesus said, "Go ye therefore…"

—Our College is not Grambling or Southern, Harvard, or Yale but our college is the Rock of Ages.

This rock is Jesus, Yes He is the one!

This rock is Jesus, the only one.

The song writer said, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame but wholly lean on Jesus name. On Christ the solid rock I stand."

While it is true that you must graduate from high school, it is also true that there is one more course you must take, you must know Jesus!

This course requires that you be born again!

To complete this course your high school diploma won't be sufficient; you must keep climbing to the next level because you must have a spiritual BA degree.

The song writer said, "You must be..

You gotta be…

Can't you see; you got to be born again.

Moving from one level to the next is easy when you know the man in charge.

At your university he or she is Doctor Somebody or another. But we know the man in charge as Dr. Jesus.

He transferred to this earth by coming down through 42 generations.

He was born in Bethlehem that was his first course.

One day in Jerusalem he told the teachers, "It's time for me to be about my Father's business"

That was the next course.

He preached for three years and picked disciples, that was His next course.

One evening he picked up an old rugged cross and decided to carry it to Calvary.

That was the next course.

He had no cap and gown! Instead of a cap He had a crown of thorns.

Instead of a gown He had a purple robe on His shoulders!

But He marched across the stage of Calvary!

Instead of a diploma, all He had in His hands were nails and scars.

It was a long graduation. It lasted three days and three nights.

But early Sunday morning, the heavens recognized Him!

The earth shook!

The thunder rolled!

When they came looking for Him, an angel announced.."He's not here!"

One of these days he's coming back again!

That will be last course!

Time will end and joy will begin!

The pursuit of that day is his course.

What is your next course?

No. 9645-Inspiration

It's in me, and it's God to come out

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 1, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "That I may make it manifest, as I ought to speak." Colossians 4:4

Introduction

Is it possible that each of us has a given purpose in life that we discover at some point? We've heard teachers and preachers state this truth over the years, but many have yet to discover their purpose in life; it seems to them that they have no purpose, but to eat, sleep, get older and die. Shouldn't there be something in-between?

Each life has a purpose, and one of our functions is to collect the components that make up our identity then put them to work. There are many products that we buy today that must be assembled before they can be used. They come in a big box with a piece of paper and a picture. There is nothing more intimidating than looking at all of the random pieces laying on the floor staring you in the face. There is a desk, chair, table or bookshelf in that pile somewhere, but it can't come out until it is properly assembled and all of the pieces fall into the right place.

Each box usually comes with a list that inventories the components. The list will note that there are so many long screws, so many short ones. So many of this and so many of that. There are usually instructions for assembling things in the proper order. Finally, there is a picture that depicts how the product should look once assembled.

We are the same, we have all of the parts, but unless we have the divine image to show us and someone to help us, this life can be confusing.

That's the point of Bible Study, Sunday School, and listening to the word, to help us determine what this life is about and how we are suppose to use it for God's glory.

Our teachers, preachers and mentors try to help us figure out what we are supposed to be; ie. what gift talents and unique abilities came in our packages. A sharp wit, and a keen mind both have meanings. A sense of humor, a touch of stubbornness means something as well. An ear for music, the ability to dance or sing give hints. God gives each of us gifts according to the purpose we are to accomplish.

Lives do not come fully assembled. It's all in there, but someone has to help us break through and step into our purpose.

Yet, there still many today who have reached adulthood and still have not begun to assemble the pieces. We can't quite figure out what this thing is suppose to be. That carries us to the next step.

It's in is, but we don't know how to get it out!

Even Stevens wrote a hit song called, "I've got the music in me!" It was a cute little song about having a song in your heart that must be revealed. In a greater sense, everybody has a gift in them somewhere. At some point, it's going to come out. Singers have to sing. Dancers have to dancers; teachers have to teach; writers have to write, and preachers have to preach! They have to; it's in them.

We won't actually be happy until we do what we destined here to do; until we have fulfilled our purpose.

As Christians, our goal is to improve our gifts, then stir them up, so that they can be used to promote the kingdom of God.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul explaining his need to talk about Christ.

Paul spent his life preaching about Jesus and organizing churches in different parts of the known world. Though he was persecuted for his beliefs and teachings, he persisted. He explained to the Colossians that he had been shown the mystery of Christ, and it was shut up in his bones. His desire, on every occasion, was to "manifest" that which was shut up in him to others.

That word "manifest" in this context means to "let it be known." Paul asked the Colossians to pray for him, even though he was in prison so that what was in him would come out and be known; that Christ would be known. His desire was to make this mystery known to those who have not heard of it, and make it uncomplicated. He asked the church to pray for him so that he would not be discouraged and that God would open a door of utterance so that he might say what needed to be said and thus release the mystery within him.

What is in you?

Your purpose must come out: Each of us should strive to understand God's plan for our lives. There is an intersection between the skills and talents that have been brought together over hundreds of years of genetic refinement for one single aim. The skills and talents that you have, coincide with the quadrant of world history that you were born into, the needs that have arisen in the community you share as neighbors, and what God intends and wants for us. Samson had great bodily strength and was born at a time when it could be used to liberate Israel from Philistine domination. Esther had great beauty and a humble spirit and was placed as the queen of Persia for what the scripture describes as "such a time as this."

There comes a time when we must move into our purpose. Like Ruth, there comes a time for every woman to step in her purpose. Like Christ, there comes a time when every man must say, “It’s time for me to be about my father’s business.”

The solution is in you: There is something sick in your community that you need to heal. This sickness may not be physical; it could be emotional or social. There are sick leaders and unhealthy situations. Is it possible that your talents have been given to remedy this situation?

There is something new needed in your community; something new that you need to start. You know what it is because you keep saying, “Why don’t they do this?” or “They should do it this way?” or “We don’t have this, why not?” It’s a sign that something new is needed. When you look at your gifts and talents to talk, convince, organize and make things happen; maybe this new thing is your purpose.

There is something boring that need livening up. You noticed that programs need a little life, bulletins need a little spice, activities need a little pep; even sermons need a little more creativity. When you look at your talents and skills, you know what it takes to make things more beautiful, enjoyable and exciting; maybe that’s your purpose.

There is a witness in you. There were some people that Jesus healed for the expressed purpose of providing evidence of his ministry. They were expected to testify about what God has done. One leper out of nine had to witness; he had to tell somebody about the man who treated him. The woman at the well felt compelled to tell everyone, “Come see a man who told me all I’ve ever done.” The blind man who was given his sight testified everywhere.

When God has moved in our lives, there is a witness within us that must come out! We can’t hold on to it, it must become manifest.

Every child of God ought to be able to peer beyond the dark and murky cloud that veils the glistening rays of a new day begun, and settle in his mind despite the hard times I’ve seen and troubles I’ve endured, it’s good to be her. That testimony is in me, and it must come out.

I may not have all that my heart desires, but I thank the Lord for giving me what little I have; that testimony is in me, and it must come out.

I may not be of the best of health. My steps may be getting slow. My eyesight may be getting dim. But I thank the Lord for sparing my life and allowing me to see another sunrise! That testimony is in me, and it must come out.

I heard a songwriter say I don’t know what you came to do, but I came to praise the Lord.

I’ve got to praise him for waking me up this morning!

I’ve got to praise him for clothing me in my right mind!

I’ve got to praise him for giving me health and strength!

I’ve got a witness in me, and it’s got to come out!

It’s in him

Finally, brothers and sisters, if we have a testimony and a witness in us, we should not be afraid to let it come out!

Vol 24-5870

Those who have been blessed by God have a testimony in them that must come out.

When the Lord has: (It's hard to hold your peace)

—Saved you through his grace

—Forgiven you through his mercy

—lifted you through his love

—redeemed you through his blood

—accepted you through his sacrifice

—comforted you through his presence

—strengthened you through his power

—encouraged you through his promise

—revived you through his glory

Jesus told the Pharisee, if these, who once have been broken, infirmed, diseased, lost in sin, would not hold their peace..

The grains of sand would talk to the pebbles and the pebbles would speak to the stones, and the stones would talk to the rocks, and the rocks would talk to the boulders, and the boulders would talk to the mountains...

If these held their peace, the rocks would cry out..

It would be a tragedy if the silence of the lambs caused the trees, the wind and earth rise up and testify. That would be a tragedy because whenever the Lord has blessed us we should be willing to testify.

Whenever the Lord has done something good for you, there's something in you, that must come out!

Whenever you think about how God has blessed you, there's something in you, that must come out!

Whenever you think about how God has picked you up and turned you around, there's something in you, that must come out!

Whenever you think about how he provides food for you when you are hungry, there's something in you, that must come out!

When we think about how he brought us out of nowhere and carried us to somewhere. There's something in you that must come out!

I'm reminded of the man whose wife took him to the doctor and explained that there was something strange in her husband, and it has to come out! She told the doctor that whatever it is that is in him has him doing strange things. She said, "Doctor his knees frequently bend , and his hand keeps extending. His head keeps bowing and he seems to have developed a bleeding heart, and this thing gets worse, the closer it gets to Sunday." Whatever it is, it has to come out!

The doctor asked the man what his problem was, and the man responded that he had recently gone to a revival and had accepted Christ, and it looked like right after that his strange behavior began. He said he did not know what it was that got in him, but he could not help what was happening to him. He said he had a:

-A STRANGE CASE OF THE BENDED KNEE: Because every time he faced a difficult moment he found himself on his knees talking to the Lord.

-AN UNEXPLAINED CASE OF THE HELPING HAND: Whenever someone needed help he was quick to respond. He found himself humming, “If I can help somebody as I pass along then my living shall not be in vain.”

-UNPREDICTABLE SPASMS OF THE BOWING HEAD: Whatever happened in life he bowed to the will of God, saying, “Not my will, but thy will be done.”

-UNCONTROLLED INSTANCES OF THE SWOLLEN HEART: He has learned to love people that he could not stand before; and he’s learned to forgive and to forget.

The man said he’s all right on Monday and Tuesday, but the closer it got to Sunday, he found himself anxious to make it to the house of God. The doctor said there is nothing wrong with you, because you’ve got the love of God in you and it’s got to come out!

There are people here today who have something in them that’s got to come out!

There is somebody here today who wants to celebrate the joy of the Lord and it’s got to come out!

There is somebody here who wants to tell the good news, and it its got to come out!

They want to tell somebody that He died!

They want to tell somebody that He was buried in borrowed tomb!

They want to tell somebody that Early Sunday morning, that He arose from the grave!

When it comes out, I’ll sing my song!

When it comes out, I’ll clap my hands!

When it comes out, I’ll tell the world what a mighty God we serve

No. 9646-Annv.-Men

You just like your daddy

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 2014

SCRIPTURE: Ye do the deeds of your father. Then said they to him, We be not born of fornication; we have one Father, even God. John 8:41

Introduction

Have you ever heard the phrase,"You just like your daddy!" It is usually said when the mother is angry at the action of a child. Whether it is true or not she intimates that a character trait of the child is being inherited from the father.

In the past, it would be considered an honor for someone to say, "You just like your daddy" because the image of daddy was drastically different than it is today, especially in the African-American community.

In the past, "Daddy" was a man who provided for his family. He made sure that there was food on the table, a roof over his family's head and enough resources for his family to survive.

In the past, "Daddy" was a man who could be counted on to protect the family from all enemies, foreign and domestic.

In the past, "Daddy" was perceived as a role model for his sons and doctors.

For many in the African-American community, the image of "Daddy" is no positive at all. In fact, the image of daddy is so far from that of the past that it has become a faint memory.

There is a growing number of men who are not providers for their families, protectors of their wives and children and role models.

For too many, "Daddy" is simply a name on a child support check, a signature on a divorce paper, or photo in a dusty album.

When many an angry or frustrated mother says, "You just like your daddy" she is usually pointing to the negative, not a positive.

However, there are many who are proud to say, "I'm just like my daddy." These are the children who saw their fathers manage and protect their families, give them advice and shared valuable time with them. These are the children who saw their fathers pray, help the poor, serve God and love their wives with a passion.

Those who have seen the positive side of "Daddy" are proud to say, "I'm just like my daddy!"

We are all children of God. As such, we should reflect his image in all that we say and do. To be "Just like my daddy" is to reflect the "agape" love of the father.

As Christians, we should be proud to testify, "My father is the ruler of the universe and he loves me, and I want to be just like him."

Exposition

This text focuses on attempts of Jesus' enemies to claim that they were pure in the faith because they were Abraham's children.

Jesus' critics claimed that he was teaching a false religion, implying that they were not true to God. Jesus said they were the children of Abraham only by the flesh, but with respect to holiness, faith and actions, they were not like Abraham; they were the reverse.

They claimed they were like their father, Abraham, Jesus said their actions painted a different picture.

They pointed to their biological ties, but Jesus pointed to their spiritual ties. In that respect, they acted completely opposite of Abraham.

They believed that by virtue of their birth alone, they were like Abraham and also godly. However, Christ said, "If God were your father you would love me." Thus, he disputed their claim of likeness to Abraham. He said, "If ye had anything of His moral image as children have their father's likeness, ye would love Me, for I am immediately of Him and directly from Him."

In verse 44, Jesus went further and concluded that they were of the devil.

Their actions prompted Jesus to say, "You are not like Abraham, you are just like your daddy, the devil."

Image of Daddy

The image that the Jews had of themselves differed from reality, just as the images we have today of "daddy" differ. However, there are three images of "Daddy" that should make anyone proud for someone to say, "You just like your daddy."

IMAGE OF THE COURAGEOUS MAN: The image of "daddy" should be a man of courage. When a man's life is shaped in God's hand, he is molded in many ways to reflect the character of God. He's not a perfect man, but in many respects he demonstrates godly attributes. There are four attributes of a godly man that can be drawn from 2 Timothy 1:7: "For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind." There is a courageous spirit that flows from the heart of every godly man; it is the calling card of every man whose life is shaped by close encounters with the Lord. Courage does not mean that men are never afraid, it means that they have the strength to do what must be done in the face of danger, ridicule or failure.

Courage should not be confused with thoughtless actions, knee jerk responses, and foolish acts of bravado. Courageous men know what is right and after considering the costs decide to do what needs to be done to right a wrong, protect against evil or to bring about a rightful conclusion to a situation.

The courageous spirit is something that comes from God. All men are not born with courageous spirits, they develop courage as God works with them. Peter was one of the boldest of the apostles, but he didn't start out bold; in fact he showed cowardice when he denied Christ. Christian men become courageous as their faith! and love increases. We are afraid whenever our faith decreases. When we love completely, we get bold. 1 John 4:18 "There is no fear in love, but perfect love casteth out fear: because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love." Men who have put their lives in God's hands develop a strong faith and capacity to love the way God loves. God remakes him into a man of courage.

If "daddy" is a man of courage, then it should be an honor to have someone say, "You are just like your daddy."

IMAGE OF THE STRONG MAN: The image of "Daddy" should also be that of a strong man. God makes strong men, not necessary physically strong as Samson. Strength in this sense is not about muscles but about the ability to be firm, decisive and resolute. The strength of a man is not measured by his education, financial status or physique. There are many men who are well educated, financially secure and muscular, but are weak.

They have no backbone, stand for nothing and fall for everything. 2 Timothy 1:2 points to another attribute that God give believing men, strength or power. Jesus had 12 disciples, all 12 of whom were weak in the beginning; one was so weak he betrayed Christ and hung himself. Even as Christ agonized about his future, there were some who couldn't even stay awake to protect him. Matthew 26:40-41 says, "And he cometh unto the disciples, and findeth them asleep, and saith unto Peter, What, could ye not watch with me one hour? Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak." Yet, eleven of these men ultimately put their lives in God's hands and they grew in strength by studying the words of Christ, close fellowship with each other leaning heavily on their faith in God. Paul, writing to the Ephesians encouraged them to build their strength. Ephesians 6:10 "Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might." He encouraged every believing man to put on the who armor of God to protect against the wiles of the devil. Moreover, men are urged to get a real relationship with Christ because it's through him that they find strength.

In John 15:5 he said, "I am the vine, ye are the branches: He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit: for without me ye can do nothing. That's what Samson learned and every believing man after him. Without God, every man is weak. With God, every man is strong.

If "Daddy" is a man of strong character, then it should be an honor for someone to say, "You just like your daddy."

IMAGE OF THE HONORABLE MAN: Thirdly, the image of "Daddy" should be an image of a man who always wants to do the right thing. Godly fathers have a sense of integrity that is rooted in Godly principles. Some have the notion that a man should do anything to feed himself and his family. This is true, if by anything it is meant any "moral and just" thing.

On the contrary, it is a real man who trusts God to strengthen him to be a provider as he uses every legal and moral channel available to secure his household. The godly road is the high road; it is the path that men of integrity travel. The high road is not an easy path, in fact, it is often difficult and treacherous path. Unfortunately, there are many men who have taken the road to least resistance. Too many are selling drugs, bootlegging movies, compact discs, and stolen merchandise while involving themselves in a variety of unlawful activities all under the guise of feeding themselves and their families. They brush off the illegality of their actions by saying, "A man's gotta do, what a man's gotta do."

Despite hard times our history shows that we have lived through wars, slavery, floods and depressions, but, for the most part, the men of our families refused to steal or involve themselves in wrongdoing in the name of "doing what we gotta do."

The three Hebrew Boys are prime examples of integrity in action. They were presented with many opportunities to promote themselves professionally and to survive the threat of death, yet they refused to eat from the King's table or bow to political demands that impugned their relationship with God. Their refusal took moral courage, but they stood on their principles. Great fathers make tough choices to prepare themselves for leadership of their homes and the community in general. This important because real men complete the training they need to be competitive in the economic market.

A young boy who claims he's a man but can't force himself to study or complete his education may wear a man's pants, but he's still not a man. The man who throws his money away gambling, drinking and living large, may have fun, but he's living loosely as a boy and is a far cry from the man he wants to be. These attributes of manhood are taught by fathers around the world; they form the foundation upon which strong families are built.

If "Daddy" is a man of integrity, then it should be an honor to have someone say, "You just like your daddy."

The Image of God

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember that a real man is made in the image of God.

In Genesis 1:26 when God decided to make man he said, "Let us make man." The creation of man was a collaborative effort between the Father, the Word and the Holy Ghost, indicated by the phrase, "let us."

Let us make man so he can have dominion over the rest of creation.

Let us make man and ally him with the elements, from the dust, but full of life; of the animals but far superior, but just lower than the angels.

Let us make man in our image. In the image of the fatherly God. In the image of the obedient son.

In the image of the empowering, forceful and inspirational Holy Ghost. The Hebrew word for image in this text means "fashion" or "resemblance." Likewise, the word

"Likeness" means "similitude, or manner."

It does not mean that we look like God or that we are Jr. gods. It means that there are unique qualities within us that are similar in nature to that of the creator. We are similar to God in many ways, but we are by no means God.

A man who is made in the image of God is one who is courageous, strong, and honorable. He is also able to withstand the fiery flames of the world with his character intact.

Trial by experience is the best judge of our character because those who come through this experience are refined in the faith and closer to the ideal. Whenever gold or other precious metal is extracted, it has to be refined. The process is to heat the ore to such temperatures that the gold separates itself from rock, mud and other minerals in which it may be surrounded. Biblically, it is called being "tried in the fire."

The trial by fire is when a father proves himself to his wife and children by passing the tests that life puts before him. The nature of the tests varies from health issues to finances, relationships, career challenges or career difficulties. These challenges have a tendency to reveal Those who have weathered such storms know what it means to be tried in the fire.

When we come through, like pure gold that is refined, all of the raw ore seems to float away leaving behind a pure spirit, more sensitive nature, and a closeness to God. We went into our situation crudely, but we arose more refined and able to stand whatever life throws at us. The Holy Spirit is the refining agent.

The Holy Spirit separates and then polishes us as we prepare for greater service. Anyone who has been to God's refinery has no trouble praising God. My father doesn't reside in Monroe or New York or Kansas City, but He sits high and looks low and He's with me wherever I go!

Whether you say, Abba or father, we are reassured that the God we serve us loves with an Agape love. Some call Him Abba, others call Him father, but it all means one thing: we are His children and He will work it out for us.

The definitive father is one who can stand tall, but can reach low! The definitive father is one who is defined not by the size of his wallet, but by the depth of his heart. The definitive father is one who is defined not by the physical strength of his body, but by the moral fiber or his soul The finest definition of father is that when we need him he is there; when nobody else can; he can.

I have a father who can take:

—Sadness and turn it to gladness; Misery and turn it into a delight!

—Failure and turn it into success; Loneliness and turn it into happiness!

—Poverty and turn it into riches; Defeat and turn it into victory!

No wonder the songwriter wrote:"I cannot take the lightning and flash it across the land. I cannot take a piece a clay and mold it into a man, but I have a father who can!"

I am reminded of the little girl who had nightmares when she was young and was always afraid in the night.In the middle of the morning when her fears got the best of her she''d cry out, "Papa, it's dark, hold my hand!" No matter how many times she called him papa would get up and hold her hand every night. That picture of her papa sitting by her bed holding her hand,! Never left her mind, even after he died. Many years later she came to God. When the troubles of the world surrounded her she cried out "Lord, it's dark outside! Hold my hand!"

No wonder the songwriter declared, "Lord, hold my hand, while I run this race. I don't want to run this race alone!"

I don't know about you, but I want Jesus to walk with me! He walked with my father, but I want Him to walk with me!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who arose after three days!

I want Jesus to walk with me!

No. 9647-Inspiration

The Believer's Declaration of Independence

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 23, 2014

SCRIPTURE: I will shew thee, hear me; and that which I have seen I will declare; Job 15:17; If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed. John 8:36

Introduction

As the nation prepares to celebrate its independence, have you ever stopped to think what it means to make a declaration? A declaration is not a mere statement of fact, it is bold announcement. It's the line drawn in the sand that is irrevocable! Once spoken it is irreversible.

The 13 original colonies were dependent upon England for everything from its afternoon tea to its furniture, fashions and military protection. The price it paid for that dependence required high taxes, intrusion of troops into their homes, an unjust laws that reduced them to mere shadows of the free men the sought to be.

In the face of all the inequities that the colonials faced, one by one the colonials began to take stands against England at the risk of their lives and fortunes. We remember vividly the words of Patrick Henry, who stood and said, "Is life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take; but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

That was the course taken by Crispus Attucks, an African-American, who became the first man to die for America's independence. For him, "Give me Liberty or Give me Death" was a full commitment.

It was the same belief that caused men such as Frederick Douglass and John Brown and women such as Sojourner Truth and Harriett Tubman to declare that slavery of African-Americans was just as dastardly as being slaves of King George. Millions of African-American slaves also chanted "Give me liberty or give me death" as the jumped into open seas, drowned themselves and the babies and risked death to run for freedom.

The nation celebrates the Declaration of Independence which was signed on July 4, 1776. That declaration did not mean that Americans were instantly free. King George would not let go and it took seven years and 25,000 American deaths before the words of the Declaration were true to white Americans. Only when the Civil War was fought over four years and 625,000 deaths did the declaration begin to mean something to African-Americans.

Declaring Independence is more than just words for the 4th of July. It is a stand to be loosed from the shackles that bind us.

What about your spiritual lives? Have you declared your independence from the devil yet? Are you still occupied colonies? Is the devil still placing taxing demands on your life that are unbearable? Is he still dipping in your business to the point that it is totally intolerable?

Christ came to break the chains that tie us to the devil. We declare our independence from him, that does not mean that he will instantly let us go without a fight!

As Christians, we declare that we will stand for God and give him our trust. The devil will try to defeat us, but we have declared our independence of him and loyalty to Cross of Jesus and we will not turn back.

Exposition

These two present a contrast of the condition of mortal man; one dependent and weak and the other, strong and free.

Job 15 presents Job surrounded by three of his friends who describe a depressing rationale for his current state of depravity. The speaker is Eliphaz. He contends that every man born of a woman is impure, weak and and full of vile and is as corrupt as sour milk.

Job claimed that he had not sinned, never abandoned God and continues to remain faithful, but Eliphaz made a declaration based on his own experience: "That which I have seen, I do declare." He said he seen that those who experience the kind of hardships Job endured were the results of their own torment. Not only does he declare it, says Eliphaz, but so do all of the ancients, philosophers and ordinary people.

The devil was fighting for Job's heart, trying to break his will, placing one torment after another upon him. He was using his friends to depress him.

In Job 13:15, he made his own declaration: "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him:but I will maintain mine own ways before him."

Job refused to be a slave of the devil. He chose to be free of him, even if it meant being loyal to his death.

In response to the notion that mortal man is doomed to be dependent upon the devil and his ways, Jesus in John 8:36 made a declaration: "If the Son shall make you free, then you shall be free indeed."

Real liberty comes when we have broken the chains that bind our thinking and actions.

These are the chains that limit our ambitions, circumscribe our journey and regulate our desire to rise above our circumstance.

When we are set free spiritually, we know God personally and are not intimidated by the threatening situations placed upon us by the devil.

We are also free from guilt because our past sins and mistakes have been forgiven.

Those who have accepted Christ, have declared their independence from the influences of the devil. They are enjoying the liberty of trusting God.

Declarations of faith

Eliphaz said, "What I have seen, I do declare," and today, believers say the same words, but with a greater confidence.

We have our own declarations to make and they are from our experience with God.

WE DECLARE THAT DESPITE TEMPTATIONS, THE DEVIL WILL NEVER BIND US: Believers declare that despite the temptations that the world places in front of us that we will not follow after false gods; that we will remain faithful. Certainly, there are those who challenge our faith and even ridicule us, but our faith in God will remain intact. We stand boldly like the prophet Elijah in 1 Kings 18:21 and say, "How long halt ye between two opinions? If the LORD is God, follow him; but if Baal is God, follow him.

We declare, what our eyes have seen! In the time of trouble, God has made a way for us!

We declare what we have experienced, God answers our prayers!

We declare what we know to be true, God is real.

Since God has shown himself to be a powerful presence in our lives, we declare our independence from the from false gods around us. Since God is God, then we will follow him.

WE DECLARE THAT OUR HOMES WILL BE GODLY: Believers declare that our homes will reflect our faith in God. We stand as Joshua stood in Joshua 24:1 and said, "Choose you this day whom ye will serve; whether the gods which your fathers served that were on the other side of the flood, or the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell: but as for me and my house, we will serve the LORD. Today more than ever, there is a need for strong Christian families that resist society's ever-changing definitions of male-female responsibilities, and moral values. Today, those who believe in Christ should strive to keep the Christian family from diminishing to the point of becoming a thing of the past. That should be the resolve of every believer. To stand strong in faith that God will always stand with us when we are right.

To actively stand on the Lord's side is to bring our families to the cross.

To actively stand on the Lord's side is to witness for him in every way possible

To be on the Lord's side is to be willing to stand for him even in difficult times.

We declare our independence from the rest of the world and boldly announce that we will stand on the Lord's side.

WE DECLARE OUR FAITH GOD'S POWER: Just as Eliphaz said he has seen the evil of the world with his own eyes, believers declare that we have seen the power of God, with our own eyes. Our journey is one that has been filled with struggle and difficulty. Whether it has been our ethnic struggle as a people of color or as individuals striving to overcome our personal fights with life-threatening situations, we have seen God reach down and help us to survive our difficulty and even to escape death itself.

We declare our faith because we have seen his power!

When our world was turned upside down by tragic events God's grace kept us from becoming cynical and disillusioned with life.

When we witnessed how evil some people can be, His love helped us to keep loving others despite the fact that there are some who are hard to love.

When failure was all around us, God's constant encouragement pushed us to "run and see what the end would be."

We make our declaration of faith because we know that God will never forsake us or leave us alone,.

We boldly declare our loyalty because God has shown us His great faithfulness.

He has been faithful to us through all of our seasons.

No wonder the songwriter declared: "Great is thy faithfulness. Great is thy faithfulness, morning by morning new mercies I see. All I have needed thy hands hath provided. Great is thy faithfulness, Lord unto me."

The cross mark s our Declaration

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that while the Declaration of Independence remains as a symbol of American freedom from England, the cross stands tall as a symbol of our victory over the devil!

Those who look at the parchment that contains the Declaration see the American dream, but those who look to the little cross on the hill go a little further, they see a God who makes dreams possible.

The Declaration of Independence and American Freedom is symbolized by The statue of liberty offers freedom to all who come to American shores.

We see that promise in the inscription on its base in the words of the "New Collusus:"

"Give me your tired, your poor,
Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free,
The wretched refuse of your teeming shore.
Send these, the homeless, tempest-tost to me,
I lift my lamp beside the golden door!"

Christ offers liberty to all who come to the cross.

He says, "Come unto to me all ye who are burdened and heavy laden, and I will give you rest. My yoke is easy and my burden is light."

The Declaration of Independence marks the moment where the quest for freedom officially began, but the cross marks the place where bondage ends.

The Cross reminds us of what has been replaced.

Hate has been replaced with love,
Sadness has been replaced with joy,
Confusion has been replaced with peace,
Impatience has been replaced with patience,
Insensitivity has been replaced with kindness,
Stinginess has been replaced with generosity,

Lack of faith has been replaced with faithfulness,

Rudeness has been replaced with gentleness.

The cross reminds us of a sin record that no longer exists.

The cross reminds us of a mistake that has been forgiven.

The cross reminds us of an error that has been erased.

But more than anything else the cross reminds us that we serve a living Lord.

The cross marks the place where we came in contact with the power of the Lord.

The cross marks the place where we stepped out of the darkness into the marvelous light.

The cross marks the place where we traded in our lives of sin for the hope of salvation.

That's why the song writer wrote, "At the cross at the cross where we first saw the light and the burdens of my heart rolled away. It was there by faith I received my sight and now I'm happy all the day."

The cross is more than a mere declaration!

The cross is that power that can change my darkness into light!

The cross is that power that can take my downs and turn them into ups

The cross is that power that can pick me up and turn me around again!

It's more than a statue!

It's where Jesus died over 2000 years ago!

The cross reminds that he died on Calvary!

But every time we see it, it also reminds us that early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave, promising eternal life, with liberty and justice for all!

No.9648-Inspiration

The Hem of His garment

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

July 13, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "And besought him that they might only touch the hem of his garment: and as many as touched were made perfectly whole." Matthew 14:36

Introduction

Have you ever worn a garment that needed a hem? Hemming is a finishing touch on garment to prevent unraveling of the fabric. Hemming is also required whenever a garment is to be adjusted to fit the height or a wearer. It usually requires stitches of some kind that will form a straight line and reduce the length of the garment.

Hems vary. Some are smooth and even while others have jagged edges. Some are frazzled while others are pressed down and straight.

There is nothing magical about hems. Dresses, pants and even coat sleeves are routinely hemmed every day, and have been for thousands of years.

However, in early Jewish tradition, there was a religious importance placed on the hem of a man's prayer shawl. In fact, every man was required to use a special hem on his garment to remind him of God's law and the importance of his adherence to God's law. The special hem ornaments were called "Tzitzit" (see-seeth)

In Numbers 15:38, Moses commanded, "Speak to the children of Israel, and say to them, that they shall make themselves fringes on the corners of their garments throughout their generations, and they shall put on the corner fringe a blue thread." The next verse, Numbers 15:39-40 (NKJV) says, And you shall have the tassel, that you may look upon it and remember all the commandments of the LORD and do them, and that you may not follow the harlotry to which your own heart and your own eyes are inclined, and that you may remember and do all My commandments, and be holy for your God."

Wearing the tzitzit is also commanded in Deuteronomy 22:12: "You shall make yourself twisted threads, on the four corners of your garment with which you cover yourself." In ancient Israel, men wore four-cornered outer tunics with these tassels, or tzitzits, tied to the four corners. These tassels were to remind each Jewish man of his responsibility to fulfill God's commandments. In fact, these tassels are tied into 613 knots to constantly remind them of the 613 laws of Moses, of which there are 365 prohibitions (The "thou shalt not" laws), and 248 affirmations (the "thou shall" laws).

Because they were hanging on the four corners of your garment, in full view of everyone including yourself, they would be a constant reminder to walk according to God's Laws.

It is not uncommon, even today, to find Jewish men who use prayer shawls for prayer. They often place them over their heads to shut out the world and to be in the presence of God. Praying under the prayer shawl is the same as covering yourself with the presence of God.

A man's prayer shawl, therefore, represented the presence of God, and the hem with its 613 knots, reminded him to adhere to all of the Mosaic laws.

The shawl and the hem itself became a necessary prayer tool for many Jewish men. If they wanted to be close to God, they felt they must lay hold to the hem of the prayer shawl as well, because it meant they were obedient and deserving of consideration.

As Christians, we don't wear prayer shawls, but we do have private places where we talk to the Lord. It is there in those secret moments that we touch the hem of his garment that we speak to him and he responds to our need.

Exposition

This text focuses on people who were healed in Gennesaret after touching the hem of Jesus' garment

The land of Gennesaret was different from the land of the Gergasenes from which Jesus had recently visited. He was run out of town in that area after he healed a demonic man by placing the devils that troubled him in a herd of swine that killed themselves by diving over a cliff. On the other side of the Sea there were many people who had heard of Jesus' great works and were willing to believe and follow him.

Genneserat was a major fishing town and news of happenings around the region traveled fast as fishermen gave accounts of what they had seen and heard. Before Jesus arrived, the people were anxious to hear and receive a word from heaven. This is the land where Jesus fed 5,000 with two fishes and five loaves of bread, preached and healed many.

When word spread that Jesus was in Gennesaret, the news went out into every part of the region for the sick. They had a tremendous faith in his power and goodness. Their faith was so strong that those who touched the hem of his garment were made whole. They did not know that this would happen, it was not promised, but they believed God and received a surprising reward for their faith.

Matthew's account tells that there were many who touched the hem of Jesus' garment and were made whole. However, Luke describes this "touching the hem" in more detail, focusing on one woman's faith.Luke 8:43-44 says, "And a woman having an issue of blood twelve years, which had spent all her living upon physicians, neither could be healed of any, Came behind him, and touched the border of his garment: and immediately her issue of blood stanched.

She came up behind him and touched the edge of his cloak, and immediately her bleeding stopped" (Luke 8:44).Word of Jesus' astounding acts of healing has spread all over Galilee, even to the village where his woman lives (Mark 5:27). And she determines to find him and be healed. She has decided in her heart, "If I just touch his clothes, I will be healed" (Mark 5:28).

Jesus noticed her touch and responded, "Who touched me?" Luke 8:46, "And Jesus said, Somebody hath touched me: for I perceive that virtue is gone out of me." Then Jesus added in Luke 8:48 "And he said unto her, Daughter, be of good comfort: thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace."

The woman reached for the hem of his Garment, but it was not the garment, but her faith that got his attention and made her whole.

Hem Touching

Those who try receive blessings from God should note the following truths gleaned from these passages.

UNDER THE HEM THEY CAME CLOSE TO GOD: All Jewish men wore prayer shawls to get close to God and block out the world. They also wanted to obey God to the fullest. They placed the shawls over their heads and prayed. Today, true believers should seek every way possible to get close to God. Every believer should have a time and place where they connect with God. It is their own unique and private altar. For some, that place is a special chair, or place on the table. For others, it is in a special place at a special hour. This is the time when we strive to get close to God and to evaluate our own performance before him. Under the hem they came close to God.

Close to thee, close to thee,
close to thee, close to thee,
all along my pilgrim journey,
Savior, let me walk with thee

THROUGH THE HEM THEY REMEMBERED TO OBEY GOD: The tassels in the hem reminded Jewish believers to obey the commands of God. They wore the tassels daily to remind themselves of God's law. Even today, believers are mindful of the word of God. Psalms 119:11 says, "Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee." Today, believers don't wear tassels, but God's word is hidden in our hearts. It remembers God's word that prompts sacrifice our time, give our tithes and offerings and live holy. When Jesus responds to needs he responds to both the body and soul. Since he is concerned about body and soul, he will offer forgiveness for sin as well as blessings; they go together. We should not come to God seeking blessings, healings and fruitful lives without remembering our followship requirements. We can't come to God for healings if we are unwilling to repent for our sins. We must be willing to accept him both as Lord and Savior. Lord means accepting him as our leader, and savior means accepting him as our spiritual savior and soul provider. They come together. When we come to God in prayer, we must come with a spirit of humility that is ready to follow wherever he leads and do whatever he wants to be done.

THROUGH HIM ALL BARRIERS TO BLESSINGS FALL: Traditional Jews placed considerable emphasis on the hem of the garment, but today, believers place our trust in the H-I-M not the H-E-M. There was a wall that separated the woman with the issue of blood from touching Christ. The Mosaic Law prohibited women from approaching men in public. Women who had any kind of blood issuance from monthly cycles or hemorrhaging, were considered unclean. Leviticus 15:19-23 " And if a woman have an issue, and her issue in her flesh be blood, she shall be put apart seven days: and whosoever toucheth her shall be unclean until the even. And every thing that she lieth upon in her separation shall be unclean: every thing also that she sitteth upon shall be unclean. And whosoever toucheth her bed shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even. And whosoever toucheth any thing that she sat upon shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even. And if it be on her bed, or on anything whereon she sitteth, when he toucheth it, he shall be unclean until the even."

The Mosaic law set up a barrier between the woman and the blessing she needed, but Christ broke the barrier, not only did he speak to her in public, but gave her what she needed.

Today, there are many who believe they are not clean enough, good enough, sober enough or straight enough to come before God. Yet, those who willing to come before God with a contrite and repentive spirit can tap into the power of God by their faith alone.

There is no barrier that can stand between a believer and God.

If the woman had sought the hem, she would have been prohibited.

She heard about him

She heard how he healed the sick and made the blind see!

She sought him and the barriers fell.

Seek Jesus and regardless of our pasts, barriers will fall and he will respond to our needs according to his will!

Keep Pushing

Finally brothers and sisters, if you are dealing with a full slate of impossible issues in your life, we recommend that you push your way through the crowd and give it to Jesus!

Don't say in your mind, "I am insignificant!" or "He doesn't know who I am!"

Don't say in your mind, "I haven't been as faithful as I should have been!"

Don't say in your mind, "I can't get to him because there are others closer to him!"

Push your way through the crowd and say, "If I can but touch the hem of his garment, I will be made whole"

If you have an issue that has caused:

FAILURE, he can turn failure into success;

SADNESS, he can turn sadness into gladness;

SICKNESS, he can turn it into good health!

BURDENS, he can take your burdens and make them light!

DEFEAT, he can take your defeat and turn it into victory!

LOSSES, he can take your losses and turn them into gains!

HEARTACHES, I know a God who specializes in mending broken hearts!

TROUBLED MARRIAGE, I know a God who can turn your old lady into the first lady, who can turn your old man into the King of the Castle!

LOST GENERATION, I know a God who can take Gangsta Rap and turn it into a Saint's testimony!

Push your way through the crowd; reach out and touch him in the spirit of humility and his blood shall make you whole!

If you want to deal with the issue, push back your fear of embarrassment or insignificance and give it to Jesus!

Jesus said, "I come that they might have life and have it more abundantly"

Jesus came to take the curse of our:

-Tragedy and turn it into triumph!

-Defeat and turn it into victory!

-Despair and turn it into hope!

-Sadness and turn it into joy!

-Failure and turn it into success!

-Weakness and turn it into strength!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who was buried in borrowed tomb!

Jesus, who arose early Sunday morning!

Give it to Jesus and everything will be all right!

No. 9649-Anniv.-Homecoming

Return and I will be with thee

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

July 20, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "And the Lord said unto Jacob, Return unto the land of thy fathers, and to thy kindred; and I will be with thee." Genesis 31:3

Introduction

There are thousands of men, women and children in America who are living on street corners by day and sleeping in alleyways and cardboard boxes at night. Have you ever wondered why they don't go back home or someone in their family won't say, "come home?"

"Homeless" is a term often used to describe social wayfarers, but that description is often inadequate. It is inadequate because there are some who live on the street who are not homeless, but are houseless.

What is the difference between a homeless person and a houseless person? A truly homeless person is totally disconnected from all sources of support and affection. By chance or design, a homeless person has no one who cares or does not want to receive the help of those who do care in his family. A houseless person, on the other hand, may have a home, but not have a house. In some cities, it is not unusual for entire families to live in cardboard boxes on city streets or in abandoned building. They have no house, but they have a home.

But an equal paradox exists. While there ere are thousands described as homeless because they have no place to lay their heads, there is an equal number of people who have a place to lay their heads, but are still homeless. They have a house, but they do not have a home.

In the drama, "Grandma's Bible" a grandmother spent considerable time trying to convince her grandson to pray and read his bible. She tried every way she could imagine to motivate him to love God and to read the word, but he refused to do so. At her death, she left a will that divided her insurance policy among her heirs. To each of his three sisters, grandmother left $100,000 each, but to the grandson, she only left her old bible. The grandson became bitter. He cursed the memory of his grandmother for showing such favoritism. He refused to company and love of his sisters. He moved away and soon fell into poverty. After many years of searching the sisters found him living on the street in a cardboard box. When he saw them, he was still filled with bitterness because he was envious that grandmother gave them a fine inheritance an left him with only an old bible, which he kept over all the years. As he raised the bible and scorned grandmother's name, the bible opened to the page that contained the words, "My God shall supply all of your needs according to his riches in Christ Jesus." He flipped the next page and found a cashier's check for $100,000. He cried because he had become houseless, but was never about someone to love him. Even in death, all grandmother wanted was for him to read his bible and know the favor of God.

As Christians we strive to remain connected to a home that God has provided for us, through worship, service, and prayer. If we have strayed, we are encouraged to return home, knowing that God will be with us.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jacob as he decides to return home, responding to the command of God.

Jacob has been away from home for many years, living with his uncle Laban. There, he had made a living for himself and had become prosperous. However, God spoke to his soul and told him to go home.

By divine direction and under the convoy of a promise: The Lord to Jacob that if he returned home he would stand with him in the journey. In verse three he says, "Return, and I will be with thee, v. 3. It was a tempting command because Jacob was not being received well with his uncle who was jealous of him, suspicious of him and related to him in a master-servant role.

Though Jacob had met with very hard usage here, yet he would not quit his place unless God gave the order. He came by orders from Heaven, and there he would stay till he was ordered back. Jacob considered all of the elements of his decision. His brother Esau threatened to kill him if he ever returned. His uncle Laban threatened to take his two wives and his property if he left.

As he made his decision to return home, he listened to the voice of God and heard the powerful words, "I will be with thee."

Those same words apply to believers today.

Returning to God

What stops those who have strayed away from returning to "land of thy fathers?" What are the factors?

THERE MUST BE SOMETHING TO RETURN TO: Jacob's dilemma was whether to return to the "Land of thy fathers,"- There are many today who cannot share that dilemma, because their homes were not godly homes. The "land of thy fathers" was not a godly place. There are thousands of children today who are not being reared in godly homes. Even in the growing middle class, godliness is tolerated, but not promoted in our homes. In 2007, The Pew Research Foundation interviewed 36,000 Americans and released a startling report that revealed that a growing number of Americans consider themselves godly, but are not attached to any particular belief or denomination. Among African-Americans, a growing number are identifying themselves as unaffiliated or non-denominational. They say religion is important, but not enough to compel and affiliation, regular worship or serious commitment time, talent or resources. In short, a growing number of Americans still believe in God, but don't feel it necessary to worship regularly, to study about their faith, or that their children have a strong religious education. If that is a growing trend in America, it means there will come a time when those who stray will have nothing to return to. Today, we think of the old landmark. We remember Sunday School, bible school, church worship, bible study, public prayer and family devotion. We stray, but we know the way back because of what was done at home. It underscores the importance of every family teaching their children the ways of the Lord. Moses told Israel in Deuteronomy 6:6-7, "And these words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart: and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up."

THE THREAT OF LOSS: Jacob considered returning home, and the first thought that came to his mind was the possibility of loss if he returned. There are many who do not return to a Godly life they were taught at home because of the threat of loss. In the quiet moments of their lives they say to themselves, "I should change this life and go back to God," but before they can finish the thought, other considerations pop up. Many think about what their friends will say. They could be ridiculed or even persecuted for changing the lifestyle with which their friends have become familiar. Many consider that returning to the way taught back home could mean giving up the bright lights and pleasures of their present life. It could also mean losing a promotion or business deal. It could mean losing money, business, property and political connection. Moreover, it could mean losing friends or lovers. We know what we were taught, but many of those ways, if followed in our present life, could mean trouble. The threat of loss makes many apprehensive. When Jacob, considered all that was before him, he probably said as David said in Psalm 143:10, "Teach me to do thy will; for thou art my God: thy spirit is good; lead me into the land of uprightness." Believers are called upon to remember the promises of God in Genesis 28:15, "And, behold, I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest, and will bring thee again into this land; for I will not leave thee, until I have done that which I have spoken to thee of."

THE BITTERNESS OF FAMILY REJECTION: As Jacob considered returning home, he was caught in the vice of family dissent. At home, Esau would surely confront him, angry because of the stolen birthright. With Laban, he would be confronted if he chose to leave. He had to deal with the various degrees of acceptance and rejection in his family. Jesus warned believers that those who choose to follow him can expect to be caught in a vice of family opinion. Some will doubt the sincerity of the believer's choice. Others will dismiss the decision to follow Christ as a phase that will be outgrown. Those who chose to return to the godly life in the beauty of holiness and devotion to God should expect some bitter things to be said, even in their family, but they should not be deterred. Jesus said, in Matthew 10:36-37, "And a man's foes [shall be] they of his own household. He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me: and he that loveth son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me."

You can Always Come Home

Finally, we should consider it is never too late to return to the godly life you learned at home, even if we don't consider ourselves worthy.

Like Jacob, there are many who have been away from spiritual circles for so long they don't know what to expect when they return. But the love of God is so gracious that despite their estrangement, God will welcome them with open arms.

If we have been cut off from the family of God because of a life of sin, there is a healing spirit that awaits the saints when they come home. I hear 2 Chronicles 7:14 say " If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."

Isaiah 1:18 "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow."

Like the prodigal, there are many who feel they have erred in life and don't deserve to be in the family of God. But they soon find that the love of God forgives for Romans 3:23 says, "For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God." Regardless to past mistakes, he forgives and restores the lost to positions and places of love and trust.

That means it doesn't matter whether I have made a mistake in life, if I come home; he'll welcome me!

Like the poor, maimed and the orphaned, many soon learn that the love of God is concerned about everyone regardless to their state of being or prominence. Regardless of our station in life, everyone is welcomed in the family of God.

I hear him say in Matthew 11:28, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

That's why the songwriter declared, "I came to Jesus as I was, weary, wounded and sad. I found in him a resting place, and he has made me glad."

I know he'll welcome me because he loves me. John 3:16 says, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life."

He'll welcome me because Revelation 21:7 says, "He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son."

I am reminded of a lost son who had been away from home for many years. He heard the old stories about tying a yellow ribbon around the oak tree, so he wrote his parents a letter that said "I'm coming home. Mama, if you welcome me put a white sheet on the clothes lie and a yellow ribbon on the old oak tree. Tell papa if he forgives me, to ring the old bell." As the train made its way to the old country house, it made one last stop and picked up a few passengers. The young man nervously kept his eyes on the window. As the train passed his family house, his heart dropped when he didn't see any sign of forgiveness.

He asked the conductor to stop the train. He looked at the empty tree and clothes and listened for the old bell to ring, but heard nothing. As he sat down in his seat, he heard a familiar sound. Coming down the isle was his father with a cowbell in both hands ringing it like crazy. Behind him was his mother, who made herself a dress out of an old white sheet in her hair one yellow ribbon for every year her son had been gone. They both opened their arms and said "My son! My son! Welcome home!

That's the way the Lord welcomes us home!
Jesus, the lily of the valley; the bright and morning star.
Jesus, who died on Calvary and rose after three days..
Welcomes me Home!
"Open wide thine arms of love, Lord I'm coming home!"
"Coming home! Coming Home, never more to roam!"
Open wide thine arms of love, Lord I'm coming home

No. 9650-Inspiration

The Alabaster Box

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

July 27, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "And being in Bethany in the house of Simon the leper, as he sat at meat, there came a woman having an alabaster box of ointment of spikenard very precious; and she brake the box, and poured it on his head." Mark 14:3

What is the most valuable thing you own? Is it your house, automobile, jewelry, heirlooms? If you received notice that you have been selected to appear on the "Let's Make a Deal" television broadcast where you had the possibility of winning thousands of dollars in exchange for the most valuable thing you own, would you make the trade?

That valuable thing that you own, would you be willing to trade it? Would you trade your house for a mansion? How about your car for a fleet of limousines? Would you trade your grandmother's wedding rings for the winning jackpot lottery ticket? What is precious to you?

In 1993 Robert Redford and Demi Moore starred in a movie entitled "Indecent Proposal." In which a billionaire offered a loving couple who were in deep financial trouble one million dollars for one night with the struggling husband's wife, with no strings attached. The proposal became the national buzzword and people all over the world answered whether or not they were willing to trade the purity of their marriage relationship in exchange for $1 million.

Suppose God gave you a box full of gifts, talents and money making opportunities; would you be willing to trade them worldly success, even if it meant coming up short with God? The Reverend Milton Brunson answered that question with a song that said, 'I'll trade a lifetime for one day in paradise." Remember those lyrics?:

I'd sure love to see my mother, who gone on before, shake hands with the elders twenty and four;
in that righteous place I know I'll see my Savior's face,
I'll trade a lifetime, (I'll trade a lifetime for just one day in paradise).

While many give lip service to putting God first in their lives, each day they make tradeoffs that make him not second place, but last. Many are not willing to trade a single item in their gift box for any measure of time with God.

For them Matthew 6:33, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and his righteousness and all of these things shall be added unto you" are wholesome words to speak, but they don't really believe them. When it comes to our own box, there are many who are holding on to it as tightly as possible.

However, there are millions who have trust God so much that they freely reach into their own little box and give him all they have. In return for their faith, he promises the abundant life and a place in the kingdom of God.

The faithful have found that they value God's favor more than what's in their box.

As Christians, we are pleased to know that God has gifts in store for all of us, but we must be willing to trust him completely to receive the fullness of his blessings. So, we give God what is precious to us in faith that he will bless us in his own way and when the blessings come they will flow like a mighty stream.

Exposition

This text focuses on Mark as he shows a woman pouring oil on the head of Jesus to anoint Him.

Jesus often shared meals with the rich and powerful as well as the common people. In this text He was being honored with a meal at the home of Simon the Leper. It is supposed that this was the man whose cleansing from leprosy was noted in Mark 1:40. In the course of the dinner a woman, identified in John 12:3 as Mary, the sister of Martha and Lazarus, came to the dinner with an alabaster box or a stone flask with a long neck and sealed with wax. She took a priceless oil which cost about 300 denarii per flask or bottle. It was the oil used by kings, and they used it only drop by drop. A denarii was the average pay for a day's work. Therefore, the bottle was worth about a whole year's wage. Despite its market value, the woman broke the seal and poured out the contents upon Jesus' head.

It was not uncommon for a guest at a festival or banquet to be anointed in this way, but it had special significance to Jesus because he perceived it as the anointing of his body for the crucifixion and death that was to come. However, there were many who saw the broken box, and watched the oil drip from Christ's head and spill to the floor and decried such acts as waste.

Mary anointed Jesus herself. A servant would ordinarily do the anointing; and Simon, owning a home large enough to entertain so many guests, would certainly have had servants. She took the most precious thing she had and gave it to Jesus in the most significant way, in an act of anointing. Mary's anointing of Jesus was a selfless act, a costly act, an act of love and faith in the Lord Jesus. Very simply put, Mary anointed Jesus to show Him how deeply she loved Him and believed Him to be the true Messiah, the anointed One of God. He was her Savior, Lord, and King. He had done so much for her and her family. She wanted Him to know how much she appreciated, loved, and believed Him.

As they watched Mary stoop and dry Jesus' feet with her hair, they maintained that oil spilled and wasted in such a way was negligent. It was worth a year's wages and could have easily been sold to help the poor.

Jesus said the oil was neither spilled or wasted but served as an anointing in anticipation of greater things to come.

The Box

Mary's unselfish act was done in faith that Jesus was the son of God, whose kingdom would come. She traded one of most valuable possessions to demonstrate her love for him. This act also shows the following:

THE BOX REPRESENTED HER BEST: The contents of the Alabaster Box represented the best that she had to give; it was worth a year's wages. It was the type of oil and anointing that was reserved for the most special occasions, used sparingly to make it last. When she used it all on Jesus she gave him her all and she gave him her best. Believers today are compelled to do the same. In fact, the scripture record suggests that God doesn't really accept anything less than our best.

God is expecting us to present him with our best service. Romans 12:1 says, "I beseech you therefore, brethern, by the mercies of God, that you present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God which is your reasonable service."

God is expecting our best sacrifices. Some in the Old Testament were giving God the scraps and calling it sacrifice. They were bringing blind cows and lame goats for sacrifices so Malachi 1:8 we says, "And when you offer the blind as a sacrifice, is it not evil? And when you offer the lame and sick, is it not evil?" Is it not just as evil today if give God the scraps: left over time, talent and offerings that are left over after we've taken care of everything else.?

When Mary poured out the oil it represented her giving her all. Matthew 22:37, "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and all your soul, and all your mind." Likewise we should give God our best.

THE BOX WAS USELESS UNLESS OPENED: The alabaster box of ointment contained something that was very precious, but as long as it stayed in the container, it didn't benefit anyone. John says that when the perfume was poured out upon Jesus that its fragrance filled the house. Jesus called the act a good work, and the original Greek actually means "a beautiful thing." God has given each one of us a spiritual gift. It may be great faith, acts of service, hospitality, teaching, or some other gift. But if you keep that gift to yourself, it benefits no one. It is our responsibility as Christians to figure out what our gifts are, and then to use them for the glory of God and the benefit of those around you. What good is the gift of organizing if you never organize? What good is the gift of leadership if you never lead? What good is the gift of teaching if you never teach? If you have green thumb, but you never use it for the kingdom what good is it to God?

When Mary opened the box, the perfume filled the air. Everyone knew something special had been done. The same is true when we use our gifts. Our service causes others to sense Jesus all over the place. Look at Jesus teaching that class! Look at Jesus working with those youth! Look at Jesus cooking that food!

When the church opens its Alabaster Box and lets the love of Jesus shine, the words of the song have new meaning, "There's a sweet, sweet spirit in this place, and I know it must be the spirit of the Lord!"

SHE OPENED THE BOX BECAUSE OF WHAT HE DID FOR HER: Sitting in that room were people who had fully benefited from the grace of God. There was Simon the Leper, a man who was once an outcast with an incurable disease, but was healed by God. There was Lazarus, sitting at the table with Jesus. He was alive and well after being raised from the dead. This room was occupied by people who had been blessed by the hand of the Lord. In response to that Mary opened her Alabaster box and poured out her best for him. Whenever God has done something for us we should respond to him with our best. Simon was delivered from disease and public scorn. Lazarus was given a new life. If God has done the same for us we should be willing to open up our box and pour out to him everything we have in return.

When the Anointing Flows

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should note that Mary anointed Jesus with the best that she had because she expected Jesus to anoint her with best that he has!

The best Mary had was a box of expensive oil, but the best that the savior has is an anointing that flows from heaven and continues to flow every day!

When Samuel anointed David to serve as the King of Israel he anointed him with divinely blessed oil that flowed throughout David's life. When God should have struck him dead the oil continued to flow.

David was blessed so much that he prayed out of his soul, "Thou hast anointed my head with oil, my cup runneth over, surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all of the days of my life."

When the oil of God's anointing flows, our cups run over as an evidence of God's favor.

When Abraham discovered the ram in the bush, that was an evidence of God's favor and the blessings kept flowing!

When Moses led the Children of Israel through the Red Sea, that was an evidence of God's favor, and the blessings kept flowing.

When Esther rose to become Queen of Persia and saved her people, it was an evidence of God's favor and blessings kept flowing!

When the Three Hebrew Boys were protected from the burning flames in the fiery furnace, that was an evidence of God's favor, and the blessings kept flowing!

When Daniel was protected from hungry lions in the lion's den, that was an evidence of God's favor and the blessings kept flowing!

On the Day of Pentecost when the Holy Spirit came down like cloves of fire, that was an evidence of God's anointing, and the blessings have been flowing every since.

I don't know what you think about it, but I'm glad that God is still in the blessing business.

There's a blessing flowing from the fountain on the mountain.

No wonder the song writer declared, "There is a fountain filled with blood that flows from Immanuel's vein; and sinners plunged beneath the flood lose all their guilt and stain."

It's a fountain filled with the blood of Christ.

It's blood that will never lose its power!

They lifted Him high on an old rugged cross!

They drove nails into His hands!

They stuck a spear in His side!

And he died... But Early Sunday morning He arose with all power in his hands!

I'm so glad that the well of God's blessings has not been capped and Blessings are still flowing!

No. 9651-Inspiration

Let the Haters talk

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 3, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "And the scribes and Pharisees watched him, whether he would heal on the sabbath day; that they might find an accusation against him." Luke 6:7

Introduction

Does it bother you that you have so many haters? Whether we accept it or not everyone has a gallery of persons whose main occupation in life is to criticize. These are the proverbial back seat drivers of life who know the answers to all of the world's problems. Usually, they meet regularly with one objective, discussing the personalities, events and trends of the day often with highly opinionated and uniformed poisoned laced criticism. The purpose of the criticism is usually to show the flaws in one position or the other and to establish themselves as the ultimate source of disciplined analysis.

Officially, a criticism is a critique or analysis of a person, event or circumstance with the intent of determining its strengths and weaknesses. Critics operate on a variety of levels. There those who criticize organizations, movements, and trends. There are others who criticize food, movies, television broadcasts, even churches. There are also those who criticize other people. They begin with those who have the highest profiles such as the President of the United States, Governor, Mayor, Pastor or job supervisor.

Not all criticism is negative. There are two types: Constructive criticism and destructive criticism. The former is designed to build up and the latter is designed to tear down.

A constructive criticism looks for strengths and accomplishments, but does not overlook the weaknesses. The object of a constructive criticism is to help a person improve. A destructive criticism ignores the strengths and focuses on the weaknesses and flaws. The object is to show that the person is flawed, failing and on the path to destruction.

A constructive critic is one that attempts to be objective, considering all aspects of an issue. The destructive critic is usually highly opinionated, knows everything about everything, and feels his/her analysis is the only one that is correct in the world.

Generally, destructive critics are called "Haters." These those whose purpose for asking a question, making a statement or even participating in an event is to criticize its failures and shortcomings.

As a general rule people who live in life's fishbowl attract the most haters. In the fishbowl, there is nothing hidden. People who choose public service or become involved in a public event voluntarily paints a large "X" on their lives because they attract haters who watch them like a goldfish in a bowl. They watch and criticize every move the little goldfish makes and there is no place to hide.

Everyone has an assumed right to privacy in America. We give up that right whenever we plunge ourselves into public life. Once we write a letter to the editor, open up a Facebook page, help with the school PTO, chair a committee, teach a class, land a public service job, open a business, play on a team, help a person in distress, preach a sermon, fall in love or dress fashionably.. we become targets of haters. The more visible you are, the more haters you will attract.

Haters don't stop hating on you in life, they continue after you die. They criticize your funeral: the flowers, the type of casket, the color of the clothes you wear, how long and how short. Long after you are gone the haters talk about you and analyze you. George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King, Jr. have been dead for years, but their haters continue. Shakespeare in Act 3 Scene 2 of Julius Caesar said, "The evil that men do lives after them, the good is oft interred with their bones."

How can you tell whether you are an evaluator or a hater? An evaluator balances their analysis with a search for strengths as well as weakness. A hater has no balance.

It is not a sin to evaluate issues, persons or events. Jesus gave us a standard to follow to keep from being "haters." In Matthew 7:1-2 he said, "Judge not, that ye be not judged. For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged: and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again." It means measure people by the same standards that you want to be judged." Those who desire to avoid being haters need only ask four questions before they comment: 1) Is my comment true 2)Is my comment necessary 3) Will my comment make things better

Generally, if all three of these points are not applied then we run the risk of becoming "haters."

Our God never "hates" on us. What he says to us in his word is always true, is absolutely necessary, and designed to make us better.

As Christians, we are aware that we subject to the criticisms of the world for our faith. We are not dissuaded, we will continue to do the works of him that sent us with the full knowledge that he will evaluate us fairly in the end and give us a crown of life.

Exposition

This text considers Jesus as he deals with his critics who followed him daily looking for ways to criticize him.

Jesus was not acceptable to the Jewish religious leaders. The constantly sought ways to legally bring him to judgment so that he could be eliminated as a threat. They often followed him and mingled with the crowds for the purpose of hearing a comment, watching a deed or measuring crowd response. Their intentions were not honorable.

Christ was aware of their intentions, but continued his ministry despite their presence. In fact, the more he healed or performed miracles, the longer the reports were against him.

Christ was criticized for healing on the Sabbath, eating with publicans and sinners, and picking corn to eat on the Sabbath. He was often criticized for breaking the Mosaic traditions that had existed for over a thousand years. They criticized his disciples for not washing their hands before eating. (The religious leaders engaged in ceremonial cleansing like washing up to the elbow and baptizing the cups and plates before eating food in them)

Though he was constantly followed by critics, Jesus never stopped doing what he came to do. His ministry was not deterred.

He avoided confrontational settings and responded to most of their questions with a question. He remained focused.

The more they criticized, the more great works he continued to do.

In the end, it was the works themselves that brought his critics to shame, even though they continue to criticize him two thousand years after his death and resurrection.

Believers should follow his example, but expect no less than the same treatment from critics and haters.

How to deal with Haters

Believers who are frustrated with haters in their lives should study the way Jesus responded to haters as a guide to dealing with so many haters they encounter daily.

FOCUS ON THE WORK TO BE DONE: When Jesus was confronted with his haters his first response was to focus on the work to be done. The scribes and Pharisees interrupted him, but he continued to focus on the work. The sick were still healed. The blind still received their sight. Those who were hungry were still fed. Today, believers who are troubled by so many haters who criticize your good work should stay focused on the work and let the haters do what they do best which is talk! There will be many who will attempt to tear down your great work, but you should not be deterred. Paul, writing to the Philippians, said in Philippians 3:13-14, Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Let the haters talk! While they talk, get on with the business of kingdom building

IF YOU ARE DOING SOMETHING EXPECT TO BE CRITICIZED: Jesus was not criticized because he did nothing; he was criticized for what he did. He was criticized for healing the sick, eating with ordinary people and generally taking care of his business. Today, believers who are doing great work should expect to be criticized. The general rule of thumb is to remember the advise the old seasoned conductor gave the new orchestra leader, "If you want to conduct the orchestra son, you must turn your back to the audience." It means you must continue to do great work despite what is being said behind your back. If the conductor constantly looked over his shoulder, he'd lose his place in the orchestrated selected. Stay focused and let the hater's talk!

DON'T RESPOND WHEN HATER'S HATE: What made it difficult for Jesus' critics was the fact that he seldom responded to them. The critics wanted a confrontation and he often refused to give them what they sought. They asked him a question and he in turn asked them a question. Often when he was accused one break or faith or another he did not respond at all. Believers should not respond to the hateful words of others. There are many who respond to negative Face book posts, news reports, and gossip by trying to track down the source or confront the source, only to create more buzz. We should not reward haters by responding to what they say. Remember, if several dogs are standing together and a rock is thrown into the group, only the hit dog will holler! If what your haters say is not true, then why are you hollering? Only the hit dog hollers. Don't respond, let the haters talk!

Give them something to talk about

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must do one final thing; when you get tired of hearing your haters talk about the same old stuff, give them something else to talk about!

There are many who constantly analyzing what you are doing, where you got it from and what you must have done to get it. What they don't talk about is the fact that you have spiritual hookup that keeps the blessings flowing.

Just about the time when they are tired of hating on one blessing you have received, our God blesses us again and gives them something else to talk about.

When it comes to the goodness of the Lord, all we can say is, let the hater's talk!

There are too many people today who are worried about what their haters say instead of trusting in the Lord!

When we trust in the Lord, we don't worry about what they say in the beauty shop and the barber shop, because we know that the Lord will make a way!

We are reaching for the brass ring of salvation, but every time we climb a little higher and God starts blessing us, the haters start their talk. Well, let the haters talk!

Let the haters talk because while they are talking God:

-Provides an Oasis in the wilderness!

-Prepares me a table in the presence of our enemies!

-God will help us to achieve the impossible dream!

Let the haters talk! They are talking because you

-Think about things that are unthinkable;

-Reach for things that are unreachable!

-Believe things that are unbelievable;

-Hope for things that are imaginable

Those who trust in God know that all things are possible!

Let the haters talk. They are just jealous because you serve a God whose:

-Power never weakens; Grace never disappoints

-Love never leaves; Promises never fail
-Glory never diminishes; Joy never ends
-Foundation never shakes; Truth never changes
-Supply never shrinks; Blessings never stop coming!
You serve a God who is able! Yes, he's able!
While your haters talk, you must continue to say "I will trust in the Lord, I will trust in the Lord until I die!
I don't know about you, but I've decided that no matter what they haters say, I'm going to trust in the Lord!
Storms may rise! winds may blow!
I will trust in the Lord till! Let the haters talk you, but while they talk about you, you talk about Jesus!
Talk about his goodness and his mercy!
Talk about his undying love for the world!
Tell them how he died!
Tell somebody how he arose after three days and nights!
Tell somebody that he is alive in your soul today!

No. 9652-Inspiration

Obsessed with Fleas

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

August 10, 2014

SCRIPTURE:"Now therefore, let not my blood fall to the earth before the face of the Lord: for the king of Israel is come out to seek a flea, as when one doth hunt a partridge in the mountains." 1 Samuel 26:20

Introduction

Have you ever been sidetracked dealing with scores of little things? These are the times when you delay doing what needs to be done because you became obsessed with focusing on a small matter that irritates you.

Obsessions refocus our energy and time. The Bush family had an obsession with killing the dictator of a small country called Iraq. George H.W. Bush nearly defeated him, but did not take the final step. When his son George W. Bush became president, he continued the family obsession with destroying Sadam Hussein. In the aftermath, 4,486 Americans died and a half million Iraqis. He was finally captured and hung, but not without plunging the nation into debt and costing the lives of thousands.

When we become obsessed, all reasonable behavior is lost. Obsessions over little things have caused marriages to end, friendships to end and churches to split. Obsessions are dangerous because they lead to reckless behavior.

Consider the soldier who was ordered to protect his side of the fort from invaders who were lay siege and waited for an opportunity to get inside the fort to destroy its occupants and steal its supplies. The fort was secure. It had strong gates and ample supplies. It could outlast any siege. At night, soldiers were posted on the walls to warn of enemies. One young soldier was assigned to watch the front gate for invading enemies. The soldier had at his disposal a giant cannon, a rifle and a pistol. As he watched through the night, he was constantly plagued by a single mosquito that seemed to swirl around his head making an irritating sound. For hours, the mosquito kept circling and buzzing until the soldier was completely frustrated. He swung at the mosquito and waved his hands. He laid down his rifle as he tried to smash the mosquito, but was never able to catch up to it. Finally, he saw the mosquito stop to rest on the front gate post. Enraged he turned the cannon at the mosquito and fired. He destroyed the mosquito that night, but he also blew down the only protection the fort had from its enemies who flooded the fort, took many lives and left. -All because one soldier became obsessed with a mosquito.

Are there persons irritating you like, mosquitoes and fleas? How much of your time and energy do you expend trying to deal with them every week? Are they really worth your time and energy?

We face many obstacles in life, but not every obstacle or enemy deserves to be the focus of our attention. We have to decide whether we want to shoot a cannon at a mosquito or a flea.Especially, if spending our time on fleas means we lose focus on the big picture.

There is no doubt that fleas are an irritation. They are tiny insects that feed on the blood of humans, dogs, cats, chickens, rabbits, squirrels and other warm-blooded vertebrates. They make little bites that irritate. If we are around fleas for only ten minutes, they can get in our hair on our bodies. The old folks warned youngsters constantly to beware of the company by saying, "If you lay down with dogs, you'll get up with fleas."

Fleas can get on us if we go where they reside, in the carpet, on the furniture or on animals.

Our frustrations in life range from life and death issues to a neighbor who keeps watching your house. One frustration is major while the other is an irritation. What if we allow ourselves to be sidetracked to the point that we focus all of our attention on the little irritations at the expense of life's major concerns.

Your husband loves you and your family with a passion, others who are trying unsuccessfully to get his attention are fleas. Are they worth your effort?

You are trying to get a job and to move up in life, but someone posts pesky comments about you on the internet; they are irritating; they are irritating like fleas. Should you respond to a flea?

Fleas are everywhere; its hard to avoid them. Everywhere Jesus went there were those around him trying to take a bite out of him. He often ignored them and when he did address them, spent little time or effort on them. They were never the focus of the day, week or life.

Why doesn't God remove the fleas? Why doesn't he simply protect believers from these pesky irritations? That's the same question that Paul asked three times about removing a "thorn" in his flesh. God's answer was not to remove the thorn, but to give him grace sufficient to deal with the issue.

As Christians, we strive to keep our lives focused on kingdom building. We are fully aware that we will face many distractions along the way, but we are confident that God will give us sufficient grace to succeed.

Exposition

This text focuses on Saul's attempt to use the resources of Israel to destroy David, a man after God's own heart.

Saul was a national Israeli hero. Prior to becoming king he led a daring raid to rescue the Tablets of the Ten Commandments from the Philistines, who had captured them along with the Ark. After he had become king, in his short two-and-a-half-year reign, he freed the Jewish people of all their enemies except the Philistines.

Saul was charismatic and physically gifted, as well as extremely tall and handsome (I Samuel 9:2).

He was charitable and selfless. Tradition records that he gave his fortune away to poor people. He specialized in helping pay for the needs of poor brides-to-be. When he went to war he paid the soldiers out of his personal treasury, not public funds

Despite his strength Saul had a weakness. It was insecurity and jealousy to the point of paranoia. He saw traitors everywhere. When David killed Goliath the crowds sang, "Saul hath killed his thousands, but David his ten thousands," this made him jealous. He threw spears at David and finally declared him an outlaw. David was his trusted aide, confidante and a loyal son-in-law, yet he listened to slander about him, assumed the worst of motives by him and made him his blood-enemy. No matter how many times David reconciled with him, Saul's insecurity and paranoia returned and gnawed at him.

Saul became obsessed not with the true enemies of the Jewish people, but with David.

Even after he was anointed, David had no intention of overthrowing Saul and taking the throne prematurely. To the contrary, he had opportunities and good reasons to kill Saul (e.g. I Samuel 24). However, he did not do so because he was no threat to Saul.

The man who sacrificed everything for the Jewish people, and was so selfless, let his insecurities get in the way to such an extent that it endangered the entire people.

Dealing with Fleas

EXPECT FLEAS: There are many who go through life thinking they can avoid its frustrations. In reality, life is filled with thousands of frustrations. There are so many that it prompted the poet Paul Lawrence Dunbar to write:

A crust of bread and a corner to sleep in,
A minute to smile and an hour to weep in,
A pint of joy to a peck of trouble,
And never a laugh but the moans come double;
And that is life!

The question is not whether there will be fleas, but how do we deal with them? If you are trying to do good work, there will be detractors, yet we must continue. Everyone who sees what you do will not be impressed, but impressions will be made. We should expect a pint of joy and a peck of trouble and depend on God's grace for strength.

FOCUS ON THE OBJECTIVE NOT THE FLEAS: When Israel moved into the promised land they became distracted by presence of Philistines and the agricultural success of the Canaanite people. They were delayed in receiving their own promise because they spent too much time dealing the with their perceived enemies or trying to emulate them. They had a promise from God, but they were intimidated. Even today, there are many who cannot move forward to claim their promise because they are dealing with so many fleas that they never seem to get to their main focus. Before you can finish dealing with one flea size problem, another one pops up. In fact, on a daily basis you deal with so many issues that you have very little quality time for your family, the service you promised God or the spiritual life that you need.

These issues can become so cumbersome that instead of moving closer to God, the promise seems to move farther away. Sometimes, the issues that seem so important to us actually become dead weights that hold us back. Hebrews 12:1 suggests that we should turn aside from issues that are weighing us down. It says, Lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us.

When we learn to focus on the main thing and keep it the main thing, then the presence of fleas may irritate us, but will not stop our forward progress.

GIVE THANKS FOR THE FLEAS: It is tempting to complain about the fleas in your life, but scripture teaches us that all things work to the good for us, even the fleas. When we are frustrated by life's fleas we are tempted to complain, but the Holy Spirit reminds us that it is all good.

In World War II the Germans persecuted Jews. Corrie Ten boom and her sister hid Jews in Holland and were caught by the Nazis. They were jailed in a concentration camp that was built for 400 but occupied by 1400. Corrie hid a bible in her barracks and read 1 Thessalonians 5:18 "In everything give thanks" almost daily. Her barracks was infested with thousands of fleas. It was almost unbearable. Yet, she thanked God for the fleas, the ever present symbol of her torment. Close to the end of the war she was released all of the other women were executed. Two miraculous things happened: She was released because of a clerical mistake and secondly she would have instantly been executed if her bible had been found, but guards refused to go in her cell because of...the fleas.

Don't spend time fighting the fleas, celebrate them! Thank God for them! Romans 8:28 says, "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose."

Do your best

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must become obsessed with the fleas in your life, but become obsessed with doing your best and God will take care of the rest.

Life will not be an easy walk, so don't become obsessed at how tough it is.

Life will not be without its cloudy days, so don't become obsessed with how much rain falls.

Life won't give up anything but thank God for Grace, because through His grace we are able to see our way.

Life gives us a litany of hard times, but God's Grace gives us hope and inspiration.

Life gives us frustration, but the grace of God, give us the determination to say, "I believe I'll run on and see what the end's going to be."

Life gives us a platter full of failure, but the Grace of God gives us a second chance.

Life gives us a few helpings of defeat, but the Grace of God offers us a complete victory! That's why the saint sings, "Victory is mine. Victory is mine. I told Satan to get thee behind, victory today is mine."

Life hits us weekly with moans and groans, but the Grace of God offers us happiness and joy.

When you look around and see fleas in your life, don't become obsessed with them, praise God and step into his grace and favor

When you sing to the Lord, don't just praise him for one experience, but we praise him for the entire experience. Praise him for the fleas!

Don't just thank him for the mountain top experiences, but sing a new song that thanks him for the valleys as well.

Sing a new song that thanks him for the sunshine and thanks him for the rain!

Sing a new song that thanks him for the good times and thanks him for the bad times too!

Sing a new song that thanks him for the accomplishments we've made, but also sing a song that thanks him for the lesson learned from failures and setbacks!

Our new song should tell our story.

It ought to tell how he picked us up and turned us around!

It ought to tell how he planted our feet on solid ground!

It ought to tell how he gave us a new walk and a new talk!

It ought to tell how he gave us a new song to sing!

We sing because life never offered us a chance at salvation, but thank God for the blood of Jesus!

We sing because life never offered us a chance start over again, but the Blood of Jesus purges our sin and gives us a new song to sing.

"I've been washed in the blood of the crucified lamb!"

We ought to sing about Jesus, Mary's baby!

Who died on Calvary but Early Sunday morning arose up from the grave!

Life knocked me down, but I'm so glad that Jesus lifted me and has given me salvation on a silver platter.

No. 9653-Inspiration

Your arms are too short to box with God

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 17, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "And now I say unto you, Refrain from these men, and let them alone: for if this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to nought: But if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it; lest haply ye be found even to fight against God." Acts 5:38-39

Introduction

Have you ever watched a short man try to fight a tall man? It's a humorous picture no doubt. The short man, even if he is strong and powerful has a difficult time if he is trying to fight a more powerful fighter who also happens to have a greater height and reach. The result in these situations is that the shorter man, usually, takes a great beating.

During the series of bouts between the late "Smoking" Joe Frazier and Muhammad Ali, Smoking Joe always came out bobbing and weaving. He was a powerful man with strong legs and arms. He could also take a punch. Ali was strong, skillful and tall with long powerful arms. During their fights, Ali often pounded away at Frazier's head and brutalized his face. In one of their three matches, Frazier won. He lost two, his arms were just too short to box with Ali, who seemed to "float like a butterfly and sting like a bee."

In the fight world there have been many short champions like Iron Mike Tyson, but they often suffered bruising defeats by tall opponents with long arms. When they won, it was because they had more power and strength and could muscle their way to victory.

If an all-powerful God has made a decision, who loses when we try to challenge his decisions? Who wins if we try to box with God? When something is of God, it is backed by the power of heaven. If you fight against heaven who loses in the end?

Robert Leroe noted this truth in the stage play, "Your Arms are Too Short to Box With God. " It contains a straightforward message that "God is God, and we are not."

God may permit what He hates, in our lives to build our faith, says Leroe. Faith is strengthened by hard times, not by times of comfort and ease.

As we struggle with life, we may even get angry with God, yet we realize how futile it is to wrestle with some of the inexplicable issues of life.

C.S. Lewis observed, "To argue with God is to argue with the very power that makes it possible to argue at all." We eventually stop boxing and accept…maybe even learn from our pain…maybe even go on to comfort and encourage others. God's working on us—let's not fight Him. "No one can contend with one who is stronger than he."

As Christians, we should submit ourselves to the will of God, he is God and we are his servants. He leads, we follow. His will is our command.

Exposition

This text focuses on the words of Gamaliel as he urges members of Sanhedrin council not to fight against God.

The Sanhedrin was the supreme court of the Jewish community. One of its great leaders was Gamaliel, who was regarded as a master teacher in the synagogue. When Peter and the Apostles began preaching about Jesus, there was considerable concern among the Sanhedrin members. Some members of the Sanhedrin believed that the Messiah would be sent from heaven to deliver the people; others did not. Peter and the Christians were claiming that Jesus was the one promised by God. His miracles among the people and his resurrection from the dead were proof, he said.

The Sanhedrin banned Peter from preaching about Jesus; the penalty would be death. Peter and the Apostles preached anyway and were hauled before the Sanhedrin court to face judgment.

Just before the sentence was passed Gamaliel rose to speak on behalf of the Christians. He urged the members of the Sanhedrin to be patient. They had witnessed other movements flareup only to fizzle later. He reminded them of religious revolts that were led by Theudas and Judas of Galilee. Both of them died quickly after the deaths of their leaders.

Gamaliel's advice to the Sanhedrin was that they should "Refrain from these men, and let them alone: for if this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to nought: But if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it; lest haply ye be found even to fight against God."

Gamaliel's appeal made sense. If God is in the Christian movement, it will flourish. If God is not in it, it will flare up for a while, but it will die.

The Apostles were set free because not a single man on the Sanhedrin wanted to fight against God.

Struggling Against God

There are certain truths we must consider about struggling with God:

THOSE WHO OPPOSE GOD ALWAYS LOSE: When God has ordered a thing to be, those who resist spend their lives in futility. The Prophet Jonah was told to preach to the people of Ninevah; he chose to go in a different direction. All sorts of evil befell him until he complied with God's will. He was thrown overboard on a ship, swallowed by a whale and once in Nineveh saw his shade hut eaten by worms; only then did he understand that his arms were too short to box with God. Saul of Tarsus went to prosecute Christians, fighting against the church. On the Damascus Road he was confronted by Jesus himself. Acts 9:4 says, "And he fell to the earth, and heard a voice saying unto him, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?"

If God has given believers a directive, mission or a command and we choose to ignore his command, we put ourselves in the position of fighting against him. We do not possess the power or sustained will to fight against someone who controls the winds and waves. Fighting against God is a losing battle; God always wins and the contenders always lose. In Jeremiah 2:29 God asks the question, "Why do you contend with me? You have all transgressed against me, declares the Lord."

Those who do not attend worship find fault in the pastor, deacons, members and the church itself. There are some who find fault in everyone and everything except themselves. Job 40:2 asks an important question and gives an answer, "Shall a faultfinder contend with the Almighty? He who argues with God, let him answer it."

If we choose to get into the ring with God, we may appear to win a round or two, but in the end we will lose.

WE SHOULD STRIVE TO PLEASE GOD: Rather than fight against God, we should strive to please him in every aspect of our lives. When God is not pleased with our actions, he withdraws his favor and power. This is what Gamaliel said to the Sanhedrin. If the power of God drives an idea, movement or decision he will push it into being. Ordinary men do not have God's power; it cannot happen without him. Personally, we can apply this to our own lives. What course have we taken recently? Is it in line with the will of God? If not, can we make it work without him? Is our marriage or relationship in line with God's will? Is our life direction on course?

When our actions fail to please God, he withdraws his favor and peace. The peace of God comes with his warm embrace. When we knowingly decide to contend with God, he removes his peace from us. Psalm 95:11 says, "Unto whom I sware in my wrath that they should not enter into my rest." It means those who choose to get in the ring with God, anger him and they will have no peace because he will punch them out in every round by taking away their peace. Round 1: Peace at home. Round 2: Peace at school and workplace. Round 3. Peace in our personal lives. Round 4: Peace in finances. Round 5: Peace in our health.

It is futile to try to fight with God.

Every believer knows the futility of trying to succeed without God.

The songwriter put it this way, Without God I can do nothing. Without God, I'd surely fail. Without God, my life would be drifting. Like a ship without a sail.

RATHER THAN FIGHT GOD TRY OBEYING GOD: When Peter and the Apostles stood before the Sanhedrin they were challenged to stop preaching about Jesus. They faced two commands: One from the Sanhedrin Council and the other from God himself. When given the choice Acts 5:29 says, "Then Peter and the other apostles answered and said, We ought to obey God rather than men." Their response gives direction to believers today. We must not fight against God, but simply follow his will for our lives.

That brings to mind the country boy who was told by his grandmother to walk up the road a piece and get her a box of Bitter Garrett Snuff, with two bits. It was a long walk to the country store and Grandma's box of snuff was running low. She gave the boy a stern warning, You get that snuff boy, you hear? Don't you come home empty handed! The boy made the long walk to the country store but was filled with fear when the storekeeper told him that he had sold the last box a few minutes earlier. What am I going to do? He thought. Grandma would be furious. Remembering her words, Don't come home empty handed! He walked five miles to a country store down by the creek. However, they were out too. With nowhere else to go, the youth walked home trembling and shaking. Just before he reached his grandmother's porch at sundown, he walked over to the hedges and pulled a handful of hedge limbs and trimmed them. When he told his grandma there was no snuff, she was furious. Before she could say another word, he pulled out a handful of hedge limbs and gave it to her? What is this? She asked. Well, you told me not to come back empty handed and I could not find your snuff. So, before you tell me to go and get you a switch I bought you a hand full! The grandma was so tickled she said, I ain't gon' whip you this time, at least you didn't come back empty-handed!

God knows when we are trying our best to obey his will. He sees us every day and is pleased when we are putting our best foot forward; even if we come up short. Don't fight God, follow him and be blessed.

Stand Ready to Worship Him

Finally, brothers and sisters we must consider that while there are many who choose to box with God, we must stand ready to bow before him and obey his will.

The world has its own definition of God that shakes a fist in his face, but we who know him best know that he is not begging us for a fight, he wants to provide for us and love us every day. We don't argue with his plans for us, we get angry with ourselves for being so weak that we often drift away.

We cannot argue with those who want to box with God; they must stand in that ring all by themselves!

Today there are many who make proud claims against God, but we as believers choose to stand by the God who has shown himself to be real.

We cannot argue with those who believe faithfully in the teachings of the Buddha, we simply bow to the one who answers us when we pray.

We cannot argue with the dialogues of Socrates with probing questions about life, we will hang our hope on the one who came to give us life and give it more abundantly.

We cannot debate with the lofty teachings of Seneca and its moral proverbs and ethics, we will faithfully follow the one gave us gave us one powerful proverb to live by, "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart and lean not unto thine own understanding."

We cannot stand toe to toe with those who claim God will make them prosperous and keep them healthy, we trust that the God we serve is able to keep us from falling and will shower favor on us for our faithfulness.

We cannot venture to argue with those who claim there is no God, We can only ask the questions:" If God is dead, what makes the flowers bloom, what makes summer come in June? If God is Dead who is it that mends a broken heart? If God is dead who keeps night and day apart"

There are many who say, I don't need to obey God.

There are many who say, I don't need to go to church or study my bible!

There are many who say, I don't need to pray or live a life by biblical rules!!

They say they built their own lives by their own labor and constructed it with their own tools!

Such men and women have set themselves in a contest with the almighty, testing their will against the powers of heaven.

All we can say to anyone who lives along these lines is, "Your arms are too short to box with God."

God has long arms, but he does not want to beat us down, he wants to reach out for us when we sinking low

That's what Peter learned when he was walking on the water and began to sink. He cried out, "Lord Save me" and Jesus reach out and took his hand and lifted him up. That's what the songwriter meant when he wrote, "I was sinking deep in sin, far from the peaceful shore, very deeply stained within, sinking to rise no more, but the master of the sea heard my despairing cry and from the waters lifted me, now safe am I. Love Lifted me! Love Lifted me! When nothing else could help, love lifted me!

God has strong hands, but he does not want to deliver knockout punches, he wants to use his strength to show us mercy.

That's why Psalm 136:12 says, "With a strong hand and with a stretched out arm: for his mercy endureth forever."

It's the strong hand of the Lord that:

—Defeats enemies who try to destroy us!

—Snatches us out of the chilling hands of sickness and restores our health!

—Keeps back the waters of destruction when all others are drowning in despair!

—Blazes trails for us through the wilderness of despair!

—Leads us out of temptation and delivers us from evil!

—That holds our hand as we face the difficulties of each day!

That's why the old warriors sang, "Lord hold my hand, while I run this race! I don't want to run this race alone!"

God doesn't want to put a choke hold on us and take away our breath, he wants to breathe into us: the spirit of faith; a spirit of hope and spirit of love!

That's why the songwriter wrote, "Spirit of the living God, fall fresh on me. Spirit of the living God fall fresh on me. Make me, break me, mold me, fill me! Spirit of the living God fall fresh on me!"

My arms are too short to box with God!

Instead of raising my hand to fight with him, I'd raise holy hands to praise him!

Praise him for his grace supplies my:

-Soul with salvation

-Heart with joy

-Mind with peace

-Hands with tenderness

-Feet with Strength
-Eyes with compassion
I want to raise my hand and say, “Father I stretch my hand to thee, no other help I know. If thou withdraw thyself from me, whither shalt I go!”
I want to lift up my hands not to box with him, but to thank him!
I want to thank him for saving my soul!
I want to thank him for lifting me up every time I fell down!
I want to thank him bearing an old rugged cross for me!
I don’t want to fight with God because he fought for me!
He died out on Calvary!
He was buried in a borrowed tomb, for me!
But early Sunday morning, he arose from the dead with all Power in his hands!

No. 9654-Love

It's not Back Scratching; It's love!

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 24, 2014

SCRIPTURE:"For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John 3:16 "We love him, because he first loved us." 1John 4:19

Introduction

Have you ever heard the statement, "I scratch your back, you scratch mine?" It generally means I do you a favor, and you return the favor at some time in the future. Back scratching is a common practice in today's society. In fact, anyone who does something for someone expects them to return for what it's called the payback and feels obligated to return the favor because at some point earlier they had their back scratched.

Suppose you scratch, but the person whose back you scratch won't scratch back? Suppose you notice that they will never be able to scratch back? Will you still scratch their back?

What if the person whose back you scratch has no fingers or hands or any way to return the favor? Would you still be just as excited about scratching his back? Suppose the person flat out refuses to scratch your back?

In Luke 14:13-14, Jesus gives us an example of how God loves and how we should love. He told his disciples that when they had feasts or social gatherings,they selected guests that they believe would, in some way, benefit them in the future. This benefit would come either by a returned invitation or giving you a favor. He suggested that we should invite people because we love people: the poor, the needy, the crippled and even those with no political connections, social affiliations or ways to pay us back. He said they can't pay us back; for these invitations, but we will be rewarded in heaven. He put it this way in Luke 14:14, "And thou shalt be blessed; for they cannot recompense thee: for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just." Jesus says we're blessed when we help people who cannot return the favor. The word used in the verse is recompense, but it means payback. It does not mean that you should not do things for people can pay back, but it does mean you get a greater blessing to happen those who cannot.

So if we loan money to those who can pay us back, there's a blessing, but there's a greater blessing for helping someone who we know possibly may not pay back the favor. It's a good thing to share a meal with someone who can invite you back to lunch, but it's an even greater blessing to share a meal with someone who has no meal to offer you in return.

The blessing that we get comes from God, who will pay us all in his own time and way.

The whole idea explains how God's love works. He does things for us, even though we can never pay him back. In fact, he does things for us even though there are times when we don't even try to pay him back.

God's love is AGAPE. It is unconditional love that goes beyond mere mutual respect and courtesy or returning his favor. When the world snubbed its nose at God and disobeyed his commandments and precepts, God's response was to love the world anyway. The world cursed God, and he made the sun rise every day anyway! The world ignored him, but he put food on their tables every day! The world rejected God, but he continued to shower blessings upon them daily! There is no doubt God was angry with the world. Once he became so angry that he flooded the earth with water. But his overall response to the world has been to love the world.

As Christians, our goal is to love God for who he is, not only for what he has done! We love him because of his majesty, excellence, power and compassion AND we love him because he also showed his love for us personally.

Exposition

This text focuses on John's explanation of love from his Gospel account and his first epistle; that combined explain the nature of God's love.

In John 3 John says God loved the world so much that He gave His only begotten Son. It was an explanation of the nature of the Agape Love of God that is unconditional and does not require reciprocity. In essence, God shows a love for the world that does not depend upon the world showing the same love to him. He scratched the world's back even if the world didn't or couldn't return the favor.

In his epistle John makes it clear the God displays perfect love. Perfect love is unconditional, all-inclusive and expensive. John lays out some specifics about loving God. The specifics include various reasons why we should love God. He encourages believers to love each other as God has loved us; that is without expectation of a recompense for our acts of love and charity.

In verse 17 John, encourages believers to love God with a perfect love that is unconditional. In verse 19, John expresses a reason we love God is because of his excellent character displayed when he decided to send His only begotten Son to die for our sins. Verse 19 seems to imply that the only reason that we should love God is because He first loved us. However, in its full context it implies that the perfect love of God shows his excellence and deserves our respect, but in no way are we loving him in proportion to the way he loves us.

The text points out that if we want to respond to the love God has shown us we cannot do it by scratching his back but we can do it by scratching our neighbors back without thought of getting a return. We can do nothing for God because he is all powerful and has everything. He needs nothing from us. However, we can show the love of God by extending charity to our neighbors.

He encourages us not to have an attitude of back scratching, even when it comes to loving him, but to do it because....

Because, Because, Because

John 14: 7-21 gives us a reason to love God and the way to show our love to God. Significant in that verse is the word "Because." It explains why we love God, but it is much more than just because he loved us.

In the movie, "The wonderful wizard of Oz" Dorothy, the Tin Man, Scarecrow and the Lion journey to see the wizard. Enroute they sing these words, "We're off to see the wizard, The Wonderful Wizard of Oz We hear he is a whiz of a wiz, if ever a wiz there was If ever, oh ever a wiz there was, The Wizard of Oz is one because Because, because, because, because, because; because of the wonderful things he does..."

Those who love Jesus love him because, because, because, because....

HE FIRST LOVED US: It is true that we love Jesus because he first loved us, but that is not the only reason. If that were the only reason, it would imply that we only love him in proportion to how he scratches our back. If, for some reason, we ever felt that he did not love us then, we would not love him. If we love God in a back scratching way; then we would stop loving him, if he does not answer our prayers exactly as we request them.

We love him because he gave himself as a sacrifice for our sins.

We love him because he has given us the hope of eternal life, but we also love him because, because, because...

HE IS OMNIPOTENT: We love him because he has all power in his hands, Yand he uses that power to fulfill his will in the world. Because he is all powerful, there is no problem we have that he is not able to solve. There is no burden we have that he cannot help us carry. There is no situation we might face that is byond his ability to handle. Just the knowledge that he is able gives us peace. We love him because, because, because, because...

HE IS OMNIPRESENT: We love Jesus because no matter where we go he can go with us. From coast to coast or even into outer space he is there. Psalm 139:7-10 says, "Whither shall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence? If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there: if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there. If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea; Even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me." We love him because he never leaves us alone. In our despair, he is there. In our failure, he is there. In our success, he is there. We love him because there is never a time that we need him that he is not near. We love him because, because, because, because....

HE IS OMNISCIENT: We love Jesus because no matter how troubling our problems he knows. He knows everything about us. That's why the old slaves sang, "Nobody knows the trouble I've seen. Nobody knows but Jesus. Nobody knows that trouble I see, Glory Hallelujah!" We know that because Psalm 139: 1-2 says, "O Lord, thou hast searched me, and known me. Thou knowest my downsitting and mine uprising, thou understandest my thought afar off." We love Jesus because he knows our limits, and he knows just how much we can bear.

The wonderful Grace

Finally, we acknowledge that we love Jesus because, because, because, of the wonderful things he does.

It's not the wonderful things he does for us alone, but the wonderful things he does period. If we only loved him because of the wonderful things he does for us, that would be back scratching, but we love him with the same love that a loving parent has for a child, even if they don't love back.

We love him because of the wonderful things he does for the world

These are the wonderful things that the songwriter had in mind when he wrote, "

Wonderful the matchless grace of Jesus,
Deeper than the mighty rolling sea;
Wonderful grace, all sufficient for me, for even me.
Broader than the scope of my transgressions,
Greater far than all my sin and shame,
O magnify the precious Name of Jesus.
Praise His Name!

We love him because he has lifted us despite our unworthiness.

We love him because:

Despite our imperfections, he lifts us up in the eyes of God.

Despite our flaws and failures, he helps us achieve our maximum.

Despite our idiosyncrasies, he still blesses us, according to his purpose.

He loves us unconditionally and with only one purpose: to bring us to the altar as the spotless bride of Christ.

This is the kind of love that we sing about when we say, "Yes, Jesus loves me."

We love him because, because, because, because..

He has loved us with a love that is:

—higher than the heavens
—deeper than the oceans
—lovelier than the sunsets
—sweeter than the honeycomb —stronger than the wind

—fresher than the morning dew
We love him because, because, because He has loved us with a love that cannot be:
—measured for it is immeasurable
—described for it is indescribable
—evaluated for it is invaluable
—comprehended for it is incomprehensible
—explained for it is unexplainable
Because, because, because, because of the wonderful things he does:
—He gives us strength in our weakest hour!
—He gives us food when we are hungry
—He gives us healing when we are sick!
—He gives us hope when all is lost!
We love because, because, because, because
One day he went to Calvary and died for our sins!
We love him because, because, because, because...
Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

No. 9655-Grandparents

Bearing Fruit in old age

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

September 6, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "The righteous shall flourish like the palm tree : he shall grow like a cedar in Lebanon .Those that be planted in the house of the LORD shall flourish in the courts of our God . They shall still bring forth fruit in old age ; they shall be fat and flourishing ; To whew that the LORD is upright : he is my rock , and there is no unrighteousness in him. Psalm 92:12-15; "also when I am old and gray headed, O God, forsake me not; until I have shewed thy strength unto[this] generation,[and] thy power to everyone[that] is to come. Psalms 71:18

Introduction

Did you know that there is a palm tree in Los Angeles, at the Exposition Center, that is over 150 years old and is still bearing fruit? Palm trees bear a wide variety of fruit, live and long time and still manage to bear fruit through it all.

It is no wonder then that the bible compares grandparents to palm trees. There are many similarities between the two.

In many ways our grandparents are like palm trees in our lives. The older they become the taller they become in our hearts because they are still bearing fruit.

Many of us have been the recipients of a wealth of wisdom, guidance, and love from our grandparents. Some have even benefitted from resources provided from them through inheritances left for them by grandparents who cared.

The challenge for every grandparent today is to make sure that their grandchildren will never be able to say, "I never knew my grandparents."

How much they know about your life, beliefs, hopes and dreams may shape their futures.

In 1996 Erma Bombeck, an American humorist wrote about the images that many grandparents have left for their grandchildren to remember. Bombeck said:

Grandparents can always be counted upon to buy anything you're selling from all-purpose greeting cards to peanut brittle, from flower seeds to cookies, from transparent tape to ten chances on a pony.

A grandparent buys you gifts your mother says you don't need.

A grandparent pretends he does not know who you are on Halloween.

A grandparent will put a sweater on you when she is cold, feed you when she is hungry and put you to bed when she is tired.

A grandparent is the only baby-sitter your parents didn't have to pay.

A grandparent will believe you can read even when you have the book upside down.

These are the images that many have of their grandparents. They are like tall palm trees that get taller as years go by and they still bear fruit.

The challenge to pass from one generation to the next the legacy of God, family and country represents the sum total of every grandparent's charge which is to leave an inspiring legacy that will live in the hearts of your grandchildren.

Grandparents should not consider their work done until they are satisfied that their grandchildren are on the right track or at least know their way to the right track. Until that happens there is still much work to be done.

As Christians, we should praise God for Godly grandparents because they stand tall in our lives and continue to bear fruit.

Exposition

This text focuses on glories of senior living and grand parenting.
David writes that saints in old age shall flourish and reap the benefits of a life well lived, but yet bear fruit.

He compares the senior life to that of a palm tree. In Psalm 1 he noted that the blessed man is the one who delights and meditates in Godâ•™s Word, and is like a tree planted by streams of water, always prospering spiritually. Now, even in old age, that principle remains true. The elderly saint grows to flourish like the palm tree and stand strong like a cedar tree of Lebanon, which is a picture of strength, majesty, and a pleasing aroma!

The faithful are promised that they will bear fruit in old age.

It will be the grandparents who will declare in Psalm 92:15, "The LORD is upright; he is my Rock, and there is no wickedness in him.

Matthew Henry comments: "The last days of the saints are sometimes their best days, and their last work is their best work.•

The Lord enables the senior saint to have spiritual stamina, even when their physical and mental stamina are declining.

Deuteronomy 34:7 says, "Moses was 120 years old when he died, yet his eyes were not weak nor his strength gone.

Psalm 71:18 "Even when I am old and gray, do not forsake me, O God, till I declare your power to the next generation, your might to all who are to come.

David asked God not to abandon him in his old age but to give him to strength to show this generation the power of God and to prepare even the coming generation to know of God's greatness.

Thses texts make it clear that the elders of every generation have no time to lay back and wait their end, but they are challenged to teach their children and grandchildren about the goodness of God.

Their grandchildren are the fruit they bear in their old age.

Fruit Grandparents Must Bear

David said, "The righteous shall flourish like the palm tree." It is an illustration similar to the one in Psalm 1 in which believers were compared to a tree planted by the rivers of water that bringeth forth its fruit in its season. What are some of the characteristics of palm trees that are like our grandparents?

PALM TREES BEAR DIFFERENT FRUITS: Palm trees, unlike other trees bear different kinds of fruits. One palm tree bears coconuts, but another pine tree produces dates and still others produce fine oils. The same is true with grand parents. It seems at times that grandparents know everything, have done everything and been everywhere. Grandpa at times seems to be a Jack of all trades and is knowledgeable about all matters of life, especially those that deal with understanding people. This accumulated wisdom is used to insure that grandchildren grin to be palm trees themselves rather than weeds.

Weeds are not wanted while palms are prized and cared for. Palms are watered, regularly exposed to the sun and pruned. No one cares about weeds. No one waters them,they find their own sun. They are never pruned . They grow wild.

Like prized plants, every grandparent wants his/her children watered in the word exposed to the SON.

Grandparents want fruit not weeds.

PALM TREES BEND AND SELDOM BREAK: Although palm trees are located in tropical areas that are frequented by storms and hurricanes; they still remain after the storm is over. After hurricanes buildings are shattered and tall trees are broken like tooth picks, but the palms still stand, because they bend with the wind. Grandparents have learned how to submit themselves to the will of God. In difficult times they have also learned how to depend on him. They probably heard the words to the old song, "I learned how to lean and depend on Jesus; and I found out, he will provide." Those who trust in the Lord are seldom broken by storms.

PALM TREES BREAK BANDS: In the rural areas people often tied pieces of wire around trees to support a fence or other object. As time passed the tree grew and the band cut into the trunk. That does not happen with palm trees. Palms break the bands that bind them. Godly Grandparents seemed to have conquered the chains and bands the bind them. Fears, frustrations and troubles are chains and bands around our lives, but the faithful have learned that the power of God can "break every chain." It seems that grandparents have internalized the scripture that says, "Greater is he that is within us than he that is in the world." We are "more than conquerors" through Christ Jesus.

PALM TREES DON'T BRUISE EASILY : While most trees bruise easily if their bark is breached, the Palm Tree is just the opposite. The ordinary tree is vulnerable because a large part of its life force is on the outside, but the Palm Tree's life force if from the inside. How is it that our grandparents have been able to sustain so much abuse over the years, but still stand strong. It's because their power is from their strong spiritual life that is directed toward God. They feel the pain and agonies of life, but they are not deterred by them. That's why the old warriors sang, "I've been buked; I've been scorned. I've been talked about sure as you're born, but at the cross I'm going to bow and going on to heaven, anyhow."

PALM TREES CAN'T BE GRAFTED: While other trees can be grated to produce something different, it's not so with palm trees. Horticulturists can take the root stock of many trees and mixed them with others and get something new. A nectarine is a cross between a peach and a plum. A tangelo is a cross between a tangerine and a grapefruit. Those who try to graft palms kill them. Grandparents are able to bear fruit because they are not easily drawn into the world. New trends that put distance between themselves and God are rejected. Grandparents know that when they bow to the world they invite sin and injure their capacity to produce fruit. They want to avoid the fires of hell and thereby adopt another trait of palm trees: Palm trees don't burn and are never used for firewood.

PALM TREES STAY GREEN AND PRODUCE FRUIT: Palm trees are evergreens; that means they stay green. Additionally, palm trees not only produce fruit, but the older the tree the sweeter the fruit. Is that not true with the godly grandparent? That's the promise of God "They shall produce fruit in old age." The fruit of grandparents is in their grandchildren, in many ways they will reflect their faith, teachings and faith. The fact that their faith stays in tact is related to the ability of the palm tree to stay green despite the season. Our grandparents have taught us to keep our hand in God's hand and he will provide.

Hold on and keep trusting God

Finally, brothers and sisters, grandparents themselves must hold on and keep trusting in the Lord.

While grandparents show their families the strength and power of God, they themselves must keep trusting in God.

As physical health fails from time to time, eye sights dim and steps slow; they must continue to trust in God and remember that God is our refuge and our strong place to hide in storms.

God proved himself to be a refuge or place of shelter in times of storm.

The times may have changed but God is still on the throne.

We trust in the Lord because those who trust him are rewarded with answered prayers, and heavenly glory!

We are not by ourselves. Biblical grandparents trusted in the Lord.

—Noah trusted the Lord and He brought him through the great flood!

—Abraham trusted the Lord and He showed him the ram in the bush!

—Ruth trusted the Lord and she found happiness while gleaning fields!

—Moses trusted the Lord and he lead Israel out of bondage

—Daniel trusted the Lord and He protected him in the Lion's Den

—Job declared that though his health was slipping away, his children were gone and his wealth was lost that he would still trust the Lord.

I hear him across the centuries declaring, "Yea though he slay me, yet will I trust Him."

In closing, there were two boys talking about having to wear glasses to help their vision. Wouldn't you hate to wear glasses all the time? asked a small boy of his playmate.

No-o-o, the other boy answered slowly, not if I had the kind grandma wears. She sees how to fix a lot of things, and she sees lots of nice things to do on rainy days, and she sees when folks are tired and sorry, and what will make them feel better, and she always sees what you meant to do even if you haven't got things just right.
I asked her one day how she could see that way all the time, and she said it was the way she learned to look at things as she grew older.

So it must be her glasses.

It wasn't the glasses. Grandma had learned to trust in the Lord

I will trust in the Lord because if I am:

—Sad, the Lord will be my fountain of joy!

—At fault, the Lord will be stronghold of forgiveness!

—Weak, the Lord will be my pillar of strength

—Discouraged, the Lord will be my pool of inspiration!

—Defeated, the Lord will be my crown of victory!

—Darkness, the Lord will be my light!.

—Lonely, the Lord will be my friend

—Helpless, the Lord will be my help.

The Lord is my refuge and my strength a very pleasant help in a time of trouble!

No wonder the songwriter declares! "The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear!

I trust in God wherever I may be. Out on the land or on the raging sea. Though come what may, from day to day, my heavenly father watches over me!

Hold to his hand! God's unchanging hand!

The same hand that was nailed to an old rugged cross! Hold to his hand!

He died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning, he arose from the dead!

Hold to his hand, the Lord knows the way!

No. 9656-Inspiration

A Rock for all ages

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

September 14, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "That in the ages to come he might shew the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness toward us through Christ Jesus. For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God:" Ephesians 2:7-8

Introduction

What do you think of when you hear a reference to "The Rock?" Today, when we hear the word Rock different images come to mind depending on our perspective. Some hear the term Rock and think of a very Samoan wrestler who has also become a movie star known as The Rock.

Others hear the term Rock and think of Sylvester Stallone's about an Italian boxer known as Rocky Balboa.

Some think of Elvis Pressley singing a hit song a half century ago entitled, Jail House Rock.

Still others will remember the notorious California Prison officially named Alcatraz, but infamously called, The Rock.

The term Rock means different things to different people; but what does it mean to believers? What do believers think of when we hear the term Rock?

A man who had been battered by a string of unfortunate events decided to walk and pray. He walked along the shoreline of a large lake. He noticed a small break between the rocks and observed that a tiny plant had taken root there. The plant appeared to be absorbing the right amount of sunlight and water, and it was also getting something else: protection. No downpour or windstorm would ruffle its tender leaves.

When the man saw the little plant snuggled safely between the powerful boulders, it reminded him of the old hymn, "Rock of Ages, cleft for me, let me hide myself in Thee."

–In his distress, the man found inspiration that he was surrounded by the power of our God, who is the "Rock of Ages."

These are the words we think about when we encounter people with evil intentions—people characterized by pride, cruelty, and a lack of regard for God. When we are the target of someone's wrongdoing, we can remember the testimony of the psalmist in Psalm 94:22, "The Lord has been my defense, and my God the rock of my refuge"

As our rock, God is dependable and strong. As our refuge, He can provide safety until problems pass. The psalmist reminds us in Psalm 91:4: "Under His wings you shall take refuge." With God as our defender, we don't have to fear what others will do. We can trust that God will support us when trouble comes.

It is plain to every believer that the rock of our salvation is Jesus Christ our Lord.

As Christians, we know about the Rock but the Rock we know is not a television star. The Rock we know is the solid rock of Jesus Christ. We are confident and secure in our faith that he is a rock for all ages.

Exposition

In this text Paul wrote to the Ephesians about the generational reach of God's grace.

He notes that God loved the world so much that he gave us Jesus Christ. Through his kindness, Christ came and died for us and made us recipients of his grace. The word of hope in this text is that the grace he showed to the apostles or even to the Ephesians is not limited to their time, but extends to all those who would follow after. Ephesians 2:7 says, "That in the ages to come he might shew the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness toward us through Christ Jesus."

The phrase "in ages to come" refers specifically to the coming generations. The same grace that was shown in biblical times would be shown to all generations.

Christ is presented as one in whom believers can safely trust in any age from infancy to death, or in any period of time. It also reassures us that Christ may be trusted fully for every matter concerning this life or the next. Christ is able to sustain and support every person whether it be a little child or the mature man of business. Christ may be trusted in every situation, in every circumstance, and in any time of day or night.

This is the powerful hope that each believer shares that the same grace known by others before us will continue. The power of renewal when we have failed. The power of forgiveness when we have sinned. The power to start again when we have fallen flat on our faces and the power of the resurrection is promised to us as this life ends.

This grace comes through Jesus, who have proved himself to be a strong rock of security for all generations.

The Rock in our lives

The fact that Jesus is a rock for all ages is important. He is also a rock for all circumstances.

HE IS A ROCK FOR THE YOUNG: Often youth believe intense faith in God is something for their elders. They hear their parents pray and listen to their bible teachers tell them about God, but they don't believe that God actually listens to children. However, the word teaches us that Christ is extremely sensitive to the presence and concerns of children. In Matthew 19:14 he said, "…Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Children can talk to God for themselves and he will hear them. Roy Buck tells the story of a little boy who was tugging at a big rock and doing his best to lift it. He was grunting and pulling at it, but it didn't budge. His father came along and asked him if he was having any trouble. He said, “Yes, I am trying and trying and can’t move the rock.” The father said to him, “Well, son, are you using all available energy?” The boy replied, “Yes, Father, I think I am.” Then the dad looked at him and said, No, son, I don’t think you are, for you haven’t asked for my help.” Children can talk to God in Jesus’ name because he is a rock for all ages.

HE IS A ROCK FOR EVERY SITUATION: Paul told the Ephesians that in times to come Christ would “show the exceeding riches of his grace and kindness.” It is this kindness of God that has shown itself in so many situations that continue to give us hope. It also helps restore our faith in ourselves, especially when we have begun to see ourselves in the worst way. Regardless of our situation, we are reminded that Jesus is a rock for every situation.

In our journey, God has been our rock in a weary land.

In our journey, God has been our shelter in the time of storm.

In our journey, God has been our way out of no way.

In our journey, God has been our of bridge over troubling waters.

That’s why the songwriter says, “Jesus is a rock in a weary land, a weary land, a weary land; a shelter in a time of storm. Has he ever made a way when you didn’t have a dime? Has he ever stepped in just right on time? Has he ever picked you up when you were down? Has he ever placed your feet on solid ground? Then you know he is a rock in a weary land

HE IS A STRONG PRESENCE IN OUR TROUBLES: In our time of trouble all of our help seems to vanish? Friends don’t answer the phone and social contacts avoid us like the plague. Where are they when you need them? Our God never abandons us and is present even in our time of trouble. Psalm 46:1 says, “God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble.” The emphasis in this text is on the word “present.” That means “at the moment,” “right now.” The enemy troubles us in the present, but God assures us that if come to him the enemies power can be broken. The enemy comes to trouble your life and all that is important to you, but Christ comes to give it back and give it back better than it was before the enemy took it. John 10:10 says, “ The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly.” In the present, the devil may be causing all kinds of trouble in your life impacting your: marriage, finances, and career, but God promises us that He can give it back and give it back in a way that was better than we had before. He has revealed this assurance to us in his written word in Isaiah 54:17 “No weapon formed against us shall prosper!”

We have troubles today, but because of Christ, we have hope that troubles won’t last always because he is present in our time of trouble. He is a rock for all ages and situations.

Standing on the rock

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember that we have survived everything life has thrown at us only because we’ve been standing on the rock.

When believers stand on the rock, we supersede the mortal capacities of mere humans because we are being sustained by the power of God himself.

We have come this far by faith, standing on the rock. We have found that he his truly a rock for all ages.

When we were children we sang, "Yes Jesus loves me, for the bible tells me so." He answered our prayers and we learned that he is a rock for all ages.

When we left home and step into an unknown future, we cried, "Father I stretch my hands to thee, no other help I know." When he held our hands, we understood that he is a rock for all generations.

When we face the storms of life and they rocked us to and fro we cried out, "Master the tempest is raging," and he answered "Peace be still." That's when we knew he was a rock for all ages.

When we journeyed year after year into an unknown future, we cried out, "Guide me oh thou great Jehovah, pilgrim through this barren land. I am weak but thou art mighty, hold me in thou powerful hand." When he responded, "I will never leave thee alone," we remembered that he is a rock for all ages.

Who is this rock? He is different things to different people.

To the astronomer He is the Sun of Righteousness.

To the baker He is the Living Bread.

To the banker He is the Hidden Treasure.

To the biologist He is the essence of Life.

To the carpenter He is the Sure Foundation.

To the doctor He is the Great Physician.

To the educator He is the Great Teacher.

To the farmer He is the Sower and Lord of the Harvest.

To the florist He is the Lily of the Valley and the Rose of Sharon.

To the geologist He is the Rock of Ages.

To the horticulturist He is the True Vine.

To the judge He is the Righteous Judge.

To the juror He is the True Witness.

To the jeweler He is the Pearl of Great Price.

To the toiler He is the Giver of Rest.

To the Sinner He is the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world.

To the Christian, He is the Son of the Living God, the Savior, the Redeemer and Lord!

Who is this rock? One songwriter said, This rock is Jesus. Yes, he is the one. Be very sure your anchor holds and grips the Solid rock.

The church is standing on the solid rock of faith.

The church is holding on to the solid rock of hope.

No wonder the Songwriter wrote, My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus, blood and righteousness, I dare not trust the sweetest frame, but wholly lean of Jesus' name.

On Christ, who carried a cross for me up Calvary's hill.

On Christ, who let them drive nails into His hands.

On Christ, who died on Golgotha's hill.
On Christ, who arose after three days and nights.
On Christ, the solid rock I stand.
All other ground is sinking sand.

No. 9657-Inspiration

It ain't all about you

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

September 28, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "For by him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers: all things were created by him, and for him:And he is before all things, and by him all things consist. And he is the head of the body, the church: who is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead; that in all things he might have the preeminence." Colossians 1:16-18

Introduction

Have you ever met a person who believes the entire world around revolves around him? This is the person who believes that everything in the world and everybody in it should serve his purpose because he/she is the center of concern.

Generally, a person who takes this position uses the words "I, my, me and mine" more than "we, us, and ours." The psychiatrists call this narcissism. The idea that everything revolves around me.

If a narcissist walks into a room and sees two people talking on the other side of the room, she believes they must be talking about her, because what other subject would be of interest to anyone? The worth of a person is only calibrated in proportion to that person's worth to you. The deceased may have been a great person, but he wasn't great at all if he wasn't great for you.

In a relationship, this is the person who insists on his/her way. It's his TV channel the family will watch, and his choice of food for dinner. It's his choice of vacation time, too.

That's when one partner has to say to the other, "Baby I love you, but it's not all about you."

The narcissistic child says, "But I don't want to do that." "I don't want to get braces on my teeth." "I don't want to do my homework."

That's when someone has to remind that child that, "We love you, but it's not all about you."

The narcissistic employees say, "I don't want to come to work at that time." "I don't want to work on rainy days!" "I don't want to work on holidays!" "I don't want to work on that project."

That's when someone has to remind that employee, "You're important, but it's not all about you."

What about our relationship to God? Is it possible that there are believers that approach God with a narcissistic view?

These are the ones that tell God, "I want every day of my life to be filled with sunshine. I don't want any sickness or difficulties. When I pray, I want my prayers answered quickly and precisely. I want to keep all of the money I earn and donate a little as I am moved. I also want to be blessed continuously, even if I am negligent in my worship or service."

That's when God responds to us, "I love you, but it ain't all about you."

In reality, the world revolves around God. What we want in life as believers is only important as it relates to what God wants for us. Acts 17:28 says, "For in him we live, and move, and have our being.."

We would like the world to revolve us, but it does not. This is the FUBU world-"For us, by us." Somehow we want things to be "all about us", even the clothes we wear.

The world and everything in it belong to God. It's all about him and "all things were made by Him for Him." That means God's work in our lives should always be lifted up.

If He heals us, we should exalt Him and praise Him.

If He blesses us, we should lift up and acknowledge His name.

If He answers our prayers, we should be a witness to others of His goodness.

It's not about us, it's about Him!

As Christians, we are happy to know that God loves us and cares for us. We respond to his goodness with a spirit of gratitude because we know he didn't have to do it for us, but he did, and for that we give him our adoration and praise

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul' explanation of Christ's relationship to all things created and our relationship to him.

The truth is that Christ as God is the creator and by Him all things were created. In fact, all things were created by Him because he is the first and final one that holds all things together.

In relation to the universe he created, Christ is the centripetal force that pulls matter toward himself and he is the centrifugal that pulls bodies away. He is the center of gravity that holds things together, keeps us grounded, and keeps us from falling apart.

Christ is not only the one through whom all things came to be, but also the One by whom they continue to exist.

The Son's creation includes "all" things in heaven and on earth, visible and invisible. These indicate the entire universe, both material and immaterial. The hierarchy of angelic beings— thrones or powers or rulers or authorities anywhere in the universe. Everything revolves around him.

Verse 18 says, "In all things he has pre-eminence." That means in every situation, "What God wants or directs takes precedent over any other concerns."

If the world says, "Go left" and God says, "Go right," God's direction has preeminence!

If the world says, “It doesn’t matter” and God says, “It does matter,” What God says takes precedent!

What this text says plainly is that God is the creator and it’s what he wants that counts. We live to please him and serve him in every way. We are his offspring.

Three Signs

When human beings begin to view themselves as equal to God, they begin acting so by asserting their own will over His will and arrogating to themselves divine prerogatives. The importance of the individual truly has become the central organizing thread around which so much of the thinking and teaching of our time has clustered. There are three attitudes believers must avoid:

NOBODY TELLS ME WHAT TO DO: There are many in the world who believe that they live independent from God and do not need him for any purpose. They believe that they are capable of directing their own course without any interference, assistance or dictation from the almighty. The natural evolution of this view is that people in this context do not feel accountable to God for their actions. This is the attitude of the individual who considers himself supreme. In reality, everyone is accountable to something or someone. In the world of commerce, an employee is accountable to a supervisor. A supervisor is accountable to senior officials, and senior officials are accountable to the governing board. The governing board is accountable to the laws of the land. The laws of the land are accountable to the public. The person who says, “Nobody tells me what to do,” usually takes that same attitude about God. However, the bible shows us that all creation answers to God. By reason of creation, God has always had dominion over His creation. He directed Adam and Eve in their lives until they started to deviate. Whenever human beings have obeyed the Lord, whether as individuals or as nations, they have benefited greatly. On the other hand, disobedience to God has always brought troubles. The Christian belongs to God in a special sense, having been bought by Him at a price. We are obligated to live for God’s glory in both body and spirit. God does tell us what to do and we will be held accountable as to whether we do what he says or not.

TAKE IT OR LEAVE IT: There are many who approach God with a take it or leave it attitude. This is the attitude that God must accept me “Just as I am” and allow me to “stay as I am.” This view assumes that the most important person in the formula is me. If God wants me, he should be prepared to accept me as I am and don’t try to change me, just bless me when I need a blessing and leave me alone otherwise. It is true that God invites everyone to come “Just as I am,” but it is not his intention for us to stay the way we came. We came to him weakly, but he expects us to find strength. We came to him without faith, but he expects our faith to grow. We came to him wallowing in our sins, but expects us to put away sinful living. The changes we make align ourselves with His will, not our will. However, too many today assume the attitude that “God knew I like to smoke a little weed every now and then. He also knew I like to chases women. He shouldn't be trying to change me. I got to keep it real!" Those who turn their lives over to Christ testify that it is not about "me" anymore; it's about Christ. He now lives in them and they desire to do the right things and go in the right direct directions. Galatians 2:20 says, "I am crucified with Christ:nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me:and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me." The old warriors sang a song that says, "I came to Jesus as I was, weary, wounded and sad, but I found him a resting place and he has made me glad!"

I CAN GET TO HEAVEN WITHOUT CHURCH: There are many who have dismissed worship, service and study of God's word as an infringement upon their time. They contend that all they need to do is obey the law, believe in God and treat people right and that will be their ticket into heaven. They want the Frank Sinatra way (My Way!) My way is not alway God's way. God has ordered the saints to assemble regularly to promote the faith, promote brother love, worship, and to help others who are not as strong to find their way through life's troubles as they approach. Hebrews 10:23-25 says, "Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering; (for he is faithful that promised;) And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works:25 Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another:and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching." We may not want to assemble, but it ain't about you, it's about what God has ordered and what God expects of each of us. We are saved by faith. Simply coming to church does not guarantee us a seat in the kingdom, but a saved life that is obedient to the will of God will be rewarded. The word tells us "he that overcometh shall inherit all things,"

All Around Us

Finally, brothers and sisters, while we know that this life is not all about us, we also know that when we follow God's will, his glory will be all around us!

The direction we take in life is not all about us, but when we take a step for the Lord, his glory will be all around us!

When Paul wrote to the Colossians, he told them it's not about you, it's about the Lord!

Paul told the Philippians, "I count not myself to have apprehended, but this one thing I do"

Likewise we can say, "We don't think it's all about us, but there is one thing we know. It may not be about us, but when we do God's will, his glory is all around us!"

When we witness to the lost, it's not all about us, but the glory of the Lord is all around us!

When we serve the less fortunate, it's not all about us, but the glory of the Lord is all around us!

When we lift up the despondent, it's not all about us, but the glory of the Lord is all around us!

We have learned that when we live for His glory and not our own, God showers us with His favor. Because we glorify Him, when nobody else —Cares about us, the glory of the Lord surrounds us!

—Forgives us, the glory of the Lord erases all record of our failures.

—Accepts us, the glory of the Lord surrounds us and receives us with arms wide open.

—Wants us, the glory of the Lord surrounds us and accepts us as children of the king.

We are nothing without Christ because it is his glory that surrounds us.

It's not about us, but it is his glory that gives us the light to walk in the darkness of this world. Maybe that's what the songwriter had in mind when he said, "We'll walk in the light, beautiful light, come where the dewdrops of mercy are bright. Shine all around me by day and by night, Jesus the light of the world!"

It's not about us, but is his hand that guides us through this wilderness we call life. That's why the old warrior said, "Guide me oh thy great Jehovah, pilgrim through this barren land, I am weak but thou art mighty; hold me with thou powerful hand!

It's not about us and our ability to sing, teach or preach, but it is his power that draws men to the cross. I hear him say, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, I'll draw all men unto me.!

It's not all about us, but it's about the one who says: I am the way, the truth and the life!

It's not all about us, but it's about the one who says: I am the bread of life!

It's not all about us, but it's about the one who says: I am the lily of the valley and the bright and morning star!

It's not all about us, but it's about a God who loved the world so much that he gave his only begotten son!

It's not all about us, but it's about the one who died out on Calvary!

It's not all about us, but it's about the one who was buried in a borrowed tomb!

It's about the one who arose early Sunday morning!

It's not about us; it's about Jesus!

No. 9658-Revival

Living Saints among the Walking Dead

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 5, 2014

SCRIPTURE: And the leper in whom the plague is, his clothes shall be rent, and his head bare, and he shall put a covering upon his upper lip, and shall cry, Unclean, unclean. 46 All the days wherein the plague shall be in him he shall be defiled; he is unclean: he shall dwell alone; without the camp shall his habitation be. Leviticus 13:45-46; "And you hath he quickened, who were dead in trespasses and sins; 2 Wherein in time past ye walked according to the course of this world, according to the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience:"Ephesians 2:1-2

Introduction

Are you getting what you should get out of life or is there a disconnect somewhere? Is it possible that we are doing more and enjoying less, getting more and having less fun, eating more and never getting satisfied, traveling more, but really getting nowhere?

If we believe the advertisements, we are supposed to be happy when we get an education, land a job, wear a certain brand of clothing, living in a certain neighborhood, and own certain types of vehicles and gadgets? Will all of the women really want you if you drive a Ford 150? Can all of life's problems be solved if we make a 15-minute call to Geico? Do blondes really have more fun?

There are many people who spend their lives reaching for the advertised myth of the abundant life, only to find that even though they grab hold of life's brass ring they still don't feel truly alive!

Instead of walking in abundance many are like the walking dead. Have you ever seen that TV show or one of the other zombie movies? The basic idea behind them all is that during the apocalypse at the end of the world, there is some kind of virus that reanimates dead bodies – the living dead – and causes them to walk around looking for human brains to eat. The show follows Deputy Sheriff Rick Grimes and a small band of survivors who are trying to stay alive and discover the cause of the plague.

The zombies have only one purpose and that's to find human brains for dinner. They won't achieve anything, do anything important or accomplish anything of significance.

They are truly the walking dead.

For some reason Zombies fascinate the public. The TV show is top rated and has developed a cult following. There is drama, love, sex and the relentless struggle to either eat or avoid being eaten.

For many people, that describes their lives in the real world. It has spawned books and studies such as the one by Harvard psychiatrist Steven Schlozman called, "Zombie autopsies." There are Zombie fashions, books, movies and theories because we are fascinated with what may reflect who many of us really are: the walking dead.

In contrast to the walking dead are those who live the abundant life promised by the savior. Knowing Christ and living for him is the difference between really living or being a part of the walking dead!

As Christians, we are thankful to the savior for giving us the opportunity to live again. We walk in the light of a world brightened by the spirit of grace and love that only comes through knowing Jesus Christ for ourselves.

Exposition

This text focuses on the life of exile of those who were diagnosed with leprosy in biblical times.

Leprosy was a disease which was feared in biblical times. Some forms were contagious and others were not, but most were treated the same way; the leper was exiled from the village.

A person who was declared affected with the leprosy and was sentenced to live in the camp of the lepers, outside and away from the city. In case someone encountered a leper they had to give fair warning by tearing the clothes in the prescribed way, shaving their heads or wearing a moustache, or otherwise covering the upper lip.

In exile, the leper had no purpose. They lived everyday, but there was no hope for them in the general community. They would not be priests, leaders in the synagogue, enjoy the festivals and holy Sabbaths or participate in the sacrifices with others. For all purposes, a leper was a dead man who was still walking around with no purpose, but to live until he died.

Those who somehow overcame their sickness were examined by a special priest who would give them a certificate verifying that they were clean, giving them a chance to rejoin the community and live again.

Paul writing to the Ephesians had described the condition of saints before they were given new life through Christ. In Ephesians 2:1 he said believers were once "dead in trespasses and sins." Yet, he notes that were quickened or given a new lease on life through the blood of Jesus Christ. He said in Ephesians 2:3 that we were people who lived after and sought after the flesh and it was all that was on our mind. "Fulfilling the desires of the flesh and of the mind." However, in Ephesians 2:5 he notes that even though we were among the walking dead God snapped us back to give as a new life, through His son, Jesus Christ.

The walking dead, through Christ, have a way to become living saints, born again and ushered into the abundant life.

Really Living

Believers are unique because we have learned the art of living. What does that mean?

LIVING AND BREATHING ARE NOT SAME: What does it mean to really live? The simple answer is that to live is to breath; inhale and exhale. In the movie "Brave Heart" Mel Gibson's character, Wallace says, "Every man dies. Not every man really lives." That makes a difference between just breathing and living. God's original intent for mankind is that we might experience abundant living. In John 10:10 Jesus says, "I am come that ye may have life and have it abundantly." However, because of Adam and Eve's sin, we are all born with a sin nature that forces us to do what we don't want to and to do what know is wrong. Romans 7:16 says, "For that which I do I allow not: for what I would, that do I not; but what I hate, that do I." Does the alcoholic want to be an alcoholic? Does the molester or murder want to live that life? Do they wake up in the morning happy that they are molesters or murderers or child abuses or beat their wives? Probably not, but the continue because they are in bondage to sin chained to continue doing something they don't want to do.

Living a sinful life is not really living, despite how it appears. Those who live in a peaceful home that is filled with love are living, even though they don't have a house like that ones in the movies and commercials. Having a house and a home are not the same.

What the Christian life offers is the opportunity to really live. It's a chance to return from the exile of spiritual leprosy and begin to live life as God planned it from the beginning, according to his purpose. It's the chance to glean from every breath a meaningful exhale that brings fulfillment, peace and joy. That joy comes from knowing God for yourself.

THE LIVING AND THE DEAD DON'T WALK THE SAME: Have you noticed in the zombie movies that the zombies and the living never walked the same. Those who want to leave the zombie life must somehow get a new walk. Those who were cured of leprosy had to find a priest authorized to evaluate their condition and be certified to live once again in the community. Afterwards, they dropped the dropped the signs that identified them as lepers and no longer lived among the lepers. Those who want to really begin living must do something similar. There is only one way to truly live an abundant life and that is through Christ. Outside of Christ is the kingdom of the walking dead, much like that Leper's village. Those who know how to live are those in the kingdom. The only way to return to God is to be regenerated. Jesus told Nicodemus in John 3:3, "Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." To live an abundant life we must be willing to be born again. Just as the priest gave authorization for the leper to return, so does our life in Christ authorize us to begin a new life in the kingdom of God. It will also require us to drop the symbols of the life of the time when we walked with the dead. For some, it might mean changing our clothing. For others, it might mean, changing the places where we go to hangout out or even some of the dead people, places and things we associated with in the past.

If we are to run with Jesus, we must come from among the walking dead!

If we are to reach for the abundant life, we must not surround ourselves with people who want to feed off others rather than really live!

If we are to live again, then our lives among the walking dead must come to an end.

THE WALKING DEAD CAN'T GIVE THEMSELVES NEW LIFE: Many of us know people who are among the walking dead. We have heard their conversations and we know that they do not fully enjoy the life they live. The walking dead fellowship with each other, but they are standing on fly paper. Waiting is the spider who knows they can't free themselves.

At some point, the walking dead begin to desire new life. At some point, they want to change, and some even try, but unsuccessfully. They stop clubbing for a while but soon go back. They stop drinking or using drugs, but often return. It's hard because of one simple rule: The walking dead cannot give themselves a new life. If we throw a life preserver to a body floating in the water, the body cannot reach for it. If we are dead in our sins, we can't save ourselves. Ephesians 2:5-6 says, "Even when we were dead in sins, hath quickened us together with Christ, (by grace ye are saved;) 6 And hath raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus:" We are saved by the grace of God who "quickens us" or lifts us from the "walking dead life" to a new life in Christ. Those who have been quickened must study and pray because they now have new life and new life is the target of the walking dead. The walking dead are always searching for someone who is not dead to suck the life out of them. That means those who are saved are not immune. The walking day following them daily, in the shadows. However, we have this assurance that though we may have trouble while we walk in the light, we will have peace. Though the zombies we left are still in the shadows, we can truly say, "Yea though I walk through the shadow of death I will fear no evil for thou art with me."

Living Saints

Finally, brothers and Sisters, we should rejoice because we are no longer among the walking dead, but are living saints walking on the king's highway!

There was a time in our lives when we dead to the church and lived in sin, but now we are dead to the world and alive in Christ.

We serve a living savior, a savior who was once dead, a savior that is now raised, a savior that lives forever more, we too will live in eternity with Him.

Paul told the Ephesians that God has quickened us and lifted us from among the dead and given us new life.

We who were once among the walking dead are now able to walk in the newness of life, no longer walking in sin according to the desires of the flesh, but walking in the spirit.

There are three instances in the bible where Jesus restored life. In every instance he spoke to the situation

In Mark 51:41 he spoke to Jarius' daughter and said, "I say unto thee, arise!" and she immediately arose to new a new life!

John 11:43 he spoke to Lazarus and said, "Lazarus, come forth" and he immediately arose despite the impossibility of his situation!

Luke tells us Luke 7:14 Jesus said to the widow's son. "Young man," he said, "I say unto thee arise" Then the dead boy sat up and began to talk!

The walking dead come alive when God speaks to their situation.

In our new life in Christ, we have found out that God often speaks to our situation.

When God speaks to our situation, he gives us:

-STRENGTH when our burdens become heavy.

-ASSURANCE when everything seems to go wrong.

-INSPIRATION when difficulties arise.

-COMFORT when disaster strikes.

There was a time when we were walking dead that we filled the gambling casinos, bingo parlors and midnight crap shoots.

There was a time, when we were walking dead, that we engaged in countless secret encounters in cheap hotels, wrinkling sheets, kissing three frogs trying to find one prince.

There was a time when were among the walking dead that our best friends were not Matthew, Mark and Luke, but they had names like Jack Daniels, Seagrams and Johnny Walker Red.

But when the Lord spoke to our situation we were changed, and given a new life. We were washed in the blood of the lamb!

We once sang, Don't worry be happy. Now we sing, "This joy I have, the world didn't give it and the world can't take it away!

I've got a new life and it's no longer among the walking dead!

I've got a new walk and it's no longer among the walking dead!

Because God spoke to our situation and lifted us from the walking dead, we are able to:

-Keep on going, when our road gets rough.

-Keep on singing, even though our pain becomes intense.

-Keep on working, even when our body gets weary.

I'm glad that He is a wonder working God!

I'm glad that He is a favor giving God!

I'm glad that He is a soul saving God!

I'm glad that one day He saw me in it and decided to save me from it!

I'm glad that He decided to protect me from it while He guided me through it.

I'm glad that He decided to lift me from it and elevate me above it.

I'm glad that one day he decided to pick up an old rugged cross!

I'm glad that He carried it to Golgotha's hill!

They nailed His hands to it, but he didn't stay on it! They buried him in a borrowed tomb,

But, early Sunday morning He was buried in it, stepped out from it with all power in His hands!

No. 9659-Funeral

These were the years of her life

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 7, 2014

SCRIPTURE:"Now Sarah lived one hundred and twenty-seven years; these were the years of the life of Sarah:" Genesis 23:1

Introduction

Isn't it ironic how the community takes special pains to note the birth of a child and the death of a woman, but cares little about the life that is lived in between? Think about it. When we are born, the day, hour and even minute that we entered the world is recorded in a permanent record called a birth certificate. The laws of the land require close scrutiny of our birth and death, but do not require even a comment to describe the life lived in between our coming and leaving.

What happened in all the years between birth and death? Where did the time go? A life that spans 94 years covers 34,310 days, plus 23 leap year days. What happened between the beginning and the end? This is a life that saw 2,859 months and 11,436 weeks, there must be more than simply a time of birth and a time when life on this side of heaven ended. After all a person who lives that long has seen 823,440 hours, 49,406,400 minutes and 2.9 billion seconds, what happened between the birth date and the time and hour this life ended?

Those who know us well can testify of a life that saw its flowery youth, a happy marriage, a host of offspring and a legacy that will live longer than she walked the earth.

The essence of our lives is revealed not by our birth or the moment of our death, but by the years, months, weeks, days, hours, minutes and seconds in between.

Only a few remain who could remember the young, spry woman in her 20's with a beaming smile and humble spirit rearing a family in hopes that God would use it one day in the mighty army of his kingdom.

Only a few remain who can remember her struggle to survive the depression, endure the great world war and the subsequent battles thereafter.

There are many who can testify to her devotion to the church and willingness to do whatever necessary to help build the kingdom of God.

All of her children will remember the family meals, the laughter, joy and love they shared together for decades as they grew into men and women and brought their children to her feet.

So there is more to the life before us than just a birth date and a homegoing date.

There are many years in between that tell her story, and it's those years that will live on for generations to come.

God has an even broader perspective. He not only sees the moment of our birth, the years in between and the moment of our departure, he also sees what happens afterward. We can tell the story of the years in between, but "Eyes have not seen, ears have not heard and neither hath it entered into the heart of man, the things that God has in store for those who believe on him."

As Christians, we celebrate and mourn the homegoing of a loved one. We mourn the loss of the closeness we shared with them, but we celebrate the life they lived and the new life they have already begun.

Exposition

This text focuses on the death of Sarah, one of the most revered women in the bible.

While Sarah, by all accounts, is the matriarch of the Jewish nation, she said very little in the bible record and her actions rarely extended beyond her family. Yet, despite the fact that she was a mere "housewife" and mother who is only recorded saying eight lines of text in the bible, her genealogy, travels, struggles, aging and final death are all noted in scripture.

In between the time she was born and the time she died her story is told. We are familiar with her marriage to Abraham, her extraordinary beauty, her desire to bear children, her struggle with Hagar, her laughter when she learned of her maternity in her old age; and we read of her death at 127 years old.

The years of her life were filled with drama, love of family, humble submission to her husband, and childbearing. She followed her husband, taught her children and for the most part was invisible to all but those who knew her quiet way.

Despite the relative anonymity of her life, she received the extra honor of having her death, age, and burial mention in the sacred text.

Her 127 years were not as publicized or as eventful as others, but "her years" were filled with so many faith moments that they serve as a guide for all of those who would follow.

Her years

Sarah's life is characterized by the pivotal moments through the years that were impressive and memorable; so are the years of those that we love.

IN THESE YEARS SHE LEARNED TO LOVE: Between the beginning and the end of life, a saint learns to love and be loved. Just as Sarah learned to love Abraham and follow him in a lifetime of partnership and affection, the believing wife also learns what it means to know all of the phases of love: the philia love that treats all people as brothers and sisters; the storge' love that a mother shows for her children; erotic love that is shared with a spouse and the agape love that loves unconditionally, like God loves. In these years, in a quiet and unimposing way, the believing mother responds to the needs of neighbors in distress, while loving her husband and children with a passion and zeal that is unequaled. These are the years that her family sees that strange, almost Godlike ability to keep forgiving her children despite their countless mistakes and loving them anyway.

The decades of her life were filled with secret memories of quite moments with the love of her life that were replayed silently like a scratched 45 rpm in the corridors of her mind.

In these same years she washed and folded diapers and hung them on the line, celebrated birthdays of sons and daughters, baked cakes, fried chicken and shared the love of family with feasts, fellowship and family fraternity.

In these years, she also learned what it means to be loved by children who sacrificed all to journey to her side in celebration of milestones or to stand by her bedside when she became old and feeble. In these fragile moments, she learned what it feels like to be surrounded by love every minute of the waking day even until her dying hour.

Oh, what a blessing it is to have loved and have received love all the years of her life. The years of love mark "the years of her life."

IN THESE YEARS SHE LEARNED HOW TO SERVE GOD: Between the beginning and the end of life, a saint learns to trust God. Just as Sarah was reared to respect and trust God, the believing mother also learns through a litany of faith tests and trials that trusting God is the best way. Sarah's faith was tested when Abraham planned to sacrifice the child of her old age; she learned then that God always has a ram in the bush for those who trust him.

Like Sarah, this believing mother learned to trust and serve God.

Like David, she learned that God prepares the table from which the events of our lives are served. She learned that, "The Lord is my shepherd and I shall not want."

Like Ruth, she was determined to make heaven her home.

Like Timothy, she learned her faith from her mother and grandmother who taught her through example to lean and depend on Jesus.

In these years, she saw times of prosperity and growth, but there were some difficult years, too. Those were the years she felt like a ship that was tossed and driven out on the angry sea; the years when the needs of a house full of children seemed endless as the bills stacked higher by the month. These were the years her soul cried out, "I wonder what I have done that makes this race so hard to run." These were also the years when she heard the comforting voice of an angel saying, "Take courage, the Lord will make a way somehow."

In these years, she learned how to lean and depend on Jesus. She learned that if she trusted him, he would provide.

So as long as her health allowed she worshipped regularly, paid her church dues, sent her offerings, read her bible, and prayed that God would make a way for her children as he had for all others in the family.

Oh, what a wonderful blessing it is to have trusted God all of your life and in the process learn that he is faithful and his mercy endures forever. These years of faith in God and service to her church mark "the years of her life."

IN THESE YEARS SHE EXPERIENCED THE JOY OF THE LORD: Between the beginning and the end of life, a saint experiences the joy of the Lord. The joy of the Lord brings a freshness and newness of spirit that dwells in his heart each and every day.

It's a unique blessing that God gives to every saint that allows them to keep an optimistic spirit even during difficult times. In moments of sickness, the joy of the Lord is still evident. Even in melancholy of approaching death, a gentle, fresh and sweet spirit still radiates from a person who has experienced the joy of the Lord. It is this joy that was shared at graduations, baptisms and the birth of newborns. It's this joy, shared over the years, that has added a sweetness to this life that overpowers the bitter taste of aching bones, failing eyesight and the weakness of body and limb. It is this joy that brings a sweetness to this season of life. It's the sweetness which is found in Christ.

It is probably what the songwriter had in mind when he wrote, "There's a sweet, sweet, spirit in this place ...it must be the spirit of the Lord." The joy of the Lord is triumphant. It is the feeling of victory of a life well lived and ready to receive its reward. This joy is the anxious anticipation of a crown of life and a deserved reward.

Oh, what a blessing it is to have experience the joy of the Lord. This is the joy that allows us to "count it all joy"- The mountaintops and valleys, the chilly winters of discontent, the sweltering summers of discomfort and sweat, and even the rusty colored leaves of fall that indicated that life was approaching its winter..the ones who know the Lord in earnest can "count it all joy." These are years of optimism and cheer despite declining years and failing health mark "the years of her life."

Another Chapter

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that no matter how well we live, this chapter of our journey must end so that the next can begin.

Even if we live 94 years, our lives are but moments in time, passing vapors. We may try to stretch it but, our time is just a few days. With only a few exceptions, when the scripture refers to time as it relates to God the reference is to years. However, when the reference is made to man it is, usually, referred to in days. Thus, Job 10:5 says, Are thy days as the days of man? Are thy years as man's days? Then Exodus 20:12 says, Honor thy father and thy mother: that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee. The point is clear, when it comes to time, God has years that reach into infinity but when it comes to mankind, we only have a short period of time, measured in days. Our days are but moments. We don't have many of them so we must learn what God wants us to learn from them. Between the beginning and end of our days, we must work the work of him who sent us.

The prophet Elijah sensed that his time was drawing near. He began to walk toward the destination in which he would move from this life into the next. When the time came he moved instantly from this life into the next, aboard a mighty fiery chariot.

Enoch walked with God all of his life, sharing intimate thoughts and dreams. One day at the close of his life, his family looked for him and he was gone. The bible says he was not because he walked with God.

The Apostle Paul said in 2 Timothy 4:6-7, “I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith”

I am ready! Between my birth and my end, I experienced the birth of my children and grand children!

I’m ready! Between my birth and my end, I have lived nearly a century, praising and loving and helping and serving!

I’m ready! Between my birth and my end, I have confessed my belief in Jesus Christ as my personal Lord and Savior and tried to live that life in front of my family in my youth and in my golden years!

I am ready! Between my birth and my end, I have I have worshipped, served and praised you from the rising of my sun to its quiet and peaceful setting!

I am ready! I have testified to your goodness and everywhere I have glorified your name.

I am ready! Between my beginning and my end I have told the world that Jesus died on the cross, but he arose from the dead and is alive today!

I’m ready, I have done all I could between my beginning and my end. I’m ready to be delivered into the arms of my God!

—

On Wednesday October 1, 2014, Lillie Pierce Addison took her last breath. These were the years of her life.

No. 9660-Revival

You Mean you did that?

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 12, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "And such were some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God." 1 Corinthians 6:11

Introduction

Have you ever heard someone testify about their lives before they met the Lord and said to yourself, "You mean he did that?" The testimony of some believers today seems unbelievable when we hear saints tell of lifestyles that grossly contrast the lifestyle they live today after having an encounter with the Lord!

Did you hear the elderly sainted woman who testified that in her youth she went to clubs and bars frequently, danced on the floor and "cut a rug?" That is hard to believe today since she seems to walk with a halo over her head with her angelic wings flapping in the air.

Did you hear the church deacon testifying about his life as a gambler before he met the Lord? What about the Sunday School teacher who was a street corner hustler or the choir member who sang the blues in a string of nightclubs from coast to coast?

When we hear their testimonies we drop our jaws and say, "You mean you did that?"

Their revelations are a testament to the saving power of God. They are the ones who came singing, "Just as I am without one plea." They came to God when they heard that he loved the world so much that he gave his only begotten son who purchased our salvation with his own blood. What he purchased wrecked and restored them to brand new.

These are the believers who left singing, "I came to Jesus as I was, weary wounded and sad. I found in him a resting place and he has made me glad."

As Christians, we rejoice that the blood of Christ was shed to give us a chance to start again. He looked beyond our faults and saw our needs.

Exposition

This text focuses upon the apostle Paul as he explains to the Christians at Corinth how their lives in Christ should progress from sinfulness to righteousness.

Paul explains how the former state of a Christian compares to the present state. Before Christ, a Christian was a person who stood condemned before God, but after Christ is a new creature.

The believer has reached a point in life where he or she has evolved from the "unrighteous" state into the full knowledge of God as he or she and walks in the spirit. Having once been a practicing sinner, the believer has moved to a higher level; that of knowing Christ fully. He or she has stepped forward and up to a better life. Thus, Paul says, "And such were some of you!" He seemed to say you have been there! You have done that! You have the tee-shirt! But you have stepped out of darkness into the marvelous light!

Paul indicates the threefold state of every believer who is a part of the kingdom of God. He gives a list of the three states, which actually incur in the reverse order. 1) A person is justified, meaning that God's affirmative action program has made up for his shortcomings and mistakes. 2) A person is sanctified, meaning they have changed their life's path and modified their list of concerns to include only those things which would be pleasing to God. They become special and set apart. 3) A person who is washed by the spirit of God is no longer of the world but is a new creature.

The believer's best testimony to a non-believer is that we have not always lived in an isolated world of bible classes, hymns and church services, but that the believer has experienced the world enough to know that God offers a better way.

Did what?

When we consider our situation in the world we must remember that many of God's best people were flawed.

HE CHASED PRETTY WOMEN: One of the strongest men of the bible, who stood tall in his faith was Samson. He was a judge or religious leader of the people who was also their champion in the battle against the Philistines. Samson was so strong that he once carried away the gates of the city of Gaza on his shoulders and killed a thousand men using the jawbone of a donkey for a weapon. Despite his strength, Samson had a strange taste for pretty, forbidden women; in fact he was eventually captured and blinded by his enemies because he fell victim to a pretty woman named Delilah.

There are many great men of faith who had the same problem then and today. Most believers would be surprised to know how many strong men and women of faith today once had a vigorous life wrinkling sheets. There are sainted ladies who have chased every person wearing pants. There are present day church leaders who once chased skirts for a hobby.

Yet, even in their weakness, God touched their lives and decided to use them for his kingdom. The blood of Christ erased their past and gave them a new start and new strength. –As for Samson, God restored his strength and destroyed more of his enemies in his end than he did in the beginning.

HE WAS A MURDERER: We know David as a young king who loved poetry, singing hymns and writing godly inspired psalms. We cherish his words, "The lord is my shepherd and I shall not want," or "The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear?" In fact, David is described in scripture as a, "Man after God's own heart."

Most of what we admire about David ignores the fact that earlier in his life he was a murderer. The bible records that an outstanding soldier in his army named Uriah had a beautiful wife named Bathsheba. David had an adulterous relationship with her while her husband was off to war. When the woman became pregnant, David had Uriah placed at the front of the battle and called all of his soldiers to pull back, causing Uriah's death. It was a murder.

Yet, the David we see is one who stands strong for faith and godliness. Who would believe that he could have been a murderer? David was restored to God when he admitted his sin and pleaded, "Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation and renew in my a right spirit." The same has been the case for thousands today. There are many today who were once murderers or otherwise convicted of violent crimes against women, children, neighbors and their own family members, but they too have been forgiven and restored, thanks to the power of God. Some of them today are the best evidence of God's saving grace. Their very lives show how God can use even the most flawed person to building his kingdom. –As for David, he never returned to his murderous ways, but remained a champion for the cause until his death.

SHE WAS GODLESS: We know Ruth as a woman of faith whose famous words are repeated by millions, "Your people shall be my people and your God shall be my God." We know her because she faithfully followed Naomi from a pagan country back to Israel and became the wife of Boaz and prominent man in Israel. Yet, little is said about Ruth's life before she came to know Naomi's God. In fact, she was pagan. She was a godless woman who spent her life pursuing wooden dreams and hollow hopes. When her husband died and all of his kinsmen, she had no god or family. She did not belong.

Today, there are many who have spent many godless years, moving from one godless state to another. They did not belong to any church and subscribed to no particular religious belief. However, a Naomi character, appeared in their lives and led them to God. Ruth was destined to be the grandmother of great descendants; our lives were destined for some great purpose as well. Who would have thought that people as strong as the faithful are now were ever godless and disconnected.

HE WAS ASHAMED OF CHRIST: When we think of the Lord's twelve disciples, Peter is usually the one who first comes to mind. In Matthew 10:1-4 we have the names of the 12 apostles or disciples, but the name of Peter is always first in the list. When we read the four gospels, (Matthew, Mark, Luke and John) Peter seems to stand out more than any of the other disciples. When something needed to be said, Peter was usually the one to speak up. When something did not need to be said, Peter was usually the first to speak up. He was not only the first to SPEAK UP, he was also the first to ACT UP. He was quick to act, even to take out his sword to defend the Lord. However, when Jesus was being tried by his enemies, Peter denied him, not once but three times. The same man that spoke boldly was afraid. Even today, there are many who gladly witness and testify about the goodness of the Lord. They are willing to tell of his goodness at the drop of a dime. It seems hard to believe that there was ever a time that we were not bold for the Lord, ashamed that our co-workers or friends might think that we were too religious.

When the Lord has blessed us, it is difficult to remain silent. It is difficult not to testify to his goodness. Those who hear our testimonies today can hardly believe that there was a time that we kept silent about our God. As for Peter, he became the leading spokesman for the Lord and was so bold that he died rather than retract his faith. Such is the power of a regenerated life.

God sees value

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that when God touches our lives he wipes out our past and gives us a new beginning.

When God looked down on the world he saw individuals who were flawed, but could be recipients of his love if they would accept. We were sinners and our sin could not be excused; the price had to be paid. His word remained unchanged Romans 6:23, "For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life."

How does a sinful people like us, come before God? There is only one way to come; that's to come just as we are and accept God's grace.

That's what Charlotte Elliott learned many years ago when she was visiting friends and met a preacher at a dinner who asked her if she was a Christian. She was offended by the question, but it would not go away. Weeks later she met the same preacher again and told him that his question troubled her, but she did not know how to find Him neither did she feel worthy. The preacher told her that God is always nearby, "Just come to him as you are." She accepted Christ that day and later wrote a song that said, "Just as I am without one plea, but that thy blood was shed for me; and that thou bidst me come to thee, O lamb of God, I come, I come."

Those who come to Jesus come, Just as I am.

Someone is crying out, Lord my life is a shambles, but I'm counting on you reassembled the pieces, Just as I am, I come!

Someone is praying, Lord I have a house, but something is missing, I need your help to turn it into a home, Just as I am I come!

Someone is confessing, Lord I lived with the love of my life for a long time, but we are not married. We need your power to move to the next step, just as I am, I come!

Someone is witnessing, Lord I'm considering a profession or business venture, but my reasons are not spiritual, you can help me see clearly for right now I'm blind; just as I am, I come!

Isaiah approached God by saying, I'm not worthy, but I come before you Just as I am, and the Lord made him a great prophet.

Saul came before God a persecutor of the church, but in a little house on Straight Street he came to Jesus, "Just as I am," and the Lord made him the greatest evangelist of all time.

Every believer at one point or another meets God on the markdown shelf of life, after the world has rejected us as damaged goods.

It may have been in a jail cell, as the jailer in Philippi, but there we met the Lord!

It may have been while working in an unsavory job, like Matthew the tax collector, but there we met the Lord.

It may have been while we were just looking on like Zacchaeus, who met the Lord in a Sycamore tree, but there we met the Lord.

That's the day when we found ourselves saying, "I came to Jesus as I was, weary, wounded and sad. I found in Him a resting place and He has made me glad!"

I came to Jesus, just as I was and whenever I needed him, He's been there!
I don't mind telling the world, I know He's real!
I know the Lord will answer prayer for I tried Him for myself!
For me, a flawed soul, He endured the pain of Calvary!
For me, damaged goods, He Died an unsavory death!
But early Sunday morning He arose with all power in His hands!
I came to Jesus "as is" and He claimed me as his own!

No. 9661-Church Anniversary

The land of I can't remember

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 19, 2014

SCRIPTURE: For, behold, I create new heavens and a new earth: and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind." Isaiah 65:7

Introduction

Have you ever tried to tell someone about what once was and realized that they were too young to remember? Do you remember turning a knob to change the TV channel or rolling up the car window? Do you remember rotary phones with the dial on the front or Captain Kangaroo? Do you remember white and colored water fountains? Do you remember living without a single McDonalds, Burger King or Wendys anywhere? Do you remember beepers, mud pies or hanging clothes on a clothesline? Do you remember sticking a VHS tape into a VCR to watch a movie? Do you remember when hotel rooms had real keys instead of key cards? What about 15 minute oatmeal, washing clothes on a rub board? Do you remember rabbit ear TV antennas, black and white T.V. or cutting 25 pound blocks of ice for the ice box? Do you remember drive-in theaters or popping corn in a pot? Do you remember going outside to an outhouse or bathing in a #10 tub? Do you remember push lawn mowers, and cloth baby diapers? The old ones remember all of these, the young ones have heard of them, but do not remember them. They are fading from memory.

Suppose you were given the options to have selective memory; that's a memory pattern that allows you to select what you could remember and what you can forget. That's what Barbara Streisand sings about in her song, "The way we were." She says what's too painful to remember we choose to forget.

Are there a few things we have experienced that we choose to forget? We choose to forget painful experiences, mental scars, emotional traumas, and tragic losses. We try to put them out of our mind and forget them. We choose to forget people who have hurt us such as hurtful spouse, a betrayed friend, or a natural disaster. It is too stressful. The memories raise our blood pressure and heart rate. It makes us dizzy; so we block them out of mind.

While there are many things that choose to forget, there are other things that we do ever want to forget. We don't want to forget our experiences. We don't want to forget the people we love. We don't want to forget how to laugh, sing and enjoy life. We don't want to forget our faith in God. Completely forgetting everything is tragic.

Famed country singer Glenn Campbell released a song this year entitled, "I'm not gonna miss you." It is his last song because he is in the final states of Alzheimer's Disease. We know him for his songs such as, "A rhinestone cowboy" or "Wichita Lineman," but as the disease worsened his condition in 2013 he wrote this final song, while he could still remember. The song told of day that was a few days away when he would enter the mysterious realm of lost memory that had only one consolation, that he would not be able to miss those whom he loved because he would not be able to remember.

On this side of heaven, there are many things we want to remember because they help us to appreciate who we are or the rugged road we have traveled. However, on the other side of Jordan, is a new land that we have not seen before that will have one unique characteristic; it will be a land where we can't remember anything, but the joy of the Lord. On this side of heaven it takes memories to help us know our place, but on the other side; our joy will come from being in the presence of God and our identity will not need a historical frame of reference to have depth because Acts 17:28 says, "in him will we live, move and have our being." Over there, we won't need to remember to have our joy.

Over here we need to remember the rain, to enjoy the sunshine!

Over here we need to remember the sadness, to enjoy the gladness!

Over here we need to remember the losses, to appreciate the gains!

However, on the other side of Jordan we will experience sunshine, gladness, gain and happiness without ever remembering a time when they did not exist.

As Christians, we rejoice in the knowledge that our God is preparing a place for us in his kingdom. However, until that time comes, we shall never cease to remember his goodness and mercy toward us, from the rising of the sun to the setting of the same. As long as we can remember what he had done for us, we will praise the Lord.

Exposition

The text paints a clear picture of life in the Millennial kingdom over which Christ will rule. Isaiah projects the future state of believers, pointing to a time in the not so distant future when believers will rule with Christ for 1000 years on earth in a prototype of the perfect kingdom that would finally come. This 1000 year reign of Christ is the time in which he and the saints will return to earth and will generally run its government for 1000 years free of Satanic influences because Satan will be bound. It is a time when the church's work on earth is done!

During this time certain changes in the way the world operates will take place. 1) Christ will be the ruler of the kingdom, assisted by the Saints who will return with him to lead the millennial kingdom. When Christ was born an angel told Mary "and the Lord God shall give unto Him the Throne of his Father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever and of his kingdom there shall be no end" (Luke 1:32-33) 2) All living creatures, including the animals will be at peace (65:25) in such a way that even the wolf and lamb will feed together. Those which are natural enemies will become friends. 3) Life spans of people shall be like trees, living hundreds of years to the point that a man of 100 will be considered a mere youth and those who don't live to be a hundred will be accursed. (65:20) 4) People will enjoy the fruits of their labor, living in houses that they build and feasting on crops they produce (65:21-23) The millennial kingdom is what Christ referred to in the model prayer he taught his disciples when he said "thy kingdom come." 5) The people will not be in want for anything because before they ask for it God will have delivered it. Before they can even speak the request, he will have heard and responded.

The most unique aspect of the Millennial kingdom is the fact that God promises that there will be a new heaven and new earth and there will be no remembrance of the tragedy, misfortune and hardships of the life before. It is a land that those who have suffered will step into and forget the suffering from the past.

Aspects of Heaven

Isaiah prophesied about the coming kingdom and a new land whose nature was foreign to us.

MISTAKES CAN'T BE REMEMBERED IN THE LAND OF NO REMEMBRANCE: One of the great aspects of the heavenly kingdom is the fact that there will be no remembrance of any mistakes, bad judgments and errors we have made in this life. Every life is riddled with stupid decisions, flaws and fumbling acts. Thankfully, in the heavenly realm there will be no remembrance of our mistakes. Even though there is a record kept of our mistakes in heaven, those who have been forgiven by Christ will joyfully discover that[G45] their records have been expunged.

The bad tempers, ill feelings and hatreds that we know in this life will not exist in the land of "I can't remember" because it will be swallowed up by the love of God. Memories of tragedy and hard times will be overwhelmed by the power of God's love.

PAIN AND AGONY CAN'T BE REMEMBERED: There will be no more pain in the heavenly kingdom. We endure a tremendous amount of pain in this life whether it's[G46] physical or emotional. The presence of so much pain makes life unbearable. Yet, the savior promises us that in the land of I can't remember "God shall wipe away all tears." That is a great truth no pain shall exist. In fact this land could actually be called the land of "no more:" No more arthritis, No more bursitis, failing eyesight, back problems, kidney failure, high blood pressure, heart disease, breast cancer, prostate cancer. No more! The text puts all of these in the category of the "former things" and the former things ill be passed away.

POVERTY WILL NOT EXIST: In the heavenly realm poverty will not exist because there will be a truly communal society based on the love of God. Plato dreamed of such as world in his "Republic" and Lenin and Stalin and Chairman Mao tried to create such a world through the communist state, but in the land of "I can't remember" there will be no class distinctions where some will have mansions and others will live in shotgun houses or some will have food, but others will be hungry. Yet, we have the promise that in the heavenly realm there will be no remembrance of these divisive class differences. There will be no rich and no poor and everyone will share in the glory of the Lord equally. That's why the old slaves sang, "I got shoes, you got shoes all God's chillun got shoes.

When I get to heaven, gonna put on my shoes and walk all over God's heaven." The same could be said for homes, food, clothing and the essentials for a good life. There will never no remembrance of any time where some had and some had not.

In that land

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that when it's all over, God has prepared a place in the land of I can't remember for all of the people he has made perfect with his blood.

In this life, there are always people who remember our mistakes, bad times and misfortunes, but there is a place God is preparing when no one will remember our mistakes.

This land has been the object of the faithful for generations.

Abraham traveled all of his life, looking for the land of I can't remember, to him it was a city not made with hands!

Elijah received a one-way ticket to the land of I can't remember on board a fiery chariot. His departure prompted the old warriors to sing, "Swing low Sweet Chariot, coming forth to carry me home,"

In the land of I can't remember:

-There are no wars because there is only peace, in the land of I can't remember!

-There is no hatred, because there is only love, in the land of I can't remember!

-There is no death, because there is only life in the land of I can't remember!

I know there is such a land because I heard Jesus say, "I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am ye may be also!"

The land of I can't remember is a land, on a far-a-away strand where we will never grow old.

In the land of I can't remember, the streets will be made of solid Gold!

In the land of I can't remember, there will be perfect lighting because it will be illuminated by the glory of God!

In the land of I can't remember, there will be perfect medicine, because there will be a tree in its midst that will be good for the healing of the nations!

I don't know about you, but I want to go to the land "I can't remember!"

Come and go with me to this land!

If you believe there is a God in heaven, you can begin your journey!

If you believe that he gave his only begotten son to wipe out any memory of your past wrongs, you can begin your journey!

If you believe that he will stand for you in judgment and give passport into the heavenly realm then you can begin your journey!

If you believe that Jesus paid for the right to erase our horrible pass by dying on the cross and rising from the dead, early one Sunday morning!

You are on your way to the land of I can't remember!

Come and go with me to my father's house!

There is peace, joy and happiness! …in the land of I can't remember!

No. 9662-Revival

The ghost of the headless man

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 26, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "But when Herod heard thereof, he said, It is John, whom I beheaded: he rises from the dead." Mark 6:16

Introduction

Is there a chapter of your life that you would rather avoid? Is there a dark secret in your past that haunts you? Is there a side of you that you keep hidden from most people; even from yourself, but it keeps coming up?

There are many people who have sordid pasts that they have avoided by moving to a new city or neighborhood, perhaps changing their names and assuming new lives. Often years pass before someone or something from their past brings them face to face with the past they so desperately fought to forget.

We often lock our pasts away in emotional closets and try to bury them under a ton of good deeds and philanthropy. It's that dark side that we hope to hide from public view. It's the ex-con who denies the fact he spent years in prison and tries to hide it from those who now know him. It's the socialite who denies the fact that she grew up poor. It's the pastor who was once a murderer and thief in another life, but changed his way over the years. It's the woman who was once a hooker, but now in another city, in another place, is a woman of class and dignity. If we can keep the past locked away, we could convince ourselves that they do not exist and were never a significant part of our life experiences.

Everyone has a past. There are some who have pasts that they would rather forget. Sometimes that past involves money, hidden identities, or sordid sexual practices that are now viewed as distasteful. Many have made it their life's pursuit to hide their pasts permanently.

What should believers do when our past catches up with us? What if our past becomes known? What if we have never told anyone about our past and suddenly those who know us one way find out that it has all been a lie?

For many, the first response is denial. Immediately following that is justification and rationalization. However, there are others who put it all on the altar. They fall on their knees and appeal to God with the words of scripture, "O wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from this body of death?"

Fortunately, we serve a God who knows what to do for us when the ghost of our past catches up with us. He is the one who can deliver us from the clutches of our carnal impulses. The songwriter put it this way, "Jesus can help me, Jesus alone."

As Christians, we must trust the Lord to blot out our past sins and forgive us. When our past catches up to us, it will find a believer who has been redeemed and washed in the blood of the lamb.

Exposition

This text focuses on Herod's worry that the ghost of a man he wrongfully executed had come back to haunt him.

King Herod became worried about the reports he received about the ministry of Jesus. Large crowds were following him, and his disciples were excited about his message. Descriptions of Jesus' work and ministry were laid before the king. He immediately saw the similarities between this man they called Jesus and John the Baptist. John drew great crowds and talked about a kingdom that would come. John was fearless and critical of Jewish leaders. John was a prophet of immense popularity. Now, it appeared that Jesus and John were the same.

Herod immediately thought that Jesus was John arisen from the dead. He was the ghost of a man he wrongfully killed. John openly spoke against an adulterous relationship that the king had with his brother's wife. John preached about sin and Herod's sin in particular. He disturbed Herodias, his brother's wife, so much that she nagged the King until he had John arrested, put in chains and put into prison to silence him.

Herod would not kill John because he felt he was a holy man, even if he constantly condemned him publically. Herodias continued her hate for John; she wanted him dead. Shortly after, the King hosted a great birthday party attended by many of the leaders and important people of the land. Herodias' daughter was asked to dance for the guests. She danced so well that Herod made a foolish promise. He told her, in front of his guests, that he would reward her with anything she asked, even if it were half of his kingdom. The girl asked her mother for advice and Herodias told her to ask for the head of John the Baptist on a platter.

Herod was saddened, but he kept his word. He had John beheaded and delivered his head on a platter to the girl.

When Herod heard about Jesus drawing large crowds and performing miracles he assumed that John had risen from the dead. He assumed that Jesus was the ghost of the headless man that had come back to haunt him.

Afraid, but unrepentant, Herod lived his life haunted by the ghost of his evil deed. Jesus gave his life so that people like Herod, could be forgiven for their evil deeds and have a new life in him.

What happens?

There are several ideas we must consider when we look at what happens when the ghosts of our past catches up to us:

WE ARE OFTEN AFRAID: When our past catches up to us, we are often afraid of what may happen. There are many who are afraid of what will happen if their pasts are known, yet those who know the Lord, have no fear because God handles both their past and present. When Jacob left home he and his mother had cheated Esau out of his birthright. Esau threatened to kill him if he ever saw him again. After 20 years, Jacob decided to return home, but he was afraid to face his past. He was afraid that his evil deed might mean his death. However, God told him to return. He did as commanded, and he learned a lesson. The Jacob, who returned, had to face his fear. He wrestled with an angel and would not let go until the angel blessed him. He was not the same man who left. Today, the same is true for us. We have made many mistakes, but we are not the same people today that we were back then. We judge what we did then through the eyes of who we are now. However, we have matured in the Lord. We are wiser and stronger. Maya Angelou once said, "I did then what I knew how to do. Now that I know better, I do better." Jacob was afraid, but God dealt with the situation. His brother received him and embraced him in peace. Are there relatives in your family you don't speak to because of the past? Are you afraid to face the ghost of the headless man? Does it haunt you? Jacob wrestled with the issue and arose victoriously and so will all who ask God for deliverance.

WE ARE OFTEN ASHAMED: There are many who are ashamed when confronted with their pasts. It is not a shame to have had a difficult past. It is only a shame when we have denied and denounced that type of past, and then it is revealed that we are not what are purported to be. The shame is in the present lie; the sin was in the past mistake. It is possible to have a past mistake without having a present lie. David committed a sin with Bathsheba, and he covered it up. However, when it was revealed by the prophet Nathan, David was ashamed. He was ashamed because he went about his kingly duties everyday sentencing others for the crime he had committed: adultery and murder. He was ashamed because of the present lie he lived.

At some point, many of us do what David did: He tried to redeem what he had done in the past. He asked God for forgiveness and came clean with everyone else. There is more shame in being discovered than there is from true confession. The many who confesses opens up the door of his past and shamelessly pours it out for all to see. Once done there is no more shame. Over the years, you tried to deny it. You hid it under a long list of cover-ups and more mistakes. Like a shadow, the ghost of the headless man followed you, even when you tried to run away. It overwhelmed us when it finally caught up with us.

James 5:16 encourages believers not to live a lie as if we had not faults and shortcomings in our past or present. We are encouraged to confess our faults so that we can be healed of the wounds of the past and present failures. The verse says,

"Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another that ye may be healed. The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

A poet wrote:
"If I could, I'd rewrite history
I'd choose differently; if I could I would I'd leave out the part where I broke your heart
I'd fix the mess I made
If I could, I would

Confession replaces shame with remorse. Remorse leads to repentance. Repentance leads us to the blood of Christ, which removes sin and shame through his grace.

LIVE IN YOUR FUTURE: There's no better way to release the past than to refuse to dwell pessimism that it brings. Sooner or later our past will catch up to us, but when they do they should find us dwelling on our futures. The past represent what is gone and will never return. The future represents the present and where we are going in our present. We must dwell on the future "us" and not the past "us." And the best way to refrain from dwelling on the past is to keep your attention firmly focused on the present. The Apostle Paul had two names and two personalities. One of his names was Saul. As Saul, he persecuted the church and tried to stop its growth. However, on the Damascus Road he had an encounter with the Lord that changed his life. He changed his name to Paul. When he started promoting the church and preaching the Gospel, he met people who knew him as Saul. When Saul met Paul his past had caught up with him, but when his past caught up with him he was living in his future. He acknowledged his past and told about his miraculous change of direction. Everyone who saw him from his past saw him living in his future.

Today, we will no doubt encounter those who know our past. What's important is that when your past catches up with you that you are not still doing the same things. If you lived faithfully, you should be more faithful now. If you lived recklessly then you should be more constrained now. Your past should stare at a brand new person.

Your past should see that you don't live in yesterday, but are living in your future. What does that mean? To live in your future means that in the present you are maximizing your potential, taking advantage of opportunities and walking in faith toward your future. When those from your past see you living in the future, they see what your faith walk is going to mean for you in a few years.

Those who live in their future are not haunted by the ghost of their past or the ghost of the headless man. They see only the great work ahead, and the opportunity build God's kingdom hat lies before them.

Getting rid of Ghosts

Finally, brothers and sisters, we don't have to worry about what happens when our past catches up with us, because the saved have been washed in the blood of the lamb.

The faithful are not afraid of the ghost of the headless man because our past does not haunt us and trouble us at night. We are not what we used to be; we've been redeemed by the grace God.

We are not afraid or even ashamed of our past because we now live in Christ and any man who is in Christ is a new creature, old things are passed away, and all things have become new.

We are not afraid of the ghost of the headless man because the word of God promises that our past will not be held against us. Ezekiel 33:16 says, "None of his sins that he hath committed shall be mentioned unto him: he hath done that which is lawful and right; he shall surely live.

We are not worried that one day we'll wake up and our past will be staring us in the face because we know that every day we are living by faith. Galatians 2:20 says, "The life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me."

I'm not worried because the word says, "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."-2 Chronicles 7:14

I'm not worried about the ghost of the headless man because the sins of our past have been forgiven and nailed to the cross.

The cross stretches its arms out wide and says to the:

—Vulgar and the lost, all is forgiven

—Hopeless and guilty, your slate has been wiped clean!

—Condemned and the weary, you can get brand new start!

—Tormented and the Drunkard, you can be at ease!

—Addict and the immoral, there is a road to redemption!

The cross was an emblem of the shame of our past, but it is now a sign of our salvation!

The cross stretches out its arms and says you don't have to be afraid of the past, but you can begin your future today!

This is the cross that represents all our sin and shame!

This is the cross that Jesus carried to Calvary!

This is the cross the songwriter wrote about, "At the cross, at the cross, where I first saw the light and burdens of my heart roll away. It was there by faith I received my sight, and now I'm happy all the day!

He died on the old rugged cross, but Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

We have no fear of the ghost of the headless man because we are secured by the power of the cross!

No. 9663-Revival

When life throws you back in

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 2, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "But go your way, tell his disciples and Peter that he goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see him as he said unto you." Mark 16:7

Introduction

Have you ever been given a second chance? Was it State Farm Insurance that ran the commercial about the daughter who wrecked the car in an accident, but was trusted with the keys to the family's new car? Wasn't Michael Vick given a second chance a Major League Football after being found guilty of dog fighting? There have been many people that we have known in our life experience who have benefited from a second chance.

We are accustomed to second chances; we like to read about those who lost it, but found it again. That's probably why former heavyweight champion George Foreman is loved so much in America. When became champion he was an angry man, filled with rage. After losing his title to Muhammad Ali, he later became a follower of Christ, developed a humble spirit and started a church in Houston. Then in his old age, God gave him a second chance. Much to everyone's surprise he won the title back at the age of 50 and became rich and famous for his pleasing smile, business sense and willing to help others. Foreman is not alone.

St. Augustine lived a wild life for over 30 years, had a child out of wedlock. His mother prayed for him with tears in her eyes until one day he heard a voice that told him to read Romans 13:13-14, "Let us walk honestly, as in the day; not in rioting and drunkenness, not in chambering and wantonness, not in strife and envying, but put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make not provision for the flesh, to fulfill the lusts thereof."- At that moment he repented and became one of the greatest leaders of the Christian faith afterward.

Dismas was the name of the man crucified on the cross with Jesus. He was a thief who acknowledged Christ and was guaranteed a place in heaven on that day. Those who have led a life of thievery and shown his life as evidence that it is never too late to accept Christ. Among Catholics, Dismas is seen as the one who reminds that Christ stands up for us even when we have done wrong, but have repented.

St. Francis of Assisi was a drunk before he became a saint. Before he turned his life around he lived wildly, partied hard and stayed drunk. One day years into his moral decay he met a leper. The leper, he felt, was the Lord in disguise. He hugged the leper and kissed him, and at that moment turned his back on his riotous living and spent the rest of his life living for the Lord.

St. Margaret of Cortona is known for giving her life caring for sickly and poor, but before that she ran away to become the mistress of a man for nine years, even bearing him a child. When her pardon was accepted, she repented and spent her life in service for the Lord.

Mary Magdalene is believed to be a woman who lived a life as a prostitute. The title "Magdalene" is always attached to her name some say to refer to the city of Magdala a large city known for its loose women. However, when she met Jesus seven Demons were run out of her and her life changed. She followed Jesus until the end of his earthly life and the end of her own.

John Newtown was a slave trader who profited from the misery of others. He not only sold slaves, but used the women for his own satisfaction. While on board he had an encounter with Christ and repented of his slave trading ways. He wrote a song that we still sing today, "Amazing grace how sweet the sound that saved a wretch like me. I once was lost, but now I'm found, blind, but now I see."

All of these men and women have one thing in common? They gave their lives to Christ; he gave them a second chance, and they lived for him the rest of their lives. As Christians, we are happy that God has given all of us a second chance. It is as if we were thrown out of the fight for the kingdom and somehow been thrown back in again. Like others who have the same testimony, we have pledged to give him our best for the rest of our days.

Exposition

This text focuses on the command given by an angel of the Lord to tell a failed disciple to return to service.

It takes place at the site of the empty tomb on the morning of the resurrection. The women came to anoint the body of Jesus and found the tomb empty.

They were greeted by an Angel, who told them that Jesus had risen. A message from the Lord was left behind for the disciples about where to meet Him. Of all eleven of the disciples, Peter was singled out.

Peter had disgraced himself and did not consider himself worthy to be an Apostle. While Jesus was being tried before the high priests, Peter stood outside in the courtyard and warmed himself by the fire. Three times he denied knowing Jesus when asked. On the third denial, he swore and cursed and acted outrageous as he tried to convince people that he was not a follower of Christ. When he had completed his denials, a rooster crowed for the second time, reminding him of the words of Jesus that before the cock crowed two times he would deny him thrice. Although he was the man who leaped forward to cut off a soldier's ear in the garden, walked on water, and was called "the Rock" by Christ Himself, Peter was unsure of himself and no one knew about his feelings. He felt his failure, at a time when Christ's life was on the line, was unforgivable. He sunk to an all time low and did not consider himself a disciple.

The Angel's message for the disciples "And Peter" was a special call to Peter to get back in the game. Christ is risen! Peter received the news and was the first disciple to make it to the tomb. He championed the cause of Christ and became the strongest leader of the early Church. He promoted the cause of Christ until his death in Rome. He never denied the Lord again even though it meant being crucified upside down on a Roman cross.

Peter was thrown back into the kingdom building program even though he failed. He used his second chance wisely and became stronger and wiser.

Three stages

There is a children's story entitled, "How the rainbow trout got its colors." In the story, all of the trout fish were swimming in nearby waters when a smaller one was attracted to what seemed to be a tasty meal. He opened his little mouth wide and clamped down only to feel the sting of a hook. Suddenly he was snatched out of the water and into the hands of a small boy who was excited at catching his first fish. With a spoon, the boy started to scrap away at both sides of the fish until all of its scales were off. Just as he reached for the knife, the boy's father said, "wait!" He was told the fish was too little and instructed to through it back in the water. Once in the pond, all of the other fish surrounded the little trout which was happy to be alive, but sad that he now looked so badly without his scales. To cheer him up, all of the fishes got together and made him a set of scales with beautiful colors. Now, wearing his beautiful colors the little fish felt very good about himself and he also learned that you don't have to bite everything that dangles in front of you.-That's how the rainbow trout got it's colors! (The children's version anyway).

Those who fish can relate to the idea of throwing fish back, but there is also a lesson for the rest of us.

WATCH OUT FOR THE BAIT: Those who catch fish usually have some type of bait or lure that attracts attention. There are some fish that are attracted to SHINY THINGS, just like some people. If it promises us things that shine or the life of glitz and fame, many are drawn off course and reach for the bait abandoning family, education, and the church. They are hurt when they learn that the shiny things they reached for were only baits. There are other fish and people who are attracted to things that wiggle in front of them. Everything that wiggles in front of you is not in your best interest. They are usually things that bait us into doing what we should not do. The Bible calls baits "temptation." Jesus told his disciples to ask God to "lead us not into temptation." He knew some would fall, so he added, "but deliver us from evil." One songwriter said, "Yield not to temptation for yielding is sin. Each victory will help you, some other to win. Fight manfully onward, dark passions subdue. Look ever to Jesus, he will carry you through."

WATCH OUT FOR THE HOOK: Hidden inside of every bait is the hook. It is usually unseen until it is too late. Fish hooks are usually barbed and designed to hold on once in place. It's hard for a fish that has been snared to get free from a craftily designed fishhook. That's a lesson that many people learn the hard way. There are many who have lost money, marriages, careers, and friendships after being snared by crafty hooks that hid themselves from us until it was too late. Some were able to get free, but not without leaving scars.

WATCH OUT FOR SNARES, NETS, AND TRAPS: Salmon trying to swim upstream are caught in traps that hold them, but let the water pass. Large nets catch many of the fish, and some are simply snared with poles and the quick response of bears and other animals. The object of a net is to trap many at the same time. So we must be away of traps set for whole generations. If we are not careful, the internet, television, and video games could trap an entire generation before they know it. The quick hands of predators can snatch away the unsuspecting and still others are lured into unsuspecting situations where they find themselves trapped. The Bible calls hooks "snares.' Believers are warned to stay clear of snares because they cause us to do foolish things once we are caught. Matthew 26:41 warns us to stay clear of the snare of desire for riches. It says, "And having food and raiment let us be therewith content. But they that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition. For the love of money is the root of all evil: which while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows."

Another Chance

Finally, brothers and sisters, the great part about following Jesus is that even if we have fallen for the bait, found ourselves hooked or trapped, he gives us another chance to get back into life and start again.

This understanding gives believers an attitude of optimism that looks at every failed situation as a learning opportunity, not a defeat. This is what faith does for the believer; it reminds us that our Savior gives us a chance to start again and do better.

The Angel's message to Peter is addressed a man who had placed himself on the sideline. Today, the same call is made to Christians today to get back in the game and give life your best shot!

Believers cannot have a losing attitude about life. Believers are winners. Romans 8:37 says "We are more than conquerors through him that loves us." That means we are winners.

Consider the difference between a loser and the winner:

—A winner makes a mistake and says "it's my fault; I'll do better next time." A loser says, "It wasn't my fault."

—A winner never stops trying. A loser never stops giving excuses. (Abraham Lincoln was a failure in business, lost two elections to the State Legislature, was defeated for Congress twice, defeated in the Senate twice, had a nervous breakdown and his girlfriend died, but he never stop trying until he became President of the United States."

—A winner says, "I'm good, but I can be better." A loser says, "At least I'm not as bad as other people."

—A winner learns from people who are superior to him. A loser tries to tear down those who better.

—Winners never quit. Quitters never win.

Have circumstances hooked you, snared and snatched you right out of life? The call of Christ is: "There is no need to feel sorry for yourself, have faith, I'll put you back in.'

For Peter, the angel's message meant that he was forgiven for his shortcomings and accepted into the full fellowship of the faith. It was a call to full Christian service. Some today feel that they are not worthy to be in the church. They consider some shortcoming that they know about, but others don't, and conclude that they cannot be good servants of the Lord. Like Peter, they have slowly drifted away from the church. While the angel's words were aimed at Peter, today the same invitation is given to every person who wants to get in the game but does not consider themselves worthy. Instead of "And Peter" it could easily be "And _____" (your name).

Christ died on Calvary that those who would believe on Him would have a chance to everlasting life. He died that we might have a chance to turn a losing situation into a winning situation! It's a chance to turn:

—Defeat into victory!

—Shame into respect!

—Disgrace into honor!

—Fear into Faith!

—Desperation into hope!

—Sorrow into Joy!

—Eternal Death into Eternal Life!

It's a call for the millions of Peters of the world who once walked on water, but found themselves sinking to sing with new meaning: "I was sinking deep in sin, far from the peaceful shore. Very deeply stained within, sinking to rise no more. But the Master of the sea heard my despairing cry. From the waters lifted me now safe am I"

Love lifted me!

Love lifted me!

When nothing else could help, love lifted me!

No. 9664-Thanks

Thanks after the sacrifice

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 16, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "Whoso offereth praise glorifieth me: and to him that ordereth his conversation aright will I shew the salvation of God." Psalm 50:23

Introduction

Is it possible to praise God and say we are thankful without making any real sacrifices? There are thousands of people who offer praise to God continuously. They praise him in song, dance and with music. They write lofty speeches about him, preach sermons about him and extol his greatness in a plethora of ways, yet their actual service to him is limited.

Can we praise God and express our thanks to him without sacrificial living and service? Can we truly give him thanks while refusing any service or involvement in kingdom-building activities?

Consider the man who claimed to love his wife and praised her constantly. On her birthday, he sent her cards and flowers. On their anniversary, he sent her a singing gram in which some singers appeared on her front porch and serenaded her. At Christmas, he was the first voice she heard expressing love for him. It was the same on Valentine's Day, Thanksgiving and family union day and all other important days. When friends heard the wife complaining about all the flowers, poems, and expressions of love she received they were puzzled. Why was she upset? She said, "I would trade all of the cards, flowers and songs for just one day as the most important person in his life." It appears that the husband always sent cards and flowers, but he was never present. He was always, busy doing something else.

Is it possible that all of our praises to God are empty? Is it possible that he is not honored at all by all of our words because we are absent in actual sacrificial service? It is very possible! In fact, there are millions who would be surprised to know that God is not happy with our praise.

Christopher Brinson and the Ensemble in 1997 produced a gospel that raised this question,

"What if God?" The question gets straight to the point:
What if God is unhappy with our praise?
What if He is not pleased with the words we say?
What if He takes away His love and His Spirit from above?

What if God is unhappy with our praise?
What if God is unhappy with the way we live?
What if He is not pleased with the way we give?
What if he takes away His love and His Spirit from above?

We must change the way we walk;
We must change the way we talk.
We must live a life that's pleasing to our King.
We must read God's holy word;
Let His praises be heard.
Lord, just be pleased with our praise.

As Christians, we should remember that God is honored by our sacrificial service to Him, not with our praise alone. We must send up the praise, but we must also send up our sacrificial offerings that are reflected in our lives.

Exposition

This psalm focuses on David's wise conclusion that the only real way to say thanks to God is by presenting him with evidence of sacrificial living.

The people of Israel were surrounded by people who showed their thanks to their gods in many different ways. There were some who offered human sacrifices. Usually, a woman or a child was involved. The sacrifices were laid on stone altars and slain to show gratitude to their gods. Many would make offerings of gold or of the substance of their fields; the better and more expensive the gift the more expensive it would prove to be.

The Israelites were told by their wise men and, in this instance, the King himself, that the only true way to show thanks to God is not by public displays of piety through plenty of songs and shouting, but by the way we live; with sacrificial living being the primary consideration.

Israel learned that God is glorified not by their chants, rituals, and ceremonies, but the spirituality of their walk every day among the people. He is glorified in their conversation, lifestyle and also in their worship.

Thus, sacrificial living becomes the key to understanding how to please God. Witnessing is great, but living what one talks about is a far greater than singing an empty song.

Towards and accepted sacrifice

Cain and Abel gave us a great lesson about making sacrificial offerings. No matter how great the sacrifice, it does us no good if it is not accepted by God. There are several thoughts we should consider in this respect.

GOD SEES OUR SACRIFICE: Our words of thanks and offerings to God have more meaning when they come in the aftermath of great sacrifices. God sees how far we will go for him. He sees how much we will give up for him. He sees it as we show it every day.

The story is told of four church members: "Everybody, Somebody, Anybody and Nobody." Each time the call for sacrificial service was given the response was always the same.

"Is there a person who is willing to stay late and help prepare for the service?" came the call. Everybody thought Somebody should be glad to do it, and Somebody felt assured that Anybody would come forward. Who responded? Nobody.

A second call was issued, "We need volunteers to share in the prayer and visitation of the sick?" Everybody said Anybody who is a Christian should be glad, and both of them expected Somebody to come forward. But who came forward? Nobody.

After a challenging Sunday School Lesson about the love of God toward man, the question was asked, "Which of us will be willing to lay down his life for a friend?" Anybody felt Somebody should be prepared, and both of them thought Everybody who claimed the Christian life should be willing to sacrifice himself. But who was willing to sacrifice? Nobody.

Of course, when it was time to go to heaven and receive the reward for sacrificial service Everybody was willing, and Somebody stood in line first, just in front of Anybody. But, who received a reward because of sacrificial service? Poor old Nobody."

God sees our sacrifices. He sees us give beyond a tenth of our earnings to support the work of his kingdom. He sees us give our time and talent to the point that it goes beyond being just liberal, but actually sacrificial. What is important to believers is not that our names appear in the newspaper or that we are given credit for our work.

If we truly want to give thanks to God in a way that will be accepted in heaven, then we must let our words of praise follow our acts of sacrificial service. That's the meaning of the text "Whoso offereth praise glorifieth me: and to him that ordereth his conversation aright will I shew the salvation of God."

SACRIFICES NOT IN VAIN: Believers should be encouraged as they stand at this point in their journey to know that the sacrifices they have made have not been in vain. Anniversaries and celebrations are blessings. They meant all of our obedience and sacrifice have not been in vain.

Many believers have made great sacrifices to promote the kingdom of God. Many have served when they were sick.

Some served sacrificially unto their dying day.

Many have given their money and land until they could not give any more. Many have given their best years to the promotion of the church.

To these, the Lord will respond, "I know thy works." Sacrifices will not go unrewarded.

Sacrifices have been meaningful; so meaningful that the songwriter wrote, "I wouldn't give nothing for my journey now!" The church has reached this point because of the sacrifices of believing members and God will reward every sacrifice in a great way.

PRAISE GOD IN THE LANGUAGE HE UNDERSTANDS BEST: God understands every language, but the biblical seems to suggest that he responds best when spoken to in the language of faith and sacrifice. Those who live by faith find that God understands their language. And God spoke to Abraham in the language of faith and Abraham responded in the language of faith. Had Abraham not been a man of faith he would not have understood what God meant when he said take your son and sacrifice them to me. After the command was given, there is very little record of any conversation between God and Abraham. Abraham's actions spoke about his faith. God responded to him in the language of faith and provided a ram for him in the bush.

Often God gives us instructions, but only people of faith understand God's language and they act upon what he says. Those who do not understand that language are often confused about the actions of fateful people. In addition, we should note that we should not ask for something that is against God's his will, we should ask in faith believing that he has the power to make what we ask happen.

James 1:6 that we should ask in faith with nothing wavering; that means ask without ever doubting that God can make it happen. When we ask in this way then, we are talking a language that God understands.

Sacrificial Praise

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember that while praise without sacrifice is empty, praise accompanied by sacrifice gets heaven's attention.

When Israel left out of Egypt and crossed the Red Sea, they took 12 stones from the riverbed and set up a marker on the altar side. They gave thanks to God for bringing them over the desert into the Promised Land! It was a great day of thanksgiving because God had brought through the wilderness to better and promising land!

When Solomon built the Temple at Jerusalem, he offered thanksgiving to God. That is when he heard God respond: "If my people, which are called by name shall humble themselves and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land." It was a great day of thanksgiving because God had promised to heal the land!

When Israel returned to Jerusalem from captivity, they offered thanksgiving to God. It was a great day of thanksgiving because family and friends who had been away for a long time had returned!

While these were the first Thanksgivings of record, the word indicates that we are to offer thanks to God every day!

1 Chronicles 16:18 says, "Give thanks unto the Lord, call upon his name, make known his deeds upon the people!"

Psalm 92:1 says, "It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord and to sing praises unto thy name!"

Psalm 106:1 says "O give thanks unto the Lord; for he is good: for his mercy endured for ever!"

Psalm 140:13 says "Surely the righteous shall give thanks unto thy name: the upright shall dwell in thy presence."

When we wake up in the morning, give thanks! But Psalm 119:62 says even, "At midnight I will rise to give thanks unto thee because of thy righteous judgments!”

When we break bread, give thanks!

When we close out the day, give thanks!

We give the Lord thanks for giving us a:

—Peace that can never be troubled!

—Foundation that can never be moved!

—Promise that can never be broken!

—Refuge that can never be conquered

—River that can never run dry!

—Victory that can never be lost!

—Wealth that can never be stolen!

We offer thanks for Jesus who died out on Calvary and rose after three days!

We look forward to the last Thanksgiving!

That will be the day when every knee shall bow and every tongue shall confess that Christ is Lord of Lords!

That will be the day the wicked will cease from troubling and the weary will be at rest!

That will be the day when Christ shall enter his kingdom!

Until that day, saints should live sacrificially and in everything give thanks!

No. 9665--Christmas

The tax that saved the world

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 6, 2014

Scripture: And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed." Luke 2:1; "And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judaea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem; (because he was of the house and lineage of David:) To be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child. And so it was, that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered." Luke 2:4-6

Introduction

There is an ugly word that we whisper because we don't like the way it sounds. Do you know what it is? It's the "T" word, taxes. As the year begins to wind down, many families are starting to gather receipts, reconcile bank statements and try to reduce their tax liabilities as much as they can before the year ends.

There are so many taxes that there is hardly any way to escape them. Think about this short list of some of our taxes: The inheritance tax, Accounts Receivable Tax, Building Permit Tax, CDL license Tax, Cigarette Tax, Corporate Income Tax, Dog License Tax, Excise Taxes, Federal Income Tax, Federal Unemployment Tax, Fishing License Tax, Food License Tax, Fuel Permit Tax, Gasoline Tax ,Gross Receipts Tax, Hunting License Tax, Inventory Tax, IRS Interest Charges IRS Penalties (tax on top of tax),Liquor Tax, Luxury Taxes, Marriage License Tax, Medicare Tax, Personal Property Tax, Property Tax, Real Estate Tax, Service Charge Tax, Social Security Tax, Road Usage Tax, Recreational Vehicle Tax, Sales Tax, School Tax, State Income Tax, State Unemployment Tax Telephone Federal Excise Tax, Telephone Federal Universal Service Fee Tax Telephone Federal, State and Local Surcharge Taxes, Telephone Minimum Usage Surcharge Tax, Telephone Recurring and Nonrecurring Charges Tax Telephone State and Local Tax, Telephone Usage Charge Tax, Utility Taxes Vehicle License Registration Tax, Vehicle Sales Tax, Watercraft Registration Tax Well Permit Tax, Workers Compensation Tax…. These are just a few because they don't include child support, alimony, probation fees and an extensive list of others with different names, but they all are paid to the government, and that makes them taxes, too.

There are so many taxes that sometimes in frustration we scream what's the use? Those are days that you look at your paycheck and see the difference between how much you actually earned and how much you take home, and then throw up your hands. One humorist has said, "It would be nice if we could all pay our taxes with a smile, but, unfortunately, the government won't accept smiles, "you gotta have cash."

Suppose there was a tax that would save the world, would you be willing to pay one more tax?

In the Bible, there are many forms of taxation recorded, but only one was part of God's plan to save the world. The Jews first had a human labor tax where men were forced to help with public projects. There agricultural taxes and tithes for the temple. There were mandatory temple offerings, too. However, none of these taxes came close to saving the world.

However, when the time was right an order was given for one more tax and this tax would be one that would start a chain of events that would cause the savior of the world to be born in Bethlehem and prophetic outpourings to begin. The people did not like it, but God allowed it, for the world's good and so it was done.

As Christians, we know all things work according to God's will, even taxes. In his own way, he reworks the undesirable and turns it to our favor.

Exposition

This text focuses on a decree that was issued by Augustus Caesar to prompt all of the subjects of the Roman Empire to be taxed.

It was unusual for an emperor to want a detailed accounting of the people in a conquered region by family and name. It was unusual for the same order to apply to every part of the kingdom. Usually, a conquering king required a tribute to be paid annually and it was the job of the local leaders to raise the tribute when the emperor's ambassadors came to collect. However, this was ordered for all of the known world and required a personal registration of each family.

It was a tax that would be imposed on the whole world. The Roman legions had expanded the Roman Empire to possess all of the known world and this would have been the first universal worldwide tax.

Mary and Joseph walked to Bethlehem to enroll for the tax. It was frustrating and difficult, but they complied.

Little did they know that the tax they were enrolling to pay would start a chain of event that unrolls fulfilled prophesies that would change the world!

God's hand in the Plan

There is always a reason for everything that happens to believers. Only the faithful can see God's hand in the plan. Look at the tax and you will see:

THE TAX WAS PART OF GOD'S PLAN: Often we do not understand why things happen, but this tax was part of God's plan. In Micah 5:2 the prophet spoke about what is about to occur in Bethlehem, "But you, O Bethlehem Ephrathah, who are too little to be among the clans of Judah, from you shall come forth for me one who is to be ruler in Israel, whose coming forth is from of old, from ancient days." God has a plan for saving us from our enemies and saving us from ourselves. Often it looks confusing to us because we don't understand why things are happening. Why was this unusual tax decree given? Usually, men took care of such matters. It was the men who went to they the synagogue. It was the men who made the decisions. It was the men who took care of major decisions, but this tax required "all" to register in person to be taxed. It's the kind of thing that has God's fingerprints all over it; it never happens, but it is happening. It means that God is unfolding a part of his plan. Just as the tax was part of God's plan, there may be other ways go is moving in our own times to bring about justice. Sometimes it may require us to "look for the God in it" to understand it. When Rosa Parks was arrested we saw the injustice inflicted on one woman, but when we look for the "God in it" we see God unfolding a plan that ultimately tore down segregation walls forever. We see the injustices of police brutality in Fergurson, MO, and New York City and see the injustice of the moment. While God didn't cause the shooting or the police chokehold, in the aftermath it is not hard to see God moving to change the justice system and police response across the nation. In all of its atrocity, only the faithful can see the righteousness of God in the passion of the protests. Whatever situation perplexes us, either as people, nation or family, look for "the God in it " and you see him moving to make "all things for the good of them that love God."

THE TAX WAS IMPOSED AT THE PROPER TIME: Often we question why things happen at the time that they happen, but in hindsight we see that God answers prayers and sends deliverance when the time is right. The declaration of the tax is a case in point. According to Matthew Henry, this tax was decreed at the height of the fourth monarchy, in the days of Augustus Caesar. Had it been declared earlier it would not have gone all to all the civilized world and thus might not have included Mary and Joseph. Each monarchy prior to Augustus Caesar expanded its kingdom to reach further around the world. At the time of the tax the Roman empire extended itself further than ever before or since, including Parthia one way, and Britain another way; so that it was then called The empire of the whole earth, and here that empire is called all the world. When the time was right, the tax was declared.

In the same way, God acts in our lives. When the time is right, God acts; not by our schedule, but only when the conditions are perfect for the execution of His will. We pray and often expect an instant result, but the answer does not come instantly; sometimes it even appears delayed. Yet in God's own time we have found that he acted accordingly. What if God had acted immediately and given us that answer that we sought at the moment we asked for it? Many would have married the wrong spouse, bought the wrong car, supported the wrong cause or boarded the wrong flight. We are satisfied that God moves in his own time and way to respond to our needs. Whenever he acts is the right time. The old warriors had it right, "He may not come when you want him, but he always on time."

THE TAX CHANGED THE FAMILY'S PLAN: The tax changed Mary and Joseph's family plan to fit God's plan. Obviously, it was the family plan for this engaged teenager to stay at home and prepare to give birth. It definitely was not part of their family plan for them to walk 68 miles to Bethlehem with no guaranteed housing during the ninth month of her pregnancy. However, the tax changed the family's plan because every person was required to registered in the city of the family's ancestry. It turns out that the abrupt change in the family's plan, as unsettling as it was, ordered by God himself. Families make great plans for their protection, recreation, and procreation. Sometimes things happen to change the plans, and some grumble and complain. However, before we complain, if the family is a Godly family, changes have a reason. Perhaps something that should happen in the plan will not; someone who is suppose to benefit from won't be there; or something that would hurt the family will occur if carried out the way it is planned. We may be disappointed when circumstances change our plans, but at the same time, we must know that behind the scenes God has his protective arms around a praying family; if the family plan didn't work out, there is a reason. For Mary and Joseph, the tax changed their family plan, for us, other circumstances and events may change our plans. We know, however, that whatever the plan change is, God is working it to our benefit, and we accept his will.

It saved the world

Finally, brothers and sisters, Augustus Caesar announced a tax for all the world, but it ended being a tax that triggered a birth that would save the world from its sins.

The emperor knew that his tax would impact the world, but he did not know that it would be a tax that would that ultimately start a chain of events that would save the world.

The emperor declared a tax, but it wasn't the tax itself that saved the world, but it was the son God who was born down in Bethlehem.

Because of the tax, Mary and Joseph went to Bethlehem and the scripture was fulfilled. The scripture said in Bethlehem there would be a sign

In Bethlehem, a sign will be given, so Augustus you must declare the tax.

In Bethlehem, a child will be born that will give us a new reason to sing, "I'm so glad that trouble don't always last," so Augustus you must declare the tax.

Down in Bethlehem, God gave the world a sign.

This child shall be a sign that:

—When darkness covers the land, God is able to turn darkness into light!

—Although war is talked about in every corner, there will be peace on earth and good will toward all men!

—That although problems make life difficult, that God will make a way somehow!

Augustus, you must declare the tax because down in Bethlehem a special child must be born, for Isaiah said in Isaiah 9:6 "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; And the government shall be on his shoulder; his name shall be called:

—Wonderful. Counselor. The Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace!"

Augustus, you must declare the tax because Bethlehem is the place where the sign of God's unending love will begin. I heard John 3:16 say, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

Augustus, you must declare the tax because down in Bethlehem a child must be born that will be born who will usher in a brand new day.

We should praise God for the tax.

We ought to praise the Lord because even when things look to be against us, we turn around it's blessing us!

Every day, God is blessing us!

Every day, God is still opening doors!

Every day, God is still wiping weeping eyes!

Every day, God is still raising bowed down heads!

Every day, God is still putting food on our tables!

Every day, God is still making a way out of no way!

He has brought us out of darkness, into his marvelous light!

We should praise God because one day that child that was born down in Bethlehem grew to be the man who carried an old rugged cross to Calvary

We ought to tell somebody that our Good is a good God!

Out on Calvary, we saw the sign of God's abiding love.

For he died out on Calvary's hill, but Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave!

With all power!

All power in his hands!

No. 9666-Christmas

All I want for Christmas

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 13, 2014

SCRIPTURE: For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men, Teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world; Looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ;" Titus 2:11-13

Introduction

Remember the children's song, "All I want for Christmas is my two front teeth?" It was cute. It was a child's wish. Children wish for many things for Christmas and foremost on their lists are toys, games and "stuff." Ironically, the adult wish list also includes: "Toys" and "Stuff," just on a larger scale.

What do you want for Christmas? A house? A car? A big screen T.V.? Clothing? Games? Do you want your bills paid or better health? Those who are trying to get you something for Christmas would appreciate a hint so that their gift will be appreciated.

We know what we want from family and friends because many of us have been telling everyone for weeks, but what would like from God? Suppose you could ask God for one gift, and you were guaranteed to receive your request, what would be your request? Would you ask God for money, fame, power, success? What do you want from God?

God gives gifts all of the time. Whether his gifts are received as great gifts depends on our attitudes. A certain man had two sons who were just the opposite of each other. One son always looked on the bright side of everything. He always had hope and could never be disappointed. The other son always found something wrong with any gift he received; everything was a problem. One son loved horses the pessimistic son loved technology. The father decided to see how his sons would respond to gifts they received on Christmas morning. The pessimistic son was the hardest to please, so he was given an 80-inch flat screen T.V., a Xbox, a box full of video games, an Ipad, and two cell phones. The other son was given a large box filled with horse manure and nothing else. On Christmas morning, the father found his first son sitting in the middle of the floor crying and complaining. "Look at all of this stuff. My friends will be jealous. I'll have to read all of these instructions, my room is filled with clutter, all of my allowance will be used paying phone bills, this is miserable!" The father opened the door to the next room and saw his other son jumping up and down with joy throwing horse manure everywhere as he dug through the box. Asked why he was so happy, he said, "With all of this manure, there's got to be a pony around somewhere!"

Sometimes we say the same thing. With all of the troubles that life brings, there's got to be a blessing coming pretty soon!

What we want from God is not, "things" but his "grace." Grace is the heart of the Christmas message; it is unmerited grace and favor of God symbolized by the birth of Jesus. Grace, when shared by God, showers us with patience, forgiveness, and opportunity. When shared by our neighbors, it makes the world a better place in which to live. What better gift could any believer request of God than to have a never ending flow of his grace. With grace we can deal with all of life's boxes of bad situations and know, "there's a pony around somewhere!"

As Christians, we thank God for the Christ Child and for God's gift of grace and favor. It is a gift that keeps on giving long after day itself has passed.

Exposition

This text focuses on an explanation of grace to Titus.

Grace is explained as the free favor and goodwill of God that is given to men who have not earned it, but have received it freely from God.

Grace first appeared among men with the birth of Christ. For even his birth was an unmerited example of God's love and willingness to give to those who have not earned it, his favor, strength, and salvation.

The story of Christmas is, at its heart, the story of grace. The coming of Jesus Christ into our world 2,000 years ago is the affirmation of God's unmerited favor to us. When we hear the account of Christ's birth in the 2nd chapter of Luke coupled with this Epistle from Paul who writes, "For the GRACE of God has appeared...Jesus... bringing salvation to all..." It becomes clear that the essence of Christmas is the appearance of Grace in the world.

If grace is emulated by those who follow Christ in our neighborhoods, schools and work places, then there would be peace on earth and goodwill toward men.

Ways of Grace

If all we received for Christmas was grace, what would we have?

GRACE SUPPLIES US WITH THE ESSENTIALS FOR THE ABUNDANT LIFE: If all we receive for Christmas is the grace of God we would have everything necessary for the abundant life. It is a good thing to have the grace of God. God's grace supplies us with what we need to live life abundantly. 2 Cor. 9:8 says "And God is able to make all grace abound toward you: that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work."

It is marvelous to experience the grace of God because his grace supplies the:

—Soul with salvation

—Heart with joy

—Mind with peace

—Hands with tenderness
—Feet with Strength
—Eyes with compassion

The sweetest song that was ever sung was about God's grace!

No wonder the songwriter declares: "Grace, God's grace! His grace is sufficient for me!" Another song writer put it this way: "Wonderful grace of Jesus, greater than all my sin. How shall my tongue describe it, where shall its praises begin? Taking away my burden, setting my spirit free, for the wonderful grace of Jesus reaches me!"

GRACE COMPELS US TO GO FORWARD EVEN THOUGH WE HAVE MADE MISTAKES: Many have made mistakes in life, love, business and their personal affairs. Often these individuals give up on life and throw in the towel. However, the grace of God provides us with the knowledge that we can be forgiven for the blame of past wrongs. Most important, we can start again with one more chance.

There is no better gift to receive from God than his saving grace. With grace, the past is blotted out, and nothing remains, but our future. That's why Romans 8:1 says, "There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit."

The forgiving grace of God is one of the greatest parts of the Christian life.

We are not worthy of being saved, but Grace gives us another chance!

We should be condemned, but grace opens up the arms of forgiveness!

We receive the gift of eternal life. Romans 6:23 "For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord!"

Give me grace for Christmas and I will live forever!

GRACE HELPS US TO LOOK UP WHEN OTHERS LOOK DOWN: If we have God's grace, we also have his assurance that he will never leave us or stop providing for us. Whether it is food, clothing or shelter, we know that some way, somehow, God will see that we have what is necessary, and even more. What we have may come through a variety of streams, but we must know that at the head of each of those streams is the wellspring of God's grace. When we are tempted to worry we are reminded of Jesus' words in Matthew 6:28-30 "And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin: And yet I say unto you, That even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. Wherefore, if God so clothes the grass of the field, which today is, and tomorrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?" When others look down in hard times, we continue to look up because his eye is on the sparrow and I know he watches me.

Grace is here

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that the Grace of God first appeared in Bethlehem, but is among us now each and every day.

Paul told Titus in 2:11, "For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men."

This appearance is what the shepherds saw on a silent night in Bethlehem!

This appearance is what the angels sang about when they declared, "Peace on earth and goodwill toward all men."

The Christ Child symbolized the availability of God's grace to every person on earth.

That's why the world gets excited at Christmas time because God's grace is here. If God's grace is here whatever we need, he will supply!

If we need to be forgiven, God's mercy is sufficient to forgive us!

If we need comfort, God's peace is sufficient to comfort us!

If we need to be satisfied, God's storehouse is sufficient to satisfy us!

If we need healing, God's touch is sufficient to heal!

If we need to be strong, God's power is sufficient to strengthen us!

If we need to be challenged, God's work is sufficient to challenge us!

If we need to be refreshed, God's fountain is sufficient to restore us!

What the shepherd's saw in the manger was a baby, but what the angels saw was grace, wrapped in swaddling clothes!

On that that first Christmas, the world received what it needed.

That's why somebody today is saying, "All I want for Christ is the grace of God."

If we have the Grace of God, we have more than enough!

If we have the Grace of God, our barrel is never empty!

If we have the Grace of God, we never walk in a courtroom without an able attorney!

If we have the Grace of God, we never enter a sickroom without a first class physician!

All I want for Christmas is the grace of God because:

It's the grace of God that keeps us!

It's the grace of God that secures us!

It's the grace of God that gives us one more chance!

This grace was paid for out on Calvary!

This grace was delivered through an empty tomb!

This grace keeps blessing us every day!

No.9667-Inspiration

And it came to pass

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 21, 2014

SCRIPTURE: "And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us. " Luke 2:15

Introduction

What's your favorite bible verse? Larry Moffett tells the story of a church congregation in which people were asking each other for favorite Bible phrase. Mr. Alvis said, "Jesus wept." Charles said, "Nothing can separate us from the love of God." Ms. Maxine, who taught Sunday School, said, "We love because God first loved us." All eyes focused on Ms. Shaky Head who said with an intensity and a sparkle in her eye: " "And it came to pass"- Someone else whispered, "This too shall pass." Charles, age 20, said, "For real? That phrase doesn't mean anything." "Yes it does," she said firmly. "I know that when a heartache comes, it will not stay; it comes —to pass. It's not going to be around forever."

It comes to pass was the way Miss Shaky Head understood it. And after that others have looked at it much closer to reveal that it is an important phrase that speaks to promises, predictions and fulfillments.

There are many people who make promises loosely without considering that when they fail to do their part they create a wave of problems for others far greater than they can imagine.

Our society has come to doubt any promises it hears because so many have not been kept from elected officials all the way down to the local weather man. We've seen it all.

The one bright spot that we have is that our God has never made us a promise He did not keep. No matter what He promised to those who trusted him, He delivered just as He said He would.

As Christians, we are confident that God is not slack in the fulfillment of his commitments to us, even if that promise meant presenting His son to the world as a precious gift for the remission of sin.

Exposition

This text focuses on the shepherds as they go to Bethlehem to see Christ child that had been foretold in scripture and announced by the Angels.

The phrase “and it came to pass” is mentioned more than 86 times throughout the bible. It is used in two ways: 1) To indicate the passage of time and 2) To indicate the fulfillment of a promise.

In both the old and New Testament the phrase is often used to denote the culmination of an experience. Here are four examples.

Gen. 8:6: And it came to pass at the end of forty days, that Noah opened the window of the ark which he had made:

Jos. 4:18: And it came to pass, when the priests that bare the ark of the covenant of the LORD were come up out of the midst of Jordan, and the soles of the priests’ feet were lifted up unto the dry land, that the waters of Jordan returned unto their place, and flowed over all his banks, as they did before.

Luke 24:1-4: The resurrection of Christ is declared by two angels to the women that were standing by the grave. And they entered in, and found not the body of the Lord Jesus. And it came to pass, as they were much perplexed thereabout, behold, two men stood by them in shining garments.

These texts show the passage of time between the beginning and end of an experience. Whatever was promised did not happen instantly, but in its proper time, it came to pass.

A variation of the phrase, “come to pass” or “came to pass” shows the fulfillment of promises.

Luke 21:9, But when ye shall hear of wars and commotions, be not terrified: for these things must first come to pass; but the end is not by and by.

John 13:19, Now I tell you before it come, that, when it is come to pass, ye may believe that I am he.

The text in Luke 2 contains both “And it came to pass” and “is come to pass,” indicating that after the passage of time what God promised came to fulfillment.

Therefore, the phrase “It came to pass” came to confirm that God’s promises were delivered, what was sought was found, and what was suffered transitioned into better times.

In each instance, God responded to something that mankind needed or wanted. His response was not always immediate by man’s measure of time, but it was answered in the span of time needed for an ample response.

Surely these instances and others prove that “He may not come when you want him, but He’s always on time.”

God promised that a child would be born in Bethlehem who would be called the Prince of Peace. The shepherds went to see the baby because it was a promise of God that had come to pass.

Five Great Promises to Believers

GOD HAS PROMISED TO SUPPLY OUR NEEDS; IT WILL COME TO PASS: He has promised to supply every need we have. The Bible says: "But my God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus". That's Philippians 4:19. God has obligated Himself only to the extent of our needs. That would include food, clothing, shelter, companionship, love, and salvation thru Jesus Christ. It would not include the multiplicity of luxuries that we have come to think of as needs.

GOD'S PROMISE OF SUFFICIENT GRACE WILL COME TO PASS: God has promised that His grace will be sufficient for us. The bible says in 1 Corinthians 12:9 "And he said unto me, my grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness. Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me. "He has made provision for our salvation by His grace through faith.

GOD HAS PROMISED NOT TO UNREASONABLY TEMPT US; IT WILL COME TO PASS: God has promised that His children will not be overtaken with temptation. Instead, He assures us that a way of escape will be provided. "There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it." Jude wrote: "Now unto Him that is able to keep you from falling and to present you faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy" (Jude v 24).

GOD HAS PROMISED TO WORK IT TO OUR ADVANTAGE; IT WILL COME TO PASS: God has promised that all things work together for good to those who love and serve Him faithfully. "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." Romans 8:28 No matter how frustrating a situation gets, it will work to the advantage of true believers.

It will come to pass

Finally, brothers and sisters, even though it appears a long time coming; stand on the promises of God because they will come to pass.

When God made his prophetic promises about the birth of Christ they seemed farfetched and unrealistic but millions of believers stood on his promises.

When Isaiah announced the promise of God that "Behold a virgin shall conceive and bear a son and shall call his name Immanuel;The government shall be on his shoulders; they shall call him Wonderful, Counselor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace! It seemed impossible but believers stood on the promises of God.

Today our testimony should be the same, no matter what comes our way, we will stand on the promises of God.

There is somebody here today who can testify that God's promises to them have been faithful.

Has His promise to supply your every need, proven to be true?

Has His promise to be with you, even through the valley of the shadow of death, proven to be true?

Has His promise to be with you alway, even to the end of the world, proven to be true?

Has his promise to take every bad thing that happened to you and work it out to your advantage, proven to be true?

God does not make idle promises. If He makes us a promise it will be kept.

If it seems as if it is taking a long time for those promises to get to you, just keep standing on his word.

When things get rough for you, stand on the promises of the Lord!

When mountains get too high, he promises that every mountain shall be made low!

When valleys get too deep, he promises that every valley shall be exalted!

When rough places get too rough, he promises that rough places shall be made plain!

As I close, I am reminded of an old man who heard the voice of God one night in his sleep. God told him to invest in a house that stood on the corner of 3rd and Main. God told him to take the contents of the house and throw it away and he would be blessed. Sight unseen the man took all of his savings and bought the house. When his children found that their father had bought an old run down house that had been abandoned for years they became concerned. Every day he moved out a piece of furniture and stood on the porch. The trash pile became increasingly larger as he emptied the house and stood on the porch. The last thing he took from the house was an old picture that was hanging on the wall.

As he threw the picture on the trash pile, an art dealer had stopped at the red light. He recognized the picture, jumped from his car and took the old man to the gallery. Within a week, the picture was determined to be a collector's item and the man was paid several million dollars. The art dealer asked, "Why were you just standing on the porch every day when you had a fortune on the wall!" The old man answered, "I didn't know what was in this old house. You thought I was standing on the porch, but I was standing on the promises of God!"

I don't know about you, but I've decided to stand on the promises of God!

Storms may rise!

Winds may blow but I'm standing on the promises of God!

When the world cried out for a savior, the answer was already on the way! God prepared to send his Son to earth to begin the redemption process.
The phrase "and it came to pass" indicates that the time of social pregnancy was ready for delivery.

The phrase, "and it came to pass" indicates, that the prayers that had been prayed, were about to be answered!

The phrase, "and it came to pass" indicates, that their 400 years without the word of God was about to end!

The phrase, “and it came to pass” indicates that their spiritual drought was about to be watered by the living word of God!

The phrase, “and it came to pass” indicates that God was ready to move; and every believer knows that when God gets ready, you got to move!

And it came to pass, in the fullness of time, that God rearranged the biological processes of a woman named Mary!

And it came to pass, in the fullness of time, God made a hole in the ordered processes of nature!

And it came to pass, in the fullness of time, God sent the Word to dwell among men!

At the right time, and on time, he revealed himself to the world!

At the right time, and on time, he began a three-year ministry!

At the right time, and on time, he took up an old rugged cross!

At the right time, and on time, he died out on Calvary!

After the three days and nights, at the right time, an on time

He arose from the grave!

With all power in his hands!

No. 9668-New Year

I will go before thee

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 4, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "I will go before thee, and make the crooked places straight: I will break in pieces the gates of brass, and cut in sunder the bars of iron: And I will give thee the treasures of darkness, and hidden riches of secret places, that thou mayest know that I, the LORD, which call thee by thy name, am the God of Israel. Isaiah 45:2-3

Introduction

Did you notice that some places in the world celebrated the new year ahead of others? The giant ball in New York's Times Square dropped a full hour before the Fleur-de-lis dropped in New Orleans. It was two hours later before San Francisco saw the first minutes of the new year. When New York shouted happy New Year! It was already 4 p.m. the next day in parts of Australia. When any New Year begins, many parts of the world have already been in and are well into the next day.

No matter when the new year arrived, God was there first! That's comforting for believers because he has promised to go ahead of us and make things ready for those who are walking the path of righteousness.

In Western movies, every wagon train usually had a scout that went miles ahead of the wagon train to scout out trails, look out for danger and to plan detours if necessary. The scout was invaluable to the safety of the travelers because he helped chart both the direction and pace of their journey. In a similar way, God goes ahead of believers to do the same. While we waited for the new year to begin; he was already there making a way for us, blazing a trail and leaving trail signs for us to follow.

There were no cowboys in the Bible, but there were shepherds. It is said that a shepherd, before allowing his sheep to graze in a field, will first go into the field and prepare it for the sheep. Before the sheep arrive at pasture, the shepherd pulls up poison weeds and chases off harmful animals. When the field is rid of the dangers, the sheep are allowed to graze. Jesus, the Good Shepherd, works that way with us. He often goes ahead and spots trouble and prevents us from going in directions that will harm us. We have witnessed this truth as we have seen jobs in certain areas denied to us in one company but given in another. There may have been other obstacles unseen to us that our shepherd had to clear before allowing us to graze.

As we have grown in grace and witnessed the dawn of many new years, we have also learned to trust that our Saviour has gone before us. We have learned to wait until he gives us the all clear sign before we buy that new house, new car, or change our direction. We wait because we know that our Shepherd has gone ahead of us to clear our path, and he will never lead us into harm's way.

As Christians, we rejoice at the beginning of the New Year. We are not hesitant because we are sure that our God has blazed a path for us that will lead us safely through whatever dangers lie ahead.

Exposition

This text demonstrates how God went before Israel and prepared for their return to their homeland in ways that were not understandable at the time.

The people of Israel were scattered everywhere. In the North, they were taken captive by the Assyrians. In the south, they were captured by the Babylonians. They longed to go home, but it was not possible, that is until God began to move.

Israel was not aware, but God leaped ahead two centuries and laid the groundwork for their return. He revealed a portion of his plan to the Prophet Isaiah who prophesied that a King of Persia named Cyrus would be used by God to bring his people home.

Over 200 years the Assyrians who captured Israel were defeated by the Babylonians, who also had captured Judah. A third and more powerful country, Persia, was headed by Cyrus, one of the greatest conquerors in world history. Cyrus wanted to become the leader of the entire world, but Babylon stood in the way. He decided to take on Babylon despite the fact that the city was fortified by high walls that were secured with gates of bronze and supported by huge irons bars. No enemy had ever broken through its gates.

God worked to free his people, and the prophet Isaiah predicted that God would use Cyrus to get the job done.

Why Cyrus? Unlike all other conquering leaders, Cyrus had a policy of releasing conquered people to return to their own countries. God planned to see to it that Cyrus defeated Babylon because he would allow the exiles to return home.

The prophecy was specific. God promised to break the gates of brass and crumble the bars of iron and expose all of the treasures of Babylon to him. Soon after it would be obvious that this was being done "that thou may knowest that I am the Lord."

In 539 B.C. Cyrus defeated Babylon. The gates of brass were broken, and the bars of brass were cut through like paper. Soon after, Israel was freed to return home, and less than a decade later, Cyrus himself died, but not before accomplishing God's will.

Israel returned home to rebuild the walls, the temple, and its worship. Their journey was safe, protected and without incident because God went before them to make all of the crooked places straight.

The message for us

The message for biblical Israel and Judah was that God went before them to make their crooked places straight. What God did for the faithful in the old days, he still does for the faithful today. In the two verses of this text. There is a warning, a promise, and a plan.

THERE ARE CROOKED PLACES AHEAD: The prophecy that Isaiah gave contained a warning that there are crooked places ahead. The road will not be easy. Believers should not step into any new situation believing that it will be a piece of cake. God may have promised it, but he did not promise that it would be a sinch. Their escape from Egypt, the crossing of the Red Sea, the capturing of the Promised Land were promised, but they had to fight every step of the way to make them happen. Today, believers should know that the devil has no intention of giving up any ground without a fight. The opportunity that God makes available often rests in crooked places or in hard to reach crevices. The financial security we all seek, it's out there, but it will be a challenge to acquire! That family goal lingers on the horizon, but it dangles over dangerous cliffs of risk, indecision and lack of faith.

There is no year that will not have its share of trouble. That's a crooked place.

There will be some element of sickness and disappointment. They are crooked places.

The good news is that God has already gone ahead of us and is working on those crooked places, preparing the way for us. They won't disappear, but he is preparing the way for us to deal with them and come through on the other side. This is the good news of Isaiah 40:4-5, "Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be made low: and the crooked places shall be made straight, and the rough places plain: And the glory of the LORD shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together: for the mouth of the LORD hath spoken it."

FOR EVERY CROOKED PLACE, THERE IS A PROMISE: The prophecy that Isaiah gave about Cyrus spelled out how God would deal with the major obstacle to Israel's return home, i.e., the walls and gates of Babylon. Those gates and walls would be removed, and God's will would be accomplished exposing the people of God to the hidden treasures that come from faith in God. One by one, every one of the obstacles occurred, and one by one, God dealt with each one. That's what believers today should expect. Obstacles will come in the new year, but one day at a time, God will go before us and help us deal with them. Sometimes he will warn us. At other times, he will give us detours and alternate routes and plans. There will also be times when he will tell us to walk straight through the trouble depending on him to be our shield on either side.

God has also promised to unlock the secrets to fulfillment and happiness that have evaded many over the years. Read the verse again, "And I will give thee the treasures of darkness, and hidden riches of secret places, that thou mayest know that I, the LORD, which call thee by thy name, am the God of Israel." The greatest treasure that we can ever realize is to know God for ourselves. His constant presence unleashes a hidden potential that we have had within us for years untapped. His spiritual guidance can help us to go to places we have never gone before, avoid pitfalls that have tripped others and guarantee us a better life in him. It is a hidden secret, but the faithful know, that eyes have not seen nor has it entered into the heart of man to even imagine the great life that God has in store for those who trust him. It's a promise from God; he's already working on it, even though the year has only just begun.

GOD HAS A PLAN TO GUIDE US THROUGH: Just as God had a plan for Israel to return home that unfolded one decade at a time; God also has a plan for believers, too. It is rarely revealed instantly but is often unfolded one month, week or even one day at a time. God had a plan, Israel could not see it, but it worked to their advantage. Just as Israel could not see it, but walked by faith, believers today must also walk by faith. We don't know how God is going to clear the path for us. However, we trust him unconditionally. We know he always has a plan for our families, and he will not let us down. The fact that God has a plan is one of the reasons he goes before us, to make the way.

God has a plan for every believer that has our name on it. Isaiah 43:1 says, "O Israel, Fear not: for I have redeemed thee, I have called thee by thy name; thou art mine."

Since we know that God has a personal plan for us, we must order our steps to follow the plan he has for us in the new year. If that plan calls for us to make more time for him, humble ourselves to his will, or follow him without question, then that should be our decision. Every believer should decide to wait on the Lord knowing that "They that wait on the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up on wings as eagles, they shall run and not be weary; they shall walk and not faint!"

A great year is coming

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should move into the new year with confidence, that God has already checked it out, and everything is going to be alright!

When Israel heard Isaiah's words they had no idea what they meant, God was so far ahead of them that they could not see how he was working things for them.

There are at least seven blessings that God is already preparing for the faithful in 2015.

In Deuteronomy 4:39 he promises to be above us and to guard us against hurt harm and danger.

In Deuteronomy 33:23 he promises to go underneath us to support us to keep us from falling

In Isaiah 52:12 he promises to go behind us and provide us a reward for faithfulness.

In Isaiah 45:2 he promises to go ahead of us and to lead us safely through.

In Psalm 16:8 he promises to be at our right hand to protect us in times of danger.

In Psalm 125:2 he promises to be a shield all around us.

In Ezekiel 36:27 he promises to be within us as a companion and a comforter.

I don't know what the tomorrow will bring, but I know what God has done in the past. I know what God is doing right now!

If I can just leave here today remembering these simple words, "I will go before thee," it won't matter what comes in the days ahead.

Because I remember that God is going before me:

—There won't be a CROSS that I won't be able to bear;

—There won't be a MOUNTAIN that I won't be able to climb!

—There won't be an ENEMY that I won't be able to defeat;
—There won't be a BATTLE I won't be able to endure!
—There won't be a DARKNESS that keeps me from seeing the light!

I don't know about, but I have a good feeling about 2015.

In Bible numerology, the number15 is the year of rest. It follows 14 a year of deliverance from trouble.

On the 15th day of the first Hebrew month is the feast of the unleavened bread, a day of rest!

On the 15th day of the 7th month is the Feast of the Tabernacles, a day of rest!

On the 15th day of Nisan, Abraham was told that his children would be slaves

Many years later on the 15th day of the same month when the Passover meal was complete they marched out of Egypt as free men.

I've got a good feeling about 2015.

Hezekiah lay sick on his bed, but he turned his face to the wall and prayed and God gave him 15 more years!

The longest words in the Bible have 15 letters, words like bloodguiltiness, unrighteousness, and stumblingblocks all have 15 negative letters, but there are four words with 15 letters that can put them all to shame, "The power of Jesus."

I have a good feeling about 2015 because

In the 15th year of the reign of Tiberius Caesar's reign John the Baptist began to declare to the world "Prepare ye the way."

I don't know about you, but I've got a good feeling about 15.

I got a feeling that God is going to open up the windows of heaven and pour out his favor!

Only one name will get the glory and that name is Jesus! He carried an old cross up Golgotha's hill. He hung on the cross from the 6th to 9th hour and the ninth hour is what we would call in military time 1500 hours.

He died out on Calvary and the buried him on the 15th day of the first month in Joseph's new tomb!

But Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave with all power in His hands!

He's going ahead to prepare the way, that's why the old saints sang, "Guide me oh thou great Jehovah, pilgrim through this barren land. I am weak but thou art mighty hold me with thou powerful hand!"

No. 9669-Inspiration

Leave Your Stuff Behind

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 11, 2015

SCRIPTURE:"And take your father and your households, and come unto me: and I will give you the good of the land of Egypt, and ye shall eat the fat of the land. Now thou art commanded, this do ye; take you wagons out of the land of Egypt for your little ones, and for your wives, and bring your father, and come. Also regard not your stuff; for the good of all the land of Egypt is yours. Genesis 45:18-20

Introduction

Have you ever had to worry about checking the weight of your baggage at an airport? Most airports have a 50 pound limit on checked bags, a detail usually overlooked by travelers in a hurry to reach their destinations. If a traveler's bag is too heavy, it must be lightened. It's sometimes humorous to see passengers at the airport with suitcases open taking out shoes, or other heavy items to trim down to the baggage weight limit. Sometimes, travelers take items from one suitcase and put it in another. However, there are times when they simply leave items in the airport as unnecessary. Strangely, the same passengers on the return trip try to pack all of their souvenirs in the same tightly packed suitcase and find themselves leaving even more behind on the return trip.

When it comes to our life's journey, each of us has a load limit that we carry successfully. If we are not careful, we can easily go over the limit. When the concerns of life accumulate, they become burdens. After we've carried them for a while, the burdens seem to get heavier. In actuality, the burdens don't get heavier; we get weaker. Accumulated concern makes it hard to enjoy life to its fullest.

Consider the young woman who had found herself a new apartment and was preparing to move. Her girlfriend had come to help her but found her sitting in the middle of packing boxes crying. When asked to explain her tears she said, she never realized how much "stuff" she had accumulated. "I'm not going to be able to take all of this to my new apartment" she moaned. "What am I going to do with all this stuff?" There were whatnots and souvenirs, gifts, mementos, gadgets and plethora of others. She was a complete mess. "What am I going to do with all this stuff?" Her friend, who had faced the same dilemma once said: "Take only what you need to get where you're going!" With that, the young lady painfully decided to leave behind many things which tied her to the past and took only those things she needed to claim her future.

Are we sitting at the threshold of the future trying to take with us all of the old baggage from the past? Are we finding that we have too much "stuff?" Maybe it's time for us to part with some of our "stuff" if it is not necessary for the journey. It might be wise to take only what we need to get where we are going!

As Christians, we have been charged to help build the kingdom of God. We are often frustrated on our journey because we have focused too heavily on hanging on to stuff. We have the promise of God, however, that we should move forward leaving our "stuff" behind, taking only what we need, and he'll take care of the rest!"

Exposition

This text focuses on a command of Pharaoh to the brothers of Joseph to return to Egypt, but not to worry about bringing all of their stuff.

Joseph's brothers had sold him into slavery and reported him dead to the family. Years later, God raised up Joseph to be a high official in the land of Egypt. When a famine broke out in the land, the brothers were forced to come to Egypt to try to get grain to feed their families. Joseph recognized them although they did not recognize their brother.

The Pharaoh admired Joseph and extended a great hand of charity to them by sending them home to get other members of their families and bring them to Egypt. Pharaoh prepared a special place for them in a very fertile area of Egypt called "Goshen." There were about 70 family members, so Pharaoh went a step further, he sent wagons to bring back the family members and their essentials.

However, Pharaoh noted that they only needed to bring their essentials, there was no need for them to bring their "stuff."

The term "stuff" is used in the text to describe a wide variety of items not important enough to name. Stuff was not defined, but it implied that they would not need furniture, ornaments, whatnots, etc. He said all of these things would be provided for them at the king's expense once they reached the land of Goshen.

In other places in scripture "stuff" is used in a similar manner. In Exodus 22:7 a thief is ordered to pay double if he steals stuff that his victim has borrowed from someone else. In Joshua 7:11, the people were hiding forbidden things among their own "stuff." Luke 17:31 says that when the Lord returns he that is one the housetop won't have time to go to his house and get his stuff.

Stuff seems to be that which is meaningful to us, but not essential to the journey.

Since Pharaoh intended to provide everything that Israel needed, they had no real need of stuff that would simply weigh them down.

When Jesus commissioned his apostles in Matthew and in Luke, he commissioned them to heal, cast out devils and witness, but they couldn't take any stuff with them.

They were also told to not to worry about the usual concerns of living; God would provide. He sent his apostles and 70 others and charged to take no concern for the usual demands of life because God would provide.

In Luke 10:4 they were commanded not to carry a purse. That meant they were not to be overly concerned with money matters. God would provide. They were also told not to carry scrip. Scrip is a pouch in which food is carried on a journey. If they carried no script, that means they carried no food with them. Neither were they to worry themselves with packing extra shoes or clothing items.

The first missionaries were told to make no provision for themselves beyond the essentials. Today, we are charged to take care of the essentials for our families. However, that we are encouraged to avoid the unnecessary, pursue the mission and leave the stuff behind.

Heavy Baggage Is A Burden

As we face new directions and the remaining months of a new year, we must consider whether we are carrying so much baggage that we can barely move along.

If you have traveled, you have perhaps seen two types of travelers. One is at the airport with large suitcases and is struggling to make it to a terminal. Another has an equal amount of baggage but has a small dolly upon which he or she rolls the suitcase. At first sight, it appears that the one whose suitcase is on wheels was the smarter traveler until you see a third traveler who only carries a clothes bag and briefcase or purse. One had a heavy suitcase on wheels, but it was still a heavy suitcase it was just handled easily by innovation. At some point, the wheels came off, and the suitcase became a heavy load again.

There are many of us who are carrying heavy suitcases into the new year. Granted some handle their loads with grace and style as if it were rolling along on wheels, but it is nevertheless a heavy load. At some point, we reach a stairway or find that the wheels don't help and feel the weight of the load.

What's in your suitcase? What kind of excess baggage are you carrying?

GUILT: Some carry guilt with them every day. They made a mistake a while back and they have never forgiven themselves. They blame themselves constantly. Even though they have prayed to God and he has forgiven them and washed away the guilt with his blood, they carry guilt around with them. It's a heavy load. Sometimes they are smiling and shaking hands and seem warm and carefree. That's because they have put their guilt on wheels, but they are still carrying it around.

We should travel lighter, leaving the guilt behind, especially in light of Hebrews 9:14, "How much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered himself without spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God?" Since Jesus has forgiven us for our mistakes, we should not make our load heavier!

FEARS: Some carry fear with them every day. They are afraid of failure. Afraid to take opportunities and to step out on faith. Fear consumes them every day. They cannot get away from it. From year to year, they live in fear of losing their jobs, getting demoted, or not being accepted. They constantly live in fear! However, when we are on God's side, we have nothing to fear from life. Psalm 118:6 says, "The LORD is on my side; I will not fear: what can man do unto me?" Psalm 27:1 puts it this way: "The LORD is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? The LORD is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?"

WORRIES: Perhaps the heaviest piece of luggage to carry around is worry. Worry is more than concern; it is over concern. Those who worry invent scenarios that may never happen. They muse over projected tragedy, and they make a bad case even worse because of their intense worrying.

Many get bags under their eyes, lose sleep, suffer deteriorating health and stress attacks because they worry so much. They carry it around with them daily. Jesus, addressing this subject, made this response in Matthew 6:28-30, "And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin: And yet I say unto you, That even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. Wherefore, if God so clothes the grass of the field, which today is, and tomorrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?"

A songwriter worded it differently: "Why should I be discouraged. Why should the shadows come? Why should my heart be lonely and long for heaven and home? When Jesus is my portion. A constant friend is he. For his eye is on the sparrow and I know he watches me."

Take It To The Lord

Finally, brothers and sister, if we are traveling to a God inspired destination, what should we do with burdens, guilt, fear, worry and the seemingly endless list of problems and troubles that are beyond our control? We should leave them behind.

We know this is true because the Word of God points us to Matthew 11:28 "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." Verse 30 adds the finishing touches: Mat 11:30 says, "For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light."

What do we do with burdens and excess baggage? Give it to Jesus!

When Job found himself surrounded by burdens and troubles, he decided that it was best to give it to God! In Job 5:7-9 Job says, "Yet man is born unto trouble, as the sparks fly upward. I would seek unto God, and unto God would I commit my cause: Which doeth great things and unsearchable; marvelous things without number:" Job decided to take his burden to God!

When David found himself surrounded troubles and trials, he decided it was best to look up. Psalm 121 says, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help, my help cometh from the Lord who made the heaven and the earth!"

Leaving your stuff behind means traveling without unnecessary burdens!

Leaving your stuff behind means trusting God to carry the heavy end of the load!

Leaving your stuff behind means working on the middle and trusting God to make the ends meet!

What do you do with a suitcase full of burdens? Take it to the Lord!

That's what the songwriter had in mind when he wrote: "If the world from you withhold of its silver and its gold and you have to get along with meager fare. Just remember in his word, how he feeds the little bird and take your burdens to the Lord and leave it there!"

If you leave it there, he will take your:

-Loneliness and give you an everlasting comfort; Empty house and bless it to become a home

-Trial and give you strength to endure; Heartache and give you love that will heal

-Sorrow and turn it into gladness; Weakness and turn it into strength

-Bowed down head and raise it up in joy!

If you trust and never doubt, he will surely bring you out, take your burden to the Lord and leave it there!

When we take our burdens to the Lord, we are taking them to somebody who knows about carrying heavy burdens! He knows about carrying the weight of the world on his shoulders! He knows about suffering for the sake of others!

Isaiah 53:5 says "..he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and with his stripes we are healed."

He knows about carrying burdens for one day, nearly 2000 years ago, he carried a heavy burden on his shoulder up Golgotha's hill!

He knows about carrying burdens for he died out on Calvary!

But he also knows how to get rid of burdens, for Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his burden free hands!

If you want to leave your stuff behind! Trust in the Lord!

If you want to leave your stuff behind! Trust in the Lord!

He will make everything all right!

No. 9670-King Day

Yet another dream

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 18, 2015

SCRIPTURE: And he dreamed yet another dream, and told it his brethren, and said, Behold, I have dreamed a dream more; and, behold, the sun and the moon and the eleven stars made obeisance to me. Genesis 37:9

Introduction

Have you ever dreamed a dream that if you told it to others, it would anger them? Suppose you dreamed that you would be elected homecoming queen and told that to all the other girls seeking the same post? Suppose you dreamed of being the best teacher in the world and all who ever worked with you would have to bow before your greatness. Suppose you told her brothers and sisters that you dreamed that you were going to be a success in life and that they would fail and would come to you begging? What would be their response?

The dream may be true, but the reaction of those around us to our dream is predictable.

Martin Luther King, Jr. was a man to whom God had given a dream that one day American would live out the true meaning of its creed, "We hold these truths to be self-evident that all men are created equal."

That was King's first dream. It irritated many people because the true meaning of the American creed granted each person the same rights and prevented others from trampling them for their own reasons. This dream irritated those who heard it, but it was tolerated; after all, it was rooted in the American Dream.

However, in the summer of 1963, the world saw Dr. King announce, "Yet, another dream." This dream went into more detail and included images that rattled the cages of his enemies and disturbed those it challenged.

As he announced, one after another, yet another dream, anger was the response of his enemies even while his friends cheered.

Can you hear the chorus specific dreams given one after another in a litany that agitated those who would be displaced by them?

He announced the first dream, "I have a dream that one day on the red hills of Georgia the sons of former slaves and the sons of former slave owners will be able to sit down together at the table of brotherhood."

There was, yet another dream, "I have a dream that one day even the state of Mississippi, a state sweltering with the heat of injustice, sweltering with the heat of oppression, will be transformed into an oasis of freedom and justice." I have a dream that my four little children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character.

There was yet, another dream, "I have a dream that one day, down in Alabama, with its vicious racists, with its governor having his lips dripping with the words of interposition and nullification; one day right there in Alabama, little black boys and black girls will be able to join hands with little white boys and white girls as sisters and brothers."

One after another, he kept alluding to a day when white would not always be seen as right, and the black would not always have to get back.

It was a seemingly impossible set of dreams, all embodied in one big dream.

In 1972, the Broadway show Man of LaMancha featured a song whose lyrics seemed to embody the quest of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

To dream the impossible dream
To fight the unbeatable foe
To bear with unbearable sorrow
To run where the brave dare not go
To right the unrightable wrong
To love pure and chaste from afar
To try when your arms are too weary
To reach the unreachable star
This is my quest
To follow that star
No matter how hopeless
No matter how far
To fight for the right
Without question or pause
To be willing to march into Hell
For a heavenly cause
And I know if I'll only be true
To this glorious quest
That my heart will lie peaceful and calm
When I'm laid to my rest
And the world will be better for this
That one man, scorned and covered with scars
Still strove with his last ounce of courage
To reach the unreachable star

Martin Luther King, Jr. was an imperfect, flawed man, who was given one big dream that was followed by yet other dreams that infuriated his enemies, but were blessed by God.

That's the way God works; he gives each of us dreams for ourselves and our families. To others, he gives dreams for our people and our nation. They seem impossible when spoken, but they are not impossible when God blesses them.

As Christians, we know God speaks to the soul of every believer and paints a picture of the world that is to come. If we believe it, and act on it, he will make it happen.

Exposition

This text focuses on Joseph's revelation to his brethren about two dreams that he dreamed.

Joseph was the favorite son of his father, Jacob. That favorite son status often drew the envy of his brothers who were jealous of his position. Also, Genesis 37:1-2 indicated that Joseph gave an evil report to Jacob their activities and disrupted their good times. They were not pleased with their father's favorite son.

Joseph's position became dangerously imperiled when he announced one day that he had a dream of his success and their failure.

In his first dream, he saw he and his brothers binding wheat into bundles that lay on the ground. He said he then saw his bundle stand up straight, and their bundles bowed down before his. That wasn't received well because it intimated that the one they despised would one day be over them.

However, at verse 9 he has "Yet, another dream." This time, he saw the sun and the moon and eleven stars all bowing before him. The brothers quickly surmised that Joseph meant that one day his father (the sun) and all of his wives (the moon) and the eleven stars (the brothers) would bow before him as well.

The dreams exacerbated the problem because they depicted the brothers in a subordinate role to Joseph, bowing down to him and treating him as their Lord.

Joseph's brothers were bothered by his dream, not that the brothers believed they would ever happen, but because Joseph believed in them. They threw him into a pit and reported his unfortunate demise to his father. Throwing him into what they believed was eternal silence they quipped, "And we shall see what will become of his dreams."

Years passed before they saw Joseph again, but in the interim many things happened to Joseph, which seemed to threaten the dream, but positioned him to realize the dream to its fullest extent. Eventually, the brothers saw Joseph again. They also saw what became of his dreams as they bowed before him as a powerful leader in Egypt.

Between Dreams and Reality

God gave Joseph a dream of what would eventually happen to him, but he did not reveal to him the struggle that would ensue between the day of the dream and its eventual fulfillment.

GOD DID NOT SHOW HIM THE PIT OR THE DUNGEON: While God revealed to Joseph that he would eventually become a great success, it is interesting that God did not show him the path to the fulfillment of his dream. Joseph was never shown how his brothers would put him in a pit and leave him for dead. Neither was he shown how he would be thrown into prison on false testimony. All of these were necessary for the dream to come true, but Joseph saw the sun, the moon, stars and sheaves bowing, but he did not see the pit and the prison. The nation embraced Dr. King's dream, when he spoke in1963, however, they did not see the struggle ahead in places like Selma, Alabama or Bogalusa, Louisiana. They did not see the eventual assassination of the dreamer himself. This is often true with our personal dreams. We see the result, but we often overlook the struggle and sacrifice that must be paid before we achieve our goal. A boy dreams of being a football star but often forgets the years of study necessary to graduate from high school and college and the family sacrifices that will be made to make his dream happen. There is a long way from a young's lady dream of being a doctor and actually getting her medical license. Often God shows us the dream, but he does not show us the pits and dungeons along the way. Joseph interpreted many dreams, but he only had two, but both were so strong that opposition should have been expected. We should note that when opposition came, God made a way for the dreams he gave to be fulfilled.

VISIONS SELDOM DETAIL THE RISK: Joseph had a vision of the future it did not entail the risk. A vision of the end result differs from a dream of the end result. Usually, those who dream of achieving certain goals, have some idea what it will cost to achieve it, but visions only tell the end. Ezekiel saw the vision of the dry bones coming together again, without the details of the political moves, wars, and infighting that would be necessary for it to happen. A person with a dream does not claim to have a vision from heaven, but an aspiration. Those who aspire must anticipate the risks along the way, and those who have visions must know that there will be unseen risks they will take before the vision happens. The vision won't just happen.

Even though families may not know what the next 30 years will bring, many risk their financial futures when they sign a 30-year mortgage to buy a house. Risk is essential to the dream. A young man who dreams of becoming the MVP in the super bowl is willing to risk the prospect of breaking a leg, dislocating a shoulder or being paralyzed in quest of that dream. Those whose dreams are personal are only willing to risk that which is essential to accomplishing their personal dreams. Those whose dreams reach beyond that which is purely personal, risk more. Parents or grandparents that dip into their own retirement savings to sustain grandchildren place their own security at risk. They do so because their dream reaches beyond themselves and embraces their family. Those who promote dreams beyond the relative safety of personal pursuits assume greater risks. Thus, every person that strives to change the community or the world also assumes the risk of defamation, incarceration, or assassination in one of its many forms.

Martin Luther King once said each person must search for that one something that he is willing to die for. If there is nothing that we are willing to die for, then we are not "fit to live." What we are willing to die for indicates the extent of our dreams. Many will risk death to protect our television set from a burglar, but we would not risk jail to protest a civil injustice. Some would risk death to protect their children, but not the nameless children of others. Whether the dream is global or personal, risk is essential to its fulfillment.

OUR OTHER DREAMS INFURIATES OTHERS: Joseph's brothers did not decide to him harm after the first dream, but when he added that second dream it was too much. When blacks in America dreamed of getting an education, that was tolerable, but we had yet another dream: of integrated schools and equal access to public school facilities. We dreamed of getting the right to vote, but shortly after that, we had yet another dream of running for office and becoming legislators, mayors, governors and the most fearful dream of all, that of being president of the United States.

We dreamed of being able to put our money in banks, but shortly after we had yet another dream of being on the boards of banks and major corporations.

We dreamed of playing professional baseball in the major leagues, not in the Negro Leagues, but shortly after we had yet another dream of actually owning the teams.

We are no threat as long as we want to ride the back of the truck and collect garbage. We become dangerous if we start dreaming about forming corporations to become minority contractors who can own the garbage company.

We are not dangerous if we are constantly making withdrawals from the bank, but we are dangerous when we start dreaming about owning our own banks and depositing our withdrawals in something that belongs to us.

We asked God to give us a chance to be free, and he answered us with yet another dream.

We gain strength

Finally, brothers and sisters, we who are among the faithful are strengthened by, yet another dream! This dream is not Joseph's dream or that of MLK, but it is the dream inspired by our Savior that those who are lost can be saved and that a better world is coming.

Joseph's brothers cast him into a pit because he had had, "yet another dream." The heard Joseph speaking of another dream, but they did not see the hand of God moving in all of these events that brought them to Egypt so that their eyes could see what became of the dream!

We have hope because every time it looks like our hope is about to fizzle out our God gives us yet another dream!

Because of our hope and faith in God, he has given us yet another dream. It is a dream of:

— a land where swords will be beaten into plowshares, and we will study war no more!

— a land where our streets will be safe, our children will laugh, and joys will never end, a land where there will be — a land where there is no rich or poor, but all of God's children will share in the bounties of heaven together!

— a land where the wicked will cease from troubling and the weary will be at rest

When Joseph's brothers put him in the pit, they said, "We shall see what will become of his dreams."

What we shall see is beyond our comprehension for "eyes have not seen nor has it entered into the heart of man" the great things that God has in store for us!

If you want to see what shall become of the dream, come and go with me!

Come and go with me to my father's house!

In my father's house, there is joy!

In my father's house, there is redemption, paid for in the blood of Christ!

Somebody said, let's put a crown of thorns on His head and we shall see!

Let's nail his hands to an old cross, and we shall see!

Let's bury him in a borrowed tomb and seal it with a stone, and we shall see!

But Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with all power in His hands!

And we have yet another dream that one of these old days, he's coming back again, and the mountains shall be low; the rough places shall be made plain the crooked places will be made straight!

And when those who fight the dream God has given us rise, we will announce to the world.."I have yet, another dream!"

No. 9671-Inspiration

In Due Time

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 26, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "For there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus; Who gave himself a ransom for all, to be testified in due time. 1 Timothy 2:5-6

Introduction

Have you heard the phrase, "The watched pot never boils?" It is a colloquialism that refers to impatience. There was a time when homemakers boiled water on a stove. Boiling the water was necessary for items such as 15-minute grits or 15-minute oatmeal. Hungry children watched the water in the pot anticipating it's small bubbles that indicated that the water was hot enough for the grits or oatmeal to boil. The children impatiently watched the pot for what seemed an endless duration: waiting for the water to boil so the grits could begin their slow cook. That's when a wise old grandparent would yell, "The watched pot never boils." We were told to occupy ourselves with something else and when we returned the water would be boiling. As long as we watched the pot, it would never seem to boil, but in its own time, it would come to a rolling boil.

We are often frustrated because God seems to move slowly rather than at the pace we expect. We are watching the pot; as long as we do, it will never seem to boil.

Some things cannot be rushed, so it's better not to rush. That was the lesson learned by the expectant father who rushed his wife to a hospital many days before she was due to deliver their first child. The man was really impatient. The man was a little upset that the doctor was not in a rush to help him speed up the process. Despite his impatience, that man waited patiently in the waiting room. After a few minutes, the doctor came out and asked the assistant for a wrench; that concerned the husband. Then, after a couple of moments more, the doctor re-entered the room, and this time, he asked for a screwdriver. The man grew worried and began to pace in circles. Then, a little later, the doctor burst through the doors screaming for a hammer. At that, the husband, in a state of frenzied terror, ran up to the physician and asked, "Doctor, what the heck is wrong with my wife?" "I don't know," replied the doctor, "But I don't know what's wrong with my lunch box, I can't get it open."

You just can't rush things; everything must happen in its own time.

You can't hurry God either. He has his own schedule and he operates by heavens timetable, not our timetable.

That's what happened when God prepared to respond to our need for a Savior on earth. He picked the time, place, and method that his son would come. When he eventually came, it was the right time and the right place.

As Christians, we know that God always responds to our prayers and requests. We are confident that he will always answer us, but only when the time is right.

Exposition

The text focuses on Paul's letter to Timothy expressing his desire that Timothy would pray for everyone, interceding through Christ, whose Lordship would be revealed in due time.

The phrase "in due time" refers to the fact that Christ came at an appointed time to act as a ransom for our sins, but also to be the mediator between the world and God himself.

The fact that God has an appointed time and way to interact with his people is reflected in scripture.

Galatians 4:4 says, But when the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law. Indicating that God a timetable for Jesus himself to be born.

Ephesians 1:10 lets us know that there is a time when God will gather all of the saints together and bring them to himself. It says, "That in the dispensation of the fulness of times he might gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven, and which are on earth; even in him:"

Titus 1:3 says that at appropriate times, God lets his will be known through the preached word. It says, "But hath in due times manifested his word through preaching, which is committed unto me according to the commandment of God our Saviour;"

The idea behind "in due time" is that God is in control of the processes of this world. He determines the year, month, day and our hour of our deliverance. He cannot be rushed he moves at his own pace and according to his own schedule.

Until It's Time

When we consider the advent of Christ there are several thoughts we should observe:

IN DUE TIME GOD WILL HANDLE HIS ENEMIES: There are many believers who are frustrated in their attempt to do good work by those who work against the cross. Believers wonder why God allows them to make their lives so difficult. However, Scripture teaches that "in due time" God will deal with the ungodly. Psalm 37:1-3 says, Fret not thyself because of evildoers, neither be thou envious against the workers of iniquity., For they shall soon be cut down like the grass, and wither as the green herb. Trust in the LORD, and do good; so shalt thou dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed." The phrase "they shall soon" means God has a time to deal with our enemies. Deuteronomy 32:35 repeats the same idea, "To me belongeth vengeance, and recompense; their foot shall slide in due time: for the day of their calamity is at hand, and the things that shall come upon them make haste. " Those who worry that God is not aware of the persecution or undeserved ill-will that has been shown them by their enemies, be encouraged, "In due time" God will respond. In the meantime, "Trust in the Lord and continue to do good."

IN DUE TIME CHRIST PROVIDES STRENGTH: There are times when the strongest believer becomes weak as he or she deals with weakness, loss or doubt. The faithful pray, but sometimes it seems that our prayers have been lost in a maze or have been placed on a back burner. That's when we must remember, "in due time." When the time is right, God will respond and restore the faithful. Romans 5:6 says, "For when we were yet without strength, in due time Christ died for the ungodly. Christ came and died for us in our weakness so that we might have strength." In due time he will restore in two ways: When we have failed or have become frustrated, in due time God's presence will lift up our bowed down heads. When we have experienced considerable loss, God also restores us, much like Job who lost considerable possessions and family members. God did not bring back what was lost, but restored his possessions and rebuilt his family to a point that it exceeded what he had lost in the beginning. We should be encouraged that God restores that which is lost to a believer and does it in a way that will better prepare him to promote the kingdom of God; often bigger and grander than before.

In due time, strength will be renewed, so we must be patient. "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength. They shall mount up on wings as eagles. They shall run and not be weary, run and not faint." In due time, he will renew our strength.

IN DUE TIME, BELIEVERS WILL BE PROMOTED: There are many believers who are frustrated that others who are less obedient than themselves seem to receive recognition, promotion, and rewards while they are often passed over. We have seen this many times over the years: on the job, in the community, in social circles, in school; nearly every place we turn. The less worthy seem to rise fast. However, we have also seen the fall of the less worthy. It took a little time, but they often fell faster than they rose. Still believers ask, "When we God remember me?" What should a believer do? 1 Peter 5:6 says, "Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time." In simple terms, we should do great work without demanding a promotion, but by commanding it. To demand exaltation is to insist on it by law, contract, seniority or privilege. To command exaltation is to work so well that your actions attract the attention of superiors and in "due time" the mighty hand of God will exalt you.

In due time, God will respond

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must note that that just as God responded to others in the past, in due time he will respond to the issues we face as well.

Jesus was constantly asked when God would intervene in world affairs and address many of the wrongs that afflicted God's people. Jesus constantly told those who heard Him that God would take action in His time. Once, he told them that wheat and tares often grow up together, and the tares choke the wheat. He said in God's own time, the tares would be separated from the wheat, but not before.

Everything has a time, and nothing happens before its time. Ecclesiastes 3 tells us that there is a time and a season for everything, but nothing happens before its time.

We often try to hurry God. We can't wait for Him to move. When we can't wait:

—We pray and ask Him for a blessing but then take matters into our own hands when God doesn't move fast enough for us.

—We ask Him for a mate, then grab the first pretty looking thing that comes along, before God has a chance to move.

In our lives today, we must remember that when God is ready, he will act!

When the days are accomplished, the prayer that we have prayed will receive an answer!

When the days are accomplished, the answer we seek will be delivered!

When the days are accomplished, the opportunity we seek will present itself!|

Unlike us, God knows how to do things decently and in order, and He will not be hurried.

God won't be hurried, because He spends more time working on our contents than he does on our package.

God won't be hurried, because He spends more time working on our success rather than rushing through our failures.

God won't be hurried, because He spends more time working on our climb to the level above rather than our fall to the level below.

God won't be hurried, because He spends more time trying to dry our tears than He does watching us cry our own rivers.

When the time was right, Jesus came as God's gift to the world. John 3:16 says "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life!"

When the time was right, the world found out that He gave us:

-Courage in the face of trial. Now they boldly say, "The LORD is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? The LORD is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?" Psalm 27:1

-Satisfaction in times of want. "The Lord is my Shepherd, and I shall not want."

-Guiding Hand in times of darkness. "Guide me oh thou great Jehovah, pilgrim through the barren land!"

When the time was right, He carried an old rugged cross!

When the time was right, He was crucified on Calvary!

When the time was right, He was buried in a borrowed tomb.

Somebody must have said, "He said he would rise from the dead, why hasn't he risen?" The answer came, "In due time!

The same question was asked on the second and third day. The same answer came, "In due time."

But early Sunday morning, when the time was right…

No. 9672-Inspiration

Playing for the ring

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 1, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Philippians 3:14

Introduction

Have you ever thought about the fact that on SuperBowl Sunday millions of people will sit in front of television sets and watch a group of men play a game to win a ring?

Well, it's a little more than a ring. In fact, it could mean many things to many people. For some, it's not about the game it's about winning the millions of dollars that follow the win!

Football players in the Super Bowl play hard to win a Super Bowl ring and the honor of being the world champions of football, but there is much more to getting that ring! The NFL buys 150 Super Bowl rings for the winning team; each ring costs $5,000. Years later, many have been sold as collectible items at auctions for as much as $250,000.

If you are in business, you pay heavily just to get your advertisement before people who are watching players go for the ring! Advertisers pay nearly $4 million for a 30 second commercial during the Super Bowl.

In addition to the ring for the individual players, the team gets The Vince Lombardi Trophy, which is made of seven pounds of sterling silver and cost $50,000.

Communities that host the game compete for the honor. Playing for the ring means big money for their local economy. In 2013, New Orleans took in $185 million as fans packed hotels, restaurants and spent money like crazy. There are expected to do the same for every community that hosts the game.

Betters in Las Vegas are expected to put $95 million on the outcome of the game including Who wins, who loses, and by how much. They also bet on whether there will be a mistake in the singing of the National Anthem or the halftime show and even who will win the coin flip.

Fast food restaurants that sell pizza or chicken wings rack up on Super Bowl Sunday: Dominoes, Wingstop and Pizza Hut are expected to sell thousands of chicken wings on Super Bowl Sunday.

It doesn't stop there because the stars of the game will earn millions from endorsements, in addition to their bonus pay. Stars who perform in the halftime, perform for free, but will make millions from the sale of downloads of their super bowl performance and YouTube ad hits.

So, there are many reasons that people are glued to television sets on Super Bowl Sunday. They have their eyes on the prize.

Christians have their eye on a prize, too. It does not come with a ring, but there are many benefits to winning the ultimate prize which is eternal life.

As Christians, we continue to look forward to the day when we will join the victory circle of life. The savior won't give us a $5,000 ring. Instead, he will give us a golden crown as he says, "Well done."

Exposition

The text focuses on Paul's Epistle to the Church at Philippi. While imprisoned in Rome, he wrote this letter to the Christians in Philippi to tell them of the joy of serving the Lord and to encourage them to keep their minds focused on their purpose in life. These passages reflect three dominant themes that permeated Paul's ministry: Humility, intense focus and a sure goal.

Paul's life was intensely focused on his goal. He chose not to focus on his past accomplishments, which included his education and training, conversion on the Damascus Road, three missionary journeys, and the conversions of countless numbers to the faith. It would have been very easy for him, especially considering his confinement and approaching death, to dwell on the past and constantly reflect on his achievements. He chose to focus on the future rather than the past. Whatever was done in the past remained as history, he chose, even in his moments of crises to always look to the future.

Paul knew what he wanted and where he was going. His goal was the prize of the high calling of God. It did not lay in the praise of men or the accumulation of worldly things. He concluded that he would not be dissuaded in his journey. In Romans 8:35 he asked, "Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? shall tribulation, or distress or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword?" Then he answered in verse 37,"Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us."

His goal in life was set, it was clear and in focus, he had decided to use his life as a witness to the power of God and there would be no turning back.

Three secrets to winning ring

There three secrets use by those who successfully play in life's Super Bowl.

DON'T FOCUS ON THE SIDESHOW: Paul said, "Forgetting those things in the past." That does not mean that we need to wipe out our memory of the past, but it does mean that we cannot afford to focus on past fumbles, interceptions, and turnovers. We should face life's challenges with confidence. Confidence is a faith-based virtue. Those who exhibit confidence know God's power. They are not intimidated by the odds because

God + one equals a majority. In Super Bowl 49 The New England Patriots entered the game focusing on the ring, not a "deflategate" a sideline issue that accused them of cheating by deflating their balls in cold weather games to help them win. The team's leadership told players to ignore the side show and "move on." Those who approach life must not focus on life's side shows or those who want to bring up rumors or past mistakes. They must move on and face up to life's challenges with the confidence of Philippians 4:13, "I can do all things through Christ which strengthens me."

BRING YOUR RECORD INTO THE GAME: Those who want to win the ring, must bring their spirit of accomplishment into the game. They are not intimidated by the opponents they face. They know their own record and the secret of their own successes. It is easy to be overwhelmed by a problem if we forget our capabilities. We can be restrained and detained for great periods of time if we can be tricked into forgetting our capabilities. Once, King Saul asked David why he felt comfortable going out to face the giant Goliath with only a slingshot. David began to recite his personal record. With God, he had defeated bears and lions that attacked the sheep under his care. God guided his hand then, and he counted on God to do the same with Goliath. In Super Bowl, 49 the Seahawks put their hopes their quarterback Russell Wilson's, eyes, feet, and legs. He was a super player that could run, throw and make a big play. The Patriots had a not-so-secret weapon, Tom Brady with brain, power, and skill. Each brought their records and their secrets into the game. In a similar sense, believers bring their secret weapon into every day's fight: the power of God. There is no mountain too high for God to climb! There is no river too wide for God to cross! God specializes in doing things that are impossible!

DON'T FOCUS ON THE ARENA AND FORGET ABOUT GOD: Super Bowl 49 was played in Phoenix, AZ. Just across the street from the 850,000 square foot stadium is a giant church that thousands of game participants passed, but did not stop in for a word of prayer during their visits to Phoenix. They were not interested in prayer but found its stained glass windows were similar to the colors of their favorite team. They had football on their minds and not God. On any given day, believers have the same choices. There are life's challenges facing us in a super bowl sized arena, and there is the call to pray and talk to God. We should never get too busy for personal prayer. That's the prayer you say before you step out of your house, turn the ignition in your car or catch a school bus. Don't pass up God on your way to the arena. When Elijah faced his challenge on Mt. Carmel he did what every believer on record has been known to do; he talked to God. He said, "..let it be known this day that thou art God in Israel, and that I am thy servant, and that I have done all these things at thy word." Before Israel crossed the Red Sea, Moses prayed. When they face starvation and drought in the desert, they prayed. Name the challenge and watch believers go into prayer before they enter the arena. The believer's prayer is not for victory, but that God's will might be accomplished. The Hebrew Boys stood before the fiery furnace confident that God was able to deliver and committed to the point that they declared even if he did not deliver them they would not be defeated or intimidated. They wanted to accomplish God's will.

Before the battle, pray, because prayer changes things. Don't enter the arena without God!

Play for the ring

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that there is one thing we must all keep in mind, and that is, "claiming the prize before us", which is the high calling of Jesus Christ.

When a team comes out of a locker room and runs onto the field it has one thing on its mind; winning. That should be ever believer's attitude.

If a team is victorious in the Super Bowl, everyone gets a ring.; it is the symbol of their success.

To get that ring, each player is willing to endure pain and punishment as they struggle for inches and yards of turf to make touchdowns.

To get that ring, they take hits, fall down and get back up again!

To get that ring, they give everything they have with all of their hearts.

But there is a reward for believers that is greater than a Super Bowl ring. It's what Paul told Timothy in 2 Timothy 4:8 "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me…"

I don't know about you, but I'm not playing for the ring, but I'm serving for a crown because, I want to enter that land on a far away strand, the beautiful homeland of the soul...a land where we'll never grow old."

I'm not playing for the ring; I'm serving for a crown

I'm serving for a crown because, I want to be in the place where the wicked will cease from troubling, and the weary will be at rest.

I'm serving for a crown because, I want to see that day when the mountains shall be made low, and the valleys will be hollowed out.

I'm serving for a crown because, I want to be in that number when the saints go marching in.

I'm serving for a crown because, I want to put on my robe and walk with the elders and see every inch of heaven from pillar to post.

I'm serving for a crown because, I want to see Abraham, Isaac and Jacob!

I'm serving for a crown because, I want to see the streets paved with gold!

I'm serving for a crown because, I want to see the city that sits on twelve foundations with twelve gates made from solid pearls!

I'm serving for a crown because, I want to see the city where hearse wheels won't roll!

I'm serving for a crown because, I want to see the city where every day will be Sunday and it'll always be howdy and never good-bye!

I don't know about you, but I want to see Jesus!

Every saint should be able to say, "Today is Super Bowl Sunday, but tomorrow will be super bowl Monday!" Every day that we come up against Satan, it is a super contest.

However, we can say with assurance, “Our team will win!”

We know our team will win because of the lineup!

At left end, there is GENESIS at right end there is REVELATION.

At tackle and guard is Matthew, Mark, Luke and John at center is Malachi!

At half-back are faith and hope! At fullback there is prayer!

But my team always wins because my team has the best quarterback!

The quarterback of my team wears jersey number 1-1-1. One for the father, one for the Son and One for the Holy Ghost.

My quarterback knows how to play the game because he’s a super bowl veteran!

One day, over 2,000 years ago he met the forces of Satan out on Calvary and died on an old rugged cross!

But, just before the game was over, Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands! You don’t have to wait until the battle is over...shout now!

Your super bowl team has already won!

No. 9673-Anniv.-Women

A Succourer of Many

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 15, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "I commend unto you Phebe our sister, which is a servant of the church which is at Cenchrea: That ye receive her in the Lord, as becometh saints, and that ye assist her in whatsoever business she hath need of you:for she hath been a succourer of many, and of myself also." Romans 16:1-2

Introduction

Jesus commanded us to love our neighbors as ourselves, but how much do we really love? Are there limits? Elizabeth Barrett Browning posed that question in Sonnet #43 when she said:

How do I love thee? Let me count the ways.
I love thee to the depth and breadth and height
My soul can reach, when feeling out of sight
For the ends of being and ideal grace.
I love thee to the level of every day's
Most quiet need, by sun and candle-light.

Browning's vision of love is one that extends to the height, breadth and depth of life and touches the soul and spirit of every living being.

Love reaches the unreachable and spans the oceans of differences that separate us and touches home reaching what Browning calls, "every day's most quiet need."

We have known women in our time who have reached into the quiet need of others showing love, compassion, and assistance to others. Their names are legendary because they did not live for themselves only, but gave of themselves to help others and thereby left a legacy.

We know the names: Tubman, Sojourner Truth, Chisholm, Coretta King, Rosa Parks and the nameless woman in our neighborhood who went out of her way to help little children or the teacher who gave us hope.

We love these women because they loved us without even knowing us. They reached out to us even though they could not see our hand, searching for a hand-up.

Women like these have helped many, tutored many, directed many, saved many and opened doors for many in the course of their lives.

These women have loved us to the ends of our being and have demonstrated ideal grace.

Isn't that the way God loves us all? Doesn't he reach down to us and find our hand as we sink in the turbulent flood of life's issues and gives us a hand up? Doesn't he break down doors to help us seize opportunities forbidden to us? Doesn't he show us the way to grace?

Whose hand does he use? Perhaps it's through the hands of loving women who love us to the depth and breadth and height of our being as if God himself reached out to us through them.

As Christians, we are grateful that there have been women who have shown us the love of God through their personal ministries. They have opened doors for many and have earned the praise of our Savior.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul's letter to the Romans as he commends special saints for their service and ministry to others and the church.

Paul, concluding a ministry that spanned the known world three times, sent this letter to the Romans with various instructions but highlighted the services of many in the first verses.

For example in verses three and four he praises Priscilla and Aquila for exposing themselves to the possibility of death to protect him. In verse 6 he salutes Mary for her outstanding labor.

From verse 8 to 15 he names a variety of others, commending all of them for their unique contributions to the service.

He began his praises with a woman: Phoebe, who was saluted as a "succourer of many."

A person who succors is a person who assists, mentors, teaches, advises and opens doors for others. Pheobe is described as one who has helped many.

In a very brief description, Paul paints a beautiful portrait of this saintly servant of Christ. In this brief description, we learn a lot.

He described her as a servant of the church. The word used here for "servant" is the Greek word diakonos which is often translated as "deacon" or "minister." Phoebe was ministering to (serving) God's people. She demonstrated God's love to others by meeting their spiritual needs and healing their hurts in the name of Jesus Christ. It was Jesus who said to "love your neighbor as yourself" (Matt. 27:40). Each time she reached out in love to others, she ministered to them. Christians need to minister to all kinds of needs: spiritual, emotional, relational, and physical. Jesus said that even a cup of cold water given in His name was considered a ministry and would not go unrewarded. The church is to "equip the saints for the service." (Eph. 4:12).

To be described as a succourer of many was a great honor, for it suggested that she not only experienced God for herself but shared the message of the kingdom with others in the course of her life.

The Many

The African-American woman has succored many. She has shown it in what Browning calls the depth, breadth and height of her being.

FROM THE DEPTH OF HER SOUL: The African-American Woman has succored many by reaching into the depth of her soul to find strength. In many ways, the African-American woman has carried us while carrying the cross of segregation, racism, and sexism, all at the same time. Frowned upon because of her color and shunned because of her sex, the African-American woman had to reach down into the depths of her soul to find the strength to overcome the obstacles that threatened her family and neighbors. Reaching down deep, tapping a spiritual source out of reach to others, she turned disasters into opportunities and mountains into molehills. When Black men could not find jobs because of racism, women were compelled to carry the cross of labor. By the millions, they put on uniforms and became domestic workers and nannies for pennies a day, sometimes walking miles to and from work only to come home and do the same work again. In recent years, white women have joined the workforce and recognized the hardship of working and raising a family at the same time hence the call for day care, family leave, and other family oriented work laws. Without external help, The African-American woman reached down deep to find the strength to be a succourer of many.

AS FAR AS SHE CAN REACH: The African-American woman has succored many by touching as many as she could reach. She began first in her own house, reaching out to her own children and grandchildren. As many Black men abandoned their families or pursued their own agendas, many women today are reaching for straws to keep their families afloat. More than half of all African-American homes are headed by females. In addition to their roles as mothers and home managers, many African-American women have been compelled to become the breadwinners of their families because the fathers of their children either could not or would not underwrite the expense of the nurture of the family. Many women are wearing themselves out trying to be fathers and mothers to their children. They are working jobs, managing homes, attending the P.T.A., assisting with school work, supporting their children in girl scouts, boy scouts, school programs and extra-curricular activities. After doing all that, they come home and are sometimes irritated when they hear someone complain that they have gained a little weight in the process. After reaching out to their families, many still reach out to others as Sunday School teachers, community activists, and volunteers. In this way, the Black woman becomes a succourer of many.

THE HEIGHT OF HER DREAMS: Women who help others to dream and realize their dreams are the epitome of what it means to be a succourer of many. God has given certain gifts (or talents) to each one of us. While these gifts are not all the same, we need to figure out what talents we have and use those talents to glorify God. Paul said that Phoebe “herself has also been a helper of many, and of myself as well.” The word translated “helper” means “patroness” or “benefactor.” Sometimes our benefactor is just a person who listens to our dreams and points us in the right direction. Sometimes they do even more to help us climb higher.

Many successful people reflect on the influence of someone in their past who encouraged them to dream big and never give up. These are the people who helped us remember that every believer has the power of God working on the inside. They are the ones that keep asking us "What's wrong with dreaming big? What's wrong with dreaming of being the first woman president? What's wrong with dreaming of being the first scientist to find the cure for the common cold? What's wrong with dreaming of being the best parent that the world has ever seen? A better preacher? A better musician? What's wrong with dreaming of changing the world? We know of many such women who have crossed our paths. They have helped us to dream and believe in our abilities. They have loved us enough to help us dream and believe that with God's help, our dreams could come true. They have challenged us to go forth and unleash the power of God!

Showed many the way to the cross

Finally, brothers and sisters, while there are many women who have helped us find our way in the world, their most important contribution is that they have helped many find their way to the cross.

These women, like those before them, spend their lives leading the lost to the cross because at the cross:

—Darkness turns into light; Burdens turn into blessings;

—Nobodies turn into somebodies; Sadness turns into gladness;

—Despair turns into delight, and defeat turns into victory!

No wonder the songwriter declared: "At the cross, at the cross where I first saw the light and the burdens of my heart rolled away, it was there by faith, I received my sight and now I am happy all the day!"

Those who spend their lives reaching out to the lost know they must also tell them how Jesus carried the cross for them. They have to know that for every burden we bear Christ has responded to that burden in the cross he carried.

Because Jesus carried the cross, every:

TROUBLED cross bearer can now have peace!

LONELY cross bearer can now have comfort!

SAD cross bearer can now have everlasting joy!

HOPELESS cross bearer can now have hope!

DEMON POSSESSED cross bearer can now be delivered!

AFFLICTED cross bearer can now be restored!

FINANCIALLY EMBARRASSED cross bearer can now enjoy the riches of heaven!

Those who succor many must challenge them to pick their cross and follow Jesus.

It's the same cross that the songwriter asked:

"Must Jesus bear the cross alone and all the world go free?" then answered,

“No there’s a cross for everyone and there’s a cross for me.”
I’m glad that Jesus carried the cross for me!
I’m glad that he died out on Calvary!
But I’m so glad that early Sunday morning that he arose from the grave with all power!
All power ..
All Power...In his hands!

No. 9674-Inspiration

Beauty's Only Skin Deep

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 1, 2015

SCRIPTURE:"But the Lord said unto Samuel, Look not on his countenance or on the height of his stature; because I have refused him: for the Lord seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart." 1 Samuel 16:7

Introduction

Have you ever thought what really makes a person beautiful? Our first thought is that which we see with our eyes. On second thought, experience has taught that beauty goes deeper than what the eye can see. Ideally, the way we appear on the outside should suggest what's on the inside, but that is not always the case.

The world is rarely interested in inner beauty, only what it sees. Often the substance of Spirit is sacrificed for the symbolism of the superficial.

There are many songwriters that have written about beauty. We hum their melodies. For example, you may have heard the beautiful lyrics of Billy Preston as they were sung by Joe Cocker, "You are so beautiful."

You are so beautiful To me
You are so beautiful To me
Can't you see
You're everything I hoped for You're everything I need
You are so beautiful
To me

Christian Aguilera had a hit song called "Beautiful" her lyrics spoke of a mental attitude about beauty regardless of the outside.

I am beautiful
No matter what they say
Words can't bring me down
I am beautiful
In every single way
Yes words can't bring me down
Oh no
So don't you bring me down today

Perhaps the most famous lyrics about beauty that we remember are those by the Temptations where a man sings about the inner beauty of the woman he loves:

My friends ask, what do I see in you
But it goes deeper than the eye can view.
You have a pleasin' personality
And that's an ever lovin' rare quality.
Now show me a girl, a girl that's fine
And I'll choose the one with true lovin' every time
Because Beauty is only skin deep, yeah, yeah, yeah!

The care of the outer appearance is the profession of cosmetologists, plastic surgeons, fashion designers and others who specialize in making men and women look their best. However, even the best beauticians are powerless to change those qualities of character and personality that make us truly beautiful; that requires the master's touch.

As Christians, we praise God daily for helping us to appreciate the value of inner beauty that has come from being blessed spiritually with a saved soul and a loving heart.

Exposition

This text focuses on God's selection of David to serve as the second king of Israel. It illustrates graphically the idea that God judges the beauty of character, rather than the beauty of appearance.

Israel had a failed experience with King Saul, its first king. According to 1 Samuel 9:2, Saul was a good looking man on the outside. He was a "choice" man, suggesting that he was among the cream of the crop of the eligible men of his generation. Not only was he among the "choice" men, but he was also a "handsome" good looking man. He was easy to look upon. Thirdly, he was a young man full of strength, energy and stamina. He was the best-looking man in all of Israel. Regarding physical appearance, he was head and shoulders above the rest. The selection of Saul was not accidental. The people clamored for a king and rejected God's leadership through their religious leaders. They wanted a hero king that would lead them like other nations. God decided to give the people what they wanted. They were given a leader who had all the outward appearances of attractiveness and charisma that pleased the crowds. The people were happy. Soon, however, they discovered that what Saul had on the outside did not match what he had on the inside. First, they found that despite his manly physique, that he was a coward before the dreaded Goliath. As Goliath raged to fight just one Israelite and save the lives of others, Saul sent a young shepherd boy to fight, rather than go himself. Later, they found that he possessed a jealous spirit, a vengeful and violent personality and an uncontrollable anger. All of these combined to make Saul, despite his outward beauty, an ugly man in the sight of God, which resulted in his loss of the kingdom and fall from grace.

This text introduces the next king, David, who was selected, not because of the strength of his physical appearance but because of his strength of Character. Samuel went to the home of Jesse and without announcing his purpose reviewed all of his sons. First to come before him was Eliab, who appealed to Samuel because of his stunning physical presence (1 Samuel 16:7). God warned Samuel not to concern himself with the outer looks, but to be guided by the character. Other sons came: Abinadab, Shammah, and four others. One son did not come because he did not have the look of a king. He was a shepherd boy who loved to play the harp, write psalms and sing. In the eyes of his family, he certainly couldn't rank as leadership tender. However, when Samuel saw him, bright-eyed, with suntanned rough skin (v12) the Lord said, "Arise, anoint him, for this is the one." While he was nice looking and healthy, David was selected to serve as king of Israel because of his character rather than his outward appearance. The beauty of his heart began to show itself soon. In the face of danger, he displayed courage and killed Goliath. When persecuted by Saul, he demonstrated a capacity to love his enemies. When he had fallen into sin, he demonstrated a repentant spirit. He was truly a beautiful person.

Beautiful People

In the 1970's there was a product that was popular in the Black Community called "Afro Sheen." Large afros sprayed with the oily Afro Sheen spray made perfectly rounded Afros glisten under the light. The company had an advertising campaign that used the Swahili phrase, "Watu nzuri use Afro Sheen." The phrase watu nzuri means beautiful people. That was an important statement in the 1970's, for Blacks, as a people, were coming of age in the acceptance of our beauty as a people.

Historically, we had difficulty defining ourselves. We have used a variety of terms over the years: Colored, Negro, Afro-American, Black and the present African-American. Colored was a step up from the racially degrading Nigger of the slavery and the reconstruction era. Negro was another step up, but it still rejected the legitimacy of our cultural beauty. Afro-American pointed us to our African roots, but the term "black" was revolutionary. It took a deep swallow for people who thought of themselves as ugly to accept the term black. It was difficult until James Brown made it easier with his hit song, "Say it loud, I'm black, and I'm proud." Today, "African-American" sets a new tone. The left side of the hyphen points to our culture not to our color, opening the door for people of other races to be officially associated with the African-American ancestry.

Historically, we have come to accept our beauty in its many shades, forms, and styles. To keep up with all of the definitions of beauty the Cosmetology profession has become big business in the African-American community.

Must Come from the Inside

The word cosmetology comes from the Greek Word "Kosmos" which means adorning or order. Cosmetologists are people who specialize in reordering appearances to promote attractiveness. Generally, they focus on the skin, hair and nails. Their wares include conditioners, permanent waves, shampoos, sprays, strengtheners and cuts, makeup blushes, face powder, lipstick, rouge, eyeliners shadow, mascara, nail polish and a variety of other services. All designed to promote attractiveness. However, while the assistance of a good cosmetologist can help increase attractiveness, there is nothing your beautician can do after someone meets you and finds out that the pages of the book are not equal to the cover.

Beauty must come from the inside.

Absalom was a good looking man but was evil on the inside. Jezebel was a beautiful woman but is known as one of the world's ugliest women because of her evil ways.

What makes beautiful people? Galatians 5:22 holds the key. Beautiful people are those who demonstrate the fruit of the Spirit: "love, joy, peace, longsuffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, self-control." When you find a person who has these virtues all in the same package, regardless of what the outside looks like, you have a beautiful person.

Christian Beauticians, Barbers and others who specialize in making people physically attractive have a great opportunity to witness for the Lord in the most fertile evangelism field in the world: the barbershop and the beauty shop. People come to both expecting to listen to something. They usually hear the latest gossip, but wouldn't it be enriching if between the wash and the dry, Christian beauticians found ways to suggest peace, joy, self-control, and kindness, to their customers. What about the patrons? Wouldn't the beauty shop or barber shop be a good place to witness and help a person leave more attractive inside as well as the outside?

The Master's Touch

There are some beauticians and barbers who are so good at what they do, that when people leave their shops, they look like brand new people. When a cosmetologist can take a hard luck case and turn her into a beauty queen, it's obvious that he or she has that special touch that makes the difference. It's the master's touch.

Today friends, I want to introduce you to the world's greatest cosmetologist, who has the master's touch. He is a cosmetologist because the "Kosmos" is the world and setting the world and its people in order is his business. He specializes in hard luck cases. He specializes in taking that which is:

—Ugly and making it beautiful; Deplorable and making it adorable; Weak and making it strong; failing and make it victorious.

I want to introduce you to somebody who can:

—Wash you in his blood

—Set your feet on solid ground

—Give you a permanent, new walk, talk, and song to sing

—Straighten our Crooked lives

—Press out rough places

I want to introduce you to somebody who has shops in every, country, state, and city. Not only does he have shops for you to come to him, but he also makes house calls, 24 hours a day. Call him in the morning. Call him in the evening. Call him in the midnight hour!

If you want to know how good he is, just talk to those who been touched by his hands!

Woman at the Well: He made me beautiful on the inside. Come see a man who told me all I've ever done!

By what authority does he operate? Where did he get his license? When did he pass the state board?

I hear him answer: Before Abraham was I am. I am the Alpha and the Omega, the Beginning and the End, The author and finisher of the faith, all power is in my hands!

What's the name of his shops? "Jes-Us" His name is Jesus, and he operates Just for Us!

Jesus, the lily of the valley

Jesus, the bright and morning star

He died out on Calvary!

But early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave!

I hear him declare: "Come unto me all ye that are burdened and heavy laden and I will give you rest!

No. 9675-Inspiration

All he had was a stick

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 8, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "And thou shalt take this rod in thine hand, wherewith thou shalt do signs." Exodus 4:17

Introduction

When will you start to move on that challenging idea God gave you? Why are you hesitating? There are many people who have been given a life challenge by the Lord, but they hesitate to act on it because they doubt themselves and fear failure. They question why the Lord would give them such a big idea and so few resources to make the idea happen. You've seen the situations: 1) You want to start a business, but don't have the money or credit to get started. 2. You want to pursue a profession, but are frustrated by the education and training requirements necessary. 3) You have a burning desire to accomplish to expand upon a Kingdom-building ministry, but hesitate because you don't have the resources. The reasons for hesitation are endless. The results are that we seldom accomplish what we set out to do.

Consider Tommy the Toad frog who sat on a log in the pond every day watching the flies flicker in front of him. Toad frogs love flies because they make nice dinners and snacks. However, Tommy had to settle for whatever he could get because although he loved flies they never came within his reach. They buzzed over his head, in front of his face and all around him, but he didn't have anything to swat them with, so daily he watched them in anguish wishing someone would invent a contraption that would help him capture flies. One day a big prosperous looking frog from the other side of the pond sat beside him on the log. They both watched the flies buzzing around them. Tommy started to complain about not having a way to reach them; he was too big and too slow. While he complained and gave excuses, a trio of flies flew overhead. Suddenly, he heard a swooshing sound and saw the frog next to him open his mouth and lick out his long tongue and in a second had caught all three frogs, swallowed them and blinked his eyes in satisfaction. As he hopped away the toad told Tommy, "You got a tongue in your mouth, you need to use it for more than just complaining." – Tommy had what he needed to catch flies, but he never put it to use.

There are many believers who fail to follow the vision that God has given them because they doubt that they have the ability, opportunity, or resources to make the vision that God has given them become a reality.

God rarely gives us a fully baked cake; he gives us the ingredients, we have to mix them. Dreams don't come ready for action, usually some assembly is required. Just as many items come with the necessary screws and tools to put it all together, God gives us all we need to make our life vision happen. If we follow his instructions, use the tools he has given us, it will all come together a little at a time.

As Christians, we thank God for giving us the opportunity to achieve our God-given dreams. If we trust him and follow him, he will help us use what we have to make a great contribution to the kingdom building program.

Exposition

This text focuses on Moses as he learned to step out in faith and use the stick in his hand.

At the burning bush, God told Moses to lead the Children of Israel out of bondage; Moses was an 80-year-old, former prince of Egypt who had been a shepherd for the last 40 years. Moses, looking at his situation, thought it was impossible so he began to give reasons why he could not succeed. He offered God four major excuses: 1) He said he was not important (3:11); 2) He lacked authorization (3:13); 3) He did not have the power (4:1); 4) He was not a good speaker (4:10). These four excuses formed the basis of Moses' attempt to convince himself that God needed to find someone else for this impossible task.

It was not unusual for an opposing army to send an emissary or messenger to deliver a message, but the emissary was usually backed by a great army. Moses was being asked to tell Pharaoh to "Let my people go." That was more than a notion. Releasing over a million slaves would devastate the Egyptian economy, commerce would come to a halt, work on the great cities being built would cease, commerce in wood, linens, tools, and stone would cease and the country would come to a complete standstill. Leaving, a million people would strip the land of necessary foods and supplies and leave Egypt without any resources. Moses would be required to demand that Pharoah release the slaves and at the same time destroy the Egyptian economy.

This text focuses on how God overcame Moses' complaint of a lack of talent, power and ability. When Moses complained he would not have the power to convince Pharaoh or the people that he was from the Lord, God answered by asking him a question, "What is that in thine hand?" What Moses carried was a simple shepherd's rod, hardly anything that could be considered a tool for the liberation of an enslaved people. In his hand, he already had all he needed; God would do the rest. Moses complained about what he did not have; God looked at what he had. Moses had 1)Forty years of training in the best schools of Egypt 2)Military Experience as the conquering prince of the Ethiopian conquest 3)The ability to lead men and 4) A Humble spirit that caused him to move at God's command. God wanted Moses to do great work. He did not call upon him to use anything he did not already have, but simply to use what he had at his disposal.

All he had was a stick, but that was enough.

Our Reasons

Often when faced with a challenge to pursue a task that appears beyond our reach we adopt one of the four excuses of Moses instead of moving at God's command.

WHO ME?(Exodus 3:11-12): Moses could not imagine himself taking on such a task and pointed to his weaknesses: he was not eloquent and persuasive. He didn't speak well at all. We often respond in the same way, pointing to everything that shows we do not possess the skill sets needed for the task. God challenged him to harness the talents of others. He pointed him to Aaron, his brother, to help him carry out the task. In a similar manner, we too may not have the special talents to do all that is necessary, but we can team with others to make great things happen.

NO BACKING (Exodus 3:13-15) Moses complained that he had no standing, no title, no position or official license to go before Pharaoh. "Who will I say sent me?" God answered, "I am that I am." That's when Moses learned that it wasn't about who he, Moses was, but it was about God. In essence, God says, "It's not about who you are or who you are not, it's about who I am." –I am that I am. When God gives a dream, we should go forth with confidence that no matter how insignificant we feel, that we have the backing of the Savior and that backing is all we need. He will make a way.

WHAT IF I FAIL: (Exodus: 4:1-9), Moses responded to his challenge with "What ifs." What if they don't believe me? What if they don't listen to me or laugh at me? He paid more attention to the prospects of failure than he did to the victory. God promised victory, but Moses responded with "buts." What ifs are victory killers, and zeal quenchers. Excuses will relegate us to second best. God asked Moses, "What's that in your hand?" "It's a stick." – Use it. God uses what we have, and has never demanded from us what we do not have. We will never know the full potential of what can be done until we are willing to offer it to God. God is not looking for excess ability; he is looking for availability.

I DON'T HAVE WHAT IT TAKES: (Exodus 4:10-12) Moses went through a list of reasons why he should be excused from the task, mainly he said he was inadequate and did not have what it takes. God said, "I will teach thee." God teaches those he selects for great tasks. He prepares them through instruction, trial, and example. Today, we may not have what it takes at the moment. We may not be prepared to stand before Pharaoh today, but believers must prepare themselves. Likewise, you may not have what it takes to be a supervisor or to own a company or to reach the next level, but you must prepare. When it comes to the ministries of the Kingdom, you may not know what it takes to be a Sunday School teacher, singer, or ministry leader, but God will prepare those who put aside their excuses and pick up their stick.

THE STICK YOU HAVE WILL BE BLESSED: (Exodus 4:17) God made Moses a powerful promise in verse 17: "And thou shalt take this rod in thine hand, wherewith thou shalt do signs." It was a promise that God would take the sum total of his life experiences and a stick and use them to save a nation.

Every believer should note that after this, Moses did not make any more excuses. The next verse shows him preparing to move as God commanded expecting God to use him in a miraculous way.

The blessing was not in the stick itself. It was not a magic wand. It wasn't the stick that turned the waters of the Nile red with blood. It wasn't the stick that transformed itself into a serpent and devoured the servants of Pharaoh's magicians. It was not the stick itself that rolled back the waters of the Red Sea; it was the power of God.

When you win the final victory in your God given mission, it won't be your power, talent, knowledge or training-that's only a stick; it will be God using your small talents, gifts, and skills to do mighty things.

There is nothing more powerful than a man or a woman who possesses a blessed gift from God. With it he can make the impossible happen.

Use what you have

Finally, brothers and sisters, every believer should resolve to use the ability he or she happens to have and let God do the rest.

It is natural for many to hesitate when faced with an enormous challenge, but each person should use what is available to them and step out on God's word.

God told Moses, "Certainly, I will be with thee." If God is with us in our quest, there is no mountain we cannot scale or gorge so wide it cannot be spanned.

When God is with you, you can do much more than you ever expected because he takes the simple things in life and uses them for his purpose. God often takes simple, insignificant, foolish and weak things and uses them in ways that make others scratch their heads. That's what the scripture means when it says, "But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty; And base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, yea, and things which are not, to bring to nought things that are: That no flesh should glory in his presence." 1 Corinthians 1:27-29.

All you may have is a stick, but God can work with that stick and make it happen.

All Wally Amos had in life was poverty when he was born in 1936. To get by he and his aunt baked cookies and he learned to do it well. His stick was his ability to make cookies and he turned it into a multimillion dollar company called, "Famous Amos" he sold to Kellogg for millions of dollars. All he had was a stick.

What is that in thine hand? What is your stick? The world may laugh at the insignificance of what is in your hand, but consider what it can become when it's used for God:

A Pencil in the hands of Alex Haley became a tool for great writings which have shaken the world. It was only a pencil, but when touched by God it became the Autobiography of Malcolm X and Roots. All he had was a stick. What is that in thine hand?

A Child's Poem in the hands of Maya Angelou became an outlet for intense and powerful ideas that have inspired our nation. It was only a poem but when touched by God it became "Still I Rise." All she had was the ability to write poems and stories. All she had was a stick. What is that in thine hand?

A will to run in the hands of Wilma Rudolph, became a quest to be a track champion. The desire to win the Olympics drove Gabby Douglas. Despite setbacks, disappoints and the doubts of skeptics these women rose to become Olympic champions. All they had was a stick. What is that in thy hand?

For Cuba Gooding Jr., it was a movie script. For Floyd Mayweather, Jr. it was a boxing glove. For Michael Jordan, it was a basketball. For Whitney Houston, it was a silky, sensuous voice. All they had was a stick. What is that in thine hand?

When what's in your hand has been blessed by God, there is no limit to what you can do and to how far you can go!

"..Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." 1 Corinthians 2:9

Consider the drunk who searched the garbage for a taste of wine and found what he believed was an old fiddle. "It's nothing but an old fiddle," he thought and tossed it aside. A second scavenger came and found the old fiddle; he tried to play it but all he got was screeches and scratches, and he threw it away because it had no value. The third scavenger sold the fiddle to an antique store and after that a great violinist happened upon it. The violinist tuned its strings and gently rubbed the bow and then out came the finest sound, much to the amazement of all. As the violinist bought the fiddle and walked out of the door, the owner remarked "it was just an old fiddle, until it was touched by the master's hand."

Brothers and sisters, it is not important what you have in your hands. However it is important that what you have has been touched by the master's hand.

It does not matter that you only have a little with which to work. It does matter that you let God work with what you have for his service.

When you've been touched by the master's hand, nothing can stand in your way!

Feel free to dream the impossible dream! Fight the unbeatable foe!

I heard the songwriter declare: "He touched me! He touched me! And oh the joy the floods my soul. Something happened and now I know, he touched me and made me whole!"

He touched me, the man who carried a cross for me up Calvary's hill!

He touched me, the man who let them stick a spear in his side and put a crown of thorns on his head!

He touched me, the man who died and was buried in a borrowed tomb!

He touched me, the man who stayed in the grave for three days an nights and early Sunday morning arose from the grave

He touched me and turned my sadness turned to joy!

He touched me and turned my failure turned to success!

He touched me and turned my defeat turned into victory!

He touched me...

..and now I am no longer the same!

No. 9676-Communion

Living water doesn't come in a bottle

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 15, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "Jesus answered and said unto her, If thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saith to thee, Give me to drink; thou wouldest have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water. "John 4:10

Introduction

Did you ever think the day would come when we'd pay for a drink of water? Except in desert states, most of the nation has enjoyed access to free water. Rarely did anyone encounter someone unwilling to give a thirsty person a free drink of water.

Do you remember? At a service station, we paid for gas and oil, but air and water were always free. If a person had no money, he could usually sit in the refreshing atmosphere of a restaurant and order a cool drink of water.

People drank water from a variety of sources. Some drank from fountains, even though they were prohibited from drinking from some fountains if they were not the predominant race. It was free, but the source was restricted to use by race. Some cupped their hands and drank from hydrants. There are a few that remember drinking from water hoses and in the rural drinking straight from wells and streams.

Today, one of the fastest growing businesses in America is bottled water. Economists report that more than half of all Americans buy bottled water even though most water in the United States is some of the cleanest tap water in the world. In America, industry reports reveal that Americans spend about $4 billion a year on bottled water. We do this, even though, there's no guarantee that water in plastic bottles is any purer than what is available from your own kitchen sink - in some cases there is no difference. We would like to believe that the water in bottles has been drawn from a magic fountain of natural pure springs on some remote mountain, but while there may be a few exceptions, it generally is not.The hard truth is that Dasani, which is bottled by Coca-Cola, is simply purified tap water. In fact, most bottled water you might buy in the supermarket is purified faucet fluid, rather than "source" water. It probably didn't come from a spring.

In 2011 Living Waters for the World, a mission project of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), sent a mission team to a small barrio in Cuba to install a water purification system in one of its churches. "As soon as the system was installed, the people in the community said, "the church has living water!" The people lined up to fill jugs and bottles from two taps. They now distribute more than 2,500 gallons of purified water an hour. One resident said, "We never run out-Just like Jesus."

In that little church, the people came for water, but they also came for spiritual water. They sought Jesus because he never runs out.

As Christians, we seek the living waters. The waters we seek cannot be bottled or sold. They are tapped from the fountains of God's grace. When we drink from these waters, we will never thirst again.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he met with a woman at Jacob's well in Samaria.

Jesus came to Samaria and broke through several barriers to bring his message of salvation to the woman at the well. He broke racial barriers, but he also broke gender barriers. Jewish women were the subjects of many prohibitions that treated them as second class. They were subjugated, and their prohibitions were so strictly enforced that they were not even allowed to speak to a man in public places. Only in the privacy of their homes could they speak, and even there with extreme caution. Jesus engaged in discussion with the woman at the town's most visible meeting place, Jacob's Well, thus challenging long-standing taboos that were centuries old.

Moreover, Jesus broke the morality barrier as well. This woman was marked for her low morals. She had been married five times and was living with a sixth who was not her husband. By Jewish standards, she was a harlot. Priests and the devout of the city had no contact with her. She was considered an outcast. Jesus offered her the living water of salvation and an opportunity to everlasting life. The woman was so excited that she left her water pot and ran through the streets of the city proclaiming, "Come see a man that told me all the things I ever did, is this not the Christ?"

The fact that she left her waterpot spoke to the woman's excited state of mind. Her act of leaving her water-pot beside the well as she went back to the village indicated her thirst for things of the world had passed. She now accepted Jesus as the living water and that raised her expectations; she left her water pot behind never to thirst for life's abstracts again.

Causes of thirst

We thirst because there is a lack of water in our system. Those who receive the living water acquire a spiritual balance in their lives that brings them peace. The moment we receive these attributes marks an epiphany. It's an "I see it now moment." It's an "Oh' that's what you mean moment." Once we finally see it, like the woman at the well, we will drop our water pot and take a new exciting course in life.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE MUST HAVE LIVING WATER: Jesus met the woman at the well and offered her living water. In essence, his spirit would be the key to really living. There are many today whose hearts are beating, but they are not living. They move around each day, but they are not living.

They have a few things, but they may as well have nothing because they are not living. To live we need the constant stream of spiritual support that only comes from God. Jesus is the living water that constantly flows. Anything that tries to live dies soon, without water.

Marriages, careers, even relationships all need the living water. Nothing else will substitute; it must be water. There are many today who are spiritually dehydrated. They are trying to live without drinking spiritual water.

Professionals report that we need eight glasses of water a day to keep our systems functioning. Often we substitute coffee, cold drinks, alcohol and other wet substances for water and get by, but soon we learn that nothing takes the place of water.

Likewise, many are substituting many things for Christ. They all serve their purpose but can't take the place of water. To have a healthy spiritual life we need worship, Bible study, prayer and the presence of the Holy Spirit in our lives. He brings the living water.

SEVEN COMPONENTS OF LIVING WATER: Former Louisiana State Center Charles Jones, in his book Seven Prayers, Seven Commands, details seven things that happen to people when they encounter God. According to Senator Jones, those who encounter God receive seven anointings that effectively displace the desires of the world: Wisdom, vision, insight, foresight, knowledge, discernment, and understanding. These seven commands form the basis of every believer's relationship with God after their moment of epiphany and provide evidence of Living Water in the Spirit-filled life.

It is generally accepted that a human can live without air for three minutes and probably have no internal damages. Scientists also say we can live three hours in extreme cold. We can survive three weeks without food, but only about three days without water.

In a similar sense, the spirit filled life won't last long without the living water, probably not a second.

LIVING WATER CANNOT BE PACKAGED: There are no shortcuts to living water. There are no quick bottles of living water that can be purchased in store and sipped quickly. The living water is the presence of God. There is no Ethos Water, Evian, Aquafina, Mountain Springs, Magic Mountain, Deep River Rock, Deer Park Spring Water, Crystal Clear, Eden Spring, or Nestle Pure Life that we can buy gulp them down and have instant salvation. None of these brand names are like the water Jesus was talking about in his conversation with a woman at a well. The living water comes only from Jesus.

The water represents our emptiness, and the living water shows us Jesus filling our emptiness.

The water represents our lack of spirit, and the living water shows us Jesus inspiring us to move on!

Finally, brothers and sisters, while there is nothing special about the water we buy, there is power in the blood.

Our need for water underscores our humanity, but the blood of Christ touches our humanity with the power of his divinity.

It was through the shedding of blood that sins are forgiven, justification secured and lost sinners are restored and reconciled to God.

It is through the blood of Christ that we are saved and brought before God spotless and worthy of the Kingdom.

The water gives us the witness, but it is the blood of Christ that does the saving.

That's what John meant in 1 John 5:6, when he said, "not by water only, but water and blood."

It means that you must have the living water or the Spirit of God in your life and the blood of Christ as well.

It seems that only those who have the living water can get to the blood.

The living water is pure water. Science says pure water has to have two parts hydrogen and one part oxygen, called H20. In spiritual terms living water has two parts healthy spiritual living and healthy praise and giving and one part obedience.

Those who have living water are living right, praying right, praising right, giving right, and are obedient to the commands of God.

Anything short of that is contaminated water:

Whiskey has water in it, but its called fire water, it takes you away from God rather than brings you closer to him. Whiskey is not living water.

Fruit drink has water in it mixed with juices of some fruits, but although it tastes good, it is not the fruit of the spirit that comes from living water.

Five Hour Energy drink, has water in it that builds you up for five hours, and then lets you down with a crash, but the living water builds you up and never lets you down or leaves you alone. I heard the songwriter say, "He promised never to leave me, never to leave me alone."

There are some people who have been dipped in the water, but they still don't have the living water.

They have been dipped in the water, but Motel 6, still leaves a light on for them.

They have been dipped in the water, but the riverboats, casino and bingo houses know them by name!

They have been dipped in the water, but the only rock they know is sold by the gram and sold to all ages.

There is a new life that should accompany every person who has been dipped In the water. The new life comes only by the power of the blood.

From all over the world the cry goes out, "Is there a fountain?"

In the middle of the town square in Hot Springs, Arkansas there is a fountain. It is visited by thousands each day who hold jugs, water bottles and containers under a faucet to take home some of the fabled healing mineral waters of the Hot Springs underneath the town. Its waters are always 143 degrees, It always flows and the town gives it away free to anyone who wants to take a few bottles home.

In St. Augustine, Florida there is a fountain. It is the famed fountain of youth sought after by the Spanish Explorer, Ponce De Leon. Daily, thousands take a sip from the fountain and then visit the gift shop to take home a bottle of the fabled youth giving water. They laugh when they buy it, but they look in the mirror when they go home to see if it really works.

On a hill called Calvary, there is a fountain. It is a fountain drawn from the blood of Jesus and offers new life that can only be given by the power of the blood.

There is a fountain for those who know the Lord and have shown it through accepting his blood.

There is a fountain for those who accept the promise of God; it is the power of the blood that allows you to claim that promise!

There is a fountain that inspires hope; the power of the blood allows you to sing, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame, but wholly lean on Jesus' name."

There is a fountain filled with blood that flows from Immanuel's vain.
Sinners plunged beneath the flood, lose all their guilted stain!"

After you have been washed in the blood, you have a new song to sing, "God gave me a song that the angels cannot sing. I've been washed in the blood, of the crucified lamb, I've been redeemed!"

What can make me whole again? Nothing but the blood of Jesus!
Oh precious is the flow that makes me white as snow, no other fount I know, nothing but the blood of Jesus!

When you've been washed in the blood, you sing with new meaning, "I know it was the blood. I know it was the blood that saved me."

I know it was the blood that took my hatred and turned it into love!
I know it was the blood that took my despair and turned it into hope!
I know it was the blood that took my disgrace and turned it into honor!
I know it was the blood that took my enemies and turned them into friends!
I know it was the blood that took my worries and turned them into confidence!
One day when I was lost, he died!
He died up on a cross! I know it was the blood that save me!
He died to give me a chance to turn my life around!
He died to give me a chance to get a clean start!
But early Sunday morning arose, to guarantee my salvation!

No. 9677-Inspiration

What evil has he done?

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 29, 2015

SCRIPTURE: And the governor said, Why, what evil hath he done? But they cried out the more, saying, Let him be crucified. Matthew 27:23

Introduction

Is there any person who is completely guiltless? From the pastor of the church to the President of the United States, can any person honestly say that He/she has not been a participant by action or inaction in an evil deed?

There are three monkeys that are often shown to depict innocence. The monkeys cover three different parts of their bodies and are labeled: "See no evil, hear no evil, and speak no evil." It's similar to the words of Job 27:4 "My lips shall speak no evil, my tongue shall speak no lies." (TLB)

In an ideal world, if everyone followed that rule the presence of evil would be reduced but would still exist. Why? Proverbs 23:7 says, "For as he thinketh in his heart, so is he."

We are born with evil, selfish inclinations and we spend a lifetime trying to get hold of those inclinations; replacing them with the love of God. It is often described as the devil in us. Dr. Finney says "Show me a man that is always suspicious of the motives of others, and forever putting the worst construction on the words and actions of his fellow men, and I will show you one who has the devil in him, not the Holy Ghost. He has that in his own mind which makes him think evil of others. If an individual is honest and simple-hearted himself, he will be the last to think evil of others."

If we are quick to suspect people of stealing, it is generally because, given the same situation, we would steal.

If we quickly suspect others of cheating on their spouses, it is because given the same circumstances we would have cheated ourselves.

The idea of contriving evil in our hearts is what the man who told Jesus about his righteousness because he did not commit adultery. Jesus answered in Mathew 5:28 "But I say unto you, That whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her already in his heart."

If anyone takes a second look at any one of us, they will find a fault. Even the best patriarchs of the Bible had weaknesses. You name the great man or woman, and you'll find a person with a weakness. David was a man after God's own heart, but he had a weakness for Bathsheba. Solomon was wise, but he had a weakness for pretty women. Absalom could have ascended to the throne of Israel, but he had a weakness for power. Judas was the treasurer of Jesus' inner circle, but he had a weakness for money. We all have weaknesses. It's our weaknesses that our critics see. The say, "he's a good man ..but" or "she's a good woman, but."

Unfortunately, it is the evil that we do that is most remembered. It is our mistakes, errors, foolishness that often live much longer than the good that we do in our lives. William Shakespeare, in his play, Julius Caesar, penned these immortal words, "The evil that men do lives after them, the good is oft interred with their bones."

If someone were to ask the question of us, "What evil has he done?" There will be many from both our past and present who will step up to say, "Chile, let me tell you."

When Jesus rode into Jerusalem on Palm Sunday, he was the picture of perfection. He lived his entire life without committing an evil act, speaking an evil word, seeing the worst in people, or thinking an evil thought in his mind. The people cried out Hosanna! They praised him as the righteous king. Yet, despite his innocence, he would be charged with doing that which he spent his entire life avoiding.

As Christians, we are grateful that Jesus, who was sinless himself, paid the penalty for our sins. He stepped forward to accept the punishment for our sinful thoughts and actions. He did no evil himself, but died on Calvary so that we could have a chance at everlasting life.

Exposition

This text focuses on a question posed by Pilate to the crowd demanding the crucifixion of Jesus.

A few days earlier, Palm Sunday, Jesus had ridden into Jerusalem as a conquering hero. The crowd waved palm branches and shouted Hosanna! Now they stood outside of the imperial judgment seat and demanded his crucifixion.

The account of this incident is fully understood by the three accounts woven into the synoptic Gospels. Jesus was tried three times, but despite the fact that false witnesses testified against him, his last court of appeal, before Pontius Pilate found no fault in him.

Between the three gospel accounts, we learn that Jesus was interrogated by Pilate, who found that he had done nothing worthy of death. Matthew tells us that Pilate to release Jesus instead of Barabbas, a convicted thief, but the crowd asked for Barabbas to be released.

Mark tells us in 15:12 that Pilate asked "What shall I do with Jesus? All three of the Synoptics says the crowd answered, "Crucify him." Matthew 27:22 added, "they all say."

Matthew 27:23 finds Pilate asking the question, "What evil hath he done?" However, Luke 23:22 says he asked the same question three times.

Despite giving no report of evil works he had done, the crowd demanded his crucifixion.

Jesus was ordered to be whipped and crucified, even though no one could point to a single evil thing he had done.

Jesus is rejected today

JESUS IS REJECTED IN THE NATION, WHAT HAS HE DONE? When the first pilgrims came to America, it was Palm Sunday in the New World. Most of those who came to these shores came so that they could freely lift up the name of Jesus. Today that name is increasingly rejected. There are repercussions for mentioning the name of Jesus in public places. Those who pray in his name or speak his name in a godly sense are viewed as politically incorrect. His name is now being replaced by Happy Holidays instead of Merry Christmas and many areas no longer have an Easter Break for schools, it has become a Spring Break and is often placed after Easter rather than leading up to it. Why? What evil has Jesus done? Are his followers urged to destroy their enemies, blow up planes or become terrorists? Does his doctrine urge believers to do anything other than love their neighbors and do good? What evil has he done?

JESUS IS REJECTED BY MANY INDIVIDUALS, WHAT HAS HE DONE? Just as the nation has often rejected Jesus, there are many individuals who have the Palm Sunday syndrome: they acknowledge God in triumphant, but reject him otherwise. These are the ones in our community that will praise God if they survive a storm or accident or receive a sudden and unexpected gift but reject the idea of following Christ as Savior. Some even ridicule the church, its members and belittle the faith. They dismiss the Bible as just another book and trample upon the idea of giving offerings to God in obedience to his command. Why do they reject Christ? What evil has he done to them? There is no answer to that question because there is no evil that God has done. God is incapable of doing anything evil. By his very nature, God is good all of the time and all of the time, God is good.

JESUS IS REJECTED DESPITE THE GOOD HE HAS DONE: Jesus stood before the crowd having been mocked, whipped, ridiculed and humiliated. This is the same man who spent his entire public life helping the poor, feeding the hungry, raising the dead, healing the sick, restoring sight to the blind and giving hope to the masses. He stood with his hands bound, head bowed and listened as the people he came to save railed against him and called for his death. Despite all of the good that he did; he was rejected. We have seen that so much in the world around us. Despite all of the good the Lord has done for so many, he is constantly rejected by those who refuse to follow him and obey him. Either they stand in the crowd and shout "Crucify him" or they stand quietly and refuse to associate themselves with him saying, "If that's what they want to do, that's their business." Despite all that he has done, there are still millions that daily reject him.

He has done great things

Finally, brothers and sisters, we cannot answer the question, "What evil hath he done?" That's because we can't think of any evil he hath done. However, we can testify to the great things he has done in our lives Psalm 126:3 says, The LORD hath done great things for us; whereof we are glad."

Anyone who has had experience with the Lord can testify that he has done great things in their lives.

The man who has been hungry but is now filled can testify that he has done great things for me!

The woman was thirsty, but found the living waters can testify that he has done great things for me!

The man who was destitute, jobless and homeless, but is now standing on solid ground can now testify; he has done great things for me!

The psalmist said he hath done great things "whereof we are glad."

Every child of God ought to show a little gladness sometimes.

We can show our gladness through the smiles on our faces!

We can show our gladness when we clap our hands!

We can show our gladness by paying our vows to God!

Showing gladness should not be difficult because we all have something to be glad about!

We're glad because he's done so many great things in our lives.

We're glad because he took our:

—heartaches and turned them into hallelujahs

—sorrows and turned them into joy

—deficiencies and turned them into sufficiencies

—frustrations turned them into faith

—Perplexities and turned them into peace

—miseries and turned them into miracles

Like David, we have a story to tell. He declared, "The Lord is my shepherd I shall not want!"

Like The lame man who had been sitting by the pool for 38 long years and then heard the Master say, "Take up thy bed and walk!" Every saint can say, "I was sinking deep in sin, far from the peaceful shore, very deeply stained within, sinking to rise no more, but the Master of the sea heard my despairing cry. From the waters lifted me, now safe am I!"

Like the woman at the well we are shouting, "Come see a man who told me all about myself!"

Come see a man who took my despair and gave me hope!

Come see a man who took my confusion and gave me direction!

Come see a man who failure and gave me a chance to start again!

He has done great things for me, but the greatest thing he did was take my sins and give me another chance at eternal life!

He suffered out on Calvary!

He died on an old rugged cross!

But, early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave!
What great thing has he done?
I just can't tell it all!
When I'm hungry, he feeds me; I just can't tell it all!
When I'm lonely, he is my comfort; I just can't tell it all!
When I fall down, he picks me up and turns me around and plants my feet on solid ground!
I just can't tell it all!

No. 9678-Easter

We are Easter People and Allelujah is our song!

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 5, 2015

SCRIPTURE: The first day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene early, when it was yet dark, unto the sepulcher, and seeth the stone taken away from the sepulchre. Then she runneth, and cometh to Simon Peter, and to the other disciple, whom Jesus loved, and saith unto them, They have taken away the Lord out of the sepulchre, and we know not where they have laid him. Peter therefore went forth, and that other disciple, and came to the sepulchre. So they ran both together: and the other disciple did outrun Peter and came first to the sepulchre; For as yet they knew not the scripture, that he must rise again from the dead. John 20:1-4;9

Introduction

If you had to wear a color that described your mood on Easter Sunday what color would it be? It is said that the colors of Easter represent things associated with the death and resurrection of Christ. Purple is the color of royalty, but it also the color of suffering. At funerals, there are purple draperies in the church and purple flowers in the edifice.

There are many purple people at Easter time. They remember the death of a loved one, and they can't get beyond that thought. Their lives came to an abrupt halt at the graveside, and they have been stuck there ever since.

Red is an Easter color, too. Red is associated with the shedding of blood, sacrifice and agony. There are many red people at Easter time because they remember too well the humiliations of their past, as well as their own sufferings and trials. For many, it has made them hard boiled like an egg.

The color stays on Easter eggs after they have been boiled because they have been bathed in vinegar. There are so many people whose lives have experienced so much vinegar that they have become sour, bitter and heartless.

There are other colors of Easter. There are blues that represent peace, gold that represents celebration and white that represents purity.

Those who are among the saved remember the black colored days of their lives when they were filled with sin, depression, guilt and self-hatred. They remember the black days when they drank heavily, lived in the clubs, and squandered their time and money on wild living. Yes, they remember the black days!

At Easter, those who have been saved from the blackness and brought to the light, understand that white colors represent their forgiveness of sin or that blues bring them peace and yellows remind them of the hope of new life and fresh starts.

Easter people like to wear bright colors at Easter time because it reminds them that no matter how dark the night, "Joy comes in the morning!"

St. Augustine used a phrase that has resonated across the centuries and even repeated by Pope John Paul II. He said, "Do not abandon yourselves in despair; we are the Easter People and Alleluia is our song."

That was an important statement from both of these men who arose from lives of mediocrity to champion the cause of Christ and triumph over despair themselves.

Believers should be the people that Easter represents; people who are full of hope and sing new songs about tomorrow, hope and success!

We are Easter People, with or without the colors, eggs, bunny rabbits and other commercial trappings, because we know it is the love of God demonstrated on Calvary that gives us another chance to grab life's brass ring and try with all of our might to reach a level we have never attained before. Why do we believe we can be better, reach higher and overcome obstacles? Because we are Easter people, and that's what Easter people do!

As Christians, we bear witness to the resurrection of Christ in our lives. In spirit, we were there at his crucifixion. Likewise, we were there on Easter Sunday morning! Every day we approach the world with new hope because we are Easter people!

Exposition

This text focuses on several people who approached Christ different ways on that first resurrection. They were the first Easter People.

John says Mary Magdalene came to the tomb early Sunday morning. Matthew adds "the other Mary" to the list and the women told the disciples that they found the tomb empty. The disciples ran to the tomb, and when they arrived at the tomb, they too found it empty.

Jesus had been in the grave for three days and three nights and in the dawn of the first day of the week, several women came to the grave site to complete his burial dressings. When they arrived at the tomb, they found it empty and ran to tell the disciples that his body had been removed. Hearing what the women said, two of his disciples, Peter, and John, ran to the tomb. Upon their arrival, they found an empty tomb and folded clothes.

Before the day ended the disciples found themselves locked in a room, full of despair and bewilderment, despite the news they heard.

Jesus appeared to them and changed their lives forever.

From that moment forward they stopped painting themselves in the dreary colors of defeat, doubt, and fear. They became Easter People who were bold, strong and more than conquerors through him who saved them with his blood.

The People that day

Just as there were different types of people that day, there are different types of people today.

THERE ARE MANY WHO HAVE GIVEN UP: Between the crucifixion and Easter Sunday morning there were many types of people, most notably were those who had given up. The disciples were strong in the faith, but they were the first ones to give up.

They were close by when he was tried by the Sanhedrin Council and found guilty.

They were close by when Herod mocked and ridiculed him.

They were in the crowd when Pilate handed him over to the soldiers for crucifixion.

They watched as he carried a cross toward Golgotha.

They watched as he was nailed to the cross and lifted up high.

They were present when he gave up the ghost and died.

They saw him buried in a freshly hewn tomb.

They saw the stone rolled in front of the tomb and guards placed in front of the tomb.

After they saw so much, they accepted the inevitable. In a similar way, there are many today who should color themselves dark brown at Easter. They have seen so many failed dreams and frustrated attempts at success that they have given up. These are the ones who think happiness will always evade them and peace cannot be their lot. They have seen opportunities for joy trampled under their feet, and they have accepted that achievement will always escape them. However, the message of Easter is the same that the disciples received when Christ showed up in their midst; we should fear not, but go boldly into the world as people who have seen the Savior themselves.

THERE ARE MANY WHOSE LIVES ARE TESTIMONIES: When the women came to the cross, they instantly ran to tell the disciples the good news. They could not keep it to themselves; they had to let it be known! Shouldn't that be the case for everyone who has experienced the joy of the bright oranges of grace and the bright yellows of undeniable joy? On Easter morning, the women could not contain themselves; they had to tell the others. It's the same testimony that those who have met the Lord should have today. We must be busy doing the work of him that sent us. We are Easter People; we help the poor and needy! We are Easter People; we reach out to the less fortunate! We are Easter People; we reach out to help! We are Easter people, we serve! This is exactly what the disciples did. They went into all the world healing the sick and raising the dead! There were unstoppable! They were more than conquerors. They were Easter people!

Today, the faithful should be just as bold. We should run with the passion of the women on Easter morning! Run toward the dream that has been placed on the back burner! Run toward the success that has evaded! Never accept defeat! Why? Because you have a testimony to give. Our God is an awesome God! He reigns from heaven above! We shall not give up because we are Easter People. Color us victorious!

THEY NEVER GIVE UP HOPE: What was very unique about the women on Easter Sunday is that when all others refused to come to the tomb, they came. It's the spirit of hopefulness that identifies Easter People. They did not know what to expect; they came anyway. They did not know if the body had been stolen; they came anyway. They did not know if they would be arrested, they came anyway. Easter People are those who are not dissuaded by what could happen, but do what they know must be done in faith that God will intercede, always hoping for the best.

A young seminary student read the ancient quote from St. Augustine, "Do not abandon yourselves to despair; we are Easter People and Alleluia is our song." She had the quote inscribed on a necklace that she wore around her neck daily. A year later she was diagnosed with cancer and given a short time to live. As she lost strength, those around her were amazed that she kept smiling and greeting them with cheer. In her last moments, she lost her battle with cancer; she whispered something so softly that no one could hear. As her life slipped away, her hand clutched the necklace, and she breathed one last word, "Hallelujah!" Those who mourned her read the words on the necklace with tears in their eyes. Like the words on her necklace, she died on Easter Sunday morning with Hallelujah on her lips!

Even in sickness, death and misfortune, Easter People never give up! We have learned to smile when the world is against us! We have learned to get up when we have been knocked down! We have learned to fight until the last second of the game! And even in defeat to look forward to the next round! Why? Because Romans 8:38 says, "For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord?" We are Easter People!

Hallelujah is our song

Finally, brothers and sisters, we note that not only are we Easter People, but Hallelujah is our song!

While there are many people who are like the disciples on Easter Sunday, locked away somewhere singing, "The Thrill is gone!" there are millions around the world, who have a new song to sing.

We are the 21st-century witnesses to the resurrection. We are not passive spectators, bystanders, and mere onlookers. We are living the promise of God each and every day!

We are Easter People who believe in the power of Almighty God

Because we are Easter people our:

—SKIES seems to be bluer
—SUN seems to shine brighter
—BIRDS seem to sing sweeter —FLOWERS seem to blossom fuller
—AIR seems more refreshing
—STARS seem to have more luster
—BURDENS seem lighter
—FAITH seems stronger

—HEAVEN seems closer

Because we are Easter People Hallelujah is our song!

We shout Hallelujah because no matter how many times we fall down, God helps us to rise again!

We shout Hallelujah because no matter how many times we go the wrong way, he keeps turning us around!

Hallelujah is our song because Easter is more than a season for bright colored eggs, new clothes and goody-filled baskets.

Our song is a new song because the season is more than, get-to-gethers sing-a-longs and family dinners.

Hallelujah is our song because we are singing about the mercies of the Lord.

Hallelujah is our song because we are celebrating the resurrection of our Lord!

Hallelujah is our song because we are singing about him leaving the celestial for the terrestrial.

Hallelujah is our song because we are singing about his setting aside his glorified body and putting on a body of flesh.

Hallelujah is our song because we are praising a savior who came down here and visited us for a while.

Hallelujah is our song because we are singing about a savior who did something for us that we could not do for ourselves, he saved our souls.

Hallelujah is our song because he came down here to quench our thirst and satisfy our hunger.

Our song is a new song because we are singing about Jesus.

We sing about him because although he was the creator, he became the created.

We sing about him because although he was the master, he became the servant.

We sing about him because although he was the King of Kings he became a man of many sorrows and lived a sacrificial life.

We sing about him because although he was the good shepherd, he became the Lamb of God.

Hallelujah is our song because it is a song of thanks. We should thank him for the mountain tops and for the valleys as well.

When we sing our song, we ought to thank him for the sunshine and thank him for the rain! We are Easter People, but we don't wait until Easter Sunday to tell the story of how he picked us up and turned us around!

We are Easter People; we ought to tell the world how he planted our feet on solid ground!

We are Easter people; we ought to tell the world how he gave us a new walk and a new talk!

We are Easter people; we ought to tell the world how he gave us a new song to sing!

"I've been washed in the blood of the crucified Lamb…"

Who died on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning he arose up from the grave!

That's why we are Easter People!

No. 9679-Inspiration

Caught in another man's bed

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 12, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "Then the king returned out of the palace garden into the place of the banquet of wine; and Haman was fallen upon the bed whereon Esther was. Then said the king, Will he force the queen also before me in the house? As the word went out of the king's mouth, they covered Haman's face. Esther 7:8-9; "Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord." Ephesians 5:22.;Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church and gave himself for it," Ephesians 5:25

Introduction

There are millions of husbands and wives who are unfaithful to each other each year, do you know a few? Nearly every adult knows someone who has or has had what the late Hank Williams called a "Cheating Heart." There are thousands who plunge into out-of-wedlock relationships just days or weeks after they are married. While these are not the majority, there enough out-of-wedlock experiences among married couples to cause concern.

Cheating knows no race, creed or color. Men cheat, and so do women. Regular people cheat, and even Presidents of the United States have had affairs while living in the White House. Thomas Jefferson was president for eight years but had five children by his slave, Sally Henning. Warren Harding had two affairs and a child while President when he was found dead, it was rumored but never proven that his wife poisoned him. Franklin Roosevelt was in a wheelchair but carried on a 30-year love affair with his wife's secretary. Dwight Eisenhower fell in love with his driver. JFK was a literal dog. He had affairs with Models, gangsters wives, White House staffers and even Marilyn Monroe, all while being protected by the Secret Service. Bill Clinton had an affair with an intern in the White House.

There was cheating in the Bible, too. The prophet Hosea was married to a prostitute who cheated on him publicly. King David stole a man's wife, got her pregnant and then killed her husband. Samson had an affair with a beautiful gold digger named Delilah, who cut his hair and took him for everything he had including his strength, his eyes, and his life.

The tendency to cheat does not recognize any boundaries. The1990 the Kinsey report revealed that nearly half of American couples had experienced some level of unfaithfulness from serious flirting to out-of-wedlock experiences. In 1997, Newsweek magazine reported that as many as 30 percent of all married Protestant ministers had some type of out-of-wedlock experience, often with members of their churches. Other studies have shown that there are large numbers of people who attend worship services to scout for husbands to steal away from wives and wives to take away from their husbands.

Just because a person is a believer, does not mean he/she has immediate immunity to out-of-wedlock temptations. At this very moment, there are thousands of believers who have out-of-wedlock plans for tonight! Many are living together as if they are married while praising the Lord from soiled sheets!

Marriage is a holy arrangement. In a marriage, the woman represents the church or all of the believers in the world. The husband represents Christ, who is to love his wife like Christ loves the church. When spouses love, they show the love and compassion of God. However, when one cheats, it becomes a type of what happens when a believer cheats on God by having affairs with the world, The relationship has been soiled and should be cleaned up if at all possible; if not it should be abandoned.

As Christians, we praise God for giving us his son to keep his spirit alive in our homes. Without his spirit, the devil would make an entry into our homes and soiled the spiritual purity of our families. Every day we pray that he will build a fence around us to protect us from the evil one.

Exposition

The text focuses on Haman, who was caught on the bed with the king's wife and was hanged.

Haman had risen to great authority in the court of the king. Using broad authorities given to him, he sat out to persecute all of the Jews in the kingdom. Esther was the king's new wife. She was a Jewish girl who was reported to be the most beautiful woman in the kingdom. She was disturbed that Haman was planning to kill thousands of Jewish people beginning with their leader, Mordecai.

In a private moment, on her bed with the king, she told him of Haman's plans and begged him to give relief to her people. When the King heard about Haman's plan and how he had built gallows to publicly hang Mordecai he was enraged. He jumped up from his bed and went out on the balcony to cool his rage.

While he was gone, Haman attempted to beg the queen to the queen to spare his life. Some scholars say he reached for her feet to plead his case, but that is not written, but what is written is that he stumbled onto the bed with the queen, just as the angry king walked back into the room. What he saw was Haman, who planned to murder the Jews in his name, on the bed with his Jewish wife.

It was obvious that nothing had happened because there were guards in the room and the king was on the adjacent balcony, but it was enough for the king to order him hanged on the very gallows he built for Mordecai.

The outcome may have been different had Naman not be caught in the bed with another man's wife.

How can we stumble?

Naman stumbled onto Esther's bed and hung himself. There are ways that believers can stumble and ruin otherwise perfect marriages.

WE MUST AVOID SINNING AGAINST GOD: Believers should remember that any out-of-wedlock physical experience (sex) is a sin: 1) Against God 2) Against your spouse if you're married; and 3) Against your partner if you are not married. Those who cheat in the marriage, attack the very institution that God established to represent his moral order. We cannot commit adultery without sinning against God. Moreover, out-of-wedlock experiences wreck homes and turn the lives of children upset down, many of whom are scarred for life. God's law says it clearly in Exodus 20:14 "Thou shalt not commit adultery." Those who engage in out-wedlock experiences sin against the very God they want to bless them and shower them with favor. A man who sleeps with a woman who has slept with five men in her life and each of them has had out-of-wedlock experiences with ten women, comes home and exposes his wife to the health risks of 250 people in one night. It's a grave sin against his family.

WATCH FOR THE RED FLAGS: How do relationships fall apart? How can another person find a way into the life of your spouse? What are the red flags? The Bible says we should be on guard constantly because the devil is looking for a way to destroy us. 1 Peter 5:8 says, "Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour:" We know that he has found a way into a marriage when one or more of the following red flags begin to happen:

1) Whenever intimate conversations begin with the opposite sex doors are opened that will lead to trouble. Don't cross the line. Talk about work, professional goals, but nothing intimate.

2) Whenever one partner perceives that his/her needs are superior to the other's needs, a problem begins. When my dream is important, and yours is not or when both don't feel that each sits on an equal pedestal, a problem will occur.

3) When one spouse tries to remake the other by preaching to them, lecturing or ridiculing their beliefs, intelligence or passions, doors of communication close and one spouse refuses to communicate with the other.

4) When outbursts of rage and anger happen, they lead to arguments, fights and abuse. They instantly close doors and signal that the time of the end is near.

5) Lack of affection often sends one spouse looking for it outside of wedlock

6) When partners live separate lives, relationships become shaky because partners spend very little quality recreational and fun time together creating shared experiences. They grow in opposite directions and find comfort in the presence of others sharing the same "life." Time is needed to share common experiences, adventures, and tasks. If this does not happen, couples will grow apart.

7) Emotional support is key to building a marriage. There are times when a partner experiences fear, loneliness, anger or frustration. An understanding partner who comforts and supports builds a bond that is unbreakable.

8) When there is constant conflict at home, one partner might seek peace somewhere else. If the home atmosphere is constantly filled with blame, accusations, confrontations, suspicion and fighting, the home becomes a place to stay away from, and marriage becomes a prison.

9) When there is no trust, there is trouble. Trust is essential to building a strong marriage. Each partner should work to earn the trust of their partners. There should be no secret accounts, cell phones or activities. Distrust leads to dissatisfaction. Dissatisfaction sends one to another man or woman's bed.

10) Couples that discuss their finances, plan, and budget wisely usually have few problems. Disputes over spending, saving and management usually affect the relationships.

COMMON LAW MARRIAGES WITHOUT RINGS INSULT GOD: There are millions of couples in the nation who are married in the common law, but they have no rings. A marriage without a ring is a relationship where a man and a woman are enjoying the benefits of marriage but plan to leave if anything becomes a problem. Out-of-Wedlock, live-in arrangements defy God's purposes and reduce it to mere sex and convenience. Two people in ringless relationships are not one, they are two, enjoying the sex and the convenience without any lasting commitment otherwise. It's important that believers know that those who live together as husband and wife cross the line. Some have tried living in the same apartment, without being intimate; that didn't last long.

The word of God says anyone who is a whoremonger or unclean person cannot expect to be part of the kingdom of God. Shacking is an impure arrangement that causes them to lose their spiritual inheritance. Ephesians 5:5 "For this ye know, that no whoremonger, nor unclean person, nor covetous man, who is an idolater, hath any inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and of God." 1 Corinthians 6:18-19, " Flee fornication. Every sin that a man doeth is without the body; but he that committeth fornication sinneth against his own body. What? Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost, which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own?"

Those who choose not to live together but to spend a night together without rings also insult and anger God. Here's the warning, it's in 1 Corinthians 6:9-10, "Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? Be not deceived: neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with mankind, 10 Nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God."

What to do

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should take courage in the knowledge that even if we have stumbled and ended up in the wrong bed, we can be forgiven.

Christians are not exempt from sexual sin. Believers who have fallen into fornication, adultery, pornography, homosexuality, lesbianism, bestiality, or any other sexual deviation from the biblical norm can be restored to the graces of God.

Step one is to stop the sinful act.

Step two is to accept blame for your part in the sinful act, confess your sins to the Lord and break off your relationships that lead you or tempt you to further sin.

This may be hard to swallow, but it is necessary.

When David was caught in another man's bed, God brought down judgment upon the land and upon him personally. It steadily increased until one day David dropped to his knees and said, in Psalm 51:10, "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me."

When the right spirit is renewed within us, we tap into the joy of the Lord!

It's the joy of the Lord that makes the world look better and life more fulfilling!

When the joy of the Lord returns, we are excited once again!

I don't know about you, but the best part of our faith is that when we see Jesus face to face, he will forgive our sins and embrace us as sons and daughters.

I want to see Him and tell him I'm sorry.

I must tell Jesus!

Tell Jesus; Jesus can help me, Jesus alone!

Jesus, the Bridegroom of the church!

Jesus, the lover of my soul!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who arose from the dead!

Tell Jesus; Jesus can help you, Jesus alone!

No.9680-Inspiration

A Desperate Housewife

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 19, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "Either what woman having ten pieces of silver, if she lose one piece, doth not light a candle, and sweep the house, and seek diligently till she find it? And when she hath found it, she calleth her friends and her neighbours together, saying, Rejoice with me; for I have found the piece which I had lost..' Luke 15:8-9

Introduction

Have you ever felt there was something missing in your life? How did you find it? Often people around us behave strangely because they are searching for something that is missing. An otherwise loyal husband starts to cheat on his wife with a younger woman, trying to reclaim a youth that has past. A wife who feels neglected searches for assurance of her womanhood in the arms of another. A man who feels caged in a career that is taking him no place abandons it midstream. A woman who changes her life completely, seeking something with substance and meaning. All of these are instances of people who, in desperation, reach out to grab for something they think will make them complete and fulfilled. Their search raises eyebrows but is certainly not unfamiliar to us.

There is a television series entitled, "Desperate Housewives" in which most of the characters live on a street called "Wisteria Lane." The residents on the street all appear to be persons who are frustrated with life and often find meaning through belittling each other, destroying each other's homes, or trying to outdo one another. They try to reach satisfaction even if it means taking a neighbor's husband, emotional stability or livelihood.

It is a widely popular show because it reveals a dark side of otherwise rather pristine lives. It unveils a sense of desperation in each family that is hidden by their outward smiles and shows of happiness. Even the name of the street on which they live, "Wisteria Lane," is revealing. Wisteria.is the name of a twisting vine with beautiful blossoms that climb high, yet unless it is kept under control it can become something that is both beautiful and destructive. Unless regularly pruned, this vine has the power to destroy brick walls, choke the life out of oak trees and ruin gardens.
Unless kept in check, wisteria will destroy anything that it clings to and all the while it is destroying and killing it will be blossoming as beautifully as ever. No uninformed passerby would even suspect that something so delightful could actually be so deadly.

On Wisteria Lane lives desperate housewives, husbands, children, and families. These are families that appear to have it all together on the outside but are desperately sucking the life out of themselves and others on the inside.

Henry David Thoreau once said, "The mass of men lead lives of quiet desperation." It describes a hunger that many people have that is below the radar and not readily visible to others. It's a hunger that drives them to reach for something that seems to evade them, but they need to survive.

While Wisteria Lane on television focuses on desperate housewives, in our own experience we have heard the desperate cries of those who are distressed and felt the pangs of desperation pulling at our spirit as we faced sickness, death, and failure.

In passion, the Bible showed us Potiphar's wife chasing Joseph around a room; trying to force love. We saw Ruth sleeping at the feet of Boaz desperately trying to get a husband. We saw Hosea desperately trying to find his wayward wife. But in an even greater sense, we saw David, desperately trying to receive forgiveness from God, even pleading, "Create in me a clean heart O God, and renew a right spirit within me." We even saw the Good Shepherd leaving the 99 desperately looking for one lost sheep.

When we are desperate, it shows in our eyes, the trembling of our voices, the panic-stricken look on our faces and the uneasiness in our soul.

We could all live on Wisteria Lane because life often chokes us to the point of desperation. We don't often show it in public, but there are many times when we feel like Jesus hanging on the cross and cry out "Why hast thou forsaken me?" –In desperation, sometimes we show anger, frustration and sadness.

Fortunately, our God is a God of the desperate, the lonely, the angry and those with failed spirit. In his desperation, David said, "I will lift mine eyes to the hills from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, who made the heavens and earth."

As Christians, we are happy that our God is present in our moments of despair and desperation. We are happy to know that he is our strength and a very present help in a time of trouble. We desperately seek more of his grace as we sing, "More, more about Jesus, More, more about Jesus. More of his saving fullness see. More of his love who died for me."

Exposition

The text focuses on a parable of Jesus as he explains the nature of the kingdom of heaven.

To explain the nature of his mission and the nature of man's relationship with God also, Jesus told three parables. One spoke of a shepherd who had 100 sheep and realized that he had lost one and went out to find it. Another spoke of a man who had two sons and one went into the far country and wasted his life in riotous living. Another, which is the focus of this text, involved a woman who had ten coins and lost one in her house. The woman desperately searched and swept her house until she found the lost coin and celebrated thereafter. The coin itself was called a "drachma" and was equal to about a day's wages for their times. It would be same today as if someone had $500 in $50.00 bills and had lost one somewhere in the house. The woman could not rest until she had searched everywhere in the house and brought light to every dark place as she searched.

We don't the exact circumstances, but we know that she was a housewife because she was styled as a widow. We also know that when she lost the coin, she became desperate to have it restored.

Her desperate search resulted in the coin being found, and her joy restored, to which she gave praise to the Lord.

Desperate Situations

There are many situations in life that push us to the point of desperation, yet believers find Jesus is each one.

WHEN STORMS RAGE: When the storms of life rage, we are pushed to desperation. The disciples were on a fishing boat once when a sudden storm arose that threatened to sink the ship. They feared for their lives, but suddenly remembered that Jesus was on board. Then someone asked, "Carest thou not that we perish?" Jesus arose in the midst of the storm and commanded, "Peace be Still." –And the storm ceased. When storms rage in our lives we, like the disciples, often forget that Jesus is on board. He has the power to speak to the storm. Worry is a sign of desperation; it is not the same as a concern. Concern implies that a situation is not neglected and is being addressed. Worry implies that focus has shifted from concern to a thousand possible negative outcomes. We should not allow desperation to push us to forget that we are children of the King. Speak to your storm, in the name of Jesus, and watch the hand of God push back the clouds and show you a brighter path. Greg O'Quinn's song, "I told the storm" showed a believer's response to desperate situations when he wrote:

"Winds stop blowing!
Floods stop flowing!
Lightning stop flashing!
Breakers stop dashing!
Darkness go away!
Clouds move away!
That's what I told the storm!

Death can't shake me!
Job can't make me!
Bills can't break me!
Disease can't take me!
You can't drown me!
My God surrounds me!
That's what I told the storm!"

WHEN DEALING WITH ISSUES: The daily flow of issues can push us to desperation. Whether the issue is financial or medical, we can lose control if we don't find Jesus. When Jesus passed through a city, a certain woman who had an issue of blood for 12 years heard he was there. She had been dealing with the issue in her life for 12 years, but in a desperate move, she pushed through the crowd to touch the hem of his garment. She brought her issue to Jesus. For Hannah, the issue was infertility, and she brought it before God and promised if she had a child she would give him back to God for service. For the man sitting by the pool for 38 years, his issue was that no one would help him get into the healing waters; Jesus personally handled his issue and told him to rise up and walk. Life's issues don't wait patiently to come at a convenient season; they come like a flood. When they come, they often drive us to desperation. In desperation, the weak resort to ungodliness. Stealing, vengeance, cheating, and gambling are acts of desperation of the faithless. The faithful take a different direction and act in faith. These are the ones who plant seeds even when there is no rain and say, "Father I stretch my hands to thee, no other help I know. If thou withdraw thyself from me, whither shall I go?" – When faced with desperation issues, give them to Jesus, he will give you the answer you need.

IN DESPERATION, FIND JESUS: The woman with the lost coin realized that she had lost something of value. It was so important to her that she searched until she found it. She did not put it off or content herself to live without it; she diligently sought to find it. In a similar sense, there are many who are missing something in their lives and are trying to find it; often in the wrong places. Some like Potiphar's wife, have lost the intimacy in their lives and desperately chase every opportunity to find it. That's why she chased Joseph around the room. Some have lost their professional edge that made them great. Still others have lost the joy of living and are desperately trying to find it again. That's what Johnny Lee had in mind when he wrote these lyrics:

"I was lookin' for love in all the wrong places
Lookin' for love in too many faces
Searchin' their eyes, lookin' for traces
Of what I'm dreamin' of."

There are many who have misplaced their spiritual connection. In the absence of spiritual truth, they are lost and desperate for something. That's what David called, "The joy of thy salvation."

In desperation, we need to find the Lord. We lost him, and we need to seek him. Isaiah 55:5 says, "Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near." Acts 17:27 puts it this way, "..Seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him, and find him, though he be not far from every one of us."

There are millions who are searching for the Lord in desperation. They want to feel his presence! They want to be showered with his favor! They want to be anointed with his power! They have tried alternatives, but they know what's missing, and they won't stop until they draw near to him. They sing, "Draw me nearer, nearer blessed Lord to the cross where thou hast died, draw me nearer, nearer blessed Lord, to thy precious bleeding side."

Joy replaces desperation

Finally, brothers and sisters, the woman in this text searched until she found what she lost and rejoiced because that which was lost had been found.

There are many who have searched the world over trying to find love, peace, happiness but found it only when the came to Jesus.

The woman at the well was a desperate housewife, who had five husbands, but didn't find peace in her spirit until she met Jesus at the well. She ran through the whole city saying, "Come see a man who told all I've ever done!"

The parents of a lunatic boy who was filled with demons sought help from every source possible in their desperation; they found their answer at the feet of Jesus.

There are many today who can say that in desperation, they searched high and lo0w, but they only found peace when they came to Jesus.

That's why some sing, "I came to Jesus as I was, weary, wounded and sad. I found him a resting place, and he has made me glad!"

When we came to Jesus, we swapped our desperation for the "joy of the Lord."

Those who live in the joy of the Lord, are recipients of his assurance in times of trouble. When tempted to become desperate they remember: "The Lord will make a way somehow."

When you know the joy of the Lord, you also know the goodness of the Lord. It is the goodness of the Lord that transforms our:

—DESPERATION into the confident assurance.

—BURDENS into blessings; CARES into comforts

—DEFEATS into delights; HEARTACHES into hallelujahs!

—PROBLEMS into praises; HOUSES into homes

—SORROWS into songs; SADNESS into gladness

It's the goodness of the Lord that prompted David to write in Psalm 106:1 "O give thanks unto the Lord for he is good and his mercy endureth forever!"

What is the Joy of the Lord?

The joy of the Lord is going into battle without desperation, knowing that before the battle begins the victory is won!

The joy of the Lord is knowing that no matter how tough the enemy there is no need for desperation because we will be the victor!

The joy of the Lord is knowing that no matter how dark the night, there is no need for desperation because joy comes in the morning!

The joy of the Lord is the assurance that storms may rise, and winds may blow, but God is still on the throne!

We are not desperate housewives, anxious husbands, and weary children!

We are children of the king who can sing, "Victory is mine, victory is mine, victory today is mine. I told Satan to get thee behind..victory today is mine!"

We have the victory because with blood and perspiration, Jesus took the sting out of desperation and picked up an old rugged cross!

He took our desperation and turned it into salvation when he died on Calvary's hill!

He took our desperation and turned it into exaltation when early Sunday morning he arose from the dead!

Today we have no desperation or separation, victory today is ours!

No. 9681-Inspiration

Selfies with the Lord

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 26, 2015

SCRIPTURE:"And it came to pass, as they departed from him, Peter said unto Jesus, Master, it is good for us to be here:and let us make three tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias:not knowing what he said. "Luke 9:33

Introduction

Have you ever taken a selfie? A selfie is a self-photo of oneself usually taken with a digital camera and posted on a social media site such as Facebook, Instagram or Snapchat. The idea is to do one of two things: Capture yourself in a flattering pose that you want the world to see or to show your friends and others and more jovial side of yourself. Sometimes Selfies are taken with others to capture a moment.

Selfies are a relatively new phenomenon because a decade ago they were not possible. The temptation to take a selfie is not limited to young people or just regular citizens, even heads of state take selfies.

Sometimes selfies can get you in real trouble.

In December of 2013, President Barack Obama made news headlines during Nelson Mandela's funeral in South Africa. While speakers were eulogizing Mandela, the president was taking selfies with Danish Prime Minister Helle Thorning-Schmidt and British Prime Minister David Cameron. It made world news because in the middle of the funeral the President of the United States was taking selfies with a beautiful Danish leader and the leader of England. The decision to take the selfies was considered to be in poor taste and was considered "clowning around like muppets". Photographers snapped photos of First Lady Michelle Obama sitting next to them looking "furious and mortified" When the President began talking with the Danish leader, putting his hand on her shoulder, the First Lady became gave the two of them a dirty look and switched seats, keeping the two apart. - End of Selfie.

In February of 2015 President Obama wanted to get young people to know more about healthcare, so he posted selfies of himself sticking out his tongue and making funny faces. Those who clicked on the photos were taken to a website to convince them to sign up for Affordable health care.

Everyone has taken a photo with someone before but selfies center on the individual. It's not a picture of "you" that is wanted; it's a picture of "me" that I want.

You name the event whether it is a funeral or a rock concert someone will take a selfie.

Selfies are taken with movie stars. When a team scores a victory, there's a selfie! When we visit a historic site, there's a selfie. Sometimes we don't want anyone else in the photo - Just us; that's a selfie.

A generation ago there was the "Kodak Moment" - it was a snapshot of others laughing, playing, enjoying themselves or doing something special. It was a phrase associated with Kodak cameras that promoted the idea of preserving special moments to review later. These special moments were called "Kodak Moments" - Rarely was the person capturing the moment actually in the picture themselves, although the advent of self-timers started to change things.

The fascination with putting ourselves in the picture has grown to the point where we even put ourselves in the photos of others; it's called photobombing. Photobombs usually spoil someone else's Kodak moment with an amusing shot of ourselves.

0Can you imagine what the scene would have been in the villages and towns of Israel as Jesus spoke to large crowds? There would have been those insisting on taking a selfie with the Lord with a few baskets of the bread he used to feed thousands. That wine at the wedding would have caused many at the reception to want a selfie with the winemaker.

Can you hear someone shout: "Say, Master? Can you and Peter take a selfie with me?"

As Christians, we are among the millions who take selfies every day. However, when it comes to our faith in God our desire is: "Hide me behind your cross, Dear Lord, so that less of me and more of thee is seen and heard."

Exposition

This text focuses on a special moment on a mountainside in which they were shown the vision of the kingdom to come.

Jesus took Peter, James and John into a high mountain to show them a vision of the Kingdom of God and the things to come so that they could fully understand. As Jesus prayed for the vision, all three men went to sleep. While they were asleep, God rolled back the canopies of heaven and revealed the complete vision. Appearing in the vision were Elijah and Moses, who came to show the disciples the nature of their mission. Jesus' countenance changed. His clothes turned white and started to shine and glow. Moses and Elias appeared in the vision and talked with Jesus. At the end of the vision, the three woke up and saw the tail end of a vision planned for them. Excited, but half sleep, Peter wanted to build three Tabernacles and stay on the mountain. He was babbling aimlessly. Luke 9:33 noted that he was "not knowing what he said."

Peter missed the big picture but wanted to save the moment.

He did not see the vision of Jesus going to Jerusalem, his trial or his crucifixion. He did not see the vision of the glorious church that would come after his resurrection.

He woke up in time, just to see two famous people on the mountaintop and instantly wanted to do something that would save the moment. He wanted to build three markers that would let the world know what happened. It would also let the world know that he was there.

He missed the big picture; what he wanted was something he could show someone else to prove he had been in the presence of someone great.

Selfie Moments

FAITH EXPERIENCES PROVIDE NO SELFIES: Faith experiences do not lend themselves to selfies. There are have been moments in lives of believers when God has opened doors and dried up Red Seas for us. However, those moments were not about "us" they were about the kingdom. Our faith history has taught that God opens doors for us in connection with the overall vision of the kingdom. If God needs a carpenter to build a wall in the kingdom, doors will open for certain people to learn carpentry. Their blessing was not about them; it was about the kingdom. That's why we can't point too heavily to ourselves in any faith experience. It's always about submitting to the will of God. When the disciples worried about paying their taxes, Jesus told them to go fishing. They caught a fish with a gold coin; enough to pay the taxes. The blessing wasn't about them; it was about providing for the kingdom. Even when believers are blessed today, our blessings come so that they can be used in part to build the kingdom. We are blessed so that we can bless the kingdom's work. Take self out of the picture. It's not about me, but it's about doing what I can to build the kingdom.

SELFIE IS NOT A SELF PORTRAIT: There is a difference between a selfie and a self-portrait. A selfie captures the moment, but it does not paint a picture of who we really are. When the President took a selfie of himself in the mirror sticking his tongue out; that may have shown a jovial side of himself, but it is not who he really is. A portrait captures the moods and feelings of an individual's persona as seen by an artist. A self-portrait captures that same persona as seen by oneself. Jesus asked his disciples how people saw him and received a variety of responses. But when he said he came "that you might have life and have it more abundantly, he painted a self-portrait. As believers, we are not interested in being seen doing the work of God; we are interested in getting the work done. If we feed the hungry, we don't need to be seen doing it, but we do need to get the work done. Our spiritual self-portrait should be of a man or woman like Paul, who had a Damascus Road experience. Like Peter, we had our moments of denial. Like Thomas, we had our moments of doubt, but like the eleven chose to live and die for the kingdom of God. The selfie fades, but the portrait remains as a picture of a man or woman who lives by their faith in God.

PHOTOBOMBS RUIN THE PICTURE: There are many who feel they must stick themselves in the picture to become the center of attention. They photobomb the best moments. The work of God is not about one person; it's about the kingdom of God. That's what Peter, James and John missed on the mountaintop. They did not see how they fit into the big picture of things. They only saw the moment that needed to be preserved so they could show it to others. There are many who want to photobomb the work of the Lord. If the choir sings, they want to be seen singing the solo. If the church ministers, they want to be seen out front. They insist that their name is written in the program or that their face is included in the photos of the event. Our insistence on capturing the limelight and refocusing the attention to ourselves runs counter to the teachings of Christ. In Matthew 6:2 Jesus said the person who wants to photobomb the offering so he can be seen "has his reward." In Matthew 6:5 he said the person who wants to photobomb the prayer meeting so he can be praised, "has his reward." In Matthew 6:16 he said the person who wants to gain the attention for the church's fast "has his reward." In Luke 9:23 Jesus says, "And he said to them all, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me." In essence, don't photobomb the work of the church; it's not about you, it's about the Lord. To God is the glory!

God and Me

Finally, brothers and sisters, while we try to remove "self" out of our kingdom service, God sees our unselfish acts and rewards us with precious moments that only we can share.

Kodak promoted the "Kodak moment" as a special moment worthy of preserving, but believers have special moments, too. We call these special moments our "God Moments."

These are the moments that cannot be photographed or posted on Facebook or Instagram. These are the moments when God stepped into our lives and worked a worked that could not be seen when it was happening, but we know he was there when it was over.

David had many God moments. When he faced wild animals that threatened his father's flocks, those were "God moments."

When he faced Goliath with only a slingshot and five smooth stones, that was a "God Moment."

When Saul chased him and treated as a criminal, those were God moments.

When faced with the tough decision about leading the people Moses climbed into the mountains to talk with God, and God spoke to him and showed him the way. That was a God moment!

Abraham, a man of great faith, took God at his word that his family would be blessed and would multiply and went up into God's will. The moment he accepted God's will was a God moment.

Daniel refused to be intimidated by the prospect of hungry lions and went into God's protection; that was a God moment.

The Hebrew Boys, faced with death in a fiery furnace or eternal shame before God, chose to go up into God's protective care; that was a God moment.

In a God moment, we are not trying to focus attention on ourselves or our situation, but only the will of God.

It's not about self, but it's all about God.

That's why the songwriter wrote, "I come to the garden alone, while the dew is still on the roses. And the voice I hear, falling on my ear, the Son of man discloses. And he walks with me, and he talks with me, and he tells me I am his own. And the joy we share as we tarry there, none other has ever known."

While it's not about self, it's good to know that God is concerned about us.

When nobody else:

—Cares, that the Lord is concerned about me

—Forgives me, that the Lord is willing to forget

—Accepts me, that the Lord receives me with arms wide open

—Wants me, that the Lord accepts me as a child of the King

It's not about self; that's when Jesus showed us when he went into the garden to pray! He said father; I have done all that you told me to do. I have established the ministry, fed the hungry, healed the sick and raised the dead. I know the whole plan is for me to go to Calvary, but if there is a way, please let this cup pass, but never-the-less, it's not about me, "not my will, but thy will be done!"

It was about self; it was about showing love for the world!

He died out on Calvary!

But early Sunday morning he arose from the dead!

He did it all for me and not for himself!

No.9682-Inspiration

Tell John

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 3, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "Then Jesus answering said unto them, Go your way, and tell John what things ye have seen and heard; how that the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor the gospel is preached." Luke 7:22

Introduction

If we were to ask other people their opinion of you, what would they say? The answers would be interesting. Public opinion is based on perceptions and often is not grounded in fact. People form opinions based on what they see and hear. Because of this an entire industry has evolved in America that specializes in shaping public opinion; it's called public relations and marketing.

A publicist earns a living by shaping the public's opinion of his client. Whether the client is a food product, shoe or a politician, the publicist learns what the public thinks of the client then shapes that opinion by carefully arranged media appearances, commercials, and photo opportunities.

A client can be acceptable if he is associated with successful and acceptable people. Many companies pay outstanding athletes millions of dollars to endorse their products so that the client can benefit from their image. Then there are others such as Mike Tyson and Floyd Mayweather, two championship boxers known for beating women that have no endorsements at all. Their images are terrible outside of the ring.

Those who have the most accurate opinions of us are those who have had some type of dealing with us. This is not a manufactured relationship, but one that is based on personal interactions. A personal testimony is invaluable because it's not based on opinion, but on one's actual experience. It is the most reliable kind of opinion.

In his relationship with his followers, Jesus quickly found that he had a perception problem. Public opinion concerning Jesus was all over the place. He seemed to be different things to different people.

In the opinion of the Zealots, he came to establish a new earthly kingdom. They believed he came to fight even though he constantly reminded them that "He that lives by the sword will die by the sword."

In the opinion of the Romans, who first thought he came to overthrow the Roman government, Jesus' kingdom building sermon were seditious. However, Jesus established early that his kingdom was not of this world.

In the opinion of the hungry Jesus was the a new source of food, even if they were in crowds of 5,000 or more. They joyfully proclaimed “Bread of Heaven, Bread of Heaven, Feed me till I want no more.” They held this opinion even though they heard Jesus say, “Man shall not live by bread alone but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God.”

In the opinion of the sick, Jesus came to set up a medical practice. However, Jesus constantly reminded them that the cause of many of their sicknesses was their sin and he called them to repentance.

In the opinion of the Scribes and Pharisees Jesus was a young upstart who wanted to overthrow the law, but Jesus declared, “I come not to destroy the law but to fulfill it.”

His disciples thought he came to be served, but Jesus reminded them that he came not to be ministered unto but to minister, not to be served but to serve.

They saw his actions and heard his words, but many still did not believe. They had only a confused opinion of the Savior.

As Christians, we don’t have a confused opinion of the master. We know who he is and we gladly testify to his Lordship, because of what we have seen with our own eyes and what he has done in our lives. When Jesus asked his disciples their opinion, they said, “Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.” We say they same.

Exposition

This text focuses on John The Baptist’s query of the nature of Jesus’ calling.

John had been jailed for preaching the Gospel of Christ. The king had him imprisoned and he was sentenced to death.

While waiting his execution, John sent word to Jesus, through one of his followers, to see if Jesus was the savior the world sought or whether they should wait for another. This was a valid question because the scriptures made reference to the coming of an anointed one who would establish his kingdom and extend the house of David.

John Baptized Jesus and even thought they were cousins, he was not sure of who he was or what his mission was on earth.

When the messenger reached Jesus with John’s question, “Are you the one?” Jesus’ only answer was for John to consider his works. He said, “Tell John what things ye have seen and heard; how that the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor the gospel is preached.”

Jesus gave no further explanation. It was if he said, “May the work I’ve done, speak for me.”

The fact that the blind were able to see, the lame walked and the dead were raised should have been sufficient evidence.

Jesus’ response should also be the response of believers to an unbelieving world that does not know the Lord, “Tell them what he has done for you.” Don’t argue or debate. His actions in your life are sufficient.

What is Christ to you?

There are many who have their opinions about Christ and they question our faith. What should be our response? We should take note of the way Jesus responded to John's disiciple. He told him to look at the evidence and he chose to let the facts speak for themselves.

HE HAS SUPPLIED OUR NEEDS: When asked why we serve the Lord, our first response is that he supplies our needs. God has been faithful in providing us with food, clothing, and shelter. Whatever our needs, he has supplied it for us. Often we did not perceive the way he supplied it, but we soon recognized that God was in the plan. He has supplied our needs faithfully just as he supplied the needs of Israel as they wandered in the wilderness. He supplied their food, on time every day; even though they complained about it. He fixed it such that the material that formed their clothing and tents held up for 40 years without the need of repair. He arranged it so that they wore the same shoes and clothes for decades and they never wore out. There was water just when they needed it most. God was faithful to Israel and he has been faithful to us. No matter how we look at it, we have been blessed by the powerful hand of God. So the question is asked, "Are you a waymaker? Are you the one?" The answer might come, "Tell John" I have supplied the needs of the faithful. Tell John the hungry have been fed and needs have been met.

HE HAS OPENED DOORS: Another evidence of the goodness of the Lord is that he has faithfully kept his promise to open doors for us and to make opportunities for the abundant life available to true believers. When others turned their backs on us, our God was right by our side to open up opportunities for us to survive and thrive. As we reflect on his goodness, we see that God has kept his word and open doors that we did not even know existed. Many have recognized an increase in pay, completed new challenges, and have been promoted higher, as God working on the inside, helped us expand our territory. There are many who have experienced stronger family relationships and God has unlocked doors for us, allowing us to walk right in without a care. When the question is asked, "Is God real?" "Can he make a way?" We respond to the curious John's of the world, "Tell John that in my life, God has proven that he can make a way out of no way and open doors that I could not see."

HE HAS SAVED OUR SOULS: The most important testimony we can give to anyone who wants to know why we serve the Lord is that he saved our souls. He saved us from the punishment of sin and gave us a chance to make heaven our home. We know he did because John 3:16 says, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, so that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life." Not only has he saved our souls from hell's fire but he saves us and sustains us everyday through his spiritual presence in our lives. There is not a year that we do not encounter physical sickness, death, or strained relationships. We know that we would not have been able to stand the trials and difficulties of these tough moments without the savior. Just as the Spirit of God saved, then lifted David as he regretted his own sin and mourned for his son, we have been saved in the same way. In our weakness, he saved us by reminding us like he reminded Paul that "My grace is sufficient." Yes, we have been saved by just the knowledge that we can touch the hem of his garment and be made whole or that he's only a prayer away! When the doubters ask, "Is God all that people say he is?" We should gladly testify, God is real, for he saved our souls and made us whole, and every day his saving grace allows us to see new mercies!

Tell John

Finally, brothers and sisters, we can testify that God not only has God done great things for us in the past, but every morning he stands at the ready to bless us as we serve him.

To all the curious Johns in the world, who wonder why we serve the Lord, Tell John that every morning God has a new blessing waiting on me.

Tell John that God has seen me through some difficult times and has blessed me with his abundant mercy!

Is Christ the promised savior?

All I can say is "Tell John" when I was down in spirit and like Israel had hung my harp on the willow trees and said, "How can we sing Zion's songs in a strange land!?" He heard my cry and gave me a brand new song!

Tell John that since I met the Lord:

—THE SKIES seems to be bluer

—THE SUN seems to shine brighter

—THE BIRDS seem to sing sweeter

—THE FLOWERS seem to blossom fuller

—THE AIR seems more refreshing

—THE STARS seem to have more luster

—MY BURDENS seem to be lighter

—MY FAITH seems a little stronger

Believers don't be discouraged by the curious and skeptical Johns who wonder about the power of God, When ask in amusement

Tell John that we have found out that God is still able!

He's able to:

—Take our valleys and raise them to mountain tops

—Take midnight's and turn them into noondays

—Defeats and turn them into victories

—Take our losses and make them work for our gain

We've got to tell somebody about the goodness of the Lord!

Tell them that he loved us so much that he died out of Calvary!

But Early! Early, Sunday morning, arose from the grave, with all power in his hands!

The songwriter said, "I don't know what I'd do without the Lord

I don't know what I'd do without the Lord

When I look around and see, what the Lord has done for me. I don't know what I'd do without the Lord!

No. 9683-Mother's Day

And the Mother of Jesus was there

By Roosevelt Wright Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 10, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "Now there stood by the cross of Jesus, his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene." John 19:25; "And the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee, and the mother of Jesus was there:" John 2:1

Introduction

Is there any circumstance that a child could experience that a good mother would not be willing to share? Whether we are celebrating our triumphs or enduring ordeals, good mothers are usually around somewhere.

When former LSU lineman La'el Collins was falsely connected with the murder of a Baton Rouge woman, he was instantly dropped from the NFL draft. Nearly everyone across the nation kept their distance from him, except his mother and family. She encouraged him; they prayed together, and a week later he was cleared and signed a three-year contract with the Cowboys. Sitting by his side at the news conference was his mother. She was there when he was falsely accused. She was also there when he signed a $1.6 million contract.

Sometimes mothers show up at places where we do not expect them. That's what a Baltimore son who was participating in a riot learned when his mother spotted him with a hood over his head about to participate in rioting and looting in Baltimore in 2015. When Toya Graham saw her son, she burst through the crowd and started slapping him and pulling him away from the rioting crowd. It was caught on video, and the mother of six became an instant example of the risk a good mother will take to protect her children; in this case, she was protecting him from himself.

We laugh when we see Tyler Perry's movie "Muhdear Goes to Jail," but when you think about it there is not a place that a real Muhdear wouldn't go for her children.

Today, there are millions of mothers who are making personal sacrifices to be "there" for their children.

If a movie were made with a title depicting all the places that real Muhdears have to go for their kids the movie trailers would read, "Come and see Muhdear as she makes uniforms for the band, it's Muhdear goes to band practice!" Another commercial might say, “Muhdear meets her match as she takes on the referee, see Muhdear goes to the game.” Muhdear goes to the Principal’s office. Muhdear goes to dance school. Muhdear goes to piano lessons!

In reality, there is not a place that a real mother won’t go for her children, including jail. For one mother, this meant being there for her son as they crucified him and hung him on a cross. Even in his most vulnerable moment, the mother of Jesus was there.

As Christians, we rejoice in the knowledge that our mothers have “been there” for us through triumph and tribulation. We give God the praise and bless their memories throughout all generations.

Exposition

This text focuses on Mary as she stands at the cross, watching her son take his last breath.

Mary is often cited as the perfect example of motherhood. Many mothers of the Bible depict important truths about the believer’s life. The widow woman, whose barrel never ran dry, showed a mother who prayed as she worked and God kept her barrel from running dry. The woman with the issue of blood depicted a woman who overcame illness because of the power of God. Sara is shown as a woman who was blessed to be a mother despite advancing age. However, Mary’s life shows us many additional truths about God and the believers expectation.

Mary was a participant in the life and ministry of Christ from conception through his resurrection. For thirty years Mary raised Jesus, attended to his physical needs and stayed close by his side. There is only one recorded event of the 30 years she raised him as a ward of the house, that being his going up to Jerusalem when twelve years of age, and his being found among the doctors in the Temple Luke 2:41-52. We see Mary and Joseph when Jesus was lost in the crowd.

In John 2:1 Jesus had begun his public ministry. Having recruited several of his disciples in the preceding days, John begins with the “third day” at a wedding to which Jesus and the disciples were present. Little notice was taken, but there, in the crowd, with a careful eye on her son, was Mary. It was Mary who pulled Jesus to the side and asked him to provide for the thirsty wedding guests.

A year and a half after this we find her at Capernaum Matthew 12:46,48,49, where Christ uttered the memorable words, Who is my mother? And who are my brethren? And he stretched forth his hand toward his disciples and said, Behold my mother and my brethren!

The next time we find her is at the cross along with her sister, Mary Magdalene, and Salome, and other women John 19:25.

Mary remained supportive of Jesus through his childhood, adult ministry, crucifixion, and resurrection. When he was praised, she was there. When he was nailed to the cross, she was there, through thick and thin.

Mothers are There

Godly mothers are celebrated for "being there." Every person living has a "Mama was there for me" story if they had a loving mother.

Being there, does not always mean an endorsement of an activity or a lifestyle, but it does mean that the love of a mother for her children extends into every circumstance and situation; popular or unpopular.

The great American writer Washington Irving once said, "A mother is the truest friend we have, when trials heavy and sudden fall upon us; when adversity takes the place of prosperity; when friends desert us; when trouble thickens around us, still will she cling to us, and endeavor by her kind precepts and counsels to dissipate the clouds of darkness, and cause peace to return to our hearts."

OUT OF NOWHERE, MOTHER WAS THERE: The young man in Baltimore was probably shocked to see his mother show up in the middle of the riot to beat some sense into his head, but that's not unusual because mothers have been known to show up at unexpected places. Like the mom who showed up at the strip club and pulled her 16 old daughter off the pole by her hair. Or the mom who showed up at school and had a come to Jesus meeting with her son when he disrupted class. Out of nowhere, mothers have a way of showing up.

There are many ways that mothers have "been there" for their children that were not so obvious. Those were the moments when mother prayed on her knees and then did what she had to do make ends meet.

Many mothers prayed for washing machines but while they waited, scrubbed clothes on rub boards, walked to washaterias and even rung out sheets on their hands and hung them on clothes lines to dry.

Many mothers prayed for new clothes for their children, but while they waited, sewed buttons on shirts, patched holes in pants and lined the bottoms of worn shoes with newspaper.

Many mothers prayed to God for a variety of food but while they waited, cooked grits and butter for breakfast, and grits and gravy for supper.

Many a mother learned a thousand ways to cook a potato by boiling it, mashing it, french frying it, meshing it into hash browns or one of the hundreds of other ways to stretch an inexpensive food item a long ways.

BEING THERE OFTEN MEANS SACRIFICE: When Mary followed Jesus, it was not easy. She had other children including James, Joses, Judas, Simon and sisters. (Matthew 13:55-56) On at least one occasion she followed him with all of the family in tow. It was a sacrifice to be there for him, but to also be "there" for the other children as well. There are millions of mothers today who are making personal sacrifices to be there for their children. When one child is honored, it is not unusual to see a mother bring her whole household along because it's the only way she can be there for one; yet it is done. Good mothers today are finding ways to be there for their children.

They are attending school events, participating in school PTA, selling cookies for the Girl Scouts, cheering their children on the athletic fields and traveling countless miles to watch their children perform with school teams.

Being there is more than showing up occasionally, it means being a part of a child's life experiences, which can be very traumatic at times.

Being there sometimes means listening when children talk, paying attention to their doodlings and drawings and praising them.

Being there means teaching life skills necessary for success and providing quality time for relationship building.

Just as Mary was there for Jesus to hold his hand and support him, that spirit of being there is what is celebrated by children who know instantly that in every respect, good mothers have done their best to be there for them.

Like Mary, who was there for Jesus, good mothers are there for their children, even if it requires great sacrifice.

GOOD MOTHERS ARE THERE IN DIFFICULTY: Mary was with Jesus in his infancy, when he crawled on the floor and cut his first tooth. She was with him as he turned into a man and learned at the temple. She was there when he celebrated and laughed at the wedding. She was probably there when he came into Jerusalem during that final week. And she was there when they falsely accused him, tried him, whipped him and crucified him. That must have been a heart-wrenching moment. Similarly, mothers everywhere have shared heart-wrenching moments with their children: death, a divorce, a false accusation, a life-threatening sickness; loss of a career or a shattered dream. Mothers have been there, too.

Mothers share the heart-wrenching moments of difficulty, embarrassment and public scorn with their children.

Good mothers stand beside their children when everyone else has abandoned them.

Sometimes we mess up our lives by dumb actions, stupid mistakes, and insensitivity. Sometimes our actions prompt us to fail or otherwise suffer embarrassment. Despite their distaste for the stupidity of our decisions in life, good mothers never give up on their children. They stand with them publicly even if they find it necessary to bless them out privately.

When the crowds disappear, and our fame has turned to infamy; mothers are there for us.

When we are being nailed to the cross by enemies and tragic circumstances; mothers are there for us.

When we are stretched out on hospital beds unable to care for ourselves, mothers find a way to see that we are cared for, often personally doing it themselves.

She doesn't see a felon in a courtroom; she sees her son or daughter. She doesn't see a person wrongfully accused in the court of public opinion; she sees her child, and though he or she is hanging on the cross, a good mother often risks her own safety and security to be there for a child who has reached the lowest point in his or her life.

In difficulties, mother is always there for us.

Put us in God's Hands

Finally, brothers and sisters, our mothers makes sure that we are securely placed in the hands of God.

At the cross, Mary watched her son suffer and heard him say seven last sayings. One of those probably gave her encouragement, "Into thy hands, I commend my spirit."

She watched her son, put his life in God's hands.

Today, good mothers want to be sure that their children are safe in the hands of God.

She strives to insure that they know the Lord.

Hannah told the Lord that she would put her child in God's hands if she were blessed to give birth. No sooner than the boy Samuel was old enough, she mother brought him to the place of worship and put him in God's hands.

In God's hands, Samuel became a great scholar!

In God's hands, David became a great king!

In God's hands, Esther became the queen of Persia and saved her people!

Jesus made it clear that in the Kingdom of Heaven there will be many women who carry the spirit of godly mothers; those who are doing the will of God.

There are many today who have had biological mothers who have been there for them. There are millions whose mother was not their biological mother, but never-the-less was the woman who was there for them.

She was the one who saw to it that you came to church; and others who saw to it that you acted correctly once you got there!

She was the one who taught you to say your prayers and to sing, "Yes, Jesus Loves me."

Who is my mother? She is the one who is concerned who am I am in the world and who I am before God.

Who is my mother? She is the one who insures that her child has:

—Food to eat here, but she is also concerned that her child is fed the Word of God, for she has heard the scripture say Man shall not live by bread alone but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God.

—Clothes on his back, but she is also concerned that he wears the breastplate of righteousness and that his feet are shod with the Gospel of the preparation of peace, that he wears the helmet of Salvation and carries the shield of faith.

—Has a place to call home, but she also worries about whether he'll have a home in the kingdom of heaven.

—Birth and delivery in this world, but she also is concerned that he is born again into the kingdom of God.

Who is my mother? She is the one that will teach her children to trust in the Lord.

Every Christian mother knows there is wisdom in trusting the Lord.

If I trust in the Lord I will:

—Overcome strong temptations

—bear heavy burdens

—withstand mighty persecutions

—cross the loneliest of valleys

—endure the saddest of sorrows

—live through darkest of nights
—sail through the roughest storms
—climb the tallest of mountains
Who is my mother? She's the one who knows how to call on the name of Jesus!
Jesus, who died out on Calvary!
Jesus, who arose after three days and nights!
Who is my mother?
She's the one, through thick and thin, who was there for me!

No. 9684-Graduation

But Continue Thou…

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 25, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "But continue thou in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned them." 2 Timothy 3:14

Introduction

Have you ever started something, but didn't finish it? That which you started was a great pursuit, but before it was finished, you found yourself doing something else. There are many who can tell of the many things they started to do but did not continue. One started out pursuing a business career but did not continue. Another started out to become an athlete but did not continue. Still another had great dreams of being a research scientist, but along the way, gave up on the dream. You began reading a book, did you finish? You began saving for a house, did you finish? You began a relationship, what happened?

If we are frustrated because we seem to start so much that we can't finish, we might be encouraged to know that there are many others like us. Mark Twain is famous for his completed writings, but he left many more unfinished. Marilyn Monroe began filming "Something's got to give" in 1962, but never finished it. Bruce Lee began a movie called "Game of Death" but never finished it. Beethoven is famous for his nine symphonies, but he never completed number 10.

There are many reasons why we don't complete what we start, but the results are the same, regardless of the reason; the job doesn't get done.

The challenge for graduates who have begun a journey toward success is to continue their dream, without interruption. The Christian graduate has a two-fold challenge; to pursue personal goals while remaining faithful to their commitment to God, family, and the church. Most start off studying in school, participating in church and staying close to the family. Some, soon after graduation, fail to continue and lose their way.

The challenge in life is not to dream, but to continue in the dream until it is realized.

Continuing in the faith is important to Christian living. Graduation does not mean a release from God. It does not mean believers no longer work in the church, attend worship, or need God's protection. Graduation means believers are moving to another level where they will need to continue their relationship WITH and service TO God, but on another level.

We have the divine assurance that whatever God begins, he finishes. When we accepted Christ as our Lord and Savior, he told us that he would be with us always. Even after we graduate that promise continues.

As Christians, we should continue in the faith as we work in faith, that God will continue to make a way for his will to be realized in our lives.

Exposition

This text focuses on words of encouragement Paul gave to a young man beginning on a Godly mission.

Paul was a prisoner in a Roman dungeon when he wrote this, the last of his epistles, to Timothy. Not long afterward, according to tradition, the apostle was beheaded.

The purpose of 2 Timothy was to encourage Timothy in his ministry at Ephesus. His constant theme was to remember what he had been taught and to continue in the Godly life he began.

In 2 Timothy 3:14 he said, "Continue in the things you have learned.." in the next verse he says, "And that from a child thou hast known the holy scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus.

His words were clear: Continue what was begun in you by your parents and your grandparents. Don't stray or be diverted from your goal in Christ.

Five Steps to continue what you start

There are many who do not complete their goals in life. There are five actions we can take to continue what you start until you finish.

DON'T START IT, IF ITS NOT IMPORTANT TO YOU: Many fail to complete goals because the goal they set was not important to them. Often the goals of young graduates are set by their parents but are not important to them. To succeed at any life goal, it must be important to you; otherwise, you will begin, but you will not continue. Thousands of students begin college each year because their parents insist, even more drop out each year, because it was not really important to them. Don't study to be a doctor if making people well is not important to you. Don't be a teacher if you don't have a passion for helping children discover themselves. Don't be an actor if you don't enjoy portraying others rather than being yourself. Don't set out to be a musician if you hate rehearsing. The road you take must be so important to you that you are willing to spend whatever time it takes to achieve your goal. Jesus said, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God his righteousness and all of these things shall be added unto you." What's first and most important is that you do the will of God for your life. It is the most important thing. Keep the main thing, the main thing.

DON'T JUST TALK ABOUT IT DO IT: There are many who spend a great deal of time talking about their goals, but seldom match their walk with their talk. 2 Corinthians 8:11 says, "Now, therefore, perform the doing of it; that as there was a readiness to will, so there may be a performance also out of that which ye have." The emphasis is on the performance rather than idle talk. Look at the verse again: "Do what you are talking about so that you achieve your goal." It is important to continue what you begin unto completion because the blessing is not in beginning a task, but in completing it. Ecclesiastes 7:8 says, "Better is the end of a thing than its beginning." Eagerness and excited talk is not a substitute for accomplishment. Following through, continuing until you complete your goal is what matters most.

DON'T JUGGLE MORE THAN YOU CAN HANDLE: Many don't complete their goals in life because they try to juggle too much at the same time. We do well throwing up a single ball in the air and catching it. It gets more complicated when there are two, but it is still possible. What about three? Or Four? You can only have so many balls in the air at one time. The downside of being good at taking the initiative and starting is that you can spread yourself too thinly. The more you have going on, the less effective and invested you can be in any one of those areas. You can't be in everything. You can't go to every party, join every frat or sorority that invites you, participate in every function, serve on every committee, go to every meeting, run every race, fight every battle and succeed at the same time. The more balls you juggle, the greater your chance of dropping the ball and achieving none. If you take on a task, analyze the amount of time and money it will take and whether doing this task will successfully help you to achieve or fatally detract from your main goal. In Luke 14:28, Jesus emphasized the importance of counting the cost. Juggling many balls at the same time is wonderful until you drop one ball; others are sure to follow.

MAKE A PLAN AND WORK IT: When Jesus started out to build the church on earth, he began with a plan that required him to get 12 disciples. Next, the 12 would be taught what they needed to know. An additional 70 would be sent ahead of him to announce his coming. To redeem men of their sins his plan called for him to go to Calvary, die and rise after three days. He would return to heaven and leave the Holy Spirit to guide and inspire all who believe as he built the kingdom of God on earth. That was his plan. Today, believers must have a plan for their own lives. Not only must we make a plan, but we must commit ourselves to working the plan. We must stick to it.

When you have a plan, you must be willing to sacrifice to make it happen. Olympic athletes have a training regimen, a plan. They stick to their regimen because they have a goal. If believers succeed, they too must bring a sense of commitment to their personal plan and stick to it, no matter what the cost.

KEEP THE END VISION IN SIGHT: Some don't continue to pursue their dream because they lose sight of it, especially when they are bogged down with nitty-gritty tasks required to make it happen. It's easy to give up on being a doctor when you are bombarded with hundreds of pages of test material, assignments and projects. It's easy to give up on being a band director when you are still a student marching eight to five in practices in the heat of summer. It's easy to give up on your dream of building a dream house when the stack of bills gets high and money gets short. Unless you keep the picture of your ultimate success in front of you, you will lose the excitement you need and your energy will fade, little by little.

To counter this problem, we should surround ourselves with things that remind us of our end goal, such as your vision board, pictures of others who have achieved the same goal, objects that represent the goal, etc. Paul encouraged believers to keep their "eyes on the prize" every time they felt frustrated in the faith. Each time they wanted to give up the Christian life he said, think about the crown of righteousness that is laid up in heaven.

Those who keep their eyes on the prize never lose sight of what they really want to do with their lives, and that is to serve and please God.

Keeping your eyes on the prize may mean getting closer to some things and moving away from others. It will mean avoiding ungodly activities of every kind. It may even mean backing away from some job opportunities because they will take you away from your main goal, which is to see Jesus.

To continue, stay focused

Finally, brothers and sisters, believers should remember that to continue toward the mark of the high calling, we must stay focused.

Staying in focus may mean getting closer to some things and moving away from others.

But staying focused may also mean that from time to time you need to get closer to keep yourself in focus with God. There will be times when the swiftness of the world takes you so fast that you lose sight of glory.

Believers need to continue walking close to God.

Walking close to God builds strength for troublesome times and answers troublesome questions. No wonder the songwriter says, "Just a closer walk with thee. Grant it, Jesus, if you please, Daily walking close to thee. Let it be, dear Lord, let it be!"

Daniel's life journey took him thousands of miles from home, but he continued looking toward Jerusalem and praying three times a day.

The Three Hebrew Boys' lives took them in and out of the fiery furnace, but they continued saying, "Our God is able!"

Paul was beaten, jailed and criticized, but he continued to declare, "Nothing shall separate me from the love of God."

Jesus, the precious Lamb of God, endured the hardships of life, temptations of Satan and the rejection of man, but he never lost his focus!

He was so focused that he died on Calvary for the sins of men and arose from the grave in victory!

Graduates, continue toward the victory!

Continue to Achieve high heights in life!

Dream the impossible dream, and beat the unbeatable foe!

Continue until you achieve.. and Give God the glory!

No. 9685-Inspiration

Jesus fills in the blanks

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 7, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "Yet now, if thou wilt forgive their sin-; and if not, blot me I pray thee, out of thy book which thou has written." Exodus 32:32

Introduction

Have you ever had to fill in the blanks? We first encountered fill-in-the-blanks in school on short tests. The test question will restate a fact, but leave out one word which we fill with the answer. The answer has to be exact or will be marked incorrect.

We encounter fill-in-the-blanks in a wide variety of applications. Those searching for jobs, scholarships, or information often encounter forms that require them to fill-in-the-blanks.

Often filling in the blanks can be redundant; we repeated enter the same information. Those seeking employment find themselves filling in the same blanks with the same information in scores of places. There is no master database from which to draw information in a turn-key operation; we must fill in the same blanks every time.

We have become so accustomed to filling in the blanks that an entire industry has been spawned that generates blanks for us, called templates. An apology template may read: "Dear Blank. It is has come to my attention that my recent action was blank. I never intended to blank you. I want you to understand that I was merely trying to blank, though I can see now that it may appear that I was blank. Moving forward, I will attempt to blank. Please accept my apology. Signed: Blank.

What about the marriage proposal blank? "Dear Blank. I think we are wonderful together. Because we blank so well together and we have all of the blank that each of us needs, I think it would be a great for us to marry as soon as we can blank. You have all of the blank that I need and I think we should move quickly before blank. I am writing you my thoughts because I have blanked you and want to blank you for the rest of my life. Your friend, Blank."

Templates are impersonal, but there is a blank space that is really personal. Have you ever been given a signed blank check? That's extremely personal. It is an enormous display of trust because, with an authorizing signature, a signed blank check has great power.

Suppose you were given a blank check on the bank of heaven. Suppose our God looked down on our lowly estate and decided to say in Philippians 4:19, “My God shall supply all of your need according to his riches in Glory by Christ Jesus.” Would that be a blank check?

It may seem odd, but in reality believers have been given a blank check on the bank of heaven that can be redeemed for so many purposes. Believers who are shouldering enormous burdens involving unemployment, family issues, crime, loneliness, frustration or any one of a plethora of challenges, have the consolation of knowing that they possess a blank check on heaven through which God promises to provide what we need, when we need it, for as long as we need it.

Whatever we need from God, if we are true in our living, giving and service; we can faithfully him to fill in the blanks.

As Christians, we are thankful that we serve a God who knows our needs and will faithfully show us mercy and provision every day. Whatever we need - you name it- God’s got it!

Exposition

This text focuses on Moses as he pleads for mercy for Israel after its sin in the wilderness.

While Moses was in the top communing with God and receiving the commandments, the people below became anxious and weary. They pressed Aaron to make them a gold calf which they could worship.

When Moses returned, he found the people engaged in idol worship and disobeying God. He caused the idol to be ground into dust and put into their drinking water. He then stood on the side of a mountain and asked all who were on God’s side to come to the mountain’s edge.

Seeking forgiveness for those who remained, Moses went before God and prayed for their redemption. He wanted to save them from the wrath of God.

In his prayer a strange thing happened. Moses pleaded for the people, but stopped in the middle of his sentence and left a blank space. It is the only blank space recorded in the Bible. Moses said, “Yet now, If thou wilt forgive their sin—; after the blank space the sentence continues with “and if not, blot me, I pray thee, out of thy book which thou has written.”

Some interpreters believe the blank space was intentional to emphasize a truth. To redeem the people of their sins, Moses had no options. He could not redeem them from their sins because the redemption of mankind was above him. There was no trade that he could make that could equal or balance the sins of the people. Redemption required a greater sacrifice of a divine nature. After the semi-colon, Moses tacked on a trade that he could make. If heaven was not willing to fully forgiven the people, then he asked not to be allowed to enter Promised Land with them and that his name be blotted out of all official records, which he recorded; the first five books of the Bible.

What Moses could not do was redeem the people because redemption required the blood of a universal lamb; one anointed and accepted by God. He didn’t know the name of that lamb. He did not know in what form that lamb would come, so it is believed that he simply left a blank space.

Believers now know what to put in the blank space that requires redemption by the Lamb of God, the name Jesus.

Moses could not do it, it took Jesus!

And today, Jesus is still filling in the blanks for believers, becoming what they need to respond to the issues of life each day.

Filling the Blanks

When it comes to filling in the blanks that we experience in life there are a few considerations:

FAITH LETS GOD FILL IN THE BLANKS: When life presents us with options, we are presented with occasions when we must fill in the blanks. Should I get a job or go to school? Should I get married or stay single? She I leave the city or should I stay? Should I take the promotion and risk termination if I fail or should I seize the opportunity? Should I cheat on my spouse with this adorable person or remain faithful? All of these questions and more are showered upon believers every day. When we must make this kind of choice we are exercising options, filling in the blanks. What we put in the blanks in answer to this life changing questions often determines the direction of our lives for years to come.

Men and women of faith pray to God for direction, wait until he responds, then they fill in the blanks. It is dangerous to fill in the blanks on the first things that pop into your mind. In anger, the words you use to fill in the blank may not be blessed. In frustration, the words may have sting or a sour taste. Before you push the send button on that email or post that Facebook comment to fill in the blank, ask: Will this comment reflect my faith in God?

Faith lets God fill in the blank! Daniel, faced with the threat of Lion's Den, What should he put in the blank, faith or fear? The Three Hebrew Boys faced with the prospect of being burned in the fiery furnace answered the question, "Will your God deliver you? by letting faith fill in the blank, "We don't know if our God will deliver, but what we do know is our God is able!"

God is able to protect us from all sides; let faith fill in the blanks!

God is able to do for us what we cannot do for ourselves; let faith fill in the blanks!

SOMETIMES WE DON'T KNOW WHAT TO PUT IN THE BLANK: We don't know what to put in the blanks that life gives us. We see it most often when we take tests and can't remember what goes in the blank, even though we have studied. On applications it happens, too? If my mother is white and my father is black, what do I put in the blank that asks for my race? Should I fill in the address blank with my mailing address or my street address? Sometimes the blanks baffle us. We don't know what we are suppose to do or say. That was the dilemma Moses faced when God told him to tell Pharaoh to "Let my people go." God told Moses to tell Pharaoh "I am that I am" sent him. That was a fill in the blank answer. When Moses needed ten miracles to show

Pharaoh, God became "that" and the miracles occurred. When Moses needed a bridge through the Red Sea, God became "that" and parted the sea. No matter what answer the blank space called for, God became "that."

What should believers do when they don't know what to do? When we don't know what to put in the blank spaces that life presents us every day of our lives, we should do what David did. In Psalm 121:1 he said, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, who made the heaven and the earth." The blank spaces may seem insurmountable, but we serve a God who specializes in filling in blanks spaces and has proven that He can make a way out of no way,

What to do about the declining condition of our communities is a blank space, but together with Christ we can do all things which strengthen us; he can fill in the blank space

What to do about the poverty in our neighborhoods, is a blank space, but together with Christ we can reach out to the poor in ways that are significant and meaningful, He can show us what to do and fill in the blank space

How to feed the growing number of hungry are blank spaces because our church kitchens are not big enough, but we serve a Savior who takes two little fishes and five loaves of bread and feeds thousands. He knows how to fill in the blanks!

How to quiet the storms that rage in our lives is a blank space, but our Savior can speak to the winds and the waves and they will obey his will. He knows how to fill in the blank!

DON'T PUT MORE IN THE BLANK THAN IS NEEDED: There are many who try to fill in the blank on a form and actually put in more information that is needed. The form asks for a one word reply and some enter phrases and sentences that run down the side of the paper. A short blank is expecting a short response. A longer blank is expecting a longer response, but not longer than the blank. Filling in the blank with more than is necessary happens when we attempt to take matters into our own hands instead of letting God's word command the day. God told Abraham and Sarai that she would have a child. He left a blank space. He did not say when, so when she reached her 80's and still had no child, she decided to fill in the space that God left blank. She arranged for her husband to have a child by her maid and then became jealous of the child. She put more in the blank space God left and caused herself a problem. Today, believers should leave some things that are unknown or unexplained to God; let him fill in the space. Don't you try to fill in the blanks because we walk by faith and not sight!

There are some things in life that have a short space, because there is only one word that goes in the space. For there is "None other name under the heavens whereby we must be saved, but the name of Jesus!"

God's Auto Fill

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that while Moses could not fill in the blank for those who are need God, once the lost know Jesus, he automatically fills in the blanks.

Once you have been saved by the blood of Jesus, your name is recorded in the Book of Life.

It's like the login information on your email or cell phone, once it's saved on your computer, your name is recorded on the hard drive of the computer or the memory of your phone.

The computer will ask, "Do you want your name saved?" If you click yes, every time you get to a blank anywhere that asks for name, it automatically fills in the blank! It automatically fills in the blank, because your name is saved on its roll!

Amazon carries it one step further. When you order what you need from Amazon, they have a service call "One Click" –Once you put your name on their roll, all you need is one click to get what you need. You need to enter your name, or your address or mailing address, with just one click –what you need is already on the way!

The beauty of being saved is not only heaven, but we also have auto-fill.

If we have a blank space because of a medical need, one prayer calls up JEHOVAH-RAPHA because, "I am the Lord that healeth thee."

If we have a blank space because we need for peace, one prayer calls up JEHOVAH-SHALOM because God is our peace.

If we have a blank space because we desire to conquer an evil presence, one prayer calls up JEHOVAH-NISSI because the Lord is our banner of victory.

If we have a blank space because we have unseen needs, one prayer calls up JEHOVAH-JIREH because he both sees our needs and provides.

Moses did not know what to put in the blank, but today we know the answer.

Moses sought a way to wash away the sins of Israel, but he could not fill in the blank.

Today, we can answer Moses' question with the songwriters lyrics, "What can wash away my sin? Nothing but the blood of Jesus. What can make me whole again? Nothing but the blood of Jesus!"

Jesus, whose

— Power never weakens; -Grace never disappoints

-Love never leaves; -Promises never fail

-Glory never diminishes; -Joy never ends

-Foundation never shakes; -Truth never changes

-Supply never shrinks; -Blessings never stop coming!

Jesus, who picked up an old rugged cross and carried up Golgotha's hill.

He died on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning….

No.9686-Church

What Hinders the Church

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 2015

SCRIPTURE: "Ye did run well; who did hinder you that ye should not obey the truth? " Galatians 5:7

Introduction

When the church steps out on the word of God, is there any limit to what the church can do and how far it can go? Is there any limit to its possibilities? When those who believe in the power of God ban together as one solid unit that is rooted in Him, sustained by Him and directed by Him, there is no limit to their potential.

When the church is on one accord, it can move mountains of frustration and achieve what others think is impossible.

Wonderful things happen when the church decides to move forward prayerfully in unity with the vision of Christ beaming in the horizon.

With access to such awesome potential, the church must not hesitate, linger or abandon its mission to advance the kingdom of God in this generation. We must not give up or give pause. We must hold on just as our fore parents held on. We must march forward in unity, just as those before us marched. If we feel weak along the way, we must remember that "help is on the way."

While the church marches forward, there are challenges that demand our attention that cannot be ignored.

What hinders the church from responding to the challenges of the world in front of us?

This is the world that embraces a former Olympic Champion who changes his sex from male to female, but frowns on a white woman who wants to be black and head the NAACP.

What hinders the church from responding?

This is the world where cell phone videos are capturing instances of police brutality, and teens looting liquor stores and growing hostilities. It's a harassment so intense that the public is crying out on the pages of social media, "I can't breathe!"

With homelessness increasing, domestic abuse getting out of control, and unemployment rising, now more than ever, the world needs to receive a response from the church?

What hinders the church from responding?

We are preaching, praying and praising God in our churches on Sunday, but what hinders us from feeding the homeless, building housing for our people and expanding our reach to everyone possible with the love of God.

What hinders the church and its organized bodies from making a collective response? Should we do more than simply meet, preach, eat, fellowship, sing, pray and go home?

What hinders the church?

As a people, we have been running this race for hundreds of years.

We have fought tremendous battles to reach our present place in the world. We have not fully attained all that we should have, but we are on our way.

Much has been placed on us, but God has worked it out for us. Despite all of the obstacles we have faced, nothing has hindered us more than our own lack of motivation and concern. When we act, things happen. When we fail to act, everything falls apart.

What hinders the church? Certainly it should not be a spirit of fear or apprehension because we know that the scriptures teach us that "All things" work for the good of those who are called to God's purpose. He will work it out to our advantage no matter how bad it seems. Fear should not be a hindrance.

In the past, nothing has stopped our forward march; not slavery, ignorance, poverty or lack of opportunity. These have been the main hindrances to the achievement of African-American Christians, yet, despite these obstacles, however, African-American men have excelled. God is working it out; so we should not give up the journey. Nothing should hinder us!

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul's letter to believers in Galatia, urging them not to be stopped or hindered in their pursuit of Gospel truths.

The overall theme of the passage is that the church should not be hindered in its efforts to promote the truths of Jesus Christ. It is both a message to the corporate church, and it is a personal message to individual believers.

As a message to the corporate church, Paul warns the church not to be hindered by misinformation, confusions or untruths that would cause the church to break its steady pace toward establishing the kingdom of God. Specifically, there was misinformation about whether or not circumcision should be required for salvation. Paul reminded believers that even discussion of such issues served to hinder the church's work as its members lost focus.

The Galatians were active proponents of the faith. Their kingdom-building activities were vigorous. Their loyalty to the cross was unquestioned.

Paul wrote to the Galatians because their vigorous service had been interrupted by the presence of those who injected a hindering debate into their leadership circles. The issue was circumcision, and it proved to be both divisive and a hindrance. Paul wrote to them and encourage them not to be sidetracked by such diversions that the pace of their kingdom-building activities would be affected.

There were thousands of souls that had to be saved as well as hungry masses to be fed with both spiritual nurture and physical food. In the past, the church at Galatia had been responding well to each kingdom mission. However, this new distraction proved to be a hindrance.

Speaking to the Galatians he said, "Ye did, run well, who did hinder you that you should not obey the truth?"

Here Paul makes another of his famous athletic comparisons. Runners in the Olympiad often ran in lanes, but a competitor sometimes jumped lanes to cause his opponent to slow down or "hinder" their pace. Both runners continue running, but one loses his stride and falls behind because of the "hindrance."

That makes the message to the church is very clear, it should not be hindered by distractions, but should press on toward the prize in the name of Jesus.

Barriers that hinder

While the church at Galatia was hindered by the circumcision debate, the church is often hindered by other distractions and weakness, most of them of our own making. What can slow down the corporate building efforts of the church? Here are a few:

LONE RANGER CHURCHES: Many of the challenges of the church are global in nature, but there are still many churches that shun cooperation with other congregations and choose to be Lone Ranger congregations. In every community, there is one church that is feeding the hungry, challenging government leaders, promoting education, advocating for poor and distressed, promoting civil liberties and preaching the Gospel at the same time. The problems that communities face are often systemic and require a united effort by churches acting in unison. While many churches will support a city-wide revival, for example, there are not many that combine resources and build a senior citizens complex, charter a school, open a healthcare facility.

Churches working alone are limited in what they can accomplish, but working together they become a force that cannot be ignored. This was the strength of the first-century Christian church. In nearly every city, all Christians were attacking the same problem with an intensity that could not be ignored.

The challenge is for churches to seek more cooperative efforts to attack community problems with their combined faith and resources. They should resist the temptation to act alone, basking in the glory while leaving others behind.

UNWILLINGNESS TO DEAL WITH HARD QUESTIONS: The growth of the church may be hindered by its unwillingness to ask itself hard questions because it already knows the answers. Growth comes with adapting to new methods to reach a new generation with the same message. Yet, the church is reluctant to ask itself the hard questions, especially when those questions involve our traditions. We come together annual in district and state meeting, why? Is the reason we give working? If not, what hinders us from changing? If you notice that fewer people are coming to Sunday School early on Sunday morning, why do you continue to have an early morning school when your congregation is obviously a Sunday afternoon crowd? If most people in your congregation have bibles on their cell phones, why do we still insist that no cell phones be used in church services? When nearly every person in the congregation has a debit or credit card, why do so many churches only pass the offering plate with no other way to collect contributions?

These are hard questions that require the church to take a hard look at itself and if it is appropriate, to respond with measured change. Our growth, in this respect, is not hindered by outside forces, but from our own stubborn loyalty to traditions that long outlasted their usefulness.

PREACHING A COMPRISING GOSPEL: The gospel is the main weapon of the church. However, too many churches have compromised the Gospel message of our Lord to make it more marketable to the masses. While the Gospel teaches personal sacrifice to serve God and others, many churches have altered that message to mean personal sacrifice gains favor from God and even at the expense of others.

While the Gospel encourages us to come to Jesus in a "Just as I am" state and become a new creature in Christ, many have altered that message that God wants you to accept Christ just as you are and he will not judge you or expect you to change. To appeal to masses, fill pews and membership goals, many churches have adopted a "Prosperity" message in sermons and musical presentations.

The world is hungry for the living word of God. The church is hindered in its ministries in many respects because it no longer lifts up Jesus in an uncompromising way. Jesus said, "And I,if I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me."

We must lift Jesus up, not the prospect of gaining riches by coming to church!

We must lift Jesus up, not the idea that we can stay the same as long as we give God is credit!

We must lift Jesus up, not the world's standard of morality and political correctness!

If the church is hindered in its ability to attract men and women to the cross, it is because we have failed to lift Jesus up!

A connected church cannot be hindered

Finally, brothers and sisters, the church must stay connected to God to have the power to transform lives. As long as the church is connected to the power of God, its work cannot be hindered!

The effectiveness of Paul and Silas is that they were sincere in their faith, demonstrated it under considerable pressure and always reached out to bring Christ to the lost.

As believers, we should recommit ourselves to the goal of transforming the lives that we touch in the name of Jesus.

We should resolve that we will not be hindered in our work because the church is the instrument that God has used to bring forth "HIS" blessing to God's people.

We should let nothing hinder us because our people have been blessed because of the church, the Old Ship of Zion.

We have worshiped under brush arbors and abandoned sawmills.

We have lifted our voices to God in empty barns with sawdust floors.

We have praised him in the chill of winter with logs burning in huge heated stoves.

Yet, God has used our feeble assemblies, worships, and praise experiences to bring us forth as His "water" in a thirsty land.

Through the church, God has delivered us, as a people, from the Egypt of slavery to the borders of the Promised Land.

Through the church, God has sustained us through lynchings, murders, discrimination, depressions and unbelievable hardships.

Through the church, God has raised up our bowed down heads and lifted our broken spirits.

Through the church, God has brought forth leaders to champion our causes and speak to our troubled souls.

No wonder the songwriter thought of the church and declared, "Tis the old, Ship of Zion. She has landed many a thousand. King Jesus is the captain. Get on board. Get on Board."

Sometimes, in our weakness, we forget that God is able to transform.

He's able to deliver us from the pit and miry clay!

He's able to transform confusion and discord into unity and love!

He's able to transform nobodies and turn them into somebodies.

He's able to transform beggars into kings!

He's able to transform lazy men into working men!

He's able to transform losers into winners!

He's done it before, and He will do it again!

Long before we came to our present circumstance, God has been transforming lives!

I'm glad to know God is still a transforming God!

I'm glad to know that if I'm sick, He can heal me again!

I'm glad to know that if I'm down, He can pick me up again!

I'm glad to know that if I've failed, He can make me succeed again!

I'm glad to know that if I've lost, He can give me the victory again!

That's why I've got to tell somebody! That I serve a God who has:

-Taken the bad and transformed it into good!

-Taken the hate I've encountered and transformed it into love!

-Taken the proud and mighty and transformed them into humble servants.

It's this transforming goodness of the Lord that prompted David to write in Psalm 106:1 "O give thanks unto the Lord for he is good and his mercy endureth forever!" It is this transforming nature that helps us to experience the Joy of the Lord!

The church that transforms reaches out to the lost with the redemptive joy of the Lord!

What is the Joy of the Lord?

The joy of the Lord is going into battle and knowing that before the battle begins the victory is won!

The joy of the Lord is knowing that no matter how tough the enemy, we will be the victor!

The joy of the Lord is the assurance that storms may rise, and winds may blow, but God is still on the throne!

That's why the songwriter declared, "Victory is mine, victory is mine, victory today is mine. I told Satan to get thee behind; victory today is mine!"

Over 2000 years ago Jesus shouldered an old rugged cross up Golgotha's hill!

Early Sunday morning the ground began to shake, the stone rolled away and heaven rejoiced as He arose from the grave with all power in His hand.

Stay on the battlefield church, let nothing hinder us in the service of our God!

No.9687-Inspiration

Ain't no stopping me now

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 2015

SCRIPTURE: "Ye did run well; who did hinder you that ye should not obey the truth?" Galatians 5:7

Introduction

What hinders you from being the Christian that God wants you to be? Are you getting closer to the goal or is the devil trying to slow you down? There are many believers who are desperately trying to stay focused as they serve the Lord, but there forward movement has come to a screeching halt. Their pace has slowed, and they have been reduced to going around in circles, but getting nowhere.

The devil is busy, going to and fro, trying to stop individual believers from achieving the level of spirituality that comes with the saved life.

The challenge of believers is to break out of the cycle of defeat that Satan is trying to impose on us and reach for the prize of the high calling of Jesus Christ.

To break out of the cycle of defeat, believers must commit themselves to do things differently; to break the patterns that have held us back.

Satan wants us to have a re-run of the negativity that he uses to cause us to stumble. If our lives were television shows, Satan would be trying to get us to live re-runs when what we really need is a new season. Our new season may have the same format but with a fresh new storyline, a few new character twists and other changes that would improve our show. However, if our study habits are the same and our relationships and personal performance is the same, then we already know how the show will end; it will end as it always does. No matter how many times you watch a re-run, it always ends the same way. You can stop the tape, play it backward, or fast forward, but it will end the same way.

If Satan can get us to continue to do the same things he will hinder our progress. Even if we do it faster, slower or play it backward, the end will be the same, a re-run.

Today, believers should focus on those things that will help us to break out of the routine and jump to the head of the race.

The truth is, "Our God will supply all of our needs through Christ Jesus!"

The truth is, "I can do all things through Christ which strengthen me!"

The truth is, "Nothing shall separate us from the love of Christ!"

As Christians, we are challenged to continue serving the Lord with great faith. We know that our God is able to deliver us and to make a way for us! We are on our way and there "Ain't no stopping us now!"

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul's letter to believers in Galatia, urging them not to be stopped or hindered in their pursuit of Gospel truths.

The overall theme of the passage is that the church should not be hindered in its efforts to promote the truths of Jesus Christ. It is both a message to the corporate church and it is a personal message to individual believers.

As a message to the corporate church, Paul warns the church not to be hindered by misinformation, confusions or untruths that would cause the church to break its steady pace toward establishing the kingdom of God. Specifically, there was misinformation about whether or not circumcision should be required for salvation. Paul reminded believers that even discussion of such issues served to hinder the church's work as members lose focus.

However, the message to the believers is personal: If you have been running for Jesus reasonably well, don't let anything stop you from continuing.

Speaking to the Galatians he said, "Ye did, run well, who did hinder you that you should not obey the truth?"

Here Paul makes another of his famous athletic comparisons. Runners in the Olympiad often ran in lanes, but a competitor sometimes jumped lanes to cause his opponent to slow down or "hinder" their pace. Both runners continue running, but one loses his stride and falls behind because of the "hindrance."

That makes the message to believers very clear, don't be hindered by distractions, press on toward the prize in the name of Jesus.

What we must do!

From Paul's letter to the Galatians Christian can do at least three things to demonstrate that we will not be stopped:

DON'T BACKUP: Often we are hindered by the presence of so many issues in our lives that we give up and throw up our hands. We are dealing with so much stuff that we really cannot focus on the important things in your life. Before you could finish dealing with one issue, there was another and another. All progress stops!

Dealing with "stuff" has prevented that quality time we wanted with our families or that service we wanted to give to the church. All of the stuff that we deal with does not make us any happier; mostly it poses stumbling blocks for us.

Hebrews 12:1 suggests that we should turn aside from stuff that blocks our way. It says, "Lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us." To progress, we must not let "stuff" get in the way, make us afraid to face the future and back down.

We must be determined to say, "Stuff" will not stop me from achieving my Godly purpose. I'm on my way and there ain't no stopping me now!

DON'T BACK DOWN: We are often hindered out of fear; it has immobilized thousands and frozen the activities of millions. When life growls at us like Goliath, we must face life's challenges with courage and refuse to back down.

It takes courage to deal with sickness and disease!

It takes courage to deal with poverty and depression!

It takes courage to keep going forward when it would be much easier to lay down your sword and shield.

It takes courage to say no to wrongdoing and to speak up for what is right.

Joshua 1:9 says, "Be strong and of good courage, be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest."

Maybe that's why the songwriter wrote, "Be not dismayed whatever betide; God will take care of you. God will take care of you. Through every day over all the way. He will take care of you!

DON'T BACK OUT: The first way to know that we are being hindered is when we start to neglect our service to the kingdom. Something in the word hinders us when we start to back out of duties to God. We back out of worship attendance. We back out of Bible Study. We back out of paying out tithes. We back out of effectual fervent prayer! When we back out, we have been hindered.

Paul asked the question, "Who doth hinder you?" The answer is Satan hinders us. He gets in our way, and our service to the Kingdom falters.

Even as Satan tries to put stumbling blocks in our way I hear what Paul said in 1 Corinthians 15:58 "..Be ye stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord…"

Don't back down! Don't back up and don't back out!

Don't get weary of running the race that you have been running for Jesus. I hear the Reverend James Cleveland's words ringing across time, "I don't feel noways tired. I've come to far from where I started from. Nobody told me that the road would be easy. I don't believe he brought me this far to leave me."

It is time for all of us to move up

Finally, brothers and sisters, we as believers must resolve that we will not be sidetracked in our journey toward the Kingdom of God.

The question Paul asks still lingers, "What hinders you?" It is the same question that he angels asked the disciples on the day Jesus went back to heaven in Acts 1:11, "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing into the heavens? The same shall Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven."

With so much to do and so little time in which to get it done, we don't have time to be gazing into the heavens!

We must prepare to march forward with the glorified church, confident that the Lord will make a way somehow!

We may not know exactly how we will get it done, but in our prayer every now and then we ask the Lord....show me thy way. Doctor Watts put it this way, "Guide me o thou great Jehovah, pilgrim in this barren land, I am weak but thou art mighty, hold me with thou powerful hand."

Any man who runs a race needs to be sure that there is a victory cup at the end of the race.

We have been given this assurance, that if we run this race, with our faith intact that God will give us the victory.

That's why I say, "Ain't no stopping me now, I'm pressing on!"

I'm pressing on because, I want to enter that land on a far away strand, the beautiful homeland of the soul...and a land where we'll never grow old."

Ain't no stopping me now!

I'm pressing on because, I want to be in the place where the wicked will cease from troubling, and the weary will be at rest.

I'm pressing on because, I want to see that day when the mountains shall be made low, and the valleys will be hollowed out.

Ain't no stopping me now!

I'm pressing on because, I want to be in that number when the saints go marching in!

I'm pressing on because, I want to put on my robe and walk with the elders and see every inch of heaven from pillar to post.

Ain't no stopping me now because I'm on my way!

I want to see Abraham, Isaac and Jacob

I want to see the streets paved with gold!

I want to see the city that sits on twelve foundations with twelve gates made from solid pearls!

I want to see the city where hearse wheels won't roll!

I want to see the city where every day will be Sunday and it'll always be howdy and never good-bye!

I don't know about you, but I want to see Jesus!

Jesus, the author and finisher of my faith!

Jesus, who said I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am, ye may be also!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary, but arose early Sunday morning!

Come and go with me to my father's house!

No more dying there!

No more crying there!

No more sickness and pain!

Come and go with me to my Father's house!

There'll be joy, joy, joy!

No. 9688-Inspiration

When hell shows up in a heavenly place

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

June 2015

SCRIPTURE: "Now there was a day when the sons of God came to present themselves before the LORD, and Satan came also among, them. Job 1:6; "Put on the whole armor of God, that ye maybe able to stand Against the wiles of the devil. For we Wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. Wherefore take unto you the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all to stand." Ephesians 6:1-13.

Introduction

How did you feel when you heard the news that there had been another mass murder in the nation? When the news broke, many people dropped their heads, and the entire nation felt a stabbing pain in its collective soul when we realized that yet another act of terror had occurred on our shores; this time inflicted upon African-American Christians. What made this murder so troubling to us is that it occurred in a church while believers were in prayer.

A young man, whose name is not worthy to be spoken, drove to Charleston, South Carolina and went into a historic Black church where a few of its members had gathered to pray. For an hour, he came into a heavenly place that was filled with love and compassion. During that hour, the dozen people there talked with him, shared their testimonies and prayed together. He was nearly overwhelmed with the peace, joy and fellowship of that night. Then suddenly, he arose and pulled out a pistol and began shooting the very people who welcomed him to a heavenly experience. As bullets pierced their bodies and their blood spilled onto the floor a cry must have gone up to heaven from the depths of their faith, "Father forgive him because he knows not what he is doing."

It was a horrible and terrifying moment, amplified in its tragedy because it took place in the basement of a building that had been dedicated to the worship of God.

The young man was reportedly angry because a segment of God's people was growing faster that he believed was permissible. So he took it upon himself to do something to inspire others like himself to take action. Like a roaring lion, he went to and fro until he found the Mother Emanuel African Methodist Episcopal Church, a 150-year-old church that was a symbol of faith, heritage and God's overwhelming ability to raise his people though embattled and scarred. He chose this church, according to his confession, because he wanted to start a race war that would ultimately end with the destruction of blacks as complacent whites rallied to defend themselves.

However, a unique thing happened. Instead of people marching in the streets, burning stores, looting and fighting the police, hundreds of people came to the site, sang hymns and bowed in prayer. Republicans and Democrats, Jews and Gentiles, and people of every race bowed.

When the young man was finally captured and brought to court, the whole world heard the mother of one of the victims speak words of forgiveness through her pain. She forgave him and asked God to have mercy on his soul.

He had brought hell into a heavenly experience. However, while he hobbled away in chains under a suicide watch, God was already moving to heal the pain in the city and nation in a way that only he could do.

Very few watched this tragedy unfold asked "Why?" because the answer was given. Instead of asking why, those who trust in the Lord are on bended knee in churches around the world, asking for mercy, grace, and even forgiveness for the shooter, who did not know that he did more to bring a divided people together than he could have ever imagined.

He meant it for evil, but God took the sting and venom out of his poisonous act and is turning it into good that will be a testament to the nine people who lost their lives when Satan slipped quietly into a heavenly place and brought the spirit of hell.

As Christians, we should follow the example of that grieving mother and ask God's forgiveness on people like that shooter. At the same time, we should be ever vigilant and aware of the works of the devil as we work to build the kingdom of God on earth.

Exposition

These texts show us why evil is so prevalent in the land while advising believers what should be done when evil pops up its wicked head.

The book of Job serves a powerful purpose in the Bible. It helps explain why bad things happen to good people. A picture is painted of God and the angels in heaven enjoying peace and love, and out of nowhere the devil pops up. He said he had been going to and fro on the earth looking for lives to destroy. He sought Godly believers to snatch out the hand of God.

At this, God asked Satan to consider Job and asserted that no matter what happened to him in life, Job would not stray from his faith and would never stop trusting God.

The Devil said Job had reason to be faithful because God had created a heavenly existence for him. He had family, resources, health, wealth and position. Take those away, said the Devil, and "he'll turn against you." All hell will break loose.

Job lost all of his health and wealth. Ten people died on the same day at the hands of Satan. It was a vain attempt to start a war between Job and Lord.

The devil was a liar. Job did not turn on his faith but wailed in agony, "Yea Though he slays me, yet will I trust him."

Paul writing to the church at Ephesus encouraged its members and all believers to prepare themselves to withstand the works of evil that may come upon them. He constantly reminded all believers that the devil was on the prowl, like a roaring lion, seeking opportunities to devour believers.

In the early church, believers were persecuted for their faith in Christ. They were assaulted, killed for sport and, otherwise ostracized for their belief in Jesus. Each person was encouraged to be sure in the faith and arm themselves with the power of God to withstand the evil attempts of the devil to destroy them.

Paul wanted to be sure that the Ephesians knew the nature of the evil one and how easily he could plunge himself into their affairs. To ensure that they were not deceived, he reminded them that the evil one was not a flesh and blood person but was spiritual in nature. As such, he could influence individuals, powers, and the very governments that operate the nation; thus, constantly they were to be on guard.

They were encouraged to put on the whole armor of God and then be prepared to withstand the evil one's influence.

Combined, both texts help believers to see that the source of all evil deeds is Satan, working through people, philosophies, and governments. The believer's response is to stay vigilant and recognize the true enemy, Satan while continuing to trust God.

The believer's response

Whenever there is a crisis, there is a tendency to respond in fear or anger. Believers, however, must respond in ways that demonstrate our faith in the power of God>

WE SHOULD NOT PANIC: When we experience loss of life or property or even witness gross injustice, believers must remember who they are and whose they are in any situation. If our fear of the unknown is greater than our faith, we are likely to panic. That's what happened to the disciples when they were aboard a ship and a storm developed. The shipped rocked and turned, and many on board envisioned themselves as dead men. There was no escape. The winds were too strong, and they were too far away from the bank to swim. Death appeared imminent.

Then someone remembered that Jesus was on board.

Awakening him, they asked, "Master, carest thou not that we perish?"

Jesus came to the deck, unmoved by the storm and said, Peace be still.

Our fear sees the worse that can happen.

Our faith knows the best that can happen.

Our fear sees the downside of the situation.

Our faith sees every situation as an opportunity to stir the dormant power of God within us that speaks to the storm and says, Peace be still.

That's why believers pray fervently after a tragedy because we know that our God is able to silence the storm!

DON'T GIVE THE DEVIL HIS VICTORY: In Charleston, the shooter announced that he wanted to start a race war. He wanted Blacks to become angry and march in the streets, burning, killing and looting, baiting whites to confront them. Although he succeeded in taking nine lives, believers have not given the devil the victory he sought. They expressed forgiveness and love even as they cried and wailed in pain.

The devil wants the victory in every believer's experience. He attempts to steal their happiness and their joy by presenting situations that force them to focus on their losses. Focusing on our losses can make life miserable and give the Devil his victory.

Instead, why not hear Paul say, "Forgetting those things which are behind, I press forward toward the mark."

Focus on what we have now!

Focus on the legacy shared by those we lost and the continuation of the work ahead!

Concentrate on what you have now!

Concentrate on how God is blessing us now!

Concentrate on the goodness of God in all things, despite the hardships we have endured.

When we focus on what we have, we experience mega joy because we know that God is with us and has not abandoned us. The Devil is victorious if he can push believers to focus on our losses instead of our continued blessings.

In tragedy, believers should hang on to our faith as we fight back the tears because we know that God is with us, and he is good all the time; even in tragedy.

TRAGEDY PRESENTS A "YET" MOMENT: When Job experienced tremendous loss at the hands of Satan, Job 13:15 records him saying, "Though he slay me, yet will I trust him." There is power in his response. The word "Yet" described the agony, anger, and dismay he felt at that moment, but despite these feelings, there was a strong determination to be faithful. In his "yet" moment, he found strength.

In a "yet" moment, a widow woman took her last cruse of oil and meal and act on faith that her barrel would not run dry.

In a "yet" moment a woman who had an issue of blood to push our way through a crowd to touch the hem of his garment even though the prospects for success were dim.

In a "yet" moment the disciples decided to continue building the kingdom, despite the anger, fear and despondency they felt after the crucifixion.

Faith is stirred among believers in "yet" moments and gives us the inspiration to continue, even today.

Faith helps us to look beyond our present difficult situations to the time when God will work it out.

The church must continue to remind believers that a new world is coming; it will be a world here the racial injustice and tragedy will not exist.

While racism exists in this world, in the world ahead, color will not be a criterion. In the new world order, Jews, Chinese, Japanese, Africans, and a thousand other races will work side by side because all racism will be gone, Satan will not win!

Though Satan attempts to divide us, humiliate us and kill us, "Yet, we will trust God!"

We must focus on Glory!

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must not swelter in the despair of the moment. Instead, we must focus on Glory. When we focus on glory, we remember that when this old world is over, God has prepared a new world for all of the people he has made perfect with his blood.

There is a place God is preparing and that place is called heaven. It will be a place where hell won't show up, because Satan will have been defeated.

Our churches are places where we meet to pray and worship, but our church buildings are not safe havens from the Devil. He walks through our doors every Sunday and attends our Bible studies during the week.He stands in the lines at our shelters, and we hug him and shower him with love in our churches. We are not safe from the Devil in our church buildings; we actually open our doors and invite him in!

However, there is a place where the devil won't show up because he will be drowning in a lake of fire for all eternity.

This place is called heaven!

Abraham traveled all of his life, looking for this place, a city not made with hands!

Elijah received a one-way ticket to this new and eternal place, where:

-There are no wars because there is only peace in the place called heaven!

-There is no hatred because there is the only love in the place called heaven!

-There is no sadness because there is only gladness in the place called heaven!

-There is no weakness because there is only strength in the place called heaven!

-There is no death because there is only life in the place called heaven!

I know there is going to be a new world because I heard Jesus say, "I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am, ye may be also!"

The place called heaven is a place on a far-a-away strand where we will never grow old!

The New Jerusalem will have perfect streets, made of solid Gold!

The New Jerusalem will have perfect lighting because it will be illuminated by the glory of God!

In the new and eternal world, there will be no medicine because there will be a tree in its midst that will be good for the healing of the nations!

I don't know about you, but I want to go the place called heaven.

I may be persecuted and stoned like Stephen!

I may be crucified upside down like Peter!

But nothing shall separate me from the love of God!

Satan can take his best shot, but I still believe that God sent his Son to save the world and although he died on an old rugged cross, that he arose early Sunday morning!

If you also believe in the power of love and forgiveness, mercy and faith, Come and go with me, to my father's house!

I'll take you there! Come and go with me!

Come and go with me to my Father's house!

No. 9689-Reunion

We find peace at home

By Roosevelt Wright Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist
Monroe, La

July 2015

SCRIPTURE: "For here have we no continuing city, but we seek one to come." Hebrews 13:14

Introduction

How do you get peace and quiet in your life? Many who have left home are now returning because only at home can they find the peace for which their soul yearns. Some have never known a real peaceful life; their lives are filled with desperate activity.

Those who have known a time of peace and tranquility yearn for its return. It is invaluable to them. A wise old gentleman retired and purchased a modest home near a junior high school. He spent the first few weeks of his retirement in peace and contentment. Then a new school year began. The very next afternoon three young boys, full of youthful, after-school enthusiasm, came down his street, beating merrily on every trash can they encountered. The crashing percussion continued day after day until finally the wise old man decided it was time to take some action.

The next afternoon, he walked out to meet the young percussionists as they banged their way down the street. Stopping them, he said, "You kids are a lot of fun. I like to see you express your exuberance like that. In fact, I use to do the same thing when I was your age. Will you do me a favor? I'll give you each a dollar if you promise to come around every day and do your thing. The kids were elated and continued to do a bang-up job on the trashcans.

After a few days, the old-timer greeted the kids again, but this time, he had a sad smile on his face. This recession's really putting a big dent in my income, he told them. From now on, I'll only be able to pay you 50 cents to beat on the cans.

The noisemakers were obviously displeased, but they did accept his offer and continued their afternoon ruckus. A few days later, the wily retiree approached them again as they drummed their way down the street.

Look, he said, "I haven't received my Social Security check yet, so I'm not going to be able to give you more than 25 cents. Will that be okay?" "A lousy quarter" The drum leader exclaimed. "If you think we're going to waste our time, beating these cans around for a quarter, you're nuts! No way, mister. If you want somebody to beat on those cans for you, you do it yourself!!" And the old man enjoyed peace and serenity for the rest of his days.

As Christians, we won't need to resort to the old man's tricks, but we do yearn for the peace and tranquility that comes from knowing the Lord. It's a yearning for the peace they find at home in the Lord as we look to the kingdom ahead. It is coming soon, and we look forward to that day. We are coming home for reunions now, but soon we will all be a part of that great reunion when all the saints are gathering home. And we'll tell the story of how we overcome!"

Exposition

This text focuses on the concluding thoughts of the Book of Hebrews which is for believers to dedicate themselves to seeking their heavenly home.

The writer of Hebrews spent considerable time trying to explain the nature of the Christian life. More than anything else he explained that it was a faith walk that did not require the rituals and symbols of Judaism.

After rehearsing all of the principles of faith listed in chapter 11, the writer closes by reminding each believer that Christ himself became the sin offering for the people. Symbolically, he moved it outside of the gate just as the bodies of sacrificed animals were taken outside of the gate.

Believers were reminded to stay outside of the old ways of Judaism because they were on their way to a different destination. The text describes it as having "no continuing city, but we seek one to come."

Until they get to that city, they were encouraged to: live sacrificially and give thanks to God. (Hebrews 13:15) Do good works. (v16); Obey them that have rule over them. (v17) Pray and live honestly. (v18).

In verse 23 he seems to close with a phrase familiar to our ears, "I'll see you."

What a Time!

Over the years, the church has helped believers withstand the troubles of our times. No matter where we travel or how far we have gone, we still remember the love of the church back home.

Our heritage is one that is filled with struggle and difficulty. Whether it has been our ethnic struggle or as individuals striving to overcome our personal fights with life-threatening situations, we have reason to celebrate because God has helped us to survive our difficulty and even to escape death itself.

Because we know he will never leave us alone, we should celebrate!

When we come home, we remember the places where we first met the Lord and we celebrate!

When we come home, we give him praise for the journey!

We praise him because he has been with us as we walked through the valley of the shadow of death, that's why we are celebrating today!

We are different at every reunion Illustration

We have changed over the years. We don't look the same. We don't talk the same. For many of us, our lives are better than they were when we left. Barabara Johnson in her book, "I'm so glad you told me what I didn't wanna hear" notes that at your twenty-fifth class reunion you wear a name tag so your classmates will remember who you are. At your fiftieth reunion, you wear one so you will know who you are.

No, we don't look the same, but that's a good thing! Why? Because the scriptures say that any man who is in Christ is a "new creature, old things are passed and all things become new."

If you are looking at me at this reunion remember, I'm not what I want to be. I'm not what I ought to be, but thank God I'm not what I used to be.

We Celebrate Our Heritage

There are many reasons that we come home, but the main reason is to celebrate our heritage. We celebrate the road we have traveled, and we remember the good times. Each memory is a testament to our joy as recipients of the goodness of the Lord.

Isaiah said Israel would celebrate when the people return home. He said there would be joy at Israel's grand reunion. The same is true for believers today. Many return home for class and family reunions. It is a time of renewal, reflection, and celebration. There is plenty of laughter and a nostalgic reflection on the struggles of the past.

When reunions are celebrated, celebrants know that God has helped them to see their way through each year that has passed. Each may have changed in their appearance, but the God that brought each person through has not changed. He is still God, and He is still blessing them today.

There is excitement in the voice of each person who tells how God healed them and brought them back to life.

Many voices are raised and eyes are widened as we are told how God touched lives and changed them.

Those who were failing but now stand on the pinnacles of success tell of their epiphanies and life-changing experiences.

It all makes each person desire to testify to the goodness and greatness of God.

They get excited.

Kirk Franklin in his classic song said, "I can't explain it, I can't obtain it, Jesus your love is so amazing, it gets me high up in the sky and when I think about your goodness it makes me wanna stomp, it makes me clap my hands, makes me wanna dance and stomp."

When we think of how God has been better to us than we have been to ourselves, we all feel like dancing in the desert.

Who would have thought?

When we return home, those who see what we have become they have become are amazed. Sometimes they are amazed at our change in physical statue, but more often than not, they are amazed at who we have become in the Lord.

Who would have thought that the hottest girl in the senior class would be the coolest mother of the church? Who would have thought that Mr. Hot lips would ever open his mouth to witness for God? Who would have thought that the class failure would actually turn out to be one of the most successful members of his class? Individuals should also look back over the journey they have traveled.

Today, many are ministers, deacons, deaconesses, and prominent civic personalities. When we think back, we remember the way we were and recognize that this has not always been the case.. There have been changes. That's why 1 Corinthians 6:11 says, "And such were some of you:, but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God."

Better than ever

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider when we return home in the Lord, it will be better than it used to be! It will be better because there is peace in the Lord! Israel hoped to see the same walls rebuilt. It could not envision anything better than the sacred walls of Zion.

Israel's hope only extended to the restoration of what once was.
However, God planned to go much further than simply returning them to the old days because even the old days were not without their own unique problems and difficulties. God is planning for us, but what he is planning is better than it used to be! What he is planning will bring us peace and joy!

How can anything be better than the way it used to be? We can't imagine it, but eye hath not seen nor can we imagine the good things that God has in store for those who love him!

The way it used to be, folks had clothes that they wore to work during the week, then they had their Sunday clothes. Everybody had Sunday clothes and Sunday Shoes. God's got something better than the way it used to be, because, in the new Jerusalem, every day will be Sunday. It will always be howdy and never goodbye!

The way it used to be, whenever folks got sick, big mama always had a home remedy, Sassafras was the laxative, hot toddies when you had a cold. But God has something better than it used to be, because over yonder, in the New Jerusalem, God is going to plant a tree that will bear 12 manners of fruit, whose leaves will be good for the healing of the nation!

The way it used to be, children were told to come in before the sun goes down because it gets dangerous when it gets dark. God's got something better than it used to be, in the new Jerusalem it will never get dark because the light of the Lord will shine everywhere!

The way it used to be, when someone had a problem friends would gather around them and wipe their tears away. But God's got something better than the way it used to be because, in the new Jerusalem, God shall wipe their tears away!

Bye and Bye, when the morning comes, we'll see a day that will be better than it used to be!

Bye and Bye, when the morning comes, we'll enjoy life eternal, that will be better than it used to be!

Bye and bye, when the morning comes, no matter how good it was, we'll enjoy a life that will be better than it used to be!

Bye and Bye it will be better!

When the morning comes, when the saints of God are gathering home.

We'll tell the story of how we've overcome!

We'll tell the story!

We'll tell the world about Jesus..how he died on Calvary and early Sunday morning, arose from the Grave!

Bye and Bye, it will be better than it used to be!

No. 9690-Inspiration

Feeling God's Love

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 2015

SCRIPTURE: "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten so that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life." John 3:16

Introduction

Have you ever felt God's Love? When did you first learn about it? If you are like most people, you first heard about God's love in a children's song. The song was "Yes, Jesus loves me." Do you remember the words? Jesus loves me this I know for the Bible tells me so. Little ones to him belong, they are weak, but he is strong. Yes, Jesus loves me. Yes, Jesus loves me. Yes, Jesus loves me. For the Bible tells me so.

The song represents a personal belief that is reflected in the life they live and in the testimony they give. A child learns the words to the song and then looks to the teacher for life examples of what the song means.

As Christians, we rejoice in the fact that God loves us. His love transcends our weaknesses and shortcomings. We know this because the Bible tells us so.

Exposition

This text focuses on John explaining the nature of Christ's divine role in the salvation of mankind.

The text first identifies the source of the gift: "God." The Godhead consists of the Father, the Word, and the Holy Spirit. When the text notes that "God" gave it indicates a decision made by all three members of the Godhead. 1 John 5:7 indicates that the Father, the Word and the Holy Spirit are "one." When the text says, "God" it means the all-powerful creator of the universe, in all of his capacities, made a decision.

The text used the word "Loved." The form of love used here is from the Greek "Agape" which refers to God's unconditional love. It is different from eros or romantic love or Storge, the family love or even Philia or brotherly love. This is the kind of love that does not require men to love back.

Look at the word "Gave." This implies that the sacrifice made by the Son will not be forced, but will be given. This is why Jesus said, "no greater love" can be shown than that of a man who “lays down his life for his friends.”

The word “begotten” indicates a historical anomaly. When Mary gave birth to Jesus it was the first and only time that a member of the Godhead would come to earth in a bodily form. Mary was the first and only surrogate mother used to bring a member of the Godhead into this world. Because of his spiritual conception and immaculate birth circumstance, Jesus became God’s only “begotten” son.

Pay close attention to “Should not” perish. The phrase “should not” implies that an opportunity for salvation is being provided, but there is always the possibility that the intended recipient might not accept. There have been many over the years who have turned down the opportunity for eternal life and have lost heaven. Therefore, John said, “should not” perish to emphasize that God has made it possible, but it is the responsibility of mankind to accept.

Everlasting life is promised in the text. This is not a finite existence that is limited by this mortal body in which we reside. Everlasting is eternal. It is infinite. It has no end.

Thus, the text says from the beginning of time God loved the world so much that he prepared a way to save it from itself. The method would be to take their sins upon himself in the person of his “begotten” son who will offer eternal life in exchange for their faith and obedience.

Love Comes With A Price

God showed us his love, but love comes at a price. When we experience painful situations we are prompted to make sacrifices we would not normally make to achieve the greater good. Pain and sacrifice are integral parts of the Christian experience.

The promise of eternal life would not come without the pain of the cross. In Matthew 16:24 Jesus said, Then said Jesus unto his disciples, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.

Before the crown, there must be a cross. Before the sinful people of the world can receive salvation, there must be the agony of Calvary.

Before the sweet, easy life of heaven, every believer had to be prepared to go through a little hell on earth.

God painfully gave us his Son. With that in mind, believers have willingly responded to painful situations and made sacrifices of property and life to achieve the aims of the kingdom.

The words of the songwriter are clear, no cross, no crown.

God showed us real love

There have been many definitions given as the meaning of love, but this text shows us the greatest meaning of the word.

Some have the child’s estimate of love; that love is a feeling that you feel when you feel like you’ve never felt before, and you’ll never feel anymore.

Others have Tina Turner’s concept of love...that it is just a second-hand emotion; a physical thing between two people.

Some have the Philistine's concept of love. They said to Delilah, We want you to use the beauties of your body and go in and discover the secret of the strength of Samson. I can hear Delilah saying; I don't love Samson and the Philistine's response might have been What's love got to do with it? They viewed love as simply a means to achieve an end.

There are some who have the Solomonian concept of love. He viewed love as strictly a physical thing. He married 300 women and maintained 700 state-financed concubines. With 1000 women at his beck and call, to Solomon love was just a physical thing.

Today we should be reminded that real love is about God because God is love.

God's love is more than just words

What if we could really love someone the way God loved the world in this text? Wouldn't that be wonderful? It would be wonderful because what we would actually be saying when we say "I love you," is "I love you the way God loves me." How is that? 1 John 4:16 says, "And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him." Since God is love the phrase "I love you" is "I God you." God loves us unconditionally and without a reason. Even when God is angry with us; he loves us. Even when we separate ourselves from him, he loves us. Even when we act stupidly, selfishly, or thoughtlessly, he continues to love us.

The love of God is indescribable. It's what the songwriter had in mind when he wrote,

Wonderful the matchless grace of Jesus,
Deeper than the mighty rolling sea;
Wonderful grace, all sufficient for me, for even me.
Broader than the scope of my transgressions,
Greater far than all my sin and shame,
O magnify the precious Name of Jesus.
Praise His Name!

Another songwriter summed it up this way, "Oh how I love Jesus. Oh how I love Jesus. Oh how I love Jesus, because he first loved me."

God gave us his love

Finally, brothers and sisters, the text shows us how God loved the world, but our job is to try to love our neighbors and associates with the love he showed to us. It would be great if we could give the Lord what he gave us. He gave us love.

The songwriter said, Oh how I love Jesus, because he first loved me.

It would be wonderful if we would give him our trust and devotion.

God loved the world so much that he gave his only begotten son, but it would be great if we gave the Lord:

-A little more love and a little less hate;

-A little more peace and a little less confusion;

-A little more gratitude and a little less ungratefulness;

-A little more prayer and a little less lip service;

-A little more compassion and a little less heartlessness;

-A little more real Christian love and a little less imitation;

-A little more do as I do and a little less do as I say

-A little more bended knee and little less crooked hearts

Can't you hear God in your imagination, trying to make a decision?

I could give them the stars, but soon the stars would stop twinkling!

I could give them the moon, but after awhile, the moon would cease to shine!

I could give them the warmth of a summer day, but summers last only for a short time and then comes the fall!

I could give them silver and gold, but there will come a time when they will lose their value!

I could set them afloat on the calm seas of life, but there will come a time when storms will rise!

I want to give them a gift that will be with them always, even until the end of the world!

I want to give them a gift that will give them:

STRENGTH when they are feeling a little weak; COMFORT when they are feeling all alone!

VICTORY after they have suffered a defeat; HOPE when all hope is gone!

LIFTED HEAD when they are bowed down low; SIGHT when they can't see their way!

What kind of Gift can God give? John gave us the decision: For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life!

He gave the gift that keeps on giving!

He was born in a manger, and he kept on giving!

He was wounded for our transgressions, and he kept on giving!

He was bruised for our iniquities, and he kept on giving!

They whipped him and tried him all night long, but he did not stop there; he kept on giving!

They put a crown of thorns on his head, and he kept on giving!

They hung him up high and stretched him out wide, but he kept on giving!

He died out on Calvary, but even in death, he kept on giving!

Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

I'm so glad that God gave his only begotten son!

He gave me a love that I can feel.

I know he lives because every now and then I can ….feel him!

No. 9691-Inspiration

And when they were come to Calvary

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

July 19, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "And when they were come to the place, which is called Calvary, there they crucified him, and the malefactors, one on the right hand, and the other on the left." Luke 23:33

Introduction

What happens when we have a personal encounter with the Lord? Is there a difference in our countenance? Do we remain the same? There are very few who meet the Lord in his holy place who leave untouched.

Moses went atop a mountain and communed with God in a 40-day retreat, but when he returned he was a physically and emotionally different person.

Saul communed with God for three days but arose a changed man.

Those who have been to Calvary leave with a connection they will never lose. Consider Bragging Bennie, who refused to go to any church because if he ever needed anything, he personally knew every person of influence in the world. He bragged about it all of the time in the barber shop and laughed at all of the church folks saying, "You need to get you some come connections!" One day Peter challenged Bragging Bennie to put up or shut up. Bennie Bragged that he knew Denzel Washington and to prove it; they flew to California where Denzel greeted Bennie, and they exchanged jokes. Peter thought it was a fluke, so he asked about President Obama. "Sure, I know him personally." They flew to Washington where Bennie was greeted by the Secret Service and ushered right in to meet with Barack and Michelle. "Wow, that's something," said Peter impressed, especially when Bennie invited him to meet the Pope. The guards in Rome recognized him immediately and ushered him up to meet the Pope for Coffee just before he stepped out on the balcony to wave at the public! On the way home, Bennie fell to the floor at the airport. He apparently had a heart attack. Bennie panicked. Everyone around him screamed and shouted. While they screamed for help, Peter dropped to his knees and began to pray. "What are you doing?" asked Bennie. "I need help!" Peter opened his eyes and looked at Bennie, "You know Denzel, Barack, and the Pope. I don't know all of them fancy people, but there is a reason they call me Praying Peter. It's because I know the Lord and when I call him, he will answer." – Bennie had a hookup with many people, but he had no connection with the Lord!

The crosses of the malefactors at Calvary represent the state of the world then and today. On Calvary, one cross represented those who come face to face with God and reject him while the other cross represents those who accept the Savior and receive a promise that extends into paradise. When they came to Calvary, one received a reward; one completed a divine task, and another rejected an offer from God.

The three crosses on Calvary symbolized human defeat and spiritual victory. They symbolized penitence, stubbornness, and forgiveness.

As Christians, we gladly tell the world that we came to Jesus in a wretched state, but thanks to the blood of Christ we have been redeemed and given a second chance.

Exposition

This text focuses on the placed called "Calvary" where Jesus was crucified.

Calvary is perhaps one of the best-known sites in the Bible. It has been the subject of songs, movies, and testimonies detailing its mysteries. It is an important place to every Christian and the name is synonymous to Salvation to our ears.

To many, it is referred to as "Mt. Calvary." In reality, however, Calvary was not a mountain and the name "Mount Calvary" is not in the Bible at all. The single word Calvary is there. It means "place of the skull" in its Hebrew translation. In fact, except for the Mount of Olives, there is nothing near the vicinity of Jerusalem that even looks like a mountain. All of Jerusalem itself is a mountain, Mt. Zion, but there was no mountain in Jerusalem called Mt. Calvary.

The place called Calvary, according to archeologists, was more of a hill than a mountain. A mountain would have required a long and tedious climb and the likelihood of men carrying crosses up their ridges would have been slim.

Somehow, believers who think about Calvary think of the awesome events that took place there and feel that because of the agony endured and the blood shed, that it should have been a mountain.

Although Calvary is not a mountain, it does symbolize our victory over the forces of evil.

When believers think of Calvary, we think of Christ sacrificing himself for our sins.

When we think of Calvary, we think of the one place where the love of God was demonstrated to mankind.

And, when we think of Calvary in the abstract, we think of coming before God in a way that demonstrates our faithful submission to his will.

When we think of Calvary, we are serious about our relationship with God as we stand awed at the enormity of the sacrifice made for us.

We surrender when we come to Calvary

Those who come to Calvary surrender themselves to the Lord. The thief on the cross was the first to surrender, acknowledging that he deserved to be on the cross. He humbled himself before Christ, even though he was nailed to a cross.

While his contemporary laughed, this thief said, “Master remember me when you enter into your kingdom.”

Today, we have the same compelling need as that thief; to humble ourselves before God. We must surrender ourselves to God.

What does that mean?

It means that we must give up our entire way of seeing and measuring things and see the world through Kingdom glasses.

When we come to Calvary, we surrender our sense of personal confidence.

This is the notion that we can accomplish anything, alone.

When we surrender to God, we abandon the attitude that says, I don’t need God for anything.

When we come to Calvary we see our helpless estate and begin to say:

“I can’t succeed in business, school or my profession without God’s blessings.”

Once that is done then kingdom building becomes the highest priority.

Surrendering requires us to put our own goals on the back burner and to put those of Christ on the front burner.

Those who are able to surrender themselves can say with the songwriter, All to Jesus I surrender, all to him I freely give. I will ever love and trust him; in his presence daily live.

I surrender all.

I surrender all.

All to thee my blessed Savior; I surrender all.

When we come to Calvary, we gain God’s mercy

Hanging from the Cross, Christ looked at his mother and had mercy on her. He told her to accept John as her son and charged John to to view her as his mother. It was a merciful act because Mary would need help. It is not clear whether Joseph was still alive or had abandoned the mission, but only Mary is mentioned at the crucifixion, leading scholars to believe that Mary would probably need to provide for herself. Placing her in the hands of John was an act of mercy.

Also, it was an act of mercy for Jesus to cry out to his father, “Forgive them, for they know not what they do.”

Today, those who come to Calvary come seeking mercy. Jesus knows our needs, our weaknesses, and strengths. He knows our financial situation, our family issues, and personal problems. When we come to Calvary, we come before him seeking mercy. We the seek same mercy he showed to Mary, to pay attention to her personal needs; and the same attention he showed even to his enemies, forgiving them for taking his life, he offers to anyone who comes to Calvary seeking mercy and grace.

We attract God’s favor when we come to Calvary

The repentant thief found favor in the eyesight of the Lord. Even though he was dying on the cross, Jesus said, “Today, you’ll be with me in paradise.”

Proverbs 8:35, says, “For whoso findeth me findeth life, and shall obtain favour of the LORD.”

Those who come to Calvary today, come seeking surrender, mercy and they seek God’s favor. In return for favor, we promise to put him first in our lives and seek to build his kingdom at every opportunity. When we come to Calvary with that attitude, God is pleased. He smiles on us and gives us favor. His favor may come in many forms. It may come as a long life. It may come through a large and happy family. It may come through health or speedy recoveries. His favor could be adequate finances or pleasant surroundings. When we come to Calvary, we come seeking to do his will. At Calvary, he meets us there and gives us his smile and shows us his favor.

Lives are transformed when we come to Calvary

Finally, brothers and sisters, when we come to Calvary our lives are transformed. Every chance we get, those who have been to Calvary must testify to the world that we have been transformed and by nothing other than the blood of Christ.

Only the blood can transform a nobody into a somebody!

Matthew came to Calvary, and he will tell you that only the blood can transform a tax collector into a Missionary!

Peter came to Calvary, and he will tell you that only the blood can take a man from the fish pond and make him a fisher of men!

Paul came to Calvary on the Damascus Road, and he will tell you that only the blood can take a persecutor of the church and transform him into a perpetuator of the kingdom of God!

Woman with five husbands and one old man came to Calvary at the well, and she will tell you that only the blood can transform a life so much that she would run through the streets saying, “Come see a man who told me all I’ve ever done!”

Esther came to Calvary in the throne room of a Persian King. She will tell us that only the blood of the lamb can take a lowly Jewish girl and make her the queen of a mighty nation!

The power of the blood transforms our despair into a never-dying hope. That’s why the songwriter declared, “My hope Is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame but wholly lean on Jesus’ name. On Christ the solid rock I stand, all other ground is sinking sand.

Some may say it was my education that gave me a chance in life, but I disagree because I know it was the blood.

Some may think their hard work has brought them thus far, but I disagree because I know it was the blood.

Some may envision themselves as the source of their own good fortune, but I disagree because I know it was the blood.

There are some things in this world that we cannot attain without the blood.

There is a fountain from which you cannot drink unless you find your way to Calvary!

There is a promise that you cannot claim, unless you find your way to Calvary!

There is a hope that you cannot enjoy, unless you find your way to Calvary!

On Calvary, there is a fountain filled with blood that flows from Immanuel's vision and sinners plunged beneath the flood lose all their guilt and stain.

The songwriter asked the question, "What can wash away my sins?" Then he answered what every born again Christian already knows, it's "Nothing but the blood of Jesus!"

What can make me whole again? Nothing but the blood of Jesus!

Oh precious is the flow that makes me white as snow, nothing but the blood of Jesus!

When you've been washed in the blood, you sing with new meaning, "I know it was the blood. I know it was the blood that saved me."

I know it was the blood that took my hatred and transformed it into love!

I know it was the blood that took my despair and transformed it into hope!

I know it was the blood that took my disgrace and transformed it into honor!

I know it was the blood that took my enemies and transformed it into friends!

I know it was the blood that took my worries and transformed it into confidence!

One day when I was lost, he died!

On Calvary, He died upon a cross!

On Calvary, He died to give me a chance to turn my life around!

On Calvary, He died to give me a chance to get a clean start!

But early Sunday morning he arose, to guarantee my salvation!

No. 9692-Inspiration

Shoes of Champions

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

July 26, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "And your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace," Ephesians 6:15

Introduction

Have you ever counted the shoes in your closet? How many pairs do you own, five? Ten? Fifteen? Higher? Imelda Marcos, the wife of former Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos, has made many accomplishments in her life, but she is best known around the world for her collection of shoes which ranges from 3,000 to 7,500 pairs and are housed in a museum for others to view in awe.

We may not be close to that number, but there are many who have closets filled with shoes and can't seem to resist them.

Over the years, we have spent thousands of dollars on shoes of every size, shape, and color. Shoes have gone beyond being a simple necessity; they are now fashion statements, indicators of social status and even athletic success. Shoe companies pay champions to wear their clothing, especially their shoes. Micheal Jordan was paid $100 million in the year 2013 by Nike; Lebron James gets $30 million a year and has grossed over $326 million so far. Chicago Bulls star Derrick Rose has a $260 million deal.

Why so much money? The companies know that if a champion wears their shoes, others will wear them, too because everyone wants to wear the shoes of champions.

Today, when young people think of shoes of the Champions, they think of the shoes worn by the champions of their generation. Before 1984, there was only one shoe that was thought to be the shoe of the champions and that was the "Converse Allstar." If a player was worth anything, he wore Allstars. In the last 30 years, the shoes of the champions have included: the 1984 Converse All Star Pro, the 1990 Reebok Pump, the 1997 Adidas EQT Elevation, the 2004 Air Jordan Nu Retro, the 2011 Nike Air Max Flyby, the 2014 Adidas Crazy 1. And today's champion, LeBron James wore the Nike Lebron 10 most of the 2015 season.

So, we know the shoes of our athletic champions, but what shoes should a Christian warrior wear? Not the physical shoes, but what spiritual should a believer wear? We wear Gospel shoes! These shoes help us tell the good news. We only need one pair, and we have a contract with the father who promises rewards if we wear them faithfully to the end.

As Christians, we should stay ready to promote the kingdom of God. Just as the public watches the shoes of champions, the public also watches the faith of a believer. We are conquerors, and our lives should show it every day!

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he explains how Christians should be ready to advance the kingdom of the Savior.

The saint's attire is to consist of: Loincloth, breastplate, shoes, shield and helmet. These were the soldiers attire of his time. Each generation since has had its version of the elements, but the truth remains unchanged, "If you are on the battlefield for the Lord, you should be prepared."

When Paul referenced shoes, he said the feet of believers should be "shot with the preparation of the gospel of peace." The indication is that believer must be prepared walk into many areas in the kingdom-building effort. We must be prepared to walk on snakes, walk through sticker bushes, and tread rough terrains.

When we are walking for Jesus, we are walking without weariness and running without fainting.

Wearing the Gospel shoes a saint can say, "I can do all things when my soul is at peace with God. There are no sufferings that shall move my soul to pain, no terrors that will shake me; there are no wounds that shall compel me to an ignominious fear when my spirit is at peace with God. Wearing Godly shoes a little man becomes a giant. He becomes mightiest of the mighty. God makes him great because he wears shoes of a spiritual champion. He his walk reflects a person at war with sin, but at peace of God.

The word "preparation" refers to "being ready." Believers should be ready to march, to stand, to climb, to fight, or whatever else he may be called on to do.

When God saved us, He commanded us to tell others what He has done for us, and what He can do for them, This command is called the great commission of Matthew 28:19-20 "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

With Gospel shoes on our feet, we need to be ready to "Go."

Shoes we wear

There are many who are wearing shoes, but they may not be shoes of spiritual champions. Sometimes our feet are shod with everything other than the Gospel of Peace. Look at the spiritual shoes that some are trying to wear:

LOAFERS: There are many who wear loafers. It's a casual shoe. It requires no shoe laces, and it's generally loose fitting. There are many who are spiritual LOAFERS. Loafers are those who waste their time. Loafers will spend their time loafing and hanging out while others will apply themselves to industry. However, we don't have time to loaf. We must be industrious, busying ourselves in the kingdom. No church member should be satisfied being just a bench member. Our challenge is to work until our day is done.

DANCE SHOES: There are many who wear dance shoes. Dance shoes are party shoes, club shoes, or a night on the town shoes. These are shoes of the party scene. Some think they can wear dance shoes and party their way through life. Among the first lessons believers learn, is that those who succeed as Christians avoid the "party trap." A constant stream of parties distracts attention from goals and attracts unsavory elements. It's hard to focus on the Christian life if you are thinking about the next party: what you will wear, who will be there. Very little thought is given to God and how you will build the kingdom. Dancing itself is not the problem; it is a form of recreation, however, when dancing consumes our thoughts and actions it interferes with the Christian life. Dance shoes are not the shoes of gospel champions.

STILETTOS: Are shoes with very high heels. Those who wear them appear taller than they actually are; they are rarely worn by truly tall people. There are many people who have a stiletto mindset. They appear tall in their substance and reach, but aren't really tall at all. It's not wise to wear stilettos on soggy ground, to walk on them on slippery surfaces or try to run in them. Yet, believers are called upon to walk in unfamiliar, dangerous and slippery places to build the kingdom. Stilettos may be good for fashion statements, but at the least, they are awkward and cumbersome with respect to kingdom-building activities. They are not the shoes of champions.

SLIPPERS: Slippers are lightweight shoes. There is nothing keeping the feet in or stopping them from getting out. Those who wear these shoes find that their feet can easily slip in and slip it. There are many people who are slippers because they try to get through life the slick way. They want to live the slick way, without really trying. Some may be legal, but impractical. Some will border on the illegal and immoral. Slippers are not the shoes of champions.

RUNNING SHOES: Some attempt to dash effortlessly through life spending as little time as they can on life's important matters. They run to do this and run to do that. They run here and there. If they stop to talk with a friend or even come to church, after a few minutes they look at their watches impatiently and soon say "I gotta run." Running shoes are worn by those who approach life with haste. Yet, I hear Isaiah saying, "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength, they shall run and not get weary, walk and not faint."

We should also be careful of:

BROGANS because they may cause you to walk on people.

TAP SHOES because all you will do is make a lot of noise.

DRESS SHOES because you may be too pretty to work.

HOUSE SHOES because you'll never want to leave home.

If you want to wear the shoes of champions, you must put on your running shoes.

Ephesians 6:15 says we should "shod your feet with the preparation of the gospel of peace."

Put on the shoes

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must know that when our feet are shod with the Good news of the kingdom of God, we are wearing spiritual shoes, the shoes of champions!

The Gospel shoes are shoes that have been worn by millions of believers before us.

Joshua wore these shoes when he stood in front of Israel and declared, “As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord!”

Job wore these shoes when he declared, ‘Yea though he slay me, yet will I serve him.”

A little boy wore these shoes when Jesus took his lunch box of two fishes and five loaves of bread and fed five thousand.

Paul wore these shoes when he preached before Felix and Drusilla about temperance, justice and judgment to come!

These are the shoes of champions!

They are not made by Nike or Adidas!

These shoes are blessed shoes crafted in the workshops of heaven and blessed by the Lord!

Wearing these shoes, we are able to say, “I can do all things that strengthens me through Christ Jesus!”

Wearing these shoes, we can boldly go to the throne of grace and seek the mercy of God!

Those who wear these shoes of champions are those who feed the hungry in Jesus’ name!

When a new pair of Jordans is about to be released, people stand in long lines for hours to be the first one to get the new shoes. They want to be the first ones wearing the new shoe so they will have something to shout about!

We don’t have to stand in line to get the shoes of champions because we already have something to shout about!

We’re shouting because of what he has done for us!

We’re shouting because of what we expect him to do for us!

We’re shouting because of what he’s been to us, and we just can’t keep it to ourselves.

Every time we think about the mountains we’ve climbed and the valleys we have crossed, we feel a shout coming on!

He’s been a lawyer in my courtroom!

He’s been a doctor in my sick room!

He’s been a bridge over troubling waters!

He picked up an old rugged cross and shouldered the burden of my sin!

Out on Calvary, he died, that I might live!

They buried him in a borrowed tomb.!

But, early Sunday morning, arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

No. 9693-Inspiration

Back to the future

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the North Louisiana Old Line Association
Monroe, La.

July 28, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "For I am the Lord, I change not. Therefore, ye sons of Jacob are not consumed!" Malachi 3:6

Introduction

What is the future of the church? If you are like many believers, there are times when you look at the current trends and direction of the church and shake your head in despair. It seems that in many ways, the church is plunging into the future like a runaway train with no brakes or like an airplane that has drifted off course. What we see when we ponder the future is both unsettling and encouraging. It is unsettling because we see a church that is spinning around aimlessly in confusion. It is encouraging because we see a God who is still in control.

In 1970, Alvin Toffler wrote a book that made some scary predictions; it was called, "Future Shock." In his book, he said that in the future, which is now, the idea of disposability will dominate the American culture: disposable napkins, lighters, ballpoint pens and even relationships. His idea of disposability says, "Expect nothing to last; when it runs out or down, get another." To put it another way, we use the words of that great poet Johnny Taylor who said, "It's cheaper to keep her," but disposability says, "Never intend to keep her, rent her, use her and dump her." Toffler says disposability will result in fewer marriages, more short-term relationships, one night stands, and dysfunction.

This idea of rapid change and disposability will come so fast and hard that those who cannot adjust will be hit with a wave of what Toffler calls, "Future Shock." Associated with disposability is Toffler's idea of transience. Transience refers to moving quickly from one thing to another, putting down no roots and avoiding anything that's permanent. Today, no one expects a single job to last 30 years, an employee to stay on a job more than five years, a young news reporter at a TV station to last more than 18 months, a pastor of a church to last more than ten years, or a person to keep the same cell phone number for more than two years.

It's unsettling, but it's encouraging because God is still in control.

The changes that Toffler talked about have affected the church, but often we have not noticed. Since fewer people want anything permanent, fewer people are joining traditional churches with set beliefs and practices. More people are becoming "non-denominational" where doctrines can change to fit current trends, and even the name "church" has been exchanged for "worship center." I hear Jesus say, "Upon this rock I'll build my church," not my worship center.

Even Sunday has changed. It times past, Sunday was considered the Lord's Day. The world came to a screeching halt on Sunday: businesses closed, governments shut down, and only essential services were provided. No one mowed their lawns, washed clothes, cars, or performed domestic chores on Sunday. Sunday was God's Day. It was Sunday School, worship, BTU, and night worship. Today, Sunday Is considered a personal day for recreation and fun. It's a day for football, fishing, mowing the lawn and chilling. To accommodate this aspect of change, many businesses now open on Sunday and so are bars, casinos, and other distractions. The church feels the change because Sunday School attendance has declined, night services have almost disappeared, and BTU has gone with the wind. Those who attend Sunday worships want them shorter. If worships are long, many come late and leave before the benediction. Toffler predicted that in the 21st-century people will reject anything that takes a long time: from 15-minute grits to a long sermon, including this one.

It's unsettling, but it is encouraging because God is still in control.

The moral order has changed. Homosexual relationships have been recognized by the Supreme Court and are now protected by the law of the land. The future is upon us and is shocking. Churches that enjoy tax-exempt status will be forced to choose very soon because those who preach and teach against homosexuality and lesbianism as the Bible demands, may be accused of hate crimes and find their tax-exempt status snatched away. Without a tax exemption, churches will have to pay taxes on their buildings, rental property and bank accounts. Many would no longer be exempt from taxes on their purchases or offerings.

The moral order has changed. The definition of family now includes two fathers or two mothers. Some now have one father who is transgender; he used to be a mother. And others have a mother who is now a man. They will all come to church together. They will join our choirs, play our music, teach our classes and preach our sermons. What shall we preach?

It's unsettling, but it's encouraging because God is still in control.

As Christians, we must face the changing nature of the society we live with the full knowledge that change is inevitable. It is unsettling, but it is encouraging because God is still in control.

Exposition

This text focuses on the Prophet Malachi as God speaks through him to remind Israel that despite the nation's changing circumstance that he remains unchanged and would be their salvation.

The nation had a roller coaster experience. It was enslaved in its infancy; four hundred years in Egypt. It was the envy of the world in its highest moments under King Solomon. It was again at a low point when the people were exiles and refugees. In this text, the people returned home, but to an existence that had changed so much from what they knew.

In their despondency, God sent them a consoling message. Despite your changing situation, I am still God, and I change not.

The idea that God does not change is what theologians call the "Immutability of God." It means that God does not change in his purposes, promises, plans, and his passion. Whatever God has promised will come to be. Whatever God has planned will work itself out, and he will passionately pursue his purpose in the lives of each person and every nation.

For Israel, the consolation comes in the last part of the verse, "Therefore ye are not consumed…" For Israel, that meant that although their circumstances had changed, they should not give up hope because the God they served, is unchanged in his purpose, passion, promise, and plan for them. They would not be swallowed up by their changing situation.

The changing times in which they lived may be unsettling, but the God of Jacob remained the same and was still in control.

Facing the Future

As the Church faces the future there are at least three things that should be remembered:

DON'T BE AFRAID TO CHANGE METHODS: While it is true that God does not change, it does not mean that our methods must not change. In Solidarity with the Savior, we must face the future without fear and anxiety. We must not be intimidated by the technology that is around us. The information age is here. Every church needs a website, a Facebook Group, and email. Churches must be prepared to receive donations by credit card and through online contributions. Churches must not be married to traditions that require stockings, heels, suits and ties for worships and activities; while God does not change, methods do change. We must not be afraid to experiment and try something different, especially if what we have is not achieving results.

While our methods change, the purpose behind the method must be as constant as the God we serve. We may change the way to collect an offering, but the reason for giving has not changed. We may change the way we dress for worship or what day that we study the Bible, but the reason behind our worship and study has not changed. The God we serve remains the same, even though we live in changing times.

DON'T BE STUCK IN THE PAST: As the church faces it future, it must not get stuck in the past. A young man became frustrated when his father fell victim to dementia. A tear came to his eye when he noticed that his father was fixed in the year 1965. He knew the president, talked by the Voting Rights Act and described each day vividly as if he lived in 1965. He spoke to people who died many years ago, but they were his friends in 1965. The only way the son could communicate with him was to pretend that he saw the people and that he also lived in 1965. He was completely unaware of the world around him because he was stuck in 1965.

Today, there are millions of believers who are stuck in the past. A great measure of whether or not you are stuck in the past is to think about whether most of your conversation is about things you plan to do or things you once did. If you speak more about what you "use" to do rather than what you are planning to do, you know that you are in danger of being stuck in the past.

A 70-year-old woman doesn't need to spend all of her time reflecting on what was, she needs to be preparing the present generation for their future. Churches can reflect on the old days, but we must constantly prepare for the next generation. Paul said, "Forgetting those things which are past, I press forward, to the high calling…" We must come to grips with the fact that yesterday is gone. When I was a child people killed a hen, popped it into a pot of boiling water, pulled its feathers, gutted it and fried it for dinner. Times have changed, if we had to do that to eat today, most of us would starve to death. We can't get stuck in the past we must keep looking forward, with our eyes on the prize.

How to get to the future

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that sometimes it might be necessary to reach back to learn from our past, but we must know how to get back to the future.

Several years ago there was a movie starring Micheal J. Fox and Claudia Wells, the name of the movie was "Back to the Future." In that movie Fox found an old Delorean car and devised a system that would push the car to 88 miles an hour and warp into the past.war, Once in the past, the problem was how to get back to the future. The Fox and the old scientist said to get back to the future they needed enough power to warp them back. They hooked up a crude hook and wire and waited for a storm night. Then they cranked up the Delorean to 88 miles an hour just in time to catch a bolt of lighting that pushed them from the past, back to the future.

Malachi went back and told Israel about its illustrious past under David and Solomon and told them about their fall. However, the book of Malachi ends with God saying, "Behold I will send you Elijah" and he will come on that dreadful day and make everything all right!

When Elijah comes:

—There will not be a battle that we won't be able to endure!

—There will be no mountain that will be too hard for us to climb!

—There will be no valley too deep for us to traverse!

—There will be no night too dark for us to make it through!

—There will be no crisis that we cannot control!

—There will be no storm so strong that we can't make it through!

Today, the church asks the question, how can we face the future? Malachi says, "Behold, I will send you Elijah."

When Elijah comes, the wicked will cease from troubling and the weary will be at rest!

When Elijah comes, the crooked places shall be made straight, and the rough places will be made plain!

When Elijah comes, he'll be a Bridge over troubling water

When Elijah comes, he'll lift up bowed down heads!

When Elijah comes, he will prepare the way of Salvation!

Behold I send you Elijah! Somebody called him the Prince of Peace!

Behold I send you Elijah! Somebody called him Emanuel!

Behold I send you Elijah! Somebody called him King of Kings!

Behold I send you Elijah who will pick up an old rugged cross and carry it to Golgotha's hill!

Behold I send you Elijah who will be buried in a borrowed tomb!

But Early Sunday morning…

No. 9694-Inspiration

Let us see

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 2, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "The rest said, Let be, let us see whether Elias will come to save him." Matthew 27:49

Introduction

Has there ever been a time when you felt that someone, somewhere is watching and waiting for you to slip or fail? That's when you feel like the second string quarterback behind a starter who is sensational. You want the team to win, but at the same time, you can't get in the game unless something happens to the starter. Most real believers have an army of haters and detractors who seem to be waiting to see if the lifestyle we profess is all that we say it is.

Over the years, we have learned to be patient because God is working things out. Our detractors and critics have no idea where we are going with our faith; they are just waiting to see what happens.

There are many who are even taking a wait and see attitude about God. We who know do not say let us see, for we have seen him at work.

Unlike our critics, we don't mind waiting on God.

Why not? We wait on everything else!

We wait for the coffee to brew.

We wait for the water to boil, popcorn to pop, and for all the commercials to pass before we can watch our rented DVD.

We wait for the train to pass. We wait for our tax refund check.

We wait in lines at stores. We go out to eat and wait in long lines.

We wait in line at the doctor's office, the first day of school and at the health clinic.

We finally get enough money for Cablevision then have to wait a week to get it installed.

While we have learned to be patient and wait for God to act, we must also be aware that there some people out there who are waiting, too! They are waiting to see if our faith is what we say it is.

As Christians, we know that our faith is on trial, but we are confident that God's word is true. If God has spoken it; and God has empowered it; it shall be so. For those who say, "Let's see what happens" as they study you. Tell them to keep watching, because they ain't seen nothing yet!

Exposition

This text focuses on those who ridiculed Jesus on the cross.

On the day of the crucifixion, there were many people who observed Jesus' agonizing last moments. Among them were the Roman soldiers charged with oversight of the execution. While on the cross, Jesus groaned in agony and cried out to his father in heaven. The soldiers heard him speak seven sayings from the cross, among them were: Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani which means, "My God, My God, why hast thou forsaken me," and "I thirst."

These two sayings are the focus of this text. The humiliation of the cross was the last instance of Jesus being ridiculed on earth. He had been mocked by soldiers after his trial. They ridiculed him and spat on him. They slapped him with the palms of their hands. Later, they made fun of his Lordship and stripped him of his own clothes and put a purple robe on him. They made a circle around him and yelled insults at him. They platted a crown of thorns and put it on his head.

Each act indicated the contempt they had for his claim to be the Son of God and the promised savior of Israel. They wanted to see what his response would be if he was pressed and humiliated enough. He did not give them the pleasure of a demonstration of his heavenly power or even a verbal response to their abuse.

On the cross, they heard him say, "Eli, Eli" and thought he was calling on Elijah. They heard him say "I thirst" and one brought him a sponge filled with sour wine or vinegar. They laughed at his anguish. Then one soldier yelled out, 'Let be" after he was given the sour vinegar, "Leave him alone and Let's see what happens." Let him alone, his case is desperate, neither heaven nor earth can help him; do nothing to either hasten his death or to retard it; he has appealed to Elias, let's see what happens.

They watched him die on the cross. Had they hung around until Sunday morning, they would have had something to see.

They are waiting and Watching

Just as Jesus had his detractors, believers also have their detractors, believers today must deal with their detractors, critics, and cynics. We should do three things:

LET THEM SEE OUR FAITH: There are many who lose focus because they are distracted by the rude and often cruel actions of their enemies. They see your faith, sacrifice, and sincerity and privately laugh at you while you call on God while literally hanging on a financial or spiritual cross. Let them laugh because there are things about God that you know that they don't know:

What do we know about God?

We know that God strengthens and encourages those who are on His side. When the weight of the world gets heavy, God lifts our spirits, and we find the strength that we did not know we possessed. Psalm 46:1, "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble."

We know that God will never abandon those who are faithful to Him. Though it is tempting to do so, those who remain faithful to God will find that God is always them. As David wrote in Psalm 46:7, "The Lord of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our refuge." We can say the same.

We also know that God will protect those who are on his side from ultimate destruction. There will most definitely be setbacks and a few battles lost, but in the end, God will be the victor and we will arise victoriously. Are your enemies plotting against you at this very moment? Are they sharpening their knives and swords ready to attack? Has that caused you to lose sleep? Those who are on the Lord's side remember the words of Isaiah 54:17, "No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper; and every tongue that shall rise against thee in judgment thou shalt condemn.

When our detractors sit back with their arms folded and say, "Let's see what happens."

- Stay Focused on the faith; God will work it out.

LET THEM SEE GOD'S FAVOR TOWARD US: Even in times of difficulty, the faithful must not lose hope. There are times when each of us can feel as if we are hanging on a cross being ridiculed. Christ remained focused on his mission. We too must remain focused first on our faith, but secondly, on the favor that that the Lord has showered upon us. When we think of the many ways that God has blessed us, we won't be able to count the ways. How many times has God made a way out of no way? How many prayers has he answered for us? How many rivers has he helped us to cross? How many battles has he helped us to win?

If we count them, we can only conclude that God has been good to us in a "great" way. Psalm 40:5 says, " Many, O LORD my God, are thy wonderful works which thou hast done, and thy thoughts which are to us-ward: they cannot be reckoned up in order unto thee: if I would declare and speak of them, they are more than can be numbered."

No wonder the songwriter would declare, count your many blessing and it may surprise you what the Lord has done.

Since we know our detractors are watching, let them see the many ways God has blessed our faithfulness with his favor.

LET THEM SEE YOU KEEP PACE WITH YOUR GRACE: Don't let friends and critics make you lose your spiritual pace. Keep pace with your grace. God has a time and place for everything and gives us the blessings we need when they are needed. Your friends want you to see something happen now; that's not always the way God works. Even on the Cross, the Salvation of the world wouldn't be completed on the cross, but three days later. They wanted it to happen right then!

It's like the world has a cell phone cocked and ready to record something and they yell at you "do something." To satisfy them, you yell to God, "Do something" and nothing happens.

Occasionally, we walk with someone who does not walk at our speed. They are either too fast for us or not fast enough. Either way, it irritates us.

God walks with each us of at the speed necessary for our stage of life. He does not walk with everyone at the same speed, but everyone who wants to walk with him must walk at his speed because he sets our pace.

Responding to their expectations, we can outpace our grace: buy a bigger car or house than we can afford, live a lifestyle that is inconsistent with our income, or otherwise live outside of what God has provided for us.

We have nothing to prove to our neighbors! We have nothing to prove to our high school graduating class!

If your critics want to see something, let them see how you keep pace with your grace and walk in the will of God.

Keep Walking with the King

Finally, brothers and sisters we should remember that although there are many who are critical of your faith in God and think you are foolish, you must keep walking with the King.

On the cross, the soldiers laughed and made fun of Jesus. They gave him vinegar when he thirsted and threw dice over his clothes.In all this, there is no record that he ever responded to all of their ugly remarks, insults, and humiliating acts. What he did was talk to God.

Today, believers must not be discouraged by life's frustrations. It seems that the ungodly are untouched by trouble. They seem to glide through life without trouble, despite their ungodly ways and criticize our faithfulness. Psalm 37:1-2 says, "Fret not thyself because of evildoers, neither be thou envious against the workers of iniquity.For they shall soon be cut down like the grass, and wither as the green herb."

Don't let your detractors interrupt your walk with the Lord!

If we walk with the Lord, he will give us strength for the journey.

If we walk with the Lord, we may meet sorrow, but God will take sorrow and turn it into joy!

If we walk with the Lord, we may meet weakness, but God will take a weakness and turn it into strength!

If we walk with the Lord, we may meet defeat, but God will take defeat and turn it into victory!

If we walk with the Lord, we may meet confusion, but God will take the confusion and turn it into understanding!

If we walk with the Lord, we may meet hard times, but God will take hard times and turn them into good times!

If we walk with the Lord, he'll lift us up when we stumble!

If you walk with the Lord, he'll carry you when we can't make another step!

No wonder the songwriter declared, "Walk with me Lord, walk with me! While I'm on this tedious journey, Lord, I want Jesus to walk with me!"

There are many who are watching to see what the Lord will do!

Tell them to keep watching because soon and very soon:

—The wicked will cease their troubling

—The weary will be at rest!
—Mountains will become molehills and valleys will be exalted!
—Enemies will become friends!
—Hatred will be turned into love!
—Setbacks will become starting points!
I don't know about you, but I have decided to keep my hand in God's hands!
I've got to tell somebody about Jesus!
I've got to tell them how he gave me a brand new walk and a brand new talk!
I've got to tell somebody how he died out on Calvary!
I've got to tell somebody how he arose early Sunday morning!
His name is Jesus!
He walks with me and talks with me!

The world may be waiting for something to see, but the word says, "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, nor hath it entered into the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."

No. 9595-Funeral

An Educator's Legacy

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 8, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "Verily I say unto you, Wheresoever this gospel shall be preached in the whole world, there shall also this, that this woman hath done, be told for a memorial of her." Matthew 26:13

Introduction

Have you ever thought about the legacy you will leave behind? How will you be remembered, what mark are you leaving? There are many people who believe that they must do something grand in life to leave a legacy. If they are not the President or an Ambassador or a person of national renown they believe that they will never leave a legacy that will be remembered. In old age, they bury themselves in self-pity, feeling that their lives had no significance.

That will never be the case when a dedicated Christian teacher goes home to her reward. Dedicated teachers leave a legacy. Consider the aging teacher who had taught in a little country school for over 40 years. She saw children become parents and taught their children. It was her tradition to plant a seedling alongside the road that led to the school at the close of each year. As the years passed, she continued that practice, planting one seedling on each side of the road 20 feet apart. As her eyes dimmed and patience began to run short, she decided that she would not teach any longer. On her last day, with the help of a student, she planted her final seedling, looked back at the old school and seemed to drift away.

She didn't ever become a principal or a superintendent. She was never named the teacher of the year, but that old teacher left a legacy that was talked about decades after her death. They tore down the old school where she once taught. A new government building was built on the spot. However, along the lane that leads to the new building was 400 feet of beautiful oak trees providing shade to all that passed along the road. -And the Administrator of the building was a man taught by the old lady. He had helped her plant her last seedling. It grew into a mighty oak, and he grew to be a man of prominence and authority. The school was gone, and the teacher was no longer around, but her legacy lived each time the wind rustled through the trees.

Those who teach us plant seeds that often seem insignificant, but they grow and multiply as their branches spread out over the land.

As Christians, we celebrate the life of good teachers. We rejoice that God gave them to us. Long after their careers have ended their decades of service continues to bear fruit and their legacy is never diminished.

Exposition

This text focuses on a simple act of faith that proved to be her legacy.
As the time of his crucifixion drew near, Jesus met with his disciples to discuss the future of the kingdom ministry. While they talked, a woman came in their midst, opened an alabaster box, an anointed Jesus head with its very expensive oils.

Matthew does not identify the woman, but John 12:3 identifies her as Mary, the sister of Martha and Lazarus. The box of oil she used to anoint Jesus cost about 300 denarii per flask or bottle. It was the oil used by kings, and they used it only drop by drop. A denarii was the average pay for a day's work. Therefore, the bottle was worth about a whole year's wages. Despite its market value, the woman broke the seal and poured out the contents upon Jesus's head.

When the disciples saw the broken box and watched the oil drip from Christ's head and spill to the floor, they thought it was a waste of resources. She took the most precious thing she had and gave it to Jesus. It was a selfless act, a costly act, and an act of love and faith in the Lord Jesus. Very simply put, Mary anointed Jesus to show Him how deeply she loved Him and believed Him to be the true Messiah, the anointed One of God. He was her Savior, Lord, and King. He had done so much for her and her family. She wanted Him to know how much she appreciated, loved, and believed in Him.

Jesus said the oil was neither spilled or wasted but served as an anointing in anticipation of greater things to come.

He said the sacrificial act will be a memorial to her for all times to come. He seemed to combine all of the acts of her life in one simple phrase, "this that this woman hath done, be told for a memorial of her."

What is the legacy?

SHE WAS ON A MISSION: Mary poured out the oil on Jesus' head because she was on a mission. It did not matter the cost or the enormity of her sacrifice; she was on a mission. There was a time that teaching was considered a godly mission for African-American women. The future of our race depended on our children learning the essentials that would qualify them to take their places in the world order. The ancient ones arose from slavery, reconstruction, the depression and civil rights era and walked into classrooms that they often funded from their own pockets. They were on a mission. They were part of an army of men and women who dedicated their lives to raising our race.

Their essence was more valuable than the oils of an Alabaster Box, but they poured out themselves selflessly to help children.

What a waste of time and talent some would say! Look at this woman, standing in a nameless classroom filled with children who may never remember her name, pouring out to them knowledge that cost her thousands of dollars and years of study to acquire! What a waste! They don't even listen to her! What a waste of time, even the parents are so disrespectful!

I'm reminded of an old teacher who was celebrated by the school system for finishing her entire teaching career without a single parental complaint. While other teachers suffered verbal abuse from parents who criticized them needlessly, not once in 30 years did a parent ever curse her or disrespect her. Asked about her secret the old teacher said, "I send a note to all parents on the first day of school. The note says: If you promise not to believe everything your child says happens at school, I'll promise not to believe everything your child says happens at your home." - It wasn't orthodox, but it worked for her.

Jesus said Mary did not waste her time or talent pouring out her gifts for a great cause, in fact, he said, "This that this woman does, will be told as a memorial to her." -It will be her legacy.

SHE LIVED HER OWN LIFE: Mary is remembered for her sacrificial service, but aside her service she had a life. She and her sister were hospitable to disciples when they met at her home. She cried when her brother Lazarus was stricken and mourned his death. She also rejoiced when he was raised from the dead. She wasn't just an anonymous woman who anointed Jesus' head; she lived a happy, successful life. Good teachers teach, but somewhere between the close of the school day and the first bell, they also live. Good teachers have husbands and wives. They have home lives to build. They have hopes and dreams and memories to share. The pictures on the walls of their homes attest to their humanity and the people who touch their hearts: their children, mothers, grandmothers, fathers and grandfathers.

We sometimes forget, but teachers have lives outside of the classroom. They laugh and talk, wash dishes, iron clothes, shop, read, and enjoy their families. Somewhere in a crowded day, they find the time, perhaps in the wee hours of the night, to pray and talk to God; he gives them strength for the journey and renewed inspiration.

The life we celebrate today is one that entailed all of the joys that a person could expect. In a quiet, unassuming way, this life was lived with dignity, purity sincerity and purpose. In between all of that, there was her love, gentleness and concern for others.

Jesus said, "This that this woman hath done, will be told for a memorial to her."- It will be her legacy.

SHE BELIEVED IN THE JESUS: Mary knew Jesus. In fact, when Lazarus was in the tomb, she threw herself at his feet in frustration saying, "If you had been here, my brother would not have died." She professed faith in the resurrection of the dead and came to know that Jesus himself was her hope of life after death. He told her, "I am the resurrection." The greatest and most successful teachers are those who make it to the classroom on Monday, but also make it to the House of God on Sunday. They know that if they are to raise the hopes and aspirations of hundreds of little minds, they will touch, their lives must be touched by God's spirit. He is the source of all real life-changing learning. He is the resurrection.

The spirit driven teacher knows that her ability to teach is rooted in part in what she learned in books but is successful because she knows Jesus for herself.

She knows that she may know:

—Mathematics, how to multiply and divide. But it's wise to know Jesus because only Jesus can multiply by dividing. He took two little fish and five loaves of bread and multiplied them by dividing them among the people.

—Geology, the origins and nature of the earth. It's wise to know Jesus because "The Earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof."

—Astronomy, the nature of the stars. It's wise to know Jesus because He's the bright and morning star!

—Botany, the study of the flowers and lilies of the field. It's wise to know Jesus because He is the Rose of Sharon and the Lily of the Valley!

—Geography, and know the people of neighboring places. It's wise to know Jesus because a songwriter said, "He's got the whole world, in his hands, He's got the whole wide world in His hands!"

So, great teachers live lives of faith. They listen intently to the word. They absorb its teaching, builds their faith and strengthens their resolve. She is strengthened by repetition of the old songs, "I must tell Jesus, Jesus can help me and Jesus alone;"Amazing Grace how sweet the sound that saved a wretch like me. I was lost, but now I'm found, blind, but now I see."

Jesus said that a believer who lives a sacrificial life of faith will never be forgotten. "This that this woman does will be told as a memorial of her." It will be her legacy.

A legacy for his glory!

Finally, Brothers and sisters, we must consider that in the end, the life of every believer is lived for the glory of the Lord and that is their legacy!

We may live our lives in various areas of service, but only what we do for Christ and his glory will last!

When we witness to the lost, God gets the glory.

When we serve the less fortunate, God gets the glory!

When we help a lost child find his way, God gets the glory!

When we are loyal to our spouses and love them with all we have, God gets the glory!

We have learned that when we live for His glory and not our own, God showers us with His favor. Because we glorify Him in our words and deeds when nobody else:

—Cares, the Lord is concerned about me.

—Forgives me, the Lord is willing to forget.

—Accepts me, the Lord receives me with arms wide open.

—Wants me, the Lord accepts me as a child of the King.

While we live for His glory, we are sustained by His grace.

When grace is upon us, despite our declining health, we continue holding his hand!

When grace is upon us, despite the feebleness of old age, we know that God smiles on what we have done with our lives!

God has smiled on the life being memorialized today.

God has smiled because of the children that have been helped along the way.

God has smiled because of the positive spirit and attitude that is shown every day! God has smiled because of the broken hearts that have been helped to mend.

There is an old hymn that is a favorite of many saints, but especially those confined to nursing homes or who no longer able to care for themselves, " Blessed assurance, Jesus is mine!¨Oh, what a foretaste of glory divine! Heir of salvation, purchase of God. Born of His Spirit, washed in His blood.

It's assurance that He will give us:

—STRENGTH when our burdens become heavy.

—CONFIDENCE when everything seems to go wrong.

—INSPIRATION when difficulties arise.

—COMFORT when disaster strikes. It's assurance that even in old age when we are shuffled from our home to a nursing home that God will never leave us alone!

It's assurance that even after this life, eternity remains!

It's assurance guaranteed by a God who loved us so much that he gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish but have everlasting life!

It's an assurance paid for on an old rugged cross.

It's an assurance secured by three days and nights in a borrowed tomb!

It's an assurance confirmed when Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave with all power in His hands.

This is my story; this is my song,

Praising my Savior all the day long.

—

On Thursday, July 30, 2015, God called Mildred Lyons home to her eternal rest. She planted many seedlings of hope and inspiration in the minds of hundreds of students and in her family. This that this woman hath done will be told as a memorial to her. It is her legacy!

No. 9696-Inspiration

When Euroclydon Comes

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 9, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "But not long after there arose against it a tempestuous wind, called Euroclydon." Acts 27:14

Introduction

Have you noticed the strange patterns in the weather in recent months? Living conditions are unpredictable in nearly every part of the world, as the world responds to one tragedy after another. Often the reports of major storms, fires, or shifts in weather patterns all come on the same day. How do we respond? Some take the Ostrich approach; they won't watch the news. If they don't know, it won't bother them. Others watch with despair and shake their heads. Most people are simply trying to make sense of it all because it is all happening so fast.

There have always been storms and weather-related tragedies, yet it appears that in recent years they are occurring more frequently. In May Tropical Storm Ana caused Havoc and two feet of snow fell in the Plains. Both happened at the same time and almost never happen in May. In March of this year, Four Tropical Cyclones hit at the same time. While this was happening, Antarctica, the coldest place on earth, reached temperatures of 63 degrees, melting ice caps causing oceanic problems around the world. For six months, the snowfall in Alaska came to a drizzle (only 25 inches) and in May temperatures reached 90 degrees. In May, the world's driest desert in Chile had a year's worth of rainfall in one day, causing massive floods.

It just keeps coming: Wildfires on the West Coast, rainstorms and flooding on the East Coast, scorching heat in the South; day after day. In August, places in the South accustomed to 90-degree weather were swamped with heat waves that reached 105 degrees. It's all happening at the same time.

Many see these changes as signs of Global Warming. The warming, says one group is caused because of the way using the earth's resources, punching holes in the earth's protective layers. This group wants us to use energy efficient cars, light bulbs, appliances and homes to stop the warming. Another group says they are happening because we approaching the end of another cycle of ages such as when the ice age ended and the present age begins. This second group believes we should learn to deal with it, but nothing can stop the coming of an age.

What do the faithful say? The faithful remember the words of Jesus, "And when ye shall hear of wars and rumors of wars, be ye not troubled: for such things must needs be; but the end shall not be yet. For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there shall be earthquakes in divers places, and there shall be famines and troubles: these are the beginnings of sorrows."

As we approach the end times, Jesus said, "These things must be." They are signs that we are entering the last days.

Until Christ returns the faithful must learn to adapt to the rapidity of troubles, helping its victims and protecting our own, as we cling to our faith that God's will must be done. Yes, it's all coming at one time, one storm after another: Snowstorms, heat waves, floods, fires, earthquakes, tsunamis, and cyclones, but we must keep the faith, "these things must be."

As Christians, we understand the underlying reason for so many troubles, so we gird ourselves to deal with each as they occur. In the end, we have faith that God will not abandon us. He will never leave us alone.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul onboard a ship that was beset by a terrible storm called Euroclydon.

Paul was on board the ship, as a prisoner, along with 275 other people. He was being sent to Rome to appeal his case to Caesar. They began their journey sailing with a soft South Wind that was accommodating and peaceful. However, on the way, the ship was accosted by two weeks of violent storms that battered the 276 people on board. The wind was called a Euroclydon or an unusual North-East wind the came out of nowhere and encircled them. There were no compasses at this time; sailors navigated by the sun in the day and stars at night. However, for two weeks they could not see neither the sun or the stars.

If they could have seen their location in the dark, it would have been easier. If they could have plotted their position by the stars, they would have known where they were, but they couldn't see their location adding to the stress of the moment.
The sailors on board felt their efforts were useless. They had given their best and the ship still appeared to be aimlessly drifting to destruction. Even though God had revealed to Paul that they would make it to dry land without the loss of one, they were nevertheless disheartened. Paul kept saying, God has promised them that each would make their destination without the loss of life, but they were not listening.

Ultimately, the people on board all made it to shore, without the loss of one, just as God had promised.

The winds subsided. The turbulence of the sea quieted. God's word and prediction of safety for those who remained on the ship was proven true.

Dealing with Troubles

The foolish sailors on Paul's ship expected to make their journey safely and without trouble, pushed along by a comfortable South wind. They expected no trouble and did not heed warnings they received. When Euroclydon came, they were not ready. Today, believers must expect Euroclydon; we must expect storms and be prepared to respond:

LIFE STORMS WILL COME: Ecclesiastes 3:1 reminds us that there is a time and season for everything under the sun; that includes troubles. There is no life that will not encounter trouble. It's like global warming, there are some things we may do to bring on trouble, but other troubles just come. Unlike the change of the season when we know approximately when to expect the winter cold and the summer heat, trouble has a way of developing instantly and unpredictably. When sudden troubles come, all of our preparation seems inadequate once the winds begin to blow. Life storms or troubles will come; they are a part of living. Things will break, accidents will happen, jobs will be lost, sicknesses will occur, and catastrophes will happen. They are easier to handle if they come one at a time, but there are times when Euroclydon comes. That's when they all come at the same time. When Euroclydon comes the general idea not to lose it. Don't panic as if God has abandoned you, keep the faith. In a season of trouble, we need to know the way to safe ground.

The sailors on Paul's ship panicked because they could not see their way to safe ground. Those who know God, know how to find him, even when Euroclydon comes. In times of trouble, believers know how to find a refuge. The word of God says God is our refuge and our strength, a very present help in times of trouble. Believers know the way to God and constantly lean and trust him to take us to higher ground then give us the strength to pick up the pieces, rebuild and to stand. Maybe that's what the songwriter had in mind when he said, "Lord lift me up and let me stand, by faith on heaven's table land, no high ground I have not found, Lord plant my feet on higher ground."

GOD IS AWARE OF OUR TROUBLES: When the storm arose, only Paul remained calm and confident, despite the threatening winds because he knew God was aware of the situation. In the same way, we should always remember that God is always aware of our troubles.

When Euroclydon comes, there are many who lose faith. They throw up their hands and ask, why our community? Why our family? Why me? Is not God aware of our danger and our predicament? This is the question that the disciples once asked Jesus when the winds and waves threatened their lives. While they worried, Jesus was aboard but Jesus was asleep below deck on a ship when a storm arose. When they panicked He questioned their faith as he spoke to the winds and the waves saying, "Peace Be Still."

There are many today who react to troubles like the disciples who lost faith.

Even though they knew Jesus was on board they screamed, "Master, carest thou not that we perish?"

Our ancestors held on by faith, with the assurance that God knew their situation. Can't you hear them singing, "Nobody knows the trouble I sees. Nobody knows but Jesus. Glory Hallelujah!"

Somehow our faith seems to operate in degrees. Some troubles don't bother us and we are confident that God will take care of us. When a few things go wrong in a single week that doesn't bother us either. We even do well if we are hit with a few little things and one big one. Our faith in the power of God remains intact.

However, when Euroclydon comes, many lose faith. When everything starts to hit at the same time: two or three big things: A major sickness, a death, an accident followed by the lights getting turned off, a flat tire and a stopped up toilet.- It's too much! It's Euroclydon! In these times, many forget that God is still God.

Even a Euroclydon situation, God is still on the throne. He is still our refuge and our strength. He still promises to turn every Euroclydon situation in a way that it will work to our good. He will stand with us, even in our losses. Our prayer, when Euroclydon comes is Lord, "Stand by me." That's why we love the song that says, When the storms of life are raging, stand by me.

DESPITE EUROCLYDON, FAITH REMAINS: When the Euroclydon passed, the ship in which Paul sailed was wrecked. It's cargo and goods was lost, but not a man who stuck with the ship lost his life. That should be a word of hope for the faithful today. Many have seen many Euroclydon episodes in their lives and as each one ended the faith of believers remained unshaken. Our God is able. Our heritage is one that is filled with overcoming struggle and difficulty. Whether it has been our ethnic struggle as a people of color or as individuals striving to overcome our personal fights with life-threatening situations, our faith remains intact and we celebrate because God has helped us to survive our difficulty and even to escape death itself.

The Psalmist writes in Psalm 16:5 Thou maintainest my lot. That means when the storms of life come, we are assured that the will of God will work itself out. One songwriter said, "God will take care of you. Through every day, over all the way. He will take care of you!"

When our world is turned upside down by tragic events, it is easy to become disillusioned with life, but we must never give up on God!

When we witness evil and senseless acts coming in rapid succession, it is easy to become cynical, but we must never give up on God!

We should not lose hope because we know that God will never forsake us. Another songwriter said, "Don't give up God and he won't give up on you! He's able!"

Because we know he will never leave us alone, we should praise him!

Because he has been with us as we battled trouble after trouble, we should praise!

Our God is an awesome God, He reigns from heaven above!

Keep Trusting In The Lord

Finally, brothers and sisters, since we know that troubles are a part of life and Euroclydon situations will come, we must continue to hold on and keep trusting in the Lord.

Despite the troubles must continue to trust in God and remember that God is our refuge and our strong place to hide in storms.

God proved himself to be a refuge or place of shelter in times of storm.

The times may be changing faster than we've every seen, but God is still on the throne.

We trust in the Lord because those who trust him are rewarded with answered prayers and heavenly glory!

We are not by ourselves. There are others who had troubles, but they trusted in the Lord.

—Noah trusted the Lord and He brought him through the great flood!

—Abraham trusted the Lord and He showed him the ram in the bush!

—Ruth trusted the Lord and she found happiness while gleaning fields!

—Moses trusted the Lord and he lead Israel out of bondage

—Daniel trusted the Lord and He protected him in Lion's Den

—Job declared that though his health was slipping away, his children were gone and his wealth was lost that he would still trust the Lord. I hear him across the centuries declaring, "Yea though he slay me, yet will I trust Him."

I will trust in the Lord because if I am:

—Sad, the Lord will be my fountain of joy!

—At fault, the Lord will be my stronghold of forgiveness!

—Weak, the Lord will be my pillar of strength

—Discouraged, the Lord will be my pool of inspiration!

—Defeated, the Lord will be my crown of victory!

—Darkness, the Lord will be my light!.

—Lonely, the Lord will be my friend

—Helpless, the Lord will be my help.

The Lord is my refuge and my strength a very pleasant help in a time of trouble! No wonder the songwriter declares! "The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear!"

I trust in God wherever I may be. Out on the land or on the raging sea. Though come what may, from day to day, my heavenly father watches over me!

Hold to his hand! God's unchanging hand!

The same hand that was nailed to an old rugged cross!

Hold to his hand!

He died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning, he arose from the dead! Even when Euroclydon comes, Hold to his hand, the Lord will make a way!

No. 9697-Inspiration

Till He Come

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 16, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do shew the Lord's death till he come."1 Corinthians 11:26

Introduction

What do you do while you are waiting for something that seems to take a long time to come? We've all had to wait for something whether it was a package in the mail or standing in line at the grocery store. We don't mind waiting, but it just seems such a waste of time.

While we are waiting what do we do? We read magazines in the doctor's office or piddle on our smartphones. We stand in a long line and shift from one side to the other in nervous anxiety as our line seems to move slower than the one next to us. What do you do while you wait? We usually read the news magazines, look at the candy, watch people and wish the line would move faster.

Waiting is hard. However, we do have the joy of knowing that when the object of our wait finally comes, it will be well worth the wait.

Isaiah said, "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength. They shall mount up on wings as eagles. They shall run and not faint."

In Homer's "Odessey" –Penelope waited for the return of her husband for 20 years, refusing all suitors. Her husband said, "Wait until I return" and she did just that. Since that day, the name "Penelope" means "To faithfully wait."

An old farmer had a special dog that he loved. Whenever he went away, he told the dog to wait on the porch until he returned. The old dog was obedient. He sat on the porch all day long. However, when the evening came he became anxious; he paced back and forth. Finally, when he saw the old farmer walking up the road, he began to howl and wag his tail. He jumped up and down with joy because he knew that day after day, the farmer came home with a bag full of scraps from the butcher's shop and that bag made his wait worthwhile.

As Christians, we are especially excited about the return of Christ. We wait anxiously for the day when his new kingdom will be established. While we wait, we remember his sacrifice and his promise and wait patiently until he comes.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he explains that believers participate in the Lord's Supper as a memorial to Christ's crucifixion until he returns.

The Lord's supper had two main elements: bread and wine. Each of the elements served to represent an important truth. The bread served to represent the body of Christ which was crucified for the sins of mankind. The wine served as a symbol of the blood he shed on Calvary for the remission of sin. In verse 24 Jesus is quoted saying, "This do in remembrance of me." In verse 26 Paul told believers that as often as they participated in the memorial meal that they would remember his death and sacrifice.

The last three words of the text "Till he come" are prophetic. They lay out an anticipation of things to come; the return of Christ to establish his kingdom.

Believers then, and those today, have no idea when he will return, but "until he come" we are to wait patiently and be about the work of building the kingdom.

What to do until he comes

There are believers today who are patiently waiting for the Lord's return. Waiting may be difficult, but we should:

WAIT LIKE PENELOPE: Penelope waited for Odysseus to return although others flirted with her. As believers, we should be faithful in our allegiance to the Savior. The devil will tempt us and will make overtures to get us to abandon our faith. He will point to how long it has been since Christ left this earth. He will also point to how long it might be before his return. The devil will tempt each of us to 'live life for today" because we don't know what tomorrow will bring. In response, millions of believers have remained faithful to the cause because they have been standing on the promises of God. He has promised to reward our faith. The word of God tells us in Revelation 21:7 "He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son." Revelation 2:26 says "And he that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations:" We may not know when it's coming, but we know what the end shall be!

Rev. 3:5 says He that overcometh.... shall be clothed in white raiment; and... I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels.

We don't give up, even though the road may be rough sometimes, we have decided to wait "till he come."

WE MUST REMEMBER: The importance of communion must never be forgotten. Even though it is not popular today to preach and teach about sin and sacrifice, that's what the cross is all about: Our sins and Jesus' sacrifice. That must not be lost in the shuffle. If we fail to observe communion regularly, we soon forget about Calvary.

It's a bad thing when you can't remember. Joseph was freed from prison when he recalled a dream of a Pharaoh, who couldn't remember. Daniel rose to prominence when Nebuchadnezzar couldn't remember his dream of a mighty statue.

It's a bad thing not to remember because we have pushed something out of our minds.

Sometimes the value of good things are lost because we put them out of our minds and fail to use them.

Perhaps this is what Jesus had in mind when he asked his disciples to observe the memorial meal, by doing so they would keep the meaning of their fellowship forever on their minds.

Every child of God should remind themselves that if we neglect the ordinance of communion it is possible that:

—We can become so enthralled in the mechanics and rituals associated with the faith or the intricacies of church politics that we fail to remember that our mission is about holding up the Cross to the loss.

I hear the songwriter say "Lest I forget..lead me to Calvary."

We choose to say, "We will remember Calvary," –Till he come.

WAIT WITHOUT DOUBT: While we wait for Christ's return we should not doubt his word, his promises or his power. If we doubt him while we wait, the wait seems longer.

It's like choosing a checkout line at the store then worrying if you chose the right line when the other line starts to move and yours stands still.

We should never doubt that God will "show up" on time. Whatever he has promised, God will deliver; on time. Maybe not our time, but definitely, "On time." Sarah had an anxiety attack as she waited for the promise of a child. She saw others having children and herself getting older, and the wait seemed endless. She decided to change lines and hire a surrogate only to find that she was in the right line in the first place.

Is there an issue you need to be addressed, and you've asked God for an answer? "Wait till he come!"

Is there a river you have found uncrossable, but the tide is rising higher? "Wait till he come!"

When you choose to place a matter in God's hand, don't waste time worrying about your decision. If you are going to worry, then don't give it to God. If you give it to God then don't worry, he will work it out. Wait till he come!

Jesus is worth the wait

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that everybody is waiting on something, but waiting on the Lord is worth the wait.

If we perceive the value of an object to be great, then we will endure wait to achieve it. If we think a college education is essential, then we will plunge into the four or eight years needed because we value the outcome. We know it's worth the wait.

When the last version of Harry Potter was released, the lines formed a day before. Apple's new iPhone release had lines wrapped around buildings. People waited long periods of time because they wanted what was being offered. They thought it was worth the wait.

We wait on the Lord because what he offers us is worth the wait.

He offers us his blessings on our lives, and that's worth the wait. Believers are prepared to wait for him to bless us because they believe his blessing is important enough for the wait. Job said in Job 14:14, "All the days of my appointed time, I will wait until my change comes."

Jesus has promised those who are defeated a final victory. He told John, "He that overcometh shall inherit all things." To achieve that victory, I believe I'll wait till he comes.

Those who are faint of strength are waiting for God's promise to mount up on wings as eagles. To achieve the restoration of my strength, I believe I'll wait till he come.

The discouraged are waiting for encouragement. In his discouragement, David said, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, who made the heaven and the earth." To get my help, I'll wait till he comes.

The confused are waiting for answers! While I'm waiting, I've decided to "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart and lean not unto thine own understandings. Acknowledge him in all thy ways, and he shall direct thy paths." I'll wait till he comes!

The lonely are waiting for comfort. Jesus said, "And lo, I'll be with you always, even unto the end of the earth." I believe I'll wait till the comforter comes.

I don't know about you, but I've decided to wait on the Lord!

I'll wait till he comes because when he comes mountains will be made low!

I'll wait till he comes because when he comes valleys shall be exalted!

I'll wait till he comes because when he comes, crooked places shall be made straight!

I'll wait till he comes because when he comes, rough places shall be made plain!

Hold to his hand, hold to God's unchanging hand!

While you are waiting, keep your faith turned up high and hold to his hand!

While you are waiting, keep watching and praying!

While you are waiting, keep telling the story!

Tell everybody about the goodness of the Lord!

Tell them how he woke me up this morning and clothed me in my right mind!

Tell them how he walks with me and talks with me!

Tell them how he died out on Calvary! But don't stop there..tell them how Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with all power in his hands.

Wait on the Lord ...and everything will be alright!

No. 9698-Inspiration

The righteous are never forsaken

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 23, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread." Psalm 37:25

Introduction

If you are in serious trouble, are there three people in your life that you know, without a doubt, will come to your rescue? Of all of your friends and acquaintances, those you like to hang out with, how many of those are among the three people on your list??

The Muscular Dystrophy Association often stages a fundraiser in which prominent individuals are placed in a make believe jail cell and must call friends to bail them out of jail by making a $100 donation to help fight the disease. There have been some strange responses as people called folks that they thought were their friends with the words, "I'm in jail and I need you to bail me out!" Some instantly responded with offers of help. Others had long pauses before they learned that it was a fundraiser and felt relieved. Even though it is a fundraiser, many learn that had it been a real situation, there are some they thought were real friends who were willing to leave them in jail.?

Everyone likes to belong to a support circle. This is the group that will help first and ask questions later. No one wants to feel that they will be abandoned or left behind in times of trouble. Persons in the military subscribe to the soldier's creed which says in part:

I will never accept defeat.

I will never quit.

I will never leave a fallen comrade.

The assurance that we won't be left alone to face life's struggles is one reason we put our trust in the Lord. Psalm 27:10 says, "When my father and my mother forsake me, Then Jehovah will take me up." He won't leave us behind.

Believers have the consolation of knowing that as long as we live that the Lord will never leave us alone!

There may be times when circumstances make us feel like the Lone Ranger, but we should never despair.We may stand alone fighting a cause, running a home, raising a child, or just living every day, but we are not alone! The voice of the Savior, may not be heard with the ears; but the heart hears its echoes along the corridors of time..”I’ll be with you always, even the end of the world.”

If you feel a little down today, cheer up. You’re not alone!

If you feel a touch of loneliness, cheer up. You may be alone, but as long as the Lord lives there is no reason to be lonesome!

As Christians, we should remember that as long as long as there is time or eternity, the Lord will never forsake the righteous or leave them alone!

Exposition

This text focuses on David as he explains the nature of the relationship of the believer with God.

The overall intent of this psalm is to reassure believers that their faith is safe in God’s hands. The greater context of this passage reminds believers not to be envious of the unrighteous because of apparent successes they see.

Believers are secure with God.

The righteous will never be abandoned. In the course of his entire life, he claims never to have seen the righteous forsaken or their seed begging for bread.

Who are the righteous? In the Old Testament context, the righteous are those who obey God’s commandments. In the New Testament the righteous are those who may have been sinners but have redeemed in spite of their sins and made perfect by the blood of the lamb. The righteous are the saved, the redeemed of the Lord.

The seeds of the righteous are their offspring and descendants. Generally, the Lord blesses as “righteous” family. This is the family that has learned to love and respect God, obey his commandments and to serve him faithfully in the community. From generation to generation, a righteous family has its ups and downs, but it usually stands on its on, supported by the hand of God. It is not a beggar family, but one that trusts God and provides for themselves.

The righteous are being held by and are holding on to the hand of God. Because the righteous are in the hand of God, they will never be utterly destroyed and kept down. Either they climb up with their faith as leverage or he picks them up by the power of his will.

Never forsaken

When a soldier goes into battle he/she knows there is a possibility of injury; yet he knows that regardless of the circumstances his comrades will never leave him behind. Believers approach each day with this same confidence because:

WE HAVE GOD’S PROMISE: God promises every believer that he will not leave them alone. Genesis 28:15 says, “I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest, and will bring thee again into this land; for I will not leave thee, until I have done that which I have spoken to thee of.” This promise was made to Jacob, but it also speaks to every believer. It is personal and clear. “I am with you.” That’s important for every believer to remember because we step into each new day with nothing, but a plan and the promise of God. Depending on His promise some, in the days ahead, will make changes in their career paths, business plans, relationships, family ties, educational pursuits and commitments to the church. God has said to believers like us so many times in the past, “I am with you.” In Isaiah 41:10 He said “fear you not; for I am with you; be not dismayed; for I am your God; I will strengthen you; yea; I will help you; yea; I will uphold you with the right hand of My righteousness.”

That’s a big promise, but David said, I have been young, but now am old but I’ve never seen go back on his promise to be with a righteous family. The righteous family walks by faith that the same God that was with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob will be with us as well. Moses stood before Pharaoh, but he did not stand alone. When he was faced with the Red Sea, he did not stand alone. By faith Joshua crossed over the Jordan, based solely on the promise of God. Therefore, we as believers should go forth confident that our God will not abandon us when the going gets tough as the months roll by.

GOD PROVIDES FOR STRONG FAMILIES: David said in all of his life he had never seen the offspring of strong righteous families “begging bread.” On the surface, that appears to mean that the children of the righteous will never be in need. On the contrary, it means thatGodly families teach their family members a set of biblical ethics “Work, save, invest, trust and obey.” These principles are practiced in godly families and passed on from one generation to the next. To the extent that a family works, saves for the future, makes wise investments and trusts God for increase” that family will never beg bread. Children who practice these principles will never beg bread and neither will their children. We have seen the children of some godly parents begging but was it because God abandoned them or because they chose not to: work, save, invest, trust and obey God.” The family that lives by this principle will pass on to each succeeding generation a rule of faith that will ensure that, if followed, their seed will never beg for bread.

We believed that so much in our community that families resisted charity and would not allow their children to eat dinner at the home of a friend. When free school lunches began in public schools, many carried their lunches in lunch boxes and paper bags rather than a free lunch.

From generation to generation, the family that trusts God learns to trust him to make a way if they: “Work, save, invest, trust and obey.”

In times of trouble and despair, those who know God best have certain assurances that should be a comfort to us.

God will never abandon those who are faithful to Him. Though it is tempting to do so, those who remain faithful to God will find that God is always with them. As David wrote in Psalm 46:7, “The Lord of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our refuge.”

THE EYES OF THE LORD ARE ON THE RIGHTEOUS: Psalm 121 says “He that keepeth Israel neither slumbers or sleeps.” In Psalm (Psalms 34:15,17-19), it says “the eyes of the Lord are upon the righteous, and His ears are open to their cry. 17-19. The promise of God is that he will never leave or forsake the righteous. Like the soldier in battle, he does not promise that bullets will not be fired our way or that there will be no landmines. He does not even promise that we will not be wounded. He promises never to let you go into battle alone; and if wounded, never to leave you alone.

Every believer is in a battle against evil every day. Satan attacks our finances, our health and even the peace and serenity of our homes. We have the assurance that we are not fighting this battle alone. That's why the songwriter said, "Blessed assurance Jesus is mine, oh what a foretaste of glory divine. Heir of salvation, purchase of God. Born of his Spirit and washed in his blood." Buoyed by this assurance the old warriors sang, "I am on the battlefield for my Lord. And I promised him that I, would serve him till I die."

The righteous cry, and the Lord hears and delivers us out of all our troubles. If it appears that God has forsakened us, be of good cheer, the eyes of the Lord are upon us.

God is able

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember, the despite the difficulties of the moment, we can make it through if we hold to God's unchanging hand.

In the two verses preceding this text Psalm 37:23-24, the word says, "The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord and he delighteth in his way. Though he fall he shall not be utterly cast down for the Lord upholdeth him with his hand."

In no uncertain terms that says, "I am with thee" and "I won't forsake thee" even when you fall upon hard times.

If you are like most believers, there are times when you find yourself slipping down the mountain of life and I have to cry out, "Lord, hold my hand, while I run this race. I don't want to run this race alone!"

Lord, hold my hand, when I can't see my way!

Lord, hold my hand, when I can't turn to the right or the left!

Lord, hold my hand, when I'm confused and don't know what to do!

Lord, hold my hand, when I'm weak and have run out of strength!

Lord, hold my hand, when I have fallen and can't get on my feet!

Lord, hold my hand because I'm crying out "Father I stretch my hands to thee, no other help I know. If thou withdraw thyself from me, whither shall I go."

Just when I'm about to give up, I hear the voice of the Savior say, "I will never leave you alone."

Because I'm never alone:

—There is no CROSS that I won't be able to bear;

—There is no MOUNTAIN that I won't be able to climb!

—There is no ENEMY that I won't be able to defeat;

—There is no BATTLE I won't be able to endure!

—There is no DARKNESS that can keep me from seeing the light!

I don't know about you, but I've seen many things in my life, but I've never seen the righteous forsaken!

I have seen Janet Jackson's wardrobe malfunction on National TV, but I've never see the righteous forsaken!

I have seen Dr. Dre rise Straight of Compton and become a millionaire, but I've never seen the righteous forsaken.

I've seen Michael Jordan glide through the air from the three Point Line, but I've never seen the righteous forsaken!

I've seen Michael Jackson do the Moonwalk and James Brown do the Camel Walk, but I've never seen the righteous forsaken!

I've seen Muhammad Ali knock out George Forman and watched Foreman knockout millions selling hamburger grills, but I've never seen the righteous forsaken!

I have seen Tiger Woods' career go down and climb right back up. I've seen Angela Bassett play Tina Turner better than Tina Turner, but I've never seen the righteous forsaken.

I have seen Mike Tyson bite Evander Holyfield's ear. I've seen Gabby Douglass win an Olympic Gold medal.

I've seen two women become Secretary of State and A black man become President of the United States, but I've never seen the righteous forsaken!

I've seen Bruce Jenner become Kaitlyn Jenner, but I've never seen the righteous forsaken.

It doesn't mean we will always win, but it does mean that we will never be alone!

…We may be beaten, but we will never be forsaken!

…We may be oppressed, but we will never be forsaken!

…We may be imprisoned, but we will never be forsaken!

…We may be rejected, but we will never be forsaken!

…We may be despised, but we will never be forsaken!

…We may be hungry, but we will never be forsaken!

…We may be poor, but we will never be forsaken!

…We may be single, but we will never be forsaken!

…We may be sick, but we will never be forsaken!

…We may be hated, but we will never be forsaken!

…We may be having a hard time with our children, but we will never be forsaken!

Hanging on Calvary, Jesus, Mary's baby! Cried out "Why has thou forsaken me?" He received an immediate answer from heaven! The sky turned dark. The thunder began to roll! The lightning began to flash!

A centurion cried, "Surely, he must be the son of God."

The buried him in a borrowed tomb, but Early Sunday morning arose from the grave with all power in his hand!"

"No never alone! He promised never to leave me! Never to leave me alone!

No.9699-Inspiration

But Simon's wife's Mother lay sick

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 30, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "But Simon's wife's mother lay sick of a fever, and anon they tell him of her. And he came and took her by the hand, and lifted her up, and immediately the fever left her, and she ministered unto them." Mark 1:30-31

Introduction

We know God answers prayers, but does it ever seem that he takes too long? We live in an instant world that expects immediate responses. We push a button and something happens. We click a mouse and something happens. We swipe a card, and something happens. We press enter on a screen and something happens! It's no wonder then that when we pray to God for help and assistance we expect an immediate answer. It won't be long before we start asking God, "What's taking you so long?" Or When God when?

When God, When? When will there be relief for my situation? That's what we ask when we've wrestled with crises so long that all of our energy and drive has been zapped!

When God, when? When will my family enjoy some of the great blessings that I see others enjoy?

When God, when? When will I receive the justice and mercy and I deserve, and you have promised?

When God, when? When will the errors and mistakes of my past stop haunting me?

When God when? When will I ever know the truth although I'm surrounded by liars, backstabbers, and cheats.

When God, when?

We have learned that God cannot be hurried. He proceeds by his own timetable and responds in kind. However, we have his assurance that he will address our needs, and he will not be late. The words of Habbakuk 2:3 reassure us, "But these things I plan won't happen right away. Slowly, steadily, surely, the time approaches when the vision will be fulfilled. If it seems slow, do not despair, for these things will surely come to pass.

Just be patient! They will not be overdue a single day!)

By his divine will, God responds to our need at exactly the right time! We don't know when, and really it's not our job is not to figure out when, but to make up your mind that we will live faithfully and wait patiently until he shows up. Every day we will trust God and keep our eyes focused on Him.

"When" is just one of the five things we don't know about God's response. They are the five W's of faith. We don't know "who" he will use to bless us. We don't know "what" situation he will twist to help us. We don't know "where" we will be at the time he chooses to respond. We don't know "when" God will respond. "We will never know "why" he chooses to respond to us using his own mysterious method and manner.

Since we study the Bible and understand these five things about God, we trust that he will put people and situations in our lives that will accomplish his will for us. When it happens, it happens! The old song still remains true, "He's an on time God, yes he is. He may not come when you want him, but he'll be there right on time."

As Christians, we should resolve to keep the faith because we know help is on the way. We don't know when and we don't know how, but we know that our God will make a way.

Exposition

This text focuses on an instance where Jesus responds to the condition of sick women but seems to take his time doing so.

The text begins with the word, "But." English scholars debate as to whether it is proper to use the word "but" at the beginning of a sentence. Many teach that instead, "however" should be used. However, is usually used at the beginning of the sentence contrasting or emphasizing the preceding events to something else. Using "but" at the beginning of a sentence serves to connect rather than emphasize all that precedes to something that follows.

"But" is a conjunction. It connects something. Used at the beginning of this text it seems to be connecting all of the previous events cited to the one lone circumstance that follows.

This is emphasized even further when it is noted that except for verses 14,16 and 24 every verse beginning with verse nine (9) begins with a conjunction. It indicates that there is a connection between them.

Since the text begins with "But" Simon's wife's mother lay sick" if we backtrack to verse 9 the "but" seems to contrast each "and" with "But Simon's wife's mother lay sick."

9. And Jesus was baptized in the Jordan, but Simon's wife's mother lay sick.

13.And Jesus was tempted in the wilderness, but Simon's wife's mother lay sick.

14.And John was put in prison, but Simon's wife's mother lay sick.

17.And Jesus calls Simon and Andrew to be fishers of men, but Simon's wife's mother lay sick.

21.And he taught at the Synagogue in Capernaum, but Simon's wife's mother lay sick.

26.And a demon came out of a possessed, but Simon's wife's mother lay sick.

29.And Jesus enters the house of Simon and Andrew, but Simon's wife lay sick.

The entire chapter seems to track the trail of God's movements leading from the beginning of his ministry to eventually reaching out to thousands of people who were in need of blessings, healings and restoration.

The Ands and the Buts of the chapter seem to indicate that one event was connected to the other.

All of the events served to promote the fulfillment of the will of God.

All things are connected

Jesus came to this world to promote the kingdom of God. For three years, he moved among the people teaching, touching and transforming people in ways designed to expand the kingdom of God. However, he did nothing before its time or out of order. Each act was carefully connected to another act that eventually fulfilled his purpose. With that knowledge we should consider:

HE KNOWS WHO AND WHERE WE ARE: Simon's wife's mother was not named, in this text; yet the progression of the passage shows that Jesus was making his way to her. He knew where she was and who she was although her name was not called. There are many people who encountered Jesus in the Bible who were nameless, most notably the "Woman at the Well" who ran shouting, "Come see a man." A woman with an issue of blood for 12 years touched the hem of his garment. A man who sat by the pool water to be healed for 38 years was nameless, too. All of these were nameless, but Jesus knew who they were and where they were.

Today, we should note that we don't need a "famous" name to get God's attention. We are never a nameless person in the crowd with no identity with God; he knows who we are and where we are. We don't need to be an important leader of the church or a "big wheel;" we are all important in his sight. We may live in the suburbs or in the city, in mansions or shacks; God knows who we are and where we are. He knows our condition and even while we are praying; help is on the way. He knows exactly what we need, and he knows where you are! He keeps his eye on you. No wonder the song writes: "We are our heavenly father's children and knows just how much we can bear. Just ask for strength and keep on toiling tho the teardrops fall. You have the joy of this assurance: the heavenly Father will always answer prayer, and he knows just how much you can bear!"

HE WON'T PASS YOU BY: Simon's wife's mother lay sick. The text gave no indication how long she had been sick, but while she was sick, she was impervious to what was going on around her. Jesus taught in the synagogues, healing the sick and curing hundreds of people, but she did not know about any of that. Her focus was on one thing; she was sick. When Jesus reached Simon's house, he did not pass her by. Today, our faith should speak loudly to our situation: "My God will not pass me by." He will respond to my need. When God stops by it means blessings are on the way.

When the Lord passes by, we become more determined to:

—Bear our burdens, no matter how heavy they may become!

—Face our enemies, no matter how fierce they fight against us!

—Resist temptations, no matter how enticing they may be!

—Conquer our fears no matter how overwhelming they may become!

—Defeat our doubts no matter how stubborn they may be.

No wonder the songwriter declared, "Pass me not oh gentle Savior. Hear my humble cry. While on others Thou art calling, do not pass me by!"

While on others you are showering blessings, do not pass me by!

While on others you are granting healings for sick bodies, do not pass me by!

Jesus healed many people and performed many miracles, but Simon's wife's mother lay sick, and he did not pass her by.

HE LIFTED HER UP: When Jesus visited Simon's house, he found Simon's wife's mother. Verse 31 says, And he came and took her by the hand and lifted her up. That must have been a joyous moment. She was bedridden with fever, and unable to serve, but the Savior lifted her up. If God lifted up a nameless woman and reversed her condition, that should reaffirm our faith that God can do the same for us as well. He lifted her up. He changed her situation. He put her back on her feet again. If we have learned anything about the Lord over the years, it is that he lifts us up, picks us up and turns us around. No matter how low we have fallen, he gives us another chance. The songwriter is correct when he says, "We fall down, but we get up!" We are able to do so because Christ lifts the fallen spirit within us and stands us up again.

When the demonic man fell at Jesus' feet after spending years wandering among the tombs, he was told to rise. When the lame man who had not walked for 38 years met the Lord beside the pool, he was told to rise, "Take thy bed and walk."

No matter how dark our situation may seem, the God we serve is able to lift us up, turn us around and plant our feet on Solid ground!

He's coming

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that while we labor with our situation, our help is on the way.

While Simon's wife's mother lay sick, she did not know it, but her help was on the way.

While Simon's wife's mother lay sick, those who attended her did all that they knew, but her help was on the way.

Jesus traveled from one place to another, but he was making his way to one special house because Simon's wife's mother lay sick.

Every believer should take courage in this text because it reaffirms our faith that our God is making his way to our situation.

Those who are frustrated because it appears that your blessing never seems to come, be assured that just as Jesus made his way to the house of Simon and lifted up a nameless woman in faith, that he is able to do the same for you.

The record bears testimony that God is able!

He's able to take our:

—Fears and turn them into faith; SADNESS and turn it into gladness!

—WEAKNESS and turn it into strength; RESERVATIONS and turn them into confirmations!

—FAILURES and turn them into successes; LOSSES and turn them into gains!

Down in Bethlehem, he showed that he was able!

A baby was born in a manger!

Down in Galilee, he proved that he was able. The sick were healed, and the blind were given their sight.

Because he is able, he gives us:

-STRENGTH when our burdens become heavy.

-ASSURANCE when everything seems to go wrong.

-INSPIRATION when difficulties arise.

-COMFORT when disaster strikes.

Because he's able, he stops by every now and then and gives us his favor.

Because of His favor we are able to:

-Keep on going, when our road gets rough.

-Keep on singing, even though our pain becomes intense.

-Keep on working, even when our body gets weary.

I'm glad that He is a wonder-working God!

I'm glad that He is a favor giving God!

I'm glad that He is a soul-saving God!

I'm glad that one day He saw my situation and stopped by!

One day, down in Jerusalem, he stopped by a place called Calvary and proved that he was able!

In Jerusalem, he paid the price for our salvation!

In Simon's house, he raised up Simon's wife's mother, but on Calvary he was raised up for our salvation!

In Simon's house, he stopped by because Simon's wife's mother cried out in pain, but on Calvary, he cried out, "Father, why hast thou forsaken me!"

In Simon's house, he stopped by and took Simon's wife's mother's hand in his hand, but on Calvary, he called out, "Father, into thy hand I commend my spirit."

On Calvary, Jesus, Mary's baby!

On Calvary, Jesus, the Lion of Judah!

On Calvary, he died on that old rugged cross,

But, early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave!

Hang on saints; your help is on the way!

9700-Inspiration

Too Pooped to Pop

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

September 6, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "For to me to live is Christ and to die is gain." Philippians 1:21

Introduction

Do you ever feel as if your get up and go has got up and gone? When that happens, you are completely drained! Your energy is zapped! Your brain is tired! Your bones ache! Your eyes won't stay open, and your bed is screaming, "Come to me! Come to me!"

When that feeling came to you what kind of tired did you feel? A frustrated tired? An encouraged tired? A satisfied tired?

A frustrated tired is when you seem to be doing all that you can, but nothing is succeeding. Every door is closing, no one is helping, and no progress is being made. It's the frustration that one feels after spending a day, a week or a lifetime, trying to accomplish a task and getting no where. It's when we hear the phrase, "I'm just sick and tired of being sick and tired."

An encouraged tire is when you haven't completed your task, but received some encouraging signs. You didn't make a sale, but there were several callbacks with promise. You didn't land the job, but a few prospects showed an interest. You came home tired, exhausted and drained, but you were encouraged because it wasn't a completely lost day.

A satisfied tired is the kind of tired you feel when you are completely drained. Every bone in your body hurts, but you accomplished your goal. It's the kind of tired that a mom feels after planning a successful birthday party for a child: the house is a mess, the trash is over running, the dishes are piled high, but it was worth it all to see the joy on the child's face. It's the kind of tired that a football player feels after playing a great game, win or lose. He's completely exhausted, but he'd do it all over again! That's when you come home, sit in a tub of hot bubbles or stand in the shower and say the words to that old song, "I may not have done all that I wanted to do, but Lord it's been a mighty good day."

When you labor in the kingdom of God, what kind of tired do you feel? A frustrated tired because everything you do seems to be a waste? An encouraged tired because you seem to be improving? A satisfied tired because you know you are providing a labor of love that God approves?

There are millions who labor in the kingdom every day. They pour themselves out to the point of exhaustion trying to build the kingdom. They reach out to those who are in need, minister to those in prisons, teach those who want to learn, encouraged the weak, pray for those who are lost and so much more. At the end of the day, they look back on their labor and say in their hearts, "I'm tired, but it was worth it all."

When you have poured yourself into the service of the kingdom as church workers: ushering, preparing, ministering, singing, visiting, helping, decorating, repairing, driving, assisting and organizing to the point that you are literally drained with nothing else to give; that's when you can say, "I'm too pooped to pop."

As Christians, we labor in the kingdom of God everyday. Sometimes what we do taxes our bodies and spirits. However, we get satisfaction from knowing that because God is pleased, our labor is not in vain.

Exposition

The text focuses on Paul as he explained his desire that his life work glorify God.

At the close of his life, Paul reflects on his service to the kingdom with satisfaction. His work was an honorable one. He expanded the church to the known world, and established congregations all over the world in his three missionary journeys. His was an exhausting experience. He was often tired, frustrated, beaten, talked about, jailed and threatened; yet he says it was all worth while because God was glorified.

In Philippians 1:20 he said his goal is that "Christ should be magnified." In the text, he said the whole goal of his life was to glorify Christ through his words and deeds. His deeds were many, so were his challenges, but it was his conclusion that if he poured himself out for the glory of God, then he actually gained, despite his sacrifices.

He expanded the idea of laboring in the kingdom beyond just a day, but to a whole lifetime. He said that for him living meant exalting Christ, building the kingdom and draining himself in the process. By giving all he had to this cause he considers himself having gained.

In verse 22, he described the works of his body as the "fruit of his labor."

After the Damascus Road, he spent all of his life trying to build the kingdom. He literally worked himself to death. What was his response? For me to live is Christ and to die is gain. In other words, "I live to glorify Christ to build his kingdom, and if I give all I have and work myself to death trying to do it, then I have gained."

Paul said he worked until he was too pooped to pop, but it was all good.

The rewards of labor

There are millions who work in the kingdom. They work for three reasons:

IT IS GODLY TO LABOR: Saints in work in kingdom building because it is expected by God. The word of God commands believers to work in the church as well in the general community. Those who don't work should not respect to share in any rewards. 2 Thessalonians 3:10 says, "For even when we were with you, this we commanded you, that if any would not work, neither should he eat." The word "labor" or kopos kop'-os is found 20 times in the New Testament and refers not so much to the hard work, but the weariness which accompanies it. In its most primitive form, it means trouble or intense labor united with trouble and toil. It is sacrificial service; working until there is nothing else you can do. Those who work to build the kingdom in this way are like Paul; they do what they do for the love of the kingdom. Their labor, sacrifice and toil is described in 1 Thessalonians 1:3 as a "Labor of Love." We should be willing to give our time and energy to the service of the Lord so that we can do a good job in his service.

We work in the church and volunteer our time and service to help the community because we know God expects us to work and help glorify him through our service.

THERE IS MUCH WORK TO BE DONE: We labor in the kingdom because there is much work to be done. Matthew 9:37 says, "The harvest is truly great, but the laborers are few." The mission of the church is to save the lost, sustain the saved and to expand the kingdom of God. Every believer has a job to do, but everyone doesn't have the same job. If each believer actually performed his job, the kingdom would be closer to reality.

In January 2009 a bunch of birds caused a plane's engine to fail, forcing the pilot to land the plane into the Hudson river. All 155 people on board survived because the pilot did his job well President Barack Obama spoke with the California pilot, who told him, "Me and my crew, we were just doing our job."

"And it made me think, if everybody did their job whatever that job was as well as that pilot did his job, we'd be in pretty good shape, Obama said.

What if we all did our jobs for the kingdom of God to the best of our abilities? Wouldn't that be something?

What is the work that needs to be done? The church must speak to the social dilemmas of our times. We must reach out to an entire generation of our men who are locked away in prisons. We must speak to the plethora of social ills that are destroying our families, under-educating our children, and eating away at the souls of our community. We must lift up the cross and the gospel of salvation through Christ. Whether individually or in association with others, the work must be done.

Ecclesiastes 9:10 says, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest."

Let's work while it is day because when night comes, no one can work.

LABORERS SHALL BE REWARDED: Every person's work will be inspected. Those who labor well will be rewarded. Every believer should have the joy of knowing that God is aware of our labor. He understands the burden that service in the kingdom brings and is sensitive to our needs.

There are many saints who have remained faithful to the cause because they have been standing on the promises of God. He has promised to reward our faith. The word of God tells us in Revelation 21:7 "He that overcometh shall inherit all things, and I will be his God, and he shall be my son." Revelation 2:26 says "And he that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations:" We may not know when it's coming, but we know what the end shall be!

Rev 3:5 says He that overcometh.... shall be clothed in white raiment; and... I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels.

We don't give up, even though the road may be rough sometimes, because the God we serve has promised us everlasting life!

The words of a song by Rev. Willie Morganfield are true, "Serving the Lord will payoff after while. Just keep working every day. Whatever is right, God said he would pay. Serving the Lord does pay off after while."

When you are too pooped to pop, God remembers

Finally, brothers and sisters, when we have labored so much that we are too pooped to pop, God will remember us and give us strength.

Paul told the Philippians that he had emptied himself into the service of the kingdom for one purpose only, and that was to glorify God.

His words were an encouragement to those who might reach the end of a day and feel that their labor is in vain.

When we work for the Lord, our work is never in vain.

Even though at times it may appear meaningless, we are encouraged to know that even the smallest jobs in the church are important and valuable to kingdom building.

God's work is done every time we pray for another person; when we call someone on the phone or send a note of encouragement.

It's the labor of the Lord when we teach a child, teen, or other adults; when we paint the wall in a church building or change a light bulb in the hallway, or manage the sound system, play an instrument or sing, or work on a committee, or care for the offerings that are brought.

When we have served until we are too pooped to pop, God remembers.

If we throw ourselves into kingdom work of promoting God's kingdom, we gain; even if financially, socially, or physically, we are too pooped to pop!

God will remember the work of every believer.

When we are too pooped to pop, God will remember our sacrifices and the pain.

When we are too pooped to pop, he will remember our difficult times and stormy seasons.

When we are too pooped to pop, he will remember every good deed.

When God remembers our works, he will provide us with his grace and favor!

Despite the fact that we may be too pooped to pop, God remembers our labor of love and transforms our:

—BURDENS into blessings; CARES into comforts

—DEFEATS into delights; HEARTACHES into hallelujahs!

—PROBLEMS into praises; HOUSES into homes;

—SORROWS into songs; SADNESS into gladness.

Because we labor in love, we go into battle knowing that before the battle begins the victory is won!

Because we labor in love, we are assured that no matter how tough the enemy, we will be the victors!

Because we labor in love, we are not stopped by the tears we encounter because we know weeping might endure for a night, but joy comes in the morning!

When we labor in love the Lord turns our:

—SADNESS into GLADNESS;

—WEAKNESS into strength;

—DEFEAT into victory!

When we are too pooped to pop, he will remember and give each believer something that money can't buy;

He will give us the "joy of the Lord."

What is the joy of the Lord?

The Joy of the Lord is the satisfaction of knowing that our little part helps to build the kingdom of the Lord.

We may be too pooped to pop, but we should continue working in the kingdom, despite our aching feet and tired bones!

We may be too pooped to pop, but we should work because the lonely need to hear words of comfort!

We may be too pooped to pop, but we should work because the lost need to be found!

We may be too pooped to pop, but we should work because the fallen need to rise again!

We may be too pooped to pop, but we should work because the world needs to see an army of people who believe that storms may rise and winds may blow, but God is still on the throne!

We may be too pooped to pop, but we need to keep telling the world about the best labor of love the world has ever seen!

Tell them about a man who loved us so much that He carried our burdens on an old rugged cross!

Tell them how he labored on the cross from the sixth to the ninth hour!

Tell them how he cried out, "Father forgive them for they know not what they do!"

Tell them how he died and was buried in a borrowed tomb!

But, Early Sunday morning he arose with all power in his hand!

You may be too pooped to pop, but keep on serving because God knows, just how much you can bear!

No. 9701-Grandparents

Give your Granny a standing ovation

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

September 13, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "Rise in the presence of the aged, show respect for the elderly and revere your God." Leviticus 19:32

Introduction

How do you show respect for special people? In our society respect is shown in various ways, some of which are becoming archaic. It is customary in Western civilization to stand when a person of esteem enters a room or in the presence of a symbol of national importance such as the flag. When the President of United States enters a room, he will be announced, "Ladies and Gentlemen, the President of the United States." Everyone in the rooms stands to honor the position, even if they do not care about the policies of the man.

It is customary to stand when a bride enters the room during a marriage ceremony to show respect and honor for the institution of marriage. Oddly, no one stands when the groom walks in, only the bride.

When a visiting dignitary enters a room, we stand. Soldiers stand and snap to attention when a high ranking officer such as a general enters a room. It shows respect for his position.

We stand for the Pledge of Allegiance, National Anthem, and for public prayers.

Believe it or not, there was a time when men stood whenever a lady entered a room. If she sat at a table and rose to excuse herself every man in the room would stand as a show of respect for her gender as the mother of our children.

There was also a time when our elderly were held in high respect as well; whenever an elder of the family or community entered a room all stood in respect. Those who stood did so out of respect for their experience, service, and legacy. No one would dare sit until the elders took their seats.

Today, grandparents and the elderly are respected, but not to the point of standing when they enter a room. However, we are still cautious of our language in the presence of godly grandparents. We are just as careful about the types of things we discuss in their presence, out of respect. Out of respect, most still give the last word about a family decision to the family elders, out of respect. Very few will disrespect a grandparent who has proven to be a man or woman of God.

The Bible tells us that we are to rise in the presence of the aged. We are to show respect. We've become much more informal in our relationships in modern times; perhaps we should revisit why our respect for our elders has diminished.

The challenge for every parent is to live in such a way that when you become a grandparent that your love, care, concern and wisdom commands rather than demands the respect of your family.

The late Erma Bombeck gave us many reasons we should respect our grandparents. She said:

—Grandparents can always be counted upon to buy anything you're selling from all-purpose greeting cards to peanut brittle, from flower seeds to cookies, from transparent tape to ten chances on a pony.

A grandparent buys you gifts your mother says you don't need.

A grandparent pretends he does not know who you are on Halloween.

A grandparent is the only babysitter your parents didn't have to pay.

A grandparent will believe you can read even when you have the book upside down.

As Christians, we are grateful to have elderly men and women among us who know the Lord and give him their best. Our hearts rise when we see them walk in a room. We listen intently to their words, and if we differ with them, we carefully choose our words. Our grandparents are our connection to our family and God, and for that, we owe them our respect.

Exposition

The text focuses on a biblical charge to everyone to honor the elders of the family, church, and community.

Leviticus is a book of Old Testament laws for the priests and the people. Many of these laws have already been stated earlier in Scripture. But their repetition simply emphasizes their importance. While some of these laws are obviously only for the Israelites in that particular dispensation, the principles in the laws are universal in their application, and we today can read and study these laws with much profit.

Laws for the People. Both the reason for the laws and the record of the laws is given here. •Reason for the laws. "Ye shall be holy; for I the Lord your God am holy" (19:2) states the reason. This reason is very important. Hence, it is stated some 17 times more throughout chapters 19 and 20 in the abbreviated form of "I am the Lord your God" or simply "I am the Lord."

The laws recorded in these two chapters cover many subjects. Included subjects are: respect for parents, keeping the Sabbath, idolatry, free will offerings, eating offerings, consideration for the poor in harvest, stealing, profanity, treatment of the handicapped, honest judgment and weights and measures, talebearing, loving others, forbidden mixtures, not eating blood, tattoos, prostitution, respect for elders, treatment of strangers, witches, and a list of sex sins.

Matthew Henry notes that verse 32 is a charge to young people to show respect to the aged: Thou shall rise up before the hoary head, v. 32. Age is honorable, and he that is the Ancient of days requires that honor be paid to it. The hoary head is a crown of glory. Those whom God has honoured with the common blessing of long life we ought to honor with the distinguishing expressions of civility; and those who in age are wise and good are worthy of double honor: more respect is owing to such old men than merely to rise up before them; their credit and comfort must be carefully consulted, their experience and observations appreciated, and their counsels asked and hearkened to.

The text summarizes an important truth: We should give honor to those to whom honor is due. It is a sign of disrespect and disorder in the land when children misbehave proudly in the presence of the elderly.

The elderly are offered the front or preferred seats in any assembly and are often afforded liberties of speech in counsels. It is an honor. It becomes the elderly to receive these honors, and the younger to give them.

Why we should respect our Grandparents

There are many reasons we should respect our grandparents, among them are:

BECAUSE WE LEARN FROM THEM: What do grandchildren learn from godly grandparents? They learn to be patient, wise, benevolent and grateful because that's the nature of godly grandparents.

Seniors whose children and grandchildren have not mastered these values still have work to do. Like Joshua, today's grandparents are reminded that there is still much land to possess.

A part of a grandparent's task is to share his/her life experiences with their grandchildren. Although we live in the multicultural age of Obama where technology has changed the way we communicate, and cultural diversity has changed the way we relate; the contrast of the experiences of grandparents with those of their grandchildren are meaningful and important.

In sharing their experiences, some grandchildren might be surprised to learn that Granny and Gramps were once young. They were not born then suddenly became grandparents.

Many grandchildren are surprised to learn that grandma and grandpa are not old fixtures from the past stuck in a corner, but they seem to be so much fun, why? Because they have learned how to live, after spending a lifetime learning how to make a living.

Sometimes that revelation is amazing. Consider the nine-year-old that sat on the swing with her grandmother and looked at a copy of her driver's license. "That's not a very good picture of you," said the granddaughter, it makes you look old. The daughter looked further and said, "Oh grandmother, they have your weight on here, you are too heavy." She said, "You've been living at the same address for a long time." Then the granddaughter looked down a little further, and she said, "Grandmother you are going to have to improve. You made an "F" in sex."

BECAUSE THEY KEEP US FROM PANICKING: There are times when life hits us hard and feel that we are down for the count. That's when we panic. Panic situations may involve the disability of a loved one, fire, an automobile accident or death in the family. If our fear of the unknown is greater than our faith...we are likely to panic. We are less likely to panic when we remember that as long as God is with us, we will make it through.

That's the calming effect that godly grandparents have on their children and grandchildren; they seem to know that God will take care of things. Those who have experienced many winters, know that the snow on the ground won't last, that springtime will come. Likewise, those who have seen many summers fade into fall, also know to prepare for chilly days ahead. Grandparents keep us from panicking because they know that "this too shall pass."

Grandparents help us to keep calm in storms and not lose faith in God. That's what happened to the disciples when they were aboard a ship and a storm developed. They panicked until someone remembered that Jesus was on board. Jesus came to the deck, unmoved by the storm and said, "Peace be still."

Our fear sees the worse that can happen. However, our faith-filled grandparents know the best that can happen.

Our godly grandparents remind us that as long as God is with us, he will make a way.

BECAUSE THEY REMIND US TO WALK THE GODLY PATH: Our Grandparents help us to stay focused and true to our life mission.

Sometimes, more than others, our grandparents seem to revel in our success and support us. That unwavering support also forces us to listen when they warn us of the dangers of moving off the godly path. Often we listen respectfully and ignore their advice, but what they said to us lingers in our mind. Sometimes we are embarrassed and ashamed later that we did not heed their warnings or consider the wisdom of their thinking.

We respect our grandparents because they are our moral compasses. When we have gone too far, we know it know it when Grandpa doesn't bless it! When we have made a life choice that will not be pleasing to God we know it when grandma embraces us, but rejects our choice.

We respect our grandparents because they have shown us how to walk the godly path. They have fashioned programs to discipline us, educate us, train our boys, groom our girls and protect our homes. Their repeated maxim to us still resonates: There are only two paths in life: our path and God's path.

We respect our grandparents because they have devoted their lives to helping us walk the Godly path.

Because they are praying for us

Finally, brothers and sisters we should praise godly grandparents because, even when we can't see it, we know that they are praying for us and putting us in the hands of the Lord.

Moses commanded that we should rise in the presence of the elders and respect them. We should respect the godly elderly because they connect us with God.

Even today our hearts should rise up in the presence of the elderly.

We should respect them because even in their golden years they are still mothers and fathers instead of grandparents. Often it is the grandparent that is providing food, clothing and shelter. It is the grandparent that is providing the family guidance while some parents struggle to find their way. We should rise up before them because even though their steps are slowing, they are still giving their best for their families.

Our hearts should rise up out of respect for those who keep families together by sheer faith alone!

Our hearts should rise up out of reverence for those who never gave up hope for us, even though the road was rough, and the going was tough.

Our hearts should rise in prayer for those who never stopped praying for us, even when we were not praying for ourselves.

Rise up, O' Israel and hear the words of thy elders and heed them!

Rise up, O' Israel and sing the song of hope taught to you on your grandmother's knee: "The Lord will make a way somehow!"

Rise up, O' Israel and speak the words of encouragement you heard your grandmother say, "I have been young, and now I am old, but I have never seen the righteous forsaken, or his seed begging bread!"

Rise up, O' Israel and walk the path of your elders who chanted "I want Jesus to walk with me. While I'm on this tedious journey, Lord, I want Jesus to walk with me."

I'm reminded of the old mother who was always so confident that the Lord would make a way. The young women of the neighborhood asked her one day, "Tell us mother, why are you so confident?" The old lady said, "When I was a girl, my mother taught me to ride my bicycle, and she ran beside me. I could feel her hand holding me as I paddled along. One day, I rode a long distance. When I stopped, I realized that mama wasn't beside me. I asked mama, how was it that she was not there, but I still felt her hand. She told me that she realized that as long as she ran beside me and held me up, that I'd never learn for myself. She said she stopped running that day and put me in the Lord's hand. She said the hand I felt that day, wasn't her hand, but it was God's hand guiding me. She had put me in God's hands."

Every Godly grandparent says, "I won't always be there with you child, but if you feel like you're going to fall, let the Lord hold you up!"

—If you feel like you're going to cry, let the Lord wipe your tears away!

—If you feel like you need someone to talk to, take it to the Lord in prayer!

—The world may knock you down, God will pick you up!

—The world may strike you out, but God will give you a home run!

—The world may think you are a loser, but God will make you a winner!

Come what may, from day today, hold to God's unchanging hand!

The same hands that healed the sick and raised the dead!

The same hands that fed five thousand with two little fishes and five loaves of bread!

The same hands that were nailed to an old rugged cross!

He died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave!

When you've done all you know how to do, put it in God's hands, He will work it out!

No. 9702-Anniversary

The Pastor's Faith Walk

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 2015

SCRIPTURE: But without faith it is impossible to please Him: for he that cometh to God must believe that He is, and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him. Hebrews 11:6

Introduction

How important to the church is the walk of its pastor? Is it important that he walks the path toward Godliness, holiness and heaven? The answer is "Yes" it is important! It is important to his own salvation and to those who follow him.

For the church, it is important that the pastor can walk the walk, even more than he can talk the talk. When he walks the walk, he makes it easy for others to follow him. Consider the little boy who went hunting with his father in the woods. The boy felt comfortable and safe with his father and never once doubted and worried about the fact that each time they went hunting they went further into the woods; so far that all directions were often lost as one tree appeared to look like another. One day, the boy was separated from his father. His heart leaped in panic as he realized that he had strayed away and was obviously lost. Then it dawned on him to look for his father's footprint in the soft muddy terrain. He had no idea where he was, but he kept his eye on his father's footprint. One step at a time he followed the trail is father walked and soon he came within shouting distance and returned home safely. Asked how he found his way back, the boy said he knew his father knew the way home, "so I just followed the walk he walked."

That's the way many of us feel about the pilgrimage of this pastor. For all of these years, he has led this congregation by talking the talk in Bible lessons and sermons, but he has also effectively taught us by walking the faith walk. There is nothing more impressive than seeing a sermon preached in front of your lives every day in the walk of a man who lives by faith.

The Christian life is one that is challenging and rewarding. Those who live for Christ have reached the conclusion that there is nothing they would trade for the Christian life experience. Walking in the Spirit of God is inspirational. It is rejuvenating! The members of this congregation are rejuvenated when we see how our pastor, a man of meager means, reared his children and shepherded his family through its own storms and challenges while helping all of us at the same time.

For many in this congregation, he is the only pastor they have ever known. His words, deeds, and sayings are etched in their collective mind. His faith has infected the entire membership. They have all been inspired to live their lives according to the will of God, using him as their guide and the Word of God as their authority.

Anniversaries are milestones. They are points along the way where we pause to evaluate the journey.

They are also times when we think about the person who has been leading us in the journey, what has been taught and how well we have followed.

Anniversaries tell us how far we have come, and they help us measure how far we have to go.

This pastor has been walking this journey while living in the public eye for a long time.

When we celebrate the anniversary of the pastorate, we reflect upon our journey toward perfection under his leadership as the shepherd of the flock.

After traveling all of these years in this ministry and enjoying a fruitful life of faith and service, it's wonderful to hear him say in so many words, "I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now."

As Christians, let us remain firm in our belief that the Christian walk is the godly way. Let us also salute the pastor the Lord has given us to guide us along the way. Today, think about the years this pastor has served as your spiritual leader. Today we speak a word of praise over him and ask God to give him strength.

Exposition

This text focuses on the importance of faith for any believer.

New Testament believers are reminded that faith is essential to the Christian life.

Its very nature is the unseen. It is a belief with sufficient physical evidence to confirm.

Much of what believers know about God has been through our past experience. Based upon our past experiences combined with what we read in the word we make a projection about the future. That projection is what is called faith. It is a hope rooted in the nature of God and our past experience with him.

Without faith, we cannot please God because we must accept that he is God and come to him first. Matthew Henry says, we must believe that God is, and that he is what he is, what he has revealed himself to be in the Scripture, a being of infinite perfections, subsisting in three persons, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost.

Observe, the practical belief of the existence of God, as revealed in the Word, would be a powerful awe-influence upon our souls, a bridle of restraint to keep us from sin, and a spur of constraint to put us upon all manner of gospel obedience. We cannot please a God we don't know.

To know Him fully, we must try Him for ourselves.

To begin to know him, we must follow the footsteps of those who have proven that they know him. Our pastors lead us in this way.

A Diligent pastor teaches believers where not to walk

The diligent pastor continues to teach believers through precept and example where NOT to walk.

We are repeatedly warned in scripture not to walk after the flesh, Rom. 8:4; not after the manner of men, 1 Cor. 3:3; not in craftiness, 2 Cor. 4:2; not by sight, 2 Cor. 5:7; not in the vanity of the mind, Eph. 4:17; not disorderly, 2 Thess. 3:6. Galatians 5:16-17 says, "This I say then, Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfill the lust of the flesh. For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye cannot do the things that ye would."

In every way imaginable, this pastor has helped the members of this congregation to understand that we are never away from the sight of God. He always sees us because he never slumbers or sleeps.

Through his example and his own faith walk this pastor has shown us where we should NOT walk and has gently warned us of the dangers of not trusting God.

For that, we give God the glory.

Pastors must show believers where and how to walk with God

The pastor of a congregation has the important but delicate job of teaching believers not only where not to walk, but also where to walk.

Galatians 5:16-20 emphasizes that believers should not walk in ungodly places. The godly pastor must be diligent enough to go one step further; he must show believers where to walk.

The Christian faith is not a long list of Thou Shall Nots. However, it is a simple list of How-tos.

The Christian faith does not say, Keep Off The Grass. It is a faith that says, Walk on the Sidewalk.

This pastor has shown believers that the Christian walk requires balance and rhythm. Every believer should have a regular routine or rhythm that promotes the Christian life walk.

What has he taught? He has taught that we should have Bible reading at a set time each day that establishes a rhythm, a pattern and a routine that regularly feeds the soul. Psalm 119:105 says, Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path.

The pastor has taught that a believer who has no pattern of Bible reading runs the risk of walking in the dark. This pastor does not walk in the dark; he walks in the light.

To walk by faith, he has taught that we should Pray at a set time each day and more if need be because it helps strengthen our faith walk. The word teaches us to pray regularly and with fervor. James 5:16 says, "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." Our pastor shows us he believes in prayer because he prays himself. He is a pastor who talks about prayer, but then goes into his own prayer room and shuts the door.

Worship is a necessary part of the believers walk; that's what this pastor has taught year after year. Very few real Christians are comfortable when they are repeatedly absent from worship services. Hebrews 10:25 warns Christians not to forsake or skip public worship. Worship inspires Christian living. It motivates service.

This pastor's preaching in your worship motivates you because you know that he personally walks the path he wants you to follow.

Church leaders must walk with the Lord

Those who want to lead must first show that they walk with the Lord. Jesus told Nicodemus: You must be born of the spirit.

No believer who assumes the role of a church deacon or trustee can expect to please God if that person does not know the Lord for himself. Thus, all of the believers past experiences come together to demonstrate faith in God in matters of the spirit. That means those chosen to serve have proven themselves to be persons who can walk by faith.

They have proven it in their personal lives and in their relationship with the church. Most often, such a person will feel inadequate. The feeling of adequacy is natural because it admits human limitations and requires a dependence on God."

Such persons have learned that God is able to do what they cannot do alone, so they plunge into life with a positive spirit. In the words of Martin Luther, God carves the rotten wood and rides the lame horse. Or in the more recent words of former Oakland Raiders coach John Madden, "Don't worry about the horse being blind. Load up the wagon."

Those selected to serve in the highest levels of church leadership need God's Spirit to lead them.

This pastor has been chosen by God to lead you; he is a man who shows other church leaders how to walk with the Lord.

Praise the Pastor for his Christian Walk

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must praise this pastor today because Pastors who have walked the walk as well as talked the talk, deserve our praise and prayerful support.

Our praise and acts of gratitude encourage this pilgrim to continue walking the walk as he shows us how to walk.

You have watched the walk of this pastor and have drawn inspiration from each step. Like him, you should resolve that no matter how long you have been on the battlefield that you will continue. I can hear every faithful member of this church say; I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now!

At this church, this pastor has been the shepherd of many who have served in many ways, but none of them would turn back now!

Some have lifted their voices as members of choirs, others have washed dishes and mopped floors, but lead by a faith driven pastor they say, "I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now!"

Some have licked stamps, folded envelopes and passed out programs. Some have given their last dollar, and others have given until they felt the pain, but encouraged by their pastors they resolve, "I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now!"

Some have emptied trash cans, others have stood behind television cameras, snapped pictures, worked with youth, or just been in the midst of the saints for moral support. All have one thing in common. They all watch the pastor's walk and say, "I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now."

Why do we salute this pastor? Because he has taught believers to walk in faith.

Why do we honor him with this special day? Because he has taught believers how to call on the name of the Lord!

When our strength is failing, we may not remember to call on El-Shaddai, the Almighty God..but there is a name!

When we are walking through the valley of the shadow of death, we may not remember, Jehova-Rohi, The Lord is my shepherd, and I shall not want!..but there is a name!

When we are feeling like were making this journey alone, we may not remember Emmanuel the everlasting God, but there is a name!

We love this pastor because he continually reminds all who know him that, there is a name..

It is the name the songwriter wrote about when he declared; I come to the garden alone. While the dew is still on the roses. And the voice I hear ringing in mine ear, the Son of God discloses. And he walks with me and he talks with me and he tells me I am his own. And the joy we share as we tarry there, none other has ever known.

There is a name that reaches beyond the narrow confines of my loneliness and brings me comfort!

There is a name that reaches below my deepest failure and guides me to success!

There is a name that transcends my weakness and brings me strength.

It's the name of Jesus! There is none other name whereby we must be saved!

It's the name of Jesus!

No wonder the songwriter declared, There is a name I love to hear. I love to sing its worth. It sounds like music in mine ear, the sweetest name on earth. Oh, how I love Jesus. Oh, How I love Jesus. Because he first loved me.

He loved me so much that he hung out on Calvary!

He loved me so much that he died for my sins!

But early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with all power!

All power in his hands!

No. 9703-Funeral

In My Father's House

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

September 19, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "And if it seem evil unto you to serve the LORD, choose you this day whom ye will serve; whether the gods which your fathers served that were on the other side of the flood, or the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell: but as for me and my house, we will serve the LORD." Joshua 24:15

Introduction

Can you remember living in your father's house? Perhaps one of the tragedies of today's trend toward single-parent families is that children will become adults without ever having experienced living under the leadership of a strong, godly father. For some, grandfather has become the substitute for fathers they hardly know, but even then many will miss out.

Those who do remember living your father's house probably have many stories to tell of life in your father's house. If your father happened to be a godly man, there is one set of memories. However, if your father was a rolling stone there was another; in that case, you lived in his house, but he was never there.

A family that has the blessing of a father and mother living in its midst for a considerable amount of time is most certainly blessed. If many members of that family spent a great part of their lives living in their father's house, in his presence, the blessing is even greater.

In the 1970's there was a television series called the Waltons. The patriarch of the clan was an old fellow called Grandpa Walton. Grandpa Walton lived to see his children grow up, get married and to see his grandchildren. The unique thing about the Walton Family is that for the most part, off and on, all of them stayed in the same house on Walton Mountain. They laughed, talked and worked together. The series showed them struggling with finance, dealing with sicknesses, praying for the salvation of family members and overcoming obstacles. Grandpa worked, enjoyed his family and often gave wise advice. Although he son didn't go to church, Grandpa Walton went to church, not for the preaching, but for the singing. He loved talking, and he could really unwind once he started telling stories of times gone by.

What was unique about the Waltons, all cuddled up together on Walton's Mountain is that they had a sense of morality despite their differences; they always wanted to do the right thing. One grandson loved music; another like to fly airplanes, and John-Boy wanted to be a writer. There were conflicts about these dreams especially when it appeared that they might need to leave Walton's Mountain to make them happen. It was Grandpa Walton who encouraged each one to follow their individual life goal while keeping the spirit of Walton's Mountain within them wherever they went.

The Waltons series was successful because there were millions of families in America that admired the family's unity, stability, and integrity. Even if they didn't live on Walton's Mountain, they were attracted to the idea of family love and unity the program depicted. Millions more watched with envy, wishing that their family had the kind of leadership displayed by Grandpa Walton and his clan. They wanted the kind of family that was so close that when the day closed each would say to the other as they turned out the lights: Good night, Jason, Ben, Mary Ellen, Mama, Papa, Grandma, and Grandpa!

In the 6th Season of the show, Grandpa died. When the 7th season began, they were still mourning him. He was gone, but the Spirit of family, love, faith in God, attending church and following your dreams continued. It was a spirit they learned in their father's house.

Today there is a generation among us that has a negative image of fatherhood, marriage, and the home. This is a generation that thinks of a father as "Just my baby daddy" "Sperm donors" and names on a support check. A real father is a man who loves, protects and provides for his children. He is a man who can do the right thing when all others around him are doing wrong and is willing to shoulder responsibility for the care of himself and those in his charge. A godly father is even better because in his house the moral standards of God are followed, hope never dies, and faith continues.

As Christians, we thank God for godly fathers. Those who have experienced love, care, and strength while living under their roof should be doubly thankful. The lessons learned, the strength and support received will never be forgotten. There will never be a day when the great father is forgotten as his legacy is told to each coming generation; it's the story of life, "In my father's house."

Exposition

This Text considers Joshua as he makes his farewell statement to the children of Israel just before his death. He here challenges them to be loyal to the God that has brought them from Egypt's bondage and over the Red Sea.

There were debates within other families about whether or not they would follow the traditions of the people they found living in Canaan since they were in a new land. Many wanted to abandon their old allegiance to godliness, the sacrifices, the old fashioned way of being faithful to just one God. They were in a new land, and they felt they should adopt the practices of those who had succeeded before they arrived.

Joshua, now an old man, had kept his family together through the wilderness journey, brought them across the swelling Jordan and lived long enough to see them begin planting their roots in the land of promise.

When the question of what to do about the future was addressed, Joshua rose to tell the young men who listened that God had brought his family safely from the wilderness to the Promised Land. He challenged everyone to choose whether they would abandon the faith that had brought them to the Promised Land or hold firm. Finally, he stood with great confidence and said, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

His statement was profound and commanding. There is no record of his having held a family council meeting to gather a consensus. He was not a dictator who could force his decision on others. After all, he was 110 years old, what would give him the impression that he could ensure that his family would serve the Lord?

He was confident because his life before his family, the moral character the family exemplified, and the faith it displayed in times of plenty and peril, spoke for itself. He had shown them through his life an example of the way they should go, and he knew they would follow. He felt comfortable that as a whole, his family would walk the right path.

Therefore, he could boldly say with confidence, that even after he closed his eyes, that his family would serve the Lord.

In My Father's House

Today, only those fathers who can say that they have lived a life before their families that was flawed, but faithful, can venture to make Joshua's statement. Even if children move away and start their own families, they still remember the teachings and examples they learned, "In my father's house." These include:

GOD WILL TAKE CARE OF YOU: In a godly family, the children learn that each of them has a personal promise from God. that he will take care of them. That's one thing we learn, "In my Father's House" that we never forget: "God's gon' take care of it." That's when we take our concerns about our sickness to him and know that "God's going to take care of it." That's when we take our financial worries, our marital problems and our career frustrations before him knowing that his response will be "I will comfort you."

Long after we have moved out of our father's house, we will remember what we learned there; especially when we are dismayed.

When you are dismayed, you lack the courage that it takes to go on!

When you are dismayed, you lack the vision that it takes to see your way clear!

When you are dismayed, you lack the hope that it takes to believe

When you are dismayed, your spirit gets low, and you hang your head in defeat!

When you are dismayed, your smiling face is replaced by frowns and doubt.

Then you remember what was always taught, "In my father's house," If you live right, God will take care of you.

That's what the songwriter had in mind when he wrote, "Be not dismayed what ere betide. God will take care of you. Beneath his wings of love abide. God will take care of you. God will take care of you, through every day, ore' all the way. He will take care of you. God will take care of you."

ACKNOWLEDGE GOD AND HE WILL DIRECT YOUR PATH: Proverbs chapter 3 refers to one of the great truths about life that are taught in every godly family, "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he will direct your path."

Acknowledging God means more than just saying Lord help me get my diploma.

It means in every thing you do, ask whether what you are doing is true to the will of God.

If you submit yourself to the will of God, it does not matter what anyone else says or thinks, he will direct your path.

In all thy ways, that means college and technical school!

In all thy ways, that means climbing the career ladder and pursuing a family!

In all thy ways, acknowledge him, and he shall direct your path.

DON'T GIVE UP ON GOD, AND HE WON'T GIVE UP ON YOU: A godly father, through his example, teaches his wife and children never to abandon God and to keep faithfully any vow you make to him. He is faithful to his wife; he never gives up on her, and she never gives up on him. He is faithful to his family members and never gives up them, even if some stray away a bit and seem lost in their, he never gives up on them. The godly father assumes that role because he represents Christ in his home. If your father gives up on you, it's like God giving up on you.

What we learn in our father's house is never to give up! Each time we are knocked down, we must get back up! We must remind ourselves of God's promises. Romans 8:37 says, "Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us." Don't give up on yourself and don't give up on God." God will see that his children receive the ultimate victory, That's what you learn, "In my father's house."

Trust your family to God's care

Finally, brothers and sisters, while family members remember life in the house of their father when his life is over, the godly father looks forward to living, "In his father's house."

Jesus constantly talked about his father's house. It is the final destination of every believer.

"My Father's House" is a reference to the kingdom of heaven. It is a reference to the coming place where the saints of God will spend eternity.

In John 14 Jesus told his disciples that he is going to prepare a place for all believers in his father's house. In verse two he said, "In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you."

Where is "My father's house?" The entire universe is my father's house!

It is too big to imagine or comprehend. Isaiah 66:1 says, ".. The heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footstool: where is the house that ye build unto me? and where is the place of my rest?"

In "My Father's House" there are many "abiding places" that will provide a homeland for the soul.

Jesus said he was going to prepare a place for us. Why would he need to prepare a place for us? It's because he knew then what scientists now call the second law of thermodynamics; that this world is winding down! Time is coming to an end.

As we begin to hear of wars and rumors of wars, we hear Jesus say, "I go to prepare a place for you."

As we begin to hear of earthquakes, fires, floods, famines and pestilences in diverse places, we hear Jesus say, "I go to prepare a place for you."

When we go to the doctor, and he tells us that our time is limited, we hear Jesus say, "I go to prepare a place for you."

When we go in for a check-up but end up in intensive care, we hear Jesus say, "I go to prepare a place for you." Time is winding up!

Jesus said, In my father's house are many mansions, if it were not so I would have told you."

-Come and go with me to my father's house!
-Come and go with me and I'll show you a place:
-Where hearse wheels never roll
-Where tears never fall
-Where tempers never rise!
-Where doubts never appear!
Come and go with me to my father's house!
In my father's house, the wicked will cease from troubling!
In my father's house, the weary will be at rest!
In my father's house, every mountain will be made low!
In my father's house, the crooked places will be made straight!
In my father's house, every day will be Sunday. It's always howdy and never good Bye and bye when the morning comes, we'll tell the story of how we've overcome.
We'll tell the story about Jesus, and how he saved our souls!
We'll tell the story of how he died out on Calvary and arose from the grave!
Come and go with me to my father's house!
There is joy! Joy!
Joy!

—

A few days ago Willie Zimmerman left his house on S. 15th Street for the last time. When he closed his eyes at last, he found peace. His spirit speaks from beyond: Goodnight Geneva, Miki, Willie, Rhonda, Felicia and all of the family, "I'm in my father's house."

No. 9704-Communion

One Bread

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

September 20, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "For we being many are one bread, and one body: for we are all partakers of that one bread." 1 Corinthians 10:17

Introduction

Have you ever considered how many churches there are in America? Those who stay close to home would like to believe that nearly everyone in America shares the same basic belief in God. However, those who have ventured outside of their own neighborhood know that while we say America is "One nation under God," in fact, "Under God" means different things to different people.

It's hard to get "One anything" in America. There are two big groups of people who believe in some form of God: Christians and non-Christians. The largest groups of non-Christians include Jews, Muslims, Buddhist, and Hindus. Among these non-Christians, there are hundreds of smaller groups. Among Christians, there are two big groups: Protestants and Catholics. Among these groups, there are thousands of smaller groups.

Among Protestant Christians are divided into a few large groups and hundreds of smaller groups: There are evangelical Protestants who believe in a literal interpretation of the Bible, pro-life, anti-gay and pro-family. This includes: Southern Baptist, Assemblies of God. This is the largest group of Protestants. The next largest group is the regular or mainline Protestants such as Methodist, Episcopalian, Presbyterian, etc. They are more conservative in their approach to religion, more ritualistic, traditional and less emotional. The third largest group of Protestants are Black Protestants who generally believe in a tradition views about a personal soul saving God, who hears prayers and grants favor. This includes Black Baptist, Church of God in Christ. Even among Blacks Christian groups there are hundreds of denominations including many who call themselves "non-denominational" which, despite claims otherwise, has become a virtual denomination.

It doesn't stop there: There are Catholics and its many versions, Mormons, Jehovah's Witnesses and the list goes on.

Drive through any city and you will see a large variety of temples, worship centers, synagogues, mosques, reading rooms and churches.

Our Pledge of Allegiance says we are "one nation, under God, indivisible" when in reality when it comes to God we are divided into believers and non-believers and among believers: Christian and Non-Christian; and among Christians we are either Orthodox, traditional, or new age.

How do we know which of the religions of the world is right? Each one will point to its Bible as its correct source. Evangelicals have the King James Bible, Jehovah's Witnesses have the New World Translation, Muslims have the Koran, Jews have the Torah, Mormons have the Book of Morman? Every religion has its own Holy Book.

There are also hundreds of cults that profit from the desire of others to be faithful. These cults promise prosperity, health and wealth in the name of Jesus. Some are just absurd such as The National Church of Beyonce' in Atlanta It has a bible called the "Bible." -It has thousands of followers who sing "Drunk on Love" at communion time and accept Beyonce' as their Lord and Savior.-Beyonce' didn't set it up, but she has become a Goddess to millions who worship her.

The faithful are not detracted because we know that there is only one Lord, one faith and one Baptism. We may differ about what we should wear, what we should sing, whether we have a prayer language or not, what day we should meet or whether we should lift holy hands or anoint with oil, but when it all boils down, there is only one Lord, One Faith and One Baptism.

We are one loaf of bread, sliced into thousands of slices, but when you put them all together, Christians have one thing in common we all believe in "One Lord, One Faith and One Baptism."

As Christians, all believe that Jesus is the bread of life. We believe his words, that if any man eats of his bread that he will not hunger for this world any longer. He died for the sins of the whole world, making him "One bread" for everyone.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul urging the Christians of Corinth to strive for unity in the community of faith.

The Christians at Corinth were surrounded by a wide array of ideas and lifestyles. They were a small body of people in the midst of a giant multicultural society created by the Roman Empire. They were surrounded by all kinds of religions and different faiths. They believed in one God, but there were many who believed in many gods. The Romans believed the Emperor was god. There those who believed in sacrificing children or women to please the gods. There were also those who believed in sacrificing animals to gods.

There were some in the church that did not want to be different. They wanted to blend in and adopt some of the practices of others. The problem in this text refers to whether Christians who do not believe in idols of animal sacrifices should eat meat from animals that were offered as pagan sacrifices.

Some in the congregation saw no problem, but Paul said that if you share in the practices of the pagans, if you let ungodly practices feed you, then you are placing yourself under the influence of the demonic. If you begin to blur the distinction between yourself and your non-Christian neighbor by doing what he does and putting yourself in his frame of reference, then you are toying with something that will erode your relationship with Christ. Paul says, "What is sacrificed on pagan altars is offered to demons, not to God."

Paul said believers are "One bread" meaning that we are one body.

"One bread" was easy for believers to understand. Jewish bread was usually made the same way in every community. It was generally made of wheat and other grains if no wheat was available.

It was prepared by kneading it in wooden bowls.

The dough was mixed with leaven and made into thin cakes, round or oval, and then baked. The only difference in its bread was whether it had leaven on regular days or unleavened on Passover.

When he emphasized "one bread" he also reminded them that believers received their blessings through Christ and Christ alone, who is the bread of life.

He urged believers to remain constant in their faith, not to stray and recognize that we are different from others because we believe in "One Lord, One Faith and One Baptism."

Believers are One Bread

Paul told the Corinthians that we are "one bread" and they should not try to be like everyone else. Regardless of our race, creed or color when believers come to the communion table we are "one bread" because:

JESUS SAID HE IS THE BREAD OF LIFE: The largest part of any day's food consumption is represented by the base of the food pyramid which includes breads, cereals, rice, pastas, etc. While junk food is only sparingly recommended even discouraged and, milk and meat requires 2-3 servings a day, and fruit and vegetables require 3-5 servings; breads require 8-11 servings per day. In the mind of the nation's nutritionists, breads are needed most to nourish the human body and maintain health. Ironically, it is also bread that is needed to sustain the spiritual life of believers. That's why Jesus said in John 6:35, ".. I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst." The presence of Christ in a believer's life is essential to satisfying life's hunger. He meets all needs and satisfies all desires. In John 6:51 Jesus expands on this characterization by saying, "I am the living bread which came down from heaven: if any man eat of this bread, he shall live forever: and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world." There are many junk food religions, but Jesus is the bread of life.

SPECIALTY BREADS ARE TASTY BUT ONLY ONE BREAD SAVES: Unlike the Jews that generally had only one kind of bread, there are many types of bread around the world, each appeals to the tastes of its consumers: There is: The WONTON of China. The Mexican TORTILLA. The CHAPATI of India. The PITA from the Middle East. The CROISSANT of France. The PIZZA bread pie of Italy the BAGEL from Poland.

Not only are there breads around the world, but African-Americans also have our own breads that are unique to our culture.

We know about cornbread and biscuits.

We know about hoecakes and Cush!

We know about hot water corn bread, shortening bread and even crackling bread.

As tasty as these breads are, none of them can save a lost soul!

As delightful as they are we can't serve pizza and cornbread for communion, because there is only one bread that saves. Jesus said, "I am the bread of life."

ONLY ONE BREAD CAN RELEASE THE POWER OF GOD WITHIN US: While there are many types of bread in the world, there is only one bread can release the power of God within us. In a grocery store, there are many kinds of bread that each claim to be more than the other: Wal-Mart has "Great Value" bread. There is bread by Pepperidge Farms, Sunbeam or Wonder Bread. Some have raisins, some are called light bread, but if we walked down the isle of Heaven's Grocery Store we would only find "One Bread" and it would be called the "Bread of Heaven." because it does what it's supposed to do. Bread is a protein source, and it slowly releases energy to the body. That's good to know especially since Jesus said He is the bread of life. The Spiritual bread that is within us releases the power of God within us to do the work of God in a mighty way. It's like a spiritual time release capsule; all through the day little bursts of energy just push us, just a little bit. When we feel dispirited, He lifts us. When we feel dejected, He raises us. When we feel tired, He energizes us. No wonder Jesus said, "I am the bread of life."

Only One Bread Turns You Around

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that there is only "One Bread" that can turn us around and plant our feet on solid ground.

When Jesus said he is the "Bread of Life" he also meant he is the only way that a person can be forgiven of sins and can get a new start. Certain kinds of bread, such as wheat bread contain fiber. Fiber helps our bodies get rid of the bad stuff. Nutritionists say foods with fiber have a tendency to fill you up without making you fat. They help you to go longer without feeling hungry, help you to fight off disease and fiber helps you to sweep the kitchen. That means fiber foods help you to get rid of the bad stuff in your body quickly.

Jesus said those who have the bread of heaven "shall never hunger" for the things of this world or thirst after the things of this world. This bread will help us get rid of the bad stuff in our lives. Maybe that's why 2 Corinthians 5:17 says, " Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." Old things such as sinful living, adultery, thievery, gambling, drugs, alcoholism...all passed away. Those who accept Christ find that His spirit starts working quickly. We don't enjoy sin as much as we once did, we start thinking more about doing right by God.That's the power of "One Bread" at work; it's turning us around and giving us a new life. live.

Today, we present to you the bread of life containing the essentials to sustain and motivate us to live abundantly, justly and courageously.

It is bread, but it's not just any bread. It's bread from heaven.

It is bread, but it's not just any bread. This bread satisfies. Matthew 5:6 says, "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled."

It is bread, but it's not just any bread. This bread gives eternal life. In John 6:47-48 Jesus says, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me hath everlasting life. I am that bread of life."

It is bread, but it's not just any bread. It is given for the salvation of the world.

It is bread that has been kneaded in the crucible of the fickle attitudes of mankind.

It is bread that has been prepared through 33 years of life in a sinful world!

It is bread that has been prepared, kneaded and broken for us.

It is bread that was humiliated for our wickedness and chastised for our impurities.

It is bread that was judged for our crimes and condemned for our rebellion.

It is bread that was despised for our corruption and cursed for our perversion.

It is bread that was:

—wounded for our transgressions; bruised for our iniquities.

—pierced for our guilt.

—tortured for our shortcomings.

—beaten for our wrongs.

This is the bread of our faith. It is God's bread. It is bread that gives:

STRENGTH to those who are weak; INSPIRATION to those who are frustrated and confused!

HOPE to the hopeless; RENEWAL to those who are in despair!

PICKS UP those who are let down; LIFTS UP those who have been let down!

SAVES those who are lost and gives NEW ENERGY to those who wait on him. For I hear the word declare that "they that wait upon the Lord shall mount up on wings as eagles, they shall run and not be weary. They shall walk and not faint!"

God's bread is:

QUICKER than hoe cakes. While we are still praying, our help is on the way!

LIGHTER than light bread. Those who wander in the dark will find that he is the light of the world!

SWEETER than raisin bread. His goodness takes the bitterness of hard times and sweetens its taste. No wonder the songwriter said, "I found a savior and he's sweet I know!"

MORE ASSORTED THAN CORNBREAD. Cornbread is good with greens, rice, and gravy, stew meat or chicken. If there is nothing else, corn bread goes well with just cornbread and gravy. But God's bread goes with every situation. In my days of happiness, God is there! In my moments of sadness, God is there too! When my soul is hungry, God is there! No matter what my situation, God is there!

No wonder the songwriter declared: "Bread of heaven, Bread of heaven, feed me till I want no more!"

When God saw the world hungry for the bread of life, he decided to share his only begotten son to feed them the power of salvation!

One evening, 2000 years ago, Jesus, the bread of heaven, took an old rugged cross and carried it to Calvary!

He died on that cross so that we might live!

But early Sunday morning, Quicker than instant biscuits in a hot stove!

Early Sunday morning, faster than light bread browns in a hot toaster!

Early Sunday morning, God's shared bread arose from the grave with....all power in his hands!

No. 9705-Blessing

Blessed in the middle of Mess

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

September 27, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "And looking round about upon them all, he said unto the man, Stretch forth thy hand. And he did so: and his hand was restored whole as the other." Luke 6:10

Introduction

Have you ever been a customer or client who walked into an internal conflict been played out in front of your eyes? If you did, how did you feel? If you are like most people, you probably felt bewildered, dumbfounded and frustrated.

Have you ever heard a conversation similar to this? "She cut my hours and won't let me work but 25 hours a week. She says she has to cut back, and then she hired that new girl and gave her 15 hours a week. She cut me from 40 to 25 and then hired somebody else with my hours." Then the employee sees you standing in line and asks, "Can I take your order?" In a dry tone, slams your change on the counter and pushes your order to you while saying, "This ain't right. I know what she is trying to do. She trying to keep me from getting health care and retirement. Ain't nobody no fool." As you leave out the door, she says, "Thank you and, please come back."

In another instance, you walk in and two workers are talking about another. "I done told her to stop looking at my man. She keep that stuff up and I pull that cheap horse hair weave outta your head!" yells one worker. "Go ahead try it and see what happens!" another yells back. Then one looks up and sees you at the counter and asks, "What you want?"

"They ain't nothing but slave drivers up here. I worked last night then Eterious didn't show up this morning, and now they got me working up here on a Sunday. Don't they know its Sunday! That's a holiday! Now I got to be here till 3 p.m. This is messed up. I'm tired of this mess!" You are standing waiting for your order, and he says, "Yeah, what you want?"

Sometimes you apply for a job and become entangled in a political squabble. The boss hired you because his staff is all male and he needed a woman to prove that he does not discriminate, but to hire you he fired a well-liked man to create an opening. All you wanted was a job, but you walked into a mess.

It can be the same situation if you get a scholarship to go to a great college, even if you didn't have the greatest grades. When you arrive on campus people are protesting against the school's affirmative action program that permits them to skip over white students with better grades to hire a minority to fill the school's racial quota. You get the scholarship, but you also stepped into a mess that is not of your own creation.

Then there are messy situations that we create ourselves, but somehow in spite of the mess, God continues to bless us anyway.

As Christians, we are encouraged to know that despite the messy situations that confront us, God still blesses us and grants us favor.

Exposition

This text focuses on a man with a withered hand who went to the synagogue to pray for relief and stepped into a mess.

Luke 6:8-10 details an instance where a man with a withered hand sat in the midst of many people who called themselves religious, but no one did anything to help him. In that time many believed that withered limbs, leprosy, and other abnormal conditions were caused by sin; the victims brought it on themselves. He was ignored.

The text is packaged between two passages of scripture that we could describe as "mess" that ignored his situation. Verses one through seven detail the dispute that existed between the religious leaders and Jesus about whether it was right to heal on the Sabbath Day. They argued that to do so would bring God's wrath because anyone who worked on the Sabbath broke the commandment to keep the Sabbath Day Holy.

The dispute went back and forth as the religious on different days. Each time Jesus appeared they argued. They made a point, and Jesus made a counterpoint.

On one Sabbath as they argued back and forth the man with the withered hand appeared and Jesus saw his condition and told the man to "rise up and stand forth in the midst." Right there in the middle of the mess that ignored his condition, his pain, and agony, Christ healed him.

After he had been healed, the messed started again. Verse 11 says, "And they were filled with madness, and communed one with another what they might do to Jesus."

There was mess in the first seven verses and mess in the 11th verse, but in the middle of the mess there was a blessing!

Mess Created by Someone Else

Sometimes the mess we find ourselves in is not of our own creation. It was caused by someone or something else.

A person who works hard saves money and pays all of his bills on time can find himself in a mess if someone breaks into her home after she has cashed her check, steals her purse and leaves her broke. Now the rent is due, the light bill and water bill is due, and creditors are knocking on her door. She's in a mess, but she didn't create the mess; it was created by someone else!

The same thing happens when you drive safely, but someone else slams into you and causes you to slam into someone else. You have injuries yourself, have caused injury to someone else, and it wasn't your fault. Someone else caused the mess.

Any given day believers find themselves in a plethora of mess caused by someone else!

What believers do when they are dealing with a mess caused by someone else is look to God for strength. Psalm 143:8 says, "Cause me to hear thy lovingkindness in the morning; for in thee do I trust: cause me to know the way wherein I should walk; for I lift up my soul unto thee."

When forced to respond to a mess created by someone or something else, the believer prays this prayer, "Cause me to know the way wherein I should walk." - In essence, "God, I'm in a mess. I didn't create this mess; show the way out!"

Every believer will have to respond to someone else's mess. In fact, many people spend most of their lives responding to mess created by others:

—You have children in your care because your son and daughter got in a mess.

—You owe your soul to friends because you borrowed to bail a child out of a mess!

—You're in debt because someone stole your identity and has ruined your credit and created a mess!

The list is endless, but the faithful have learned that even in the middle of dealing with a mess someone else caused, God still blesses!

He blesses with strength! He blesses with renewed optimism!

And sometimes when we are like Israel with Pharaoh's army behind us and the Red Sea in front of us, he just opens up a way out of no way! He creates a path and shows us the way.

That's why our prayer is "Cause me to know the way therein I should I walk!

If we walk in that way, we will be blessed in the middle of the mess.

Self-generated Mess

While some are dealing with mess created by someone else, there are times when we are dealing with mess we created for ourselves.

We are sinful people. It's our nature Because we are sinful, we will constantly be dealing with messes created by other people and messes we create for ourselves.

We drive a long stretch on the road and fight to keep our eyes open; we have to deal with our fatigue, but there is someone on the other side of the highway doing the same thing. We spend our lives trying to keep ourselves in the right lane or we dealing with people who fell asleep at the wheel.

Paul wrote the Romans and explained that sin keeps our lives in a mess. We want to do right but ultimately do wrong. We desire to do the right thing, but somehow we always end up doing the very things that we do not want to do.

In Romans 7:24 after looking at his miserable estate Paul said, "Oh wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from this body of death?" He concluded that it was Jesus who straightened out his mess and blessed him.

Like Paul, many today are in a terrible mess when it comes to many things. We can't seem to get a grip on things. Every new year we resolve that we will do better, but just a few days later we are back in a mess.

We want to do right, but we can't get a grip on things, but we end up in a mess.

We want to be active in the church, but we are so disordered that it never happens; our worship attendance is a mess.

We plan to read our bibles more and to prayer with others more, but we end up doing other things; our Bible study and prayer life ends up in a mess.

We said we were going to spend more time with our family and to put a cap on our spending practices, but we ended up in a mess.

Yet, even in the middle of the mess we have made of our lives, God has been merciful to us. Often we have lost control, but he remained in control. He blessed us in the middle of our mess

We have failed to do our part, but he has always succeeded and has blessed us by doing his part.

We have come up short on our end, but God has blessed us anyhow!

Should we continue to create messy situations for ourselves, relying on God to bail us out? Or should I resolve that even though I have been blessed in the middle of the mess that I created that I won't push the envelope? I won't keep creating more mess in my life!

David looked at the mess he created in his life and said, "Create in me a clean heart O' God and renew a right spirit within me! Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation!"

When we have created a mess, we should confess and repent, and let God do the rest!

In the mess, he continues to Bless

Finally, brothers and sisters, God is not blind to the mess we are dealing with; He blesses us despite the mess.

When the man with the withered hand came to the synagogue, he was dealing with an issue. He came to the place where he thought he could find God and relief for his situation.

He walked into a mess, but he walked away blessed!

He walked into a situation where he was ignored and little more than a second thought, but he walked away healed!

Therein lies the answer to our problem. When we find ourselves in the middle of a mess we can try to stir it, but that would make it stink, or we can keep looking to God and let him deal with the issue.

There is no record of the man with the withered hand doing anything other than coming before God, even though he was in the middle of a messy situation.

His situation caught the eye of Jesus, and he was blessed!

Today, we should remember that it does not matter how we got into our mess, what we should know is that if we come to our God, our situation will get his attention.

We know that is true because:

He has blessed us in the middle of a mess that others have created!

He has blessed us in the middle of the mess we created!

In spite of our mess, God has continued to bless.

He blesses us not because he endorses our mess but because he loves us more than he hates the mess we created.

He blesses us out of love, to give us one more chance!

David messed around and took another man's life and his wife. When he saw the mess he created, he asked for a clean heart, and God blessed him despite his mess.

The prodigal son was knee-deep in slop, in a terrible mess. He stopped to think how the servants in his father's house had food to eat, but he was hungry and feeding swine. He said, "I will arise and go to my father, and say, Father I have sinned, before God and before thee." That father blessed him, despite the mess he had made of his life.While David and the Prodigal son strayed away and caused a mess, Job was in a mess because of his success. He had committed no sins. He had been faithful in every way, but his life was still a mess. Death had invaded his family. He lost all of his money. His health began to fail, all at the same time. Yet, Job said, "Yea though he slay me, yet will I trust him." –He blessed Job despite the mess Satan made in his life.

When we've been a mess..

When we've been IN a mess..

And when we have been hurt BY mess and God still blesses us, what shall we do?

We shall praise his name and say thank you Lord!

Thank you Lord, for blessing me despite the mess that I've made of my life!

Thank you Lord, for taking my weakness and turning it into strength!

Thank you Lord, for taking my failure and giving me victories!

Thank you Lord, for taking my discouragement and giving me hope!

Thank you Lord, for taking my test and giving me a testimony!

Thank you Lord, for looking beyond my faults and shortcomings and seeing my need!

Over 2000 years ago, Jesus came into a messed up world to make it a blessed up world!

He came among messy people, who called him Lord to his face and tried to get him killed behind his back.

He came among messy people, who shouted "Hosanna" on one day and "Crucify him" a few days later.

In the middle of the world's mess, God sent his best!

The world was messed up, but he came to be lifted up that all men might be saved!

A messed up world, put an old rugged cross on his shoulder!

On Calvary, Jesus was hung between two messed up men

A messed up world nailed his hands and feet!

A messed up world stuck a spear in his side!

And he died, out on Calvary!

But early Sunday morning, he arose from the dead with all power in his hands!

I'm not worthy of all these blessings because I'm messed up!

Thank you Lord, for blessing me one more!

No. 9706-Revival

Bring me my switch

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 5, 2015

SCRIPTURE: For whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth. Hebrews 12:6; But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and with his stripes we are healed." Isaiah 53:5

Introduction

Have you ever been punished the old fashioned way? There are many who remember breaking a family rule about integrity, obedience or respect and feeling the result of that decision? For hundreds of years, families have used a variety of methods to instill discipline in their children.

In many cultures, discipline involved wooden rods applied to the back and bottom. In others, there were pieces of leather applied to the same areas. The African-American community has a unique history in this respect. There are many who remember: Leather belts, auto fan belts, razor straps, and paddles. Most remember the "switch."

A switch is a piece of strong, flexible wood that inflicts pain. Larger switches were formed from hickory or birchwood, and smaller switches formed from hedges or any small bush in a yard. The purpose of the switch was to inflict pain.

The question of corporal punishment has risen over the years as psychologist study the effects of "the switch" on children as they become adults. Some have traced violent behavior such as "spouse" abuse and bullying to a history of violence that began when offenders were young.

Use of the "switch" and corporal punishment as a whole is declining in America. Thirty-one states have banned its use in school and among the 19 that still allow corporal punishments there are extensive rules and record keeping in the process.

To spank or not to spank, that is the question? What does God say about all of this? Proverbs 23:13-14 "Withhold not correction from the child: for if thou beatest him with the rod, he shall not die. Thou shalt beat him with the rod, and shalt deliver his soul from hell."

The purpose of any chastisement is not "Punishment" but "discipline." The idea is not to punish, but to guide and direct. The purpose of a switch is not to inflict pain for the sake of pain itself, but to correct and save. Many parents, after spanking their children, went secretly into their rooms and cried silent tears because the spanking hurt them as well as their children, but it was necessary to correct them.

Just as parents have some form of discipline for their children whether it is a switch or loss of privilege, God also does the same for believers who stray away from the Word. God's disciplinary process is designed to strengthen us, correct us and to correct us. However, to save us, He sent his Son to take our punishment on himself to guarantee us peace.

As Christians, we know that God will correct us if we stray, but he loves us enough to go out of his way to save us from ourselves.

Exposition

This text focuses on the importance of discipline to development of the Christian life.

The unknown writer of the text, (Believed to be Paul) explained the importance of developing good discipline as Christians.

The text explains the nature of God's discipline of his children. Discipline implies two things: Instruction regimen or to be chastised and punished differently. Chastisement is correction and punishment is a penalty.

Proverbs 23 speaks of not withholding the rod as a tool of punishment. However, Psalms 23 says, "Thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." Since the Hebrew word for rod means "measure and direction" then the rod is seen in the same way the rod is seen in the hand of a shepherd, not to punish the sheep, but to gently tap them and point them in the direction they should go.

To be chastised is to be pointed in the way we should go. This instills discipline and requires a relationship between a person who knows the way of life (discipline) and an apprentice who is trying to learn the way of life. The idea is for the experienced person to lead the learner through a process (the discipline) until the learner can imitate and live like or better than his teacher.

Each believer is a disciple or a learner of the Christian lifestyle. Our goal is to learn, through a gradual process, the Christian way until we can live it like the master lived it. To help us, God often chastises us, to help us develop discipline.

The chastisements of God have taken two forms: Physical and denial of privileges. When Israel sinned in the wilderness, God sent serpents among them to bite them with poisonous venom. That was physical punishment.

When Moses sinned in the wilderness by taking credit for God's act of providing water for the people, he was punished by being denied access to the promised land. That was denial. God has used both methods of punishment in dealing with his people, depending on the circumstance. It appeared when they had either a dream or a possession denial of either the dream or possession was used. When they had neither, physical punishment was given.

This text makes it clear that whenever God punishes us we should know that it is because he loves us and we should be happy because we know the outcome will be good. The preponderance of Biblical teaching follows this line:

"Behold, happy is the man whom God correcteth: therefore despise not thou the chastening of the Almighty:" -Job 5:17

"My son, despise not the chastening of the LORD; neither be weary of his correction: For whom the LORD loveth he correcteth; even as a father the son in whom he delighteth." — Proverbs 3:11-12

Those whom God loves can expect to be discipline, either physically or by denials to help them learn the Christian way of life.

We are chastised to bring out our best

The Gospel of Christ shows us the standard and motivates us to measure up in every way that we can, with the full knowledge that in the areas that we fail, that the Grace of Jesus Christ will make up the difference. Every waking minute of the day a believer is pushed by the Holy Spirit to reach higher, remove imperfections and strive to become better. Over and over again, we find ourselves messing up, saying, "Oops, I did it again!" That's when we feel the Holy Spirit working on us. Hebrews 12:6-8 gives this insight. "For whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth. If ye endure chastening, God dealeth with you as with sons; for what son is he whom the father chasteneth not? But if ye be without chastisement, whereof all are partakers, then are ye bastards, and not sons." The work of the gospel picks up every time we say, "ooops I did it again." It whips us and torments us until we correct ourselves. Its goal is to help us "be all that we can be." When we have done all, the grace makes up for the rest.

We are chastised to make us stronger

Sometimes we are weak in faith, and God chastises us to make us stronger. A case in point is Israel's repeated lack of faith in the wilderness. Because of their unwillingness to follow God's directions given to them through Moses, they wandered around in circles in the desert for 40 years. Often they demonstrated a foolish nature by ignoring God's direction bringing trouble upon themselves. Yet, God provided for them.

When they were to the point of thirsting to death, God provided water for them from a rock. When they had no food, God provided bread from heaven that appeared on the ground every day for 40 years. When they had no meat, huge flocks of quail appeared every day. Their clothes did not wear out; they never had to change shoes. They reached the point of utter frustration. They could not get it together. The land of promise was so close, but they simply could not make themselves reach out and grab the promise. They constantly fell into faithlessness, sometimes idolatry and wickedness that caused them considerable trouble. Looking back they realized that God chastised Israel for its wayward ways, but he never stopped loving them.

Psalm 94:12 uses the word "chastenest" to describe their experience. The object of chastisement is that the student will arise, wiser and stronger having learned an important lesson. In the wilderness, Israel was certainly chastised. They learned through their suffering that they should be obedient to God and trust in him wholly.

This is the lesson we learn today; we are chastised by God to make us stronger, not to punish us.

We are Chastised, but he took our Punishment

Finally, brothers and sisters we need to remember that God does not enjoy chastising us, that's why Christ took our punishment so we can know the fullness of God's love.

Parents get no great thrill out of punishing a son or daughter. In fact, they often feel more pain, internally, than the offending child.

Neither does God enjoy disciplining us. He gets no thrill when it comes time to correct us for our missteps, but because he loves us, he corrects us.

Consider the poor mother who learned that her son had stolen some merchandise from a local store. The mother screamed at the child. Her blood pressure rose. She was angry, disappointed, frustrated and afraid for the future of her child. After she screamed and cried until she could hardly talk she told her son to go outside and "get me my switch" "Don't get no little one either, get a big one."

The boy went to a bush outside and broke off a limb and pulled off its leaves. He fully expected what was coming. He decided he would be tough and take it, after all, it would only last for a few minutes. Trembling, the mother told her son to hold the switch. She turned her back to him and peeled back her blouse to reveal her bare back. She yelled to her son "Hit me." The boy was reluctant to hit his mother, but she demanded that he do so. As he struck her over and over, whelps and scratches formed on her back. Blood began to appear.

She turned to him with tears running from eyes and said: "Son, when you disobey me you hurt the dream I have for you. You may as well take a switch and whip me because I hurt inside. She turned her scarred back to him and tearfully said, "Look at the stripes on my back and remember this day." The boy left the room. For the first time, he understood what his mother meant when she said: "this hurts me, more than it hurts you." The mother never had to lift a hand to that son again. He spent the rest of his life trying to make sure that his mother would never feel that much pain again.

Today, we know that when we sin, we cause God great pain and Frustration. He chastised us to help us get better, but he took the punishment unto himself.

One day on an old rugged cross, Jesus told a sinful world "go and get me a switch." "Go and get me an old rugged cross."

It was a cross that should have been our punishment!

It was a cross that should have been our condemnation!

It was a cross that should have been our degradation!

Instead of condemning the world and punishing us, he took its punishment upon himself. He allowed himself to be stripped and beaten with 39 lashes. He allowed a crown of thorns to be placed upon his head ..nails to be driven in his hands and feet!

He bled and died and took our punishment upon himself looking forward to a glorious resurrection, restored hope, and a second chance! Isaiah put it this way: " But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and with his stripes we are healed!" Isaiah 53:5

And with his stripes, we are healed!

And with his stripes.. we are healed!

Healed because he was crucified for us!

Healed because he was buried for us!

Healed because he was raised for us!

After three days and nights, he arose from us…and with his stripes we are healed!

No. 9707-Anniversary

By the strength of his hand

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 18, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "And Moses said unto the people, Remember this day, in which ye came out from Egypt, out of the house of bondage; for by strength of hand the Lord brought you out from this place." Exodus 13:3

Introduction

What do you attribute to your success? If you are Donald Trump, you'd probably say, "It's because I'm smart." If you are Hillary Clinton, you probably say, "The answer is in my email." If you are Barack Obama, you would probably say, "Because I married Michelle." – People attribute a variety of reasons for their success including education, opportunity, intellectual ability, connections, politics and hard work. There are some who attribute their journey to just plain luck.

Luck? Really?

Was it luck that you survived the storms of your life?

Was it luck that you overcame that family problem that plagued you?

Was it really luck that landed you the job that you sought?

The new housing opportunity that became available to you, was it by pure luck?

Some never realize the real source of their good fortune had nothing to do with luck, but rather they were beneficiaries of the strength, power and grace of God.

The grace of God surrounds and strengthens us.

God's grace places someone by our side in times of trouble to help us.

The grace of God causes a full plate to be placed on our table when we hunger.

The grace of God puts us in the hands of the right doctor, teacher, coach and mentor.

It's not luck, it's the grace of God. Today, don't count on luck, trust God; he'll work it out for you.

By the strength of God's hand and his grace, we have made this journey. Along the way, we have seen the world change, but yet we are still here.

We have seen many things come and go, but we are still here.

Drive in movies are gone, but we are still here.

Full-service gas stations are gone, but we are still here!

Remember 8 track tapes and 45 and 77 rpm records; they are gone, but we are still here!

Manual typewriter, push lawn mowers, doctor's house call, disco dancing, home milk delivery, The steel afro pick and Jeri curl and rabbit ear television antennas are all gone, but we are still here!

Through the strength of God's hand, we are still here!

As Christians, we are aware that wherever we are today, it's because we have benefited from the strong hand of God. It is his grace that has brought us this far, and his grace that will see us through.

Exposition

This text considers Israel as God reminds the people of the reason for their deliverance out of slavery and what they should do in response.

Israel spent 400 years in bondage in Israel. During this time, they constantly prayed that God would bring them out of the enslaved condition and deliver them to freedom.

Their desire was to return to the land that God had promised Abraham, a land that was flowing with milk and honey.

The 13th chapter of Exodus records God reminding Israel to remember the source of its deliverance and in response, to give him their best.

On the anniversary of their deliverance God commanded Israel to "Remember this day."

Almost as if to underscore the importance of the message, the nearly identical phrase is used four times in the same chapter.

In Exodus 13:3 God says, "For by the strength of hand the Lord brought you out from this place."

In Exodus 13:9 God says, "For with a strong hand hath the Lord brought thee out of Egypt."

In Exodus 13:14 God says, "By strength of hand the Lord brought us out from Egypt, from the house of bondage."

In Exodus 13:16 God says, "For by strength of hand the Lord brought us out of Bondage."

The message was clear: Israel's deliverance did not come from its own strength, but it was God's hand that brought them out.

We are progressing, not by our own might, but by the strength of the hand of God leading us every step of the way.

Why We celebrate!

Believers today are celebrating because we see how God has blessed our families over the years.

We see the hand of God at work. When we come together to fellowship we see more than the litany of names and faces of the past recited for our hearing, we see God moving through them to achieve His purpose. More than others, we are celebrating because we have benefited from the grace of God and the strength of his hand.

We have seen his strong hand

Moses reminded Israel four times that it was God that delivered them. He repeated it so many times because there were some who experience the strength of God's hand, but did not recognize his involvement There are some today who are like the Israelites in the wilderness who eyes could not see that God had been with them every step of the way. Can't you hear the old warriors saying, "Our eyes have seen God roll back the Red Sea?" We have seen how He fed more than a million people in the wilderness for 40 years. We have seen how He protected us from our enemies. We have seen how He brought us to the borders of the Promised Land." Even today, we have seen how God has provided for our families and this community over the years. We have seen storms tear the roofs from our houses and flood waters float away our memories. We have also watched as God restored and helped us rise again. We have seen the tears fall as we wept at gravesites of our loved ones and we have also seen how God restored us and strengthened us to go on. Today, the faithful celebrate the strength of his hand.!

We are celebrating because we have seen how much he has blessed us, and how far he has brought us.

We have seen how God has been our rock in a weary land.

We have seen how God has been our shelter in the time of storm.

We have seen how He has been our way out of no way.

We have seen the strength of his hand in our lives.

We see the strength of his hand today

Not only have we see the works of the Lord in the past we see what he is doing right now. Racial and gender barriers are falling all around us. Just look at the news in the 2016 Presidential race there is a black Republican, a Latino, two women, and an Indian American running for President and race or gender is not the primary focus of attention. We see the hand of God moving to tear down walls and to build up the downtrodden. What we see makes the words of the songwriter even clearer when he writes, "Mine eyes have seen the glory of the Lord."

Today, our eyes are beholding the gradual unfolding of the millennial kingdom where there will be peace on earth. What we see today is not what it shall be, but it is a step toward what will be. The lines that divide the rich and the poor still exist, but our sensitivity has been heightened and that line is blurring.

There are still whites who hate blacks, Democrats who hate all Republicans and Republicans who think little of all Democrats, but more than we have ever seen before, whites and blacks are working together, worshipping together and even putting aside partisan views for the common good. We have seen the sons of former slave masters working alongside the great grandsons of slaves to build Habitat homes, race for a cure for cancer, comfort the families of military bereaved, and sit down at the same table for the common good without burning crosses, Rebel Flags or clinched fists. It is not what it should be, but we have seen what our grandparents thought would never happen in a million years.

In our lifetime, we are beginning to see the wisdom of judging men by the content of their character and not by the color of their skin.

More than that we have seen the glory of the Lord in our own families. We have seen wayward sons and daughters come to better understandings. We have seen God's powerful hand reach down and literally grab hold of wayward lives and put them on the right path.

More than ever, we have seen the strength of the hand of God in our own lifetimes.

By the strength of his hand...

Finally, brothers and sisters we should consider that the strength of the Lord went before Israel and guided them the rest of their journey.

Four times Moses reminded Israel that they were being guided by the strength of the Lord's hand. He ended his message for them in Exodus 13:21 "And the Lord went before them by day in a pillar of a cloud, to lead them the way; and by night in a pillar of fire, to give them light; to go by day and night."

Israel moved forward after leaving Egypt, confident that God would make a way by the strength of his deity and power of his hand.

They had no idea where they were going because, excepting Moses, none of them had seen the Promised Land. Yet, the marched forward trusting in the power of God.

The Bible reminds us that "Eyes have not seen, neither has it entered into the heart of man the things God has in store for those who trust Him." We don't know exactly what God has in store for us as believers, but we know it will be better than what we have now.

The old warriors, whose legacy we celebrate here today had dreams for the future. They kept the faith because they had dreams of a better day.

Great-grandma didn't know exactly what it would be, but as she scrubbed floors through the Great Depression and washed the dirty laundry of millionaires for pennies, she dreamed of a better day!

Aunt Betty did not know exactly what the future held, but sat on the back of the bus for years as her beautiful face became rubbery and dark and her cold black hair turned silver and grey, she dreamed of a better day.

Great grandpa didn't know exactly what it would be, but as he pushed a plow behind an old mule and bowed under the weight of cotton sacks on his back he could see in his mind's eye, a better day ahead. Our ancestors endured singing, "The Lord will make a way somehow."

Every now and then God shows us a glimpse into the future He is preparing for the faithful of all races, creeds and colors.

Lift up your heads and behold the day when there will neither be first nor last, rich or poor, white or black, but only children of the highest God!

Lift up your heads and behold the day when we will beat our swords into ploughshares, the Lions will share space with the lambs and we will study war no more!

Lift up your heads and behold the day when the wicked will cease from troubling and the weary will be at rest!

Lift up your heads and cast your eyes on the day when justice shall run down like waters and righteousness like a mighty stream!

Today, we are like Israel being reminded four times how we have been delivered four different ways.

By the strength of the Lord's hand, we were lifted when we fell down!

By the strength of the Lord's hand, we were consoled in our grief!

By the strength of the Lord's hand, we were able to overcome our enemies!

By the strength of the Lord's hand,, we are able to triumph over adversity!

I don't know about you, but I've decided that when God's hand is the plan, everything will be alright!

If we make advancements in education, God's hand will be in the plan.

If we achieve career advancements, God's hand will be in the plan.

If we achieve family goals, God's hand will be in the plan.

When God's hand is in the plan.

—The world may kick you down, but God will pick you up!

—The world may strike you out, but God will give you a home run!

—The world may think you are a loser, but God will make you a winner!

—The world may think you are weak, but God will make you strong!

No wonder the songwriter declared, "Hold to his hand, God's unchanging hand!"

It's the same hand that fed five thousand with two little fishes and five loaves of bread!

It's the same hand that touched a blind man's eyes and man him see!

It's the same hand that touched a lame man's leg and made him walk again!

It's the same hand the carried an old rugged cross to Calvary one day!

It's the same nail scarred hand that was nailed to the cross of salvation!

He died out on Calvary!

The world intended it for bad, but God had a hand in the plan.. and early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with all power!

All power in his hands!

No.9708-Revival

The Danger of Changing your Prescription

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 25, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land. " 2 Chronicles 7:14

Introduction

Have you ever visited the doctor and walked away with a prescription? After a battery of tests, interviews, and physical checks, many people leave the doctor's office with a to-do list. Sometimes what the doctor gives is a referral to another doctor, an appointment for screening, and some sound advice. Many times patients leave the doctor's office with a prescription for special medicine that is to be taken at specific times and under specific conditions.

Some prescriptions are simple: they only require an over the counter medicine. Others require restricted medicines that cannot be purchased without a doctor's order; even then it can only be refilled according to the doctor's instructions.

What's on a prescription? It usually tells the name of the medicine that is being prescribed, how often it should be taken, and how many pills or spoonfuls should be taken with each dose and how each dose should be taken. The prescription also tells how much medicine should be given to you the first time and how many times you can refill it. The doctor will sign and date the prescription to verify that it has been prescribed by a professional.

The prescription a patient receives is associated with a diagnosis or a determination of the nature of an illness. It is also associated with a prognosis, or a course of action that will lead to an outcome.

It's important for patients to take medicine as it is prescribed and not try to change anything. A certain man left the doctor's office with a prescription physician to take one aspirin a day for his heart. The doctor said an aspirin a day would help prevent a heart attack. The patient thought he was very smart. In fact, he thought he was so smart that he figured – if one aspirin is good - two would be better. So, he changed his simple prescription made one of his own liking, and day after day my dad took two aspirin. He felt good about himself and had no problems until one day his nose began to bleed...

and it bled, and bled, and bled. He panicked and rushed to the ER. When they learned that he had been taking two aspirins a day they told him, "Your doctor prescribed one aspirin a day to thin your blood a little to prevent heart attacks. When you changed it to two tablets a day you made your blood so thin you almost killed yourself." Your doctor knows what's best for you?

Is it possible that God has given us a prescription for living the abundant life, but we have changed it a bit? Have we added a few ideas of our own or taken away a few. We trust the doctor, that's why we follow his orders. Some don't have family doctors they go to a clinic and get treatment from a doctor whose name they cannot pronounce, whose degrees they never took the time to verify. We leave his office with a piece of paper that we cannot read and give that to a pharmacist that we have never met. He gives us a chemical compound that we do not understand and we take it home and take every pill according to the instructions on the package. We trust the doctor and the pharmacist, but there are any many who know God, they have verified that he is mighty and powerful, they can read and understand his word, but when he gives us a prescription for abundant living, often we don't follow the instructions.

When we change the prescription, the results are unpredictable! We should follow God's directions, no more and no less; to do anything else could worsen our condition instead of making things better.

·We cannot add to God's Word - with advice of horoscopes and psychics

We can't add to God's teachings – the teachings of Discovery Channel or the History channel.

We can't mix the pure medicine of God with the advice of often ungodly psychologists, sociologists or teachers.

And we can't mix the commandments of God with the man-made doctrines of various preachers, priests, and prognosticators.

As Christians, God has given us a prescription to get our prayers answered our souls saved and spiritual healing that will lead to the abundant life. We should not try to change that prescription, but take our dosage, one day at a time.

Exposition

This text focuses on God's response to a prayerful request for the presence of God by the children of Israel.

Solomon constructed a great temple that was to become the literal house of God. Israel had meandered between godliness and idolatry for years, drawing the anger of God. The health of the nation was affected and their national pride and enthusiasm declined. The people hoped that building a new tabernacle would result in God's blessing and favor. They asked for forgiveness, healing, and salvation.

They received an answer from God when he spoke to Solomon telling them that the forgiveness, healing and salvation they sought would require them to repent and turn from their wicked ways and to continuously seek the mercy of God.

It was a clear prescription: God expects that his people, who are called by his name if they have dishonored his name by their iniquity, should honor it by accepting the punishment of their iniquity. They must humble themselves under his hand, and pray for the removal of the judgment, and seek the face and favor of God. The prescription added one final instruction: they must turn from their wicked ways and return to the God from whom they have revolted.

It was a tough prescription, but as years passed the people tried to add to the instruction. The repented from some of their wicked ways; they humbled themselves, but not completely and they often shared their allegiances with the ungodly nations around them while still serving God as well.

They changed the prescription. It resulted in the Northern Kingdom being conquered by the Assyrians and the Southern Kingdom being destroyed by the Babylonians. It proved that there is danger in changing God's prescription.

God's Prescription

God has a prescribed course for believers. It is one we should follow as the body of Christ and one we should follow as individuals. To achieve the life God wants for us we should:

LEARN TO READ YOUR PRESCRIPTION: Good patients learn to read a doctor's prescription. Often what looks like chicken scratch on handwritten prescriptions is a list abbreviations written in Latin; QD means every day; BID means two times a day and QID means four times a day. Sometimes special instructions are in Latin such as PC which means not on an empty stomach or AC, which means before meals. It helps to know how to read the prescription that your doctor gives and also that God gives. God's prescription for the abundant life is in the Bible. However, to many people the bible is like chicken scratch, a big book filled with hard to read words. Many have found it helpful to attend Bible studies to get a better understanding of God's word. In Bible study, we learn to understand our prescription, just what it is God wants us to do. That's why 2 Timothy 2:15 says, "Study to shew thyself approved a workman that needed not be ashamed, but rightly diving the word of truth."

DON'T SUBSTITUTE: Often a doctor will give a patient a prescription that requires a specific medicine. In this case, it is marked, "no substitution," yet many try to get a generic brand that does the same thing, but is cheaper. We change the prescription. Many do the same thing in our spiritual lives. God gives us specific instructions build a happy marriage: Husbands love your wives as Christ loves the church; wives submit yourselves to your husbands. Many marriages run into trouble because some chose to change the prescription. God says specifically, "Thou shalt not steal," but we change it when we see something we want, but don't have the money for it. If God has told us to live within our means, use our money and time wisely and exercise frugality, we can mess up our financial lives when we change the prescription and buy things we can't afford or otherwise live above our means.

FOLLOW THE DOSAGE: If the doctor gives a dosage that tells when we are to receive our medicine and how much; we will run into difficulties if we change the prescription and take any amount we see fit and any time that is convenient for us. In Hebrews 10:25 God says warns us not to "forsake the assembling of ourselves" or attend worship regularly. Some have changed that prescription to mean "I will come when it is convenient for me or when I get around to it." Malachi 3:10 says "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse," but we have changed that prescription to "I will give on special occasions or if I have something left." Exodus 20:14 says, "Thou shalt not commit adultery" but we have changed that to "Thou shalt not get caught." Just as changing the timing and the amount of a dosage causes problems with a prescription, the same is true when it comes to obedience to our God.

The Benefits of the Prescription

Finally, brothers and sisters, those who follow God's prescription have a healthy prognosis that will lead to eternity.

God told Solomon If the people who were called by his name would humble themselves and pray, and seek his and turn from their wicked ways that he would hear from heaven, forgive their sins and heal their land.

It was a prescription for humility, prayer, and repentance. If followed to the letter God promised a healthy prognosis that he would hear from heaven and heal their land.

The call to repentance is a prescription that cannot be substituted with a generic version of turning over a new leaf. When we repent we look back over our mistakes and conclude that we are "sorry" for our mistakes and sorry that we disappointed and disobeyed God. When we repent we close the door on those actions and resolve not to return. Acts 3:19 "Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord. – Those who repent say, to God "Wash me, whiter than snow!" Wash me in the blood of the Lamb!

There is one medicine that is on God's prescription and it cannot be substituted for a generic brand; it's the blood of Jesus

When we are sick in body, we can go to drug store and get prescriptions filled.

When there is a headache....Extra Strength Excedrin

When there is a stomach ache ...Pepto Bismal

When there is chronic pain and fever ... Advil or Tylenol

When there is irregularity. Ex-Lax

When you have aches and pains..24 hour Aleve

Our Lord has given this world a prescription that can only be filled at Calvary.

What this world needs is medicine strong enough to counter to the effects of sin, but it can only be found at one place; at the foot of the cross!

At Calvary, there is strong medicine! At Calvary the:

—WOUNDED CAN BE HEALED. Isaiah said, "he was wounded for our transgressions and bruised for our iniquities, the chastisement of our peace is upon him, and with his stripes we are healed.

—BAD IN ATTITUDE CAN BE CHANGED: A centurion soldier who had heckled Jesus had an attitude change at Calvary, for he cried out "Surely, he must be the Son of God."

—GUILTY CAN FIND FORGIVENESS: For I heard Jesus cry out "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do!"

—BURDENS OF THE WEAK CAN BE LIFTED: For Jesus said come unto me all ye that are burdened and heavy laden, and I will give you rest, my yoke is easy and my burden light.

—SINNER CAN FIND SALVATION: The songwriter declares "There is a fountain, filled with blood that flows from Immanuel's veins. And sinners plunged beneath the flood lose all their guilt and stain.

I don't know about you, but I've decided to follow the doctor's orders.

When I get over, I'm going to remember where my blessing came from.

Some people give credit to the doctor when they healed. Some thank the hospital.

But I heard a songwriter declare: "I know it was the blood. I know it was the blood that saved me. One day when I was lost, he died upon on the cross. I know it was the blood that saved me.!"

It was Jesus who died out on Calvary!

It was Jesus who rose on Sunday Morning!

I know it was the blood that saved me!

No. 9709-Revival

God's Daylight Saving Time

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 1, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "Then spake Joshua to the Lord in the day when the Lord delivered up the Amorites before the children of Israel, and he said in the sight of Israel, Sun, stand thou still upon Gibeon; and thou, Moon, in the valley of Ajalon" Joshua 10:12 "And it was about the sixth hour, and there was a darkness over all the earth until the ninth hour." Luke 23:44

Introduction

Did you enjoy the extra hour sleep you received last night? How did that happen? That was because Daylight Savings Time ended and things returned to normal.

This spring we gave up an hour of our mornings so that the warm, lazy days of summer could continue long into the night. By slicing off an hour, we enjoyed the sunshine, the warmth, a few more moments in the front yard, a little more time to play and enjoy.

We stole an hour from ourselves, but last night we had to give it back!

This whole idea of playing with time, tampering with the calendar and changing our days started a long time ago. In the year 325 AD Pope Gregory changed the world's calendar. He noticed that the Julian Calendar, forced on the world by Julius Ceasar, had 365.25 days in a year. That .25 days kept adding up and it made it hard to predict Easter. So the gave the world a new calendar that contains 364.25 days a year. To make it all come out to be an even 365 days a year, he invented something called a leap year and every fourth year he stuck in an extra day and called it February 29th. Since the Julian calendar, with its extra .25 days had added several days to the world's clock, Pope Gregory ordered ten days sliced off the calendar to straighten things out so that Easter would always fall on the first Sunday after the first full moon of Spring. So folks who went to bed on October 31 woke up on November 10th.

Then Benjamin Franklin came up with the idea of giving everyone just a little more time to enjoy pretty days without changing the calendar itself. He called it Daylight Savings time. The country played with the idea for a while and in the mid-1960's it was announced that any state that wanted to save more sunshine in the summer could spring forward in the Spring, but they would have to give it back in the fall.

Every state went for it except Indiana and Arizona. Indiana gave in 2006, but Arizona still refuses to mess with the clock. It says the state has more than enough sunshine in both the summer and winter.

Today, we have regained an hour we lost, but thanks to Pope Gregory we are still ten days behind.

The whole idea of losing time should be concern the faithful because we know that unlike Daylight Savings Time, we can't get back time we have lost. It's like those ten days Pope Gregory took, and we can't get them back.

We can try to hold back the clock with plastic surgeries, tummy tucks, and hair dye, but you won't wake up younger or reliving the years of your youth.

We can double our pace, but you can't get back time we have squandered. Pope Gregory took ten days, but alcoholism may have taken ten years. Many have squandered 20 years going around in circles. Some have squandered most of this year. They went to bed on December 31st and woke up on November 1st without accomplishing anything and getting any closer to God. It's like the devil sliced ten months, or ten years out of your life and you find yourself saying, "Where did the time go?" That's when we start singing that Tyrone Davis song, "If I could turn back the hands of time."

Today, there is good news! You can't spring forward or fall back or get back anytime you have lost, but our God will give us a little more daylight and keep the door open for us to give us just enough time to come to him and be saved.

God wants to save us from losing so much time wandering from one lost state to another.

God wants to save us from blundering in the dark, blindly stumbling over our mistakes.

God is holding back the sun, to save us from ourselves!

As Christians, we are happy to know that we serve a God, who is willing to hold the door of salvation open to us, to give us a little more time to be saved. It's God's version of Daylight Saving Time."

Exposition

This text focuses on Joshua confident command to the sun and moon based on his faith in God.

The Gibeonites asked Israel for help after being attacked by five kings of the land. In an all-night march, Joshua lead the huge army of Israel in a surprise attack on the five kings. One Israeli army fighting five kings was a huge task, but Joshua moved with confidence because he had the promise of God. In Joshua 10:8 God says to Joshua, "..Fear them not: for I have delivered them into thine hand; there shall not a man of them stand before thee."

God started working his miracles. Despite facing the armies of five kings, Joshua totally confused his enemies. Pastor Steve Bilynskyj notes that the surprise attack caught the five kings off guard. They ran uphill then downhill trying to get away. Then God opened the windows of heaven and rained hailstones on all of their armies. The hailstones only fell on the armies of the five kings. This miracle wiped out most of their armies not leaving much for Joshua to do. Joshua 10:11 says, "they were more which died with hailstones than they whom the children of Israel slew with the sword."

Now after running up and down mountains for 20 miles and being slaughtered by hailstones from heaven, God does something unusual; he took a command from "human being," not a prayer request, but a command. Joshua 10:12 says, Joshua "Spake" to the Lord and commanded the sun and the moon to stand still. And God responded. It had never happened before, and it would never happen again, but Joshua pushed the envelope; he spoke, and God obeyed. Joshua 10:13 says, "And there was no day like that before it or after it, that the Lord hearkened unto the voice of a man: for the Lord fought for Israel." The Lord overlooked Joshua's impetuous act one time because he wanted Israel to success. Their victory was in his will; he had already declared them the victors.

When the sun stood still, Israel was given daylight it needed to achieve victory. Gibeon was saved by this extra time provided by God's Daylight Saving Time.

Great Miracles

GOD WANTED ISRAEL TO SUCCEED: One truth we learn from this passage is that God wanted Israel to succeed. He fought with them. For Israel, God rained down hailstones on their enemies and made the sun stand still because he wanted them to succeed. Today, God wants believers who are walking a Godly path to succeed. He goes ahead of us and creates a climate for our victory. For Israel, it was hailstones. Hailstones were not unusual, but it was unusual for them to fall only on the armies of the five kings! To top it off, he put the icing on the cake by giving Israel more time.

When we are trying to do God's will, God fights for us. He fights for our families! He fights for our God-inspired dreams! He fights to help us succeed. He's willing to do extraordinary things for us if we will live according to his will. God wants us to succeed.

ISRAEL REACHED OUT TO FOLKS WHO DIDN'T HAVE IT ALL TOGETHER: The miracles recorded in Joshua were given while Israel was reaching out to the Gibeonites, a people who didn't quite have it all together. The Gibeonites were a nation of liars, tricksters and deceivers. They had formed an alliance with Israel before Israel learned how bad they were. They proved to them that Israel served a mighty God and won them over by demonstrating before their eyes what God could do. The miracles were a blessing to Israel, but they happened because they were a being a blessing to Gibeon. Because the sun stood still and hailstones fell from heaven, Gibeon was saved. The daylight helped Israel, but it saved Gibeon. Gibeonites became followers of God. They helped rebuild the walls with Nehemiah. They served the Tabernacle and came to accept God as their own. Today, God is holding the sunshine of his love and grace for someone who does not have it all together. Someone in the congregation of the righteous has reached out to you, demonstrating his love through them. He has worked several small miracles for you already and right now he is holding the daylight for you to give you a chance to accept him for yourself. You may have lost time, wasted time, or allowed time to slip away, but like Motel 6, God's is leaving a light on just for you! You may not have it all together yet, but you act quickly and accept him because it is Daylight Saving Time.

IF YOU ARE LOOKING FOR DAYLIGHT; GOD's GOT IT: The Gibeonites sought to survive through hookups and connections with Israel and anyone who could help them, but the daylight and deliverance they needed came from God. The people who know God, who are working with you, are vessels he's using to help you. He's the who can give you the daylight you seek! Are you struggling to realize daylight in your spiritual life? Are going through a tough time, and you can't seem to see the light at the end of the tunnel? You don't need to be perfect; in fact you may not have it all together, but you can still find the daylight by accepting his love in your life and doing it while there is still time!

It's saving time!

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that the sign that daylight is coming is when we see the bright and morning star!

The reality for every believer is that many of us have lost time. We have lost time by our recklessness. We have lost time because of our foolishness, and we have lost time because of forced downtime.

It was forced downtime that caused Job to lose his money, health, and family!

It was forced downtime that made a woman with a blood-related problem to lose 12 years of her life dealing with an issue.

It was forced downtime that made a lame man sit by the pool for 38 years waiting for a blessing.

Yet, despite all of what appeared to be lost time, when God showed up, what was lost time was turned good-time.

When Jesus shows up, we can see the light of day!

When Jesus shows up, it's Daylight Saving time!

When everyone says we should fail because you can't see the light, that's Daylight Saving time!

When we have given up, he shows up to give us hope.

When we have dropped our heads in despair, he shows up to give us courage!

When we have fallen along the way, he shows up to give us a hand up!

There's one final thing we might note about the goodness of the Lord. When the day comes when we have endured the hardships of the night, we have the joy of knowing that "weeping endures but a night, but joy comes in the morning!"

In the morning for about an hour something happens in the sky, we can see the morning star! The morning star lets us know that daylight is one the way!

What is this morning star? Well, David said we might find the answer in one called the Rose of Sharon, but in Revelation 22:16 Jesus said, "I am the bright and morning star."

Isaiah said he was wounded for our transgressions. He was bruised for our iniquities, the chastisement of our peace was upon him and by his stripes we are healed."

His name is Jesus, our hope in a weary land!

His name is Jesus, our bridge over troubling water!

He came to this earth to show us that He is the light of the world!

Out on Calvary, he hung on an old rugged cross! From the 6th to the 9th hour he turned out the lights of heaven!

For Joshua, the sun stood still, but out on Calvary the sun refused to shine!

For Joshua, the moon stopped its orbit, but out on Calvary the moon refused to shine!

The thunder began to roll, and the lightning flashed, but it was saving time!

Father, it's saving time! Into thy hands, I commend my spirit

They buried him in a borrowed tomb, but early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

His name is Jesus and those who don't know him need to come to him because it's saving time!

No.9710-Revival

Not far from the kingdom

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 8, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "And when Jesus saw that he answered discreetly, he said unto him, Thou art not far from the kingdom of God. And no man after that durst ask him any question." Mark 12:34

Introduction

Have you ever seen a person who came very close to making a wise decision and then chose another direction? We've seen many people who know what they should do but simply do not do what is right for unexplainable reasons. When this happens the consequences are usually predictable: The man who put off repairing the breaks on his cars had an accident. The family that planned to set up a savings plan were devastated when hit by hard times. The man who had all the telltale signs of a serious sickness refused checkups for years, died of an illness that could have been treated. In each case, the parties involved accepted the wisdom of the right choice but refused to act on what they knew was the right thing to do. They came close but remained so far away.

The distance between doing what needs to be done and remaining stagnant can be measured by the number of excuses that we offer. Our excuses form an impassable barrier between where we are and where we need to be. Look at the case of Agrippa in Acts 26:19-29. He was "almost a Christian." Almost was all! Paul answered and said, "I would to God that thou wert not only almost, but altogether such as I am, except these bonds." Look at Felix in Acts 24:24-27—when Paul preached about righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come—Felix trembled, but said, "Go thy way for this time, and when I have a more convenient season I will send for thee." He was so close, but so far away.

There are people today who know they should be actively involved in church ministry, but they put off making the decision because of their excuses. The more excuses they give the further they get from the kingdom.

Suppose the reasons people give for not actively participating in a church were also given for not going to a football or basketball game, how would they sound?

"I would go to a football game, but every time I go, they ask for money?"

"I would go to a football game, but I'll have to sit next to people who aren't very friendly."

"I would go to a football game, but the seats are hard and uncomfortable."

“I would go to a football game, but the coach of the team never came to see me.”

“I would go to a football game, but I’ll be forced to sit with hypocrites who only come to see what others will be wearing.”

“I would go to a football game, but the game may go into overtime and I’ll have stay too long!”

“I would go to a football game, but my parents made me go to games when I was growing up and I swore that when I got grown I’d never go again.”

The distance between knowing God and becoming an active member of the kingdom of God is is measured by the number of excuses we give.

As Christians, our desire is to get closer to God every day. When he speaks we want to hear him, when he commands we want to respond. When we acknowledge him he’s only a prayer away.

Exposition

This text focused on a scribe who watched as other religious leaders questioned Jesus and left impressed with the Lord.

He watched as his companions grilled Jesus on a number of issues with the intent of tricking into speaking against God or the laws of Moses. The issues involved deciding whether or not sacrifices were needed, and which was the greatest commandment of Moses.

They even asked Jesus silly questions such as if seven brothers married the same woman after each brother died, whose wife would she be in the kingdom of heaven. As Jesus answered one question after another, evading their traps, the scribe watched with admiration.

Jewish rabbis had cataloged all the commandments in the Old Testament, and they said that the law of Moses could be reduced to 613 commandments. That is the way they looked at the Old Testament...613 commandments. For centuries, they had been arguing over which of those was the greatest commandment. Some of the Jewish rabbis believed that it had to be something to do with sacrifices, since there are so many commandments in the Old Testament about sacrifices. But they were mistaken. Other rabbis had various other opinions on this subject, and yet, here, finally, was a scribe who had the courage and the sincerity to go to Christ to ask Him this question.

The final question asked was asked in verse 28: Which is the first commandment. A commentary on the text in “The Working Preacher” says, “The question lead into Jesus’ reciting of the Shema (Hebrew: hear) which are the words that are still recited daily by persons of the Jewish faith. The text in Deuteronomy 6:4-5 is expanded by Jesus to include “with all your mind” (12:30). Jesus adds to his response by citing a second that is like this: “You shall love your neighbor as yourself,” from Leviticus 19:18.

The scribe agrees with Jesus’s interpretation of Moses’ law and makes it known. His response prompts Jesus to say “You are not far from the kingdom of God.’

He was not far from the kingdom because he accepted the teaching of Christ.

He was not far from the kingdom because he sought out Christ for answers.

He was not far from the kingdom because he was not ashamed to bear witness to the truth.

He was not far from the kingdom of God, but he was still a great distance away.

Signs that you are not far away

There are many who are not fully in the faith, but they are not far away. Their distance is measured only by the number of their excuses. What are the signs?

IF YOU BELIEVE GOD ANSWERS PRAYERS: If you believe God answers prayers, you are not far from the kingdom. There are many people who believe God exists, but they do not believe that he is personal. Some believe he is personal, but he needs a little help. A woman in South Louisiana made a Facebook post that she prayed to God to sell her house. She went into a hardware store that sold small statues of St. Joseph. She prayed to St. Joseph and asked him to say a word to God for her and then planted the statue in her front yard upside down. When her house was sold weeks later, she credited St. Joseph for the sale. Her understanding and faith in God was so close, but so far away because she had a room full of statues to which she prayed to give God help to answer her prayers. Today, if you believe you can speak to God directly and he will hear and answer you, you are on point. If you are not a member of a church actively serving him, how many excuses stand between you and the kingdom?

The faithful have learned that prayer changes things. They are not standing on sidelines waiting; they have jumped into kingdom building with both feet because they have seen what prayer to God, without the help of any statues, can do.

Prayer can take a seriously ill body and make it whole again!

Prayer can take your failures and turn them into victories!

Prayer can take your blunders and turn them into blessings!

Prayer can take your fears and turn them into confidences!

Prayer can take your stumbling blocks and turn them into stepping stones!

Prayer can take your weaknesses and turn them into strength!

If you believe in the power of prayer, but you have not come forward to accept Christ, you are so close, but so far away!

IF YOU BELIEVE GOD IS MERCIFUL AND FORGIVING: If you believe God has mercy on those who are in distress and forgives those who have made mistakes, you are not far from the kingdom. God has a reputation for occasionally changing his mind and reversing decisions he has made concerning us. That's the essence of mercy, to receive a response from God that considers our extenuating circumstance. For example, Hezekiah received notice from God to set his house in order and prepare to die, but after hearing a plea for mercy from Hezekiah, he was granted 15 more years. We know God shows mercy. Psalm 103:8 says, "The LORD is merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and plenteous in mercy." If you believe God is merciful and will forgive your past mistakes, you are not far from the kingdom. What stands between you and you and the kingdom is your decision to make a change in your life. Isaiah 55:7 says, "Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the LORD, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon."

The faithful have learned that God is merciful. They know that:

It was the mercy of the Lord that kept us from throwing up our hands and giving up the fight!

It was the mercy of the Lord that helped us to recover after a staggering loss!

It was the mercy of the Lord that helped healed our broken hearts and mended our wounded faith.

If you believe that God is merciful and forgiving, but you have yet not come forward to receive his mercy, you not far from the kingdom! The distance is measured only by the number of excuses you make.

IF YOU BELIEVE GOD WILL MAKE A WAY: If you believe that God opens doors that are closed and will make a way out of no way for those who trust him, you are not far from the kingdom. The essence of faith in God is that is always thinking of our best and working situations to our advantage. One stanza in the song, "I won't complain" says, "He knows what's best for me, although my weary eyes cannot, so I just say thank you Lord, I won't complain." That's the essence of the faith experience, trust in the knowledge that God's got our future in his hand and he will not let us fail in our kingdom building efforts. The word of God indicates that those who live righteously will never be forsaken. God puts food on the table in miraculous ways. He has a way of opening doors, making opportunities available that did not exist. God will make a way for the faithful. That's why Psalm 37:25 says, "I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread."

The faithful have learned that God is constantly working for us.

When doors are shut in our faces, he makes a way!

When mountains seem too high for us to climb, he makes a way!

When valleys seem too deep to cross, he makes a way!

If you believe, that God makes a way for those who trust him, but you have not come forth to acknowledge that belief to others, you are not far from the kingdom. The distance is measured only by the number of excuses you make!

If you believe

Finally, brothers and sisters, if you believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God sent to save us from our sins, you are not far from the kingdom!

The scribe in our text was a man who believed in God and who led a godly life. He respected for the law of Moses and had been taught the godly way. In all respects he was a good man, but he never made the final step and remained not far from the kingdom.

The rich young ruler came to Jesus and asked what he needed to do to enter the kingdom. He obeyed all of the laws of Moses and lived righteously. When Jesus told him to sell all he had and give it to the poor, the young ruler walked away unsaved. He was not far from the kingdom.

Nicodemus came to Jesus by night and asked, "What must I do to be saved?" Jesus said, "You must be born again." Nicodemus left without making that final step and remained not far from the kingdom.

If you believe in God, but just haven't acted on that belief you are not far from the kingdom.

If you believe that God opens doors for the faithful, but just haven't put your whole trust in him, you are not far from the kingdom.

If you believe that God is merciful and will pick up those who have fallen and give them another chance, you are not far from the kingdom!

The only step remaining is for to own God publicly and throw yourself into his service. Romans 10:9 "That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved."

There is no blessing in being "not far from the kingdom;" the blessing is actually being a child of the King.

When you are a child of the King, you get immediate access to the throne of grace with an unlimited calling plan. You can call him in the morning, noonday or midnight hour!

When you are a child of the King, you get a red white and blue medical card, white for the spirit of healing, blue for the grace of God and red for the blood of Christ. When you are sick, call him, for "There is a balm in Gilead that is good for the sin-sick soul."

When you are a child of the King, you get a heavenly gold card that is recognized by the bank of heaven. It's gold because, "My Father is rich in houses and land and whole the wealth of the world in his hands."

When you are a child of the King, you get a passport into the land of "no more." In the land of "No more" there will be no more pain, heartaches and tears! In the land of "no more," there will be no weeping in the middle of the night!

I don't know about you, but I'm glad to be a child of the king!

Who is this king? Who is the king of Glory? The Lord mighty in battle!

His name is Jesus!

He came and lived among men for 33 short years.

He healed the sick and raised the dead and welcomed all to the kingdom of God

He was nailed to an old rugged crows and died out on Calvary

Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave..

He's only a prayer a way!

You can call him in the morning! You can call him in the midnight hour!

Call him in the noonday. Call him at the midnight hour!

No wonder the songwriter said, "Jesus is on the mainline tell him what you want!

Call him up and tell him what you want!

Call Him!

Call Him!

...and tell him what you want!

No. 9711-Communion

He shall bless thy Bread!

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 15, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "And ye shall serve the Lord your God, and he shall bless thy bread, and thy water; and I will take sickness away from the midst of thee." Exodus 23:25

Introduction

Have you ever slept in a fine hotel, but couldn't wait to get home to sleep in your own bed? Have you ever wondered why? Why is it that in that hotel you had room service, maid service and many amenities, but couldn't wait to get home to a house that you would have to clean, without maid service or room service? It's because somehow, you have come to know that it has been given to you as a blessing from God. Even though it is not as luxurious as one room in a fine hotel, it is a blessed little house with a blessed bed, blessed pillow and linens.

There is something to be said when we receive something as a blessing! It has a greater meaning to us and we appreciate its use in ways that mystify others.

That's why before we eat our food we thank God for providing us with a bite of food to eat. It may not be an expensive delicacy, but it seems to taste better because we recognize it as a blessing from God.

Look at your life and count the ways that God has kept his promise to you. He promised that if you believed he would make things happen for you. That's what happened when the old man in family refused to sell anything in his house, despite offers from others to get him more modern versions. He drove the same old car and kept it in good shape for over 20 years. He sat in the same chair for 30 years. He had electric lights in his home, but he wouldn't throw away the candles. When asked why the old man said, "I can buy a new car now, thank the Lord, but that old was the answer to a prayer. I have electric lights, thank the Lord, but I remembered when I was so poor and I couldn't buy candles. When I got my first candle, it was blessing from the Lord." Finally, the old man said, "When you get something that you know has been blessed by the Lord, it's hard to turn it loose."

Through life, we have collected many mementoes that remind us of blessing we received or a blessed experience. It doesn't mean anything to others, but it means a lot to the person who has been the recipient of the promise of God.

While others complain about the menu in the cafeteria or mumble about what's for supper; the person who knows that every slice of bread is a blessing from God bows his head and offers thanks; even if it is for a peanut butter sandwich.

As Christians, we are eternally grateful that God blesses every aspect of our lives. He is faithful. Every new morning he blesses us with new mercies and examples of his grace.

Exposition

This text focuses on God's promise to provide blessed bread and water to his people during their wilderness journey.

In the Wilderness, Moses dealt with the passions of Israel as it struggled to survive. Speaking through him, God reminded Israel that if the people remained faithful to him, kept his commandments and followed him devoutly that he would bless their bread and water and would not scourge them with sickness.

During Israel's forty year journey, getting sufficient bread and water was always a priority. By some estimates, there were at least a million people wandering in the desert; bread and water came at a premium. Bread was impossible to make because the required elements: flour, meal or corn derivatives were not available. Nothing grew in the desert. There were no fields of wheat or corn to harvest. Yet, despite their agricultural poverty, the people still had bread.

God gave them blessed bread from heaven. It was called Manna or "What is it?" Exodus 16:31 indicates that it had many of physical attributes of Coriander seeds and the taste of honey. Ground Coriander seeds had a shelf life of one day. They had to be ground and consumed that because on the next day they were tasteless. God told Israel to gather these morsels of bread seed and prepare them one day at a time and not to take more than the family needed; he would take care of the next day's bread through his grace. Each day, the ground was covered with sufficient bread seed to ground a make pans of bread for the family. As each family ate, they blessed God for blessing them with bread.

God blessed Israel with water as well. To supply a million people with sufficient water for its daily nutrition as well as its health and hygiene needs was a physical miracle. After crossing the Red Sea, after three days the people became thirsty and the came upon a pool of "Bitter Water" that they could not drink. God responded in Exodus 15:25 by showing Moses how to make the waters sweet or palatable. When God blessed the water, it became sweet. Throughout their wilderness journey, God constantly created water sources out of rocks and other miraculous means. All of these miraculous provisions made it obvious that they were being provided blessed water by God himself.

Although God blessed Israel constantly with bread and water they did not see his provision as a blessing. Although they were being led by God they didn't like the path he chose for them (Numbers 21:4), they didn't like the manner and complained of no water, even though it always appeared when they needed it. God became angry and sent snakes among them causing sickness and death. It only ended when Moses raised a brass serpent on a pole and God took away the death.

If we are repentant, God promises us, just as he did Israel that "I will take sickness away from the midst of thee."

In the same way that God provided blessed bread and water for Israel in the wilderness, Jesus does the same for believers today.

Luke 24:31 Jesus took bread and blessed it. Bread is blessed when it is received as a gift from God to be broken and shared with others. When we bless the bread we receive, we recognize the giver of bread. When we acknowledge God and obey him, he keeps blessing our bread every day!

Communion Reminder

As we share in the Lord's Supper, we remind ourselves of the many ways that God has blessed us.

HE HAS BLESSED OUR BREAD: Jesus said "I am the bread of life." As believers, we have seen the many ways that he has blessed our lives. We have truly been the recipients of God's blessings because, like Israel, he has provided bread for us despite the fact that we have little or nothing to work with. He has blessed our little home, our little bed, and our little closet. He has blessed us with enough food to get fat and enough clothing to change when we get ready. He has blessed us through his grace. Each time we share in the Lord's supper, we don't see a cracker or wafer, we see God's blessed bread; we see bread from heaven. We see bread that satisfies. Matthew 5:6 says, "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled." We see blessed bread that represents Christ's gift of eternal life. In John 6:47- 48 Jesus says, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me hath everlasting life. I am that bread of life." We see blessed bread that has been given for the salvation of the world. In John 6:51, Jesus says, "I am the living bread which came down from heaven: if any man eat of this bread, he shall live for ever.." No, we don't see just a little cracker or wafer; we see more because it reminds us of God's promise to bless our bread if we obey him.

HE HAS BLESSED OUR BITTER WATERS: Israel encountered bitter water on its journey. They were thirsty, but all they received was bitter water, but God changed that by blessing their water. There are many people who have been wounded by so many bitter experiences that they have become bitter and unbearable. When we become bitter we quickly become one of many characters we associate with bitterness: Ebenezer Scrooge and The Grinch quickly come to mind, but there are many more that we know who are closer to home. Their faces are curled up and they are always frowning, complaining and rarely have a kind word to say. Sometimes our bitterness can make us unbearable.

If the truth is told, there are many of us who can testify that we approached life with a degree of bitterness until our God blessed our bitter spirit with a new attitude. Those who have changed their attitude about life and their condition can testify how God can change bitter water into sweet water. The power of God can transform bitter situations to better situations. God can take bad and turn it into good, loss and turn it into gain.

Therefore, we should not be overwhelmed by the bitter circumstances of this life because we are "more than conquerors" in Christ Jesus. When we share in the Lord's supper, it is a reminder to us of all the bitter situations that God has sweetened for us. It should remind us of the hope he has given and showered upon us. It is this hope that we remember at Lord's table. This is when we remember his promise to bless our bread and make our water sweet if we obey him.

HE HAS SAVED OUR SOULS: Israel sinned in the wilderness and brought all manner of sickness and hardships on themselves and their families. When they repented and turned from their sins, God took away his punishments and healed their land. Today, we are reminded of God's promise to restore us, even if we have done wrong. In a sense, God builds a hedge or fence around believers to keep evil away. It is because of that blessed hedge that we have enjoyed many things. When we sin, we anger God and he removes that hedge. In Israel's case snakes that were already in the desert that were unable to pester them on their journey were allowed to do what snakes do. When the people repented, the pestilence was removed. There are times when we can feel that the hedge around us has come down; we know instantly it's because of our sin. The good news is that Christ was raised up on a cross like Moses raised his pole. Through the shedding of his blood Christ paid the price for our sins. His blood redeems us and gives us one more chance to enjoy his love and favor. His blood rebuilds the hedge around us that the devil wants removed! At the Lord's table, we see the little sip of wine or juice, but it reminds us of how God has saved our souls through his blood. It reminds of how he continues to be a hedge around us every day through the power of his blood.

Blessed Bread

Finally, brothers and sisters, we rejoice today because through his grace, the God we serve continues to bless our bread every day!

The promise God made to Israel was that he would bless their bread if they remained faithful to him.

Though they sojourned in the wilderness for forty years, he never stopped blessing their bread!

When they crossed the River Jordan and entered the Promised Land, the manna stopped, but he blessed their crops and their harvests. He never stopped blessing their bread!

If they were attacked by enemies, he gave them the victory!

If all those around them crushed to the ground, he held them up by the strength of his hand! He never stopped blessing their bread.

Today believers can rejoice because through the grace of God, he never stops blessing our bread!

In our wilderness of despair, God has been our rock in a weary land.

In our wilderness troublesome times, God has been our shelter in the time of storm.

In our wilderness of desperation, God has been our way out of no way.

In the wilderness of frustration, God has been out of bridge over troubling waters.

We have made it thus far only because of his grace; God has been blessing our bread!

When we share in the Lord's Supper, we reminded that while God has blessed the works of our hand and the bread that we eat, "man shall not live by bread alone, but by everyone word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."

Jesus said, "I am the bread the life!"

While many may enjoy cornbread, shortening bread, and light bread, Jesus said, "I am the Bread of Life"-He is our "Life Bread!"

We cannot find it on the shelf in a store, but each new day brings us another slice of God's life bread.

It's not baked in an oven, but when we see the hand of God touch our finances, we know we seen another "life bread" blessing!

It's not flipped in a skillet, but when we have been healed from a sickness, we been served a slice of "Life Bread."

When we are blessed with spiritual renewal, that's a "Life Bread" blessing

As Saints eat from the Lord's Table, we are mindful of the fact that on this table represents God's "Life Bread," prepared in heaven and delivered in Bethlehem, which means the house of bread.

On this table is God's "Life Bread" which took 42 generations to prepare and 33 years to deliver.

To prepare the table, he had to suffer the humiliation of his critics!

To prepare the table, he had to pick up an old rugged cross and carry it to Golgotha's hill.

To prepare the table he had to die out on Calvary!

But Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave, with all power in his hands!

I thank God that every day he keeps on blessing me with the "Bread of Life!'

No. 9712-Funeral

The Final Exam

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 18, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son." Revelation 21:7

Introduction

Do you remember taking exams in school? For some, test-time was a time of anxiety, stress and frustration because so much depended on the outcome. Most have had at least one teacher that gave difficult tests that were almost impossible to prepare for because they were unpredictable. Nothing compared to the elation felt when we passed a difficult test with a high grade.

Experienced teachers who know how to give tests. Veterans have prepared hundreds of tests and checked thousands of test papers, writing notes along the margins and posting grades in red announcing failures or passing grades.

There is an allegorical truth we learn about life when we think of tests, especially as they relate to individual believers and God. This truth is that our lives seem filled with a series of tests, prepared by God, to prepare us for the final exam that is coming. Our life tests are strikingly similar to the tests we take in school.

The longer we live, our lives become an essay on how to deal with struggles, family issues, rear children, serve others and please God.

Sometimes it seems that God gives us multiple choice tests, forcing us to make difficult life choices. Should I go to college? Should I marry? Should buy or rent? Should I save or enjoy life now? Should I have surgery or not? Along the way, we seem to take many multiple choice tests.

We are even challenged to make true or false decisions or face situations that require us to fill in the blanks.

We are often frustrated by open book exams. They seem easy because we can use our notes and books, but they actually require more of us because we must search more pages of text and notes. An open book test is difficult when God gives the test, we can't hide anything from him; because our lives are virtual open books to him. Psalms 139:2 says he knows our "Downsitting and our uprising and understands our thoughts afar off." Open book tests are tough when God is the teacher.

It's not unusual for God to test the faithful. Abraham passed his test and learned that God has a ram in the bush. Daniel passed his test and learned that God is God even in the Lion's Den. The Three Hebrews Boys passed their test and learned that God is able to sustain those who trust him.

The life we celebrate today has been tested many times. She has faced the joys of matrimony and tragic loss. She has taught hundreds and watched young girls blossom into ladies. She has helped those tested in sickness and then had to take the same test herself. Her life has been an open book to God, where she came up short, certainly grace filled in the blanks.

As Christians, we strive to live in such a way that we meet each test that life gives us as we prepare for our final exam.

Exposition

This text focuses on John as he shares a prophecy of hope to believers that looks beyond the Day of Judgment into the victory of believers.

The Revelation paints a picture, in a graphic detail, of the last days of this world, the judgment of the ungodly and the reward of those who faithfully pass life's test, trusting and believing in Christ for their salvation.

According to John, those who are born into the kingdom of God by faith in Christ will face many trials, tribulations, and tests of faith, but those that endure and overcome, will be victorious.

In the Revelation, John saw the reward of the believers after all the tests are over. Jesus revealed to him the events of the last seven years of this world, called the tribulation. He also showed him the events of the Millennium, the thousand reign of Christ. Beyond that, however, John saw the eventual reward of all believers.

John saw the inevitable victory of the faithful. More than once he announced the victory to "he that overcometh." In this text he said those that over come will inherit all things. The word "things" is ambiguous. What does "all things" include? Paul writing in Philippians 4:8 described "things" suitable for Christians as: "...whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report." John saw believers in triumph sharing in every good thing in the kingdom of heaven. Since his vision was a vision of future events, the outcome has already been planned and prepared. It is simply waiting for believers to claim after their final exam.

Hebrews 9:27-28 says, "And as it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment: So Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation"

It means that each person will die in this life and will stand before the judgment for a personal examination. Knowing this will happen, Christ went to Calvary to take the penalty for our shortcomings and stands with us at our final moment of examination. If we come up a few points short, he his blood, will take care of anything omitted or wrongfully committed.

For the believer, who does her best, grace guarantees a passing grade.

The Tests

The preponderance of Bible teaching seems to point to three big questions that will be on every person's final exam?

DID YOU PREPARE YOURSELF FOR THE LIFE YOU WERE GIVEN? The idea of preparation is sprinkled all over the Bible. Paul's admonition to Timothy was to "study to show thyself approved." Jesus told a parable of ten virgins who waited for the wedding, some with lamps trimmed others who had no oil. In each instance, believers are encouraged to prepare and "Watch ye therefore for you not the day or hour." With the life we have been given, have we prepared ourselves? Did you learn to use the gifts God gave you to the maximum? Our friend finished high school and went on to college; attended Sunday School, and over the years studied some Bible classes to prepare herself. Each one of us has to do the same; each must maximize their God-given potential.

DID YOU SERVE OTHERS WITH YOUR LIFE?: The idea of service to others is paramount in the kingdom of God. Jesus constantly taught believers that we cannot serve God without serving others. Over the years, millions of believers have willingly given of themselves to help others. Working through churches, sororities, fraternities and civic groups, many have reached out and touched the helpless with an evangelistic zeal. Look at the Life of our friend. For 51 years, she has served as a mentor to young women teaching them finer womanhood and life skills. In and out of the classroom she has helped hundreds of girls starving for an embrace with arms opened wide enough to take in others while not neglecting her own three sons. Even in the final year of her life, she was still serving, thinking of others and making plans. We must all work while it is day, because when night comes, no man can work.

DID YOU PREPARE FOR THE NEXT LIFE? Many have made great life plans that do not include plans for the life to come. Consider the teenager who worked out her life plan. She planned to graduate high school and college. When asked "Then what?" she said she planned to pursue her career, marry, build a big house, and entertain friends. After that, she planned to retire, travel and see the world. After that, she planned to live to a ripe old age and die. Then came the final question, "Then what?" She had no answer because the next life was not in her plan.

Preparing for the next life is what Jesus wants us to do because he has already gone to prepare a place for us in the kingdom. Preparing means accepting Christ as savior. It means working to build the kingdom of God, studying, praying unceasingly, worshipping and giving unselfishly. It means obeying God's commands to the best of your ability and giving him the praise and glory for all you do. Our friend's life is a testament of a life prepared for the next life. She confessed Christ, worked to build the kingdom, gave her heart and soul and sought many ways to pray for others. Those who study, worship pray, obey and trust God are prepared for the next life.

The Final Grade

Vol 26-6206

Finally, brothers and sisters, we are aware that life gives us many pop quizzes and multiple choices along the way, but what matters most is the grade we receive on the final exam.

When we consider all things spiritual, this is the point where the comparison of the final exam in the educational community differs from that in the kingdom of God.

In the educational community, the final exam carries more weight but it is averaged in with all of the other grades. In the Kingdom of God, all of life's pop quizzes and tests are considered practice tests, it's the final exam the counts.

The final exam is comprehensive. It considers the totality of a person's life experience.

It considers all of the hills and mountains the believer has climbed!

It considers the years of service, praise worship, and sacrifice!

It considers a lifetime of faith and trust in God!

More than anything else, the final exam considers whether or not they have been born again, and tried in the fire!

When you've been tried in the fire, you know that days of tears and sadness may come but "weeping endures but a night and joy comes in the morning!"

When you've been tried in the fire, you know that despite the hopelessness of any situation "Our God is able to deliver us!"

When you've been tried in the fire, you never give up hope!

Though we endure many risings and fallings, we know that the God we serve is a good God! He will not abandon us or forsake!

John in Revelation 2:11 He that overcometh shall not be hurt of the second death.

Revelation 3:5 says, He that overcometh.... shall be clothed in white raiment; and... I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels.

Storms may rise! But she that overcometh shall inherit all things!

One of these days, by and bye, it'll all be over down here!

We who intend to overcome ourselves must keep telling the story!

Tell the world about Jesus, who died on Golgotha's hill, and rose after three days and nights, and is coming back again!

When this life is over what we want to hear the savior say is:

"Well Done!"

Well done!"

—

On Tuesday, November 10, 2015, Jerriedine Ford Hester Woods, took her final exam and passed from this life into glory!

9713-Thanks

Your seasons shall not cease

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 22, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "To everything there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven." Ecclesiastes 3:1; "While the earth remaineth, seedtime and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and day and night shall not cease." Genesis 8:22

Introduction

Have you experience a year where everything went as planned? Has there ever been a week when everything in your life was great and absolutely nothing went wrong? If you have, you are one of the few people in the world who can truthfully say that everything in their life is just as they expected. The fact is, there are very few people, if any, who experience a level of constancy in their lives in which everything stays the same. What we learn as life progresses is that just as there are seasons of the year, there are also seasons in our lives. Nothing remains the same.

Believers don't live with the false hope that there will ever be a day, in this life, when everything will be perfect. Our perfect little car will break down. Our perfect little house will develop a problem. Our perfect little relationship will hit a snag. Our perfect financial situation is challenged. Our perfect children begin to act not-so-perfect. We don't expect perfection, so we learn to deal with life as it comes. What we have to sustain us is God's promise that regardless to our season, he will be with us.

If we look back, we'll quickly see that despite all of our ups and downs, good days and bad days, God has delivered on that promise. What has God promised us? He has promised us that despite the difficult times we encounter that he will stand by us and deliver us. He did not promise that there would be no mountains; he did promise strength for the mountains. He did not promise that we would not walk through the valley of the shadow of death, but he did promise to walk with us. He did not promise to immunize us from sickness or trouble, but he did promise that he would deliver us and lead us away from temptation if we ask him. He promised to be with us always, in every situation and circumstance and to be only a prayer away.

As Christians, we know our lives experience many seasons, but throughout every minute of pain or glory God faithfully stands with us. The seasons will come and go; they will not cease and neither will the grace of God. Just as our seasons will not cease, neither will our thanks to God cease because he never leaves us alone.

Exposition

This text focuses on God's promise to Noah after the great flood. It was a promise that the world would not be destroyed by water again and additionally that seasons once enjoyed would continue.

The book of Genesis gives us an account of God's anger with the sins of mankind. In anger, got destroyed the known world with a great flood that destroyed every living thing except Noah and his family. During the flood, all of the seasonal activities with which mankind had become accustomed came to an end. There was no harvest there was no season of planting. There was no summer and neither was there a winter. There was no hot and there was no cold. Because of the flood, the seasons had come to a halt. In the aftermath of the flood, God decided not to destroy the world again, but would allow to operate as usual. He placed his rainbow in the sky as a sign of the promise that you made.

As chapter 8 closes, God promises that the seasonal cycle would be restored. God promised that as long as the earth existed the seasons would not cease. Seasons included much more then spans of weather. They also included times in our lives when we were either successful or recovering from a failure; times when we were happy and times when we were sad. These are the times that Solomon described in Ecclesiastes chapter three when he said "to everything there is a season:" a time to be born and a time to die; a time of happiness and time to cry. Solomon described all of these phases of our lives simply as seasons.

This was prophetic for us because it was limited to man's journey on earth. The text says while on earth the seasons will continue, but in the kingdom of heaven there will be no seasons.

In the kingdom of heaven, there will be no summer or winter. Neither will there be planting seasons and times of harvest.

It will be a day described by the Old Warriors of the faith as a time when every day will be Sunday and it will always be howdy and never goodbye. Until that time, however, the seasons will not cease and neither will the promise of God to provide for those who must live in every season of life,

What are our seasons?

Life presents us with many seasons, some of which are listed in Ecclesiastes 3:2-8. These are the seasons that every believer should expect:

SEASONS OF LIFE: There is a time for each person to be born and a time for each person to leave. It applies to all living things; there is an entry and exit date.

SEASONS CONFLICT: There will be a season of conflict between nations, municipalities and personalities. Conflicts are often wars of words, but sometimes they get physical. Seasons of conflict also involve times when we breaking down, tearing down or destroying.However, conflict doesn't last always; they are followed by a season of healing, rebuilding and restoration.

SEASONS OF GREAT FELLOWSHIP: There are seasons of happiness, reunion, rejoicing and celebration. In these seasons, there is much laughter, dancing, hugging, embracing, handshaking and baby kissing. However, they are often interrupted by periods of sadness, mourning and melancholy. Both seasons are a part of the package we call life.

SEASONS OF PROSPERITY: There are times when we get, keep, gather, store and enjoy an enormous amount of the good things in life. However, there are also seasons when we lose, discard, and castaway. We never get the opportunity to keep everything we find and to accumulate of the niceties we've seen over a lifetime without the loss of one.

SEASONS OF INVESTMENT AND DIVIDEND: There are also times in life when we plant seed or invest. We invest in our future with savings accounts, accumulation of assets and wisely using our money. There will come a time to "pluck up that which is planted" or reap the dividend of investment.

SEASONS TO SHOW LOVE AND TO HATE EVIL: There are times when we should show our love for our neighbors and friends through actively working to help them in times of need and trouble. Seasons such as these require us to take action and do what must be done. There are also seasons when we must take action to fight against evil and injustice. We are not always fighting evil, but there is a season or time when it must be done.

GOD IS WORKING IN EVERY SEASON: When we are faced with difficulties we can't see clearly, that's when our faith has to keep reminding us that, even when we cannot see him, God is making a way. When suffered through its season of despair in Egypt, they found it hard to see that God was still working for their freedom. At the Red Sea, they also found it hard to see. In the wilderness, they often suffered difficulties associated with the nomadic life. Water was always short and resources were few. They could not plant crops, or make new clothes. They were susceptible to disease and without military protection while they were in the wilderness.

Yet despite their dreadful season, God blessed them, even though they could not see.

BLESSINGS ARE SHOWERED, REGARDLESS OF THE SEASON: Just as the seasons of life will not cease, neither will the blessings of God that come regardless of the season cease. Ezekiel 34:26 says "I will cause the shower to come down in his season." Regardless to the season there will still be a shower of blessings. The remainder of verse 26 says, "There will be showers of blessings."

The seasons will not cease but, neither will the blessings. Just because it gets hot in the summer does not mean that the blessing stop in the summer. Just because it gets cold in the winter or there is snow on the ground, does not mean that blessings stop coming. It may be snow on the ground, but that doesn't stop the shower of blessings we have been promised by God. They will not cease.

In every season, God's grace will be poured out upon us.

When we have God's grace, we have more than enough!

When we have God's grace, the barrel is never empty!

When we have God's grace, we never walk in a courtroom with an able attorney!

When we have God's grace, we never enter a sickroom without a first class physician!
We have God's grace, regardless of the season; it will not cease!

Give Thanks in any season

Finally, brothers and sisters, regardless of the season you may be experiencing now, there is still a reason to give God thanks!

Some say global warming is affecting the seasons and causing climate change, but the seasons of your life are controlled by a God who does not change.

It does not matter whether we are plant and sowing in the springtime or enjoying harvest in the fall, God's blessings will not cease!

It doesn't matter whether we are sweltering in a season of heat in the summer or shivering in a season cold in the winter, God's blessings will not cease!

Every season will come in God's appointed time. Even if that season brings us difficulty, we shouldn't be too worried about because regardless of the season, God is still in the blessing business.

No matter what season you be experiencing, you must have faith in the power of God. You must believe that you serve an awesome God who can open doors you can't see.

In closing, I'm reminded of an old lady who lived in an old house in an area that was being purchased by a casino. The old lady refused to sell her old house so the casino pulled strings and had her house condemned. The demolition officials told the old lady she had thirty days to fix the old house or it would be torn down. The old lady just sat on the porch and read her Bible. While she read, her friends became concerned because the old lady wouldn't move. She had helped so many people that no one wanted to see her hurt. They put their heads together. At the end of the month the casino owners came to serve her eviction papers but to their surprise the neighbors had built a fine, brick house that could not be demolished. The old lady looked at the casino owner and said, "You told me that this old house had outlived its season, but the God I serve says regardless of seasons "There shall be showers of blessings."

I don't know about you, but I've decided that regardless of my season, I will thank the Lord.

I may have have been troubled by doubt in a season of confusion, but I will still say, "Thank you Lord!"

I may have been plagued by financial troubles in a season of economic downturns, but I will still say "Thank you Lord.",

I may have been troubled sickness in a season of declining health, but I will still say, Thank you Lord."

Thank you Lord for showing down on me the benefit of your grace. It was grace, paid for on hill call Calvary

It was grace paid for on an old rugged cross!

It was grace paid for when he was buried in a borrowed tomb!

But Early Sunday morning..

No.9714-Inspiration

When Will the Thanks End?

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 6, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "The end that my glory may sing praise to thee, and not be silent. O LORD my God, I will give thanks unto thee for ever." Psalm 30:12

Introduction

Has anyone ever done a favor for you and you said, "I owe you one?" Later when that person asked a favor of you, did you ever feel compelled to help out of gratitude for what was done for you? What if that person constantly asked favors of you, based on the same kindness shown years before? Does your gratitude for kindness show that you have limits?

All believers, at some point, must ask ourselves, "What do we owe one another?" There is an unwritten contract between the recipient of favor and the donor; in it, the recipient says, "I will always remember the kindness you have shown to me."

When we say, "I owe you one," to a friend it's a way of saying "I am grateful for your kindness." Even though we said, "I owe you one," does gratitude have limits? Are you promising to return the favor one for one?

One for one favor is the lifeblood of politicians. Few people support candidates for purely altruistic purposes. Most people expect something in return for their support, whether its policy changes or personal privilege. When a politician delivers, he has paid his debt. He owes us nothing.

However, gratitude has no limits and is often shown repeatedly. There is an Aesop fable about the slave and the lion that illustrates this thought. The slave stumbled upon the lion hurting in the woods. The slave discovered that the lion had a thorn in its paw that caused the pain. The slave removed the thorn, and the lion licked his hand in gratitude. Later, the lion found the slave hungry and went to his cave brought back fresh meat for him to eat; then licked his paw. Sometime afterward both the lion and the slave were captured. The emperor announced that there would be a dual in the arena between unfortunates and a lion who had been intentionally starved to make him fight. In the arena, the lion roared and awaited its victim, but when he saw that his victim was to be the slave who helped him, the lion came to the slave and licked his hand. Impressed, the Emperor asked and was told the story of their friendship. He immediately released the lion back into the wild and set the slave free out of respect for the display of gratitude shown in the arena.

A simple thanks says, "I owe you one," but gratitude says "I owe you one -for life." It may explain why the man who was once fed in a shelter constantly donates to homeless causes. It may explain why the man who man was orphaned himself keeps adopting orphaned children; or why the man who never had a childhood Christmas gift becomes a secret Santa every year and gives thousands of dollars to needy people. At age six a man he did not know gave his family a Christmas tree, it was a gift he never forgot.

We have all been the beneficiaries of someone's love. The gratitude we show in response is timeless and limitless. It's a thanks that never ends.

The songwriter Andre Crouch said, "How can I say thanks for the things you have done for me; things so undeserved, yet you gave to prove your love for me. The voices of a million angels could not express my gratitude; All that I am and ever hope to be, I owe it all to thee."

As Christians, we enter the season of Advent, celebrating the gift of the Christ Child to fallen humanity. We remember that, in Christ, God gave us the gift that keeps on giving, deserving thanks that never ends.

Exposition

This text focuses on David as he dedicates himself and his house to the praise of God forever.

The 30th Psalm is a composition designed for singing, accompanied with or without musical instruments.

Some suppose that the psalm was specifically written to praise God for the site selected for the temple he wanted to build for God. The temple was ultimately built by his son Solomon. Other scholars say that the use of the term "house" did not refer to a building, but to David's extended family. The scope and breadth of the psalm finds David meditating upon the many ways God has blessed his "house" or family.

In verses 1-5 he notes that the praise that his house has for God is unending. Even when the family endured difficulties, he said in verse five that God constantly replaced tears with smiles of joy. He said, "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning."

In verses 6,7 he reflects on the times of his prosperity and success. The times when he enjoyed excellent health and victory in every battle. Even as he enjoyed his success, he also endured hard times. In verse seven he says, "I was troubled."

In verses 8-10 he notes how he prayed to God in his troubles, seeking relief. In verse 10 he said, "Lord, be thou my helper."

In verses 11-12, he rejoiced during the times when God "turned my mourning into dancing."

The concluding thought of verse 12 is, "I will give thanks unto thee forever." God never stops turning darkness into light, trouble into triumph or loss into gain, so our gratitude for what he constantly does for us, will never end.

Why they will never end

As believers, we are challenged to inject a level of gratitude in our relations with each other that reflects an appreciation for what has been done for us by God through others. During this season of the year, beginning at Thanksgiving through year's end, we express our gratitude in ways that will never end.

WE ARE GRATEFUL FOR BLESSINGS: While there are some people who constantly complain about life, there are others who feel that something is always too long or too short. They never see the blessings God has given them, all they see is the difficulty that remains. We thank God for blessing us despite the fact that we do not deserve such blessings. Our thanks goes beyond, "We owe you one" so we will show our face at a worship service to pay God back. Our thanks reflects genuine gratitude that says, "we owe you -one life."

There is no one thing that God does for us. His blessings are too numerous to count. We recognize some of the ways that we have been blessed immediately. We see material evidence such as homes, cars, and a reasonable portion of health and strength. We thank Him for those. However, there are blessings we have received that are unseen. We have been protected from unseen dangers and miraculously steered around them. We have no way of knowing all of the unseen dangers that we have been spared from, just this day alone. We are eternally grateful for his strong hand in our lives. He has done so much for us that the thanks will never end.

WE ARE GRATEFUL FOR OUR BURDENS: Not only do we give God thanks for blessings, but we also give Him thanks for our burdens. 1 Thessalonians 5:18 says, In everything give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you. The word everything includes our burdens and problems. We thank God for everything because we know that all things work for our good, if we are in Christ Jesus. Thus, we thank Him for everything. We even thank him when it seems like life is burying us under a load of unnecessary dirt. Remember the story of the little bird that fell in the well and couldn't get out? Every day dirt was shoveled under him, and the little bird kept singing and put the dirt under its feet. The more dirt that came, the higher the mound rose until soon the little bird could fly away. - Thank God for the dirt that life throws at you because one day that dirt will help you rise higher!

Be grateful for everything!

Thank God for the bill collector!

Thank God for the dentist!

Thank God for your enemies!

In everything, give thanks!

WE ARE GRATEFUL FOR HELP IN TIMES OF TROUBLE: God told David that in a time of trouble, call upon me. He told David then and tells us now, show your trust, confidence, and faith in me by calling me when you need help, not some other. David found that God was true to his word. So much so that he wrote in Psalm 27:5 For in the time of trouble He shall hide me in His pavilion: in the secret of His tabernacle shall

He hide me; He shall set me upon a rock. There are many today who have discovered what David found out, which is that God is a very present help in a time of trouble. There is a slogan that some businesses have on their business cards that reads, "You've tried the rest now try the best!" Too many apply that to God. When they are in real trouble, they turn to quack doctors, voodoo, palm readers, special potions, magic candles, mystical oils and hoodoo. They try the rest, before coming to God.

However, David said we should turn that motto around, "There is no sense going to the rest, you already have the best!"

Whenever we need Him, all we need to do is just call Him. Call Him in the morning! Call Him in the noonday! Call Him in the midnight hour!

We should be grateful

Finally, brothers and sisters, since God is blessing us constantly, we should never let the thanks end.

God is the source of our good fortune and regardless of how things look at the moment, we should never let our thanks end.

Some never realize God as their source and give him credit for what he does. They are like Ungrateful Gary who never gave his wife any credit for the love she had shown him over the years; it made her sad, but she loved him anyway. One day Ungrateful Gary took sick and remained in a coma for several months. His loving wife stayed by his bedside every day. She read to him, cared for him and loved him back to life. One day he awakened and saw her sitting by the bed holding his hand and motioned for her to come near. He whispered, "While I was in my coma I finally figured something out. When I lost my job, you were there. When I filed bankruptcy and lost the house, you were there. When I was fired off my job, you were there. When I totaled the car and ended up in this coma, you were there.

"I have finally figured it out. The wife became so excited because it finally appeared that Ungrateful Gary saw how much she loved him. Then he said, "What I found out is that every time something bad happened to me, you were there. Now, I wake up out of this coma, and the first face I see is yours; if I could get rid of you, my luck would change."

We don't want to be like Ungrateful Gary, we need to show our gratitude every day!

We can show thanks to God by telling the world about his goodness!

What he has done is too good to keep to ourselves. In Psalm 105:1-3 he said: O give thanks unto the LORD; call upon his name: make known his deeds among the people. Sing unto him, sing psalms unto him: talk ye of all his wondrous works. Glory ye in his holy name: let the heart of them rejoice that seek the LORD.

When God has done something good for us, we should be willing to glorify him and show our gratitude.

We should tell it on our jobs!

Tell it in the songs we sing! We should tell it in the joy that bubbles in our soul!

We should never back down from a chance to say to the world, I just want to thank God for being so good to me!

Thank you, Lord, for taking my:

—Bitterness and turning it into sweetness; Sadness and giving me joy!

—Loneliness and give me companionship; Emptiness and giving me fulfillment!

—Failure and showing me the victory; Discouragement and giving me encouragement!

More than that, I want to thank you, Lord, for saving my soul!

I don't know about you, but every now and then, I want to tell somebody that I serve a good God!

I want to tell somebody that down in Bethlehem a child was born, who came to bring good tidings of peace on earth and goodwill toward men!

I want to tell somebody that he carried an old cross for me!

I want to tell somebody that he died out on Calvary!

I want to tell somebody that early Sunday morning that he arose from the dead!

Thank you, Lord!

Thank you, Lord!

...for you've been so good to me!

No. 9715-Christmas

We Didn't Know Who You "Wuz"

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 19, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not." John 1:10

Introduction

Is it possible to be aware of God, but not really know him? There are many people who accept the idea that God exists, but they do not really know him for themselves. The status of their relationship to God is like the question raised in the old song by Bill Withers, "Who is he and what is he to you?" Many are aware of God, but he means very little to them because they don't know him.

We know that is true because there are people who live in the same house and are members of the same family and do not know each other. Each day we interact with people at work, school or in the general community, but we don't really know them! Of course, we know their names. We may know a tidbit or two about their backgrounds. We may even know a few facts about their hobbies and the names of a few of their family members, but does that mean we know them?

There are many homes today in which family members do not know each other. Often children know more about their parents than their parents know about them. There are many children today who are growing up in families where neither parents or children really know each other. They live in the same house, but it may as well be a separate world because they close themselves in their rooms and shut out the rest of the family with the glare of the television set or the muffled sounds of stereo headphones. It's a rapidly growing phenomenon of the modern evolving family where each member becomes accustomed to living as "strangers in the house."

It becomes apparent that we do not know each other when a teenager learns that his mother can sing from someone else or when a parent learns from others of a talent a child possesses that was never known. Why does the mother yell so much? Is it true that grandmother was once a hot mama in her day?

If you were offered $1,000 to answer five questions about your spouse, mother or father, would you collect? What is their favorite color? What is the one thing they want to do before they die? What is their jewelry preference? Who are their heroes? Do they cry and have you ever seen them cry? There are some who can answer all five of these questions and more because they know the members of their families. There are others who are still scratching their heads.

When Jesus was born in Bethlehem, there were many people who were aware that a woman had taken shelter in a cave behind the inn. There were some who probably heard her screams in the night as she gave birth, but there is no record of anyone in the city coming to her assistance or attending her needs. Only the shepherds that were grazing their flocks came into the city to find the mother and child. They came because they had been told by angels that the Son of God was born among them and that they would find him laying in a manger, wrapped in swaddling clothes.

Much later, several wise men would come to their home and bring them gifts.

However, beyond these mentions, most of the people in Bethlehem and in Nazareth had no idea who was in their midst.

The words of the old Negro Spiritual speak to the ignorance of the world about the baby Jesus. In its simplicity, the song expresses the state of the world at the time, which has not changed much over the years.

"Sweet little Jesus Boy born in a manguh
Sweet little Holy chil'
We Didn't know who You wus
Didn't know You'd come to save us Lawd
To take our sins away
Our eyes wus bline
We couldn't see
We didn't know who You wus.."

As Christians, we can proudly say that we know the Lord. We have seen him move faithfully in our lives. We can say with the old warriors, "I've tried the man, and the man is alright" or "I know the Lord will answer prayer, for I've tried him for myself."

Exposition

The text focuses on John as he notes how Christ came into the world and was not recognized as the Son of God.

The condition of the world had reached a point where God himself had to come among men to show them the way to salvation. He did not come unannounced. It was prophesied by the prophets and the people waited for lifetimes for his arrival, but when he came, he was not received primarily because he was not recognized as the savior.

He left a world of bliss, holiness, and happiness and came to this world, and the world didn't know who he was and received him not.

He came from a world where Justice and Mercy flowed from the throne of God to bring those same things to the world, but the world didn't know who he was, and did not receive him.

Even though his birth among the poor and dejected symbolized the concern of God for everyone, only the shepherds recognized him at his birth and all of his life most of those he encountered didn't recognize him as the Son of God and did not receive him.

They did not know him although he was the great maker, ruler and creator of the world and all that was in it. They did not know him because he did not make himself known in the way that they expected-in external glory and majesty. His kingdom he came to establish would be different than they imagined.

What they saw in the manger was just another baby, "And we didn't know who you wuz."

Who is this child?

The birth of Christ brought a message of hope to this world in three different ways:

HE CAME TO BE WITH US: Jesus was born into the world as a child so that he could respond to the feelings and troubles of his creations from the standpoint of having "been there." Among the various names he would be called is "Immanuel" or God is with us. That is important for us to know because it means our God can both empathize and sympathize with us.

Did you grow up in a small town or a small section of town not known for producing anything of value? Jesus has been there too! Were you often talked about criticized and persecuted for no reason at all? Jesus has been there too. Have there ever been times when you were pretty close to living on the streets? Jesus has been there too. There is no situation that we can experience that he cannot in some way understand how we feel from being born out of wedlock to being crucified for crimes he didn't commit.

When we look to the Savior for support and strength, we are looking to someone who has been there himself and will be there with us. He knows what it means to be in trouble. He also knows what it's like to feel all alone. Being alone is an awkward feeling. Most of us feel better when we face a situation in the company of those who make them feel safe and secure. When we are alone, fear sets in and anxiety is heightened. When we are alone, we feel uncomfortable. We feel safer when we are not alone. That's why Jesus promised never to leave us alone.

GOD WILL FLIP MY SITUATION: The mission of Christ on earth was to show the people of God that He intended to take a torn up world and flip it into a better world. The Kingdom of God would displace the Kingdoms of this world. On a personal basis, the faithful would also find that he would flip their situations as well. Romans 8:28 (KJV)
28 And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose.

That's a huge reminder for believers to keep in the back of their minds. No matter what the situation we face, God will flip it, twist it or work it out so that it will be to our benefit in the long run. That's the reminder that we get at Christmas time. Just as the birth of the Christ-child announced to the world the presence of a mighty God among the people, it should also remind believers that God's power is in every home, every day.

God will take your:

—Hunger and give you a satisfied soul!

—Darkness and bring you into the marvelous light!

—Defeat and show you the way to victory!

—Frustrations and give you new determination!

—Sadness and give you unspeakable joy!

GOD WILL SAVE US: Matthew 1:21 says, "And she will have a Son, and you shall name him Jesus (meaning 'Savior'), for he will save his people from their sins." The baby Jesus is a constant reminder to all of us that regardless of our mistakes or errors in life, we can be forgiven. The very name "Jesus" itself means "he will save his people from their sins."

The birth of Christ is a sign to the world that:

—When darkness covers the land, that I am able to turn darkness into light!

—Although war is talked about in every corner, there will be peace on earth and good will toward all men!

—Although problems make life difficult, that God will make a way somehow!

This child is a special child, for Isaiah said in 9:6 "for unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; And the government shall be on his shoulder; his name shall be called:

—Wonderful. Counselor. The Mighty God. Everlasting father. Prince of Peace!"

Most Importantly the Christ child is a sign of God's unending love. I heard John 3:16 say "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life."

We know that God will save us because Romans 10:13 says, "Whosoever will call upon the name of the Lord, shall be saved."

Why We Celebrate

Finally, brothers and sisters, we want to do more than celebrate a holiday; we want to celebrate the birth of the savior because we know God for ourselves.

It is true that there will be many people who will celebrate Christmas for many reasons, but they do not know our God.

There will be many who will say "Merry Christmas" but they do not know the reason for the season.

There will be many who will sing "Silent Night: without knowing the child who was born that night.

In the words of that old spiritual, "The didn't know who you wuz"

Every believer can testify, you can't really celebrate Christmas unless you know God for yourself.

You have to know God for yourself.

You can buy gasoline for your car from Chevron or Texaco, but you don't have to know the president of the company. But if you want to get to heaven, you got to know Jesus; you've got to know God for yourself!

You can be a member of Sam's Clubs and buy merchandise at Walmart without ever meeting a descendant of Sam Walton, but if you want to get to heaven you got to know Jesus; you've got to know God for yourself!

You can shop at Goldman Sachs without ever knowing Marcus Goldman or Samuel Sachs, but if you want to walk the streets of Gold, you got to know Jesus; you've got to know God for yourself!You can buy a Ford or a Lincoln automobile without ever knowing Henry Ford, III, but if you want to get to heaven, you got to know Jesus; you've got to know God for yourself!

You can take a sip of Hennesy or a swig of Johnny Walker Red without ever knowing Richard Hennesy or meeting Johnny Walker face to face, but if you want to sip the sweet nectars from the fountain of life, you got to know Jesus; you've got to know God for yourself!

You can buy Wendy's hamburgers, French fries, and drink without having known Dave Thomas, but if you want to get to heaven, you got to know Jesus; you've got to know God for yourself!

You can wear the latest pair of Jordan's without ever knowing Micheal Jordan or seeing him play a game, but if you want to see the Promised Land, you got to know Jesus; you've got to know God for yourself!

You can use an IPad or an Apple computer without having known Steve Jobs, but if you want to walk through the pearly gates, you got to know Jesus; you've got to know God for yourself!

When you know the Lord for Yourself, you know that when you are:
—Sick, He will be a Doctor in your sickroom!
—In Trouble, He will be a Lawyer in your courtroom!
—Lost and confused, He will make a way out of no way!
—Hungry and thirsty, He will feed you with bread on high. That's why the old warriors cried out "Bread of Heaven, Bread of Heaven, feed me till I want no more!"

When you know the Lord for yourself, you know He will pick you up when you are stumbling!

When you know the Lord for yourself, He will plant your feet on solid ground!

When you know the Lord for yourself, He will give you a new song to sing, a new walk to walk and a new talk to talk!

Every saint should keep telling the world about the words of God, but we should also let the world know that we know the Lord ourselves!

Tell them about Jesus!

Tell them how He lived on this Earth for 33 long years!

Tell them how He bore an old rugged cross!

Tell them how He died out on Calvary!

But, don't forget to tell them that, early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave with all power in His hands!

No. 9716-Inspiration

Let us seek God's Favor Together

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 2015

SCRIPTURE: "And the inhabitants of one city shall go to another, saying, Let us go speedily to pray before the LORD, and to seek the LORD of hosts: I will go also. Yea, many people and strong nations shall come to seek the LORD of hosts in Jerusalem, and to pray before the LORD. Thus saith the LORD of hosts; In those days it shall come to pass, that ten men shall take hold out of all languages of the nations, even shall take hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew, saying, We will go with you: for we have heard that God is with you." Zechariah 8:21-23

Introduction

How can the world come to know the God that we trust? There are some who would say that we must advertise and market our faith so that it attracts the world's attention. There are others who believe we can force the world to know our God by government mandate. Still others believe that we can do so by eliminating all other gods. None of these, however, introduce the world to the God of the universe who knows us personally.

The story is told of two men who were called upon to read the 23rd Psalm. One was a seminary student and the other was an old man who spent his whole life on a farm and could neither read nor write. The seminary student read carefully, pronouncing every word correctly and demonstrated his training. The old man stood and started reciting the scripture from memory but punctuated his recitation with a witness about what the Lord had done for him: Providing a table for him in the presence of his enemies, blessing him so much that he had overflow as well as standing with him in times of death and sickness. His words were broken and his enunciation was weak, but he brought the audience to its feet. The seminary student rose and commented afterward. "Friends I know the 23rd Psalms, but this man knows the Shepherd." To attract the world to our God, we must show the world that "We know the shepherd."

There are thousands of faiths, beliefs and denominations around the world. What will draw them all together for a common purpose? What can we do to inspire them to share our faith in God and to "know the shepherd" as we know him? It appears that there should be a commonality of vision. There are so many faiths in the world because they all seem to have a different view that drives them. We are separate because we do not see God from the perspective of our neighboring faiths.

We cannot spend our lives trying to convince others to follow our faith; instead, we should simply walk by faith ourselves. The very walk itself will cause others to look twice. That may seem simplistic, but consider that if the world is freezing to death, but we are warm and always seem to have a constant fire, wouldn't it be a natural response for others to inquire about the source of our fire, how it is maintained and how they can acquire the same? Others are drawn to Christ by what we do more than what we say. That's why Jesus said, "And I, if I, be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me."

When we all share the same vision, then God will prepare us all to work together to make it happen. It may mean that all faiths may need to walk at a different pace, using a different stride for the purpose of making the vision of God a reality.

The vision that God gives to this army of unified faiths may present challenges that represent changes of direction.

It may mean giving more to the education of our youth through the support of public education both mainstream and chartered.

It may mean giving more to support positive activities that will help them develop into stronger Christian men and women.

It may mean devising programs that will strengthen the home, promote finer womanhood and build manhood.

It may mean working to reduce the prison population by working to deter those who seem committed to hell bound paths. It may mean showing more concern for our elderly by increasing our elder care ministries.

Every chance we get, we must work together to make this heavenly vision a reality.

As Christians, we should commit ourselves to living as people who know God, following the vision of God and building the kingdom. When we do so, we hasten the day that others will follow singing the old hymn, "When we all get to heaven, what a day of rejoicing that will be. When we all see Jesus, we'll sing and shout the victory."

Exposition

This text focuses on a prophecy of Zechariah that promised that all nations would help to rebuild Jerusalem.

The amazing prophecy notes that a day will come when people in one city will join with people of another city and come to Jerusalem to work together to make the vision of the prophecy of the Lord a reality. Working side by side with people of all faiths, the glory of the Lord will be revealed.

Even though Israel was in a state of physical disrepair as a result of military conflict, the faith of God's people remained strong. It attracted the attention of individuals from around the world who joined in the shared vision of rebuilding the nation. Dr. Warren Wiersbe notes, "Zechariah prophesied at a time when Jerusalem was still in ruins. In 586, the Babylonians had destroyed the city and had taken the people captive to Babylon. In 536, after the fall of Babylon, Cyrus permitted a remnant of the Jews to return to their land, and in 535, they laid the foundation for the temple. But the work stopped, and it was not until 520 that the Jews again began to rebuild God's house. This was under the preaching of Haggai and Zechariah. But Zechariah did not see a weak nation in a ruined city; he looked down the centuries and saw the future of the city and the coming of Jerusalem's King, the Messiah."

The prophecy looks beyond the restoration of Jerusalem and the temple, which was fulfilled, and looks to a time when people foreign to the Jewish faith will be drawn to the faith of these simple people whose idea of "one God" attracted people from around the world.

Though persecuted and thrown into exile, the faith of the Jewish people attracted people from around the world. These people, says Matthew Henry, were "proselytes from all the countries about, and some that lay very remote, who came yearly to worship at Jerusalem, which added very much both to the grandeur and wealth of that city, and contributed significantly to the making of it so considerable as it came to be before our Savior's time, though now it was just peeping out of its ruins. But it would be accomplished much more fully in the conversion of the Gentiles to the faith of Christ, and the incorporating of them with the believing Jews in one great body, under Christ the head."

Benefits of Working together

WE BOND IN THE FAITH: When people of different beliefs, races, and life experiences work together a peculiar relationship develops; all surrounding accomplishing a single goal. Those who share the common desire to obey God and do his will, develop a spiritual bond and become sisters and brothers. Those who work together to achieve the common goal of realizing the will of God also become sisters and brothers. The idea of "shared experience" rather than the simple incidence of birth as a definition of brotherhood, sisterhood, and parenthood, made it understandable that persons who were not your natural kindred could very well share a spiritual bond because of shared experiences.

Those who share the experience of Christ and his love, easily refer to themselves as brothers and sisters in Christ. It is that "shared experience" that makes those who profess Christ brothers and sisters, despite not shared the same biological history. This is the bond that victims of floods, earthquakes and disasters feel that compels them to help others even though they do not share the same life experiences. However, they have shared one experience, as a result of a storm, that has brought them together. When we bond around our common experience of watching God work through people to respond to human need, we hasten the day that the kingdom of God will become a reality.

WE ACHIEVE MORE TOGETHER: When we work together, we can accomplish much more than we can working alone. The work goes faster and it is much harder to defeat us, if we are together. There is a Latin phrase that says: "Vis unita fortior" It means the force of God, added to my own force is powerful. Add that to the force of many other believers and it becomes an unstoppable force. Despite our combined efforts, however, all faiths recognize one truth, that without God no undertaking can be successful. In a united way, we must put it all in his hands. Collectively, all believers should say: "Lord, we're putting it in your hand because your..:

—GLORY is much greater than ours; POWER is much stronger than ours

—METHODS are much wiser than ours; UNDERSTANDING is much broader than ours!

—WAYS are much safe than ours; HEART is much bigger than ours;

—BURDEN is lighter than ours, and LOVE is much deeper than ours!

It's in your hands because we don't know what the future holds, but we know who holds our hands!

THOSE WHO BOND BECOME FRIENDS: There is a residual effect of bonding for a common purpose; it is that friendships develop. Friendship is more than a mere acquaintance or association. Friendships develop because of a mutual trust. A friend sticks closer than a brother. Friends know all about us, including the dark secrets about our inner selves. Working together they share a common purpose and vision that those who do not know God as we do come to learn by watching us. In spite of what God knows about us, he still chooses to be our friend anyway.

When people decide to work together, there is a congealing of spirit and purpose that contributes to unity.

When people work together, there is a common cause and purpose that causes divisions and differences to blur and energy concentrates.

Let us work together for the sake of increased unity. As we collaborate in this mission, we will become a stronger band of brothers and sisters dedicated to one purpose. In the process, we become friends.

No wonder the songwriter would declare, "What a friend we have been Jesus." He alone has proven to be our only friend. As Christians, we rejoice in knowing that we have a friend in Jesus. He will always love us. He will always be with us. And he will never leave us alone.

As we trust God, we gain favor

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember that as we work we learn to trust God together and win his favor.

The favor of the Lord is not owed, but it is bestowed upon those whom God chooses, in degrees of his own choosing.

Throughout God's written word we have seen examples of those of different races, nationalities, and sexes obtaining the favor of the Lord.

Job's life went through many ups and downs, but he survived every test because he enjoyed the favor of the Lord. In Job 10:12 he said, "Thou hast granted me life and favor, and thy visitation hath preserved my spirit."

Mary was selected to be the surrogate mother for the Christ child because she enjoyed the favor of the Lord. Luke 1:30 says, "And the angel said unto her, Fear not, Mary: for thou hast found favor with God."

David was the greatest King of Israel because he enjoyed the favor of the Lord. Acts 7:46 says David was a man, "Who found favor before God.."
God smiles on those who have his favor.

When we work together to build the vision, God smiles on us.

I don't know about you, but I'm glad that God has smiled on me.

When God smiles on us, he gives us:

—STRENGTH when our burdens become heavy.

—ASSURANCE when everything seems to go wrong.

—INSPIRATION when difficulties arise.

—COMFORT when disaster strikes.

Because God favors us we are able to:

—Keep on going, when our road gets rough.

—Keep on singing, even though our pain becomes intense.

—Keep on working, even when our body gets weary.

The church is more than an organization, it is a living organism of those who have been saved by grace, born again and work together because we believe there is blessing and favor in this labor of love!

The church is a fellowship of those who are washed in the blood and sanctified for the service of the Lord.

The church is a band of believers who have come to learn that God is a mighty present help in a time of trouble!

I don't know about you, but I've found out that when God blesses and grants favor; it's a real blessing and it's real favor!

When God blesses the impossible becomes possible!

When God blesses the unreachable becomes reachable!

When God blesses the unattainable becomes attainable!

We don't know how he does it, but he does! All we know is that when we work to testify of his goodness, blessing and favor follow close behind.

Work together in faith and there is a blessing on the way!

It's a blessing that was paid for on an old rugged cross!

It's a blessing that was secured with a crown of thorns!

It's a blessing that was guaranteed when Jesus died out on Calvary!

But Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

He's still blessing…

He's still blessing today!

No. 9717-New Year

God's Blessing Has No Shelf Life Date

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 31, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "O give thanks unto the Lord; for he is good: for his mercy endureth for ever." Psalm 136:1

Introduction

Have you ever checked the shelf life of items you buy in the store? Most consumable items in a grocery store have a date stamped on them to let us know when the item will be unfit for human consumption. Sometimes the shelf life date lets us know when it should come off the shelves of the store, and out of our pantries as well. Yet, it is not just food that has a shelf life. Cosmetics, beverages, medical devices, drugs, batteries and many other perishables have a shelf life date, too.

To help consumers check, items usually carry labels. The labels mean different things, depending on the product. Some have labels that read, "Best to use before" or "use by" and some packaged perishables will have a "freshness date" letting you know that after that date it's no longer fresh. In actuality, the USDA says the date on canned items is just a guide. It does not guarantee that food eaten before the date is safe, neither does it warn that something bad is going to happen after that date if it's sealed in a can.

Great-grandma didn't know anything about the USDA or the Food and Drug Administration, but she knew if she bought some Mason Jars and Blanched fruits and vegetables properly and then stored them in those air tight jars that those fig jellies and peach preserves would last for years. Many people still have jars of preserves on their shelves that have been there for years without a shelf life date.

It's just a guide. Unlike fresh foods, the shelf life date on batteries and pharmaceuticals refers to the potency and safety of the product. It does not mean you should throw away a set of batteries or a box of aspirin because the date has passed.

There are many people who approach a new threshold worried about next year. They are worried about whether God's power, goodness and mercy will be enough to see them into the next year.

Yet, the world tells us clearly that God is great and his mercy endureth forever. It means that there is no limitation on his power. There is no limitation on his capacity to respond to human need and there is no expiration date on his mercy. Psalms 23 says, "Surely, goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life" that means every day of my life God will provide, but even further because it also says, "and I will dwell in the house of the Lord, forever" -Forever! It has no shelf life!

As Christians, we are thrilled when we remember that the power of the God we serve is everlasting. Psalm 121 says "he that keepeth Israel neither slumbers or sleeps." God protected us this year, but there is no label that says his power expires on the last day of the year. What he has done for us in the past will continue forever and ever.

Exposition

This text focuses on a Psalm of David in which he underscores the fact that the goodness and mercy of God never runs out.

This Psalm is unique among the 150 psalms because it alone has a single redundancy or repetitive phrase.The latter half of each verse is the same, repeated throughout the psalm, "For his mercy endureth for ever."

There are 26 verses in the psalm and the phrase "For his mercy endureth for ever," is repeated 26 times. It is what the Old English would describe as "continuando" and English teachers might call an alliteration where the same truth is repeated with a repetitive rhythm and rhyme.

David lays out 26 different life scenarios and made it very clear that in every situation, God proved that his mercy endures forever.

For example in verse 11 he says, God brought Israel out of the Red Sea, "For his mercy endureth for ever."

Verse 13 notes that God divided the Red Sea, "For his mercy endureth for ever." At verse 16 he notes that he led the people through the wilderness, "For his mercy endureth for ever."

In verse 18, he says God slew the big named famous Kings that blocked Israel's way, "For his mercy endureth for ever."

In verse 23, he says God remembered those with a low estate, "For his mercy endureth for ever."

In verse 26, he says we should give thanks to God, "For his mercy endureth for ever."

In Twenty-six different verses, the word of God makes it clear that God's mercy has no time limitation, shelf life or loss of potency. He endures forever.

For the believer, the 136 Psalm is a reminder because we can easily substitute the situations of each verse with our own and say with surety that we have no need to worry because "his mercy endureth forever."

—God helped us to face our darkest days, "For his mercy endureth for ever."

—God lifted us when we fell down, "For his mercy endureth for ever." —God comforted us when we were in despair, "For his mercy endureth for ever."

As we approach any new experience, these words should reassure us that he will be by our side as face the unknown, and will never leave us alone.

The Blood: No Shelf Life

As we prepare to move into the future, we should remember that the blood of Christ has no shelf life or date stamp.

Jesus told his disciples that his blood was shed for the remission of sin. The sins of every generation are covered by blood. It never gets old or loses its power.

The same power that quieted the lions for Daniel in the Lion's Den is the same blood that quiets the angry lions that roar at us every day.

The same power that protected the three Hebrew Boys in the fiery furnace is the same power that protects us from the fiery flames of haters and backbiters who try to destroy us today.

The same power that that called Lazarus from his tomb after four days in the grave is the same power that lifts us when we have fallen into despair.

It's power that prompted one songwriter to say, "There's power, power, wonder-working power, in the blood of the lamb. There's power, power, wonder-working power in the precious blood of the lamb."

It's the same power that another songwriter said, "reaches from the highest mountain and flows to the lowest valley. The blood that gives me strength from day to day, it will never lose its power!"

God's Goodness: No shelf life

Just as there is no expiration time stamp on the power of God, neither is there a dated shelf life on the goodness of God.

If you look for the shelf life of God's goodness in any situation all you will see is that "God is good, all of the time and all of the time, God is good."

Job's friends tried to convince him that God's goodness had run out on him. His health had failed, family was decimated and all his money was gone. His friends said, "Job, God has run out of goodness."

Job said, when God blessed me with a large family, I said God was good! When God blessed me with large herds of cattle and prosperous farmland, I said God was good. When God gave me health and strength, I said, God was good.

Now that I have had a few troubling days, I want you to know that God is still a good God, "All of the days of my appointed time, I'll wait until my change comes. Yea Thou he slay me, yet will I trust him."

God showed Job that there is no shelf life on his goodness. In the fulness of time, he restored Job with a larger family, made him richer than he'd ever been and fully restored his health.

God showed Job's friends that God's goodness does not expire with a day on the calendar for the end of the Book of Job says, Job's last days were better than his first days.

Your critics say, because you had a difficulty this year that God's goodness must have expired.

They say because you had a bout with sickness this year that God's healing power must have expired.

They say because you ran into financial hard times, that the bank of heaven must in default.

Do not be discouraged, you just had a Pop Eye moment. In the old cartoons Bluto would beat Popeye the sailor man into the ground and make him as flat as a pancake, but the music would play and Popeye would reach into his bosum and pull out a can of spinanch. When he ate that spinanch Popeye got new strength and he beat old Bluto into the ground.

This year may have beaten you to tjhe ground until you felt like Popeye. If so just reach into your bosom and you'll hear the word of God saying, "They that wait on the Lord shall renew their strength, they shall mount on wings as Eagles, they shall run and not be weary, walk and not."

There is no time stamp on the goodness of the Lord.

Mercy of God: No shelf life

Just as the power of God never runs out and the Goodness of God never expires, Lamentations 3:22 says the mercies of God are continuous, and because they are continuous we are never consumed.

If God's mercy endureth forever that means that:

There will never be a time when God's mercy is EXPENDED, CONSUMATED OR EXHAUSTED.

There will never be a time when God's mercies are WASHED-OUT, WORN-OUT AND PHYSICALLY DRAINED.

There will never be a time when the mercies of God will REACH A DEAD END, CONCLUDE OR DISCONTINUE.

There will never be a time when the mercies of God will BREAK-OFF, BREAK-UP, AND BREAK-AWAY:

Don't worry about what the new year will bring, just remember that God's mercies have no time limitations. His power is still the same and there is no shelf life to his goodness.

The Songwriter says, Great is thy faithfulness, morning by morning new mercies I see. All I have needed my hand hath provided, great is thy faithfulness,Lord unto me."

Be not dismayed, whatever betide, God will take care of you!

Praise him in the new year

Finally, brothers and sisters, as we get ready to enter into the new year, we should be ready to praise the Lord because his Grace is always sufficient; his Love is always abundant, and his mercy endureth forever.

Because God's mercy has no expiration date, we can expect his power, goodness, and mercy to follow us into the new year.

We should praise the Lord for the burden he's going to lift off our shoulders!

We should praise the Lord for the hill he's going to help us to climb!

We should praise the Lord for the bills he's going to help us to pay!

We should praise the Lord for the job he's going to help us to find!

We should praise the Lord for the home he's going to help us to buy!

We should praise the Lord for the old man who's going to finally start acting like a husband!

We should praise the Lord for the old lady who will finally want to become a wife!

Even though the mercy of the Lord will follow us into the new year, we ought to be glad that our sins won' follow us. They won't follow us because they have a time stamp on them. They won't follow us over into the New Year, for they have been purged and made pure.

What can wash away my sin? What can make me whole again?

Nothing but the blood of Jesus!

Oh precious is the flow that makes me white as snow, no other fount I know, nothing but the blood of Jesus!

Jesus, the prized son of Palestine

Jesus, the epitome of perfection.

Jesus, who is the Prince of Peace.

Jesus died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

His mercy endureth forever!

.

No. 9718-New Year

He didn't bring me this far to leave me

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 3, 2016

SCRIPTURE: And when Pharaoh drew nigh, the children of Israel lifted up their eyes, and, behold, the Egyptians marched after them; and they were sore afraid: and the children of Israel cried out unto the LORD. And they said unto Moses, Because there were no graves in Egypt, hast thou taken us away to die in the wilderness? wherefore hast thou dealt thus with us, to carry us forth out of Egypt? Is not this the word that we did tell thee in Egypt, saying, Let us alone, that we may serve the Egyptians? For it had been better for us to serve the Egyptians, than that we should die in the wilderness. And Moses said unto the people, Fear ye not, stand still, and see the salvation of the LORD, which he will shew to you to day: for the Egyptians whom ye have seen to day, ye shall see them again no more for ever. The LORD shall fight for you, and ye shall hold your peace. Exodus 14:10-14

Introduction

How confident are you that God will be with you in the New Year? If you are a true believer, you should be like the woman that the late James Cleveland made famous in one of his songs. The Reverend Cleveland said an 82-year-old lady stood in of front the church and gave her testimony. She said, "I been running for Jesus some 50 odd years and I don't feel no ways tired. I've come too far from where I started from. Nobody told me that the road would be easy; I don't believe he brought me this far to leave me."

That seems appropriate to remember when we stop to consider just how far we have come to reach this point in our lives. Each of us has traveled a long and meandering road to reach this milestone on our life journey. Our paths have brought us through a myriad of experiences that have included successes and failures. Along the way, we have witnessed many changes and have learned to take them in stride. Our joy is knowing that in spite of the rugged road that we have traveled, that has been one constant; we've experienced the love of God.

We've come a long ways. The most senior among us have seen the most miles, tallest of mountains and the deepest of life's valleys. The younger among us have traveled a journey too. It is just as real to them as the distances traveled by those who walked before them.

We have lived through Cab Calloway, Louis Armstrong, Elvis Presley, Marilyn Monroe, James Brown, Luther Vandross and Michael Jackson. We've come a long ways.

We have lived to see Drive in Movies, 8 mm movies, VHS, Compact Disc and now live streaming. We have seen gasoline as cheap as 20 cents a gallon and as high as $4.00 a gallon and watched it fall again.

We have seen full-service gas stations and watched them decline to self-service and no service stations; 8 track tapes; 33,45 and 78 rpm records; Manual typewriters and word processors. We have seen push lawn mowers, sling blades, wide seat bicycles, Doctor's house calls; disco dancing, taps on shoes, returnable pop bottles; Home milk delivery; The Afro Pick, Afro Sheen, and the Jeri Curl. We have come a long way.

On our way to this point, we have learned about Adam and Eve, Adam and Steve, and Eve and Evette. We have seen plated hair, corn rows, processes, conks, Afros and weaves

Through it all we keep remembering the words of Psalm 37:25 that says... "I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread.

As Christians, there are points along the journey that we tired and feel like giving up. However, as we begin a new year, we must remember the word's of James Cleveland's little old lady, "We've come too far from where we started from. Nobody told us that the road would be easy. I don't believe he brought me this far to leave me."

Exposition

This text focuses on Israel's despair and loss of faith as the people moved toward the next step in their journey toward freedom.

For 430 years, Israel suffered in bondage in Egypt. In the process, God blessed them to survive when they should have been destroyed by the conditions of their enslavement.

When they were finally freed from slavery, they marched out of Egypt over one million strong. However, when they reached the Red Sea, Pharaoh changed his mind and sent his chariots to bring them back to slavery.

When the Israelites saw that the Red Sea was in front of them and Pharaoh's army was behind them, they became afraid and complained that Moses brought them out of the safety of Egypt and brought them to the Red Sea to perish.

They believed God brought them to the brink of their promised delivery and left them to die.

God spoke to Moses, who told the people to "Stand still and see the salvation of the Lord."

The complaints didn't stop. On the other side, they complained that God had brought them out of Egypt and across the Red Sea, just to allow them to starve in the desert. God made a way and supplied them food and water.

When they reached the Promised Land, their entrance was blocked by the Jordan River. Again, they complained that he brought them across the Red Sea and the wilderness, just to leave them.

God rolled back the waters of the River and they marched into the Promised only to discover that it was defended by large cities with high walls. Again they complained that God brought them across the Red Sea, the wilderness, and the River Jordan just to leave them at the mercy of an enemy behind great walls; then God brought don't the walls of Jericho.

Repeatedly God showed them using one miracle after another that he did not bring them to the brink of his promise just to leave them.

Walk, but don't get weary

The last year was extremely difficult year for some of us. There are some families that encountered physical sickness and death. There are others that are experienced strained relationships. These are the believers who quickly testify that if it had not been for the Lord on their side, they would not have been able to stand the trials and difficulties of these tough moments.

When we are frustrated, we lash out! Crazy ideas get in our heads! We act up and do stupid stuff! That's when it's good to have friends who can ignore our frustrations and love us anyway. That's when someone reminds us, that God is still on the throne; he didn't bring us this far just to leave us alone.

That's when we remember that this is not a quick sprint, but a marathon. Israel didn't get to the Promised Land in a quick run, it was a steady walk with God providing the miracles they needed along the way. This walk we are making into the future is an endurance test. Unlike the sprinter who needs speed to win his race, the distance runner needs endurance. The great marathons such as the grueling 26 mile Boston marathon or the marathon of cycling, the Tour de France, all require endurance. Those who prove to be champions of these events have an uncanny endurance that separates them from the pack.

Every time we have come to the proverbial Red Sea, a financial drought, or were nearly buried in troubles, God was there; he was only a prayer away. He lifted burdens from our shoulders and gave us renewed strength in the midst of weakness. When Jesus told his disciples, Lo I'll be with you always," that meant exactly what it said, he planned to be with us continually.

When frustrations begin to pile up on us, it seems that there is no rest for the weary. But there is a way for us to catch our wind while we make our Sprint. The secret is to watch those who run great distances.

We don't know what the future holds, but we know who holds our hand, so we must walk on!

Though waters of the big sea in front of us look wide, walk on!

Though the mountains we face look too hard to climb, walk on!

Although beset by the chains of slavery, our fore parents constantly sang that old spiritual: “Walk together children,Don’ you get weary;,Walk together children, Don’t you get weary. Oh, talk together children, Don’t you get weary,There’s a great camp meeting in the promised land.”

God will keep his promises to you

God has kept his promises to us. He has not brought you through all that you have been through just to leave you without help. In Genesis 28:15 God says, “Behold, I am with you and will keep you wherever you go, and will bring you back to this land; for I will not leave you until I have done what I have promised you.” God won’t leave us at the Red Sea with no way to cross. The songwriter said, “Don’t give up on God because he won’t give up on you.”

Instead of fear about what’s coming up, we praise God more! We praise him for what he has done and what he is planning to do.

In the year ahead his going to:

—Muzzle the mouths of lions that will come to devour us!

—Quench the flames of fires that our haters are building trying to destroy us!

—Conquer the enemies that are planning to destroy us and confuse their plans!

—Penetrate the walls being built by Satan to divide us!

—Unlock the social and spiritual prisons designed to hold us down.

We will certainly face our Red Sea moments in the year ahead. We may even go through the wilderness, but we have God’s assurance that he will make a way; he didn’t bring us this close to the promise just to leave us alone.

I don’t know about you brothers and sisters but I promised the Lord that I would hold out until the morning comes!

When the morning comes, crying days will be over!

When the morning comes, lonely days will come to an end!

When the morning comes, the wicked will cease from troubling and the weary will be at rest!

I heard a songwriter declare: I’m on the battlefield for my Lord, and I promised Him that I, would serve Him till I die!

I started in Jesus and I’m going through!

God will not leave you

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that no matter what comes our way, God will not leave us alone.

We have endured many difficult winters, summers, springs and autumns, nobody told us that that the road would be easy!

We have faced sickness in our families as well as, failure, frustration, and financial trouble. We have wrestled with wayward children, struggled to hold on to marriages and have worked fought against attempts to destroy the unity of family bond. We have even faced the pain of death. Nobody told us that that the road would be easy.

I don't know about you, but I've decided to keep going because I don't believe he brought me this far to leave me.

We agree with the songwriter who said, I've had my good days, I've had many hills to climb. But all of my good days, outweigh my bad days. I won't complain.

We must remember no matter the trial or the situation we will face in the year ahead, we are not alone.

God is always with us; we must trust in the Lord!

-Noah trusted the Lord and he brought him through the great flood!

—Abraham trusted the Lord and he showed him the ram in the bush!

—Ruth trusted the Lord and she found happiness while gleaning fields!

—Moses trusted the Lord and he lead Israel out of bondage

—Daniel trusted the Lord and he protected him in the Lion's Den

—Three Hebrew Boys trusted the Lord and he shielded them in the fiery furnace!

He has promised never to leave us repeatedly in his word

2 Kings 2:2 says, "As long as the Lord lives and you yourself live, I will not leave you!"

1 Chronicles 28:20 says, "Do not fear or be dismayed, for the Lord God, my God will be with you. He will not leave you or forsake you…"

Isaiah 54:10 says, "The mountains may depart and the hills may disappear but my kindness shall not leave you."

John 14:8 says, "I will not leave you alone."

I don't feel no ways tired, I don't believe he brought me this far to leave me because:

If am:

—Sad, the Lord will be my fountain of joy!

—At Fault, the Lord will be a stronghold of forgiveness!

—Weak, the Lord will be my pillar of strength

—Discouraged, the Lord will be my pool of inspiration!

—Defeated, the Lord will be my crown of victory!

—Darkness, the Lord will be my light!.

—Lonely, the Lord will be my friend

—Helpless, the Lord will be my help.

Hold to his hand! God's unchanging hand!

The same hand that was nailed to an old rugged cross!

Hold to his hand!

He died out on Calvary, but early Sunday morning, he arose from the dead!

Hold to his hand; he will see you through!

He didn't bring you this far to leave you!

No.9719-Inspiration

I Can't see him, but I know he is there

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 10, 2015

SCRIPTURE: "Behold, I go forward, but he is not there; and backward, but I cannot perceive him: On the left hand, where he doth work, but I cannot behold him: he hideth himself on the right hand, that I cannot see him: But he knoweth the way that I take: when he hath tried me, I shall come forth as gold." Job 23:8-10

Introduction

Have you ever had an unexplained event to happen in your life that blessed you? It's one of those occasions where a blessing came your way without any effort on your part. It just came right when you needed it, and all you could say was, "Praise the Lord." There are some who have had unexplained reversals of medical conditions. The doctors said one thing, but later the condition was reversed, leaving doctors scratching their heads. You were not in line to receive the opportunity, but somehow an opportunity you never thought would happen, suddenly appeared- out of nowhere! You were involved in an accident that should have been fatal, but you survived with only scratches and bruises or no scratches at all; how did these things happen?

The faithful know that God works in the background of our lives to ensure that we accomplish our life's purpose. Those who have told God that they will follow his will to establish the kingdom have his assurance that he is working to open doors that are shut and to create doorways that don't even exist to help us achieve our divinely inspired purposes.

Often we won't see God operating, but yet he is there; behind us, in front of us and on our left hand and right. Those outside of the faith may not recognize his hand, but the faithful know how God works. God's unseen hand guides and controls, tears down and builds up. That unseen hand is called providence, the will of God working itself out among men. We know the power of God is working everyday, even though he cannot see his hand directly, his presence is felt.

Consider the pimp that drove his souped-up car straight through a red light and smashed into a car driven by a church deacon. The cars crashed head-on, air bags deployed and both cars were totally destroyed, but there was no way the deacon could prove that the pimp caused the accident, both of them would probably get a ticket if they survived. After a few minutes, each of the men stepped out of their cars unharmed. The pimp and the deacon recognized each other from the hood, and both said it was amazing that both of them survived a head-on crash without a scratch. The pimp said, "This must be some kind of sign, there is a blessing in this somewhere ain't it deacon?" The deacon said, "Look at both of our cars, completely demolished, but we are unscratched that's a blessing in itself. In fact, everything about the car is torn up, but this bottle of communion wine I just bought didn't even get touched. Maybe that's a sign." The pimp said, "Maybe it means we should celebrate; let's have a drink!" The deacon passed the bottle to the pimp, who popped the top and drank half the bottle. When the pimp gave the bottle back to the deacon, he was surprised when the deacon put the cap back on the bottle. "Aren't you going to celebrate the goodness of the Lord?" he asked with slurred speech. The deacon said, "No, I think I'll wait for the police; then I'll celebrate." - In this case, the blessing was in the unopened wine bottle.

Even in our sickness and times of trial, the faithful know that God is still operating. That's why believers never lose hope even when misfortune comes because, we know that God is working the unfortunate circumstance in a way that will accomplish his purpose for our lives. That's a good thing. That's why the faithful are rarely among those who commit suicide, suffer sustained periods of depression or resort to alcohol or drug abuse when things go wrong. We endure the moment, knowing that God is working the situation, and we will arise as pure gold.

As Christians, we are assured that God will be there for us in any situation. He will tell us what to do and what not to do; he will open doors and shut them; he will make things happen or stop them from happening, but always to our advantage. We won't see him when it's done, but we will know after it is done that God made it happen.

.

Exposition

This text focuses on Job's response to the unfortunate circumstances in his life, expressing faith that his situation would be reversed, and he would come through as pure gold.

Job was a righteous man who faithfully subscribed to the Mosaic law and lived by its principles every day. The Bible describes Job as a righteous man who never once broke God's law, but fell on hard times because of his obedience and faithfulness. His faithfulness was tested by God to show Satan that regardless to what misfortunes came his way, he would not forsake the faith and remain obedient to God.

Satan caused numerous difficulties in Job's life including the loss of his health, wealth and near destruction of his entire family. Despite this growing number of frustrating and debilitating circumstances, Job hung to his faith and maintained that he would not abandon his faith or drop to the level of cursing God or questioning his goodness.

In this text, Job told three friends who sat with him that he has looked left and right, high and low and cannot see God's hand in his situation, but he knew he was aware of his condition and probably involved in it in some way. He said, “He knows the way that I take” or “He knows I am a good person, but when he finishes testing me, he’ll find that I will come through as pure gold.”

Job’s assurance that God is aware of his faith, lifestyle and commitment to his service, underscored the reason he felt assured that God would turn his situation.

In the end, God did just that. He turned his situation, and he came through as pure gold.

He did it, but we didn’t see him

There are many ways that God has moved on our behalf in the past and he will do the same in the months ahead.

HE PROVIDED FOR US: We did not see him do it, but we know it was God that provided for our essentials in the past year. Though we may have complained about some of our food, whether or not our clothing was fashionable, or the size or location of our homes; most of us would have to agree that God was faithful in providing us with all three. Even while God held back the demons of hell that were seeking to destroy us, he kept providing our essentials at the same time. Even in our faithless moments, it turns out that God was working, putting people and resources in our lives to help us respond to our problems. We don’t know how we stumbled upon the person who helped us, but we should have some idea. Was it by chance that you met the man, woman or group that responded to your need? Was it by chance that the opportunity you needed to keep from drowning in your troubles happened just as you needed it? Did the lifeline that kept you afloat throw itself or was there an unseen hand at the other end? If you look to the left or the right you may not see him, but no matter what the circumstance the faithful person encounters, God is in there somewhere, working it out to your advantage.

HE OPENED DOORS: We looked to the left and the right, we did not see him, but we know it was God who opened doors that had once been shut in our faces. Not only has God opened doors for us he has held them open long enough for us to get through and then closed them to keep our enemies from following. This is what he did for Israel crossing the Red Sea, he held back the waters long enough for them to get through and then closed it on those who were trying to destroy them. God has faithfully opened doors for us and given us opportunities for the abundant life. Look back over the last few years. Some of us have done more than just survived; we have improved our spirituality, financial condition, and family relations. Some expanded their boundaries last year by taking advantage of every opportunity God made available to grow both spiritually and materially. There are many who have experienced stronger family relationships in addition to other quality of life measures that cannot be ignored. We looked to the left and the right. We did not see him do it, but we know that God was in this thing, making it happen for us.

PROVIDED OUR SPIRITUAL SUPPORT: When our spiritual strength was at its lowest level, God lifted us. We did not see him, but we know he was in there somewhere working things and talking to us directly in prayer and through people. We heard his voice in the sermons that were preached, the phone calls of friends, the scriptures we chose to read, and the songs that we heard. We didn't see God in the months after the death of a loved one, but we know he was there lifting us out of our depression and giving us new purpose. We didn't see God, when we suffered a setback and lost ground on our journey, but we know he was there, because he kept sending us so many messages to get up and try again. There are some families that have sunk to spiritual lows only to be renewed by the voice of God constantly speaking to them.

Isaiah said, "They that wait on the Lord shall renew their strenght, they shall mount up on wings as eagles, the shall run and not get weary, walk and not faint."

David said, "I will lift up mine eyes to the hills from whence cometh my help,my help cometh from the Lord who made the heaven and the earth."

Maybe that's what the songwriter had in mind when he wrote, "I come to the garden alone. While the dew is still on the roses. And the voice I hear, falling on my ear, the son of God discloses. And he walks with me and he talks with me and he tells me I am his own. And the joy we share as we tarry there, none other, has ever known."

He'll be there in the days ahead

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that just as we did not see God move on our behalf last year, but felt his actions, he will be there doing the same thing in the days ahead.

Whatever we might expect to face in the coming year, we should be encouraged to know that God is already in front of us, scouting out our future.

I don't know what tomorrow will bring, but I know what God has done in the past. I know what God is doing right now! I also know that he's already ahead of me, making a way for true believers.

"I do not know how long it will be or what the future holds for me, but this I know, if Jesus leads me, I will get home someday!"

It doesn't matter what the future brings as long as we are on the Lord's side! If we are on the Lord's side there will never be a:

—CROSS that we won't be able to bear; MOUNTAIN that we won't be able to climb!

—ENEMY that we won't be able to defeat; BATTLE we won't be able to win!

—DARKNESS so dark that we won't be able to see the light!

—TRIAL that we can't make it through; TEST that we won't be able to pass!

The Lord is our bridge of troubled water!

The Lord protects us from our enemies from behind, but he opens doors ahead!

The Lord holds back the hell hounds of defeat, but he makes new possibilities for victory every day!

The Lord holds back the demons of destruction, but he unlocks new constructive opportunities along our way!

The Lord is the foundation of our hope for the future.

I heard the song writer declare, "The only hope we have is in Christ Jesus. Confusion is great in the world today. Persecutions may come with such a heavy weight but we have this hope and it's in Jesus!"

Jesus, somebody here today knows him!

Jesus, the Lily of the valley!

Jesus, the Bright and Morning star!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary and rose up early Sunday morning!

We don't worry about the future because the God we serve is already ahead of us, it is to him that we say, "In thee oh Lord, do I put my trust."

That's why the song writer declared, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame, but wholly lean on Jesus name. On Christ the solid rock I stand...

All other Ground!

All other Ground is sinking sand!

No.9720-King Day

When you have been to the Mountain Top

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 17, 2016

SCRIPTURE: And Moses went up from the plains of Moab unto the mountain of Nebo, to the top of Pisgah, that is over against Jericho. And the LORD shewed him all the land of Gilead, unto Dan; 4. And the LORD said unto him, This is the land which I sware unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, saying, I will give it unto thy seed: I have caused thee to see it with thine eyes, but thou shalt not go over thither. Deuteronomy 34:1;4

Introduction

What would happen if you were given a chance to get a peek into the future of your family? Suppose what you saw was encouraging and filled with hope? Such a vision would make all of your struggles and sacrifices worthwhile.

From time to time God pulls back the curtain of time and allows all of us to take a peek into the future; these glimpses provide a unique vantage point for us to see the ultimate end of our life work, much of which will be accomplished long after our lifetimes.

It's a mountaintop experience for a parent to see a child completing his/her professional or career training, launching a career, starting a family and standing unassisted. It is even more of a mountaintop experience for a grandparent to see the potential greatness in their grandchildren and great-grandchildren realized.

The higher the mountain view, the farther we see into the future. We also see the hills and valleys that lay between the Promised Land and the present. Atop the mountain, we see the challenging mountains of frustration and the valleys of despair that lie ahead for those that follow. However, the mountaintop view also gives us a chance to know that those whom we love will get there one day, even if we do not.

That's the nature and substance of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s last message to the world before being struck down by an assassin's bullet. He declared that he had been to the mountaintop and had seen the Promised Land.

On April 3, 1968, Dr. King addressed nearly 2000 people at a church in Memphis, Tennessee. These 2000 were like millions of others in America who were living through a storm of racial discrimination. They came to hear Dr. King speak despite a severe weather storm forecast for the area. They who were living through a storm, but came in a storm, to learn whether the sun would shine for them after the storm!

As he concluded his address that night, Dr. King said,

"Well, I don't know what will happen now. We've got some difficult days ahead. But it doesn't matter with me now. Because I've been to the mountaintop. And I don't mind. Like anybody, I would like to live a long life. Longevity has its place. But I'm not concerned about that now. I just want to do God's will. He's allowed me to go up to the mountain. And I've looked over. And I've seen the Promised Land. I may not get there with you, but I want you to know tonight, that we as a people, will get to the Promised Land."

The next day at 6:00 p.m., Dr. King was assassinated. According to the King family, and a subsequent civil trial in 1999, he was killed by agencies of the United States Government who pinned the killing on James Earl Ray.

The circumstances of his death are still debated even to this day, but his mountaintop view of the future was unquestioned and shared with every generation that has followed. His words echo across the decades, "I may not get there with you, but I want you to know tonight, that we as a people will get to the Promised Land."

As Christians, we can appreciate what it means to go to the mountaintop. We can also understand the power of knowing that despite the frustrations of the moment, "We as a people will get to the Promised Land."

Exposition

This text focuses on Moses as God shows him a view of the Promised Land from atop Mt. Nebo.

Mt. Nebo is part of a range of mountains of which Mt. Pisgah and Mt. Nebo are alternative names for the same location. God called Moses to the top Mt. Nebo and allow him to see the beauty of the land of promise.

From Mt. Nebo, Moses was able to see Gilead, Hermon, Tabor, Ebal, and Gerizim.

From Mt. Nebo, he could also see Jericho, the lower Jordan, and the Mt. of Olives.

From this panoramic view of the Promised Land Moses was reassured that the 40-year journey from Egypt to the River Jordan was not in vain. The land was truly as God had promised, flowing with opportunity, as freely as milk and honey.

Shortly, after Moses died, but the people marched on to enter the promised land and claim the promise of God.

Advantage of the view

There is a unique perspective that we gain when you have been to the mountaintop, it alters your behavior, changes, your views and inspires your hopes.

THE MOUNTAINTOP CAN CHANGE YOUR THINKING: Those who have been to the mountaintop have often changed their views, perspectives and life priorities. Some had had their views confirmed by what they experience. Abraham went to the mountaintop and found out that God provides a ram in the bush. Elijah went to a mountain and challenged the prophets of Baal; there he learned that God is able to answer by fire. When Moses went to the mountaintop, he saw the fulfillment of God's promise.

The mountaintop can give such a clear perspective that it can change views. The most influential leader of Black Muslims in America was Malcolm X. He preached a doctrine of hate that characterized all whites as "blonde-haired blue-eyed devils." He believed that the problems of blacks in America could be solved if it were not for the blonde haired blue eyed devils. In 1964, he went on a trip to Mecca, the mountaintop experience for Muslims. There he saw Muslims of all races, hugging each other and referring to each other. He was astounded to see, brown Muslims from Idia, yellow Muslims from Asia, Black Muslims from Africa and from Europe there were blond haired-Blue eyed Muslims. This mountaintop view changed his opinion. He came back to American changed his name from Malcolm X to Shabazz and broke from the Nation of Islam. Soon after members of the Nation of Islam assassinated him. His mountaintop view however, was life changing.

When Malcolm returned, he called Martin Luther King so they could begin working together. He learned that our enemy is not determined by skin color, blonde hair or eye color. His assassination also showed that everyone black is not your friend. The assassinations of King and Malcolm X, both of whom had gone to the mountaintop, proved 1 Corinthians 6:12, "For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places."

Those who have been to the mountaintop see life from a different view.

THE VIEW FROM THE MOUNTAIN IS WORTH THE CLIMB. When Moses climbed to the top of Mt. Nebo, he was 120 years old; that had to be a tough climb for a 120-year-old man, climbing alone. It was nothing like the journey he had taken to reach the very brink of the Promised Land. He spent 40 years in Egypt as a ruler, another 40 years in the desert as a shepherd, and the last 40 years wandering in the wilderness with people who lost their faith. When he climbed Mt. Nebo for the final look, it was a monumental moment. Those of this generation who have peeked into the future from the mountaintop have traveled a long hard journey. Some are teachers, but they remembered teaching in all colored schools with second-hand books. Some are bus drivers, but they remember when we rode the back of those same buses. Some were being discriminated against and abused, as they climbed to the top of their own Mt. Nebo to see what God had in store for their families; they resolved that the view is worth the climb.

Despite the troubles and despair of their past and the fact that even today, there is trouble all around us, from the mountaintop, we can see a day coming when there will truly be peace on earth. There is hardship and difficulty now, but we can see the day coming when crying days will be over. The Word of God teaches us that, "He that overcometh shall inherit all things." Every believer should also say in his heart that God has great rewards in store for us. "Eye hath not seen nor has it entered into the hearts of man" to even imagine the great things that lie ahead for us. The view from the mountaintop is worth the climb.

THE MOUNTAINTOP INSPIRES US TO GO FORWARD: The great advantage of the mountaintop experience is that it motivates us to go forward. In Matthew 17:1-9 Peter, James, and John were carried to a mountaintop where Jesus revealed himself to them. On the mountaintop, the text says his face was shining like the sun, and his clothes turned snow white. They saw Moses and Elijah there, too! It was an epiphany so great that they wanted to build altars on the mountaintop and stay there and worship. They were inspired to come down from the mountain and thrust their energy into kingdom building.

The same happened to every individual among us who has had an epiphany, a mountaintop moment, where God revealed himself to you. It's that moment when everything started to make sense, the dots connected and the jagged edges of life were made plain and smooth. When each of us felt the power of God moving in our lives, we were motivated to go forward, knowing that with God's help we could make it to our individual Promised Lands.

When Martin Luther King came down from the mountain, our people exploded with the enthusiasm of the dream and exploded with frustration after his assassination. Then the march toward the Promised Land resumed. We went to the ballot boxes across the nation and elected new faces to lead, broke the glass ceiling in corporate America, broke barriers in sports, education, and medicine, and in 2008 took another mountaintop look after electing an African-American president.

Even now, we still have not made it to the Promised Land. We are still impoverished and excluded from many areas of endeavor, but we are closer than we have ever been. The words of the old Negro Spiritual remain true because even though we have been to the mountaintop, there's still, "one more river to cross."

When Jesus went to the mountaintop

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that before grandmother and grandpa or even Martin Luther King went to the mountaintop, Jesus was there first, and he created a fountain on the mountain.

In the course of his short life on Earth, Jesus went to the mountaintop. When he was thirty years old, the devil carried him to a mountaintop and showed him all the kingdoms of the world and offered it to him, if he would just worship him. It was a unique perspective that allowed Jesus to say, "It is written, Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God."

In Matthew 5 Jesus preached on a mountain and blessed everyone who came to hear, proving that there is a blessing on the mountain.

In Matthew 28: Jesus gave the great commission on a mountain. That's where he told his disciples to "Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the father, son and Holy Ghost…"

However, Mark 15:22 tells us about another mountain. It says, They brought Jesus to the place called Golgotha, which means the place of the skull. Somebody called it Mt. Calvary.

On Calvary, Jesus created a fountain of blood that dripped from his wounded side. It was a fountain on the mountain.

This fountain was fed by the blood and water that ran from his pierced side as he hung on the cross.

The shedding of his blood was for the remission of our sin.

No wonder the songwriter wrote: "There is a fountain filled with blood that flows from Immanuel's veins. And sinners plunged beneath the flood lose all their guilty stains."

Those who have been to the mountaintop can witness to the fact that on the mountain, there is a fountain.

When you've been to the mountaintop, you know that, whatever you need, you can find it at the fountain of salvation.

This fountain can take the:

—WORST and turn it into the best

—LEAST and turn it into the most

—LOWEST and turn it into the highest

—MEANEST and turn it into the kindest

—POOREST and turn it into the richest

—SMALLEST and turn it into the biggest

Calvary is the name of this mountaintop

Calvary, it's a name we should never stop calling!

Calvary, it's a bell that should never stop tolling!

Calvary, it's an accomplishment that never needs repeating!

Calvary, it's an event that never must be forgotten!

Calvary, it's an altar that never rejects a lost soul!

This fountain on Calvary is the source of our salvation, without it, we cannot be saved.

Surely, they hung him out on an old rugged cross!

Surely, the blood flowed like a fountain on Calvary!

Surely, he died on Calvary!

But Early, Early Sunday morning

He rose up from the grave, with all power!

All power!

All power in his hands!

No. 9721- Inspiration

A little Cloud out of the Sea

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 24, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "And it came to pass at the seventh time, that he said, Behold, there ariseth a little cloud out of the sea, like a man's hand. And he said, Go up, say unto Ahab, Prepare thy chariot, and get thee down, that the rain stop thee not." 1 Kings 18:44

Introduction

Have you ever prayed for something, but it appeared that your prayer went unanswered? What was your response? Were you frustrated? Most of us don't like waiting; we have limited patience even though patience and faith go hand in hand. We especially frustrated if it seems that there is little or no activity.

The corporate world is aware of our impatience, so it tries to give us a sign that something is happening. If a company puts you on hold, they play music to entertain you until a response comes. If a call is taking an unusually long amount of time, there will probably be a recorded message that says, "All agents are helping other customers at the moment, we appreciate your call; our agent will be with you shortly." The idea is to give the customer some sign that the line is moving, and a response is on the way.

That works well for the corporate world, but suppose you are waiting on God? There are no recorded messages that an angel has been assigned our prayer request and will be with us shortly. No voice says you are believer number 11,236 and the estimated wait time is two years. It doesn't work that way when you are waiting on God!

The faithful know that the minute a prayer request is given, heaven begins to respond. We know this because Isaiah 65:24 says, "And it shall come to pass, that before they call, I will answer; and while they are yet speaking, I will hear." Any prayer that we pray is being answered before we finish speaking the words.

We should be patient continue to pray and look for small signs that prayers are being answered.

Believers who are frustrated with problems or heavy burdens should remember that God may seem slack or slow, but the answer to our prayer is already on the way. We cannot hurry him, but we should be patient. That's why Isaiah 40:31 says "But they that wait upon the LORD shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary, and they shall walk, and not faint."

Our quest in the faith is to learn to wait patiently, knowing that when we do, God will lead us in the right direction.

As Christians, we strive to become more patient by trusting God more and walking each day in faith. When we know God is working on our situation, we know that soon there will be a little cloud in the sky, and an abundance of blessings will follow!

Exposition

This Text focuses on the prophet Elijah as he demonstrates the power of faith in the midst of uncertain times.

King Ahab was villainous. He introduced the worship of Baal, a false God, into the land and drew the anger of God. Elijah warned him many times that God would punish the people for this sin.

The punishment came in the form of a drought. The heavens were shut up, and the land was scorched. There was no water, no crops or vegetation.

After confronting the false prophets with a mountaintop showdown, it became apparent to Ahab that the Prophets of Baal, all 400 of them, were no match for God. He repented and executed all of the false prophets. He asked God to forgive him and heal the land.

In response to Ahab's step toward repentance, Elijah prayed for rain. It was a short prayer, made in faith, probably repeated several times. Elijah had no doubt that it would be answered, in fact, the answer came the same day.

After Elijah had prayed, he told his servant to watch for a sign that a cloud had amassed. Five times the servant climbed to the top of the mountain and looked, but saw nothing. It appeared that God had not answered Elijah's prayer. Elijah continued praying and waiting. He never went to check for himself, because he knew God would respond, he simply sent his servant.

On the sixth trip up the mountain, the servant reported seeing a little cloud. It appeared no bigger than a man's hand.

Elijah told Ahab to return quickly and prepare for a downpour because the rain was coming. When he said this, all anyone saw in the sky was a little cloud.

Soon after the little cloud formed larger clouds. The winds blew, the thunder rolled, and the rain came in abundance, in answer to Elijah's prayer.

Faithful over Little Things

Believers should note that there is a blessing in patience, prayer, and faithfulness over little things.

PRAYER AND FAITH ARE INSEPARABLE: Elijah prayed for rain, but he did not do so in a void; he believed that God would respond to his prayer for rain because it had been promised that when Ahab repented the rain would return. Because God promised it, Elijah was comfortable that rain would come because rain was in his will. Today, when we pray for anything that is in the will of God, we can be assured it will be answered. Every pray we pray must seek the will of God to be done. If it's in God's will the response begins immediately; if it's not in God's will, but is selfish and will do more harm to the kingdom than good; we can pray until we drop, but the selfish prayer gets nowhere. Jesus said when we pray we should say, "Thy will be done."

When we pray in the will of God, we have faith that our prayers will be answered in the way God is lining up the little clouds to give us rain. We should not demand a time, method or a specific response; only that God's will be done. God's answer may be right now, in a while or just plain no. He will respond. Our faith and our prayer should be inseparable because our God is a prayer answering God.

DON'T UNDERESTIMATE THE LITTLE THINGS: When Elijah prayed, there was no immediate sign that his prayer was being answered. There was nothing that the eye could see. In spite of the absence of any sign, Elijah kept praying. Soon he saw a little sign. It's important to note that he did not underestimate the value of the little cloud; he acted on it. That's our lesson; don't fail to work on the little things because they are the precursors of things to come. There are hundreds of little moments, little blessings that God sends our way every week. They are signs. Don't underestimate the power of the little things. Howard Thurman once wrote that "Little things make big differences."

When you feel unappreciated, a little thank you from the right person is a sign of a change of heart.

When you have been the victim of anger and rudeness, a little kindness points to a softening spirit.

When you have been neglected, a little quality time with the one you love is a step in the right direction.

Little things can make the difference.

That applies to our relationship with God, too.

We should not ignore the little things because they may be God's first signs that help is on the way. Consider the man whose family had fallen on hard times. Laid off from his job and several months behind on his $50,000 mortgage, he was about to lose it all after working so hard to pay it down to a mere $50,000. He went to an empty field neighboring the house he built and sat by a tree and prayed. An old miser once had a house there, but it was blown away in a storm. He asked God for $50,000. He prayed fervently and sincerely.

When he opened his eyes, he saw a shiny penny laying on the ground. He picked it up and pocketed it. The next day he prayed again and found two pennies before he left. Every day the number of pennies he discovered in that vacant lot doubled: 2 pennies, 4, 16, 32, 64,128,256, 512, 1024, 2048. By the end of the month, the man and his family had searched the entire field. At the end of the month, they had collected $56,587.08. These pennies were from the fortune of the old miser who had collected a million dollars in pennies and stored them in sacks in his basement. The storm scattered them everywhere, but God showed him his answer by showing him a single penny.

The little things may be a sign from God; don't overlook them.

BELIEVE IN A BIG GOD AND EXPECT A BIG RESPONSE: Elijah's hope was not in the little cloud, he prayed for a thunderstorm. There many people who are jealous of believers because they prayed for something big and received their prayer request. We should not be envious of those who pray for thunderstorms of blessings when all others can see is little clouds. We serve a big God. If we want to do big things in the kingdom, little clouds won't do, we need a down pouring of blessings.

God is not a man that he should fail, nor the Son of man that he should suffer defeat. Our God touches the hills, and they tremble; he touches the mountains and they smoke. If ye believe in the littleness of God, we will ask for little things and expect only little things. If we believe God is awesome, then we don't hesitate to ask for big dreams. The question for believers is not whether God can perform a work, but whether we believe God can do the job. People of faith are compelled to come before the throne of Grace with confidence that our God is omnipotent and has the power to help those who love and obey him.

There is no job God begins that he cannot finish. Neither is there a task too hard for him to complete. If this is true, then why are so many saints lacking? James 4:2 says, "….we have not because we ask not!"

All things are possible for our God. We also know that we cannot drink from the well of his power and favor unless we reach down our cup in faith. Until we act in faith, there will always be some things God can do that won't be done because of our lack of faith and action.

Don't be discouraged because of little clouds

Finally, brothers and sisters, when we pray we should never give up hope because all we see is little clouds. The little clouds mean your help is on the way.

Our hope is not in the powers of this land. Our hope is not in the influence of government, the electoral system or the Congress of the United States.

Our hope is alive because we know the Lord is still on the throne.

This is hope and faith that we take into our prayer rooms. It is a hope that when we pray, God will answer and respond to our situation.

I heard a songwriter declare: "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness, I dare not trust the sweetest frame but wholly lean on Jesus name. On Christ the solid rock I stand, all other ground is sinking sand!

"I have hope when trouble comes my way!"

Droughts may come, but I have hope!

Winds may blow, but I have hope! It's a beautiful hope that sets me free.

God expects for us to never give up hope.

As long as God is still on the throne, if you are:

—Praying for Rain, you need to get your umbrella ready!

—Praying for bread, you need to grease the pan!

—Praying for a job, you need to get your resume ready!

Why? Because God is able!

God is able to take our:

—TROUBLES and turn them into triumphs!

—MISFORTUNES and turn them into good fortunes!

—STUMBLING BLOCKS and turn them into stepping stones!

—DEFEATS and turn them into successes!

—SETBACKS and turn them into step ups!

We serve a God who is in the prayer answering business.

When Elijah sent his servant to the mountaintop he could not see anything, He did not see:

—A drop a moisture forming so little that it could not be noticed.

—On the second trip up, the drops of moisture had come together to form a small white dot, but it still could not be seen —On the third trip up, the little dots had formed a small puff the size of a pencil, but it still could not be seen!

—On the fifth trip up, the little white puffs had come together to form something the size of a golf ball —On the six trip up, the golf ball sized cloud puffs had come together to form white puffs the size of a man's hand

The multiplying was happening so fast that Elijah told Ahab, get ready, a for a shower of blessings!

If there is a problem in your family that you can't solve, take it to the Lord in prayer.

After you have prayed about it, step back and watch God work! Get ready for the blessings to come

God can take bad situations and turn them around!

God can take unemployed hands and help them find work!

God can take empty purses and filled them with blessings!

Call on Jesus!

Jesus who died out on Calvary!

Call on Jesus, who arose after three days and nights!

Just a little talk with Jesus makes it right!

No. 9722-Inspiration

Abounding in Hope

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 31, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "Now the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, that ye may abound in hope, through the power of the Holy Ghost." Romans 15:13

Introduction

Are there times when you lose hope that what you desire will ever happen? These are the times that in spite of your best efforts you never seem to get closer to your goal. You are working hard each day, but your financial goal is still far away. Your child appears destined to miss the mark in spite of your best efforts. Your life seems to stray constantly off course although you are trying your best to take control? In times such as these, those who do not know God are tempted to throw up their hands and say, "What's the use?"

There are many faithful believers who have encountered these situations in their lives; how did they overcome them? How did they rebuild, regroup and start again? How did they keep going without throwing in the towel? How did they avoid drowning themselves in alcohol, using drugs, or losing themselves in a wasteful living? What's the secret?

Consider the grandmother who kept a little box tied with a pink ribbon under her bed for many years. Its contents were kept secret for nearly fifty years. When she died, the box was willed to her great granddaughter who opened it and found that it was filled with scores of small strips of paper with an event on one side and a Bible verse on the other. It was the story of her life struggles and how she overcame each by leaning on the word of God.

No one knew that after each of her painful experiences, she wrote a bible verse that brought her through that struggle and placed it in the box and retied the ribbon.

April 1, 1952-House burned; all lost. -2 Corinthians 4:8-9 "We are troubled on every side, yet not distressed; we are perplexed, but not in despair; Persecuted, but not forsaken; cast down, but not destroyed."

December 12, 1964-Plant closed lost job- Philippians 4:18, "But my God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus."

August 17, 1965-Funds out, savings gone. Psalm 37:25, "I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread."

June 10, 1975-Grandpa Died. Revelation 21:4 "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away."

The granddaughter's eyes filled with tears of joy and held the box close to her heart. Every time she ran into a struggle in her life she looked in Grandma's hope box and found a similar situation and a bible verse. Soon after, the granddaughter gave her life to Christ and began building her own hope box to remind her children and grandchildren, that in Christ, there is always hope.

What is hope? In the broadest sense, "hope" can have two definitions. In the secular context, hope refers to a feeling that "what we want to happen will happen." We are said to have "hope" as long as we have that feeling. Hope, in this context, is baseless because it offers no rational reason why something should occur other than the fact that we want it to happen. For some, this is unfounded optimism, a futile exercise that will yield nothing.

However, in the biblical context hope assumes a different character. To those who believe in the bible and trust in God, hope is confidence that what God has done for us in the past, guarantees that he can and will do similar acts in our future. Therefore, without God, hope is simply an empty feeling not supported by any evidence of probability. However, with God, hope is based on the confidence gained from past experiences.

As Christians, our hope is based on our faith in Jesus Christ as our Lord and Savior. We know he will not ever leave us completely alone and even in our worst moments, he will make a way. The songwriter said it best, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame, but wholly lean on Jesus' name."

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul's encouraging words to the Romans that they should expect improved situations in spite of difficult times.

Specifically writing to the Christians in Rome, but generally sending a message to all Christians, Paul said ,"The God of Hope" is urged to fill each person with joy and peace "in believing" or because they believe, to the point that they never lose hope, despite the adverse circumstances they endured.

That hope is sustained in every person through the power of the Holy Ghost.

The preponderance of scripture in both the old and the New Testaments suggests that clouds or adverse circumstances will come for the faithful, but while they may block the sun, they never stop the sun from shining.

We are encouraged to keep working in faith, with a positive spirit, because there is always a reason to keep going.

Three ways to abound

Today, three words should guide our thinking about hope: Abound, Unbound, and Rebound. These three words help us to understand the full meaning of God's word for our life situation.

ABOUND: Paul told the Romans that peace and joy come from believing. People of faith "abound" in hope. When we think of abounding we think of bursting, overflowing, torrents, and plentiful. That means that regardless of the situation, we enter it bursting with hope that God will be God and take charge. No matter how troubling the news we receive, we receive it with an overflowing hope that God will handle the situation on our behalf. No matter how we scrap and save to make ends meet we do so with plenty of hope that God will respond to our crises. To abound in hope means to never run out of faith in God. It means to never stop trusting God. Those who continue to do good work and keep trusting God will abound. We should not be tempted in frustration to turn to criminal activity or sinful approaches. God will help the faithful to abound. Proverbs 28:20 says, "A faithful man shall abound with blessings: but he that maketh haste to be rich shall not be innocent." Those who abound never forget that God is able. 2 Corinthians 9:8 says, "And God is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work." We never give up hope that God is able. There is no situation beyond his control outside of the reach of his power. As long as God is able, there is hope!

UNBOUND: Paul encouraged believers to abound in hope, but many cannot abound because they are not unbound from their faithless life before Christ. Before we came to Christ, we were dead to the life of faith and trust. We responded to every situation in survival mode: do whatever it takes to survive; right or wrong. We were wrapped up, tied up and tangled up in the world. Our new lives in Christ challenge us to have faith and to break every chain that binds us. This is what Tasha Cobb had in mind when she wrote the lyrics to her popular song, "There is power in the name of Jesus to break every chain, break every chain!" To abound, we must break the chains that keep us from living the abundant life. When Lazarus arose, he was alive, but he stilled looked dead. He was still tied wrap up and tied up as if he was dead. Jesus commanded that he be loosed or unbound. There are many today who have been given new spiritual life, but like Lazarus, they are stilled wrapped up in their grave clothes. They still frequent the people, places, and things that were associated with their dead faithless lives. They are still tangled up in the same doubts and fears that troubled them before they met the Lord. To abound, we must become unbound from our faithless life, so that we can have life and have it more abundantly.

REBOUND: To rebound means to bounce back after hitting a hard surface. Paul said, bathe themselves in the hope that God will make a way out of no way. That means that even if we have fallen in life, we should not give up. Don't count yourself out; a just man falleth seven times and riseth up again: If We Fail We Should Get Up Again! There are many today who are frustrated because they have failed so many times in life. Some have already begun to characterize themselves as useless. Today we need to note that the failure is not in being knocked down, we only fail if we refuse to get back up. Proverbs 24:16 says, " For a just man falleth seven times, and riseth up again: but the wicked shall fall into mischief." That makes it abundantly clear that even good people will fall, slip, make mistakes, or make wrong turns in life. The fact that you have fallen does not mean that you are "bad people" it means that you are human. When we fall, that's when we dig deep into our spiritual reservoir and muster the courage necessary to stand up one more time. If we choose to throw in the towel, then life will count us out. We cannot abound unless we rebound.

Keep Holding on

We must remember no matter what the trial or the situation we should never lose hope because God is always with us.

There is no need for any believer to give up hope, so when we get to the end of our rope, we should just tie a knot and hold on.

Trusting in the Lord has proven to be the fuel that feeds our hope that despite the darkness of the moment, there's a bright side somewhere!

—Noah trusted the Lord, and he brought him through the great flood!

—Abraham trusted the Lord, and he showed him the ram in the bush!

—Ruth trusted the Lord, and she found happiness while gleaning fields!

—Moses trusted the Lord, and he led Israel out of bondage!

—Daniel trusted the Lord, and he protected him in the Lion's Den!

—The Three Hebrew Boys trusted the Lord, and he shielded them in the fiery furnace!

We should continue to place our hope in the Lord because when we are:

—Sad, the Lord will be our fountain of joy!

—At Fault, the Lord will be our stronghold of forgiveness!

—Weak, the Lord will be our pillar of strength

—Discouraged, the Lord will be our pool of inspiration!

—Defeated, the Lord will be our crown of victory!

—Darkness, the Lord will be our light!.

—Lonely, the Lord will be our friend

—Helpless, the Lord will be our help.

I'm reminded of a family in the hill country that often walked a path over the hills and through the valley to visit relatives. One night the father walked with his wife and children along that beaten path, but a sudden fog appeared. No one could see anything because of the thick fog, but the father kept moving at the same pace. The son called out to his mother, "Mother shouldn't we slow down. We can't see where we're going." The mother said, "I can't see how to put one foot in front of the other myself. But your father has walked this trail since he was a boy. When he walked backed and forth to grandma's, he walked this path. When he carried wood for Aunt Carrie, he walked this trail. When he came home late at night from working in the fields, he walked this trail. No, son, I can't see anything, but your father knows the way, we'll just hold his hand!

You may not be able to see how to put one foot in front of the other, but your father in heaven knows the way!

Hold to his hand! God's unchanging hand!

The same hand that was nailed to an old rugged cross!

Hold to his hand! He died out on Calvary, but early Sunday morning, he arose from the dead!

Hold to his hand!

No. 9723-Inspiration

Living for the End Zone

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 7, 2016

SCRIPTURE: I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Philippians 3:14

Introduction

What's the goal of any game? The goal is to win! What determines whether a player or team wins depends on the nature of the game. The rules for hockey, Lacrosse, tennis and a plethora of other sports that differ on what it takes to win. In football, the goal is to get a ball into the end zone in ways that accumulate more points than the other player.

While millions of people will watch the Super Bowl, there are millions who still don't understand the game. The simplest description could be the one used by Pal Newell: Two teams, a ball, the end zone, get the ball to the end zone, and get it there more times than the other team."

There are lots of other things in between such as timeouts, penalties, plays, but they are secondary. The main things are two teams, one ball, and get to the end zone.

During the game, each team will make progress, suffer penalties, fumble and endure setbacks, but they keep going forward. The point is to gain as much yardage as possible and push towards the end zone.

As the game begins, there is a coin toss, and the referee shows each team their end zone. It's important to know your end zone because you don't want to score points for the other team. That can happen! In 1964 Jim Marshall, a defensive lineman of for the Minnesota Vikings picked up a fumbled ball and was turned around several times by the 49ers offense. Marshall, still dazzled, started running like Forest Gump. He ran 66 yards right into the other team's end zone. Today, Marshall is not remembered for playing 20 straight games. He's remembered for running to the wrong end zone.

In preparation for Super Bowl 50, the NFL groundskeepers made a mistake and painted the wrong end zone in Broncos colors instead of the Carolina Panthers. They had to repaint the end zones so that players wouldn't be confused.

Believers are in a contest as well; the prize is heaven. We must keep our eye on the right end zone and not use up all of our energy running, working, struggling, and reaching for the wrong end zone.

The Super Bowl is a game, but striving to get to heaven is a reality! It is not a game!

However, getting to our spiritual end zone has many similarities to getting to the end zone.

As Christians, we never take our eyes off the prize. The prize is to build the kingdom of God, live the Christian life, and make it to heaven one day. Every day we are Living for the End Zone.

Exposition

The text focuses on Paul's Epistle to the Church at Philippi. While imprisoned in Rome he wrote this letter to the Christians in Philippi to tell them of the joy of serving the Lord and to encourage them to keep their minds focused on their purpose in life.

Paul's life was intensely focused on his goal. He chose not to focus on his past accomplishments, which included his education and training, conversion on the Damascus road, three missionary journeys, and the conversions of countless numbers to the faith. It would have been very easy for him, especially considering his confinement and approaching death, to dwell on the past and continually reflect on his achievements. He chose to focus on the future rather than on the past.

Paul knew what he wanted and where he was going. His goal was the prize of the high calling of God. It did not lay in the praise of men, or the accumulation of worldly things. He concluded that he would not be dissuaded in his journey. In Romans 8:35 he asked, "Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword?" Then he answered in verse 37,"Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us."

His goal in life was set, it was clear and in focus, he had decided to use his life as a witness to the power of God, and there would be no turning back.

Journey to the End Zone

Each believer is on a journey to the end zone. Each believer has his/her eye on the prize and should keep these three thoughts in mind.

THE DEVIL IS IN FRONT OF THE ENDZONE: The end zone of any football game is only 100 yards from end to end. That's only 300 feet. It would be easy to walk that far in a couple of minutes, with the exception that the devil stands between your team and the end zone. What should be an easy 100 yards becomes a virtual war! The journey to the end zone must be made yard by yard fighting your opposition every inch of the way. It's the same for believers who notice that every day the devil has a defense for every offensive play we execute. If we try to run straight up the middle and claim the victory, he tackles us. If we try to gain ground with ambitious passes or leaps of faith, he tries to intercept our hope. Even if we try handoffs and sneaks, Satan is there, too. We move forward but have to switch up our plays, change our strategy and keep our eyes on the end zone.

Satan is always busy devising ways to destroy or frustrate the people of God. We know this is true because the word of God in 1 Peter 5:8 says, "Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour."

The devil is forming weapons against God's people even as we speak today. However, we have one assurance. It is the knowledge that no matter what plans, plots, schemes or weapons that Satan devises to use against us they cannot prevent the unfolding of the will of God. We are not intimidated by the devil in front of us; we are encouraged because we know that no weapon formed against us shall prosper! We are going for the end zone!

THE 12TH MAN OFTEN MAKES THE DIFFERENCE: In any football game there are only 11 people on a team, but teams such as the Seattle Seahawks and the Denver Broncos are noted for something unique; they both have the famous 12th man on the field, especially when they play at home. What is the 12th man? The home team fans are the 12th man. These fans will often create loud sounds or chant in hopes of distracting, demoralizing and confusing the opposing team while they have possession of the ball; or to persuade a referee to make a favorable decision. Noises are made by shouting, whistling, stomping and various other techniques by the 12th man.

Believers do the same thing! We support and encourage each other along the way! We see another saint moving toward the end zone, we cheer for them, praise them and make noise for them! When we see the enemy trying to defeat them, we make noise to defend them! That's the advantage of being part of a church fellowship! It's the 12th man experience! When you cry, you don't cry alone! When there is death, you don't go through it alone! When there is trouble, you don't go through your troubles alone. When you family achieves a victory, you don't celebrate alone! - Your church family becomes your 12th man!

But even greater than that, we know that we are never alone in our struggles. Even when we face the fires of life, God is there, too. When the Three Hebrew Boys were thrown into the fiery furnace, their enemies saw something miraculous! They were walking around in the fire, but there were not just three, but there were four. Daniel 3:25 says, "He answered and said, Lo, I see four men loose, walking in the midst of the fire, and they have no hurt; and the form of the fourth is like the Son of God."

When we are moving toward our End Zone, it's great to have the 12 man composed of our friends in the faith, but when the going gets tough, we need the 4th man in the fire, who is the Son of God.

DANCING IN THE END ZONE: There's something exciting about making it to the end zone. It's so exciting that some who make it there perform little dances or show some other sign that they have achieved a goal. It's against the rules, but they do it anyway. They are relishing the victory! That's what believers do all the time! We live in the end zone! We live in our victory! Every day of our lives we are celebrating small victories; those moments when we know that the only way that we succeeded was because of the grace of God. It's what Barack and Michelle Obama felt when they danced at the Inaugural Ball. It's what Saints fans felt when they won the Super Bowl and danced down Bourbon Street. It's what David felt when he finally returned the Ark of the Covenant and danced nearly naked in the street.

Solomon, in his great wisdom, said in Ecclesiastes 3:4 that there is a time to mourn and a time to dance. This dance is a holy dance, one that is dedicated to God and responds to his goodness.

This is probably what songwriter Fred Hammond had in mind when he wrote, "When the Spirit of the Lord comes upon my heart, I will dance like David danced. "

The beauty of living in the end zone is that there is always a victory! There is always a reason to celebrate because we are "more than conquerors" through him who loves us!

The Prize

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must be aware that the goal of the Super Bowl is to win the ring, but the goal of spiritual end zone living is to receive the crown of life.

When the game is over, the winning team gets the right to pass out rings. Every player on the active staff gets a ring. The coaching staff, the entire front office, and the owners get rings. In many cases, the cheerleaders, the injured reserves, and even the water boys get a ring.

Who gets a ring is left to owners, but just about everybody who did anything for the team gets a ring.

Better than that, every believer has been promised a crown of righteousness.

It does not matter whether we are preachers in the pulpit or the person who drives the van.

It doesn't matter whether we:

—Taught a Sunday School Class, or worked with youth!

— Worked as an usher or cleaned the bathrooms!

— Sang songs of praise or swept the floors!

Every believer who keeps the faith will receive a crown of righteousness.

When a team comes out of a locker room and runs onto the field, it has one thing on its mind; making it to the end zone and winning the game.

So it is with every believer. Each day we step forward into the super bowl of life, we should do so with a positive attitude that is reflected in Philippians 4:13, I can do anything that strengthens me, through Christ.

We know that there is a possibility we may get hit or face difficulties, but we know that with God's help we can still make it to the end zone.

Every believer should suit up with the whole armor of God and remind himself: "On my way to the end zone I may:

— Get knocked down, but God will give me the strength to get up again!

— Fumble an opportunity, but God will still toss me another chance

On my way to the end zone, God will turn my:

—Disgrace into honor!

—Fear into Faith!

—Desperation into hope!

—Sorrow into Joy!

—Eternal Death into Eternal Life!

If a team makes it to the Super Bowl, it does not matter what position he played; the team members get a Super Bowl Ring; it is the symbol of their success.

To get that ring each player is willing to endure pain and punishment as they struggle for inches and yards of turf to make touchdowns.

To get that ring they take hits, fall down and get back up again!

To get that ring they give everything they have with all of their hearts."

But there is a reward for end zone living that is greater than a Super Bowl ring.

It's what Paul told Timothy in 2 Timothy 4:8 "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."

When we wear our crown, we'll sing a new song!

Victory is mine; Victory is mine. I told Satan to get thee behind Victory today is mine!

To guarantee that crown, Jesus was crucified on an old rugged cross!

There were no crowds cheering or bands playing!

There was no halftime show or million dollar commercials

When Jesus died out on Calvary, there was no two-minute warning!

They buried him in a borrowed tomb.

But early Sunday morning…..

No.9724-Love

Your Precious Love

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 14, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John 3:16

Introduction

Have you ever been in love? Have you ever been loved? Have you ever loved someone other than yourself? If you have then, you can appreciate the meaning of Valentine's Day. It is a day in which the world makes expressions of love in special ways. In 1958, Jerry Butler and the Impressions wrote a song that has lasted nearly half a century. It was entitled, "Your Precious Love" It's lyrics said, "Your precious love means more to me than any love could ever be…for as long as you are in love me, your love will grow wider, deeper than any sea." The simple words of the song were so thought provoking that it was recorded by Otis Redding.

Marvin Gaye and Tammi Terrell kept the title, but added their own twist: " To find a love like ours is rare these days 'Cause you've shown me happiness, yes, in so many ways I look in the mirror, and I'm glad to see Laughter in the eyes where tears used to be.

It is the essence of Romantic songs of the period because it spoke to the heart of the matter, "Your love means more to me than any love could ever be."

On Valentine's Day, the world celebrates love with a variety of expressions. There are millions of candy assortments sold on Valentine's Day. Roses and other assortments of flowers are in high demand. February 14th is actually a religious holiday in many Christians faiths, especially among Anglicans, Lutherans, and some Catholics. There were three St. Valentine's, including one Black one who was martyred in Africa. The one who's life seems to be replicated in legend was persecuted under the Roman Emperor Claudius. He was jailed for performing weddings for soldiers in love. While in prison he healed the jailer's daughter of blindness, and just before his death left her a note of kindness signed "Your Valentine." –People have been sending Valentine's ever since.

People have been giving Valentines for hundreds of years. Sometimes they are appeals to love and then there are appeals to makeup after breaking up. Consider the man who filed for a divorce against his wife. When he stormed out of the house, he said he would never come back again leaving his wife in tears. She had given him her all, and he broke her heart. Two weeks later, he was watching television, and he decided to write her a message and send it to her email. He wrote her a very beautiful love letter that said, "Darling, I am so angry with myself. You have tried to love me, but I wouldn't love you back. You gave me your heart, and I broke it. You gave me your affections, and I trampled them. You gave me your love, and I squandered it. I now realize what a fool I have been. I can't sleep thinking about you. Being away from you is breaking my heart. I want to love you, like you have loved me and enjoy our life together as equal partners. Will you forgive me?" –With All my love, your husband. The wife was almost in tears until she read the last line. P.S. Congratulations on winning the $300 million lottery last week!-There's nothing like $300 million to make us feel like loving again.

Did you know that God has sent the world a Valentine? It's not in a red box; there are no hearts or "Roses are red and violets are blue" poem. As an expression of his love God sent the world his son and through him demonstrated his special love for us all.

As Christians, we should happily receive God's love and expressions of love. It is through Christ, God's Valentine to all of us that we have a chance for everlasting life.

Exposition

This text focuses on John's explanation of love from his Gospel account and his first epistle; that combined explain the nature of God's love.

In John 3 John says God loved the world so much that He gave His only begotten Son. It was an explanation of the nature of the Agape Love of God that is unconditional and does not require reciprocity.

In essence, God shows a love for the world that does not depend upon the world showing the same love to him. He scratched the world's back even if the world didn't or couldn't return the favor.

In his epistle, John makes it clear the God displays perfect love. Perfect love is unconditional, all-inclusive and expensive. John lays out some specifics about loving God. The specifics include various reasons why we should love God. He encourages believers to love each other as God has loved us; that is without expectation of a recompense for our acts of love and charity.

In verse 17 John encourages believers to love God with a perfect love that is unconditional. In verse 19, John expresses a reason we love God is because of his excellent character displayed when he decided to send His only begotten Son to die for our sins.

How God's love is Precious

There are three ways that God's love is precious to us:

FOUR DIMENSIONAL LOVE IS PRECIOUS: There are many people who love, but their love is one dimensional. We are often uncomfortable because we seek the other dimensions, but they are often missing, except when we feel the love of God. God's love has length. The length of God's love is infinite. It has no end. From the beginning of time to this very moment.

God has loved us every second and every hour. Our love is often limited. It usually wears out or runs out, but God's love never runs out.

God's love has breadth because he loves everybody everywhere. John declared that he loves the whole world, indicating that he loves everybody. Our love is often limited in this respect. There are some people we love, but others that we don't even want to love.

God's love has depth because he was willing to give up the glories of heaven to save the souls of a sinful world. We love, but sometimes our love has no depth. There are limits to how far we will go and what we will do for love. God's love has no limits.

God's love also has height. He wants to lift up those he loves. We often take out our frustrations on the ones we love and talk them down, but God wants to lift us up.

He came to lift us up!

He came to lift up a bowed down head!

He came to lift up a broken spirit!

He came to restore joy to a broken heart!

Four-dimensional love is truly, a precious love

LOVE IS PRECIOUS: God's love is unconditional. It goes beyond mere mutual respect and courtesy. When the world snubbed its nose at God and disobeyed his commandments and precepts, God's response was Love the world anyway. The world cursed God, and he made the sun rise everyday anyway! The world ignored him, but he put food on its tables every day! The world rejected God, but he continued to shower blessings upon it daily! There is no doubt God was angry with the world. Once, he became so angry that he flooded the earth with water. But his overall response to the world has been a "love." If we have someone who loves us unconditionally, that kind of love is precious.

LOVE WITH NO STRINGS IS PRECIOUS: Those who enter into a covenant relationship with God will find that he has no strings attached. All he wants from us is our obedience and faith. It's different than our secular relationships. If an offer seems to good to be true, it usually is just that-too good. So we take a wait and see attitude. We read the fine print and the details for the strings are often hidden in the small letters. But when God says, "I love" there are no strings attached! When the world invites us into a relationship, we proceed with caution, because invitations usually have hidden motives. But when the Lord says, "Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hears my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me." There are no strings attached.

God's words of love to us bold, but true. There is no need for us to take a wait and see attitude. When the Word says, "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life"-There are no strings attached!

If there were strings attached to God's love, then most of us would never be blessed.

When God hangs out the sun each day, I'm glad there are no strings attached.

When God sends down the showers every month, I'm glad that it doesn't just rain on the worthy, because no one would receive any rain!

When God sends down blessings for mankind, I'm glad that he doesn't just bless those who deserve it, because none of us would receive anything!

When God says, "I love you!" there are no strings attached!

When Jesus healed the blind man, there were no strings attached!

When told the woman at the well all she had ever done, there were no strings attached!

When he raised Lazarus from the grave, there were no strings attached!

Love with no strings attached is a precious love!

Expressing Godly love

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must all recognizes that God loves us with a love that wider and deeper than the blue sea.

Elizabeth Barrett Browning wrote "How do I love thee, let me count the ways. I love you to height, breadth and depth of my soul."

Maybe that's the way God loves us. What we know about God's love is that it is shown to us, even though we don't deserve it, every day of our lives. That's a precious love!

How does God love me love? Let me count the ways!

He loved me enough to wake me up this morning, and clothe me in my right mind!

He loved me enough to put food on my table!

He loved me enough to open doors that have been closed in my face!

He loved me enough to pick me up when I fell down!

On Valentine's Day those in love struggle to find ways to express their love that will be meaningful. Some give cards, candy, and gifts. Some make marriage proposals and compose sweet words on paper. Trying to find a way to demonstrate love gets to be a challenge.

We can only imagine what God must of have thought when He decided upon the ultimate way to demonstrate his love.

I could give them the stars, but soon the stars would stop twinkling!

I could give them the moon, but after a while, the moon would cease to shine!

I could give them the warmth of a summer day, but summers last only for short seasons and then comes the fall!

I could give them silver and gold, but there will come a time when they will lose their value!

I could set them afloat on the calm seas of life! But there will come a time when storms will rise!

I want to give them a message that will be with them always, even until the end of the world!

What did God decide to give? John 3:16 says, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life!

Jesus was the Son of God in the flesh. John 1:14 says, "And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only-begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth."

He gave the world His only son!
He was wounded for our transgressions
He was bruised for our iniquities!
They whipped Him and tried Him all night long
They put a crown of thorns on His head!
They hung him up high and stretched him out wide!
He died out on Calvary, and they buried him in a borrowed tomb,
But early Sunday morning, he arose with all power in his hands!
He died to pay the price for our sins!
He arose to give us one more chance!
That's precious love!

No. 9725-Heritage

A Humble Woman in a Royal House

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 21, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "Now it came to pass on the third day, that Esther put on her royal apparel, and stood in the inner court of the king's house, over against the king's house: and the king sat upon his royal throne in the royal house, over against the gate of the house." Esther 5:1

Introduction

Have you ever fantasized about the life you'd live after you achieved the success you seek? Do you see a big house with a swimming pool? How many cars are in your future? Are there servants, vacations, travel? What about huge walk-in closets filled with the finest clothes, are they in that picture, too? Would your circle of friends change? Would you welcome your family to share in your success or would you avoid them?

As we get closer to our goals in life, the challenge is to maintain perspective.

There are many whose goal in life is to become a part of the upper crust. Upper crust is a kitchen terminology that refers to the fact that a great pie has a crust on the bottom and top. The lower crust keeps it all together and usually absorbs most of the heat. The upper crust is perfectly brown and is seen most often. Both are essential, but it's the top crust that gets all of the attention. If the whole concoction stays in the oven too long, it's the lower crust that gets burned, while the upper crust stays pretty. It's the bottom crust that's scraped and often lives a life that sticks to the pan, while the top crust, breaks away easily in flaky slices.

In life, the upper crust refers to those persons who get invitations to the fine parties, balls, and celebrations. These are the elite, aristocratic, the Illuminati, the crème' de la crème, royalty, and notables. The lower crust is the rest of us: The commoners, proletariats, working folks, and the have-nots.

Maintaining perspective means to remember no matter whether you are upper or lower, you are still just crust. The meat of the matter lies somewhere between the upper crust and the lower crust.

This was the lesson many slaves failed to learn. House slaves wore beautiful clothes and were treated well in many cases. Yard slaves worked close to the big house and could avoid the heat or cold in the comfort of shelters. The field slave worked in the fields toiling in the sun. They had to keep their perspective, however, no matter how well the house slave dress; in one respect they were all the same, they were all slaves.

Our objective in life should be to get to the meat, not to be hung up on the crust. Keeping that perspective is what we often refer to as "Remembering where you come from."

Exposition

This text focuses on Esther, a humble Jewish woman who rose to become the queen of Persia and saved her people from destruction.

The story of Esther concerns a king called Ahasuerus, the grandfather of Cyrus the Great, who has married a young Jewish girl named Esther, a captive taken from the city of Jerusalem.

This text focuses on Esther as she is told that her rise to the throne of Persia was destined so that she could save her people from destruction.

Esther was a beautiful Jewish girl. She was bright, intelligent, and one of the most beautiful women of the land. However, she was a Jewess. She was part of a captured race that was a ward of the Persians. When Xerxes ordered a beauty pageant held from which he would select a wife, Esther entered, confident that despite her race, she could win and become queen of all Persia. She entered and won. In 476 B.C. she became queen of all Persia.

While on the throne she influenced the king to save the Jewish people from plots to destroy them. She arranged for another Jew, Mordecai, to move up and become the prime minister of the country. Their influence paved the way for the return of the Jews from exile. Hers is the story of a woman who never doubted that God could make things happen for her, despite her social circumstance. She achieved the impossible with her life but was not so absorbed with her success that she forgot her people.

She used her influence to raise others up and to help save her people from destruction.

Esther put on her royal apparel, stood in the king's presence and sat on the imperial throne, but she never forgot who she was or the plight of her people.

Raising a Generation

God is exalting an army of believers to respond to the cries of the masses. If we are rising, it is for a purpose. Job asked in Job 7:17, "What is man that thou should magnify him?" Psalm 144:3 asks, "What is man that thou takest knowledge of him?" Why am I being elevated on my job, in my family, and in the community? This is the reason that God magnifies the saints; so that we can reach back and help others.

GOD IS IN THE PLAN: The name of God is never mentioned in the Book of Esther, but every act of deed reflects his presence and influence. Esther's selection as the queen of Persia may have appeared to be by chance or luck, but God had a hand in that plan. Likewise, it may not seem that our advances are the result of God's influence; but he has a hand in every decision that has been made to advance us. Unseen by the hand of man God has exalted many believers to positions that allow them to promote the building of his kingdom and provide spiritual help for those who follow him.

Often we cannot see God's hand, but there is no doubt that God's hand is in the plan.

Everything that happens has a reason and purpose, according to God's divine plan. A promotion, a raise in pay, an unexpected opportunity, does not come by chance; God has a hand in the plan. Just as Esther was not raised so she could wear beautiful clothes and sit on a throne and look good, neither are we raised just so that we can become "crust." God wants us to deal with the meat of our purpose.

God is doing things for us and to us for a reason!

IT'S NOT ABOUT THE CRUST: No one bakes a pie, just for the crust! The crust is an added touch, but it's the heart that matters. What mattered for Israel wasn't that Esther now lived in the palace and was able to wear fine clothes, what mattered is that she was now in a position to help them. What matters most to African-Americans is not so much that there is someone in the White House that looks like us, while that is great, it is important that someone is there who remembers that we don't have health care insurance or that crime is destroying our communities and is trying to do something about it! The photos of opulence, limousines, and fancy dinners is "crust!" We are concerned about getting to the heart of the problem. The meat of the matter is that 48 percent of nine million black families are headed by women, our fathers are disappearing, our homes are falling apart, and we have more black men in prison than we have in college.

If God lifts a single believer higher and puts them in a position as supervisor, teacher, owner, principal, pastor, foreman, elected official, head of household or public personality that is crust, but the challenge is to use the position to deal with the real problems that surround. Buying ourselves a bigger car, house, new suit, fishing boat or pole is crust. There's nothing wrong with a good crust, but everyone should take every opportunity they get to address the meat of the problem.

In 1967, Thurgood Marshall was elevated to serve on the Supreme Court. He wasn't concerned with the crust of his achievement; he immediately worked to break down barriers for others of his race to achieve success as well. However, In 1991 Clarence Thomas, became the second black to be elevated to the Supreme Court. He became a lawyer thanks to affirmative action laws, but one of his first acts was to rule against affirmative action laws. In subsequent actions, he kicked away the ladder which helped him climb, making it harder for others to follow. His legacy will be that of a flaky crust while that of Marshall will be one of meat and substance for his people.

It's not about the crust it's about getting to the heart of the matter.

WHEN ITS WELL- DON'T FORGET: Queen Esther had the best opportunity a Jewish woman could expect, but she never forgot her heritage, she knew thousands needed her to remember. When the Butler was released from jail in Egypt, Joseph said to him in Genesis 40:14, "But think on me when it shall be well with thee, and shew kindness, I pray thee, unto me, and make mention of me unto Pharaoh, and bring me out of this house." It was only a plea from a desperate man! "Think on me when it shall be well with thee."

When you return to the King's palace...think on me!

When you wear clean changes of clothes...think on me!

When you eat well-prepared foods...think on me!

When you sleep on soft pillows at night...think on me!

When you rejoice with family and friends...think on me!

Today, "Joseph" is 46 percent of our employment age youth who can't find a job. I hear them say, "When it is well with thee, think on me."

Today,"Joseph" is 4 out of ten households headed by a woman in the absence of a father. I hear those struggling mothers say,"When it is well with thee, think on me."

"Joseph" is a growing percentage of children parenting children. I hear their newborn babies say, "When it is well with thee, think on me."

"Joseph" is thousands of poor families who keep warm by the sunlight in the day and nearly freeze at night. I hear their voices say, "When it is well with thee, think on me."

I'm so glad that I serve a God who will not forget me. Trials may come on every hand...but God will not forget me.

Tribulations may block my way...but God will not forget me!

Remember the Purpose

Finally, brothers and sisters, we have to bear in mind that our purpose on this earth is to build the kingdom of God through Jesus Christ our Lord.

In bondage, Israel cried out to God to remember their oppression, and he sent them Moses.

In subjugation, they cried out to God to remember their captivity, and he sent them judges like Samson, Deborah, and Samuel.

In Exile, they cried out to God to remember their isolation, and he sent them words of hope and restoration from Daniel and Ezekiel.

In Hopelessness, we have cried out to God, and he has sent us Jesus.

Working through the daily affairs of mankind, Jesus is positioning believers all over the world to help bring the spirit of godliness into a pagan world.

We can't give up now!

We must roll up our sleeves and reach out to those who are lost, and don't even know they are lost; We can't give up now!

The task ahead will be frustrating and challenging, but we must remain committed to the journey of faith, We can't give up now!

Principals must lead their faculties to do more than help students pass standardized tests, but to go the extra mile it takes to break the chains! We can't give up now!

Teachers can't get weary. Churches can't get tired! Leaders must not get weary. We can't give up now!

Today every believer must remember that God is working through us to save a generation.

If you sing encouraging words in the choir, keep singing!

If you wash pots, mop floors and lick stamps, keep giving your service!

If you volunteer, work with the elderly or mentor youth, keep your hand tied to the winding chain!

Keep on walking! Keep on talking! You can't stop now!

Our cry is, Lord, remember me!

I hear God saying, In the morning, ye shall see the glory of the Lord!

In the morning, ye shall see the glory of the Lord!

Hang on brothers and sisters, there is a new day coming!

In the morning, it won't matter whether you are black or white!

In the morning, it won't matter whether you are Hispanic, Asian or Native American.

In the morning, every mountain shall be made low.

In the morning, every valley shall be exalted! And the glory of the Lord shall be revealed!

He started showing his grace over 2000 years ago!

On a hill called Calvary! He died, but Early Sunday morning he arose from the dead!

In the morning, we shall see His glory! Glory! Glory!

No. 9726-Inspiration

And God is Able

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 6, 2016

SCRIPTURE: And God is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work:" 2 Corinthians 9:8

Introduction

Have you ever been faced with a difficulty that seemed impossible to conquer? If you are like most believers, you said a small prayer, took a deep breath and then said, "You can do this!"

The difficulties vary from person to person, but the response of the faithful is the same. What are some of the challenges?

For some, the challenge is to go back to school and complete the next level of their education. At this stage, it may mean trying to juggle a job and family concerns. They know it needs to be done, but years have passed making it a difficult task. There have been millions who have said a small prayer, took a deep breath and said, "I can do this!"

For others the challenge is to change careers; that requires learning a whole new set of skills. Changing jobs often means months of intense focus and sacrifice. It's a big challenge. However, there are millions who have said a small prayer, took a deep breath and then said, "I can do this!"

Still others face health challenges that will plunge them into the unknown but must be faced. The uncertainty of the unknown is unsettling, but dealing with it is something that they know must not be ignored. Like millions before them, they said a small prayer, took a deep breath and then said, "I can do this!'

Whether it's making one more step in physical therapy, improving a grade in school or taking the quality of a relationship to a higher level, believers all follow the route of faith: They go to God in prayer, take a deep breath, and then say to themselves, "I can do this."

What is that prayer? Is it a special rosary or select verse? For many people, it's a scripture prayer, such as Psalm 23:1 "The Lord is my shepherd, and I shall not want." For others it is Psalm 121: "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, who made the heaven and earth." For still others, it is Psalm 71:1, "In thee oh Lord do, I put my trust."

At the moment we face a difficult task we often forget about God's power. It's when we have tried so many different ways to deal with our situation that nothing seems to work. It's then that we must pray that final prayer. What is it? It's only four words; that's why it's a short prayer. It's found in Mark 9. A Father had a son who was being torn apart by an evil spirit had come to his wit's end. He did not know what to do. His son tore his clothing, often went into fits, fell in the fire, and no one knew what to do. He asked Jesus for help, and Jesus responded in Mark 9:23: Jesus said unto him, "If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth." Having been reprimanded, in Mark 9:24 "The father of the child cried out, and said with tears, Lord, I believe; help thou mine unbelief."

At the moment that we doubt the power of God, that's when we say must that small prayer, "Help thou my unbelief," take a deep breath and say, "I can do this!"

When we have faith lapses, we forget for a moment that God is able to deal with every situation we face, no matter how it may seem at the time.

As Christians, we should constantly remind ourselves that nothing is impossible for our God. No matter how tall the mountain or deep the valley, God is able to make a way!

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he reminded the believers of Corinth that God is able to help them abound in every work.

The immediate circumstance of the text finds the apostle explaining the duty of the local church to respond to the needs of the poor. He pressed them in all earnestness to remember their duty to respond.

At the core of his response is his reminder to them not to be overly concerned about their inabilities, or to lose faith when it came to doing what needed to be done. He encouraged them to respond deliberately, bountifully, faithfully and boldly knowing that God's grace, which was the source of their strength would replenish them.

The verse begins with the word "And" which serves to connect the statement of faith in verse 8 with every situation that occurs.

There are three reminders in the text: All Grace, All-sufficiency and All things!"

The text addresses much more than the immediate circumstance of this specific passage but plants itself firmly into the circumstance of every believer at the same time.

In all situations, God is able to deal with it with all grace, and all sufficiency.

And God is Able Situations

Most of us face many uncertainties on a regular basis. These are "And God is able situations!" They are the points when we have tried our best, but concluded, and we need God to help us. When there is a crisis, trouble, despair or frustration, it's good for believers to remember the first four words of this text, "And God is able." - to handle this as well.

AND GOD IS ABLE TO MAKE A WAY: Often we can't see the way out of a problem, but God can. We should remember that while we can't see a way; God makes a way for his own if we patiently wait for him to move. Consider the little girl who was taking her first train ride. Wide-eyed with fascination, she watched as telephone poles, cars, and farms whizzed by. When the train approached a river, she became frightened and cried out, "Mommy! The train is going into the river!" But a bridge carried it across to the other side. Later, as the train sped toward a mountain, the child again called out in fear, "Mommy, we are going to run into that mountain!" But a tunnel at its base let the speeding train pass through. "Oh," said the youngster, "someone must have gone ahead and made a way for us."

That's what God does for every believer. He runs ahead of us and makes a way. All we can see right now is the mountain, but he's cutting tunnels just high enough for us to get through.

When faced with a mountain, say a prayer, take a breath and say, "I can do this! God is able!"

AND GOD IS ABLE TO RESTORE LOST HOPE: There are many men and women today who are throwing up their hands in defeat, resolved that they are a lost cause. The defeated need the church. The defeated need to know that God is able to respond to their needs. When they feel that God does not know or care about their situation, they lose hope.

Parents who have talked to and chastised wayward children with little or no visible effect have dropped their heads and dismissed them as reluctant lost causes.

Many marriages have ended in the divorce courts because husbands and wives, frustrated with the presence of uncomfortable symptoms, have thrown up their hands in defeat. They have dismissed their sacred vows as a lost cause.

Many men and women who have been living on the wrong side of the right track take a low opinion of themselves and think because they are not, did not, and could not, that they cannot, will not and should not ..be anything less than a failure and have dismissed themselves as a lost cause.

Somebody within the sound of my voice thinks he or she is a lost cause. Somebody feels that his or her life is in such a shambles that they are beyond the reach of the mercies of God.

Today the word of God reminds us that there is no reason to lose hope because God is still on the throne.

As long as God is still on the throne, there is no reason to lose hope because there is no despair that God cannot console, no problem he can't solve and no depression he cannot relieve.

If you have lost hope that your efforts will ever change your situation, say a small prayer, take a breath, and then say, "I can do this, God is able!"

AND GOD IS ABLE TO DO ALL THINGS: Paul told the Corinthians to trust God because his grace was all sufficient for all things. The key component is for us to continue to believe. In that respect we must remember:

1. If we believe, we can rise to achieve our potential. It doesn't matter whether you are born in a poor rural area to poor parents, if you believe, you can rise to your potential. Too many today fail to realize their potential because they do not believe it is possible. Like the prodigal son, they waste their lives in riotous living. Yet, there are believers who constantly sing the same tune, ”Reach high, never give up! All things are possible if you only believe!”

2. If we believe, we can have peace in our lives. There is something about faith in God that gives a believer a sense of peace and security in hard times. No matter what obstacle they face; It doesn’t matter how strong the winds blow or how hard the winds assail, they sing mightily, “My Soul is anchored in the Lord.” Those who want peace must begin by trusting in the Lord in every situation. Whatever obstacle you face, say a little prayer, take a deep breath and say, “I got this, God is able!”

3. If we believe, we can have fruitful lives. Jesus told believers that he came that they might have life and have it more abundantly. Those who believe truly live abundant lives; they are fruitful, productive and meaningful well into their senior years. Such faith in the promises of God helps those who are down to have jolly spirits even in their infirmities and continue to rebound after being knocked down.

We can’t be fruitful, happy, and joyous if we constantly, doubt God. The key to the abundant life is to trust God and never doubt him. The songwriter said, “If you trust and never doubt, he will surely bring you out. Take your burden to the Lord and leave it there!”

He’s able

Finally, brothers and sisters, our families are able to stand with hope in times of trouble because we know God has demonstrated his power so many times that we know, beyond a doubt, that he is able.

Our families are able to withstand the storms of life because we know that we serve a God that is able to speak to the winds and say “peace be still.”

The Three Hebrew Boys remind us what to say and do when our faith is tested. A decree had been issued by the king that declared that anyone who would not bow down to the statue erected by the King would face certain death. But they remembered the law of God which said, Thou shalt have no other Gods before me, and neither shall you bow before graven images.” They believed that God would always provide.

The day of decision came, the music was played from on high and all of Babylon bowed low in a pledge of allegiance to the Babylonian empire. But Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego held firm and refused to bow.

Their punishment was already declared! The fiery furnace was prepared-seven times hotter than usual! It consumed even the caretakers and the soldiers who stood near by! Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego were thrown into the fiery furnace.

They were asked, “Will your God deliver you?” In a bold statement of faith, they said, “We don’t know whether he will save us from the flames, but we know our God is able!”

After a while, the King looked in and was astonished and asked “Did not we cast three men bound into the fire” But Lo, I see four men walking, and the fourth looks like the son of God!

A Christian's faith is that no matter what comes, God is able to deliver us and all things will work for the good of them that love the Lord.

A Christian's faith says "My God is able."

If social conditions degenerate around us ... my God is able!

If family conditions worsen ... my God is able!

If financial crises impend ... my God is able!

Those who know the Lord can testify that God is able to take our:

—BURDENS and lighten our load!

—PROBLEMS and help us find the answers!

—DARKNESS and turn it into light!

—WEAKNESSES and turn them into strengths!

—SET BACKS and turn them into come backs!

—STUMBLING BLOCKS and turn them into stepping stones!

He was able to pick me up and turn me around.

He was able to deliver me!

Who is this deliverer? Does anybody know his name?

His name is Jesus!

The mighty God!

Jesus, The Rose of Sharon!

Who died out on Calvary!

But early Sunday morning arose from the grave!

And he's able!

No.9727-Inspiration

What it takes to walk on water in the midst of a storm

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 13, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "And in the fourth watch of the night Jesus went unto them, walking on the sea. And when the disciples saw him walking on the sea, they were troubled, saying, It is a spirit; and they cried out for fear. But straightway Jesus spake unto them, saying, Be of good cheer; it is I; be not afraid. And Peter answered him and said, Lord, if it be thou, bid me come unto thee on the water. And he said, Come. And when Peter was come down out of the ship, he walked on the water, to go to Jesus. But when he saw the wind boisterous, he was afraid; and beginning to sink, he cried, saying, Lord, save me. And immediately Jesus stretched forth his hand, and caught him, and said unto him, O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt? And when they were come into the ship, the wind ceased." Matthew 14:29-32

Introduction

Were you prepared for the storm? We heard the reports that a possible flood situation existed, but few people expected it to really happen. Some thought they were ready. They had the candles and flashlights prepared, batteries were checked, generators were in place, cell phones were charged, gas tanks were filled, sandbags were secured along with supplies of food and water. The wait began.

It began in drips and suddenly in downpours. No hurricane. No tornado. No 100 mph wind gales. Very few trees fell, or power poles snapped. It was rain that would not stop. It was ten inches, 12 inches, and up to 20 inches as drainage canals and basins filled and the waters began their slow creep into yards, driveways, and into living rooms and bedrooms, covering cars and flooding streets.

We knew it was something strange because the news reported that the Ouachita River at Sterlington was flowing backward for a time! In 2012 during Hurricane Isaac, the Mississippi River flowed backward for a day. In 2005, it did the same thing with Hurricane Katrina. However, this was not the Mississippi, and there was no hurricane or tornado. That's when the faithful realized that something happened in our community that had biblical implications because in Psalm 114:3,5 it says when God moved to free Israel from the sea opened and the Jordan River flowed backward. Verse 7 says, "Tremble, thou earth, at the presence of the Lord…"

What do the faithful do? We do whatever God commands! It's like the neighbor in the old Bill Cosby routine about Noah's Ark. The neighbor asked Noah, "What's that you building?" Noah answered, "An Ark." The neighbor asked, "What's it for?" Noah answered, "Can't tell you!" The neighbor asked, "Can't you give me a hint?" - Noah said, "How long can you tread water?"

We can't tread water long, but we serve a God who can walk on water, speak to the wind and waves and roll back rivers. When storms come, if we keep the faith he can help us to walk on water, too. He can walk us safely to the other side. Most of us didn't get flood insurance, but we have flood assurance. That's the assurance we received in his promise, that even in storms, he will never leave us alone.

As Christians, we face every storm that confronts us with the confidence that although we may be inconvenienced, we should hold on, because after the storm the sun will shine! God is good, all the time!

Exposition

There are three accounts of this miraculous event in the gospels. In Matthew, Mark, and John we are told that Jesus sent his disciples away while he stayed to meditate. He went into a mountain to pray. When he returned, he looked out in the middle of the sea and watched the disciples toiling against one of the storms that often developed suddenly in the area.

The disciples had toiled for nearly seven hours in the storm and had only made it midway through the waters. They were trying to follow Jesus' command to go to the other side, but the winds raged. Their boat, no doubt took on water. In a matter of seconds, Jesus came to them, walking on water. They saw him and, at first, thought he was a ghost.

Matthew adds a detail that the other two accounts omitted. As the winds raged and water began to fill the deck of their boat, Peter asked to meet Jesus on the water and was invited to step out and meet him. As the wind continued to rage and waters gurgled, Peter stepped from the boat intently staring at Jesus. He took a few steps and then began to sink. When Peter stepped from the boat he actually "walked on water." While the storm raged he walked, but at some point, his faith broke, and he sank. He called out to Jesus, "Lord Save me." Jesus lifted him up, and the two of them walked on water as the storm raged and entered the boat. Once they were safe, the winds ceased.

Amidst the Storm

Today as we consider the realities of life there are three things this text should bring to our consideration:

THERE WAS A STORM: The disciples set out to cross the Sea of Galilee with the full knowledge that a storm could break out at any time. Jesus told them to go to the other side, so they obeyed him in faith. Why would they cast sail in the black of night on a sea they knew was unpredictable? They did so in faith. Today, people who are unaffected by storms and natural disasters often question why people live in California knowing there could be earthquakes? Why build a house in Florida knowing strong winds come nearly every year? Why live in the deserts of Nevada knowing that water will be a serious problem? Why live on a mountainside when there is never a year without an avalanche? Why live in an area known for floods or mudslides? People go where God opens the opportunities for them. They build their lives in faith, but they also live every day fully aware that a storm may come at any time.

Storms come with thunder, lightning, and rising water. They are intimidating and frightful, especially when they come with hurricane force. Sometimes it's water and the wind that touches our families, but some face other storms.

The storm they face could be the loss of jobs.

The storm they face could be the sickness of breadwinners.

The storm they face could be family difficulties.

The storm they face could be serious marital problems.

The storm they face could be financial disasters.

When the storm began to rage, even though it was a black night without the light of a single star to shed light, he saw his disciples toiling against the wind and the water of their personal storm, and he came to them.

When we have watched our possession aimlessly in flood waters and see our cherished mementos floating underneath murky waters, that's the time for us to sing that old song, "When the storms of life are raging, stand by me."

That's the time we say, "Lord give me strength."

THERE WAS A PRAYER: While most accounts of this miracle come from Matthew Mark 6 adds an interesting detail. There is a part of verse 48 describes how Jesus came to them between 3 a.m. and 6 a.m. (4th watch) walking on the sea, but the last six words are often overlooked. It says, "and would have passed by them." Jesus came to be near them, but only intervened in their situation when they called out to him. For seven hours they tried to deal with the wind and waters themselves, but they didn't call out to him. He saw them and went to them, but he only reached out to them when they called out to him. Verse 49 says, "they supposed it had been a spirit and cried out!"

Nothing happened until they cried out to him.

When storms come, winds blow, and waters rise, we toil through the night to bring in the ship, but often we can get so busy that we forget to cry out to the one person who can help us!

We called FEMA and were put on hold. We called 911, family members and everyone else that we could think of, but many people forgot to put Jesus on the list.

When we are toiling with our storms, Jesus is always near, but we should pray and humble ourselves before him as we ask for his grace. We have not because we ask not.

No wonder the songwriter wrote, "Pass me not oh gentle Savior, hear my humble cry. While on others thy art calling, do not pass me by. Savior, Savior, hear my humble cry. While on others thou art calling, do not pass me by."

THERE WAS A WALK: As the disciples dealt with the storm, Jesus came to them walking on water. Two people walked on water that night: Jesus and Peter.

When Jesus walked on water, it was, by all interpretations, an impossible feat. It was equally impossible when Peter walked on water for a few moments. Despite its impossibility, the Bible record tells us that it happened. They did the impossible!

Life often presents us with impossible situations. These are the times when the odds appear stacked against them, and there is no way to succeed. Sometimes the situations are economically based.

Money problems worry many people. Their debts are increasing, and income is decreasing. Some have lost jobs or experienced investment losses. Many people think their finances are such a shambles that it is impossible to repair.

If all of the other problems we have are not enough, then comes a flood. Waters rise, homes are ruined, work days are lost, repair bills will be costly. It's the kind of problem that requires us to walk literally on the water to survive.

While we worry about the impossibility of our situations, we forget that with Christ, we can walk on water. We can stay on top of the situation. It may seem impossible, but we can do the impossible with God's help. Even though Peter is known for sinking when he tried to walk on water alone, we often fail to remember that when Christ pulled him from the water, he walked on water, holding to Christ's hand until he returned to the ship. The storm was still raging! The winds were still blowing! The danger still existed, but he walked on water, with his hand in the Master's hand!

Let Jesus Walk you to the boat

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that when storms rise, let Jesus walk us back to the boat.

We often remember that Peter started to walk on water, took a few steps and began to sink. However, what most people forget is that while Peter walked on water once and sank that he was able to walk one more time!

The text records that Peter cried out to Jesus "Lord Save Me!" In response to his plea for help, Jesus took him by the hand and pulled him from the water which was rising and together they walked back to the boat.

When Peter put his hand back in Jesus' hand, he was able to walk on water again! Those who are sinking in the sea of life should call on Jesus!

Great things begin to happen when we call upon the name of Jesus!

At the name of Jesus:

-The wicked will cease from troubling

-The weary will be at rest

-Every knee shall bow

-Every tongue shall confess

When we call on Jesus, it doesn't matter how deep the water!

When we call on Jesus, it doesn't matter how ferocious the storm!

Jesus is able to quiet the storm and save the perishing soul!

Are you trying to keep your head above water? Call on Jesus

Are you trying to tread through the ocean of problems that beset you? Call on Jesus!

Are you trying to swim to shore but are surrounded by swirling suck holes that pull you down? Call on Jesus!

He can and will rescue those who trust in him!

Maybe that's what the song writer had in mind when he wrote: "I was sinking deep in sin, far from the peaceful shore. Very deeply stained within, sinking to rise no more. But the Master of the sea heard my despairing cry. From the waters lifted me now safe am I. Love lifted me!

Love lifted me!

When nothing else could help, love lifted me!

When God holds our hand, he will never let go.

When God holds our hands, even if we slip a little, he still holds on!

No wonder the old warriors sang, "Lord hold my hand while I run this race, I don't want to run this race alone!"

Hold my hand, Lord, while I try to take care of my family, I don't want to run this race alone!

Hold my hand, Lord, while I try to deal with the raging storms in my life, I don't want to run this race alone!

Hold my hand, Lord, while I try to make sense of the madness that surrounds me, I don't want to run this race alone!

I don't know about you, but sometimes I find myself slipping down the mountain of life, and I have to cry out to Lord, "Take my hand! Hold me in your everlasting arms!"

Lord, take my hand when I can't see my way!

Lord, take my hand when I can't turn to the right or the left!

Lord, take my hand when I'm confused and don't know what to do!

Lord, take my hand, when I'm weak and give me strength!

Lord, take my hand when I have fallen and help me up again!

When you find yourself sinking, and you can't get up, call on the name of Jesus!

Jesus, a strong hand that will not let you down!

Jesus, a mother to the motherless!

Jesus, a shelter in a time of storm!

Call on Jesus, who reaches out to us with nail scarred hands!

Call on Jesus, who died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning arose from the grave!

When the storms of life are raging, reach out with the saints of old and say, "Father I stretch my hands to thee, no other help I know. If thou withdraw thyself from me, whether shalt I go!

Build your hopes on things eternal!

Hold to God's unchanging hand!

No. 9728- Communion

Trading our Thorns for His Crown!

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 20, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "And they clothed him with purple, and platted a crown of thorns, and put it about his head, " Mark 15:17

Introduction

Does it sometimes seem that in spite of your best efforts, everything appears to go wrong? Are there times when you feel as if your best endeavors are fruitless, producing nothing but trouble when peace and prosperity are your goals? These are times when you spend all of your energy planting roses, and all you get are thorns.

Consider two men who walked by a flower garden daily. They admired the beautiful roses as they blossomed. In the middle of the flower garden was a thorn bush, which annually was the home of a bird's nest. The little hatchlings were a joy to see. However, one of the men complained daily because he thought it was an injustice by God. "I don't see how God, in all of his wisdom, would allow a bird's nest to be placed among all of these thorns. There are plenty of flowers in the garden, why there?" He complained. He felt God had made a mistake. For years the second man only smiled but never said anything.

Each spring the comments were the same. Why was there a bird's nest among the thorns? Finally, the complaining friend watching the curious smile on his friend's face asked, "Why do you smile each time I ask this question?" His friend said, "You complain because you do not see God's purpose. The mama bird is small and can wiggle between the twigs to get to her nest, but large animals that would attack her young or disturb her nest are protected by thorns. The nest was placed in a thorny situation for its own good; without it, the little bird would be open to attack and death would be sure to come."

Believers know that everything has a purpose, even the thorns! That's why we have learned to accept the thorns, know that we serve a God who specializes in turning thorns into crowns.

The crown of thorns that Jesus wore at his crucifixion was a symbol of his suffering for us. It was a forerunner of the crown he will receive later as King of Kings. Those who faithfully follow him also expect to wear crowns similar to his. We expect to share his suffering and pain. We also expect to wear crowns of victory in heaven.

As Christians, we should rejoice because we know every thorn that grows up around our little life-nest will one day work to our advantage. “But we do know that all things, (even thorns), work together for good for those that love God those who are called according to his purpose.”

Exposition

This text focuses on Christ after he had been judged blameless by Pontius Pilate.

The angry crowd wanted Christ to die. Pilate thought if Christ were whipped and brought back to the crowd they would be satisfied, so he ordered the soldiers to beat him.

The soldiers had no particular malice against Jesus, but the Roman military system made men hard of heart. The occasion gave these foreign legionaries a much-enjoyed opportunity to show their contempt for the Jews by mocking Jesus as their King. It is not known which one of the many thorny plants of Palestine was used to form the Lord’s crown. Neither is it known where they acquired the purple robe. The robe was designed to give Jesus a false appearance of royalty, and it was likely some cast-off military coat or state garment of Pilate’s.

They platted a crown of thorns and put it on his head. A crown of straw, or rushes, would have been humiliation enough; but this was pain also. He wore the crown of thorns which we had deserved that we might wear the crown of glory which he merited.

When the soldiers of the governor took Jesus into the palace, they stripped him, put a scarlet robe on him, placed a plaited crown of thorns on his head, and put a reed in his hand (Matthew 27:28-29; Mark 15:17; John 19:2). They then kneeled before him and mocked him saying, “Hail, King of the Jews” (Matthew 27:29; Mark 15:18; John 19:3). Then they spat upon him and hit him on his head with the reed from his hand (Matthew 27:30; Mark 15:19) and struck him with their hands (John 19:3). He was then stripped of the robe, his own clothes put back on him and led away to be crucified.

For Christ, the final victory will come when he returns from heaven surrounded by the hosts of heaven to defeat Satan and destroy this system as we know it today. Revelation 19:12 says when he returns he will be wearing, not one crown, but many crowns. After returning with his many crowns, believers who endure will be given a crown as well.

Necessity of Thorns

As believers we must come to grip with three truths as we understand our relationship with the Lord:

THE DEVIL PLAITS AND GOD UNTWISTS THE PLAIT: Mark 15:17 says, “And they clothed him with purple, and platted a crown of thorns, and put it on his head,” They took the thorns and twisted them with the intent of bringing pain to Christ.

However, they did not know that God was taking every thorn and twisting it to make a crown of righteousness for Christ and for every believer that follows him.

They "Platted" thorns, but God is taking our thorns and platting them into our victory. It shows us that despite the fact that there are evil people and circumstances in the world that will bring thorns into every life, God is twisting the thorns they bring and turning it into something for your good.

Sometimes your good work is twisted by haters and critics. Sometimes your words are twisted in a way that brings you misery. Sometimes everything and everyone seems to work together to "Plat" your crown of thorns.

Look how the Sanhedrin council, Pontius Pilate, Herod, a lying witness, and a friend who denied him, all worked together to plat the thorns on his head.

He made the blind man see, but they gave him, a crown of thorns!

He made the lame man walk again, but they gave him, a crown of thorns!

He called Lazarus from the grave, but they gave Him a crown of thorns!

He fed the hungry and forgave men of their sins, but they gave Him a crown of thorns!

For all of His work and sacrifice, all He received was a crown of thorns to wear and an old rugged cross to bear!

We should not be naïve to believe that the devil leaves us alone because we become a Christian. He is platting our crown of thorns. He searches for ways to destroy us and to make life miserable.

Believers should remember if there are no thorns, there are no crowns. If there is no pain, there is no gain. Each time we are pricked by the thorns of life, we must remember that for every thorn the world plats in its crown, God plats another jewel our crown of life.

THORNS PROTECT US FROM DANGER: Thorns often serve a purpose we can't see; they protect us.

The mama rabbit built a home for her family of little ones in the middle of the briar patch. She put sticker bushes and thorns over the top and both sides of her little den that was pressed against a rock. Every animal that tried to get to her little babies found themselves blocked by a wall of thorns. No matter how tempting, predators left them alone. However, whenever the little ones were tempted to move outside of the safety of the den, the same thorns that kept predators out, kept them within the wall of safety. That's how God often uses our thorns to preserve us: They keep something things away from us, but they also keep us away from some things. In Psalm 121 (pSALM 121)The driving idea of the text is that God will preserve his people; He will not allow them to suffer utter defeat. Verses seven and eight use the word "Preserve" three times. Psalm 121:7-8: The LORD shall preserve thee from all evil: he shall preserve thy soul. The LORD shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth, and even forevermore.

The Hebrew word "Samar" used in each instance means, "to build a thorny hedge around." This is the truth we should remember: God builds a thorny hedge around his people to preserve them. A thorny hedge will keep evil influences out, but the same thorns protect Israel from itself by keeping it "In." God protects "our going out" and our "coming in" both day and night. Thank God for the thorns!

THORNY CROWNS AND GOLDEN CROWNS GO TOGETHER: Believers should not expect to receive a golden crown of righteousness without enduring a thorny crown in this life. They are like soup and sandwich; they go together. The soldier cannot expect victory without the rigors of boot camp. The athlete cannot expect the glory of being champion without the pain of training and discipline.

In that same sense, thorny crowns precede golden crowns. Every life must have a testimony, and there can be no testimony without a test. Our thorns are our test. That's what Paul discovered when he asked God to remove what he called a thorn in his side. In fact, he asked God three times to remove the thorn, but God would not do so.

God's response to Paul in 2 Corinthians 12:9 "My grace is sufficient for thee." When God says, "My Grace is sufficient" he means that there may be thorns, but he will give us blessings and assistance in proportion to our daily need and in proportion to our ability to handle it.

If we are burdened by the presence of troubles that frustrate our Christian journey we should hear the voice of God speaking to us saying "My Grace is sufficient" for thee!

"My Grace" can take the worse and turn it into the best!

"My Grace" can take the least and turn it into the most!

"My Grace" can take the lowest and turn it into the highest!

"My Grace" can take a prison and turn it into a paradise!

"My Grace" can take a shadow and turn it into sunshine!

"My Grace" is sufficient for the thorn of loneliness, no matter how pitiful they may seem!

"My Grace" is sufficient for the thorn of weakness, no matter how feeble their steps!

"My Grace" is sufficient for the thorn of weariness, no matter how exhausted their body!

"My Grace" is sufficient for the thorn of a sinful soul, for it brings it to salvation

"My Grace" is sufficient for the thorn of a mournful heart for it fills it with Joy."

No wonder the songwriter declared "Amazing Grace how sweet the sound that saved a wretch like me. I once was lost, but now I'm found, blind, but now I see."

Thorns into Crowns

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must rejoice when we think about the fact God will take every one of our thorns and turn them into crowns!

The crown of thorns Jesus wore was designed to be an emblem of shame, but God turned it around and made it a badge of honor.

Somebody can testify that our God is a turnaround God. He can take a bad thing and turn it into a good thing.

We serve a God who can take a bad thing like:

FAILURE and turn it into success; DEFEAT and turn it into victory!

SADNESS and turn it into gladness; SORROW and turn it into joy!

HATRED and turn it into love; LOSSES and turn them into gains!

TROUBLES and turn them into triumphs; BROKEN HEARTS and turn them into happy souls!

The crown that we plan to wear will be given to us by God himself and not man. That's what happened to Jesus. The soldiers gave him a crown of thorns. It was a crown made by man.

When man gives you a crown, it usually turns out to be a thorny crown.

When man gives you a crown it often turns out to be a:

-BURDEN, and not a blessing

-CANCER, and not a cure

-HINDRANCE, and not a help

-SORROW, and not a joy

-LOSS, and not a gain

-PAIN, and not a pleasure

-CONDEMNATION, and not a pardon

-TORMENT and not a treasure

They took Jesus, with a crown of thorns on his head, and marched him toward Calvary!

With a crown of thorns on his head, he who was:

-JUST suffered for the unjust; HOLY suffered for the unholy

-BEST suffered for the worst; HIGHEST suffered for the lowest

-DOCTOR suffered for the sick; LAMB suffered for the wolves

-MASTER suffered for the servants; KING suffered for the beggars

-PRINCE suffered for the paupers;

When they nailed him to the cross, he was wearing a crown of thorns!

When they pierce him in his side, he was wearing a crown of thorns!

When he dropped his head and died, he was wearing a crown of thorns!

But Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

That Sunday morning he traded in the cross..

He traded in the crown of thorns…

And paid for our salvation!

No wonder the songwriter declared, "So I'll cherish the old rugged cross. Till my trophies, at last, I lay down. I will cling to the old rugged cross and exchange it some day for a crown!

Because he lives, we have hope for tomorrow!

Because he lives, one of these old days…

We shall wear a crown!

No. 9729-Easter

Show and Tell

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 27, 2016

SCRIPTURE: And he saith unto them, be not affrighted: Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen; he is not here: behold the place where they laid him. But go your way, tell his disciples and Peter that he goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see him, as he said unto you. Mark 16:6-7

Introduction

Do you remember show and tell in school? That's the time when you had to bring something to show the class and tell about what you brought? There were even times when you had to bring a parent and show them off and then let them tell what they do. If mom was a police officer, she had to wear her uniform. A doctor had to have a white coat. If dad played football, he had to bring a helmet or a ball. The idea was to show rather than just tell.

I'm reminded of the teacher at a private school who asked each student to bring something for show and tell how it is associated with their faith. One boy said, "I'm Jewish, and this is a Star of David." The second said, "I'm Catholic, and this is a Crucifix." A third student said, "I'm Islamic, and this is the crescent moon." The last little boy stood up with a covered dish and said, "I'm Baptist and this is a bowl of fried chicken. The preacher said, "he died that we might live" -That was probably a show and tell everyone remembered!

In a greater sense, there are many people who doubt our dream! They laugh, even today when we speak about what we hope to accomplish in life; nod their heads in agreement, but they really doubt that what we dream about can ever happen. That's when we look at what God has done for us and prepare to show and tell.

There are many people who believe that the quest for their dream dies when they fail. What they don't know is that very few people succeed at anything the first time; they often fail.

Micheal Jordan is recognized as one of the greatest basketball players of all time, but many don't know that he was cut from his high school basketball team because he was not good enough!-We know him for thousands of points he made on his way to the hall of fame, we don't talk about the 9,000 shots that he missed. His life became a real life show and tell.

Oprah Winfrey is known for her famous acting and television shows. She's the first black woman billionaire of record, but what many don't know is that Ophrah was fired from her first job as a T.V. reporter because they said she was "unfit for T.V."

Harland Sanders is known around the world today, not by name, but by his brand. When he came up with the idea of selling chicken with a Southern flavor and taste around the world, people laughed, and he was turned down 1009 times. No one is laughing now because Kentucky Fried Chicken is now sold around the world and is still "Finger Licking Good."

There are hundreds of people who are less famous than these who have similar testimonies. They were resurrected when everyone thought they were dead! They have something to show and a story to tell. What about your story? Look at where you are now? There's a good chance you were not voted the most likely to succeed, but you have something to show and a story to tell!

The world knocked you down, buried you and walked away, but God has a different ending for your story. He's giving all of us something to show and a story to tell.

That's the beauty of the Christian faith! When we celebrate the resurrection of Christ, we are also celebrating the resurrection of our faith. It's a faith that proclaims that no matter how the world kicks us around, nails us to the cross or buries us and tries to leave us for dead, we will rise again!

As Christians, our faith in God grows daily. Every time we look around we see another instance when God turned things around for us and placed our feet on solid ground. Today, we are living witnesses to his grace and saving power. We have something to show and a story to tell.

Exposition

This text focuses on the action of the women and the disciples on the morning of Christ's resurrection.

Christ was crucified and buried in a newly hewn tomb owned by Joseph. It was guarded by soldiers at the request of the religious leaders who feared that Christ's disciples would come by night and steal his body. After three days and nights Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James and Salome came early Sunday morning to anoint his body with spices. When they arrived, they found the stone rolled away and the tomb empty. They were told by and Angel that Christ was not present, but had risen from the dead as he promised.

They were invited to do three things, Behold, go and tell. The angels said "Behold the place where they laid him. " and then challenged them to go and tell the disciples what they saw.

When Peter and John heard the news, they had to see for themselves. After they saw the empty tomb, they ran to tell others that Christ had risen from the dead.

The two of them ran to tell the others what they had seen. They were excited. They were revived because the master had done as he said he would. He had risen from the dead.

Their job was to show and tell everyone they saw that a life that had been taken and buried had been resurrected by the power of God!

When we testify

TESTIFY ABOUT WHAT'S NOT THERE: The angel told Mary, that he knew what she was looking for, Jesus of Nazareth, but he was not there. He is risen. It is significant that the angel would say he "is" risen instead of he arose. This meant that he arose, and he remains risen. Look when he said, Look where they laid him, it meant look where he used to be. The angel showed her where he had been laid saying, "Behold" and then she charged her to tell what she had seen.

We have the same task today, to say to the world "behold" where we were, and now look at us. The challenge that the angel gave was not to look at what was there, but Mary was challenged to witness what was NOT there.

What was not there was a crown of thorns, nail scarred hands, a wounded body. The testimony we give today is not about what things we have, but what we don't have anymore.

What's not there is a pessimistic attitude, a failed spirit, a negative view of life, a feeling of hopelessness and being alone..all of those are not there. When we testify, we don't testify about what we have, because anything we have can be lost with the snap of a finger or with one fire or flood. It's what's not there!

One songwriter said: "Look where he brought me from...He brought me out of darkness into the marvelous light, look where he brought me from!"

He brought me out of:

-Guilt into his forgiveness!

Foolishness into his truth!

-Shame into glory!

-Sin into salvation!

-Disgrace into amazing grace!

Behold, look at the person I used to be, but he is risen in me, and now I'm no longer the same.

THERE IS A "WHY" BEHIND EVERY "WHAT": Mary ran to tell the disciples that the grave was empty. That was the what of the matter, but what she didn't tell them is the why because she did not fully understand what she saw. John 20:2 says, "...They have taken away the Lord out of the sepulcher, and we know not where they have laid him." She understood that the body was gone, but she did not understand why the tomb was empty. She thought someone had taken his body. In a similar sense, there are many people today who can show you what has happened to them in life, but have not fully apprehended the why? We've felt events in our lives with earthquake intensity: a death, a sickness or family crises. We know what happened, but we have not figured out the why.

Sometimes, we suspect the why, even if we don't want to admit it. When we've been disobedient to God's word, slack in our worship, Bible study and giving; we suspect the reason, but we are not quite sure. Like Mary, we quickly attach another reason other than the obvious. Mary concluded that the religious leaders had stolen Christ's body. She did not consider the possibility of his resurrection from the dead. So, she ran to tell others the "what" but she did not report the "why."

When we show others the achievements we've made, don't forget to tell them the whys. If you received a diploma, promotion, career goal or have moved closer to your dream, that is the "what." However, we should remember that there is a why behind every what. Telling both the why and the what gives us a story to tell!

THOSE WHO HAVE SEEN HAVE SOMETHING TO TELL: Those who have had some experience with the Lord have the most to tell. Of all of those who went to the Tomb on the morning of the resurrection, Peter was the one who actually went inside and saw the place where Jesus was laid; he also saw the folded clothes. The others could say they came to the tomb. Still, others could say they talked to the angel, but Peter was the first one able to say, I went inside and saw the folded clothes. He had the most to show and tell.

Those who have experienced Christ for themselves have the most to tell.

Lazarus had more to tell about Christ's life reviving ability than anyone else because he experienced it himself.

The woman at the well could speak of his compassion and forgiving spirit because she experienced it herself.

The man who sat by the pool for 38 years could testify to Christ's healing ability because he experienced it himself.

That's the way it is with anyone who steps into the embrace of the Savior; he leaves with something to show and tell.

Believers who walk righteously have a story to tell. We tell the story of mountains climbed and valleys traveled!

Believers can tell the story of answered prayer.

The man who walks righteously tells the story of salvation and redemption.

The woman who walks righteously is quick to testify that one day the Savior "picked me up and turned me around and planted my feet on solid ground."

I heard the songwriter declare, "Shackled by a heavy burden, neath a load of guilt and stain, but then the hand of Jesus touched me, and now I am no longer the same."

When we have experienced the personal touch of God in our lives, we can declare, "He touched me!"

He touched me! And oh the joy the floods my soul! Something happened, and now I know, he touched me and made me whole.

Show and Tell

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must note that anyone who has had an experience with the Lord has a story to tell.

We are called by God to witness where we can do the best good! The greater your experience with the Lord, the more compelling the need to tell your story.

Jonah had a story to tell. He didn't want to tell it to the people of Ninevah, but he had to tell the story!

Ezekiel had a story to tell. He had to tell the people that although they were dried up like dry bones in the valley, God could give them life again! He had to tell it because it was like fire shut up in his bones!

David had a story to tell. He had risen to lofty royal heights and had fallen to depths of despair, yet he declared "The Lord is my shepherd I shall not want!"

The lame man had a story to tell! He had been sitting by the pool for 38 long years but always missed his chance until one day Jesus told him to "take up thy bed and walk!"

The woman at the well had a story to tell! She met a man who peered beneath the thin veneer of public perception and saw her soul. She ran through the city shouting "Come see a man who told me all about myself!"

I'm reminded of three daughters who were raised by their grandmother. They had become successful in life, but they never went to church or took religion seriously. They decided to buy their grandmother a gift for her 75th birthday. When she opened the box, the grandmother saw a beautiful and expensive reading bible. Its pages were made of the finest onion skin. It had a ribbon of pure silk for a page marker. Her name was engraved on the cover in 14 karat gold. Its cover was made from the smoothest calfskin. It was an expensive Bible that came with a hard leather carrying case speckled with the name "Holy Bible" on the outside in scores of small diamonds. That grandmother thanked her daughters for the gift, but a few hours later they saw her sitting in her chair reading her old family bible. The girls asked, "Why are you still reading that old Bible?" Grandma said, "When you were young, we didn't have much, but I opened this old Bible and read, "The Lord is my shepherd, and I shall not want! When your mama died of the plague, I read in this old Bible, "Yea thou I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil. When the flood came in 51 and destroyed everything we had but this old Bible, its pages were opened to these words, "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord!" Grandma said, "Your Bible is pretty, but this bible has a story to tell. Your bible can't tell my story!"

I've got to tell the story of how we were down and out, and God picked us up and turned us around!

I've got to tell the story of how God healed our sick and opened the blind eyes of lost family members!

I've got to tell the story of how he planted our feet on solid ground
I've got to tell the story of Jesus!

. How he died out on Calvary!

How early Sunday morning he arose from the grave!

I've got to tell somebody!

I've got to tell somebody!

No. 9730-Funeral

An Unexpected Departure

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 2, 2016

SCRIPTURE: Watch ye therefore, because ye have not known in what hour your Lord doth come." Matthew 24:42

Introduction

Wouldn't it be nice if life was like a strategic game of chess in which we, the players, could anticipate every possible eventuality? Just how could it work out? It might be that the car breaks down, but that's OK because you have a plan for that! The sink may clog, but that's OK, you have a plan for that, too. Even if you get injured, you plan for that. If there is an emergency involving a family member, you have a plan for that as well. It would be great if we could plan for every possible situation that could occur in your life! It would take hundreds of plans: What to do if the iron doesn't work, a storm knocks out the lights, there is flood water in your home, or God forbid, we lose our cell phone! It would take hundreds of plans to cover every situation.

We make plans incessantly because we don't like the unexpected. The reason we dislike the unexpected is that the aftermath of the "unexpected" is one of three things: surprise, astonishment or shock; and sometimes all three. We view life as an event we can plan so we anticipate the unexpected. We know about Murphy's Law that says anything that can go wrong will go wrong- at the worst possible moment. So we plan every detail of the wedding including pinning the ring to the tiny ring bearers pillow. We rehearse dramas and dance recitals repeatedly to cross every "t" and dot every "I" because we don't like the unexpected. The choir rehearses a song repeatedly because we don't like the unexpected!

We don't want to deal with the aftermath of something happening that we did not have in the plan: We don't want to be surprised, astonished or shocked. We prefer to be ready for everything!

No one is comfortable with the unexpected; that's what makes us so uncomfortable about the idea of death: "It involves the unexpected." If that's the case, then we should prepare ourselves so that we can know what to expect. There were two 85-year-old grandfathers whose grandchildren carried them to a baseball game. As the two, Joe and Doug, watched the game, Joe said, "You know how we have both loved baseball all our lives. Doug, you have to do me one favor. If you go before me, somehow you've got to find a way to get a message to me to tell me if there's baseball in heaven. I want to keep going to games with my grandchildren. I don't like the unexpected. " Doug agreed that would be a good idea and asked Joe to do the same. As fate would have it, Doug passed on first. At midnight a couple of nights later, Joe heard a voice in his sleep whispering "Joe, Joe!" Joe sat up straight in his bed and said, "Doug, is that you?" Doug answered, "Yes, I want you to know I'm trying to keep our deal. I've got some good news and some bad news for you. The good news is that there IS baseball in heaven." Then Joe asked, "O.K. What's the bad news?" Doug said, "The bad news is that you're up to pitch next Tuesday!" Nobody likes the unexpected.

Unfortunately, life doesn't work as a chess game! We can't plan for every eventuality, anticipate every headache, broken fingernail or broken heart! Life is not like a page-turning novel that you can skip a few chapters and get to the good part. We have to flip through the chapters of our life story, one page at a time. Forrest Gump had it right, "Life is like a box of chocolates; you never know what you're going to get!

So what do we do? We plan for what matters in life, what matters for life and what matters afterlife. Everything else we leave in the hand of God and live each day as if it will be your last day.

As Christians, we know that we must live life one day at a time; doing all we can while we can, with the full knowledge that when he calls, we will be ready to answer!

Exposition

This text focuses on Christ's response to those who wanted to know the day and the hour of his return.

The New Testament paints a clear picture of what believers should expect when it comes to the last day. Jesus constantly told his disciples that they should be watchful because the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand.

As the last days approaches, Jesus warned of signs in the heavens, in the weather, and in geo-global politics. He said there would be wars and rumors of wars, earthquakes in divers places, and many other signs as the end time approaches. Verse 31 says he will send his messengers to begin gathering together the chosen ones from all parts of the earth. He warned believers to watch and be ready because none would know the hour they would be called by God's messenger as time begins to wind up.

There are two types of departures in Scripture: The unexpected departure and the expected departure.

The expected departure was what Paul had in mind when he wrote in 2 Timothy 4:6, "The time of my departure is at hand." When there is an expected departure, there is time to say goodbye. Paul wrote letters from prison and said goodbye to the Christians in Ephesus, Colossae, and Philippi. He had time to say goodbye to Timothy and say, "I have finished my course, I have kept the faith." He could say that because his was an expected departure.

However, this passage warns believers to be ready for an unexpected departure if they are among the chosen selected in the last days. Being prepared for the unexpected departure is all over the New Testament. Mark 13:35 says "Watch ye therefore for you know not when the master of the house cometh." Luke 21:36 says "Watch ye therefore and pray always."

What it takes to be ready

While we can't anticipate every circumstance that might occur in our lives, there are three things we must know to be ready:

WHAT MATTERS IN LIFE: One of the great truths we learn in Christian homes is to discern what matters in life. That's what Godly parents teach their children; how to distinguish between what really matters in life and the superficial. The world teaches that what matters is money, riches, fame, power and glory. Without direction, they become the top priority of young lives, but godly parents share the teaching of Solomon in Ecclesiastes 12:13 "Let us hear the conclusion of the matter, fear God and obey his commandments; that is the whole duty of man." What matters in life is that we learn the will of God for our lives and pursue it with a passion. What matters in life is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, and temperance.

To be ready is to have learned these truths and applied them to your life in every respect.

WHAT MATTERS FOR LIFE: The second great task is to pursue what matter for life. There are many things that are needed for the good life. To live successfully in the society of men we need to learn the value of faith and family. There is no treasure richer than the riches that a woman discovers when she digs deep into the treasure of God's word and its rich reservoir of hope and inspiration. Faith in God matters. That's how Godly families have survived difficult times and overcome obstacles; it was their faith in God.

Second to our faith is our love of family. There can be no substitute for our love of family. It is our connection to our past and the gateway to our future. Family matters. In moments of happiness and joy; family matters. In moments of sickness, failure, and death; family matters. That's what has been taught in this family as it sought to prepare each member for what really matters in life: God and Family.

WHAT MATTERS AFTER LIFE: The most important element of being ready is to learn what matters after life on this earth. To be ready for what happens after life, we must confess our faith in God and Jesus Christ as our Savior. We must prepare for life in the world to come. Was this sister ready? Let's go down the checklist: Did she believe in Jesus Christ? Was she baptized for the remission of her sins? Did she live the life of her confession every day, at work, at school or home? Did she religiously study the Bible, attend worship and support her church? Was she prayed up?

Anyone who is confessed up, studied up, lifted him up and remained prayed up is ready for whatever comes, day or night seven days a week.

Prepare for the Unexpected

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that each of us must prepare for the unexpected.

Preparing for the unexpected means that every day of our lives we live ready if the messenger of God taps us on the shoulder.

- Seek first God's kingdom in your life and in the world.
- Make the best plans that you can.
- Humbly submit yourself to the Heavenly Father, saying, 'Your will be done.'
- Live one day at a time.
- Trust God to take care of everything else

Anyone who does these things can live their lives every day, not worried about tomorrow because their lives are ready.

That might have been what Dottie Peoples had in mind when she wrote these lyrics:

Get your house in order
Ooooh do it today
Get your house in order
Ooohhh do it right away
For Jesus is coming
No man knows where or when
Get your house in order
For He's coming back again

When you are ready, you don't worry about the unexpected, God will take care of that,

When you are ready, you go to work every day with a smile on your face!

When you are ready, you become a strong shoulder for your co-workers to lean on!

When you are ready, you laugh with family members, remember old times and enjoy grandchildren!

When you are ready, you go to birthday parties and smile and celebrate!

When we are ready we don't even think about the unexpected, we focus on "Expectation!"

God will open doors for us! Expectation!

God will never leave us alone! Expectation!

God will never put more on us than we can bear! Expectation!

When you are ready, you can live every minute of your life in anticipation of the expected!

I'm reminded of the mother who kept a suitcase beside the front door. It didn't matter what time of year, the suitcase always sat by the door. One day her grandchildren, puzzled by the suitcase at the door which sat there year after year, asked why it always sat by the door. The grandmother pulled the children together and said "I got one daughter in California. I got a son in Chicago. I got another daughter in New York. On any given day, I expect to get a phone call that says "mama I need you." When that call comes, whether it's morning, noon or midnight, I'm gonna be ready.

Everything I need is in that bag; I'm gonna be ready whenever the call comes!"

I don't know about you, but I believe this sister had her bags packed. She did not know the day or the hour, but one day the Messenger from the Lord tapped her on the shoulder and said, "The master needs you!"

I'm sorry family and friends, I hate to leave you so soon, but I have an unexpected departure!

I ain't got time to say goodbye!
I ain't got time for a parting hug!
I ain't got time for one final grandmotherly kiss!
Jesus, the one who died for me,
Jesus, the one who was buried in a borrowed tomb for me,
Jesus, the one who arose after three days and nights, for me,
Said, "I need you on the other side!"
When he calls me, I will answer!
I'll be somewhere listening for my name!

———

On Saturday, March 26, 2016, Remona Robinson, received a message from heaven; "You're wanted on the other side." Her bags were packed; it was an unexpected departure.

No. 9731-Inspiration

Hair

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 3, 2016

SCRIPTURE: But even the hairs of your head are all numbered" Matthew 10:30; 'But there shall not an hair of your head perish. In your patience possess ye your souls." Luke 21:18-19.

Introduction

Have you ever had a bad hair day? Only people with no hair can answer no, but even people with no hair can have a bad day. A day when it seems that everything is unmanageable is usually described as a bad hair day!

Consider the man who walked into a bar, ordered a drink and stared into space. While he sat there, a big gang banger sat next to him and drank his drink. Immediately the man started crying. The gang banger said, "Cool it, bro, I was just kidding you man, I'll buy you another drink." Then the man said, "I'm having a very bad day. Nothing is going right. First, I overslept and was late for an important meeting, and my boss got mad and fired me. I left the building to get in my car, and I found out that it was stolen. I then got a cab to return home, and after I paid the cab driver, I found that I left my wallet in the cab. I got home only to find my wife was having an affair with the cable guy. I left home depressed and came to this bar. And now, when I was thinking about putting an end to my life, and then you show up and drank the poison!" - That's a bad hair day!

Sometimes we all have bad hair days. Things don't work the way they are designed. You curl it, and it falls down! You want it to fall down, and it curls up. You try to comb it, and you break the teeth out of your comb!

We have about 100,000 hair follicles on our heads. Every day we lose about a hundred or so follicles, naturally, but we don't worry about it because each one of the 100,000 follicles will grow back about 20 times, so we will have two million follicles over a lifetime. What's the big deal if we lose a hundred a day.

God gave us a lot of hair, in the beginning anyway, and we spend a lot of time dealing with our 100,000 follicles and worrying when we see some spots on our heads have used up their 20 refills. After we brush it around so many times and try to comb over the dead spots so many times, we just get a razor and cut it all off and do the bald thing!

Hair has a purpose. For example, the hair above the eyes prevents dust, dirt or liquids from just rolling down into the eyes. Some people have chosen to correct God's plan, so they have completely shaved their eyebrows and used a crayon to mark the place where there once was hair.

The hair inside the nostrils is for keeping stuff out of the nose.

The hair above the mouth is important to block unwanted matter from the mouth.The hair under our arms acts as a sponge and absorbs much of the body's toxicants and odors into one place to keep the entire body from smelling toxic.

But for most people the most important hair is the hair on the head.

Whenever that hair begins to thin, shrink, to gray or to whiten people begin to look for ways to replace their hair because for many people hair is also for beauty and people spend lots of money and time doing their hair. We curl it, gel it, wave it, weave it, extend it, color it, relax it, frizz it, highlight it or twist it. Some communities have hair colors that strain the rainbow: blue, purple, gold, blonde, green, red and every kind of mix under the sun.

Dealing with natural hair is big business: To clip it, wash it, curl it, frizz it, shape it and manage it white Americans spend about $55 billion a year.

But economist say when it comes to African-Americans the picture changes. $55 billion is just a drop in the bucket. Why? The industry expects African-Americans to spend $761 million on just regular products by 2017, but then comes the daddy of them all! In additional to the $55 billion in regular products we have to add our own cultural twists: We need weaves, extensions, and styling tools and appliances that are unique to us. Old folks are still using curlers and hot combs, and young folks have found a new profession, without a license, and that's sewing extensions into hair in creative ways. In 2009, Chris Rock produced a documentary called "Good Hair" and showed this new industry that's generating not $55 billion a year, but $500 billion a year.

There is so much money being made with hair and extensions that a thief could make more money robbing a hair store than robbing a bank! Hair stores have burglar bars, cameras, guard dogs and shot guns! For some, there is more gold in a hair store than there is gold in Fort Knox!

Since we have such a fixation on hair: shaping it, cutting it, buying it, curling it, weaving it, extending it and removing it, it's understandable why God would try to give us a message of hope and assurance that we might think about the next time we look in the mirror. "But there shall not an hair of your head perish. In your patience possess ye your souls." That's something for us to say when we sit in the barber's chair or have our head under a dryer. That's a thought to think as we comb and pin our hair looking in the mirror, "If I can be patient, not a hair on my head will perish. I will survive!"

As Christians, we are thankful that God is concerned about us to the point that he watches even the smallest details of our lives. When we think we are having "bad hair days," God is working those bad days to our good.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he gives assurances to believers that God is concerned about them, even to the smallest detail.

The disciples were being criticized and ostracized for following Jesus. There was a growing hatred as well. Jesus reassured them in Matthew 10:22 that "Ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sakes: but he that endureth to the end shall be saved." As they began to spread the word about the kingdom of God they were told to have no fear. In Matthew 10:26 he said, "Fear them not therefore: for there is nothing covered that shall not be revealed; and hid, that shall not be known.

Jesus said there is not one sparrow that falls to the ground that God is not aware of its condition. Followers, worried about their safety and security were reassured with Matthew 10:30, "But the very hairs of your head are all numbered." Indicating that he knows even the smallest detail about our lives, and is concerned.

Since there are thousands of hair follicles on a person's head, the fact that each is numbered or categorized in heaven indicates that there is no detail about us that is so small that it escapes God's knowledge. He knows us from the hair follicles on our head, even to the soles of our feet. - And he cares.

Hair Lessons

In the text, Jesus used "hair to illustrate his concern for our lives, but throughout the Bible, there have been other "hair" metaphors.

HAIR HAS SYMBOLIZED ARROGANCE: Absalom was the favorite son of King Solomon, and Absalom loved his father until he was punished by his father for killing his half brother. What was once loved turned into hate as Absalom led a rebellion against his father. Absalom grew his hair long. It flowed in the wind when he rode his horse. It was his sense of pride. However, as he rebelled against his father, his own pride resulted in his death because his flowing hair was caught in tree branches, leaving him dangling in the air. He was defenseless and killed by his adversaries. His long, pretty hair symbolized his arrogance and led to his death.

HEAD OF GRAY HAIR IS BLESSED: A head full of white hair is said to be a blessing. While there are a few young people with a head full of white hair, it usually comes with age and experience. The believer with a full head of white hair is especially blessed. Isaiah received promises from God that even in his old age that he would still be the same God. For his commitment to serve as a prophet for him, God promised him that he would carry him in his youth, bear him in his infirmity and be with him when the hairs on his head had turned white. God promised Isaiah peace in his old age. God promised this faithful Servant and all others that he would be with him constantly as a source of peace, hope, and joy throughout the course of his life. Isaiah 46:4 says, "And even to your old age I am he; and even to hoary hairs will I carry you: I have made, and I will bear; even I will carry, and will deliver you." The goal of every believer is to live a life of peace with God and reach senior years knowing that God will carry you, bear you and deliver you from all evil.

HAIR SYMBOLIZED HUMILITY BEFORE GOD: In Luke 7:37 we see how a woman used her hair to show gratitude and humility to Christ. There was a supper at the house of Simon the Leper, just days before Jesus was to be crucified. The disciples had assembled themselves with Jesus to eat and fellowship. As they ate, a woman called "Mary of Bethany" came into the room with an alabaster box or jar filled with expensive oils and she began to anoint the head of Jesus as they talked. The disciples instantly recognized the value of the oils and were disturbed that the oils were "wasted" on anointing Jesus' head when they could have been sold and used to expand their work, helping the poor, and supporting their ministry. Jesus immediately rebuked them for troubling the woman. He characterized her act as a "good work" that was done "for him." Any such work was never a waste of time, resources or energy. Her willingness to dry Jesus' feet with her hair was a sign of both humility and gratitude. Even today, we should be grateful for all that God has done for us and show our gratitude in every way possible.

God's Presence

Finally, brothers and sisters, hair has been shown as a reminder of God's presence.

Jesus told his disciples that God is fully aware of everything we need to the point of knowing when a sparrow falls or the number of hairs on our head.

The reason he said those words to his disciples was to reassure them that God would never abandon them or leave them alone; that he would always make a way.?

That means we need to stay in the presence of the Lord because that is the source of our strength.

Samson is known as the strongest man who ever lived. He attributed his great strength to the special presence of God in his life, symbolized by his Nazirite' vow. The Nazirite's vow meant he was never to cut his hair, drink wine, and avoid contact with dead things. These were symbols of his devotion to God. Samson broke two of his vows routinely: he loved to drink, and he killed a lot of people and thereby touched dead things. For many years, however, he refused to cut his hair because he believed it to be the source of his strength. A woman named Delilah romanced him and talked him out of his secret. She then cut his hair and the power of God left him. He was blinded and put in a Philistine prison. He prayed to God for forgiveness and restoration. When he put his hands on his head, he could feel his hair growing back!?

That's the way saints who have been on the wrong path feel when they come back to God, they can say in their hearts, "I can feel my hair growing back! I can see him moving in my life again."

If God leaves you, your:

-Happiness turns into sadness; Joy turns into sorrow!

-Victories become defeats; Strength turns into weakness!

-Home becomes a house; Husband is reduced to just another man!

-Upward climb becomes a downward fall!?

However, when we return to God and get close to him again, we feel our hair growing back. We can say God is taking my:

—Despair and turning it into delight; Failure and turning it into success —Loneliness and turning it into friendship; Hatred and turning it into love!

—Shame and turning it into glory; sin and turning it into salvation!

I can feel my hair growing back!?

I hear Jesus saying, “I know how many hairs are on your head.”?

I know when you are worried about making ends!?

I know when you are crying about a sickness in your body!?

I know when you are distressed over the condition of your family!?

I know when you are feeling discouraged. When that happens just look up at the little sparrow and see how I hold it in the air.

That’s why the songwriter says, “Why should I be discouraged. Why should the shadows come? For Jesus is my portion. A constant friend is he. His eye is on the sparrow, and I know he watches me!

Our help doesn’t come from our hair, fancy cuts, or extensions or weaves!

Our help does not come from our college degrees!

Our help does not come from our technical training!

Our help does not come from our intellect or mental capacity!

Our help comes from the Lord who made the heaven and the earth!

Our help comes from the Son of God. His name is Jesus!

Jesus, Mary’s baby!

Jesus, Ezekiel’s wheel!

Jesus, My rock in a weary land

Jesus, My bridge over troubling water

Jesus, My doctor in a courtroom!

Jesus, Who died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning, arose from the dead!

His eye is on the sparrow and the hairs of my head, and I know he watches over me!

No. 9732-Inspiration

The Divine Baggage Handler

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 10, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." Matthew 11:28

Introduction

Have you ever seen a person who prepares for a journey, but requires several suitcases to make the move? You have seen them, they pack the whole house for a short trip and need overnight kits, garment bags, big suitcases, small ones and even a few more items stuffed into backpacks. For some, making a move means carrying a large amount of baggage.

There is a difference between baggage and luggage even though we often use the two terms interchangeably. Luggage refers to containers that store our baggage. Luggage can be full or empty, depending upon the quantity of the contents. Baggage is what is stored in the luggage. Luggage is what we use to carry our baggage.

In life, we usually refer to "baggage" as the total of life's experiences that we bring from one relationship into another. For example, a person that has experienced a failed marriage brings the memory or the baggage of that relationship into the next life episode. It may be the reason the person never marries again or assumes protective attitudes in the next marriage. There is emotional baggage, of those who have been hurt; spiritual baggage of those who have lost hope, and even financial baggage of those who often fail in financial matters. -When it comes to life, we usually refer to "baggage" in the negative because they represent failed experiences that are often painful and frustrating to remember.

Everyone has some amount of baggage. If you have traveled, you have perhaps seen two types of travelers. One is in the airport with large suitcases and is struggling to make it to a terminal. Another has an equal amount of baggage but has a small dolly upon which he or she rolls the suitcase. At first sight, it appears that the one whose suitcase is on wheels was the smart traveler until you see a third traveler who only carries a clothes bag and briefcase or purse. One had a heavy suitcase on wheels, but it was still heavy; it was just moved on wheels. At some point, the wheels came off and the suitcase became a heavy load again. Many handle their loads with grace and style as if they were rolling along on wheels, but they are, nevertheless, heavy loads. At some point, we reach a stairway or a point where we try to move higher and find that wheels don't help and feel the weight of the load.

At the point that we are trying to move higher, but feel weighted down by heavy life baggage, is where our faith steps into the picture. Jesus speaks to each believer's heart and says, "Let me handle your luggage." He promises to make our luggage lighter by removing the baggage and making life much easier for us to bear.

As Christians, we are happy that the savior is a divine baggage handler, who gladly checks our baggage and helps us board the plane of life for a safe journey to the promised land.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he explains to his disciples that their burdens would be lighter if they gave them to him.

He told them to take his yoke upon them because His burden is light. The people knew what Jesus referred to because they were farmers. They knew that yokes were used by animals to pull wagons. Sometimes people placed yokes on their shoulders to help them carry large loads. The yokes often became heavy. Jesus applied the heavy yokes idea to people who tried to be happy by obeying the hundreds of items in the law without really knowing God. The Bible also refers to sin as a great yoke upon us too.

In both cases, Jesus asks every believer to let him give them a lighter load, but of course, it would mean they would have to take a chance on him and let go of the world.

Baggage Handlers

Believers who travel can understand the idea of carrying our burdens to the Lord if we can think of Jesus as the Divine Baggage handler who shows us:

WHAT TO PACK: There are many who try to travel and pack everything but the kitchen sink into their suitcases. Much of what we pack we do not need. Jesus shows us what to pack. We need those things that will help us live a fruitful life as Christians. In Matthew 6:33 Jesus said, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of Heaven and its righteousness and all of these things shall be added unto you." What we need to pack is an abundance of prayer, faith, and hope. Anything else that we pack is a hindrance.

HOW TO PACK: If you've ever stood at an airport, you've probably seen poorly pack pieces of luggage. It's not the luggage had too much, it's that it had no order. There was so much stuff into the luggage that it bulged at the seams, ripping zippers and sticking out in all of the wrong places. The Divine Baggage Handler shows us how to live our lives "decently and in order." David said in the Psalms that the steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord. If we live ordered lives, then it will be easier for us to move from one destination to the other.

HOW MUCH TO PACK: There are many who try to board a plane with luggage that is too heavy. Most airports have a 50-pound limit for a piece of luggage. To stay within this limit, we must know how much to pack. Today, there are many who are carrying too much baggage! Past relationship worries are baggage! Baby Daddy-Baby Mama issues are baggage! The demons of our past that haunt us are baggage! All of this is being stuffed in our luggage. It's no wonder that Jesus says, "Come unto Me all you who are weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest. Take My yoke upon you and learn from Me, for I am gentle and humble in heart, and you will find rest for your souls. For My yoke is easy and My burden is light." (Matthew 11:28-30) The Divine Baggage Handler will show us three other things not to pack:

GUILT: Some carry guilt with them every day. They made a mistake a while back, and they have never forgiven themselves. They blame themselves constantly. Even though they have prayed to God and he has forgiven them and washed away the guilt with his blood, they carry guilt around with them. It's a heavy load. Sometimes they are smiling and shaking hands and seem warm and carefree. That's because they have put their guilt on wheels, but they are still carrying it around.

We should travel lighter, leaving the guilt behind, especially in light of Hebrews 9:14 " How much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered himself without spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God?" Since Jesus has forgiven us for our mistakes, we should not make our load heavier!

FEARS: Some carry fear with them every day. They are afraid of failure. Afraid to take opportunities and to step out on faith. Fear consumes them every day. They cannot get away from it. From year to year, they live in fear of losing their job, getting demoted, not being accepted. They constantly live in fear! However, when God is on our side, we have nothing to fear from life. Psalm 118:6 "The LORD is on my side; I will not fear: what can man do unto me?" Psalm 27:1 puts it this way: "The LORD is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? The LORD is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?"

WORRIES: Perhaps the heaviest piece of luggage to carry around is worry. Worry is more than concern; it is over concern. Those who worry invent scenarios that may never happen. They muse over projected tragedy and they make a bad case even worse because of their intense worry.

Many get bags under the eyes, lose sleep, suffer deteriorating health and suffer stress attacks because they worry so much. They carry it around with them daily. Jesus addressing this subject made this response in Matthew 6:28-30 And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin: And yet I say unto you, That even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. Wherefore, if God so clothes the grass of the field, which to day is, and tomorrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?"

A songwriter worded it differently: "Why should I be discouraged. Why should the shadows come? Why should my heart be lonely and long for heaven and home? When Jesus is my portion. A constant friend is he. For his eye is on the sparrow and I know he watches me."

Take It To The Lord

Finally, Brothers and Sisters, as we journey from one destination to another in this life, we must check our baggage at the gate and leave them there.

There are many who have not learned to check the baggage because they do not trust the baggage handlers. They try to move to their next destination with a carryon; a small piece of luggage stuff full with a lot of baggage. Their goal is to make a lot of baggage fit into a small space.

There is a great amount of confidence that comes with trusting your bags to the right ramp agent because if he knows what he's doing, he'll see that your luggage gets where you are going.

You don't want to be going to the city, but your luggage which has your prayer is in the country!

You don't want to be going over here, but your luggage which has your faith is over there!

You don't want to be landing, but your luggage which contains your faith is taking off!

We like to fly airlines that have proven that the ramp agents know what they are doing!

That's why the old warriors sing, "I will trust in the Lord, I will trust in the Lord until I die." That's also why David declared, "In thee oh Lord do I put my trust."

When you leave your baggage with the Divine Baggage Handler, you can be sure that he will take care of your need. Leave it there don't try to take it with you.

That's what the songwriter had in mind when he wrote: "If the world from you withhold of its silver and its gold and you have to get along with meager fare. Just remember in his word, how he feeds the little bird and take your burdens to the Lord and leave it there!"

If you leave it there, he will take your:

-Loneliness and give you an everlasting comfort; Empty House and bless it to become a home

-Trial and give you strength to endure; Heartache and give you a love that will heal

-Sorrow and turn it into gladness; Weakness and turn it into strength

-Bowed down head and raise it up in joy!

If you trust and never doubt, he will surely bring you out, take your burdens to the Lord and leave it there!

One final thing. When you get to your destination, you will go to the baggage claim area to pick up your luggage. There will be dozens of suitcases that are coming toward you on a conveyer belt. Many of them look just like yours, but be careful; you came to pick up your divinely packed luggage not someone else's baggage.

Your luggage was packed by the Divine Baggage Handler. It may look like someone else's on the outside, but yours is different!

Your luggage is filled with love, because all of the hate has been removed!

Your luggage is filled with hope, because all of the despair has been removed!

Your luggage is filled with joy, because all of the sadness has been removed!

Your luggage is filled with salvation because the stain of sin has been removed!

Your luggage is light, because the Devine Baggage Handler is carrying your load!

Who is the Divine Baggage Handler?

Isaiah 53:5 says "..he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and with his stripes we are healed."

He knows about carrying baggage because one day over 2000 years ago, he took the baggage of all of the world on his shoulder and carried it up Golgotha's hill!

He knows about handling baggage, for he nailed it to an old rugged cross and died out on Calvary!

But he also knows how to get rid of baggage, because Early Sunday morning he rose up from the grave with all power in his baggage free hands!

Put your life in the hands of the Divine Baggage Handler…

He'll make everything all right!

No.9733-Inspiration

This means War

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 17, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places". Ephesians 6:12

Introduction

Have you ever thought what it means to be at war? Whenever a war is declared, the parties involved pursue a course of destruction to achieve a sometimes elusive end. Wars have been declared over women; such as the Trojan wars of the Greeks over Helen of Troy. Wars have been fought because of racial hatred such as the War that Adolph Hitler fought against the whole world. Wars have been fought over ideologies such as the U.S. Civil War, which was fought to test whether any state could secede from the union and pursue its own interests. Wars are also fought to protect our people from foreign invaders, such as World War II.

There have only been five formally declared wars in U.S. History: The War of 1812 against Britain, The Mexican-American War, The Spanish-American War and World Wars I and II. There have been others, but they were never formally declared by Congress, but were authorized conflicts and policing actions. On December the 8, 1941 the Congress of the United States Declared War with Japan, Germany, and Italy all in the same day.

War is serious business, but wars don't begin on national levels, they begin with individuals. The first time we see war is when children decide to fight, cut, beat and hurt each other. We see neighborhood gangs beat and hurt each other. There are sections of the country where war can be declared if a person wears the wrong colors while walking down the street or moves into the wrong section of the city.

We have fought race wars, and wars are being fought over the issue of gay rights, even today.

Wars are fought in families, fathers against sons and mothers against daughters. There are wars between in-laws. There are wars in sororities, fraternities, churches, and communities. There is a war going on today in the Republican Party where its leaders have declared war against its most popular presidential candidate, Donald Trump. There are wars between the rich and poor, the Northside and the Southside. The possibility of war is everywhere.

Where does war come from? The Bible says wars begin when there is spiritual wickedness in high places and when the hearts of men are controlled by what it calls the "rulers of darkness." It was this evil presence that made two brothers Cain and Abel fight each other. It is this same presence that pits husband against wife, and children against parents. It is a destructive presence whose ultimate goal is to cheat, kill and destroy.

Believers are at war with the forces of evil in this world. These are the forces that are breaking up our homes, crippling our race and destroying our communities. These are the forces that are putting drug dealers on our streets, guns in the hands of youth and locking away generations of our posterity.

Heaven has declared war on Satan, and every saint needs to become a soldier in the army of the Lord, trained and ready at a minute's notice to take up spiritual arms to defeat Satan before he defeats our families and the cause of Christ.

As Christians, we must declare war on Satan and bar him from our lives and our homes. The day he invades our lives is a day of infamy. The day he is defeated will be our day of victory!

Exposition

This text finds Paul writing to the church at Ephesus encouraging its members to prepare themselves to withstand the works of evil that may come upon them.

In the early church, believers were persecuted for their faith in Christ. The members were assaulted, killed for sport and otherwise ostracized for their belief in Jesus. Each person was encouraged to be sure in the faith and arm themselves with the power of God to withstand the evil attempts of the devil to destroy them.

Paul wanted to be sure that the Ephesians knew the nature of the evil one and how easy he could plunge himself into their affairs. To insure that they were not deceived, Paul reminded them that the evil one was not a flesh and blood person, but was spiritual in nature. As such he could influence individuals, powers, and the very governments that operate the nation; thus they were to be constantly on guard.

They were encouraged to put on the whole armor of God and then be prepared to withstand the evil one's influence.

Battles and wars

WARS HAVE MANY BATTLES: When Satan declares war on a Christian family, don't expect the war to end with a single showdown, but expect many confrontations with the evil one. Satan declares war on us if we decide to do what is right or stand for God. He begins to wage dozens of small battles that start with an ill feeling, misunderstanding, confusion, and even serious trouble. What caused the war? You tried to help someone, and they turned on you. You gave your honest opinion, and it wasn't received well. You refused to participate in an ungodly activity. You fell into financial trouble by no fault of your own. These are small battles that besiege believers every day.

The word of God reminds us that these daily battles will occur because Satan brings them against us. “For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. Wherefore take unto you the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand.” Ephesians 6:12-13. Believers who are being attacked because of their attempts to do the right thing should remember the words of Jesus In Matthew 5:11-12, “Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake. Rejoice, and be exceeding glad: for great is your reward in heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you. When you are trying to do right and meet frustration, you are in a godly battle!

Don’t wave the white flag! Stay in the battle. That battle is not yours, it’s the Lord’s!

WARS ARE COSTLY: Every war has a price. The U.S. spent $4 Trillion on World War II. The Gulf wars have cost an estimated $4.4 trillion as well and still climbing. Anytime someone declares war there will be a cost for those on the offense and the defense. When Satan declares war on our families, he gets in our families and causes us to go to war with each other and others, there is a cost. When a family, loses that battle of self-discipline there is a cost. There are families that have spent literally thousands of dollars on lawyers, bail bondsmen, appeals, and other legal costs. Crime does not pay; it literally costs thousands in lost opportunities and freedom. Husband and wives who cheat pay expensive costs in divorces, custody battles, and intra-family disputes. If families could recoup all of the money spent on family wars, many would be very close to becoming wealthy.

Jesus warned every believer to “count the cost.” Standing as a soldier for the Lord will be a dangerous and expensive venture, no person should join God’s army who is not willing to pay the ultimate price for the kingdom of God.

WARS HAVE CASUALTIES: Anytime a war is declared, there will be casualties. There will be many who will die on the battlefield and many others who will survive but will have given the better part of their lives to the conflict. However, there are some intangible casualties of war:

-HOPE is lost. When we are not at war, we can see hope for our family and our children. This hope is a living hope that only perishes and fades away under the threat of war. When we are at war with each other, the enemy closes the eyes of all of its soldiers so that they lose hope in the future. If there is no hope, many use dope and hang themselves with a variety of rope. Without hope, we forget that with Jesus there is always a bright side.

-JOY is lost. When we are at war, it is difficult to rejoice. A home that is at war is not a happy place. It is not joyous: family members don’t speak to each other or if they do it is only brief ceremonial comments. They don’t celebrate or interact with each other. There is no feeling of excitement that can be smothered by hard times or difficulties but can be suppressed to the point of death when there is war. Philippians 4:4 says “Rejoice in the Lord, always”- because joy is supposed to be ours.

-PEACE is lost during war. A home that is at war is not a peaceful place. There are many hurtful things said, insults are exchanged, threats and sometimes physical altercations. It is terrible for a home to be at war because one of the most precious components of the family, which is peace, disappears. This loss of peace extends to many aspects of our lives including our ability to feel safe and secure and protected from all harms. Most importantly we lose the peace of God. "Do not be anxious about anything, but in everything by prayer and petition, with thanksgiving present your requests to God. And the PEACE of God, which transcends all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus." Phil 4:6,7

We don't have to lose

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that just because the devil has declared war on us; doesn't mean that we have to lose, war must be declared on Satan and in Jesus' name claim the victory!

When Japan declared war on the United States, on December 7, 1941, it only took one day for the United States to declare war on Japan, Germany, Italy and everybody else that got in our way.

President Roosevelt told the nation: "As commander-in-chief of the army and navy I have directed that all measures be taken for our defense…No matter how long it may take us to overcome this premeditated invasion the American people in their righteous might will win through to absolute victory…...With confidence in our armed forces - with the unbounding determination of our people - we will gain the inevitable triumph - so help us God…."

That should be the stand of every believer. If Satan declares war on your life of faith, you should declare war on the devil and everything associated with him and with an unwavering determination to be victorious.

We should declare war on the devil because, "For God did not give us a spirit of timidity, but of a spirit of power, of love and of self-discipline." 2 Tim 1:7

We should declare war on the devil because the victory is promised, "1 Corinthians 15:57-58 "But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

If the devil has stolen your peace and joy, you should rise up, strap on your armor and say, "This means war!"

If the devil has declared war on your marriage, don't give up, rise up and announce that the devil is a liar, your marriage will survive, "This means war!"

If the devil has sent winds and water to into your house to take away your happiness and joy, stand up and declare, "This joy I have, the world didn't give it, and the world can't take it away," -Devil, this means war!

If the devil has attacked your faith and stolen your praise, then remember Romans 8:38-39, "For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." Devil if you want to attack my faith, bring it on, because this means war!

When it comes to our family, Satan may as well get ready for war!

When it comes to our faith, Satan may as well get ready for war!

We declare war on hopelessness, helplessness, doubt, deceit and despair

We declare war because we serve a God who transforms our:

-BURDENS into blessings; CARES into comforts

-DEFEATS into delights; HEARTACHES into hallelujahs!

-PROBLEMS into praises; HOUSES into homes

-SORROWS into songs; SADNESS into gladness

We declare war and go into battle knowing that before the battle begins the victory is won! We have the joy of the Lord!

The joy of the Lord is knowing that no matter how tough the enemy, we will be the victor!

The joy of the Lord is knowing that weeping might endure for a night, but joy comes in the morning!

The Joy of the Lord turns SADNESS into GLADNESS; WEAKNESS into strength; DEFEAT into victory!

The joy of the Lord is the assurance that storms may rise and winds may blow, but God is still on the throne!

That's why the songwriter declared, "Victory is mine, victory is mine, victory today is mine. I told Satan to get thee behind; victory today is mine!"

Over 2000 years Jesus shouldered an old rugged cross up Golgotha's hill to secure our reward

He was buried in a borrowed tomb, but Early Sunday morning, the ground began to shake, the stone rolled away, and heaven rejoiced as He arose from the grave with all power in his hand.

No. 9734-Inspiration

That Night the King could not Sleep

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 24, 2016

SCRIPTURE: On that night could not the king sleep, and he commanded to bring the book of records of the chronicles; and they were read before the king. Esther 6:1

Introduction

Have you ever had a sleepless night? There are many reasons that we can't sleep that include: worry, illness, excitement, and distractions. Sometimes we can't sleep because of noises, lights, or cell phone message tones pinging throughout the night. Sometimes it's a bad mattress, wrong pillow or a partner that snores.

Some other reasons include:

* Jet lag. Air travel across time zones often causes brief bouts of insomnia.

* Working the night shift or long shifts. Individuals who work at night and those who work long shifts may have trouble adjusting their sleep habits.

* Medications. Insomnia can be a side effect of various medications, both prescription and over-the-counter.

* Overuse of caffeine and alcohol. Caffeine most commonly disrupts sleep. While a drink or two before bed may help a person relax, more than that can lead to fragmented sleep and wakefulness a few hours later.

Dumb Danny went to his doctor complaining that he could not sleep. Danny tried everything, but nothing seemed to work. He tried counting sheep, but he was so dumb he couldn't count past ten, so that didn't help. They told him to wait on the sandman, and he would sleep and dream, so he put bags of sand in his eyes, but that didn't work. Finally, Dumb Danny moved to a different neighborhood, but that caused a problem because his neighbor was in a band and they practice all night long. So Danny goes to his doctor and says "I cannot sleep every night because my neighbor's band makes so much loud noise. He lets me get no sleep at all." The doctor says, "Oh, no problem! It's easy! I'll give you something, and you'll have a good sleep. The next day, Dumb Danny goes to see the doctor again and complains, "I have taken the pills but still cannot sleep. The doctor says, "Oh, my God, those were not pills they were earplugs for your ears!"

While there are many reasons why we can't sleep, there are times when God keeps us awake. These are the times when, for his own purposes, he influences people and events. Matthew 27:19 tells us that one night Pilate's wife could not sleep because of a terrible nightmare she had about Jesus. She begged her husband to wash his hands of blame for this death. Genesis 20:6 tells how Abimelech woke up from a dream in which God revealed to him that he was about to unknowingly have relations with Abraham's wife whom he thought was Abraham's sister. Joseph was called from prison because the king had dreams that kept him awake at night and he wanted Joseph to interpret them. King Saul was haunted by evil spirits, and that kept him awake and threw him into fits and rages, and he called for David to play the harp for him. Sometimes God reveals his will for us in our sleep, or by not letting us sleep at all.

God is always looking out for us. Psalm 121 says, "He that keepeth Israel neither slumbers or sleeps." -That's reassuring.

As Christians, we always want to be aware of the ways that God speaks to us. When he speaks, we should hear him and be prepared to do his will.

Exposition

This text provides an example of how God arranges circumstances to benefit his purpose.

Haman hated Mordecai and planned to have him hanged. His plans had been laid meticulously, and a set of gallows was being constructed upon which he hoped to hang Mordecai the next morning. While Haman's plans were being put into place, God was also putting his plans together. That night God caused the king to discover that Mordecai was not an enemy of the king as Haman had told him. That night God troubled the king so that he could not sleep. He called for the chronicles to be brought and read to him. The Chronicles were a written journal of the activities, decisions, and actions of the King and other national heroes. As the chronicles were read to him, he learned that two of his doorkeepers or guards had planned to kill him, but the plan was wrecked by Mordecai. The king then asked whether or not any reward had been provided to Mordecai. When he learned that none had been provided the King prepared to reward him. Later, Haman was hanged on the gallows he built for Mordecai.

The text reveals that God's purpose was to save his people, and Haman was trying to do the opposite, so the one person who could change the situation had to be an influence.

That night the king had drunk plenty of wine at his banquet, but he could not sleep.

That night the king the exhausted from all of his festivities, but he could not sleep.

Despite his best efforts and desires, that night the king could not sleep.

The king commanded a great army and stood as Lord over 127 provinces, but he could not command his eyes to close and get even a few minutes sleep; that night the king could not sleep because God kept him awake.

He was not aware that God kept him awake and caused him to take action that would save the Jewish people and destroy its biggest enemy at the same time.

When the unexplained happens, believers look for God's fingerprints in the action.

It is unexplained, why the king could not sleep that night.

It is unexplained, why the king, like all Persian kings, did not call for musicians to play soft music to put him to sleep.

It is unexplained, why the King did not call for poets to read him lovely poems until he dozed off.

It is unexplained, why the King did not call for his doctors to give him a potion to force his sleep.

When the unexplained begins to happen, the breadcrumb trail often leads back to the hand of God.

Believers should take comfort in knowing that God's will unfolds in subtle forms and unfolds in ways unseen long before we see the effect.

Dealing with the spirits

There is a spirit of faith and hope and a spirit of darkness in every person. As the dark side of others attempts to interrupt his will, God begins a quiet, unseen movement to accomplish his will in ways that are usually unnoticed.

The spirit of Haman is destructive: In each of us, there is a bit of Haman. This is the spirit in us that pushes us to seek preservation above everything else. Haman sought glory and recognition for himself. He did not want to wait for it but chose to force it to happen. All of his actions epitomized the idea of "Watch out for number one" and "Look out for me." There is a bit of Haman in each of us that is unsettled at the seemingly slow pace with which God unfolds his providence and blessing. As we watch the bold and brash of the world seem to get ahead, there is a voice inside that sometimes tempts us to join the growing caravan of friends and acquaintances who seem to prosper without waiting for God to open doors; they open them by their own ways. It's the woman who seeks to climb the corporate ladder through the wink of an eye or the appeal of an unbuttoned blouse. It's the employee who betrays his employer's trust and brings home for his own use that which has not been given.

It's the Haman in us that wants to resort to dirty tricks to win, deceit to be rewarded, and underhanded tactics to get ahead. It is the Haman in us that causes us to dig ditches for others to fall. It is the Haman in us that prompts a school child to bully another or an adult to stereotype other adults and shower them with hateful language. There is little difference between the bully on the playground and the bully in the workplace; the result is the same.

God is not pleased with the Haman side of our nature. In the Star Wars films, this Haman side is called the "Dark Side of the Force." Shakespeare refers to it as "The evil that men do." The great philosopher Flip Wilson said it another way: "The devil made me do it." Trying to figure it out Paul describes it as the side of us that makes us do what we don't want to do, go where we don't want to go and say what should not be said. He concluded that sin forced him to do wrong and in Romans 7:24 said, "Oh Wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from this body of death?"

His answer is Jesus. And that is the answer for each of us. The saving Grace of Christ is the only power able to subdue the Haman side of us. We must submit to him and give him a chance to save us from ourselves.

The spirit of Mordecai is constructive: There is a bit of Mordecai and Esther in each of us as well. This is a spirit that constantly speaks to us and guides us to do the will of God. The spirit of Mordecai in his us prompts us to do right when others do wrong, knowing that in the end, God will reward us, even if others can't or won't acknowledge the good that we do.

It is the spirit of Mordecai in us that responds to the threat against our righteous deeds with faith that in his own way, God will open ways that will save and revive the people.

The spirit of Mordecai reflects itself in our patient faith that, "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength. They shall mount up on wings as Eagles they shall run and not be weary; they shall walk and not faint."

It is the spirit of Mordecai in us that rests in the assurance that God will manipulate every situation so that "All things work to the good of them that love the Lord and who are the called according to his purpose."

We don't know when and we don't know how, but we know that God will make a way.

It was more than a simple sleepless night. The fact that the king couldn't sleep that night was not just a triviality. There is a lot behind why. In a similar way, every believer should know that when it comes to the kingdom of God, very little happens by chance; God is operating in the affairs of men to accomplish his will. Sometimes we see it in mighty ways such as the opening of the Red Sea or the fall of the walls of Jericho. When the earth stops its rotation so that the sun stands still, we know that's an event influenced by God. However, it's hard to see how God moving in the less obvious things, such as the man who could not sleep one night. That one event started a chain of events that ended with a blessing for Mordecai, Esther and the people of Israel. He could not sleep, a trivial thing. He ordered the chronicles to be read, a trivial thing. However, the fact that the reader selected to read about Mordecai's bravery was another trivial thing because there were hundreds of other records. When Haman's evil plans were discovered he went in to see the queen who was laying on her bed, and he tripped over something, we don't know what it was, but it was trivial, and he fell onto the bed with the queen just as the king walked in. Hours later Haman was dead. Whatever it was that tripped him up, and hastened his death.

Before you were able to get the blessing you received, look at the countless "little things" that God put into place to make it happen for you. He caused the right person to be in the right place just in time to bless you. It wasn't the sleepless night, itself that prompted the blessing, but God chose that means to set up a domino effect that would achieve the end that he desired.

A winning player is often praised for making a touchdown in a game, but the wise player knows that it was a series of other plays including blocks, handoffs, and sacrifices that made the touchdown possible. It didn't just happen; there were many unseen, seemingly trivial things that created the opportunity.

That's what God does for us. He creates the opportunity! We should praise God for the big blessing, but don't forget about all of the little things he did before the big blessing arrived.

God is working things out

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should be reminded that no matter what situation we face, as long as we are trying to be faithful to God, he is working things in our favor.

What he does may be as small as putting your name on the mind of someone who has a blessing to give.

It may be small as causing someone to lose a night's sleep over your condition.

We don't know how God plans to work it out, but we are confident that he has already begun to work it out for us.

God was constantly working things to our advantage.

Israel could not see God working in Egypt or at the Red Sea; they also found it hard to see him working in the wilderness. All some could see was the difficulty of their journey.

On the journey, they were blessed but couldn't see it.

They could not see how they wore the same clothes for 40 years but they never wore out.

They could not see how they were protected from their enemies despite their own inability to defend themselves.

They could not see how they were provided water out of nowhere despite drought situations. God blessed them, but they could not see him at work.

Often we can't see what God is working out for us.

I'm reminded of the old man named George who lived in the guesthouse of a rich family. He had lived in the guest house for many years, but he never paid in rent or did any kind of work. After his father had died, the young son became the head of the family, and he went to the guest house and saw the old man who walked crooked with burns on his hands and back. He told him he would have to pay rent if he wanted to stay, otherwise, prepare to move out.

The old man didn't know what to do. He was nearly 100 years old with no place to go. He just dropped on his knees and talked to the Lord.

That night the young son, could not sleep! To pass the time, he rumbled through his father's old trunks, and he came upon a newspaper clipping. The article described a house fire and how young man ran into the house and pulled his father and mother from the blaze, saving them. When the young man learned that their infant son was still inside, he went inside the burning house a third time. The burning beams crashed all around them, so the young man threw himself over the little boy and protected him from the flames with his body. The article only referred to the young man as George. When the house was rebuilt, the family found George and gave him a place to stay and took care all of his needs for the rest of his life.

The young boy went to the guest house and looked Old George in the face!

I don't know why I couldn't sleep last night!

I don't know why I decided to look in Daddy's old trunk!

Nobody told me that you saved my life!

Nobody told me that you scarred your body to save mine!

I'm sorry! Please forgive me!

This is my father's house! In my father's house, there is always love!

You don't have to worry about anything, for the rest of your life!

Old George smiled and said, "You said you don't know why you couldn't sleep last night, but let me tell you something. The same God who told me to rescue you from the fire is the same God who wouldn't let you sleep last night!

The Lord will make a way!

He was wounded for our transgressions! Bruised for our iniquities and the chastisement of our peace is upon him!

He died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power!

All power in his hands!

No.9735-Inspiration

In all this, Job sinned Not

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

May 1, 2016

SCRIPTURE: And said, Naked came I out of my mother's womb, and naked shall I return thither: the Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord. In all this Job sinned not, nor charged God foolishly. Job 1:21-22

Introduction

What do you do, when everything you do, just won't do? What do you say, when everything you say, won't help? Where do you go when everywhere you go, takes you nowhere? The answer to all three of these questions seems to describe the dilemma of every person who has made it to the end his or her rope. This is the time when we try to make some sense out of our situation but, nothing makes sense. There is no logical explanation for why so much is happening to us so quickly, despite our efforts to fear God and seek shelter in the strength of his power.

It may not be logical, but there is an answer. There is an explanation for all of the storms that are raging in our lives right now. That explanation is contained in God's Word, and it is embodied in the book of Job. It is a unique book that has no time given and refers to a place that no one has been able to connect to any known country. Job has no ancestry connection to the Patriarchs of the Old Testament or any descendant connections to any New Testament disciples. It is not connected to any place or person, but it sits boldly in the center of the Bible.

Since God does nothing by chance, perhaps it's singular purpose is to connect with every believer and answer the question, why me? Why are the righteous having so many problems, sicknesses, financial losses, deaths, calamities, and frustrations?
A careful study of the Book of Job allows every believer to see Job as a type of the faithful Saint who attempts to obey the rules, live the righteous life, and worship God, but is constantly besieged by troubles and hardships. There are moments in each of our lives when we feel like Job, frustrated and alone.

What is encouraging is that while the Book of Job explains why things are happening, it also shows the end result for those who don't commit the unpardonable sin of giving up on God. It paints a dark picture of some problems we will face, but it also paints a brighter picture of the victory we will share when we overcome.

As Christians, we are encouraged to know that our God is able to keep us from falling and will deliver us from evil. Whatever life brings we are ready to walk boldly into our future with God by our side.

Exposition

This text considers Job, a man who had reason to be impatient with life but chose to wait on God.

Job is described as a righteous man who lived in the land of Nod. He was the subject of a trial of faith. God allowed Satan to test the strength of his faith by removing all of the comforts that sustained Job's hope. Satan described these comforts as a "hedge" God built around him. The purpose of the test was to demonstrate that Job's faith in God was not artificial but was rooted in a belief that God would not forsake him, regardless of the circumstance. This would be a considerable challenge since Job 1:3 say Job substance included: seven thousand sheep, and three thousand camels, and five hundred yokes of oxen, and five hundred she-asses.

As Satan began to move, tragedy struck Job's family. Members of his family were killed. His vast fortune, invested in cattle and huge herds, was stolen by bandits. Almost overnight his entire financial situation changed to the point that he was no longer wealthy but bordered on poverty. Still, however, he refused to curse God or to forsake him.

When the first attack did not succeed, Satan went back to heaven to ask for permission to put more on Job. That account is given in Job 2:3 which reads, "And the Lord said unto Satan, Hast thou considered my servant Job, that there is none like him in the earth, a perfect and an upright man, one that feareth God, and escheweth evil? and still, he holdeth fast his integrity, although thou movedst me against him, to destroy him without cause." Satan said the other attack involved things and other people, but if he were personally attacked, he would sin and blame God.

God was sure that Job would not compromise himself and gave Satan permission to wreck Job's health, but not to touch his soul.

In Satan's second attack he infected Job's body with boils. Job physically deteriorated to the point that his entire life was so painful that he wished himself dead. He cursed his mother's womb. He cursed the day on which he was born. He lashed out at his friends. His patience grew short with his friends, his wife and all who tried to comfort him. He was in pain and was terribly impatient with life. He wanted an end to his situation.

Throughout his various trials, the essence of verses 21-22 seems to apply: Things didn't matter, he came with nothing into the world and when he left the world he wouldn't take anything with him. In Job 13:15 he said, "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him: but I will maintain mine own ways before him."

Despite losses of physical possession, sickness in his family and personal health failings, Job refused to give up on God. Giving up on God is described as a sin. Job says,1:22 "In all this, Job sinned not."

He refused to believe that God had abandoned him and chose to trust him until the day he died.

All This

Believers can better understand why evil seems to follow them if we consider that

JOB'S RIGHTEOUS LIFE ATTRACTED ATTACKS: It was Job's great righteous life that attracted his attack. Job 1:1 says that he was perfect and righteous. That righteousness caught the devil's attention. That reminds believers that they become targets of the devil whenever they attempt to live the Godly life. 1 Peter 5:8 says, the devil is like a hungry lion looking for someone to devour, destroy and annihilate. The fact that believers seem to have their lives ordered in the Lord draws attacks. Have you ever watched fruit flies? They are attracted to anything that's sugary or sweet such as fruit, candy, or cold drinks. They are opposite from the common flies which could care less about sweet things; they like dead things or things that are dying. Fruit flies specialize in buzzing around fruit. Galatians 5:22 says, "But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, Meekness, temperance: against such there is no law."

Believers who are living by God's word are filled with the fruit of the spirit and are attacked because flies like fruit. You know you are not being attacked because of a sinful lifestyle, it has to be the fact that you are trying to live for God. If it had been just flies buzzing, it would not have been a problem, but Satan came after His children, wealth, then his health, all hit him at one time. Thus, believers should stay prayed up and on guard because the more we want to be Christians the more the devil tempts us otherwise.

IN ALL THIS IS A RELATIVE DESCRIPTION: The text says "In all this, Job sinned not." For Job, "all this" meant sheep, cattle, donkeys, camels and oxen, but "all this" for the modern believer, means the tangible things of worth that you possess. The Devil fights a continuous battle to attack our faith. When he attacks our faith he focuses on each person's "All this." For one person "All this" means financial problems. For another, "All this" means marriage problems. For another person "All this means housing complications, business difficulties or career challenges. Satan looks for he thinks will shake our faith. What shakes one person does not shake another. Sometimes he deals with us just like he did Job; he hits us with everything; all at once. - But in all this, Job sinned not.

Job resolved to stay firm and hold on rather than give up his faith. Paul summed it up this way, Romans 8:38-39 "For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

When the devil throws everything at us but the kitchen sink, we should respond with faith that God will make it work out. We are able to endure such situations because we know that God has promised two things: Never to leave us alone and to make every situation that comes our way, even the pain, work out to our good as it relates to the kingdom of God. We don't quite know how it works, but we know that there will be no life that does not experience some element of pain, sadness, frustration and loss. We will overcome.

We are consoled, however, when we remember that after the trial of our faith passes, God will renew our strength and reward our patience, endurance, and longsuffering with satisfaction that will never end.

WHAT TO DO IN THE MIDDLE OF ALL THIS: In all this, Job taught every believer a lesson. He answered the questions about 'what to do when you don't know what to do, or where to go when there is no place else to go. Job drew on the inner reserves that he stored up for his time of testing. We have an advantage that Job did not have. We know that we will have several tests during our lifetime? We don't know the test date, but we know that they are coming so we can prepare in advance. When trouble comes, every believer should be prepared to tap your spiritual reserves that were stored up for just such occasions. When the going gets tough, the tough get going. This is when we open our Bible and read God's word intensely, we listen to the Gospel preach attentively, and we pray fervently. From our storehouse of prayer and power, we emerge with renewed confidence that despite sickness in the family, financial crises, someway or somehow we will rise to the occasion with God's help.

The faithful don't give up or lose their focus; instead, they draw upon resources of Spirit and strength that normally go unused. They exhibit a faith that has been sitting on the shelf. They demonstrate courage that is rarely displayed. They reveal an element of self-control others were not unaware of. We reach down into ourselves; that's when God comes up to show us how to draw upon energies, knowledge, wisdom and assets that have been untapped for so long.

Don't give up on God

Finally, brothers and sisters, we need to remind ourselves that when Satan shoots every arrow in his quiver at us and does his best to destroy us, the same God that protected us in the past is still on the throne today.

Believers should hold fast to your faith. Resist the temptation to question God's ways and simply say in your mind, "God is good all the time, all the time God is good."

We need to watch what Job did in the middle of "all this.." Job 1:20 says that in the middle of "All this" that he rent his clothes, shaved his head and fell down on the ground and worshiped the Lord.

Since he is not connected to the Old Testament Patriarchs or to any of the New Testament Disciples that has to be a message to believers today who are in the middle of all this. That message is for us to remember that God has promised, never to leave us alone.

In the middle of "All this" we will still praise the Lord!

If there is a Red Sea blocking your way, "be not dismayed, God will take care of you."

As saints, we should never let anyone take away our testimony.

Job's friends turned their backs on him, but he didn't lose his testimony!

It may be hard to see your way, but don't lose your testimony, That;s when you sing, "I said to my soul, take courage Oh, the Lord will make a way somehow!"

You may feel abandoned, but don't lose your testimony, "Be not dismayed whatever betide, God will take care of you. Beneath his wings of love abide, God will take care of you. Through every day, over all the way, he will take care of you!"

You may be troubled by your test, but don't lose your testimony!

In the midst of trouble, remind yourself that trouble don't last always!

In the midst of bad times and heartache, just remember that you had some good days, and you've had some bad days, but your good days outweigh your bad days, so "I won't complain."

Leave here today remembering that God will never leave you alone.

Because God will never leave you alone:

-There won't be a CROSS that I won't be able to bear;

-There won't be a MOUNTAIN that I won't be able to climb!

-There won't be an ENEMY that I won't be able to defeat;

-There won't be a BATTLE I won't be able to endure!

-There won't be a DARKNESS that keeps me from seeing the light!

-There won't be a trial that I can't make it through;

-There won't be a TEST that I won't be able to pass!

Whatever Satan throws at you know one thing:

If I fall down, he'll pick me up!

If I make a mistake, he will forgive me!

If I stumble, he'll hold my hand!

If I can't find my way, I can say, Guide me oh thou great Jehovah, pilgrim through this barren land. I am weak, but thou art mighty hold me with thou powerful hand!

The same hand that touched a blind man's eyes!

The same hands that were nailed to an old rugged cross in death.

But the same hand that was raised in victory early Sunday morning!

That same hand will be with you all of the way!

No.9736-Mother's Day

A Mother's Influence

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 8, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "When I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and thy mother Eunice; and I am persuaded that in thee also. "2 Timothy 1:5

Introduction

Has anyone influenced your life more than your mother? Most people would like to believe that they are independent souls, invulnerable to the influence of other people and immune to circumstances. We like to believe that we make our own decisions and control our own actions. In reality, most of us are influenced by the people, places, and things that come in contact with our lives.

By definition, influence is the capacity to have an effect on the character, development, or behavior of someone or something.

Is there anyone you can think of who has had a greater influence on your character, behavior or decisions than your mother? There are other words associated with influence that also describe the effect mothers have on their children: Guidance, impact, control, shape, govern, decide, alter, transform, direct, pressure and sway are just a few words that begin to describe the many ways that mothers have influenced us.

Certainly, good mothers guide us in the right direction; when we try to stray from it, they force us by sheer strength of personality to do what is right. In that same context, good mothers transform us from the insecurities of our childhood to our first days as adults. They listen to our dreams and sometimes alter them with wisdom about obstacles we do not anticipate. They pressure us and persuade us in ways that often change our paths for the good.

A mother's influence cannot be measured, but it is immense. President Obama's mother, Stanley Ann Dunham, influenced him to have a world view that was compassionate, controlled and deliberate. He said she gave him "a sense of unconditional love that was big enough that, with all the surface disturbances of our lives, it sustained me, entirely."

Unconditional love is the thread that runs through nearly every definition that anyone gives of great mothers. Regardless of what they do, how angry they get, what mistakes are made; mothers love their children anyway.

Mother's influence Presidents. President William McKinley had a close relationship with his mother. He either visited her or sent a message to her every day. While he had many advisors surrounding him, he discussed weighty decisions with his mother. John Quincy Adams found his mother to be a towering influence on his decisions, she even stopped his first engagement and directed him to the love of his life. When President Roosevelt left home to attend Harvard University, his mother moved there with him to protect him from messing up. When he spoke his famous fireside chats as President, she said next to him. Rose Kennedy, influenced all of her children to become great patriots, one became President, and one died trying.

Mothers influence their children's life choices. Only a few become presidents, but thousands become athletes, teachers, dancers, singers, business leaders, scientists, ministers and a thousand other walks in life. Nearly everyone who has achieved a high mark in life can look back to the influence of a mother figure in their lives. If it was not their blood mother, it was an aunt, a grandmother or a friend of the family who gave them that unconditional love, direction, guidance, wisdom, and tempered pressure to walk straight and not the crooked path.

It doesn't matter how big you are, mama rocks the house. Eli Apple was drafted by the Giants in the 2016 NFL Draft. Companies wanted to give him Rolex watches and other expensive things to wear on draft day, but his mother Annie Apple butted in and told him, "Son you are an unemployed college drop out. You will not appear on television wearing a Rolex watch." She then took his phone and tweeted to all the women that suddenly wanted him, that they could wait because he wasn't about to lose it all chasing after them. - He might be a multi-million dollar athlete, but mama still runs the show.

Godly mothers are a blessing because every woman who gives birth to a child is not necessarily a mother. That's why the nation takes time out to praise Godly mothers; because their influence has shaped the direction of millions of lives in a productive way.

As Christians, we thank God for placing us in the hands of Godly mothers. We thank him for their strength and resilience. We praise them for their unconditional love that has sustained us over the years.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul's letter to Timothy in which he notes the influence of his Mother and grandmother on the young man's life.

It is likely that Timothy was the only child, and it appears that he had been brought up in the fear of God, and carefully instructed in the Jewish religion using the Holy Scriptures. Compare 2 Timothy 1:5 with 2 Timothy 3:15. It appears, also, that he had adopted the spirit of Paul's passion for expanding the church to all of the known world. His desire to serve God's will obviously reflected the influence of both his mother and his grandmother.

When the apostle came from Antioch, in Syria, the second time to Lystra, he found Timothy a member of the Church, and so highly reputed and warmly recommended by the Church in that place, that St. Paul took him to be his companion in his travels. Acts 16:1-3. From this place, we learn that although Timothy had been educated in the Jewish faith, he had not been circumcised, because his father, who was a Gentile, would not permit it. When the apostle had determined to take him with him, he found it necessary to have him circumcised, not from any supposition that circumcision was necessary to salvation, but because of the Jews, who would neither have heard him nor the apostle had not this been done: the Gospel testimony they would not have received from Timothy, because they saw him as a heathen; and they would have considered the apostle in the same light, because he associated with such.

For the Gospel's sake, Timothy did all that was necessary to prepare himself to follow after Paul.

His humility reflected the direct influence of his mother.

His compassion reflected the direct influence of his mother.

Influencing children is biblical

Among the many functions of a mother is to influence children to walk a Godly path. In biblical times, it was assumed that the father was responsible for the formal education of his sons. It was also assumed that mothers were responsible for teaching values, virtue, integrity and other truths to small children and girls.

There are scores of Bible passages that underscore the importance of mothers influencing their children to follow the Lord. In Deuteronomy 4:9 mothers are urged to diligently teach their children about the Lord, so they will know and not forget. It says, "Only take heed to thyself, and keep thy soul diligently, lest thou forget the things which thine eyes have seen, and lest they depart from thy heart all the days of thy life: but teach them to thy sons, and thy sons' sons."

In Deuteronomy 6:6-7 mothers are encouraged to get the word in their own hearts first and then teach what they have learned to their children. It says, "And these words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart: and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up."

Proverbs 22:6 makes it clear that if a child is trained while young, he will keep what he has learned all of his life. It says, "Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it" (Proverbs 22:6).

The Bible makes it clear that God expects mothers to use their influence to direct their children in the Godly path.

A Mother's Loving Influence

Mothers influence their children; that's why it's important for mother's themselves to be influenced by God. Both Eunice and Lois were mothers who themselves had been influenced by the word of God. That is transferred to their children.

Mothers influence their children even when they don't try because children watch their mothers. Even when their moms are not looking, children always seem to observe the various moves of their mothers. They watch how she walks. They watch how she talks. They know when she's feeling good. They also know when she's down in the dumps. Just as moms watch their children, children also spend time watching their mothers.

There are many examples of good mothers in the Bible. The most fascinating example, however, is that of Mary, the mother of Jesus. In the manger, in celebrations, in times of trouble, even hanging from the cross, Jesus kept his eye on his mother. She was never far away, from his cradle to his cross, to his grave; his mother was right by his side.

We have learned that the qualities of Godly love are displayed in both Godly fathers and mothers. If we want a description of Godly love, all we need to do is watch a godly mother, and we will see God's love in action. If you want to truly see what God's love is about, then all we need to do is look at mother.

A mother's love is precious and pleasing to God.

We want to please our mothers

Most of us want to do things that make our mothers proud of us.

We want to do everything they tell us, to the letter. A mother took her little boy to church. While in church the little boy said, "Mommy, I have to pee." The mother said to the little boy, "It's not appropriate to say the word 'pee' in church. So, from now on whenever you have to 'pee' just tell me that you have to 'whisper'." The following Sunday, the little boy went to church with his father and during the service said to his father, "Daddy, I have to whisper." The father looked at him and said, "Okay, just whisper in my ear."

Most of us want to do something with our lives that will please our mothers. When we made an "A" on a test the first person that we wanted to show the grade to was mother. We longed to hear her say, "I'm so proud of you." We should have been happy that we accomplished the goal, but instead, we wanted to hear mother say, "I'm proud of you." - That's influence. To study, obey and achieve just to hear those words. As adults, we want to show them a "good report card" for our lives. When we graduate from college, get a job or marry and start our own family we still want to hear mother say, "I'm proud of you."

Even after death we still want to please them. In our mind, we can hear them say, "I'm proud of you." This is true because it is the nature of every child who has had a loving mother to try to meet her expectations. No matter how high one climbs or how much is achieved; it never seems adequate until what we have done meets mother's approval. This began when we were children. We brought mother our drawings and waited for her approval. When we said speeches in school, we heard the crowd applaud, but we waited for mother's congratulations. When we graduated, the diploma meant much more because of mother's approval.

Just as we seek ways to meet mother's approval, shouldn't we also try to meet God's approval? If we've lost something that would please God, shouldn't we be busy trying to find it? When God is pleased with us, we are assured of his continued blessings and helpful presence in our lives.

Influenced to follow God

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember that when we are influenced by a Godly mother, we are influenced to follow God.

In a way, a mother's love is similar to Gods love for all of his children. He is protective, supportive, and corrective in his dealings with us. He supports us on a daily basis. He corrects us whenever we go astray, and he protects us from many dangers seen and unseen.

That could easily be the description of good mothers. They are ever protective of their children, always supporting them and often painfully correcting them. Because of the similarities, God may have given mothers a special blessing.

Godly mothers copy many of their traits from the Lord.

Like the Lord, Godly mothers are pleased when we do our best.

Like the Lord, Godly mothers are upset when we don't achieve.

Like the Lord, Godly mothers are happy when we follow their words.

Like the Lord, Godly mothers can get in your business when things are not right.

Our desire should be to please God, who is the source of our help.

Our help comes from God, who neither slumbers nor sleep.

Our help comes from God, who watches over us by day or by night.

When we show respect and honor for our mothers, we please God because he told us to honor our father and mother!

We thank God for mothers who provided us with a happy home!

We thank God for mothers who placed their lives on hold and invested their entire substance in us!

We thank God for mothers whose towering influence gave us a bold sense of family!

We thank God for mothers whose optimistic spirit showed us how to live long and happy lives!

We thank God for mothers who showed us the way to the hill!

Over 2000 years ago, when it pleased God, He sent his Son to that hill.

Not to a mountain peak or elevated blocks of land in a distant place but to a hill called Calvary!

We thank God that we had a mother who knew the man on the hill!

That man on the hill was Jesus who died on that old rugged cross.

It was a death that pleased God because he paid for our sins.

But when it pleased God, early Sunday morning, He rose again!

Every day of my life I want to please God and thank him for guiding me and influencing me through blessing me with a mother's influence!

No. 9737-Inspiration

After I testify, laugh if you can

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 29, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "Suffer me that I may speak; and after that I have spoken, mock on. Job 21:3

Introduction

Do you ever get the impression that there are people watching and waiting for you to fall flat on your face? They don't say anything, they just watch and silently chuckle as we climb life's ladder. For the Christian, life's ladder is a journey from time to eternity that must be scaled one rung at a time. There are many skeptics that are watching as Christians climb the ladder of life. Even the best of us can lean out a little too far, or stumble as we miss a rung. The world is waiting patiently for an opportunity to laugh at God's people when and if we falter.

There are many who laugh at Christians because it seems that we often get the little end of the lucky stick and pull the losing straw. Consider the case of Bertha Mae who was the prettiest girl in the neighborhood who married the ugliest man in the neighborhood. All the women laughed at Bertha Mae and said she had a paper sack husband; because he was so ugly that he needed to keep a paper sack over his head. They would often shake their heads and say "what a waste." After many years, Bertha started hearing about the marriages of some of her friends. One after another, they were breaking up, separating and divorcing. However, Bertha was still married to the ugliest man in town. After many years, one of her friends asked Bertha Mae why she married the ugliest man in the neighborhood. Bertha said "At first he turned me off. Then I learned that he was gentle. I liked that. In time, I learned that he worked hard, and saved his money. I liked that. I also learned that he lived clean, was honest and faithful and that he loves me. I liked that. While I have seen some good looking men in my time, none of them looked as good on the inside as he does. "The more I got to know him, the better he looked. You girls looked at the outside and married the ugliest men in town. I looked at the inside and got the best looking man in town. Look who's laughing now!"

People laugh when you try and fail, but we should not be discouraged. Babe Ruth was known as the Home run king in Baseball. What many don't know is that he struck out more than 99 percent of the players in the major league. People laughed when he struck out so many times, but nobody laughed when he hit home runs.

The real testimony comes after we recover from setbacks. Abraham Lincoln failed twice in business, had a nervous breakdown, lost his sweetheart, and lost seven elections but kept coming back until he became president of the United States. Everyone laughed each time he lost, but no one laughed when he was sworn-in as President.

Those who are tempted to laugh at the faith of believers should not laugh too hastily. You saw our name in the police report. Don't laugh! You saw we filed bankruptcy. Don't laugh! You saw that we are having marital problems. Don't laugh! You saw one of our children going astray. Don't laugh. Wait until you hear the rest of the story! Wait until you learn what happened to us after God finished turning things around. After you hear my testimony, then laugh if you can!

As Christians, we climb each rung of life's ladder trusting in the Lord, if we slip along the way, we count on God to catch us if we fall. When we make it to the top; we'll have a story to tell. After we tell it, then our skeptics are free to laugh, if they can.

Exposition

This text considers Job, a man whose friends found a reason to criticize him during his time of difficulty while ignoring his full testimony of faith.

Job is described as a righteous man who lived in the land of Nod. He was the subject of a trial of faith. God allowed Satan to test the strength of his faith by removing all of the comforts that sustained Job's hope. Satan described these comforts as a "hedge" God built around him. The purpose of the test was to demonstrate that Job's faith in God was not artificial but was rooted in a belief that God would not forsake him, regardless of the circumstance.

As Satan began to move, tragedy struck Job's family. Members of his family were killed. His vast fortune, invested in cattle and huge herds, was stolen by bandits. Almost overnight his entire financial situation changed to the point that he was no longer wealthy but bordered on poverty. Still, however, he refused to curse God or to forsake him.

This text finds Job responding to the source of the laughter of his friends. They associated outward prosperity with righteousness. They believed that those who lived right would be immune from sickness, trouble or financial worry. They also believed that if a person loses his health, his prosperity or properties while claiming he was a faithful believer that it was a sign that he was actually living a lie that no one knew about or that the God he served was not real.

Job told his friends not to laugh at him until they have heard the end testimony of his trial. It is true that he had fallen on hard times, but he acknowledged that God had never forsaken him and that "all the days of my appointed time, I will wait until my change come." He reaffirmed his faith by saying "Yea, thou he slay me yet will I trust him."

In the end, the Scripture says Job's health was restored, his wealth was restored and his family grew even larger than before. In fact, his end was greater than his beginning.

After hearing his testimony at the end, Job's friends had nothing to laugh about God's will had been done.

People often Laugh

PEOPLE LAUGH WHEN THE RIGHTEOUS FALL: There are people who laugh at what appears to be a deteriorating position, but they should wait. What looks weak, may not be weak at all. Consider the old man who won a prize at the state fair for eating the largest watermelon. That year all of the country folk came to the fair to see who would win the $1000 prize for eating a 50-pound watermelon clean to the rind. Laughing Charlie was running the contest, and every contestant had to pay $100 to try. If they failed, laughing Charlie got the last laugh and pocketed their money. Several huge men entered the contest but changed their minds when they saw the size of that melon. Each day there were no takers. It seemed that the prize money would go unclaimed until an old man who had come to the fair on the last day, raised his hand. "I'd like to try to eat that melon," said the old man. Instantly the crowd laughed at the thought of this frail old man eating a 50-pound melon. "I'll try on the condition that you give me 10 minutes to think about it." The man was given 10 minutes. Ten minutes later the old man returned, sliced open the melon and ate it completely to the rind in four minutes. The crowd was amazed at the feat. The old man was brought on stage and presented with a blue ribbon and check for $1000. Laughing Charlie, who had stopped laughing, said, "Before I present you this prize, can you tell me why you needed ten minutes?" The old man said, "Well I knew I had a melon at home about this size. So I went home and ate it. I knew if I could eat that one, I could eat this one too." That day at the fair the old man got the ribbon, the check, and the last laugh!

PEOPLE LAUGH AT WHAT THEY DON'T UNDERSTAND: Those who laugh at Christians, find it easy because they don't understand matters of faith. When Jarius' daughter died, Jesus told those around him to consider the girl asleep because shortly she would be awakened, most people did not understand who He was and the nature of His relationship with God. Had they understood that, they would not have laughed. This is also true with believers. There are many people who do not understand us and our relationship to God. It probably looks peculiar to them to see us praying to a God we cannot see. Waving our hands, crying, saying "Amen" and living by a set of rules that keep us from participating in some of the darker aspects of life, but never-the-less exciting. They don't understand us, so they laugh at us when we read our Bibles, attend Sunday worship and special programs and express a faith that God will make a way out of no way. We don't laugh because we understand who God is and what God can do. So, when God promises us something, and it sounds unbelievable, we don't laugh because even though we don't fully understand we still say, "God works in mysterious ways his wonders to perform." We remember that Romans 11:33 says, "O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments and his ways past finding out!"

THE LAST LAUGH IS THE BEST LAUGH: When Job evolved from his test with much more than he started with, there was no laughter recorded by his friends. It was Job who had the last laugh. The last laugh didn't come from those who scorned, but from the one who trusted God. In the same way, God speaks to the faithful today. We should not be discouraged because of wicked people all around us because if we remain faithful, we will get the last laugh. The people who seem to prosper without God laugh at us, but God will get the last laugh. The drug dealers, pimps, and prostitutes, hustlers, gamblers and cheats who laugh at you because you work at a job and won't make that quick money; their day is coming. When it comes, God will laugh at them. Psalm 37:12-13, "The wicked plotteth against the just, and gnasheth upon him with his teeth. The Lord shall laugh at him: for he seeth that his day is coming." Why does the Lord laugh at them? He laughs because "their day is coming!"

When we give our testimony, we get the last laugh, but it is laughing and shouting over the power of God! It is a joyous laugh. A laugh of celebration. It's the laugh of Abraham who learned not to laugh at anything that God promises, no matter how ridiculous it may sound. When Isaac was born Abraham named him "Isaac" which means laughter. He was a constant reminder that God laughs at the wicked, scoffers, haters and detractors. He gets to laugh last. He who laughs last, laughs the loudest.

We Don't laugh

Finally, brothers ad sisters, those who do not know our God may laugh at our faith, but we don't laugh because we know what God can do!

There are those who laugh at our faith in an unseen God, but before you laugh let me tell you what God can do!

There are those who laugh at us because we make our weekly pilgrimage to worship and be in his presence, but before you laugh, let me tell you what God can do.

The world may laugh at us because we live a life of faith, but we don't laugh because we believe in a living God who can do anything except fail.

The skeptics around us urge us to accept our plight because it is afraid to trust God.

They laugh, but we trust God.

We don't laugh because we have been drenched in the word of God, and we are dripping with faith. It is a faith that despite the obstacles before us that the Lord will make a way!

The world laughs, but we say don't laugh until you hear our report. Our report says, "The road is rough and going is tough, and hills are hard to climb, but I started out a long time ago, and there is no doubt in my mind, I've decided to make Jesus my choice!"

The world laughs, but we say don't laugh until you hear our report. Our report is that no one should ever doubt the power of God.

Your enemies laugh because you have a Red Sea in front of you and enemies behind you; you seemed trapped with nowhere to go. Let them laugh because God still opens up ways out of no way. He's still making paths through the Red Sea!

Who hath believed our report?

The world laughed at Isaiah when he said, "He shall be wounded for our transgressions and bruised for our iniquities. The chastisement of our peace is upon him!"

They laughed, but God gets the last laugh.

They laughed at Jesus when they whipped him all night long!

They laughed at Jesus when they put an old rugged cross on his shoulder!

They laughed at Him as he hung out on the cross saying, "He saved others, but he can't save himself!"

They laughed at Him, when he died out on Calvary!

They laughed at Him, when they buried him in a borrowed tomb!

They laughed at Him, when they rolled the stone in front of His grave!

But Early Sunday morning, God got the last laugh!

He arose from the grave with all power in His hands!

No. 9738-Funeral

Going to see the King

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 4, 2016

SCRIPTURE: " ...and so will I go in unto the king which is not according to the law and if I perish, I perish." Esther 4:16

Introduction

Suppose you woke up one morning and decided that you wanted to see President Obama, what would be your chances of making it past the main gate? Probably none. The same would be true of meeting any person of importance. The Pope, A senator, the governor or any other person of importance, influence or station usually have established protocols for receiving visitors.

It's customary in the South for friends to drop by and "sit a spell" and talk. Even that custom is fading away as people get disturbed with someone coming to their homes unannounced. Many will speak to you through the screen with the door half cracked; if they open the door at all.

There is a protocol we are supposed to follow at all levels. A guest to your home calls first to find an acceptable time for a visit. Some important people require visitors to have an appointment. Some are so insulated that we must get an appointment to make an appointment. A visit to the Senate and U.S. House of Representatives usually requires an appointment. Even Senators who want to see the President must get an appointment through his chief of staff.

If the ordinary man wants a few minutes with the President, he'll find an appointment hard to secure, but it's easy to get in the White House if you get an invitation from the President himself. The protocol doesn't matter, security doesn't matter, even the guards on the door will snap to attention for you if the President himself gives the invitation.

If you receive an invitation from the President, it means he has an interest in you. It also means your presence is desired and would add meaning to an occasion.

Anyone who gets such an invitation feels happy because we know that we have a reserved place in the presence of the king. Consider the mother who was still floating on a spiritual high when she left church one Sunday. She was singing, "Soon and very soon, we are going to see the king." Her little girl was sitting on the back seat didn't hear all of the words, but whatever they were she knew it made her mother happy. After a few blocks, the mother noticed that the little girl was singing the same tune. She was clapping her hands and singing loudly. The mother was excited that her daughter was so happy about going to see the king, until she listened to what the little girl was singing, "Soon and very soon, we are going to Bur-ger-King!"- She was happy about going to see the king, but it was the wrong king!

The great thing about being a believer is that we know that when we have spent our lives trying to do right most of the times, worked in the church, walked by faith and gave God our best, we have an open invitation from the King of the Universe to come before his throne.

As Christians, we live our lives the best we can in faith, knowing that God's grace forgives our weaknesses, and gives us an open invitation to join him in eternity.

Exposition

This text focuses on Queen Esther as she decides to break protocol and go in to see the king.

The people of Israel had become the wards of the king of Persia. All of the Israelites had been threatened with annihilation because of the actions of one of the Kings aides by the name of Haman. When Queen Esther learned of Haman's plan, she decided to go in and speak to the king and let him know that she and all of her people would soon be destroyed.

There was only one problem; no one is allowed to go before the king without an expressed invitation. The king's first wife Vashti had been expelled from the kingdom because she broke the protocols and defied the king. If Esther went before the king without an invitation she ran the risk of also being expelled from the kingdom. In the text, she said she knew it was against the law to go to see the king without an invitation, but if she perished for doing so then, she would simply have to perish. She said, "If I perish, I perish, but I'm going to see the king."

There was a reason for Esther's boldness. She felt that the king loved her and she knew that she had an open invitation, despite the laws and protocols, to come into his presence.

When she entered the Royal Courtroom, there must've been a hush of quiet because no one knew how the King would respond. Instead of condemning her he welcomed her before his presence and listened to her petition.

In the end, he heard what she had to say and saved the people from destruction. The people were saved because of one woman's determination to go and see the king.

Getting an invitation

How do you get an invitation to see the king? We know how it's done in the secular world but how does one get an invitation to see the King of Kings and to be in his heavenly presence? Consider these three ways:

It helps to be in the Kings family. Queen Esther knew she had an open invitation to come before the king because she was the king's wife. She was in the King's family. She had the king's name. Even though protocol limited others, she felt that because she was in the King's family that she had a special place in the heart of the King. The same is true for believers today because we are children of the King, we are heirs to the kingdom. We become children of the King when we accept Jesus Christ as our Lord and Savior. We become children of the King when we decide to make heaven our home. Those who are in the family of God those who labor daily to build the kingdom of heaven. The labor may take many forms. Some will sing in church choirs, and others will serve on Church Usher boards, help with men's ministries and many other areas of service. Those who are in the family of God are like sheep in the pasture and a good shepherd, says the Scripture, knows his sheep. If you are part of the family of the king, it's pretty easy to get an invitation to the throne of Grace.

It helps when the king knows your name. One of the best ways to get an invitation to the king is to be known by the king himself. When Jimmy Carter was running for president of the United States, he often slept in the homes of many people who opened their doors to him as he campaigned in their state. He promised to remember them when he became president and to invite them to spend a night in the White House. Once elected, he sent invitations to each of those persons, and one night at a time they spent a night in the White House. Over the years, believers have come to know that the Lord we serve knows our names and hears our prayers. We know the Lord knows us because he has answered our prayers on so many different occasions. Our friend has shown so many times that somebody in heaven knows his name. He's been in and out of the hospital, but nothing held him down; it's because his name is known by the king. When you know the King, you can say, "I know the Lord will answer prayer, I've tried him for myself."

When the King wants to show you favor. In Esther 8:5 she asks the king to indulge her, if she found favor in his eyes. She found favor in his sight by virtue of her integrity, strength of character and courage. What do we do that gains the favor of God? We gain God's favor when we are obedient to his commands. We also gain his favor when we work to build his kingdom. He showers us with favor if we act in faith and determination to follow his will. When we realize that we have been favored, that's when we can truly say, "He didn't have to do it, but he did."

He didn't have to bless me, but he did!

He didn't have to heal me, but he did!

He didn't have to save me, but he did!

Going to see the King

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should resolve that our life's journey should take us on a journey to see the King.

We have been given an open invitation to come and dine at his table throughout all eternity.

Our friend accepted Christ as his savior, worked diligently in the church, greeted the saints at worship, studied the Bible and prayed for others. While he was doing all of that he was holding an invitation in his hand, that he received when he was a child. That invitation that said, "When this life is over, come up a little higher."

Every believer should remember that if God saves your soul and invites you to eternity, he never forgets.

Consider the poor boy who found the prince in the woods, hungry, hurt and lost. Together with his family they took the prince into their one room house, fed him and nursed him to health again, without knowing he was a prince. Upon leaving, the king gave the boy his medallion and thanked the family for making room for him in their home. "If you ever need anything, you have an open invitation to the throne; just show this medallion." Years later, the family fell upon hard times, and they faced starvation. The boy, now a young man, full of optimism, decided to go to the king and ask for help. His family members were amused because they felt the king was busy dealing with the affairs of state and had little time for the concerns of a peasant family. The boy said, "I don't care what you say, I'm going to see the king." Once inside the palace the boy noticed the long lines of dignitaries but started screaming and yelling "I'm going to see the king!" The king saw the boy and from a distance recognized the medallion hanging around his neck and remembered him. "This boy and his family made room for me in their one-room shanty. There is always room for him in the palaces of the kingdom." The king heard the boy's trouble and said to him. "Because you made room for me there's always room for you in my kingdom."

Brothers and sisters, those who have been washed in the blood of the lamb, have an open invitation into the kingdom of heaven.

As our friend, we should consider the shortness of our time and troubles of the world and say, "Soon and very soon, I'm going to see the king!"

No more operations, ICU beds, and rotating stays in hospitals, "I'm going to see the king!"

The king has invited me to a city not made by hands! I'm going to see the king!

He has invited me to a city that sits on 12 foundations with 12 pearly gates. Three gates to the North! Three gates to the South.
Three gates to the East. Three gates to the West. "I'm going to see the king!"

It's a city called heaven! Its streets are paved with gold! It's always howdy and never goodbye!

I'm going to see the king!

It's a city prepared by Jesus himself because he said, "I go to prepare a place for you that where I am you may be also. If it were not so, I would have told you. In my Father's house are many mansions!"

You have my invitation! It was paid for on an old rugged cross!

Your invitation is signed in the blood of the lamb!? He died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave!

Come and go with me to my father's house!

No more dying there!

No more crying there!
No more sickness and pain!
There'll be joy, joy, joy!

On Saturday, May 28, 2016, Carl King left the St. Joseph's nursing home. He had an invitation to see the King.

No. 9739-Graduation

New Beginnings start with God

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 5, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." Genesis 1:1; "In the beginning was the Word, and Word was with God, and the Word was God." John 1:1

Introduction

When you graduated from high school, did you think your graduation was the beginning or the end? Some saw graduation as the beginning of "No More"- No more studying. No more going to class. No more tests. No more staying up late at night to complete assignments. Many who have long passed their high school graduation date, have learned that it was just an introduction to "Much more" instead of "No more."

Graduations mark the end of one chapter of our lives and the beginning of others. Each of the preceding chapters of our lives has been accomplished with someone's help. No one made it this far completely unassisted. Our past achievements are the results of a combination of individual effort, family support and the help of people in the village who make dreams happen.

Consider the young man who bragged about what he had in life. He amused himself by putting down young friends who could not wear designer clothes or jewelry and those who did not have his level of popularity, smarts, and opportunity. One day as he played the dozens with some associates, an old man was sitting on the porch listening. The youth constantly bragged about his position at school, club memberships and belittled those around him. After the boy was alone, the old man questioned him about his tendency to brag. The boy responded, "The truth is the light!" The old man talked the boy into walking with him to a nearby wood.

All the way the boy continued to justify why he had a reason to brag. The old man said nothing but quietly walked forward until he came upon a turtle sitting on a tree stump. The old man pointed at the turtle and said, "That's you, boy! But if you see a turtle sitting high up on a stump, then you know he didn't get there by himself!" Every person who achieves anything does so with the help of someone else!

Gladys Knight had a popular song called, "You are the best thing that ever happened to me." One part of the lyrics says, "If anyone should ever write my life story for whatever reason there might be, you'll be there between each line of pain and glory 'Cause you're the best thing that ever happened to me."

Every believing youth knows that God is the source of all blessings, advancements, and accomplishment. He is the beginning and the end of it all. Between every line of pain and glory of our story, God is there.

As Christians, we know that Graduations have placed graduates on a stump, but it is God's unseen hand, working through scores of people that has made it happen. They didn't get there by themselves.

Exposition

These texts point us to the creation of the world, from the detailed context of the Old Testament and the summary context of the New Testament.

Both texts point to a single truth: that God is the originator of everything in the universe, and he is the first cause of everything. This truth is frequently repeated in scripture. For example, Ephesians 3:9 says God, "created all things by Jesus Christ." Colossians 16: goes further, it says, "All things were created by Him, and for Him," Romans 11:36 says "of Him, and through Him, and to Him are all things."

Both Genesis and John underscore this truth. Everything starts with God, without him nothing would exist.

For believers, it is important because it reminds us that we who profess faith in the almighty have a knowledge of the order of the universe and our unity with all creation. This knowledge places us in a living connection with our Lord Jesus Christ.

We understand what Hebrews 11:3 says, "Through faith, we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear."

The world and its operation starts from God. In the same sense, anything we start should start with God.

Graduates should consider

As graduates begin their next life chapter they should consider:

BEGIN YOUR LIFE WITH THE WORD: There are many who try to begin their lives based on their own plan. They have studied the lives of many superstars and decided a path they will take emulating them. However, we should begin our lives with the main thing, which is the word of God. After that, our goal is to keep "The main thing, the main thing." Eugene Patterson says it's not really hard to figure out what to do with our lives. In his article called "Run with the Horses" in Christianity Today he says, "Our lives are not puzzles to be figured out, rather we come to God who knows us and reveals to us the truth of our lives, the fundamental mistake is to begin with ourselves and not God. God is the center from which all life develops. If we use our ego as the center from which to plot the geometry of our lives, we will live eccentrically."

How do we begin our lives based on the word? We study what the word teaches and then we match up our intended direction with the world, for a start. If your goal is to start a successful house of prostitution, does that match up with God's word?

What about being a successful drug dealer, pimp or entertainer that promotes a decadent lifestyle for profit? If these don't measure up to what the word teaches, then dump them. If you have found a mate and your plan is to live with them without marriage, dump that idea; it will not be blessed because it's not according to God's will. If life opportunities take you away from what makes your family strong and your faith bold, dump that idea.

Remember after God directed each step of the creation of the world he said, "That's good." What we want from our new beginning is for God to say, "That's good."

GOD IS BEHIND EVERY GOOD START: Youth will have many choices to make in the years ahead. Many of the choices lined themselves up and presented themselves to you the moment you walked across the graduation stage. Now that graduation has ended, challenges begin. You'll decide whether to go to college or trade school. You may decide not to get any training at all and just enjoy the rest of your life living in your mother's house without any responsibilities of your own. You will make choices about your mate, parenting or a profession. High School and college graduation are just the starts. Between 18-25 years of age, you will decide your life choices, some of which might be radically different from your beginnings. Much of what you will become in life will be decided in these years.

At the core of this new beginning is God. Everything good comes from God. "In the beginning God." That's a verse that is related to Matthew 6:33 "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and its righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you." If doing God's will for your life is your goal, then you are almost guaranteed success. We know this is true because he has promised that those who put him first, will achieve his intended goal for them, with all of the other healthy, wholesome and honorable things added. Before every good start, therefore, believers should seek God's help.

BEGIN EVERY STEP WITH GOD: Both the old and New Testament make it clear that everything begins with God. "In the beginning was the word and the word was God." In the beginning, God created the heavens and the earth." -Everything begins with God. That also applies to believers as well. Every new step we take should begin with God.

We pray when we wake up in the morning; it's a new day, we need God's direction.

We pray before we begin a task, it's a new task that we want to accomplish successfully.

We even pray before we eat, because it's a new meal and we want it to perform its function.

Every new step we take in life should be the same. We should always pray that God will provide us with his annoiting. When you apply for your first job, pray then apply.

When you apply for scholarships, pray then apply. It doesn't guarantee you'll be selected, but it does guarantee that the results will reflect God's will.

When God made the world he did not step back and let it falter on its own; he remained in control. Each graduate must remember that from the beginning, God was in control of this world and even today, no matter how confusing things might become he is still in control. He never slumbers or sleeps.

As you start a new beginning, start with God, and he will direct your path.

Put it in God's hand

Finally, we should consider that people who are about to start a new journey in life, should put their futures in God's hands.

It should be clear to all believers that God is in control of the events of our lives and that our successes and promotions come from him. We are in his hands.

We have seen believers of all walks of life promoted from obscurity to the highest levels of success, when they place their lives and destinies in God's hands.

Joseph was raised from being a slave boy to the prime minister of Egypt, because his life was in God's hands.

Aaron was raised from being a mere slave in Egypt to being a high priest of Israel because his life was in God's hands!

The three Hebrew Boys were raised out of exile to become great leaders in the Chaldean kingdom because their lives were in God's hands.

Daniel was lifted from a lion's den to high esteem because his life was in God's hands!

When our lives are in God's hands, he creates the steps for us!

He opens the doors!

He makes the opportunities!

He baffles the critics who doubt our abilities.

He mystifies the skeptics who said, we were doomed to failure!

He intensifies our commitment and builds our strength.

When our lives are in God's hands, he breathes his Holy Spirit on us and promotes us higher and higher.

That's why the old warriors sang, "We are climbing Jacob's ladder, We are climbing Jacob's ladder, Soldiers of the Cross...every round goes higher higher! Soldiers of the cross!"

Somebody else sang, "Step by step, we'll make this journey, but the way seems hard, hard, hard. Step by step we'll make this journey, but we must put our trust In God!"

Trusting in the Lord means asking God to hold my hand!

As I make this new beginning, hold my hand!

As I take the next step in my life's journey, hold my hand!

I may be young, but I know the meaning of the old song, "Lord hold my hand, while I run this race, I don't want to run this race alone!"

Trust in the Lord, he will never let you down!

Trust in the Lord, who died for you out on Calvary!

Trust in the Lord, who arose after three days with all power in his hands!

Trust in the Lord, because all new beginnings start with God!

No. 9740-Inspiration

Dealing with Your Moments

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 26, 2016

SCRIPTURE: What is man, that thou shouldest magnify him? and that thou shouldest set thine heart upon him? And that thou shouldest visit him every morning, and try him every moment? Job 7:15

Introduction

Have you ever experienced a moment? That's a point in time when a situation or circumstance presents you with a challenge, emotion, decision, or epiphany. All of us have our moments. We have had our memorable moments, and we have had moments we would like to forget. We have moments when we are happy, and the world seems to be a walk in the park. There are also moments when it seems that everything is falling around us. There are moments when we find ourselves at the crossroads and must make decisions. There are also moments when we finally understand something that has been eluding us all along. We all have our moments: Moments of brilliance, moments when our best side does not shine. Moments of failure.

Children have "Why moments." Those are the moments they seem to be flooded with "Why" questions. "Why is the sky blue?" "Why is water wet?" "Why is it called ice cream, but it has no ice in it?" Those are moments that drive parents crazy.

Adults have "Pull your hair out moments" when everything that can go wrong does go wrong, and "nail-biting moments" when you worry about how something will turn out. There are also "head scratching" moments when you just can't figure it out.

Seniors have moments, too.?Consider the old man who had a senior moment that caused him to cry. A passerby noticed him sitting on a park bench sobbing his eyes out. The passerby asked him why he was crying, and he said,? 'I have a 22-year-old wife at home. She rubs my back every morning and then gets up and makes me pancakes, sausage, fresh fruit and freshly ground coffee.'

'Well, then why are you crying?' He added, 'She makes me homemade soup for lunch and my favorite biscuits, cleans the house and then watches sports TV with me for the rest of the afternoon.'

'Well, why are you crying?'

He said, 'For dinner, she makes me a gourmet meal with wine and my favorite dessert, and then we cuddle until the small hours.'

'Well then, why in the world would you be crying?'

The old man said, 'I can't remember where I live.'-

That was a frustrating senior moment.

We all have our moments; the question is how do we deal with them when they come. Moments are not a matter of will they happen or not; they will happen. The question is whether we will deal with them in light of God's power in our lives.

The Holy Spirit helps us to live in the moment. The goal is to make the best out of each moment, regardless of what the situation happens to be. Doing your best will change with time. For a child, learning to walk the first three steps is a great moment. For an adult recovering from a crippling accident, three steps is a powerful moment. To the senior recluse, a few steps in the garden is also a powerful moment. God helps us to deal with difficult moments and relish and enjoy each moment of happiness and joy and store them away as pleasant memories.

There was a moment when God created the world with a snap of his finger. There was a moment when he became angry and destroyed the world by flood. There was also a moment when he loved the world so much that he gave his only begotten son to save his creation. At that moment we saw the grace of God in the flesh.

As Christians, we know that we must cling to our faith and live for God in the moment. We must praise him in the moment, live for him in the moment and give him our best one moment at a time because whenever we need him most, at that moment, he will be there.

Exposition

This text finds Job focusing addressing the ways that God focuses on single individuals, trying them with various "moments" every day.

Job's life was filled with a variety of "moments." Moments of triumph and success and moments of failure and loss. He had moments of health and strength and moments of illness and pain. He had moments of grand family celebrations and moments of loss.

In this text, Job is heard complaining in a moment of despair.

David looked at special moments in life too. In Psalm 30:5 he said, "For his anger endureth but a moment; in his favor is life: ?weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning." Even moments of weeping will pass, he said, when joy comes in the morning.

In Isaiah 26:20 we are encouraged to get close to the Lord in difficult times until the moment is past. Isaiah said, "Come, my people, enter thou into thy chambers, ?and shut thy doors about thee: hide thyself as it were for a little moment ?until the indignation be overpast."

In Isaiah 54:7-8 God tells Israel there were times when they disappointed him, and he simply stopped blessing them for a moment, but not forever. "For a small moment have I forsaken thee; but with great mercies will I gather thee. ?In a little wrath I hid my face from thee for a moment; but with everlasting kindness will I have mercy on thee, ?saith the Lord thy Redeemer."

The hope of every believer is to look forward to another moment when we shall be caught up to meet the Lord in the air. That's what 1 Corinthians 15:52 means, "In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed."

Job said God presents us with different kinds of moments every day. These moments serve to try us, trouble us, inspire us, energize us and give us hope.

Moments that try us

There are many moments that try us. Among them are:

MOMENTS OF FRUSTRATION: When obstacles get in the way of a goal we often become frustrated. Frustration can be caused by almost anything: falling ill in the middle of a big project, knocking over something and breaking it, turning the right way on the wrong street. The types of frustrations are endless, but they all have one thing in common, they try our patience. David became frustrated when he saw the wicked achieving success even though they lived ungodly lives. He was tempted to become ungodly himself until he dealt with the moment and wrote, "Fret not thyself because of evildoers, neither be thou envious of the workers of iniquity because they will soon be cut down." Job was tremendously frustrated, but he dealt with his moment by saying "Yea though he slay me, yet will I trust him." That's what every believer must remember as well. We must always trust in the Lord. Our testament should be, "In thee oh Lord, do I put my trust."

MOMENTS OF FEAR: Nothing is more frustrating than our moment of fear. These are the moments when we are troubled about the possibility of loss of life, liberty or the pursuit of happiness. Fear is grounded in the uncertainty of an outcome. If we expect that a circumstance will cause us to lose our lives, we become afraid. If we expect that an action may cause us to be incarcerated, banned or ostracized, we also become afraid, or at the least, apprehensive. Whenever we are blocked from involving ourselves in that which makes us happy, we get frustrated. If we like to fish, but the price of a fishing license is increased, we are frustrated as well. When the women came to the tomb on Easter Sunday morning, they met an angel whose first words to them were: "Fear not." The words summarize the way we should deal with our moments of fear, "fear not." We should be concerned, but not fear the outcome because God controls the outcome. That's why David said, "The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear. The Lord is the strength of my life, of whom shall I be afraid." He also said, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil." -When moments of fear come, remember you are not alone, God is still on the throne.

MOMENTS OF WEAKNESS: Each person experiences moments of weakness. These are the times when the normally strong find themselves unable to deal with a temptation, problem or issue. It doesn't matter who we are, there are times when we are not as strong as we should be. Though we are strong, the sight of an unusually handsome man or a beautiful woman who gives us the "eye" could make even the strong weak. When we are broke, and an opportunity to take something without being discovered presents itself, many falter. That's what happened to Samson, in a moment of weakness he told Delilah the source of his strength, and it ultimately cost him his life. What should we do when we are dealing with issues and problems and become weak? The woman with an issue of blood was dealing with a medical issue. She took it to Jesus and said, "If I can just touch the hem of his garment." That's the key to dealing with weak moments, we should take the issue, the problem the temptation to Jesus. Jesus said we should pray, "lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil." The Lord is the strength of our lives, in moments of weakness, we should lean heavily on him.

Turn to God

, brothers and sisters, the best way to deal with our moments is to remember that all things work to the good of them that Love God.

Troubles come in many kinds of packages, but God knows how to unwrap them all. He knows how to deal with our issues.

When we must deal with unpleasant moments, that's when it's time to take it to the Lord in prayer. He is a God of every kind of moment in our lives.

When we go to God in prayer, that's when we ask our God to help us deal with the moment. The moment we decide to do that, that's when we begin another powerful instance, a "God moment."

We know about a moment of frustration, but what is a God moment?

We know about a moment of fear, but what is a God moment?

We know about a moment of weakness, but what is a God moment?

A God moment is the instant we decide to take a matter to God.

It's the time when we say, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, who made the heaven and earth."

David had many God moments.

When he faced wild animals, and that threatened his father's flocks, those were "God moments."

When he faced Goliath with only a slingshot and five smooth stones that was a "God Moment."

When Saul chased him and treated him like a criminal, those were God moments.

When surrounded on all sides, he still decided it was best to "look up!"

When Moses was faced with the tough decision about leading the people, he dealt with that moment of decision by climbing into the mountains to talk with God, and God spoke to him and showed him the way. He dealt with his moment of indecision by turning it into a God moment.

Abraham, a man of great faith, took God at his word that his family would be blessed and would multiply and went up into God's will.

Daniel refused to be intimidated by the prospect of hungry lions and went up into God's protection.

The Hebrew Boys faced with death in a fiery furnace or eternal shame before God chose to go up into God's perseverance.

All of these men faced their trying moments; they decided it was best to turn them into God moments

When we go up to God, he will show us the way!

When we go up to God, he will take our:

—Questions and give us answers!

—Problems and give us solutions!

—Indecisiveness and give us decisions!

—Rough places and make them plain!

—Mountains and turn them into molehills!

I don't know about you, but I am convinced that no matter what the problems, God has a solution!

No matter how challenging the battle, God has a victory!

No matter how wide the chasm, God can help us to cross it!

No matter how big the adversary, God can help us to defeat him!

We serve a God who takes hollows out of valleys and levels mountains!

We serve a Savior who walks on water, floats on clouds and sits on the right hand of God.

When in distress, just call him.

Remember, God is still on the throne!

However, the best demonstration of a God moment that we have ever seen is that provided by Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane. There, he had to decide whether to drink from the cup or to let it pass.

I heard him say, "Never-the-less, not my will but thy will be done!"

He died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning, he arose from the dead with all power in his hands!

No. 9741-Communion

All you can Eat

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

July 17, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "And Jesus took the loaves; and when he had given thanks, he distributed to the disciples, and the disciples to them that were set down; and likewise of the fishes as much as they would." John 6:11

Introduction

Have you ever eaten at a buffet at an all you can eat restaurant? If you have, you have probably noticed that many people get much more than they can eat. There are also others who barely get a full serving on their plate. There are some who stack their plates so high that they have to walk slowly back to their seats, hoping not to be bumped by anyone. Even though they can come back to the buffet as often as they like, they seem to try to get everything on their plate the first time, because there may not be another time.

Those who order from the menu differ from those who use the buffet. Those who order from the menu expect to receive one serving of each item that they select. They order from the menu because they have a discriminating pallet; they want their order prepared with or without certain seasonings or cooked in a particular way. They also want their order freshly made for them individually. The buffet is not individually prepared and does not appeal to the discriminating taste bud. The food is all seasoned the same way. It may or may not be freshly prepared; sometimes it may have sat in a serving pan for hours without being touched or stirred. The appeal of the buffet is not it's individuality, but it's quantity and variety.

Those who operate buffet restaurants use the law of averages to their advantage; it's the only way they can turn a profit. It works this way: For every person that has the appetite of a hog, there are two others who have the appetite of mice. One person eats more than he should, and the other eats less than expected. It averages out to about one serving per person; give or take a serving. That delicate balance is broken when some patrons stuff their purses and pockets with extra portions of their favorite meat or dessert. It is also thrown out of balance when some patrons get more than they can eat rather than all that they can eat. In those cases, the restaurant owner loses because patrons filled their plates, but left their selections barely touched.

Unfortunately, there are many people who approach matters of faith with either a menu or buffet attitude. There are many people who read passages of Scripture such as Philippians 4:13 and they conclude that they can order life's entre's and desserts from a divine menu with everything prepared according to their own specifications. They expect a certain type of house, job, car and level of living with an ample supply of life's desserts. They see God as a divine waiter who takes their order and prepares the lives according to their own discriminating tastes. They expect him to check on them regularly and supply them with refills from time to time. If they like his service, then they will come to a place of worship occasionally and leave a tip in the offering plate.

Others approach faith matters as if life were a buffet. They see the wealth of God's creation on one side and the devil's spicy temptations on the other and decide to sample as much of everything as they can, even if that means wasting time, talents and resources. That was the case with the prodigal son. He was not satisfied with the plate his father's house prepared for him; he wanted life's buffet. He went into a far country and wasted his substance in riotous living. That's when he decided to arise and return to his father and ask forgiveness.

As children of the most high God, we know we cannot tell God what life we want and watch him jump to provide whatever we ask in hopes of a tip. We also know that we are not free to sample every temptation the world offers. Because we are God's children, we don't get to pick what's on our plate; he puts what we need on our plates; with just enough to fill us; no more and no less. Psalm 23 says he prepares a table before us. We are his children, and like children, we don't get to order independently off the menu or even go to the buffet of life unless he goes with us. If he does not go with us, we may be tempted to say, "The Lord is my Shepherd, and I shall not want." And start grabbing things indiscriminately. He goes with us and brings his rod and staff to comfort us and direct our paths.

As Christians, we have learned that if God orders our steps and fills our plates, we shall have all that we want or need because his grace is sufficient.

Exposition

This text focuses on an episode in the life of Christ in which he provided food for thousands, but they got more than they could eat and left fragments.

This passage occurred on an occasion when Jesus preached to a crowd of thousands who listened to him for hours. When the crowd became hungry, his disciples worried about how such a crowd could be fed. A boy with his own lunch of two little fish and five barley loaves offered his small gift which was blessed and used by Jesus to feed 5,000. A miracle was performed that day when the 5,000 sitting in 100 groups of fifty were fed fish and bread. When all had been fed, it appeared that many in the crowd grabbed more than they could eat because there were fragments. Christ ordered the disciples to pick up all of the remaining pieces. There were enough leftovers to fill twelve baskets. Jesus repeated the same miracle again. A crowd of four thousand was similarly fed in Mark15:36-38. In this instance, the people had followed Jesus for three long days and had nothing to eat. When he provided food for them, they got more than they needed leaving seven basketfuls of fragments.

In both instances, the Lord provided for their needs, but they were so absorbed in their wants that they created waste by grabbing more than they needed.

This miracle demonstrates God's daily provision for us. He taught us to pray, "Give us this day our daily bread." We don't worry about each day because we know that the Lord will provide for us through his grace, and his grace is sufficient.

About Enough

ENOUGH FOR THIS DAY: Note that people in the crowd were given enough food for that day, but all that was left over was collected. There were no doggie bags. God provides our daily bread; there is no way we can store an overflow of blessings so they can be used another day.

When Israel wandered in the wilderness, God provided enough manna to carry them throughout the day or until the Sabbath passed and the next mealtime approached. If they tried to gather too much, it spoiled. They were supplied their daily need.

Today we are reminded that God can and will provide all our needs.

He often told his disciples to consider the lilies of the field and the sparrows in the air. They both receive what they need without worrying about loss or depravity.

Whatever we need for this day, God assures us that his grace is sufficient.

KNOW WHEN YOU HAVE ENOUGH: The disciples moved among the people and distributed food to each individual, but to have fragments left over it meant that some grabbed more than they needed. They did not know when they had enough. There are many people today who are unhappy because they have been given a full plate, but they can't fill their plate because they change the size of the plate! They get a bigger Plate. Our plate of blessings is proportioned by God to each of us. What we need is given to us by God independent of the size of the container we try to put it in. We have food, clothing, and shelter; that's enough. Enough may mean two chicken wings. Enough does not change simply because we change the size of the plate; two chicken wings are still enough. If two bedrooms in your house satisfy your needs, then buying a house with six bedrooms won't change the fact that all you need is two. We may have five pairs of shoes now, but building a bigger closet won't change the fact that five is all you need.

In Luke 12:16-18 Jesus gave a parable about a rich man who had filled his barns to the point of overflow. Yet he decided to build himself a bigger barn thinking that enough changed with his overflow. He did not realize that God had provided him enough; he tried to build a bigger barn and redefine enough. In a similar sense, those who are succeeding at reaching higher levels should always remember that the salvation is not in "bigger" or "more," but in understanding that everything comes from God. We show great wisdom when we know when to say enough is enough.

GOD WILL MAKE IT ENOUGH: The little boy only had two little fishes and five loaves of bread, but it was not sufficient to feed 5,000. They learned that day that God can take a little and make it enough. The disciples doubted the crowd could be fed but forgot about the power of God.

The disciples thought the little boy's groceries weren't enough, but they forget

Jesus was capable of providing more than enough.

Moses told God he did not have enough resources to face Pharoah who had an army. God told him he had a stick, and that was enough.

That's how we are. We look at what we don't have, but we overlook what we do have.

If we have an abiding faith in God, it will be enough.

I may not drive the car of my dreams, but I'm reminded in Acts 17:28. In Him, I live and MOVE and have my being!

I may not live in my dream house, but I'm reminded in John 14:2. In my Father's House are many mansions, and Jesus said He's Preparing one for me!

God specializes in taking your little bit and making it just what you need!

He is good at taking your last dime and flipping it into more dimes!

He is good at taking your little joy and giving you more joy!

Ask Hezekiah won't God take your last year and give you more years!

He Is God, and He Is Good At Being In Control!

Ain't no sense in me worrying about what I don't have because God is in control.

Until we get enough

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that God won't stop blessing us until we get enough!

It's a strange thing about country folks; they would feed a guest until he couldn't eat anymore because they wanted to be sure he got enough. They kept putting fried chicken and greens on that plate until the guest got enough! They wouldn't stop piling it on until they got enough!

The text says Jesus took the loaves, gave thanks to God, and distributed them to the people. Afterward, he did the same with the fish. And they all ate as much as they wanted.

The Bible says in Verse 11 that Jesus gave them as much as they wanted. That means not only did He have enough to feed everyone, but he offered them Seconds and Thirds! Until they had enough.

We need to remember that God won't stop blessing until we get enough.

Your Last Blessing wasn't your last blessing; you can get seconds if that's not enough! Your Last Miracle wasn't your last miracle; you can get seconds if that's not enough!

Your Last Breakthrough wasn't your last breakthrough, you can get seconds if that wasn't enough!

Ephesians 3:20 reminds us: God Is ABLE TO DO EXCEEDINGLY MORE THAN WE IMAGINE!

Just when you think your Strength is about to go down; He is able to give you MORE Strength!

Just when you think your good season is coming to an end; By your Faith, He is ABLE to EXTEND THE GOOD SEASON!

The good thing about the Lord is that he never stops providing!
What makes Niagra Falls great is that it never stops flowing!
What makes Trees great is that they never stop growing!
What makes the Sun great is that it never stops shining!
What makes the Seasons great is they never stop Changing!
What makes God great is the fact that he never stops making a way!
He started making a way down in Bethlehem!
For 33 long years, he never stopped making a way!
One day on an old rugged cross he died for our sins!
But early Sunday morning he arose from the grave!
I know he He hasn't stopped making a way because he's making away today!

No. 9742-Inspiration

Black Lives Matter, Too

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

July 24, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "What is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him? For thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, and hast crowned him with glory and honor. Psalm 8:4-5

Introduction

Have you been following the recent wave of violence between citizens and police across our nation? There is a growing sense of desperation in the African-American community because it seems that the criminal justice system devalues the lives of its Black Citizens. Whether that is real or not is the subject to one's perspective; however, from the viewpoint of African-Americans, there is something out of balance with respect to the way the criminal justice system in our nation responds to minorities in this country. We are especially vulnerable to violence, higher rates of incarceration and death in the legal system than any other race in the nation. To us, it seems that what happens to an African-American mother, father or child does not matter.

In 2013, George Zimmerman was acquitted in the death of Trayvon Martin. That sparked a national outcry on Social media using the hashtag #blacklivesmatter. A built-in rage that has been building over the years was unleashed. The first cracks in the wall that held back our frustration came in 1991 with the beating of Rodney King, caught on video. Since that time our community has learned to reach for a cell phone anytime they see a police officer because they expect trouble, especially if the officer is white. That is obviously not always the case, but that was the feeling.

Then came the 2014 death of Micheal Brown resulting in protests in Fergurson, MO, and Eric Garner in New York City. Since then even more on camera deaths and abuses of Blacks by police actions or while in the custody of police have occurred. The list of names gets longer: Jonathan Ferrell, Laquan McDonald, Tamir Rice, Eric Harris, Walter Scott, Freddie Gray, Sandra Bland, Samuel Dubose and in Baton Rouge, Alton Sterling. One man Philando Castile was killed in Minnesota even though he told police he had a firearm with a permit when he was stopped. Charles Kinsey in Florida was shot while laying on his back with his hands in the air identifying himself as a therapist for an autistic patient who was sitting next to him. When the officer was asked why he shot the black man, he said: "I don't know."

While these episodes were caught on video, there were thousands that were not: including the 2002 police shooting of William Henderson in Monroe, La in which police shot the mentally ill man 17 times. Before officers reported back to work, they had a drunken party on the levee to celebrate and called pedestrians who saw them "faggots."- Neither the city's black mayor or its white police chief refused to apologize for the death or even attend his funeral. Incidents such as these have accumulated over the years and have resulted in the universal outcry "Black Lives Matter."

There are many who believe that Black Lives Matter is a racist statement because it seems to suggest that other lives don't matter. They say "All lives matter" should be the chant. However, President Barack Obama said, "All Lives Matter" shifts the focus away from the source of the outcry; that there is an injustice being doled out to African-Americans.

Perhaps critics of the Black Lives Matter movement could understand it better if the outcry was "Black Lives Matter, too!" -That changes that conversation. "Black Lives Matter, too!" suggests that we are all God's children, every life matters, but there is a disparity somewhere.

We are extremely upset that some, in anger, are targeting police officers and shooting them indiscriminately. We are upset, over the loss of the life of police officers in Dallas and Baton Rouge and other places. We are upset when the lives of children are taken by Terrorists in France; the LGBTQ community is attacked in Florida, or the lives of tourists are taken in Munich; our heart aches for them, but we still say Black Lives Matter, too.

Why do the lives of all men matter? Because we are all God's children. We are the handiwork of his creation. God takes note of the life of every person. Psalm 144:3 "What is man that thou takest knowledge of him." Every life is considered precious in his sight. We know that because Psalm 116:15 says, "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of one of his saints." That doesn't apply to just black people, but it applies to all people. He made all of us in his image, and every one of us matters. The lyrics of the children's song say it best: "

Jesus loves the little children
All the children of the world
Red& yellow,black & white they're precious in his sight
Jesus loves the little children of the world.

We know God is mindful of the lives of all people because he created all of us. The words of the Declaration of Independence say that he endowed each of us with "certain unalienable rights, and among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." So when the cry for Justice goes out from one sector of the nation in a rage over the loss of life, those whose deaths and misfortunes are trivialized cry out, "Black Lives Matter, too!"

As Christians, we are glad to know that our God values the lives of every one of his creation. Regardless of color, he gave his life so those who choose to believe could have a chance at eternal life; even those who are rejected and ill-treated; your lives matter, too!

Exposition

This text focuses on a passage of scripture reminds every believer that God is mindful of the value of every person, but he is the creator of all

Genesis gives a description of God's creation of the world by singular spoken phrases such as, "Let there be light," and "Let there be a firmament," and "Let the earth, or waters, bring forth." However, when God decided to make man it switched from a singular act into a word of consultation, "Let us make man." The creation of man was a collaborative effort between the Father, Son, and the Word, indicated by the phrase, "let us."

Man was created with an expressed purpose in mind, for which the rest of the world was created as a preliminary act. Now that the preliminaries were settled, God said, "Let us make man."

Let us make man so he can have dominion over the rest of creation.

Let us make man of flesh and spirit, earth, and heaven, and give him authority over creation.

Let us make man and ally him with the elements, from the dust, but full of life; of the animals but far superior, but just lower than the angels.

Let us make man in our image. In the image of the fatherly God. In the image obedient son. In the image of the empowering, forceful and inspirational Holy Ghost.

The life of every man and woman is important in the eyes of God; not to be trivialized or dehumanized.

An assertion of truth

There are at least three thoughts that should be considered in light of this concern:

BLACK LIVES MATTER, TOO IS AN ASSERTION OF WORTH AND DIGNITY. There is something troubling when a person feels worthless; that's why Jesus reassured his disciples that he was concerned about their needs and welfare. He pointed them to the lilies of the field and the birds of the air and reminded them that if he is concerned with every sparrow, then they should know that he is also concerned about them. This is the way our people felt for over 200 years as slaves. They sang, "Nobody knows the trouble I see, Nobody knows, but Jesus." It was their faith in Jesus that helped them to stand in the face of a world that diminished their worth as human beings.

Today, the collective feeling of worthlessness and indignity is intensified when we see people who look like us being shot by police officers, beaten, brutalized or otherwise mistreated by the courts and prosecutors. A silent rage begins to build. Now, every video, snapshot and substantiated account of mistreatment crescendos until we ask the question with the poet Langston Hughes, "What happens to a dream deferred, does it dry up like a raisin in the sun, or does it fester like a sore and run - or does it explode?"

As we march in the streets to vent our anger, however, we must not let it reach a point where we lose the very dignity that we hold dear. All whites have no wronged us! All policemen have not offended us. Every prosecutor has not treated us unfairly. And we never want to give the impression that while we want our lives to matter, that our lives are more valuable than the police officer slain in the street or the victim of terrorism. With dignity, we can affirm the worth of all people and still say, Black lives matter, too.

BLACK LIVES MATTER, TOO IS A PLEA FOR JUSTICE: Black Lives Matter, too is a plea for justice: At the heart of the Black Lives Matter is a cry for justice. This has been the plea of God's people through all generations. The prophet Amos cried out, "Let justice roll down like waters and righteousness like a mighty stream." However, today the Black man says, "We want justice, too!" A Recent Wall Street Journal report of the sentencing commission said that African-American males receive 19.5 percent longer sentences and were 25% less likely to get sentences below the minimum guidelines. The report cited the fact that white offenders who use powder cocaine get shorter sentences than black offenders who use crack cocaine. A University of Michigan study showed blacks receive 60% longer sentences for the same crime committed by whites. Blacks who kill blacks get light penalties and parole. Blacks who kill whites, get longer sentences often without parole. This dark picture helps explain why millions of Black Americans are crying out, "Black Lives Matter, too!" -We deserve just consideration in the criminal justice system.

We all Matter to God

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember that every person matters to God. Jesus was often criticized for wasting time associating with people who did not matter to the general society. He was criticized for associating with publicans and sinners because, in the scheme of God's plan for Israel, they did not matter. However, when he chose to have audiences with the rich and the powerful as well as sinners, he seemed to say, "sinners matter, too."

When he openly held a conversation with the woman at well, who had been dismissed by the community because she had trouble keeping husbands, he made a statement, "Divorcees matter, too."

When a woman with an issue of blood touched the hem of his garment he stopped and noticed her touch; she had nothing to offer him, but the fact that he acknowledged her touch said, people with issues matter, too.

When Zacchaeus, a short man, tried to see Jesus by climbing a Sycamore tree, he told him to come down and spent the evening with him; that too made a statement, people who are out on a limb matter, too.

When he hung on the cross and told the repentant thief, "Today, you will be with me in paradise" - He made it clear that even the lives of criminals and thieves matter, too!

Even Roman guards who beat him and took his life on the cross, mattered to him because he said in his dying breath, "Father forgive them for they know not what they do," the lives of the soldiers who were policing the streets of Jerusalem mattered, too.

Each person who came in contact with the Savior left feeling that they mattered in the sight of God. Whether it was a leper who had been healed or a man who had been ignored at the pool for 38 years. They were all happy to know that despite their condition that they mattered to God.

The lives of the poor matter, too!

The lives of the weak and distressed, matter, too!

The lives of the underserved and overly ignored matter, too!

The lives of battered women, abused children and the homeless matter, too!

Black Lives Matter, Blue Lives Matter, Brown Lives Matter, Red Lives Matter; every life matters to God.

We don't really deserve God's attention and special concern; that's why David asked, "What is man that thou art mindful of him?" Despite our flaws and shortcomings, God sees the value and worth of every human being.

We matter to God even though when we should be:

GOING FORWARD, we are often going backward; STANDING UP we are often somewhere sitting down;

SPEAKING AND TESTIFYING we never say a word; QUIET AND SILENT we are somewhere running our mouths.

CLIMBING HIGHER we often falling down; GETTER BETTER most of the times we are getting worse;

SOBER AND CLEAR HEADED we are somewhere getting drunk; DOING RIGHT we are somewhere doing wrong!

We steal from each other, treat each other badly, trample each other's feelings, and take each other's lives, and even still, we matter to God. In the words of the songwriter, "He looked beyond my faults and saw our need."

He saw a world that needs the saving Grace of Christ. He saw a world that more love and understanding and less prejudice, anger and hate.

We mattered so much to God that he sent his only begotten Son so that whosoever believeth in him ago ould not perish, but have everlasting life.

So, over 2000 years ago on a hill called Calvary, Jesus took the pain and hatred of the world into himself and died for the sins of the world; everyone matters.

The good news is that early Sunday morning he arose with the redemption for every life in his hands, proving that even the lives of the least of these, matter…

Too!

No.9743- Inspiration

Shall we Dance?

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

July 31, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord and he delighteth in his way." Psalm 37:23; "And David danced before the LORD with all his might; and David was girded with a linen ephod. 2 Samuel 6:14;

Introduction

Can you dance? Can you really cut a rug? Was there a time when you and the dance floor were good friends? The African-American community is familiar with dancing. Rhythm and dance is a part of our heritage. Over the years some dances that originated in the Black community have been adopted by mainstream America. In 1891 a dance called the "Cakewalk" took over America until it was displaced by the Charleston in the 1920's, The Lindy Hop and the "Jitterbug" of the 1940's. Some of the dances were innocent such as the "Pony" or the "Swim." When Chubby Checker came up with the "Twist" it shocked America because people were gyrating and twisting. More shock was added in the 60's when "Walking the Dog," "The Jerk" and "The Bump" became popular. Every generation had its share of popular dances such as the "Cabbage Patch," "The Prep," "The Reebox" and the "Perculator" of the 90's. Some remember "Crank that Soulja Boy," "The Dab," "The Robot," "Robo Cop," The "Nay Nay" and the Quan still get attention. Some even do the "Stanky Leg, " and some have pushed the limits of decency with "Twerking."

The subject of dancing has been a taboo in many circles because some mistakenly believe that any type of dancing is a sin. All dancing was outlawed in many Southern and rural communities, and movies such as Patrick Swayze in "Dirty Dancing" touched a cord when they focused on the issue. Black churches for decades resisted "Liturgical dance and praise dancing" -married to the belief that all dancing, even dancing before the Lord was bad. Dancing in itself has no biblical prohibitions, but dancing that promotes or encourages salacious thoughts or activity crosses the line.

There is one type of dancing that has parallels to our text for today: Line Dancing. Line Dancing is the black version of country Square Dancing, and it involves a whole group of people moving with the flow, to the direction of the DJ. He may call out "Two steps to the left, Two steps to the right, now Cha-cha, now!" Popular among the line dances is the "Electric Slide" and the "Cha-Cha Slide." Those who line dance don't need a partner they simply jump in the follow directions. That's different from the Soul

Train Dance line where each person came down the line and "did their own thing." In Line Dancing, you don't need much skill, but you can mess things up if you can't follow directions. In line dancing, as long as a person can follow directions, he or she can keep the pace, because every step you need to know is told by the DJ. All you have to do is follow the directions.

Following Directions! That's the heartbeat of our spiritual growth; the ability to follow God's directions. If we follow God's directions, we move when he says move, turn when he says turn, jump when he says jump, and when he says it's time to sit down, we do that, too. Life is enjoyable at any age because the pace of the dance is scaled to your age. A seven-year-old and seventy year can do the same line dance if they can follow directions.

As Christians, we are pleased that God choreographs and directs our lives. We are reminded that if we acknowledge him in all our ways, he will direct our paths.

Exposition

This text focuses on the truth that God orders the steps of those who believe in him.

David said two important things in the 37th psalm and verse 23.

First, he said, "The steps of a good man are ordered." The reference to "man" is gender neutral in the sense that the phrase "man" can refer to both a man or a woman. The steps mentioned in the text refer to the usual, daily, and routine of those who strive to do that which is right in the eyesight of God. The steps refer to the incidents of our lives. These are the high moments and low moments. These are the days of excitement, thrills, and joys as well as the days of struggle and trial. The steps are not ordered by God in the sense that they are commanded by him. They are ordered by God in the sense that he arranges them for us in such a way that we can understand, appreciate and glean from each day its fullest meaning.

The second part of the verse says, "and he delighteth in his way. The emphasis of the text is on an individual who pleases God because he freely allows God to shape him in a way that pleases the Almighty. God delights in the correctly punctuated life. It has meaning, order and a sense of divine purpose that pleases him.

The believer who seeks the ordered life is the believer who says to God, "You lead, I'll follow," "I submit myself to your will."

The Dance

WALLFLOWERS MISS THE DANCE: There are many people who can remember going to a school to dance during their early years; afraid of the moment when they would have to ask someone to dance or be asked to dance. Some go to the dance or prom fully dressed, but have no intention of dancing; they want to sit on the sidelines and watch as others enjoy the evening. Their reasons are numerous and often include not knowing how to dance, afraid they will be laughed at, or that they will get on the floor and make a fool out of themselves.

There are many people who are afraid to reach out and claim the gifts and rewards that God has in store for out of fear. To these, God says, "I am come that they might have life and have it more abundantly." - Shall we dance? It is not God's intent that we be afraid to live the abundant life that he has in store for us, building the kingdom and preparing for the great life ahead. However, there are many people who do trust him enough to take his hand and step out on faith. Those who are afraid to make a little side step or even make one step toward trusting God's promise, should hear David's words, in Psalm 27:1 "The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?"

Is there a dream that you should be pursuing, but you are standing on the wall watching others? Is there a move you need to make, but you are afraid others will laugh, or you will fail? If you are among those who are hesitating to make your move, today the hand of God is extended to you and the question is asked, "Shall we dance?"

BOTH PARTNERS CAN'T LEAD, ONE MUST FOLLOW: It is extremely difficult to dance if both partners in dance are trying to lead. It's a formula for failure. This is a truth that applies to many avenues of life. In a marriage, there is nothing but trouble if both the husband and the wife are trying to lead the family, especially if one says "Let's go right, and the other says let's go left." -Nothing gets done. When a couple dances they usually decide before they begin, "You lead, and I'll follow, or you follow, and I'll lead." When a wife tells her husband that she will follow his lead, it doesn't mean that she doesn't have the ability to lead, it means she knows that both of them can't lead, and since he represents Christ in the family and she represents the church, she lets him lead.

In the dance through life, there can only be one person leading. Even though Frank Sinatra made millions with his song, "I did it my way," those who invite the Spirit of God into their lives have decided that it's best to let God's way be "my way." This journey through life is a relationship that grows as we learn followship. We go wherever God tells us to go and do whatever he tells us to do, without question. These are the ones who sing the song, "Where he leads me I will follow. I'll go with him, with him, all the way." - Those who are tired of trying to live this life alone, dealing with your challenges alone and you want a relationship with God that can help you through each day according to His will, there is a heavenly hand extended to you and the spirit of God asks, "If you are ready, I'll lead, you follow, shall we dance?"

THOSE WHO FOLLOW LEARN TO DANCE BACKWARD: Some of the best types of dances are done with a partner. If your partner is a great dancer and you are not; it's best to let your partner lead. The strong partner will lead you into the turns, back you up, pull you forward and move you in a way that makes you look like a pro. However, no matter how skilled your partner, there must be a level of trust. It's better when there is a relationship of trust because those who follow often dance backward; it's awkward, but it's possible if you are following the lead of a person who knows the steps.

The Christian life is a life that is spent trusting God. That's why David said, "The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord." It's as if God says, "You may not know all the steps in this dance called life, just hold my hand and follow me step by step, you can do this." You know the dance, so he tells you when you need to back up or turn, you can feel him tugging at you. When he backs you up, you don't worry about it, because you know that on the right count, he's going to bring you forward at the right time.

Trusting God is saying in your heart that no matter what happens you will not lose faith in God. It's remembering the words of Psalm 18:2 "The Lord is my rock, and my fortress, and my deliverer; my God, my strength, in whom I will trust.."

Those who are ready for a relationship with God, one in which you are ready to acknowledge him in all your ways and trust him to direct your paths should see the hand of God being extended to them. What God offers everyone who trusts him is the knowledge that wherever you go, whatever happens to you, whether you are going backward or forwards, he will never let you go, make you look bad or fail you. If you are ready for a life of trust, the question is asked, "Shall we dance?"

EVEN IF YOU HAVE TWO LEFT FEET, YOU CAN STILL JOIN THE DANCE: There are many people who have "two left feet." If they tried to dance, they would probably look silly and make a fool of themselves stumbling and falling. However, with a great partner, even a person with two left feet looks good. If life is a dance with time, it's good to have God has a partner. He will look out for us. Psalm 121 says, "The sun shall not smite thee by day or the moon by night." It's guaranteed that we are going to stumble in life. There is no one living that will make it through the whole dance without stepping on someone's toes, bumping into someone or otherwise messing up.

Naaman had a disease and wanted to be healed. The prophet told him that to be healed he had to bathe seven times in muddy water. He felt silly doing what the prophet said, but he followed anyway. When he arose after the 7th time, he was cleansed. He looked good. You may think you will look silly trusting God, stepping out on faith and doing things that you have never done before, but with God leading, you will look good. An old song says, "If you trust and never doubt, he will surely bring you out, take your burden to the Lord and leave it there!"

DANCING WITH THE DEVIL REALLY MESSES UP: If life is a dance, we must be aware that not everyone who asks you to the dance has the best intentions. Sometimes the devil can mess up your dance through life. The devil goes through this life looking for someone to dance through life with. 1 Peter 5:8 warns us about this; it says, "Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour." Dancing with the devil can get you in deep trouble, because his purpose is to get you to clown yourself, degrade yourself and to belittle yourself for the enjoyment of others. He wants you to twerk it, pop it and shake it to the cheers and laughter of others. Cameras will record your actions and your devilish dance in life is posted on Facebook, Snapchat, Twitter and a dozen other places for the world to comment on critique and laugh at your public display.

If life is a dance, we need to be aware that dancing with the devil can lead us to fatherhood before we are ready, with 21 years of child support to look forward to. Dancing with the devil can lead to jail time and down time, lost opportunities and failures and a multitude of mess ups.

When that happens, that's when we know that it's time to change partners!

That's what happened to David. He recognized that he started out dancing to the "Lord is my shepherd, and I shall not want," but ended up being an adulterer and murderer. So, in repentance, he said in Psalm 51:10, "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me." - He changed partners and gave his heart back to God. When he repented, he found God to be forgiving and loving almost saying, "Shall we dance, again?"

Shall we Dance?

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must recognize that our God wants to lead us to a life of fulfillment and happiness and is asking us to let him lead us in the dance of life.

There is no need for anyone to go through life despondent, lonely, frustrated and beaten, the inspiring, ever-present hand of God is extended asking us, "Shall we dance? -I'll lead, you follow."

Revelation 3:20-21 says, "Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me..."

If you ready to step out of nowhere and starting going somewhere, shall we dance?

If you ready to stand up in Christ rather than falling down in sin, shall we dance?

If you are ready to live the abundant life of faith and hope with your eyes on Calvary, shall we dance?

With the Lord leading you through the dance of life, you'll sing with Fred Hammond, "When the Spirit of the Lord comes upon my heart, I will dance like David danced. I will dance. I will dance. I will dance like David danced."

David danced because he had finally brought home the Ark of the Covenant and the people could worship in the presence of the Lord.

David danced because God had answered his prayers!

David danced because God had given him a victory!

David danced, but it wasn't dirty dancing; he was dancing to the glory of the Lord!

When the Lord has been good to you, you may be dancing, but you won't be Jigalating!

When the Lord has restored what you have lost, you may be dancing, but you won't be Perculating!

When the Lord has healed your body and gives you new strength, you may be dancing, but you won't doing the Stanky leg!

When the Lord has picked you up and turned you around, you won't be "Walking the Dog."

You'll be jumping and shouting like David, "I never would have made it without you Lord!

If you ready for a spirit filled life, shall we dance?

Come and go with me to an old rugged cross on a hill called Calvary!

Come and go with me to see His nail scarred hands!

Come and go with me to see His empty tomb!

It's empty because early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

Come and go with me, I'll take you to a place where they will be dancing in the streets and shouting "I'm so glad I done got over. Done got over at last!"

Come and go with me to my father's house!

In my father's house, there is Joy! Joy! Joy!

Shall we dance?

No. 9744-Inspiration

When God makes life click

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 7, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "And he is before all things, and by him all things consist. And he is the head of the body, the church: who is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead; that in all things he might have the preeminence." Colossians 1:17-18

Introduction

Have you ever bought a product and then couldn't get it to work? We've all been there! It's the big screen TV we bought, assembled it, but then couldn't get it to work! It's the new cell phone you purchased with all of the bells and whistles, but you can't get it to work! We all know the feeling, we've opened packages and found plastic containers filled with screws and bolts, but even though we looked at the pictures, we couldn't figure out where they fit or what they were supposed to do!

When do you know that things are not working? You know things are not working when you go to McDonald's and order a small fry but have to pay for it on the lay-a-away plan. You know things are not working right in your house when you light up a cigarette so you can stand over it to keep warm! You know things are not working for you when you are planning your wedding, and you cut out the rice to save money.

We get frustrated when things don't work, but there is a reason behind the madness. A cell phone, no matter how expensive, won't work without a sim card, minutes, data plan or Wifi. A car will not run without fuel. Air conditioners don't cool without freon. A bicycle won't roll without both wheels. You can't make a cheeseburger without cheese. If something doesn't work, there is usually something missing! As long as something is missing or out of place, it won't work!

Sometimes it takes us a while to get the fact that something is missing. Consider the city boy who inherited 500 acres of prime farm land which he was told was worth a fortune, but could not be sold. The city boy was excited that this land would make him rich. He drove his Lexus to the farm ready to collect. He asked a neighbor what he needed to claim his fortune. "What you need is a plow," said the neighbor and the city boy bought a shiny new plow and set it in the field. He watched if for several days and still nothing happened. He went back to the neighbor and said, "I bought the plow like you said, but nothing happened." The neighbor said "of course you'll need some mules for the plow" so the city boy acquired mules, hitched them to the plow as he spread out his handkerchief on the ground and sat waiting to see his fortune appear, but nothing happened. The neighbor passed by and saw him sitting on the ground watching the plow and mule and laughed. "Son, you're going about this wrong, you have 500 acres of rich farm land that could make you rich one day, but it ain't worth a dime to you if you don't put your hands on the plow!" - What was missing was the young man's willingness to work.

Just as bread without yeast won't rise, a Godly man's effort to make his life plan work won't succeed unless God is in the plan. Matthew 6:33 says, "See ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all of these things will be added unto you." If we want our best plans to work, we need to have those plans centered around God and his will. One songwriter said, "Without God, I could do nothing. Without him, I'd surely fail. Without God, my life would be drifting, like a ship without a sail.

As Christians, we know that we need the power of God to make our lives be what he intends for them to be. Whenever we are having trouble making it work, then there is a great possibility that we are trying to make God fit into our plan rather than fitting ourselves into God's plan.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he reminds the Colossians that God should be the center of everything they do.

Matthew Henry says Paul had three reasons for writing to the Colossians: First, he sought to show the deity and supremacy of Christ in the face of the Colossian heresy. Second, he wanted to lead believers into spiritual maturity. Third, he wanted to inform them about his state of affairs and elicited their prayers on his behalf.

Paul raised up Christ as the source of a believer's life; we do nothing without him, and everything we do is centered around him in some way. This is similar to the message he gave in Acts 17:28 "For in him we live, and move, and have our being…"

In verse 17, look at the phrase: "By Him all things consist." It was Paul's way of telling the Colossians that God is at the center of everything; He makes things happen. At the end of the sentence is the word "consist." Consist means to include, incorporate, and contain. This is one of the few occasions when we see the word "consist" stand alone. Usually, it is followed by something such as "consist of" or "consist in" or "consist as." When it is followed by something, "consist" usually indicates parts that make a whole. When it stands alone the way Paul writes it in this text, it indicates that the parts exist because of the whole. Put another way, the little things only make sense when they are part of the big thing. (The steering wheel of a car makes sense only because we know it is part of a car. Without the car, the steering wheel alone makes little sense.)

Paul said it simply, when God is in the mix everything in life makes better sense because we can see how our lives and its associated incidents are a part of his divine plan.

Applied Consistency

When we make our plans, there are a few things we need to make them work; they all revolve around that word consist.

UNGODLY PLANS DON'T WORK FOR GODLY PEOPLE: There is a strange irony of the spiritual life, an ungodly person can make an ungodly plan, and it will work for a while. However, a godly person who tries to make an ungodly plan will fail every time. A thief can make a plan to steal money and get away with it for a while. A godly man who makes the same plan will find everything going wrong, even if he doesn't get caught stealing. The Godly man knows that his plan must have God's blessing and "consist" or incorporate the will of God. Godly people operate within the will of God. Our restaurant is a Godly restaurant. Our clothing store is a Godly store. Our home is a Godly Home. Our school is a Godly school. If God is not the center of our plan, it won't work for us. Being at the center is crucial. Many people will buy a new house and put a cross on the wall or a picture of Jesus on the mantel, but they drink, gamble and have adulterous affairs in the same house. They may have the house, but it will never become a home until Christ comes off the wall and mantel and becomes the guiding force of the family. For children of God, we begin with what is right and the build our lives around it.

OUR PLANS MUST HAVE A GODLY CONSISTENCY: Those who bake know that flour, eggs, liquid, leavened and seasonings are necessary. However, the "consistency" of what is mixed depends on upon whether you want the final product to be chewy, soft, or mealy like corn bread. Consistency when baking refers to how the mixture holds together. Consistency is its thickness, its firmness or its solidity. Paul told the Colossians that "By him" or by Christ our lives have consistency. He is the mixture that holds us together. He is what makes us firm. If you bake a cake and it doesn't come out tasty, the problem is usually not on the stove, but in the bowl; it's in the mixing. If you put a lot of sugar in, expect it to be sweet. If you put a lot of meal in it, expect it to be grainy. If we put a lot of God in our mix, expect a life that is full of the fruit of the spirit. Galatians 5:22-23 says, the fruit of the Spirit is "love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, Meekness, temperance: against such there is no law." With plenty of the fruit of the Spirit, our lives have consistency. If we can't get things to work, check the bowl, not the stove!

WHEN OUR LIVES CONSIST, THAT MEANS THEY CLICK: Look at Colossians 1:17 again. It says "By him all things consist." Consist also means to fit or click. So if you read the verse again, it says, "By him, all things click" When things click they make sense, and we understand better. When things click, we are able to see the big picture. A key makes sense when I can see the big picture and know which door it opens. The numbers on the face of a watch make little sense until we understand that they are pointing to sixty minutes in an hour and sixty seconds in a minute. When things click, you are able to connect the dots and understand the relationship between what you learn in school and what you need for life. When things click, you understand the mysteries. When things fit, they all come together at the right time in the right order. That's the beauty of the believer's life; God makes everything click for us at the right time. It's like opening a combination lock. There are a certain number of turns to the left and right, but at the right time, following God's direction we hear a click and that which was locked is unlocked.

Only Christ makes our lives have meaning and purpose. We can do many things, but nothing seems to really click until we see how they fit into the will of God. Without God, everything we do seems to be a wasteful exercise. When He anoints what we do, everything clicks, fits and comes together in the right way.

If we want our efforts to succeed, put God at their center and watch everything fall into place and begin to "click."

He Makes it click

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that Christ is the center of our being, he makes it click for us.

Paul not only told the Colossians that through Christ all things consist, but he also told them how God made that happen.

In Colossians 1:19 it says, "It pleased the Father" that Christ would come to the earth and show the world how to reconcile sin and salvation and make them click.

In verse 20 the text says Christ "made peace through the blood of his cross" and brought the jangling ends of condemnation and forgiveness and made them click.

In the same sense, those who trust in the Lord know that he takes the jangling discords of our lives and combines them with his mercy and grace and makes things click.

Things may break down, but when God gets in the picture, our efforts to fix them begin to click.

Things may go wrong, but when God gets in the picture, our efforts to make them right begin to click.

We may have fallen, but when God gets in the picture, our efforts to stand on our feet again begin to click.

When things begin to click, God opens once closed doors!

When things begin to click, He makes opportunities available to us!

When things begin to click, He baffles our critics who doubt our abilities!

When things begin to click, He mystifies our skeptics who thought we were doomed.

How can we put it together again? How can we make things work? Is it possible to make things click?

That was the same set of questions posed to Ezekiel when he placed him in a valley filled with dry bones. He asked the question, "Son of man, can these bones live?" God says, even the driest bones can live again if they hear the word of the Lord.

After a while, bye and bye, there was a little clicking and the

The toe bone found the foot bone; there was some clicking going on!

The foot bone found the ankle bone; there was some clicking going on!
The ankle bone found the leg bone; there was some clicking going on!
The leg bone found the knee bone; there was some clicking going on!
The knee bone found the thigh one; there was some clicking going on!
The thigh bone connected to the backbone, there was some clicking going on!
The back bone connected to the shoulder bone, there was some clicking going on!
The shoulder bone connected to the neck bone, there was some clicking going on!
The neck bone connected to the head bone, there was some clicking going on!
You can't make it click, but when God gets ready, he can make things happen!
He can take hate and turn it into love!
He can take pain and turn it into gain!
He can take defeat and turn it into victory
I hear God talking to his son, saying "My people are in trouble. They are trying to get forgiveness by slaughtering lambs and cattle, will you show them the way?"
He prepared himself a body and came down through 42 generations.
He died on an old rugged cross, but Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave!
Today, he's alive, and he's still making salvation click for you!
Today, he's alive, and he's still making life click for you!

No. 9745-Inspiration

To the Unknown God

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 14, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "For as I passed by, and beheld your devotions, I found an altar with this inscription, TO THE UNKNOWN God. Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, him declare I unto you." Acts 17:23

Introduction

Do you know someone who doesn't know the Lord? Despite our advanced technology, social media, and live streaming capabilities, there are millions of people in the world who have never heard of Jesus Christ; they have heard the name, but they do not know anything more. There are also millions who do not have a relationship with him.

Those who do not know God usually believe in something; they just don't know God. It's easy for people such as these to become superstitious and believe the source of their strength and fortune is the result of an inanimate object. They place horseshoes over their doorways to bring luck to anyone who enters. They search for and cherish four leaf clovers to bring themselves good fortune. They wear good luck charms and rabbit's feet for luck. They have a charm for every situation, and even go to church, but do not know God.

There are millions of people who are atheists. They do not believe in the existence of God or gods. They think that if God existed that he would make himself known and that evil in the world would not exist.

Many people are agnostics. They neither believe God exists or that he does not exist. They believe that if there is a God that no one can know him, understand him or claim a relationship with him.

There are others who are cynics. Cynics believe there is no God, only people who are being manipulated out of self-interest and individuals who want to believe for their self-interest. They think faith is an elaborate con-game of the weak minded.

A skeptic is a person who accepts the possibility of God's existence but doubts it. The skeptic thinks that people ascribe to God that which occurs in the natural order but is unknown. A skeptic is waiting to be convinced.

A deist is a person who believes there is a God but believes that he created everything and stepped back and allows it work on its own without interference. A deist believes in God but does not believe he wrote a holy book, sends preachers or interacts with people.

A believer is a person who looks at the world and says that it was not self-created. The systems of the universe, the laws of gravity, the rotation of the earth, the coming and going of the seasons, did not invent themselves.

Whoever started the earth spinning on its axis, he is God.

Whoever makes the sun rise and set each day, he is God.

Whoever controls the winds, puts sweet in sugar, cold in ice, and hot in fire, he is God.

A believer is a person who believes that God is Omnipresent, every place at the same time; Omniscient, knows everything; and Omnipotent, has all power in his hands.

Christians go even further, we believe that God loved the world so much that he sent a piece of himself to live among humankind to show us the way to live this life and to return to him after this life is over.

A believer is a person who also knows that God is personal, hears and answers prayers.

How do they know? They have tried him for themselves.

That's why believers must be careful about the way we live and move among our friends and neighbors. Many of them do not know God, but they do know us. We are the only Bible they will ever read. They study us. The watch us and they become curious about God because they have seen how he works in our lives.

As Christians, we are happy to report that God is real. We know he is real. In the words of the songwriter, we say, "Yes God is real cause I can feel him down in my soul. Yes God is real because he has washed and made me whole."

Exposition

Paul was in Athens observing the worship and beliefs of the Greeks. He noticed that they had a statue erected to the "Unknown god" among the other gods that they worshiped. Paul took the opportunity to tell them about Jesus, the unknown God that they never knew.

The Greeks had many gods, many of which were altered to fit their circumstances. There was ZEUS who was the Lord of the earth and sky. He controlled the destinies of men and their political fortunes. ATHENA was second in command. She was the protector of the cities. Her statues usually depicted her in full battle armor. POSEIDON was the god or protector of the waters. The fishermen and mariners prayed to him for calm waters.

As the Greek Empire spread throughout the world, its mythology had a way of absorbing the gods of conquered people and giving them a subsidiary place among the Greek gods that had similar functions. It is said that before Paul arrived in Athens that the city had endured a series of violent storms, and the Greeks prayed first from one of their gods to another: from Zeus to Athena to Poseidon, but the storms did not cease. Thinking they may have missed a god that was important they erected a statue to the "unknown God," and the storms ceased. The statue remained after that.

Paul took advantage of the occasion to help them to know the God they referred to as "the unknown God."

An Unknown God

MANY FIND IT IMPOSSIBLE TO TRUST AN UNKNOWN GOD: There are many today who fail to achieve what they should because they don't know how Big God is and what he can help them accomplish in their lives. Those who do not know him, usually hedge their bets and place their hopes on what they know they can do themselves. They expect little out of life and usually achieve just that.

When we know God and trust the big picture he shows us, we are prepared to make the small sacrifices he demands to test us. Abraham was given a big dream, that all of the land he could see would be his one day and that his descendants would be innumerable. That was a big dream, but to achieve it required trust. Abraham was tested when he was commanded to sacrifice his son. He trusted that God would provide, and God provided exactly what he needed at the right moment.

Today there are many people who won't trust their futures to God because they do not know him. Because they do not know him, their expectations are reduced to fit what they actually know. Barack Obama dreamed of being President when he was in Elementary School. Bill Clinton, had the same dream in high school. Ryan Murphy dreamed of winning an Olympic Gold medal when he was eight years old. Today many people fail to dream big because they don't trust God to help them achieve what their minds conceive Because God's power is known to us, we trust him to bless the work of our hands!

MANY HAVE TROUBLE OBEYING AN UNKNOWN GOD: Those who do not know Christ have difficulty obeying him because he is unknown; he is a stranger. One of the few times that a child is allowed to disobey an adult is in the case of strangers. Children are told never to obey strangers. When God is unknown, he is perceived as a stranger, and they have difficulty obeying him. They do not know him. They have no experience with him.

They have found it better to be safe than sorry. Those who know the Lord, have no trouble obeying him. The elements of the universe know him and obey him. After Christ calmed the storm, the men on board asked, "What manner of man is this that the winds and the sea obey him?"

Mark 1:27 notes that even unclean spirits know him and because they know him they obey him. The wind, the waves, and even unclean spirits have no trouble obeying because they know him. To them, he is not an unknown God.

Even today, many saints are ridiculed by those with less faith because they obey God and put him first in their lives.

They obey him because they know him. He is not an unknown God. He is the God who wakes them up in the morning and clothes them in their right mind. He is the God who strengthens them when they are weak and picks them up when they fall. He is not unknown, and because we know him to be one who loves us, we freely obey his will.

TO MANY IN THE CHURCH, HE IS AN UNKNOWN GOD: There are millions of people who have been associated with the church, work in its ministries, sing, pray and even attend its worships, but do not know him. There are many who are church members but are not Christians.

They are members of a church, but they are not a part of the body of Christ. Despite all of the answered prayers, healing, and blessings, to many people Jesus is still "The Unknown God."

That's when we remember the 1972 Harold Melvin and the Blue Notes song title, If you don't know me by now, you will never, never, never know me!

The people of Nazareth were familiar with Jesus, but they did not know him. They could not sing the words of the song that says, "I come to the garden alone while the dew is still on the roses.... And he walks with me, and he talks with me, and he tells me I am his own. And the joy we share as we tarry there, none other has ever known."

When you know the Lord, it is more than familiarity it is intimacy.

When you know the Lord, there is a closeness that exists between you and he that lifts you when you are down, inspires you when you are discouraged, and restores you when you are completely exhausted.

This is the intimacy that the old warriors sang about when they said, "I've tried the man, and the man is all right."

Because we know him

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that because we know God, we are able to face the unknown with confidence that he will guide us every step of the way.

Paul told believers that even though there were many doctrines being taught all around them, that they should remain focused on the doctrine of Christ as revealed to the apostles.

The Jewish converts had a doctrine based on Old Testament tradition, but they were told to stay focused on Christ.

All around them there would be people who did not know God, but they were urged to know God for themselves.

The Romans had a doctrine that saw Caesar as a god, to them Jesus of Nazareth was an unknown God

The Greeks had many gods; they even had statues to unknown gods; they could not understand how Christians could remain faithful to just one God and nothing else.

The believers were consistently serving the Lord because they had tried him for themselves.

Like the early Christians, we walk the same walk and sing the same tune. We serve God because he has made himself known to us and has supplied us with a hope that never diminishes, regardless of our situation.

It is because we know him, that we can sing with the songwriter: “My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame but wholly lean on Jesus’ name. On Christ the solid rock I stand, all other ground is sinking sand. All other ground is sinking sand.”

The Lord is not UNKNOWN to us, in fact, he is just the opposite, we know the Lord for ourselves.

When you know the Lord for Yourself, you know that when you are:

-Sick, He will be a Doctor in your sickroom!

-In Trouble, He will be a Lawyer in your courtroom!

-Lost and confused, He will make a way out of no way!

-Hungry and thirsty, He will feed you with bread from on high. That’s why the old warriors cried out, “Bread of Heaven, Bread of Heaven, feed me till I want no more!”

When you know the Lord for yourself, you know He will pick you up when you are stumbling!

When you know the Lord for yourself, you know He will plant your feet on solid ground!

When you know the Lord for yourself, you know He will give you a new song to sing, a new walk to walk and a new talk to talk!

No wonder the songwriter says, “You got to know Jesus, know God for yourself!”

You got to know Jesus; you don’t need nobody else!”

There was an old man who had farmed all of his life and never finished school. At the age of 75, he decided to go back to school to get his high school diploma. One day in his English class the teacher told him about punctuations marks: question marks, commas, periods and exclamation points. To help the old man understand she said, you write an exclamation point wherever there is something to shout about! She said the Exclamation point goes at the end of the sentence. She noticed that each time the old man started writing a sentence, it was filled with Exclamation points even before the sentence ended!

The old Man said, “You said I’m supposed to put an Exclamation point when I gets to something to shout about. I got plenty to shout about. I see the sun rising in the morning and going down in the evening; that’s something to shout about!

“I wrote about my dinner, you see I had a few neck bones in a bowl, a slice of piping hot corn bread with a mess of freshly picked greens and that gave me something to shout about!

“I wrote about riding in my car, you see When I turned the ignition of my brand new truck I started clapping my hands and praising God! It may not seem like a big thing to some people, but the man whose had nothing but old jalopies that never started gets excited when he finally gets a car that starts! It’s something to shout about!

“I knows I’m supposed to put the exclamation points at the end, but it don’t seem that the Lord ever stops blessing me, I ain’t gon’ ever finish a sentence, because the Lord don’t ever stop giving me something to shout about!

When you know the Lord, you can sing, “You don’t know like I know, what the Lord has done for me! You don’t know, you “wasn’t” there, you don’t know when and you don’t know where. You don’t know what the Lord has done for me!

When Jesus came to the world, he gave everybody something to shout about!

When he healed the sick and raised the dead, he gave everybody something to shout about!

When he died out on Calvary and arose Early Sunday morning....He gave the world something to shout about!

No. 9746-Communion

They sit down to eat and rise up to play

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 21, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "And they rose up early on the morrow, and offered burnt offerings, and brought peace offerings; and the people sat down to eat and to drink, and rose up to play." Exodus 32:6

Introduction

Suppose each of us could take a year long vacation from God? How would we fare? Suppose we simply removed ourselves from all forms of godliness, worship, prayer and or spirituality and did our own thing; how would that work? It would mean that on Sundays we would not attend worship. We wouldn't attend Bible studies, prayer meetings or classes on spirituality. It would mean that we would go to work, enjoy our families, live in comfortable houses and enjoy everything under the sun. We wouldn't read the Bible, read religious literature, listen to religious music or speakers. In its place, we would wash our cars, clean our homes, buy new clothes, go to concerts and movies, watch television, have parties, bar-b-ques and have lots of fun! How would that work out?

In the 1990's Douglas Coupland wrote a book entitled "Life without God." In his writings, Coupland paints a picture of a world in which everyone makes their own rules, does whatever pleases them, and the pursuit of individual happiness becomes each person's "god." In fact, when Coupland wrote his thoughts the world was just beginning to see a new "god" rising like a golden calf before the people, it was called "Individualism." Its overriding philosophy was rooted in the belief that life is too short to spend it worrying about pleasing a God that cannot be seen when there was so much of God's handiwork around us to be enjoyed. The world began to say "Carpe Diem" or seize the moment and have fun.

Songwriters like Isaac Hayes wrote these lyrics in his hit song "Do your thing." "If there's something you wanna say, and talkin' is the only way, Rap on, oh, rap on Cause whatever you do, oh, you've got to do your thing

If you feel like you wanna scream cause that's your way of lettin' off Steam scream on, scream on

If you feel like you wanna sing cause singing is your thing sing on, sing on Cause whatever you do, you got to do your thing.

The Isley Brothers followed up with "It's your thing, do what you wanna do."

The trend became so noticeable that in 1966 Time Magazine's front cover had only three words, "Is God dead?" In the years that followed a trend toward lifestyles that said, "If it feels good, do it." The Joseph Schlitz Brewing Company used a slogan for its malt liquor "You only go around once in life, so grab all the gusto you can."

In comparison to the Pilgrims and early settlers who came to America with lives centered on some belief in God, today there are millions who are experimenting with or have adopted a lifestyle that assumes that God as a driving force in their lives, is dead. They are effectively living a life without God.

Of course, this idea of living without God is not new; it's been tried before. King Solomon wrote in Ecclesiastes 8:15 "A man hath no better thing under the sun than to eat, and to drink, and to be merry: for that shall abide with him of his labor the days of his life, which God giveth him under the sun." In his youth, Solomon thought there was nothing better to do in life than to eat, drink and be merry. Following this idea Solomon did not waste time on religion or forms of godliness, he jumped head first into chasing women. In fact, he had 300 wives and 700 concubines. He partied hard and had plenty of feasts. From time to time he mentioned God, but not religious devotion. In the end, Solomon found that without God life has no meaning, direction or purpose. He came to a conclusion in Ecclesiastes 12:13 that we should "Fear God and keep his commandments for this is the whole duty of man."

As Christians, we believe that it is impossible to live a morally purpose driven life without God. We believe the words of the songwriter who said "Without God, I could do nothing. Without God, I'd surely fail. Without God, my life would be drifting, like a ship without a sail."

Exposition

This text focuses on the children of Israel as they began to celebrate a new form of godliness in the absence of Moses.

Israel suffered over 400 years of slavery in Egypt and was delivered from bondage by a God they could not see, but they knew existed. He answered their prayer of deliverance and opened the waters of the Red Sea and allowed them to cross on dry ground. He also destroyed their national enemy, the Egyptians, by drowning them in that same sea.

Now at the foot of the Holy Mountain, Mt. Sinai, the people waited for Moses to return from his climb to the top and talk with God about the direction of their lives. Moses was an 80-year-old man climbing a very steep mountain. When he did not return after several weeks, many presumed that he died. Without Moses, there would be no word from God or punishments either.

Some decided that what they needed was a God of the present moment, not the God who brought them out of Egypt. They built a golden calf and celebrated the death of Moses and his God and exchanged if for a calf. That celebration would include eating and drinking in feasts before the new God and then rising afterward to "Play" or have fun.

At verse six the people sat down to eat and drink and followed it with orgies, parties, and drunkenness. All of this is described as "and rose to play."

Eventually, Moses came down from the mountain and condemned them for playing with their faith in God. He destroyed the golden calf and ground its powders into their drinking water.

He went back to God and asked forgiveness for their sin, and it was given.

The people were challenged to stand with God. Those who did were forgiven, those who did not were slain on the spot.

The Golden Calf

There are several thoughts we should consider from this text:

THE PEOPLE WERE WILLING TO PAY TO PLAY: The people were willing to pay heavily to participate in worship before the idol. Exodus 32:3 says, "And all the people brake off the golden earrings which were in their ears, and brought them unto Aaron." All of the gold they brought from Egypt was turned in for the sole purpose of gaining the right to play. God never requests everything, but this new God of fun, leisure, and individualism demanded more from the people, they gave their golden and even took the gold from their children. Today, it is interesting that many people are willing to pay for their play, but may frown upon giving to God. In fact, they often say they can't afford to give to God because of the rising cost of their play. Economists report that many households in America spend more than 20 percent of their income on leisurely pursuits or "playthings." A family that earns $1,000 per month spends about $200 or more on CD's, DVDs, CableTV, Netflix, Movies, Concerts, theme parks, and smartphones. It does not matter what it cost to play; we will find a way. Such a family might set aside: $100 for tithe, $300 for rent; $400 for utilities, transportation, insurance and basic landline phone. Play costs remain the same even though the family has bought no food, clothes or household maintenance items. Some will use their tithe and even borrow, but play costs will remain untouched. Malachi asked the question, "Will a man rob God?" and the answer for many is "Yes if it means losing my playthings." When Israel thought God was not a factor anymore, he was eliminated out of the equation, and they paid to play.

THE PEOPLE WANTED A GODLINESS THEY COULD SEE: The Israelites wanted a physical manifestation of God in front of them; one they could see, feel and touch. In Egypt they realized the benefit of God's presence, but they never saw him. They saw the Pillar of Cloud that guided them on their journey by day and the pillar of fire by night, but they did not see him. They saw the Red Sea rolled back, but they did not see him. When Moses stayed away for so long they lost focus. In Exodus 32:1 the people told Aaron, that they were not even sure that Moses was still alive, so they demanded that he would "make us gods that shall go before us." They wanted something they could see as proof that the gods were with them. Today, there is an equal demand from many people who want to see tangible proof that God is alive. If they pray, they want their prayers answered to the letter. If they live the Christian life they expect to prosper and have a nice house, car, and perfect health. They expect a special protection from all hurt, harm, danger and suffering. In their mind, this is physical evidence of God's blessing that they can see. Yet, God blesses them in many ways that often are unseen. He revives spirits, creates atmospheres of love, heals wounds, and answers prayers; none of which are usually seen. He is the same God today as he was in the past. He blesses, strengthens and renews continuously. We feel his presence every day, although we don't actually see his hand. Neither do we measure his presence by the number of visible things we can touch. "God is a spirit, and those who worship him, worship him in spirit and in truth."

He arose to pray

Finally, Brothers and sisters, out of a spirit of lost faith the people sat down to eat and arose to play, but Jesus in his last meal sat down to eat and rose to pray.

The Israelites, anticipating their new journey with the one God, rose to make sacrifices to many gods. In verse four they said, "make us gods" and verse four Aaron said, "these be thy gods" meaning they had abandoned their faith in one God who brought them forth in the past.

They arose to make sacrifices and then to eat, drink and play.

Even in the foolishness of the world, God is ready to forgive us, because he loves each one of us.

Matthew 26 shows us a striking contrast to Exodus 32. In Matthew 26 Jesus assembles his disciples in the upper room to share in a final fellowship with them. They all sat down to eat with him.

When the Israelites sat down to eat, they anticipated playing on tomorrow!

When he sat down to eat he anticipated that on tomorrow, that the eternal sacrifice would be made.

The Israelites were thinking about playing, but Jesus was thinking about paying; he would pay the cost of salvation.

We should always remember that "Our salvation is a free gift, but it was not free." Someone had to pay Someone had to pay for all of our drinking and gambling!

Someone had to pay for all of our adulterous acts!

Someone had to pay for our abuses and misuses!

Someone had to pay for our miscalculations and mistakes!

Unlike Israel when Jesus rose, he did not rise to play, but he arose to pay.

Maybe that's why songwriter wrote, "Jesus paid it all. All to him I owe!" Sin had left a crimson stain, but he washed it white as snow!"

Jesus sat down to eat with his disciples and told them that the bread would represent his body and that the wine would represent his spilled blood. He told them that as often as they shared in this supper, they would remember him and his sacrifice.

After the meal, Matthew 26:30 says, "They sang a hymn and went to the Mt. Olives." They sat down to eat and Jesus arose to pray.

His prayer in the garden was that his father would receive the work of hands.

His prayer was that the pain and agony that awaited him could somehow pass him by.

His prayer was that "this cup" would pass, but he said, "Never-the-less, not my will, but thy will be done."

When we arise, we should arise not to play, but to pray. Father let thy will be done!

We arise to pray because powerful things start to happen when we pray.

Prayer can take your failures and turn them into victories!

Prayer can take your blunders and turn them into blessings!

Prayer can take your fears and turn them into confidences!

Prayer can take your stumbling blocks and turn them into stepping stones!

Prayer can take your weaknesses and turn them into strength!

In Jesus' name, burdens have been lifted!

In Jesus' name, finances have been restored!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who arose early on Sunday morning!

Jesus didn't arise Sunday morning with "Play on his mind," but with Power in his hands!

No.9747-Inspiration

When a Bigot Meets the Lord

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 28, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "I verily thought with myself, that I ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jesus of Nazareth. Which thing I also did in Jerusalem: and many of the saints did I shut up in prison, having received authority from the chief priests; and when they were put to death, I gave my voice against them. And I punished them oft in every synagogue, and compelled them to blaspheme; and being exceedingly mad against them, I persecuted them even unto strange cities;" Acts 26:9-11; "And when we were all fallen to the earth, I heard a voice speaking unto me, and saying in the Hebrew tongue, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? it is hard for thee to kick against the pricks. And I said, Who art thou, Lord? And he said, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest." Acts 26:14-15

Introduction

Have you ever met a bigot? If you haven't you probably didn't recognize him or her because there are some shades of bigotry that defy discovery while other forms are easy to see. When we recognize a bigot, we point him out, but we become defensive if someone points out that we demonstrate bigotry ourselves.

In recent weeks there has been considerable debate about the subject of bigotry. One Presidential candidate calls another candidate a bigot only to be answered by counter charges. The issue continues as both candidates try to slap a larger label of "bigot" on the other.

What is a bigot? A bigot is a person who is strongly intolerant of anyone who has a different point of view of the world and treats those who are different with disdain. Their intolerance is usually based on the assumption that their view is the right view and that the presence, view or lifestyle of those who are different is bad for everyone.

We have seen bigotry in its many forms, especially with respect to the American government. The founding fathers of this nation believed God gave America to white people and, until amended, the Constitution counted Blacks as only three-fifths of a man. The Declaration of Independence, written by white men described Native Americans as "Merciless Indian Savages" and ignored women altogether. It was Andrew Jackson who took Native American lands and forced them to move to Florida and then gave their lands to slave owners in the South. Woodrow Wilson was a champion of the Ku Klux Klan and showed Klan movies in the White House. Lyndon Johnson created the modern welfare system that he said would ultimately re-enslave blacks and "tie niggers to the Democratic party for 200 years."

In the 2016 presidential race, Donald Trump and Hilliary Clinton are calling each other bigots. Clinton says Trump is a bigot because he wants to build a wall to keep illegal immigrants out of America, wants Muslims checked before entry and is supported by the Ku Klux Klan that dislikes both blacks and Latinos. Trump says Clinton is a closet bigot who is not as blunt as he is but is a bigot just the same because she and her husband posted their Clinton-Gore Presidential campaign banners against the backdrop of the Confederate Flag in the Southern States, she called Black youth "Superpredators" and when running against Barack Obama in 2008 she floated pictures of Obama dressed in Muslim clothes and appealed to "White Americans" to support her election. Each seems to be a case of the pot calling the kettle black.

Yet, bigotry is not the sole province of others because we have often shown intolerance to others and have been bigots ourselves. As a community, we often make racially tinged jokes about whites, Jews, and Mexicans. We paint with broad strokes and refer to all whites as racists, rail against all rich people and despise any blacks that we think are trying to speak like, dress like or act like them. Our bigotry goes further, many of us ridicule and ostracize gays, speak against blacks who move out of the hood and call each other derogatory names based on shades of skin color. White people have no monopoly on bigotry; African-Americans have our fair share of bigotry.

Bigotry works its way down to the school yard. Children make fun of other children who dress differently, speak or look differently. Often overweight students or those who have physical challenges are the objects of bigoted jokes, stares, and ostracism.

If bigotry is widespread, what happens when a person who espouses bigoted views meets the Lord? Is it possible for such a person to see the light? The answer to that question is best reflected in the life of John Newton, an avowed and bigoted slave trader who spent most of his life persecuting Africans and enslaving them. During a storm, he became ill and prayed to God for deliverance. That deliverance opened his eyes to the error of his ways, and he spent the rest of his life telling the story of his life as a bigot, slave trader and confessing the error of his ways. He wrote a song about it that has become the anthem of The African-American church, "Amazing Grace how sweet the sound that saved a wretch like me. I once was lost, but now I'm found, blind, but now I see."

As Christians, we have learned that when our bigotry and bias comes face to face with the Lord, the power of love will override our differences every time. We pray that God will open our eyes and those of the people who lead us, that we may see.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he testifies before King Agrippa about his life as a religious bigot and his conversion on the Damascus Road.

The Apostle Paul was perhaps the most famous Christian convert..

He was often jailed and persecuted for his belief in Christ. Ironically, while he was one of the most prominent proponents of the faith, there was a point in his life in which he was also one of its strongest enemies.

Chapters 25 and 26 of Acts give a picture of Paul standing before two important government leaders telling the story of his faith. In chapter 25 he stands before Festus. In Chapter 26 he is standing before Agrippa.

In the first 22 verses of the 26th chapter, he gives his personal testimony. In verses 4-11 he spelled how he was a Pharisee, a leader of the Jewish faith and dedicated to the destruction of the Christian movement, believing it to be a cult. He believed Christ was dead. He believed those who continued to speak and teach that he was alive were a danger to the Jewish faith. As a young rabbi, he worked hard to persecute every Christian he came in contact with, jailing them and persecuting them.

However, in verse12-13 he points to a deciding moment in his life when he came face to face with the truth. This is where he "saw a light."

In verses 14-18 he notes that he heard the voice of Jesus speaking to him challenging him to change his direction in life. In verses 19-21 he told them how he decided to obey the voice of God.

Shades of Bigotry

Jesus spent most of his adult life trying to break down walls that divide and to announce the acceptable year of the Lord. To reflect the teachings of Christ:

WE MUST STOP STUMBLING IN THE DARK: The Jews believed in one God and faithfully followed him. They loved anyone who was a Jew or embraced the Jewish faith and viewed everyone else as a "Gentile" or a person to be ostracized, avoided and rejected. It didn't matter if the Gentile was a great citizen, helped the poor and needy, and lived honorably; he was considered a sinner by the very fact that he was a non-believer. They prohibited their daughters from marrying gentiles and avoided business relations with them. They even prayed for their destruction.

These were the dark ages of the faith. It was a time when bigotry was openly displayed by the people. It was a bigotry so great that when Jonah was commanded by God to go to Ninevah to preach repentance to the Ninevites, he refused to go because of his dislike of Ninevites. It was only after three nights in the belly of a whale or great fish that he saw the light. Yet, his bigotry is noted. It was a time when Jesus was criticized for talking to a Samaritan woman at the well because there were bigoted ideas against women and Samaritans at the time.

Wars were fought with the Amorites, Jebusites, and Philistines all because they were not perceived to be persons favored by God. Their religion was the right religion; all others were against God and should be destroyed.

Their bigotry reached a point that they considered themselves righteous, but anyone who was not righteous did not deserve to live. The crowds found a woman about to be stoned who was an adulterer caught in the very act. The crowd of bigots held stones in their hands and were about to kill her when Jesus said, "He that is without sin among you, let him cast the first stone."

Today, there are many who believe their way of life is the right way, and all others are wrong. We may believe we are right, but we become bigots, stumbling in the dark, when we enforce our belief on others and treat them differently because they do not agree. We believe in the right to life, but we don't have the right to blow up abortion clinics or to persecute those who do not share our view. We believe that marriage is between a man or woman, but if we persecute those who do not share our view, we are stumbling in the dark. We believe that a family is composed of a mother, father, and children where possible, but we can't persecute those who do not share that view; if we do, that makes us bigots.

Stumbling in the dark, Paul persecuted Christians because he believed that they were an abomination to God. He worked to imprison them and to eliminate their teachings from the community. It was a period of darkness that did not change until he met the Lord.

WE MUST FIND COMMON GROUND: On the Damascus Road, Paul said he heard a voice and saw a light. Afterward, he submitted himself to the will of God, and his life was never the same. Bigotry will end in America when we reach a point in our lives when our eyes open to the fact that we are all God's children, and we need each other. The least known person is still important, despite his anonymity. The king needs the common man, and the common man needs the king. That is the driving point of the story of the Lion and the mouse. One day the mighty lion captured a little mouse who pleaded for his life and pledged to return the favor one day. The lion decided to humor the little mouse and let him go. Months later the lion was caught in a hunter's net and could not escape despite his power. Along came the little mouse who remembered the respect shown to him and he freed the lion by knawing away at the ropes until the Lion was free. The lion never suspected he would need the mouse one day.

Bigotry ends when we see each person as a child of God and that we need each other to survive. That's when Mr. Bigot learns after his hospital stay that his life was saved by both Native American and Black blood donors. That's when Miss Bigot learned that when her home was destroyed that the first people who helped her were the neighbors she called rednecks and peckerwoods. Bigotry ends when we can find common ground.

Common Ground is where we can look beyond our differences and focus on what we have in common. Bigotry thrives in segregation and separation. Bigotry grows with stereotypes and innuendoes. When we acknowledge the father of God and the brotherhood and sisterhood of all humankind, barriers begin to fall as we find common ground. When we hear a voice and see the light, it is easy for us to find common ground.

Meeting the Lord

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must recognize that viewpoints, opinions, and lives are changed when we meet the Lord.

Despite all of Saul's training and knowledge, he did not make a change, until he met the Lord.

Despite all of the political experience, contacts in the Jewish community and connections with Rome, his life did not change until he met the Lord.

On the Damascus Road, Saul saw the light and heard the voice of God for himself. He was never the same. It was his defining moment.

Defining moments come when everything he had learned, seen and heard merge at one time in a way that made everything crystal clear.

We know this feeling because we've had our own Damascus Road experiences. That was the point in life when you decided that "I must do something about my future."

It's the point when you decided "I can't go on like this, something must change!"

It's the point when your eyes open, and you see that "My present course is leading me toward disaster."

There on the Damascus Road, the Spirit of the Lord opens your eyes, and you experience the presence of God for yourself.

On the Damascus Road, the Lord gives you a new experience, a new song to sing, and a new testimony.

Travelers on the Damascus road sing, "I was sinking deep in sin, far from the peaceful shore. Very deeply stained within, seeking to rise no more. But the master of the sea, heard my despairing cry, from the waters lifted me now safe am I. Love lifted me."

When our problems, frustrations, and hang-ups meet the power of the cross, our entire lives change.

The power of the cross changes darkness into light!

The power of the cross takes my downs and turns them into ups

The power of the cross picks me up and turns me around again!

That's why the songwriter wrote, "At the cross at the cross where we first saw the light and the burdens of my heart rolled away. It was there by faith I received my sight, and now I'm happy all the day."

It's where Jesus died over 2000 years ago!

The cross reminds that he died on Calvary!

But every time we see it, it also reminds us that early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with all power in his hands.

No. 9748-Inspiration

The Rewards of Positive God Talk

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

September 4, 2016

SCRIPTURE: And they said one to another, Did not our heart burn within us, while he talked with us by the way, and while he opened to us the scriptures?" Luke 24:32

Introduction

Have you ever seen someone talking to themselves? What did you think? Have you ever talked to yourself? What did you think? It is not unusual to talk to yourself; in fact, psychiatrists have a term for it, "Intra-personal communication." Children and the elderly have a tendency to talk to themselves out loud. The rest of the world engages in self-talk, too, but usually, it is done privately or with inner voices.

There are various types of self-talk such as reciting a list of what you need to do or what you need to eat. Talking it out in our heads helps us to make decisions. If someone stumbles upon you while you are going over your list, you will respond, "I'm just thinking out loud" they think nothing of it and it passes. Secondly, we talk to ourselves when we are alone and talk out loud asking ourselves questions or laughing at our own jokes, especially when we did something stupid or silly. - No problem. A third way we talk to ourselves is when we are memorizing, like students who often walk to class reciting test information, formulas, and notes. Nobody cares. However, people get worried when they see you walking around talking to your imaginary best friend. We get especially worried when they imaginary person starts to talk back.

There are some people who talk to themselves because they are like the nutty professor who said he talked to himself because he had to talk to the only person in the world who knows what he's talking about!

While there are people who talk to themselves about all manner of things, there are others who have God talk. Those who engage in God talk usually talk about God, with God, and for God. They talk about God with great expectations; they talk with God with great humiliation and submission, and they talk about God with great passion and commitment. For the faithful, positive God talk has a remarkable effect on their ability to cope with the struggles of life and feel good about the eventual outcomes of life situations.

Other people see the scriptures that Christians recite and write them down as if they are magic verses that can be memorized and they will lead them to the same results as the faithful. That's when they learn that positive God talk only works for those who believe because all others won't recognize him when he talks back or shows up. It's like memorizing a shopping list of apples, bananas, and oranges and going to the store reciting the list repeatedly in your head. If you walk every isle in the store reciting the list precisely, you can return empty handed if you do not know apples, bananas, and oranges when you see them. You could be standing in front of them and not recognize them although you recited the list precisely. In the same sense, positive God talk only works for believers because they know how to recognize when God answers. They know what they are looking for.

In matters of faith, it's a good thing to talk to and engage in positive conversation with others about the greatness of God and how important He is to your life and family. It's talk about what God has done, how he has touched your life and opened your eyes to things that have always been there, but you have not seen. Privately, it is important to talk positive God talk to yourself to remind yourself of who you are to God and what is he to you. Positive God talk is contagious. As you talk about what God has done for you, your excitement sparks the interest of others who want the relationship you have found!

As Christians, we admit that we talk to ourselves about God all the time. We also admit that we talk to an invisible friend named Jesus and although it may seem crazy to others, he talks back. That's why we sing, "And he walks with me, and he talks with me, and he tells me I am his own. And the joy we share as we tarry there, none other has ever known."

Exposition

This text focuses on two men who were engaging in negative talk until Jesus showed them the beauty of positive God talk.

This text happens immediately after the crucifixion of Christ. Believers were hiding in shuttered houses, catacombs, and wooded areas. They were afraid and sad because of the death of Christ. These two men walked along the road and were joined by Christ in their walk, but they did not recognize him. Their entire conversation focused on the wrongness of the crucifixion, and about Christ's innocence.

They talked about the different ways that Christ was persecuted, hunted and falsely accused by lying witnesses. They talked about how Pilate found him innocent but allowed him to be crucified anyway.

Their talk focused on everything that went wrong. They focused on the trial, the religious leaders, the borrowed cross, the soldiers, and the mocking crowds crying crucify him. They believed Jesus to be a mighty prophet who died too soon. As they walked, Jesus flipped the conversation. At verse 25-26 he said, "O fools, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken: Ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into his glory?"

Beginning at verse 27 he started to show the positive side of the crucifixion, first that he had to happen to fulfill the scriptures. Secondly, the details of the death were gory, but they were necessary for the glory of Christ and the coming Kingdom of God. Think of the blood spilled as representing his New Testament. Think of his body as representing the living sacrifice needed for the forgiveness of sin.

After saying these things, Christ broke bread with them, and suddenly they recognized him; just as sudden as they saw his glorified person, he disappeared.

That's when the text verse was spoken, "And they said one to another, Did not our heart burn within us, while he talked with us by the way, and while he opened to us the scriptures?"

When Christ helped them see the situation in light of God's will, they understood things much better. They could see the big picture! They were excited. Their conversation changed. It was positive! It was constructive! It was believable!

Talking Positive

Believers who are working to build the kingdom of God should approach their labor with positive God talk. When that happens service in the kingdom is no longer seen as a tiresome, expensive task, but a spiritual adventure whose ultimate goal is the building of the kingdom of God. We all need to consider the following:

WHAT WE TALK ABOUT TO OTHERS FILTERS INTO OUR LIVES: What we say about our situations sets our focus and filters into our lives. No matter what happens to us, the way we talk about it determines how it will affect us. When your talk is positive, good things start to happen. If there is a storm and your home is destroyed, positive God talk praises God for life and asks for strength to pick up the pieces. When your talk is negative, you focus on your losses, the pain you feel, and the misery. Negative talk limits your recovery and limits your ability to rebound because you are making God wait until your pity party is over before he can help you. Jesus taught that you are to talk TO your problems and not ABOUT them.

It gets even worse when we talk about our problems with everyone. They join in your pity party and your problems take hold of your mind and take over the high ground. You go to sleep thinking about problems and wake up thinking about problems. Each time you talk ABOUT your problems they gain strength and you become weaker.

In Matthew 17:20 Jesus said, "..For verily I say unto you, If ye have faith as a grain of mustard-seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place, and it shall remove, and nothing shall be impossible unto you." He wasn't speaking of a literal mountain, but he was speaking about mountains of concerns. If we speak to our mountains in positive God talk, we say, "You will not defeat me. You will not Conquer me. I will not give up without a fight; God will help me in my battle!" If we fail to speak positively and focus on the negatives, we give the devil power over our situation. Positive God talk filters itself right into your life. Believe God's will, pray for God's will, speak faith in God's will, Receive God's will.

WHAT WE SAY TO OURSELVES SETS OUR DIRECTION: What we talk about to others has a lot to do with what we say to ourselves. Our self-talk is a reflection of what we believe about our relationship with God and what we mean to him. What does the believer say to himself constantly to avoid the frustrations and fears that cause others to stumble? The believer constantly reminds himself that he is a vehicle that God intends to use to build his kingdom and that as long as he allows himself to be used for that purpose, God will break every chain that binds him and open every door closed in his face.

I must remember God is the source of all of my talents and abilities. My ability to work hard and achieve high goals came from God. God put the desire and power to achieve my goals in my heart. All that I am or ever will be comes from God for the purpose of building his kingdom. As long as I am committed to his kingdom, anything I need to achieve that goal will be made available to me, one way or another. God's storehouse of blessings is full, and he who made the world and everything in it has plenty of resources to supply my needs. All I need to do is live a life dedicated to accomplishing his will and leave the rest up to God.

In Matthew 6:33 Jesus said, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness and all of these things shall be added unto you." That means I must set my mind on God's kingdom before everything else, and all the rest will come to me."

Here's the self-talk: "If I do my part, God will do his part. I don't need to worry about the future. God knows what I need, has what I need, and is ready to fill my cup until it overflows.

Here' more self-talk: "When I get in agreement with God and live according to his excellent plan, He opens the windows of heaven, and his blessings fall all around."

POSITIVE SCRIPTURE TALK REINFORCES OUR FAITH: Believers can use positive self-talk and to talk to others with positive God talk because the basis of their belief is in the written word of God. They trust God's word and accept it as the guiding principle of their lives. Believers understand God and how he works and constantly remind themselves of how he works through remembering what they have learned about him and what he has promised to do for them if they live according to his will. When a believer quotes scripture, it is not a magic verse that is supposed to make things happen; it is a reminder of what he has promised and what they have promised him. There are many in the world that live outside of the will of God and quote scriptures expecting results. Believers quote scriptures, but we don't expect results that we prescribe, we expect God's will for us to to be done.

Scriptures from the Bible are short versions of what we have learned to trust about God. They remind us to do our part so that God can do his part and accomplish things we cannot do by ourselves.

When we face opposition trying to do God's work, there is positive Scripture talk: Romans 8:31 " .. If God be for us, who can be against us?"

When our chances of succeeding are small because so many are against us, therein is the need for positive scripture talk: 2 Chronicles 20:15 " ..Be not afraid nor dismayed by reason of this great multitude; for the battle is not yours, but God's."

When we get tired and weary after dealing with our situation for such a long time, there is positive scripture talk: Isaiah 40:31 "But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint.

Nothing but the Lord

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must be ready to lift God up and praise him, because when we talk God up, we talk Satan down!

The men on the Emmaus Road started out talking about how bad things were, but after they had a talk with the resurrected Lord they had nothing but positive God talk!

They did not focus on the crucifixion, but on the resurrection!

They did not focus on the negative words of the crowd, but on Christ saying, "Father forgive them for they know not what they do."

They did not focus on the crucifixion day, but talked about Sunday morning!

That's why good Baptists never leave a worship without reminding themselves about Sunday morning.

Every time we think about that Sunday morning, we are reminded that he lives. As long as Christ is alive, we know we can make it because he has all power in his hands.

When God has moved in your life, it's a good idea to fill your mind and heart with positive God talk.

Talk about the wonderful things he has done in your life.

We must talk about the confidence he inspires in us!

We must talk about the strength he renews in us

We must talk about the hope he stirs in us!

Even when life tests us, and things get a little rough, we still should have positive God talk and say, "I know the Lord will make a way somehow."

When the Lord has picked you up and turned you around, and planted your feet on solid ground, you got to tell somebody!

Tell them in the old fashioned way, "It wasn't nothing but the Lord, chile! It wasn't nothing but the Lord!"

It wasn't nothing but the Lord who snatched me out of the mouth of death and gave me a few more years!

It wasn't nothing but the Lord who lifted me from a life of sin and gave me another chance!"

It wasn't nothing but the Lord who heard my prayer in the middle of the night!

I don't have nothing bad to say about him because "One day when I was lost he died upon a cross!"

He died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands.

That's what I'm talking 'bout!

No. 9749-Grandparents

The Three R's of Grandparenting

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

September 11, 2016

SCRIPTURE: And Naomi took the child, and laid it in her bosom, and became nurse unto it. And the women her neighbours gave it a name, saying, There is a son born to Naomi; and they called his name Obed: he is the father of Jesse, the father of David." Ruth 4:16-17

Introduction

There was a time when all anyone had to learn in school were the three R's. Do you remember them? They were: Reading, Riting and Rithmetic. These were the essential things that anyone who lived on the farm or in the rural South needed to manage their affairs sufficiently. Three R's were considered the basics that any person needed to get by in the agricultural south; there were never any plans for life when more than the three R's were necessary.

Today, times are different. We need more than the Three R's. No one can function well in today's electronic era filled with smart phones, online banking, email, texting and online transfers. Life is so complicated that a high school education is now considered the Three R's, the "Raw Requirements for Regular living."- A high school education what is needed just to survive, whereas it was once considered an admirable termination point for many. The demands of the times have changed what we call basic.

Parenting is changing to meet today's fast-paced world. Time is a premium and quality is often sacrificed. Time to talk is a premium because of the demands of an extended workday and the competition with cell phones, television, and other electronics. Instant grits and oatmeal have replaced the 15-minute kind. Showers have replaced baths, microwaves are increasingly replacing stoves and day care centers are becoming the nannies of the next generation. As parenting changes, however, the basic expectations of grandparents have not changed. The Three R's of grandparenting remain the same: Roots, Relationships, and Reverence. There may be more, but these three are the Three R's, the very basics for all grandparents.

As Christians, we praise God for grandparents and for the gift of grandchildren. Our prayer is for long life, health and strength to continue living the three R's in their presence.

Exposition

This text focuses on the influence of a grandmother that changed the course of biblical history.

The central characters in the text are Naomi and Ruth.

Naomi married a Jewish man. The couple had two sons. When the land fell on hard times, the family moved into the land of Moab because it had been reported that there was plenty of food there. In the course of 10 years, both of Naomi's sons died leaving only their widows who were natives of the land and Naomi herself. One of her daughters in law, Ruth, refused to return to Moab. She stood by the older woman, pledging to stand with her, go with her and to learn from her. "Your people shall be my people, and your God shall be my God."

Naomi was frustrated because both her sons died and left her with no grandchildren, and no heirs and Ruth with no husband.

The women of the community looked at Naomi with pity because she had no grandchildren, but Naomi arranged for Ruth to meet and marry Boaz. When Boaz and Ruth bore their first son, it legally became the grandson of Naomi.

The women of the community came out to celebrate the birth of the child.

The women did not celebrate the mother, Ruth; they celebrated the grandmother. Yet, they celebrated the fact that Naomi had an heir and was not a grandmother

Ruth and Boaz were quickly moved to the background and were never mentioned again. All through the book, their romance was the central theme of the book. However, after the marriage and the child was born the grandmother became the focus of attention. It was as if the people walked in smiled at Ruth, picked up the baby and hugged the grandmother leaving the mom and pop scratching their heads. In fact, after the child is born, Ruth is never mentioned again, only Naomi and the grandchild.

Look at the way the passage reads, "And the women said unto Naomi, Blessed be the Lord, which hath not left thee this day without a kinsman, that his name may be famous in Israel. And he shall be unto thee a restorer of thy life, and a nourisher of thine old age: for thy daughter in law, which loveth thee, which is better to thee than seven sons, hath born him. And Naomi took the child, and laid it in her bosom, and became a nurse unto it. And the women her neighbors gave it a name, saying, There is a son born to Naomi; and they called his name Obed: he is the father of Jesse, the father of David.

Naomi's life work would be to serve as the great-grandmother to King David, the greatest king of Israel. The book of Ruth exists because it tells the story of the grandparents and great-grandparents of David, the great king of God's people.

Long after Naomi left the earth, a child would be born in Bethlehem, who would save his people.

As a grandmother, Naomi guided Ruth and used the Three R's to nurture her grandson to have the qualities that God could use for his purpose.

The Three R's

Naomi's role as a grandmother challenges us to revisit the Three R's of grandparenting for today's generation. They begin with:

Knowing Family Roots

The book of Ruth traces the roots of King David the King of Israel, and it does so by focusing on the lives of the grandparents. The first 17 verses of Matthew 1 cite a long history of grandparents, great grandparents and great-great grandparents whose life work paved the way for the coming of Joseph, the husband of Mary. Joseph's father was named Jacob; he acted like a grandfather for Jesus. Matthew 3:23 tells about the grandparents of Mary (Although Mary's name is not used, but her husband's). Her father was named "Heli." The two books make it clear that there was a grandparent presence in the life of Christ and should be in the life of every family.

Paul wrote two letters called I and II Timothy. He acknowledged that Timothy's Christian faith had its roots in his grandmother. Paul tells it clearly in II Tim. 1:5-" When I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and thy mother Eunice; and I am persuaded that is in thee also."

Christian grandparents give their grandchildren deep roots with the assumption that what they say to them today will plant seeds for the lives they will live tomorrow.

Consider the little boy who grew up in the only house in his subdivision that had trees. His family lived in the area for several generations and trees of all kinds surrounded his house. All of the other houses had small shrubs, pretty grass but they had no trees. In the summer, the boy enjoyed the shade of the big trees that were almost 75 years old and climbed high in their limbs. On his 13th birthday, the boy's father came home with a small seedling in his hand and took him by hand in the yard. When questioned his father said, "It is the family tradition for every child on his or her 13th birthday to plant a seedling in the yard.â•• How long will it take for this tree to get tall enough for me to climb?" asked the boy "About 50 years." Came the answer. "I'll be too old to climb it then," said the boy. "We have trees around this house because your great-grandparents came here on their 13th birthday and planted the first tree. The tree you are about to plant is not for you to climb, it's to provide shade for your great-grandchildren."

As parents, we are not always able to spot the qualities of previous generations in our children. However, as grandparents, we see a little of Grandpa in that smart but free spirited grandson. We see a lot of great grandma in the daughter who is highly industrious and proud. Grandparents can also see the flaws because they know the family roots and they earnestly work to prevent a reoccurrence of a grandfather's failure in a grandson, or a grandmother's weakness in a great-granddaughter.

The first "R" of grandparenting is important, it is by this means that grandchildren know their roots.

The Need for Relationships

Naomi built a relationship with Ruth. A relationship implies a back and forth or interaction between entities. Dale Evans-Rogers wrote a lot about her 16 grandchildren, and her advice is, if you want to establish a warm bond with your grandchildren have a few days when you are alone with your grandchildren without the parents.

According to Evans, the relationship of grandparents and grandchildren is like the period of courtship, whereas that of parents and children is more like that of marriage. The first is more dominated by fun, and the second by responsibility, and that is a major reason why there is a different psychology at work.

Grandparents are people too, but grandchildren will never know that unless there is a relationship between them. Believe it or not, grandparents were once young, but life didn't stop because you were born and they were suddenly grandparents. Relationships are needed to understand better and appreciate grandparents.

Grandchildren need private time with grandparents, without the parents around, so they can build relationships that teach them how to live as well. When relationships are built children learn that grandpa can tell the funniest stories. He learns that grandma can sing; that the two of them can dance, tell jokes, and laugh until they cry. They also learn that grandma and grandpa still go on dates and enjoy romance! Relationships help grandchildren to learn the one important truth they need to know about life; how to live a fruitful life.

Reverence

Finally, brothers and sisters, there is an "R" that we learn from godly grandparents, and that is reverence.

Whether grandparents know it or not, they have more influence on their grandchildren than their children. Grandchildren are drawn to their grandmothers and grandpas. One of the qualities they learn from them is reverence to God.

One granddaughter told her Sunday School teacher that her grandmother has a boyfriend she talks to on the side. Surprised the teacher listened for more. "They have a thing going on." Said the Little girl. I've never seen him, but I know he's there because I've heard her talking to him. One day she planted a garden, and she talked to him, and everything grew. She planned a Thanksgiving meal and invited him to come, I didn't see him, but he must have helped because she kept thanking him. She talked to him about my grades in school, and they changed." The teacher asked,

"What's this boyfriend's name?" The girl answered, "I don't know his first name, but I know it starts with D. his last name is Lord. Grandma kept saying D-Lord will provide.

D-Lord will make a way. D-Lord will bless. My grandma and D-Lord got a thing going on!"

Every Godly Grandparent has a thing going on with D-Lord!

This so because those who have experienced life in all of its shades and nuances, seem to know the Lord best. Often for their sake, we are blessed.

Those who have weathered the storm know the power of the Lord. Often, for their sake, we are blessed.

Those who have soaked their pillows with tears, wrestling with the tragedies of life, have learned that "weeping endures but a night, but joy cometh in the morning!"

Often for their sake, we are blessed. Just as we are blessed because of our grandparents, we are also saved because of the Grace of God.

Grandparents know that it is nothing but the grace of God that saves us and raises us every day!

Ask any grandparent, and they'll tell you...God is able!

God is able to take our:

-BURDENS and make them light; DISAPPOINTMENTS and give us renewed hope!

-FRUSTRATIONS and give us encouragement; DOUBTS and give us confidence!

-WEAKNESSES and give us strength; FEARS and give us courage!

Those who have walked the Christian journey can testify that God is a prayer answering God. They sing with confidence the words of the old hymn, "I know the Lord will answer prayer, for I tried him for myself!"

Every godly grandparent needs to keep telling the story!

Tell your grandchildren about the goodness of the Lord!

Tell your grandchildren that they must know the Lord for themselves!

Tell them about Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Tell them how early Sunday morning he arose from the grave!

Tell them in the morning!

Tell them in the evening!

Tell them in the midnight hour!

Tell them no matter what comes their way...God is able!

No. 9750-Communion

And When I see the blood

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

September 18, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "Now the blood shall be a sign for you on the houses where you are. And when I see the blood, I will pass over you; and the plague shall not be on you to destroy you when I strike the land of Egypt. So this day shall be to you a memorial; and you shall keep it as a feast to the Lord throughout your generations." (Exodus 12:13-14)

Introduction

Have you ever seen a person put ketchup on everything? Ketchup is a universal condiment that seems to satisfy the taste buds of millions from one extreme to the other.

How do I love my ketchup, let me count the ways? Many love ketchup on French Fries and other fried foods such as chicken, fish or beef. However, there are many Southerners who put ketchup on rice, greens, grits and scrambled eggs. There are those who even apply a heaping squirt of ketchup onto corn flakes and oatmeal. It appears that many people have the attitude that if they put ketchup on everything thing, it makes it better.

Nearly every household has a bottle of ketchup in the cabinet, but there was a time when ketchup was toxic. The stuff was deadly because it contained, mixtures of beer, mushroom and salted fermented anchovies. They didn't use tomatoes because until 1834 it was thought that tomatoes were poisonous, but after that, tomatoes were added to the mix. A problem developed because the stuff they had in the bottles decomposed and had a putrid smell and taste. To solve the problem in the late 1800's they put preservatives in the bottles to keep the stuff from dying, but it turned yellow instead of red. To make it even worse, they added coal tar to the mix, but it caught fire in skillets and caused poisonous reactions.

By 1906 Henry J. Heinz perfected a way to preserve the ketchup, killed varmints in it, and keep the color red. To reassure the public that it wouldn't kill them he put his ketchup in clear bottles so the public could see that it was red and not yellow. Today his company sells over 650 million bottles of ketchup every year.

It seems that around the world everyone loves to put ketchup on it.

We want to put ketchup on it, so we wait until it pours, we shake it, turn it upsides down, squeeze and thump it. We want it because when you put ketchup on it, it makes things taste better.

However, Ketchup has its limits. Simply putting ketchup on everything won't solve every problem.

When it comes to covering our sins, strengthening our faith, and reinforcing our hope, ketchup won't do; we have to put the blood of Jesus on it! It's not in a bottle; it comes from the cross!

As Christians, we are pleased to know that our sins are covered by the blood of Jesus. We are also pleased to know that when life presents us with all of its tough situations that the faithful stand strong because we are covered by the blood of Christ.

Exposition

This text focuses on God's instruction to Israel that they should decorate the doorposts of their homes with the blood of a lamb and be ready.

This text occurs on the eve of their deliverance from Egypt.

They were ordered to kill a lamb and to prepare it for eating with bitter herbs. They were also ordered to take the blood of the lamb and use it to paint the exterior doorposts of their homes. This would be a sign to God's death angel to spare anyone on the inside of that home from the death of the firstborn, which was the 10th and final plague against Egypt.

God told the people, "Now the blood shall be a sign for you on the houses where you are. And when I see the blood, I will pass over you; and the plague shall not be on you to destroy you when I strike the land of Egypt. So this day shall be to you a memorial, and you shall keep it as a feast to the Lord throughout your generations." (Exodus 12:13-14)

As promised, the death angel came. Each home that had the blood-stained exteriors were saved. Those without this peculiar application of blood on their door posts suffered the death of their firstborn, whether they were Israelites or not.

The blood indemnified those under its covering from the death angel. After the Egyptian experience, blood sacrifice became synonymous to forgiveness, deliverance, blessing and a God provided future.

When John the Baptist at the Baptism of Jesus announced in John 1:29, "Behold the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world." Everyone understood the implication of his words, but the could not perceive Jesus as the sacrifice for the sins of the world. Through the shedding of his blood, Christ would take away the sins of the world and would also address human failure and all forms of bondage.

In essence, whether it is a life of sin or a life of turmoil caused by repetitious and troubling events, the blood of Jesus is the remedy that saves the lost and raises those in spiritual bondage to new heights and plateaus.

Pleading the blood

There is a phrase used in religious circles called "Pleading the blood of Christ." It is a phrase we use to summarize our hope and faith that the blood of Christ will do for us what it did for Israel at the first Passover. To plead the blood of Jesus means that we turn a matter that is beyond us over to God and cover it with the saving, raising and empowering blood of Jesus. We are strengthened by words of the text... "And when I see the blood" knowing that God will respond in his own way and time.

Saying the words "I plead the blood of Christ" is not a magic formula that calls down the angels of heaven to instantly solve a problem. To plead the blood of Christ, we must turn a situation over to a power greater than our own and remove ourselves from the solution. To plead the blood of Jesus is an act of faith we serve a Savior whose blood on Calvary was sufficient to save us from our sins, deliver us and deal with our various challenges. The blood of Jesus neutralized death by removing its sting and robbed the grave of its power. It also raised the hopes and spirits of the saints who had given up. For all practical purposes, the blood of Christ gives strength to those who have fallen because of the weakness of the flesh, and it stands guard over the souls of the faithful when tempted to fall into hellish activity.

It is not the words themselves that turn situations, but our willingness to put everything in God's hands. One songwriter said, "I put it all in his hands; I put it all in his hands. This and that, I put it all in his hands."

Plead the blood for Protection

The blood provided protection for the faithful. The Israelites were told to get a spotless lamb and to keep it in the house for four days. On the day of their deliverance, they were to kill the lamb, but take its blood and paint their doorposts. Their deliverance would require dealings with others. For the Egyptians, it would mean the death of their firstborn sons. This act was not an act of vengeance by God. It was necessary to bring two million people out of slavery. It was not to be celebrated but memorialized. Therefore the people were told to roast the lamb and season it with bitter herbs. They were told eat the entire lamb and leave nothing: its lung, heart, head, feet, ears. Exodus 12:9 says, "but roast with fire; his head with his legs, and with the purtenance thereof." The word purtenance refers to an animal's internal organs. Any scraps or bones were to be burned before morning.

Even today, as believers pray for God's protection, we must be willing to prepare ourselves for whatever acts he may cause to happen. We have no way to know how God will act or move in our daily lives, but if protecting us means defeating others, it should not be a cause for celebration. It is a bitter experience. Like Israel, we should prepare ourselves spiritually through fasting and prayer. We should also submit ourselves to his will and be prepared to do whatever is necessary in response to his will.

If we want to be covered by the blood of Jesus, we should accept his redemptive power, his saving power as well as his protective power. It's all or none.

Plead the blood for Deliverance

The Israelites sought the blood of the lamb to be delivered from their bondage. Pharaoh had them under a heavy burden that had stripped them of their humanity and enslaved them for over 400 years. In one night because of the power of God they were released. The power of God accomplished what military,might, diplomacy and negotiation could not do. The blood over their doorposts marked a, home preparing for deliverance.

Those who celebrate the Lord's Supper today, also celebrate an anticipated deliverance for situations that have kept us in bondage.

There are many today who can testify that only the power of God delivered them from drugs, drunkenness, lawlessness and wild and wasteful living. They tried step programs, patches, and group sessions, but nothing seemed to work until they put the blood of Jesus on their weakness. Maybe that's why the songwriter declared, "My hope Is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame but wholly lean on Jesus' name."

We plead the blood of Jesus on wayward children who seem bent on destruction

We plead the blood of Jesus on a spirit of lawlessness that is causing death and destruction across our nation!

We plead the blood of Jesus on every act of Satan, "I dare not trust the sweetest frame, but wholly lean on Jesus' name. On Christ the Solid rock I stand, all other ground is sinking sand.

Plead the Blood, Expect the Promise

When Israel placed the blood over the doorposts of their houses, they did so expecting God's promise to be real in their lives. In Exodus 12: 2 God said, "This month shall be your beginning of months; it shall be the first month of the year to you." In essence, you will get a chance to start fresh, free from the burdens that have held you down for years. The day after they placed the blood over their doors their lives changed. That next day became the day by which they measured all others.

In a similar sense, the day that a believer turns a situation over to God and decides to let him handle it a burden is lifted off his shoulder.

Like Israel, you may be right now at what seems to be the end of your hope and strength. But when you apply the blood or power of God to your circumstance, you receive a divine promise, just as it came to Israel so long ago: this will be the beginning of days to you. In addition to protection and deliverance, there's fresh hope in the Blood.

And When I see the blood

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must be aware that powerful things happen in our lives when God sees the blood.

When Israel painted the door posts of their houses, they announced to heaven that we have obeyed your command, we have prepared our hearts, and we are ready for the promise.

When we plead the blood of Jesus over a situation, we are painting the door posts of our hearts, and we are prepared to move at God's command.

We plead the blood of Jesus because we know that there is transforming power in the blood of Christ.

Only the blood can transform a nobody into a somebody!

Ask Matthew, and he will tell you that only the blood can transform a tax collector into a Missionary!

Ask Peter, and he will tell you that only the blood can take a man off the fish pond and make him a fisher of men!

Ask Paul, and he will tell you that only the blood can take a persecutor of the church and transform him into a perpetrator of the kingdom of God!

Ask the woman at the well, and she will tell you that only the blood can transform a life so much that she would run through the streets saying, "Come see a man who told me all I've ever done!"

God told Israel to prepare for deliverance. To prepare they were told what they needed to do and when that was done they were told to wait and see the salvation of the Lord.

Today, if we want to prepare to ask God for a blessing and want to cover a situation with the blood of Christ, we need to do a few things first.

We need to put a little ketchup on a few things.

We need to ketchup on the way we live, recognizing that any man who is in Christ is a new Creature, old things are passed away, and all things become new.

We need to ketchup on our daily walk, recognizing that the steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord.

We need to ketchup on our giving, recognizing that if we bring our tithes into the storehouse, God will open up the windows for us.

We need to ketchup on our praying because prayer is the key to the kingdom and faith unlocks the door.

We need to ketchup on our study of the word because we are commanded to study to show thyself approved a workman that needed not be ashamed!

We need to ketchup on our praise because God has been good to us and is worthy to be praised.

When all of our ketchups have caught up, get ready because God told Israel, "When I see the blood I will pass over you."

When I see the blood, I'll take your unsettled spirit and give you comfort

When I see the blood, I'll take your defeat and give you the victory!

When I see the blood, I'll take your bowed down head and lift it up high!

When I see the blood, I'll take your spiritual blindness and help you see your way!

There are some things in this world that we cannot attain without the blood.

The songwriter asked the question, "What can wash away my sins?" Then he answered what every born again Christian already knows, its "Nothing but the blood of Jesus!" What can make me whole again? Nothing but the blood of Jesus! Oh precious is the flow that makes me white as snow, nothing but the blood of Jesus!

When you've been washed in the blood, you can sing with new meaning, "I know it was the blood. I know it was the blood that saved me."

I know it was the blood that took my hatred and turned it into love!
I know it was the blood that took my despair and turned it into hope!
I know it was the blood that took my disgrace and turned it into honor!
I know it was the blood that took my enemies and turned them into friends!
I know it was the blood that took my worries and turned them into confidence!
One day when I was lost, he died!
He died upon a cross! I know it was the blood that saved me!
He died to give me a chance to turn my life around!
He died to give me a chance to get a clean start!
But early Sunday morning he arose, to guarantee my salvation!

No. 9751-Inspiration

Heavy Pots in Holy Hands

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

September 29, 2016

SCRIPTURE:"I removed his shoulder from the burden: his hands were delivered from the pots. Thou calledst in trouble, and I delivered thee; I answered thee in the secret place of thunder: I proved thee at the waters of Meribah. Selah. Hear, O my people, and I will testify unto thee:O Israel, if thou wilt hearken unto me; There shall no strange god be in thee; neither shalt thou worship any strange god. I am the Lord thy God, which brought thee out of the land of Egypt: open thy mouth wide, and I will fill it. Psalm 81:6-10.

Introduction

Are you serious when you get in the kitchen? There are millions who are so serious about their kitchens that they approach their cooking areas with a sense of reverence. It's what Jacob Neusner calls "A religion of pots and pans." To these select people, every utensil in the kitchen has a special purpose and place. They seriously work to ensure that their cooking ideas are not stolen, their utensils are top grade and confidences are not betrayed.

The pots and the pans in the kitchen, to those dedicated to the culinary arts, are not just any pots, but they are instruments by which they blend the elements of creation in ways that help them reach the world with a touch of godly flavor. What they cook in the pots of their kitchens parallels what they feel in their hearts.

While most of us just grab a pot to boil water or brew up our favorite recipe, there are others who labor in stores to find the right pot, pan, or skillet to suit their purposes. We don't mind if we have burned the pot a little or have scorched it; but to the faithful who step into the realm of pots, pans, and boilers; a pot is not just a pot.

In many ways, pots are like people. Just as each person has a talent and a purpose so does every pot. In fact, if we studied pots closely there is a lot we can learn about human nature that is hidden in the pots.

PRESSURE COOKER: A pressure cooker builds up a head of steam quickly and can blow up in your face if there is no way for it to blow off steam. There are pressure cooker people who blow up on anyone near them when they are under pressure.

CROCK POT: A crock pot does not get very hot, but cooks food slowly over a long period of time. It never blows, is always certain to get the job done. Crock Pot people are deliberative. They are slow to take offense or blow up and usually think things through.

SAUCE PAN: A sauce pan is actually a pot with a long handle. It cooks things fast and is usually used to stir and pour from one container to another. Because it gets hot fast, it has a long handle. Sauce Pan people usually stir up stuff and then pour it out on you and about you. You must deal with saucepan people with a long handle, or they will scald you.

DUTCH OVEN: Is often a thick cast iron pot that is built to cook like a pot or bake like an oven. It redistributes whatever heat it receives to achieve its purpose. If you sit it on the fire, it fries, simmers or boils. If you put heat on its top, it will bake. It can handle the heat. Dutch oven people have thick skins, their feelings are not easy to hurt and can take the heat of any situation.

BOILER: A heats up its contents, like a saucepan, but it doesn't have much room for stirring things and its handle is not as long, but it gets hot fast. A double boiler is two boilers, but one keeps the other from cooking too fast. Double boiler people come in pairs. One keeps the other in check, but separate them, and one might scorch something.

Every pot in the kitchen has a purpose. The good chef knows when, where and how it should be used; just what it can do and how much fire it can take. That's the way the good Lord is with every believer. He knows us inside and out. Psalms 139:2 says, "Thou knowest my downsitting and mine uprising, thou understandest my thought afar off."

As Christians, we are encouraged to know us that our God knows us just like a good cook knows the strengths and weaknesses of every pot and pan in her kitchen. He knows how much we can bear.

Exposition

This text focuses on David as he records a truth about God's ability to lift heavy loads.

As the people of Israel prepared to celebrate their liberation from Egypt, they were told to remember their burdens in Egypt and how God liberated them from those burdens. Psalm 81 is a Psalm of remembrance and encouragement.

The first five verses remind the people that they should sing and shout about God's intervention in their lives even back as far as the time of Joseph when he moved to bring them into Egypt.

At verse six he calls on the people to remember how he lifted burdens from their shoulders in Egypt and lightened their load. In Egypt, they carried heavy baskets, and pots filled with mud to make clay, Both the baskets and the pots were burdens that proved heavier as the years passed.

God said he lifted their "pots" or their burdens. This is a fact he wanted them to remember. In verse seven he reminded them how they called him when they were in trouble, and he answered them from heaven or the "secret place of thunder." At Meribah, the people complained that they had no water, and God provided for them.

God announced to the people that he has always responded to their needs and does not want them to even consider the strange gods that will be presented to them in a tough situation. He said, all they needed to do was, "open thy mouth and I will fill it."

Burden Lifter

The 81st Psalm presents God as a burden lifter. Burdens are depicted as heavy pots that he has lifted before and will do again if we trust him. If burdens are like pots, if we look at them closely we can see what kind of effect they have on us.

HEAVY POTS HAVE TWO HANDLES: Most heavy pots have two handles; they demand our full attention. Whenever a person labors under a heavy burden, it demands their full attention. It is difficult to focus on anything else because burdens consume all of our energy and strength. Heavy burdens tie up our hands so much that we can do little else. What's in your pot? Financial problems? Health concerns? Family issues? Marriage or relationship? Burdens such as these often demand our full attention. They require both hands. Christ offers believers a solution. He invites us to come to the cross and bring your burdens to him, and he will free your mind and soul. The songwriter wrote: "At the cross, at the cross, where I first saw the light and the burdens of my heart roll away. It was there by faith I received my sight, and now I am happy all the day!"

HEAVY POTS ARE CARRIED IN FRONT: If you are moving a heavy pot, it is always moved in front of you never behind you. It is always visible, and you never let it out of your sight; not for a second. Heavy burdens consume your thoughts and even your dreams at night. Since we can't get them out of our collective mind, we constantly focus on them, until we discover that it is much easier to bear burdens if we take them to the Lord. Our God is a burden bearer and a heavy load lifter. No matter how heavy your pot he can help you deal with it. The songwriter said, "If the world from you withhold of its silver and its gold; and you have to get along with meager fare. Just remember in his word how he feeds the little bird, take your burdens to the Lord and leave it there."

EVEN LIGHT POTS GET HEAVY OVER TIME: Some pots are heavy because they are big and filled with stock, but even a light pot can get heavy if we hold it long enough. If you took a small boiler and put a teaspoon of water it in and held it out from you; it would be light at first, but that teaspoon full of water would get heavy after a while. The longer you deal with even a small burden, the heavier it gets. It could be something as small as the remote control not working on the TV or the battery constantly failing in your car. They are small in the scheme of things, but they become a burden if you have to deal with it over time. The longer you deal with it; it becomes a heavier burden. The problem didn't get any bigger, but your ability to deal with it weakened. That's why Isaiah promised in Isaiah 40:31 that "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength. They shall mount up on wings as eagles. They shall run and not get weary. Walk and not faint." Renewed strength is your ability to deal with the small things that burden you daily. Renewed strength is your ability to keep holding on when the small matters of life seem to reoccur so often that they frustrate you. Renewed Strength is what you get when you talk to God in prayer. The songwriter said, "I met God one morning. Soul feeling bad. Heart heaven laden with a bowed down head. He lift my burdens and made me so glad. All that I know there was something within."

Heavy Pots, Holy Hands

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that even the heaviest pots get lighter when we put them in the hands of the Lord.

Israel faced many frustrating moments in their national journey, but their burdens became lighter each time they put them in the hands of the Lord.

It did not matter how big the problem, God took care of it. If they needed liberation from slavery in Egypt, God took care of it. He told them to simply open their mouths, and he would fill them.

While it may appear at times that God ignores us, we must remember that God knows about the heavy pot of burdens and concerns that we are carrying. God knows about our illnesses. He knows about our financial problems. He knows about the problems in our marriage that we have not shared with anyone. He knows about the spiritual war that is going on inside of us. He knows about the frustration that some feel about their jobs. He knows about the secret fears that some have about aging and facing the prospect of death. Though these fears have not been shared with a soul, God knows! Not only does God know, but he cares. Maybe that's what Roberta Martin had in mind when she wrote the words, "Though the load gets heavy you're never left alone to bear it all. Ask for strength and keep on toiling, though the tear drops fall. You have the joy of this assurance. The heavenly Father will always answer prayer, and he knows, yes he knows, just how much you can bear!"

In 2 Kings 4:1-6, a widow woman had lost her son to creditors to pay her late husband's debts. She had no means of support and had only one pot of oil. She had something, but it was not enough because her pot of oil was so small. She was then ordered to find as many pots as she could. She was encouraged to go to her neighbors and friends and borrow pots, pans, bowls and anything that could hold something. She was expressly told not to have just a few pots but to get as many as she could find. The woman had no idea what was happening. It was not explained why she was being asked to gather so many vessels, she simply did everything she was asked. She and her sons gathered vessels until there were no more. Elisha closed the door and ordered the pots filled with oil from the one pot the woman had. As they went from pot to pop the oil never stopped flowing. As long as there was an empty pot, the oil kept flowing. When there was nothing else to receive oil, then the miraculous flow of oil ceased.

That tells me that if you believe God can make a way, then put out your pot.

If you believe God can heal your sickness, put out your pot!

If you believe God can deal with your troubled relationship, put out your pot!

If you believe God can deal with your financial situation, put out your pot!

If you believe God can turn your life around and give you a second chance, put out your pot!

If you believe God can open doors of opportunity that have been closed in your face, put out your pot!

If you have a heavy pot, then put it in Holy Hands!

If you have an empty pot, then put it in Holy Hands!

With Holy hands, God takes our darkness and turns it into light;

With Holy hands, God takes our burdens and turns them into blessings

With Holy hands, God takes our sorrows and turns them into joy;

With Holy hands, God takes our misery and turns it into glory;

With Holy hands, God takes our desperation and turns it into hope;

With Holy hands, God takes our defeat and turns it into victory!

With Holy hands, God takes our sadness and turns it into gladness!

The same hands that were nailed to an old rugged cross!

The same hands that were raised early Sunday morning as he arose with "All Power in his hands!"

No. 9752-Revival

The Danger of Living the Uncovered Life

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 9, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "He shall cover thee with his feathers, and under his wings shalt thou trust: his truth shall be thy shield and buckler." Psalm 91:4

Introduction

Have you ever been through a disaster in your life? Often we watch news accounts of various natural catastrophes, and we easily empathize with disaster victims because we've endured similar situations. When we watched news accounts of Hurricane Matthew on the East Coast or fires on the West Coast or flooding in middle America, we often pray for the safety of the residents, join relief organizations to provide help and pay close attention because we have been there. While we watch houses burn, homes flood and storms rip the roofs off tall buildings and carry them away, one question often comes to mind, "I wonder if they were covered!"

There are many who have survived storms, floods, and disasters with their lives intact and found it easier to recover because they had the forethought of full coverage insurance and flood insurance. Some had only partial coverage. Others had no coverage at all.

If we buy a new automobile, full insurance coverage is required. It provides a minimum amount to pay for people and things you may damage in an accident, and enough to cover damages to your vehicle up to its current value. There are many however who risk driving a vehicle with no coverage at all. It means they risk having their licenses suspended or worse that they injure someone or destroy the property of others without a way to pay for it. They risk court fines and flags in their driving record.

If we buy a home, the mortgage company will take out some form of homeowner's policy on your new home and include it in your mortgage payment. It will usually include enough to cover the cost of a mortgage in case of a loss. Many homeowners have homeowners insurance that covers injuries to others that if the accident happens on their property, including theft, and storm damage as well. Some even carry "Flood Insurance" that provides assistance in the aftermath of floods. There are many who no longer have mortgages, but have no homeowners insurance and risk losing it all if trees fall on their homes, a fire destroys them, or some other disaster strikes. Some have full coverage. Some have partial coverage. Some have no coverage at all.

There are many who have insurance coverage that covers their health, and dental needs. This ensures that they have access to medical care beyond the emergency room that may be needed for members of their family. It also reduces the cost of medicines needed to sustain life and reduce pain. There are many, especially the young, who refuse medical insurance, assuming that only the elderly get sick. They feel the same about life insurance, so many young families refuse life insurance and risk leaving their families with nothing in case of death. Some have full coverage, some have partial coverage. Many have no coverage at all.

Often the reasons for failing to have coverage involves finance. Full coverage has a high cost that is not a one-time payment. It has to be paid every year. When the payment stops, the coverage stops.

What about our relationship with God? Our relationship with God, in many ways, is like an insurance policy. Our faith does not protect us from storms, but it does provide "assurance" that during and after storms our souls will remain connected with heaven and God's grace will help us to put our lives back together again if we face challenges. Those who have this kind of relationship with God are covered by His grace. There are some who are fully covered. There are others who are partially covered. There are many who are not covered at all.

As Christians, we thank God that our relationship with God is fully covered. We have his assurance that he will never leave us alone; that if we fall he will pick us up again. That's better than "insurance;" it's his assurance that anywhere we go, any time of the day or night we are never beyond his care.

Exposition

This text focuses on King David's assurances to Israel during a time of trouble in the land.

David was a warrior king who often faced enemies as he sought to create an atmosphere of peace. In the course of his reign, there were many threats, droughts, and pestilences that faced the people. This psalm is a psalm of assurance to the people that despite their difficulties God would be with them.

The psalm promises the faithful in David's time and the faithful today that "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most high" or those who abide in the faith and confidence of God will be able to relate to him as a refuge and a fortress in times of trouble. That's why verse two says, "I will say of the Lord, He is my refuge and my fortress: my God; in him will I trust."

Those who abide in his secret place shall be taken under the peculiar care of heaven. So in verse four, we get the phrase, "He shall cover thee with his feathers, and under his wings shalt thou trust: his truth shall be thy shield and buckler."

Feathers and wings are figurative. They help us to see mother birds cuddling their young to protect them, love them and nurture them. Any young chick, eaglet or foul that stays close to its mother will find solace, comfort, and protection. Therefore the image is given to us that as long as we stay close to God or "dwell in" his presence that we have the assurance of grace and mercy.

Today, this promise is continued through Christ who still assures all believers who place their trust in him that he will never leave them alone.

The idea of a Covering is an Old Testament concept which is fully revealed in words translated as "covering" in the biblical context.

The first Hebrew word is sakak which means to "cover or hedge, protect, join together, defend, set or to set up." This form of covering refers to ways that men can protect themselves by joining together, shutting themselves up or fortifying their positions, or hedging themselves in so that the enemy cannot see or reach them.

The Bible says the Lord is our covering in the sakak sense (and not a man). Psalm 91:3 says the Lord does the following things: "He rescues you from the snares of fowlers hoping to destroy you; he covers you with his feathers, and you find shelter underneath his wings."

The second Hebrew word is kasah which means, "to cover for clothing or secrecy or to conceal."

Proverbs 10:12 says that "love covers all offenses." Matthew Henry says that by love we will "overlook the offense that is given us, and cover it, and by this means strife is prevented." Thus, the sin is not removed, but merely concealed.

The third Hebrew word that we find is kaphar. The King James Bible translates this word as "to make atonement." kasah, means "to cover something over," but kaphar means to completely "wipe it out, annul it, and make it non-existent."

The word kaphar is used in context with the blood offering of the Old Testament.

In the New Testament, when Christ becomes our covering he completely wipes out our sin record. It's over and covered by the blood of Jesus.

The Coverings

With respect to our relationship with God, there are three levels of covering that should claim our attention. Each level corresponds to the extent that we walk or live in the will of God.

OUTSIDE THE WILL OF GOD-NO COVERING: There are many people who intentionally choose to live outside of the will of God. They know the will of God, and they know right from wrong, they have simply chosen to ignore God's will and pursue their own course in life. Samson was a man of great strength, but he chose to live a life outside of the will of God. He had been warned about his loose living with Philistine women and ignored God's will and lived for himself. When he stepped outside of the will of God, he rebelled against God. When he stepped outside of God's will, he also stepped outside of his covering. It resulted in the loss of his sight and eventually his life. His long hair and his faith in God was his covering, without it he was vulnerable to the world.

Today there are many like Samson who know God's will, but they choose to risk their soul's salvation and live with no covering. They are in rebellion against God. Isaiah 30:1 says, "Woe to the rebellious children, saith the Lord, that take counsel, but not of Me; and that cover with a covering, but not of My Spirit, that they may add sin to sin:"

Even though they ignore God, he still offers them an invitation to return home. Like Motel Six, in heaven, he leaves the light on for them.

LIVING IN HIS PERMISSIVE WILL-PARTIAL COVERING: There are many who know God, but they have a mixed up understanding of what it means to live in his will. They follow some portions of his will, but not all. For a time, they are partially covered by the grace of God but rarely receive his favor. Those who are partially covered are those who show up at a worship service every now and then but are not fully committed to worship. They give an offering occasionally, but it is nowhere near a tithe. They obey his commandments most of the time, but they break them if necessary excusing their actions by saying the "Lord knows my heart."

These are people who are partially covered by God's permissive will. That means God gives or permits grace and mercies to them as if they were fully covered giving them time to learn better or to mature. Many have not been instructed or learned the full meaning of faith. They are being given an extension. Many, especially the young, see that they are still covered and think it's forever. God's permissive will is not permanent. It doesn't last forever. It's like an extension of a policy. Extensions are not permanent.

LIVING IN THE WILL OF GOD-FULL COVERAGE: The beauty of the Christian life is that it is one that lives according to the will of God. This is the believer who seeks to know God's will and then follows it fully and completely. These are the people that David speaks of in the 91st Psalm, who dwell in the secret place of the most high. Not just the people who go to church or who help out in its ministries, but those who constantly seek to live in God's will and who abide in his word and truth. These are the people who David said would be fully covered by his "feathers" and taken under his wing of protection; these would be fully covered.

The fully covered can say it doesn't matter how the storms blow. It doesn't matter how the heathen rage, God's going to take care of me. I know it's true because Isaiah 41:10 says, "Fear not; for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am thy God: I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness." Isaiah 41:10

To be fully covered means that we know whether in life, death or persecution, God's has an assurance plan for us in this life and in the life beyond because we are fully covered.

Renewal

Finally, brothers and sisters while there are many who are not fully covered, the good news is that your relationship with God can be renewed.

There have been times when the insurance that we have on our lives and property has expired, and we realize that we are living in the grace period. Every insurance policy has a grace period, in case you're late with a payment, so they give you a few days with full coverage to get renewed.

Before President Obama brought us the Affordable Heath Care Act called Obamacare, the law of the land allowed insurance companies to turn you down if you had a pre-existing condition.

If you discovered that you had cancer, you couldn't buy insurance to cover it, because you had a pre-existing condition.

If you had a heart problem, you couldn't get coverage for it because you had a pre-existing condition.

If you had nervous condition kidney malfunction, you couldn't get coverage because you had a pre-existing condition.

But thanks to Obamacare, it doesn't matter what your pre-existing condition may have been you must be given a chance to get yourself covered.

When I think about all of the circumstances of life, I realize that there many things that Obamacare can't help.

When the storms of life began to rage, the old timers would put their hands together and look up to heaven, and they would say,"Father I stretch my hands to thee, no other help I know. If thou withdraw thyself from me, whither shall I go?"

When they prayed, they said "Oh Lordy" I need your help. There was no Obamacare what they looked for was Olordycare!

O Lord! I have a preexisting condition.

—I strayed away from the church for so long, can I be covered again?

—I lived in sin and ignored all of your commandments, can I be covered again?

—My sins are as red as scarlet, can you wash me and make me white as snow?

I heard a voice from heaven saying, "Come unto me all ye that are burdened and heavy laden and I will give you rest."

Somebody said, "I can't pay the premium because the cost is too high." They remember that Romans 6:23 says, "The wages of sin is death,"

But I hear a voice saying, you only remembered part of that verse, don't forget the other side. "The wages of sin is death, but the Gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

You don't have to worry about paying for your pre-existing condition because Jesus paid it all. All to him we owe. Sin had left its crimson stain, but he washed it white as snow!

He paid it out on Calvary!

He paid it for three days and three nights in a borrowed tomb,

But Early Sunday morning…..

No. 9753-Inspiration

One Time Wonder

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
for the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 23, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us." Romans 8:37

Introduction

Have you ever seen a one-time wonder? A one time wonder is a person who accomplishes a great feat one time but is never able to repeat it again. It's the person who plays golf and gets a hole-in-one shot, one time, but is never able to do it again. It's the little kid that amazingly shoots a three point shot from midcourt, but is never able to do it again. It's the baseball player that hits a home run with the bases loaded but is never able to do it again. Whenever we can do it once, but can't do it again, we are called a one time wonder.

Micheal Phelps is famous because he keeps returning to the Olympics to win gold medals. The fact that he has won 28 gold medals makes it clear that he is not a one time wonder. Floyd Mayweather is the Junior Middle Weight Boxing Champion, but he proved that he is not a one time wonder, by defeating 49 opponents and never losing a fight. Whenever someone does something miraculous people are curious as to whether or not the feat can be repeated. When Muhammad Ali knocked out Sonny Liston to become the heavyweight champion of the world, everyone said, "It was great, but can he do it again?" When Venus and Serena Williams won Wimbledon the first time, the world said it was great, "but can they do it again?" The Super Bowl champs last year won accolades around the world, but then the sportscaster ask the question, "Can they do it again?" It's one thing to get to the top, but it's even harder to stay there! Staying there requires the ability to maintain the power and strength exerted to get there over and over again.

We've seen one time Wonders. The New Orleans Saints had a record 13-0 season and won the Super Bowl, but they have never been able to do it again. In 1988 Bobby McFerrin rocked the world with a new song called, "Don't worry, be happy" but he's never had another hit since. In 1974 Carl Douglas released a song call "Kung Fu Fighting" that was the national craze, but it was a one-time wonder. In 2000 the Baha Men released "Who let the dogs out?" -but it too was a one-time wonder.

We have seen it in our families. Someone in the family amazes everyone by doing something that really surprises the family, but never does it again. It's great to have a straight A report card, but it's greater if it's not a one-time wonder. It's great to clean up the house, wash the car and make everything spic and span, one time; but the big question is, whether you can do it again.

What about God? If he blessed us once, can he do it again? If he opened a door for us that seemed impossibly secured, can he do it again. If he healed us of a sickness in the past can he do it again? If he helped us overcome an obstacle once in our lives, is he able to do it again? Is God always an on time God is was he on time once, but he has not been able to do it again.?

In Malachi 3:6, God reminded the sons of Jacob that "I am the Lord and I change not!" What God did then he can do again! Not only can he do it again, but he can do it in a grander more miraculous way than he did in the beginning.

As Christians, we are confident that God's power does not dwindle like a drained battery. We believe his power is a never ending flow that ebbs from the battlements of heaven to the edges of every known universe. Whatever God has done before, he can do again. He is not a one time wonder.

Exposition

This text focuses on words of encouragement from the Apostle Paul to the Christians in Rome.

In the Roman Empire, Christians were hated by the people and persecuted by the government. For nearly 200 years Christians were systematically selected for persecution and prosecution by the state. Often, for sport, they were thrown into the arena to fight as weaponless gladiators, devoured by lions or a sliced to ribbons by opponents with swords for the entertainment of cheering crowds. In nearly every city in the Roman Empire, on a whim, Christians could be called out and executed just because of their faith.

Paul's letter to the Christians in Rome, in this context, encouraged them to hold to the faith and stand firm for God. One after another they showed that their faith in God was not a one-time occurrence, but it remained firm even in the face of persecution.

If they were threatened with beatings, the roar of the lions or death in the arena, repeatedly the Christians held firm in their faith in Jesus Christ.

Their faith was not a one- time occurrence that happened one day when they were feeling the spirit and then went away, it was recurring. They proved that just as God had stood Israel in its past, they could be counted on to repeatedly stand for him.

In the text, Paul notes that ultimately Christianity would be the victor. By showing over and over again that their faith could not be shaken, they became "more than conquerors."

He topped it off at verse 35 with these words of encouragement, " Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword? As it is written, For thy sake we are killed all the day long; we are accounted as sheep for the slaughter. Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us. For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

They had strength during the time of persecution and thhrough the growth of the church today around the world, has proven without a doubt, that Christianity and our God are not one time wonders.

The ER Effect.

There are many who labor in the church, but their labor is not consistent. They are one time wonders. They give, but their giving is not consistent. They pray and they sing, but their praying and singing is not consistent, they are one time wonders. Our Goal is to have the suffix "ER" attached to our faith, service and work for the kingdom. In English, the suffix ER when applied to a verb often changes it from a verb to an "agent" noun. A person may read a book, but if he frequently reads he is called a reader. A person may tell a joke occasionally, but if he frequently jokes or plays jokes he becomes a joker. It's possible to do-good one, but a person who does good frequently is often referred to as a "do-gooder." A person who loves one person "loves" but a person who loves many people and really gets around is called a "lover."

SURVIVE OR SURVIVOR: There are many people who survive a setback, illness, or catastrophe and live to tell about their experience. People who make it through storms, earthquakes, hurricanes or a life threatening situation are usually referred to as survivors. However, being a survivor is not the same as being a survivor. A survivor lived through one situation, -one time. A survivor is one who never gives up and faces every situation regardless of the odds against them. They say, "I can beat this thing, I will not give up." This is the person who repeats Paul's words in Philippians 4:13, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me.through Christ Jesus."

BELIEVE OR BELIEVER: There are many who believe in God sometimes, but not all of the time. These are people who believe in God when it is convenient, but doubt when it is inconvenient. When blessings are flowing and pouring down like rain, it is easy to believe. It's easy to believe God for the sunshine when the sun is shining. However, the test is whether we can believe God for the sunshine when it is raining. It is easy to believe God when things are going well, but there are many who believe in God even when doors are shut in their faces and opportunities are lost; they still believe God will make a way somehow. Because their faith is not a one-time wonder; they become believers. A believer is one who believes God's promise in Hebrews 13:5, "I will never leave thee or forsake thee." No matter what the situation, a believer continuously trusts in God.

WINNERS AND LOSERS: In life, there are many times when we win, but there are also times when we lose. There are very few people who win all the time; every now and then even the best person loses, However, there is a difference between a winner and a loser. A person can lose a battle and get knocked down without being a loser. A loser is one who is down and does not have what it takes to get up. He didn't just lose he is a loser. A winner may lose but will get up because winners lose, but they always come back. Anita Whittaker became the first Black Miss Louisiana in 1984, but she lost seven times before she finally won. She lost, but she was not a loser because on the inside she was a winner and kept coming back.

People of faith may lose or get knocked down, but they repeatedly get back up again because they have a spiritual winning attitude that says, “Greater is he that is in me than he that is in the world.

No One-time Wonder

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember that God is not a one-time wonder, what ever he has done before he can do it again.

George Foreman lost his championship to Muhammad Ali in the 1974 Rumble in the Jungle but came back at age 45 to regain the heavyweight title. He let everyone know that he was not a one-time wonder.

Micheal Jordan retired in 1993 and two years later came out of retirement and led the Chicago Bulls for the next three seasons as it MVP. He then retired again and came back with the Wizards and shocked the world as he scored 40 to 50 points. He let everyone know that he was not a one time wonder.

King David often reminded believers in the Psalms that what God has done before that he can do again.

In Psalm 106 he reminded Israel of all of the great things that God had done for them; these things were not one-time occurrences, but he had repeated similar acts over and over again.

David himself was known for facing down Goliath. But long before there was Goliath, there were bears and lions that threatened his father’s sheep. He had seen God act before and knew he would act again.

When the Hebrew Boys faced the threat of the fiery furnace they stood in boldness because they had seen God deliver his people before, and they knew he was able.

Sometimes in our weakness, we forget about what God has done for us and lose faith that he can do it again.

When we lose faith, we start to think that what God back then was a one time wonder that cannot be done again.

We should never lose hope. God is not a one time wonder. Our God is still able!

He’s able to deliver us from the pit and miry clay!

He’s able to transform confusion and discord into unity and love!

He’s able to make somebodies out of nobodies

He’s able to make kings out of beggars!

He’s able to make workers out of lazy men!

He’s able to make winners out of losers!

He’s done it before, and he will do it again!

Long before we came to our presence circumstance God has been blessing us!

Like Hezekiah, some of us had come to the end of our lives, but he gave us a few more years! I’m glad to know that he’s not a one -time wonder that he can still do it again!

Like David, some of us have been surrounded by enemies, but he delivered us from destruction. I'm glad to know that he is not a one-time wonder, that he can still make a way out of no way!

Like Esther, some of us have been raised from poor backgrounds, just a little higher than before. I'm glad to know that he is not a one-time wonder, that he can still pick us up and turn us around and plant our feet on solid ground!

I'm glad to know that if I"m sick, he can heal me again!

I'm glad to know that if I'm down, he can pick me up again!

I'm glad to know that if I've failed, he can make me succeed again!

I'm glad to know that if I've lost, he can give me the victory again!

That's why I've got to tell somebody! That I serve a God who has:

-Taken the bad and made them good and he can do it again!

-Taken the hateful and made them loving and he can do it again!

-Taken the proud and made them humble and he can do it again!

-Taken broken families and put them back together again, and he can do it again!

I've God to tell somebody about Jesus!

-The Lily of the Valley!

-The Bright and Morning Star!

Who died on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning arose from the grave!

He's not a one time wonder, he's still in the blessing business!

No. 9754-Revival

A tourist guide to heaven and hell

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 30, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "And these shall go away into everlasting punishment: but the righteous into life eternal. "Matthew 25:46

Introduction

Have you ever browsed a tourist guide? To attract tourists, many cities prepare a brochure that highlights the places of interests in their community. The brochures are colorful and professionally designed to capture your imagination and compel you to visit their locale.

A tourist guide focuses on the elements needed for sightseeing? It includes famous birth sites, memorials, museums or landmarks. Some travelers plan entire trips around available sites and places of interest, avoiding any town or city without a particular site or landmark. In addition to tourist guides, most cities have websites which promote every imaginable aspect of their culture. Maps, directions and other information are provided for anyone that wants to come to a location for sight seeing purposes.

Just as there are tourist guides designed to attract us to cities, there are also guides to show us places to avoid. Annually, the national news media ranks cities as the best and worst places to live. Cities on the "Worst City" list will probably have high crime, high unemployment, political unrest in its government, racial and gender discrimination, high poverty and general lack of opportunity. Corporations hoping to open a plant usually avoid such cities. Individuals looking to buy a home and raise a family usually avoid them, too. Often tourists avoid them as well because they are not considered safe.

What about believers, is there a tourist guide to the one place we want to go and the one place we want to avoid? Every believer expects to get to heaven one day. It is the ultimate end of every Christian's hope. We want to see the Holy City. Better than Atlanta, it will truly be the city of brotherly love. Better than St. Louis, it will be the gateway to paradise. Those who sing "Georgia on my mind." will sing a new song, "I've got heaven on my mind."

The church markets this great city to every potential resident. We encourage every person to prepare to live there. It is the right place, and it has the right price. There is plenty of lodging because everyone will have a mansion. There will be good weather, for the storms of life will have ended. There will always be plenty to do that is good, wholesome and uplifting in a constant festival of fun, fellowship and praise. There will be no need for MasterCard, Visa, or American Express because everything in the city will be free of charge. There will be no bills, bill collectors or bankruptcies.

The church also has another tourist guide. It's about a place called "hell." It will be just the opposite of heaven. It won't be a paradise, offers no benefits and its main residents will be the devil and those who follow him.

Many people look at the two tourist guides and find themselves in the position of the good hearted pimp who was killed in an auto accident and instantly his soul arrived at the gates of heaven.Unlike saints who are absent from the body and present with the Lord, the pimp found an angel presenting him with two tourist guides.

The angel said, "We've never had a pimp make it this far, and we're not really sure what to do with you. On the one hand, you went to church with your women. On the other hand, you were a pimp after all. No one knows what to do with you, so you have tourist guides to both heaven and hell, and we'll let you make a choice after you spend a day in heaven and a day in hell." The angel put the pimp on an elevator and took him down to hell.

The doors opened, and he found himself stepping out onto fine green carpet. There was plenty of food, ribs, chicken and some of the finest women he had ever seen. Some of the women who were once in his stable were there; they cheered for him. They ran up and kissed him dead on the mouth, and they talked about old times. They danced a little and drank a little. The pimp met the Devil who was actually a really nice guy who dressed very well in designer threads. He had a great time telling jokes and dancing. He was having such a good time that before he knew it, it was time to leave.

He boarded the elevator, and it took him to heaven. He spent the next 24 hours lounging around on clouds, eating angel food cake, and meeting important people he didn't know like Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John. The music was pretty, but he wasn't familiar with the words. The women were pretty, too, but they didn't treat him special. He danced the gospel slide, drank punch and met the big man JC himself. He had a great time and before he knew it his 24 hours were up.

The angel said, "You've seen everything in both tour guides, choose where you want to live."

The pimp paused for a second and then replied, Well, I never thought I'd say this, I mean, Heaven has been really great and all, but I think I had a better time in Hell.

"So be it," and instantly the elevator took him down-down-down to hell.

When the doors of the elevator opened, he found himself standing in a desolate wasteland covered in garbage and filth. Old watermelon rinds were everywhere. There were flies, chicken bones and garbage for miles. He saw some of his friends dressed in rags and were picking up the garbage and putting it in sacks.

The Devil came up to him and put his arm around him.

"I don't understand," stammered the pimp, "yesterday I was here, and there was green grass, pretty women, parties, and fun. Now all I see is a wasteland of garbage, and all my friends look miserable."

The Devil looked at him and said, face it my brother; yesterday you were a tourist, we were recruiting you, today you are resident, Welcome to hell."

As Christians, we don't depend on the devil's tour guide, we count on the promises of Christ, that he's gone to prepare a place for us, that where he is, we will also be. Wherever, Jesus is, that will be heaven, and that's where we want to be.

Exposition

This text focuses on Christ as he describes the day of judgment or the day of separation.

Jesus explained the nature of the kingdom of heaven in this and several passages before the text. The church promotes the teaching of Christ concerning judgments. He announced that he will do the separating when he returns. In this passage which begins at verse 31, Jesus said that when he returns, he will gather the nations before him and will separate those who will live in the kingdom of heaven from those who will be bundled with the devil and thrown into hell.

He characterized those who follow him as being like sheep and those who do not, as goats. In the day of separating, he will have the sheep on his right hand and goats on his left. Those who were bundled with goats will cry out and be told that they have refused to carry out the will of God through their kingdom building efforts: They neglected those in prison, ignored the needy and turned away the hungry. When asked, how they did this the Lord answered, "When you have done it to the least of these."

In the general day of judgment, which is detailed more in Revelation 20 the ungodly shall be judged according to their works. Revelation 20:12 says that death and hell (the place of the dead) will give up all those who have died so that they can stand before God's great white throne. As each person stands before God, their record will be read, and then the book of life will be opened. If a person's name is not recorded in the book of life, then they will be cast into the lake of fire.

In the text, Jesus said those on his right would be ushered into heaven, and those on his left would be thrown into everlasting punishment; banishment from the presence and grace of God in the battlements of hell.

Plain Talk about Heaven and Hell

There are many who would avoid hearing about hell. It is not a feel good subject. However, while Jesus taught his disciples about the kingdom to come, prayer, faith, and endurance, he also spent considerable time teaching about heaven and hell:

THE TOURIST GUIDE TO HELL: The Bible tells us certain truths about hell. Let's get the terminology straight, so we are on the same page. There are three words in the Bible that refer to hell; they have two different meanings. Sheol (Hebrew) and Hades (Greek) usually refer to the place of the dead. Gehenna (Greek) usually refers to a place of fire. When Jesus taught about casting Satan into hell, he referred to Gehenna-hell. Let's consider that: 1) Hell is a real place, not a condition. In Matthew 25:41 Jesus describes hell as a place of everlasting fire that has been prepared for the devil and his angels. 2) Hell is a place of torment. Luke 16:24 says, "I am tormented in this flame." Matthew 13:42 describes it as a "furnace of fire" and Revelation 14:10,11 says "there is no rest day or night." They won't be chilling out drinking pink lemonade by the poolside in hell. It won't be any fun. 3) Hell is prepared for certain types of beings and people. Revelation 19:20 says hell has been prepared for Satan, the beast, the false prophet and those that worship his image. Revelation 21:8 goes further and lists categories of people who have a place waiting for them in hell: the fearful, unbelieving, abominable, murderers, sorcerers, idolators, and all liars "shall have their part in the lake that burneth with fire and brimstone." Unbelievers are included in this list, but not believers, because believers have accepted Christ as their savior and he has removed their sin from the list and wrote their names in the book of life. 4) Too much will be missing from hell. There is no peace, no rest and no hope in hell. There is no love for anything or anyone in hell. Those who make hell their home will be beyond the reach of God.

Would a loving God prepare such a place for his people? Certainly not! God has not prepared hell for his people, but for those who choose not to be his people. He gives ample time and information to every person to choose and even gives them chances to change their ways, but in the end, hell is being prepared who have read the warnings in the tourist guide but want to go anyway.

THE TOURIST GUIDE TO HEAVEN: The Bible tells us certain truths about heaven: 1) Heaven is a real place. Revelation 21:1 says the New Jerusalem will descend out of the clouds and be situated on earth. The Kingdom of Heaven will be so big that the earth will need to be restructured to handle its grandeur. Even the capital city New Jerusalem will be 1500 miles (Rev 21:16 says 12,000 furlongs) in every direction. It will be a gated city, surrounded by 12 gates made of precious stones. Its streets will be paved with Gold, and fine jewels will be everywhere. 2) Heaven is being prepared for a prepared people. Jesus said, "I go to prepare a place for you." That means that he is preparing the heavenly place, not for everyone, but for those who have been washed in the blood of the lamb. Everyone talking about going to heaven will not be a resident. 3)There is a downside to heaven.

There is a downside to heaven. If you are a doctor, you will be unemployed because there will be no sickness in heaven. If you are a mortician, there will be no funerals in heaven. There will be no medicine in heaven, so pharmacists will be out of a job. Revelation 22:2 says there will be a tree sitting in the midst of the city that will bear 12 manners of fruit and the leaves will be good for the healing of the nations. There will be no more hot CD's to buy, dime bags of dope, No more fire trucks, ambulances, police officers or Social workers. 4)The upside of heaven is that there will be constant joy, happiness, and peace. In heaven, there will be reunions with family and friends. In heaven, the praise of God will be on our lips continuously.

In Heaven

Finally, brothers and sisters, we've talked a lot about a tourist guide to heaven and heaven, but I don't have a need for a tourist guide to heaven, I'm looking for a homeowner's guide.

A tourist is planning to look around for a while and leave, but a person who asks for a home owner's guide is planning to stay around.

A tourist might want to walk around heaven all day, but a homeowner is planning to live throughout all eternity. A homeowner sings the song, "I got a new home over in glory and its mine, mine, mine!"

The homeowner's guide will tell you what you need to look for in your new home. This new home will sit on 12 foundations and be a gated community twelve gates, each one made out of solid pearl.

You won't need to worry about the cost of living in this city because money will have no significance because the streets will be paved with gold.

Your home buyer's guide will tell you where your new home will be located. We've heard a lot about heaven, but we don't exactly know where it is, but we're on our way. Maybe that's why the old warriors sang, "I have heard of a land on a far-a-way strand, the beautiful home of the soul. Built by Jesus on high, where we never shall die, it's land where we'll never grow old."

The homeowner's guide will indicate that if you plan to live on that land, you will need to have a passport because you can't leave one country and go to another without a passport.

A passport bears the picture of the traveler and tells his identity. If you are a heavenly traveler, your passport identifies you as a child of the king.

Every child of God can say without a doubt, I know I am a child of God, although I move so slow.

I've been washed in the blood of the crucified lamb. I've been plunged beneath a fountain that flows from Immanuel's veins.

Not only does your passport tell who you are but it tells where you come from.

-We've come through the rocky hills and valleys of destitution.

-We've come through the meandering peaks of hard times and survived the sweltering deserts of hopelessness.

-We've come climbing Jacob's ladder singing our new song, I'm climbing up the rough side of the mountain, holding on to God's unchanging hand.

Not only does your homeowner's guide tell you the location of your new home, and where it will be located, but there is a section that explains something called "Closing costs."

If you are buying a house, your closing costs are added to the list price of your house. What are closing costs? Credit reports and inspection fees, attorney fees and appraisals, escrow deposits, title searches, insurance and recording fees,

The homeowner's guide warns us to be careful about closing costs because they can keep your new house out of reach.

However, the spiritual homeowner's guide has a section called closing costs that can keep heaven out of reach. Sin and reckless living can make heaven impossible, they are closing costs that we cannot pay, but on the bottom line, written in blood are the letters JPIA -Jesus paid it all!

Down in Jerusalem, he picked up an old rugged cross; that was closing cost!

They drove nails into his hands, that was closing cost!

They stuck a spear in his side that was closing cost!

When he died on Calvary, that was closing costs!

But early Sunday Morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hand, with a title marked paid in full!

No. 9755-Inspiration

One Cure for all

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

November 6, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "And his fame went throughout all Syria: and they brought unto him all sick people that were taken with divers diseases and torments, and those which were possessed with devils, and those which were lunatic, and those that had the palsy; and he healed them." Matthew 4:24

Introduction

What if there was one medicine that could cure any illness? Would you buy it? Is it possible, even with today's modern technology to devise a cure for every known disease and restore health and prevent disease? It's not possible yet, but for years there have been thousands of products and individuals who proposed to do just that: cure everything.

Whether it was the Voodoo enchantress or the tribal witch doctor, there always seemed to be someone who claimed to have the magic cure for anything.

In American History, there have always been a plethora of people who promoted the value of one snake oil over another. In the early 1900's this ad for Dr. Lowther's Powders and Drops promised to cure: Tremblings, Faintings, Swoonings, Sick Qualms, Reachings, Loathings, lost Appetites, bad Digestion, weak Nerves, Flutterings, Palpitations, Anxieties, confused Thoughts, Lethargies, dull melancholic Dispositions, Vapours, low Spirits, Restlessness, Weariness, Frightful Dreams, Pains in the Head and Stomach, Vertigo's, Swimings, Giddiness, Dizziness, Dimness, Flushings, the Cramp, Contractions, sudden Catchings, Obstructions, and disorders incident to the Fair Sex.

If that did not cure your ailment, you could have also purchased Dr. Perkins' Our Native Herbs and found a cure for Rheumatism., Dysenteria., Sick & Nerves. Headache, Nervousness, Constipation., Piles, Irregular Bowels, Diarrh., Catarrh, Fevers, Gal Debil., Sickn.-Stomach, Pain in the Side, Numbness-Limbs, Cold Feet-Hands, Bad Taste-Mouth, Yellow Skin, Loss-Appetite, Worms, Stagnation of the Blood, Failure to Perspire Freely, Bad Circulation, Tetter, Erysipelas, Old Sores, Dropsy, Liver, Kidney and Heart Disease, Fits, Female Complaints, Circles Under the Eyes, Bearing Down Syndrome., Pimples, Rough Skin, and Poison in the Blood.

People by the thousands bought the quack cures only to realize that all they bought in many cases was simply colored water, tea or watered down whiskey.

In 1906 the number of quack medicines began to decline when the Food and Drug administration began to crack down on quack cure-all medicines. Even with tough enforcement, there are thousands that manage to get through the cracks in the law and rip off consumers through late night infomercials.

There is no man-made medicine that can cure everything.

But we, know someone who can cure all! His name is Jesus.

Jesus is is the master miracle worker. Miracles are described as that phenomenon for which there is no human explanation. Miracles attest to the power and the being of God Almighty. Belief in miracles is a belief in the miracle working power of God Almighty. The belief in the miracle working power of God is one of the strong foundations of our Christian faith...that the God whom we serve can and does work miracles in every situation.

As Christians, we are happy to report that there is a cure for sicknesses of heart, body, and soul, and the remedy is the power of God. The doctor is Jesus.

Exposition

This text focuses on the ministry of Jesus as he heals all manner of diseases.

In the three years of his public ministry, Jesus often gave his followers object lessons about the nature of the kingdom of God. The central message is that the Gospel is for everyone of all races and the grace of God is available to everyone regardless of condition.

Jesus presented himself as the "Panpharmacon" - Greek word which means "heals all." There were no diseases he could not heal. Likewise, there are no sins he cannot forgive or lives so shattered he cannot repair them

This text shows how Jesus was clearly the "Panpharmacon." He can cure all without exception. He healed all manner of sickness, and all manner of disease; even those diseases that are beyond the skills of physicians. He healed them all.

This was the source of his attraction to the masses; the fact that he healed all. Matthew Henry notes that, "A physician who was so easy of access, so sure of success, who cured immediately, without either a painful suspense and expectation, or such painful remedies as are worse than the disease; who cured gratis, and took no fees, could not but have abundance of patients."

In addition to curing all, he healed without a fee. That also must have been a source of general attraction.

The fact that all could come to him and receive what they needed without a fee was also a type of the kingdom of God. In God's kingdom, all would be welcome no matter what their past or malady. Each would receive from the fountain of Grace sufficient supplies for their individual need.

While the crowds seemed to accept Christ as a healer, many of those same ones rejected him as the savior and the son of God.

Yet, the rejected aspect of his nature was the greatest part. They saw him as a person who could heal all, but even greater he was the Son of God who could save all from their sins.

How God Heals

There are many people who want to be healed, but there are some people who don't want to be healed at all.

That was the situation when the faith healer ate lunch at a local cafe. There were people in the cafe who immediately recognized him and decided to treat him.

One man complimented him on his fine ministry and paid the waiter for his meal.

A short while later he was recognized by another customer who decided to leave the waiter a 20 tip on the faith healer's table.

The third man saw him and decided to pay for his meals for the entire week that the faith healer was in town. As the faith healer prepared to leave he shook the hand of the first man, and instantly power went from him, and the man screamed, Glory Hallelujah, the back troubles I've been having have suddenly gone away!

The faith healer went to the table of the second man and shook his hand, and another surge of power went from him, and the man cried out, "Glory to God, arthritis that has been troubling me all these years has gone away!"

Then the healer went to the last man and stuck out his hand for a shake. The third man got up and quickly backed away? The healer asked, Why are you backing away? The man said, You touched him, and his back was healed. You touched that man, and his arthritis was healed. I don't want you to touch me because I get $2000 a month disability. You touch me, and they will cut off my check!

Some don't want to be healed, but there are millions that do. For those that do, there are three things they should consider.

GOD HEALS MIRACULOUSLY: The faithful know God heals in ways that baffle modern science. There are generally three ways that God heals.

1) God Uses Natural Means by Divine Order: Often we are ill and ask God for healing, and his immediate response is through the natural order. He points us to natural remedies and methods to respond to our situation. Doctors, nurses and Dr. Granny often use natural means to heal, but it is God that points them to the right remedy and the right proportion. That's why we pray for doctors, nurses, and caregivers that God would show them our cure. King Hezekiah had a boil on his body that threatened his life. None of his surgeons with all of their knowledge knew what to do. He was told to prepare to die. However, Hezekiah prayed and asked God for more time. God heard his prayer and told him he would live 15 more years. What is often missed when this miracle is shared in 2 Kings 20:7, Then Isaiah said, "Prepare a poultice of figs." They did so and applied it to the boil, and he recovered. He was given a prescription to make a salve out of figs and apply it to the wound. God showed his attendants how to best use what was right in front of them all of the time. He used a natural means to heal Hezekiah by Divine order.

2) Direct Intervention. There are times when Christ heals directly and touches the situation with his powerful hand. In Matthew 9: 27-30 Jesus touched the eyes of not one, but two blind men and they were able to see. Mark 7:32-37 A man that was dumb and with a problem speaking was brought to Jesus; Jesus touches his ears, spits, touches his tongue and speaks "Be opened " to heal him. These are the times when a person is cured of a sickness outside of any medical cure. Most believers have heard of at least one account in which a person was healed by the direct intervention of God himself. There are doctors, nurses, and medicines, but we must never forget that our God is a mighty healer all by himself.

3) Healing by Faith of the Receiver. There are times when a person's faith alone commands the attention of heaven. Everyone does not have the gift of great faith, but the biblical records details many people who had great faith and were healed in response. In Luke 8:43-48 a woman with an issue of blood was healed by touching His garment; Jesus said her faith made her whole, to go in peace, and to be healed of her problem. In Luke 18:35 43 Blind Bartimaeus was healed after Jesus commanded him to go his way and receive his sight because his faith made him whole. Hebrews 11:1 says, "Faith is the substance of things hoped for and the evidence of things not seen." It means even when you can not see it, you still believe it. Faith is not knowing if God will act, but having the assurance that God can act within his Holy Will.

4) Healing by the faith of another. There are times when we are so sick that we have totally given up. We have tried so many doctors and so many procedures that we have given up. However, there have been many who have been healed by the faith of others. In Luke 5:18-25 Friends of a sick man had faith that Jesus could heal him, so they let the man down through the roof because of the crowd; Jesus commanded him to arise, and he did. He was healed by their faith. That's why believers assemble in homes, churches and various places and pray for each other. The fervent effectual prayer of the righteous availeth much.

In all of these ways, Christ miraculously heals those who are sick. It is his divine command.

GOD'S HEALING DEMONSTRATES HIS MERCY: Many miracle healings of the Old Testament were in the aftermath of some great sin and show the power of God when compared to the weakness of man. For example, when Israel sinned in the wilderness the people died from snake bites but were healed in the aftermath when a brazen serpent was set up in the wilderness. David involved himself in sinful living for a while and contracted a disease; he was healed in the aftermath to demonstrate God's power to restore in light of a repentant heart. However, in the New Testament, most of the miraculous cures of Jesus were not in the aftermath of a sin but were simply acts of mercy and grace. They were based on love and favor of God.

God's healing had no strings attached. He did not ask for a donation or require those he healed to become one of his followers. In many instances, he asked those who were healed not to tell anyone; his healing had no strings attached, no gimmicks or ulterior motive. His healings showed others that God cared. They also demonstrated the AGAPE love of God. Agape love is unconditional. He is merciful even if the recipient has not been showing much mercy himself. For us, it means that God's healing is not reserved only for the faithful, but to any upon whom he chooses to show mercy. Luke 17:13 records how ten lepers called out to Jesus to "have mercy on us." He healed them instantly without any question. He told them to go and show themselves to the priests. Nine of them went away happy, but one returned to say thanks. He did not require them to say thanks, but he was impressed with the one grateful spirit. It shows us that those whom Jesus heals mercifully may not deserve his attention, but he has compassion on all.

GOD'S HEALING WAYS ARE MYSTERIOUS: Jesus' healings were mysterious. They were never duplicated. They were not scientific. Even today, when God heals using us miraculously, there is often no scientific explanation for how it is done.

Just as his miracle healings are mysterious, so is our response. It is mysterious, we do not understand how it works, but the Bible gives us this response to illness. James 5:14 says, James 5:14-16 " Is any sick among you? Let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord: And the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him. Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed. The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much.

There are many who ask the church for prayer, but very few who confess their sins and ask to the church to pray for their forgiveness. If the prayer of faith is prayed and our condition persists, then it is obvious that our condition is not the result of sin, so our prayer shifts to patience to endure our test. Just as Paul did not have the thorn removed from his side, God's grace will prove sufficient as we deal with our hour of testing.

It is mysterious. We do not understand it, but the saying is true, "God moves in mysterious ways his wonders to perform.

God's Healing Power

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that the healing power of God can cover every situation.

He has shown us how it will work in his written word, but more importantly, he has shown what he can do every day of our lives.

If we will call on the Lord, he will hear us. 2 Chronicles 7:14 says, " If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."

Is there a miracle cure for the ills of the world? Is there one cure that can deal with it all?

That's what the prophet asked when he saw all of the sicknesses in the world and asked in Jeremiah 8:22, "Is there no balm in Gilead; is there no physician there? Why then is not the health of the daughter of my people recovered?"

New Testament saints can answer from our own experience, "There is a balm in Gilead.His name is Jesus!"

The same Jesus, who cleansed the lepers of their leprosy!

The same Jesus, who unstopped the ears of the deaf!

The same Jesus, who revived paralyzed arms and legs!

The same Jesus, who stopped an issue of blood!

The same Jesus, who delivered the demon possessed!

The same Jesus, who brought the dead back to life!

The same Jesus hears and answers prayers today. His in the medical intervention business!

His name is Jehovah-Rapha, "I am the Lord that healeth thee!"

That means that God is in the healing business.

He died on an old rugged cross, but Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

I don't know about you, but I'm glad He's still in the healing business with one cure for all!

No. 9756-Inspiration

God Still holds our hand!

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 13, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "Though he fall, he shall not be utterly cast down: for the LORD upholdeth him with his hand." Psalm 37:24

Introduction

Were you disappointed in the recent Presidential Elections? Across the nation, there are many who were disappointed in the results of the national elections. The disappointment is rooted in the fact that Donald Trump was elected president over Hilliary Clinton.

Some of the disappointment was rooted in the fact that Secretary Clinton won the popular vote by nearly three million votes, but was not elected President. Some think that's wrong, but that's the way the U.S. Constitution works; it's the electoral vote, not the popular vote that counts. It's only happened four times before and only once in the last 100 years, but it has happened. George W. Bush had 543, 816 votes less than Al Gore in the 2000 election, but he won the election based on the Electoral College. The same is true for Presidents: John Quincy Adams, Rutherford B. Hayes and Benjamin Harrison, all lost the popular vote but still became president. There was an outcry after each of these elections, but the nation survived.

Since the election, there have been protests in the streets, looting, and gunfire in response to the election of Mr. Trump. Newspaper commentators, comedians, movie stars and many across the nation have announced their frustrations as well.

Many African-Americans are among those lamenting the Clinton loss. Although Secretary Clinton won the overwhelming majority of the African-American votes across the nation, she faltered because over 1 million blacks who voted in 2012 did not vote this time; enough to change the outcome in Michigan, Illinois, Pennsylvania and other states. Those who do not vote actually cast a ballot for the winner. Edmond Burke says, "All that is necessary for evil to triumph is for good men to do nothing." We are hurt by the defeat, but we will survive; life goes on.

Many are upset that a man with racist and sexist views will become President. We have seen that before too. George Washington wanted freedom for America but refused to free his slaves. Thomas Jefferson spoke for freedom, but loved and had several children by his slave Sally Henning. Andrew Jackson didn't care too much for women, blacks, or Native Americans. In fact, he took all of the lands of Southern Indians and gave it to slave masters to expand slave plantations and put the Native Americans on reservations. He is honored by the nation with his face on the $20 bill. Nearly every president before 1920 opposed women's right to vote. President Roosevelt locked up all Japanese Americans in prison camps during World War II, just because they were Japanese. We were upset by these strange characters in the White House, but we survived.

We have even seen Presidents who had very little respect for their marriages and had affairs while they were President including Thomas Jefferson, Warren Harding, Franklin Roosevelt, Dwight Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson and Bill Clinton. All of these activities upset the nation, but we survived.

The fact that all believers should focus on in the aftermath of a national disappointment is that despite it all, God is still on the throne. Though we seemed to be broken and scattered like dry bones in the valley, we must hear the prophet Ezekiel ask, "Can these bones live?" Yes, if they will hear the word of the Lord.!

As Christians, we are hopeful because we know that no matter what happens in the world, God is still in control. Because his word is true, all things will work to the good of those who love the Lord and are the called according to his purpose.

Exposition

This text focuses on David as he explains the nature of the relationship of the believer with God.

The overall intent of this psalm is to underscore the security of believers who are in God's hands. Believers are reminded not to be envious of the unrighteous or to let world events make them doubtful of their own security with God because of the apparent success of the unrighteous.

Believers are secure with God. The surety of our position is just as sure as the fragile nature of the unrighteous who will soon but cut down like that grass.

The righteous, claims David, will never be abandoned. In the course of his entire life, he claims never to have seen the righteous forsaken or their seed begging for bread.

The righteous are being held by and are holding on to the hand of God. Because of that fact, the Righteous are in the hand of God and they will never be utterly destroyed and kept down. Either they climb up with their faith as leverage, or he picks them up by the power of his will.

Those who worry about the outcome of events around them should remember the Psalmists words: "I have been young, and now am old, but I have never seen the righteous forsaken or his seed begging for bread."

The Blessing of Holding God's Hand

Those who are upset about the changing social and political landscape don't have to join the thousands who are marching in the streets, burning down buildings, looting and burning the American flag. Instead, they should hold tightly to God's hand and let him lead us through the unseen future that lies ahead.

WE HOLD GOD'S HAND FOR DIFFERENT REASONS: We hold on to God's hand for the same reason we hold on to things in life.

An elderly couple sitting on the porch swing holding hands in the moonlight. That's commitment. We hold God's hand for commitment.

A nurse takes the face of a small boy who sees his mother rolled into an emergency room, and holds his face up to hers to keep him from seeing her pain. That's sensitivity. God is sensitive to our needs, that's why we hold his hand.

A construction worker holds a hammer as he builds a mighty building; that's strength. We hold God's hand because he gives us strength.

A preacher holds the hands of a member who has experienced a great loss; that's sympathy. We hold God's hand because he sympathizes with us.

Mom takes her son to the first day of school. As they approach the classroom, he reaches up and takes her hand. That's security. We reach for God's hand because we feel safe in his hands.

A teacher takes the hand of a student and helps him form his letters- that's instruction. We let God hold our hand to guide us and instruct us.

If there is strength in holding each other's hand, then there is even greater strength that comes from holding God's hand. That's when we sing the words of the song, "I trust in God, wherever I may be. Out on the land or on the raging sea. Tho' come what may, from day to day. My heavenly Father watches over me."

IN CHANGING TIMES GOD IS THE SAME: In a difficult world where everything seems to be changing for the worse, it is a blessing for believers to know that God's hand is unchanging and he brings us to our best. His way of dealing with us is constant and predictable. He won't be with us today, then forsake us tomorrow. The biblical record is filled with reassurances that God will be with us in a predictable manner. When Israel prepared to go into unknown territory Moses reminded them in Deuteronomy 31:6, "Be strong and of a good courage, fear not, nor be afraid of them: for the LORD thy God, he it is that doth go with thee; he will not fail thee, nor forsake thee." In the New Testament, this is repeated again for Christian believers. Hebrews 13:5, "..for he hath said, I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee." This is a reassurance that whatever situation that may arise God will be there, holding our hand.

GOD'S HAND PROTECTS US: Another reason we hold to God's hand is because he protects us. Isaiah 41:10-13 puts it this way, "Fear thou not; for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness. Behold, all they that were incensed against thee shall be ashamed and confounded: they shall be as nothing, and they that strive with thee shall perish. Thou shalt seek them and shalt not find them, even them that contended with thee: they that war against thee shall be as nothing, and as a thing of naught. For I the LORD thy God will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, Fear not; I will help thee." That's security. It's security in the hand of God. Those who attempt to harm the anointed children of God take on the power of God himself who has promised to provide security for believers. It's a simple truth. You "mess with a child of God and God will get you!"

Just hold on

Finally, brothers and sisters that no matter how dark the situation around us might seem just hold on God will make it right.

While the world around us is changing, we need to remember Psalm 121: He that keepeth Israel neither slumbers or sleeps. He will not suffer the sun to smite thee by day or the moon by night." -Just hold to his hands.

Those who may be intimidated by promises to build a wall to separate people must remember that we serve a God who can make walls come tumbling down! Hold to his hand.

Those who are intimidated because it seems we may be on the verge of another world war must remind themselves that we serve a God who leads us to a day when we will beat our swords into plowshares and study war no more. Hold to his hand!

For those who are intimidated by words of racial prejudice that are being spoken from elected lips, we must remember that Acts 10:34 says, "God is not a respecter of persons, but in every nation, he that feareth him and worketh righteousness is accepted."-Hold to his hand.

When God holds our hand, he guides us.When we allow God to guide us, we allow him to take control of every situation and guide us along the way. That's what the songwriter had in mind when he said, "Lead me. Guide me along the way. Lord if you lead me I will not stray."

No wonder the old warriors sang, "Lord hold my hand while I run this race, I don't want to run this race alone!"

Hold my hand Lord, while I try to take care of my family, I don't want to run this race alone!

Hold my hand, Lord, while I try to deal with the raging storms in my life, I don't want to run this race alone!

Hold my hand Lord, while I try to make sense of the madness that surrounds me, I don't want to run this race alone!

I don't know about you, but sometimes I find myself slipping down the mountain of life and I have to cry out to Lord, "Take my hand! Hold me in your everlasting arms!"

Lord, take my hand, when I can't see my way!

Lord, take my hand, when I can't turn to the right or the left!

Lord, take my hand, when I'm confused and don't know what to do!

Lord, take my hand, when I'm weak and give me strength!

Lord, take my hand, when I have fallen and help me up again!

When you find yourself falling, and you can't get up, call on the name of Jesus!

Jesus, a strong hand that will not let you down!

Jesus, a mother to the motherless!

Jesus, a shelter in a time of storm!

Call on Jesus, who reaches out to us with nail scarred hands!

Call on Jesus, who died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning arose from the grave!

When the storms of life are raging, reach out with the saints of old and say, “Father I stretch my hands to thee, no other help I know, if thou withdraw thyself from me, whether shalt I go!

No 9757-Christmas

Is there Any Room For Jesus?

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 11, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn." Luke 2:7

Introduction

Have you found yourself pressed for space? That's when it appears that our lives are really being filled with clutter. Clutter is everywhere, and there never seems to be enough space.

A new house at first appears spacious, but after a few years of adding "stuff," there are only a few spaces left. Each year we squeeze in a new piece of furniture, another lamp, or another picture for the wall. Now we have so many pictures that we can't see the wall. We know we are running out of space when we start to bump into stuff that has spilled into the hallways, and things stuffed into cubby holes start falling on their own.

There is no space anywhere! Our closets are filled with so many clothes that the rods are bending. Every corner of every closet is filled with shoe boxes, hangers, clothes, shoes, and sometimes dirty clothes! We can't put anything under the beds because they ran out of space years ago. In the kitchen, we have pots inside of pots that sit inside of frying pans, all squeezed into every possible space in already stuffed cabinets. When we run out of cabinet space, we store the skillets in the stove! The refrigerator is full of leftovers, the doors are filled with bottles of jelly and jams that we rarely touch. Every drawer is filled with stuff we never seem to get around to using; that's when we dream about a bigger refrigerator!

Dresser drawers are often so full that stuff hangs out. Purses are so full that some are constantly looking for bigger purses. When houses get full, we fill up the garage, the front porch, the back porch, and the attic. The glove compartments in our cars are so cluttered that it takes several minutes to find registration papers for the police. We can't get to the spare tire in the trunk because it's full, too!

We are really pressed for space! We really see it when family members come home for the holidays, and our houses turn into dormitories: pallets are on the floors, sofas and chairs become beds. There are bodies everywhere!

Now that Christmas is coming there's going to be more stuff added to last year's clutter, stuffed into closets, and under beds and behind doors!

Every year we secretly dream about getting a bigger house, more closets, and more space. If we had more space, we say we would be happy, because right now, there isn't room for anything else. Our houses are full! Our schedules are full! We don't have any more room!

What about God? Are our lives so full of things that we think are important at the moment that we have little room for him? Is there space left for personal prayer and reflection? Has our God been squeezed between Facebook, Instagram, and the Flat Screen TV? Is there any room for real time relationships with him, service in the kingdom or study of the word?

As Christians, we have resolved to always make room for the presence of God in our lives. We make the time to take our time to give him first place in our lives. There should always be room for Jesus!

Exposition

This text focused on the day when Christ was born in a stable because there was no room for him in the Inn.

The known world was ordered to enroll for the Roman tax. Those who were descendants of David were ordered to travel to Bethlehem to register themselves and thereby Joseph and Mary came to travel with other pilgrims in obedience to the law.

Once in Bethlehem Joseph looked for lodging and found none. In each instance, he was told there was no room because the city was filled with travelers looking for a place to stay.

Bethlehem of biblical times was not a large city. There were only a few Inns, and they existed only to accommodate the caravans and the holiday travelers.

To one such inn, Joseph made his appeal for a room for himself and his wife, and heard the disappointing response: "There is no room at the holiday inn."

Joseph was not denied a room because he could not pay, for he had ample funds to pay his own way.

Joseph was not turned down because he was of the wrong class, for he was a respected businessman in his hometown of Nazareth.

He was turned down because there was no space reserved for him.

Instead, Joseph and his fiancé were escorted into a stable in the back, a cave of sorts, where she gave birth to the Christ Child and wrapped him in swaddling clothes.

He was born in a stable and laid in a manger because there was no room for him in the inn.

No Room for Jesus

Today there many who shake their heads and wonder how the innkeeper could force a pregnant woman to deliver her newborn in a stable, claiming there was no room. Yet, often the world has forced Christ out as it makes room for more important life issues.

NO ROOM FOR SPIRITUALITY: Today there are many who, in the course of their Christmas celebration, have already posted their "No room in the Inn" sign. Their celebration consists of the exchanging of gifts, parties, Santa Claus, food and gross inebriation. In the course of these activities, there seems to be little room for the Christ Child born in a manger in a far away land over 2000 years ago.

Throughout the year, the pattern is the same. Families get busy with work, school and extracurricular activities that take up all of our available time, leaving very little quality time for the spiritual growth of the family. Fewer families today have home based prayer, bible study or even religious discussion of biblical truths. In fact, our schedules are so busy, that many families go entire weeks without praying together or telling children about Jesus. There is no time, no space and no room.

Family leaders must take the time to be taught before they can teach their families. Those who neglect their own study can easily be influenced by what their friends think or by fake posts in Social Media. If you are leading a family, you must make room to learn about Jesus and make room to teach your family about him.

When we make room for Jesus, he dwells in our homes. He guides, protects and strengthens each family to stand strong in the time of trouble. If we make room for the Spirit of God in our families, God's presence will help us weather the storms of life.

NO ROOM IN OUR SCHEDULE: The average life expectancy in the United States is 78.7 years. It has increased from 70 years in 1960. In Bible times the average person lived about 35 years with the exceptional person living to 70 and beyond. Today, although people are living longer, they still have less time for God. God gives us more time, but even with more years, we don't have enough time for him.

The word of God compels us to set our schedules in such a way that there is room for God. In Psalms 90:12 we are told to number or organize our lives wisely to please God. The text of the verse says: "So teach us to number our days that we may get a heart of wisdom."

In Psalms 46:10 we are told to "Be still and know that I am God." However, to "be still" as commanded, we must make room for him; that still time must be made available. Even Jesus had to retreat to isolated places to make time to communicate with God. Sometimes it was on a boat, at other times he went to mountainsides or olive groves, but he had to have uninterrupted God time to think, pray, and sort things out. We must make room to do the same.

When we make room for Jesus in our schedules, it's not a matter of penciling in the Lord, but it is a matter of blocking the world out. If we pencil God in, then expect him to move in a certain time, because something else, more important follows. If we block the world out, nothing is more important than your family's God time. Phone calls are blocked, texts are unanswered, Television is recorded, God gets our uninterrupted attention.

Colossians 4:5 says, "Walk in wisdom toward outsiders, making the best use of the time." It encourages us to wisely use our time and not be heavily influenced by attractions outside of the faith.

THOSE WITH NO ROOM MISS OUT: There is an often overlooked aspect of this text which carries a great truth. When Christ was born, the shepherds came to greet him, the angels sang about his birth, but there is no mention that the innkeeper or those in the inn ever knew what they missed. The Innkeeper missed out on Jesus.

It is the same for those who have no room for Jesus; they don't know what they miss.

Those who don't take the time to know God will party, eat food, and get drunk, but they will miss what Christmas is all about.

If you don't make the time to know the Lord, you'll hear the music, but you'll miss the meaning of every song you sing!

If you don't know the Lord, you'll hear the words, but you'll miss the message in every sermon you hear!

If you don't know the Lord, you'll read the Bible but miss the truths that are hidden in its pages!

—You'll pray many prayers, but miss the chance to get a single one through.

—You'll have a lot of associates, but miss the chance to have a real friend!

No Room

Finally, brothers and sisters, we need to remember that although there was no room in the inn with a cradle, the manger was all God needed to bring joy to the world.

There are only four inns mentioned in the Bible and all of them but one had room.

Moses left Mt. Sinai and stopped at an inn to refresh himself before leaving to see Pharaoh (Ex 4:24). It was only a night, but there was room in the inn.

Joseph's brothers left Egypt and stopped at an inn and found their money had been returned and placed in their sacks (Gen 42:27). At the end of their journey, there was room in the inn.

The Good Samaritan took the injured stranger to an inn and paid for his lodging and his care (Luke 10:34). It's a good thing for the injured man that there was room in the inn.

Moses' inn gives us a picture of a resting place in the wilderness!

The Inn of Joseph's brothers gives us a picture of the forgiveness of God!

The Inn of the Good Samaritan gives us a picture of the charity and compassion of God!

But the inn which was in Bethlehem gives us a picture of the saving Grace of God!

It had no room, so it gave us a picture of He who was high becoming low!

It had no room, so it gave us a picture of He who was immortal putting on mortality!

It had no room, so it gave us a picture of He who was divine putting on humanity!

When I think about that inn in Bethlehem, I also think about what my imagination would like to call heaven's hotel!

Down in Bethlehem:

—THE SIGN READ NO ROOM-But in Heaven's Hotel Jesus announces:"In my father's house there are many mansions, if it were not so I would have told you.."

—THERE WERE NO RESERVATIONS-It was first come, first serve: But I hear Jesus declare: “I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am ye may be also.”

—THERE WERE MANY PATRONS AND THERE WAS A CROWD: But in heaven’s hotel there will be no crowd for I heard Jesus say, “Strait is the gate and narrow is the way that leadeth unto life and few there be that find it, but broad is the way that leadeth to destruction.”

—THE BEST ROOMS WERE SAVED FOR BIG FOLKS: But I heard Jesus say, “Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest!”

—THERE WAS NO ROOM SERVICE: But in heaven’s hotel, every saint will be served a life flowing with Milk and Honey

—THERE WAS NO ENTERTAINMENT: But in heaven’s hotel, the glory of God would consume every channel:

On Channel 5 there would be H.B.O.- for all day long we’ll see glimpses of (H)eavenly (B)eauty and God’ (O)mnipotence!

On Channel 24 the 24 elders would declare, “He’s worthy, he’s worthy, our God is worthy!”

On the heavenly TV, there won’t be CNN, but there would CNM -See No more!

—See No more trouble! See No more Pain! See no more heartbreak!

The angelic choir would ask to sing on channel three because three had a special meaning: one for the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. They sang all day long “Joy to The World, the Lord, is come, let earth receive her king.”

—THERE WAS A CHARGE TO STAY, even for the stable and the manager: But in heaven’s hotel saint’s will enjoy a free stay in eternity at no charge because down in Jerusalem, Jesus paid it all!

He picked up an old rugged cross and carried it to Golgotha’s Hill

They had no room for him in Bethlehem, but there is room at the cross for you!

They had no mercy on him in Bethlehem, but there is mercy at the cross for you!

They had no place for him in Bethlehem, but there is a place in glory for you!

He died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands.

9758-Christmas

Worth the Wait

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 18, 2016

SCRIPTURE: And Jacob begat Joseph the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus, who is called Christ. So all the generations from Abraham to David are fourteen generations; and from David until the carrying away into Babylon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Babylon unto Christ are fourteen generations. Matthew 1:16-17

Introduction

Have you ever waited a long time to receive a gift? When you received it, was it worth the wait? There is one thing common to this season: long lines. No matter how we try to avoid them, long waiting lines are a staple of the Yuletide season. Some are frustrated with all of the waits from the ATM machine to the Checkout line. Others have accepted waits expected; they are neither frustrated nor intimidated by the process.

There are some things that are worth the wait to some, but not worth it to others. Some would argue that fifteen-minute oatmeal and thirty-minute grits are worth the wait. Some say homemade hamburgers, pound cakes made from scratch, or tomatoes grown in your own garden are worth the wait. Still, others say the bargains they received on Black Friday were worth standing in line at 3 AM in the morning and fighting the crowds to get to them. Still, others would argue that hot fudge that covers the entire ice cream sundae is worth the wait.

The shoe lover believes that the new JORDANS are worth the wait.

The romantic will tell you that finally embracing your true love is worth the wait.

The investor will tell you that the profit gained from buying low and selling high is worth the wait.

The educator will tell you that the rewards of a full college education are ultimately worth the wait.

The football fan will tell you that standing in long lines to get box seats at the Super Bowl is definitely worth the wait.

Most people will agree that they don't mind waiting as long as they can be assured that what they are waiting for is worth the wait. No one wants to waste their time.

Yet, there are many who believe that they are wasting their time in one endeavor or another because they believe that what they will finally receive won't be worth the wait. That's why some drop out of school because they believe the jobs that they will ultimately receive, if any, won't be worth the sacrifice of time and energy required to complete their education. Others abandon once special projects because they have lost faith in the ultimate reward they expected to receive.

Does that apply it to our faith, too? Is all that we do a waste of time? Will the reward that we receive at the end be worth the sacrifice that we are making in this life? There are some who are asking these real-life questions and have concluded that the life of faith won't be worth the ultimate reward. They count the number of hours they will spend in worship, Bible study, rehearsals and practices, and in service to others and they ask will all of these hours be worth it? They count the amount of money that they contribute to ministries and the donated talents that they loan to kingdom building, and they ask the question, "Will all of my service pay off in the long run?"

The true believer has one response, and it comes from the word of God. 1 Corinthians 2:9 says, "But as it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." The Reverend Jasper Williams put it this way, "Serving the Lord will pay off after while."

Just as a long awaited birthday present brings us great joy, or a much anticipated Christmas present fills us with excitement, those who labor in the service of the Lord, keep the faith, and never stop trusting Him will discover sooner than they think that what God has planned for them is a blessing that is worth the wait.

As Christians, we wait patiently upon the fulfillment of God's promises. We know that He has never made a promise to us that he has not kept. At times, we became frustrated because he didn't show up on our time schedule. However, our experience has taught us that God may not show up when we want him, but He's always on time.

Exposition

This text focuses upon the genealogy of Jesus Christ through his earthly father, Joseph.

The text shows us the long journey through which the Messiah came to reach Earth and to fulfill the promise of God.

The text and its preceding verses is a genealogy of Joseph's family. A second account in another of the Gospels presents a genealogy of Mary's family.

This genealogy shows how Jesus appeared in the family of Joseph after 42 generations of descent. These texts present the descendants of Abraham in three groups of 14 generations of each.

Matthew records the names beginning with the oldest and moves to the most recent.

The long list of names included in the genealogy indicates how God systematically brought into the ancestry of Joseph and Mary varied instances of intermarriage between races, nationalities, and cultures pointing to the fact that once the Savior made his arrival upon this earth he would be a Jew by his biology but he would be a child of every nation based upon his diverse ethnic background.

The Savior's arrival was promised by God, but this 42 generation journey seemed an unbearable length of time to some. During these 42 generations the people waited for God to answer their prayers, and to give them the promised Savior. When the Savior was finally born, he was a blessing to the entire world. History has proven that it was a blessing worth waiting for.

God's Blessing

Has God made you a promise that He seems slow answering? Are you becoming frustrated because the job you seek, the opportunity you chase or the open door you're trying to find seems to always elude you? In the meantime are all the hassles you are enduring trying to wait on God complicating things for you? Are you tempted to take matters into your own hands because you see yourself going down rapidly? If so then you should consider these three truths:

TIME PASSES QUICKLY WHEN YOU ARE BUSY WITH HIS WORK: If we sit around our homes every day waiting for God to get that job, solve that problem or open that door, it will seem like an eternity. We know that God is moving because He has promised us that before we even ask that our help is on the way; however, it's frustrating if we are running to the window checking on every car that passes, jumping each time the telephone rings and spotting the mailman a half mile down the street trying to shake the blessing out of his bag. There is an old saying "Watch pot, never boil." It means if you spend all of your time watching the pot it will seem like the water will never boil. It's the same way with God. Since God has promised us a blessing, let's get busy doing something else other than just waiting on your "shrimp boat" to come in. When we are helping others, assisting the sick, encouraging the lonely or otherwise helping to build the kingdom, the time seems to pass quickly. Busy yourself serving and praising God and watch that blessing come. God is working it out, so busy yourself praising him and working for him. Psalm 52:9 says "I will praise thee forever, because thou hast done it: and I will wait on thy name; for it is good before thy saints." Pray, Praise and serve and before you know it, God has worked it out!

EVEN WHILE YOU WAITING, GOD'S GOT YOUR BACK: If we are in a jam and we're waiting on the Lord to bless us with a solution, it gets frustrating if we forget that even while we are waiting, that God's got our back. This happens when we have prayed to God and asked for deliverance, and the blessing that He promised seems so slow coming. It makes us anxious when our notes are due, the utilities are about to be disconnected, and our jobs are on the line. It gets really frustrating because in our weakness we start to look at the clock that brings our eventual demise closer and closer. For some, these are shaky moments because we are waiting, but we doubt that what we are waiting for will be sufficient to handle the magnitude of the problem or enormity of our depressed situation. That's when we should remember Psalm 33:20 that says "Our soul waited for the LORD: He is our help and our shield." It may appear that enemies are surrounding us on every hand, but God's has your situation under control. Don't worry if the enemy is at your front door and the back door and crawling through the keyhole, just remember that the Lord is your shield and in his own time He will deal with them and in the meantime, he's got you covered with his shield.

IF YOU RUN OUT OF STRENGTH, HANG ON A LITTLE WHILE LONGER: There are many who have been waiting on God for what seems to be an eternity, but he has not yet answered with the blessing they need. Some are handling household matters, holding families together by threads, tending frail marriages, treating wounds and diseases, and trying to revive failing finances with little success. Some are actually down to their last ounce of strength, and still, it seems that God is taking so long. Doesn't he know that we are running out of strength? We have reached the point where we are sick and tired of being sick and tired. We have waited so long that we have worn out wait. We know very well what Psalm 130:6 says, "My soul waited for the Lord more than they that watch for the morning, I say, more that they that watch for the morning." Remember, God knows just how much you can bear, and if you hold on, he'll make it worth your while. In fact, Isaiah 40:31 says, "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint!" When that blessing comes, we'll conclude that it was certainly worth the wait! When you get to the end of your rope, tie a knot and hold on; help is on the way.

When you wait

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must not focus on how long it's taking the blessing to come, but what is going to happen when it comes!

We must constantly remind ourselves not to hurry God because when the time is right, God will shake things up and make them happen on our behalf!

If we can wait on everything else, we should be able to wait on the Lord.

If we can wait for the coffee to brew and the toast to brown, we ought to be able to wait on the Lord!

If we can wait for water to boil, popcorn to pop, and for all the commercials to pass before we can watch a rented DVD, then we ought to be able to wait on the Lord!

If we can wait for the train to pass, the cake to bake and the washer to go through three spin cycles, we out to be able to wait on the Lord!

If we can we wait in lines at stores or wait for another batch of fries at Mickey D's, we ought to be able to wait on the Lord!

If we can call someone on the phone and wait while they put us on hold because they have call waiting, we ought to be able to wait on the Lord,

If you wait on the Lord, the blessing you will receive will be worth the wait.

If you wait on the Lord burdens, get lifted.

If you wait on the Lord, your heavy loads get shared.

When you wait on the Lord, bowed down heads get lifted.

When you wait on the Lord, eyes wet with tears, get wiped dry.

When you wait on the Lord, ways get made out of no way, storms seem to subside, bright skies return, bad habits are broken, addictions cease, and yokes are broken.

The world cried out and said, Father we're lost down here, we need a redeemer!

Lord, send us a blessing that will give us a brand new start.

While they were still praying, they didn't know that their blessing was already on the way.

What they didn't know was that 42 generations ago:

Abraham begat Isaac, and Isaac begat Jacob, and Jacob begat Judas and his brethren;

Judas begat Phares and Phares begat Esrom, and Esrom begat Aram;

Aram begat Aminadab, and Aminadab begat Naasson, and Naasson begat Salmon;

Salmon begat Booz, and Booz begat Obed of Ruth, and Obed begat Jesse;

Jesse begat David, the king, and David the king begat Solomon of her that had been the wife of Urias;

Down in Israel, the people were getting impatience but what they didn't see was that God was already working because:

Eliud begat Eleazar, and Eleazar begat Matthan, and Matthan begat Jacob;

Jacob begat Joseph the husband of Mary, and down and Bethlehem a child was born!

Somebody said, "What shall we call him?" and the answer came "Emanuel" God with us!

He's the blessing that we've been waiting for, and He's well worth the wait.

He is a prayer answering God, He's well worth the wait!

He is a body healing God; He's well worth the wait!

He is a soul-saving God; He's well worth the wait!

Wait on the Lord; He'll make it worth your while!

Wait on the Lord because one evening he picked up an old rugged cross!

Wait on the Lord because He died out on Calvary!

Wait on the Lord because early Sunday morning, He arose from the Grave with all power in His hands!

No. 9759-Christmas

What did you get?

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright Jr.
for the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, Louisiana

December 25, 2016

SCRIPTURE: "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace." Isaiah 9:6

Introduction

What did you get for Christmas? No doubt there were many who were full of cheer on Christmas morning as they opened and exchanged gifts. If your Christmas morning was like millions in America, the children ran to the tree and instantly tore paper from a variety of boxes. In many instances they tore open a box, glanced at the contents, then looked for the next box. After all the boxes were opened then they counted the number of gifts received. It appears that the number of gifts under the tree and the size of the boxes determines whether or not there has been a successful Christmas.

After playing with their toys for a few minutes many made calls and Facebook posts to tell their friends how many toys they received and how big they were. Who received the most toys, and what kind, is the nature of the entire conversation.

So what did you get? What was it? A Toy? A Phone? An Xbox? A diamond? A car? Clothing? What did you get?

In the not so distant past, the joy of Christmas was the fellowship of family and friends. The emphasis was on the food, fun, friendship and sharing of gifts. In fact, the gift was the smallest part of the celebration. Most of the joy of Christmas was in the celebration; the cooking, decorating, caroling, Christmas plays, skits, and fellowship. Gifts were limited to items of clothing, a toy and fruit. Today, the emphasis has changed to the point that receiving gifts is the main emphasis rather than giving them.

There was one gift given to the world that was not under the tree. That is the gift that is celebrated by Christians around the world. John 3:16 says, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son so that whosever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

God gave us the gift of his son. It was a gift that never stops giving. There will be many that will not use his gift and leave it untouched.

What did you get? You received the gift hope, God's promise and his forgiveness.

If you left it unopened, why not embrace it today?

As Christians, we celebrate the birth of Christ at Christmas time. He is God's gift to the world; the greatest gift of all.

Exposition

This text focuses on an episode in the life of Israel in which the prophet Isaiah prophesied about the coming of the Messiah.

In describing the birth of Christ, hundreds of years before his birth Isaiah makes it abundantly clear that the birth of Christ was not a chance occurrence, but part of God's divine order. The world, having known sin would be given a chance to know salvation in the person of Jesus Christ. The fact that Isaiah described all of the names by which Christ would be called using the word "shall" indicated that his coming would not be a chance happening but would be essential to the process of redeeming mankind.

The child that would be born would be wonderful and a mighty counselor. The child would be born with a destiny. That destiny was to show mankind the way back to God.

The birth of the child would be the best gift the world would receive.

The gifts

What did believers receive on Christmas morning? We received gifts that were not wrapped or under a tree, yet they brought joy to the world!

We received Joy. One of the joys of Christmas time is the celebration of life, both past and present. Some families have experienced new births during the year that are a reason for celebration. There is no joy greater than the excitement prompted by a family that celebrates a child's first Christmas. It is indescribable. It is a moment that is memorable. Some have overcome obstacles, serious illnesses, and professional setbacks that should have robbed them of their lives, hope and happiness, but they are still standing. That is a cause for celebration. Even those who have lost loved ones find reason to celebrate the joy of Christmas time because they celebrate the lives that were lived with them as they cherish the memories and continue the traditions that have brought them happiness over the years. If we have not learned to celebrate the gift of life and to embrace its many forms then no number of toys will bring us the joys that we seek.

We received renewed mercy. As we celebrate the birth of the Christ child we also celebrate the fact that God has showered each of our families with new mercies just this year alone. He has allowed us to overcome obstacles that have been placed in our way as well as stumbling blocks that were meant to deter us. The family celebrates new mercies that he has showered upon each family member despite our own inadequacies. Like the wise men, we bow humbly before our God and present him with the gifts of our spirit. In our humility we say like the psalmist "if it had not been for the Lord on our side" where would we be? As the family gathers and rejoices and reminisces about old times it will also reflect upon the mercy and goodness that God has shown toward each individual family member. If we have not learned to give thanks to God for all of his mercies then no number of toys will bring us the joys that we seek.

We received the hope of continued good times: The birth of the Christ child was important because it symbolized a brighter future for all believers. The very name of the Christ child "Jesus" means he shall save his people. That was the word of hope to those who were lost, defeated, and trapped. The wise men came because this child represented the glorious future that God had in store for Israel. Similarly, that's what Christmas should mean to every believer; that God has great plans for those who believe and trust in him. Just as we look at any babe and see unlimited possibilities, so should we see our futures when they are entrusted to the hand of God. Christmas is a celebration of Hope. It's a celebration of renewed faith that we can rise beyond the difficulties of the moment and achieve our greatest potential. It's a celebration of a revived trust that no matter how dark or dreary it seems that God will keep every promise that he has made to us; Central among those promises is that he would never leave us alone. The reminder of this Christ child known as Emmanuel, God with us, is that God is always by our side. If we can't see the bright future that God has in store for us, then no number of toys will bring the joys we seek.

A reason to celebrate

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that Christmas is not about the number of toys and gifts we get, but it's about the joy of salvation that gives us a reason to celebrate.

Isaiah said a child is given to the world who would be called by many names, but he would be God's gift to the world; his son.

In search of that gift wise men traveled many miles not expecting to receive anything, they came prepared to give. They understood the importance of this child's birth and the reason for the season.

They came to celebrate the son

If God, through his son, has brought your family over hills and valleys, then celebrate!

If God, through his son, has brought you strength in the middle of your weakness, then celebrate!

If God, through his son, has brought you comfort in the middle of your confusing situation, then celebrate

If God, through his son, has picked you up after you fallen flat on your face, then celebrate!

If God, through his son, has given you health and strength, then celebrate!

A wealthy man and his son loved to collect rare works of art. They had everything in their collection, from Picasso to Raphael. They would often sit together and admire the great works of art. One day the son died and the father was so grieved that in just a few months times… he also passed on.

There was to be a great auction of his paintings and a great many influential people gathered, hoping for an opportunity to purchase one of the great masters for their collections.

The auction opened with a painting of the rich man's son. The auctioneer pounded his gavel. "We will start the bidding with this picture of the man's son. Who will bid for this picture?" There was silence. Then a voice in the back of the room shouted, "We want to see the famous paintings. Skip this one."

But the auctioneer persisted. "Will someone bid for this painting? Who will start the bidding? $100, $200? The son! The son! Who'll take the "SON?"

Finally, a voice came from the very back of the room. It was the longtime gardener of the man and his son. "I'll give $10 for the painting." , "We have $10, who will bid $20?"

The crowd was becoming angry. They didn't want the picture of the son. They wanted the more worthy investments for their collections. The auctioneer pounded the gavel. "Going once, twice, SOLD for $10."

A man sitting on the second row shouted, "Now let's get on with the collection!"

The auctioneer laid down his gavel. "I'm sorry, the auction is over. When I was called to conduct this auction, I was told of a secret stipulation in the will. I was not allowed to reveal that stipulation until this time. Only the painting of the son would be auctioned. Whoever bought that painting would inherit the entire estate, including the paintings. The man who took the son gets everything!"

So it is with salvation. Many will pass over the gift of the Christ child because something else looks more appealing… but they do so without realizing that in the end, it will only be those who took the Son that will get everything

Those who take the son will know the joy of the new born king who spent 33 years living among men, pointing the way to paradise!

Those who will take the son will know yoy to the baby in the manger grew up to be the man who carried old rugged cross up Calvary's hill!

Those who take the son celebrate both the birth of the Christ child in Bethlehem and the fact that Early one Sunday morning he arose from the dead.

What did you get for Christmas? The hope of life Eternal! It's the best gift of all!

No. 9760-New Year

The Things To Come, Are All Yours!

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 1, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "Whether Paul or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present or things to come; all are yours; And ye are Christ's'; and Christ is God's." 1 Corinthians 3:22-23

Introduction

Each year as a new begins many people take deep breaths and prepare for what the new year will bring. What will it bring? We have hints. The political situation seems unstable. The rise of radical Islamic Extremists around the has made us question our safety as we travel around the world or across the country. The rise of gang violence has made some question their safety in shopping malls on the city streets. We don't know what the job markets will look like or even what the short term predictions are for food, clothing and shelter, we just don't know.

In 1996 Evangelist Billy Graham, after receiving the Congressional Gold Medal, said the world is a confusing place and often appears to be in the brink of destruction, but there is hope because Jesus lives.

There are many who have New Year's jitters. Some are afraid and some are excited. Those who face a judgment day such as a court date are nervous. Those who are excited about an approaching happy date are anxious. Each have the New Year's Jitters. That makes it hard for them to sleep, sit still or focus without thinking about the "things to come."

One of the things that we think about is all that we owe, and how will we get through and the things that tangle us and how will we get free.

In respect to these two things that we think about most at this time, New Year's has a special significance. When we think about the things that have enslaved us we must recall the children of Israel on the night before left out of Egypt to finally be free from slavery. The day before they sat with all of their movables packed and ready to move out. The next day would be first day of the rest of their lives. Our forefathers did the same thing. December 31, 1862 Negroes sat in churches all across the safe watching the clock because at midnight on January 1, 1863 all slaves in most places in the South were would be free. They called it watch meeting. Today, we still do the same thing.

More than that, January 1st is what is known as Jubilee Day. It's a day when all debts were settled and slaves were set free. They couldn't wait to see Jubilee day. What if you were told that on the first day of the new year that all of your debts would be paid in full; wouldn't that be a good feeling? Think about it, everything paid. Mortgage paid. Car note paid. Utilities paid. Credit cards paid. Student loans paid. What if even the amount you borrowed from a relative is also paid in full? Wouldn't that be great?

In addition, suppose you were also told after your debts were paid that for the rest of your life, no matter what comes your way, how it affects you is yours to determine the outcome. Sickness, death, new opportunities, new ventures, you name it. No matter what comes your way the outcome is entirely yours to decide! How would that make you feel?

If you have the new year's jitters, be at ease to know that our Lord has paid our sin debt and presented us with the canceled mortgage as a gift. Romans 6:23 says, "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal through Jesus Christ our Lord."

However, we reminded that because we have been freed from guilt, shame, depression and feelings of despair, our God is has put the coming year in our hand! It is ours to decide. We can wallow in self pity and do the same thing next year that we did last year, or we can walk boldly into future with confidence because God has promised "It is yours!"

As Christians, we know that Jesus has freed us from the debt and burdens of sin. He has closed the chapter on our shortcomings and given us a new chance. As we enter a new year we thank him for canceling our debt and giving us an opportunity to start over again with all spiritual debts paid.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul sending a letter of encouragement to the believers in Corinth. They were encouraged to recognize that despite deteriorating world conditions, as long as they were Christ's and Christ is the Son of God, there was no need to worry.

The Corinthians, like many new Christians, were concerned about world situations because it seemed that any change is world conditions, especially as it related to Rome had an adverse affect on them. This made them uneasy as new leader was named or new era began.

Paul's words came as encouragement to them because a change of leaders could mean have meant life or death to them. A change in the politics of the world could make a difference for their present or future; they were uneasy. So he wrote, "Whether Paul or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present or things to come;" All of it is yours as you are a child of the king.

For the believers it meant they had a reason for hope. No matter what happened it all be good because God was still on the throne.

It's In our Hands

The challenge of each new year is to deal with the approaching year with an attitude of faith. Like the Children of Israel who marched out of Egypt left the things that enslaved them behind, we too must step into the new year without the spirit of enslavement that shackled us. We must do so with the full knowledge that the "Things to Come" are ready, waiting for us to tackle them with courage or we can brush them aside as we hide in fear.

IT'S UP TO YOU: God has cleared a path for us by going before us and making a way. What we do in the coming year is "all yours" to decide.

Consider the little boy who went to fortune tellers at a carnival to find his future. One woman had a crystal ball and after she had collected his money proceeded to tell him that she saw "hands doing great things." The boy was puzzled but could get nothing else from her. He went to another and this one dealt him a set of cards. After moments of ceremony the fortune teller said "You have a great future in your hand." Still puzzled the boy went to yet another fortune teller who was a palm reader. She told him to look at the lines in his hand. "Each one tells the story of your life before it is lived. Your fate is written in your hands. Lines that extend across your palm mean long life. Lines that are crossed by another mean a loss. Lines that curve and do not go straight show times when you will stray from your mark." The boy was dazzled by what the fortune tellers told him. He thought about their words constantly. He could think of nothing else as walked around gazing at the lines in his hands. When he got home he decided to ask his grandma the same question that he had asked the fortune tellers: "What is in my future?" His grandma reached for an old tattered bible and told the boy to hold it as she said: "If you want to know about your future, it's in your hand."

The answers we seek are not written in crystal balls, tea leaves, four leaf clovers, magic cards and palm reader's lines. The answers we seek must come from God; for he alone knows our future. Whether we succeed or fail; it's in our hand.

The text says "all is yours, and ye are Christ's and Christ is God's." In essence, it's in your hands and if you put your hands in Christ's hands and his hand is in God's hands, you don't have to worry about the coming years!

It's in my hand Lord, but I'm putting my hand in your hand.

"Lord, I'm putting it in your hand because your..:

—GLORY is much greater than mine; POWER is much stronger than mine

—METHODS are much wiser than mine; UNDERSTANDING is much broader than mine!

—WAYS are much safe than mine; HEART is much bigger than mine;

—BURDEN is lighter than mine; and LOVE is much deeper than mine!

"It's in your hands because I don't know what the future holds but I know who holds my hand!"

LOOKING FOR THE THINGS TO COME: Paul told the Corinthians that the present and the things to come was theirs for asking.

Today, we are celebrating all that God has done for us this year, but as the New Year begins we are looking for God to help us do some new things; these are the things to come and God says they are all yours!

In the days ahead we want to strive to have fewer unwed mothers, more fathers instead of baby daddies, more marriages and fewer shacking relationships. We are looking for God to help us do some new things; these are the things to come, and God says they are all yours!

In the days ahead we want justice for our people. We want justice that demonstrates that black lives matter, just as white lives, red lives, brown lives and blue lives matter. We are looking for less crime and homelessness in our streets. We are looking for God to help us do some new things these are things to come and God says they are all yours!

God is not through with us yet. If He can make "a way in the wilderness, and rivers in the desert", we know that He is able to move our present mountains out of our way.

If the Lord can cause a virgin to conceive a child, He can restore our families.

If the Lord can open the Red Sea, He can open doors of opportunity.

If the Lord can resurrect Lazarus, He can resurrect our ailing communities.

We must have faith that God is going to do a new thing!

When there seems to be no way, the Lord will create a way.

When there seems to be no present hope, the Lord will give us hope.

When there seems to be no present joy, in Christ we will discover new joy.

The challenge is to remember that what God did for your mother or grandmother, he will do for you!

God has brought our families through the wilderness of oppression and hard times.

He has brought us through slavery, depressions and world wars!

He's bought us from a nomadic life of moving from place to place and set our feet on solid ground.

He's put food on our table and clothes on our backs.

This year, God has shown us what he can do. Because of what he has done in the past we are looking for the things to come!

"It is no secret what God can do. What he's done for others, he'll do for you. With arms wide open he'll pardon you. It is no secret what God will do."

No Jitters

Finally, brothers and sisters, as we begin our new year, let's go forth in confidence that God will make a way!

As we begin a new year, believers should resolve to keep a resolution we had last year, and that is to keep trusting in the Lord!

It does not matter whether it is a new year or an old year, but it's a good idea to keep trusting in the Lord.

We trust in the Lord because history has shown us that those who trust in the Lord face the unknown without fear.

We trust in the Lord because saints who have believed him have been rewarded with answered prayers, a few earthly pleasures and heavenly glory!

We are not by ourselves:

—Noah trusted the Lord and he brought him through the great flood!

—Abraham trusted the Lord and he showed him the Lamb in the bush!

—Ruth trusted the Lord and she found happiness while gleaning fields!

—Moses trusted the Lord and he lead Israel out of bondage

—Daniel trusted the Lord and he protected him in the Lion's Den

—Three Hebrew Boys trusted the Lord and he shielded them in the fiery furnace!

Job declared that though his health was slipping away, his children were gone and his wealth was lost that he would still trust the Lord. I hear him across the centuries declaring, "Yea though he slay me, yet will I trust him."

There will be no fear this year because if I am:

—Sad, the Lord will be my fountain of joy!

—At Fault, the Lord will be stronghold of forgiveness!

—Weak, the Lord will be my pillar of strength

—Discouraged, the Lord will be my pool of inspiration!

—Defeated, the Lord will be my crown of victory!

—Darkness, the Lord will be my light!.

—Lonely, the Lord will be my friend

—Helpless, the Lord will be my help.

The Lord is my refuge and my strength a very pleasant help in a time of trouble!

No wonder the songwriter declares! "The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear!"

I trust in God wherever I may be. Out on the land or on the raging sea. Though come what may, from day to day, my heavenly father watches over me!

I trust in God, I know he cares for me. Upon the land or on the raging sea, Though billows roll, he keeps my soul! My heavenly father watches over me!

As we consider the things to come, we need make sure God is in our plan.

When God's hand is in the plan..

—The world may kick us down, but God will pick us up!

—The world may strike us out, but God will give us home runs!

—The world may think we are losers, but God will make us winners!

—The world may think we are weak, but God will make us strong!

This year we will need to keep trusting God because he has blessed us, raised us and saved us!

We need to trust the Lord because he "was wounded for our transgressions and bruised for our iniquity."

We need to get back to God because one day when I was lost, he died upon a cross!

He died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

No. 9761-Inspiration

Going back to go forward

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 8, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "And the Lord said unto Jacob, Return unto the land of thy fathers, and to thy kindred; and I will be with thee." Genesis 31:3

Introduction

Have you ever tried to go forward, but it seemed that you were really going backward? There are times when many people are frustrated because it seems that things simply don't work out for them; they make two steps forward and then make three steps backward. They save money, then have to spend what has been saved for repairs. They lose ten pounds and gain 15 pounds. They get over one sickness only to be plagued by two more. The perpetual swing of life sometimes takes a confusing track that gives us what Paul Lawrence Dunbar called,

"A crust of bread and a corner to sleep in,
A minute to smile and an hour to weep in,
A pint of joy to a peck of trouble,
And never a laugh but the moans come double;
And that is life!"

At the beginning of a year we strive to go forward, despite the frustrations, but yet we are plagued by this tendency to go backward, and that can be frustrating unless we consider that sometimes going backward is necessary to go forward. Has your car ever been stuck in the mud? Did you find that you had to back up enough to find solid ground to get out of the mudhole? Have you turned onto a street to discover that it was a dead end? To get off the dead end street, you had to turn around and go back.

In the past, we have certainly seen our share of mud holes and dead ends. When those times comes we have two options: stay in the mud hole or stare at the dead end or turn around and go backward.

In Jeremiah 18:2-3 God told Jeremiah "Arise, and go down to the potter's house, and there I will cause thee to hear my words.Then I went down to the potter's house, and, behold, he wrought a work on the wheels. And the vessel that he made of clay was marred in the hand of the potter: so he made it again another vessel, as seemed good to the potter to make it." God wanted Israel to go forward, but something was wrong. So like a potter does a lump of clay that is flawed, he tore it down and then built it back up again without the flaw; he had to go back to go forward!

It is interesting to watch skaters in the rink. There are skaters of all ages on skates and roller blades flashing around the floor as the music plays. Every generation skates different music. Some skate to Beyonce' and Jay-Z others have skated to "Lookout Weekend" by Debbie Deb or "Let the Music Play" by Shannon or Planet Rock" by Afrika Bambata. At the skating rink friends would blaze past each other and sometimes form a line. There was also a time when skating skills were shown as everyone went under the limbo stick. No day at the skating rink was complete unless a few people really showed off their skill by skating backward. They were going in the same direction as everyone else but they were facing backward, and they did it effortlessly and without a thought! Skating backward, but still going forward!

Therein lies an important truth, "sometimes going forward, requires you to go backward, but you are still going in the right direction!"

When the train blocks the track, you back up turn around and find a new route! Even though you are backing up, you are still going in the right direction!

As Christians, our goal is to press forward with our eyes on the prize. On our journey, we may face some detours, but we will keep our eyes on Jesus because he will show us the way!

Exposition

This text focuses on Jacob's decision to return home after spending two decades living with his uncle.

He and his brother Esau had been on bad terms for over 20 years. Neither had seen or spoken to the other. Esau had sworn that he would kill his brother because he had stolen his birthright and cheated him out of his father's blessing. The family was in disarray. Mother tended to favor Jacob over Esau, and bad blood was everywhere.

While living with his uncle, Jacob accumulated a fortune. He had two wives and a tent full of children and what seemed to be the anointing because everything he undertook succeeded. He seemed to be climbing higher and higher. He reached a point however that God told him that to go forward he had to go back. He had to go back to his family, mend fences and resolve issues.

Jacob did not know what to expect. He was at a crossroads. He agonized over whether or not he should go home. He tossed and turned in his sleep. Just before making his decision, he wrestled with an Angel and evolved with a firm resolution that to go forward he would have to go back and take care of a few loose ends.

When he went back, he found his brother waiting for him, and he enjoyed even more happiness, prosperity, and fulfillment in the Lord. He went forward in victory, but first, he had to go back.

Back Tracking

Presently we are moving forward rapidly. Yet, it is possible that in our haste to make progress and succeed we may have lost a few essentials along the way. To go forward successfully, we may need to go back in a few areas and recalculate.

IF WE LOST FAMILY VALUES, WE NEED THEM BACK: The modern family, although redefined because of the changing role of each parent, must still be based on love, respect and a sense of community. In their haste to succeed many families have relaxed their emphasis on family values. Family's value their love for each other, yet there is a growing number of families that do not love each other and are growing apart. Respect is taught in the family. Respect for one's self in language, dress, and deportment, as well as respect for the properties of others, and the dignity of our seniors. All of these are values that are taught in the home. Today, we are seeing signs that family values are emphasized less. We are seeing children that curse their parents and other adults. Many homes are becoming war zones filled with shouting, screaming, arguments and bad feeling. The obligation to help in the general community is also emphasized less today than it has been.

If the family is to go forward, it may need to go back and revisit some of the old values that have sustained it over the years. There is still value in teaching children to respect their elders, dress appropriately for an occasion and live with integrity.

If your family decides to revisit some of the old values such as "saving for a rainy day" and having respect and reverence for God, it may seem that you are going backward, but you are actually going forward. The idea family time with less technology and television more interaction between family members may seem old fashioned, but those who go back and reclaim this old value with find that they are going back, but they are actually going forward.

SUCCESS MAY REQUIRE RETOOLING. In a similar sense, there comes a time when we need to revisit our own life situations.

We want jobs, but are we ready for the new jobs on the horizon? Robots are making cars, sweeping floors and serving hamburgers. It won't be long before cars will drive themselves, schoolrooms will become virtual stations replacing teachers with holograms, all bibles will be digitized on ipads, and church music will be tracked. Those in the work place already see machines that sweep the streets, backhoes that dig graves, and automated traffic signals. What it all means is that going forward may require us to revisit what we know how to do and retrain ourselves.

You may still have a Television with rabbit ears, but it picks up no signal. You may still have 8 track tapes on your shelf, but there won't be any new ones. If you are planning to live a few more years, then we might need to revisit our thinking. You'll be waiting a long time to get a letter that's not a bill if you don't have email. Every home needs a computer, and internet connection, especially if that home has working parents or children.

Retooling may require going back to school, learning new ways and preparing for the future. You may be going back, but are still going ahead.

WE NEED TO GO BACK TO GOD: In our quest to go forward we often make the mistake of mistaking busy-ness for godliness. We feel if we are engaged in honest work and engaged in noteworthy service that these activities can substitute for God. We live a semblance of a godly life, but in our press for success things related to God often become secondary. Our faith in God is sustained by our worship, prayer and Bible Study, yet there are many who cut themselves off from the nurturing experience in the pursuit of success. A flower looks great on the natural, but if it is cut from its source and placed in a jar of water, it won't be long before it begins to wither because it has been removed from that which sustains it. The water carries it along for a little while, but soon, without being fed it dies.

People of faith need a spirit of hope that is watered, fed and cultivated when they worship, pray, sing and study the Bible. In our press to go forward, many have left God behind. This is what happened to King David who was completely absorbed in his personal concerns and follies. When he was a youth, he prayed regularly and possessed faith so strong that he even challenged Goliath, the giant. As king, however, he became absorbed in the quest for power and lust. His faith weakened, his prayer life almost vanished. While he was riding high, David did not write many psalms. However, in the middle of his trouble when his kingdom suffered, and he personally developed a disease, he found his way back to God. Psalm 51:10 records his personal plea for restoration, "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me." He went back to God to go forward in faith. We should do the same.

Find God and Find the Future

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that when we find God, we also find our future.

Jacob had a lot going for him with his Uncle Laban, but on the way home he wrestled with God. That night as a wrestled with God's Holy Angel he said, "I won't let you go until you bless me."

He wrestled with his own misgivings!

He wrestled with his own personal fears!

He wrestled with his own anxiousness!

But he wouldn't let go until he was blessed!

If we are planning to go forward, and you notice that our faithfulness to the God's service has been slack, we need to first go back and find the Lord.

If we find the Lord he will give us:

—Serenity in the midst of our storms;

—Assurance in the midst of our afflictions;

—Courage in the midst of our challenges;

—Boldness in the midst of our battles;

—Encouragement in the time of our difficulties;

—Composure in the midst of our calamities;

—Support in the midst of our suffering

Once we get back to the Lord:

—CIRCUMSTANCES can be changed;

—DOORS can be opened;

—ENEMIES can be defeated;

—PROBLEMS can be solved;
—DOUBTS can be dissolved;
—FEARS can be conquered;
—FRIENDSHIPS can be restored;
—MARRIAGES can be salvaged
—SOULS can be converted;
—LOST lives can be saved;

Like David, we should say, "Take, me back to the point where I found joy in my relationship with God!

Take me back to the point when I was enthused about worship and studying my bible!

Take me back to the point when I was willing to give my life on the altar of sacrifice!

That's what the songwriter had in mind when he wrote, "Take me back! Take me back dear Lord, to the place where I first received you. Take me back, take me back dear Lord, to where I first believed!"

Take me back to the cross!

At the cross, at the cross where I first saw the light and the burdens of my heart rolled away! It was there by faith, I received my sight, and now I am happy all the day!

The future is tied to the cross!

He carried an old rugged cross!

He was nailed to that old cross!

He died on that cross!

But Early, Sunday morning....

No. 9762-Inspiration

When Dreams are Interrupted

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 15, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "And the king said unto them, I have dreamed a dream, and my spirit was troubled to know the dream." Daniel 2:3

Introduction

Have you ever been awakened in the middle of a great dream? Did you try to get back to it, but found it impossible because the dream was gone? That is tremendously frustrating! Think about it! For months a young woman waited for the man of her dreams to propose to her. One night, in a dream, he came to her holding something behind his back. Just he opened his mouth to speak, the phone rang! She tried to go back to sleep and pick up the dream, but she never found out what he was about to say.

A few days ago my wife told me she dreamed she was cooking pork chops. The chops were in the skillet sizzling and the smell had filled the air, then suddenly she awakened. Unable to finish the dream, she arose and prepared a full course breakfast of pork chops, eggs, and pancakes that was so scrumptious that my sons got out of bed and drove to the house for breakfast.

There is no shortage of interrupted dreams. Were you on a cruise? Was it a family vacation? Did you see yourself winning the lottery in which you appeared to have all of the numbers, but you were awakened before the final numbers were announced?

Sometimes we were actually glad our dreams were interrupted. Some have dreamed of falling off mountains, drowning in rivers, or being smothered, only to mercifully awaken to discover that it was all just a dream.

Many people felt both types of dreams during the recent Presidential elections. Some were excited because they dreamed of seeing the first woman President of the United States. Millions were disturbed to learn that their dream was interrupted by an unforeseen defeat.They went to bed on election night sure that victory had been achieved but woke up the next morning to learn that the impossible had happened. It was so impossible that millions of Americans thought they were in a nightmare, a horribly distorted dream that would soon be interrupted. They waited for a knock at the door, the phone to ring, the smoke detector to sound, or something to happen to alert them that it was all a bad dream. It didn't happen! Their dream had been interrupted.

We are happy when bad dreams are interrupted, but what happens when our best dreams are interrupted? How do we respond? Langston Hughes asked a similar question in his poem "The Dream Deferred." In the poem, he asked the question, "What happens to a dream deferred, does it dry up like a raisin in the sun, or does it fester like a sore and run..or does it explode?" Dreams are the motivating forces within us that inspire to act. Without dreams, we are like broken winged birds living a crippled existence that limp along until they fade away.

If our dreams are interrupted, we can either get mad and dry up like a raisin in the sun or we can get up and make pancakes and fry pork chops!

Dr. Martin Luther King is often remembered for his historic 1963 speech entitled "I have a dream." Standing in front a national audience, he detailed the plight of the Negro in America. Then from behind him, Mahalia Jackson, shouted out, "Tell them about the dream, Martin!" At that moment he went off his prepared script and told the nation about the dream God gave him for America. His dream embodied the hopes and aspirations of an entire race. He promoted the idea of a nation where race and color would be recognized for their uniqueness but would not be discriminating factors. It was a dream of peace and brotherhood for everyone. It was also a dream that America would recognize and live up to the true meaning of its creed that "all men are created equal and are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, among the these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Five years after Dr. King's historic speech, he was assassinated. The dream was interrupted, for a period, but it continued as barriers began to fall across the nation and African-Americans became a growing political force in the nation. There was a see-saw period when the dream lived under Presidents Carter and Clinton and found itself interrupted by Reagan, and Bush father and son. In 2008 Barack Obama was elected president and it appeared the dream was on again. Many believe it has been interrupted again.

The dreams we see in our sleep vanish if interrupted. We can't get back to them, and we'll never know how they end, However, Godly dreams may be interrupted, but they will always be fulfilled. We can get back to them because even if we get off track or forget where we were, God will always revive us.

As Christians, we are frustrated that the dream of the kingdom of God has been interrupted, but we are confident that our God is able to insure that all that he has promised will be fulfilled.

Exposition

This text focuses on a king who had a dream that troubled him and God's response to his frustration through Daniel's interpretation of the dream.

The King in the text is Nebuchadnezzar. He had a dream that troubled him and became more complicated when he could not remember the dream. All he could remember is that it was important and it had something to do with his future.

He determined to force his soothsayers and wise men to ease his troubled heart. He commanded them to tell him what he saw in his nightmare. The second command was that they give him the right interpretation of what he had seen in that dream. If they failed, they and their families would be killed.

The wise men could tell or interpret the dream. However, after considerable prayer, Daniel came before the king with the answer he sought.

Nebuchadnezzar's dream involved a statue with a Head of Gold, Breast and Arms of Silver, Belly and Thighs of Brass, Legs of Iron, and Feet and Toes of Iron and Clay mixed together.

It was a dream the foretold the fall of his kingdom and the rise of several other kingdoms: Medio-Persia, Greece, and Rome. Finally, all world kingdoms would come to an end.

The last world kingdom will be crushed by a rock that would cause the world kingdoms that stood on feet of clay to fall. This Rock would be Jesus Christ. The Rock will become a mountain that fills the whole earth. His kingdom will never end.

Despite all of his power and influence, and the power of the great men who would follow such as Alexander the Great, the Caesars of Rome, Napoleon and the great leaders of the future, God's promise for the world would ultimately be fulfilled.

It may be interrupted by the rise and fall of champions and villains, but what God promises will come to pass.

Interrupted Dreams

Very few dreams are fulfilled without some level of deferment or interruption; that challenges each of us to consider the following:

INTERRUPTED DREAMS CAN BE RESUMED: Many people have dreams that are interrupted by circumstances beyond their control, but the interruption does spell permanent defeat especially if the dream is God-centered. Joseph was a young man who dreamed that one day he would be in a position of leadership so high that even his older brothers would kneel before him. He had no idea what the dream meant or where the dream would carry him. Before the dream was fulfilled his brothers threw him into a pit, he was sold as a slave, worked as a house manager, and thrown into prison. It was a series of interruptions that would have destroyed an ordinary person's dream. However, it proved to be only an interruption. God raised him to a high position in Egypt, and many years later his family came and bowed before him.

There are many today who dreamed of obtaining a college education, owning a business, pursuing a career or other aspirations, but sidelined their dreams because of unforeseen circumstances. Illness, financial misfortune, lack of opportunity and a plethora of other situations often sidetrack the best of us. The interruption should not derail aspirations. There is still time to go to college, start that business or pursue that career. Perhaps you started a family earlier than you expected or you were forced to change jobs or locations; those are interruptions that defer your dreams, they are not permanent. Keep the faith, if God gave you the dream, it might be interrupted, but it will come full circle.

INTERRUPTED DREAMS SHOULD NOT BE FORGOTTEN: If our dream is interrupted, it should not be forgotten. We should never stop trying. When Daniel ask the king to tell him his dream, he said, "The thing is gone from me." He could not remember it. We should not forget God-given dreams. We should persevere. Consider that: In 1831, Abraham Lincoln failed in business. In 1832, Abraham Lincoln was defeated for state legislator.

In 1833, Abraham Lincoln tried a new business and failed. In 1835, Abraham Lincoln's fiancée died. In 1836, Abraham Lincoln had a nervous breakdown. In 1843, Abraham Lincoln ran for Congress and was defeated. In 1848, Lincoln ran again, and was defeated. Again. In 1855, Lincoln ran for the Senate and lost. In 1856, Lincoln ran for Vice President and lost. In 1859, Lincoln ran again for the Senate and lost. Then, in 1860, Abraham Lincoln was elected President of the United States. What matters most is not how many times you fail, but that you never stop trying. Never forget your dream, even if it is interrupted.

Today, there many who have forgotten the essence of Dr. Martin Luther King's dream. Many have forgotten that he dreamed about an end to poverty in America. Many have also forgotten his call justice to run down like waters and righteousness like a mighty stream." Many have forgotten his call for us to challenge unjust laws and denounce wars waged against impoverished people for profit and gain.

If the dream is forgotten, we will sit idly when we witness police brutality or injustice if speaking out will injure our political friends.

If we forget the dream, we will sit silently as racism rages and freedoms are diminished.

Today, even though we may feel our dream has been interrupted, we must not forget the quest and continue. We can't afford to dry up like a raisin in the sun or fester like a sore and run. We must march on till victory is won!

WE SHOULD PROTECT AGAINST CORRUPTED DREAMS: The overriding reasons that most of the Jews detested Samaritans was related to the fact that Samaritans had a corrupted view of their relationship with God. The Assyrian army conquered Israel and took a large number of the defeated Jews back to Assyria where they were re-educated and indoctrinated to Assyria life. Afterward, they returned them to Israel, but the people rejected them because they had been brainwashed or re-educated to the point that their thinking, customs, and beliefs about God had been corrupted. They looked like Jews, but the Godly dream had been corrupted. To protect against further corruption the Jews avoided them altogether to the point of not even talking to them in public.

Today, this generation must be on guard that Dr. King's dream is not corrupted. As the years pass, many now have their own ideas about the dream which have been substituted for the dream. Some have even ventured as far as to put words in his mouth saying, "If Dr. King were alive he would be for this idea and against this idea." His dream has been reduced to a message for the middle class and very few people today speak about the poor in America. In the recent Presidential election, there were 22 or more candidates. Each of them spoke about the middle class, none of the addressed the problems of the poor. Dr. King was concerned about both the poor and the middle class, but the dream has been corrupted. There are some who have corrupted the dream to fuse the issue of gay marriage with civil rights even though it was never at the forefront of Dr. King's message when he lived.

Corrupted dreams don't fulfill themselves the way they should. They produce corrupted result.

We should protect against efforts to corrupt our faith as well. God is good, but he never promised us that life would always be good to us. Neither has he promised that we would be wealthy and healthy in this life. He told us to expect just the opposite, and seek only his kingdom above all. He promised us an answered prayer, never to leave us alone and eternal life when this life ends. Many have corrupted the faith with prosperity dreams that usually produce prosperity for those who teach it and false hope for those who receive the corrupted instruction.

Jesus is the Dream

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that the dream that God has given the faithful cannot be deterred because instead of giving us a dream he gave us Jesus.

Abraham had a dream that one day his descendants would fill the earth and number more the stars in the sky.

Moses had a dream that Israel would be free from Egyptian bondage and would establish a great nation!

Martin Luther King had a dream of a nation where everyone would acknowledge the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God.

But when God answered the prayers of the faith he did not do it with a dream, he sent Jesus. Jesus is the dream.

Jesus is our dream of moving out of our:

—Hunger and acquiring a satisfied soul!

—Darkness and walking into the marvelous light

—Sinking sand experience and standing on the Solid Rock!

—Spiritual Slavery to complete spiritual freedom!

—Defeat into the glory of victory!

—Despair to unspeakable joy!

He is our dream of moving from "Soon I will be done with the troubles of the world to 'I'm so glad that trouble don't last always!"

He is the dream that refused to go away, even though he was interrupted and disrupted, he refused to be corrupted.

He was rejected by the people in his own hometown, but he would not go away!

He was persecuted by the scribes and Pharisees, but he would not go away!

They whipped him mercilessly all night long and tried him in hostile courts, but the dream refused to die!

They hung him on a cross, stretched out between two thieves.

They interrupted the dream when he died on the cross.

They disrupted the dream when the buried him in a borrowed tomb!

But early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave to pick up the life he laid down for his friends!

Our Savior lives!

The dream of salvation was interrupted but not totally disrupted!

He lives!

No. 9763-Inspiration

A Good God on a Bad Day

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, J.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 22, 2017

SCRIPTURE: This is the day that the Lord has made, let us rejoice and be glad in it. Psalm 118:24 In the day of prosperity be joyful, but in the day of adversity consider: God also hath set the one over against the other, to the end that man should find nothing after him. Ecclesiastes 7:14

Introduction

Have you ever had a bad day? What's the worse one you can remember? The best believers have bad days; in fact, there is probably rarely a week that passes without experiencing at least one bad; a day when you thought it couldn't possibly get any worse.

Consider the wife who knew what started out to be a good day ended up being a bad day that became worse every minute. The wife bought her husband a motorcycle for his birthday. He wanted one but had never ridden one. As soon as he cranked it up it, he lost control, and it crashed through the patio window. She rushed to the phone and called for help, but realized her cell phone wasn't charged. She tried to jump in the car and drive to the nearest neighbor down the road, but her car wouldn't start, so she ran. She called for help from the neighbor's house, but the ambulance came to the neighbor's house, and she had to run back to give them directions. While the EMS prepared to rush her husband to the hospital, she noticed that the motorcycle had spilled gas all over the floor. She wiped it up with towels and put the rags in a bucket outside. They treated her husband for scratches and brought him home. He walked outside and look at the mess. He lit up a cigarette and threw the match in the bucket with the gas soaked rags and the blaze burned down the house. The entire house burned down except a single letter. It was from insurance company notifying the family that the homeowner's insurance policy was canceled last week.

Maybe your day wasn't that bad, but you've had some that were pretty close. You knew you were having a bad day when your twin forgot your birthday, you put both contacts in the same eye, and your husband walked in said, good morning Tisha when your name is Edna.-That's a sign that it's a really bad day.

How did you feel when your bad came? The first response is to be frustrated. That will probably be followed by anger, hurt, embarrassment and finally, the blues. Sometimes all of that happens at once. During the day you are grumpy, edgy, and short tempered. On such a day, it is very difficult to be productive. At work, very little will be done. At home, nothing happens.

Sometimes nothing happened at all because you wake up in a bad mood. When that happens, everybody around has a bad day!

Even the most faithful have bad days. Mr. and Mrs. Job were in their home when news came that all of their cattle had been stolen. Before they could deal with that, news came that their children had been killed in an accident. Before they could deal with that, Job became sick and broke out in boils and sores. It was enough for Mrs. Job to throw up her hands and cry out "this is too much." She said it would be best for Job to just curse God and die. Yet, even on a bad day, Job said, "Yea though he slay me, yet will I trust him...the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away."

That indicates the response that every believer should have to bad days. Whether our day bright us good or bad, God is still good no matter what happens. Max Lucado in his book, "God will carry you through" says that on such days, God is working his will, even on our bad days, so we should remain faithful and let him finish his work. Letter the painter finish his masterpiece. Let the writer finish his novel. Let the creator finish his creation!

As Christians, we are encouraged to remember that our God is a good God and can do no wrong. He is a good all the time, and all the time he is good.

Exposition

This text considers David as he explains that not what happens in a given day, God is still good.

David's life was one that experienced the full gamut of happiness and sadness, defeat and victory, success and failure. He saw days of courage and strength and days when he fell into spiritual weakness. However, he concluded that every day that God provides is a good day because God is the master of that day.

Every day we get from the Lord is a blessing. Each day we open our eyes we are glad that we have one more day to serve and praise him. No matter if it's raining or the sun is shining we are glad. We view each day with wonder, respect, and amazement. That's when we remember the truth of Psalm 118:24, "This is the day which the LORD hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it."

This is the type of gladness that comes after one has considered the universe and how God controls it. Gladness in this context is to feel protected because of the knowledge that we are the children of an all-powerful God. When we say we are glad to see another day it brings to mind the little song the Mighty Clouds of Joy had in mind when they sang, "It's another day's journey, and I'm glad about it. He gave me health and strength and I'm glad about it. No matter what the day brings, it is a day created by an all powerful God and "I will be glad in it!" We face each day confident that it will work out to his glory, so it's going to be a good day, regardless.

In Ecclesiastes 7:14 Solomon reminds us that the same God that we praise on our good days, is the same God on our bad days. He says, " In the day of prosperity be joyful, but in the day of adversity consider: God also hath set the one over against the other..” It may seem strange, but even on your worse day, God is still working it out!

What to do

What helps believers to make it through bad days is the knowledge that no matter what happens to us, God is working behind the scenes for our good. He is even to working to flip our bad into a blessed day.

KEEP AN ATTITUDE OF GRATEFULNESS: When things go wrong, it helps to remain grateful, even when we are trying to work ourselves out of a dilemma. We still find a reason to express gratefulness and thanks to God. In Psalm 105:1, “O give thanks unto the LORD; call upon his name: make known his deeds among the people.” From experience, many of us can testify that God is a good God and regardless of what a kind of hand life deals us, we will make the best of it. There is a tee shirt slogan that seems to epitomize what every believer feels about what God has provided. The slogan says, “Too blessed to be stressed!”

The ungrateful man complains that his house is too small, the saint says, “Lord thank you for blessing me with a house!”

The ungrateful man complains that his job doesn’t pay him enough. The saint says, “Lord thank you for blessing me with a job when so many are unemployed!” The ungrateful woman complains about not having new shoes. The saint says, “Lord, thank you for blessing me to be able to walk in the same old shoes!

The ungrateful man complains about having a bad day! The saint says, “Lord, thank you for letting me see another day, good or bad!”

On our worst days, God is still good.

ON ANY BAD DAY THERE IS MORE GOOD THAN BAD: On any bad that we experience there is always more good happening to us and for us than is bad; the problem is that our focus shifts to the negatives. We see the losses and the misfortunes and lose sight of the blessings. If the car won’t start, that’s obviously a bad thing; but you still have a car, a house, and utilities. No accidents were reported, the food in the refrigerator didn’t spoil, and a tree limb from the recent storm didn’t fall through your roof. Even though the car won’t start, there is still considerable reason for us to be of good cheer, because such more is going well.

Consider the man who sang a song as he drove along thinking of how blessed he was to have so many possessions. He sang “Count your blessings.” When he stopped and proceeded to get out of his BMW, suddenly a truck came along and hit the door, completely ripping it off. When the police arrived at the scene, the man was complaining bitterly and singing a different song. The people standing around were Thanking God. It was a miracle that the man survived and they expected the man to be singing, “I never would have made it without you, Lord.” It was just the opposite.

The man stopped singing altogether. He looked at the door of his car lying in the middle of the street and complained about the damage to his precious BMW. “Officer, look what they’ve done to my Beemer!” he whined. The police officer, who was a devout Christian, said “You are the obvious recipient of a great blessing. A truck just tore off the door of your car, there is debris everywhere, and all you can see is the damage to your precious BMW. You should be singing, " I won't complain" but you are so busy grumbling that you haven't even noticed that your left arm was ripped off!"

"Oh no!" replied the man, finally noticing the bloody left shoulder where his arm once was. "I've lost my Rolex, too."- He could not see that his life had been spared, he could only see what he had lost.

A bad day gets worse if we can't see the good for looking at what went bad.

GOD'S GOODNESS IS NOT MEASURED BY PLEASURE: Some people measure God's goodness by the pleasure index. They believe God is good when they are receiving known blessings as they requested. Thus, when they are sick, and they ask God for a healing and receive it, then they respond, "God is good!" When they are hungry and pray for food, and it comes they respond, "God is good!" When they are in trouble, and God brings the help, they respond "God is good!" However, when the hot water heater bursts and water is everywhere, is God still good? When you were laid off your job without notice or prospect for finding another one soon, is God still good? When storms damage your property or thieves take away that which you value, is God still good? Your answer is like spinach and broccoli to the proud son. "It may not be good to me, but if it's served at mama's table, it's bound to be good for me.!" That's the Christian response. No matter what the circumstance, God is still good. Believers don't measure God's goodness by the pleasure index. We know that God is good all the time and all the time God is good. That's another way of saying, 'whatever is served at God's table, may not be good "to us" at the moment, but it's bound to be good "for us" in the long run!"

In all things give thank

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that regardless how each day begins in all, scripture reminds us "In all things, give thanks."

Every morning when we rise we are the recipients of his benevolent blessings. He blesses us with health and strength. That's why David declared in Psalm 5:3 "My voice shalt thou hear in the morning, O LORD; in the morning will I direct my prayer unto thee, and will look up."

The love of God is not occasional, but it is always present. Even when we are not at our best God still loves us. When we are faring less than our potential God has showered us with love. John 3:16 says "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life."

The mercy of God is not incidental. He does not show mercy today and refuse to show mercy tomorrow. Every day God is merciful, even when it appears that we are having a bad day.

The grace of God is not restricted to good days or bad day. There are no bad days in which we are outside of the Grace of God. God's grace is always available in sufficient quantity to satisfy our needs. That's why Paul declared in, 2 Corinthians 12:9 "My grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness."

When everybody else in the world sees the bad that's going on, the believer is always able to see the goodness of the Lord.

I'm reminded of the church that held a special "complaint" Sunday where all members were told to march around and put their complaints about the church in a box, and they would be read out loud. On complaint Sunday hundreds of members marched around and posted their complaints which seemed to fall into three categories: The choir's singing wasn't good enough, the preacher's preaching didn't make them shout, and there were too many offerings. Every member marched around except an old sister on the mother's bench. When asked why she wouldn't make her complaint she said:"Brother Pastor, if the choir don't sing to my fancy, I remember that"God gave me a song that the angels can't sing, I've been washed in the blood of the crucified lamb. It doesn't matter whether the preacher's sermon pats me on the back or steps on my feet as long as he calls the name of Jesus, for at the name of Jesus every knee shall bow, and every tongue confess. I'm not bothered by the offerings because every time I see that plate I ask "What shall I render unto God for all his mercies? I didn't come by the box because I don't have a complaint. The Lord has been good to me, and I won't complain!

I don't know about you, but I've decided that I won't complain! God has been good to me.

On a bad day, when I'm dipped in sorrow, I think of his goodness, and he brings me joy!

On a bad day, when I'm afraid of failing, I think of his goodness, and he brings me courage!

On a bad day, when I'm feeling very weak, I think of his goodness, and he brings me strength!

On a bad day, when I'm facing defeat, I think of his goodness, and he brings me the victory!

On a bad day, when I'm In the midst of the storm, God is good, because he speaks to the wind and waves!

It was a bad day when Jesus stood before Israel and heard them shout Crucify him!

It was a bad day when they put a purple robe on his shoulder and crown of thorns on his head!

It was a bad day when nailed him to an old rugged cross!

It was a bad day when he dropped his head and died!

But even on that bad day, God was still good!

I hear Jesus cry out "Father forgive them for they know not what they do!

I hear a soldier cry out "Surely, he must be the son of God!

They buried him in a borrowed tomb, but Early Sunday morning arose

That's why we declare, "This is the day that the Lord hath made, I will rejoice and be glad in it!"

No. 9764-Inspiration

Playing Your Hand

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 29, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "I have learned, in whatsoever state I am,therewith to be content. both how to be abased, and I know how to abound: everywhere and in all things I am instructed both to be full and to be hungry, both to abound. and to suffer need. I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." Philippians 4:11-13

Introduction

Have you ever played cards? There are many who have become experts at these games because they have perfected the art playing well with whatever hand they have been dealt.

What's considered a good hand depends on the game. In Poker, the best hand is a royal flush: A,K,Q,J, 10 all in the same suit. With a hand like that, a player is almost guaranteed to win. Some don't get the royal flush they get the next best thing: a straight flush, five cards in sequence, all in the same suit. There are some who don't get either of these, and neither do they get "four of a kind", "the full house" or a flush; all they get is a pair. Yet, poker experts say even people who have only been dealt pairs can win, it's all in the strategy and thinking of the player.

Many people are familiar with bid whist. The players in the game make bids about how many books they will win after they look at their hands. They usually play with a partner against other partners. After the deal, some players get a mixed hand with some high cards and some low. Others get a downtown hand that is mostly low cards and other get an uptown hand, most high cards. It really doesn't matter what cards partners have been dealt, they can still win if they, "Play their cards right."

If you play Ono, your goal is get rid of all of your cards. If you play Gin Rummy, you never show your cards until the game is over.

In the children's game of "Old Maid," the object is to get rid of all of the cards in your hand without ending up with the "Old Maid." -No one wants to be dealt the "Old Maid" and players spend the entire game trying to get rid of the old lady.

Whether your favorite game is Tonk, Bid Whist, Poker, Gin Rummy, or Old Maid, there is one truth that runs like a ripple through each game; it doesn't matter what type of hand you are dealt; what matters is how you play the hand you have been dealt. There is a faith parallel to the way we play cards and the attitude we bring to life situations. We get our "hands" in a card game from the dealer, in life, God deals us our hand. There is no good hand or bad hand, only faithful players or faithless players. Some people are born with the Royal Flush. They have everything going for them, money, health, and opportunity. Some only get a pair. They have very few opportunities but still have a chance to win. There are others who dealt the Old Maid, but they still can win the game.

The person who lives by faith is not intimidated or impressed by the hand they have been dealt. A faithless person can lose while holding a pat hand, while a person of faith can win although he or she never really received any cards to work with; all the believer had was strong faith and a plan.

That's where faith comes into play. It doesn't matter what hand we have been dealt in life if we trust in God we can rise to the top of our game.

As Christians, we have learned to trust God to help us play our hand. It doesn't matter what state we are in, we have learned to lean on our Savior because he will see us through.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul's instruction to New Testament Christians about complaining and grumbling.

The tone of his teaching was simple: God will always do that which is best for us, even when we don't understand or appreciate the circumstance. Therefore, we should labor with a spirit of gratitude for what we have while we strive to reach higher heights.

Whether we have been dealt a great hand that is filled with all of the most desirable cards that include an abundance of material things or whether we have been given the "Old Maid" and must we get along with meager fare for a while, we must thank the dealer and play our hand. The scripture teaches "everything give thanks!"

The attitude of perpetual thanks supersedes and overrides complaining because complaining by nature requires us to believe that God has wronged us; that somehow he has dealt us a bad hand from the bottom of the deck, intentionally and hurtful lay.

When we approach life with a grateful spirit, we play our hand with an attitude that God cannot and will not wrong us in any way because it is against his nature. Even though we have been dealt a difficult hand, we can do all things through Christ who strengthens us.

Look at your hand

Each believer has been given a life filled with Aces, spades, Kings and Jokers, how our lives turn out depends on how we play our hand.

WHAT TO DO WITH A WEAK HAND: The most desirable hand to have is the one with all of the right cards, but suppose your hand is a weak hand? Suppose God doesn't give you anything but low cards and Jokers. Does that mean that you are doomed to lose? No, it means you must lay out a plan to use what others think is a weakness, to your advantage with God's help. That's what Moses had to learn when he was told to go to Egypt and free Israel. He complained that he did not have all of the essentials he needed: no army, resources or soldiers. God asked him, "What's that in thine hand?" Moses had only a rod in his hand, but God took the rod and blessed it in a way that when Moses used it, it did miraculous things.

What's in your hand? If you are Spud Web, you say that you were dealt a very short body, but a set of strong legs. When he played his hand, he became one of the slam dunk kings of basketball despite the fact that he was only 5'7" inches tall and weighed a measly 132 pounds. If you are Alex Haley, all God gave him was a pencil. He took that pencil and became an author of best sellers like "Roots" and the Autobiography of Malcolm X. What is that in thy hand? For Malcolm Jamal Warner it was a television script. For Sugar Ray Leonard it was a boxing glove. For Micheal Jordan, it was basketball. If you are Liz Murray you may have grown in a dysfunctional family no working shower, abusive parents and nothing but hard luck, but played your hand so successfully that you finish high school in two years and earn a scholarship to Harvard University. What do you do with a weak hand? Trust God, get a plan work move forward in faith.

WHAT TO DO WHEN THE WORLD LAUGHS AT YOUR HAND: People are cruel. They make fun of what they do not understand and anything that is different. When the world laughs, it is easy to feel alone and hopeless. That's must have been how Moses felt, but God reassured him that "I will be with thee.." Today, we should hear the voice of Christ saying, "And lo, I will be with thee alway." When God is with you, you can do much more than you ever expected because he takes the simple things in life and uses them for his purpose. God often takes simple, insignificant, foolish and weak things and uses them for his purpose. "But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty; And base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, yea, and things which are not, to bring to nought things that are: That no flesh should glory in his presence." 1 Corinthians 1:27-29. When the world laughs because your attempts to succeed seem foolish, keep telling yourself "I can do anything that will strengthen me, through Christ."

WHAT TO DO WHEN YOUR HAND COMES FROM THE BOTTOM OF THE DECK: There are many people who can handle life's disappointments or even the fact that they were not dealt a winning hand or given an even start, but they have serious difficulty whenever they discover or suspect that they have been dealt their hand from the bottom of the deck. That's when you have played a game and notice that although four aces have been played that someone else wins when a mysterious fifth ace shows up. It's when you have a royal flush with hearts, and someone else throws down a king or queen of hearts. That's when you know that someone is getting their cards from a crooked deal. We see this in life daily. When our friends and associates seem to succeed in life without following the rules. They sell drugs, cheat on their taxes, cheat on their taxes, buy stolen merchandise, or otherwise get cards from the bottom of the deck.

Believers can live while working with their weak hand, but it is frustrating when others keep playing with the wrong hand or keep shooting craps with loaded dice. What does a believer do? David wrote in Psalm 37:1-2 that we should, "Fret not thyself because of evildoers, neither be thou envious against the workers of iniquity for they shall soon be cut down as the grass and wither as the green herb." In essence, God will deal with the under handed, we are to remain faithful with the assurance that comes from Psalm 37:25 " I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread."

A blessed hand

Finally, brothers and sisters, when God deals you a hand, it is blessed hand, because your hand has come from God's hand.

Paul said he learned that whatever hand he had ben dealt he would deal with it. He said he had some good hands and some bad hands, but remained focused and at peace in each instance.

When what's in your hand has been blessed by God, there is no limit to what you can do and to how far you can go!

"..Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." 1 Corinthians 2:9

Brothers and sisters, it is not important what you have in your hands. However it is important that what you have has been touched by the master's hand.

It does not matter that you only have a little with which to work. It does matter that you let God work with what you have for his service.

When you've been touched by the master's hand, nothing can stand in your way!

Feel free to dream the impossible dream! Fight the unbeatable foe!

I heard the songwriter declare: "He touched me! He touched me! And oh the joy the floods my soul. Something happened and now I know, he touched me and made me whole!"

He touched me, the man who carried a cross for me up Calvary's hill!

He touched me, the man who let them stick a spear in his side and put a crown of thorns on his head!

He touched me, the man who died and was buried in a borrowed tomb!

He touched me, the man who stayed in the grave for three days an nights and early Sunday morning arose from the grave

He touched me and turned my sadness turned to joy!

He touched me and turned my failure turned to success!

He touched me and turned my defeat turned into victory!

He touched me...

..and now I am no longer the same!

No. 9765-Inspiration

He Protects our Blind Side

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 5, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "He that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep. The Lord is thy keeper. The Lord is thy shade upon thy right hand. The sun shall not smite thee by day nor the moon by night. The Lord shall preserve thy soul. " Psalm 121:5-7

Introduction

Many people watch football games and focus their attention on one or two players because they have a favorite position they played or favor. What's your favorite position? Many will focus on the receivers because they catch passes and often run touchdowns. Others focus on the strength and power of running backs as they plow through virtual steel walls of protectors.Many eyes focus on the quarterback because he is the on-field general of the team. Great quarterbacks like Tom Brady of the Patriots, who has been to the Superbowl so many times he's running out of fingers to count and Matt Ryan of the Falcons, a virtual wizard of strategy and gameplay are the focus of millions. Each team depends on the quarterback to successfully throw touchdown passes and the receivers to catch them. There are other players that are crucial to the team, but one position that is extremely important, but is seldom the focus of the crowd is the Offensive Tackle.

What is the offensive tackle? The short definition is that he is the Quarterback's Blindside Protector. Whether a team has a chance to make it to the Super Bowl depends largely on the health of its quarterback. The player who is most responsible for keeping that golden arm on the field is the Superman on quarterback's blind side, the left tackle for a right-handed QB. He doesn't get much attention because he is Isolated at the end of the offensive line and often battles some of the best pass rushers in the game. His job is so crucial that if he makes one mistake, the quarterback could be injured permanently.,

Most experts agree that one of the most consistent and reliable left tackles in the game is Joe Thomas of the Browns. Some say he is the best in all of football, having played in over 144 games, participated in nine straight Pro Bowls and has protected 16 quarterbacks in his career. It's hard to get to the quarterback with Thomas on the offensive line.

In Super Bowl 51, two great Offensive Tackles took the field. The Patriots Quarterback Tom Brady was protected by Matt Light. Light has protected Brady in five Super Bowls allowing only 11 sacks in five Superbowl games. Jake Matthews of the Falcons has played 1003 offensive snaps and allowed five sacks in the 2016 season. He's ranked 33 out of 74 among NFL Offensive Tackles.

No matter how great the quarterback, when he is trying to throw with his right arm, he turns away from his left for a moment. During that moment, when he is unaware of an approaching tackler, he can be injured at the most and sacked at the least. The left side, that he cannot see is referred to as his blind side. An Offensive Tackle is the player whose job it is to protect the quarterback from dangers seen and unseen on his blind side.

We may not play professional football, but each of us has a blind side. We all have that point of weakness, that dark area that when left unprotected can bring each of us down. It's good to know that our God will not suffer the sun to smite us by day or the moon by night. He's got our blind side.

As Christians, we praise God for protecting us, preserving us and both night and day. There are dangers every day, but it's a joy to know that he protects our blindside.

Exposition

This text focuses on David as he relates his confidence that God will protect his people.

David was always confident that God would protect him. In confrontations with wild animals that attacked his father's flocks or as he stood before Goliath, he never doubted that God would protect him.

David said, "I will lift up mine eyes to the hills from whence cometh my help." The driving idea of the text is that God will preserve his people; He will not allow them to suffer utter defeat. Verses six and seven use the word "Preserve" three times. The Hebrew word "Samar" used in each instance means, "to build a thorny hedge around."

This is the truth that David wanted believers to know. God will build a thorny hedge around his people to preserve them. A thorny hedge will keep evil influences out, but the same thorns protect Israel from itself by keeping it "In."

God protects "our going out" and our "coming in" both day and night.

He Protects

In many ways, we are the quarterbacks of our daily lives, executing plays given to us by the Lord, our coach. As we try to win each day's contest, the devil tries his best to get to us, but thanks be to God for protecting our blind side.

HE IS THE SHADE ON YOU RIGHT HAND: David said God is a "shade upon thy right hand." The right hand, for a right handed person, is the working hand. To provide shade for the right hand, God would be close enough to provide a shadow. In our everyday work, God is always close by watching and protecting us as we carry out our various duties. Moses found him to be a protection in the wilderness. The disciples found him to be a protective shield in the storm. Israel found him to be a protection during their Egyptian bondage and Exodus from slavery. Unlike the Offensive Tackle in football, nothing gets by God that he does not want to get by for his own reasons. It is a consolation for us to know that he's got our back.

HE GIVES US HOPE: When the quarterback of a team knows that he has his blindside protected, his confidence is strengthened. He knows he will be safe from attacks with strong offensive linemen protecting him. That also applies to believers. Psalm 130:7 says, "Let Israel hope in the Lord." It means that you place the focus of your belief and faith in the hands of God. It does not mean that you never look to your left, but it means you can focus on your right without an overriding fear that your left is unprotected. Those who hope in the Lord focus on the fact that God is the deliverer and provider. Focusing on God is not naivety; it is not irrational, it simply recognizes that there is a power beyond anything in this world. So rather than fear what you will do if someone breaks the tackle sweeps around the end and sacks you, focus on the fact that even if it does play out that way that, God can made a way, has made a way and will make a way.

Rather than fear what may happen and never throw your pass, find your receiver, focus on what must be done confident that God is able!

In every situation, no matter how bad it is God keeps saying, "I got your blindside, I'm the shade on right hand. Go forth." That's why David declared, in Psalm 121:1-2 "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord who made the heavens and the earth."

HE PROTECTS US FROM UNSEEN DANGERS: Most of us can prepare for dangers we see coming our way. What troubles us are the dangers we do not see. The hits we take in life that we never saw coming. It's the disappointments, failures, and mess-ups that never gave us a sign that they were approaching. These unseen dangers are ones that are especially stressful, but they are also the ones that we lean on our faith to overcome. These dangers are our blindside. We don't know what each day holds for us. We may begin this journey and stumble along the way, or find new strength and climb even higher. Each day God protects us from and through the unseen dangers on our path. If we could have seen the unseen dangers that God has protected us from, just today, we could better understand the nature of our Journey because then we would know the many ways that God has already made our journey safer because we are under his protective care. He has our blindside.

Psalm 121:3-4, reminds us that God will not allow our feet to slip; he will not sleep on the job because, "He that keepeth Israel neither slumbers or sleeps." If it's a prayer that we need answered or help in times of trouble, we have the assurance that our God is always by our side.

Working the Blind Side

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that the devil never stops trying to sack us, but that God for Jesus who always protects our blindside.

David said the Lord "will preserve thy soul" and that he will preserve thy going out and coming in forever more.

That's good to know because the Word tells us that the devil is always trying to sack the quarterback, especially when he tries to take advantage of our blind side.

Most believers have a good side and a bad side.

Our bad side often shows up when we least expect it. Our bad side comes when we are dealing with multiple problems, and our patience starts to grow short.

Our bad side shows when our money is funny and it's time to meet our obligations.

When our bad side tries to come out, that's when our protector goes into action because my bad side is blind side.

My blind side is the side that forgets that even if I can't see my way, the Lord will make a way somehow!

My blind side is the side that becomes impatient and forgets that the word says, "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength. They shall mount up on wings as eagles. They shall run and not get weary, walk and not faint!"

My blind side is the side that gets afraid when things look dark and forgets that "weeping endureth, but a night but Joy comes in the morning."

Our God protects our blindside.

In our weakness, he brings us strength

In our doubts, he brings us confidence.

In our confusion, he brings us direction!

In our despair, he brings us hope!

So, brothers and sisters, we should suit up for the game, and don't worry about your blind side. You need a:

—A good HELMET protects the head from collisions that are sure to come when We butt heads with the enemy head on. Paul called it the helmet of salvation. Every Helmet comes equipped with a chin guard. The holy spirit is like a built in chin guard. When things are down, it reminds us to keep our chin up, everything will be all right.

Suit up and don't worry about your blind side, but you need a:

—A MOUTHPIECE is essential in the contest. For believers a mouthpiece keeps us from saying the wrong things or even saying the right thing but at the wrong time! This is what David meant in Psalm 39:1 when he said, "I will take heed to my ways, that I sin not with my tongue: I will keep my mouth with a bridle, while the wicked is before me." Don't go into battle without a mouthpiece!

Suit up and don't worry about your blind side, but you need::

—SHOULDER PADS protect the shoulders of those who are receiving hits and delivering blocks in the contests.

Suit up and don't worry about your blind side, but you will need:

—CLEATS are special shoes that help competitors to grip the ground. Paul told the Ephesians to keep their "feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace." Gospel shoes don't slip and slide as other shoes do, but they grab the turf and hold on! When life gets tough, they hold on!

If thunderstorms break out and the turf is wet, they hold on!

Every saint should be able to say, "Today is Super Bowl Sunday, but tomorrow will be super bowl Monday!" Every day we come up against Satan is super contest.

However, we can say with assurance, "Our team will win!"

We know our team will win because of the lineup!

At left end there is GENESIS at right end, there is REVELATION.

At tackle and guard is Matthew, Mark, Luke and John at center is Malachi!

At half-back are faith and hope! At full back there is prayer!

But my team always wins because my team has the best quarterback!

The quarterback of my team wears jersey number 1-1-1. One for the father, one for the Son and One for the Holy Ghost.

My quarterback knows how to play the game because he's a super bowl veteran!

One day over 2,000 years ago he met the forces of Satan out on Calvary, died on an old rugged cross!

But just before the game was over, Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

You don't have to wait until the battle is over...shout now!

Your super bowl team has already won!

No.9766-Inspiration

The Ultimate Swag

A Sermon By The Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 12, 2017

SCRIPTURE: Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: 20 Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. Amen. Matthew 28:19-20; But Noah found grace in the eyes of the LORD.; "These are the generations of Noah: Noah was a just man and perfect in his generations, and Noah walked with God." Genesis 6:8-9.

Introduction

Have you ever noticed the body language of people who succeed and that of those who have no desire to succeed? A man or woman who succeeds or at least expects to succeed stands erect with shoulders back and head up, sits erect without slumping and walks with a gait that radiants confidence and purpose. The common word for those who have this characteristic is "Swag."

Officially, Swag is an urban that is derived from the Scottish slang "Swagger" which means to walk with a swaying motion. In common usage on our side of the track, it means to walk with an air of confidence and purpose or to be cool.

Among the top personalities in the nation said to have the most SWAG are Jay-Z, Rihanna, Rick Ross, Beyonce' Knowles, Kanye West, Christian Bale, P Diddy, and number one on everyone's list is President Barack Obama.

To have Swag may mean different things to different people. If you ask the thug, having swag might mean to walk into a room with a walk that says you are the toughest, meanest dude in the room. To the ghetto fabulous, to have swag might mean to wear flashy clothes, with lots of glitz and diamonds and fancy pick up lines for the women. There are those with a professional swag stand tall, walk with a gait as if they owned the world. In this view, the man or woman with swag is loaded with witty conversation, a designer label on a dress, and real hair soft enough to run fingers through.

There's thug swag and professional swag, but there is one more that would be Godly Swag. Godly Swagger is the man or woman who enters a room with the knowledge that the king of the world empowers him/her, but they remains humble enough to keep the common touch. They don't attack the room like the thug or depend on clothes or designer labels and witty conversation that like the professional swagger; they float into a room in a way that attracts attention rather than commands it. It's the man or woman that makes himself interesting by listening attentively to others, speaking little of himself and heaping praise on others, with just the right words, phrases and pauses to make those around them want more. Spiritual swagger dresses for the occasion, with taste and restraint, not too much here or showing so much there. Godly swagger is confident, yet humble; it is sensitive to the feelings of others, polite and mannerable.

Godly swag is possessed by the man or woman whose walk in life has a purpose. It really has nothing to do with their walk, the clothes they wear or their wealth. Their purpose walks in the room before they do.

Their sense of purpose is what gives them Godly swag. This is the same sense of purpose that permeated the lives of Harriet Tubman, Martin Luther King, and Booker T. Washington and other great leaders of our race? They were all ordinary people whose lives made a difference to millions. Their social circumstances, economic conditions, and opportunities were the same as millions of others just like themselves. What they had in common was the fact that they were ordinary people. While they were similar to millions because of their ordinary existence they were different because, unlike the others, they had an extraordinary purpose for being here. It was that purpose that gave them Swag.

It's SWAG that makes causes a room full of cursing men to get quiet when a saintly grandma wearing old clothes enters the room on her walker. It's SWAG that causes even the rich and powerful to stand in awe to poor man whose thoughts and leadership changed circumstances for everyone.

You don't have to be special to have the Ultimate Swag because anyone who has a godly walk in life has the Ultimate SWAG.

As Christians, we should remember that God gave a great mission to ordinary people. We know his purpose is clear and is just and those whose life walk reflects that mission have SWAG.

Exposition

This text is known as the great commission. It occurs after the resurrection as Jesus speaks to the disciples giving them their final assignment. He told them to get the word out about salvation and redemption to the entire world, to baptize believers and then teach them the way of life prescribed for Christians.

The believers who were assembled before Jesus as he gave this commission to go into the entire world were ordinary people. They were fishermen and laborers; some were publicans some had been labeled as "sinners" before the met Christ.

They were about as ordinary as could be. There were no leaders of the synagogue, wealthy or powerful people in the group. Neither were their emissaries of the king or representatives of the Roman Empire in this group.

These were simply ordinary people who were given an extraordinary job to do; to evangelize and disciple the known world!

In Genesis, Noah was given a similar mission which was to build an ark to save his family and the righteous from coming destruction by flood. He too was an ordinary man.However, there was something different about him that is marked in Genesis 6:8-9, he found grace in the eyes of the Lord, and he walked with God.

Noah had SWAG, not because of the way he dressed or whether or not he was cool, but because he had walked in the grace and favor of the Lord.

Noah and Christians today, should exemplify the Ultimate SWAG by being known as individuals that walk with God.

Walking in the Purpose

IF OUR WALK HAS PURPOSE, WE HAVE SWAG: God calls every believer to undertake a great work. He never calls us to an insignificant or unimportant work; no matter what others think. It is always a great work. Our work may be to be the strength of our families. It may be to help the poor and the needy. It may be highly visible like public service or almost invisible, like that of a private home nurse. Regardless of our work, it is important.

To accomplish that mission he gives us grace and favor. A student who fails in school is not in tune with his mission and has no godly swag.. Regardless of how well dressed the student may be or how expensive their jewelry or other exterior qualities, they only have swag if they are living the purpose. The same applies to adults. No matter how big the house, fancy the car, or beautiful our clothing if we are not about the business of building up he body of Christ, we are walking but not according to our purpose. It's our purpose that gives us the ultimate SWAG.

Even Churches have SWAG. Some have large crowds, great worship and raise lots of money, but they don't have SWAG. They are not walking in our purpose. Our purpose is to reach into the hell holes of the world and extend the firm but forgiving hand of God to an uncaring world. To the extent that we reach, teach, help and save, we have SWAG.

We must reach out and touch the wounded and the lost of the world in the name of Jesus.

To save the lost, nurture the saved, and keep reaching out in love is not an ordinary mission, it is an extra-ordinary purpose and those who pursue that purpose have the Ultimate Swag.

THE ULTIMATE SWAG PORTRAYS A GODLY IMAGE: Just as everyone walks, but may not walk with swag, everyone also thinks, but may not think about their Godly purpose and how to accomplish their purpose. Proverbs 23:7 says, "For as he thinketh in his heart, so is he." There is a difference between the way a person with Godly swagger thinks and all others. The person with godly swagger has a different attitude and approach to life and its various circumstances. Instead of being a pessimist Godly swagger prompts believers to be faith walkers who approach the world with the confidence that God is in control and is guiding their footsteps. Godly swagger has a lot to do with what we think about, plans we are making, and goals that we are pursuing. A person with Godly swagger is always planning something great and pleasing to God; always seeking ways to improve, encourage and build. He/she reflects the meaning of Philippians 4:8 "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." In contrast, the person without Godly swag does just the opposite.

THE ULTIMATE SWAG BRINGS FULFILLMENT: People with swag walk as if the own the world and people who have the Ultimate Swag live happily, fulfilled lives because Swag brings balance into their lives. The nineteenth-century Polish poet Cyrrian Norwid wrote "To be what is called happy, one should have (1) something to live on, (2) something to live for, (3) something to die for. The lack of one results in drama. The lack of two results in tragedy." Martin Seligman, the eminent psychologist, notes that the lack of meaning in our society today has reached epidemic proportions. He emphasizes that finding meaning requires "an attachment to something larger than ourselves."

All of these smart men and women simply repeat in different words what Jesus tells every believer. "If you want to save your life, lose it. The man that loses his life saves it." That paraphrase explains Jesus' teaching that believers find meaning and purpose in life when we plunge ourselves into a calling and mission greater than ourselves. Those who have a sense of purpose are able to deal with life. Martin Luther King said, "Any man who has not found something for which he is willing to die, is not fit to live."

Those who live according to their purpose find fulfillment if they don't find riches and fame. It makes them enter a room and command attention because they have SWAG.

What Shall We Do Then?

Finally, brothers and sisters, if we could redefine SWAG for the believer it would be an anacronym for "Showered with Amazing Grace."

Godly swagger deals with the spirit and the soul not in the superficial. It deals with what comes from the inside and is reflected on the outside.

It's possible to imitate the walk of Denzel Washington or President Obama. It's possible to copy the smile of Michelle or the words of Ophrah Winfrey, but it won't give you Godly swagger, just a walk like a movie star or a President.

Those who want Godly Swagger must have God in their lives and attempt to let the confidence, boldness and assurance that he gives us change the way we walk, talk and think.

We walk with a walk that has been showered with Amazing Grace.

We live with a life that has been showered with Amazing Grace.

We pursue life with a passion that has been showered with Amazing Grace.

Noah had SWAG because he walked with God.

When we walk with God his hand gets in our plan.

Our Christian walk is a walk with God. It's a walk that makes us sing, "Just a closer walk with thee, grant it, Jesus, if you please."

Our walk with God is a daily walk in which we say, "And he walks with me, and he talks with me, and he tells me I am his own.."

Because of our Holy Ghost Swag:

—The world may kick you down, but God will pick you up!

—The world may strike you out, but God will give you a home run!

—The world may think you are a loser, but God will make you a winner!

—The world may think you are weak, but God will make you strong!

Because we are showered with God's Amazing Grace, the impossible becomes possible!

Because we are showered with God's Amazing Grace, the improbable becomes probable!

Because we are showered with God's Amazing Grace, the unthinkable becomes thinkable!

This is the grace that prompted Jesus to carry an old rugged cross to Calvary one day!

He died on the cross, but Sunday morning when he arose from the grave with all power!

All power in his hands!

No. 9767-Anniv. - Women

Hidden Figures

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 19, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "And the women also, which came with him from Galilee, followed after, and beheld the sepulcher, and how his body was laid." Luke 23:55

Introduction

Have you ever felt insignificant? There are times when many of us feel that our contributions are not appreciated or recognized. It is a frustrating moment to say the least.

My wife once told me that for years she felt insignificant because she had no identity of her own; she was always Roosevelt's wife. It was as if she did not exist or have a life, purpose of significance independent of her husband. I came to understood that very clearly whenever I go to her hometown; there I'm referred to as Joslyn's husband whose importance and significance exists only because of the connection to the real important person, their neighbor, friend and family member.

For generations, women have been footnotes in history, those whose work was noted only in passing, but often overlooked in history. The adage "Behind every good man there is a good woman," usually meant that if a man succeeded there was a woman hidden behind him somewhere in the footnotes of his accomplishments.

The role of women in the shaping of our nation has been downplayed for centuries, requiring extensive research and effort to unearth accomplishments stamped with the names of men, but often only attainable because of the sacrifices of women.

The fact that women, especially African-American women, were a footnote to history, is the theme of the Academy Award nominated film "Hidden Figures" which depicts the lives of three African-American women who supplied the intricate mathematical formulas that calculated the trajectory of the John Glenn's spaceship in the early 1960's. The women, obviously brilliant scholars in their own right, had to accept a second class role just to participate in the process. They endured slights and humiliations that were typical for their gender as women, but also for their race. There was a women's bathroom at NASA, but these women had to walk great distances to get segregated toilets reserved for Negroes. Though their role in supplying needed brain power for the space mission was crucial, their contribution was marginalized and hidden in the dust covered annals of history, mentioned only as a footnote to achievement.

The shadowy zone could be described as the "also" zone, where women's roles and importance has been hidden.

In the aftermath of the NASA episodes, the March on Washington, the passage of the Civil Rights Act and other enlightened evolutions and thought and policy, the role of Black women in America has changed. Women, especially Black women, have been set free to dream dreams and to realize them in great ways.

Each passing year sees the emergence of more women as they step from the shadows and take their places as mothers, wives, thinkers, leaders, innovators and athletes. These are the women who have been "behind" the great men, but who are now standing beside great men as equal partners in quests.

When women began to dream, they entered the workforce. The U.S. Department of Labor reports that while 62 percent of Black women are now in the American workforce, most of the jobs are still technical, sales, and administrative support areas. In many instances, women train the men who supervise them and earn more. Despite this frustration, women are coming out of the shadows in the workplace.

In the world of business, women, especially Black women, are no longer "hidden figures." In 1987 there were 172,200 businesses owned by Black women. By 1996, there were 405,000. The number of black women-owned businesses has grown by a whopping 322 percent since 1997. In 2015, black women owned roughly 14 percent of all businesses in the country owned by women, which tallies to around 1.3 million businesses, according to the Huffington Post.

These same truths are evident in every sphere of our existence are no longer the afterthought, but considered integral to every social process.

Thankfully, the Lord Jesus did not have a set of hidden figures. He acknowledged women openly, even those of different races and cultures and lifestyles. He called them by name and responded to their needs. Scripture does not give any indication that they were afterthoughts or "hidden" in his eyes.

As Christians, we serve a Savior who values the service, purpose, and soul of every person. Every child of God has access to him and their none who are designated hidden status in his presence. The children's song says it clear, "Red, yellow, black or white, they are all precious in his sight."

Exposition

This text is one of several in scripture that indicate the role of women in the biblical context.

The Bible records the truths of God, written by inspired men. The truths the Bible dictates are irrefutable, but there are areas in which the social customs of the times are reflected in the way a truth is said, and not said.

The Bible shows women operating in a variety of contexts: Wives, Queens, Judges, Soldiers, cooks, advisors, and mothers. It seems that translators often struggle to choose words or terms that would not give women equal recognition with men even though their work and accomplishment was included with the greater record.

For example, the Greek Word "Diakonos" is a word that has three meanings: servant, minister or deacon. However, New Testament translators of the original Greek were careful to choose words that were accurate, but were socially acceptable when it came to women. So whenever the New Testament word "Diakonos" described a man they used the term "minister or deacon." When it referred to a woman, they chose "servant." Their choice implied that although women did the same work, they could not be considered on the same level as a man. Women were confined to serve among the "hidden figures" of the kingdom; doing the same work without the recognition.

In Genesis 14:16 the Bible described how Abraham recused his brother Lot who had been captured by enemies. It accurately described Abraham's raid and how he brought back all of those who had been captured. The text notes that he brought back his brother, his goods and the people. It's interesting that the women were not included among "the people" designated by the phrase but as an afterthought, the phrase "the women also" seems to be included, as if they were insignificant.

Luke detailed the life of Jesus and showed that Jesus was followed be a crowd of people. Luke 23:27 adds "and of women" making a footnote of women. Somehow the implication is the fact men followed Jesus was expected, but the followship of women was not particularly important but was worthy of a footnote.

Luke 23:55 describes how Jesus' body was discovered early on the resurrection morning. However, although the women were the first to arrive at the tomb and the first to know Jesus had risen, the text says, "the women also, which came with him from Galilee, followed after, and beheld the sepulcher, and how his body was laid." In Luke 24:22 the phrase "and certain women also" described these first women at the tomb. The presence of "also" plunged did not alter the biblical truth, but it does serve to plunge women in the sphere of "hidden figures" whose role in important events are just mere footnotes or a singular "also."

What does the word say? The preponderance of Biblical teaching is summed up in two passages of scripture: Romans 2:11, "For there is no respect of persons with God." Galatians 3:28, "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female; for ye are all one in Christ Jesus."

With Christ, there are no hidden figures, everybody is somebody.

Stepping from the shadows

As women move from the shadows there are a few thoughts to consider:

NO SUCCESSFUL MAN IS AN ISLAND: The poet John Donne said, "No man is an island entire of itself; every man is a piece of the continent, a part of the main." This is also true when it comes to the accomplishments of successful men. Very few men can say they achieved success alone, without the help of anyone other than themselves, especially not women. Usually, there is a woman in the picture somewhere: wife, mother, sister or aunt or even grandmother that is pushing, encouraging and helping. Paul was a single man, but on every one of his successful missionary journeys he was assisted by a woman. Moses was saved from the Nile by a woman. Even Jesus was ministered to by his mother, Mary, Martha and other women. There is no man who succeeds without women; their role in that success should be acknowledged.

TO SUBMIT DOES NOT ALWAYS MEAN OBEY: One way that women have been marginalized is that their thoughts and opinions have been reduced to insignificance under the claim that it is the husband's opinion that matters and that of the woman is not important. Often Ephesians 5:22 is the verse cited: "Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord." The word submit has been use to browbeat women into the zone of mediocrity. However, Submit and Obey don't mean the same thing. Submit means to willingly follow, Obey means to forcefully follow. As each new generation of women take wedding vows many have refused to obey but are more than willing to submit. Coretta Scott King, in her biography "My Life with Martin" notes that in her wedding vows she refused to say she would obey Martin Luther King, but she spent her whole life willingly submitting to her own husband, making his mission her mission, and his dream her dream. To submit means to be your own woman and follow your husband as long as follows the Lord. To obey means to do what he says, even if that is not Christlike. Women who submit willingly share the leadership of their families with their husbands while maintaining their own sense of purpose in Christ at the same time.

THE CHURCH MUST NOT DISCRIMINATE: One of the places where women are discriminated against the most is in many churches. Catholics frown on women priests, evangelicals frown on women deacons, and National Baptist have virtually banned women from the pulpit. Men have appointed women to secondary roles in church ministries. They point to Paul's letter to the Corinthians in which he said women were commanded to be silent in the church as the basis for their positions. But serious Bible students now know that Paul addressed a specific problem that existed in the Corinthian church in which women who had the gift of language were so excited about their new gift that they were using it in church worships, speaking different languages all at the same time, causing confusion. His command required order, for one person to speak at a time, with the assistance of an interpreter if a speaker chose to speak in a different language. It is also required unruly women of the Corinthian congregation to be silent, to restore order in the assembly. It was not a mandate against all women.

There were simply too many women who were prophesying in the early church for anyone to believe that Paul wanted to relegate all women to second-class status. Phillip had four daughters, all of whom prophesied (Acts 21:8-9). Luke 2:36 describes Anna, a prophetess in the New Testament. Paul himself indicated that women can prophesy in 1 Corinthians 11:5 as long as their heads are covered. In the Old Testament, though steeped in tradition, Miriam was recognized as a prophetess (Exodus 15:20) Judges 4:4 indicates that Deborah was a prophetess, and 2:Kings 22:14 refers to Hulda the prophetess. Throughout the New Testament women served as ministers and deacons in the early church. Yet, even in the church today many women are humiliated told they can't be leaders or preachers, while every pastor knows that without the women, most church doors would close. There should be no respect or of persons in the church; no hidden figures.

Women dream, know the dream

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that as women step from the shadows to assume their rightful place, they must always remember, that no matter what comes in life we must continue to trust in the Lord.

The record has shown us quite clear that women have bowed down before God to worship and praise him!

The record is clear that women have strapped their children to their backs and worked fields and scrubbed floors, but they never stopped calling on the Lord.

There is a new liberalism today that is calling for the new independent woman who does not need any man, including Jesus.

The believing woman can't afford to join that crowd. Her song of praise should continue to be, "I need thee, oh I need thee. Every hour I need thee!"

Women who have been hidden in shadows of history for centuries must step forth in greater bolder ways saying, "Use me Lord in your service."

I heard the songwriter declare "Have thine own way Lord. Have thine own way! Search me and try me, Master today. Whiter than snow Lord, wash me just now, as in thy presence, humbly I bow!"

These are the women who tell the story of salvation and redemption. These are women who tell the same story as Mary Magdalene who was beautiful on the outside but filled with evil spirits on the inside. But one day she met the Savior, and she's never been the same.

Women who know the Lord can testify one day the Savior "picked me up and turned me around and planted my feet on solid ground."

I heard the songwriter declare "Shackled by a heavy burden, neat a load of guilt and stain, but then the hand of Jesus touched me, and now I am no longer the same"

He touched me!

He touched me! And oh the joy the floods my soul!

Something happened and now I know, he touched me and made me whole.

Women who know the Lord, know Jesus!

Jesus who died out on Calvary!

Jesus who arose after three days and nights!

No. 9768-Family

Whatever happened to the old front porch?

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 5, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "And by the hands of the apostles were many signs and wonders wrought among the people; (and they were all with one accord in Solomon's porch." Acts 5:12 (KJV)

Introduction

Do you remember when every house had a front porch? Today, modern house designers have decided that the front porch is not necessary and unless a new homebuilder insists, new homes will not have a working front porch.

When the first immigrants came to America in the 17th Century, the homes they built did not have front porches. There were simple doors that allowed entry from the outside to the inside. According to scholars, porches started showing up in America as one class of people borrowed the architecture of the Greeks and Romans, and another class of people borrowed house building practices of West Africa. In Biblical times the houses had no porches. However, the influences of the Greeks and Romans on Architecture began to be felt as Kings such as Solomon built large covered areas outside of their palaces for various purposes where people gathered instead coming inside. These were often called Verandas and Vestibules.

While the homes of New England had no porches, the homes of Slave Masters in the south copied the Greek architecture in building their homes, which usually included large columns in the front which huge porches As more African slaves were brought to American the idea of the West African Shotgun House appeared in American, especially among Blacks. The shotgun house was a house which had several rooms built in a straight row with no hallway. It was so straight that one could shoot a shotgun through the front room and the bullets would come out the back going through every room in the house. The West African Shotgun house always had a front porch.

Many of the memories of our people revolved around the front porch, which often had at least one chair or more reserved for the old folks and sometimes a swing. On the front porch, slave families would gather at the end of day and sing, talk and dream. The entire family gathered on the front porch. In the South the front porch was often used to avoid the heat inside; it was cooler on the front porch.

Southern traditions caught on quickly and by the 19th century nearly every house in the south had a front porch and a swing. The rich entertained guests on the front porch, children played on the front porch; and only the honored guests came beyond the vestibule.

Today, there is less emphasis on family gathering and little time available for leisurely porch sitting. Houses are being built with imitation front porches, a small shed over the front door and a chair or two that captures the flavor of a lost generation in design, but probably will never be used.

A boy who came to court a girl sat on the front porch.

Friends who came by to visit sat on the front porch.

Children who learned Bible verses recited them and listen to Bible being read on the front porch.

When there were peas to be shelled or corn to be shucked, it was done on the front porch.

In the late 20th Century something began to happen in our society. Families stopped talking to each other. It was cooler to greet neighbors in the air conditioned living room rather than the front porch. Boys didn't come to court on the porch anymore they texted each other or courted over Social Media. Only a few families have times set aside for family reading and teaching the Bible. As our culture changed, the need for front porches mostly disappeared. Even today, many homes with porches use them only on rare occasions.

While the porch itself has disappeared, the spirit of the front porch is still needed today. Families still need to fellowship together and learn about God's amazing grace whether it's on the front porch or the family area of the house.

As Christians, we need to still tell those who don't know about the grace of Grace, whether it's on the front porch or in the streets. The porches may be gone, but the goodness of the Lord endures.

Exposition

The text focus on the importance of the area of Solomon's temple called "Solomon's Porch"

When Solomon constructed the temple, it was a lavishly designed building, trimmed in gold and the finest woods and jewels. Outside the temple, was a large area filled with colonnades, benches, and stools. There was a large pool there as well. Since only the priest could enter the temple, there were hundreds who gathered on Solomon's porch just to be close to the presence of God.

Scripture records that even larger crowds began to gather on Solomon's porch when they learned from time to time that angels troubled the waters and whoever was plunged into those waters would be healed of their sickness. When Peter and John healed a lame man, who had sat by the pool for 38 years trying to be healed a multitude of people flocked to Solomon's Porch seeking to be healed as well.

In Acts 3 Peter uses the curiosity of their crowds that followed to preach to them on Solomon's Porch. He preached to them about Jesus, his Lordship, his sojourn on earth, his crucifixion and resurrection. On the porch he challenged them in the 3:19 saying, "Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the tie of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord."

There was healing on Solomon's porch, but there were also many lessons taught, spirits refreshed and hope restored on that porch.

There was so much power on the porch that the crowds spilled into the streets as the lame, sick and despondent were brought to the edge of curbs hoping that if Peter walked passed them his shadow might heal them.

Before Peter healed the lame man, the people focused on the porch itself and the water that troubled. After Peter arrived they did not watch the water any longer they focused on the Power of God through faith in Jesus Christ. They heard it on the porch, but they realized that it wasn't the porch but the Savior that saved and healed.

Lessons on the Porch

There are many lessons that we learned in the fellowship of the family, they are symbolized by the old front porch.

LESSONS LEARNED ON THE PORCH: On the front porch we have learned great truths about the way God has blessed the family and saw his blessings as we watched new generations wrestle and play on the porch.

Family values were taught on the porch. Grandpa and Grandma taught about what the family name meant. They taught the boys to be men and how the family expected the females to be Christian ladies rather than women of the world.

Family History was taught on the porch. It was there that young people learned of the long journey of the family from nowhere to somewhere. They learned of the family's struggle to gain its freedom, protect its property and rear and educate its children.

Respect for God was taught on the porch. Often the Bible was read as everyone listened. The family elders talked about their family's faith journey. There will lessons about those who maintained the faith and those who strayed. There will also be lessons about the rewards the family received for being faithful. On the porch, the family's history of healings, revival and salvation is told for glory of God and instruction of the young.

Shelter from showers was available on the front porch. We never knew when a shower came, but when it came, everyone in the family ran to the front porch to play and wait until the storm passed. In a greater sense, the family has always been available as a place of shelter for those who have drenched by the storms of life.

On the porch the family, listened, learned, laughed and fellowshipped.

The old front porch is gone from many of our houses, but many have found ways to keep the spirit of the front porch alive. Whether its kitchen table chatter or living room lessons. The history of the family must be told so that each generation knows how God has lifted the family and blessed them over the years.

CAN'T WAIT TO GET OFF THE PORCH: As each generation comes there is a tendency to want to get off the porch, or to get away from the old family way. Many leave home and abandon the teachings and values of home; they leave them on the porch and begin new lives of their own. This is what happened to the Prodigal Son. He was raised on the teachings of his parents, reared in the knowledge of God and taught valuable life lessons in the family. However, the prodigal wanted to get off the porch. He wanted to get as far away from the front porch as he could get. He was like the son in the Country and Western song by Travis Tritt called "Where the corn don't grow." In the song, the son became uneasy with the life symbolized by the front porch. His father planted corn, fertilized corn and harvested corn year in and year out. He wanted to go somewhere where there was no corn. He asked, "Don't you dream of going somewhere where corn don't grow? The question makes his dad kind of sad. He says, You're young, and there's a lot that you don't know, but weeds are high where corn don't grow. In the song the son goes to the big city, goes where corn don't grow, and discovers that big city life isn't so grand because weeds are high where corn don't grow.

Those who get off the porch, or move away from the values they have been taught over the years, usually decided like the Prodigal Son in the Bible or the son in Travis Tritt's song, that the weeds grow high where the corn don't grow.

Today, there may not be a physical porch on your home, but the values taught in the home represent your front porch. Although they may never sit outside as the family once did, many homes insist on having something that looks like a porch; its says, "we may have moved away, but our hearts still remember the old front porch."

WISDOM OF THE ROCKERS AND SWINGS: Nearly every old front porch had either a rocking chair or a swing; sometimes both. The elders of the family sat in the rockers, and they gave life lessons that stretched out over the years. There were so much wisdom in the people who sat in those rockers.

The voices in the rockers would say one line proverbs that we remembered all of our lives., "Never lie son, because if you'll lie you'll steal.", "Be careful how you treat people on your way up, because you'll meet those same people on your way down." "Birds of a feather, flock together,"You don't miss your water until the well runs dry," "You will reap what you sow; if you sow the wind, you will reap the whirlwind." "What's good for the goose is good for the gander," Don't bite the hand that feeds you," "Haste makes waste," "If you make your bed hard, you'll have to sleep in it," "If you lay down with dogs, you wake up with fleas."

We may not have rockers and swings on every porch as we did in the old days, but we should not dismiss what was taught in those swings and rockers as old and foggie.

We may not have a swing or a rocker on the porch, but what was said in them by the old warriors of the family, is just as true today as it was yesterday.

It may be old and foggie, but it is still true that the Lord:

—Will be a bridge over troubled water!

—Will be a doctor in the sickroom and a lawyer in the courtroom!

—Will take our darkness and turn it into light!

—Defeats and turn them into victories!

It may be old and foggie, but it's still true that the Lord will put food on your table and clothes on your back and make a way out of no way.

It's still good

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that although the front porch may be fading into history, the faith of the porch is still alive.

On the porch of grace, we come face to face with faith.

On this porch, I learned that, if I fall down, He'll pick me up again and say, "Behold, I will make all things new."

On the porch, I learned that If I fail, He'll give me another chance.

On the porch, I learned that if I suffer, he give me relief from my pain.

On the porch, I learned that I might shed briny tears in the middle of the night, but God shall wipe away my tears.

I'm reminded of Uncle Doug's hound dog who sat on the front porch all day long. Every morning that hound dog would greet Uncle Doug as he walked out of the front gate. All day long he chased away strangers, protected the yard and kept a watch out for varmints that would slip up on the farm. Long about sun down every day that old hound dog would lift his lazy eyes. His tail would begin to wag. His ears would stick up straight. Anybody who was visiting would always ask, "Why is that old hound dog suddenly barking and pacing back and forth on the porch?" Aunt Jenny would answer, "Every morning that hound dog sees Uncle Doug leave. But on the way home from the mill Uncle Doug stops by the local cafe and gets a fresh bag of scraps for that old dog. That dog is excited because he knows he's going to get a reward when his master comes home!"

I don't know about you, but I learned on the front porch that there is going to be a reward, when the master comes home!

On the front porch, the old warriors used to say, When the Lord comes back again, the bottom rail will come to the top!

On the front porch, the old warriors used to say, When the Lord comes back those who are last shall be first!

On the front porch, the old warriors declared that bye and bye, the wicked will cease from troubling, and the weary will be at rest.

On the front porch, they told us the story about Jesus! They told us how he died and they buried him in a borrowed tomb!

But early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

We may not sit on the front porch and swat mosquitoes with a rag, but we still testify our God is an awesome God, who still makes a way out of no way!

No. 9769-Inspiration

Heaven was on their doorstep

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 12, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "Even the very dust of your city, which cleaveth on us, we do wipe off against you: notwithstanding be ye sure of this, that the kingdom of God is come nigh unto you." Luke 10:11; "He came unto his own, and his own received him not." John 1:11

Introduction

Have you ever been rejected? There are millions of people who live in daily depression because they were rejected. Most of us have experienced rejection in one way or another.

Was it the job promotion you sought? That's the one that would have raised your salary and given you a chance to demonstrate your skills and ability on a higher level. You prepared and gave the interview your best shot, but were turned down.

Was it membership in a circle of associates that you sought? That's the application you submitted to join a certain fraternity, sorority or social club; you disciplined yourself to meet their stated requirements and met every specification in the guidelines, yet you were turned.

Was it a scholarship or an invitation to play on a specific team that you sought? That's the one where you met all of the criteria, practiced and studied for intensely and gave it your best shot, but still were turned down?

Was it a love relationship you sought? Was it a proposal of marriage or simple friendship you wanted, but despite your plans to love that person with all your mind and soul if accepted, they turned you down?

Whether it is an employment application, loan application, or an opportunity for love, rejection hurts. Sometimes it hurts so badly that many are depressed for years and never recover.

We have even experienced that feeling in our spiritual life. Some have offered our faith to others, but have seen it rejected. One of the more hurtful things to a senior is to rear a child in a faith walk that you believe is true and pleasing to God and then watch them become adults and reject that path and turn to another faith or no faith at all. Their rejection is received as a rejection of their own faith. Those who offer faith to co-workers, friends, and associates often feel the sting of rejection when their offer of salvation is turned down.

When rejection comes, we can either be depressed or we can respond like Susie Que.

Susie Que was a pretty girl who fell head over heels in love with a popular boy at college. She was not alone, many girls were attracted to him as well. Susie Q was the ideal kind of girl: she had a beautiful appearance, pleasing personality, great brain, an optimistic spirit, a humble attitude, was extremely friendly, energetic and willing to go to the ends of the earth with this young man if wanted. However, she had her limits. She wanted to save herself for marriage and refused to cross the line on dates. On the night she thought he was going to propose marriage to her, he gave her the bad news; that he was going in a different direction. She went home and cried on her grandmother's shoulder until she ran out of tears. She was encouraged when her grandmother said, "Hold your head up baby, don't let this get you down. He had heaven on his doorstep, but won't know it until he wakes up in hell." With that encouragement and a little prayer, Susie Que picked up her life and went on to marry a man who was not popular, but they enjoyed every experience of their lives together and never looked back.

Our Savior understands rejection because he was rejected by those that he loved. It was more than a simple rejection, he came to give his life for them and they not only rejected him, but they crucified him as well.

As Christians, we know what it means to experience rejection and to be thrown for a loop. However, we are never depressed for too long, because our faith inspires us to rise again. If we are rejected, we know we are still loved by our God. Those who rejected us were not aware that they had "heaven on their doorsteps."

Exposition

This text comes as a word of warning and encouragement to the faithful from Christ himself.

For three years Christ trained his disciples to go into the world and bring the Gospel message. However, he warned them that their work would not be accepted or appreciated by many. There would be places they would go as missionaries, spreading the gospel that would completely discourage them. While they would be accepted in some places, they would be rejected more than they would be accepted.

Matthew's account of this warning is in Matthew 10:14. Here, the Savior tells the disciples to prepare to go before him in groups of twos taking nothing with them, If they were not accepted in a house or a town they were to leave immediately and shake off the dust of that town from their shoes.

Many ancients believed that the even the dust of a forbidden or cursed experience could corrupt the future. So, as they moved forward, they were encouraged not to take any portion of the rejection with them, but to move forward, leaving every particle of the frustration, depression and hurt caused by the rejection behind them.

That's the way that the disciples responded even after the crucifixion and resurrection of Christ. Paul and Barnabas found themselves rejected at Antioch in Pisidia when the Jews contradicted and blasphemed the Gospel preached by them. The rejection was so great that the Jews persecuted them, and expelled them out of their coasts, (Acts 13:51).

Paul engaged in three missionary journeys. In many of them, he was rejected violently. He was stoned, mobbed and threatened with death repeatedly, but after each, he kept going forward with the gospel message shaking their dust off his feet.

In this text Christ gives the faithful the attitude they should assume when the Gospel message of salvation, peace, and love is rejected, "even the very dust of your city, which cleaveth on us, we do wipe off against you: notwithstanding be ye sure of this, that the kingdom of God is come nigh unto you."

The message is simple: Move on, they had heaven at their doorstep and didn't know it.

This was an important lesson to believers because it came from Christ who experienced the ultimate rejection himself: "He came to his own and his own received him not." He came to his own race, but it was the people outside of his race who flocked to him; his persecuted by his own. He went to scores of villages and towns that accepted him, but he couldn't perform any great miracles in Nazareth his own hometown because there his Messiahship was rejected.

Despite the rejection, Christ went forward and ministered to those who accepted him. In the end, he hung on a cross and asked God to forgive them because they had heaven at their doorstep and did not know it at the time.

Dealing with Depression

There are biblical examples for us to follow when we deal with rejection.

IT IS NORMAL TO BE HURT AFTER REJECTION: When Jesus taught and preached he was often rejected by the religious leaders. It was very hurtful to him, even though he was the son of God. Often he retreated to a mountainside to pray and regroup. After talking with God, he came down from his prayer retreat and resumed his mission. In a similar sense, we should remember that feeling hurt after a rejection is normal. There is nothing unusual about feeling disappointed, even hurt for a moment. Yet, if we follow our savior's example, we will go to our place of prayer and meditation and talk to God about it. After a rejection, there is nothing wrong with taking a little time off to regroup; take a walk, read the scriptures, get by yourself for a short time. When Jesus went away from the angry crowds he was not indulging in a pity party for himself, he was restoring himself and talking to God. We should do the same. Don't retreat too long, but just long enough get it straight with God. When we talk to God about any hurt or bad feeling that we have, we learn that the words of the songwriter are true, "Just a little talk with Jesus makes it right."

DEAL WITH IT AND MOVE ON: Jesus' instruction to his disciples was to face the rejection by dusting off their feet and moving on. Moving on should be the goal of everyone facing rejection. If you didn't get the job, shake the dust off your feet and move on. If you don't get accepted, shake the dust off your feet and move on. We should move on because God never shuts one door without opening another door. Other opportunities await us. We should remember the old adage, "There is more than one fish in the sea." The Christian takes heart in the knowledge that "all things work to the good of them that love the Lord and are the called according to his purpose." - The key for believers is not to get bitter or dwell on the rejection, but move on with a little smile on our lips that says, "They just don't know, they had heaven at their doorstep."

DON'T TAKE REJECTION PERSONALLY: Have you ever wondered why Jesus asked God to forgive the people who were persecuting him? Why is that he would ask God to forgive people who rejected him. The main reason is that he did not take it personally. Listen to his words, "Father forgive them, for they know not what they do?" They rejected him because they did not know him. It did not mean that there was anything wrong with him as a person; they just did not see him as the Son of God. Many times we may be rejected for a variety of reasons, but we should not take all rejections personally. Many of the rejections we receive come from people who do not know us personally. Your rejected job application was not a statement that you are a worthless person. Your request to change a living arrangement or an approach may be rejected, but it is probably because your idea doesn't fit the picture they have for themselves or the project. It's rarely a rejection of you as a person. If the woman you are talking to turns you down for a relationship, it doesn't mean that you are worthless, it means for whatever her reason, you don't quite fit into her plans. Depression begins when we take the rejection to mean that we are worthless. Certainly, the rejection will throw us for a loop, but if we can walk away with our self-esteem intact, then it will be easier for us to say, "They just don't know, they had heaven at their doorstep.

They don't know

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that our Savior offered himself to the world and was rejected, but he never gave up on them even to the point of laying down his life for the world.

Christ came into the world as God's gift to humanity, but even after his death and resurrection, there are millions who are returning his gift as unwanted.

Many who reject the grace of God do not know what they are turning down. Like those who stand in line to return or exchange gifts after a holiday, there are many who do not want God's gifts.

They don't want grace, they would prefer money.

They don't want forgiveness, they would prefer popularity.

They don't want joy, they would prefer happiness.

Because they don't want to experience the presence of God, they turn down worship experiences.

Because they don't want the power of God, they turn down the faith walk of Christ.

They reject him because they do not know him.

But I hear the words of Harold Melvin and the Bluenotes saying, "If you don't know me by now, you never, never know me!

I hear Jesus echoing those same words to Philip "I've been with you all these years, and you still don't know me."

You don't know that when you:

—Failed, I turned your failure into success, if you don't know me by now, you'll never know me!

—Were Afraid, I turned your fear into courage, if you don't know me by now, you'll never know me!

—Cried in the middle of the night, I dried your weeping eyes, if you don't know me by now, you'll never know me!

—Were Lonely, I gave you comfort when you were all by yourself, If you don't know me by now, you'll never know me!

—Felt as though you did not have a friend in the world, I was your friend when you were friendless, mother when you were motherless, father when you were fatherless, if you don't know me by now, you'll never know me!

When you watching for one thing, you did not know that heaven was at your door.

At Bethesda, they were so busy watching the water they did not see Jesus! They didn't know that heaven was on their doorstep.

In the wilderness, they were so busy looking for the coming of Elijah, that they did not see the one who was greater than Elijah. They didn't know that heaven was on their doorstep.

The world was waiting for an angel to protect them every day, but they didn't see the one greater than the angels was before their eyes. They didn't know that heaven was on their doorstep.

They were so busy waiting for a blessing, they did not see the source of blessings was in their midst.

They were so busy waiting for their big chance, they missed the biggest opportunity of all.

They rejected him and cried crucify him!

He was wounded for their transgressions and bruised for their iniquities, but by the very stripes on his back, they would be healed.

They had heaven on their doorstep.

They nailed him to an old rugged cross and buried him in a borrowed tomb!

They were so close, but so far away! They had heaven at their doorstep!

But early Sunday morning....

No. 9770- Inspiration

Four Anchors for Stormy Seas

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 26, 2017

SCRIPTURE: Then fearing lest we should have fallen upon rocks, they cast four anchors out of the stern, and wished for the day. And as the shipmen were about to flee out of the ship, when they had let down the boat into sea, under colour as though they would have cast anchors out of the foreship, Paul said to the centurion and to the soldiers, Except these abide in the ship, ye cannot be saved." Acts 27:27-31.

Introduction

Have you ever been through a storm in your life? There are not many who can truthfully say they have never faced a turbulent life experience. Sometimes storms we create the storms ourselves, at other times storms just happen. They can't be predicted although we know that they are coming, often without notice.

There are financial storms, seasons when your money is obviously very funny or non-existent. There are health storms, when you are facing a major medical challenge. There are family and marital storms, in which the safety and security of the family is in question. There are career storms, during which our jobs and careers are in limbo. There are also spiritual storms, times when our faith is tested as problems swirl all around us. We have all experienced one type of storm or another.

Each day we rise we have no way of knowing whether a storm will break out before the day ends. The believer approaches each day confident that no matter what happens in the course of a day, God will work it out because he has promised that "all things work to the good" of those who are trying act according to his purpose. We assume the attitude of the songwriter who said, 'I do not know, how long it twill be, or what the future holds for me, but this I know, if Jesus leads me, shall get home someday."

Since we know that storms constantly rise in our lives, it is wise to prepare for them both physically and spiritually. It is important for us to be ready, anchored and ride out any storm that occurs in our marriage, family or life.

One way to do that is preparation in advance and positive self-talk and actions during a storm. We should take actions before storms to prepare for them. It is always interesting to watch people who live in areas frequented by storms to dash to stores to stock up on supplies when they hear the first storm warning. If storms come frequently, why not keep the cabinets stocked, plyboard for the windows, gasoline for the generations and supplies of bottled water; that's preparation. During the storm, what we do and say matters as well because storms upset our nerves and shake our confidence. They can weaken our strength and try our patience.

Songwriter, Kirk Franklin says because storms upset us and turn us around we should speak to our storm and never let it destroy our faith in God. In one of his popular songs he wrote these lyrics:"

"Because of faith, I have a brand new day. The sun will shine, and I will be Okay. That's when I told the storm to pass. Storm you can't last, you got to go away!"

Speak to your storm, in the name of Jesus, and watch the hand of God as it pushes back the clouds of doubt and fear in your mind. Even while the storm rages, he will show you a brighter path. Greg O'Quinn's song, "I told the storm" took this idea even further because it showed a believer's response to desperate situations when he wrote what a believer might say when speaking to a storm:

"Winds stop blowing!
Floods stop flowing!
Lightning stop flashing!
Breakers stop dashing!
Darkness go away!
Clouds move away!
That's what I told the storm!

Death can't shake me!
Job can't make me!
Bills can't break me!
Disease can't take me!
You can't drown me!
My God surrounds me!
That's what I told the storm!"

It might be a good idea, to talk to your storm; because when you talk to the storm in your life, you are actually defying the devil. You are serving notice that you are prepared for the long haul and that while he rages, you intend to keep your eyes on the SON.

As Christians, we are aware that storms come and go, but we have resolved to remain anchored in the Lord.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul assurances to frightened sailors that despite the storm that they would not be lost.

The Apostle Paul had been persecuted many times for his preaching about Jesus and the kingdom of God. He appeared before several courts and after a hearing before Festus was ordered to appear before Caesar in Rome. Enroute to Rome, a great storm broke out on the sea. The sailors on board fought fearlessly against the storm until it became obvious to them that they were fighting a losing battle. The storm threatened to capsize the ship, but they then discovered that it was pushing them toward rocky ground that would result in a crash. To save the ship and their lives, they cast four anchors into the sea to steady the ship, to stop it from drifting. The anchors proved ineffective against the storm, and the ship was ultimately lost.

All the sailors were worried about dying at sea; everyone was worried except Paul. In fact, Paul was so confident that he told the sailors who had begun to abandon ship that unless they stayed with the ship, they would perish. Paul was anchored in the midst of that storm, even though the ship wasn't!

The sailors threw four anchors into the sea in an attempt to steady that ship, but it did not help because the ship drifted anyway.

However, it appeared that Paul had four anchors as well; they steadied him during the storm. Even though the ship was shaken and battered, Paul was able to stand steady and strong.

Four Anchors

When we face the storms of our own lives, it is much easier if have Paul's four anchors.

ANCHORED BY THE PRESENCE OF GOD: When any storm rages, we can be steadfast if we are anchored by the presence of God. Even in the midst of that raging storm, Paul found that he was not alone and we should have the same confidence. In verse 23 Paul said, "For there stood by me this night the angel of God, whose I am, and whom I serve."

Those who have a relationship with God are confident in storms that God will always be with us. When Israel was being pursued by Pharaoh, it was the presence of God in the form a pillar of cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night that led them toward the Promised Land. When fought against enemies on the other side of Jordan Moses stood on a mountain and raised his hands to symbolize the presence of God. Samson was strong against the Philistines as long as the presence of God was with him, but once God left he became weak.

David said, in Psalm 23:4, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil for thou art with me." Jesus told his disciples, "Lo, I'll be with you alway," which meant he will never leave us alone.

Believers should be reminded that we never face a storm in life on our own! Every step, every valley, every mountain will be graced by His presence! Even when we cannot see Him, He is still there: watching, leading, protecting, being God.

ANCHORED BY THE PROMISES OF GOD: Paul was confident in the storm because he remembered the promise of God. In Act 27:23 he said the angel stood with him and told him not to be afraid, but in verse 24 the angel promised him that he would make it to Rome and so would all of those on board the ship. He stood on the promise of God, and that was enough.

Whenever God promises something, we can be assured that he will do exactly what he says.

What has God promised? In Psalm 30:5 he promised us brighter days in storms of agony and pain saying, "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning. In Psalm 34: 19 he promised to deliver us from affliction saying, "Many are the afflictions of the righteous: but the Lord delivereth him out of them all." In Romans 28:28 he promised us that no matter what storms we encounter he will work it to our good. There he said, "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose."

There are 7,487 promises that God has made to man recorded in the Bible. There is a promise in every book of the Bible except the book of Titus. If there is no promise, don't expect it, but seek it out of mercy.

We can be anchored in the storm of life if we remember his promises.

ANCHORED BECAUSE GOD ALWAYS HAS A PLAN: Paul was confident in the storm because he was confident that regardless of the storm God always has a plan for true believers. The idea is that any storm that threatens true believers is a part of the big picture that God is doing and any difficulties that we might encounter while he works out the big picture, he will fix it so that it works to our advantage. God is Sovereign! He is in absolute control of everything that happens in life!

As long as we know that God is on the throne, we are comfortable knowing that whatever happens to us in life, is for the best, although sometimes we have no idea how.

The story is told of the traveling evangelist who could not find a place to have his revival meeting. Finally, he announced that he would have his meeting in a pasture under a large Oak tree. There was no place to sit except a stump which was quickly ceased by an elderly gentleman. However, as the preacher prayed he looked up, and then looked down at the elderly gentleman and told him he had to move. The old man refused because he had a comfortable seat up front on a stump. When he refused the preacher asked several of the young men to move him; they did, despite his violent protest. He created a storm of confusion. Shortly after he was removed, a large dead branch of the tree fell on the very spot where the man sat. Had it not been for his removal he would he died.

We can't always see God's plan, but, we should be assured that he has one working for us. From every trial we learn a lesson, become stronger, and more confident for the next storm that rages.

ANCHORED BY OUR KNOWLEDGE OF GOD'S PAST PERFORMANCE: The ship itself was lost, broken up on the rocks, but true to his word all of those on board the ship were saved and eventually made it to their destination. In our personal history, we have seen God perform miraculously in our lives. That anchors us. The ship itself was wrecked, but we are still here!

We are anchored by our knowledge that God is able to work it out! He will get us through our storm and land us safely on the other side.

It may look this evening like the storm is too great. It may look like the storms of life are going to prevail. However, when the waves have all settled down, when the winds have ceased their blowing, when the rains have abated, when the storm clouds have moved off to the horizon: you will see that God was in control all along! No storm in this life will be able to blow us off the course God has determined for our lives! He will secure us during the storm, and He will successfully deliver us to the safe harbor of His glory!

Corrie Ten Boom was a Christian who helped hide Jews from the Nazis. She was imprisoned and miraculously released a day before all of the people in her prison were sent to the gas chamber. In her book, the "Hiding place" are these encouraging words concerning God's ability to bring us safely through, "When Jesus takes your hand, He keeps you tight. When Jesus keeps you tight, He leads you through your whole life. When Jesus leads you through your life, He brings you safely home."

Heavy Anchors

Finally, brothers and sisters, we need to always remember that the bigger your storm, the heavier you anchor!

Ships always come with an anchor in proportion to their size. An ocean liner wouldn't have an anchor designed for a fishing boat. A battleship can find little use for the anchor of a tugboat. Big ships need heavy anchors.

When we are going through the storms of our lives, we need to be sure that we have anchor big enough for the storm.

Unfortunately, too many believers depend upon lightweight anchors for heavy-weight situations.

A lightweight anchor is one that appears handy at the time.

A lightweight anchor easy to handle,

A lightweight anchor is not very heavy in size,

A lightweight anchor a holds well on a quiet day in the harbor.

But the lightweight anchor is no good in a big storm.

Some have an anchor, but it's a lightweight anchor.

Church attendance is an anchor, but it is a light weight anchor if you still don't know the Lord!

Doing good deeds and helping others is an anchor, but it's a lightweight anchor if you still don't know the Lord!

Having your bible on your cell phone is an anchor, but it's a lightweight anchor if you don't have the word of God in your heart!

When you are going through a storm, sometimes your neighbors try to give you're their anchor. They say, "When I go through a storm, I throw salt over my shoulder. I kiss a horseshoe and put it over my door. I find a four leaf clover and fold it up in my Bible." That's when you need to tell them, "I'm sorry, but your anchor won't fit my boat."

Your anchor won't fit my boat because my anchor must be able to:

—be changeless and eternal —withstand the winds and the waves

—wipe tears from my eyes
—pick me up and turn me around
—lift up a bowed down head

In times like these, we need a savior, in times like these you need an anchor, be very sure, be very sure, your anchor holds and grips the solid rock.

This rock is Jesus, my rock in a weary land!
This rock is Jesus, my bridge over troubled waters!
This rock is Jesus, who died out on Calvary!
This rock is Jesus, who arose Early Sunday morning

This rock is Jesus yes he's the one, this rock is Jesus the only one, be very sure, be very sure, your anchor holds and grips the solid rock.

No. 9771-Inspiration

It's not Dejavu, It's God blessing me again

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 2, 2017

S CRIPTURE: "I am the man that hath seen affliction by the rod of his wrath. Lamentation 3:1; It is the Lord's mercies that we are not consumed because his compassions fail not; they are new every morning; great is thy faithfulness. Lamentation 3:22-23.

Introduction

Have you ever done been somewhere and had a strange feeling that you have been there before? Perhaps you viewed a landscape and felt you had seen it before? Most certainly all of us have been in situations that are strikingly similar to ones we have experienced before. This feeling of having seen it, experienced it, or felt it before is often called Déjà vu. - I have been there before.

There are millions of people in the world who believe in the concept of Déjà vu. They believe they have actually had an experience in another life. They believe they knew Abraham Lincoln, had conversations with George Washington or actually participated in the building of the Eiffel Tower. They believe they were actually there, in another life.

Those who believe in Déjà vu also find it easy to also believe in reincarnation. Reincarnation, in its simplest form, means that the life of humans and animals continues in a cycle of birth and rebirth. They believe that each time a life ends, shortly after it begins again in a lesser or greater form, carrying the knowledge gained from one life into the next. It gets even more complicated because reincarnation also teaches that the more good a person does in one life puts him in a better existence in the next life and the evil a person does guarantees a lower estate in the next life.- It's called Karma (Reaping what you sow). Since animals are part of the cycle, it's possible that a person may be working off bad Karma from a past life by being a cow in this life. The safe bet is not to eat meat, because we may be eating Great Uncle Willie who's working out his bad Karma.

What do we as Christians believe? The subject of Déjà vu is all around. There is a 2006 movie by that name. Six Flags has a twisting ride that supposedly takes us back to where we started from again and again. There is a movie called "Ground Hog Day" in which a man wakes up every day on February 2nd. We read excerpts in books and see clips in movies in which someone says, "I feel like I've known you all of my life" or "I'm sure I have met you before.That's when you hear someone say, "In my next life,

I'm not going to make this mistake again." Beyonce' even has a video entitled "Déjà vu." All of these express the idea of Déjà vu and reincarnation in different ways.

The Bible does not mention the idea of Déjà vu, and it does not endorse the idea of reincarnation. In fact, the Bible does not mention it all. Some Jews erroneously thought Jesus was Elijah come back to life, but they did not believe that Jesus was Elijah in a past life. In Hebrews 9:27 the Bible teaches "..it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment." 2 Corinthians 5:8 says we are "absent in the body and present with the Lord." -There is no déjà vu if the term is describing having done something in a past life. We don't subscribe to the idea that if I eat a Big Mac that I may be eating Great Aunt Susie who came back as a cow and somebody killed her and sold her to McDonald's. The Christian lives once and is immediately taken to be in the presence of the Lord. A non-Christian dies and goes to the grave to await judgment. He does not come back to work his way out of hell by going through hell in another life to make up fo the hell he caused others in the life before.

We do believe in a form of Karma, in that Karma teaches that good actions will produce equally good actions and the same with bad actions. Karma says a child who causes his parents pain, will be cursed to have children who do the same to them. Galatians 6:7 says this, "Be not deceived, God is not mocked, whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap."

The good part is this: "While we don't believe that we have lived an experience before in another life, we do believe that we have been in similar situations in this life. The knowledge that we gained from our past experience is carried into each new life situation."

In this life, David says in Psalm 37:25, "I have been young, and now am old, yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken nor his seed begging bread."

In this life, we have seen the righteous fall but always rise again. That's what Solomon had in mind in Proverbs 24:16 "For a just man falleth seven times, and riseth up again, but the wicked shall fall into mischief.'

As Christians, we have seen God move and bless, move and bless in an endless cycle until we have concluded that it's not déjà vu, it's just God getting ready to bless me again.

Exposition

This text focuses on the Prophet Jeremiah as he reflects on the condition of Israel and the way God responds.

The Book of Lamentations is the laments of Jeremiah over the condition and the causes of their problems. The Lamentations was written after the destruction of Israel by the Babylonians. The beautiful temple had been raided and torn down; so were the majestic walls that surrounded the city. Everything it took centuries to build had been torn down and trampled under foot.

Lamentations is Jeremiah's pity party over the loss of it all through the sinful actions of the people. He was sad, but the people had been in this situation before. In Egypt, in the wilderness, under The Judges, Saul, and David, the people repeatedly broke God's rules and suffered great losses.

From past experiences, Jeremiah pointed the way back through: submission, repentance, faith, prayer and hope for God's mercy.

Just as Jeremiah lamented that he had seen a broken Israel many times, he said in this text that has also seen a merciful God who, despite their sinfulness, offered new mercies to them every day.

Jeremiah said that God was faithful in the past and he would continue to bless, punish, forgive and bless again. In verse 23 he says, "The mercies are new every morning."

Jeremiah said to Israel that their punishment is just, but after repentance, believers can expect to feel the shower of God's blessing again. It won't be déjà vu when it happens,it will just be God blessing us once again.

Repeating Ourselves

There are some things we should learn from repeat experiences. It has nothing to do with Deja vu, it's just biblical truth.

GOD REPEATS HIMSELF: Israel learned that God often repeats himself. When they sinned, he repeated himself and put them on their knees. When they repented, he repeated himself and showered them with blessings. In fact, he showered them with so many blessings that they questioned their own worthiness. Hebrews 2:6 asks, "What is man that thou art mindful of him? or the son of man, that thou visitest him?" Today we still wonder about God's amazing willingness to forgive us and keep blessing us, even though we do so many stupid and sinful things. It's like Deja Vu, we get a blessing and mess it up, and God punishes us. The amazing thing is that despite our weakness he continues to bless us after we repent. On Monday, there is a blessing. On Tuesday there is a blessing. It's not Deja vu, it's God blessing me again! It's encouraging to know that God is not just a onetime God. He can bless us again and again so that we can progress from strength to strength in the journey toward the heavenly land.

DON'T EXPECT TO REPEAT OUR BLESSING IF WE ALSO REPEAT OUR SINNING: Israel learned that while God was a blessing God, that he refused to bless them while they sinned. The route to repeated blessing began with repentance. If we want the blessings to repeat, then we must not repeat the same sinful decisions and actions. Between sin and blessings is one word, "repentance." We must take a different route. If we see a stack of unpaid bills and the stack never gets smaller, even though we are working every day; something is wrong. If I charge more than I can pay for, that's not Dejavu, it's bad decision making. If you are in another abusive relationship in which you are being, verbally or physically abused, it's not Deja Vu, but it is the result of bad relationship decisions. Each year, we vow to change directions to improve our situation. We pledge to start saving, change our course or do something different, but soon find ourselves in the same position again, because we return to old habits.

However, the old maxim is still true, if you go the same route, you get to the same destination. It has nothing to do with Deja vu. That's why John 3:3 says "Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God." We have to completely change who we are and how we do things. It also means changing why we do things. The blessings will come again, but only after we change course and chart a new direction.

IF YOU HAVE BEEN HERE BEFORE, REMEMBER WHAT GOD DID WHEN YOU WERE THERE BEFORE: If we find ourselves in testy situations it is good to remember, what put us in the situation and what God did for us when we were there. The Great Harry Houdini is recognized as the greatest magician and escape artist of all times. He repeatedly mystified audiences with his ability to escape almost magically from all kinds of safes, jails, and locks. A boy who watched him perform one of his tricks was amazed at how he was locked in handcuffs, tied with ropes, chained at the feet and then held upside down in full view of the public and then escaped. Thinking it was a freak chance, he walked up to Houdini after the demonstration and said: "I bet you can't do that again!" With the news media and hundreds of people watching, Houdini promptly had himself chained and did the trick again. What he did once he could do again.

The frustration that you face at the moment, you've been in a similar situation. Now you are "here" again. What did God do when you were "there" before? Did he provide the consolation you needed? Did he strengthen you when your knees buckled under the load? Did he visit you in your hour of loneliness and give you courage? In some cases, he may have even healed you, gave you a financial blessing or opened a door of opportunity you did not expect.

When God does wonderful works for you, it's not Deja Vu, it's just God blessing you again!

When you walk out of the hospital and recover from an injury, it's not Deja Vu, it's God blessing you again!

Jeremiah told Israel as it lamented it situation to keep hope alive because every morning God showered them with brand new blessings and mercies they had not seen!

The fact that he keeps blessing you is not Deja vu, it's just God blessing you again!

He Loves You

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember the reason God keeps blessing you again and again, has nothing to do with Deja vu, but it has a whole lot to do with the way he loves you!

Jeremiah lamented Israel's condition, but in all of his lamentations, he said God's mercy never ceased. Over and Over again, he brought them new mercies every day!

Those who question how believers continuously live blessed and highly favored lives think we must have had a lot of good Karma in a past life and are simply reapeaping its rewards.

That's when we tell a doubting world, that it has nothing to do with Deja vu, it's just God blessing me again!

We can't earn our salvation by having good Karma and doing good deeds. God showers us with blessings out of the abundance of his love for us.

Romans 6:23 says salvation is the gift of God, and we have learned that his favor comes from his love for us.

When we are able to stand when others around us are falling down, it's not because we have gained strength in another life, but because we have waited patiently on God and he has renewed our strength.

No, it's not Deja Vu, but it's God blessing us again!

We ought to be glad to tell somebody, that God is blessing us.

We ought to be glad to tell somebody, that it's not by our strength or because we are so good that we are able to be so happy, but it's because of the goodness of the Lord.

We ought to tell the world that God is blessing me in the morning. He's blessing me in the noonday. He's blessing me in the midnight hour.

Every day God keeps showering me with favor, but it's not deja vu, it's just God blessing me again.

-It seems like whenever I have a Cross that I need him to help me to bear; he's always there. It's not Deja Vu, it's just God blessing me again

-Whenever I have a mountain that I need him to help me to climb; he gives me a helping hand. It's not Deja Vu, it's just God blessing me again.

-Whenever I have a doubt that I need him to help me to remove, he gives me confidence; It's not Deja Vu, it's just God blessing me again.

-Whenever I have a battle that I need him to help me to fight; he shows me the path to victory. It's not Deja Vu, it's just God blessing me again.

-Whenever I have a trial that I need him to help me to get through, he makes a way out of no way. It's not Deja Vu, it's just God blessing me again.

It has nothing to do with Deja vu. He's just blessing me again because he is:

—Jehovah-Rapha, my healer in times of sickness.

—Jehovah-Shalom, my peace in times of confusion.

—Jehovah-Nissi, my victory over life's battles.

—Jehovah-jireh, my overseer, and my provider!

Every day we should praise the Lord!

Praise him for being such a wonderful God!

Praise him for blessing us!

Praise him for saving our souls!

Praise him for picking up an old rugged cross and dying for our sins!

Praise him for staying in the grave for three days and nights!

But early Sunday morning…..

No.. 9772-Palm Sunday

Something to Shout About

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 9, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "And the multitudes that went before, and that followed, cried, saying, Hosanna to the son of David: Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord; Hosanna in the highest." Matthew 21:9

Introduction

When does a whole community have something to shout about? It's a time when everyone in the community is either proud of an accomplishment that brings them honor and pride or will begin actions will improve their lives in some way.

Recently, the people of Las Vegas, Nevada celebrated and shouted when it was announced that the Oakland Raiders would move from Oakland to Las Vegas. It gave them something to shout about.

The people of North Carolina had something to shout about when its team became the College Basketball Champions again.

The people of Cleveland, Ohio shouted when they heard that LeBron James, their basketball hero, was returning to play with the Cavaliers. They celebrated in the streets and praised the man they had booed when he decided to leave. His return gave them something to shout about as they shouted "King James" in the streets.

It was the same excitement shared by the people of Minneapolis when it was announced that it would host the 2018 Superbowl. Despite their frigid temperatures and inclimate weather, the Superbowl coming to town was something to shout about as they shouted: "History, History" in the streets.

We do the same on a personal level. We post pictures of our newborns, weddings, and graduations on social media and tell the world about our accomplishments. We celebrate our birthdays and anniversaries because we have something to shout about.

Although there was no social media or television, news about the deeds and accomplishments of Christ preceded him. People were excited and shouting his praise in every town.When they witnessed a mighty outpouring of his work with their own eyes, it gave them something to shout about!

When he came to Jerusalem, they had seen his mighty works and were praising him loudly and openly. He had given them a reason to praise him.

Even today as the Lord makes a triumphant entry into the lives of believers, we who know him have something to shout about. We who have witnessed his power and mighty works close up know that he has done great things for us and in us. We have something to shout about!

The people of Jerusalem shouted because they had witnessed a mighty work of God for themselves. They shouted "Hosanna" also because they expected Jesus to do even more in Jerusalem. Similarly, we shout praises to God for what we have seen him do in the past, and because we expect him to do more in the future.

As Christians, we celebrate Christ's presence in our lives because he has saved us and blessed us. He has given us something to shout about.

Exposition

This text focuses on the praise and acclamation that Jesus received when he made his entrance into the city of Jerusalem. On his way to Jerusalem, he stopped again in Bethany to eat supper with Mary, Martha, and Lazarus (John 12:2). The word spread among the crowd of people which had grown to hundreds of thousands because of the upcoming Passover celebration. As he approached Jerusalem, the crowds praised him and took branches from the palm trees and went forth to meet him shouting "Hosanna!" and praising him.

The term "Hosanna" is an Aramaic transliteration of the Hebrew word hoshi-ah-na which means save us. It appears a total of six times in the Gospels, and each is connected with Christ's entry into Jerusalem. It was a term used only during the feasts of the Tabernacle. During this time the people would bring the first fruits of their harvest to the temple in a great celebration. During the celebration the people would repeat Psalm 118:25 once each day for six days as they made a solemn processional around the sacrifice. Psalm 118:25 says: "Save now, I beseech thee, O LORD: O LORD, I beseech thee, send now prosperity." On the seventh day, it was repeated seven times. It was a solemn chant-like recitation that was given in hopes of salvation and prosperity to come. Their plea to God was that he would hoshi-ah-na or save them and bring them prosperity.

The people chanted solemnly, without spirit or enthusiasm. It was a ritual, and they spoke the words out of custom.

Even though the psalm referred to "save now" it was not a reference to salvation from sin or restoration of peace with God, it was spoken as if it was a magical chant that would somehow restore them from the shame of defeat, from the poverty of being an occupied nation, from the misery of being subjects to foreign power. There was more emphasis on "send us prosperity" than there was about "saving us."

When Jesus came to Jerusalem, the people sensed that Jesus was the promised one of Psalm 118. They quoted another part of the psalm in verse 26 that added: "Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord."

When they believed that Jesus would bring them prosperity, power, dominion and freedom of from oppression, they shouted it instead of chanting it in dry monotones. They rejoiced greatly and took their cloaks and threw them into the street to welcome him. It was no longer a dry empty ritual but a living hope and therefore a reason for joy!

Soon they learned that Jesus had truly come to save them, but to save them from their sins. His message of love for enemies, not desiring the riches of this world, rejection of power and worldliness was not what they expected. He turned over the tables of the money changers in the temple and drew the scorn of the leaders.

The same people who shouted, "send us prosperity" with excitement soon became the people who shout with the same excitement: "Crucify him, his blood be on us and our children!"

Praise Him Because of His Mighty Acts

The people praised Jesus on Palm Sunday because he gave them something to shout about. Today, we praise him for the same reason, he gives us something to shout about.

WE SHOULD SHOUT BECAUSE GOD PROVIDES OUR NEEDS: A great truth that ever believer knows about God is that he will provide for their needs. In our prayers, we say, "Give us this day our daily bread." That's a prayer that says we count on God every day for what we need to survive and thrive in this world. It's a truth that we learn when we are children, that God will make a way. When his disciples had such concerns, Jesus told them to look at the natural activity around them. In Matthew 6:25 he said, "Behold the fowls of the air: for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns, yet your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they?" Birds go out each day, not knowing what they will find but yet God arranges for them to fall upon what they need for that day. He challenges us to think, "If he does that for the birds, then he'll do that for me. That's the truth embedded in the song, "Why should I be discouraged. Why should the shadows come? Why should my heart be lonely and long for heaven and home? For Jesus is my portion. A constant friend is he. His eye is on the sparrow, and I know he watches me." The fact that God watches over us, makes us happy and can bring on a shout.

WE SHOULD SHOUT BECAUSE GOD HAS BLESSED US: Often we thank God for physical blessings, but we should also thank him for the unseen spiritual blessings of salvation, heavenly promise, and peace of mind. This spirit of thanksgiving is supported in scripture. The verb ''to give thanks" occurs thirty-eight times and the noun ''thanksgiving" another fifteen times in the New Testament. The Word of God makes it clear that it is very important to give thanks. We should also be thankful for any blessings we receive. Jesus gave thanks before a meal (Matt. 15:36). And when he healed ten men who had leprosy, and only one came back to thank him, Jesus asked where the others were (Luke 17:15-18). He expected people to be thankful for good things. We give God thanks for the seen and the unseen.

Shirley Ceasar said we should praise him because we have: "Greens, beans, potatoes, tomatoes, lambs, rams, hogs, dogs, chickens, turkeys, rabbits, you name it!"

We thank him for the greens and butter beans, but we also thank him for being able to sleep soundly at night. We thank him for fried chicken, rice, and a little gravy, but we should also thank him for spiritual gravy: Joy, love, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, faith, meekness, and temperance. Truly he has given us something to shout about

WE SHOULD SHOUT BECAUSE HE SAVED US: What should make every believer very happy is that Christ has saved us from us. He has saved us from our sins. When we think of the mistakes, errors, destructive things we have said and done in our past, we are overwhelmed with joy that he does not hold all those things against us any longer. He nailed it all to the cross and marked it paid. That's the primary reason Jesus came to this world. John 3:16 says, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life." He came to save us from our sins. That is an overwhelming thought! It's enough to make us want to shout and dance. When David succeeded in getting the Ark of the Covenant returned to Israel, he was so excited and happy that he stripped his clothes to his loin cloth and danced naked in the streets, leaping and jumping and shouting with joy.

That's the way we feel when God has really blessed us. We have to shout.

When the Lord blesses us financially in a way that we did not expect, it's shouting time!

Jesus is the reason to shout

Finally, brothers and sister, if the world is looking for salvation and a reason for hope, Jesus will give us all something to shout about!

Jesus came to this world so that he could save us and show us the way to abundant living.

Not only did Jesus come to save the lost but he also came to provide every believer with the power to live fruitful and happy lives. In John 10:10 he said: "I am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly."

When the New Testament saint cries out Hosanna, it is not a plea for God to save us, but it is a shout of joy because he has saved us! It is not a pitiful cry from a hopeless creature looking for happiness and peace, but the joyful exclamation of the exuberant and triumphant who already knows the joy of the Lord!

Matthew 21:10 says the people began to shout Hosanna and somebody in the crowd asked: "Who is this?" that the people are shouting about.

David answered it in Psalm 24:8 Who is this King of glory? The LORD strong and mighty, the LORD mighty in battle.

Lift up your heads, O ye gates; even lift them up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory shall come in.

When the king comes in, he'll give you something to shout about!

Whenever we think about how God has blessed us, we have something to shout about.

Whenever we think about how God has picked us up and turned us around, we have something to shout about.

Whenever we think about how he provides food for us when we are hungry, we have something to shout about.

When we think about how he brought us out of nowhere and carried us to somewhere, we have something to shout about.

A blind man declared that he is the light of the world because "I was once blind, but now I see." He had something to shout about!

A lame man answered, "He told me to take my bed and walk." He had something to shout about Lazarus testified, "I was dead and in the grave and he gave me a brand new life." He had something to shout about!

Hosanna! Hallelujah! Praise the Lord!

The Jews rejoiced when Jesus came into their city, and they shouted Hosanna!. But every saint's testimony is that, "I'm so glad that one day Jesus came into my life."

Since that day I have found out that there has never been:

—A battle that he could not win! Hosanna! That's something to shout about!

—A burden that he could not lift! Hosanna! That's something to shout about!

—A heartache he could not feel! Hosanna! That's something to shout about!

—A loneliness he could not comfort! Hosanna! That's something to shout about!

—A Promise he could not keep! Hosanna! That's something to shout about!

No wonder the songwriter declared: "What a wonderful change in my life has been wrought, since Jesus came into my heart."

He died for me on Calvary! Hosanna! That's something to shout about!

He arose after three days!Hosanna! That's something to shout about!

He's alive today!

Hosanna! Hosanna! That's something to shout about!

No. 9773-Prayer

Passionate Prayers of the Faithful

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 30, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "I exhort therefore, that, first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks, be made for all men;" 1 Timothy 2:1

Introduction

Have you ever prayed for something or someone? Prayer is the sincere desire of the heart expressed to God in hopes of an answer. When we pray, we take a concern or problem that troubles us and place it in the hands of the only power that we know who can resolve it without question.

It is difficult to find a believer who does not believe in the power of prayer.

Show me a Christian woman, and I'll show you a woman who knows what prayer can do.

Show me a Christian man, and I'll show you a man who can testify that prayer can change things.

Moses learned that even when faced with the Red Sea that a small prayer can build a bridge over troubled water.

Joshua learned that even when the sun is about to set on your victory that prayer can make the sun stand still.

Hezekiah learned that as time dwindles and life fades away, that prayer can add years to your life.

Daniel prayed three times a day, and he learned that prayer can turn lions into kittens.

The Three Hebrew boys learned that even when faced with the fiery furnace that prayer can put a fourth man in the fire.

Jesus, instructing his disciples in Matthew 6, gave them a model prayer which showed each believer what every prayer should contain. However, it was in the garden that he showed them how to pray.

As we learn to pray and appreciate the power of prayer, we soon learn the five "W's" of prayer: Who to pray for, What to pray for, Where to pray, when to pray, and why we should pray.

As believers, we believe in the power of prayer. We have seen how God responds to the prayers of the righteous. Where prayer abounds faith is restored, and God's will is done.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul's instruction to Timothy concerning the necessity of prayer.

There are three ways to pray that are included in the text; each of which is highlighted by a single word in the text: supplications, prayers, and intercessions. Each type of prayer points to a circumstance or situation. All prayers are needed, but certain types of prayers, like arrows in an archer's quiver, are best used for certain types of needs.

Young Timothy is charged to pray for all men while allowing the spirit of God to direct the type of prayer to use for each circumstance. The text indicates that believers should pray for everyone and prayers should not be limited. The verse says we should pray for everyone in need regardless of their race, creed, color or political party. That includes our enemies.

Matthew Henry says, "The design of the Christian religion is to promote prayer, and the disciples of Christ must be praying people. There must be prayers for ourselves in the first place; this is implied here. We must also pray for all men, for the world of mankind in general, for particular persons who need or desire our prayers.

When we pray, we must pray with passion and faith that our God hears and responds to our communications. We pray with a passion because the scripture teaches that the "fervent, effectual prayer of the righteous, availeth much."

Praying with Supplication

The text highlights three types of prayer. Each has a different purpose and focus. Together they show us what to pray for, whom to pray for and when.

The first type of prayer that Paul emphasized was "supplications." A supplication is a form of prayer that always contains a request. A supplication is a type of prayer with a targeted request. The word supplication was common before the 1800's but is not used much today. It comes from the Latin word Supplicare which means to make a plea for something in the humblest way possible. In the Old Testament whenever the word supplication is used it often meant humbling yourself to another person. However, in the New Testament, supplication is always associated with prayer: Humbling ourselves before God.

The word supplication is not used much, but its meaning has not changed. A supplication is when a person prostrates themselves in the humblest way they know; they beg for something. In the Movie "Roots" the Master was about to sell the young girl "Kizzy" when he learned she could read. Kunta Kinte's wife, Kizzy's mother, dropped to her knees and begged the master not to sell her daughter with tears running from her eyes. That was supplication.

When we make a supplication to God, we tell him that we are willing to do whatever needs to be done even if it makes us look foolish to others. A supplication indicates a willingness to change course or live differently in return for an answer.

In Psalm 51 David prayed a prayer of supplication. As he prayed for conditions to change, he then humbled himself and said, "Create in me oh Lord a clean Heart, and renew a right spirit within me." He acknowledged his own weakness and asked God to change his heart.

When a loved one has been injured in an accident, the believer who prays for complete recovery is making a supplication if he humbles himself to the point of doing whatever God wants to be done in return.

When a suspect is about to receive a sentence for a crime committed, the mother who prays for a merciful sentence is making a supplication if she is saying, "I'll do whatever you want me to do," in response.

When an applicant prays to be selected for a new job opening, the applicant is making a supplication, if he is also saying he is willing to obey the will of God.

A supplication is a powerful prayer, but it is made in humility and acceptance of the will of God.

Intercession: When we pray for someone else

Another form of prayer is mentioned in the text: intercession. The word translated "intercession" in this text comes from the Greek Word "Enteuxus" which means to plead or petition on behalf other another person. Those who pray a prayer of intercession do not pray for themselves, but for themselves, but on behalf of others to help them come into agreement with God. An intercessory prayer is also prayed whenever there is a dispute.

This is the role that Christ assumes when sinful mankind wants access to God. He is our intercessor. 1 Timothy 2:5 says, "For there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus." Christ intercedes on our behalf to God, pleading for mercy on us for our sinful ways.

Likewise, the church must intercede for those who do not know better or who know better and choose not to do better.

In the movie "War Room" a wife went into her prayer closet and prayed a prayer of intercession for her husband. She prayed that the devil would not be successful. She prayed for her husband to see the light." -She prayed for him; that was an intercessory prayer.

We must pray for those who are wrong and think they are right.

Just as Abraham pleaded on the part of the people of Sodom, we must do the same for thousands of wayward souls that either do not know God or know Him, but choose to ignore Him.

The church must intercede for the husband and wife whose relationship has deteriorated to a litany of curse words, threats, and violence. They have done everything to each other, but neither has prayed for the other. They don't know any better.

We must intercede for those who still get a thrill out of the party life of night clubs and bars as the years of their lives pass right by them. They won't pray until tragedy strikes, we must pray that God will open their eyes without the need of a tragedy to bring them to their senses.

Praying and Giving Thanks

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must pray for ourselves and give thanks.

Paul told Timothy to pray for all people, but he also told him to pray general prayers that include his own needs and giving thanks to God.

Sometimes our personal prayer does not include a supplication, we are not asking him for anything.

Sometimes, our personal prayer does not include an intercession; we are not praying for someone else.

There are times we are asking God to bless our families, but then there are times when we are not asking him for anything, we are thanking him for being so good.

Paul said we should always pray a prayer of thanks.

When you pray a prayer of thanks, that's when you say:

"I may not have all that my heart desires, but I thank the Lord for giving me what little I have, Praise ye the Lord."

"I may not be of the best of health. My steps may be getting slow. My eyesight may be getting dim. But I thank the Lord for sparing my life and allowing me to see another sunrise!"

That's when you say, "I want to thank you for waking me up this morning!

I want to thank you for clothing me in my right mind!

I want to thank you for giving me health and strength!

I don't know about you, but I have decided that I'm going to keep on praying because prayer changes things!

Prayer can take a defeated spirit and show it the victory!

Prayer can take sadness and turn it into a gladness!

Prayer can take sorrow and turn it into a joy!

Prayer can take a bowed down head and lift it up high!

When the church prays, powerful things begin to happen; heaven takes note and the kingdom of God responds.

When the church prays the wicked get worried, and the devil gets on the run!

When the church prays, the world prepares to be turned upside down.

If there is hatred, prayer can turn hatred into love!

If there is confusion, prayer can turn confusion into harmony!

If there is disappointment, prayer can inspire hope!

If there is fear, prayer can turn fear into courage!

Within your bosom you have the phone, call up the Lord, he's still on the throne!

Call Him in the morning!
Call Him in the noonday!
Call Him in the midnight hour!
He died on Calvary so that he could intercede for us before the Father!
He died that He could talk to His Father on our behalf!
He died so that he could be our mediator!
But early, Sunday morning....

No. 9774-Mother's Day

The Part of Mother that lives forever

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

May 14, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "When I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and thy mother Eunice; and I am persuaded that in thee also." 2 Timothy 1:5

Introduction

What do you remember most about your mother? Each person has a different memory. For some, the memory that lingers is her affection and love for family. For others, it is her ideas, attention to detail and ability to solve problems. Still, others relish her ability to create memorable moments, calm fears and make pains go away. Motherhood conjures many images in our mind, that range from loving and hugging to punishments, whippings, and long lectures. It all seems to fall in the package that we call "motherhood."

As the nation celebrates mothers, there ill be many who will wear red roses to honor living mothers. While the red rose pays respect to the living mother, the white rose is a sign of remembrance for mothers who have passed away. Dr. Jacquelyn Simmons has often preached that persons whose mothers have passed should wear both the red and white rose because as long as one of her descendants lives, she lives in and through them. There is a part of mother that lives forever, helping her to surpass Maya Angelo's "Phenomenal Woman" to become the "Immortal Mother."

The idea that a part of mother lives forever is an underlying theme of the recent movie "The Immortal Life of Henrietta Lacks." The movie, in which Oprah Winfrey and an all-star cast brought to life on HBO, the remarkably true story of Henrietta Lacks who in her early 30s, had cancerous cells removed at Johns Hopkins Hospital in 1951. When they removed the tissue from Mrs. Lacks, doctors noticed that her cells refused to die once outside of her body like other cells. The hospital immediately stored her cells and watched them regenerate. They named the cells HELA cells and sent them to hospitals around the world to treat patients. Today, there are billions of HELA cells used in research labs around the world. They have been used to cure polio, fight tuberculosis, cancer and many other diseases. They even sent HELA cells into space to see if being in space could kill them, but they continued to grow. Today the cells of Henrietta Lacks, a poor black mother who only lived 31 years, still live and have caused others to live. The beauty of her story is only marred by the fact that John Hopkins Hospital now cells test tubes of her cells for $250 each, has made millions, but the family of Henrietta Lacks has never received a dime for her cells that refused to die.

Henrietta Lacks' story was told by her daughter Deborah with the help of an author who made it into a New York Times Best Seller and later into an HBO movie. Her daughter was enthralled by the strength of her mother's cells, and the importance of the work they've done and will continue doing.

There are millions of people who have survived breast cancer, polio and hundreds of diseases because Henrietta Lacks cells are in them and refuse to die. Until the Lord returns, it appears that there is a piece of Henrietta Lacks that will live forever.

Today, we are the embodiment of all the lifeblood of our mothers. She lives in us and through us and will continue to live in our children and grandchildren. You see something about her in yourself. You have the peculiarities, talents and "ways" of your great-grandmother and her mother before her. There is a part of mother that lives forever because she is the "Immortal Mom."

As Christians, we honor mothers who are still with us. We also remember the love and teachings of our mothers who have gone to be with the Lord. It is a comfort to all of us to know that, in spite of her human faults and shortcomings, there is a part of mother that lives forever in the lives of those she touches along the way.

Exposition

This text focuses on a letter written to Timothy, a young man beginning in the ministry, accentuating his belief that the young man's character and demeanor reflected the same traits that had been exhibited by his mother and even his grandmother.

Preparing Timothy for his ministry, Paul reminded Timothy of his spiritual roots. Timothy was walking in the footsteps of the faithful. One important line in Paul's lesson suggests that Timothy had great faith that had been handed down through the generations. "I am reminded of your sincere faith, a faith that lived first in your grandmother Lois and your mother Eunice, and now, I am sure, lives in you." We do not know a great deal about those women, but in that sentence, we get a picture of two very special people.

No one knows where Lois and Eunice came from, but it is known that they eventually settled in Asia Minor, in the rural Roman town of Lystra. They had been born Jewish, but whether or not that meant too much in their home, we can only guess.

Something happened to Lois and Eunice. Somehow, some way, they heard about Jesus Christ. They came to realize their need of a Savior and accepted Jesus as Lord of their lives.

Scripture does not record exactly what Timothy heard, but it is relatively safe to assume that he heard and saw everything both his mother and his grandmother heard. Between them, there was probably 40 years distance between himself. But there were years of faith, pass one to another that he was just trying for the first time. The faith of his mother was a living faith, but it was handed down to her. The faith of his grandmother was a great faith. She acquired it first and passed it down.

What Timothy received from his mother, he passed it on to thousands in sermons, lessons, and demonstrations of faith.

Both Lois and Eunice have passed off the scene, but a part of these Christian mothers lives forever.

What Parts Live

Lois and Eunice passed on a legacy of faith and service to Timothy, and he passed it on to others. Mothers make impressions on their young that will outlive them as generations follow.

MOTHERLY MOMENTS LIVE FOREVER: Great mothers are masters at creating motherly moments. These are memories that we carry throughout our lives and then pass them on to our children and grandchildren. Motherly moments are the points in our lives when we celebrate accomplishmenst, make major decisions or endure difficulties. Mothers are masters at creating moments we will always remember. They begin with little things and may evolve into major undertakings. Birthday parties don't just happen, often that significant moment is created by the efforts of our mothers. We see the balloons, cake, gifts and the smiling faces, all of that was arranged so that she could share a significant moment with us. It's important that every child has a chance to share a significant moment. When we formed our first letter with feeble shaky hands, mother shared that significant moment. She probably took a picture or two. When we played our first Pee-Wee League football game, she sat in the stands waving, watching and supporting. When we graduate, marry or make an achievement, mothers highlight those moments with special dinners, festive activities, and celebrations. If we fail or fall into trouble; mothers are there for those moments, too. There is rarely a time in our lives when a good mother is not present in body or spirit in the lives of her children. As the occasions came, she was there, creating a moment that would live forever.

MOTHERLY WISDOM LIVES FOREVER: Lois taught her daughter Eunice what her mother taught her about life; that wisdom continued through Timothy and all others he touched in his travels. Godly mothers demonstrate an enormous amount of Godly wisdom that does not diminish as time passes. In our homes we have seen our mothers demonstrate the wisdom of Solomon as she solved disputes, settled arguments, and brought peace into the home. We have watched our mothers demonstrate wisdom beyond their years. Even young Godly mothers reach into their chest of wise words and deeds and demonstrate a wisdom derived from sources greater than themselves.

Often mothers find themselves repeating phrases, Bible verses, and instructions that were taught to them by their mothers and a long succession of grandmothers before them. Such wisdom is invaluable and is not devalued because the generation has changed.

Times may have changed, but mama's wisdom is still true: "If you make you bed, you'll have to sleep in it." Times may have changed but "What goes around, comes around," is still true. Times may have changed, but we should still "be careful how we treat people on the way up because we'll meet them on the way down."

Wisdom is not learned in a book or a classroom. As we watch our mothers, however, we know that their wisdom comes from a higher source.

Dr. Ava Pierce once defined wisdom knowing "When to say yes and when to say no, when to hold on and when to let go." Those who have had great mothers in their lives have seen this wisdom demonstrated. These spirit led mothers seem to instinctively choose the right directions, make the right choices and decisions.

The wisdom and teachings of our mothers live forever.

MOTHERLY FAITH LIVES FOREVER: The most salient attribute that Paul saw in Timothy was his faith. He said he saw it first in his grandmother, and then in his mother. It points to a truth: A godly mother's faith lives forever. Godly mothers try to explain to their children the importance of living Godly lives that are guided by principles of morality rooted in Gods word.

Godly mothers order their lives in the word of God. It helps to control their temper and guide their walk through life.

Faith is needed for the days when we will be tempted to stray away from the godly path. That's when we remember Matthew 6:2. ..lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. The Godly mother teaches her family to ask God for deliverance out of sinful situations.

It is faith that prompts mothers to say with assurance when all others have given up that "The Lord will make a way somehow."

It is faith that helps us to stand strong even when sinful living all around us seems to prosper. The faithful mothers remind us that Psalm 37:1-2 says, "Fret not thyself because of evildoers, neither be thou envious against the workers of iniquity. For they shall soon be cut down like the grass, and wither as the green herb."

It is faith that gives us the ability to patiently wait for God to act. Mother taught and believed, "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength. They Shall mount up with wings as Eagles; they shall run and not get weary, walk and not faint."

It is faith that helps us to confidently face each day knowing that, "The Lord is my shepherd and I shall not want."

Mother's faith, if passed on to her children will live forever.

The Part that lives forever

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that the part of our mother that lives forever, is the part that has been touched by the hands of God.

The cells of Henrietta Lacks were cancerous and diseased, but scientist learned when they watched her cells under a microscope that her cancerous cells did not regenerate. Only the good parts kept living, producing and regenerating.

That's important for us to remember because while our mothers had a lot of good qualities, there were some who had a few bad habits.

If we tell the truth, there were some moms that drank beer and emptied a fifth or two.

If we tell the truth, there were some moms that could pray so hard that the clouds would open and let her prayer through, but they could also cuss like sailors.

If we tell the truth, there were some moms that dipped snuff, chewed tobacco and smoked cigarettes.

That's why 1 Corinthians 6:11 says, "And such were some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God."

What's left after the washing, after the sanctifying and justifying, is touched by the hands of God and that's the part that lives forever.

That part that lives forever is the faith that says,

—if we have fallen, God will pick us up again!

—if we fail in life God will give us a second chance!

—if trouble comes our way, that God will make our mountains low, and our crooked places straight.

The part that lives forever is the faith of the woman who teaches her family to put their trust in the Lord because he will work it out.

Many have learned from our mothers that if we trust in the Lord, he will help us

—Overcome strong temptations

—Bear our heavy burdens

—Withstand mighty persecutions

—Cross the loneliest of valleys

—Endure the saddest of sorrows

—Live through the darkest of nights

—Sail through the roughest storms

—Climb the tallest of mountains

The part that lives forever is the part the teaches me to call on the name of Jesus!

Jesus, Who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, Who arose after three days and nights!

That part of mother that has been touched by the Lord will live forever

No.9775-Communion

The Last Supper

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 21, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "While they were eating, Jesus took bread, and when he had given thanks, he broke it and gave it to his disciples, saying, "Take and eat; this is my body." 27Then he took a cup, and when he had given thanks, he gave it to them, saying, "Drink from it, all of you. 28This is my blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many for the forgiveness of sins. 29I tell you, I will not drink from this fruit of the vine from now on until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom." 30When they had sung a hymn, they went out to the Mount of Olives." Matthew 26:26-30.

Introduction

If you were about to have your last meal, what would you order? The answer to that question varies, but we would all probably have different orders on our plate. What would be the very last order that you would make? For some, it would be a Big Mac and Fries. For others, it would be a 26-ounce sirloin steak and a baked potato. Still, others would probably order a pot of collard greens, a slice of cornbread, fried chicken, rice and gravy and a dab of creamed corn. That would be a pretty good last meal!

Our nation pays close attention to a person's last meal, even if the individual is condemned to die. There is a strange anomaly in American culture with respect to a person's last will; we always want to comply with a person's last wishes even if we have ignored his wishes his entire life. We honor a person's last will and testament, and even if a person is condemned, we accept his request for a last meal.

Sometimes last meals can be ridiculous, such as the case of white supremacist Lawrence Russell as noted in Homiletics Magazine. Brewer, along with two other men, chained a black man, James Byrd Jr., to the back of his pickup and dragged him to his death down a bumpy road in Texas. For this despicable act, Brewer was executed by that state in September 2011. Just as he was about to be executed Brewer requested and received a last meal for the history books. He ordered: two chicken-fried steaks with gravy and sliced onions, a triple-patty bacon cheeseburger, a cheese omelet with ground beef, tomatoes, onions, bell peppers, jalapeños, a bowl of fried okra with ketchup, a pound of barbecued meat with half of a loaf of white bread, a portion of three fajitas, a meat lover's pizza (topped with pepperoni, ham, beef, bacon, and sausage), a pint of Blue Bell, a serving of ice cream, a slab of peanut-butter fudge with crushed peanuts, and a serving equivalent to three root beers.

As strange as it was, the state of Texas went out of its way to get him everything he ordered. With everything he ordered in front of him, Brewer added insult to injury, by refusing to eat any of it.

After that, the Texas system eliminated the special meal request for the condemned. Now, in Texas, the condemned eat whatever is on the prison menu for that day!

For believers, the last supper has a different meaning. When we think of the last supper, we think of the memorial meal Christ shared with his disciples that symbolizes the meaning of his life, death, and resurrection. To us, it isn't that it is the last supper, but it is the Lord's Supper.

As Christians, the Lord's Supper is both a memorial and a celebration. It is a memorial of the death and crucifixion of Christ, but it is also a commemoration of his victory over death and the grave.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus' last meal with his disciples before his crucifixion.

Leonardo DaVinci painted a picture of Jesus sitting at a table with his disciples eating the meal before the crucifixion. The famous painting was entitled "The Last Supper." However, the title of the painting was misleading because it was not actually Christ's last meal on earth. It was actually the first "communion" or Lord's Supper of the church.

As he prepared for the eventual crucifixion that was coming, he shared the Passover meal with them and give it a new meaning. He told them to take the bread and wine and commemorate his life and legacy by sharing this supper as a memorial meal until he returns. We call this meal the "Lord's Supper." He elaborates on its meaning in Luke 22:20, "Likewise also the cup after supper, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you." "After the same manner also he took the cup," we read in I Corinthians 11:25, "When he had supped, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood. What Jesus seemed to say was, "Disciples, the cup of the Supper represents all that I have done to purchase your salvation upon the cross, you must continue to drink it." I Corinthians 11:26, "For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do shew the Lord's death till he come."

As he explained the elements, he said the bread would represent his body, and the wine would represent his blood which is shed for the remission of sins. He then gave them the cup and told them the words of this text "drink ye all of it."

The Lord's Supper was the last time Christ would fellowship with his disciples before the crucifixion. Some scholars believe that while he sat with his disciples that he didn't eat the meal with them. They point to verse 29 in which he said he would not drink with them until the Kingdom of Heaven was established on earth.

The last time that Jesus is actually recorded eating anything was after the crucifixion when he appeared to his disciples and ate fish and bread to prove that he was not a ghost.

In Matthew 24:39-42 Jesus said, "Look at my hands and my feet. It is I! Touch me and see; a ghost does not have flesh and bones, as you see I have.When he had said this, he showed them his hands and feet. And while they still did not believe it because of joy and amazement, he asked them, "Do you have anything here to eat?" They gave him a piece of broiled fish, 43and he took it and ate it in their presence.

The meal before the Crucifixion was the Lord's Supper, not the last supper.

At the Table

What should we do at the Lord's Supper? There are three things to consider:

GIVING THANKS: When Jesus talked at his last supper, he gave thanks. Yet, the thanks he offered was not for anything he had received in the past. He offered thanks for a crucifixion and death that was coming the next day. As he took the bread and broke it, he said it symbolized his body, he gave thanks for the bread and the sacrifice. At the Lord's table, we too should give thanks for everything. We should thank God for protecting us from dangers, but we should also give him thanks for difficulties that lie ahead. 1 Thessalonians 5:18 says, "In everything give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you." In every situation, we should give God thanks. Not only do we thank him for the new job, but we also thank him for getting fired. Why? Because Romans 8:28 says, "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." When Saints gather for the Lord's supper there is plenty of Thanksgiving, testifying and praising of God for his goodness and mercy are everlasting.

WE SHOULD EXAMINE OURSELVES: The Lord's Supper is a serene time when we hear not the Voices of others, but we hear "self-talk." It's the time when we examine and talk to ourselves about the life we live and our true intentions and motivations. Self-talk comes in our quiet times when we have removed all other considerations. Self-talk looks deep and asks many questions. Among the issues that a saint examining himself will ask are, "Am I involved in a sinful practice for which I have not repented?" "Am I doing my very best to be true to the Christian faith?" "Is my lifestyle at the present, at odds with what Christ expects?

Paul said, after self-examination a person should not partake of the Lord's supper if his own self-examination shows he is unworthy at the moment. Instead of the blessing normally derived from participation, the unworthy participant brings damnation on his own soul. 1 Corinthians 11:29-30 he said "For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation to himself, not discerning the Lord's body. For this cause many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep." When Saints gather for the Lord's supper, there should be a time for personal examination.

WE SHOULD REMEMBER: The Lord's Supper is a time when we remember with all seriousness, what Christ through his death and resurrection, accomplished for us. Each time we share in the Lord's Supper we called to remember our lives before we came to the cross. We should remember the sins we embraced without apology. Most importantly we should remember that it is through Christ blood that we now have hope. We were sinners condemned to die because the payment for sin is "death."

(Romans 6:23) Yet, Christ made himself the ultimate sacrifice on our behalf. "He was wounded for our transgressions and bruised for our iniquity." He was chastised for our faults and failures and because of his sacrifice; we have a chance to the tree of life.

We should always remember that "freedom is not free." Someone always pays.

Someone had to pay all of our drinking and gambling!

Someone had to pay for all of our immoral acts!

Someone had to pay for our abuses and misuses!

Someone had to pay for our miscalculations and mistakes!

Who paid? The songwriter says, "Jesus paid it all. All to him I owe!" Sin had left a crimson stain but he washed it white as snow!"

Until I Return

Finally, brothers and sisters, it is interesting to note that while Jesus shared the last supper, he did not eat the last supper.

Jesus fellowshipped with his disciples but told them he could not actually sup with them until he comes back again.

While some are mystified as to why Christ would not eat or drink before going to Calvary, it's not a mystery if you think about it.

Jesus was getting ready to go to Calvary. He was about to have major surgery on behalf of the world. Sin had left a crimsoned stain for which death was the penalty and crucifixion was the cure.

Sin was a cancer, and he was about to undergo a procedure to have it removed.

Consider what a surgeon tells a patient who is getting ready for a surgical procedure. He's reminded not to eat or drink anything for eight to 12 hours before surgery.

You can't eat or drink anything because when they take you under, everything shuts down for a while and body is paralyzed. If eat or drink something that doesn't sit to well, you can't cough it up, spit it up or vomit it up. If you eat or drink something before the surgery and something goes down the wrong way, they will take you down, but they may not be able to bring you up!

I see Jesus looking over into the future and my mind's ear I hear him say, "I can't eat or drink with you brothers because I see in this cup that in a few hours they will whip me all night long, and if I drink with you right now, I won't be able to cough it up!

I can't eat or drink with you brothers because, because I see in this cup that they are going to put a crown of thorns on my head and spit in my face, and if I drink with you now, I won't be able to cough it up.

I can't eat or drink with you brothers because they are going to take me down, but I've got to be able to get up!

I can't drink with you now, because sin has to be forgiven!

I can't drink with you now, because mercy has to be extended!

I can't drink with you now, because grace has to be received!

I can't drink with you now, because blessings have to be bestowed!

I can't drink with you now, because assurances have to be guaranteed!

I can't drink with you now, because hope must be revived!

I'm reminded of the grandfather who was 100 years he called the family together and told them that the Lord was about to call him home. He asked his children to prepare his favorite meal of mustard greens, cornbread and a slice of Apple Pie. They brought him his favorites and watched him mash the cornbread into the greens and eat until it was all gone. Grandpa was never one to waste food, so one of the grandchildren brought him the slice of pie and said, "Grandpa, you didn't eat your pie!" Grandpa said, "I'm saving that for last, I'll get it on the other side."

I hear Jesus say, I can't eat with you now, I'll see you on the other side!

He picked up an old rugged cross and carried it up to Calvary!

They drove nails in his hands, but he didn't cough it up!

They stuck a spear in his side, but he didn't cough it up!

He died out on Calvary and they lowered him in the grave for three days and nights!

But early Sunday morning, Our God who rules the heaven and earth, brought him up!

He got up, with all power in his hands!

No. 9776- Memorial Day

Lift Him Up, then Lift Them Up!

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 28, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "And I, if I, be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me." John 12:32

Introduction

Have you ever visited a site with memorial statues to the nation's heroes? In Washington D.C. there are scores of statues and memorials that salute the lives of those who were essential to the highest ideals of the nation and championed its cause. The statutes range from a massive statue of Abraham Lincoln in the Lincoln Memorial to a towering tribute to Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Nearly everywhere you walk in Washington, there is a memorial that marks an aspect of our history that should be both remembered and celebrated.

We should remember all of our histories, but we should celebrate only those parts of our history that represent our victories in pursuit of our highest ideals. That's why there is a national debate underway about the removal of Confederate Memorials in New Orleans and other places in the Old South. In New Orleans, the removal of four statues that celebrate Louisiana's participation in the Confederacy has sparked controversy. Mayor Mitch Landrieu led a push to remove statues of Robert E. Lee, General Beauregard, Jefferson Davis and a monument to the Battle of Liberty Place. All four statues are historically accurate but tend to celebrate philosophies that do not represent our highest ideals, so the City of New Orleans has removed them.

New Orleans removed the statues just as Germany removed everything associated with its Nazi past. The nation chiseled swastikas off buildings and monuments. Statues were torn down, and even the grave markers of Nazi leaders were removed. While there are several small busts of Adolph Hitler in Germany, there are no statues or monuments to his life. He does not represent ideas that Germany wants to celebrate. Neither does the country want to celebrate in any way the death of six million Jews and five million others at his hands.

Symbols, when held high, have a tendency to attract succeeding generations to follow the ideas and teachings presented. The young are encouraged to embrace the symbol and all it represents. That's why today, 152 years after the close of the Civil War, there is a new generation still embracing the Confederate flag and paying homage to fallen Confederate Leaders like Robert E. Lee.

On Memorial Day the nation remembers its fallen heroes and celebrates the ideas that championed. We raise high the symbols of their cause, visit their monuments, and tell their stories.

On Memorial Day the nation gives its highest honors to those who have lost their lives in defense of our highest ideals and paid for our freedoms with their blood, sweat, and tears.

We lift them up in the same way and for the same purpose that Jesus had in mind when he said, "And I, If I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me."

As Christians, we lift up the names of our national heroes and military dead. We also lift up the cross of Christ because by doing so, we draw all men to him.

Exposition

This text focuses on Christ as he points to his death and the symbol of his death as a power that should be memorialized and celebrated.

Jesus spoke to his disciples about the Kingdom of God and about his approaching sacrifice on Calvary. He said his death was necessary to complete the salvation of mankind.

When he finished these sayings, a generally ignored event happened. It is recorded in verse 28, "Father, glorify thy name. Then came there a voice from heaven, saying, I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again."

Jesus looked up to God and said, "Father, Glorify thy name!" Immediately after his request, a voice thundered from heaven saying, "I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again."

Therefore, when Jesus spoke of being lifted up on the cross, his death would glorify God and do so repeatedly as those of every generation lift up the cross.

The cross represents God reconciling fallen man unto himself.

When Christians see the cross, we should see a symbol of hope that, in Jesus, we can be restored into good favor with God.

Just as the memorial of Christ reminds believers of his death and sacrifice, it also inspires hope that men and women of all walks of life will one day recognize the fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man and live in peace in the kingdom of God.

Lift Them Up

There are several reasons we lift up our fallen heroes on Memorial Day:

THEY GLORIFIED GODLY IDEALS: When Christ spoke of his approaching sacrifice on Calvary, a voice from heaven thundered that his death would glorify God. In a similar sense, when we lift up the men and women who have died in defense of this nation and its Judeo-Christian ideals, a thunderous approval follows when they are lifted up. Sometimes we forget how many. American Revolution, 25,324; War of 1812, 2,260; Civil War, 863,153; Mexican War, 13, 283. World War I, 126, 200; World War II, 418,500; Korean War, 33,600; Vietnam War, 58,226 killed and 153,000 wounded; and the Iraqi War, 2464 dead with nearly 48,000 wounded; and deaths in and around Afghanistan, 2,227.

In towns and cities across America, there are memorial, statues and markers memorializing the lives of these men and women because they promoted our best ideals and gave their lives in defense of them. There is a thunderous response to their sacrifice because they died to help bring freedom and equality to the world.

OUR FAMILY HEROES ARE LIFTED UP: Memorial Day is also a time for each family to consider its contribution to the lifeblood of the nation. Many families have sacrificed grandfathers and great grandfathers for the good of the country. Unless their story is told and lifted up in their own families, it will be forgotten. Many of them fought for our survival, often defending us against abuse, threats, and death and also fought for the country as well. Some came home wounded physically and mentally, yet they served their families until they died. Memorial Day is an appropriate time for families to place a flower on the grave of the old warriors of the family, especially those who fought for their families and their country as well.

To children, Memorial Day has little meaning until it is put in the context of our personal experience. When the story of their father or grandfather is told to children, Memorial Day becomes something personal. That's when the children of every family can appreciate the thunderous applause the nation gives its heroes, including the ones in their own family for their service and sacrifice.

OUR FAITH IS CONFIRMED: When we lift up the sacrifices of those who have paid the ultimate price for freedom, our own faith is confirmed and reaffirmed. When we see what others have done, we are inspired to pick up the banner and march forward. In the Movie "Glory" the character played by Denzel Washington was bitter throughout the recruitment and training of the 54th all Negro regiment, but when the battle was at its highest a soldier who carried the regiment's flag was slain, and the flag dropped to the ground. Washington's courage was invigorated along with others when the flag fell Washington's character picked up the flag and charged the hill with a vengeance. Their courage confirmed the faith of others and reaffirmed the nation's faith in the ability of Negro soldiers.

The purpose of memorials is to reaffirm our faith in the ideals represented. That's why memorials and monuments to men such as Robert E. Lee, General Beauregard and others should not be publicly displayed; they do not tell the story our quest for ideals that thunder with the appreciation and glory of God.

Joshua ordered 12 stones to be erected as a memorial. Every succeeding generation would ask, What mean these stones? At that time Joshua said the people should tell the story of how God brought us over on dry land?

Our family memorial tells the story of how we were down and out, and God picked us up and turned us around! It's the story of how God healed our sick and open the blind eyes of lost family members! It's the story of how he planted our feet on solid ground.

Each time we tell the story, our faith is confirmed, and another generation decides to pick up the banner of fallen heroes and join the army of the faithful.

Lift Him Up

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must continue to lift the Savior up, because he will draw all men unto himself.

As Christ spoke of his approaching death, there were many who misunderstood him. They were confused and did not understand.

In John 12:34 the people said, "We have heard that Christ will live forever. If that's the case what do you mean by being lifted up?"

They had no idea what being lifted up meant.

It meant that through his crucifixion and resurrection that all those who came to him in lowly states would be lifted up. It was a blessed assurance.

Today believes commemorate the death and resurrection of Christ by lifting him up because he has promised to lift us up.

We have no doubt that he will lift us up.

To be lifted up means to be raised up in honor and respect.

To be lifted up is to be picked up when you have been knocked down!

To be lifted up is to have doors opened when they have been closed in your face!

To be lifted up is to be set free when you have been a captive all of your life!

I hear the words of the songwriter who said, "How to reach the masses, men of every birth, For an answer, Jesus gave the key: "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, Will draw all men unto Me."

Lift Him up, lift Him up; Still He speaks from eternity: "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, Will draw all men unto me."

We must lift Him up because He saw a world filled with hatred and tried to bring love!

We must lift Him up because He saw a world filled with defeat and brought a message of victory!

We must lift him up because He saw a world filled with weakness and brought a message of strength!

He saw a world filled with darkness and challenged it to walk in the light!

They called him Jesus; he made a world of difference!

Before he left, he told his disciples to stay ready because "I'm going to create another world! "That where I am ye may be also!"

In that world, every day will be Sunday, and the Sabbath will have no end!

In that world, it'll always be howdy and never goodbye!

In that world, hearse wheels will not roll!

No wonder the songwriter declares, "When we all get to heaven, what a day of rejoicing that will be! When we all see Jesus, we'll sing and shout the victory!"

In that world, we'll see Jesus, who died out on Calvary and arose early Sunday morning.

Until he comes back again.

Lift him up! Lift him up! Lift him up!

Vol 27-6530

No. 9777-Graduation

Fidgets, Fads & Faith

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 4, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and its righteousness and all of these things shall be added unto you." Matthew 6:33

Introduction

Have you ever found yourself caught up in a fad? Fads, by definition, are intense, widely shared enthusiasm for something, someplace, or someone. The excitement usually doesn't last long and can never be restarted again. A fad is temporary, it has no real reason why it's popular, it comes and goes, but there is one thing that is guaranteed; it won't last long.

What fad caught your imagination? A few years ago there was a game called "Angry Birds" that every child wanted to play. There was also a really crazy television show filmed in West Monroe, La. called, "Duck Dynasty" that was a craze across the country. Do you remember "Honey Boo Boo" about the family of a crazy six-year-old beauty contestant?

There are some here old enough to remember the "Gold Grill" fad which was a custom made removable mouthpiece made of gold that was made famous by rapper Nelly. Some remember when the website "Myspace" was the site for the in-crowd. There are some who can remember the Budweiser Beer commercial that had everyone answering their phones saying, "Wassssssuuup!" The whole nation went crazy over a toy called "Tickle Me Elmo" that giggled "Oh boy that tickles," if it's belly was touched.

Thinking back even further, there are some who can remember Cabbage Patch dolls, Care Bears and when everyone wanted to play Nintendo. Remember the stupid fad that had everyone saying "Psyche!" when they wanted to say, "I'm just kidding." Do you remember the Rubik Cube, the Smurfs and those "Baby on Board" signs?

There are still others that can go back far enough to remember 8 track tape players, Streaking and Disco Music.

One of the biggest crazes of all time happened in 1975 When Gary Dahl started selling an easy to care for a pet he called a pet rock. It was just a rock in a box, with holes in it so it could breathe. It didn't bark, chew the furniture or need a potty box. He sold the rock for $10 along with a manual that included tips on how to handle an excited rock and how to teach it tricks, like rolling over. In one year he made $10 million selling rocks.

The latest fad for 2017 is the Fidget Spinner. The Fidget Spinner is like the old fashion Top, but it spins in your hand rather than on the surface of something. There is no explanation for why it is so popular, but millions are being sold for as low as $5 and as high as $5,000 for the diamond studded designer editions. All it does is spin, but some are reporting that it helps people who are nervous to calm down. Those who bite their nails, have chronic leg shaking, happen to be ADHD or the classroom headache child are said to be more relaxed and more controllable when they spin the fidget. It's getting to be a problem in classrooms because some teachers are taking the toys from students and causing even more disruption because the little gadgets get addicting; some kids can't behave without them.

Although millions of Fidget Spinners are selling like hotcakes today; the Fidget is a fad. It won't last long. That's why every graduate should understand the importance of reaching for those things in life that have meaning and will withstand the test of time.

When confronted with the wild trends of today's time, we should remember the words of the songwriter:

You may build great cathedrals large or small,
you can build skyscrapers grand and tall,
you may conquer all the failures of the past, but only what you do for Christ will last.

As Christians, we see fads come and go, but we know our God is the same today, yesterday and forever. We have decided to keep holding his hand.

Exposition

In this text, Jesus speaks to his disciples about their commitment to building the kingdom that should have been foremost on their collective mind.

Jesus preached to and taught his disciples for three years. During that time, He showed them the mysteries of heaven to come and the kingdom of God on earth. He urged them to stay focused on their immediate mission and to place less attention on the things that attract the attention of the world.

Verse 33 refers to setting priorities. They too were individuals who had to balance their secular needs and desires with their desire to advance the kingdom of God. Jesus made it very simple but still challenging. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you."

In essence, Jesus said put the things of God at the top of your list, and all of the other concerns you have will come in due time. The challenge he posed was one that put serving God above every other consideration.

It was also a subtle warning not to be sidetracked by fads and trends that would get them off the track. The fads and trends may not be sinful, but they are a distraction and should not be a priority.

Why Fidget

Those who fidget are generally restless, bored or nervous, which may account for why many youths or attracted to the Fidget Spinner.

NERVOUSNESS MAKES US FIDGET: At graduation, many youth step across the threshold of young adulthood that often makes them nervous. Even though they have been waiting for the moment all of their lives, reality sets in and that causes some to fidget.

At some point, a Christian graduate asks, what does God want me to do with my life? At this juncture, the Christian graduate starts considering ways to capitalize on this new stage of life and the choices often make them nervous. They will be exposed to many popular ideas, trends, and fads which will attempt to claim their attention. They also have to decide whether to continue to serve God with their talent and abilities as they were raised to do in their youth or whether they will drift away in pursuit the flash and flair that the world offers. Some, torn by the choice, fidget.

Jesus has promised that if we make contributing to the kingdom of God our highest priority, all of the other things will be added.

There is no need to be nervous about college, career training or other steps that must be taken as long as your life is centered in Christ.

There is no reason to fidget because you are anxious about tomorrow, just remember that you may not know what tomorrow will bring, you can be confident because you know who holds tomorrow in his hands.

BOREDOM MAKES US FIDGET: Many who are bored tend to fidget. People are bored because they have a tremendous amount of energy that is waiting to be used, but they can't find an outlet. The room they are sitting in, the sermon they are listening to, the class they are attending or even their room at home doesn't let them plug in and boredom results. Sometimes boredom results in daydreaming or just getting sleepy. To deal with boredom many people fidget.

A youth who decides to use his life to build the kingdom of God rarely has a boring day. He'll have plenty of tiring days, but very few boring days.

There is so much Kingdom work to be done that there isn't time to be bored. A young man who decides that he wants to help the sick finds ways to volunteer and use his energy. A girl who wants to help people in need will look for the means to help feed the hungry, house the homeless and help the poor. Those who have decided to help build the kingdom will never get bored.

Youth who work to build the kingdom will pursue a dream, but they will rarely find themselves day dreaming because they have made pleasing God their goal, with the full knowledge that all the other things in life will come; if we please God first.

Pleasing God is the main thing. The challenge is to keep the main thing, the main thing by devoting all of your energy toward building the kingdom using your gift. If we keep the main thing, the main thing, we'll never have a boring day. There will be no need to fidget.

ANXIOUSNESS MAKES US FIDGET: We fidget when we worry or get anxious over situations. This happens to believers who lose their faith.

When you get worried, you fidget.

When you lose faith, you fidget.

However, those who walk by faith fidget less than others.

The definition of faith is in Hebrews 11:1 "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for and evidence of things not seen."

To live by faith is to always believe that godly goals can be achieved even though, at present, there is no evidence to support the belief.

If God gives you a direction pursue it with all of our passion, all of your resources, all of your knowledge and skill with the full faith that if it the path you take is in God's will he will make it happen. In any case, you will never be the loser because he will work all things so that they work for your good.

You don't have time to fidget even though you are about to start a journey on a road that makes many nervous.

Life after graduation is a nervous road.

Life after graduation is an anxious road.

Life after graduation is a challenging road.

But there is no need to fidget. Each young believer is encouraged to live by faith.

In the years ahead you will enter an arena of life where things will happen outside of your control, that's when we walk by faith that the Lord will make a way.

When tuition is due, and there seems to be no way, despite your best efforts, that's when you live by faith that the Lord will make a way.

Don't fidget; Faith it!

If doors are closed in your face, Don't fidget, faith it! God will make a way!

If enemies surround you on every side, don't fidget, faith it! God will make a way!

If you fall down each time you try to stand up; don't fidget, faith it! God will make a way!

Make Heaven your home

Finally, brothers and sisters, the fidget spinner in your hand turns but goes nowhere, but your life in God's hands can go anywhere!

That is why Jesus told his disciples to seek the kingdom of God first with all other things being secondary. Secondary does not mean that they will not come, but it means that they are not a believer's top priority.

As you seek first the kingdom of God, don't fidget.

Don't be nervous.

Don't be bored.

Don't be anxious.

Don't fidget, but stay focused.

In all thy ways "Acknowledge Him, " and he will direct your path.

Acknowledging God means more than just saying Lord help me get my diploma.

It means in everything you do, ask whether what you do is true to the will of God.

If you submit yourself to the will of God, it does not matter what anyone else says or thinks, he will direct your path.

In all thy ways, that means college and technical school!

In all thy ways, that means climbing the career ladder and pursuing a family!

In all thy ways, acknowledge him, and he shall direct your path.

Follow your faith, and you can do the impossible!

Don't Fidget, Follow!

If you follow your faith, you can reach the unreachable!

If you follow your faith, you can achieve the impossible dream!

That faith has been secured for you by a God who loves you. I know it's true because John 3:16 says, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life."

Don't fidget, stay Fired Up with a faith that assures you that God will not leave you alone

Don't fidget, look for Favor from the one who promised you that no weapon formed against you shall prosper as long as you stay in the will of God.

Don't fidget go forward in the name of Jesus.

Jesus who has guaranteed our faith on an old rugged cross on Calvary's Hill!

Jesus who has assured our faith with nail scarred hands, a wounded side and a bowed down head!

It was proven Early Sunday morning when he arose from the grave!

Don't fidget, rejoice because early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

9778-Pastor Installation

The Stars in His hands

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Installation of Robby D. Williams
St. Rest Baptist Church
Minden, La.

July 2, 2017

SCRIPTURE: And he had in his right hand seven stars: and out of his mouth went a sharp two-edged sword: and his countenance was as the sun shineth in his strength. Revelation 1:16; "The mystery of the seven stars which thou sawest in my right hand, and the seven golden candlesticks. The seven stars are the angels of the seven churches: and the seven candlesticks which thou sawest are the seven churches." Revelation 1:20

Introduction

Have you ever considered how fortunate the church is to be in the hand of God? It is certainly a blessing to know that included in the vast universe are thousands of planets and billions of stars, but God knows each one by name and has set a purpose for each one.

Isn't it amazing to know that while there is one universe, there are more than 500 billion Galaxies in the universe, and each of these galaxies contains over 100 billion stars formed in clusters called solar systems? It's even more astonishing to know that inside of each Solar System are billions of stars that can be seen with the eye. Yet, despite the vastness of his creation, God is mindful of the needs of every creature in his universe to the extent that he cares and provides for each one.

When the Psalmist looked at the vastness of the universe and considered how vast it was, and how the creator devotes attention to the needs of each one of his creatures he asked in Psalm 8:4 "What is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him?"

What is man that considering our seemingly insignificant position in the universe that God would give us special attention, concern, and guidance? Who are we that the God we serve would select us from among billions of specimens in his creation for individual nurture, protection, and care?

Believers are children of the king, and as such he provides special care for us and has selected specially authorized emissaries to help us, guide us, encourage us and lead us through the maze of rising and fallings that we call life until we return to him the glory of his majesty.

Those he has selected we call pastors, who are tiny stars, selected from the galaxies of stars, to shine a light for his people and show them the way home.

We are grateful for pastors because we know God has selected them and holds them in his hands. We follow them freely as they reveal the path that God has chartered for our life's journey. We praise them and respect them, and lift them up high, for through them God shows us how to position ourselves to recognize and receive God's grace and mercy.

As Christians, we are proud to know that God has our pastors in his hand. We know that as long as all of us are guided by the hand of God, we will all make it to heaven one day.

Exposition

This text focuses on the Revelation of Jesus Christ as shown to John on the Isle of Patmos in which particular messages are given to the churches of Asia Minor.

The Revelation is divided into three parts: Chapters 1-3 provides specific messages to the churches in Asia. Chapters 4-20 concerns events that will occur in the future during the last seven years of time. The last chapters:21-22 paint the glorious picture of the return of Christ to establish the Kingdom of Heaven and to wipe all of our tears away.

In this text, Jesus reveals that the seven churches are shepherded by seven men that he holds in his hand. The pastors are referred to as stars or angels in his right hand. Through them, said Christ, he will speak words that will come as a double-edged sword, sometimes cutting with warning and condemnation and sometimes encouraging, consoling and inspiring.

The stars or angels were suited for each church which had its own unique circumstances: One was lukewarm, another was too wealthy for its own good. One was losing its passion for God while still another was being bombarded with false teaching, and one was encouraged to stay on the right track. Each pastor was installed by God's own hand to accomplish a specific purpose and to respond to a particular need.

The fact that the stars were in God's hand sends a message to all believers, pastors are in God's hands, and they answer to him for the mission he charged them to accomplish.

Purpose of Stars

There are several thoughts to consider about pastors as stars in God's hands.

PASTORS ARE INSTALLED TO FILL BLACK HOLES: In the universe, science tells us that stars don't live forever, that they decline and finally no longer exist. When stars fade away the aftermath of their demise creates a hole in the solar system, things don't work right, there is uncertainty. However, scientists also report that on the other side of every black hole there is another rising star that fills the black hole. When the church faces the possibility of a black hole, God raises up another star or angel to serve each congregation. As Paul saw himself declining, he began to mentor Timothy and taught him through precept and example, always requiring him to "Study to show thyself approved, a workman that neededth not be ashamed." This is the meaning of John 3:30 which notes, "He must increase and I must decrease" John said those words of Christ, so that men would know that there would never be a void in the divine dispensations; we all step to the side bow to the win of God.

STARS ARE NOT CELEBRITIES: It is each to confuse the symbolism of the stars and make celebrities of the pastors installed to serve the congregation. The greatest pastors are those who serve, not those who are served.

The stars in God's hand are not ROCK STARS. Who are larger than life superheroes who attract large crowds, push the line on morality or cross it and often promote and live lives that are irreverent.

The stars in God's hand are not Reality Stars. A reality TV stars appear on television in usually unscripted episodes showing real people, in real situations that may seem odd and strange to the general public. There is a genre of reality star pastors, who gain a reputation for keeping it real. To keep it real they often use foul language, promote loose living, and push the envelope when it comes to interpretation of scripture in modern times. They become cult heroes among those seeking a relaxation of biblical standards.

The stars in God's hand are not shooting stars, meteors that flash across the stage for a minute make a great flash, leave a fiery trail and then disappear.

The stars in God's hand are not twinkling stars, who wink at sin, but twinkle at prosperity.

In fact, the stars in God's hand are not stars in the celebrity sense of the word. They are servants, who obey the will of God and move at his commands. They shine light because they reflect the perfect will of God.

The pastor can't be the star because the church already has a star. I hear Jesus say, "I am the rose of Sharon, the Bright and Morning Star."

EACH STAR IN GOD'S HAND HAS A PURPOSE. Scientists remind us that there are millions of stars in the universe and each is different from the other. Many of them have been assigned names, but they have their own purpose. Likewise, each pastor has his own purpose.

Each pastor is placed with a congregation for a particular purpose and for a specific length of time. The goal is to achieve God's purpose. Understanding the mysterious ways of God has been a puzzle to many over the centuries. We are no exception. We often wonder why God selected us, out of all of his creation, and placed us in the unique spot that we occupy in the world today. It is humbling when we consider that God could have chosen anyone, but He did not want just anyone He chose this pastor for this work. God knew the kind of people he would encounter and selected him because of his unique qualities, then put it on the hearts of the people to accept His chosen one.

Unseen by the hand of man, God has exalted Godly leaders to a station and position that would promote the building of his kingdom and provide spiritual help for those who follow him.

Often we cannot see God's hand, but there is no doubt that God's hand is in the plan. Everything that happens has a reason and purpose, according to God's divine plan. When a Godly leader is sanctified, selected and placed in a position, it is not accidental. God is in the plan.

When a man or woman of God is given a gavel or pulpit, it is not a coincidence of nature. God is in the plan.

In God's hands

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember that just as the pastor is in God's hands so should every member know that there is no limit to what can be done when we are in God's hands.

A humble pastor knows that he is not the star of God's show. Through his service, without thought of being paid or praised, he demonstrates another final truth, that "You don't have to be a star to be in God's show."

You don't have to be our front, as long as you are in God's hands.

You don't have to be a star, but you do have to be in God's hands.

We are installing this minister in the pastor's seat, but God has already installed him in his hands.

And not the pastor alone, every believer who walks by faith can shine his light, in God's hand!

In God's hands, our lives may seem to drift on the rivers of life, but God will see to it that we fall into the right port.

In God's hands, we will be safe, and our destinies will be secure.

God's hands are the same hands that hollowed out the valleys and bulged the mountains up.

God's hands are the same hands that clap and make the thunder roll; that wave and cause the rain to trickle down from the clouds.

God's hands are the same hands that heal us when we are sick, lift us up when we are down and push us to move when we have come to a complete stop.

God's hands are the same hands that wake us in the morning and tuck us in at night.

It's these hands that David wrote about when he said, In thee oh Lord do I put my trust.

These are the hands that we reach up to when we sing, Father I stretch my hands to thee, no other help I know. If thou withdraw thyself from me, whither shall I go.

These are the same hands that wrapped themselves around an old rugged cross one day and were stretched out wide in victory!

These are the same hands that were pierced with nails and bruised for our iniquities.

These are the same hands that rolled the stone away to arise, lifted and glorified, Early one Sunday morning.

It is into these hands we place our trust!

No. 9779-Inspiration

The land of the Free and the Home of the Saved

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

July 2, 2017

SCRIPTURE: Because of the sacrifice of the Messiah, his blood poured out on the altar of the Cross, we're a free people—free of penalties and punishments chalked up by all our misdeeds. And not just barely free, either. Abundantly free! Ephesians 1:7

Introduction

When the nation celebrates its birth on July 4th, it does so with plenty of fanfare, parades, family celebrations, and rallies. We sometimes get a feeling of unparalleled patriotism when we hear the words of the Star Spangled Banner:

> And the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
> Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there;
> O say does that star-spangled banner yet wave
> O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

The Fourth of July is a national day of celebration of freedom that ironically is still not free for millions of its citizens. Being free has meant different things to this nation at various times. Once it meant being free from England, but not giving freedom to slaves or women. When African-Americans thought of being free, it meant the end of slavery. We couldn't understand how the nation celebrated freedom on one hand and held us slaves on the other.

That's when men like Frederick Douglass traveled the country questioning whether or not our celebration of independence was real. In 1852 Douglass asked this pointed question,

"What, to the American slave, is your 4th of July? I answer: a day that reveals to him, more than all other days in the year, the gross injustice and cruelty to which he is the constant victim. To him, your celebration is a sham; your boasted liberty, an unholy license; your national greatness, swelling vanity; your sounds of rejoicing are empty and heartless; your denunciations of tyrants, brass fronted impudence; your shouts of liberty and equality, hollow mockery; your prayers and hymns, your sermons and thanksgivings, with all your religious parade, and solemnity, are, to him, mere bombast, fraud, deception, impiety, and hypocrisy - a thin veil to cover up crimes which would disgrace a nation of savages."

Whatever liberties we share as Americans, frail and tattered as they may be, they were bought with a price.

Freedom means the ability to exercise certain rights inalienable from the human spirit: life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

This is the spirit that Paul talked about when he wrote in Galatians 5:1 "Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage."

Spiritually, Jesus came to set us free from bondage, but just like American Independence, it did not come without a price.

The price of our spiritual independence was paid by Christ on Calvary. Salvation is available without a charge, but spiritual freedom was not free, it was bought with a price, which was paid by Jesus Christ himself.

As Christians, we celebrate whatever level of liberty we enjoy, with the full knowledge that we are not truly free until all men acknowledge the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man and, through Christ, we all step foot on the land of the free and the home of the saved.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul's letter to the church in Ephesus, emphasizing that believers are truly free because of the sacrifice of Christ on Calvary.

Often when Paul preached about the liberating Gospel of Jesus Christ, he characterized it as a faith that sets believers free from the bondage imposed on them by the Mosaic Law. It was a list of rules, rituals and rigid codes that enslaved them to the letters of the written words of their law, rather than the spirit of the law that exists in the hearts of man.

Paul emphasized that those who are faithful to Christ are those who actually know the meaning of real freedom. However, it noted that it is a freedom that has been purchased at the cost of Christ's blood "poured out on the altar of the cross."

It was the freedom from sacrificial lambs and scapegoats. It was freedom from guilt and stain by association with or even touching a person who happened to be a "sinner." It was freedom from the condemnation of family members and society in general.

The sacrifice of Christ made every believer answerable to God for himself, his sins have been redeemed by Christ on Calvary.

This freedom makes every believer a citizen in the kingdom of God, a land of the free and the home of the saved.

What it means to live in the land of the free

What does it mean to live in the land of the free? We have come to know what it's like to live in the United States where we are generally protected by a constitution that guarantees us certain rights, but what is it like to live in the land of the spiritually free? What will it be like to live in the land of the free and the home of the saved?

THERE WILL BE PEACE AND CONTENTMENT: In the land of the free and the home of the saved, there will be peace and happiness. Wouldn't that be great to have now? Yet, that is what we have been promised in scripture, that in the kingdom of God the lamb and the lion will lay down together and we shall study war no more.

We strive for peace and contentment. It's the kind of inner peace and contentment that comes from loving God and obeying his commandments!
It's the kind of freedom that would make our ancestors sing "You can have this whole world, just give me Jesus!"

To some that might sound illogical, but to those who know him Jesus is the real meaning of liberty, peace, and happiness. They have found that there is no:

—Pain that afflicts us that Jesus cannot ease;
—Weakness that envelopes us that Jesus cannot strengthen;
—Fear that surrounds us that Jesus cannot calm;
—Loneliness that invades us that Jesus cannot comfort;
—Burden that encumbers us that Jesus cannot lift;

WE WILL LOVE HEAVEN BECAUSE OF WHAT'S NOT THERE: While the physical description of the Land of the Free is occupied with what IS there, the abstract description is best described by what is NOT there. If fact, it's what's not there that makes the entire experience heavenly.

What won't be in the land of the free and the home of the saved? There won't be tears,pain, jails, police, discrimination, wild forest fires, serial killers, rapists, terrorists, murderers, raging hurricanes, floods, epidemic diseases, infant deaths, starvation, cheating, stealing, hating, backbiting, grief or sorrow. There will be no funeral homes, ambulances, drug stores or emergency clinics. There will be no dialysis centers, cancer treatments, ICU units; because all of these things will be conquered.

The land of the free and the home of the saved is a place created by the hand of God, an existence that is ordered by the will of God. In this land, everything is done according to God's will. Everyone lives according to God's will, and everything works out according to God's will.

We want to get to the land of the free, and the home of the saved because it's a land where every day will be Sunday, and it's always howdy and never goodbye!

I don't know about you, but what I will like about this land will be what is there, but I will most definitely enjoy what is not there!

Freedom isn't Free

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must all remember, that while we celebrate independence and freedom, that freedom is not free, somebody paid the price.

That's a reality that everyone must acknowledge about the world in which we live.

As the nation celebrates, we must remember the hundreds of thousands of men and women who gave their lives in pursuit of that freedom. Freedom isn't free.

Our national anthem may speak of the land of the free, but in reality there a few things that appear to be free, but there are always unseen costs that appear free to a recipient, but someone somewhere, paid the price.

Every meal that is served to a homeless person may appear to be free, but some one paid the price.

Every time you look at your paycheck, there is a section in which your federal income tax is deducted.

That's the place where the free lunch is paid for. That's also where the free federal interstate highway system is paid for.

Anything that is free has a price, hidden or otherwise.

Somebody has to pay the price.

There is also a land on a far away strand, the beautiful homeland of the soul. It is the land of the free and the home of the saved.-It too was bought with a price. I like to call it the land of "No More."

In the land of the free and home of the saved there will be "No more," pain and sorrow.

In the land of the free and the home of the saved, there will be no more sadness, but only gladness throughout all of eternity.

Methuselah walked with God and walked right into the land of the free and the home of the saved.

Elijah caught a fiery chariot and step right into the land of the free and home of the saved!

It's the place called heaven, but it is better described to those who mourn as the land of "No more."

In that land there will be no more:

-WARS because there is only peace, in the land of the free and home of the saved!

-HATRED, because there is only love in the land of the free and home of the saved!

-WEAKNESS, because there is only strength in the land of the free and home of the saved!

-DEATH, because there is only life in the land of the free and home of the saved!

The land of the free and home of the saved is the place the song writer described as a land where we will never grow old.

But even the land of the free and home of the saved had a price to be saved, because we have all sinned and the wages of sin is death. Somebody had to pay the price for us to get to the land of the free and home of the saved!

Consider the young man who lived a wild life and always disobeyed his mother.

One night he took a gun and left home. His mother was concerned about him and started walking the streets looking for him. When she walked into a local convenience store she was horrified as she saw her son standing over the body of man her son killed in a robbery. The mother took the gun from her son's hand and pushed him out of the door. She pressed her finger on the trigger and fired one shot into the floor and stood over the body with tears running down her face. When the police arrived, they found the mother standing over a dead man, holding a fired pistol in her hand. When asked to make a statements she said, "A crime was committed, a price has to be paid." When the son found out that his mother was going to jail. He tried to tell everyone that he was the guilty party, but no one would listen. She was sentenced to life in prison because all she would say, is "A crime has been committed, a price has to be paid."

The son came to visit her in prison and asked why she did it. She said, "Son, you took a man's life and a price had to be paid. I'm paying the price for you to give you one more chance at freedom. Every time you think about doing something wrong, remember your freedom has been bought with a price! Every day that you waste in idle living, remember that day of freedom was bought with price!"
Brothers and Sisters, That's what Jesus did for us! He paid the price for our salvation.

Jesus paid it all. All to him I owe. Sin had left a crimson stain but he washed it white as snow!

He died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave, with all power in his hands!

He paid it all!

He paid it all!

All to him I owe!

No. 9780-Inspiration

He's Sitting High but Looking Low

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

July 24, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "In the year that king Uzziah died I saw also the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and his train filled the temple." Isaiah 6:1 (KJV)

Introduction

One of the pitfalls of sitting high is that we are forced to look low if we want to see the world beneath us.

There is a tongue and cheek phrase we use to describe people who are elevated to high positions then condescendingly respond to others; we say they are acting "high and mighty." It is expected that those who have reached lofty heights would empathize with the less fortunate below.

We are not very pleased with those who treat us with less than civility after they get up; especially if they try to keep us down.

The great thing about God is that although he does sit high and look low, he does so with empathy for all of those he sees and moves to help and protect them within his will. We look up to him glorifying in his greatness, but he never looks down on us with a condescending attitude; his glory is our salvation and redemption.

As Christians, we are always happy to know that our Savior is watching over us.

He keeps us in his view and will always respond in our hour of need.

Exposition

This text focuses on the vision of Isaiah that depicted the kingdom of God and the glory and majesty of God at the same time.

Isaiah, in his vision, saw God sitting high. The essence of what he saw was that God reigned high. He was seated on a throne and the throne upon which he sat not only was above the others, but it transcended all other thrones, and he commanded all other thrones.

The vision painstakingly notes that in the year Uzziah died the vision was given. Uzziah was an influential and popular leader of Israel who was seen by many as the consummate protector and provider for Israel. Uzziah is generally supposed to have died in 739 B.C. It was after Uzziah died that many in the kingdom once again saw the glory and power of God.

When Uzziah died Isaiah, and the whole nation once again saw the essence of God's being.

He saw God high and lifted up. He is in control of his world's events with all of his power and glory.

God's throne was a throne of glory, government, and grace, it is high and lifted up above all controversies.

Accentuating how the magnanimity of God compares to the creations of man or the earth itself the vision portrays God as being so big that the skirts of his robe filled the temple. God's majesty reminds us that the world is his temple and the earth is his footstool. The word translated "train" elsewhere (and probably here) refers to the hem. It is the richly decorated and distinctive border around the high priestly robe. The hem was used as a mark of identity for people of rank such as priests and kings. The edge of the cloth was embroidered, and a fringe of three- or four-inch-long tassels trimmed the skirt by the ankles.

While God is high, he is not so high that he cannot and will not hear, empathize and respond to the needs of the people. He is not so distant that he will not forgive when a sinner asks. Although he sits high, he is also looking low.

High, but not so high

It is good for every believer to be aware of the awesome nature of God, while at the same time not losing focus on the fact that while God sits high, he never loses sight of each believer and the concerns of our hearts.

NOT TOO HIGH TO BLESS US DAILY: Every morning God has new blessings in store for us! The signs of God's daily mercy are all around us. He feeds the birds of the air, the fishes of the sea and critters on the ground. In spite of all of his greatness, he is aware of the needs of every person, every day. He does not lose track of us. We don't have to worry. If he blessed you with a place to lay your head yesterday, he knows your need for today. If you made it through yesterday with his help, he knows you need his help to make it through today.

Lamentations 3:22-23 puts it this way, ""It is of the LORD'S mercies that we are not consumed because his compassions fail not. They are new every morning: great is thy faithfulness."

The Lord sits high but not too high to be concerned about us.

There is no:

—Valley that's too wide for him to cross, to reach out to us!

—Road that's too rough for him to walk, to lend us a helping hand!

—Burden that's so heavy that he can't help us to bear!

—Storm that's too mighty for him to control, and see us through!

We should not ever become discouraged to the point of believing that God is busy taking care of the universe, and is not concerned about each of his creations.

Yes, he sits high, and his train fills the temple, but he still cares.

When nobody else:

—Cares, that the Lord is concerned about me
—Forgives me, that the Lord is willing to forget
—Accepts me, that the Lord receives me with arms wide open
—Wants me, that the Lord accepts me as a child of the King

This is the message for every believer, that God knows and he cares. This should be a reason for hope for every believer because we know that our individual situation is not unnoticed by the Savior. Therefore, the songwriter asks, Why should I be discouraged? Why should the shadows come? Why should my heart be lonely and long for heaven and home? For Jesus is my portion. A constant friend is he. His eye is on the sparrow, and I know he watches me

NOT TOO HIGH TO HEAR OUR PRAYERS: Our God sits high and is mighty in a million ways, but he is not so high that he does not hear our prayers. He knows who we are and hears us. When Jimmy Carter was running for president of the United States in 1976, he often slept in the homes of many people who opened their doors to him as he campaigned in their state. He promised to remember them when he became president and to invite them to spend a night in the White House. Once elected, he sent invitations to each of those persons, and one night at a time they spent a night in the White House. He was President, but he knew each one and greeted them when they came for their night. Over the years, believers have come to know that the Lord we serve knows our names and hears our prayers. We know the Lord knows us because he has answered our prayers on so many different occasions.

The beauty of being among the faithful is that we are not required to be a person of prominence or position to speak to God. Anyone can approach him. In fact, Hebrews 4:16 says, "Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need." You don't need a special position or place. Daniel prayed in a Lion's Den; The Hebrew Boys were in a fiery furnace, Jesus prayed in a garden; the place or the position doesn't matter. You can pray standing up, sitting down, laying down, on your knees or on your feet. If you pray, God will hear.

What makes prayer powerful is not the words, but the fact that the words are being heard by God himself. That's the power of prayer. That's why prayer changes things.

Prayer can take a defeated spirit and show it the victory!

Prayer can take sadness and turn it into a gladness!

Prayer can take sorrow and turn it into joy!

Prayer can take a bowed down head and lift it up high!

The Lord sits high, and his train fills the temple, but he is not so high that he can't or won't hear our prayers.

NOT SO HIGH HE CAN'T SEE OUR SINS: God sits high, but he is not so high that he can't see our actions. He knows everything about us including our strengths and weaknesses. Often we try to hide our weaknesses and sins thinking that God either does not see them or he does not care. Despite his lofty abide in the universe, God knows.

Adam and Eve discovered this truth in the Garden of Eden. They had broken God's law and eaten of the forbidden fruit, and they hid their nakedness behind fig leaves and tried to hide behind the trees. However, their fig leaves were transparent. They hid their nakedness from each other, but God came to visit one day he saw their sin.

There is nothing about us that God does not see. If we cheat, steal, lie or misrepresent ourselves, we may successfully fool others, but God is not so busy or so high up that it gets by him. It's like those times we thought our parents were busy, but they caught us doing something wrong even though they didn't appear to be looking. That's when we learned about the proverbial "I've got eyes in the back of my head" nature of good parents.

Jesus said in Luke 12:2, "For there is nothing covered, that shall not be revealed; neither hid, that shall not be known. The title of Tyler Perry's stage play said it all, "What's Done in the dark, will come to light." It will come to light because God sees our weaknesses.

Unlike our enemies, while God sees our faults, he loves us anyway. He does not condone our sins. He does not endorse our sins. He does not bless us in our sins, but he loves us. God hates the sin, but he loves the sinner. Unlike our enemies, he looks beyond our faults and weaknesses and sees our need. He forgives us, we repent. He gives us another chance because he sees us in our weakness.

God sits high, and his train fills the temple, but he knows all about us.

Open Door Policy

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember that although God is the creator of the universe when it comes to each of us, he has an open door policy.

Many in government claim to have an open door policy. It usually means that visitors can see a government leader, if they could get on their calendar for a visit.

The best open door policy for officials, can't compete with God's open door policy. Because any believer has 24-hour access to him, and they carry his private, three digit number "1-1-1" with them everywhere they go.

Abraham used his access to get so close to God that he grew in spiritual strength and material wealth.

Enoch used his access to God that when it came time to die, he was just scooped up and "was not."

When the nation of Israel got close to God, it survived the wilderness and made it to the promised land.

When Moses got close to God, he watched with amazement as God rolled back the waters of the Red Sea.

When Isaiah got close to God, he answered the call to serve by said "If the Lord needs somebody; here I am, send me."

When David got close to God, he watched as God made his enemies his footstool.

God sits high, but he also looks low. If we draw close to him, we can have access to his storehouse of blessing.!

No wonder the songwriter declared "Draw me nearer, nearer blessed Lord to the cross where thou hast died. Draw me nearer, nearer blessed Lord, to thy precious bleeding side."

We want to draw near to benefit from his grace.

His grace is sufficient for:

—The poor, no matter how pathetic their poverty.

—The tired, no matter how feeble their steps.

—The burdened, no matter how exhausted their body

—The lonely, no matter how pitiful their situation.

—The wretched, no matter how despairing their circumstance.

—The sick, no matter how painful their diseases.

We can all talk to God, but there is a little catch. You got to go through somebody.

You can call him in your prayer room, but you got to go through somebody.

You can call him while you are driving your car, but you have to go through someone.

God will hear us individually, but you got to go through Jesus.

For the word teaches us that "there is one mediator between God and men, the man Jesus Christ" (1 Timothy 2:5)

Access to God is possible because of Jesus.

Jesus, who somebody called the Prince of Peace!

Jesus, who somebody called the Wonder of Wonders!

Jesus, who somebody called the Lamb of God, the Alpha and Omega, the Beginning and the End, The King of Kings, The Lord of Lords!

He may be sitting at the right hand of God, but Jesus cares!

That's why the songwriter wrote, "Whether in a mansion made of stone or in a shanty all alone, God cares about you. He'll come down from the sky and wipe the tears from your eye because God cares about you."

He cared enough to come into this sinful world and to bear an old rugged cross!

He cared enough to allow nails to be driven in His hands!

He cared enough to allow a spear to be stuck in His side!

He cared enough to let them put a crown of thorns on His head!

He cared enough to die for the sins of the world!

But, Early Sunday morning.

He arose from the grave, with all power in his hands!

9781-Inspiration

All Tied Up in Knots

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 5, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "O God, look at the trouble I'm in! My stomach in knots, my heart wrecked by a life of rebellion. Massacres in the streets, starvation in the houses." Lamentation 1:20

Introduction

Have you ever felt tangled in a web of circumstances that afforded you no escape? When this happens, any way that you turn seems to provide you with yet another brick wall. It gets so tangled up that you just can't seem to find a way out. That's when it seems that life has tied your hands to your side and stopped you from making any progress toward solving the problem.

It's not hard to get tied up in knots. It happens when we have more bills than we have money to pay them. We have robbed Peter to pay Paul so much that Paul is trying to rob Silas. The light bill is due. The rent is due. The car notes, insurance, food and everything else that is due keeps you tied up.

The knots get tighter when we get laid off from work, lose a business contract or a source of income. It gets even tighter when our credit and debit cards decline, and things break and we have no money to repair them.

To make matters worse, we now have health issues: sugar, high blood pressure, migraine headaches, back aches, dimming eye sights, shortening of breath, and we have hurts in new places that have never hurt before. We now go to the eye doctor, dentist, ear doctor, foot doctor, heart doctor, and the surgeon.

The knots get even tighter when we add family issues to the mix: Marital problems, dating complications, cheating husbands, cheating wives, lost love, unattainable love, bad children, terrible parents, baby mama drama, baby daddy drama, in-laws, noisy neighbors and family dysfunction.

That's enough to really tie up any of us pretty well, but even more things tie us up: such as: enemies plotting on us, haters, detractors, critics, liars, the police, arrests, law suits, courts, judges, bail bondsmen, lawyers, fines, and probation.

What really makes the knots tighter is the fact that we worry and anguish over each knotty situation until we find ourselves making it through each day with the assistance of headache medicines, nerve pills, relaxers, and pep pills.

We are so worked up, stressed up, tied up and tangled up that we can't lay down without sleeping pills and can't wake up and get going without more pep pills, gallons of caffeine and energy drinks.

It really gets complicated when we add our spiritual life to the mix: My church life is hit and miss; I don't understand the Bible and don't attend Bible study. I don't pray like I should, I'm not giving like I should; I have a talent to offer the church but I'm never available. Spiritually, I don't feel anything. I'm dried up. I don't know what to believe I study in church, but then I confuse myself watching TV preachers and going from church to church. I'm confused.

When all of this happens, that's when we know that we are truly tied up in knots.

In Romans 7, Paul found himself tied up in knots because he constantly did things or took actions that resulted in problems for himself, even when he did not want to do them. He asked at Romans 7:24, "Who shall deliver me from this body of death?" Then he answered his own question in verse 25: "Thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord."

As Christians, we are grateful to know that even as life tries to tie and entangled us that we have a deliverer in Christ Jesus.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jeremiah has he complains about the terrible conditions of the people, caused by their sin, but has him tied up in knots worrying about it.

The Jews were held captive in Babylon for many years. They had become the vassals of the Babylonian Empire. They were in a strange land in which they could not rejoice or find any hope. Their hope was lost, spiritual life was lost, their enemies had them tied up to the point that they could not even sing happy songs.

They were so tied up the only song they could sing was the blues.

The name, Lamentations, means "Laments" but it could very easily be described as Jeremiah's pity party about the difficulty of the nation's situation.

Lamentations consists of five separate chapters or poems. In chapter 1 the prophet dwells on the manifold miseries oppressed by which the city sits as a solitary widow weeping sorely. In chapter 2 these miseries are described in connection with the national sins that had caused them. Chapter 3 speaks of hope for the people of God. The chastisement would only be for their good; a better day would dawn for them. Chapter 4 laments the ruin and desolation that had come upon the city and temple, but traces it only to the people's sins. Chapter 5 is a prayer and an expectation that Zion's reproach will be taken away in the repentance and recovery of the people.

It ends with a prayer of hope, "Turn thou us unto thee, O LORD, and we shall be turned; renew our days as of old. Lamentations 5:21

We Tie Knots, God Unties Knots

In the course of our lives we get entangled with life issues that tie us up in knots. There are three truths that we should remember.

DON'T FEAR, GOD CAN UNTIE YOU: Think of what ties you up? Generally it is fear. We fear the unknown and the thought of what could happen often makes us afraid and ties us up in knots. "What if I mess up?" What if I get a disease? What if I die? What if I get in financial trouble?

We wrestled with is many of our fears. Some are bringing old fears into the present. What does it mean to have "No fear?" Some people even have phobias.
Acrophobia, the fear of high places; Claustrophobia, the fear of tight close places; Agoraphobia, the fear of open places, Ergophobia, the fear of work

There are many who are tied up in knots because of fear, but I'm reminded of the words of David who said, "The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life, of whom shall I be afraid?"

If the world has you tied up in knots, the Word of God has a "Not" for you. God's "Not" will help you untie your fear knot.

2 Timothy 1:7 – "For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind."

YOU CAN'T UNTIE THE KNOTS; YOUR HANDS ARE TIED: It is logical and even practical for each believer to prayerfully try to resolve issues. However, there are times when your knowledge is insufficient. There are times when we need to reach out and possess what God has in store for us but wecan't reach it because our hands our tied. To fully possess and be blessed, we must let God reach what we can't reach, let God do what we can't do, and trust him to do exactly what he says he will do. Look at all of the times that God prepared to deliver Israel, but before he could act they were tied up in knots. He delivered them from Egypt, but they were tied up with knots at the Red Sea. He pointed them through the Wilderness to the Promised Land, but they were tied up in knots because there was no water. He brought to the edge of the land of promise, but they were tied in knots because the Jordan was too wide. He brought them into the promised land and they were tied up in knots because the walls of Jericho were too high. In each instance, they could not resolve their situation; their hands were. Their knowledge, power and understanding were insufficient.

Yet God moved on their behalf. He rolled back the Red Sea. He gave them water in the wilderness, rolled back the Jordan and made the walls of Jericho come tumbling down.

To possess, what God has for you, you must trust God completely. Whether it is a new career, business opportunity, educational pursuit, or a change in lifestyle, we cannot possess it without trusting in God.

When you reach a point where your hands are tied and all your efforts have failed, the Word of God has a "Not" for you that will help untie your knots.

Proverbs 3:5-6 "Trust in the LORD with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths."

THERE ARE KNOTS YOU CAN'T SEE, BUT GOD CAN: There are many situations in life that we deal with that tie us up in knots. One type is the unknown. Planning for the unknown can tie you up in knots because you are dealing with the unseen. Planning for floods, fire or sickness can tie you in knots. What ties you in knots is wondering whether you have covered everything. When you leave your home for a vacation, you go through a checklist in your mind to be sure that everything is done. However, while you are on the road you are still checking the list, trying to see if there was something you left undone. It ties you up in knots.

The unseen dangers tie us up in knots, until you remember that there many things that are happening in the spiritual realm that you do not see. God is taking care of it for you. God has protected us from unseen danger. The unseen danger is the worn out tire-rod end on your car that was about to break, so you had a flat and while repairing it discovered the danger. The unseen danger is the batch of bad meat that you decided not to buy in the store. The unseen danger is the side road you took instead of crossing the bridge that collapsed just about the time you would have crossed.

If a list is prepared of all of the unseen dangers that God has saved us from this week, every believer would be shouting, "Hallelujah!" We HAVE SEEN what God has been doing for us. We celebrate what we can see and what we cannot see.

The confidence of knowing that God is our rock in a weary land; our shelter in the time of storm; our way out of noway, helps us we face the unseen.

When you reach a point where you are tied up in knots about the unseen, the Word of God has a "Not" for you that will help untie your knots.

2 Corinthians 4: 18 – "While we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen: for the things which are seen are temporal [temporary]; but the things which are not seen are eternal."

Build your hopes on things eternal and hold to God's unchanging hands.

Free from Sin

Finally, brothers and sisters, there is one other thing that ties us up in knots, it is the burden of sin. It is a knot that can only be untied by the blood of Christ.

There are many of us that are tied to a life of sin, but we have tried to reform ourselves, but we are still tied up.

We tried changing people, places and things, but we found out that we are still tied up, because we go back to the same people, same places and the same things.

We tried 12 step programs, mentoring programs and scared straight programs, but we were still tied up. When it came to living for God, we were still tied up.

There are some who are like Lazarus, they are completely dead to God.

The good news is that you don't have to stay tied up. When Jesus went to the tomb of Lazarus he called his name and he came forth, but he was still tied up in dead clothes. But Jesus said, "Loose that man and let him go!"

Lazarus was able to live again because of Jesus.

We'll be able to be totally free, because of Jesus!.

I don't know about you but I'm glad that Jesus took the penalty for my sins out on Calvary. Sin gave me a:

—Burden but I'm glad that Jesus gave me a blessing!

—Rain but I'm glad that Jesus gave me sunshine!
—Weakness but I'm glad that Jesus gave me strength!
—Miseries but Jesus gave me Miracles
—Foolishness but Jesus gave me Wisdom —Darkness but Jesus gave me the Light
—Cares but Jesus gave me comfort
—Losses but Jesus gave me the victory
—Sadness but Jesus gave me unspeakable joy
When Jesus died on Calvary he took our:
—Failures and untied them!
—Short comings and untied them!
—Mistakes and untied them!
—Misunderstandings and untied them
—Bad judgments and untied them!

I heard Isaiah say he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities and the chastisement of our peace is upon him.

After loosing us from the grip of our sins, I heard Jesus' voice ring across the heavens' "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me!"

He died on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning he arose.
Satan had me bound but Jesus lifted me!
I'm glad!
I'm glad!
I'm glad that Jesus lifted me!

9783-Inspiration

Dig Your Own Well

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 13, 2017

SCRIPTURE: And Isaac's servants digged in the valley, and found there a well of springing water. Genesis 26:19; "Drink waters out of thine own cistern, and running waters out of thine own well." Proverbs 5:15

Introduction

Have you ever seen a water well? There are many who have fond memories of living in or visiting the rural areas that are part of your family's past, looking at the homestead of your grandparents or great grandparents is an awe inspiring experience because we wonder how they were able to survive. Three things stand out in those memories: The wood burning stove, the outhouse, and the water well. These three were essential facilities of the rural household. They are also essential today, even though we call them by different names and operate with new technology.

After slavery, the quest of nearly every former slave was to become independent. For most of them that meant owning a piece of land, tilling their own soul and depending on no one outside of the good Lord for their existence. Owning land was of no value if there was no well, river, creek or pond on the land. Wells were essential, so nearly every farm owner learned how and where to dig a well.

Wells, by nature, are holes in the ground that tap into aquifers or water sources beneath the surface. They are usually deep, so without machinery they can require tremendous man power. They must be secured from collapse and contamination. They must be round and not square; if they are square they will have weak spots at the center of the edges and will collapse.

A man who planned to have a family had to learn how to dig his own well; his knowledge and skill increased the value of his land and provided an independent resource for his family. Every man wanted his own well, he didn't want to borrow his neighbor's well or be dependent on his family's well. To be truly free, he needed his own land and he needed his own well.

Today a prospective buyer inspects the land to be purchased on the surface, but special care is given to find out what's under the surface. The land is extremely valuable if it has water underneath, and even more value if there is oil there too. Often buyers purchase land that does not appeal to the eye because it's landscape is not picturesque, but they buy it because they have learned that there is oil, water or other natural resources below that cannot be seen with the naked eye.

The Bible makes frequent reference to wells as a symbol or type of the benevolent and saving grace of God. Jesus met the woman at the well and she ran through the streets telling all that she met to "Come see a man, who told me all I've ever done." Isaac found a wife at the well. Moses met his bride's family defending a well. Proverbs 10:11 says a righteous man's mouth is like a wel,l speaking wisdom from God, but an unrighteous man's mouth covers wells and results in violence. Isaiah 12:3 refers to the Godly life as one that joyously draws daily from the "Well of Salvation." Those who try to find happiness without God by living lives of sin are described in 2 Peter 2:17 as "Wells without water" -The sinful life offers the promise of happiness, but delivers empty promises.

As Christians, we know the importance of wells of faith. Each of us must dig our own faith well; and, in times of difficulty, if it seems to run dry dig deeper to let the cooling waters flow.

Exposition

These text focus on one singular truth: It is important for each believer to dig his/her own faith well to realize the full blessings of God.

The central character of Genesis 26:19 is Isaac, the son of Abraham. It takes place as Isaac and his family lived in the land of the Philistines. The Philistines watched Isaac closely and it seemed that he had been blessed: his crops flourished, his people were at peace and there seemed to be a spirit of happiness and joy in his camp.

Isaac's prosperity was based on his daddy's work. Abraham had dug wells in dry parts of land that kept his flocks fed and his fields fertile. He didn't dig any new wells, he used only the wells his father dug. When enemies envious of his blessing, filled all of his water wells with dirt.
Isaac moved to another section of the land and reopened old wells his father once dug and God blessed him more. The Philistines in every section he moved to, filled up his wells with dirt.

Isaac also repeated his father's weakness. Abraham married a pretty young thing named Sera. When times were tough he lived among the Philistines. The king noticed Sera and wanted her for his wife. He asked Abraham was she his wife and Abraham said she was his sister. (He lied because he thought the king would kill him then marry Sera) The king almost married her, but discovered Abraham lied and sent them away. About 40 years later, Isaac moved to Gerar in a drought and passed off his wife Rebekah (cousin) as his sister to the same king.

He was driven away by the Philistines afterward, repented of his cowardice and returned to digging his father's wells. He was blessed in his efforts, but he soon learned that he would be truly blessed when he dug his own wells.

The text points to a turning point in his life, when Isaac dug his own well in the valley. Until then he had been living on his father's faith, work and even his father's mistakes.

Soon his enemies noticed that the more they harassed Isaac, the more God blessed him. When he dug his own wells his enemies soon acknowledged that "Thou art now blessed of the Lord."

Solomon underscores the importance of finding your own faith well from which you draw strength and inspiration. In Proverbs 5:15 he said, ""Drink waters out of thine own cistern, and running waters out of thine own well."

For Isaac, digging his own well, required a faith walk. It required him to let God lead him; it also required him to be prepared to make his own mistakes. The end result for Isaac and for all believers is a life blessed by the Lord.

Life Choices

When we choose a life path for ourselves, there are several truths we must consider.

BUILD ON FOUNDATIONS, DON'T LIVE ON THEM: Isaac spent a good part of his life living on the foundations built by his father, Abraham. He didn't venture far away from what his family did; he maintained the same course. He even copied his father's mistakes. He didn't start to really live on his own until he dug a faith well and built on the family foundation instead of trying to live on the foundation. Paul, writing to the Christians at Corinth said, ".. According to the grace of God which is given unto me, as a wise master builder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon. For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." 1Corinthians 3:9-11. This remains true for every believer. We are challenged to build on the foundations that have been laid for us by our parents and grandparents. We can't live on them, we must build on them. That means we must stand on their shoulders and climb higher. If they were people of faith, then we should become even stronger people of faith. We want to build on what they gave us, not simply live on it. If we live on them there is a good chance we will enjoy a level of success, but also run the danger of making the same mistakes. We must build on them, but live on the foundations laid for us. If they left you a rental property, inheritance, or gifts, build on what they gave you. If you noticed that they developed weaknesses in pursuit of the foundation they laid, avoid those weaknesses; don't live in their failures. Isaac found that while he lived a prosperous life living on the wells his father dug, he did even better when he learned to dig his own well.

KNOW THE BEST TIME TO DIG YOUR WELL: When is the best time to dig your well? For Isaac, the best time was after all of his daddy's wells had been filled by enemies. He dug new wells that were filled with fresh water. Geologist tells us that it is best to dig a well when the water level is low. That seems just the opposite of reasoning, which suggests that the best time should be when the water is high and easy to reach. If a well is dug when the water is low we dig deep to reach an untapped aquifer, otherwise is high water seasons we don't dig deep enough to survive the next low water. That's a great faith lesson. The greatest faith comes not when things are going well and life is easy; the greatest and deepest faith comes in the aftermath of hard times, difficulty and drought. Those were times that we had to dig deep to survive. Without resources or assistance many found they had to dig deep to tap into the faith reservoirs they needed to live through hard times.

A good time to dig deep is after you have fallen or failed. That's when you go to the well of faith and it is dry. Proverbs 24:16 says, " For a just man falleth seven times, and riseth up again: but the wicked shall fall into mischief." That makes it abundantly clear that even good people will fall, slip, make mistakes, or make wrong turns in life. The fact that you have fallen does not mean that you are "bad people" it means that you are human. When we fall, that's when we dig deep into our spiritual reservoir and muster the courage necessary to stand up one more time. When things are tough, it means it's time to dig your own well and dig it deep.

KNOW WHERE TO DIG YOUR WELL: When Isaac decided to dig his own well he did not return to the places where his father dug wells, but verse 22 says he went to another place where there was no chance of strife and dug his well. Those who dig wells know that wells must be dug on the high slope of the land, uphill from the outhouse. The outhouse is a well too, but it has a different purpose; it doesn't give life, but is filled with mess. The parallel for believers should be clear; we must dig our well as far away from mess as possible. Farmers report that the well has to be uphill from the barn, chicken yard or any place that has contaminants because they sink into the water table and contaminate your well. Believers who want to build a life of faith must live uphill from mess caused by Sin. Sin will bring mess into the family room, bed room, and will seep into your office, work station, or even the classroom.

There many who try to go to God's house on Sunday after going to the outhouse on Friday and Saturday night. We may try to hide it by changing our dress, but believers can tell where you've been because, you always bring mess!

If you want to build a faith well, you must seek to build it on higher ground. Youmust think higher, look higher, dream higher and never return to the low ground.

David declared: "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help, my help cometh from the Lord which made the heaven and the earth." We should seek higher ground. Perhaps that's what Johnson Oatman had in mind when he wrote these words of a great hymn: "My heart has no desire to stay, where doubts arise and fears dismay; thou some may dwell where these abound, my prayer, my aim is higher ground. Lord lift me up and let me stand on heaven's table land; a higher plane than I have found, Lord, plant my feet on higher ground."

If most of us tell the truth, there was a time when our lives were influenced by the low ground. But now that we know the joy of the high ground, we don't ever want to go back. Our testimony is the same as that of the song writer who said: "Look where he brought me from...He brought me out of darkness into the marvelous light, look where he brought me from!"

Know God for Yourself

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must recognize what Isaac had to learn; it's good to have parents who know the Lord, but you must know God for yourself.

Isaac spent most of his life imitating what he saw his father do.

If his father dug a well, he redug the same well.

If his father told a lie, he told the same lie.

He walked in Abraham's footsteps, and built altars where Abraham prayed, but in the final analysis, he learned that you got to know God for yourself.

There is no substitute for having your own connection with God. That connection is maintained through the life we live, the way we worship and the way we give. There is nothing like knowing God for yourself.

You have to dig your own well!

When you dig your own faith well, that's when you start to know the Lord for Yourself, you know that when you are:

—Sick, He will be a Doctor in your sickroom!

—In Trouble, He will be a Lawyer in your courtroom!

—Lost and confused, He will make a way out of no way!

—Hungry and thirsty, He will feed you with bread on high.

When you know the Lord for yourself, you know He will pick you up when you are stumbling!

When you know the Lord for yourself, you know He will plant your feet on solid ground!

When you know the Lord for yourself, you know He will give you a new song to sing, a new walk to walk and a new talk to talk!

No wonder the song writer says, "You got to know Jesus, know God for yourself!"

You got to know Jesus, you don't need nobody else!

Every saint should be grateful that daddy dug a faith well!

Every saint should be happy that mama and grandpa had a faith well

But the happiest moment in a saint's life should be when he can declare, "I have dug my own well, and I know the Lord for myself!

I don't know what happened, but I kept going down in prayer!

I don't know what happened, but I kept digging in his word!

I don't know what happened, but I kept throwing out the dirt and going down deeper.

I don't know what happened, but all I know is that when I got deep enough, I felt the blood of Jesus covering my soul. "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness, I dare not trust the sweetest frame, but wholly lean on Jesus name!"

I don't know what happened, but one day I hit the solid rock. The song writer said, "On Christ the solid rock I stand, all other ground is sinking sand!"

"You got to know Jesus, know God for yourself. If you know Jesus you don't need nobody else."

Dig, until you find Jesus!
Dig, until you find the man who lived on this Earth for 33 long years!
Dig, until you find Jesus who bore an old rugged cross!
Dig, until you find Jesus who died out on Calvary!
Dig, until you find Jesus who arose early Sunday morning.
You got to know Jesus, you got to know God for yourself!

9784-Inspiration

Somebody's Knocking At Your Door

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 26, 2017

Scripture: "And he said unto them which of you shall have a friend, and shall go unto him at midnight, and say unto him at midnight, and say unto him friend, lend me three loaves for a friend of mine in his journey is come to me, and I have nothing to set before him? And I say unto you, ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you." Luke 11:5-6,9

Introduction

Have you ever wondered why so many ask the church for help? Why do people in need call the preacher, deacon or look to the nearest church for help?

A hermit sat in his little cabin at the top of a hill during a drought one summer. His barrel of water was running low, but he always found enough water to sustain him day by day. Each day travelers came by his hut and asked him for water, and he told them he had only enough for himself and sent them away. After many days the hermit asked one of the travelers just who was directing so many to come to him for water. The last traveler responded that there was a gentleman in the general store who pointed them in his direction. Upset, the hermit mounted his donkey and came into town and met the gentleman in the store. "Why are you telling people to come to me for water, when I barely have enough for myself?" The gentleman responded: "I tell each person to come see you, not because you have water, but because you know the way to the well."

There are many across the country who are surprised to hear that many ministries of the Salvation Army are closing or cutting back services to the poor through its shelters or thrift stores. The news hit the internet before it hit the evening news as word of closings and cutbacks came from Mobley Missouri, Jackson, Newark, Lytton Springs, Kankee, Illinois, Monroe, La and other places. Many wondered how this could happen? Where will the homeless go? Surprisingly, the people who ask that question belong to churches, who wonder why the Salvation Army, which is a church denomination, is cutting back? Many never considered the option of stepping up to do more themselves. They definitely didn't think to ask the question, "Are we doing our fair share to respond to the general needs of our community?"

Many think the poor and distressed should go somewhere or anywhere, as long as they don't knock on their door. Each person thinks it's someone else's responsibility.

There is old Negro Spiritual whose words say, "Somebody's knocking at your door, oh Sinner, why don't you answer? Somebody's knocking at your door!"

Today many people are knocking on the door of the faithful, looking for a response to the need of the masses for help in troubling times.

They come to the church because they heard somewhere that the church may not have plenty of what they need, but the church "knows the way to the well." The hungry, homeless, helpless and hopeless all look to the church for answers and for a response.

On occasion, some church members get irritated at the constant pleas of the world, respond: "Why come to us, do we look as if we have enough money to house the homeless or feed the poor masses of the nation? Does it appear that we have the resources to solve the plethora of social ills that plague us?" The response of the masses is simply that it comes to the church becomes it "knows the way to the well."

We may not have the material resources at our finger tips, but as children of the king, we have a father who is rich in houses and in land and holds the wealth of the world in hands. We may not have it, but we know where to get it; therefore it becomes our responsibility to respond to need not in proportion to what we have but in proportion to what we can get through initiative, imagination, and industry from the treasures of heaven.

As Christians, we should always remember that the world looks to us for a response because it recognizes that in its spiritual thirst, it is the Saints of God, who know the way to the well.

Exposition

This text focuses on Christ as he makes an illustration of the importance of prayer. It begins with teaching the disciples the model prayer, known today as the Lord's Prayer, and then concludes by emphasizing the importance of importunity with the parable of the helpless helper.

A man was awakened in the middle of the night by a friend who came to him asking for lodging. The man was helpless. He did not have anything to serve his visitor, but he knew where to get it from. In the middle of the night, he beat on the door of his next door neighbor until he got his attention and begged him for three loaves of bread. The neighbor was reluctant to give at first, but because his neighbor was so persistent, he went to his pantry and gave him, not just three loaves of bread, but whatever he needed.

Jesus gave the parable to illustrate that sometimes we have not because we ask not. He encouraged all to "Ask, and it shall be given unto you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you."

Midnight on the Social Order

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. delivered a famous sermon, called, "The knocks at midnight." In it he described how America was experiencing midnight in the social order.

Even today, it is still midnight. Crime is rising morals are declining, people are hungry for food, and shelter even though abundance is all around. Jails are overcrowded, as murder, rape, incest and other social ills continue to plague us. As people are plagued by their troubles, their first response is to look for help. In the midnight, they come to the institution that has promoted itself as the friend of the downtrodden and knock feverishly on our door.

If churches have no response to the rising crime other than talking about it in Sunday School classes, then we turn a deaf ear. If we do not present a structured response to shifting the moral climate of our community, then we are turning a deaf ear to the crime problem knocking on our door. Instead, we continue with our anniversaries, love offerings for each other, pastor anniversaries, socials and teas, and the culture and crime and murder grows.

If the jails are filling with thousands of African-American men, what is our response? Do we shake our heads and say they should have known better, while the incarceration rate of young black males increases and continues to wait for an answer? If the rate of recidivism is making jail a revolving door for youth, what is our response? If our children are making A's in school, but failing in life, what is our response? When a student knows how to balance an equation, but can't make change out of a $100 bill or figure the interest on a mortgage, there is something wrong with the educational system. When a child makes A's writing, but can read a sing paragraph written in long hand cursive, What is our response?

We are Expected to Respond

Why are we expected to have a response? Why do people look to the church for answers?

They come to the church because each church sports a lifted up cross which is a sign of salvation and hope. When traveling on the highway, a hungry pilgrim looks for a clean, reliable place to eat where he will be treated fairly and fed at a reasonable cost. When he sees the golden arches, he goes there expecting certain service because that's what the arches symbolize. So it is with people who see the cross; they come to the church for help because Jesus said, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy burden, and I will give you rest." They come to the church because he said, "I come to give you life and to give it more abundantly." They come because Jesus said "and I, if I, be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me."

In the midnight of these times abused women are knocking at our door. Orphan children are knocking at our door. Teenaged boys and girls who need leadership and direction are knocking at our door. The alcoholic and drug addict is knocking at our door. Troubled husbands and wives and the homeless and hungry are knocking at our door. What shall be our response?

Many churches have forgotten that their mission is to reach the masses. Many have concluded that they are helpless against the social evils of our times and so they redefine their mission. To some, the mission is no longer, "Go ye therefore" but "stay ye right here." Their mission has become to "build fine buildings, polish their Sunday ritual and fill their discussion groups with genteel talks about what they should do." While it is desirable to build fine buildings and enjoy the luxuries they afford, the church should never once consider constructing buildings as its mission. Reaching the lost, confused, hungry masses with the word of Salvation is the mission of the church.

The problems we know won't go away, no matter how we try to ignore them. They keep coming to our front door because the world knows that the church "knows the way to the well!"

Alone, we can do absolutely nothing. But the beauty of the church is that "I may not be able to help you, but I have a father who can!"

The song writer said, "I cannot take the lightning and flash it across the land, but I have a father who can! I cannot take a piece of clay and shape it into a man, but I have a father who can!"

It is that testimony that brings the world to our doorstep! We may not have water, but we know the way to the well!

Passion to Structure

Finally, we must consider that in the parable the helpless neighbor went where he knew there was bread and through persistence ended up with more than he needed. His neighbor had it, he knew it was there, and he would not give up until he found a way to help his friend!

The storehouses of God are full of everything that the church needs to solve the social problems we experience. But gaining access to those storehouses requires pietism and activism from the church. The pietist is the praying man who will fervently ask God for blessings. This is the "Ask" that Jesus spoke of in his formula for answered prayers. But pietism is only one-third of the formula. The other two-thirds requires activism: Seeking and Knocking. After asking God for the resources we need to help others, then we must actively seek and knock until we find that unlocked door into the "vaults" of heaven. The power of prayer unlocks doors, but it is the energy of activity that helps us capitalize on the open door.

We must expand our approaches from just the passionate response and move toward the structured response. The passionate response feeds a homeless person and then pushes him out of the door to sleep in the street until he comes back for you to feed him again. The structured response puts a system in place that tries to address the reason why we have to feed him every week. Is it a job? Training? Mental health support? Without a structured response, he will be asking for food the rest of his life.

Believers, somebody's knocking at your door! Why don't you answer? Are we dying because we talk more than we do? Could we do more than we are actually doing? Why don't you answer? Have you begun to tap the storehouses of heaven? Is construction of housing for the homeless, counseling for battered women and orphan children on your agenda? Is the establishment of programs to provide food, clothing, shelter, and education to the downtrodden masses in your plans for the next few years or is that someone else's job?

Churches of America, somebody's knocking at your door! Why don't you answer? We may not have much, but we know the way to the storehouse, and we know how to gain access to the treasures of heaven.

The saved must save

Every now and then we should all be reminded that as we were saved, we are expected to save others! We don't have the luxury of ignoring the knocks at the door. We can't go back to sleep and pretend not to hear them. We have been saved ourselves, and we have a responsibility to save others.

If we have experienced —Christ, then we should share Christ with others!

—Hope, then we should offer hope to others!

—Courage, then we should inspire courage in others!

—Love, then we should show love to others.

—Blessings, then we should bless others.

—Help, then we should be willing to help somebody!

We should be willing through our example to tell someone that Jesus saves!

We should be willing to tell the world that Jesus came, died and arose from the dead to give them a chance to everlasting life.

When we give them Jesus in a loving, structured response, we help them find the way to the well!

I heard the song writer declare:

If I can help somebody, as I pass along.
If I can cheer somebody, with a word or song,
If I can show somebody, He is traveling wrong
Then my living shall not be in vain
Then my living shall not be in vain—
Then my living shall not be in vain
If I can help somebody, as I pass along
Then my living shall not be in vain.

No. 9785-Building

Shouting over the foundation

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

September 2017

SCRIPTURE "And they sang together by course in praising and giving thanks unto the LORD; because he is good, for his mercy endureth for ever toward Israel. And all the people shouted with a great shout, when they praised the LORD, because the foundation of the house of the LORD was laid." Ezra 3:11

Introduction

What happens to a building if its foundation is not sure? It will first lean then finally fall.

Many of us have heard of the famous Leaning Tower of Pisa. People travel around the world to see it, some with cameras in hand hoping to be there at the precise moment that the tower stops leaning and finally falls.

On August 9, 1173. The builders, contractors, engineers, and architects laid the foundation for a 177-foot tall tower that they thought would stand straight and perpendicular forever, but they didn't check the foundation well enough to predict its ability to stand for centuries. After centuries it began to lean because the combined weight of all the marble stones built into Pisa's pride pressed bottom ward onto and into the soft, silted soils, squeezing water from clay underneath, bulging into the dense sand beneath. Over 800 years all 32 million pounds of marble were always on the verge of collapse. Its 5.3-degree tilt is startling, even shocking - a full 15 feet out of plumb.

Engineers are trying to keep the building from falling, but it will never stand straight again because it stands on a weak foundation.

When the church builds an edifice for the worship of the Lord, both the building and church itself should stand on a true foundation.

The only real foundation we have is Jesus. He has reminded us that those who hear his words and do them are like a man who builds his house on a rock, a true foundation, that unlike the Tower of Pisa will be able to stand all of the storms of life.

Therefore, when a church lays the foundation, it is shouting time. A foundation that is solidly constructed will stand, just as the church will stand until the Lord himself returns.

As Christians, we rejoice when the foundations of the kingdom are strong. We rejoice that they are both secure and reliable, held up by the goodness, strength, and mercy of the Lord.

Exposition

This text focuses on Israel as it prepared to celebrate the laying of the foundation of the temple.

The laying of the foundation came at the close of a long exile in a foreign land which ended when they were allowed to return and rebuild the walls of Jerusalem and its fabulous temple.

The temple had been constructed by Solomon at considerable cost but was destroyed by invading armies. Under Ezra, the people followed the commands of the King to reestablish themselves, but they followed the command of God with whom they were in covenant. Scholars at the Dallas Seminary note that as the foundation... was laid the people were careful to follow the traditions of their forefathers who had been rightly related to God under the Mosaic Covenant. As the priests... and the Levites led the dedication service for the temple's foundations, they did the things that were prescribed by David. The order was also similar to the time when the ark was brought to the temple in Solomon's day (2 Chron. 5:12-13) when Asaph and others played cymbals, harps, and lyres; and the priests blew trumpets. In this rebuilding service, the priests and Levites sang, He is good; His love to Israel endures forever, words almost identical to the song of praise in 2 Chronicles 5:13 (cf. Ps. 136:1). This song of praise is highly significant for by it the religious leaders were acknowledging that Yahweh had again established His loving protection over the nation. The word "love" (h?esed?) is God's covenantal loyal love which exists forever with His people Israel. Now that the temple worship was being reestablished, the people again recognized the commitment of God's unending covenantal love.

The people celebrated by praising God. The priests with the trumpets appointed by Moses, and the Levites with the cymbals appointed by David, made up a concert of music, not to please the ear, but to assist the singing of that everlasting hymn which will never be out of date, and to which our tongues should never be out of tune, God is good, and his mercy endureth for ever, the burden of Psa. 136. Let all the streams of mercy be traced up to the fountain.

It was the goodness of God that they celebrated because they recognized that their celebration would not have been had it not been for the providence of God.

At the celebration, the people gave offering, adding these to the gifts from the king who also provided materials to rebuild the temple.

The youth in the group shouted because they had seen an evidence of God's power. The elders wept because they once again saw God's handiwork although they lamented that the reconstructed temple was not as awesome as the old one.

Combined, the people sang, shouted, cried, gave offerings and praised God for helping them reach the foundation milestone.

Shouting and Celebrating

When the church reaches a milestone that marks a victory, it shouts for many reasons. It shouts because of the goodness of God as he keeps his promises and prospect of continued mercies in the years ahead.

WE SHOUT BECAUSE GOD IS GOOD: This journey is a shouting situation because it is more evidence that God is good. In the church's journey, believers have come to know that whatever our condition is and no matter high the mountains we face, God remains the same; a good God. This milestone today is evidence that many things in the world may fail, but his mercy does not fail. We shout with intensity because not only does his mercy endure for ever, but his kindness toward us a people of faith, struggling to do his will is also good. We are pleased to testify that he is good! We are pleased to raise our voice and proclaim that our interests and goals are God's interests and goals. When they seem dead, as this project did at one time, they continue through God's mercy and grace.

WE SHOUT ABOUT OUR JOURNEY: We are rallying in celebration of this achievement, but we also celebrate each step that we have personally made toward living the life of faith. Every day we celebrate our journey as believers, we rejoice. We rejoice because Jesus gave us the grand opportunity to live God centered lives here and even beyond this life. We rejoice because He gave himself as a ransom for our souls! That's enough reason to celebrate. Its also enough reason to rally ourselves and give thanks to God for His goodness, mercy and loving kindness. How do we celebrate this kindness from God? We celebrate differently than those of the world. We must give him praise, give him our resources and we must give him our contrite spirit. As Christians, we must let the world know what God has done for us. As we celebrate, we should also bring our gifts and humble spirit before the one who gave himself as a ransom for our souls. Today, we celebrate the goodness of God in ways that will be acceptable to him.

Know how you got where you are: We need to know the road we've traveled: Anyone who is attempting to move forward in life should be aware of the ground that has already been covered. That's why we lift our hands to him in praise.

WE CELEBRATE THE 12 FOUNDATIONS: Like the Holy City Jerusalem, the church is built on a strong foundation. Jesus told us that if we are not building on a strong foundation that we would be like a man who built his house on the sand that had a great fall when the storms came. The church is built upon 12 foundations which stand high among all of its fundamental beliefs they are: Love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance, obedience, hope, and trust.

When the church stands on the word of God which is the embodiment of these beliefs, it is invincible. It becomes a city built by God. It becomes a City which hath foundation. We have seen cities in history that were grand and noble but had no foundation. Despite their splendor, these great cities have risen but have fallen into ruins. Their fall brings greater meaning to the five words of this text, a city which hath foundations. We are on a journey toward the Canaan Land. Each believer plays an essential part in the ultimate sanctuary of God. Each is a beam, brick or floor board in the heavenly kingdom. God is building a heavenly kingdom, in which each saint is a living stone and a living sacrifice. Therefore we celebrate his goodness and the foundations of hope upon which we stand.

We celebrate the assurance of our foundation

Finally, brothers and sisters, as we commemorate, rededicate and celebrate, we must tell the world that we have a great assurance that is only enjoyed by those who know that the church is built on Christ, and that is a sure foundation.

There is a reason why we are happy today!

There is a reason why we are celebrating today!

There is a reason for our joy today!

That reason is based on our knowledge that when we build anything with Jesus as its foundation, winds may blow and storms may rise, but our work will stand because Christ is our foundation.

We are just as sure of our foundation today as the ancients were of the foundation of the first temple.

That Tabernacle was built on a foundation made of the silver sacrifices of 600,000 men.

There has never been a record of the Tabernacle falling down.

It withstood windstorms, sandstorms, and rain!

For all of the years of Israel's journey, it never fell once, because it was pitched on a sure foundation.

The Church today is built upon an even stronger foundation, Jesus Christ, The solid rock.

Because of this foundation, we are able to:

—stay CALM in the midst of crises

—have PEACE in the midst of problems

—enjoy GLADNESS in the midst of sorrow

—receive ASSURANCE in the midst of afflictions!

—press on in the midst of pain.

—be FRUITFUL in a time of famine! This foundation is the solid rock! It doesn't matter what the future brings as long as the Lord is on our side!

If the Lord is on our side there will never be a:

—CROSS that we won't be able to bear; MOUNTAIN that we won't be able to climb!

—ENEMY that we won't be able to defeat; BATTLE we won't be able to win!

—DARKNESS so dark that we won't be able to see the light!

—TRIAL that we can't make it through; TEST that we won't be able to pass!

Moses saw the promised land from the top of Mt. Nebo, but I know a man, who is the foundation of our faith.

His name is Jesus! He's someone to shout about!

He is a sure foundation! He's someone to shout about!

He will never fail! He's someone to shout about!

No wonder the songwriter wrote: "In times like these you need a savior. In times like these, you need an anchor. Be very sure your anchor holds and grips the solid rock.

This Rock is Jesus, yes he's the one! Be very sure. Be very sure! Your anchor holds and grips the solid rock!”

The true foundation is Jesus!

Jesus, somebody here today knows him!

Jesus, the Lily of the valley!

Jesus, the Bright and Morning star!

Jesus, who gave himself as a sacrifice for our salvation!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary and rose up early Sunday morning!

Jesus. He is the foundation of our faith.

No. 9786-Service

I'm Not Tired Yet

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

September 3, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "And let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not." Galatians 6:9

Introduction

Have you ever completed a day's work and returned home completely ex hausted? Those who have had this experience know what it means to come home and sit in your favorite chair and immediately drop off to sleep. You know the lure of a warm bath or hot shower after a long day. Some days are completely exhausting, yet for some those days are not tiring; it depends on the expected outcomes.

A person who works to further a personal goal or objective may be tired at the end of the day, but not weary. Being tired implies that our labor is perceived to be pointless, monotonous, and meaningless. A person who works to achieve a dream or a goal may often tire, but seldom gets weary. Self-employed individuals work longer hours than those who are laborers. Often a self-employed person is the bookkeeper, manager, worker, supervisor, consultant, technician and receptionist all rolled up into one person. They leave work and then bring work home with them. It's not unusual for some small business owners to even work on the weekends and after hours. Yet, with all that work, they are not weary of it all because they have a goal in mind that each day's work brings them closer to fruition.

A person who takes a job, but does not share in the job's ultimate vision and goal goes to fulfill someone else's dream or vision. After a hard day at work, they come home tired. Soon they become weary. They get weary because no matter how hard they labor they are no closer to their personal goal. A retail cashier can service a thousand customers in a business day, but their paycheck will be the same at the end of the week. They have the joy of a paycheck, but unless their goal is to be a retail cashier for the rest of their lives, they soon get weary and wish for days with fewer customers.

Believers who work for the Lord, often tired, but seldom weary because we have a goal. We are trying to advance the kingdom of God. Many have been serving in kingdom building ministries for years, but in spite of all of their years of service and sacrifice they get a little worn out, but they are still not weary. For decades they have worked in the company of the faithful trying to do God's will. They began their great work many years ago and have pledged not to stop working until the master calls them home. As the years have passed, occasionally some get glimpses of the kingdom of God as clear as day. That momentary vision is enough to keep us going, and we work even harder, without getting weary.

Faith in God and hope for a better life in the kingdom of God kept African-American slaves from being weary although they were tired of being tired. Many labored in someone else's field and built the dreams of their masters, but they also saw living the life of faith, even in slavery as preparing them for the kingdom of God. They were tired, frustrated, and exhausted, but not spiritually weary. In the darkness of the night they stole away and sang:

O,Walk together children
Don't you get weary
Walk together children
Don't you get weary
Walk together children
Don't you get weary
There's a great camp meeting in the Promised Land
Going to shout and never tire
Shout and never tire
Shout and never tire
There's a great camp meeting in the Promised Land

As Christians, we have pledged ourselves to keep working to build the kingdom of God. We have given it our best, but at the end of every day, each saint declares, "I'm working for the kingdom, and I'm not tired yet."

Exposition

This text focuses on words of encouragement given by the Apostle Paul to believers who may be tiring of their service to the kingdom.

The Book of Galatians is part of a set of Epistles written by Paul that address the idea of "Christ in you" or daily living with the spirit of Christ in your life.
Galatians is not a letter written to a single church but is addressed to a number of churches. These were churches begun by Paul when he was on his very first missionary journey, traveling with Barnabas into the cities of Antioch, Iconium, Derbe, and Lystra.

In spite of his persecutions, he continued to promote the kingdom without discouragement. His words of encouragement to the Galatians were similar to the same words of encouragement that were given to the Corinthians (1 Cor. 15:58) whom he urged to "Be ye stedfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, for as much as your labor is not in vain in the Lord."

Paul encouraged believers to focus on the reward, not the immediate response they receive from those they are trying to help. The real reward is in heaven, not from the thanks or gratitude of those being served. This should be the driving force of Christian service.

This encouragement was necessary because there is a tendency to get tired of working in the kingdom, serving thankless masses. Those who tire often fall from their service because it offers few rewards. Matthew Henry notes that we should watch and guard against these feelings of spiritual fatigue; "because in due season we shall reap, if we faint not, where he assures us that there is a recompense of reward in reserve for all who sincerely employ themselves in well doing; that this reward will certainly be bestowed on us in the proper season…."

Believers are encouraged to hold out and keep working in the kingdom, with their eyes on the prize, because God sees their work and will reward them with renewed strength and a crown of glory.

Why We Are Not Tired

Many have been on the battlefield for the Lord for many years, but they have not grown weary in their service. Every day is a day for us to labor in the kingdom, to do our part to insure that it comes to fruition. There are several ways that we should say, "I'm not tired yet."

I'M NOT TIRED OF THE CHRISTIAN LIFE: Many began the Christian walk with Jesus, but they grew weary of the journey or lost faith and dropped away. Jesus said many followed him out of curiosity, but were not really faithful, soon the faith hearted grew weary and disappeared. John 6:66 says, "From that time many of his disciples went back, and walked no more with him." Today, there are many who started the Christian life as children and were faithful. They worshipped, sang, learned the Bible and enjoyed "the life" but somewhere after high school graduation they tired of the life. They wanted their Sundays for rest and the Fridays and Saturday nights for clubbing and good times. They tired of the Wednesday Bible studies, and constant church related ministries that consumed their time. Like a slow drip, they gradually disappeared from worship. The held on by a thread, they prayed when they were in trouble or gave an offering occasionally, but they tired of all of the rest.

There are others who have not tired of living the Christian life. These are those who say in the words of the Mississippi Mass Choir, "I've been working for Jesus a long time, and I'm not tired yet. I've been singing for Jesus a long time, and I'm not tired yet."

I've been reading my Bible a long time, and I'm not tired yet!

I've been working in the ministries of the church, and I'm not tired yet!

I've been praying for the sick and the shut-ins for years, and I'm not tired yet!

Our feet may ache, sometimes our backs, knees, and eyes may ache, but we keep working in the kingdom while it is day because when night comes, no man can work. We keep running for Jesus saying, "I'm not tired yet."

I'M NOT TIRED BECAUSE HE NEVER TIRES: The faithful never get tired of working in the kingdom because God never gets tired of blessing us. We know that is true because throughout his word we are told that 24 hours a day seven days a week

Godi is watching over us. Psalm 121:3-4 says, “He will not suffer thy foot to be moved: he that keepeth thee will not slumber. Behold, he that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep,” That means 24 hours a day God is blessing us. Lamentations 3:22-23 goes even further. It says, “It is of the LORD’S mercies that we are not consumed, because his compassions fail not. They are new every morning: great is thy faithfulness.” -God never gets tired of protecting, watching over us and providing for us.

Believers don’t get tired of praising him because he never gets tired of making a way for us. In Psalm 66, David looked back over all that God had done for him and said, “Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye lands.”

Today,we keep running for Jesus without being weary because it is our way of saying thank you for being so good to us!

When we think about how he muzzled the mouths of lions that came to devour us, we resolve to keep on running, “I’m not tired yet.”

When we think about how he quenched the flames of fires meant to destroy us, we resolve to keep on serving,”I’m not tired yet.”

When we think about how he conquered enemies that came to destroy us, we resolve to keep on believing, “I’m not tired yet.

I don’t know about you brothers and sisters but God has been doing a great work in my life, and I’m not tired yet!

I’M NOT TIRED BECAUSE I DON’T WALK ALONE: The old Negro Spiritual said: “Walk together children, don’t get weary.” There is strength in numbers. That’s why the Word of God warns believers not to try to live the Christian life outside of the Christian fellowship. We draw strength from each other. When we see God move in the life of another saint, we are inspired. When we see prayers answered, we are motivated. When we see how to respond when God’s answer is not our answer, we are spiritually strengthened. When we hear the choir sing a song of faith, we are lifted.

Outside of the church, it is easy to get tired. That’s why Hebrews 10:25 warns us not to forsake the regular assembly or being in the company of the church. With the church, we are always reminded of God’s promise in John 14:8 “I will not leave you alone.”

When we realize that we are not alone that’s when we can sing with James Cleveland, “I don’t feel no ways tired, I don’t believe he brought me this far to leave me.”

There is work to be done

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must continue in our labor for the kingdom because their much work to be done!

The church should not be weary in its mission. We are doing a great work for the Lord, we should not get weary.

The church that shows sympathy to the homeless and the helpless should say, “I’m working for the Lord, and I’m not tired yet.”

The church that teaches and reaches the masses with the word of God should say, “I’m working for the Lord, and I’m not tired yet,”

The church that feels the pain of the poor and wounded and responds with love should say, ““I’m working for the Lord, and I’m not tired yet.”

The church that embraces children and the elderly through programs that promote and protect them should say,“I’m working for the Lord, and I’m not tired yet.”

All of the Patriarchs before us have done great works, like them we should not get tired.

Noah’s Great work was to build the ark. Though critics assailed him, he kept on working. I can almost hear him say, “I’m 600 years old, but I’m not tired yet.”

Moses’ lead the children of Israel to freedom. Though many doubted him and wanted to return to Egypt, he would not stop. I can almost hear him saying, “I’m working for the Lord, and I’m not tired yet.”

David’s worked to secure the kingdom of Israel. He was tempted on every hand to hang up his sword and shield, but he lifted up his eyes to the hills where his help came from and mused in his heart, “I’m working for the Lord, and I’m not tired yet.”

Solomon worked to build the temple. Though discouraged at the complexity of the task and the complaints of the people, he resolved, “I’m working for the Lord, and I’m not tired yet.”

We should be able to say the same,

I’m not tired because If am:

—Sad, the Lord will be my fountain of joy!

—At Fault, the Lord will be a stronghold of forgiveness!

—Weak, the Lord will be my pillar of strength

—Discouraged, the Lord will be my pool of inspiration!

—Defeated, the Lord will be my crown of victory!

—Darkness, the Lord will be my light!.

—Lonely, the Lord will be my friend

—Helpless, the Lord will be my help.

I know he will be my help because I saw the testimony of the cross.

I am not tired because he wasn’t tired yet!

They rebuked Jesus and called him everything, but the son of God, but I can hear him say, “I’m not tired yet.”

They whipped him all night long. Put an old rugged cross on his shoulder, Nailed his hands and feet, but he did not come down from the cross. “I’m not tired yet.”

He died on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

That’s we every believer should say, I’ve been running for Jesus a long time, “I’m not tired yet!”

No. 9787-Grandparents

With His Arms Around Us

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the New Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

September 10, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "And he took them up in his arms, put his hands upon them, and blessed them." Mark 10:16

Introduction

What is your fondest memory of your grandparents? One of them might be the times when you were young and they allowed you to climb in their laps and hugged you. In fact, many of your memories probably include a grandparent putting their arms around you and giving you a big hug. As you grew in life, you probably noticed increasingly that your grandparents arms were around you in other ways. They became your financial backers, counselors, defenders, constructive critics, parents, bail bondsmen, and cheerleaders. In many ways, we felt the arms of grandparents around us more than we did our parents.

The story is told about a grandson who was taken to a piano concert of his grandfather who was a world renowned pianist. She carried him to the concert because she hoped it would inspire her son to follow in the steps of his famous grandfather. As they waited for the sitting in their seats waiting for the concert to begin, she told her son how famous her grandfather was as a pianist. She pointed to all of the people in the audience and said: "All of these people" came to hear him play. You can do that, too." As she waited, she was temporarily distracted. When she looked around her son was no longer there. She began to panic because her son was missing. She went up and down the isles asking, "Have you seen my son?"

As the show was just about to begin, she looked up at the stage, and there on the stage was her son. Somehow he had made his way on the stage and was walking toward the grand piano.The little boy walked up to the piano and sat down and started to playing "Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star" on the grand piano.

The mother was embarrassed and horrified, as she heard giggles coming from the audience.

The grandfather heard the boy playing the piano. Without introduction walked out behind his grandson, reached his right hand around him and began to fill in the notes. He took his left hand and reached around and began to play with the little boy playing "Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star." The next thing you know, there was the beautiful sound of “Twinkle Twinkle Little Star” played by the master pianist with his arms around his grandson. The auditorium was filled with applause as the audience rose with a thunderous standing ovation.

The little boy didn’t grow up to be a concert pianist, but he always remembered the night he played the big piano with his grandpa’s arms around him.

That’s what grandparents do. In so many ways, they keep their children and grandchildren in the arms. Grandparents have the challenge of blessing their grandchildren and offspring with fruits of the family legacy of God, family, and country. This represents the sum total of every grandparent’s charge which is to leave an inspiring legacy that will live in the hearts of their grandchildren. Grandparents should not consider their work done until they are satisfied that their grandchildren are on the right track or at least know their way to the right track. Until that happens, each one should continue to extend open understanding, forgiving, supporting, correcting and encouraging arms around their offspring.

In the same way that grandparents put their arms around their grandchildren and give them a place of solace and support, God does the same for us. With his arms around us, we too get support, correction, love, and encouragement. That’s why we like the words of the hymn that say we are “leaning, leaning, safe and secure from all alarms...leaning on the ever lasting arms.

As Christians, our goal is to lean securely on the arms of God. We salute our grandparents because their open arms represent the love and grace also given to us by our heavenly Father.

Exposition

This text focuses on an instance in which crowds of people brought little children asking Jesus to bless them, and he did.

All three of the Synoptic Gospels referred to this instance. Combined, they record how Jesus was besieged by people who wanted him to take their children in his arms and bless them. The disciples were angry that the Messiah should be bothered with such small tasks when he had the whole task of kingdom building in front of him. He had been answering questions about marriage, divorce, adultery and other doctrinal issues and the disciples felt the requests of the parents was an interruption.

Jesus did not see their requests as an interruption. He rebuked them and then put his arms around them. In Luke 18:17 noted that anyone who can’t come into the kingdom of God with the innocence will be forbidden.

Then Jesus took the children in his arms and blessed them.

The theologians, dignitaries, and others who saw his action saw more than just the image of little children in his arms. More importantly, they saw the Son of God with his arms around all believers, blessing them as children and loving them throughout their lives.

Grandparent's image

The image of Christ with his arms around the little children is perpetuated in mind of millions who have the same image of their grandparents. Those who embrace them, love them, correct them and provide for them.

IN THEIR ARMS THERE IS ENCOURAGEMENT: Grandparents are probably the best sources of encouragement in the family. In the arms of a grandparent a piece of paper that only has a few lines of chicken scratch becomes one of the great art pieces of the world, worthy of framing and showing to the world. To the ears of a grandparent, the cute little tuneless song on the lips of a grandchild is actually the voice of an undiscovered diva. Grandparents are perpetual encouragers of their grandchildren.

Others may laugh at their silly dreams or think that they cannot succeed for one reason or another, but their dreams are safe in their grandparent's arms.

Jacob, had his grandsons Ephraim and Manasseh brought to him for his final blessing. Ephraim, who was the youngest of Joseph's son always stood in his brother's shadow and would because he was the younger brother never hope to achieve acclaim. When Jacob blessed them, he put his right hand on Ephraim's head and his left hand on his older brother's head. When Joseph tried to correct him, Jacob did not change. He blessed them both, but by the mere switching of his hands encouraged Ephraim that he would achieve as well.

In the same way grandparents today bless and love all of their grandchildren, but pay special attention to those in the shadows of family expectations and encourage them.

IN THEIR ARMS WE ARE CONNECTED TO OUR HERITAGE: One of the roles of grandparents is to facilitate the transmission of the elements of culture, heritage, and values from one generation to next. Good parents and grandparents are burdened with the responsibility of teaching the young to know the path the family has trod and equip them to make the remainder of the journey on their own. In Grandparent's arms, a grandchild learns what God has called the family to be and what talents he has historically showered on its family members.

Each family member has a story and a legacy. There are families of educators. The gift of knowledge seems to run in the family. There are families of athletes; for generations, these families have had men and women who were athletically inclined to one level or another. There are families of artists, builders, tinkerers, preachers, politicians, healers, and craftsmen. It's in the family's genes. It is the way God organized the social order.

Family members need to know the history of its members. We need to know about our family successes and what we did when we succeeded. Those times when we failed, what did we do? When we suffered, how did we overcome? What mistakes have we made as a family? Does our family history show us that we could have done better if we had avoided certain paths? As a family, what have we learned from our mistakes? When families explore their history and dissect their strengths and weaknesses, it brings great strength and a sense of purpose to young lives when they from whence they came.

IN THEIR ARMS WE LEARNED DEMONSTRATED FAITH: One of the most vivid memories we have of our grandparents is their demonstrated faith in difficult times. However, the faith for their experience was not developed instantly, but over the course of years. For example, Daniel had faith for the lion's den, but it was a faith that began when he was a teenager and practiced at every stage of his life. Abraham had faith in his senior years, but it was a faith developed over a lifetime. Every grandparent who shares the faith of their life's experience with the next generation leaves a legacy and imprint on the life of grandchildren that will endure for generations.

The young are impressed with the wisdom of their grandparents and often seek guidance from them because they always seem to know what to say and do when faced with life's issues.

We never out grow grandma's arms

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember that we never outgrow grandma's arms.

The encouragement of grandparents extends from childhood into adulthood. Even after they have gone to be with the Lord we never outgrow grandma's arms.

A poem by Michelle Reeves put it this way:

Grandma,
A baby cradled in your arms..
Teaching me your gentle charms
Growing up with you by my side..
Learning from you never to lie.
To understand and not judge too..
Love and kindness I also learned from you.
Through the years you watched me grow…
Teaching me everything I'd need to know
Listening to every word I've said..
And every word I wrote you've read.
You've been there for me to the end…
I love you with all my heart
Thank you for being there from the start

When we think about grandma's arms, we can't help but think about the safety we feel in the arms of God.

In the arms of God we have:

—Serenity in the midst of our storms;
—Assurance in the midst of our afflictions;
—Courage in the midst of our challenges;
—Boldness in the midst of our battles;

—Encouragement in the time of our difficulties;
—Composure in the midst of our calamities;
—Support in the midst of our suffering

Storms may rise, winds may blow, but I'm glad that the God we serve is better than "Allstate" for when you're with Jesus "You're in good hands!"

No wonder the song writer wrote, "Safe in the arms of Jesus. Safe on his gentle breast. There by his loved over shadowed, sweetly my soul shall rest. I'm safe in the arms of God."

In the arms of God there is:
—Strength to make the journey!
—Endurance to make it to the end!
—Courage to face impossible odds!
—Wisdom to deal with great challenges!

When we lean upon the Lord will find that the:
—Burden will seem much lighter
—The climb will seem much easier!
—Night will seem much brighter!
—Storm will seem less frightening!

When we lean on the everlasting arms of God we see the world with a new insight. That's why the song writer declared "Oh bright the path grows from day to day. Leaning on the everlasting arms! Leaning! Leaning! Safe and secure from all alarms!

Leaning!
Leaning!
Leaning on the everlasting arms!
Arms that wrapped around an old rugged cross!
Arms that stretched out wide on Calvary!
He died, but arose from the dead!
But early, Sunday morning he arose the dead, with arms wide open!

No. 9788-Inspiration

When God Does the Incredible

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

September 17, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you, that God should raise the dead?" Acts 26:8
Introduction

Have you ever thought of all of the incredible things God has done? When something is incredible, it is extremely out of the ordinary realm of expectation. It is often viewed as absurd or unthinkable. Yet in spite of how incredible or unbelievable it sounds, we have actually seen the incredible in our lifetimes.

We see incredible things around us all of the time. When I was a child, I saw my first television set. It was a box that sat on the floor with a tube in it. When they turned it on, I saw people moving in it, and I was amazed. I looked all around the box trying to see how the people got in and out. I thought the television set was incredible. I thought a watch that did not need a winding stem was incredible. I also thought a radio that could fit inside your pocket with transistors, cars with air conditioners and automatic windows in cars, a bible that could fit in our cell phone, and instant replay in football were all incredible. Unthinkable.

On late night TV we often see advertisements for gadgets that do the incredible: Knives that never need sharpening; glue so strong it can be used to pull a train, gadgets that slice and dice vegetables in one sweep, flashlights that throw beams for a mile, skillets that don't stick and all of them available for $19.99, and if a viewer as soon as they see the commercial they'll get two for the price of one.

We've seen dare devils walk across Niagra Falls on a wire, and shoot themselves out of canons, we saw the saints win the Superbowl, a black man elected President of the United States with a majority vote, and a TV star win the same office even though he lost by three million votes.

When we saw all of that we said: "That's Incredible!"

Even when we read the Bible, we read of miraculous things and say, "That's incredible."

When the prophet Balaam took a journey to place a curse on Israel for money, God made his donkey talk to him. That's incredible.

When Lot's wife and family were moved out of the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah she was told not to look back at the destruction, but she did, and she turned into a pillar of salt. That's incredible.

When Jonah tried to run away from God to avoid preaching to the people of Ninevah he was thrown overboard and swallowed by a whale. He survived inside the whale for three days and nights and lived. That's incredible.

When Sara was told she would have a baby at 100 years old, she laughed, but a year later she gave birth to a healthy boy. That's Incredible.

When Israel found themselves at the Red Sea being pursued by Pharoah's army, God opened up a path for them to cross the Red Sea on dry ground and then closed it back when the last person was safe. That's incredible.

When Jesus came to meet the disciples walking on water, that was incredible.

We've seen God do the impossible and the incredible so many times that we have grown to expect them in our lives. That's why the Clark Sisters wrote a song that says, "I'm looking for a miracle. I expect the impossible, I feel the intangible, I see the invisible. The sky is the limit to what I can have. Believe it and receive it, God can perform it today.

As Christians, we are firm in our faith that our God is able to do anything. He can do the incredible and the impossible, that's why we have resolved to hold on to our faith in his mercy, power, and plan for our lives.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he addressed Agrippa about the resurrection of Christ as a real event.

With his life on the line, Paul reasoned that those who doubted the resurrection of Christ had undoubtedly forgotten the power of God Almighty. There were some who believed in the eventual resurrection of the dead and others who doubted it completely. However, most did not believe in the literal resurrection of the dead. Paul argued that it should not be a surprise to anyone that God can raise the dead especially since he created life from nothing.

He asked, why should anything that God does, be considered incredible? Since God is all powerful and created the earth as a result of his own contemplation and whim, why is it incredible to believe that he can raise the dead. Dr. Barnes notes: "The resurrection is no more incredible than the original creation of the human body, and it is attended with no greater difficulties. And as the perfections of God will be illustrated by his raising up the dead; as the future state is necessary to the purposes of justice in vindicating the just, and punishing the unjust; and as God is a righteous moral Governor, it should not be regarded as an absurdity that he will raise up those who have died, and bring them to judgment."

The issue that Paul addressed raised other questions. Is there anything too hard for God to do? If the resurrection is impossible, then what about heaven? What about our promised eternal life? What about God's ability to answer prayers?

Paul ended his discourse before Agrippa by reaffirming that theresurrection of Christ was real and that his resurrection is the firstfruits of the general resurrection of mankind; the other, the spiritual resurrection, after his resurrection, return and crowning.

Believers like Paul see nothing incredible about the resurrection because they know they serve an awesome God, who can do anything.

God is able

The overriding truth that supports our faith in God is tied up in three words: "God is able." Since we believe God is all-powerful, present everywhere at the same time and all-knowing, nothing is beyond his power and ability. When he does what he does, it is not incredible, but it is Fantastic, wonderful, miraculous and awe-inspiring!

God is able to create something out of nothing: When Jesus was about to be Baptized his critics followed and criticized him saying that he claimed the sonship of God. They said they were the descendants of Abraham and Father Abraham was their father. The Jesus said that was no big deal because God can make descendants of stones if he wanted to? God is able from these stones to raise up children. Matthew 3:9.

The fact that God can make something out of nothing is not incredible, it's wonderful. When he created the world, he made something out of nothing. If we compose something, we bring elements together. If we build something, we construct objects in a systematic way. However, to create something, we have to deal with things that do not exist and then put them together. Genesis 1:1 says, "In the beginning, God created the heavens and the earth." That's amazing, but it's not incredible. In our own experiences, we have seen God make something out of hopeless situations. We have seen God make something out of impossible situations. We have seen wells of hope in deserts of opportunity. When he does it, it is not incredible. It is Excellent!

God is able to make all grace abound to you: Those who do not know God, think its incredible that we can believe that God will shower us with his grace that will lead to abundance in our lives. It is not incredible, it is awe Inspiring. It is not outside of God's ability to work situations and events so that they eventually work in your favor. Listen to what the word says, "God is able to make all grace abound to you… having all-sufficiency in all things at all times, you may abound in every good work." 2 Corinthians 9:8. It means that at all times God is running ahead of you, doing things, changing minds, creating opportunities for you to "abound in every good work." He's not working to get you a bigger car or to make you a millionaire, but he is working to put you in a place where you can do even more good than you have done. That's not incredible, that's wonderful!

God is able to deliver: The fact that God often delivers believers from the traps and tricks of the devil is a fact that many believers can attest to. Millions of believers have faced awkward situations in which God has walked them right past their accusers, unscathed by their accusations. When the Three Hebrew Boys were about to be thrown into the fiery furnace they were asked would God deliver them from the flames, they said they didn't know if he would or not, but what they did know is that the "God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and he will deliver us out of your hand… Daniel 3:17. Think of all of the tight spots you've been in. "God is faithful, and he will not let you be tempted beyond your ability, but with the temptation, he will also provide the way of escape, that you may be able to endure it… 1 Corinthians 10:13. The fact that you survived them is not incredible it's miraculous!

God is able to save: Every day believers look in the mirror and give thanks to God for having mercy on the man/woman in the mirror. To non-believers it's incredible how God takes the twisted lives of the crooked, deceitful and corrupt and saves them from themselves and then saves them from the grip of sin. It is not incredible, it is what the Holy Spirit does. 1 Corinthians 6:11 says, " And such were some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God." That verse means he cleaned us up. He wiped out the sins of our past, and put us in good standing with God. He is best able to save us if we stay close to him because he is always pleading our case before God. Listen to what the word teaches, "

He is able to save to the uttermost those who draw near to God through him, since he always lives to make intercession for them… Hebrews 7:25. The fact that Christ is always looking for ways to save us is not incredible, it's remarkable!

It's not Incredible

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that when we are DOWN to nothing.... God is UP to something! That's not incredible, it's just who he is and what he does.

Faith sees the invisible, believes the incredible and receives the impossible! God is great, and He is greatly to be praised!

There are those who think its incredible that we believe in an unseen God, but we don't think it's incredible because we have seen what God can do.

Some think it is incredibly foolish for us to make our weekly pilgrimage to worship and be in his presence, but we don't think its incredible or absurd because we know what God can do.

The world thinks its incredible that we live a life of faith, but we are not moved by their doubt because we know we believe in a living God who can do anything except fail.

The skeptics think its incredible that we are drenched in the word of God, and we are dripping with faith. It is a faith that despite the obstacles before us that the Lord will make a way!

It's not incredible, it is a matter of faith that we continue to trust Christ in spite of the difficulty of our times. Our testimony is consistent with the songwriter who said,"

"The road is rough and the going is tough, and hills are hard to climb, but I started out a long time ago, and there is no doubt in my mind, I've decided to make Jesus my choice!"

When God prepares a table for us in the presence of our enemies, we don't think that's incredible because we've seen him do it so many times.

We have had a Red Sea in front of us, and enemies behind us. We have seemed trapped with nowhere to go, but God made a way out of no way.

Whenever God does a miracle in our lives, we don't think its incredible because we have seen him do miracles before.

Is it incredible that those who are sick are healed? Only those who have forgotten how God healed their sicknesses and lifted them from their sick beds are amazed at his healing power!

Is it incredible that those who have failed have been given second chances? Only those who have forgotten how they repeatedly failed in life but have been restored over and over again are amazed at his spirit of forgiveness.

Is it incredible that the lost find their way again? Only those who have forgotten how they took the wrong paths in life, only to be placed on the right road again are amazed at the direction of the Holy Spirit.

When God does what he does best, it's not incredible, but it is memorable.

When we tempted to doubt him, just remember what he did yesterday.

Somebody remembers that when they were:

WEAK he provided them strength

DOWN he picked them up!

DEFEATED he gave them the victory!

DISCOURAGED he restored their hope!

LONELY, he gave them comfort!

TROUBLED he gave them peace of mind!

Somebody remembers how he came to a little town called Bethlehem.

That he died on an old rugged cross!

Somebody remembers that Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave!

That's not incredible, that's the wonder-working power of God!

No. 9789-Marriage

The Ten Commandments of Marriage

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 1976

SCRIPTURE: Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh-Genesis 2:24

Introduction

Do marriages have rules? Is there a guidebook that couples can follow that will lead to a successful marriage? There are rules for nearly everything in the world: rules for driving a car, rules for eating at a table, rules for building a house, so there logically should be a set of rules that govern a marriage relationship.

The Word of God lays out a set of rules for those who want to succeed in marriage. It begins and ends with love. 1 Corinthians 13 spells out how love operates in a marriage. Love is the key ingredient to a successful marriage. It is the glue that makes it work.

What we call falling in love has to do with an attraction that is based on the quality and number of the love ingredients. Around this person I feel safe, I can be myself without pretense. Around this person, I feel protected because my name, reputation, and person will be defended. I feel understood because this person knows the real me while others may only know the superficial. This person makes me feel like I am a King or Queen and my every act or deed is appreciated. I feel supported in my successes and failures, strengths and weaknesses.

When we have all of that, we are loved! It takes your breath away!

Did you know that God loves us that way? His love for us is unconditional. He knows us, understands us, appreciates us, protects and supports us. He has tried to tell us that in many ways.

Therefore, those who want to succeed in marriage should consider how God loves us and draw from it the elements we need to make a checklist to use for our own relationships.

As Christians, we know that the church is the bride of Christ. His love for the church and the church's response should provide us with sufficient rules to follow in creating a successful marriage relationship of our own.

Exposition

This text focuses on God's creation of the institution of marriage.

Genesis chapters one and two give us an overview, then a detailed, slow motion, view of the first marriage. In Genesis, the Father, the son, and Holy Ghost discussed the creation of man. In Genesis 1:26 they said, "Let us make man." In the next verse In Genesis it reads, " So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them."

Chapter 2 starts to rewind the tape a little and shows us how God created "them" by giving us a step by step version of how the man was placed in a deep sleep and woman was formed from a rib from his side. In Genesis 2:23 it is written, "And Adam said, This is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called Woman, because she was taken out of Man."

The institution of marriage was spoken into place when God said in Genesis 2:24 "Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh. "

Genesis Chapter 3 details how the perfect marriage started having problems when the devil interfered in the relations of the perfect family. First, he appealed to Eve's vanity and convinced her to disobey God and ignore her husband's leadership concerning the forbidden fruit. That decision brought trouble in the perfect marriage. Their two sons who had been living perfectly together, developed problems and one killed the other. The remaining son had to leave out on his own, and the entire family had to move out of the garden into less than comfortable conditions.

The creation story gives clear evidence of what happens when a married couple breaks the rules and lets the devil get mixed up in their business.

The Commandments

For marriages to succeed they should follow ten simple commandments.

1. Thou shalt understand what marriage is: Marriage is a union between a male and a female for the purpose of love and procreation. It is a godly order first mentioned in the Bible when it is noted that a man should leave his father and mother and cleave unto his wife and they shall become one flesh. While marriage involves a written contract, it is more than a piece of paper. It is a commitment, witnessed before others, that establishes a blessed relationship. People who united for love, with no possibility of procreation because of sexual orientation, cannot be married in the truest sense of the word because God intended marriage for procreation.

2. Thou shalt accept each other for what each is: Those who marry should not have expectations that hinge on changing the other person. If you marry a "dog", don't be surprised if 10 years later he is still a dog. If she was a "skank" when you married her, she'll probably stay the same unless God intervenes. Don't believe that you have the power to change a person, you can't anyone, God has to do that. We are warned not to be unevenly yoked. If you are a believer and your spouse is not, you are unevenly yoked. One of you will influence the other. Enter a marriage with your eyes wide open, whatever you have will probably be all that you will have, accept each other and lot God do the changing.

3. Thou shalt talk things through: A common flaw of many marriages is the failure to talk things through. Husbands assume that when they tell their wives they are going to buy a new truck, that means they have talked about it. Talking things through means to express the thought and to prayerfully consider the pros and cons of decisions without argument of finger-pointing. That means we discuss whether the new truck fits into our goal as a family? Will it require sacrifices for the family? Is it an essential or toy? Answering questions similar to these indicate talking things through, regardless of the subject matter.

4. Thou shalt trust one another: If you don't trust your life with the person you marry don't marry that person. Trust is the one element of marriage that is the most difficult to replace. It's like Humpty Dumpty. Once it is lost, "All the king's horses and all the king's men can't put Humpty Dumpty back together again." Without trust, there are millions of questions: "Where were you?" "Who were you talking to?" "Who is she and what is she to you?" Trust is based on love and love "thinketh no evil" and always hopes for the best.

5. Thou shalt forgive one another: The ability to say, "I'm sorry" and mean it has saved millions of marriages from falling apart. When a partner has admitted a mistake and asks forgiveness, it should be forgiven. Forgiving does not mean that it is erased from your mind, but it does mean that the error is never brought up again. Since each partner will make hundreds of mistakes over the years, each should be willing to forgive the other.

6. Thou shalt develop a sense of humor: It's a dull relationship that never learns to laugh at a situation. If fact, many marriages have survived because of the abilities of partners to laugh at themselves and to laugh at the situation. A storm that blows away a house and leaves nothing standing but the toilet and a roll of tissue, ought to bring a laugh, even if the loss of the house brings a tear. Stupid things that we are angry about today will be the subject of family jokes as the years pass. Why not laugh about them now?

7. Thou shalt be loyal: Spouses who love each other are faithful to each other. Initially, some think loyalty refers only to sexual matters. However, it also means to be supportive of each other's dreams, goals, and aspiration. Those who are loyal don't trash talk their spouse's dream to others or trample them in private conversations and acts. Love grows when a spouse is loyal both to the dreams and their relationship.

8. Thou shalt be positive: There is nothing more threatening to a marriage that a home that is filled with negativity. Home because hell when all of the conversation is pessimistic, demeaning and fatalistic. Couples should express hope in each other and in the ultimate success of the family. Being positive means to view every situation with the full knowledge that God will flip it to our advantage.

9. Thou shalt be romantic: It is easy to let the fire go out of a marriage. Couples need time together, to enjoy each other's company, aside from all of the troubles of the world, they need alone time. To talk, love, and enjoy each other. At least once or twice each year the couple should plan romantic getaways. Although married they should go out to dinner, enjoy a movie, and or just watch the sunset together. As time passes they should also remember that there "may be snow on the roof, but should still be fire in the stove"- Sex is always appropriate for the married, regardless of their age.

10. Thou shalt not forget the Lord thy God: The old saying is: "The family that prays together, stays together." It is true that a couple that worships God at home and in public develop a sense of Godly purpose and unity before God. Together they also serve God in ministry. Hand in hand they work in the church, serving, witnessing and testifying to the goodness of the Lord. They do not forget God and he does not forget them.

Loving Relationships need God

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that the essential element of any relationship is love. That means you need God because God is love.

While there are a few "Thou Shalt" and "Thou Shalt Nots" that every couple can use as a guide to building better relationships, there is no "Thou Shalt" for inviting the presence of God into a relationship. Inviting God into our lives is not a commandment as it was in Old Testament times, it is an invitation.

Jesus said, "Behold I stand at the door and knock." That means he will not command us to let him in, but he waits to be invited.

When the Love of God comes into a relationship, it's like a teaspoon of sugar in a cup of tea. The more sugar you put in the mix, the sweeter it gets.

The love of God is a powerful sweetener that helps bind broken hearts, heal wounds, and restore lost joy.

Real love is what sweetens the flakes during the years of discovery!

Real love is what makes the tough to swallow experiences in which partners often feel like shredded wheat bearable!

Real love is what makes oatmeal sweet! All snap, crackle, and pop is alright, but we still need a little something sweet!

That's where love comes in! Real love has been demonstrated to us by our Savior himself. He loved us so much that he came and demonstrated that no greater love can a man show than his willingness to lay down his life for his friends.

It's love that transcends time! It doesn't matter whether it's been 30 years or fifty years or a thousand years, he still loves us!

We know he loved us because John said, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life!"

It's a love that was demonstrated on Calvary!

It's a love that proven on an old rugged cross! It's a love renewed when arose from the grave!

No wonder the songwriter wrote, Oh How I love Jesus...because he first loved me!

No.9790-Inspiration

When the world takes a knee

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 1, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "For it is written, As I live, saith the Lord, every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall confess to God." Romans 14:11; "That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth;" Philippians 2:10

Introduction

Have you ever had to get on your knees for anything? There are a variety of reasons that we get on our knees to look for something we have lost. A soldier takes one knee at the graveside of a fallen comrade to show respect. A man takes a knee when he proposes to his bride. A quarterback in a huddle takes a knee to outline a play for the team. Catholics take a knee or Genuflect when they approach the altar. A quarterback will take a knee at the end of a game to stop a play but run out the clock. A punt returner may give a fair catch signal and take a knee rather than try to run back an opening kickoff or punt.

Taking a knee means different things to different people in different situations.

In recent weeks, there has been considerable concern about taking a knee as America watched scores of football players take a knee or refuse to come out of the locker room as the National Anthem was played in protest of President Donald Trump's call for the firing of any athletes who protest the flag or national anthem.

The controversy began last year when San Francisco 49ers quarterback Colin Kaepernick began taking a knee during the National Anthem to protest the American disrespect for people of color, especially as it relates to Police Brutality. It became a national controversy when the President called for firing players who protest while disrespecting the flag or the anthem at the same time.

We've seen protests such as these before. In World War I, it was used to oppose the draft. In 1963, the Jehovah's Witnesses went to Court and won the right not to stand or say the pledge of allegiance. In the early 1960's the anti-war movement led by Jane Fonda refused to stand. In1969, two Black Olympic Medalists stood silently with raised fists during the playing of the anthem.

Even in the Bible, we've seen Prophets like Daniel who was thrown into a den of lions for taking two knees every day. The three Hebrew Boys were thrown into a fiery furnace for refusing to take a knee if it meant accepting the wrongful decrees of the king.

The most unique protest of executive abuse of power was the battle between The Roman Emperor Domitian and the Apostle John. Domitian was tremendously egotistical, was known for firing or killing those around him who did not tell him how great he was. He liked to build buildings and shocked the world of his time by putting his name on everything. He even built a tower and put his name on it. He had a fascination with his hair and was rumored to wear a wig. He often imposed his personal beliefs on the people in daily edicts (tweets) and made threats to anyone who did not share his belief. Domitian even built a 25-foot statue of himself and had it placed in the temple and called himself a god. When John preached against Emperor worship and championed the cause, Domitian began the second great persecution of Christians, remembering what Nero did 12 years earlier and he promised to make Rome Great Again.

Though Domitian boiled him in oil and exiled him to the Isle of Patmos, John refused to bow to Domitian, but instead joined the other Gospel Writers who declared that at the name of Jesus every knee shall bow and every tongue will confess that Jesus Christ is Lord.

As Christians, we are committed to humble ourselves before our Lord and Savior. We humbly bow before him and dedicate our lives to his service.

Exposition

These texts reflect on two passages in which the Apostle Paul gave instruction about bowing before the eminence of God.

The two texts seem to repeat the same truth until we look at them closely.

In Philippians 2:10 Paul says, "That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth." The active word in this text is "should." It lays out the probability that when it comes to accepting Christ and his teachings about righteousness, repentance, and Judgment to come, every living thing on earth, above the earth or below the earth should take a knee and acknowledge God first and foremost.

If Jesus says, "Thou shall" then the rest of the world should take a knee and obey.

If Jesus says, "Thou shalt not" then the rest of the world should take a knee in obedience.

The word "should" indicates that in this life there will always be those who choose to rebel against Christ and defy him. This is the same "should" that is used in John 3:16 "For God so loved the world that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." The operative phrase, "Should not" implies that there will be many who will hear the gospel message and see the glorious works of God and refuse to take a knee for him.

In Romans 14:11, the operative word is not should but "shall." Here, Paul makes a projection or prophecy about the coming world order in which the Word of God and the Eminence of the Savior will be respected by all. It says, "For it is written, As I live, saith the Lord, every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall confess to God."

The word "shall" leaves no room for deviation. It means that Christ's rule as Lord of Lords and King of Kings will be respected by all. That will be the day that the whole world takes a knee and bows to the sovereignty of God.

That will be the day that the wicked will cease from troubling and the weary will truly be at rest!

When to take a knee

In scripture, there are at least types of situations in which believers are expected to take a knee. Each "take a knee" situation has a different meaning and a different expected outcome.

GOD'S JUDGMENT CAN FORCE US TO TAKE A KNEE: There are times when we stray so far, that God has to pull us aside and force us to take a knee. The Prophet Amos delivered God's judgment to Israel because 1)The country was becoming less Godly and had forgotten him(2:10); 2. Had begun to oppress and neglect the poor while enriching the greedy (2:6;5:11); 3. The system of justice was corrupt, twisted and depraved (5:10;12-15);4. They were dishonest in their business dealings (8:5-6); and 5. Their worship was superficial and empty. Amos told Israel that it would be brought to its knees as a nation until it repented for its sinful ways. He projected that God would restore righteousness and a day would surely come when "justice will run down like waters and righteousness, like a mighty stream."

Today, many of the conditions that existed in Amos' day still exist. God's judgment remains the same, if we do not repent, he will bring us to our knees. The challenge is for more believers to speak up and break their silence against injustices. Using whatever venues that are available we should: Take a knee to rape, murder, violence, lawlessness, and black on black crime. There will be those who ridicule and ostracize you for doing so, but you have to do what you must do.

Just as he did in biblical times, God has chosen ordinary people to make his pronouncements. No one really knew them before they challenged the injustices, but when a young pastor in Alabama challenged the system and told of his dream, he was catapulted into the public eye. When a backup quarterback, not the star of the team, decided enough was enough, God raised his voice until now millions are focused on the injustices.

Those who take-a-knee in defiance of injustice, don't expect to be popular, know they will suffer and don't ask for any pity. When Amos told the kings of Israel to take a knee, he was tortured to death by the king, but his defiance could not be silenced. Dr. King was assassinated, but his dream lives on. The football player sacrificed his career, but the world is paying attention. If you choose to take a knee, expect pushback, and receive it without apology.

WE MAY BE ASKED TO STAND UP WHEN OTHERS BOW DOWN: There are times when believers may be called upon to stand when others are bowing down and accepting things as they are. The Three Hebrew Boys were among thousands of men who had been brought to Babylon and were being taught to reject the teachings of God. They were being retrained to be leaders in government. Their names were changed from Hananiah—The grace of the Lord; Mishael—He that is the strong God;

Azariah—The Lord is a help; to Shadrach—The inspiration of the sun, which the Chaldeans worshipped; Meshach—Of the goddess Shach, under which name Venus was worshipped; Abed-nego, The servant of the shining fire, which they worshipped also." They did not accept the new names, the food that was given them from the king's table, or their religion. When the king built a golden image, a symbol of his nation, and commanded all of his subjects to bow and pay tribute to it, the Three Hebrew Boys refused because God's second commandment forbids pledging allegiance to anyone other than God himself. Their defiance meant they would face the fiery furnace. Although all others, by the thousands took a knee and bowed, they chose not to follow suit. They were thrown into the fiery furnace, and God showed up to protect them.

Even today, believers must be willing to stand up for what's right, even though all of those around us are taking a knee. Everyone else may steal, cheat, lie or engage in lawlessness, but we should say, not our family. Everyone else may say it's acceptable to live loosely, have sex without marriage or to engage in homosexual or lesbian activity, but not our family. Everyone else may allow the society to change our names from lady and Ma'am to H's and B's, from gentlemen and men to dogs and N's, but not our family. We will not bow to the growing trends no matter how popular. We will either stand for something, or we will fall for anything. In this respect, we will not take a knee.

Take-Two Knees

Finally, brothers and sisters, there is one other time when we should take a knee, that's when we kneel before the almighty God.

This is a situation when we don't take "a" knee, but we come before God on two knees.

When drug abuse is growing out of control, and nothing seems to stop its growth, that's a two-knee situation.

When murders are becoming so commonplace that we become immune to its effect, that's a two-knee situation

When black-on-black crime is ignored while police-on-black abuses are elevated, that's a two-knee situation.

When Daniel looked around and saw the tragic conditions of the people, he instantly recognized it was a two-knee situation. Every day Daniel prayed to the only power that could address the problem. Even as he prayed, there were many who wanted him dead because he prayed. He was thrown into a Lion's Den, but God showed up and showed out.

There is power in prayer, and there is power in the name of Jesus. The word teaches that there is no other name whereby we must be saved, it's the name of Jesus!

There are many who changed their names and became great names in the world, but we don't bow to them, because there is a name…

Curtis Jackson became, 50 cent; but we don't bow to his name.

Terrie Bolea became, Hulk Hogan, but we don't bow to his name.

Norma Baker became, Marilyn Monroe, but we don't bow to her name

Annie Mae Bullock became, Tina Turner, but we don't bow to her name

Caryn Johnson became, Whoopi Goldberg; but we don't bow to her name

Eldrick Woods became, Tiger Woods, but we don't bow to his name

Chad Butler became, Pimp C; but we don't bow to his name

Micheal King, became Martin Luther King, but we don't bow to his name

Calvin Brodaus became, Snoop Dog, but we don't bow to his name

His name may be on towers and hotels around the world, but we don't bow to the name of Donald J. Trump.

But there is a name before which we should bow....

There is a name that reaches beyond the narrow confines of my loneliness and brings me comfort!

There is a name that reaches below my deepest failure and guides me to success!

There is a name that transcends my weakness and brings me strength.

It's the name of Jesus!

At the name of Jesus, every knee shall bow!

At the name of Jesus, every tongue shall confess

No wonder the song writer declared, "There is a name I love to hear. I love to sing its worth. It sounds like music in mine ear, the sweetest name on earth. Oh how I love Jesus. Oh, How I love Jesus. Because he first loved me."

He loved me so much that He hung out on Calvary!

He loved me so much that died for my sins!

But early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave with all power!

All power in His hands!

No.9791-Men

A Man of Understanding

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 9, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "And by the good hand of our God upon us, they brought us a man of understanding, of the sons of Mahli, the son of Levi, the son of Israel; and Sherebiah, with his sons and his brethren, eighteen;" Ezra 8:18

Introduction

Have you ever met a person who was hard to understand things? It's really frustrating to try to explain a situation to a person who is not capable of grasping the gravity of the moment. This is the individual with limited personal experience and only sees life through the prism of the moment. As you try to speak to him about what is happening to the forest, he cannot understand something that grand because he only sees the trees.

Understanding is a great virtue. Unfortunately, everyone doesn't have understanding; they can't see the whole picture.

While there are some who don't understand and others who can't understand, there are also those who don't want to understand, because we are not interested. Consider the man whose wife is continuously irritated because he forgets important things. He forgot her birthday. He forgot their wedding anniversary. He forgot Valentines. He forgot Mother's Day. Frustrated at him she yelled, "You remember the names and stats of dozens of football players', you remember the telephone number of your first girlfriend, you remember the vehicle identification numbers of every car you've ever own owned, you remember safe combinations, security codes, lottery numbers, and a dozen online passwords, it makes me feel bad that you can't remember things that should be important to us!"- The man, who never looked up from his favorite television program, said, "You just gave the answer, and you don't understand, yet" -She didn't get the point, what was important to her was not important to him.

When a man understands, he knows what is important and what is not.

A Godly man knows the importance of having a God-centered life. A man who understands the quality of life is a gem. In God's hands, he can do miraculous things.

As Christians, we desire to understand God's purpose for our lives. When we know that purpose we strive to live true to its meaning and divine calling. A woman who finds a man of understanding finds a Godly husband and a father for her children.

Exposition

This text focuses on the prophet Ezra's effort to recruit men to serve God at the restored temple in Jerusalem.

The people of Judah spent many years in exile in Babylon. After decades, Nehemiah was allowed to return to rebuild the walls, and it later fell upon Ezra to return to Jerusalem with soldiers and resources to restore the worship of God in their traditional way.

Ezra met with leaders of the families and made an appeal for each tribe to send people home with him to help restore the temple operations. Ezra needed laborers and people of all walks of life to help in this work. He required laborers, singers, porters, artisans and many others to assist in the formidable task of rebuilding the Jewish nation and restoring true worship in the temple.

Ezra and the three special family heads were able to recruit a large number of people from the 12 major families. In all, 1,511 men made the commitment to return to Jerusalem. Adding in Ezra and the three special family heads brought the total number of men recruited to 1,515. When the women and children were added to the list, there were probably about 5,000 exiles returning with Ezra. This was a much smaller number than the 50,000 who had returned about 80 years earlier under Zerubbabel's leadership.

When the final reports came in, there were men from 11 of the tribes, but there were no men from the tribe of Levi. In essence, in a Christian comparison, there were no preachers, deacons, stewards or others from the ecclesiastical circles. Despite the appeal, it appeared that many Jews had become comfortable in their routine in Babylon. They attended the Sabbath meetings in meeting places, probably synagogues and enjoyed the comfort of their regular routine. Returning to Jerusalem meant sacrifices, and it meant stepping out of their comfort zones. Most of the Levites refused to come to perform their ancestral duties.

The call went out again to seek volunteers among the Nethinims or ancestral helpers around the temple. Although they were not Levites, several among these men came forth. They secured 38 Levites from two families—18 from Sherebiah's family and 20 from Jeshaiah's relatives—as well as 220... temple servants. Only then was Ezra ready to start on the critical journey. Without the Levite teachers of the Law and people to serve at the temple all would be lost and the trip futile.

The men who came forth were described as men of understanding. Although not officially ordained for the service by birth, 220 servants with great understanding stepped forth to help.

Ezra needed men to serve the temple, and a small number of men of understanding came forth. This small number, in the hands of God, was sufficient for the work.

Is there a man who understands?

Like Ezra's call for men to come forth, today the church needs men of understanding to come forth.

A MAN WHO UNDERSTANDS THE WORK OF THE CHURCH: As men diminish in service in church congregations, there is still a need for men who understand the work of the church; they may not come from the traditional ranks, but they understand the work. They understand the formidable task of the church. No greater mission exists than the one assigned to the church, that of taking the gospel of salvation to the world and of meeting the needs of people. People are lost and without hope, for they are separated from God. They do not know that salvation comes only through the Lord Jesus Christ, that no person can approach and become acceptable to God except through His Son.

The men who come forth don't need any credentials, college degrees or certificates. However, they do need to know the Lord and understand the mission of the church. They don't need a Bachelor of Arts Degree, but they will need at B.A. -They need to be born again.

If they are born again, they will understand the need to reach out to the lost, and the hurting who are in desperate need. If they have an understanding, they will feel compelled to assist the suffering our people. They will understand our trials, feel the burden of our hardships, and the overwhelming attraction of our temptations.

Is there a man in the sound of my voice who understands this need? You may not be a school teacher, doctor, lawyer or preacher, but you understand the work of the Lord. If so, will you answer like the prophet Isaiah, who was a simple man with no unique gifts, but responded to his understanding of the great work by saying, "Here am I Lord, send me."

A MAN WHO UNDERSTANDS THE LANGUAGE: Ezra selected the ordinary synagogue workers to come forth and help with the work, but they had to understand the language of God. Many people may not be scholars, but they know how to talk to God, and they understand what he says to them. They also know the language of of ordinary people. They how to understand how they speak with their mouths and in other ways.

Among African-American church folks there is a body language that must be understood, especially in the church. A pastor may make a recommendation that is unpopular and receives no opposition in the congregation. Not one soul will speak against the idea, but the smart man watches for the unspoken language, the one they communicate in the hallways and bathrooms, spoken privately to each other. The other language shown but rarely spoken is the one that is reflected in the offering plate. A man of understanding knows that people show their approval of an action through the offering plate. It speaks loudly.

That's why the church needs men who understand the language of the congregation, the pastor, and most of all understand how to listen to God and understand what he says. Just as we understand the body language of our parents, who speak with a frowning eye that can pin a child to his seat or a raised finger or a tilt of the head, a man who understands, can know when God is pleased or displeased with our actions.

Is there a man in the sound of my voice who understands the language of God, pastor, and the people? You may not be a man of high position in the community, in fact, you may be a regular laborer, but you clearly understand God, and you understand people. If so when you hear the call will you respond, “Here am I Lord, send me?”

A MAN UNDERSTANDS HOW TO TRUST GOD: The men Ezra selected were not the smartest men in the nation, but they were men who understood the importance of trusting God. Men who believe God are free of anxiousness. Philippians 4: 6-7 says, “Do not be anxious about anything, but in everything, by prayer and petition, with thanksgiving, present your request to God. Then the peace of God, which transcends all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus.” Those who understand how to trust God are given something greater than their understanding itself, it is peace with God. The church needs men who can trust God and act fearlessly for him. Those who do not trust God are constantly uneasy because they worry about the outcome of situations.

What if? becomes their constant worry.

What if it doesn’t go as planned?

What if an obstacle gets in our way?

What if we fail?

The church needs men who do not worry about people will say if the church does not instantly succeed in a specific program. They understand how to trust and do not fear a possible negative result. Those who distrust God worry about the outcome of a situation, those who trust him know that regardless of the outcome, it will be for church’s good and according to the will of God. They understand that the word teaches us that All things work for the good of them who love the Lord and are following his purpose in life. Millions of believers have experienced this truth. God works out the situations that are entrusted to him for our advantage.

Men who understand how to trust God live by the general rule: “If you are going to worry, don’t ask for Gods help. If you ask for Gods help, don’t worry.”

Is there a man within the sound of my voice who understands what it means to completely trust God? You may not come from a family known for producing leaders or be the product of training academies, but you are willing to learn what you need to know as you act on the one thing you do know, and that’s how to trust God. If so, can you answer, “Here am I send me?”

Men who know God

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must not forget that if ever there was a time when our community needs Black men to understand and know God that time is now!

Men are desperately needed. Even today, many listening to the sound of my voice should know that they are needed now. Some among us right now need to make a commitment to the Lord, surrendering our lives to become laborers for Christ. As never before, we need to bear strong witness to the saving power of Jesus Christ and to reach out in compassion to those who are in desperate need.

The word of God has made the appeal:

“And he saith unto them, Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men” (Mt.4:19).

“Then saith he unto his disciples, The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few; Pray ye, therefore, the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers into his harvest" (Mt.9:37-38).

The Lord needs men who understand his word and his mission.

The Lord needs men trust him and know the work of the church.

No man should become so comfortable in the pursuit of his career that he has little time or interest in the things of God.

A man in business for himself, soon finds that he can't succeed in the business world unless God sends the customers!

A man climbing the corporate ladder, soon finds that he can't maintain his upward climb without the Blessings of the Lord!

A man striving to lead a family soon finds that his job is made much easier when he and the Lord are on good terms! It doesn't matter whether you are male or female, everyone needs a blessing every now and then!

When we need a blessing, it is good to know the voice of God! When we know the voice of God, we hear him ask, Where art thou?

But if we listen closely we can also hear him ask: Do you need anything? That's when we answer, The Lord is my shepherd, and I shall not want!

Sometimes the question may be: Adam, are you afraid? And we answer is, "The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear. The Lord is the strength of my life of whom shall I be afraid?"

Godly man, why are you looking down? And we answer, "I'll lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help, my help cometh from the Lord who made the heavens and the earth!"

Godly man, why are you sad because you don't have all the resources you want? That's when he remembers, "I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread."

Godly man, why are you worried? That's when the men of our generation rise to sing, "Why should I be discouraged, why should the shadows come? Why should my heart be lonely and long for heaven and home? For Jesus is my portion, a constant friend is he! His eye is on the sparrow, and I know he watches me!"

The first Adam was in the garden hiding behind a tree, but the last Adam stretched out wide on a tree!

The first Adam was hiding from God, but the last Adam was raised up high for all men to see!

The first Adam disobeyed God, but the last Adam said, not my will but thy will be done!

He died out on Calvary! But Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

Man of Understanding, where art thou?

Where art thou?

No.9792-Revival

Fake News, Real News and the Good News

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 8, 2017

SCRIPTURE: How beautiful on the mountains are the feet of the messenger bringing good news, Breaking the news that all's well, proclaiming good times, announcing salvation, telling Zion, "Your God reigns!" Isaiah 52:7

Introduction

Have you ever read a really eye-popping news story only to learn later that it wasn't true? Have you seen a video of a newscast on social media that revealed facts that were never reported before, only to learn that the so-called facts were not facts at all? If you have, then you have been exposed to what has been generously called, "Fake News."

"Fake News" is all over the news, especially on Facebook and Twitter. In September, Mark Zuckerburg, CEO of Facebook reported that persons connected with the Russian government bought $100,000 worth of ads on Facebook supporting Donald Trump and opposing Hilliary Clinton's candidacy for president. Some of the ads cited statistics or information that was fake, but it was delivered in a way that sounded true. On the heels of the Facebook announcement, Twitter announced that thousands of "Fake News" tweets were sent to 12 states that ultimately voted for President Donald Trump and may have contributed to his election.

"Fake News" is often hard to detect because it looks real. There is a new website called "ifaketextmessages.com" that allows you to create fake text messages between you and a person of your choice, using their name, and photo information. You can then screenshot it and save it to your phone to prove to others that you had a text conversation with someone. It's fake, but most people won't know it.

The only way that anyone can avoid being duped by Fake News is to consider the source of information. Is it from sources known to exercise reasonable judgment before releasing a news account? If it's a national news account is it being reported by any of the well-known news agencies; there are hundreds of them? Have the claims been fact checked?

Every news media has a slant, but most adhere to some level of credibility in their reporting. CNN and MSNBC are known to be liberal news agencies. Their reports of the facts will always have a left-leaning slant. Fox News is a known conservative news outlet. It reports the same news, but with a conservative slant.

It's generally not a good idea to depend on one source alone for your news information, compare all accounts and somewhere in between lies the truth.

If we are not careful, the devil can hack into your life and make you change your direction, with fake news. If someone tells you that you don't need education or training to be a success, you know that's fake news, but thousands drop out of school every year. If someone says that poor children can't learn or achieve because of their background, that's obviously fake news, but thousands give up on their dreams because they believe the news. It is fake news that you cannot succeed or be happy in these tough times.

The good news, which is real news, is that Jesus Christ came and died and rose again after three days and nights to pay the price for our mistakes

There is nothing fake about it.

As Christians, we rejoice in the good news that Jesus loved the world so much that he gave up his life to give us one more chance. That's not fake news, its good news; and it's real.

Exposition

This text focuses on the Prophet Isaiah as he announces that Israel's fate is not entirely lost, but can be restored.

The people of God had strayed away from him, not individually, but as a nation. Little by little, they abandoned the truths of Godliness and appropriated the beliefs or non-beliefs of those around them. When the prophets announced that God was angry and would punish the nation for its sins, the skeptics declared it was fake news. God would never destroy a country he had so carefully guarded, protected, and blessed.

When the original prophecies were given, all of the things people did not want to hear were dismissed as fake news, but every single prophecy about the destruction of both Israel and Judah came true.

Beginning at chapter 40 however, the pronouncements took a different tone, the idea of revival, renewal, and restoration was preached, in which the people were told that despite their punishment for sin, God would help them find restoration.

In Isaiah 61:1 the prophet announced that bringing this "good news" was his mission, "Isaiah 61:1 "The Spirit of the Lord GOD is upon me; because the LORD hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek; he hath sent me to bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound;" It is the same text the Jesus read in the temple when he announced the beginning of his ministry.

In the New Testament the word for "good news" is "Gospel." The Gospel is the good news God is merciful and that despite our sinful ways he has sent his son to lead us back to a oneness with him.

The Good News is that "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life."

That's good news.

The Daily News

Today we must be ever vigilant because we are surrounded by fake news, especially when it comes to matters of faith.

IT IS FAKE NEWS TO EXPECT HEAVEN WHEN YOU LIVE AN UNREPENTANT HELLISH LIFE: Many believe they can live a hellish life, without God, and still make it to heaven. They think God is such a loving God that when it comes to the final judgment that he will show them mercy, even if they don't repent, straighten up and fly right. That's fake news. It is true that your past can be forgiven, but without repentance and redemption, it is impossible to be saved. Hell is a real place, that is not fake news. It is reserved for Satan and all of his followers.

Those who waste the lives outside of Christ usually put themselves through living hell. Jesus said those who involve themselves in activities that are destructive, counter the goals of the kingdom of God. They are wasteful, of no use and will plunge believers into living hell. If a person rejects the good news of Jesus it means as far as the kingdom of God is concerned, his whole life is wasted, a total loss.He may have won the approval of men,. He may have lived very comfortably, but at the end, his life is a wipe-out, a total loss, good only to be thrown on the garbage heap for eternity.

It's fake news if you believe you can shack up without marriage, and still please God.

It's fake news if you believe you can live a wild life with every Tom, Dick, Harry and Mary and God will understand and give you a place in heaven.

It's fake news if you believe you can sell and use illegal drugs, traffic in stolen goods and live a life that continuously breaks the law and God will smile on you.

It's fake news if you believe you can steal, murder, and rape and God will look the other way.

It's fake news if you believe that you can beat your wife or girlfriend and God will understand that you have anger issues.

Many are living hellish lives who would like to believe that God loves the sinner and their sins. That's fake news. The real news is that God loves the sinner, but he hates the sin. It's like going to Big Mama's House, you are welcome, but all that stuff you doing must stay outside.

Romans 6:23 is the real truth, "For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

IT IS FAKE NEWS IF YOU BELIEVE IT IS TOO LATE: Many believe their lives are so broken that they are beyond repair. They think that they have done so many wrong things, associated with so many evil people, frequented so many places of disrepute that God will never receive them into his presence. They believe their list of sins is so long that they can never be saved - That's fake news.

It is fake news if you believe you have fallen so many times that you can't rise again. You were in the church, but you fell into sin, there is no reason that you can't get back on your feet. The real news is in Proverbs 24:16 that says, "For a just man falleth seven times, and riseth up again: but the wicked shall fall into mischief." Even members of the church fall, but they can rise again.

It is fake news if you believe all church members have records of always living the Christian life. The truth is every member of the church from the preacher to usher at the front door has a history, and when it is told, you'll learn that they have not always tried to do right.

Here's the real news; it's in 1 Corinthians 6:9-11 Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? Be not deceived: neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with mankind, Nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God. And such were some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God.

IT IS FAKE NEWS IF YOU BELIEVE YOU CAN BE SAVED WITHOUT REPENTANCE: Many believe they can make it to heaven if they merely start coming to church and cut back on a few of their sins. So instead of getting nasty drunk and driving home, the get nasty drunk and call Uber. That's better, but it's not repentance. So instead of cheating on your wife with three women, you start going to church with her and only cheat with two women, that's better, but it's not repentance. It's like deciding to lose weight and joining a fitness club, but still eat five pounds of fat and cholesterol every day; joining the club is great, but is not repentance.

When it comes to sin, the only way to sincerely repent is to look at the life you've been living and say to yourself in the words of the prodigal son who looked at his miserable state and said, in Luke 15:18 "I will arise and go to my father, and will say unto him, Father, I have sinned against heaven, and before thee." True repentance comes not when you try to reform yourself or say "I'm going to start coming to church" it comes when you decide that the life you are trying to live is not really carrying you where you want to go and turn from it completely and turn yourself over to God.

To repent you must take the devil out, but most importantly you must put the spirit of God in its place. You can't just stop doing bad things, you have to replace it with a Godly passion for doing right things. Here's what the word of God says, in Matthew 12:43-45 When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man, he walketh through dry places, seeking rest, and findeth none. Then he saith, I will return into my house from whence I came out; and when he is come, he findeth it empty, swept, and garnished.Then goeth he, and taketh with himself seven other spirits more wicked than himself, and they enter in and dwell there: and the last state of that man is worse than the first. Even so shall it be also unto this wicked generation."

The real news is that the only way to be saved is to repent. When you repent, your blackboard is erased. Your hard drive and your system is reset without the bugs, flaws, hacks, and viruses that caused you to crash. The Bible puts it this way, in Acts 3:19 "Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord;

There is Good news

Finally, brothers and sisters, there is a whole lot of good news, that news is God loves us, and no matter what we have done, he will give us a second chance.

The Gospel message is that God is a merciful God and will show mercy to all who will turn to him and abandon their wicked ways.

The good news is that God says in 2 Chronicles 7:14 " If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."

The good news brothers and sisters is that Jesus died and rose from the dead that we may have life and have it more abundantly!

The good news is that when we trust in the Lord, we don't worry about the frustrating turns that the road of life offers! We walk by faith knowing that the Lord will make a way!

The good news is that you might face temptations, but the Lord will deliver you from all evil

The good news is that you might face:

—A Desert, but God will provide an Oasis in the wilderness!

—Hunger, but God will provide a table in the presence of our enemies!

—Unbelievable odds, but God will help us to achieve the impossible

Sometimes the goodness of God seems like fake news to those who doubt.

When Sara heard the good news that she would have a baby although she was 90 years old, it was too good to be true, she thought it was fake news.

When Naaman heard the good news that he would be healed of leprosy if he took seven baths in muddy water, it was too ridiculous to be true, he thought it was fake news

When Isaiah heard the good news that his unclean lips would be used to prophesy for the Lord, he thought it was unthinkable, he dismissed it as fake news then said, "Here am I send me."

When we think about how God has taken our own sinful lives and given us new chances, we say like Isaiah 53:1 "Who hath believed our report? And to whom is the arm of the LORD revealed?"

The good news is that Christ has come that we might have life and have it more abundantly.

It's the same good news that Phillip told the Ethiopian in the chariot and he asked, "What hinders me from being baptized."

It's the same good news Jesus told the woman at the well, and she ran through the streets saying, "Come see a man who told me all I've ever done!"

We are living in tough dangerous times, but thank God there is good news!

The good news is Jesus! Do you know him?

He was born in a manger!
He died on an old rugged cross!
He arose after three days and nights!
In tough times like these, we need Jesus!
No wonder the songwriter declared: “In times like these, we need a savior. In times like these, we need an anchor. Be very sure your anchor holds and grips the solid rock!
This rock is Jesus, yes he’s the one!
This rock is Jesus, the only one!
Be very sure! Be very sure!
Your anchor holds and grips the solid rock!

No.9793-Building Fund

It is done, let us rejoice

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 2017

SCRIPTURE:"And the children of Israel, the priests, and the Levites, and the rest of the children of the captivity, kept the dedication of this house of God with joy," Ezra 6:16

Introduction

When you have completed a great work what do you do? If you had recently purchased a home you would have a house warming and invite friends from far and near to see your home and ask the faithful to offer prayers for your home.

If you had completed the building of a ship you would have a launch celebration and christen the new ship by breaking a bottle of champaign on its bow.

If you had finally opened a new facility you would have a ribbon cutting ceremony.

A new business has a grand opening celebration and sale.

When believers have worked hard to completed the hard task of building for the Lord we celebrate as well.

In reality, every day we celebrate our journey as believers, we rejoice. We rejoice because Jesus gave us the grand opportunity to live God centered lives here and even beyond this life. We rejoice because He gave himself as a ransom for our souls!

That's enough reason to celebrate. Its also enough reason to rally ourselves and give thanks to God for His goodness, mercy and loving kindness.

How do we celebrate this kindness from God? We celebrate differently than those of the world.

When believers celebrate important days we must do it the right way. We must celebrate Gods way. We must give him praise, give him our resources and we must give him our contrite spirit.

As Christians, we must let the world know what God has done for us. As we celebrate we should also bring our gifts and repentant spirit before the one who gave himself as a ransom for our souls. Today, let us celebrate the completion of this great work. It is done, let us rejoice.

Exposition

This text focused on the dedication of the temple by Israelites reunited after the exile.

For years ten of the tribes of Israel had been separated from their homeland, taken away about the Assyrians. Once they were able to return home, they were repatriated and restored to their lost fellowship when the temple was restored and dedicated.

Solomon had built a lavish temple in his time that could not be equaled, but it was none-the-less sacred and important. Solomon's temple was dedicated with 22,000 cattle and 120,000 sheep and goats. The new temple was redicated with only 100 bulls, 200 rams, 400 male lambs and just 12 male goats for the sin offering. Scholars conclude that the 12 goats show that the postexilic community still envisioned a unified Israel consisting of all 12 tribes even though only 2 had survived with any strength.

The dedication consisted of demonstrations of the liveliest joy. The aged who had wept at the laying of the foundation were most, if not all of them, now dead; and all rejoiced at the completion of this national undertaking.

They celebrated because the building was an act of unity. The persons employed in this service were not only the priests and Levites who officiated, but the children of Israel, some of each of the twelve tribes, though Judah and Benjamin were the chief, and the rest of the children of the captivity or transportation.

The dedication was joyful because they were all glad to see the temple completed. Whatever we dedicate to God, let it be done with joy that he will please to accept of it.

Just as the returned exiles joyed and rejoiced in the Lord, so we are to joy and rejoice in Him who has loved us and given Himself for us.

Why we are rejoicing

There are many reasons we are rejoicing today! There are many reasons our hearts are on fire with praise. We rejoicing because:

GOD NEVER LEFT US: The struggle to complete this task has been great, we have made it this far because God was with us all the way. That's we are rejoicing because God has never left us. The undeniable truth about God is that while conditions changed along the way God did not change. He did not change then and he is the same today. We are rejoicing because He is still God.

In all our frustrations making it to this point he was there for us, lifting us, encouraging us and pushing us to go further.

And better yet, no matter where we turn today, he's still there!

Look at the stars they're still there! There is still a sense of order and purpose in God's creation!

Look at the moon it is still there! There is a still a calm sense of God's watchful eye over us at night!

Look at the sky, it is still there! It still forms a canopy over us to protect us, shower us and provide a thin veil through which we occasionally glimpse the heavens!

That's why we rejoice and lift our hands in praise because through it all, through every trial and test God was there for us.

The scripture says, "And the ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads: they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away" (Isa. 35:10).

He never left us alone and we are rejoicing about it today.

HE ANSWERED OUR PRAYERS: We are rejoicing because God not only answered our prayers he granted our prayer request. We know that God always answers prayers, with a yes or a no or a wait a while. But it is so exciting when he answers our prayers with a "Yes." We can't hold our peace when he gives our work his divine blessing and begins to shovel away the opposition.

God has been faithful in his promise to open doors for us and to make opportunities for the abundant life available to true believers. As we celebrate today we bear witness that his promise is true.

As we reflect upon this milestone we see that God has given us exactly what we prayed for. He has kept his word. Like Jabez, we have experienced expanded their boundaries to the point that over joyed at God's benevolence.

As God blessed us he not only made this task possible, but he also blessed us personally along the way. While undertaking this task there are many who have experienced stronger family relationships, personal increase and stronger faith.

We are rejoicing today because God has truly answered our prayers.

WE REJOICE OVER THIS MILESTONE, BUT WE REJOICE OVER TRUE FOUNDATION: Today we are happy because we have completed this work, but the work founded on our faith in Jesus Christ. He is the foundation of our hope and dreams. He is our reason for doing all that we do. What we celebrate is not our work, but his work through us because he is our true foundation.

We should also celebrate our journey and give thanks to God for his mercy.

The Israelite's celebrated their journey by the giving of special offerings and renewing their pledges of faithfulness to God. We should do the same.

They celebrated their journey by giving thanks. We should do the same.

Let our celebration today be filled with thanksgiving!

Let our celebration today give thanks to God for the seen and the unseen.

Let's thank for a few personal thing too! We are going to eat and fellowship today, so let's thank him.

Thank him for the greens and butter beans, and for being able to sleep soundly at night.

Thank him for turkey and dressing, and for dressing our souls with his grace.

Thank him for fried chicken, rice and a little gravy, and for spiritual gravy: Joy, love, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, faith, meekness, and temperance.

In essence, we should keep the admonition in mind, In everything, give thanks, for Jesus is the true foundation and source of our blessing.

There is no way we could have made this journey without the help the Lord has given us.

Rejoice about Jesus

Finally, brothers and sisters, as we commemorate, rededicate and celebrate, we must tell the world that this part of the work may be done, but in the midst of these fearful times, there still much more to do.

We shall go forward confident that the church is built on Christ, a sure foundation; he is the chief cornerstone

The Tabernacle of the Old Testament was built on a foundation made of the silver sacrifices of 600,000 men.

There has never been a record of the Tabernacle falling down.

It withstood windstorms, sandstorms and rain!

For all of the years of Israels journey it never fell once, because it was pitched on a sure foundation.

We rejoice that this work is done, but we are getting reading for the next great work because God is building his kingdom.

God is building a heavenly kingdom, in which each saint is a living stone and a living sacrifice. The kingdom of God, though built with living stones, must have a cornerstone.

The cornerstone is the foundation upon which the kingdom is built.

The corner piece of the kingdom of God is the same stone that the builders rejected!

The corner stone of our hope is not made of bricks or mortar.

The corner stone of our trust cannot be affixed to the edge of a building!

The corner stone of our faith is the substance of our hope!

I don't know what the tomorrow will bring, but I know what God has done in the past. I know what God is doing right now!

I do not know how long it will be or what the future holds for me, but this I know, if Jesus leads me, I will get home someday!

It doesn't matter what the future brings as long as the Lord is on our side! If the Lord is on our side there will never be a:

—CROSS that we won't be able to bear; MOUNTAIN that we won't be able to climb!

—ENEMY that we won't be able to defeat; BATTLE we won't be able to win!

—DARKNESS so dark that we won't be able to see the light!

—TRIAL that we can't make it through; TEST that we won't be able to pass!

The Lord is the justification for my faith!

The Lord is the chief corner stone of my hope!

I heard the song writer declare The only hope we have is in Christ Jesus. Confusion is great in the world today. Persecution my come with such a heavy weight but we have this hope and it's in Jesus!

Jesus, somebody here today knows him!

Jesus, the Lily of the valley!

Jesus, the Bright and Morning star!

Who said to his father, there is work to be done!

He came through 42 generations and went up to Calvary

Hanging on the cross, he said to his father

It is finished!

It is done, salvation has been secued!

It is done, reconciliation has been achieved
He died on Calary, but Early Sunday morning he arose
With all power in his hands,
It is done, let us rejoice!

No. 9795-Anniversary

He has shown us the way
Let us move forward in faith

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 15, 2017

Scripture: "Teach me thy way, O LORD; I will walk in thy truth: unite my heart to fear thy name." Psalm 86:11 As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him: Rooted and built up in him, and stablished in the faith, as ye have been taught, abounding therein with thanksgiving." Colossians 2:6-7

Introduction

When the church steps out on the word of God, is there any limit to its possibilities?When those who believe in the power of God ban together as one solid unit that is rooted in Him, sustained by Him and directed by Him, there is no limit to its potential.
When the church is on one accord, it can move mountains of frustration and achieve what others think is impossible.

A praying church can do more than anyone suspects. Consider the church that conducted a two-month prayer vigil in which each member was asked to pray without ceasing for two months for something they really wanted in God's will. A little boy in the church decided to pray that he would have a baby brother. When he told his dad, his father took his cue from the church's prayer vigil and said, "Son, if you pray every day for two months, I guarantee God will give you a baby brother." Excited, the boy began his prayer vigil, asking God for a baby brother. After a month had passed, he heard other boys talking and learned that no one has ever been able to get a baby brother in two months. So, with only a few days left in his two-month prayer vigil, the boy stopped praying. On the last day of the second month, the boy's mother was rushed to the hospital. When the father and son entered her hospital room, the mother was in bed with a bundle lying next to her. When the boy pulled back the blanket, he found not one little boy but three boys! The father looked at his son and said, "Aren't glad you prayed?" But looked the babies and counted them, then said,"Yeah, but aren't you glad that I stopped praying when I did?"

Wonderful things happen when the church decides to prayerfully move forward with the vision of Christ beaming in the horizon.

We must hold on just as our fore parents held on. We must march forward, just as those before us marched. If we feel weak along the way, we must remember that "help is on the way."

The world asks a penetrating question about this little community that has been witnessing for this many years. It begs the same question asked in the biblical record, "Can any good thing come out of Nazareth?"

We answer by saying that for all these years this church has brought forth God-fearing men and women who have made a difference.

Look at the miraculous things that we have done with little or no resources. Whether it is the brick and mortar building in which we worship or the ministries that we do in the community, God has done mighty things among the people through this congregation.

This is the community from whose womb many great minds have come forth. As we celebrate the history of this church, in a greater sense we also celebrate the victory of every believer around the world.

As Christians, we are determined to walk in love and in unity of purpose. The God we serve will never forsake us, and we will never forsake Him as we boldly move into each new horizon of ministry.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he writes to the Christians at Colossae to continue their unified walk in Christ.

The church at Colossae was one that reflected many of the struggles of the Gentile believers. The gentile world was surrounded by many philosophical ideas that kept them meandering in and out of the faith. In one instance the church dealt with mystery cults, and in another it was mysticism. From Gnosticism to Qumran style Judaism, the church at Colossae found itself debating how all of these beliefs related to its own experience.

Paul wrote to the Colossians as the elder statesman of the church, but he had never visited them or seen them personally. His word of encouragement to them was simple: keep focused on the main reason you became Christians, faith in Christ. He urged them to walk in Christ, remain rooted and built up in Him and to maintain the faith.

Moreover, Paul encouraged believers to continue their faith walk with the same commitment and determination they showed when they first came to Christ. Colossians 2:6 says, "As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him:" Simply put Paul encouraged the Colossians not to turn away from Christ, or to dream of going beyond him." Their power and effectiveness would come from keeping a clear vision of Christ in front of them.

Moving Forward

Today believers should apply three principles to our current circumstance. We should move forward in Christ in three areas:

MOVE FORWARD WITH VISION OF CHRIST: The church must remain unified in its knowledge and understanding of Christ and his vision of the world. The vision of the church united and glorified must be crystal clear in the mind of each member as the church marches forward. Sharing the same vision is important, just as it is important for a man and wife to share the same vision, it is also important for believers to share Christ's vision for the church. It is that vision that helps us march forward in confidence. We don't know the way, but we constantly have God to show us the way.

Every now and then we ask the Lord....show me the way. Doctor Watts put it this way "Guide me o thou great Jehovah, pilgrim in this barren land, I am weak but thou art mighty, hold me in thou powerful hand."

The church is the instrument that God has used to bring forth "HIS" blessing to God's people.

The church is not a building, but an assembly of baptized believers in Christ. Yet, God has used the assembly of believers in ways that have brought forth his favor.

Our people have been blessed because of the church, the Old Ship of Zion.

We have worshipped under brush arbors and abandoned sawmills.

We have lifted our voices to God in empty barns with sawdust floors.

We have praised Him in the chill of winter with logs burning in huge heated stoves.

We have sweltered, without air conditioning, in the humid and scorching heat of a thousand summers.

Yet, God has used our feeble assembly, worship and praise experiences to bring forth His "water" in a thirsty land.

Through the church God has shown us the wisdom of Christ and that wisdom has deepened our trust and faith in Him.

Through the church, God has raised our bowed down heads and lifted our broken spirits.

No wonder the songwriter thought of the church and declared, "Tis the old, Ship of Zion. She has landed many a thousand. King Jesus is the captain. Get on board. Get on Board."

MOVE FORWARD IN KINGDOM WORK: Paul urged the church to continue to move forward with their efforts to build the kingdom. That same command must be received by the church today. The church must move forward to pursue the work of Christ which is saving souls and reaching out to the world with a hand of compassion. There are great needs to be addressed. There is a growing epidemic of violence in our neighborhoods. We must address that violence, certainly through prayer, but also through a structure response. The church must teach parenting skills to young parents so that they will come to see how violence starts. Violent video games, television shows and movies teach children how to shoot, kill, rob and steal. We have the work of teaching non-violence, first at home, then in the community.

We must be about the work of responding to unemployment by the creation of business opportunities and teaching investment skills. We must respond to homelessness, domestic abuse and voter ignorance in our communities. We can't keep looking back, we must move forward. We seek to save souls because we ourselves have been saved. Today, many believers are ministers, deacons, deaconesses, and prominent church personalities. That has not always been the case. There have been changes. That's why 1 Corinthians 6:11 says, "And such were some of you:, but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God." That's a result of the forgiveness of Christ. Even more have been touched by the mercy and compassion of Christ as the church reaches out to help the less fortunate and to respond with love and compassion to the needs of people.

MOVE FORWARD IN THE WORSHIP OF CHRIST: We must resist all temptations to detour to other paths and remain firm in our worship of Christ. We cannot afford the luxury of jumping from one denomination or another, here and there, hit and miss. We must not fall for religious pimps who are hustling us out of our money, property and faith in the name of God. God does not want you to by a Rolls Royce for the preacher! He doesn't want you to pay for diamonds around his wife's neck, he wants you to "sell all you have, pick up your cross and follow me." He wants you to invest heavily in kingdom building, saving souls and preparing for his return.

Real worship is about praising God for who he is. When we worship we ring a bell that resonates throughout the community and declares that our God is king. When we worship we testify to the importance of God in our lives. In Matthew 5:14 Jesus said, "Ye are the light of the world, a city that sits on a hill that cannot be hidden." When we worship we let our lights shine. When we worship God, we agree with Johann Neethling and, "declare the truth about God's worth, God's honor, God's greatness, and God's love. We declare it to Him, we declare it to host of heaven, and we declare it to all creation."

When we assemble on Sundays each believer says to the world, God is a good God, and we believe it!

As we move, tell the story

Finally, brothers and sisters, as we review where we have been and see the challenges ahead, we must prepare to move forward telling the story of our journey as we go.

Who will march forward into the future telling the story of our past as we hold up the blood-stained banner?

Who will tell the story of how God brought us a mighty long way?

Who will tell the story of our march through hardship and trouble into this present day?

Who will be willing to face tomorrow with confidence and say like Joshua, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord!"

The church at Colossae was encouraged to stay unified in the wisdom of Christ, to walk together as one unit to perform the work of Christ and to maintain its worship of Christ.

Today, the church must do the same. We must go forward committed to telling the world about our risen savior.

We must tell the world of our determination to go forward into the unknown.

I don't know what tomorrow will bring, but I know what God has done in the past.

I know what God is doing right now!

"I do not know how long it will be or what the future holds for me, but this I know, if Jesus leads me, I will get home someday!

It doesn't matter what the future brings as long as we are on the Lord's side! If we move forward on the Lord's side there will never be a:

—CROSS that we won't be able to bear; MOUNTAIN that we won't be able to climb!

—ENEMY that we won't be able to defeat; BATTLE we won't be able to win!

—DARKNESS so dark that we won't be able to see the light!

—TRIAL that we can't make it through; TEST that we won't be able to pass!

As we move forward, we should keep the vision of the He who has saved clear in our mind.

His name is Jesus!

Jesus, somebody here today knows him!

Jesus, the Lily of the valley!

Jesus, the Bright and Morningstar!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary and rose up early Sunday morning!

Move forward in unity and never lose hope. Sing together the words of the old hymn,

"My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame, but wholly lean on Jesus name. On Christ the solid rock I stand...

All other Ground!

All other Ground is sinking sand!

No. 9795-Men

When a Godly Man Speaks

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 2017

SCRIPTURE: "Saying, What shall we do to these men? for that indeed a notable miracle hath been done by them is manifest to all them that dwell in Jerusalem, and we cannot deny it. But that it spread no further among the people, let us straitly threaten them, that they speak henceforth to no man in this name. And they called them, and commanded them not to speak at all nor teach in the name of Jesus. But Peter and John answered and said unto them, Whether it be right in the sight of God to hearken unto you more than unto God, judge ye. For we cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard. Acts 4:16-20

Introduction

Suppose you could find a man who had all of the desirable qualities found in the Bible, would that be a great find? This man would live by the 12 points of the scout law: Trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave clean and reverent. If you could find a man like that wouldn't that be great? Suppose this man also lived by all the tenets of the Bible, wouldn't that be even better?

How tall would he be? What color would you make his eyes? How old would he be? Would he have six-pack abs, bulging biceps, and a barrel size chest? Would he have dazzling bedroom eyes, luscious lips, and a deep, romantic voice?

What about his personality? If he had all of the above but had no money would he be acceptable? Desirable? Loveable?

It seems that every man has something missing from the list. If he has pleasing looks, he doesn't have a job. If he has a job and looks good, he doesn't have a body. If he has a body, job, youth, looks and dazzling eyes, he's not romantic. If he's romantic, he's too short. If he's tall, he can't dance. If he has the perfect package of looks, body, job, attitude, and romance, you might find out that he's gay. There will always be something too long or too short in our search for the perfect man.

The Marine Corps advertises that it is looking for a few good men. But suppose the Marine Corps advertising also said it was looking for Biblical Men, would there be any inductees?

Experience has taught that the measure of a man is not by his shoe size, shirt size and the width of his belt. Neither is it determined by the depth of his wallet or the muscles in his arms. There are characteristics about a real man that often do not appeal to the eye but are evident in his character.

Real men are strong, courageous, loving, sound thinking and god fearing. All of the other attributes are extras that make him even more appealing.

There are not any perfect men in the world, but there are many men who try to live their lives by God's order. He is the man that is described in the Bible as the man who walks not in the counsel of the ungodly or sits in the seat of the scornful. His delight is in the law of the Lord, and he meditates on it day and night

As Christians, we are pleased to know that there are millions of men who are trying to do God's will every day of their lives. They are not perfect men in height, statue, looks or by any external measure, but they are indeed men who love the Lord and strive to do his will.

Exposition

This text focuses on Peter and John testifying about what to expect from Godly Men.

The disciples of Christ preached about his life death and resurrection to all who would hear them. Often they were met with persecution and called to task for performing miracles and doing great works in the name of Jesus. That is the situation in this text.

The religious leaders were afraid that if they continued performing miracles and preaching about Christ that the people would be disturbed to their detriment. They were advised that they should stop witnessing for God. They were told that it would be in their best interest not to be the voice of God among the people. They were also ordered not to teach about Jesus, speak about Jesus or do any work in Jesus' name.

That was a tall order, especially since Jesus himself called men away from their personal pursuits and challenged them to dedicate themselves to the cause of building God's kingdom on earth. As he traveled, he met men of different walks, perspectives, and expectations. He challenged each to follow Him and prepare to change the world. Christ challenged all man he came in contact with to use their secular skills for the glory of God. He used the phrase, "I will make you fishers of men." To do that, men would have to do great works, teach and preach.

Peter and John, responding to the demand for their silence rose to let their voices be heard. They explained why their voices had to speak about the goodness, majesty, and power of God. They said it is impossible for these men or any men who have been witness to the power of God to keep silent.

They said, such men can't help it; they must bear witness to the works of God.

Is there a voice?

In the arena of moral social and economic indifference, is there a voice that is willing to speak truth to power? Is there a man who is immersed in Biblical truth and is bold enough to speak to the crises of our times?

IS THERE A VOICE FOR ECONOMIC INDEPENDENCE? The Biblical man is one who understands that Biblical truths command us to use the talents that we have, invest in their growth and show a benefit. That's why Christ told the parable of the talents. Today, when jobs are scarce, and money is little to nothing, where do Godly men stand? Some have the notion that a man should do anything to feed himself and his family. This is true if by anything it is meant any moral and just thing; that's the path that is chosen by the man who follows God's word.

Too many men are selling drugs, bootlegging movies, compact discs, and stolen merchandise, while involving themselves in a variety of unlawful activities all under the guise of economics. They brush off the illegality of their actions by saying, A man's gotta do, what a man's gotta do.

In spite of hard times, the man who orders his life by the teachings of Christ does not defend crime as an economic necessity. We have lived through wars, slavery, floods, and depressions, but, for the most part, the god-fearing men of our families have refused to steal or involve themselves in wrongdoing in the name of doing what we gotta do.

Godly men don't steal to get money.

Godly men make tough choices to build economic security.

A young boy who claims he's a man but can't force himself to study or complete his education may wear a man's pants, but he's still not a man.

The man who throws his money away gambling, drinking and living large, may have fun, but he's living loosely like a boy and is a far cry from the man he wants to be.

The Godly man knows that the Bible teaches that if we don't work, we don't eat.

Biblical men are bold because we have seen men with little or no resources rise high in the world of business, finance, and economics because they had faith in God, courage and a willingness to work hard.

Is there a voice in this generation that will speak of Jesus as the author and finisher of their faith?

Is there a voice that can demonstrate great works for the youth of this generation, just as Peter and Paul did in our text, that is, in ways that cannot be denied?

This generation needs to hear the economic voice of the Godly man.

IS THERE A VOICE FOR SOUND THINKING?: Today, we are surrounded by a growing number of men whose thinking is unsound. Whether it is the thoughtless tweets of the President or the outrageous threats of the Supreme Leader of North Korea, there are too many who do not listen to our savior. Jesus warns us to be wise and subtle in our actions and to count the cost before we make a commitment. This is the instruction of the man whose life is guided by Biblical teaching.

The Bible encourages men to seek an understanding. It also urges us to seek direction from God. "In all thy ways acknowledge him and he shall direct your path" is a guiding principle of the Biblical man. Without sound thinking we make hasty decisions or react out of an impulse that drives them to destruction in the years to come.

The Greek word in the 2 Timothy 1:7 that is used for sound mind refers to moderation and self-control. It denotes a man of prudence, discretion, and balance. The Biblical man has an element of stability in his life. It stabilizes him and insulates him from making knee-jerk decisions without praying about them. A sound mind is a praying mind that is disciplined in the art of listening to God. Men are not born with sound minds, but as they mature in the faith, God remakes and reshapes their thinking to the point that they no longer act brashly or on impulse without thinking through their decisions. A sober thinking man comes when men focus on pleasing God in all of their actions.

Is there a voice among men that calls for us to reason together? If so, that voice is probably the voice of the Godly man.

IS THERE A MAN WHO WILL BE A ROLE MODEL? A man who lives a life that is exemplary before his wife and children commands their respect because his life is based on the Biblical example.

Abraham became a role model for his family because he sought to do the things that were right and just in the eyesight of God. Because this was his standard, his children and associates came to respect him for the moral tone of his life. Likewise, the man who obeys the law, works hard and lives a clean cut, ordered life, is a commanding presence.

Those who refuse to involve themselves in illegal activities, public drunkenness, and wild, uncontrolled actions command the respect of their children, who know the real deal. His children take note. His mate takes note. The community takes note. When he is in the presence of his family, he is welcomed not frowned upon.

When he is in the presence of his wife or even his former mate, she treats him with respect because he is always the gentleman and refuses to stoop lower than the standards he purports. When a man does this he is more than just a human who wears pants, he is viewed as a real man.

There is a call for more role models. These are men who say don't just do what I say, but watch what I do. They speak with the voice of men who have been dipped in the word of God, and the world should hear what they have to say because their voices are those of Biblical men.

We hear his voice

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that there is only one thing better than a good man and that is a Godly man in Godly hands.

The unique thing about the Biblical man is that he himself has heard the voice of God.

On the morning of the resurrection, Mary heard the savior call her name. She heard His voice asking, "Woman why weepest thou?" but it was when the savior called her name that she was filled with hope and encouragement. He called many men in the same way. Some were fishing. One was collecting taxes. All heard his voice.

He calls every man's name one by one. He speaks to our souls in an instant and reminds us that "a charge to keep I have and a God to glorify.

That's why the songwriter wrote, "I come to the garden alone. While the dew is still on the roses. And the voice I hear, falling on my ear, the Son of God discloses.

And He walks with me and He talks with me, and He tells me I am his own. And the joy we share as we tarry there, none other, has ever, known."

Hearing the voice of God, each Godly man is charged to exercise leadership in the family, church, and community.

To do that we must follow the example of the Biblical men in the word of God.

Elijah was a good man. He was strong, independent and courageous. But what made Elijah more appealing is the same quality that made many of the strong men of the bible great; they were faithful, Godly men in Godly hands.

Abraham was a Godly man, but when he put his trust in God and moved at his command, he was a good man in Godly hands.

Jacob was a Godly man. He prospered with material wealth and became respected as a man with a head for business. But one night he wrestled with the Lord and refused to let him go. From that night forward, he became a better man, because he demonstrated that he was a committed man in Godly hands!

David was a Godly man. He was a great leader and military strategist. But one day he realized his own vulnerability and said, "Create in me a clean heart oh God and renew in me a right spirit." He was great because he was a spirited man in Godly hands.

A Godly man in Godly hands is a powerful man because God uses him!

A Godly man in Godly hands is an influential man because God controls him!

A Godly man in Godly hands is an effective man because God directs him!

Where do Biblical men stand?

They stand on the side of the Lord!

That is why Joshua told those who chose differently, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

As men go forward in the world, they should always remember to take the Lord with them!

If you take the Lord with you, your greatest enemies can be conquered!

If you take the Lord with you, your greatest obstacles can be overcome!

If you take the Lord with you, your gravest doubts can be overcome!

If you take the Lord with you, your heaviest burdens can be lifted!

If you take the Lord with you, your highest mountains can be scaled!

If you want to make this journey, you've got to stand on the Lord' side; you got to walk with the King!

Storms may rise, but you got to walk!

Winds may blow, but you got to walk!

All along this tedious journey, tell the world, I've got to walk with the King!

Who died out on Calvary!

Who arose Early Sunday morning!

Rise up oh Biblical man, let the world hear your voice, and walk with the King!

No. 9796-Anniversary Pastor

These are the Sheep God Gave Me

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 2017

SCRIPTURE:"Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over the which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood." Acts 20:28

Introduction

Have you ever thought about what the congregation of a church looks like to a pastor? He sits high in the pulpit on Sundays and scans the congregation. He knows every face, understands every family story and thinks deeply about the charge that God has given him.

The late Reverend C.V. Rodgers, the pastor of the Zion Traveler Baptist Church in Monroe, Louisiana, was a powerful preacher. On one occasion a neighboring congregation was without a pastor and had asked Rev. Rodgers to carry on for them until they found a new pastor. Each Sunday, he preached a full sermon at Zion Traveler and then went to the other congregation. Soon the other congregation noticed the support and love that he generated among their members and the deacons approached him about leaving Zion Traveler and becoming their pastor. They offered him nearly three times what Zion Traveler paid him with a long list of other perks if he made the move. He was tempted until one Sunday as he sat at Zion and looked out across the congregation and realized that he was not the pastor of the church as a whole, but he had been watching over each member of the congregation for decades. He performed their marriages, prayed with them in hospitals, settled their disputes and buried their dead. There, sitting in the pulpit looking out over his flock, he made his decision, "These are the sheep that God gave me, I must watch over my flock," he said. He turned down the lucrative offer and pastored Zion Traveler until the Lord took him home.

Moses was called to lead Israel to the promised land. His life was divided into three equal segments of 40 years. The first 40 years he spent in Pharaoh's court learning to lead, build, organize, and how to read and write. The second 40 years he spent as a lowly shepherd where he learned to be humble. The last 40 years he spent leading a flock of people who sometimes rebelled and sometimes strayed away. In the process he discovered this truth: He spent 40 years thinking he was somebody. He spent a second 40 years realizing that he was nobody. He spent the final 40 years realizing that God can take a nobody and make him somebody. In the closing years of his life, he stood high on a mountain and looked out over Israel and probably breathed the same words as The Reverend Rodgers, “These are the sheep that God gave me.”

A pastor who has been given the opportunity to serve several generations of the same church has been truly blessed. It is also a great responsibility because he must continue to teach, feed and oversee each generation with the same passion that was shared with the first. It is a charge that remains the same without consideration of age; remember Moses was 40 years old when he began life as a shepherd of sheep, but he was 80 years old when he began serving as the shepherd of Israel, showing them the way to the promised land.

Anniversaries such as the one we note today are milestones. They are points along the way where we pause to evaluate the journey.

They are also times when we think about the person who has been leading us along the journey, what has been taught and how well we have followed.

Anniversaries tell us how far we have come and they help us measure how far we have to go.

When we celebrate the anniversary of the pastorate, we reflect upon our journey toward perfection under the leadership of the shepherd of the flock.

After traveling 30 years in his earthly journey, Jesus reached a point of decision and reflection. The devil offered him a chance to satisfy himself, to retire into a life of popularity and safety, but he refused to walk after the flesh but chose to follow the spirit. In essence, he told the devil, “These are the sheep God gave me.I must watch over my flock.”

As Christians, let us also salute the pastor the Lord has given us to guide us along the way. Today, think about the years your pastor has served as your spiritual leader. He has led you, fed you and guided you as Christ has led him. Speak a word for him in your prayers today. Ask God to give him strength.

Exposition

This text focuses on instructions given to ministers for the care and nurture of the church.

Paul encouraged ministers to pay attention to the flocks over which they have been placed giving their care and spiritual maintenance his utmost attention.

He urged ministers to:

Take Heed: The various ministers in the church were instructed to “Take heed to the flock” to see to it no part of it is neglected. The pastor must minister to the women and the men, the single and married, the young and the old. His message and ministry must be relevant to each generation. “Taking heed” also means that pastors are often called to sacrificial service. Ministers are charged to look beyond their own households as they minister to the souls of those who are under their charge. Just as shepherds oversee their sheep, the pastor must take heed that they receive no damage.

Holy Ghost: The flock that a pastor of a church oversees has been given to him by God through the inspiration of the Holy Ghost. The Holy Ghost in this text is referred to as a person of the Godhead, that we know as the Trinity: The Father, The Son, and the Holy Ghost. This indicates that God has placed the pastor in his position. God has breathed his blessing upon his ministry, and God has given him the authority to act and move. He made have been officially voted into a position by natural means, but the fact that they settled on him was inspired by God himself. The congregation became his flock.

Overseer: In this text, the Greek word "Episkopos" means overseer. An overseer is a preaching elder to a little flock, not an administrator and leader of many flocks. Acts 14:23 refers to elders in the same way. Thus, the terms overseer or elder both refer to the local pastor and are used interchangeably according to the tradition of the local congregation.

Feed the flock: Ministers must spiritually feed the church by performing all of the parts of the shepherd's office. The choice of words in this text narrows the focus of the pastor to a single congregation rather than a large conglomerate of congregations. The Greek term "Poimnion is used for "flock." It means, little flock. It indicates that pastors should focus ministries upon the flocks that they have been given to shepherd. They are charged to the sheep to green pastures, lay meat before them, do what they can to heal those not inclined to eat, provide a wholesome doctrine, and see that nothing is wanting that is necessary.

How Is the Flock Fed?

The pastor has been given a flock to feed and lead through the dangerous times in which we live. We are living in a time of mass murders, great fires that are sweeping away the West Coast, Hurricanes that are sweeping the South and Eastern Coast, and we stand on the brink of another World War as two off the chain leaders place itching fingers on buttons that can launch nuclear weapons

If ever there was a time for a seasoned pastor to shepherd the flock it is now. Sociologists are reporting that more than 60 percent of Black families are headed by women, and there are more Black men in prison than in college. Crime is rising. Violence is everywhere.

These are dangerous times.

PASTORS MUST FEED US TO LIFT US: Those who pastor our churches must continue to raise a standard for our people and to lift our families. This is why God reaches down into the ranks of the people and finds men of character and strength and places them over flocks. They have the mission of speaking to our generation in the name of the Lord. Pastors are placed over flocks for a purpose. The pastor must keep raising the consciousness of those around us to lift our families. He must feed them the Word of God for every situation. He must feed them hope that no circumstance is beyond God's control. He who leads must keep telling the dispirited masses that despite hurricanes, earthquakes and rising tides, that God is still on the throne!

PASTORS SHOW US HOW TO WALK WITH GOD: Just as a shepherd must show sheep where to pastor, the pastor of a congregation has the important but delicate job of teaching believers how and where to walk. The Christian faith is not a long list of Thou Shall Nots. However, it is a simple list of How-tos. The Christian faith does not say, Keep Off The Grass. It is a faith that says, Walk on the Sidewalk.

The Christian walk requires balance and rhythm. This is where the pastor comes in. He helps every believer develop a regular routine that promotes the Christian walk.

He continually encourages regular Bible reading at a set time each day to establish a rhythm, a pattern and a routine that regularly feeds the soul. Psalm 119:105 says, "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path."

The pastor feeds the congregation through preaching and teaching, but he also encourages personal Bible study because it should be an integral part of a believer's walk.

The pastor shows the congregation the value of walking with God.

In storms, they are reminded that God can speak to the wind and waves!

In turbulence, they are reminded that God is our shelter and our cleft in the Rock.

In Times of Frustration, they are reminded that God will make a way out of no way.

The old warriors sang, "Walk with me Lord, Walk with me. I want Jesus to walk with me."

That's the message of hope that the Pastor gives to his flock that, "The Lord will make a way somehow!"

THE PASTOR MUST EQUIP THE SAINTS FOR SERVICE: The pastor must train the congregation for the service of God. The pastor of any congregation is challenged to reemphasize the importance of preparation, training and kingdom building. Simply sitting comfortably, neither hot nor cold, does not please God.

Look at what this pastor has done.

He has hosted classes and workshops to help equip every member to at least have basic bible skills; to know that Genesis is in the front of the Bible and not the back!

He has arranged for every member to know the history, heritage, and program of the church and how the church program is reflected in the Word of God.

He has preached to us about the importance of preparing ourselves through attitude and aptitude, to serve in the church.

He has helped us see Jesus in every walk of life, and to know that he stands at the door of the future waiting for an opportunity to enter.

We salute him today, but our greatest salute comes when we respond to what he has taught by saying, "If the Lord needs somebody, Here am I, send me."

The Pastor takes the flock to Jesus

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider what happens when pastors properly watch over the sheep: they are both fed and led to live the abundant life.

The pastor who shepherds his flock also serves as the congregation's watchman. When there is a watchman on the wall, the church is warned against impending danger. In a time of peril, the question is asked, "Watchman, what of the night?"

When the pastor watches over the church, we will hear the gospel declared, and our faith will be strengthened. "How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? And how shall they preach, except they be sent? as it is written, How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things!" Romans 10:14-15

When the pastor watches over the church, Jesus is lifted up.

If we lift Jesus up, mighty things begin to happen!

If we lift Jesus up, the wicked will cease from troubling!

If we lift Jesus up, the weary will be at rest!

If we lift Jesus up, no matter how dark the hour, we will remember that joy comes in the morning!

If we lift Jesus up, no cloud will overshadow our sky!

If we lift Jesus up, the sinner can find salvation!

If we lift Jesus up, the despairing man can find hope!

If we lift Jesus up, the world will come to know him for he said, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me."

As long as the pastor watches over the church, there will always be a way to hear a word from the Lord!

When there is a word from the Lord:

—We can see victory in the midst of defeat; Triumph in the midst of tragedy.

—We can enjoy peace in the midst of confusion; Joy in the midst of sadness.

Because the pastor feeds the flock, we have somebody who can tell us the old story!

Because the pastor feeds the flock, he can tell us about Jesus!

Jesus, the lighthouse in the stormy sea!

Jesus, the leaning post in a trying time!

Jesus, the river of water in a dry thirsty land!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary and rose after three days!

As long as the pastor watches, he can keep reminding us that one of these old days,

Jesus is coming back again!

He's coming!

He's coming back again!

No. 9797-Revival

Fatal Distractions

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

October 22, 2017

SCRIPTURE: And this I speak for your own profit; not that I may cast a snare upon you, but for that which is comely, and that ye may attend upon the Lord without distraction. 1 Corinthians 7:35

Introduction

Have you ever known people whose lives are completely off course? These are people whose lives are so far off course that unless they have a course correction, they will be destroyed.

Getting off course just a little can alter your destination. Author Benjamin Hardy cites what happened to an off-course airliner in 1979 as an example. In 1979, a passenger jet with 257 people onboard left New Zealand for a sightseeing flight to Antarctica and back. However, the pilots were unaware that in a distracted moment the flight coordinates for the trip had been altered by a measly two degrees, putting them 28 miles east of where they assumed to be. Approaching Antarctica, the pilots descended to give the passengers a view of the brilliant landscapes. However, because of the incorrect coordinates, a snow and the clouds above, the pilots were deceived into thinking they were flying into flat ground, but instead were placed directly in the path of the active volcano, Mount Erebus. When the instruments sounded a warning of the quickly rising ground, it was too late. The plane crashed into the volcano, and everyone onboard died. It was a fatal distraction.

Distractions can steer all of us off course. At the time it seems like a small distraction, not life altering because we are still traveling in the same general direction. A course change of just a few degrees can alter our lives forever and change destinies.

A distracted athlete cannot give his best on the playing field and misses the championship ring.

A leader besieged with personal problems cannot entirely focus on the issues of those who follow him.

A student's academic performance drops once he or she is distracted. A person driving an automobile can cause a serious, life-threatening accident if he is distracted. Distractions have a way of slowing progress at the least, and totally derailing activity at the most. Thus, it becomes extremely important for those who are trying to succeed in life to avoid distractions because even the smallest distraction can steer them off the course.

Distractions affect: Time, relationships, finances, health, and spirituality. At first, the altered course seems insignificant, but the distraction takes away valuable time needed to associate with people, go to places and focus on the things that will get you to your destination. Things that distract you to the point that you miss opportunities are fatal distractions.

Distractions also affect your finances. It could be something as simple as the distraction of buying a lottery ticket that turns fatal as we increasingly spend more on lotteries, gambling, bingo and other fruitless uses of our finances until the distraction becomes so disastrous that our income is ruined and bankruptcy results.

Distractions can alter relationships. Many marriages have been destroyed and otherwise blossoming relationships never matured because one party or the other fail to focus on making his/her relationship work because he/she was distracted with another. For the relationship, it became a fatal distraction.

Many have had their health destroyed by fatal distractions, and addictions. They became so distracted that they did not eat at all or ate too much. They became sickly and approached death.

Millions have been spiritually distracted to the point that they no longer have a vibrant faith, their prayer life has vanished, their worship is occasional, and their focus on kingdom building activity is blurred. To miss heaven because of a distraction is a fatal distraction.

Among the Biblical patriots, there were many who were distracted along the way such as Abraham, David, Jacob, and Elijah. However, at some point, they corrected their course, changed their thinking and returned to their life's purpose. That's where the mercy of God comes in. God says in 2 Chronicles 7:14 "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land." A Distraction does not have to be fatal, God shows us the way back.

As Christians, we know that it is easy to get off track, distracted by the circumstances of life, but it is good to know that God gives us a way to atone and self-correct if we will turn to the Savior and let him put our lives back on track.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul's advice concerning staying focused on the work of the kingdom.

The immediate context of this letter to the Corinthians addressed the subject of celibacy as it related to the ministry. Since there was no specific command from Christ concerning the issue, in verse 25, he begins in this manner, "Now concerning virgins I have no commandment of the Lord, v. 25. I have no express and universal law delivered by the Lord himself concerning celibacy; but I give my judgment, as one who hath obtained mercy of the Lord to be faithful," namely, in the apostleship. He said in the succeeding verses that he thought it best for a person to pursue the kingdom with distractions. He considered being married and having a family as a distraction, but not a sin.

He advised those who could remain celibate to do so, but rather than burn with passion, he also advised that it was OK for them to be married.

Marriage and romantic relationships were not frowned on, but they were seen as distractions that could have fatal consequences. At the beginning of the church, Christians were grievously persecuted. It was dangerous to be a Christian because they had accumulated a large number of enemies who wanted to treat them cruelly. They were continually facing prosecution and persecution. That's why he did not think it was wise or advisable for Christians that were single to change conditions. Marriage brought with it private concerns for the safety and welfare of a family and would be a vulnerability to the apostles considering their persecution.

He emphasizes that the apostle's duty must be to God.

While the text speaks specifically about celibacy, it also expands to pronounce that believers are expected to become indifferent about the things of the world to the point of focusing wholly on the kingdom without the distractions of worldly pursuits.

He encouraged followers not to be too closely tied to worldly enjoyments, comforts, pass times, sorrows or celebration because they would ultimately become distractions. Even business concerns are not should be approached with an attitude that they will not supplant, replace or take top priority over the kingdom of God. Jesus gave a parable of the great feast invitation that was turned down by many who had worldly priorities, they had purchased land, oxen or married and therefore could not attend the wedding. Distractions, whether they are related to marriage or worldly pursuits, can become fatal if they stand in the way of the will of God.

Focus on the Essential

The ultimate goal of every Christian is to please God and make it to heaven one day. To please God requires us to avoid the distractions of the world and remain focused on what really counts.

ANYTHING OTHER THAN THE MAIN FOCUS IS A DISTRACTION: One great myth of the present generation is the idea of multi-tasking; the ability to do more than one thing at the same time and efficiently focus on all of them. Social Scientists have proven that multi-tasking is a myth because what really happens is the brain shifts from one activity to another quickly, leaving one on pause for a few seconds and switching back. We have learned to change focus, but not maintain focus on several items at the same time. A great example is the difficulty of composing an email or report while talking to someone on the phone at the same time. What really happens we switch from one to the other, but do not entertain both at the same time.

Daniel Goldman, author of the book "Emotional Intelligence" indicates that there are different levels of attention that require a balance to succeed. He described the levels as "inner, outer, and other." There are many youth who claim the ability to focus on their school work, listen to music, and talk on the phone at the same time. While it is possible to do all three of these at the same time, it is impossible to give all three elements complete and total focus. If one item is more important than the others, then the other two effectively serve as distractions. Change the scenario to: Making the honor roll, Making the team, succeeding at a relationship. If one of these items is more important than the other, then the other two are distractions.

What happens if we talk to God and text message our friends at the same time? Is it possible to worship and read the latest posts on Facebook at the same time?

The Bible says in Jeremiah 29:13 "You will seek me and find me when you seek me with all your heart."

Godly prayer, worship or study God's word while multitasking. The other items are distractions that have spiritually fatal consequences.

WITHOUT INNER FOCUS WE ARE EASILY DISTRACTED: Inner focus is the time we spend reading, studying the Bible, and listening to God's word. Psalm 119:11 "Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee." Inner focus keeps us on track with the course God would have us to take. There are many who are pursuing careers and great undertakings who have substituted studying for the Bar Exam, ACT, Medical School Admissions or Exit Exams for their focus on inner strength. There is no substitute for personal prayer and reflection. On occasion, everyone needs to withdraw and reflect. Jesus often pulled away into the mountainside and took refuge in the garden. Inner focus moments are those when you ask yourself, is this path one that God would approve? Am I on course or slightly off course? Inner focus is where you ask God to be your life coach. No player tries to entertain a game without a coach. No boxer steps into the ring without a trainer. In the same context, a Christian who attempts to step into life without the constant instruction and guidance that comes from the word can easily lose inner focus and get off track. They are in the boat of life, but they have no rudder. They are moving, but quickly drift off course.

WITHOUT OUTER FOCUS WE LOSE THE CAPACITY TO FELLOWSHIP: Outer Focus relates to the attention given those outside of yourself. When this begins to happen, we show little interest or concern about the experiences of others. This is a case where the ambulance races down the street and fire truck sirens are blasting while you are focused on your favorite TV program. When you finally look out the window, you have no idea why so many people are crying, sitting on your grass and the air is filled with smoke. When we focus only on ourselves and tune out others, we are clueless about the cause and effect of human success or failure. Galatians 6:2 says we should bear the burdens of others.1 Thessalonians 5:11 says we should encourage one another and build up one another. To do that may require fellowship. Fellowship means to be in the company of others, even if you are not the focus of attention of the assembly, for the purpose of supporting and encouraging others. Many are seriously flawed in this area. Ironically, it is that outer focus that helps keeps on target with our spiritual goal

WITHOUT OTHER FOCUS, WE CAN BE BLINDSIDED: Another focus relates to the attention given to events and conditions in the world around you. The spiritually minded person pays close attention to the world around them and compares world events to the word of God. The spiritually inclined person watches the news and hears accounts about the war in Afghanistan, the threat of war in Iran, and rumors of impending war with North Korea and is concerned but does not panic. Why? Matthew 24:6 "And ye shall hear of wars and rumors of wars: see that ye be not troubled: for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet." We watch further and hear of fires in California that are destroying hundreds of homes, hurricanes that are decimating who cities in Texas and Florida, and here of earthquakes in Lospalos, Indonesia, and Montana, then we read Matthew 24:7 "For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in divers places." The focus on the world around us helps us to be ready and not be blindsided.

Our God is focused on us

Finally, it is important that we note that while at times we are distracted in our service to our Lord, he was never distracted, his mind was focused on us!

Though tempted in many ways, he was never distracted because he had salvation on his mind!

In the wilderness, Satan offered him self-appeasement and challenged him to turn stones into bread. However, Jesus refused saying, "It is written that man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God!" He couldn't be distracted because his mind was focused on us!

Satan dangled fame and glory in front of him, but could not get him off track, "Get thee behind me Satan" was his response. His mind was focused on us!

Every child of God should draw strength from knowing that you are always on his mind!

When we are right, his mind is focused on us!

When we are wrong, his mind is focused on us!

When we are enjoying success, wallowing in failure, relishing strength, pondering weakness, we are always on his mind!

Even when we are asleep at night his mind was focused on us!! I know it's true because Psalm 121 says "He that keepeth Israel neither slumbers or sleeps, he will not suffer the sun to smite you by day or the moon by night!" We are always on his mind!

When Jesus left the garden, he planned to obey his father's will, which was to provide a means of salvation for every believer. He was never distracted, his mind stayed on the purpose of God!

I am so glad that Jesus kept his mind on me!

Though they judged him in midnight trials, his mind was on me! Though whipped and ridiculed, his mind was on me!

When he died out on Calvary, his mind was on me!

But early Sunday morning arose, with all power in his hand!

No wonder the songwriter wrote: "I woke up this morning with my mind, stayed on Jesus! Walking and Talking with my mind stayed on Jesus! Singing and shouting with my mind stayed on Jesus!”

Everywhere I go, I’m going keep my mind ...
Stayed on Jesus!

No. 9798-Revival

Tales from the Crypt (Testimonies of the Walking Dead)

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 29, 2017

SCRIPTURE:"For ye are dead, and your life is hidden with Christ in God. When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory." Colossians 3:3-4

Introduction

Have you ever lived a life other than the one you are living now? If so, it's possible that anyone who had not followed you through your other life probably wouldn't recognize you now. Between 1953-1956 there was a regular television broadcast called, "I led three lives." It was about a man who led one life as a white-collar worker in a corporation, another life as a communist spy, and third life as an FBI agent hired to root out communist spies." It was a popular broadcast during the time because the nation was fixed on trying to root out anyone who was a communist; there were 117 episodes of the program.

How many lives do we live today? Some of us are known by the live that we live today. We work every day or have retired. We obey the law, pay our taxes, drink coffee, tea, soft drinks or lemonade, love our families, cut our grass, go to church on Sundays and enjoy wholesome fellowship and friends. That's the life that we see today. But there are some who have lived one or two other lives, in which we would not be recognizable if anyone from our present life saw us in one of our other lives.

Yet, there is still another life some of us lead; it's the life that is on the down-low. It's the life of clubs on the weekend and the life that shows up at the church on Sunday. It's the life where we gamble heavy, but give a tithe on our winnings. It's a life where we fornicate, kill, murder, steal, get drunk and live loosely, but never always claim to love God post a scripture on Facebook or Twitter.

Those who live their lives outside of God's will are described as "dead" to salvation of the Lord. They are not in a casket, but they are dead to the Lord. They are walking around every day, but they are dead. They don't look like the Zombies in the television series the "Walking Dead," because they dress, walk and talk like normal human beings. On the television series, it's easy to spot the "Walking Dead" because they look ugly and walk like mummies. But the walking dead that we see every day, dress well, look good and definitely don't walk like Zombies.

Between 1989-1996 there was an HBO television series entitled "Tales from the Crypt." Wikipedia describes it this way, "Each episode begins with a tracking shot leading to the front door of the Crypt Keeper's decrepit mansion. Once inside, the camera pans down hallways and stairways and finally descends into the basement. The Crypt Keeper, then pops out from his coffin, cackling wildly; finally, green slime pours down over the screen as the main title appears."

What if there was a weekly broadcast with you as the Crypt Keeper telling tales from your personal crypt; from the time when one of your three lives was lived in a world distant from God or when you tried to merge the two on the down low? Would it be a hit?

The Crypt Keeper narrates the world of darkness in which we lived before we knew Christ. It was a world populated by those who draw the wages of sin which is death. We lived in a world of the dead described in 1 Corinthians 6:9-10 as a world of " fornicators, idolaters, adulterers, effeminate, homosexuality, thieves, covetous, drunkards, revilers, and extortioners."

In the television series, the Crypt Keeper tells only the story of our death, but in our spiritual journey from a life of darkness, Jesus stands not as Crypt Keeper to keep telling the tales of the Crypt, but as one who stands at the door of the abundant life. He says, " John 14:6 , "I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me."

As Christians, our testimony or tale from the Crypt is that we were once in darkness, but thanks to the wonderful grace of Jesus, we now lead one life as walk out of darkness into the marvelous light.

Exposition

This text explains how a Christian is dead to sin and is hidden with Christ in God.

Paul, writing to the church in Colossae explained how a believer dies to the things of the world, and his new life is hidden or buried in Christ.

An easy way to read this passage is, " As far as this world is concerned, you are already dead, and your true life is a hidden one in God, through Christ… "

Our understanding of this passage is clearer when we consider two words in the text: "dead" and "hidden."

Barnes's Notes on the New Testament says, "To be dead to a thing is a strong expression denoting that it has no influence over us. A man that is dead is uninfluenced and unaffected by the affairs of this life. He is insensible to sounds, and tastes, and pleasures; to the hum of business, to the voice of friendship, and to all the scenes of commerce, gaiety, and ambition. When it is said, therefore, that a Christian is dead to sin, the sense is, that it has lost its influence over him; he is not subject to it; he is in regard to that, as the man in the grave is to the busy scenes and cares of this life."

A person in the world is dead to the things of God; he is totally unaffected and could care less. A person who is dead to the world has been released from its influence; it has no power over him.

The Greek word Paul uses for "hidden" is krypto. It's the same word that gives us "Crypt," another word for "tomb where a corpse is meant to remain hidden, until that day when all are raised to new life with Christ.

To hide something away is, literally, to encrypt it. There are special locking algorithms that can lock the contents of a computer and protect it from view.

With this understanding, the text reads, "For you have died, and your life is encrypted with Christ in God." Until Christ comes to raise us in glory.

The text gives a picture of two episodes of the same life: One in the world, in which we were dead in Christ and things of God; in the crypt. The other episode is a new life that is hidden or "encrypted" with Christ in God.

If we give any testimony of our lives, one would be a tale of our lives in a world of the walking dead, and the other would be about our "encrypted" life that is hidden in Christ.

A tale of two lives

Charles Dickens wrote a novel called, "A Tale of Two Cities" and it began this way:

"It was the best of times, it was the worst of times, it was the age of wisdom, it was the age of foolishness, it was the epoch of belief, it was the epoch of incredulity, it was the season of Light, it was the season of Darkness, it was the spring of hope, it was the winter of despair, we had everything before us, we had nothing before us, we were all going direct to Heaven, we were all going direct the other way."

In a way, Dickens tale is the tale of our lives. We've seen the best of times and the worst of times. We have seen times when we were wise and times when we lived foolishly. We've also seen times when we were on our way to heaven, and we've seen times when we the other way. These times are best reflected in two lives many of us have lead.

FIRST LIFE: LIVING AMONG THE WALKING DEAD: There are many people who are the walking dead. They are alive, but they are not living. They are moving, but they are going nowhere. They have no purpose other than to eat, sleep, party, have sex and start all over again. They are like the Zombies in the TV series. The zombies have only one purpose, and that's to find human brains for dinner. They won't achieve anything, do anything important or accomplish anything of significance.

The tragedy about the walking dead is that they are alive but they have no real dreams other than being ghetto fabulous: Who can wear the most jewelry. Who has the best tattoo. Who has most pairs of Jordans. They work or hustle every day, but their labor is not toward a greater good. - If that's your life, you are among the walking dead.

Whenever you are doing things, just to be doing them, and it really doesn't matter, it means you have lost your passion for it. If you ever lose your passion you join the walking dead. Your passion is the energy, enthusiasm, and excitement that you bring to your life's work. Your passion is what makes you rise early and stay up late doing what you enjoy doing. Without your passion you drag to work every day. Without Passion, you come home to a beautiful wife or a handsome husband and look at them with a blank stare with no desire to do anything. You are among the walking dead.

You are really among the walking dead when God speaks to you, but there is no response. You are dead when God calls your name, but there is no reply. You are dead when God commands you, but there is no obedience. You are surely dead when God shows his love for you, but he receives no affection in return.

For all practical purposes that soul is dead to God.

What we love about Christ is that he called us out of the darkness into the marvelous life. He gave us the opportunity to walk away from the Crypt and its tales of failure, wasted time, wasted opportunity and step into the light.

Colossians 2:13-14 says, "And you, being dead in your sins ...hath he quickened together with him, having forgiven you all trespasses; Blotting out the handwriting of ordinances that was against us, which was contrary to us, and took it out of the way, nailing it to his cross."

Jesus is calling for those who have turned a deaf ear to the things of God to come out from among the dead and leave them behind.

His call is simple. It's in Matthew 8:22 "... Follow me, and let the dead bury their dead."

NEW LIFE: WALKING IN THE LIGHT: Our old life is a tale of walking in darkness. Our new life in Christ is just the opposite it is a tale of a brand new person who allows the spirit of God to live within him/her. When we accept Christ, he raises us to another level of experience. The first thing you notice is that you are not an improved version of your old self, but you are brand new. You don't stop drinking cheap wine but drink a better wine instead. You don't turn away from $20 prostitutes, but choose $1,000 a night hookers instead. Your new life is not one where you stop looking at porn on magazine racks and move up to subscribing to X-Rated television channels. Our new life in Christ is not one that is reformed, cleaned up, but an entirely new life born out of Christ. The man who is living in you now is a heavenly man. He was not here before. When Christ lives in us, we are dead to the world. We do not respond to the call of the club, the whiskey bottle, the opportunity for fornication, or any ungodliness because we are no longer in that world. It is dead to us.

2 Corinthians 5:17 says, "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new."

The main thing that happens when you let Christ live in you and you live in Christ is that you get a new walk. There is a difference between the way a Zombie walks and the way a non-Zombie walks. A believer has given his life to Christ and stepped out of the crypt. He has dropped the symbols of the time when we walked with the dead. For some, it might mean changing clothing styles. For others, it might mean, changing the places where we go to hangout or even some of the dead people, places and things we associated with in the past.

Because we have stepped out of the darkness with Christ, we are no longer among the walking dead!

If we are to reach for the abundant life, we must not surround ourselves with people who want to feed off others rather than really live!

The second thing that happens is that we bury ourselves in Christ. We are hidden in him. We are a mystery to those who knew us in our first life. What a change! Our walk, our talk, and our destination changes.

The Greatest Testimony

Finally, brothers and sisters, there is no greater testimony than the person who tells the story of how God spoke to his situation.

When we talk about how God lifted us and saved us, it's a tale from the crypt, a testimony of the walking dead.

When Paul talked about meeting God on the Damascus Road and turning his life around, it was a tale from the crypt, a testimony of the walking dead.

When the woman at the well talked about meeting a man who told her all she ever did, it was a tale of the crypt, a testimony of the walking dead.

When the lunatic man who ran through the graveyard talked about how God ran evil spirits out of his life, it was a tale from the crypt, the testimony of the living dead.

We don't have to go that far we can look at our own lives.

There was a time when we filled the gambling casinos, bingo parlors, and midnight crap shoots. We were among the walking dead.

There was a time, when we engaged in countless secret encounters in cheap hotels, in back seats of cars, kissing three frogs trying to find one prince. We were among the walking dead.

There was a time when our best friends were not Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John but they had names like Hennessey, Jack Daniels, Seagrams and Johnny Walker Red. We were among the walking dead.

But when the Lord spoke to our situation we were changed and given a new life. We were washed in the blood of the lamb!

Those who have been saved have a new testimony. It's not a tale of the crypt, but the tale of the encrypted, those who are saved by the grace of God.

Our testimony is that God is able to bring us out of darkness into the marvelous light Not only that, God is able to take our:

BURDENS and lighten our load; PROBLEMS and help us find the answers!

DARKNESS and turn it into light; WEAKNESSES and turn them into strengths!

SETBACKS and turn them into come backs; STUMBLING BLOCKS and turn them into stepping stones!

I've got a new life, and it's no longer among the walking dead!

I've got a new walk, and it's no longer among the walking dead!

I'm glad that He is a wonder-working God!

I'm glad that He is a favor giving God!

I'm glad that He is a soul-saving God!

I’m glad that one day he decided to pick up an old rugged cross!
I’m glad that He carried it to Golgotha’s hill!
He died on Calvary, and they buried in the crypt!
Early Sunday morning…he arose from the grave with a new tale from the crypt
He arose with all power in his hands!

No. 9799-Revival

Help, I've Fallen, and I Can't Get up

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

November 12, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "For a just man falleth seven times, and riseth up again: but the wicked shall fall into mischief." Proverbs 24:16

Introduction

Have you had a fall, but couldn't get up without a little help? It could have been in your home, climbing a step, or a quick, unexpected turn that landed you on the floor. Babies often fall, especially when they are just learning to walk and get their balance. After our infant years, most falls are accidental. After the fall the baby sits on the floor and cries until someone helps him/her up.

Adults fall accidently by tripping over items, missing a step on a stairway or while trying to balance themselves on high heels. Depending on the fall, some need a little help to get up.

Some falls are intentional, such as the falls of Hollywood stuntmen, rodeo riders, or skydivers, even then there are times when they need a little help getting up.

Seniors are at risk of falling; they know how to walk, but physical factors relating to health often cause falls such as failing eyesight and hearing. Senior reflexes might not be as sharp as they once were. Health problems such as Diabetes, heart disease, or problems with your thyroid, nerves, feet, or blood vessels can affect your balance as well. They can result in a fall, that might require assistance to get up.

Do you remember the medic alert commercial? It featured an elderly woman who had fallen on the floor, who pressed a button on her necklace and said, "Help, I've fallen, and I can't get up!" The necklace is electronically connected to a health center that is monitored 24 hours a day. If the button is pressed, someone would be alerted and help you get on your feet again. That's important because a person who has fallen may be on a bathroom floor or somewhere out of the reach of a phone and may not be discovered for days, depending on how often they are contacted by family members. The Medic Alert necklace reduces the wait time for help.

Often in life, there are times when we lose our balance and fall, not physically, but we fall out of sync with what we know should be the right path. We're in balance when there is not too much of one thing and too little of another. Believers strive to achieve the balanced life. When we are balanced, we can walk without stumbling. When we are out of balance, we fall.

We know we are out of balance when we can't ever seem to be satisfied and we are continually reaching for the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. Consider the man who was unsatisfied with his vehicle and kept messing up his life trying to keep up with a man who owned something he didn't have. It began one day when a Hooptie stopped at a red traffic light and was waiting for it to change when a small hooptie pulled up beside a limo. The brother in the Limo rolled down the window and started bragging that his car was the best car that money could buy. "It has ABS, airbags for all passengers, automatic climate control, onboard computer control system, photochromatic glass, mini bar, a television with satellite dish and hydraulic shocks. It drives and parks itself."

At this point, the Hooptie owner rolled down his window and pointed, "But do you have a video in there?" The brother in the Limo had been dissed. He immediate bought a Big Screen video for his limo. A few days passed by, and again the limo was at a traffic light when the limo brother spotted the Volkswagen again. He bragged about his limo and showed his layaway bed.

"But does it have self-guided GPS synced to your cell phone that gets you to your destination even if you don't know the address?" asked the Volkswagen owner as he drove off. Upset the limo owner hurriedly had an updated GPS system installed. He laughed a few days later when he saw the little Volkswagen pulled to the side of the road with its windows all steamed up. Steam was even coming from the windows and water was dripping on the ground.

The limo brother knocked on the window and said, "I got a GPS system now!"

The Volkswagen owner said, "You got me out of my morning shower to tell me that?"

There are many who have no balance in their lives. They are constantly trying to get more and keep up with their neighbors or outdo someone else. It's throwing the finances, relationships and family peace out of balance; and they fall.

We drink too much. We fall.

We stay away from home too much. We fall.

We spend too much. We fall

Sometimes we fall, and we are like the woman in the commercial, "Help I've fallen, and I can't get up!"

Wouldn't it be cool if we could have a life alert necklace for non-physical falls and failures? When we fall, when we think we can't get up, we could just press it, tell the control center about the situation and we get help! When we think about it, every believer has a spiritual alert mechanism. It's not a necklace, but it is connected to a 24 heavenly control center. That mechanism is called prayer, the person that answers is God himself. He responds, and when we tell him that we are down, we have fallen and we are overwhelmed, and he'll help us get up again.

As Christians, we are happy to know that we serve a God that is only a prayer away. When we lose our balance and fall for whatever reason, he'll respond if we tell him "Help I've fallen, and I can't get up!"

Exposition

This text focuses on the spiritual elements that can cause a person to fall, and how recovery can be restored.

The Proverbs of Solomon are short statements that sum up life truths in ways that are easy to understand. The text refers to a man or woman who is trying to follow God's law and to act wisely. It maintains that such a person may error seven times, but will always get back up again.

The companion verse that is associated with verse sixteen is Proverbs 9:1 which says, "Wisdom hath builded her house, she hath hewn out her seven pillars:" Both verses contain the number seven which is a number of completeness in the Bible.

A man or woman who builds a balanced life builds it on seven principles of wisdom that helps it to stand. This wise man or woman is described as a "just" man or woman in the text: someone who is trying to do things according to God's will, wisely and with prudence.

Proverbs 9:1 does not detail the principles, but James 3:17 says: "But the wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality and without hypocrisy."

1. Always act with a pure intent, never with an ulterior motive.
2. The goal of anything you do is to peaceably achieve an objective.
3. The manner of our relationship is gentle and diplomatic.
4. To avoid unreasonable responses and open to reasonable alternatives
5. To consider the needs of others and be willing to be helpful
6. To do what you do for God's glory, not for personal gain showing partiality.
7. To be sincere in our faith, service, and relationships without hypocrisy.

The text indicates that a just man is a wise man whose life is founded upon and supported by these seven basic principles. Such a house will never completely fall.

Why doesn't a life based on seven principles of wisdom ultimately fall? Because it's based on seven supports. If we fail in one or even three of them at one time, the other four will uphold us until all are restored.

Thus a life of genuine wisdom is a life founded upon the fear of the Lord and the seven principles of wisdom. A person who experiences a weakness in one of the seven principles does not ultimately fail, but gets back up again on the strength of the remaining pillars.

A stupid man tries to build his life on principles that will not stand. The text says they will lead to mischief:

1. Do unto others before they do unto you.
2. Steal, but don't be foolish enough to get caught
3. It's OK to do the crime if you are willing to do the time
4. Punch, shoot or kill anyone who disagrees with you.
5. Destroy your enemies
6. To get ahead cheat if necessary, just don't get caught

7. Get the hookups you need, by appearing at the right places and dropping the right names whether it's the church you attend or people you know. Use them or be used.

The wicked man cannot be held up if one of his guiding principles fails because all of them are based on weak foundations. Jesus said he is like a man who builds his house on the sand and is washed away when the storm comes.

The just man may fall, but his overriding principle of faith will always cause him to rise again.

Falling Down

The text gives us several thoughts for consideration when we have fallen. It doesn't matter whether we have been pushed down, stumbled down, pressed down, knocked down, or we have slipped down, these truths must apply:

THE DEVIL IS BEHIND MOST LIFE FALLS: If we fall or act unwisely, the believer knows that the devil has found a way into our lives. His goal is to make us fall. Satan is constantly looking for ways to destroy children of God.1 Peter 5:8 says, "Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour:" In the presence of our enemies, God prepares a table for believers. He blesses us with comfort, peace, and joy despite the fact that we have not participated in the world, yielded to the flesh, or been discouraged by people influenced by Satan's bad spirit.

When the devil sees how we are able to stand even though he keeps messing with us, he is defeated. He keeps knocking us down, and we keep getting back up again again.

Satan is frustrated when he sees how good God is to you.

He tries to defeat you, but then he sees God's hand working out victories for you!

He knocks you down, but then he sees God lifting you up when I have fallen down!

He makes you sad, but then he hears you sing, "Why should I be discouraged, why should the shadows come, when Jesus is my portion, a constant friend is he. His eye is on the sparrow, and I know he watches me!

WHAT TO DO IF YOU FALL: It's expected that there will instances when we will fall; do something unwise or spiritually out of whack. The key for is to know what do to do in case of a fall. In the building there are signs that say "In case of fire do not use the elevator." So if you fall, don't try to quick or easy way up. Take the steps. What are the steps? Acknowledge that you have fallen: "Help, I have fallen." The prodigal son was able to get back on his feet again when he took the first step: 1) Acknowledge that he has made a mistake, not anyone else, 2) Return to his father 3)Ask forgiveness. If you fall, take the steps.

In a theatre, there are lights on the floor that will lead you to the way out. In an emergency, you may be knocked to the floor and can't see, but you can follow the lights. Jesus said he is the light of the world. If we follow Jesus, he will show us the way out; how to get on our feet again.

If you fall into fiery situations, be like the three Hebrew Boys, who read the spiritual warning on the side of the furnace, "In case of fire, call on the Lord" because he's able!

IF YOU HAVE FALLEN IN SIN, ARISE: Even the best person can fall into sin, but we can't get up alone. We are like the woman in the Life Alert commercial, who cries out, "Help I have fallen, and I can't get up!" –Once she bought a Life-Alert device, she could get help at the push of a button. The key to answering the command to rise is to ask God to help you. If we want to climb out of the black hole we are in, we should allow the power of God to lift us and help us stand. Can those who are dead in their sins rise and shine? Can people who are absorbed in themselves rise above their narcissism? Can the thief rise above his kleptomania? Not alone! But there is a redeemer who is willing to help you climb out. Yes, if we ask for God's help. Maybe that's what the song writer had in mind when he wrote, "Ask the savior to help you, comfort strengthen and keep you. He is willing to aid you. He will carry you through."

Another Chance

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider no matter how low we have fallen, he gives us another chance.

The songwriter is correct when he says, "We fall down, but we get up!" We are able to do so because Christ lifts the fallen spirit within us and stands us up again.
When the demonic man fell at Jesus' feet after spending years wandering among the tombs, he was told to rise. When the lame man who had not walked for 38 years met the Lord beside the pool, he was told to rise, "Take thy bed and walk."
No matter how dark our situation may seem, the God we serve is able to lift us up, turn us around and plant our feet on Solid ground!

One thing we have learned about that little life alert button is that when you push the button, someone gets on the line. They tell you everything will be alright. Then they start calling your core responders. They may call your husband or wife, son or daughter, police or emergency responders and say someone you love has fallen and they can't get up.

When we have fallen we lift up our hands and say, "Father I stretch my hands too thee, no other help I know. If thou withdraw thyself from me, whither shall I go?" I've fallen, and I can't get up.

That call goes to the father, son and the Holy Ghost saying, someone, you love has fallen, and they can't get up. I know you love them because the word says, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten so that whosoever believeth on them should not perish but have everlasting life."

Even after you push the life alert button, someone at the control center stays on the line and never leave you alone!

Jesus is on the mainline, and he promised never to leave me, never leave me alone.

I don't know about you, but sometimes I find myself slipping down the mountain of life, and I have to cry out to Lord, "Take my hand! Hold me in your everlasting arms!"

Lord, take my hand when I can't see my way!

Lord, take my hand when I can't turn to the right or the left!

Lord, take my hand when I have fallen and help me up again!
When you find yourself falling and you can't get up, call on the name of Jesus!
Jesus, a strong hand that will not let you down!
Jesus, a mother to the motherless!
Jesus, a shelter in a time of storm!
Call on Jesus, who reaches out to us with nail-scarred hands!
Call on Jesus, who died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning arose from the grave!

No. 9800 -Inspiration

What Things?

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La
November 19, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "And he said unto them, What things? And they said unto him, Concerning Jesus of Nazareth, which was a prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people:" Luke 24:19

Introduction

Have you ever taken an inventory of the things God has done for you? What about an inventory of things that you do that are bringing you closer to God? When we finish our inventory, will we find that the things God have done for us appreciated or depreciated in their value to us? Is there a depreciation factor in the things we do for God or have they increased in value to him?

An inventory lets us know how many things we had at the start and how many things we had at the end, and whether or not the total value of those things has appreciated or depreciated. What is depreciated value or appreciated value? A 2013 Ford Taurus was worth $25,000 in 2013, but four years later it is only worth $11,000 even though it's in perfect condition. It depreciated or lost value. An ounce of gold sold for $272 in 2000, but was worth $1,200 in 2017; it appreciated or gained value.

When God blesses us, he blesses us with physical things, tangibles or many things that we cannot see; i.e., intangibles. What things has God given us that are tangible? A car, an apartment, clothes, fishing boat, rifle, big screen television, cell phone. All of these are tangible things; they are things we can touch. We thank God for physical blessings, but also know that they are tangible; they depreciate in value. We were excited when we received our first 8 track tape, it was a blessing, but it depreciated. When we opened the box on our new iPhone 4 we knew we were blessed, but it depreciated every year.

Our real praise to God is for the intangibles because they do not depreciate, but they appreciate in value. When Christ saved our soul from hellfire and damnation, it is was an intangible gift that increases in value as we get closer to judgment. What other intangible things has God bless us with? The blessing of knowing what it is to love and be loved is a blessing that increases in value. Peace, Joy, forgiveness, optimism, dependability, faith, and hope, all of these are blessings that God gives us that we can't put our finger on, but they appreciate in value.

Has our relationship with God appreciated in value or depreciated? We should know God better today than we did a few years ago; if so, our relationship is appreciating in value because we are trusting him more and loving him more. We should know about God's word than we did a few years ago, we should find studying his word refreshing and find ourselves meditating on it more; if so then it has appreciated in value. You should desire to please God more than you did in the past and find more satisfaction in doing things that please God than those connected with worldly pursuits. If you find yourself trying to follow the spirit more and prioritizing your time to be of service to the kingdom more now than you have done in the past, then your relationship with God is appreciating in value. If you find yourself enjoying worship, singing and praying more than you did in the past, then your relationship with God is appreciating in value. Conversely, if you are trusting him less and enjoying your Christian walk less, then it's possible that your relationship with God has depreciated in value.

When we actually reflect on our present blessing, it will amaze us what God is doing for us right now. In fact it only takes a minute to see the gift of life itself, the warmth of friendships, the riches of good health, the power of love, the glory of a sunrise, the privilege of prayer, the joys of music, the satisfaction of work, the treasures of books, the beauty of art, the warmth of summer, and the grace of God. All of these are indications that God is blessing us right now!

That may be what the songwriter had in mind when he penned these words:

When upon life's billows you are tempest-tossed,
When you are discouraged, thinking all is lost,
Count your many blessings, name them one by one,
And it will surprise you what the Lord hath done.
Count your blessings, name them one by one,
Count your blessings, see what God hath done!
Count your blessings, name them one by one,
Count your many blessings, see what God hath done

As Christians, we give God thanks for visible and the invisible, for the tangible and the intangible. For everything, we give thanks.

Exposition

This text focuses on a dialogue between Christ and two men after the resurrection of Christ as they discussed events, scripture and their testimony about the ministry of Christ in the world.

While crucifixions were regular spectacles in the Roman Empire, the ministry and crucifixion of Christ was the subject of considerable discussion because of the resurrection. On the day of the resurrection, two men were traveling the road to Emmaus discussing the events leading up to the resurrection. While they walked and talked about what they had seen and heard, Jesus appeared in their midst, but they did not immediately recognize him. When Jesus asked what events could cause them to be so depressed, they were dumbfounded and wanted to how the traveler could have been in Jerusalem for the last week and not be aware of the series of tragic events in the city involving Christ.

In verse 18 of the text, the disciples discussed all of the events that had occurred in recent days. They did not give any specifics the only referred to "the things" he had done. The text of the verse says, "And the one of them, whose name was Cleopas, answering said unto him, Art thou only a stranger in Jerusalem, and hast not known the things which are come to pass there in these days?"

In verse 19 Jesus asked for clarity and asked a two-word question: "What things?" They described his acts which were similar to those of the prophets of old. He challenged the government leaders, the same as Elijah challenged Ahab and Jezebel. He pointed out the hypocrisy of the money changers, just as Nathan challenged the hypocrisy of David who tried to cover him his sin with Bathsheba. They said he, "Was a prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people:" (v24).

The people saw the physical things: the feeding of the 5,000, the healings, the restoration of the sight to the blind, but they did not see these things as evidence of God's providence and mercy being shown. So in verse 27, Jesus started with Moses and showed the men that every miraculous act of the scripture was a sign or a type of what would come in the coming kingdom of God. The blessing was not in the things, the blessings were in what the things represented, they pointed to a merciful and benevolent savior.

All this time they did not know who Christ was until he broke bread with them. When he took the cup and said, "This is my body which was given for you." When he took the cup and said "This is my blood which is shed for the remission of sin," then they recognized that focus was not on the bread, the wine, the healings, or even the food that fed thousands but on the sacrifice of the Savior on Mt. Calvary.

When they recognized this truth, their eyes were opened, and Christ disappeared in the tangible sense but remained present in spirit. They said, "Did not our hearts burn within as he talked with us along the way?"

In verse 35 when their eyes were open the went and told the disciples and everybody that was with them "What things were done along the way."

What Things has God Done?

Often we are so busy with our daily tasks that we seldom stop to consider just what the Lord has done for us? Even a cursory inventory would reveal that God has smiled on us.

HE HAS MADE A WAY: When someone asks, what things has God done for you, one of our first testimonies would be, that he has created opportunities for us to succeed and alternatives to complete failure. When we think of the many ways that God has blessed us, we won't be able to count the ways. How many times has God made a way out of no way? How many prayers has he answered for us? How many rivers has he helped us to cross? How many battles has he helped us to win? If we count them, we can only conclude that God has been good to us in a "great" way. Psalm 40:5 says, "Many, O LORD my God, are thy wonderful works which thou hast done, and thy thoughts which are to us-ward: they cannot be reckoned up in order unto thee: if I would declare and speak of them, they are more than can be numbered." No wonder the songwriter would declare, count your many blessing and it may surprise you what the Lord has done. Since we know our detractors are watching, let them see the many ways God has blessed our faithfulness with his favor.

HE HAS WALKED WITH ME: Every believer should remember that God is always by his or her side! There is no circumstance that befalls me, and God is not there! There is no place I can go, and God is not there! Psalm 139:8-10 "If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there: if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there. If I take the wings of the morning and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea; Even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me. That's why David declared "Yea thou I walk through the valley of the Shadow of Death, I will fear no evil, for thou art with me!"

I heard the songwriter declare "I want Jesus to walk with me...:

While I'm on this tedious journey, Lord I want Jesus to walk with me!

When the Lord walks with me, my mountains turn into molehills!

When the Lord walks with me, my midnights turn in sunshiny days!

When the Lord walks with me, my weakness turns into strength!

When the Lord walks with me, my sadness turns into joy!

HE HAS BLESSED ME WITH A LOT OF LITTLE THINGS: There are many who look for big things that God has done for them, but when we think about it, we have received a multitude of little things that add up to one big thing, "I've been blessed."

When we answer the question, What things? We have to say, " I may not have all that my heart desires, but I thank the Lord for giving me little things that I have.

I may not be in the best of health. My steps may be getting slow. My eyesight may be getting dim. But I thank the Lord for sparing my life and allowing me to see another sunrise! A may be a little thing to you, but it's a big thing to me.

If I can drink a cup of coffee and enjoy a moment of peaceful meditation, I count that as a blessing. It may be a little thing to you, but it's a big thing to me.

I Praise him for waking me up this morning, It may be a little thing to you, but it's a big thing to me.

I Praise him for clothing me in my right mind!

I Praise him for giving me health and strength!

It may all sound like a little thing to you, but it's a big thing to me.

Saving my soul

Finally, brothers and sisters, the biggest thing God did for me was to send his son to save my soul.

I f we tell the truth about it, we can testify how the Lord open doors for you to get a new house or apartment, but that's not the biggest thing.

We can testify about:

—Our new automobile or truck, but that's not the biggest thing

—Our new phone, computer or technological gadget, but that's not the biggest thing

—Our new dress, or suit of clothes, but that's not the biggest things.

The greatest thing that God has done for us is to save our souls and give us a chance to everlasting life.

The testimony of the faithful is that "He has done great things for me. He picked me up and turned me around and told me to run on."

If you ask me to tell you what things, I'd have to answer, "If I had ten thousand tongues" I wouldn't be able to tell it all.

Every day God is doing a new thing to bless my life. Jeremiah said, "Morning by morning new mercies I see."

There was an old man who had farmed all of his life and never finished school. At the age of 75, he decided to go back to school to get his high school diploma. One day in his English class the teacher told him about punctuations marks: question marks, commas, periods and exclamation points. To help the old man understand she said, you write an exclamation point wherever there is something to shout about! She said the Exclamation point goes at the end of the sentence. She noticed that each time the old man started writing a sentence, it was filled with Exclamation points even before the sentence ended!

The old Man said, "You said I'm supposed to put an Exclamation point when I gets to something to shout about. I got plenty to shout about. I see the sun rising in the morning and going down in the evening; that's something to shout about!

"I wrote about my dinner, you see I had a few neck bones in a bowl, a slice of piping hot cornbread with a mess of freshly picked greens and that gave me something to shout about!

"I wrote about riding in my car, you see When I turned the ignition of my brand new truck I started clapping my hands and praising God! It may not seem like a big thing to some people, but the man who's had nothing but old jalopies that never started gets excited when he finally gets a car that starts! It's something to shout about!

"I knows I'm supposed to put the exclamation points at the end, but it don't seem that the Lord ever stops blessing me, I ain't gon' ever finish a sentence, because the Lord don't ever stop giving me something to shout about!

When you know the Lord, you can sing, "You don't know like I know, what the Lord has done for me! You don't know, you "wasn't" there, you don't know when and you don't know where. You don't know what the Lord has done for me!

Let me tell you what things:

In the midst of my:

—Burdens, He's shown me His benefits
—Hardships, He's given me His helping hand
—Midnights, He's given men a song to sing —Challenges, He's given me the confidence to go on —Infirmities, He's given me inspiration
—Sorrow, He's given me comfort
—Dangers, He's given me the safety of His everlasting arms.

Jesus healed 10 lepers who asked the Lord for a healing.

After receiving their healing all of them turned to walk away, but one of them thought about the source of that blessing and returned and told the Lord, “Thank you” for the blessing of healing.

Every true child of God is like that grateful leper. We don’t need a holiday! We don’t need a presidential proclamation! We don’t need to wait until the last Thursday in November, but every day of our lives we tell the Savior: Thank you, Lord!

Thank you, Lord, for waking me up every day!

Thank you, Lord, for clothing me in my right mind!

Thank you, Lord, for mountains and thank you for my valleys!

I want to thank you for picking up an old rugged cross and dying for me out on Calvary!

Thank you for rising up in my soul!

Thank you, Lord!

I just want to thank you, Lord!

No. 9801-Thanks

The Grateful Soul

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 23, 2017

SCRIPTURE: Praise ye the LORD. O give thanks unto the LORD; for he is good: for his mercy endureth forever. Psalm 106:1-2

Introduction

Do you have a reason to be thankful? Has the Lord blessed you in a special way? Are you grateful because of his blessing?

The writer Germany Kent said, ""It's a funny thing about life, once you begin to take note of the things you are grateful for, you begin to lose sight of the things that you lack." That makes sense because if we started to list all of the things we are grateful for we really don't have time to count all the things we don't have. Most of our lives have been winning seasons, although we have lost a few games.

Thanksgiving requires a spirit of humility; it's giving thanks for wins and losses. Each person who gives thanks is keenly aware that all accomplishment is achieved apart from his/her works or deeds. No one can successfully give thanks if he/she secretly believes that there is nothing for which they owe a debt gratitude. Thanks, by its very nature, recognizes the fallibility of human effort without godly assistance.

Years ago there was a popular television program called Captain Kangaroo. The Captain always taught the children who watched the show about the value of saying please and thank you, which the Captain called ''Magic words.'' Even though it was a children's show, the truth about thankfulness is nevertheless true. Having a spirit of gratitude every day is good.

As Christians, we are not ashamed to tell those that we know about the goodness of the Lord. We see what he has done for us and in us. Whenever we get the chance, we let the love of God shine on us. It shines brightly on us every day showing the world that we are a set of people with grateful souls.

Exposition

This text focuses on David as he recounts the ways that God blessed Israel, In spite of themselves, prompting him to conclude that God is deserving of thanks and praise.

Generally, the 106th Psalm is a historical narrative of the many ways that God blessed Israel despite their own stubbornness and tendency toward unfaithfulness and sin. It recounts God's blessings from the point of their liberation from Egypt to their arrival in the Promised Land. As their national history is recounted, their own flawed experience is revealed, and God's charity and mercy are seen clearly.

Beginning at verse 7 David started his recollections. He noted how God blessed Israel in Egypt, even though the people did not clearly understand the various ways that God was dealing with them in their experience.

He looked at God's actions, looking at each one slowly and meticulously, revealed what the people could not understand and did not remember. It showed that in moments when they felt God had forsaken or abandoned them, God was actually blessing them. Even as they wandered in the wilderness, they couldn't see how that was a blessing, until they looked at again. When they looked at it the second time, they realized that God was preparing them as a nation for a greater blessing that was to come.

When they had no food, they complained that God had forsaken them. After the recount, they remembered how God provided both bread and meat for them in the midst of their wilderness experience.

When they looked even closer, they saw some things they didn't like about themselves, which increased the importance of God's blessings in their own sight.

He reached his conclusion in verse 48, David declared, "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting. Let all the people said Amen. Praise the Lord!"
Reasons for Gratefulness

When we thank God, we thank him for the entire plate he has put in front of us.

When we offer grace over a meal, we don't say "Thank you, Lord, for the dressing, turkey, mac, and cheese, and peas, but not the cranberry sauce, because I'm allergic to cranberry sauce." We ask blessing for the entire table, even though it might contain some items that others may enjoy, but we might find difficult to swallow.

That's why the children's grace says, "God is great, God is good, God we thank you for our food. Amen."

Psalm 23 says, "Thou preparest a table before me." We thank him for whatever is on that table because everything on it comes from a great and good God.

The fact that God is good is not an issue with believers.

We know that to be a fact.

We trust that if it's on my plate and God prepared it, then it's ultimately going to be good for me, even if it does not taste good to me.

Psalm 107:9 says, For he satisfieth the longing soul and filleth the hungry soul with goodness.

What is on your plate that you do not like? A lost job? A defeat? An illness?

When you see items on your plate today, look beyond the meal you will share with friends and see the table that God has prepared for your life; it may include some things you don't particularly care for, but they will ultimately work out to your good. -All the time!

Every day is a day of praise, thanks, and testimony

Those who are working in the kingdom know the importance of giving thanks to God every day. That is what was unique about Jesus'' practice. He offered thanks every time He broke bread. We, who follow His footsteps, do precisely the same thing. We thank God every day for every blessing we have received from Him. While Thanksgiving is noted as a special day of thanks and reflection, those who know the Lord see it as a continuation of their own personal tradition.

We Give Thanks For Blessings: We thank God for blessings. Certainly, not all that we have achieved and attained was because of our deserving character. We thank Him for blessing us, despite the fact that we do not deserve such blessings. We recognize some of the ways that we have been blessed immediately. We see material evidence such as homes, cars, and a reasonable portion of health and strength. We thank Him for those. However, there are blessings we have received that are unseen. We have been protected from unseen dangers and miraculously steered around them. We have no way of knowing all of the unseen dangers that we have been spared from, just this day alone. Every day we give God thanks for blessing us!

We Give God Thanks for Burdens: Not only do we give God thanks for blessings, but we also give Him thanks for our burdens. 1 Thessalonians 5:18 says In everything give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you. The word everything includes our burdens and problems. We thank God for everything because we know that all things work for our good if we are in Christ Jesus. Thus, we thank Him for everything. We Give God thanks for everything, even if it appears there is nothing for which to be thankful, thank Him anyway!

Thank God for the bill collector! Thank God for the dentist! Thank God for your enemies! In everything, give thanks!

We thank God for his mercy on the journey

We should also celebrate our journey and give thanks to God for his mercy.

The Israelite's celebrated their journey by the giving of special offerings and renewing their pledges of faithfulness to God

They celebrated their journey by giving thanks.

Should we do less?

Every believer's celebration is filled with thanksgiving

We give God thanks for the seen and the unseen.

We thank him for the greens and butter beans, but we also thank him for being able to sleep soundly at night.

We thank him for turkey and dressing, but we also thank him for dressing our souls with his grace.

We thank him for fried chicken, rice, and a little gravy, but we should also thank him for spiritual gravy: Joy, love, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, faith, meekness, and temperance.

We thank him for cars, houses and color T.V. but we should also thank him for coloring our lives with faith and hope because they help us to see the world in a different light.

In essence, we should keep the admonition in mind, In everything, give thanks.

When we consider our journey we can't help but give thanks for the help the Lord has given us.

When God blesses us, we should be thankful

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember this truth, that 1 Thessalonians 5:18 says, "In everything give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you."

Today, millions of families bow their heads, and they give thanks. Many will offer thanks over a table of food. It doesn't matter whether there is turkey, duck, baked hens or Peanut Butter sandwiches, we will all give thanks for a crust of bread, and a corner sleep in. But we will also give thanks to God for sending a little bread from heaven to bless our lives.

If God gave you a car, but it was not a Lexus, then drive your little Volkswagen all over town and say, Thank you Lord!

If God gives you a house, but it is not a mansion, then walk through your little house and say thank you Lord for the Living room! Thank you Lord for the bedroom! Thank you Lord for the closets!

If God gives you food, but it's not Filet Mignon, then praise the Lord for the mustard greens, rice and gravy, cornbread and fried chicken!

Whatever blessings have come your way..receive and be pleased!

Today, many families will sit down to family meals all over the nation. Although the menu will change from one house to another, there is one thing that will be common on nearly every table, and that will be dressing, because there seems to be blessing in the dressing.

You can buy dressing mix and make it with Jiffy Mix, but any experienced cook will tell you, that's not real dressing.

Real dressing, is like the grateful soul, it's been through something.

It didn't come out of the box, with a little sugar added and made in a Jiffy; that's why there is blessing in the dressing.

Real dressing is made from cornbread that is whipped, mixed and baked from scratch. Somebody knows about putting your life together, one that's made from scratch, when you didn't have much, but you made it work. That's why there is a blessing in the dressing.

Real dressing looks good on the plate, but there is something that holds it together. A good cook will put in an egg or two to keep it together. Today, as your family sits at the table, the grateful soul remembers there is something that has kept your family together, it's called faith. "Now faith is the substance of the things hoped for and the evidence of things not seen." -In hard times and difficult days, it's your faith that the Lord would make a way, that has held your family together. That's why there is a blessing in the dressing.

Real dressing, like our lives, has seasonings. A little thyme, chopped celery, salt, and sage liven up its taste. The grateful soul has experienced the joy of marriage, family celebrations, the birth of children and grandchildren that have given flavor to your life. That's when you sing the words, "I've had some good days. I've had some hills to climb..but when I look around and think things over, all of my good days, out-weigh by bad days. I won't complain." That's when you realized that there is blessing is in the dressing.

Real blessing, like the grateful family, has constitution. If you see dressing that is watery and drips off the spoon that means the cook put it in the pan, but she didn't put it in the stove. Good dressing has to be baked and hardened in the heat of the oven. When your family gathers you'll be looking at a family that's been through something. You'll see a family that has seen death and sickness, failure, loss, and tears; it has been tried in the fire. Instead of falling apart, the family came together. If you could hold your family on a spoon it would be thick because it has constitution, it doesn't run in the face of adversity and trouble. That's why the blessing is in the dressing.

At the core of any good dressing is good bread, just like the core of the Christian family is faith in the Lord.

Jesus said in John 6:35 "I am the bread of life. He that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst."

For the grateful soul, the core of our thanks today is the living bread that came down from heaven.

No wonder the songwriter declared, Bread of heaven, Bread of Heaven, feed me till I want no more!

This bread is Jesus, the son of God!

This bread died for the remission of our sins!

But Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave all power in his hands!

Bread of Heaven!

Feed me!

...Till I want no more!

No. 9802-Inspiration

While He Was Yet Speaking

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 26, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "While he was yet speaking, there came also another, and said, The fire of God is fallen from heaven, and hath burned up the sheep, and the servants, and consumed them; and I only am escaped alone to tell thee." Job 1:16. "And it shall come to pass, that before they call, I will answer; and while they are yet speaking, I will hear." Isa 65:24

Introduction

Have you ever been in a situation where you were dealing with a problem, but before you finished dealing with it, another one occurred? There are times when you receive messages containing troubling information, but another message comes before you finished hearing the first one. On a really challenging day, it's possible to get three or more things to happen at the same time.

How does that work? Somebody wrote you a bad check and made your check bounce. You get in the car to go to the bank, but the car won't start because it's out of gas. You try to call for assistance, but the battery on your cell phone is dead. It's beginning to be a bad day so you have to sit still because your blood pressure is going up and your pills are out. You went inside to wash your face and found out you have nothing but cold water because the gas is off. While staring in the mirror in disgust, the toilet overflows and the hot water tank bursts. Dealing with all this, you finally get some gas and rush to get a prescription refilled, but the doctor wants you to come in for a visit first. So you rush to work but get a speeding ticket on the way only to learn that you have been fired. You drive slow on the way home only to find the landlord tacking an eviction notice on your door for past due payments and the repo man repossessing your car. It's one of those days that makes you want to scream!

When days similar to this come, even the best personal manager has difficulty keeping everything in control. We start to panic. We see the worst that can happen actually occurring, and we attempt to prevent that situation. When we panic there is disorder, disunity, distrust, and chaos. Even faith gets challenged.

Experience has taught us that God has an amazing way of making a way out of no way. He has carved pathways through seas and brought us over many mountains. While we are frustrated dealing with one problem or another, we have learned that he has already set things motion that change your situation to fit his will for you.

As Christians, we know the devil often tries our faith and gives us one problem after another, but we know that as fast as one problem appears, God will give us the strength to deal with them and arise undefeated.

Exposition

These two texts present us with rapidly recurring problems and God's rapid response to each of them.

The first text focuses on Job as he struggles to analyze the circumstances surrounding his sudden rise and fall. Satan, traveled throughout the land looking for mortals that could be tested. When he came upon Job, Satan was given the opportunity to test the faith of this God-fearing man, who was described as perfect. He challenged God to take away his possessions and Job's position would be different. God gave Satan permission to afflict Job's body and to create havoc in his life. All of the great things God gave him, including his large family, cattle, immense wealth and health, were taken away from him.

In a moment, they were all gone as carrier after carrier ran to Job to report that his children had been killed and his cattle had been stolen by enemies. Each of the instances came "While he was yet speaking."

The tragic events that happened to Job came before he had a chance to adequately respond to any of them.

Job was frustrated, but resolved, "all of the days of my appointed time, I'll wait until my change comes."

Through it all, he learned. Because of his experience, he was now able to stand any test, and weather any storm, even more confident that God would provide.

The text from Isaiah finds God frustrated because the people would not call upon him when they faced difficulties. Even as they suffered one problem after another, the people built altars, sacrificed to idols and complained constantly, but would not call on him or let him speak to their situations. In Isaiah 50:2, God asked Israel to give a reason it did not answer his calls. Here he said, "Wherefore, when I came, was there no man?

When I called, was there none to answer? Is my hand shortened and hath no power to deliver thee?"

God challenged the faithful to remember that when their prayer requests are within his will he will respond while they are still asking. The future of the obedient will be less stressful because they trust him. He painted a picture of the worry free life that didn't worry about troubles. Isaiah 65:20-25 he said such a life would be peaceful, where each person receives the hits and knocks of life in stride to the point that the effects of aging will past them by; a child who dies could be like a hundred years old and a senior citizen sinners, will still be doing sinful acts at 100 years old. People will build houses and live in them (v21)

One of the most promising aspects of this worry-free life is in verse 24 because it says when problem come, and they call on the Lord, that he will answer while they are "Yet Speaking."

Trouble just keeps coming

Trouble doesn't take a vacation and does not come at a convenient time. Trouble doesn't stop looking for ways to taunt and destroy us just because there is a new year. Yet, despite the presence of troubling situations, we should remember that God responds to every situation. We should expect to have times of trouble in our lives. God's promise to respond to each of our situations should ease our anxiety. The knowledge that this too shall pass should be reassuring. However, we should remember that God makes a way for us to be free from troubled hearts but not from troubled times.

This assurance should inspire confidence. Confidence like that only comes when we are sure of the outcome. That's where the believer has the edge. The word of God teaches that when a believer is operating in the will of God, no weapon formed against me shall prosper. When we are moving in the path that God wants to go, no obstacle, enemy or trouble will be able to slow our march toward fulfillment because God himself will clear a path and make way for us out of no way.

We don't expect trouble-free days, weeks or years. We don't expect our enemies to disappear or problems to vanish, but we are confident that when trouble comes, God will make a way.

That's we like the song that says, "Victory is mine! Victory is mine! Victory today is mind. I told Satan to get thee behind, Victory today is mine!"

Trouble will sidetrack you if you let it

When troubles come, it is easy for us to get sidetracked. It's difficult to focus when the tire is on a flat, the school calls about a child's behavior, and your bank account is overdrawn. Dealing with troubles can quickly get us off task. When problems come repetitively, it is hard to get it together. If we spend our lives responding to trouble, when do we get on track? Think of all the things we respond to: bills, family problems, marriage problems, school problems, parents, children, bosses, losses, gains, and pains all spell trouble. We tell ourselves that when we get through dealing with our troubles then we will get back to our primary focus. We even say that to the Lord.

Instead of waiting until our troubles are over, the bible says when trouble comes that's one of the times we should look for the Lord, not afterward. Psalm 27:5 says, For in the time of trouble he shall hide me in his pavilion: in the secret of his tabernacle shall he hide me; he shall set me up upon a rock. While trouble is rising, we get it together, then. We should not try to wait until trouble is over to get ourselves together because we need to be together to deal with the trouble. Those who know the Lord agree with the songwriter B. Chase Williams who said, "Trouble in my way. I have to cry sometimes. Lay awake at night, but that's alright. Jesus will fix it, afterwhile."

Don't wait until your troubles end to start getting your life together; do it now. What are you waiting for? What's taking you so long?

Despite our difficulties, don't lose your joy

Since we know that trouble will come, don't let trouble, steal your joy. It's very easy to get so mired down by troubles that come one after that other that we cannot make it. That's when we say in all honesty, The devil is a liar, he will not take away my praise.

We are able to do that because we are able to peer beyond the dark and murky cloud created by our trouble and say, I've seen troubles in the past, and I've endured, it's good to be here, Praise ye the Lord!

This may not be the best of days, but I thank the Lord for giving me the positive attitude to deal with it, Praise ye the Lord.

I may not be of the best of health. My steps may be getting slow. My eyesight may be getting dim. But that's not going to steal my joy. I thank the Lord for sparing my life and allowing me to see another sunrise!

The man with only one arm says I don't know about you, but I came to lift my other hand and shout, "I don't know what you came to do, but I came to praise the Lord."

The woman with only one eye, I don't know about you, but even though I only have one eye, I plan to look around and see what the Lord has done for me!

Praise him for waking me up this morning!

Praise him for clothing me in my right mind!

Praise him for giving me health and strength!

I heard the songwriter say I may not have done all that I wanted to do, but Lord it has been a mighty good day!

When trouble comes, stand still

Finally, brothers and Sisters, we must remember that when troubles come, feed on your faith rather than fan your fears!

Moses told Israel to stand still and see the Salvation of the Lord!

Stand still was a command to pause and reevaluate!

In Numbers 9:8 the people were about to panic because some of them had touched dead bodies and were unclean. As they began to panic, Moses said, Stand still let me talk to God about it!

If trouble erupts in your home, one after another, it is a good idea to pause, take a deep breath and talk to God about it!

If there is a question whose answer seems to evade you...Stand still and talk to God about it!

When you find yourself standing on the edge of night, dealing with a secret storm, caused by all my children, facing scandal or sicknesses that can run you to the general hospital have a little talk with Jesus and watch God give you the peace to deal with every situation.

That's the peace we get when we remember Isaiah said in 40:31 "But they that wait upon the LORD shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary, and they shall walk, and not faint."

The voice of despair said, Lie down and quit, but the voice of God says, keep going because you talked to me about and while you were yet speaking, I started opening doors for you. If you just want to lie down, then Lie down, lie down, thy weary one thy head upon my breast and I will give you rest!

The voice of frustration says, Give it up! but the voice of God says, I heard your prayer, and while you were yet speaking, I started turning things around. Don't give up! Don't give up, just look up!

I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help, my help cometh from the Lord who made the heavens and the earth!

The voice of frustration says fold your hands in frustration. But the voice of God says, in your frustration, you said, "Father I stretch my hands to thee no other help I know, if thou withdraw thyself from me, whether shall I go!" While you were yet, speaking, I started making things right.

When trouble is all around you, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the Lord because when you prayed, God heard. While you were yet speaking, he worked it out.

When your worries overwhelm you, remember God will take care of you! Through every day over all the way, he will take care of you!

God will take care of you!

Think about the goodness of the Lord!

Think about how he died out on Calvary!

Think about how he arose Early Sunday morning!

Think about how he has brought you a mighty long way!

When you feel like giving up, stand still and say, I don't believe he brought me this far to leave me!

While you are 'Yet speaking" God is working it out.

No. 9803-Inspiration

Celebrating Miracles

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 3, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "Behold, a virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us. Matthew 1:23

Introduction

Do you believe in miracles? People who believe in miracles fall into three distinct categories. Some use the term miracle to describe an amazing product or achievement. To this group a miracle is an outstanding example of technology and genius. The telephone, television, The artificial heart, Microwave, Desktop Computer and the iPad were considered examples of miraculous invention and innovation. This definition is usually followed by words such as phenomenal, wonderful, and marvelous. To this group, miracle is a technological breakthrough.

Another group of people describes any improbable or extraordinary development or accomplishment as a miracle. When Chesley Sullenberger, an American Airlines pilot, successfully crash-landed his jet in the Hudson River and saved 155 lives, the fact that no one was killed was described as a miracle. When a train or plane crashes, and only a few people are injured the general report is "It's a miracle that more people were not injured." If it's improbable or unlikely and it happens with a pleasing end, this group calls it a miracle.

The final group are those who describe an event that occurred when it was needed, after it was requested and it can't be explained by any scientific law or natural occurrence. The source of these unscientific and unnatural events is the intervention of God himself. In 2015 a mother in Utah lost control of her car and plunged upside down in a nearly frozen river, killing the mother on impact. Searchers and first responders miles away say they were led to the scene 14 hours later by a voice that spoke to all of them. They found the mother dead, but the baby dangled in a car seat just inches from freezing water. They couldn't explain the voice. Believers knew it was the voice of God. In 2014 in Boca Rotan, a 40-year-old woman suddenly fell unconscious from a rare disease, but doctors could not revive her, and she was pronounced dead. Forty-Five minutes later the family assembled in the hospital room for prayer. After the prayer, her started heart beating on its own and she survived without any brain damage or side effects. Doctors said defied all scientific laws and could not be explained, but believers called it a miracle in answer to a prayer.

The world laughs at the idea of miracles, but we have lived long enough to know that God has performed many miracles in our lifetime. We celebrate miracles of healings, restorations, and changed lives.

Very soon the world is going to celebrate another miracle that happened in a little town called Bethlehem. It is an absolutely astounding miracle—that a virgin would give birth to the Son of God. It's astounding because it defies all scientific logic and the natural order of things, yet the virginal conception of Jesus Christ within the womb of Mary is a great miracle that is celebrated even after 2000 years.

As Christians, we still don't understand how God performs miracles, we are happy to know that what we needed to happen,occurred when we needed it to occur, after we asked. The world asked God for a way to be saved from its sins, he answered us with a miracle in Bethlehem.

Exposition

This text focuses on a prophecy recited in Matthew that Christ would be born of a virgin mother and whose birth would come to signify that God had come to live among men. It would be a miraculous birth.

The original prophecy of the virgin birth was given 740 years before this text. Matthew referred to the prophecy given by the prophet Isaiah who in Isaiah 7:14 said, "Therefore the Lord himself shall give you a sign; Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel."

Matthew in writing this text said what Isaiah referred to 740 years earlier was no less than the miraculous, unexplainable, immaculate conception.

The birth of Christ was miraculous. Matthew 1:18 indicates that his birth was caused by the Spirit of God himself. The birth of Christ required a special explanation to all involved. Matthew 1:20 shows how an angel appeared to Joseph to explain that his bride would be used by God to introduce Christ into the world. Isaiah 7:14 indicates that the birth of Christ as the fulfillment of a prophecy seven centuries earlier.

Immanuel, means "God with us." It states that the baby Jesus was actually God being born into this world. As a human, he would face the same milk and butter issues as any other human. Yet, the fact that he came to the world would be a source of hope.

The text notes that the child would be called Immanuel. That would not be his name, but he would be referred to as "God with us." The text does not indicate that "Immanuel" would be his official name, but only that "Immanuel" would describe his presence and work on earth.

That God would take on the form of a human and select a teenage girl to serve as his surrogate to bring him into the world, is nothing less than a miracle.

It would be the first of many miracles associated with the savior.

We Believe in Miracles

After two thousand years, we are no closer to understanding the Incarnation than we were when it happened. We know what the Bible says, but we can't explain God becoming a man any more than we can explain the creation of the universe ex nihilo, out of nothing. You either believe it, or you don't, but your belief doesn't rest on your ability to "explain" how God could become a man.

The Christian faith is filled with miracles. Take the miraculous out of our faith, and there is nothing left. In particular, we believe that the earthly life of Christ was followed by two more utterly astounding miracles totally:

A Miraculous birth
A life of Miraculous deeds
A Miraculous resurrection

Belief in all three of these are the basis of our faith, and they are tied together; you can't believe one without believing the other.

The birth Christ in Bethlehem is significant and miraculous. That miraculous birth, in a greater sense, indicates the potential for God to work miracles in any life, even those born into lowly situations.

There have been many people in life who have testified that they would have given up on their dreams and aspirations, but the power of God within them miraculously encouraged them to arise and begin again.

When Jesus comes into our lives he performs a miracle inside of us. He gives us an entirely new way of looking at life, the future and our potential. When our hope had literally died, he miraculously gave us the courage that we needed to tackle tough situations and difficult times. All of that happens when Jesus comes.

In the middle of adverse circumstances, she gave birth; it was a miracle!

In the middle of tough times and bad living arrangements, she gave birth; it was a miracle!

In the middle of their poverty, she gave birth to a miracle.

We know of Miracles

We believe Christ can perform miracles in our lives. We never give up hope. That's why we pray to God in Jesus' name because we have read of his miraculous deeds on earth and seen evidence in the lives of witnesses in our own lifetime.

When the storms of life rage, we pray to God for a miracle. It's not an idle prayer because we know that he has miraculously spoken to storms and they have ceased with only the words, "Peace be still."

When we are sick, pray to God for healings. It's not an idle prayer because we know that in the three years that he ministered publicly he performed all manner of miracles that ranged from restoring sight, healing paralysis, curing insanity and even raising the dead. We know he is a miracle worker and has the power to heal.

When we are troubled by evil spirits disturbing our soul, we know that he can speak to the demons that trouble us, just as he miraculously spoke to a man with legions of demons in him and ran them away. We are confident that he can miraculously remove demons out of our lives.

When our resources have run completely out, and all doors are shut, we know God can work miracles. We know he fed 5,000 with two little fishes and five loaves of bread. We saw him solve tax problems by miraculously producing enough to pay taxes with a coin found in a fish's mouth. What does all of this say? It says that even our daily bread and butter issues are not beyond his miraculous power.

The New Testament gives witness to the fact that miracles occurred after Christ ascended and returned to heaven. There were miracles performed by the Apostles: the sick were healed, sight was restored, and even the dead were raised.

God is a miracle worker.

God Still Works Miracles

Finally, The great truth for every believer to remember is that God has not retired from the miracle business. He is still answering prayers and still working miracles today.

In our own time, we have seen so many examples of the miraculous intervention of our Savior that we are convinced that no power could have made it happen except the power of God.

Sometimes we succumb to the apparent impossibility of circumstances that surround us, and we conclude that it cannot be done. It is times such as these that we forget who is in control of things. We forget about God's miracle-working ability.

When faith seems to falter, we need to remind ourselves that although it looks dark and defeat appears imminent God is still on the throne. Every child of God believes in a miraculous God.

We should continuously remind ourselves that no matter how frustrating the situation might seem it never reaches a point of complication beyond the miraculous power of God.

The songwriter said God is still on the throne, within your bosom you have the phone. Your miracle is just a prayer away, God is on the line.

Another songwriter said Jesus is on the mainline, tell him what you want. If you're sick and you want to get well, tell him what you want.

The true story is told of a little girl who was worried over the sickness of her brother. She prayed and ask God what to do. She heard her parents say that her brother had something bad growing in his head. They had been to the local doctors, and they said only a miracle could save him.

One morning she poured out the contents of her savings, kept in a jelly jar and counted it. She had $1.11. She ran to the local pharmacy and asked the attendant which isle could she find miracles.

"How much does a miracle cost?" the little girl asked as she explained that her little brother had something bad growing in his head and she needed to buy a miracle. She said all she had was $1.11, but if it cost more, she could get it. As she talked tears ran down her face. A man standing behind her wearing a very fine suit he saw the cashier push the girl to the side and was moved to console the little girl. He bent down and asked, "What kind of miracle does your brother need?" She said it was in his head and it will cost a lot of money to save him.

The man asked, "How much do you have?" she answered, "$1.11" The man said it just so happens that is the right price for miracles for little brothers. He went to the girl's home and met the parents. In a short time they learned that the man was famed Neuro Surgeon Dr. Carlton Armstrong. He performed the surgery and save the little boy's life.

Week's afterward they received an envelope with a bill from the surgeon with several pages of costs. When they reached the last page the total bill was $1.11. Handwritten across the bottom, paid in full.

Are you stricken with an illness? How much does a miracle cost?

Are you at a low point in your life and can't seem to get back on your feet? How much does a miracle cost?

Are you worried about your misdirected children and lost dreams? How much does a miracle cost?

Miracles cost more than we can pay, but we have the assurance that "Jesus paid it all: That's why the songwriter declared, "Jesus paid it all, all to him I owe. Sin had left its crimson stain, but he washed it white as snow."

Before anyone loses hope, we should remember that we serve an awesome God who reigns and paid the cost of our miracle

It's a miracle that the those who are sick are healed.

It's a miracle that those who have failed have been given second chances

It's a miracle that the lost have found their way again.

God is still in the miracle-working business. We know it's a miracle because he touched the lives of the:

WEAK and he provided them strength
DOWNED and he picked them up!
DEFEATED and he gave them the victory
DISCOURAGED and he restored their hope!
LONELY and he gave them comfort
TROUBLED and he gave them peace of mind
It all began with miracle in a little town called Bethlehem
He died on an old rugged cross!
But Early Sunday morning, there was another miracle, he arose from the dead
We're celebrating his miracles every day!
Hallelujah!

No. 9804-Christmas

A Pondering Mary and a Pondering Lord

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 17, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "But Mary kept all these things and pondered them in her heart" Luke 2:19. "Saying, Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me: nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done. Luke 22:42

Introduction

Have you ever given serious thought to how your experiences this year have been interconnected? If so, have been able to understand how one thing leads to another. Could you see those experiences, whether good or bad, as part of God's big picture for your life or family?

There are a set of children's art books that have been on the market for many years in which a child is presented with a page full of dots and told that all of the dots form a picture. The challenge is to see the image and then draw a line from one dot to the next connecting them in a way that ends with a clearly defined image. As easy as that seems there are many people who have trouble drawing the picture. The main reason is that they cannot see the overall picture. Without the ability to see the full picture then we may spend our time connecting dots, but the final result is much different than it should be.

As the end of a year approaches, many people take inventory of the past year and consider the events and experiences of the year. Each experience is a lot like a dot on their life's big picture. Our goal this year was to connect the dots to help draw the picture of the life ahead of us.

Connecting the dots requires three things. First, it requires us to see that the final result of our actions will produce the picture God has for our life. Secondly, the challenge is not just to make a connection with any dot, but to connect the dots that will draw the picture God wants. Thirdly, just because a dot is in your picture, it won't get you to your final result unless you connect by the numbers or the prescribed order.

That has a particular significance for believers because it is essential for each of us to see God's purpose for our lives, that's the picture inside of the dots. Then we must connect all of the events of our lives and see how they help form the big picture. The point where we consider whether our connections have been according to God's big picture for us is what we can call our "Pondering Point."

The word "pondered" goes deeper than "wondering." It means to take the events as you have laid them out in your memory and then to go beneath the surface to try to understand what it all means and why it happened the way it did. To wonder is to look at who, what and where there is a possibility of making a connection. Those who wonder only want to hook up to a dot, especially if the dot looks like it's going up.

To ponder is to look deep into the here and now to understand the why and how. Why and how am I being saved and blessed in the here and now. Why and how are the events I have encountered fit into God's big picture for me

To Ponder is to study our connections to understand how they are a part of the bigger picture that God has for us. To wonder ignores the big picture but focuses on making the next hookup.

To Ponder is to look deeper into every experience we have shared looking for the why it mattered to the overall scheme that God has laid out for us.

The word "treasured" indicates that we have counted each connection and rejoice at the knowledge that regardless to whether our pattern has carried us up or down to the left or to the right, it is all a part of God's purpose for our lives.

As Christians, we rejoice in the knowledge that God has a purpose for our lives and every event or experience, no matter how unexplained they may be.

Exposition

The two texts today give two examples of Pondering: one by Mary after the birth of Jesus and one by Jesus himself just before going to Calvary.

In Luke, an angel announced to Mary that she would give birth to the son of God. Shepherds came to acknowledge his birth, and Holy angels confirmed his deity. It was an announcement that seemed unbelievable, but highly possible, with God.

Mary had plenty to ponder. She had much to reflect upon. When she considered the series of events that brought her to Bethlehem, the very place where Angels were preparing to announce the birth of the Christ. Her meditations have a greater meaning once it is considered that she brought forth this son, despite the suspecting eyes and wagging tongues of the people in her hometown who were taken aback by the fact that she was pregnant before she was married to Joseph. Secondly, her meditations had to focus on her good fortune to have a successful childbirth, despite the circumstances. Despite her long journey, most of which was on foot, there were no complications. Her child would be the Son of God, the promised Messiah. She pondered these things.

The text from Luke focuses on Jesus as he prayed in the Garden. He rehashed his entire ministry, the decision made by the father to send him to earth, his birth, his three-year ministry, his reception among the people and rejection by the leaders. He pondered the dots already connected, but also saw the next dot in the pattern which was Calvary, death, burial and finally resurrection. In a moment of human weakness, he asked that he could skip a dot or two and go to the resurrection morning. However, when he pondered the full purpose of his life, which was to provide salvation for millions who would follow, he had to connect all of the dots, in the right order.

Mary pondered and saw a cross in the cradle. Jesus pondered and saw an empty tomb and a saved generation.

Connecting the Dots

As we consider our life journey, like Mary, we must ponder our circumstances, experiences, and situations and see God working in our lives. Things to Ponder

PONDER THE DOTS ALREADY CONNECTED: We were born with a life purpose and each year we experience events and situations that lead us from one dot to the next. As the final days of the year wind down, we should take a look at the dots we've connected this year. A marriage, a divorce, a celebration, a death, an advancement, a defeat, a victory, a sickness, a recovery, bad news, good news, a job lost, a job found, loneliness, new friends, etc. Now "Ponder" the dots. To ponder your dots, ask God to show you what patterns are at work. What is God teaching you? What lessons seem to come up repeatedly? What have you learned about yourself, good or bad, from the experience. Look at how each pondering point was a springboard to the next and God is slowly bringing you to what you should be. As the years go by, you begin to see a picture developing of a man or woman who is living a life of faith. That's why 2 Corinthians 5:7 says, "For we walk by faith and not by sight." It means we are moving from dot to dot trusting that each connection is building the life God wants us to have. The songwriter said, "Step by Step, we'll make this journey, but we must put our trust in God." Remember Proverbs 3:5-6: "Trust in the LORD with all thine heart, and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths."

MISCONNECTED DOTS MAKE AN UGLY PICTURE: Mary had much to ponder. She had to consider how each step in the process led to the completion of prophecies made nearly a thousand years earlier. They lived in Bethlehem, but God causes Caesar to order a census to move them to Bethlehem to make the next connection. In a similar sense, God moves us from one situation to another to be ready for the next connection. Sometimes dots make a loop and carry you back to the same point and then to a different direction. However, if Mary and Joseph had chosen to stay in Nazareth, they would have had a misconnection. The star would have shown over Bethlehem, but there would have been no child. The Shepherds would have come to the stable, but the manger would have been empty. Most importantly, the prophecy of God that the Messiah would be born in Bethlehem would have been unfulfilled.

If we fail to make the connections we should not make or take shortcuts or the wrong directions, we get an ugly picture. There is a prescribed order for every step we take, in the beginning, they make little sense, but bye and bye we understand. When we are following the order that God gives, it may seem frustrating, and we may fall while trying to follow it, but God will hold us up. Psalm 37:23-24 says, "The steps of a good man are ordered by the LORD: and he delighteth in his way. Though he fall, he shall not be utterly cast down: for the LORD upholdeth him with his hand."

PONDER FOR THE NEXT DOT: Pondering for Mary not only meant looking at the events that led up the birth of Christ, but it also meant listening to God make the next connection. Logically, Mary and Joseph should have said, "We've registered for the tax, you have delivered the baby, let's go back to Nazareth." That appeared to be the next step. Yet, God led them to the next dot, which was a long ways from Nazareth; they went to Egypt. It was not logical or practical. They were poor, with no means of transportation, a baby to feed and no known connections in Egypt. They went to where God led them and by doing so avoided death because Herod was looking for them.

As the last few days of this year winds down, like Mary, we will ponder our next dot. If we wonder, we will make our own plans. If we ponder, however, we will plan our next moves after prayer and listening to the voice of God. To do that we must ask God for his guidance and be willing to follow his will. Psalm 27:11 says, "Teach me thy way, O LORD, and lead me in a plain path, ….."

Pondering his goodness

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that while pondering involves looking at our past and present, Pondering is also about following the will of God.

Just as Mary and Joseph made it to the right place by no plan or design of their own, God is fixing a few things for every family this Christmas, especially those families that are trying to follow his will.

Mary and Joseph made it to Bethlehem, following his will.

They survived threats of death from Herod, following his will.

To connect the dots, God fixes things. As Christmas approaches watch how God fixes things in your family.

To connect the dots, there will be some schedules that will be rearranged.

To connect the dots, in spite of meager resources there will be enough food for your family and enough to share with visitors.

God is lining things up, one after another, he is connecting the dots.

We are not worried about tomorrow because we know that our God will show us how to connect the dots.

God started connecting the dots from the moment he said, "let us make man." He began connecting dots that would one day lead to the salvation of men.

In the Garden, Jesus pondered his situation.

Father, you decided that mankind needed a way to be saved and you laid out a plan that looked like a series of unconnected dots.

Father, you prepared that was so simple all men would have to do is connect the dots, believe and receive because Romans 10:9 says, "That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved."

When the world was rocking and reeling in despair, the cry went out through time and eternity...the Lord needs somebody to show wayward mankind how to connect the dots and reap the joy of salvation. Lord needs somebody, who shall I send?

Abraham couldn't go; he had to deal with the lamb in the bush!

Moses couldn't go; he had to administer the ten commandments!

Elijah couldn't go; he had to wrestle with the prophets of Baal!

Ezekiel couldn't go; he had to envision the dry bones in the valley!

Daniel couldn't go; he had to spend the night in the Lion's Den!

Malachi couldn't go; he was possessed by people that were robbing God!

John the Baptist couldn't go, because he wasn't worthy to untie his shoes!

In the Garden, Jesus pondered, and he answered, "here am I send me."

In the Garden, Jesus pondered all of the connected dots. The blind could see, the lame could walk and the dead had been raised.

In the Garden, Jesus pondered the next step. He didn't like the next dot, "if there was a way to provide salvation for mankind, short of Calvary he wanted God to excuse him from the cross."

He could see the final dot, but he wasn't allowed to skip a dot.

He could see Sunday morning, but he couldn't skip Thursday night, Friday night and Saturday night.

He could see the victory of the empty tomb, but he couldn't skip the nails on the cross. He had to connect the dots.

He told his father, if that's the way you want me to go, "not my will but thy will be done."

The dots had connected.

Down the halls of time, he came saying "prepare me a body."

He came to a prepared body and made a connection.

He died on a prepared cross and made a connection.

He was buried in a prepared tomb and made a connection

Early Sunday morning he made a connection, because arose from the dead.

One of these old days he's coming back again to connect the final dot.

That's when we will be caught up!

Caught up!

To meet him in the air!

No. 9805-Christmas

A Blue Christmas

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

December 2017

SCRIPTURE:"Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word:For mine eyes have seen thy salvation,Which thou hast prepared before the face of all people;A light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel." Luke 2:29-32

Introduction

What do you think of when you think of the color blue? Majesty? It is associated with stability, loyalty, wisdom, faith, and truth. To many people blue also represents hopelessness.

That's why blue is an odd color at Christmas time. If you hadn't noticed, it's not on trees or in decorations, but it is the way many people feel unless they can see the shadow of the cross falling on the crib.

Unless we can see the shadow of the cross on the crib, all we will see is tragedy and sadness. Diane Hicks of Arlington, Virginia wrote that without hope this is what a hopeless person will see at Christmas time:

For the hopeless, it is the story of a teenage girl, pregnant with a child that is not her husband's.

It is the story of a child born in a dirty animal stall.

It is the story of innocent boys being killed by King Herod because Herod feared one of them might be the rival king the Wise Men spoke of.

It is the story of someone - sent into the world in peace - who was condemned to death.

It is the story of a light sent to shine in the darkness, and the world snuffed it out.

It is the story of God's never-ending, self-giving mercy which was rejected and condemned."

If that's all that anyone sees, then indeed Christmas would definitely be blue. If all you looked at were the things that were wrong about the birth of Jesus, that's all you'd see – a blue, blue Christmas which offered no words of hope or joy.

Simeon didn't look at it that way. He gave a prophecy that was filled with "bad news," but he also had some uplifting words to say as well.

"Sovereign Lord, as you have promised, you now dismiss your servant in peace. For my eyes have seen your salvation, which you have prepared in the sight of all people, a light for revelation to the Gentiles and for glory to your people Israel." (Luke 2:29-

In the blue, he saw the light.

In the difficulties surrounding the people, he saw a reason for hope, "My eyes have seen your salvation."

In blue situations it's hard to see the light.

Mary and Martha questioned why Christ did not come to aide Lazarus when he was ill. They chided him saying, "If you would have been here, my brother would not have died." In a way, they questioned the advantage of personally knowing the savior, but could not benefit from the relationship. They saw the blue, but Jesus helped them see the light.

Even Christ himself questioned his father when He was hanging on the cross. He cried out, "Father, why hast thou forsaken me." For a moment he saw the blue, but regained focus on the marvelous light and announced, "Forgive them for they know not what they do."

It's odd, but we usually see "blue" when we are hurting. We rarely see blue when things are going right or when God is blessing us. We rarely ask God, "Why are you blessing me like this? Why are you answering my prayers?"

The answer to our frustration is that we may see blue, but in every situation, there is always a reason for hope because God is always with us.

As Christians, our goal should be to face any debilitating circumstance with a spirit of optimism that is boyoued by our faith that as long as we have King Jesus, there is no reason for us to be sad or blue.

Exposition

This text focuses on how Simeon saw the salvation of the Lord in a gloomy situation.

What Simeon saw was the same hope that Joseph and Mary saw, despite the frustration of a pregnancy before a formal marriage. Matthew Henry notes that Joseph and Mary marveled at the things which were spoken of this Child. Simeon shows them likewise, what reason they had to rejoice with trembling. And Jesus, his doctrine, and people are still spoken against; his truth and holiness are still denied and blasphemed; his preached word is still the touchstone of men's characters. The secret good affections in the minds of some, will be revealed by their embracing Christ; the secret corruptions of others will be revealed by their enmity to Christ. Men will be judged by the thoughts of their hearts concerning Christ. He shall be a suffering Jesus; his mother shall suffer with him, because of the nearness of her relation and affection.

Simeon's words are often called the "Nunc dimittis" from the two words with which the Latin translation of it begins. Simeon sees death approaching, but he is not dismayed because he understood the purpose for which God kept him alive and he rejoiced in approaching death because he could see the salvation of the Lord.

In a sense, Simeon represents a person who can see the break of the morning after the blackness of night. He knows that promised revelations are coming and that his weary waiting is at an end.

Why was he able to find hope in his dying days? “For mine eyes have seen thy salvation.” He could only say those words because he had seen Christ. That truth rings true to believers today because only those who have experienced the Lord for themselves will be satisfied.

Scripture teaches that those who experience Christ are the richer and those who have not are the real losers, regardless of how it appears to others. To gain Christ and lose the world is considered gain Phil 1:21.

The initial state of Simeon’s condition was that he was old and dying. It was definitely a “blue” moment. However, because his eyes saw the Christ he experienced the joy of the Lord which gave him hope, not so much for himself, but for the world that would follow after him.

A Patch of Blue

Between the close of the Old Testament and the opening of the new was a period of darkness. That darkness would not subside until the coming of “Shiloh” the word of hope that would be brought to earth from God. The name Shiloh has many meanings, one of them is Message from God. That is what the world sought, a message from God. When the New Testament opened 490 years had passed without hearing a word from God. There were no prophets. There were pronouncements. No encouragements or condemnations. There were 490 years of silence. It was a frustrating period. However, when the message came from John that the savior was coming, the people saw a patch of blue that could change their situation forever.

Shiloh came, the silence was broken. Jesus was both the message and the messenger. John said, “In the beginning, was the word and the word was with God, and the word was God.” When the word became flesh, the message became the messenger.

As believers struggle to deal with the “Every day blues” that trouble them, they want to hear a word because they know that When Shiloh comes; when they hear a word from God they will have direction!

When Shiloh comes, they can be sure about their decisions!

When Shiloh comes, their doubts can be resolved!

When Shiloh comes, God will move on the altar of their spirit and motivate them in a way that no other can!

When Shiloh comes, though they are surrounded by darkness, they will see the break of day and a patch of blue that brings hope.

For those with the blues, Christ brings hope

Many people approach the Christmas season with the blues, but they have found hope that the world and their own situation is not a total loss when they focus on the birth of God’s son into the world.

In Bethlehem Mary delivered the baby Jesus in a stable. The fact that she “brought forth" is significant to us because in a greater sense when Jesus comes in any life he inspires, motivates and pushes us to bring forth.

There have been many people in life who have testified that they would have given up on their dreams and aspirations, but the power of God within them encouraged them to bring forth. The only reason we would need to bring forth something is because it is hidden and latent. We bring forth that which is within us already but has not been realized. We bring forth potential.

`When Jesus comes into our lives, he helps us to bring forth our potential. He brings forth the courage that we need to tackle tough situations and difficult times. Hebrews 13:6 says, "So that we may boldly say, The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me." When Jesus comes, there is a spirit of boldness that envelops every believer. We know that it can be done. We start to believe that all things are possible and the defeat leaves us. All of that happens when Jesus comes.

In the middle of the blues of adverse circumstances, a child was born.

In the middle of the blues brought on by tough times and bad living arrangements, a baby in a manger brought hope!

In the middle of the blues caused by whispers and stares from those who were turned off by their relationship, a baby's cry inspired us!

In the middle of the blues caused by their impoverished condition, down in Bethlehem the world found a source of joy!

Jesus turns blues situations into situations for hope.

In the Blackest night God, God shows us the dawn

We have the blues, but God shows us the blue. There is a difference. The Blues sees only the darkness, but when God shows us the blue, he shows us that despite the darkness he is working to bring us to the light. That's why scripture teaches that "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy comes in the morning." The noted theologian H. Beecher Hicks, Jr. reminds us that God works all day, but he works especially well at night.

In the night, when the warmth of day subsides, and a chill falls over the earth, God is working to show you the blue.

In the night, when the birds hush their singing, and the crickets compose a nocturnal symphony, God is working to show you the blue.

In the night, when the moon has made its majestic march to its appointed throne, gleaming against the Black curtain of creation, God is working to show you the blue.

In the night, those who are sick, seem to get sicker, but God is working to show you the blue.

In the night, the unsure become afraid, and the doubtful lose hope, but God is working to show you the blue.

In the silence and insecurity of the night the Shepherds heard a word from heaven: Unto us, a savior is born, which is Christ the Lord.

A blue Christmas means glad tidings

If blue represents hope and inspiration, then the birth of the Christ child was a glad tiding. It was a sign of hope.

This was glad tidings for Israel that was enduring a long and unbearable night. They were second-class citizens at best and little more than chattel at worse. They were generally poor and what little they managed to save was taken in taxes and tributes. Their feeble efforts to find freedom and peace of mind and soul were often covered by a blanket of darkness which hovered over them like an endless night which would never see the break of day. There was silence as they waited for the fulfillment of the promises of God.

The birth of Christ was a sign that the night was about to break.

They were able to see beyond the darkness and peer into the marvelous light.

Every child of God ought to be able to peer beyond the dark and murky cloud that veils the glistening rays of a new day begun and resolve in his mind despite the hard times I've seen and troubles I've endured, it's good to be here, Praise ye the Lord!

I may not have all that my heart desires, but I thank the Lord for giving me what little I have, Praise ye the Lord.

I may not be in the best of health. My steps may be getting slow. My eyesight may be getting dim. But I thank the Lord for sparing my life and allowing me to see another sunrise!

I can see the "blue" of Christmas so, praise him for waking me up this morning!

I can see the "blue" of Christmas so, praise him for clothing me in my right mind!

I can see the "blue" of Christmas so, praise him for giving me health and strength!

I heard the songwriter say, "Joy to the world, the Lord is come, let earth receive her King!"

Because of the king, I can see the "blue" without the blues this Christmas

Renewed hope

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider the reason the world celebrates the birth of the Christ child. It's because this child is a sign of renewed hope that weeping endures but a night, but joy comes in the morning.

The birth of this child takes away our blues and gives us a new reason to sing, "I'm so glad that trouble don't last always!"

God has given the world a sign. He says, "This child shall be my sign!"

—When darkness covers the land, that I am able to turn darkness into light! So look for a blue Christmas —That although war is talked about in every corner, there will be peace on earth and goodwill toward all men! So look for a blue Christmas.

—That although problems make life difficult, that God will make a way somehow! So look for a blue Christmas.

This child is a special child, for Isaiah said in 9:6 “For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; And the government shall be on his shoulder; his name shall be called:

—Wonderful. Counselor. The Mighty God. Everlasting father. Prince of Peace!”

This child is a sign of God’s unending love. I heard John 3:16 say, “For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life.”

One evening out on Calvary, the world saw the sign of God’s abiding love.

For he died out on Calvary, but early Sunday morning he arose from the grave!

The empty tomb was a sign that he had risen from the grave!

I don’t need to sing with B.B. King, “Every day I have the blues,” because I have a new song to sing, its “Every day with Jesus is sweeter than the day before” And every now and then I feel a sign that he is alive for I feel him in my soul!

I don’t have the blues, but I have hope!

I can see the blue!

No. 9806-Christmas

Joy to the World

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 24, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people." Luke 2:10

Introduction

Can anything steal your joy? In September, it was announced that Mega-Store ToysRUs will be filing for bankruptcy. The huge toy store that sells millions of toys around the world is $5 billion in debt and can hardly keep its head above water. It is seeking bankruptcy protection while it reorganizes itself to pay off its creditors. It lasted through this season, but doubt lingers whether it will be around much longer.

The announcement of the ToysRUs bankruptcy was depressing news for many because an entire generation of believers grew up getting their toys from the Mega Store. For many people, the meaning of Christmas was a trip to ToysRUs. For them, that was a real joy. It's not just a store, it's a superstore; it is big! More than that, it operates all year round! When Millennials heard the news that the symbol of their childhood Christmas joy might be closing there was a universal disappointment. Where will I get my toy all year round?

If the super toy store closes, it won't have an impact on believers. Our joys do not come from toys so the closure of a year-round toy store won't dampen our joy because 365 days a year we have a source of joy that does not depend on a store.

The source of our joy comes from the love of God, nothing the world can do can steal that joy, even news about the bankruptcy of our favorite toy store. Dr. Suess, the fabled children's writer wrote a classic children's poem called "How the Grinch Stole Christmas." The cute little rhyme, complete with funny caricature styled pictures tells the story of an ugly old Grinch who was upset because the people of the town of Whoville had so much joy at Christmas time. He couldn't stand the noise and the happiness and the celebration. The Grinch figured that the secret to their joy was in the toys. So he decided to steal the toys to take away the joys of Christmas. After stealing their toys, The Grinch waited to see their response. Without toys and gifts, the Grinch thought Christmas would not come, and there would be no joy. On Christmas morning, even without toys, the Grinch found:

"Somehow or other, it came just the same!

And the Grinch, with his grinch-feet ice-cold in the snow,
Stood puzzling and puzzling: "How could it be so?
It came without ribbons! It came without tags!
"It came without packages, boxes or bags!"
And he puzzled three hours, 'till his puzzler was sore.
Then the Grinch thought of something he hadn't before!
"Maybe Christmas," he thought, "doesn't come from a store.
"Maybe Christmas...perhaps...means a little bit more!"

The Grinch learned what we already know that the joy of Christmas is heightened by the exchange of gifts, but the gifts are not the source of the joy.

Even as we celebrate Christmas, millions are still recovering from Hurricanes Harvey, and Maria, and tropical storms Nate and Irma. Thousands in Puerto Rico sill have no power, clean water or resources to survive. Yet, this Christmas they have huddled in whatever shelter or homes they could find and found a reason for joy. When they sing "Joy to the World" the skeptics wonder, what do they have to sing about? They have seen the power of God move in the winds, but they have seen the mercy of God help them survive the winds and rebuild their lives, and that gives them joy.

As Christians, we are the embodiment of joy. It doesn't come from ToysRUs, Walmart or Amazon, it comes from within.The songwriter is right, "This joy I have, the world didn't give it, and the world can't take it away!"

Exposition

This text focuses on the good news brought by the angels to shepherds watching their fields. It was news that would bring them "great joy."

The announcement of Christ's birth was not an ordinary announcement. It was highly unusual primarily because it was announced by Angels themselves.

The angels told them not to fear because they were bringing news of "great joy."

The Greek word for "great" is Megas, which means big, enormous, colossal. It's the word we get the English word "Mega." When mega precedes something, it is going to be super big.

The angel announce news that brought "mega joy." It would be a mega joy for all of Israel.

It would be a mega joy for the shepherds. It would be mega joys for every believer; that means mega joys for us.

The good news, of course, was the birth of Christ. That is the same good news that lifts our spirits today. The reality that God is with us should lift our spirits and give us reason to be hopeful, cheerful and excited about life and all it offers.

Sources of Joy

As the world celebrates this season, you will hear many salutations that include:

Happy Holidays, Seasons Greeting, Happy Kwanza, and Happy Hanukkah. For believers, there is only one salutation that is appropriate, and that is: Merry Christmas because Christmas celebrates the birth of Jesus Christ. For us, Jesus is the reason for the season.

There are several sources of our joy:

JOY COMES FROM FAMILY: Mary was traveling with Joseph from their hometown of Nazareth to Bethlehem. They had to do this because of a census that Caesar had ordered. Joseph's family line was linked to Bethlehem, so all of the family was to meet there. It was like a family reunion for all. This family reunion would be a chance to meet family members who they had not seen in a long time or perhaps had never seen. So amidst the travel, it was a chance to be together with family.

One of the joys of Christmas is the reunion of family or friends. Obviously, they can't bring gifts for everyone, but just that presence or phone call brings joy. We value the importance of family and nothing brings more joy into the family circle than seeing the joy on grandma's face or the toothless smile of a newborn. Families that have bonded in the love of God are especially excited to see many of their loved ones under one roof, even if it's only for a day. It's a joy that can't be bought in a store or wrapped in a package.

JOY COMES FROM RENEWED HOPE: Mary and Joseph had survived rough times in their relationship because Joseph was engaged to a girl who was carrying a child that was not his. God intervened, and they worked through their issues in faith. They were excited about being parents. but were poor, spent the night in a stable, and survived a challenging situation. The birth of Christ was a sign of renewed hope.

Today, as we celebrate Christmas, it is still a sign of renewed hope. Many families will be celebrating because they are working out their issues. Family issues have strained their ties, but they are working them out, overcoming, forgiving, working together, and they can see the light at the end of the tunnel; they have turned the corner. With God's help these families, and yours may be one of them, can see changes in their attitudes, health, finances, and expectations. This brings joy. It's a joy that can't be bought in stores and won't be under the Christmas tree.

JOY COMES FROM SHARING LOVE: When Christ was born in Bethlehem it was such an historic event that it could not be kept; it had to be shared. The angels shared the good news with the Shepherds. The shepherds left rejoicing and shared it with other shepherds. When God has given us a victory, an answered prayer, a miraculous healing, an unexpected reunion and spiritual renewal, it is happy moment that is enjoyed best when shared.

In the Movie "Mahagony" Diana Ross played an aspiring model who moved from rags to riches, but in the process dumped the one man she loved played by Billy Dee Williams. At the top of her career, enjoying all of the success of the world she found herself famous but without the man she loved. Billy Dee delivered the one classic line from the movie that said, "Success is nothing without someone you love to share it with."

That's why people come home for Christmas. The fact that you graduated from college, got a job, married the love of your life, started a business, had a baby, or found success in one area or another, means nothing to you unless you have people that you love to share it with. It's the sharing of that good news with loved ones that brings joy.

It's great news shared in the family circle that brings, "Great Joy!"

The World's Joy

Finally, brothers and sisters, we receive joy from our family, when we celebrate renewed hope, and when we share our good news, but our greatest joy comes in knowing that no matter what the future holds God is with us.

Matthew 1:23 says, "Behold, a virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us.

The mega Joy of every believer is that no matter how deep the valley or dark the alley, there is always hope because God is with us.

The word of God constantly reminds us that we are not alone. God is with us.

Christmas reminds us of God's promise to be with us to support us, defend us, and protect us, according to his will.

I hear Jesus say "lo, I am with you!"

That means if you hear bad news about the economy and the downsizing of your income, just keep the faith and remember God is with us.

That's the joy that Christ brings to the world.

When God is with us

-It doesn't matter how dark the night because he can take darkness and turn it into the light!

-It doesn't matter how much rain falls because, after every rain, he makes the sun shine!

-It doesn't matter how many ditches your enemies dig for you, he can take your enemies and make them your footstools

-It doesn't matter if you don't have a dime in your pocket if you take the Lord with you.

When we wake up in the morning, we have joy because God is with us.

At the noon day, we have joy because God is with us.

At the midnight hour, we have joy because God is with us.

We have joy because we know:

If we stumble and trust in the Lord, he'll help us to stand!

If we are discouraged but trust in the Lord, he'll give us new inspiration!

If we get weak and trust in the Lord, he'll make us strong!

If we get lost and trust in the Lord, he'll help us find our way!

If we find ourselves in the valleys and alleys of despair, he's able to deliver us!

We ought to be singing "Joy to the world" because Jesus gave his blood for us on Calvary.

We ought to be singing "Joy to the World" because he was buried in a borrowed tomb.

We ought to be singing, "Joy to the world" because early Sunday morning he arose from the grave, with all power in his hands!

Joy to the world, the Lord is come!
Joy to the world, let earth receive her king!

No. 9807-Revival

All we like sheep

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 2017

SCRIPTURE: "All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and the LORD hath laid on him the iniquity of us all." Isaiah 53:6

Introduction

Have you ever strayed away from the right path? These were the times when you flirted with temptation and peeked into its forbidden zones. It could have included those times when you knew you should not have gone or participated in activities that your heart told you were wrong. Despite our best intentions, all of us have dabbled in one area or another that has brought us dangerously close to sin. All of us, like sheep have strayed.

The Bible often compares believers to sheep because there are so many striking similarities between ourselves and sheep. Sheep are vulnerable and need protection. Consider the day that the Lion decided there should be peace in the forest. He said the forest should be a place where all of the animals should be able to exist together. Following the order of the king, a banquet table was set in the middle of the forest. Special seats were arranged for all of the animals. Much to the surprise of the sheep, the wolves were invited to the dinner. They were uneasy about accepting the invitation at first, until they noticed that the shepherd was sitting next to them at the table and the wolves were on the other side. The Lion called upon each guest to give a salute to another guest of their own choosing. Each gave a salute in their own turn, to the applause of the others. An old sheep watched the proceedings with caution. When the wolves made their tribute they praised the Lion for bringing them together at the same table. As they sat they licked their lips. The Shepherd rose to make his toast. He raised many eyebrows when he began to salute the wolves. "They are the most dynamic and awe-inspiring creatures in the forest. They are often misunderstood, but only do what comes naturally." As the shepherd sat down the old sheep excused himself from the table. When asked why, he responded that liked the idea for the banquet, but whenever the shepherd has nothing but praise for the wolves, then the sheep are in trouble!

As Christians, we acknowledge that in many ways we are similar to sheep. That's why we lean so heavily on the good shepherd to lead us and guide us every day. It is His guiding hand that keeps us free of entanglements caused by sin and his loving hand that guides us safely home when we stray.

Exposition

This text focuses on the sinful nature of man and the redemptive nature of Christ who reclaims all who have strayed away.

This passage was written by Isaiah, under the inspiration of God, several hundred years before the actions it depicts happened. It paints a prophetic picture of sinful, straying mankind, and a suffering Christ who submits himself to be wounded for sheep life followers who have strayed away.

This text paints two pictures. One picture shows the faithful as mindless sheep who stray away from God's will and purpose for our lives. The second is a picture of Christ suffering for our sins. Although it does not mention Christ by name, there is no other person in history that so fully met the requirements of this prophecy from its very beginning at verse one with a suggestion that he would grow up among men as a tender plant in dry ground (v1) to its conclusion at verse 12 with his crucifixion on the cross between two thieves. (v12) It continues with the notation that he was despised and rejected among men who were ashamed to own him. (v3)

The reasons for his suffering are listed beginning at verse 4. The people of God have strayed; to help us find the way back to God, He was afflicted for our: grief, sorrow, transgressions, and iniquities. The words "grief" and "sorrow" might suggest to some that Christ was crucified because of our sadness. But the Hebrew term for griefs,"choliy" (Khal-ee), also means bodily pain. In the same sense the Hebrew term for sorrows is "makobah" (mak-obaw) means both sadness of spirit and physical pain.

The text uses the word transgressions and iniquities to summarize the ways that we have strayed; they both refer to the sins of mankind.

Those who stray away from God are compared to sheep because sheep are very foolish creatures. Ray Stedman says sheep, "Can find a hole in the fence and get out, but they cannot find it to get back in. Someone must go and get them every time. How true are the words, "We have turned every one to his own way." There is a constant conflict between our way and God's way, much like the Frank Sinatra lyrics "I did it my way."

The text presents Christ as the good shepherd who is trying to lead the sheep forward, but many stray away from his forward guidance. He bears the penalty for our sins and seeks to redeem us and make us right with God again.

To bring us back the Lord assumed the iniquity of us all and was wounded for our transgressions and bruised for our iniquity and the chastisement of our peace was absorb by him through Crucifixion.

When we stray

THERE IS LONELINESS WHEN WE STRAY: A sheep finds comfort in the herd, but there is only loneliness when a sheep strays from the safety of the herd and the guidance and protection of the shepherd. It is just as lonely when we stray away from God. Some, like the Prodigal, have drifted into the far country and found themselves lonely. Just as beautiful houses don't make happy homes, neither do the trappings of success guarantee us the feeling of fulfillment and happiness that comes from doing God's will. Outside of God the finest house, the shiniest car, and the most prestigious job, still leaves a feeling of loneliness, insecurity and emptiness. Conversely, those who are at peace with God find comfort, security and joy in even the smallest things. Paul explained this peace in this way in Philippians 4:11-13 ".. for I have learned, in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content. I know both how to be abased, and I know how to abound: everywhere and in all things I am instructed both to be full and to be hungry, both to abound and to suffer need. I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

LIFE AWAY FROM THE FOLD IS DIFFICULT: A sheep who strays outside of the protective rod of God finds difficulty dealing with life's issues. There is a degree of confidence that we, like sheep, feel when we are in God's care, but when we are outside of that care are left to find our own green pasture, which seems great in the beginning, but soon learn it is not a desirable way.

It is difficult for the sheep outside of the fold because outside of God there is no:
—Comfort in times of sorrow; or Encouragement from the Word of God;
—Strength gained from worship; or Assurance received after prayer;
—Satisfaction from your church; and No relief from despair;

When we are outside of God we may be home, but we may as well be home alone because we have shut out the one person that gives us assurance, Jesus, the Son of God.

When King David found himself deep in sin, outside of the fold, he prayed to God for restoration and forgiveness saying, "Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation."

If you have strayed outside of the fold, David's prayer should be your prayer.

MANY HAVE STRAYED INTO DANGEROUSLY DIFFERENT PASTURES: Not all of the pasture land in Palestine was perfect for the sheep. Everything green was not edible and some herbs and grasses were deadly. The shepherd guided his sheep to safe green pastures. Some stray away from the fold chasing after what appears to be greener pastures and fall into deadly grasses.

Straying into the wrong pasture is like driving an automobile and falling asleep at the wheel. Many have awakened suddenly to find themselves in a completely different lane, set for a crash. When we wake up that's when you start to ask, "What am I doing? Where am I going? What is this all about anyway?" When we stop to think about our actions, many find that we have strayed away from the will of God for our lives, living in a fantasy land in which we hear the accolades of our peers giving us awards, plaques, trophies and headlines. We relish the dream of personal glory, triumph and success. It consumes us and it becomes a lullaby that puts us to sleep. Yet, God has a purpose for us and from time to time he shakes us. Sometimes he shakes but we are so sound asleep that we can't hear him. So he shakes our checkbook. He shakes our happy home. He shakes our health. He shakes our career or business. It's the only thing he can do to get our attention; to get us to ask, 'Lord what do you want me to do? Whatever it is, I'll do it for you." It is time for us to wake up, realized that we have strayed, and find our way back to God

We need a shepherd

Finally, brothers and sisters, we need to remember that when God looks at us, he sees sheep that have strayed and need a shepherd.

The difficulty with straying is that we never know if we have strayed until there is something to measure ourselves against. There is a mark, goal and ending point that lets us know when we are on course, there are boundaries that let us know when we are going too far to the left or to the right.

For the sheep, the shepherd constantly guides them to their goal and his rod stirs them back to their course if they stray.

Although we are believers, none of us from the pulpit to the front door, can say that we have never strayed, never doubted and have never experienced temptation. Even the best of us have a little bad in us somewhere. When God looks at us we are so naïve that we believe that God only sees our good; we know he sees our weaknesses too. But while he sees our weaknesses, he also looks at our humility before him and repentant spirit.

2 Chronicles 12:7 says, and "When the Lord saw that they humbled themselves" he decided not to destroy them but to give the people one more chance.

We are like sheep that have gone astray, God looks at us and realizes that we need a shepherd.

So David wrote, "The Lord is my shepherd and I shall not want."

He looks after us like a shepherd and leads us beside the still waters.

He looks over us like a shepherd and prepares a table for us in the presence of our enemies.

He looks at us and anoints our head with oil until our cups run over!

When God looks at us he focuses all of the infinite resources of creation on our situation!

When God looks at us he summons the legions of heaven to the edges of glory so they can watch as he pays close attention to the whispered prayer of the least of the saints.

When God looks at us he prepares the angels of the third heaven to harness the powers of time and eternity as he prepares to wave his majestic hands.

We, the straying sheep of the fold are grateful for a God who can take our stumbling blocks and turn them into stepping stones!

We, the straying sheep of the fold are grateful for a God who can turn our handicaps into handrails.

We, the straying sheep of the fold are grateful for a God who takes our troubles and turns them into triumphs!

We, the straying sheep of the fold are grateful for a God who can take our inabilities and turn them into initiatives.

We, the straying sheep of the fold are thankful that God guides us continuously. That's why we sing, "Guide me oh Thou Great Jehovah, Pilgrim through this barren land. I am weak but thou art mighty, hold me with thou powerful hand."

We are poor little sheep trying to find our way, who are looking up to Jesus to be our shepherd and show us the way.

Lift up your heads on ye gates and the King of Glory shall come in!

Lift up your heads, and keep your eyes on Jesus;

He will dispel your doubts and renew your faith!

He will ignite your passions and restore your hope!

He will take away your despair and give you joy!

I heard the songwriter declare, "Lead me, guide me along the way. Lord if you lead me I will not stray. Lord let me walk each day with thee. Lead me oh Lord lead me."

Lead me to Calvary!

Lead me to your bloodstained side!

Lead me to the empty tomb because there you secured my salvation Early Sunday morning when you arose from the grave!

Lead me Lord, and I will not stray.

No. 9808-Christmas

It doesn't have to end

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 31, 2017

SCRIPTURE: "The shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things they had heard and seen, which were just as they had been told" Luke 2:20

Introduction

Now that the Christmas season is over, there is a question that lingers: Does it have to end? For several weeks leading up to Christmas we were bombarded with news stories, Facebook Posts, letters, cards and acts of kindness that demonstrated that it was truly a season of peace, joy and happiness. It was if kindness, rudeness, and hatred took a vacation. It was a time when anyone who was mean-spirited and cruel was labeled a Grinch and anyone who was miserly and unfeeling was tagged a Scrooge.

For a few weeks, television programs focused on stories of family love and joy. In October nearly every broadcast was filled with death, blood and the walking dead, however during the Christmas season there were no monster movies released from Hollywood and neither were there any releases of movies that focused on heinous murders or death. To Hollywood's surprise they made millions of dollars on goodwill. The Hallmark Channel aired marathon broadcasts of people showing goodwill and love. The nightly news, with a few exceptions, found ways to show people around the country loving each other.

Think of the Christmas cards you received in the mail? They were kind notes from friends who tried to wish you well with a little note and maybe a photo to bring a smile. There were phone calls, cell phone texts and Facebook posts showing families assembling to laugh and talk and fellowship together. Many families worshipped together and still others sat in their living rooms and read the Christmas story from the Bible. The poor and less fortunate found people who were willing to make sacrifices to see that all children had a toy and hungry families had meals.

Without a doubt the few weeks that precede Christmas is a time when the world seemed to put aside its differences and celebrate a sense of oneness.

After we opened the presents, saw the gifts, ate the meal and fellowshipped for Christmas Day, the question still lingers: Does it have to end? When Christmas ends does the goodwill have to end? Do we have to return to our focus on violence, death, and tragedy? Should our concern for the poor, helpless and homeless end after Christmas? Christmas Day marks the day God gave the world a gift. Many people have heard the good news and received the gift, but that gift was not intended for only one day.

As Christians, we are grateful for the spirit of goodwill we enjoyed as we celebrated the birth of Jesus Christ. We revel in the memory of that excitement and joy. Now, after the season has ended, our joy and goodwill will not end, but will continue into the new year.

Exposition

This text focuses on the actions of the shepherds after they participated in the manger experience.

Shepherds, who were grazing their flocks, were interrupted to participate in the manger experience in Bethlehem. Their normal routine consisted of a rather dreary cycle of watching flocks by day and night. However, whenever the flocks were left unattended for long periods of time the possibility of losing some of their sheep always existed because either thieves or wolves were present. While they were inspired and strengthened by observing the manger experience in Bethlehem they returned to their fields still under the glow and charisma that came as a result of being in the presence of God.

Even though they went back to the fields, the excitement of what they experienced in Bethlehem never ended. It simply continued indefinitely. They returned, glorifying God. The Greek word for glorifying in this text is dox-ad-zo which means to cause the dignity and worth of a person or thing to be recognized or acknowledged. Thus, the shepherds went to Bethlehem to participate in the manger experience and they returned with an exciting testimony about what they had experienced themselves. Their testimony recognized and acknowledged God in such a way that his respect and reverence among the people was uplifted.

The joy of that night in front of the manger did not end in Bethlehem. Their business as usual routine had been changed forever as their conversation and relationship was changed for their own betterment. Their return was not the end of the manger experience but it was the beginning of a lifetime of praise and glorifying that would never end.

Spirit of Christmas does not have to end

When the shepherds stood in the presence of the Christ child they gloried in the power of the Lord. They were filled with enthusiasm and confidence because they had seen evidence of God keeping his promise to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and the fulfillment of the scripture. They glorified God on that day, but they continued to glorify him. The text says they "returned" to where they had been. They returned to their jobs, isolated in the hillside, caring for sheep. They went back to where the angel found them in the first place. It was time to go back to work.

Christmas doesn't last forever. Some still have Christmas decorations on their houses, and trees in their homes, but eventually, they will take down the tree, pack away the ornaments, and in a few days the children will go back to school and life will return to normal.

While the decorations come down and festivities end, does the spirit of Christmas have to end? For the shepherds, life would never be the same. Their jobs wouldn't change, but they went back to the hillsides with a new zeal, new joy, and new love for God in their hearts.

To keep the spirit of Christmas going we must emulate the shepherds, then we must go back to our workplaces, housework, classroom, or place of responsibility and daily routine and continue to glorify God and praise him. Go back to what you were doing before and take the memory of Christmas with you. Glorify God and praise him as you go about your routine and you will find your days filled with joy that will never end.

Family Fellowship does not have to end

Although Christmas has ended, the spirit of family unity, peace and joy does not have to end. The sense of unity and support we enjoy from members of our family should not be a "Christmas thing." Families create memories all year long, even for those who are away.

During the Christmas season family members visited, called home, and shared snippets about their life, accomplishments dreams and future plans. There was plenty of fellowship, food and friends as families celebrated the joy of God's renewed blessing.

That does not have to end. We can still contact each other, come home to visit without it being a holiday or a funeral. Christmas is over, but the spirit of family enjoyed at Christmas does not have to end.

The spirit of compassion does not have to end

During the Christmas season, many people were moved to go the extra mile to help families have a merry Christmas. We gave money to charities to buy gifts for children, feed the hungry, and gave warm blankets and clothing to the homeless. Our hearts poured out love and compassion for those who were burdened with life's concerns. We talked, listened and worked to resolve differences.

During Christmas we sang songs that were full of hope and inspiration and we shared that hope with others. Do hope and compassion have to end?

Should our concern for the poor end because Christmas has ended? Should our willingness to volunteer or give of ourselves to help others lessen until next Christmas?

Should we continue to inspire hope in those who have given up on themselves?

The spirit of compassion and hope does not have to end because although the celebration has ended, the Christ Child still lives in us.

When Jesus comes into our lives he helps us to bring forth our potential. He brings forth the courage that we need to tackle tough situations and difficult times. That courage does not have to end.

When Jesus comes there is a spirit of boldness that envelops every believer. We know that it can be done. We start to believe that all things are possible, and the defeat leaves us. That spirit of boldness does not have to end.

God's Power Never Ends

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that the power of the Lord never ends; he abides with us every day!

Someone who is unfamiliar with the way the Lord works and how believers think, may ask why is the church still decorated for Christmas? Don't they know that Christmas is over?

Those who asked these questions, mistakenly think that the spirit of Christmas ends at the close of one day on the calendar. Those who know the Lord know that the beauty of the believer's life is never over. Once we have been in the presence of the Lord it's never over because we relive it again and again.

The shepherds returned from the stable, but the glory of that moment never ended. It's the same continuous feeling that the songwriter mentioned when he wrote, "I come to the garden alone, while the dew is still on the roses. And the joy we share as we tarry there, none other has ever known."

Once we have experienced the joy of the Lord, it never ends.

We may have taken the lights down, but we are still singing, "This little light of mine, I'm going to let it shine."

We have stopped singing, "Joy to the world," but the presence of that joy gives another song to sing, "This joy I have, the world didn't give it, and the world can't take it away!"

Christmas has ended, but, like the shepherds, things are not the same. We know it's not over because we'll never be the same. I heard the songwriter declare, "Since I met the blessed savior. Since he washed and made me whole; since the hand of Jesus touched me; now I am no longer the same!"

Somebody thinks it has ended because everyone has stopped talking about the wise men who followed a star. But we know it hasn't ended because there are some wise men and women today who are still seeking him every day!

Somebody thinks it has ended because choirs are no longer singing, "Hark the Herald Angels sing!" But we know it hasn't ended because we are singing with angelic voices, "Glory, Glory, Hallelujah, since I laid my burdens down."

Some have concluded that the season of talking about peace has passed. But we know it's not over because every day of our lives we praise him for being the prince of peace and Lord of Lords.

Somebody thinks it has ended because all the fine Christmas food is gone. But we know it's not over because in the wilderness of our life experience all through the year the Lord still feeds us. That's why we say, "Bread of Heaven, Bread of Heaven, Feed me till I want no more!"

Somebody thinks it's over because all of the sweet pies and cakes have been put away. But it hasn't ended because, "Every day with Jesus is sweeter than the day before." We know it's not over because, "I've found a savior and he's sweet I know!"

There may be some who feel that because angelic voices are no longer singing Go tell it on the mountain that there is nothing else to tell but they are wrong, because we have a story to tell.

We still have to tell somebody that he was born in Bethlehem!

We still have to tell somebody that he died on Calvary!

We still have to tell somebody that Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

No. 9809-Inspiration

Times change but God does not change

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 2018

SCRIPTURE: "For I am the LORD, I change not; therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed." Malachi 3:6

Introduction

Have you noticed how fast things seem to change? Before we can get accustomed to one thing, it changes into something else. We became adjusted to Polaroid cameras, then came Kodak. Just as soon as we were adjusted to Kodak then came digital photos on phones. One day its 33 rpm records, and then it's eight-track tape. Before that sinks in good, then there are VHS and cassette tapes followed by compact disks. Now that we have a large collection of albums, disks and VHS tapes everything is now being downloaded and streamed from the cloud.

Sometimes the world seems like a giant merry-go-round, and we are all struggling to find a place to jump on or off, but it goes too fast.

While the world changes, it's good to know that God does not change.

The late Gardner Taylor said, "God still frowns on deceit and trickery as much as he did the day that Jacob was driven from home by his plot against Esau. God still despises envy as much as he did when he turned his back on Saul or, rather, Saul turned his back on God. He despises our adulteries as much as he did when David let Bathsheba's beauty lead him to stain his honor. Yes, people may change what they call right and wrong, but God's truth abides. Jesus underscores this when he says, "For truly I say to you, till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law until all is accomplished." He makes the scroll of the skies and the rolling hills and level plains the surety, the bond for the abidingness of God's word."

It's very clear; times may change, but God is still the same.

As Christians, we should rejoice that our God is a constant presence. We know that he is the same today as he was yesterday and will be tomorrow, and that's good because that means his love for us will not change either.

Exposition

The text focuses on a statement of truth by the prophet Malachi that God does not change.

The Children of Israel had experienced many changes in the centuries since God promised Abraham the land of Canaan. They changed localities as a nomad tribe that constantly moved from one place to another. They also moved to Egypt and endured 400 years of enslavement. Their conditions changed when they crossed the Jordan and began to inhabit the land. They adopted the religious practices of others and changed their allegiances to God.

All while the people change, God did not change. He did not try to adapt himself to the changing times and situations. He was the one constant in the lives of the people.

The fact that God has not and will not change is underwritten in scripture. The preponderance of the scripture seemed to say: Be holy because I, the Lord your God, am holy. This statement indicates that God's ethical standards will not be altered by time or circumstance.

Malachi 3:6 indicates that God is unchanging and eternal it indicates that he will be faithful to all generations.

This unchanging nature of God extends to his purposes and promises, which is extremely different from that of his people who seem to change with every trend and change in the national mood or circumstance. James indicates that the assurance we have that God does not change is also a guarantee of future blessings because there is in God "no variation or shadow cast by turning."

God's mercy does not change.

God's goodness does not change.

God's patience does not change.

It is all summed up in the text, "For I, the LORD, do not change" (Mal. 3: 6).

Happy he does not change

There are many reasons why we have confidence that God will not change.

HE HAS ALWAYS BEEN FAITHFUL: We are confident that God will not change because when we look back, we see that he has a steady track record of being faithful to us. He has always shown up for us; just when we needed him. We have never found a time when God promised something that he did not deliver, even if we became impatient while waiting. We have learned that God operates in his own time frame, therefore we should not give up hope. If our condition troubles us, we know God will respond to it, therefore we never give up hope. That's why we like the lyrics to that old Sam Cooke song:

"It's been too hard living, but I'm afraid to die
Cause I don't know what's up there beyond the sky
It's been a long, a long time coming
But I know a change gonna come, oh yes it will."

Like Cooke, we don't know the time schedule up there beyond the sky, but we believe a change is gonna come.

We were able to endure slavery and the difficulties of reconstruction because we knew that a change was going to come.

We were able to withstand the savage venom of racism and segregation because we knew a change was gonna come.

We were able to stand the frustrations of second-class citizenship and powerlessness because we knew a change was going to come.

Often the blessing we seek seems to take forever getting to us, but we have remained confident that if we keep the faith and never lose hope that God will bring about the changes we need, in his own time and in his own way.

That has been his track record.

He has always been faithful.

HE HAS NEVER BEEN LATE: In our life experience, we have never known God's blessing to come too late. He is unchanging, so we can expect that of him in the future as well. When it appears to us that God is slow to respond to our needs, we learned that he is not subject to the limitations of time. God simply doesn't calculate the time the way we do. We figure time in ways that we can understand. We calculate the years by the seasons, the months by the moons, the days by the rising and setting of the sun. To God, all of these are inconsequential. Psalm 90 tells us that a thousand years to us is but a few hours to Him or a watch in the night. Therefore, we should not feel God has neglected us in any way because he appears not to have responded to our situation. He is not dragging his feet. 2 Peter 3:9 says, "The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness; but is longsuffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance. "

Thousands of years in the sight of humankind are but passing days or even seconds with God. It was two thousand years before God fulfilled his promise to Abraham that all of the families of the earth would be blessed through his family.

In the thousands of years that have passed since the dawn of recorded history, believers have concluded that God is not forgetful, and he is not slothful, he will deliver us from evil in the days ahead, just as he has in the past because he is an unchanging God.

HIS PROMISES ARE SURE AND HAVE NOT CHANGED: One of the greatest aspects of our love for God is that in the past he has always kept his promises and that has not changed. Even today, the promises of God are real and sure. Anything that God promises he can deliver; that has not changed.

Many cannot bring themselves to trust God because men have failed them. Their employers have failed them. Their co-workers have failed them. These are the individuals who find themselves doubting God.

Like Sarah, they find it amusing when God makes a promise that seems impossible in light of the circumstances.

Like Pharaoh, they believe that faith in Gods promises are the folly of the ignorant and whatever signs we see are cheap magician's tricks and illusions.

Like King Saul, they believe they should follow their own mind because Gods will should only be trusted when his will mirrors our will.

Believers are anxiously excited about this time of the year because it reminds us that despite the changing times in which we live our God remains the same.

He will deliver what he promises

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember that the reason we have survived so far is because the God we serve delivers on his promises.

Malachi told the people that they survived because of the mercies of God. Those mercies, blessings, and promises were first given to Abraham and continued through Isaac and Jacob. Through all of those generations, God did not change. What he promised, whether it was a blessing or punishment, he always delivered.

Times changed, but God did not change.

God spoke this world into existence with both a purpose and a plan, from the beginning of time, God has not changed.

God proved himself when he told Pharaoh that plagues would come to Egypt, and though it seemed impossible, it was done.

God proved himself when he told Joshua to cross the river Jordan, and the waters would roll back, it was done!

God proved himself when the children of Israel marched around Jericho seven times, it seemed a foolish thing, but God said it, and the walls came tumbling down!

God proved himself when he told Abraham and Sarai that they would have a child in their senior years; he promised it, and it was done!

God proved himself when he told Jezebel and Ahab that the skies would not see rain; they laughed, but God said it, and he delivered on his promise.

We don't have to look back too far because God has made us promises and he delivered what he promised.

When God says it, it may seem illogical. It may seem improbable, but it will be done!

Those who are obedient to God's word should get ready for a blessing because God has promised it.

Two little boys were on their way to the Black Heritage parade. One little boy had a little small paper bag, and the other had a huge shopping bag. Someone asked why they brought along bags of different sizes; the first boy said he knew he was little and expected only to get a few pieces of candy. The second boy said he heard that every float would be throwing out candy. He felt because he was little he would get a lot, so he brought along a shopping bag.

Brothers and sisters when God promises a blessing because you are a child of God bring your shopping bag!

God has sent his word of:

—ENDURANCE in the midst of adversity and he has not changed!

—PATIENCE in the midst of problems and he has not changed!

—SUPPORT in the midst of suffering, and he has not changed!

—HOPE in the midst of hardships, and he has not changed!
—COMFORT in the midst of confusion and he has not changed!
—RELIEF in the midst of our misery and he has not changed!

No wonder the songwriter wrote:

Great is Thy faithfulness!" "Great is Thy faithfulness!"
Morning by morning new mercies I see;
All I have needed Thy hand hath provided—
"Great is Thy faithfulness," Lord, unto me!

As the book of Malachi closed the Children of Israel looked for a redeemer to save them from their sins!

God promised a redeemer would come, born in the house of Jacob in the tribe of Judah.

God gave his word and set events in motion to send a redeemer.

In John 1:14, he sent the word to dwell with men.

God sent his son to deliver on his promise that, "Whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life,"

God sent his son to show me the way!

God promised to provide his people a way to salvation!

God promised the world a way for it to atone for its sins!

God promised to lay a true foundation for our faith

When Jesus picked up the cross, that was God keeping his promise!

When Jesus died on Calvary, that was God keeping his promise!

When Jesus stayed in the grave three days and nights, that was God keeping his promise!

And Early Sunday morning, when Jesus arose from the dead, that was God keeping his promise!

God has not changed, he's still keeping his promise today!

Index

Symbols

Sermon Type

Anniversary
He has shown us the way Let us move forward in fai Vol 27-6611

Anniversary, Pastor
These are the sheep God gave Me Vol 27-6621

Anniversary, Women
Hidden Figures Vol 27-6481

Building
Shouting over the foundation Vol 27-6566

Building Fund
It is done, let us rejoice Vol 27-6606

Christmas
A Blue Christmas Vol 27-6670
A Pondering Mary and a Pondering Lord Vol 27-6665
It doesn't have to end Vol 27-6686
Joy to the World Vol 27-6676
What did you get Vol 27-6442

Communion
The Last Supper Vol 27-6522

Family
Whatever happened to the old front porch Vol 27-6486

Graduation
Fidgets, Fads & Faith Vol 27-6531

Grandparents
With His Arms Around Us Vol 27-6576

Inspiration
A good God on a bad day Vol 27-6462
All Tied Up in Knots Vol 27-6550
Celebrating Miracles Vol 27-6660
Dig Your Own Well Vol 27-6555
Four anchors for storm seas Vol 27-6496
He protects our blind side Vol 27-6471
Heaven was on their doorstep Vol 27-6491
He's Sitting High but Looking Low Vol 27-6545
It's not Dejavu It's God blessing me again Vol 27-6502
Playing your hand Vol 27-6467
The Land of the Free and the Home of the Saved Vol 27-6540
The Ultimate Swag Vol 27-6476
Times change but God does not change Vol 27-6691
What Things? Vol 27-6644
When dreams are interrupted Vol 27-6456
When God Does the Incredible Vol 27-6581
When the World takes a knee Vol 27-6590
While He Was Yet Speaking Vol 27-6655

Marriage
The Ten Commandments of Marriage Vol 27-6586

Memorial Day
Lift Him Up, then Lift Them Up! Vol 27-6527

Men
A Man of Understanding Vol 27-6595
When a Godly Man Speaks Vol 27-6616

Mother's Day

The Part of Mother that lives forever Vol 27-6517
New Year
Going back to go forward Vol 27-6451
The things to come are all yours Vol 27-6446
Palm Sunday
Something to Shout About Vol 27-6507
Pastor Installation
The Stars in His hands Vol 27-6536
Prayer
Passionate Prayers of the Faithful Vol 27-6512
Revival
All we like sheep Vol 27-6681
Fake News, Real News Vol 27-6600
Fatal Distractions Vol 27-6626
Help, I've Fallen and I Can't Get Up Vol 27-6638
Tales from the Crypt Vol 27-6632
Service
I'm Not Tired Yet Vol 27-6571
Thanks
The Grateful Soul Vol 27-6650

Text

1 Corinthians
003:022 Vol 27-6446
007:035 Vol 27-6626
1 Timonthy
002:001 Vol 27-6512
2 Timothy
001:005 Vol 27-6517
Acts
004:016-020 Vol 27-6616
005:012 Vol 27-6486
020:028 Vol 27-6621
026:008 Vol 27-6581
027:027-031 Vol 27-6496
Colossians
003:003-004 Vol 27-6632
Daniel
002:003 Vol 27-6456
Ecclesiastes
007:014 Vol 27-6462
Ephesians
001:007 Vol 27-6540
Ezra
003:011 Vol 27-6566
006:016 Vol 27-6606
008:018 Vol 27-6595
Galatians
006:009 Vol 27-6571
Genesis
002:024 Vol 27-6586
006:007 Vol 27-6476
026:019 Vol 27-6555
031:003 Vol 27-6451
Isaiah
006:001 Vol 27-6545
052:007 Vol 27-6600
053:006 Vol 27-6681
Isaiah 009:006 Vol 27-6442
Job
001:016 Vol 27-6655
John
001:011 Vol 27-6491
012:032 Vol 27-6527
Lamentation
001:020 Vol 27-6550
003:001 Vol 27-6502
Luke
002:010 Vol 27-6676
002:019 Vol 27-6665
002:020 Vol 27-6686
002:029-032 Vol 27-6670
023:055 Vol 27-6481
024:019 Vol 27-6644
Malachi
003:006 Vol 27-6691
Mark
010:016 Vol 27-6576
Matthew

001:023 Vol 27-6660
006:033 Vol 27-6531
021:009 Vol 27-6507
026:026-030 Vol 27-6522
028:019 Vol 27-6476
Philippians
004:011 Vol 27-6467
Proverbs
024:016 Vol 27-6638
Psalm
086:011 Vol 27-6611
106:001-002 Vol 27-6650
Psalms
021:005 Vol 27-6471
Revelation
001:016 Vol 27-6536
Romans
014:011 Vol 27-6590

A

Afrika Bambata
Ref. - Skating Music Vol 27-6452
Anchor Vol 27-6498
Arise
After a fall Vol 27-6641

B

Backward
Trying to p. but going backward Vol 27-6451
Bad Day Vol 27-6462
Balance
Without b. we fall Vol 27-6639
Beyonce
Ref. -Skating music Vol 27-6452
Bid Whist
Card Game ref. Vol 27-6467
Birth of Christ not a chance occurrence Vol 27-6443
Black Hole
Pastor fills b. Vol 27-6537
Bless Day Vol 27-6546
Blessed
We can shout because we've been b. Vol 27-6509
Blindsided Vol 27-6630
Blue
A patch of b. Vol 27-6672
Body Language Vol 27-6476
Boom, Corrie Ten
Ref. The Hiding Place Vol 27-6500
Boredom Vol 27-6533
Bow Down Vol 27-6592
Brady, Tom
Ref. Quarterback Vol 27-6471

C

Cabbage Patch Doll Vol 27-6531
Captain Kangaroo Vol 27-6650
Card Games
A good hand in c. Vol 27-6467
Ceasar, Shirley
Ref. Green, beans, potatoes, etc. Vol 27-6509
Celebrate
We c. accomplishments Vol 27-6606
Celebrity Vol 27-6538
Change
Things c. fast Vol 27-6691
Cheated
When life deals from the bottom of deck Vol 27-6469
Christmas
C. about the joy of salvation Vol 27-6444
Does c. have to end Vol 27-6686
Excitement over receiving c. gifts Vol 27-6442
Church
What c. looks like to pastor Vol 27-6621
Work of c. Vol 27-6597

Circumstances Vol 27-6550
Cleats Vol 27-6474
Clinton, Hililary
Dream of female President interrupted Vol 27-6456
Color Blue Vol 27-6670
Compassion
Does not have to end Vol 27-6688
Complaining
Explanation of Christian view about Vol 27-6468
Confidence
Good mothers inspire c.. See Confidence: Often mothers inspire c.
Confusion
Billy Graham on c. in the wold Vol 27-6446
Connection Vol 27-6667
There is a c. to experiences Vol 27-6665
Three steps to c. Vol 27-6666
Course
Getting off c. Vol 27-6626
Crazy
World does crazy things. See Attitude: How to maintain h. mind in a crazy world
Crouch, Andre
Ref. "Take me Back" Vol 27-6455
Crypt
Tales from the c. Vol 27-6633

D

Dangers
Protection from unseen d. Vol 27-6473
DaVinci, Leonardo
Ref. Last Supper Vol 27-6523
Deal with it Vol 27-6493
Death
Pain of d. lost at Christmas Vol 27-6443
Debbie Deb
Ref. -Skating Music Vol 27-6452
Dejavu Vol 27-6502
Depression
After rejection Vol 27-6494
Dig
D. your own well Vol 27-6558
Disciples
Training of d. Vol 27-6492
Discrimination
Church must not be guilty of d. Vol 27-6484
Distractions
D. get you off course Vol 27-6626
Distressed
D. look to church for help Vol 27-6562
Domitian Vol 27-6591
Dots
Connecting the d. Vol 27-6667
Douglass, Frederick Vol 27-6540
Dream
An interrupted d. Vol 27-6456
Jesus is our d. Vol 27-6460
King's d. has been interrupted Vol 27-6457
of Nebuchadnezzar was interrupted Vol 27-6457
Dreams
Failed d. can be resumed Vol 27-6459
Interrupted by circumstances Vol 27-6458
Some d. are corrupted Vol 27-6459
Dunbar, Paul Lawrence
Poem "That is life" Vol 27-6451

E

Encouragement Vol 27-6578
Examine
Believers should e. themselves Vol 27-6524
Exhausted Vol 27-6571

F

Fad Vol 27-6531
Faith
Of mothers is eternal Vol 27-6520
Sacrifices confirm f. Vol 27-6529
Those who act in f. Vol 27-6611
Faithful
God has been f. Vol 27-6692
Fake News Vol 27-6600
Fall
Devil behind most falls Vol 27-6641
Fear
No need to f. Vol 27-6552
Fidget Vol 27-6534
Focus Vol 27-6629
Football
Blind Side needs protection Vol 27-6471
Foundation Vol 27-6566
Foundations
12 F. Vol 27-6568
Build on f. Vol 27-6557
Future
The Palm Reader Vol 27-6448

G

Gift
The g. under the tree Vol 27-6442
Gin Rummy
Card Game ref. Vol 27-6467
Gladness
We need g. for every day Vol 27-6463
Good Day Vol 27-6464
Grandparents
Fondest m of. Vol 27-6576
Grateful Vol 27-6464
Gratefulness
We need an attitude of g. Vol 27-6464
Grinch
Ofen steals goodness Vol 27-6676

H

Haley, Alex
Ref about over coming odds Vol 27-6469
Hand
H. of God Vol 27-6536
If dealt a weak h. Vol 27-6468
Hands in cards
Even people with poor h. can win Vol 27-6467
Heaven
Repentance necessary Vol 27-6602
Helmet Vol 27-6474
Help
Many ask church for H. Vol 27-6561
We all need a little h. Vol 27-6638
Heritage Vol 27-6578
Heroes Vol 27-6529
Hope Vol 27-6473
Joy from renewed h. Vol 27-6678
Hosanna Vol 27-6508
Explained Vol 27-6508
Humility
Footwashing is example. See Foot Washing: Jesus sets example by f.

I

Ideals Vol 27-6528
Illustrations
Bad Day
The good wife's bad day Vol 27-6462
Choices
The wealthy man's pictures Vol 27-6444
Complaints
Complaint Sunday Vol 27-6466
Future
The Palm Reader Vol 27-6448
Grandparents

Little boy at the piano Vol 27-6576
Rejection
Susie Q and the popular boy Vol 27-6492
Shout
Shirley Ceasar's reasons Vol 27-6509
Incredible Vol 27-6581
Independence Vol 27-6618
Intangibles
Praise God for i. Vol 27-6644
Intercession
To pray for someone else Vol 27-6514
Inventory of God's blessings Vol 27-6644

J

Jacob
Biblical biography Vol 27-6452
Jealousy. See Anger
Jitters
New Year's J. Vol 27-6447
Job
Mr. and Mrs. J. had a bad day Vol 27-6463
Jordan, MIcheal
Ref about over coming odds Vol 27-6469
Joy
Can anyone steal your j. Vol 27-6676
Judgment Vol 27-6592

K

Kaepernick, Colin
Ref. Vol 27-6590
Karma
As a religious belief Vol 27-6503
Kent, Germany
Ref. Vol 27-6650
King, Scott
ref. about obeying husband Vol 27-6484
Kingdom Work Vol 27-6613
Knees
Ever been on your k. Vol 27-6590
Knots Vol 27-6550
God can untie Vol 27-6553
Knowles, Beyonce' Vol 27-6476

L

Lacks, Henrietta
Rev. about immortalilty of mother Vol 27-6517
Language Vol 27-6597
Laughs
When the world l. at you Vol 27-6469
Leaning Tower Vol 27-6566
Lessons
L. on the front porch Vol 27-6488
Liberty
Meaning of L. Vol 27-6540
Life
Ever relived a l. Vol 27-6632
Loneliness
L. comes when we stray Vol 27-6683
Love
Joy of sharing l. Vol 27-6678

M

Marine Corps Vol 27-6616
Marriage
Guidebook for m. Vol 27-6586
Ten commandments of Vol 27-6588
Meal Vol 27-6522
Memorial Day Vol 27-6527
Men
A few good m. Vol 27-6617
Finding Godly men Vol 27-6616
Mercy
Renewed m. at Christmas Vol 27-

6443
Milestone Vol 27-6608
Miracles
Do you believe in m. Vol 27-6660
We have seen m. Vol 27-6662
Mother
Creates loving moments Vol 27-6519
What we remember m. Vol 27-6517
Wisdom of m. lives forever Vol 27-6519
Mothers
What if we had the strength of M.. See Strength
Mouthpiece Vol 27-6474
Murray, Liz
Ref about over coming odds Vol 27-6469

N

Natural Occurrence Vol 27-6660
New Year
What will the NY bring Vol 27-6446
Night Vol 27-6673
Normal Vol 27-6493

O

Obama, Barack
Swag Vol 27-6476
Old Maid
Game objective explained Vol 27-6467

P

Pastor
Shows how to walk with God Vol 27-6624
Pastures
Green P. Vol 27-6684
Perspective. See View: V is dictated by perspective
Plan
God always has a p, Vol 27-6499
Play your cards right Vol 27-6467
Pleasure Vol 27-6465
Poker
compare to life Vol 27-6468
Porch
What happened to front p. Vol 27-6486
Porches
History of p. in America Vol 27-6486
Potter's House Vol 27-6451
Praise
P. for our testimony Vol 27-6652
Pray
Three ways to p. Vol 27-6513
Prayer
Answered p. Vol 27-6608
Have you ever prayed for someone? Vol 27-6512
Jesus gave model p. Vol 27-6512
Prayers
Not too high for p. Vol 27-6547
Preachers
Diakonos meaning key to debate about female p.. See Preachers: Diakonos meaning key to debate about female p.
Problems
Some p. repeat themselves Vol 27-6655
Progress
Many trying p. without God Vol 27-6454
Trying to p. but going backward Vol 27-6451
Promise Vol 27-6499
Protection
God is our p. Vol 27-6472
Provision
God's p. should make us s. Vol 27-6509
Purpose
Our walk has p. Vol 27-6478

Q

Quinn, Greg O
Ref. I told the storm Vol 27-6497

R

Reincarnation Vol 27-6502
Rejection Vol 27-6491
Remember
It's important to r. Vol 27-6525
Repeat
God can r. himself Vol 27-6504
Respect
Rapper 50cent movie view. See Youth: Use 50cent approach to earning respect
Retooling
S. May require retooling Vol 27-6453
Return
We need to r. to God Vol 27-6453
Rocking chair wisdom Vol 27-6488
Rodgers, Rev. C.V.
Ref. Vol 27-6621
Role Model Vol 27-6619
Russell, Lawrence
ref. Last meal article Vol 27-6522
Ryan, Matt
Ref. of Atlanta Falcons Vol 27-6471

S

Salvation
Many pass over s. in search for satisfaction Vol 27-6444
Repentance Required Vol 27-6603
Sheep
Believers compared to s. Vol 27-6681
Shout
Because he saved us Vol 27-6510
Something to s. about Vol 27-6568
Shouts
Examples of national s. Vol 27-6507
Sidetrack
Trouble can s. Vol 27-6657
Simmons, Jacquelyn
Ref. Mother's Day Vol 27-6517
Sins
Can always see our s. Vol 27-6547
Repeating our s. Vol 27-6504
Skating
Some can skate backward Vol 27-6452
Social Order Vol 27-6562
Solid Ground
S. necessary when stuck Vol 27-6451
Solomon's Porch Vol 27-6487
Soundness Vol 27-6619
Spinner Vol 27-6532
Statues
S. for memorials Vol 27-6527
Storms Vol 27-6496
Stray
Some s. from the path Vol 27-6681
Success
S. May require retooling Vol 27-6453
Women help men find s. Vol 27-6483
Super Bowl Vol 27-6471
Supplication
Prayer with s. Vol 27-6513
Swag
How to gain s. Vol 27-6478

T

Tardy
God is never t. Vol 27-6693
Taylor, Gardner C.
ref. God frowns on deceit Vol 27-6691
Thanks
Giving t. Vol 27-6524
In all things give t. Vol 27-6465
Tired
God never gets t. Vol 27-6574

Tonk
Card Game ref. Vol 27-6467
Trouble
Never seems to end Vol 27-6657
Trust
We should t. God Vol 27-6598
Tubman, Harriett Vol 27-6477

U

Understanding
A man of u. Vol 27-6595

V

Vision Vol 27-6613
Isaiah's v. Vol 27-6545

W

Walk Vol 27-6647
We don't w. alone Vol 27-6574
Walking
In the light Vol 27-6635
Walking Dead Vol 27-6634
War Room
Ref. about Prayer Vol 27-6514
Washington, Booker T. Vol 27-6477
Washington, Denzel
Ref. Having swag Vol 27-6479
Washington, George
Declared first Thanksgiving. See Thanksgiving
Watch Meeting Vol 27-6446
Watching
God is always w. Vol 27-6545
Water Well Vol 27-6555
Web, Spud
Ref about over coming odds Vol 27-6469
Wells
Symbols of w. Vol 27-6556
West, Kanye Vol 27-6476
Wife
Sometimes feels insignificant Vol 27-6481
Wisdom
Mothers inspire w.. See Motives: Our m. must be pure
Women
In business - statistics Vol 27-6482
Often hidden background figures Vol 27-6481
Workforce
When women entered the w. Vol 27-6482
Worship
Move forward in w. Vol 27-6614