PLACE OF THE POWER: Jesus told the disciples to stay in Jerusalem and wait to receive the power. Their first inclination was to go home. The excitement had died, the crucifixion was over, the resurrection was history. It would have been tempting for the disciples to go home. Yet, Jesus told them to stay in Jerusalem, that's where the power would come. That should say to believers that we need to be in the place that God directs us to receive the power. God has created an empowerment zone for believers to power up before they go out to change the world. Before we serve on boards and committees in the community! Before we run for elective office! Before we go into the classroom to teach, we must make sure we are powered up. We worship God in a worship zone. In it is here that we come face to face with God and receive his inspiration and direction. You must be prayed up before you can face the angry faces you will see every Monday morning. The full tank comes for those who are in the worship zone.

SPIRITUALITY FOR THE POWER: The power of God exists in a spiritual zone as well. True empowerment cannot come from the outside, it has to come from the inside. We can force a man to take a class and train himself, dress him in the right clothes and send him out the door, but his condition does not change until he there has been a change of attitude on his part. This change is more spiritual than educational. Once there is has been a spiritual and attitudinal change then we rise up to take control of our decisions and take responsibility for our own actions. This ability is heightened by the power of God. For many, there will be no empowerment until they have turned their lives around and become new in Christ. 2 Corinthians 5:17 "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." To achieve the power we seek we must create a zone of spiritual nurture in which we study, learn and grow in the faith. In this zone we feed ourselves positive spiritual self talk and seek guidance and correction. Outside of the zone, all we get is the same old same old.

Pentecost is about Empowerment

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must realize that the whole Pentecost experience is about empowerment for kingdom building.

Look at it. A handful of farmers, fishermen, tax-collectors and housewives became so empowered that they turned the Roman empire upside down. They did it through the power of God.

In 1965 the Florida Gators football team was mediocre at best. Struggling in the heat and humidity of the deep south, the players were fighting a tougher opponent within themselves than they had ever fought on the gridiron – they had great difficulty finishing the game in champion-like form because they were dehydrated. So a team of University doctors developed a carbohydrate-electrolyte beverage that kept the team properly nourished throughout the game. Before the eyes of thousands of fans, the team's second half performance improved and in 1967 won the Orange Bowl. Today, this beverage is on every sideline around the globe keeping athletes performing at their best. Of course, this beverage is known as Gatorade.

Today, Gatorade has a slogan in its commercials that asks a question, "Is it in you?"

What if we asked that same question to believers today? The answer might be the key to personal empowerment, "Is the power of God in you?"

When the power of God is in you, you are in your power zone.

When I'm in my power zone:

I may stumble, but He'll help me to stand!

I may be discouraged, but He'll give me new inspiration!

I may get weak, but He'll make me strong!

I may get lost, but He'll help me find my way!

I may find myself in the valley of despair, but he'll carry to the mountain top.

When you live in the power zone, you can…

…live in the promise, power and protection of God

…walk by faith and not by sight

…count it all joy when you enter into diverse temptations

…know that my God shall supply all my needs according to His riches in Christ Jesus

…lay hands on the sick and they shall recover

…walk in to the enemy's camp and take back some things that rightfully belong to you

…take claim over your household and declare, "as for me and my house we will serve the Lord"

…know that the evil one, the devil, cannot touch you

…tear down strongholds that have had a grip on your life

…cause all hell to tremble with every step you take

… be pressed but not crushed, persecuted, but not abandoned struck down but not destroyed

… walk on serpents and scorpions and overcome all the power of the devil

… have doors open for you that were once shut

When you live in the power zone you tap into the power of the most high God!

There is power, power, wonder working power in the blood of the lamb!

This is the same power that created the earth out of nothing!

The same power that spat out the seven seas and spangled the night with the moon and the stars!

A Church Interceding On Behalf of the People

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 2010

SCRIPTURE: " And the men turned their faces from thence, and went toward Sodom: but Abraham stood yet before the LORD. "Genesis 18:22; "Likewise the Spirit also helpeth our infirmities: for we know not what we should pray for as we ought: but the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered. Romans 8:26

Introduction

What is the church's primary function? Its function is to tell the world about Jesus, save the lost and to preserve the saints through instruction, example, and intercessory prayer.

The founder of the Church is Jesus Christ. We share a common faith in Him and follow his example of compassion for the masses and empathy for the concerns of each individual.

Today, we share similar struggles, fears and frustrations despite the passing of years. As God-fearing men and women, we must hold on to the faith and vigorously promote the kingdom of God with all of its energy.

We must hold on, just as our fore parents held on. We must intercede and pray just as our forefathers prayed. If we feel weak along the way, we must remember that "help is on the way."

Today we celebrate Christ, the founder of the church. We also celebrate the legacy of the Christian response to personal needs.

We celebrate because this is the church community from whose womb many great minds will come forth to give witness to the power of God.

As Christians, we are glad that Christ came to give us an opportunity for salvation. We are also glad that He has become our mediator before the throne of grace. We resolve to keep lifting up His name among the saints as we lift up the concerns of his people through constant prayer and supplication.

Exposition

These two texts gives us two examples of intercessory prayer as a guide for the church today.

In Genesis, Abraham pleads with angels on their way to Sodom and Gomorrah to destroy both cities because of the immoral ways their inhabitants. Abraham, who has relatives in the city, pleaded with the God, who appeared in the form of three men (Some say they represented the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost). Abraham repeatedly pleaded with God not to destroy the city if just a handful of God-fearing people could be found. Abraham at first begged for mercy if fifty good men could have been found, but kept pleading until he received a promise that the city would be saved if there were just ten good men.

This text shows one man pleading on behalf of many before God, and God hearing his intercession.

In Romans 8:26-29 we don't see one person interceding but the entire church. The text lays out four truths about intercessory prayer. 1)The Holy Spirit helps us to know what and how to pray (verse 26). 2.The Holy Spirit intercedes on our behalf (verse 26) 3. God hears our hearts more than the words in prayer (verse 27). 4. Prayer is always answered (verses 28-29), though not always according to our agenda.

Romans shows Paul urging the church to do what is expected of all believers and that is to intercede or go to God on behalf of others. 1 Timothy 2:1-3 teaches that intercessory prayer is expected of all believers, especially on behalf of the sick

Holman reminds us that the Bible reveals that intercession is performed by the Holy Spirit, Christ, and Christians. Romans 8:26-27 shows that the Holy Spirit works to sustain the burdened believer to intercede to carry even inexpressible prayers called "groanings" to God.

History has proven that when the church makes intercession that doors open; burdens are lifted and the power of God is unleashed.

Intercede for the Needy

The church intercedes for those who are needy.

There are many people who stand in dire need every day. Their needs vary from financial needs to health concerns. Some have family issues, relationship, and marital issues. The church goes to God through intercessory prayer to keep their condition before the altar of mercy.

When the church intercedes in this way, it is in keeping with the Word of God that urges us to constantly pray for Saints who are in need. Ephesians 6:18 says, "Praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints."

Who needs the church's intercession?

The pastor needs the church to pray for him because through his strength the congregation is made strong.

The choir director needs the church to pray for him because through his spirit the congregation is inspired to sing.

The deacons need the church to pray for them because out of the strength and solidarity of their homes the congregation can be helped.

Each believer needs other saints to pray for them because each of us needs to know that there are friends rooting for us, praying for us and asking God's favor on us. We pray for those who are in need and need us, God will hear us when we pray.

Intercede for those who don't know any better

There are many people who do not pray or will not pray for themselves or others.

Sometimes it is stubbornness, but in other times it is because these friends of ours do not know any better. They don't know how to pray. That's why it's important to pray for those who don't know any better.

The church must intercede for those who do not know better or who know better and choose not to do better.

Just as Abraham pleaded on the part of the people of Sodom, we must do the same for thousands of wayward souls that either do not know God or know Him, but choose to ignore Him.

The church must intercede for the husband and wife whose relationship has deteriorated to a litany of curse words, threats, and violence. They have done everything to each other, but neither has prayed for the other. They don't know any better.

We must intercede for those who still get a thrill out of the party life of night clubs and bars as the years of their lives pass right by them. They won't pray until tragedy strikes, we must pray that God will open their eyes without the need of a tragedy to bring them to their senses.

We must intercede for the young who may race through life without thinking and all the while making a world of mistakes.

We must intercede for our friends who know how to do many things but do not know how to pray. We must lift our co-workers and friends up before God in prayer; many of who do not know any better.

When we pray for those who do not know any better, God hears us when we pray.

Intercede for favor for the faithful

The church must seek God's favor on the faithful.

The church should ask because those who are obedient to God and live according to his will are in a position to ask for favor.

Job 33:26 says, "He shall pray unto God, and he will be favorable unto him: and he shall see his face with joy: for he will render unto man his righteousness."

In Psalm 106:4 David is shown asking for favor. "Remember me, O LORD, with the favor that thou bearest unto thy people: O visit me with thy salvation." Those who live and give by God's rules are expected and encouraged to ask him for favors.

Sometimes the church asks God to show favor to others on its behalf. There are millions of people today who are enjoying some aspect of life as a result of a favor request of congregations of praying saints.

While Israel complained and grumbled in the wilderness, Moses prayed to God and asked a favor for them.

In Numbers 11:15 Moses said, “If I have found favor in thy sight..” bless them with meat to eat.

In a similar sense, many today have meat to eat, not because of their goodness, but because God is showing them favor in response to the intercessory prayers of the church.

Intercession Availeth Much

Finally, we are reminded that the effectual fervent prayer of the righteous, availeth much.

To say that intercessory prayer “availeth much” is another way of saying what our grandparents put another way...prayer changes things.

The church, more than any other organization, institution or conglomeration of people, knows the power of prayer.

When the church prays powerful things begin to happen; heaven takes note and the kingdom of God responds.

When the church prays the wicked get worried and the devil gets on the run!

When the church prays the world prepares to be turned upside down.

I don’t know about you but I’ve learned that there is power in prayer.

Prayer can turn situations around and make the darkness light.

When there is something that seems beyond reach, prayer can reach the unreachable!

When someone has gotten out of touch, prayer can touch the untouchable!

When there is a circumstance that resists efforts to change it, prayer can change the unchangeable!

When there is a stumbling block that will not move, prayer can move the unmovable!

When there is a problem that cannot be solved, prayer can solve the unsolvable!

The old folks were right, prayer can change things!

If there is hatred, prayer can turn hatred into love!

If there is confusion, prayer can turn confusion into harmony!

If there is disappointment, prayer can inspire hope!

If there is fear, prayer can turn fear into courage!

Within your bosom you have the phone, call up the Lord, he’s still on the throne!

Call Him in the morning!

Call Him in the noonday!

Call Him in the midnight hour!

He died that He might be able to intercede for us before the Father!

He died that He could talk to His Father on our behalf!

He died so that he could be our mediator!

He died out on Calvary, but early Sunday morning He arose from the grave!

When the church needs to get a prayer through, all we have to do is call Him!

No wonder the songwriter declares, “Jesus is on the mainline, tell Him what you want!”

Call Him!

Oil spills, but blessings overflow

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

August 8, 2010

SCRIPTURE: "And being in Bethany in the house of Simon the leper, as he sat at meat, there came a woman having an alabaster box of ointment of spikenard very precious; and she brake the box, and poured it on his head." Mark 14:3; "Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies, Thou anointest my head with oil, my cup runneth over." Psalm 23:5

Introduction

What do you do when oil spills? The nation has been inundated with dismay after the tragic reports of the loss of eleven lives, considerable resources and damages to the environment that has been caused by an oil well in the Gulf of Mexico, owned by the British Petroleum Company, known as BP.

Oil Spills such as the BP spill are not without precedent. While the BP oil spill dumped an estimated 207 million gallons of oil in the Gulf, over the years the world has grimaced and frowned as it saw one oil spill after another. In 1979 there was 140 million gallons of oil spilled in the gulf in a blown well that took a year to cap. In1991 the Iraqi forces released 380 gallons of oil into the Persian Gulf that created a 4inch thick slick that covered 4000 square miles. The Exxon Valdez struck a reef in Prince William Sound, AK on March 24, 1989, spilling 10 million gallons of crude. The slick spread over 2,600 square miles.

Spilling oil has a devastating impact on the environment, destroying natural habitats and endangering the lives of millions of aquarian species. Oil spills are destructive to say the least.

God has oil, but it never spills. God's empowering oil fills but never spills. Psalm 23:5 says, "thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over." God's oils runs over but it never spills.

As Christians, we are grateful that God has never capped the well from which our blessings flow. He never spills a single blessing, and no blessing flowing from heaven ever spills.

Exposition

This text focuses on Mark as he shows a woman pouring oil on the head of Jesus to anoint Him.

Jesus often shared meals with the rich and powerful as well as the common people. In this text He was being honored with a meal at the home of Simon the Leper. It is supposed that this was the man whose cleansing from leprosy was noted in Mark 1:40. In the course of the dinner a woman, identified in John 12:3 as Mary, the sister of Martha and Lazarus, came to the dinner with an alabaster box or a stone flask with a long neck and sealed with wax. The box contained enough perfume or expensive oil to net about 40 pieces of silver on the market place. Despite its market value, the woman broke the seal and poured out the contents upon Jesus' head.

It was not uncommon for a guest at a festival or banquet to be anointed in this way, but it had special significance to Jesus because he perceived it as the anointing of his body for the crucifixion and death that was to come. However, there were many who saw the broken box, and watched the oil drip from Christ's head and spill to the floor and decried such acts as waste.

As they watched Mary stoop and dry Jesus' feet with her hair, they maintain that oil spilled and wasted in such a way was negligent. It was worth about 40 dollars and could have easily been sold to help the poor.

Jesus said the oil was neither spilled or wasted but served as an anointing in anticipation of greater things to come.

In Psalm 23, David spoke of the special way that God had blessed him, literally pouring out blessing on him. David said the blessings were so abundant that "my cup runneth over." The over flow was not a waste or a spill but a sign of the abundant opportunity that God had given him. It is the same abundant life that Christ referred to when he said, "I am come that ye might have life, and have it more abundantly."

When it is poured from God it is an anointed blessing. When it is frivolously lost by the recklessness of man it is a spill. God never spills he only anoints, and blesses those who he touches.

Oil is sign of special anointing

In biblical times, oil was often associated with godly blessings and confirmation.

When Jacob saw the ladder extending from in a vision a Bethel, he awakened the next day and poured oil on the stone that had been his pillow and consecrated the place to God.

When a person made a spiritual recovery his eyes were often anointed to indicate the opening of his eyes to new spiritual truths.

There are many who have a special calling on their lives, for which they have been given unusual gifts and talents. Martin Luther King had a calling on his life and he was anointed with the gifts of knowledge, courage and personal charisma to carry out his purpose. The same is true for Billy Graham, Sojourner Truth, Harriett Tubman, Barack Obama and many others. Each seem to have a special anointing that has made possible for them to succeed.

What about you? Have you ever felt a calling to pursue any particular avenue of life? Do feel an urge to teach or reach people? Are you a consoler, builder, communicator, leader, or advisor. Everyone has a life purpose. Our gifts indicate our purpose.

God won't send us on a mission without giving us what it will take to accomplish our task. He sends the anointing of his Holy Spirit to empower and direct us.

Wasted oil

The disciples felt Mary wasted valuable oils on Jesus. They felt the oil could have been sold to help build the kingdom, but instead it was been poured onto Jesus' head.

When is something wasted? When is there an oil spill?

Waste is unwanted or unusable materials. When something is wasted it means that it has been allowed to become unusable and unwanted.

A spill occurs when either by accident, negligence or an unintentional act, something of value nears the point of being wasted or lost.

What we call waste depends upon our perspective. What one man throws away as unusable another man collects as valuable. One man throws away an empty can while another man picks it up and prepares it for sale. One woman throws away an old sofa and another woman puts the sofa in her living room. The old saying is true, "One man's trash is another man's treasure."

In the Gulf Coast there was an oil spill but it wasn't all wasted, there were tankers on hand to scoop up as much oil as possible and prepare it for refinement. That led us to understand that while everything can spill, everything that spills is not completely wasted.

There are many who are wasting their blessings. Some of the waste is intentional, some is the result of societal influences but it is wasted never-at-the-less. Some are wasting away in idle per suit of pleasure without a job, a dream or a game plan. Some are wasting away in jail for crimes they have committed. Some are wasting time in relationships that are going nowhere and haven't been anywhere in quite some time. Still others are wasting away listening to the radio and watching TV all day.

Too many are like the Prodigal son who wasted his substance in riotous living. He wasted his money, wasted his time, and wasted all of his resources on so called friends who used him until they used him up. Then one day he came to himself and realized how much oil he had spilled. He realized how much money he had squandered and he repented and went home to his father.

While it is true that many have spilled the blessings that God has sent them it is not too late; much has been spilled but the well can be capped and spillage can be captured and put to good use.

We may have experienced a spill in life, but because of our faith in God what we spilled won't go to waste.

Blessings flow

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember that oil may spill in this world and be capped, but no power on earth can cap the flow of God's blessing to his anointed.

When Samuel anointed David to serve as the King of Israel he knew David was the right choice because when he tried to pour oil on the other brothers, the oil would not flow, but flowed freely when he came to David. Throughout David's life the oil of God's anointing continued to flow.

Even when David sinned with Bathsheba and spilled the cup, the oil continued to flow.

Even when David fell so low that he placed Uriah in the front of the battle to die, and spilled even more, the oil continued to flow.

When he had spilled what appeared to be the last drop of blessing and dropped to his lowest state, David cried out in Psalm 51:10, "Create in me a clean heart oh God a renew a right spirit within me."

In His never ending love God uncapped the well of his favor and pour out a blessing on David.

David was blessed so much that he prayed out of his soul, "Thou hast anointed my head with oil, my cup runneth over, surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all of the days of my life."

When God has begun a flow of blessings for those who are living after His own heart, we may foolishly spill and waste what He gives us sometimes, but if our hearts are right and we turn back to God nothing can cap the flow."

When the oil of God's anointing flows, our cups run over; the overflow is not a spill, it's evidence of God's favor.

When Abraham discovered the ram in the bush, that was an evidence of God's favor and the blessings kept flowing!

When Moses led the Children of Israel through the Red Sea, that was an evidence of God's favor, and the blessings kept flowing.

When Esther rose to become Queen of Persia and saved her people, it was an evidence of God's favor and blessings kept flowing!

When the Three Hebrew Boys were protected from the burning flames in the fiery furnace, that was an evidence of God's favor, and the blessings kept flowing!

When Daniel was protected from hungry lions in the lion's den, that was an evidence of God's favor and the blessings kept flowing!

On the Day of Pentecost when the Holy Spirit came down like cloves of fire, that was an evidence of God's anointing, and the blessings have been flowing every since.

I don't know what you think about it, but I'm glad that God is still in the blessing business.

Companies like BP may spill their oil and lose millions of gallons, but my blessings don't come from BP but from JC, Who never has a spill and whose fountain can never be capped.

There's a blessing flowing from the fountain on the mountain.

No wonder the song writer declared, "There is a fountain filled with blood that flows from Immanuel's vein; and sinners plunged beneath the flood lose all their guilt and stain."

It's a fountain filled with the blood of Christ.

It's blood that will never lose its power!

They lifted Him high on an old rugged cross!

They drove nails into His hands!

They stuck a spear in His side!

And he died... But Early Sunday morning He arose with all power in his hands!

I'm so glad that the well of God's blessings has not been capped and Blessings are still flowing!

If God be with us

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

August 15, 2010

SCRIPTURE: "And the angel of the LORD appeared unto him, and said unto him, The LORD is with thee, thou mighty man of valor. And Gideon said unto him, Oh my Lord, if the LORD be with us, why then is all this befallen us? and where be all his miracles which our fathers told us of, saying, Did not the LORD bring us up from Egypt? but now the LORD hath forsaken us, and delivered us into the hands of the Midianites." Judges 6:12-13; "What shall we then say to these things? If God be for us, who can be against us? He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not with him also freely give us all things?" Romans 8:31-32

Introduction

Has there ever been a time when you questioned whether God was on your side?There are many times in our lives when we are besieged by difficulties and multitudes of troubles. They all seem to suggest that we are fighting our battles alone. Yet, each time we read the Bible or hear a sermon we are reminded that God will not forsake us and that He will never leave us alone.

In moments of weakness, we start to doubt. We ask, "If God is on my side, then why is He allowing all of these problems to trouble me? If He's on my side, why doesn't He protect me from all of these lugubrious circumstances?"

You are not alone. Mary and Martha questioned why Christ did not come to aide Lazarus when he was ill. They chided him saying, "If you would have been here, my brother would not have died." In a way they questioned the advantage of personally knowing the Savior, but could not benefit from the relationship.

Even Christ himself questioned his father when He was hanging on the cross. He cried out, "Father, why has thou forsaken me."

Oddly, our humanity only questions God when we are hurting. It never questions God when He is blessing us. We rarely ask God, "Why are you blessing me like this? Why are you answering my prayers?"

The answer to our frustration is that God is always with us. The issue is not whether He is on our side, but whether we are on His side. He does not join us to help our will to be done, but we join him to help His will be done.

As Christians, our goal should be to be on the Lord's side. When we are on his side, we submit ourselves to His will and face life and mighty men and women of valor.

Exposition

The passage focuses on Israel's lost faith and God's restoration.

In the period of the judges, Israel had no king. They experienced a succession of dangerous times each related to the degree of their faith in God. They constantly fell on hard times as they attempted to emulate the Canaanite tribes around them, including worshipping their god, Baal.

For seven years, they were being raided and attacked by the Midianites. Whenever the Israelites had accumulated ample harvests to provide for themselves the Midianites accompanied by the Amalekites would raid them, seized their harvests and animals and leave them without resources to survive the hard winters.

Israel complained to God, but they had not made the connection between their acceptance of Baal and the hard times they were experiencing. In Judges 6:10 they were soberly reminded that "Ye have not obeyed my voice." It was then that they began to "connect the dots."

Gideon was personally tapped to raise Israel from its condition. In Judges 6:12, an angel said, "The Lord is with thee," but first the people would need to return to the old path. It would be necessary to turn from Baal worship and return to the worship of the true God of their forefathers.

Gideon considered their present condition and questioned the campfire stories of the old-timers who told them of the great works of God in the past. So, in Judges 6:13 he asks the question, "If the Lord be with us, why then has all this befallen us?" He questioned the relevance of those accounts, considering their present situation. What happened to the miracles the old timers talked about? That's when Gideon learned that the same God of the past was ready to do again what He had done before, if the people were willing to change their way.

When the people repented, Gideon, with an army of just 300 men defeated the entire 30,000 plus army of the Midianites, without lifting a sword or the loss of a single life.

Paul, writing to the Romans reminded believers that the struggle to attain the Christian life would not be easy. He often referred to the forces of evil that would assemble against the cross. By way of encouragement, he reminded them that God loved them so much that he gave His son for them so they could ultimately triumph and have victory over sin and this world. If God gave so much for us, we should be confident that no matter how formidable the enemy assembled against us, that He will be the victor. If we are with Him, then our victory is assured. In Romans 8:31 he asked the question, "If God be for us, who can be against us?"

So we have this assurance, that God will always be the victor in any confrontation with evil. If we are with Him, then our victory is assured as well.

Is God always for us?

Is there ever a time when God is not for us? Gideon, in the text, noticed that for forty years God allowed Israel to wander in the wilderness because of the lack of faith.

Then for 40 years he allowed them to prosper in the Promised Land as they obeyed Him. However, for seven years God seemed to be distant. Everything went wrong! Then they were told that for seven years they had gradually slipped away from God. When they slipped away from God, their troubles began.

God always loves us, but He is not always pleased with what we do. He is determined to save us and often orchestrates events that are designed to "send us a message" that will bring us to our senses.

God is always for us, but we are not always with Him. It is in those times that we suffer. In this text, Israel endured loss of food, income, and security. In our private endeavors, the results could also be the same. One solution might be for us to repent of any fault or shortcoming we have and come back to God's side of the battle. If we keep doing what we are doing on the wrong side of the fight, the outcome will ultimately be defeat.

Those who are on God's side should be encouraged because although we may feel defeated by life's circumstances, we must remember that that in the end, God wins. When God wins, the people of God win. Satan will have no power over those who are living daily in God's will and in continual communion with Him.

Are your financial problems mounting? Are family difficulties getting more complex? Are you detractors and haters increasing? Listen to Romans 8:31 again, "What can we say about all of this? If God is for us, who can be against us?."

Advantages of being on God's Side

There are advantages to being on God's side.

In times of trouble and despair those who know God best have certain assurances that should be comfort us.

God strengthens and encourages those who are on His side. When the weight of the world gets heavy, God lifts our spirits and we find strength that we did not know we possessed. Psalm 46:1, "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble.

God will never abandon those who are faithful to Him. Though it is tempting to do so, those who remain faithful to God will find that God is always them. As David wrote in Psalm 46:7, "The Lord of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our refuge." We can say the same.

God gives us courage to face the angry faces of our critics and haters? When the words and actions of those who want to destroy us begin to take their toll, believers who are on God's side remember the words of Psalm 56:4, "In God I will praise his word, in God I have put my trust; I will not fear what flesh can do unto me." They will also remember, Psalm 56:11, "In God have I put my trust: I will not be afraid what man can do unto me."

God will protect those who are on his side from ultimate destruction. There will most definitely be setbacks and a few battles lost, but in the end, God will be the victor and we will arise victoriously. Are your enemies plotting against you at this very moment? Are they sharpening their knives and swords ready to attack? Has that caused you to lose sleep? Those who are on the Lord's side remember the words of Isaiah 54:17, "No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper; and every tongue that shall rise against thee in judgment thou shalt condemn. This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord, and their righteousness is of me, saith the Lord."

Truly there are great advantages to being on God's side. He is our fortress, comforter and protector in every avenue of life.

On God's Side

Finally, brothers and sisters we don't how God will do it, but when the battle is over the people of God will be the victors.

God often moves in strange ways to accomplish His will; ways that seem so strange that to some they are unbelievable.

Gideon questioned how God could give the victory to Israel when he only had 300 men against 30,000. All he could see was the prospect of failure because there were so many planning his defeat.

Gideon was on God's side and when was ready He would fight the battle.

There have been many great battles fought in biblical history, but none of them as memorable as those God Himself fights for those who are on His side.

When God fights the battle, often those on His side have little to do, but to stand still and watch Him work.

God fights for us in ways that leave our enemies scratching their heads unable to figure out just how God was able to save us.

When God does His thing, He seems to do it in the strangest of ways that are nothing short of miracles.

Moses faced the armies of Pharaoh and God drowned them in the Red Sea.

Joshua marched around the walls of Jericho until the walls came tumbling down. God used the waters of the sea.

Samson killed a thousand men with the jawbone of a donkey. God used an old bone.

Jehoshaphat defeated his enemies with an army of singing soldiers, God used their songs.

But when God delivered Gideon and his men he didn't use a sword, a chariot or singing soldiers, he used only a dream about a round loaf of bread rolling down a hill.

In the middle of the night, one Midianite soldier dreamed he saw a giant loaf of bread rolling down the hill destroying their camp. The dream spread through their camp like wildfire, by the time Gideon blew his trumpet all 30,000 of his enemies had fled in the night, chased away by a dream and a loaf of bread.

It was significant that bread came out of nowhere to save the people because today we too are counting on God's bread for our salvation.

Just as Israel was saved by a dream about a loaf of bread believers must put our trust in the power of the bread of heaven.

In John 6:35, Jesus said, “And Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst. “

He is the bread that Dr. Watts sang about when he said, “Bread of heaven feed me till I want no more.”

This is the bread of communion that God shares with those who are on his side.

This is the bread that that promises eternal life to all who feast upon Him.

This is the same bread that has made a way out of no way, and is still making a way today!

Gideon asked the question, “Where be all his miracles?” And the answer is that God is still performing miracles today.

He’s the same God that opened up the Red Sea, He can open doors today!

He’s the same God that rained down bread from heaven in the wilderness and He can put food on our tables!

He’s the same God that brought down the walls of Jericho and He can bring down the walls of trouble and difficulty in our lives.

The God we serve has never lost a battle; we ought to keep our hand in His hand!

This hand is the hand of the Almighty God!

If we put our hand in the hand of the man from Galilee, He’ll make a way for us!

His name is Jesus, the Lily of the Valley!

Jesus, the Bright and Morning Star!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary..

But early Sunday morning arose from the grave!

He is God all by himself,

If God be for us, who can be against us?

Death in the pot, but life in the cross

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 22, 2010

SCRIPTURE: "So they poured out for the men to eat. And it came to pass, as they were eating of the pottage, that they cried out, and said, O thou man of God, there is death in the pot. And they could not eat thereof. " 2 Kings 4:40; "The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly. "John 10:10

Introduction

Is it possible for good children to be influenced by people, places and things that could mean death for them?It has been long accepted that children often reflect the world in which they live. The famous Psychologist Jean Piaget is the author of many of the psychological principles upon which modern education operates. He taught that a child comes into the world with a blank slate that is shaped by the people, places, and experiences it encounters.

Piaget's theories are the basis of many of the teaching methods in modern education. Some of his ideas are challenging. For example, he claims that children get their ideas about morality from their parents or institutions like the church, but their practical ideas about morality are learned from their peers. So, the church may teach that it is wrong to steal, but if a youth's peer group steals, the youth may or may not steal himself, but he won't think too harshly about those who do or even condemn the acts. The offshoot of that is for parents to exercise care over the groups that influence their children.

In addition, Piaget taught that that adults usually want youth to be clones of themselves rather encourage them to involve into better, different people. Educators who use the standard idea usually teach children memorize information and repeat it back to them on a test, the same way it was given. He said, "Education, for most people, means trying to lead the child to resemble the typical adult of his society . . . but for me and no one else, education means making creators. .You have to make inventors, innovators—not conformists." The idea is to inspire youth not to simply clone the generation before them but to go beyond into realms where no man or woman has gone before.

We don't have to be world famous psychologist to know what they teach in the psychology books. Dr. Grandma could have written her own book. She said, "Birds of a feather, flock together." Dr. Grandpa said, "If you play with a dog you'll also get his fleas." Everybody has a favorite Uncle somewhere who reminded the youngsters that "you can't run with hounds and sleep with the rabbits."

There are deadly influences in this world that can destroy the motivation, aspiration, and inclination of youth to succeed; we must protect them to the best of our ability.

We must remember Proverbs 22:6, "Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it." That also would imply that we should inspire a child to go to heights he has never been and when he is old he will have made it there.

As Christians, we strive to live the believer's life in word and deed. Our responsibility is to teach them, inspire them and mentor them, so that the ideals of the savior can take root in their hearts.

Exposition

This text focuses on a group of young people who were inadvertently poisoned by a innocent looking herb that was put in their food.

Israel underwent a lengthy period of famine in which food and water were in short supply. During this time the prophet Elisha visited the school of prophets at Gilgal. These were young men who studied the word of God and trained themselves for the ministry. When Elisha visited he noticed that the students were hungry. He instructed one of his young assistants to prepare a large pot of stew. While searching for ingredients, he ran across a wild vine from which he picked some gourds and sliced the gourds into the stew. He was not aware that he had picked a dangerous gourd to put in the meatless stew, it's thickness would serve to substitute for the lack of meat. As the students tasted the stew they immediately knew it was poisonous and informed Elisha. Trusting the provision of the Lord, Elisha calmly instructed them to add some flour or meal to the stew and then re-serve it. Miraculously, the Lord purified the poisonous stew and the students were able to eat it.

The vulnerability of the young

The fact that the young students were unable to provide for themselves revealed their vulnerability.

As as a general rule youth are not aware of the dangers that threaten both their and welfare. They taste whatever is in the pot.

Youth believe themselves impervious to death, addiction or debilitating conditions. They will try just about anything despite warnings to the contrary.

That's why millions of youth smoke cigarettes despite the warning on the side of each package. Many drink alcohol, use drugs and experiment with illegal drugs with the full knowledge that problems could follow them.

Youth are vulnerable to the lure of living fast.

Living fast is a way of saying that we are racing through life at a pace that is so dangerous that we threaten to collide with something somewhere. It is not unusual in modern times to see pre-teens wearing stockings and lipstick. It's not unusual for 13 year olds to go out on dates and for teenagers to drink alcohol, have sex and to have babies. The world invites them to live fast and die hard and young.

The young years are vulnerable years when teens trust that what's in the pot won't hurt them because of their youth.

Solomon, in his senior years warned youth of their vulnerability and urged them to stay close to God. In Ecclesiastes 12:1 he said, "Remember now thy creator in the days of thy youth." He later added at 12:13, "Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter, fear God and keep his commandments, for this is the whole duty of man."

Adults must be careful what goes in the pot

The prophet Elisha sent his servant to collect ingredients that would go in the pot.

A careless servant almost killed the entire group of youth by not taking care of what he selected to put in the pot. It indicates the importance of the role of persons and institutions that influence youth.

Too often youth are left to rear themselves, but actually rearing children is a full time job. There is a difference between rearing children and raising children. On the farm, it's possible to raise chickens and raise hogs, but the farmer had to rear his children. To raise chickens all that was necessary was to throw them corn seeds and protect them from predators. To raise a hog you simply fed them some slop and let them grow fat. Rearing children is more than just putting food on the table. Rearing them requires a careful management of all the things that influence their lives from the company they keep, the music they listen to, the movies they watch and the quality of educational and growth opportunities.

To make a long story short, parents have a responsibility to watch what goes on in the pot.

Hillary Clinton in her book, "It takes a village," said she learned what our fore parents already knew; everyone around a child influences and contributes to his growth and development. The church must adopt the village approach to youth. We must involve ourselves in the entire lives of the youth as we care for and nurture their faith.

We must teach, through hands on activities in real time.

We must utilize proven tools to reach and teach. Organizations such as Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts have proven to be useful tools used by churches around the world to reach youth with a spiritual message while they have fun. We must use scouting in a greater way.

We must involve ourselves in the secular and Christian education of our youth.

Churches must become concerned about the academic performance of their youth as well as their Christian education. Programs for after school tutoring, ACT Prep and other academic based project will help them in school. At the same time Sunday School, bible study and youth Christian Education will help them grow spiritually.

We must increase our involvement in both arenas of youth education.

At the same time, parents should exercise considerable care about who teaches, influences and mentors their children. Parents are responsible for asking the right questions: How many chaperones will attend an activity, who are they? What is the background of those hired as youth mentors and advisors? If my child spends the night at your house, will there be a responsible adult present at all times? Too many parents are laid back when it comes to their parenting responsibilities. Parents have a responsibility to watch what goes in the pot.

God's power is the antidote

Finally, brothers and sisters, we need to remember that the devil may try to put death in the pot, but there is always power in the cross.

When Elisha heard that there was death in the power, told him to take ordinary flour and put it in the brew. By itself the flour should not have made a difference, but it was the flour, it was the power of God that turned death into another chance at life.

That's helps us to understand the grace of God.

It also helps us to understand why Jesus would say that the devil comes to steal and rob the very essence of life from us, but he has come to give us life, and life more abundantly. It is through the power of the blood and the cross that we obtain the grace needed to survive the poisonous efforts of the Lord.

When life has put death in the pot, the grace of God gives us one more chance!

When life has written us off as failures and closes every opportunity, the grace of God opens up another door!

We know that God's grace has a divine purpose. Those young prophets were to declare of the word of God to an unbelieving generation, their lives had a purpose.

Today, God has a plan in mind for young believers of this generation. He has placed them in loving hands, pledged to protect the pot and nurture them to maturity.

That's because God has a divine purpose for sharing his grace.

When the grace of God is upon us, the wise will recognize that is not luck, but the hand of god gently nudging us in right direction.

That's when we should know that it's time to stop playing around with our lives; it's time to begin to live out our purpose.

When grace is upon us we are about our father's business.

When god's grace is upon us, it means God is smiling on us and is guiding our footsteps.

Maybe that's why the song writer wrote, "Guide me oh thou great Jehovah, pilgrim through this barren land. I am weak but thou art mighty, hold me with thy powerful hand!"

I don't know about you, but I'm glad that God has smiled on me.
When God smiles on us, he gives us:
—STRENGTH when our burdens become heavy.
—ASSURANCE when everything seems to go wrong.
—INSPIRATION when difficulties arise.
—COMFORT when disaster strikes.
Because of God's grace we are able to:
—Keep on going, when our road gets rough.
—Keep on singing, even though our pain becomes intense.
—Keep on working, even when our body gets weary.
Because God smiles on us, we have:
—Joy in spite of our sorrows: Peace in spite of our problems
—Contentment in spite of our burdens; assurance in spite of our frustrations —Comfort in spite of our pain; Victory in spite of our defeats
No wonder the song writer declared, "God has smiled on me. He has made me glad!"
I'm glad that He is a wonder working God!
I'm glad that He is a favor giving God!
I'm glad that He is a soul saving God!
I'm glad that one day he decided to pick up an old rugged cross!
I'm glad that He carried it to Golgotha's hill!
I'm glad that He died for me out on Calvary!
But Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

No. 9454-Grandparents

Much land to be Possessed

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
for the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

September 12, 2010

Scripture: Now Joshua was old[and] stricken in years; and the Lord said unto him, Thou art old[and] stricken in years, and there remaineth yet very much land to be possessed. Joshua 13:1 Now also when I am old and gray headed, O God, forsake me not; until I have shewed thy strength unto[this] generation,[and] thy power to everyone[that] is to come. Psalms 71:18

Introduction

How much have you benefitted from the life and legacy of your grandparents? Many of us have been the recipients of a wealth of wisdom, guidance, and love from our grandparents. Some have even benefitted from resources provided from them through inheritances left for them by grandparents who cared.

The challenge for every grandparent today is to make sure that their grandchildren will never be able to say, "I never knew my grandparents."

How much they know about your life, beliefs, hopes and dreams may shape their futures.

In 1996 Erma Bombeck, an American humorist wrote about the images that many grandparents have left for their grandchildren to remember. Bombeck said:

Grandparents can always be counted upon to buy anything you're selling from all-purpose greeting cards to peanut brittle, from flower seeds to cookies, from transparent tape to ten chances on a pony.

A grandparent buys you gifts your mother says you don't need.

A grandparent pretends he does not know who you are on Halloween.

A grandparent will put a sweater on you when she is cold, feed you when she is hungry and put you to bed when she is tired.

A grandparent is the only baby-sitter your parents didn't have to pay.

A grandparent will believe you can read even when you have the book upside down.

These are the images that many have of their grandparents, but there is so much more to be told and so much more to be learned. The character of grandchildren often depends on what grandparents put in their hearts today. The challenge to pass from one generation to the next the legacy of God, family and country represents the sum total of every grandparent's charge which is to leave an inspiring legacy that will live in the hearts of your grandchildren.

Grandparents should not consider their work done until they are satisfied that their grandchildren are on the right track or at least know their way to the right track. Until that happens there is still much work to be done.

As Christians, our goal is to possess every blessing that God has for us. We give God praise for Godly grandparents because they show us the way and help us to claim our legacy. As each new grandchild is born, grandparents know they do not have the leisure of a rocking chair existence. There is much land to possess.

Exposition

This text focuses on a command God gave to Joshua to secure the inheritance of coming generations, despite his old age.

The children of Israel had moved into the Promised Land and secured most of it as an inheritance. Before his death, Moses had begun the process of dividing the lands of Canaan to the various tribes of Israel. Once on the other side of Jordan, Joshua spent the remainder of his life securing the lands Moses had assigned to each tribe.

This text notes that Joshua was very old. When he moved into the Promised Land he stood as Moses' right hand, he was 80 years old. Now, much older, he was still charged with an additional responsibility. He was charged to secure the remainder of the lands for the next generation.

"There is very much land to be possessed," was the command that was given to him. Possession of the remainder of the land secured a legacy for the next generation of Israelites. Like many seniors, Joshua concluded that he had done his part. He stood beside Moses in the journey across the wilderness for 40 years. He risked his life spying out the new land, and even in his senior years led the nation in continuous battles to win the land, beginning at Jericho and all of the other cities that he encountered. He concluded that he had done his part and was content to let the years pass.

Yet, the command of God was clear, "there is much land to be possessed." Even in his senior years, there was a challenge remaining: secure an inheritance for coming generations.

David, in Psalm 71:18 accepted the challenge. In fact, he asked God not to abandon him in his old age but to give him to strength to show this generation the power of God and to prepare even the coming generation to know of God's greatness.

The two text seem to make it clear that the elders of every generation have no time to lay back and wait their end, but they are challenged to teach their children and grandchildren about the goodness of God.

What is the land to be possessed?

What do grandchildren learn from godly grandparents? They learn to be patient, wise, benevolent and grateful, because that's the nature of godly grandparents.

Seniors whose children and grandchildren have not mastered these values still have work to do. Like Joshua, today's grandparents are reminded that there is still much land to possess.

A part of a grandparent's task is to share his/her own life experiences with their grandchildren. Although we live in the multicultural age of Obama where technology has changed the way we communicate, and cultural diversity has changed the way we relate; the contrast of the experiences of grandparents with those of their grandchildren are meaningful and important.

In sharing their experiences some grandchildren might be surprised to learn that granny and cramps were once young. They were not born then suddenly became grandparents.

Many grandchildren are surprised to learn that grandma and grandpa are not old fixtures from the past stuck in a corner, but they seem to be so much fun, why? Because they have learned how to live, after spending a lifetime learning how to make a living.

Sometimes that revelation is amazing. Consider the nine year old that sat in the swing with her grandmother and looked at a copy of her driver's license. "That's not a very good picture of you," said the granddaughter, it makes you look old. The daughter looked further and said, "Oh grandmother, they have your weight on here, you are too heavy." She said, "You've been living at the same address for a long time."

Then the granddaughter looked down a little further and she said, "Grandmother you are going to have to improve. You made an "F" in sex."

The land that must be possessed is to teach each new generation of grands and great grands how to traverse the virtual maze of frustrations that accompany youth; and also to understand the facts of life.

How much is to be possessed?

Today, grandparents are more important to families than ever.

Grandparents are the reservoirs of heritage and tradition in the family. They insist that every generation know the family's journey from there "there" to "here."

It has been a long journey, but a much longer journey for the family lies ahead.

In many of our households today, grandparents are the primary caregivers to several grandchildren as well as great grandchildren, increasing their importance.

For grandchildren, it often seems that grandmother or grandfather "sees" more than their parents. She or he seems to "see" what lies ahead.

Consider the two boys who were talking about having to wear glasses to help their vision. "Wouldn't you hate to wear glasses all the time?" asked a small boy of his playmate. "No-o-o," the other boy answered slowly, "not if I had the kind grandma wears. She sees how to fix a lot of things, and she sees lots of nice things to do on rainy days, and she sees when folks are tired and sorry, and what will make them feel better, and she always sees what you meant to do even if you haven't got things just right.

I asked her one day how she could see that way all the time, and she said it was the way she learned to look at things as she grew older. So it must be her glasses. I want some glasses just like hers." Godly grandparents help their grandchildren to acquire the wisdom to see their way through this life; to see the pitfalls and the opportunities that lie around every turn. They help them to see what life offers them and to see their own potential.

It is becomes the duty of every grandparent to show each generation all that life has to offer them and point to the route to acquire what God has provided.

A full education, an opportunistic spirit, a vibrant work ethic, a strong sense of family and a love of God are the tools needed to possess what God has in store for the next generation. More than any other members of the family, grandparents can point to what must be possessed, even though life and its limitations may have prevented them from actually attaining all of their own potential.

Love of God must be possessed

One of the first truths that children are taught is that we should fear and respect God.In this respect, there is much land to be possessed. It appears that each successive generation gets smarter but slips further away from God. Homes that once prayed together are beginning to fade into spiritual mediocrity.

Many seniors are watching whole generations of children being reared without a knowledge of God. Then some recall the words of scripture: "The harvest is great but the laborers are few."

David prayed to God that he would be allowed to live long enough to teach a few more lessons to the next generation about God and his strength. The love of God is a character trait that must be possessed.

Grandparents had strange ways of teaching this respect and love of God. They did it by insisting on their "Our fathers" before bedtime or odd things like sitting still when it stormed and rained.

More than anything else, grandparents show faith in God by example.

Acquiring that faith is a land that must be possessed.

At age 80, Daniel's faith had reached a level of maturity in which he was unmoved by anything that happened around him. Today, there are grandparents among us that share a similar resolve. They have seen wars, depressions, several presidents, good times and bad times. They have seen droughts, floods, hot summers and cold winters. In all that they have seen, they have learned that God is still in control.

That's why David, reflecting would write, "I have been young, and now am old, yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed, begging for bread."

Keep trusting in the Lord

Finally, brothers and sisters, grandparents themselves must hold on and keep trusting in the Lord.

While grandparents show their families the strength and power of God, they themselves must keep trusting in God.

As physical health fails from time to time, eye sights dim and steps slow; they must continue to trust in God and remember that God is our refuge and our strong place to hide in storms.

God proved himself to be a refuge or place of shelter in times of storm.

The times may have changed but God is still on the throne.

We trust in the Lord because those who trust him are rewarded with answered prayers, and heavenly glory!

We are not by ourselves. Biblical grandparents trusted in the Lord.

—Noah trusted the Lord and He brought him through the great flood!

—Abraham trusted the Lord and He showed him the Lamb in the bush!

—Ruth trusted the Lord and she found happiness while gleaning fields!

—Moses trusted the Lord and he lead Israel out of bondage

—Daniel trusted the Lord and He protected him in the Lion's Den

—Job declared that though his health was slipping away, his children were gone and his wealth was lost that he would still trust the Lord.

I hear him across the centuries declaring, "Yea though he slay me, yet will I trust Him."

Iwill trust in the Lord because if I am:

—Sad, the Lord will be my fountain of joy!

—At fault, the Lord will be stronghold of forgiveness!

—Weak, the Lord will be my pillar of strength

—Discouraged, the Lord will be my pool of inspiration!

—Defeated, the Lord will be my crown of victory!

—Darkness, the Lord will be my light!.

—Lonely, the Lord will be my friend

—Helpless, the Lord will be my help.

The Lord is my refuge and my strength a very pleasant help in a time of trouble!

No wonder the songwriter declares! "The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear!"

I trust in God wherever I may be. Out on the land or on the raging sea. Though come what may, from day to day, my heavenly father watches over me!

Hold to his hand! God's unchanging hand!

The same hand that was nailed to an old rugged cross! Hold to his hand!

He died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning, he arose from the dead!

Hold to his hand, the Lord knows the way!

A Pastor Unlocking the Door

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 2010

SCRIPTURE: Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me. Revelation 3:20

Introduction

Have you ever heard a knock at your door?Whenever someone knocks on your door it means that they desire to get your attention. More often than not they want to enter for one reason or another. Sometimes we may not want to answer the door and we try to ignore the knocks. That's the way some people do when a bill collector knocks at the front door or rings the doorbell. Some who don't have the money to pay their bill try to pretend that they are not home, but the bill collector continues to knock. That happened to one lady who told her young son to answer the door but say, "She's not here." The little boy tried to follow his mother's instructions to the letter. The boy opened the door boldly and looked the bill collector in the face.

"Is your mother home?" asked the collector.

Then boldly the boy answered, "She say, she not here."

That was the wrong way to answer the door.

Jesus said in, John 10:7-9 "Truly, truly, I say to you, I am the door of the sheep. All who came before Me are thieves and robbers, but the sheep did not hear them. I am the door; if anyone enters through Me, he will be saved, and will go in and out and find pasture."

Pastors are God's instruments to show sinners and believers the way to paradise. He characterized Himself as the door and each pastor's job is to show those under His care the way to the door.

An old Negro spiritual focused on that door and the knocking with these words, "Somebody's knocking on your door, Oh sinner, why don't you answer, somebody's knocking on your door."

If pastors have one great task it is to help sinners and believers to hear the Holy Spirit knocking at their door. When we are lost the knock is a call to repentance, when we are saved, the knock is a call to action. For this reason pastors are sanctified and set aside to bring each believer to a point in his life experience when he can answer the call of God who is knocking on their door.

As Christians, we know God is knocking on our doors. We must listen to the preached word and prayerfully listen for God to speak in every avenue of life. Through His preacher, written word and revelation we are able to answer and respond to His call.

Exposition

This text focuses on a message given to the pastor of the Church at Laodicea; that it must be reminded that Christ is knocking on their door.

The angel of the church at Laodicea had an enviable yet daunting task; he served as pastor of a congregation that had become comfortable with its position in the Kingdom of God. It was enviable because the congregation had experienced a period of prosperity and growth. It's material possessions had apparently grown to the point that they enjoyed a reputation in the community as being more than simply affluent, but rich.

For those congregation struggling to survive, this church was in an enviable position. They were not in want and, for all practical purposes, had achieved much in the sight of their peers in the faith and even in the their own eyes.

However, the pastor of the congregation called, the angel, had the daunting task of motivating the congregation to move from its comfortable position and meet the challenge of expanding the gospel to all persons.

As far as its mission was concerned the church had settled into a comfortable routine that was neither ambitious or nonplussed. It was not on fire with desire to expand the kingdom but neither did it turn a cold shoulder to the challenges it met. This spirit angered God to the point that he said He would spit them out of his mouth.

The angel of this church was challenged to alert believers of the challenges of the cross, while at the same time reminding them that Christ the savior is on the outside knocking and waiting for an opportunity join them in a dynamic effort to bring the mercy and love of God to all generations.

The sanctified pastor

The angel at the church in Laodicea had a great challenge before him. So does every pastor. To meet the commands and expectations of the savior the sanctified pastor must:

REALIZE HIS PURPOSE: Each pastor is placed with a congregation for a specific purpose and for a specific length of time. The goal is to achieve God's purpose. Understanding the mysterious ways of God has been a puzzle to many over the centuries. We are no exception. We often wonder why God selected us, out of all of his creation, and placed us in the unique spot that we occupy in the world today. It is humbling when we consider that God could have chosen anyone, but He did not choose just anyone He chose this pastor for this work. God knew the kind of people she would encounter and selected her because of her special qualities, then put it on the hearts of the people to accept His chosen one .

The pastor who has been sanctified by God in this way is humbled and probably asks, “Why me?

To those who pose this troubling question to themselves find the answer in Psalm 89:19, “I have laid help upon one that is mighty; I have exalted one chosen out of the people.”

Unseen by the hand of man, God has exalted Godly leaders to a station and position that would promote the building of his kingdom and provide spiritual help for those who follow him.

Often we cannot see God’s hand, but there is no doubt that God’s hand is in the plan.

Everything that happens has a reason and purpose, according to God’s divine plan. When a Godly leader sanctified, selected and placed in a position, it is not accidental. God is in the plan.

When a man or woman of God is given a gavel or pulpit, it is not a coincidence of nature. God is in the plan.

THE PASTOR EQUIPS THE SAINTS: In Laodicea, the congregation was established but not equipped to serve; that presented a challenge to the angel of that congregation. He had to fully equip the members to serve the kingdom rather than sit comfortably and be served by the kingdom.

Likewise, the sanctified pastor of any congregation is challenged to reemphasize the importance of preparation, training and kingdom building. Simply sitting comfortably, neither hot nor cold, does not please God.

This training should equip every member to at least have basic bible skills. To know that Genesis is in the front o the Bible and not the back!

This training should orient every member to know the history, heritage and program of the church and how the church program is reflected in the Word of God.

This training should prepare every leader, through attitude and aptitude, to serve in his chosen area of church work.

But more than that, this training gives each leader a greater appreciation and understanding of his faith. Training helps him to appreciate the songs of the choir, the sermons of the pastor, and sacredness of the worship.

The sanctified pastor’s task is to help members, see Jesus in every walk of life, and to know that he stands at the door of the future waiting for an opportunity to enter.

THE PASTOR MUST ENCOURAGE FAITH TO OVERCOME: The angel at Laodicea was challenged to lead the people to overcome the world. To do so he would need to inspire them to reach beyond their comfort zones and take action for Christ. The goal is not simply to reach a point of financial and social success and get comfortable but to overcome Satan and Sin.

The sanctified pastor has the task of inspiring the congregation to trust. It is in this way that the sanctified pastor reminds believers that those who trust God always overcome.

When we trust God, He:
—feeds me when I am hungry!
—comforts me when I am lonely!
—corrects me when I am wrong
—refreshes me when I am tired!
—satisfies me when I am thirsty!
—lifts me when I am low!
—challenges me when I am indifferent!
—sustains me when I am afraid!
—directs me when I am confused!
—motivates me when I am discouraged!
—soothes me when I am dying!

We hear the words of John in Revelation 3:21, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne. "

The pastor has a reward

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must note that the sanctified pastor has a reward coming; it's a crown of life.

Every now and then it is good for believers to remember that serving the Lord does pay off after awhile. The same is true for those who lead in the church. The reward is great because their task is greater than the ordinary believer.

Therefore the sanctified pastor should remember the lyrics of the song writer who penned the words, "I'm going to work until my day is done.

There is no reward for being lukewarm.

There is no reward for being content.

There is no reward for being satisfied with the status quo.

There is no reward for those who sit on the stool of good intentions singing, "I shall not be moved" but only for those who use their God given abilities to advance the kingdom of the savior

Pastors must continue to preach the word and tell the world that He is truly King of Kings!

That's why we love our pastors. We love them because they continually remind us that, there is a name that we can call on in the middle of the night or in the heat of the day.

It is the name the songwriter wrote about when in a sanctified moment, alone with God, he declared, "I come to the garden alone. While the dew is still on the roses. And the voice I hear ringing in mine ear, the son of God discloses. And he walks with me and he talks with me and he tells me I am his own. And the joy we share as we tarry there, none other has ever known."

There is a name that reaches beyond the narrow confines of my loneliness and brings me comfort!

There is a name that reaches below my deepest failure and guides me to success!
There is a name that transcends my weakness and brings me strength.
There is a name that:
—Blesses me when I'm burdened
—Cheers me when I'm sad
—Strengthens me when I'm weak
—Calms me when I'm troubled
—Revives me when I'm weary!
It's the name of Jesus! There is none other name whereby we must be saved!
It's the name of Jesus!

No wonder the song writer declared, "There is a name I love to hear. I love to sing its worth. It sounds like music in mine ear, the sweetest name on earth. Oh how I love Jesus. Oh How I love Jesus. Because He first loved me."

He loved me so much that He hung out on Calvary!
He loved me so much that He died for my sins!
But early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave with all power!
All power in his hands!

The Devil in the Closet

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church

SCRIPTURE: For I delight in the law of God after the inward man: But I see another law in my members, warring against the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the law of sin which is in my members. O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death? Romans 7:22-24

Introduction

Is there a side of you that you keep hidden from most people; even from yourself? Most people have a public face and a private face. Ideally, both faces should be the same, but most often they are not. There are many who struggle to hide or even deny their dark sides because they know it would not be acceptable to others and would diminish their chances at self promotion.

Like the Hulk, some say, "You wouldn't like me when I'm angry." So, like Bruce Wayne we hide ourselves in Bat Caves or like Spiderman we hide our identities behind a mask. There is a little bit of Darth Vader in all of us, listening to the siren calls of the dark side of the force.

What doesn't appeal to us we hide in the closet. We don't throw it away, however because somehow it fascinates us and we want the opportunity to privately enter our closet and become what we like to be. In the closet our dark side takes over appealing to our prurient interests our most base desires and fantasies. In our closet world there are voices that convince ourselves that the life we have in the closest is the way it was meant to be; for us anyway.

There is a devil in the closet of every person's soul placing them at war with the creator, battling for control.

Whether it's one president who speaks about the importance of good health in one breath then slips into the closet to chain smoke cigarettes or another who expresses love for his wife in one moment and slips into the closet for hanky panky with a girl young enough to be his daughter.

There is a devil in everyone's closet. Sometimes it involves money, hidden identities, or sexual practices that are distasteful. Despite our best intentions and efforts to keep it hidden, the closet door opens and it all comes out.

What should believers do when we come face to face with the reality that we have devils in our closets? What if their presence is revealed to others? For many, the first response is denial. Immediately following that is justification and rationalization.

There are some who fall on their knees and appeal to God with the words of scripture, "O wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from this body of death?"

Fortunately, we serve a God who has experience dealing with the devil in the closet. He is the one who can deliver us from the clutches of our own carnal impulses. "Jesus can help me, Jesus alone."

As Christians, we must trust the Lord to help us deal with our secret closet issues. He can help us to be true to our calling and our purpose.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he explained that every believer faces a virtual warfare within them for control of their souls and secret passions.

Historically, Paul addressed the subject of the presence of a dark side, a compulsion to live outside of the will of God in each believer. Often this compulsion is not visible to the naked eye but can be felt on the inside, churning, turning and twisting believers as they fight to resist one temptation after another.

Many believers kept the presence of evil desires secret and never announced them to anyone. They were literally kept hidden in spiritual closets and locked away. The whole matter confused early believers because many thought they should instantly be free from worldly desires. They felt accepting Christ should destroy the devil in the closet. Instead, Paul explained that although we have the spirit of Grace through Salvation, there is a devil in every person's closet who does not leave, but is subdued, controlled and held at bay by the power of God himself.

The saint feels the presence of God within and agrees with His laws. There is something within every believer that tells them to do is right, and they want to do it. But also, he says, there is something else inside every believer that rises up and says "No!" It says, "Do not obey the law."

This is the devil in the closet.

These text verses point to the source of the problem. Paul tries to help us figure out what is wrong. He asks the question, "What's the matter with me? Why can't I do what is right? Why do I give way when I get into this situation? Why am I so weak?" Paul described this frustration in verse 24, "What a wretched man I am! Who will rescue me from this body of death?"

Paul concluded that the source of the problem is sin. Look at Romans 7:20, "Now if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me."

He showed us that there is a way out. Believers can leash the devils within them through the power of God.

He seemed to give believers a formula: Acknowledge our dark side, understand the nature f its presence, then call upon the power of God to control and leash our demons.

Personal acknowledgement of our weakness is just the first step. Turning the entire closet and its contents over to God is the important part. He will do the rest.

The nature of the devils

Modern believers have a plethora of devils in our closets. No Christian can stand in judgment of another because Romans 3:23 says, "… all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God."

There are no believers who have empty closets. There is a devil in every closet

DARK PASSIONS ARE IN EVERYONE'S CLOSET: Many believers have dark passions that are hidden from the public view. Some have sexual appetites that would displease their friends in the faith if they knew their secret desires. Others have desires for fame and popularity that are so compelling that they often are tempted to cross the line of morality to acquire them. Greed is a dark passion that constantly tempts believers to toy with the prospect of embezzlement, tax cheating, and theft. The list of dark passions include feelings of insecurity, fear, and doubt. For some they include a secret desire to do crazy things and to flirt with danger and the unknown. This is often reflected in our choices of reading material, videos and collectibles that in some cases may be hidden away in private closets, websites and safe deposit boxes, protected by pass codes, keys and life locks. Though locked away from public view, each of us has a closet and there is a devil in that closet, being held back by the power of God but waiting to take control.

SEXUALITY IS A CLOSET DEVIL: Sexual matters represent a particular challenge. For many the issue of homosexuality is a peculiarly sensitive devil in the closet. In reality, there are many believers: choir members, ushers, musicians, leaders, members and even pastors who have homosexual demons in their closets. The Black church has been reluctant to deal with the issue. It has adopted an unofficial and hypocritical position of, "Don't ask, don't tell" to deal with this devil. We have even gone one step further to add, "Even if you do tell, your presence can be tolerated as long as you confine your homosexual activities to other homosexuals." In many black churches, the presence of homosexuals in ministry is so prominent that if all homosexuals would be removed that choirs would stop singing, worships would have no music and many pulpits would be empty. We have simply turned a blind eye to the growing homosexual presence among us. In many cases homosexuals in the church are the subjects of jokes, comic imitations, and private jest. However, Black churches, for the most part draw the line when this closet devil begins to touch "my little boy, my son or my husband." Yet, the will be held responsible for its endorsement of closet activities over the years that have resulted in spiritual damage to believers themselves and the cross of Christ.

HOMOSEXUALITY IS NOT BIBLICALLY SUPPORTED: The church must not alter the teachings of the bible regarding this subject. The preponderance of scripture does not encourage, support or endorse homosexuality either in the Old or New Testaments.

The Old Testament had no tolerance for homosexuality at all. Homosexuals, both male and female were put to death. Leviticus 18:22 says, "Thou shalt not lie with mankind, as with womankind: it is abomination." Leviticus 20:13 says, "If a man also lieth with mankind, as he lieth with a woman, both of them have committed an abomination: they shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them."

In the New Testament it is equally condemned. Romans 1:26-27 says, "For this cause God gave them up unto vile affections; for even their women did exchange the natural use for that which is against nature. And likewise also the men, leaving the natural use of the woman, burned in their lust one toward another, men with men working that which is unseemly, and receiving in themselves that recompense of their error which was fitting."

1 Corinthians 6:9-10 gives a stern warning: "Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? Be not deceived: neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with mankind, nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God."

COMING OUT OF THE CLOSET: The challenge for believers dealing with this demon is to follow Paul's example in this text: Acknowledge our demon and its source, then turn to God to subdue these devils and to defang the serpent. In recent years, believers have been undone by a seemingly endless array of pastors who are acknowledging sexual demons in their closets. As we see the details we are troubled because they crossed our self imposed line. We are even more troubled because instead of asking God to deal with this devil, many have tried to justify their actions and expect to be received by other believers while openly practicing what the bible describes as sin. Coming out of the closet should mean that a person is now dealing with a secret demon. It should acknowledge that the source of this demon is sin and the devil himself. It should include repentance. Finally, it should include a request for the saints to pray as this matter is turned over to God. Coming out of the closet should not simply be announcement that "I am gay" but "I am gay, being gay is inconsistent with scripture, pray for me as a I repent and turn this matter over to God."

God loves everyone

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider the answer to Paul's question, "Who can deliver me from this body of death?" His answer was Jesus.

Paul said in Romans 7:25 "I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord…

There is a lot of salvation in verse 25, "I thank God through Jesus.." Because it is through Jesus that I hope gain restoration.

I thank God through Jesus that I am no longer what I use to be.

I thank God through Jesus that I have conquered the devil in my closet and live each day in power of his anointing.

I thank God through Jesus that I came to know the love of God.

That's the great truth that the church must portray to the world, that God is a God of love. He hates our sins, but He never stops loving the sinner. He doesn't like what we do, but He never gives up on us.

He hates the fact that we steal, but he still loves the thief.

He hates the fact that we lie, but He still loves the liar.

He hates the fact that we break the law, but He still loves the lawbreaker.

He hates homosexual acts, but He never stops loving gays and lesbians as people.

While the church should not embrace homosexuality it must not become homophobic. We should not hate the people caught up in this great sin, but reflect the spirit of God's love in all of our dealings with them.

God's love is a powerful love that overcomes our weaknesses!

That weakness may be homosexuality, but it could also be drunkenness, gambling, fornication, adultery, wild living, drugs, criminal activity.

The good news is that there is no sin that God is not willing to forgive.

There is no mistake that he is not willing to forget and give us a new chance.

There is no orientation that he is not willing to redirect.

There is no life so broken that he cannot fix it.

There is no life so lost that he can't help you find it again!

There is no lifestyle so spiritually draining that he can't breathe new life into it!

That's why the song writer said, "Yield not to temptation, for yielding is sin; Each vict'ry will help you some other to win; Fight manfully onward, dark passions subdue; Look ever to Jesus, He'll carry you through."

I don't know about you but I've discovered that God is able!

God is able to take that which is bad and make it good!

God is able to take that which has been destroyed and rebuild it again!

God is able to take our setbacks and make them opportunities!

God's love is a soul saving love that reaches into our closet and puts a muzzle on our demons and gives us one more chance!

That's why Christ came to this earth, to give us another chance!

That's why he died on an old rugged cross!

But Early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave!

He did it to save us and help us deal with the devil in our closet!

Solidarity with the Savior

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 2010

SCRIPTURE: For we are laborers together with God: ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building. According to the grace of God which is given unto me, as a wise masterbuilder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon. For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." 1 Corinthians 3:9-11

Introduction

Is there any limit to what we can achieve if our goals are in sync with the savior? As we survey the challenges that lay ahead, the church should not be intimidated by the enormity of the task.

Believers are shouldering enormous burdens in the secular community. Unemployment is high and has impacted giving and limited ministries in some congregations as available resources decline. Many are struggling to make ends meet while balancing their family needs with those of the church. Crime is rising and our youth seemed more detached than ever from Godly way.

Despite our frustration, the church should not be discouraged. The challenges we face are not insurmountable. The church can survive the national dilemma and rise to the occasion because we serve a God who has proven that He can make a way out of no-way, open doors that have been shut and lift fallen hopes and dreams.

Alone, the task would be too much, but together with Christ we can do all things which strengthen us.

Alone, we cannot adequately speak to the poverty that exists in our neighborhoods, but together with Christ we can reach out to the poor in ways that are significant and meaningful .

Alone, we cannot provide food for the hungry masses of our neighborhoods, our church kitchens are not big enough; but we serve a savior who takes two little fishes and five loaves of bread and feeds thousands.

Alone, we can't curb the raging storm of violence that is sweeping our communities, but we serve a Savior who specializes in speaking to the wind and rain and commanding them to be still.

Together with the savior, we can become the foundation of hope in our communities. Our hope, built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness, can inspire the dispirited around us, to know that help is on the way.

There is a distinct advantage to be in solidarity with anyone who can determine your destiny. That's what a famous surgeon found out when he died. The story goes that the surgeon led a wild and loose life but he was a great surgeon who saved many lives. In fact, he spent the last 20 years of his life building a hospital in honor of St. Luke the doctor of the New Testament. Others wanted to name the Hospital something else but he insisted that it be named after St. Luke. When the surgeon died he was met at the Pearly Gates by a tall angelic looking gatekeeper who advised him that it was his job to preapprove new heavenly arrivals. So the gatekeeper, with clipboard in hand asked, "Have you ever committed any unrepentant sins while you were on earth?" The surgeon thought about it and said, "Well, to tell the truth I messed up a whole lot. My list is pretty long. In fact, I even told a few lies to get a hospital named after St. Luke." The gatekeeper looked at the surgeon and smiled and said, "Well, that wasn't so bad. You may enter into eternity."

As the surgeon entered he was relieved. He shook the gatekeeper's hand and said, "Thank you very much St. Peter." The gatekeeper interrupted him and "I'm not St. Peter, he's on a lunch break. I'm St. Luke. Thanks for the building. I got your back."

We cannot do what needs to be done alone, but we have the assurance that if we work together with the Savior He will see us through.

As Christians, we are confident that there is no barrier that we cannot overcome, as long as we stay solidly in step with the Savior; He will see us through.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he explains what believers can achieve when they work together with Christ.

Every believer has a function and a gift to facilitate the advancement of the kingdom of God. Each believer is individually responsible for his or her work and each will be rewarded individually, according to their labors. Paul and the other preachers and teachers of the true gospel message worked together as partners with God. Their ministry belonged not to them, but to God.

Paul laid the foundation of the organized church in solidarity with Jesus Christ. Whoever builds on that foundation must be very careful.

Those who work hardest shall fare best. Those who are most faithful shall have the greatest reward. They work together with God, in promoting the purposes of his glory, and the salvation of precious souls; and He who knows their work, will take care they do not labor in vain. They are employed in his husbandry and building; and He will carefully look over them.

The work of the church is to build upon the foundation laid by Christ Himself to bring salvation to the masses. In solidarity with Him the church reached the masses of the unsaved with His message of hope and forgiveness.

The revised text gives us a clear picture of our spiritual proximity and solidarity with the savior. The revised version reads this way: "For we are God's fellow-workers." That means fellow-laborers belonging to God. We belong to God in this struggle and work with Him to respond to the needs of our respective communities of faith.

Areas of Solidarity

Solidarity with the Savior should be more than just a slogan or a motto. The church should reflect its unity with Christ on every level.

Solidarity in prayer

Christ earnestly prayed for the church. If we are to reflect our union with Him then we should also pray fervently. We should pray for those who are in need. There are many people who stand in dire need of prayer every day. Their needs vary from financial to health concerns to economic issues. Some have family, relationship and marital issues. Others are struggling with a long line of personal woes that only the Almighty can successfully resolve. We should pray for those who are in need and keep them before the throne of grace.

If the church is anything it is the vehicle through which prayer is offered and answers are received. Therefore, the church should follow Christ's example and pray regularly and with power.

The Word of God urges us to constantly pray for Saints who are in need. Ephesians 6:18 says, "Praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints."

We should pray for our pastors because through their strength congregations are strong.

As Christ prayed for those who fed His lambs let us follow his example and in solidarity, pray for every pastor in this district; pray that God would use our pastors in a mighty way while protecting them from unwarranted attacks and vicious temptations.

Solidarity with the savior will require sacrifice

Christ proved Himself willing to make the ultimate sacrifice for our salvation. In solidarity with Him each of us should be ready to lay down our personal goals and ambitions to pursue the cross of Christ.

What does it mean to show solidarity through sacrifice?

What can this district do that will demonstrate sacrificial solidarity with Christ?

We can work together to advance the cause of Christ in a greater way.

It would be a sacrifice, but it would be a powerful statement if churches all over the community area worked together to work with groups such as Habitat for humanity to build homes for those without shelter.

It would be a sacrifice, but it would show the compassion of our Savior if in solidarity with Christ we joined together to fight the growing AIDS epidemic in our area.

It would be a sacrifice, but it would save thousands of families if all of our churches, in solidarity with Christ spoke loudly against the growing violence in our neighborhoods, then actually worked together to set up neighborhood watches, anti-crime programs, and similar community responses to take back our neighborhoods.

It would be a sacrifice, but if we pooled our resources, and supported the home and foreign mission efforts of our convention as one solid group, what a message of solidarity we would send to the world.

There is so much that can be done, but it will require the church to increase its united effort and place its church based agendas on the back burner.

Working individually we can accomplish great things in this world, however, working together, in solidarity in Christ, there is so much more that can be done.

It is a sacrificial service and cooperative effort that would be recognized and rewarded by the Savior.

In Solidarity, we the point the way to abundant living

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that when we work together as one solid unit, we show an unbelieving world how to achieve the abundant life promised by the savior.

The abundant life that Christ spoke about when He said, 'I am come that they might have life and have it more abundantly," has nothing to do with prosperity or accumulating "things" in this life. It does promise a happy, fulfilled and purposeful life that displays the love, mercy and favor of God in every respect.

When the church, through its Christian Education, laymen, women's auxiliaries, youth work and other ministries, begins to lay the foundations of faith hundreds, even thousands of lives will be touched.

In solidarity with the Savior, we must lift up the Cross and reach the masses with His word. He has reminded us that, "I if I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me."

In solidarity with the Savior we must encourage believers to make the sacrifices necessary to make the kingdom of God a reality.

The abundant, spirit-filled lives we all desire will require sacrifice. This powerful anointed life will require us to give up something.

Through our perfect union with Christ we demonstrate what it means to live sacrificially for Him.

In solidarity with Christ, we also demonstrate abundant living..

Together, we must point the way to the cross.

We must go to the cross because at the cross the:

—WICKED will cease from troubling and the WEARY will be at rest.

—WEAK will find strength and the LONELY will find comfort for their souls.

—HUNGRY will find sustenance and the THIRSTY will find water for their souls.

No wonder the song writer declared, "At the cross, at the cross where I first saw the light and the burdens of my heart rolled away. It was there by faith, I received my sight and now I'm happy all the day."

In solidarity with Savior, let's show the world that the God we serve is a loving God who has promised us the abundant life!

In solidarity with Savior, let's show the lost that we have found a savior who is real in our lives!

I don't know about you, but I have decided to live my life in solidarity with the savior!

I have decided to tell the world that the Lord has brought me from a mighty long way.

We must tell the world about the savior!

We must tell the world that He came down through 42 generations to a cruel and unappreciative world!

We must tell the world that He lived for 33 years among us showing us the way to paradise.

We must tell the world that He healed the sick and raised the dead.

I don't know about you, but I've got to tell somebody that He is still healing the sick and raising dead lives today.

I've got to tell somebody about the Savior.

His name is Jesus!

The Lily of the Valley! The bright and morning!

His name is Jesus! Who picked up an old rugged cross and carried it up Golgotha's hill.

His name is Jesus, my rock, my sword my shield!

He died out on Calvary!

. ..but early Sunday morning he arose from the dead with all power in His hands!

In solidarity, tell the world that He lives!

In solidarity, tell the world that He heals!

In solidarity, tell the world that He cares!

In solidarity, let's show every doubting heart that our God is able!

Able!

Able!

Yes, He's able!

God is trying to tell you something

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 10, 2010

SCRIPTURE: Son of man, I have made thee a watchman unto the house of Israel: therefore hear the word at my mouth, and give them warning from me. When I say unto the wicked, Thou shalt surely die; and thou givest him not warning, nor speakest to warn the wicked from his wicked way, to save his life; the same wicked man shall die in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thine hand. Yet if thou warn the wicked, and he turn not from his wickedness, nor from his wicked way, he shall die in his iniquity; but thou hast delivered thy soul. Again, When a righteous man doth turn from his righteousness, and commit iniquity, and I lay a stumblingblock before him, he shall die: because thou hast not given him warning, he shall die in his sin, and his righteousness which he hath done shall not be remembered; but his blood will I require at thine hand. Nevertheless if thou warn the righteous man, that the righteous sin not, and he doth not sin, he shall surely live, because he is warned; also thou hast delivered thy soul. Ezekiel 3:17-21

Introduction

Have you ever felt that God was trying to tell you something? It's no strange thing that God sends signs to each of us; signs that we often ignore. Sometimes God speaks to us in our dreams, sometimes He places a heavy thought on our hearts. On some occasions the name of one person is on your mind and you cannot rest until you have made contact. Sometimes you learn that you made contact just in the nick of time.

It is God's nature to warn us of impending danger. It's not unusual for the righteous to know what is being planned against them long before the plots are revealed. In a variety of ways God has shown us what we needed to know and directed us away from danger.

In the Movie "The Color Purple" Shug Avery strayed away from God. As she sang in a nightclub the church choir sang a song that echoed through the woods, "God is trying to tell you something."

That string of near misses and close calls that you experienced, were they just accidents? Was God trying to tell you something? The auto accident that you walked away from with just a few aches and pains; was it luck or was God trying to tell you something? When we flirted with a bad idea and it nearly destroyed us, was it a warning sign?

When God gives us warnings, how do we respond? Too often we ignore them. In His own unique way God has established a system for the universe that has built-in warning signs. Long before modern meteorologists learned to study the weather there were Almanacs that predict with precision the day of the first frost and seasons of unusual cold. If not that, there were always a few of the old timers who could tell the weather by special aches in their bones, long before they occurred.

It seems that God has designed the universe in a way that gives clear warnings when something is wrong. There is a reason why the summers are getting hotter and the world's ice cap is melting. Some say that it's global warming, others say its God speaking to the world in ways that get our attention, "God is trying to tell us something."

God even built warning systems into our bodies to alert us when something is wrong. Generally, the presence of pain is a warning light that flashes through our nervous system indicating that there is a problem somewhere. Often we take medicines like aspirin to kill the pain, but aspirin does not solve the problem that caused the pain, it just turns off the warning light. Doctors are trained to read the thousands of ways that our bodies send us signals that something is wrong. They give us prescriptions to cure us, but most often we only want to get rid of the pain.

Often we see God's warning signs but respond the way some do at railroad crossings: they see the lights flashing but dash across anyway. We see the traffic light turn yellow but instead of slowing down we speed right through. Sometimes we see the gas hand on our cars point to empty and we try to squeeze out another mile, the oil lights flash, the seat belt buzzes strange tones and warning lights are flashing everywhere but we ignore them all.

God speaks to us in many ways; we listen when God is trying to tell us something.

As Christians, we read in His word how God warned of danger and gave signs of salvation. We should heed his warnings and live in anticipation of his promise.

Exposition

This text focus on warnings that God gives his people and our responsibility to respond to them once acknowledged.

The prophet Ezekiel, in this text is described as the "son of man" and the position of watchman is ascribed to every preacher of the Gospel. The preacher's job is to both take notice and to give notice to the words of God. To take notice the preacher himself should hear what God says. To give notice, the preacher must deliver with passion and power God's notices to the people.

As a watchman the preacher stands on the wall watching for dangerous signs as well as signs of victory. His obligation is to warn the people of danger and to proclaim to them any victories that are forthcoming.

This passage makes it clear that through the preaching of the Gospel the unrighteous are warned of the wrath of God. Ezekiel 3:17 says that warning is not from the preacher but "a warning from me," –God says. An awesome responsibility is laid on the preacher; he is charged to warn the people in ways that may unsettle them that God is not pleased with their sins.

The text notes that preachers will be held responsible for failing to denounce sin. However, the fact that the preacher didn't do his job won't be an excuse that will be acceptable. Ezekiel 3:18 says, that the unrepentant sinner will still die in his sins, but the preacher shall be held accountable for failing to do his job, "but his blood will I require at thy hand."

However, if the preacher warns a righteous man not to stray from the path and the righteous man heeds the warning then the preacher is commended for giving warnings that saved a lost soul. Ezekiel 3:21 says, "Nevertheless if thou warn the righteous man, that the righteous sin not, and he doth not sin, he shall surely live, because he is warned; also thou hast delivered thy soul."

Every preacher must give notice of the God's warnings. Each person will be held accountable for they do after they have received the warning. There is either salvation of damnation that follows and the warnings make the choices clear.

Warning Signs

GOD WARNS NATIONS ABOUT SIN: When Ezekiel is told to warn the "House of Israel" he was being told to speak the national leaders and warn them. God warns nations about sins, but often the messenger is extremely unpopular. In 2008 as Barack Obama was campaigning for president but the nation stunned when it learned that his pastor, The Reverend Jeremiah Wright, denounced the sins of America for neglecting its poor, causing wars on foreign shores and embracing an immoral alliance with sin. The world was shocked that Pastor Wright, with passion and power, warned that God would "damn" America for its unrepentant sins against the black man, Native Americans and other minorities who were force to build the nation but allow a seat at the table of brotherhood. Those who were disturbed apparently were not aware that God does promise to bring judgment upon nations that become ungodly. He has brought down whole countries and eliminated many from the face of the earth. True to form those prophets who gave the warnings were not very popular: Jeremiah was called a traitor to his country. Ezekiel was dismissed as a raging fool. Yet, the warnings they gave were to the nation as a whole. God speaks to the leaders of the world, whether they hear him or not will not be the responsibility of the preachers, but answer for themselves.

GOD WARNS INDIVIDUALS: God speaks to our personal situation. In the text verses Ezekiel speaks of individuals such as the "Wicked man" in verse 18 and the "righteous man" in verse 20. It means there are warnings that God has for each of us individually as well. Sometimes we can move through life effortlessly thinking that our deviant lifestyle is acceptable to God. People who live together without benefit of marriage, steal, buy stolen merchandise, cheat in the marriages, backstab their friends, and forsake their families for one reason or the other often believe that they continue without any problem until God starts sending them messages.

At first they may little small signs and warnings, when they are ignored others come; then finally God has do something to get our attention. Sometimes it's a straight forward dramatic challenge. That's what happened when Elijah challenged the prophets of Baal on Mt. Carmel. He asked "How long halt ye between two opinions. If Baal be God, then follow him, but if God be God, then follow him.' Joshua challenged the families of Israel to choose God's side by saying, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." Saul, on the road to Damascus, found that God had to knock him down, and blind him before he came to his senses.

God warns us in sermons on Sunday, in lectures from our parents, and in a thousand other ways; our responsibility is hear Him when He speaks.

DON'T IGNORE THE SIGNS: When we ignore the warning signs we invite our own damnation. If we are saved and begin to walk a wayward path, the text says we will rejoice in our own salvation. If the righteous ignore the warnings of God, they will be held accountable. The children of God get a spanking when they ignore what He says, in the same way that Big Mama got upset when we tried to ignore her when she talked. Don't give God the stone wall.

In his book, FOR WHAT IT'S WORTH, Commentator Paul Harvey tells about an announcement that came across the intercom of a passenger jet. "There's a warning light for the thermal expander valve on the number two engine," said the pilot, "and I will not fly until it is replaced. Please return to the terminal waiting room."

The passengers were off the plane only ten minutes when they were told to get back on again.

A passenger from Hartland, Minnesota, asked a flight attendant, "Did they get a new thermal expander valve already?"

The attendant said, "My land, no! There's not one of those things within a thousand miles. They got us a new pilot."

There are warning lights flashing in our spirit when something is wrong, we can't ignore them. Just as lump in the breast, blood in the stool, or a sore that won't heal need immediate attention, so do spiritual problems they affect relations: Marriage partners that don't talk anymore, children that do not seem happy, and the general dissatisfaction with your life, your church, your family and yourself; all are signs that our relationship with God, who controls these things, is deteriorating.

In your car you can rig it so that the buzzers and lights don't operate, but the problem still exists. In your life you can try to avoid the warning lights by skipping worship, bible study, and personal devotions. If you do, then God will find a way to get your attention; He always does.

Not everything is bad

Finally brothers and sisters, we need to remember that not everything God is trying to tell us is bad news. Sometimes there are warnings, and then sometimes God has news of restoration and renewal.

This same Ezekiel who God used to warn Israel about their sins and was used taken into a valley of dry bones and asked, "Son of Man can these bones live?" He gave Israel a message of hope and inspiration.

God has a word for each of us every day. Sometimes it is word of warning. At other times it is a word of hope and inspiration.

In the middle of these troubling times, God is trying to tell us something.

In the middle of challenging financial times when jobs are disappearing and unemployment is at an all time high, God is trying to tell us something!

"Be not dismayed whatever betide, God will take care of you. Beneath his wings of love abide, God will take care of you!

In these times when we go to bed at night and listen to the echoes of sirens and fire engines n busy street, God is still trying to tell us something, "All night and all day, angels are watching over me."

In these troubling times, when home values are dropping and foreclosures are increasing God is trying to tell us what he told David, "God is my refuge and my strength, a very present help in a time of trouble."

God is trying to tell us that our bad things can be turned around and we can start to see the light of day.

God is trying to tell somebody that your sadness can be reversed and you can begin to see a reason for gladness.

God is trying to tell somebody that He can take your bitterness and help you to taste life's sweetness one more time.

God is trying to tell somebody that the sting of failure is coming to an end and He's about to take your failure and turn it into the stepping stone to success.

God is trying to tell somebody that troubles you've endured, dealing with the stressful pangs of divorce and that soon you will realize new life and renewed happiness.

God is trying to tell somebody that you may feel lost but there is still a way out. You may have sinned but forgiveness is available.

God is trying to tell you don't have to give up because "On a hill far away, stood an old rugged cross"-On that cross was the source of your salvation!

On that cross was Jesus, the Son of the living God!

On that cross was the Jesus, the Lily of the Valley!

He died out on Calvary's Hill, but Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave with all power in His hand.

God is trying to tell you something!

I'm Pressing On

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: "I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Philippians 3:14 (KJV)

Introduction

How do you measure progress? We can measure our progress by looking back over the road we have traveled. The distance traveled in the right direction is a measure of the progress we have made.

It is said that when Harriet Tubman made her journeys into the South to carry another band of slaves to freedom that she carried with her a shotgun and an old tattered bible. Years after her journeys into the forbidden South she was often asked why she carried these two articles on every trip. She said often some of the slaves would give up and think of turning back. She said she would point the shotgun in their faces and say, "If you turn back I'll shoot you dead on the spot, then take this bible and pray that the good Lord forgives me. Now, press on!"

With those words she urged the runaways to keep going forward and to abandon even the thought of turning back.

Pressing on is an old colloquialism that simply means to keep moving forward without turning back. Pressing on does not indicate how big the strides must be; it only indicates the direction; it must be forward.

In football, a runner who carries the ball is allowed to continue, even if he is dragging several defenders and is pounder on all sides as long as he is moves forward. The referee does not call the ball dead until forward progress has stopped. So, even as the runners are going down, some are seen scrambling for inches of turf trying to keep moving forward, inch by inch.

That's the goal of the church, to keep pressing on. The words of the old song are definitely true: "I'm pressing on the upward way, new heights I'm gaining every day. Still praying as I onward bound, Lord, plant my feet on higher ground."

As Christians, we should not be dissuaded by the journey behind us, but be inspired by the challenge ahead and press on.

Exposition

The text focuses on Paul's Epistle to the Church at Philippi. While imprisoned in Rome he wrote this letter to the Christians in Philippi to tell them of the joy of serving the Lord and to encourage them to keep their minds focused on their purpose in life. These passages reflect three dominant themes that permeated Paul's ministry: Humility, intense focus, and a sure goal.

Paul remained humble, throughout his life. Obviously, God had endowed him with great talents and gifts but he always received them with an attitude of humility. Although Paul was a learned scholar who spoke many languages fluently, and was well versed in the scholarship of his day, he told the Philippians, "I count not myself to have apprehended" that is to note that while he had learned much in life, he was keenly aware that he did not know everything. He counted heavily on the Holy Spirit to reveal many things to him and to call others to his remembrance. Knowing that God spoke and moved through him, Paul was always humble to know that he had not accomplished anything alone, but it was always God working through him.

Secondly, Paul's life was intensely focused on his goal. He chose not to focus on his past accomplishments, which included his education and training, conversion on the Damascus road, three missionary journeys, and the conversions of countless numbers to the faith. It would have been very easy for him, especially considering his confinement and approaching death, to dwell on the past and constantly reflect on his achievements. He chose to focus on the future rather than on the past. Whatever was done in the past remains as history, he chose, even in a moment of crises to always look to the future.

Lastly, Paul knew what he wanted and where he was going. His goal was the prize of the high calling of God. It did not lay in the praise of men, or the accumulation of worldly things. He concluded that he would not be dissuaded in his journey. In Romans 8:35 he asked, "Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword?" Then he answered in verse 37,"Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us."

His goal in life was set, it was clear and in focus, he had decided to use his life as witness to the power of God and there would be no turning back.

A humble past

When we consider the history of any church, there is a sense of humility. Many black churches have a history of struggle against the odds and forward progress prompted by an intense faith in God.

When we hear the stories of the elders of the church, sometimes we smile. Especially when we hear accounts of 50 cent church dues, out houses, and buildings without fans or air conditioners. We listen with wonder as we hear of the vigorous worships, the intense prayers and powerful preaching of the deacons and pastors of our past.

Such a past is humbling, because it helps us to appreciate the nature of our present struggle.

When we had little, we did much to help the poor and the needy.

When we struggled to learn to read and write ourselves, we took our Sunday Schools and turned them into places where we taught God's word but also the essentials of English grammar.

When all we had were homemade dresses, hand me down pants, and hand knitted shawls around our shoulders, we still found a way to share with our neighbors who had even less than our meager fare.

Our history is humbling.

At anniversaries, we have a tendency to look back with a nostalgic eye over the road we have come; not with an eye to return to the "good old days," but rather to make the present an example of what should be as we create memories for this generation. For the youth who are here today, this present time is their "good old days." They will tell their children about today's celebration and refer to it as the "good old days."

This sense of humility is what Paul wrote about in his letter to the church at Philippi.

He took a glance back at where they had been, but didn't focus on it too long; just long enough to appreciate the present. Then he decided to press on.

The old warriors from our past looked back and said, "I believe I'll run on, and see what the end's goon' be."

It was their way of saying, "I'm pressing on."

Intensely Focused

If an anniversary has one purpose, it would be to inspire the church to remain focused on its goal. There is one vision that remains for the church, it is the day when evil will be defeated, justice and mercy will prevail and the kingdom of heaven will be a reality.

That's the vision that motivates believers!

It is the vision that our preachers preach about.

It is the vision that our teachers teach about!

It is the vision that our choirs sing about!

No wonder the song writer declared, "Sing the wondrous love of Jesus. Sing his mercy and his grace. In the mansions bright and blessed he'll prepare for us a place. When we all get to heaven, what a day of rejoicing that will be. When we all see Jesus we'll sing and shout the victory."

To implement the vision pastors must hear the voice of God and respond to his voice with boldness. This may require pastors to move out of their safety zones and strive for higher heights in the faith.

In addition, churches must be prepared to walk new paths. The vision that God gives may present challenges that represent changes of direction for some congregations.

It may mean giving more to the education of our youth through the support of public education both mainstream and chartered.

It may mean giving more to support to positive activities that will help them develop into stronger Christian men and women.

It may mean devising programs that will strengthen the home, promote finer womanhood and build manhood.

It may mean working to reduce the prison population by working to deter those who seem committed to hell bound paths.

It may mean showing more concern for our elderly by increasing our elder care ministries.

It may mean expanding our revival efforts beyond three or five nights or preaching in the church facility and take our efforts into the highways and byways through non-traditional ways.

It may mean expanding the ministries of our churches to respond to new challenges with the changeless Gospel of Christ.

Our methods may change, but the intensity of our focus should not be.

Every chance we get, we must work together to make this heavenly vision a reality.

Pressing toward a true goal

Finally, brothers and sisters, as we celebrate we should keep in mind that we are pressing on toward a sure goal, that has been promised by God himself.

Any man who runs a race needs to be sure that there is a victory cup at the end of the race.

We have been given this assurance, that if we run this race, with our faith in tact that God will give us the victory.

Like the old warriors, we too must declare, “I’m pressing on.”

I’m pressing on because, I want to enter that land on a far away strand, the beautiful homeland of the soul...and land where we’ll never grow old.”

I’m pressing on because, I want to be in the place where the wicked will cease from troubling and the weary will be at rest.

I’m pressing on because, I want to see that day when the mountains shall be made low and the valleys will be hollowed out.

I’m pressing on because, I want to be in that number when the saints go marching in.

I’m pressing on because, I want to put on my robe and walk with elders and see every inch of heaven from pillar to post.

I’m pressing on because, I want to see Abraham, Isaac and Jacob

I’m pressing on because, I want to see the streets paved with gold!

I’m pressing on because, I want to see the city that sits on twelve foundations with twelve gates made from solid pearls!

I’m pressing on because, I want to see the city where hearse wheels won’t roll!

I'm pressing on because, I want to see the city where everyday will be Sunday and it'll always be howdy and never good-bye!

I don't know about you, but I want to see Jesus!

Jesus, the author and finisher of my faith!

Jesus, who said I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am, ye may be also!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary, but arose early Sunday morning!

Come and go with me to my father's house!

No more dying there!

No more crying there!

No more sickness and pain!

Come and go with me to my Father's house!

There'll be joy, joy, joy!

SCRIPTURE:"Jesus answered, Neither hath this man sinned, nor his parents: but that the works of God should be made manifest in him. John 9:3

Introduction

Have you ever asked why God chose to make you the way you are and place you where you are? There are many who often question God's wisdom when they consider the world around them.

Why was he born so tall? Why is she so short? Why is one man born into riches while another man is born into poverty? Why are some born healthy and others born sickly? Why do some seem to be blessed and others lack blessings?

We wrestle with those questions regularly and the answers that we find usually point us to our purpose in life.

Each of us has a purpose that is unique and often different from that of others.

Even if we have been born physically challenged in some way, our lives still have purpose. Our task is to find that purpose and live for God's glory.

Science tells us that God has so ordered the human body that whenever a person is lacking in one of the five senses the others seem to intensify. The person who cannot hear often has an unusually keen sense of feeling and smell. The one who cannot see can often hear, feel and sense things better than others.

The lack of one sense is not a barrier to achievement, but for some, it actually becomes a motivating factor. History records that there have been many great men and women who have achieved their life's purpose despite blindness.

Louis Braille, Ray Charles, Helen Keller, John Milton, and Stevie Wonder were all great men and women whose accomplishments in science, art, music and service were considerable and long lasting. They were great despite being blind for all or most of their lives.

Like the legendary Keller who was not only blind but deaf, many have risen above their challenged physical condition to bring strength and inspiration to generations.

Such individuals find their purpose and live their lives to the fullest.

As Christians, we don't know why God chose to make us the way we are, but we do know that we are challenged to make the best of what we have been given. Whatever we do, we do it for His glory.

Exposition

This text focuses on Christ as He responds to questions about the reason and purpose of a blind man's life and condition.

As Christ passed by He encountered a man who had been blind from birth. The disciples posed a question to the savior that they hoped would shed light on the origins of the man's condition. The rationale for their proposition was rooted in the belief that people had disabilities as a result of sin. In the Jewish world of the first century it was not uncommon to teach that it was possible for God to impose judgment for the parents' iniquity upon their children or grandchildren. It was the belief of some Jewish teachers that life was a system of rewards and punishments; merits or demerits; for good deeds and bad deeds that could be passed from one generation to the next.

If the man was blind, they thought, someone sinned; either he or his parents. Jesus responded to their questions by noting that the man's ultimate purpose was to be example of God's healing power. The man's healing would be accepted because all knew him to be one who had been blind all of his life, thus blindness in this instance was necessary to achieve God's purpose.

The noted theologian John Phillips put it this way, "This man's blindness was the touch of God in his life—not punitive, nor arbitrary. It was part of a plan unknown to anyone but God and his Christ, a plan intended to bring Christ into this man's life and ultimate praise and glory to God."

As a result the man's entire life was a preparation for his purpose, which was achieved when he met the Lord.

Life with a purpose

Every life has a purpose. Our quest is to learn our purpose and seek to fulfill it all the days of our lives. The man's blindness in the text was timed by God to coincide with the Lord's earthly ministry. God has ways of placing people in certain places to accomplish His will; always at the right time and the right place. Even what we call a handicap may be all a part of His divine plan.

THE BLIND SAINT IS BLESSED BY GOD: Can a blind saint do a great work for God? History has given us this answer. Everyone, even the blind, can carry out their life's purpose and enjoy God's favor at the same time. We have read the biblical accounts of those who have been touched by the hand of God and given their sight. On a few occasions we have seen the actions of those who were able to enjoy the immense blessings of God once their sight was restored. When we see God we see Him with an eye of faith, not with the carnal eye. The same faith of the widow woman in the Old Testament whose barrel never ran out of meal because of her faith based action. She was an example of a person being blessed because of divine purpose. The prophet Elijah was being used by God for a divine purpose. When the woman sought to help him, she found that her barrel never ran dry.

When a person who is legally blind reaches into the barrel of her own meager resources to share them with others, there is a blessing coming.

When that same blind person breaks bread with strangers, entertains the saints and shelters children who are not her own, there is a blessing coming.

Blind saints can do great works for God because they are able to see with their hearts and not with their eyes. They see what the carnal eye misses.

When the world sees their wonderful work, it marvels in astonishment.

Even in their blindness, God gets the glory as they manifest his goodness in small ways that seem insignificant, but are yet important to God's purpose.

BLIND SAINTS ARE GUIDED BY GOD: More than those who can see, blind saint are aware that each of their steps must be guided by the Lord. They hold to his hand as they make each step. These saints are instruments in his hands. Often they are oblivious to their handicap; in fact they operate just as if everything was in perfect working order. The story is told of a certain blind man who arose in the middle of the night to get a glass of water. The house was pitch black, but since he was blind, it just didn't matter. A few minutes later the owner of the house heard some noise in the darkness and slowly walked around the house to see where the noise was coming from. As he rounded the corner, he ran, nose to nose, into the blind man. He turned to run in fear, tripped over a table, knocked down the lamp, fell over the sofa and then ran into a wall and bounced off onto the floor. Finally he found the light switch and turned it on. "Why were you walking around in the dark like that", he asked his friend. "I didn't know the lights were off," came the answer.

This saint didn't know she wasn't suppose to go to college, she didn't know the lights were off.

She didn't know she wasn't suppose to get two college degrees and open a business.

She didn't know she was not suppose to make history doing the impossible.

She didn't know the lights were off! She was guided by the hand of God, she could see very clearly because He guided her footsteps and the footsteps of every saint who will sing the words of the old song, "Where He leads me I will follow. I'll go with Him, with Him, all the way."

BLIND SAINTS ARE INSTRUMENTS 0F GOD: God has used blind saints to manifest His glory all through the ages. Helen Keller's miraculous triumph over her blindness became a testimony to the glory of God. She was a powerful instrument in His hands and she grew in favor with God. To grow in favor with God means to live in such a way that God chooses us to be the main instruments of His will.

When He needed someone to show compassion for the poor, the lonely and the disadvantaged, He chose a woman whose very being ached to reach out and open her doors, it didn't matter that she was blind; her blindness would manifest His glory.

As instruments in His hands we are provided all the things necessary for us to achieve our purpose. With such favor we are protected, directed, and provided for through His grace.

Even in our declining years, God gives His grace to His saints; it is a favor that never fades or loses its significance.

For His Glory

Finally, Brothers and sisters, we must consider that in the end, even those with no sight will be able to see the savior, face to face.

The blind cannot see you but they can feel your face and touch your soul. More than others they see with their hearts. However, the day is coming, when they will see Him in all of His glory.

Until then, every saint lives every day for His glory.

We witness to the lost, but we witness for His glory.

We serve the less fortunate, but we serve for His glory!

We lift up the despondent, but we lift them for His glory!

We have learned that when we live for His glory and not our own, God showers us with His favor. Because we glorify Him in our words and deeds, when nobody else —Cares, the Lord is concerned about me.

—Forgives me, the Lord is willing to forget.

—Accepts me, the Lord receives me with arms wide open.

—Wants me, the Lord accepts me as a child of the king.

While we live for His glory we are sustained by His grace.

When grace is upon us, despite our blindness, we will be busy doing good in his name.

When grace is upon us, despite our blindness, we know that God smiles on what we do.

God has smiled on the life being memorialized today.

God has smiled because of the children that have been helped along the way.

God has smiled because of the positive spirit and attitude that is shown every day!

God has smiled because of the broken hearts that have been helped to mend.

There is an old hymn that is a favorite of many saints, but especially to the blind.

It was a song written by the late Fanny Crosby, who was blind at six weeks old, but she was never bitter about her blindness. She chose to live her life for the glory of God. She wrote over 8,000 songs and lifted up God every where she went.

With confidence Cosby wrote, Blessed assurance, Jesus is mine!?Oh, what a foretaste of glory divine!?Heir of salvation, purchase of God.?Born of His Spirit, washed in His blood.

It's assurance that He will give us:

—STRENGTH when our burdens become heavy.

—CONFIDENCE when everything seems to go wrong.

—INSPIRATION when difficulties arise.

—COMFORT when disaster strikes.

It's assurance that even in old age when we are shuffled from our home to a nursing home that God will never leave us alone!

It's assurance that even after this life, eternity remains!

It's assurance guaranteed by a God who loved us so much that he gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish but have everlasting life!

It’s an assurance paid for on an old rugged cross.

It’s an assurance secured by three days and nights in a borrowed tomb!

It’s an assurance confirmed when Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave with all power in His hands.

This is my story, this is my song,?Praising my Savior all the day long.

On Friday, October 22, 2010 Lottie Mae Johnson closed her eyes and went to sleep. She was legally blind, but she lived for His glory.

SCRIPTURE:"But there was a certain man, called Simon, which beforetime in the same city used sorcery, and bewitched the people of Samaria, giving out that himself was some great one: To whom they all gave heed, from the least to the greatest, saying, This man is the great power of God. And to him they had regard, because that of long time he had bewitched them with sorceries. But when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women. Then Simon himself believed also: and when he was baptized, he continued with Philip, and wondered, beholding the miracles and signs which were done." Acts 8:9-13

Introduction

What do you do when you've tried everything, but nothing seems to work? Frustration has a way of tempting us to try just about anything to heal a sickness, solve a financial problem, mend a broken heart, or get piece of mind. When we reach the point of desperation we become vulnerable to those who would prey on our weaknesses for their own personal profit.

Whether it's the snake oil salesman who sells a bottle of sweet water as a miracle cure or the traveling faith healer who heals every sickness from cancer to the common cold for a generous offering, there are many who would take advantage of the vulnerability of the frustrated masses.

There are millions, especially in the South, who, in their frustration, turn to voodoo doctors, witchcraft, and palm readers. They spend tons of money consulting their psychic connections. No one likes to admit it, but there are millions of African-Americans who are influenced by South Louisiana Voodoo even though we sit in churches on Sunday.

Millions, seeking to rid themselves of enemies or to resolve complicated personal situations turn to Voodoo spells, even though they call on the Lord on Sunday.

For centuries Voodoo witchdoctors have cast their spells on Black America and any others who listened. These witch doctors concocted a brand of religion unique to Louisiana called Hoodoo, which involved incantations, voodoo dolls and the blood of animals. Even today, tourists find voodoo dolls and chicken bones being sold in novelty shops all over Acadiana.

The Hoodoo, espouses a belief in God, but it teaches that God disconnects himself from the daily affairs of people. Instead there are spirits that can be called on to do godly type work if we call on them with the proper chant and seek atonement or demonstrate humility by shedding the blood of an animal.

Thousands of Hoodoo proverbs are repeated in African-American homes just as if there were biblical:

— If you lay a broom across the doorway at night, a witch can't come in and hurt you.

---If a woman is your first visitor on Monday mornings it is bad luck for the rest of the week.

—Don't borrow or lend salt because that is bad luck.

—If you sweep trash out of the house after dark you will sweep away your luck.

—If a woman sprinkles some salt from her house to yours, it will give you bad luck until you clean the salt away and put pepper over your door sill.

—If a woman wants her husband to stay away from other woman, she can do so by putting a little of her blood in his coffee, and he will never quit her.

—You can give someone a headache by taking and turning their picture upside down.

—You can harm a person in whatever way you want to by getting a lock of his hair and burning some and throwing the rest away.

It may seem hard to believe but there are millions who believe Hoodoo teachings although they sit in Christians churches every Sunday. At church they pray to God but they have horseshoes over their doors for good luck, believe a broken mirror will give them seven years bad luck, and think a rabbit's foot brings them good luck.

They have been bewitched.

The bible warns us to be careful regarding bewitching individuals, ungodly practices and unfaithfulness. We are warned repeatedly to trust in the Lord and lean not to our own understandings.

When it comes to troubling times it is best to remember the words of David in Psalm 71:1 "In thee O Lord do I put my trust: let me never be put to confusion."

As Christians, we should always be vigilant that we trust only in God and not in the army of false prophets and ideas that will bewitch us and pull us away from our faith.

Exposition

This text focuses on Philip as he ministers to the people of Samaria, but finds that they are bewitched.

During the time of the persecution of the church many believers were scattered across the land. Among them was Philip who came into the regions of Samaria and began to preach about Jesus. He found that the people of Samaria had three conditions: They were diseased, possessed and deluded. His remedy for their problem was to give them Jesus.

While he healed the sick and cast out demons, a well known sorcerer or what we would call a witchdoctor lived in the region, his name was Simon. He had a reputation as a magician, healer, and miracle worker in Samaria who so much success that the people universally accepted his claim to be "some great one," and accounted him "that power of God which is called great."

When Simon saw Philip performing miracles he sought to know their secret. He felt there was a trick that he had not learned and wanted to know more. The only response he received from Philip was to hear him preach to him about Jesus. Ultimately, Simon himself believed on Christ and was baptized. He followed Philip for quite some time, still amazed at what he saw. On one occasion when he saw the Holy Ghost move among people he offered Peter money to learn how to possess the power of the Holy Ghost. Even though he was a Christian, he still hung on to many of his bewitching beliefs.

The people themselves were healed the diseases, possessions and delusions, when they heard the preaching of Gospel and turned to God for their answers.

Conditions of the people

When Philip entered Samaria he found three conditions that are similar to our circumstance. Our response should be similar to his response:

HE OFFERED JESUS FOR THEIR DISEASES: Philip healed the sick in the name of Jesus. Today, our community is diseased in astronomical ways; we share a common situation with the people of Samaria. We are a people at high risk for some diseases such as AIDS, where are 45 percent of all new AIDS patients although we are just 13 percent of the population; ASTHMA, ranks high among our diseases, along with Hispanics because poverty produces many of the conditions promote its growth; HEART DISEASE is killing us because of our diet of pork, fried and greasy foods we have a high rate of obesity an heart attacks; DIABETES, that effects 2.6 million blacks and results in other problems such as blindness, kidney failure and amputations. We have others but these are peculiar to our people. The church is responding, in the name of Jesus, by raising our awareness of the causes of these diseases, helping families to change their diets, discipline their sexual experiences, and pay more attention to their health. The power of faith in God has helped cancer victims to survive and overcome and God has literally saved millions from these diseases through prevention and direct healing. Like Philip, we offer Jesus. He is the source of all healing and cures. He is the source. Like the song writer we declare, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness, I dare not trust the sweetest frame but wholly lean on Jesus' name."

HE OFFERED JESUS TO ADDRESS THEIR POSSESSIONS: Not only did Philip find the people diseased, he found them possessed. They were literally taken over by the bewitching influences of Simon the magician. Historically, our people have fallen prey to just about anyone who seemed to offer a solution. Whether it was Marcus Garvey selling us steamships to return to Africa, Rev. Ike selling us a religion based on Cadillacs and diamond rings, or Jim Jones convincing hundreds to drink poison laced cool aid, we seem vulnerable to every cult belief that comes along.

We have become so possessed that sometimes it's even comical. Remember the song of Alvin and Chipmunks? "I told the witch doctor I was in love with you and the witch doctor told me what to do. He said,

Ooo eee,ooo ah ah ting tang
Walla walla, bing bang
Ooo eee ooo ah ah ting tang
Walla walla bing bang...
Ooo eee ,ooo ah ah ting tang
Walla walla ,bing bang
Ooo eee ooo ah ah ting tang
Walla walla bing bang

We are out there bad when we even sing about the witchdoctor in our cartoons.

Currently, millions of believers have been swept away by the prosperity gospel being preached by charismatic men and women who teach that following them will result in praises going up and blessings coming down in the form of money, jobs, big cars and houses. Blindly, thousands are possessed by the notion that religion is like a good luck charm that will guarantee them fame and fortune. We have been bewitched and possessed to the point that many have given up their service and obedience to God in return for a continuous string of worships that they hope will make them prosperous. Life is hard when you are possessed. You can't think right. You can't pray right. You act illogically, talk foolishly, and live recklessly. Yet, Philip offered the people Samaria on solution, Jesus. Through Jesus we learn that true joy is not in our possessions but is in being possessed by Him. It is this mind that prompts to sing, "Use me Lord, in thy service. I'll do anything that you want me to do." It is Jesus who frees us from the grip of Satan and gives us the truth. He said, "Ye shall know the truth and truth shall make you free."

HE OFFERED JESUS FOR THEIR DELUSIONS: The people of Samaria were deluded; they believed Simon was their answer and held tightly to their beliefs. Philip offered them Jesus. Even today it is difficult to move people who are deluded. It is difficult to deal with people who are deluded: The mother who believes her son who robs, murders and steals is a good boy; the woman who believes the man who beats her repeatedly doesn't really mean it; it's the person who comes from a family history riddled with cancer but believes the disease will pass them by; the politician who believes that if we elect a black face that all of our problems will disappear; or the youngster who believes that wearing a pair of shoes endorsed by a superstar will make just as famous…these are all delusions. It is hard deal with a deluded people. There are no fingers dainty enough to take hold of a delusion and pull it out of the nest of the mind because they have no shape, no form, no hiding-place that we can access with our mortal minds. Dealing with delusions is a matter for the Holy Ghost. That's why Philip offered the people Jesus! He offered them faith in God and reached into the darkness of their souls and brought them to the light. Faith is no delusion. It is the substance of things hoped for and the evidence of things not seen. Faith deals with delusions and displaces them with the power of God. Prayer is the key to kingdom, but it is faith that unlocks the door.

Jesus is the answer

Finally, brothers and sisters we must consider that if the world gives us questions, Jesus is the answer.

All over Samaria people came to Philip with a large array of questions about their health, wealth and their state of the souls. He gave them one remedy, Jesus is the answer.

To those who have been bewitched by voodoo and witchcraft and caught in the sticky snares of possession and delusion, like Philip we say, Jesus is the answer.

It's not a psychic connection, palm reader or metaphysical quack that can resolve our dilemma, Jesus is the answer.

Philip preached Jesus because powerful things happen when you call upon the name of the Lord!

When you call upon the name of the Lord:

—The wicked will cease their troubling!

—The weary will be at rest!

—Mountains can become molehills and valleys can be exalted!

—Enemies can become friends!

—Hatred can be turned into love!

—Setbacks can become starting points!

Simon eventually believed and was baptized. He learned what we already know. 2 Chronicles 7:14 says, "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."

Jesus is the answer.

That's why we don't go to witch doctors, soothsayers, and false prophets; we take it to the Lord in prayer.

I don't know about you, but I've learned that prayer changes things.

Prayer can:

—Turn deviant children into obedient siblings

—Turn wayward husbands into loving fathers

—Turn the hard hearted into the tender hearted

—Turn upside down lives right side up again!!

Jesus is the answer!

Jesus, the Lily of the valley!

Jesus, the Bright and Morning star!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who rose after three days and nights!

Try Jesus!

He'll make everything alright!

Lord, Have Mercy

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 7, 2010

SCRIPTURE:"Have mercy upon us, O Lord, have mercy upon us: for we are exceedingly filled with contempt." Psalm 123:3

Introduction

Have you ever asked for mercy? Have Mercy is an appeal for leniency in consideration of the circumstances of a particular offense. It is a plea to lighten a load, reduce a sentence or minimize a misery.

It differs from other appeals because it assumes that the condition being suffered is in some way deserved, justified or warranted but the execution of the condition is more than we can bear.

Sometimes a plea for mercy is just a request for a little consideration because of past actions. Consider the judge who came to court after a night of arguments with his wife. She was merciless in her criticism of him. She threw pots at him, belittled him and showered him a barrage of disbarring words that made him regret ever marrying her. When he arrived in court he was feeling extremely bad and was tremendously upset. His first trial for the day was a man he knew. The man, charged with his third offense of stealing chickens was relieved when he saw his old friend the judge. He knew the judge would give him a break. A big smile broke out on his face. When the judge asked man was he guilty of stealing chickens, the man walked up to judge's bench. Your honor I stole them chickens, but me and you we go way back, I need you to cut me so some slack. After all, I was the one who introduced you to your wife! The judge looked up sharply and said, "Wrong answer! Ten years in jail!"- His past actions didn't warrant him any help.

Today, we use the term "Lord, Have mercy, very lightly." Someone can tell us a ridiculously funny story and we respond while laughing, "Lord, Have mercy!" We can see a child playing in a humorous way and we might respond, "Lord, have mercy!" In fact, we use the phrase so much that it's real meaning is lost becoming synonymous with a laughing matter.

However, "Lord, have mercy!" is not a laughing matter. It's one of those phrases that we reserve for times of special need and trouble.

When we are being unfairly attacked, we plead for mercy!

When our burdens get difficult, we plead for mercy!

When times are hard, we plead for mercy!

When those times come, mercy is no laughing matter.

God hears our pleas and considers all of our requests. Therefore, saints are careful not to cry wolf, unless there is really a wolf coming. When we say, "Lord, have mercy" we should be in a situation that requires not justice but mercy.

As Christians, we rejoice in the knowledge that our God is merciful. The word says His mercy endureth forever and ever! That's why we love Him.

Exposition

This text focuses on Israel as the nation pleaded to God for relief from conditions placed upon them by people filled with contempt and hate.

Scholars think this passage was written while the Jews were held captive in Babylon. There, they were treated as second class citizens, despised, misused and discriminated against. Anywhere they went they felt the contempt of their captors who either mocked or humiliate them publicly or submitted them to unjust punishments before the Babylonian courts.

Life became difficult for them. They were miserable.

In this short psalm, which was set to music, the Jews pleaded with God to consider their situation.

Psalm 123:1 notes that they lift their eyes to heaven daily looking for some sign of God's mercy.

Psalm 123:2 compares the Jews waiting on God to a servant who has made a request of mercy from her master and waited for some sign that the request would be granted. So the phrase, "So our eyes wait upon the Lord our God, until that He have mercy upon us."

Psalm 123:3 cries out to God twice, using the phrase "Have Mercy." They seem to be pleading, "Have mercy on us, Oh Lord, Have mercy on us." He seems to be expressing with emphasis the clearness of their perception of what they needed, the earnestness of their desire, and their expectation that their need would be supplied.

Although the term mercy is used three times in this short passage, it not used lightly, or any kind of humorous way. It is not a mere colloquialism or figure of speech, it is a clear appeal to God for relief from a situation with a clear expectation that God would respond to their appeal.

Asking for Mercy

Believers often call on God in times of trouble. In the New Testament there are three words that are used to describe how God responds to us when we make appeals for undeserved action: Favor, Grace and Mercy. Favor refers blessings or special little bonuses that we receive out of the goodness of God's heart. Like favor, Grace also is God's unmerited action toward us. Mercy implies God's goodness shown to us, even though it is not required and may not be deserved.

THE RIGHTEOUS CAN ASK BOLDLY: Those who have tried to obey God's command can ask boldly for mercy. Lord, Have mercy coming from the lips of a believer who lives by faith and walks in the Godly path means much. The faithful are not be presumptuous when they ask God for mercy, they are acting according to the word of God. Hebrews 4:16 says, "Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need." It indicates that the time to say, "Lord have mercy" is in a time of need. It's a serious request that when spoken from the lips of a believer gets heaven's attention. In a time of need the faithful come humbly before God as did the psalmist in Psalm 27:7, "Hear, O LORD, when I cry with my voice: have mercy also upon me, and answer me." When a believer boldly, asks God to have mercy, that believer gets heaven's attention.

GOD CAN AND WILL SHOW MERCY: We ask God for mercy because we know from experience that he has shown mercy in the past and will show mercy in the present. If God had a reputation for never changing His mind or altering a decision that He made, then it would useless to appeal to Him. Yet, we remember Hezekiah having received notice from God that to set his house in order and prepare to die, but after hearing a plea for mercy from Hezekiah, was granted 15 more years. We know God shows mercy. In Psalm 89:28, God says, "My mercy will I keep for him for evermore, and my covenant shall stand fast with him." Psalm 103:8 says, "The LORD is merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and plenteous in mercy." That means that God is not stingy with His mercy, that there is plenty enough for everyone who asks. Yet, there is a condition for God's mercy and it is that we respect, fear and obey God. When we do that he shows mercy not only to us but even to our grandchildren on our behalf. Psalm 103:17 says, "But the mercy of the LORD is from everlasting to everlasting upon them that fear him, and his righteousness unto children's children." Therefore, we know that God has shown mercy in the past and promises to show mercy in the present and the future for those who believe and trust in Him. When we call upon Him for mercy, we are speaking to the one who is able to grant our request.

MERCY REQUIRES REPENTANCE: Is there ever an occasion when the mercy of God is not available to us? The only time we cannot receive the forgiveness, grace and favor of God is when we refuse it through our actions or disbelief. There are many who doubt God's existence, or they believe that if He exists, that he does not care about them. These are the ones who feel no need to worship, pray, read scripture or conform to God's law. They do not live in fear of the Lord. If a person who is living an ungodly life wants the mercy of God they must: repent from their sins, believe of Jesus Christ as their savior and then boldly ask God for mercy. Isaiah 55:7 says, "Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the LORD, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon." The sinner's first request of God is have mercy on MY SOUL. Forgive me. Then mercy for other conditions can be sought. That's the meaning of Psalm 51:1 "Have mercy upon me, O God, according to thy loving-kindness: according unto the multitude of thy tender mercies blot out my transgressions." After we get ourselves straight with God then we ask God for mercy regarding our finances, relationships, health, family matters and other concerns. Luke 11:9 says, "And I say unto you, Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you."

God is merciful

Finally, brothers and sisters it is good for us to remember, that when a saint cries out "Lord, have mercy" he should expect God to answer out of the abundance of His love.

God sees our daily needs and He hears our prayers.

God also sees the burdens that we are bearing and He hears our cries for mercy.

He scrupulously separates our needs from our wants and knows exactly what we need to both survive and thrive.

He sees our need for food, clothing and shelter health care and emotional support and then has mercy on us.

The scriptures indicate that God sees the need of even the most ordinary person. In Matthew 6:28 Jesus told his disciples to consider the lilies of the field how God feeds and clothes them. He said if God pays attention to the lilies he would also care for their needs.

When you say, "Lord, have mercy" and you mean it from your soul, your words touch the heart of God.

Psalmist said, Lord I'm down here in Babylon and times are hard. People are talking about me every day and I'm unfairly criticized by those with contempt for me.

Lord, have mercy on us!

Down here in Babylon, we're so far from home that we have hung our harps on the willows and we have refused to sing. How can we sing Zion's songs in a strange land?

Lord, Have mercy on us.

The Jews called on God as a nation, but we don't have to go that far because the same thing happens when you call on God for yourself.

When you touched the heart of God and asked Him for mercy, He brought you out of some tough times! He sustained you in the midst of your mental exile and your emotional banishment!

When you touched the heart of God and asked Him for mercy, He lifted up your bowed down head and gave you a new song to sing.

It was the mercy of the Lord that kept us from throwing up our hands and giving up the fight!

It was the mercy of the Lord that helped us to recover after a staggering loss!

It was the mercy of the Lord that helped healed our broken hearts and mended our wounded faith.

The psalmist said every morning he looked to the heavens for a sign of God's mercy!

The good thing about being a child of God is that when we lift up our eyes to the heavens, we can see that God's mercy is all around.

You don't have to talk about the Jews in Babylon you can give your own testimony!

Every morning God has new mercies in store for us!

Every morning when I rise I see another burden God's going to lift off my shoulder!

Every morning when I rise I see another hill God's going to help me to climb!

Every morning when I rise I see another bill God's going to help me to pay!

Every morning when I rise I see another job God's going to help me to find!

Every morning when I rise I see another investment he's going to help me to make!

Every morning when I rise I see another test God is going to help me to pass!

No wonder the song writer wrote, "Great is thy faithfulness. Great is thy faithfulness, morning by morning new mercies I see. All I have needed thy hand hath provided. Great is thy faithfulness, Lord unto me."

He was so faithful at that over 2000 years ago he sent his only begotten Son to live among men!

Somebody knows Him. His name is Jesus!

He was so faithful that he died out on Calvary!

But early Sunday morning....

A Transforming Church

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 2010

SCRIPTURE: And they said, Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house. Acts 16:31

Introduction

What is the ultimate goal of the church? Ask that question to ten different Christians and ten different answers will come. Some believe the job of the church is to promote worship, others believe it is to help the poor and the needy, still others believe that the church should teach the masses and preach. While all of these are contained in the mission of the church, it's ultimate goal is to transform lives in the name of Jesus. Transformations that come as a result of the preaching of the Gospel and the presentation of Christ are real and lasting. These personal transformations usually result in changes in a community.

A church that transforms achieves its goal by touching the lives of its members in ways that make noticeable changes in the way they live, think and behave.

Consider the man who was approaching mid-life, physically he was a mess. Not only was he going bald, but years of office work had given him a large pot belly. The last straw came when he asked a woman co-worker out on a date, and she all but laughed at him. That does it, he decided. I'm going to start a whole new regimen. He began attending aerobics classes. He started working out with weights. He changed his diet. And he got an expensive hair transplant. In six months, he was a different man. Again, he asked his female co-worker out, and this time she accepted. There he was, all dressed up for the date, looking better than he ever had. He stood poised to ring the woman's doorbell, when a bolt of lightning struck him and knocked him off his feet. As he lay there dying, he saw the angel of death and cried out, "Why, are you coming after me, why now? After all I've been through, how could you do this to me?" The angel looked at him and said, "Sorry. you changed so much, I didn't recognize you. That lightning bolt was a mistake, live on!"

When a church transforms lives they are not the same. They don't talk the same, walk the same or think the same thoughts. They are transformed by the power of God. As Christians we must continue to build the kingdom of God. We must continue to transform lives, lifting Jesus up. If we lift Jesus up, He has said, "I'll draw all men unto me."

Exposition

This text focuses on lives that were transformed when touched by the power of God.

Paul and Silas had been jailed for preaching the Gospel of Jesus Christ. While imprisoned they maintained a very prayerful and positive spirit, singing praises to God and glorifying in Him. It was an unusual sight because jails were dark, isolated and dehumanizing at their best, but yet they chose to sing and pray.

At about midnight the Lord responded to their prayers, caused a great earthquake and the jail doors were opened.

The jailer feared for his life because the prisoners would surely escape, but he heard the voice of Paul reassuring him that there was no reason to kill himself, they had no plans to escape.

There, in the night, illuminated only by the glow of the candle, the jailer accept Jesus and pledged to witness to his entire family and bring them into the faith.

The jailer acted under conviction, impressed with the witness of Pal and Silas and their response to the earthquake and their imprisonment. He saw with his own eyes how God worked in lives of two believers and their confident faith in His power.
It was a brief moment but it was powerful, beautiful and lasting. It was a moment when the jailer and subsequently his entire household accepted Christ and were completely transformed from that day forward.

The transformation resulted from the hearty, cheerful testimony of Paul and Silas. Their songs of praise in the midnight were enlightening.

The transformation also came as a result of their fervent prayers which were heard by the jailer. They prayed for deliverance of their captors and not so much for their own deliverance. They prayed fervently and with power.
The transformation came as a result of the godly actions. With the jail doors opened Paul and Silas could have allowed the jailer to kill himself then walk out of the jail free men. They chose the high ground and worked to bring about the salvation of their captor. That selfless act itself convinced the jailer that there was more to being a Christian than just a name, but a divine anointing and empowerment.
The results of the witness of Paul and Silas was lives changed for Christ. Even in prison, the power of God was displayed and proven to be a transforming force in the lives of the people affected.

How the church transforms

Paul and Silas gave us a clear example of how to transform lives. Taken separately, we can see what the church must do to follow their example.

TRANSFORM LIVES THROUGH WORSHIP: The very first thing that must have caught the attention of the jailer might have been the spirit of victory shown by Paul and Silas in the jail. They were not broken men, scourged to the dungeon, but gallant victors confident that their God would be victorious. They sang songs of praise, lifting Jesus up and extolling the greatness of God. Unfamiliar with Jesus, the jailer listened to the excitement in the voices of the prisoners as they sang.

Today, the excitement of believers about worship, the sincerity of the songs and praise attracts non-believers, who want to know how to change their lives to feel the same excitement. True believers sing God's praise and thanks for everything, even our adversities. When the unsaved see the church thanking God for the unseen spiritual blessings of salvation, heavenly promise and peace of mind, he is drawn to the faith by an invisible attraction that tugs at his soul. It's a powerful picture: humble believers like ourselves thanking God and singing His praises for the seen and the unseen.

We should sing his praises for everything.

We should praise Him for the greens and butter beans, but we also sing his praises for being able to sleep soundly at night.

We should sing his praises for chicken and dressing and we also thank him for dressing our souls with his grace.

We should sing his praises for a little rice and a little gravy, but we should also praise Him for spiritual gravy: Joy, love, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, faith, meekness, and temperance.

We should sing his praises for cars, houses and color T.V. but we should also praise Him for coloring our lives with faith and hope because they help us to see the world in a different light.

When the lost see the attitude of praise and thanks displayed by the church in its worship, they are drawn to the cross by worship testimonies of those who are part of the body of Christ.

Since its inception this church has been a church that transforms, lifts Christ up in worship and praises with all of its being. As we celebrate this anniversary, let us pledge to continue lifting up the name of Jesus for all that He has done.

TRANSFORM THROUGH PRAYER: The jailer noticed that Paul and Silas prayed and was inspired. When we pray we take our personal issues to God and humble ourselves before Him. When the church prays, it collectively takes the concerns of a congregation of believers before God. When the whole church prays about a lost life, a troubled soul or a rebellious spirit, it gets God's attention.

Not only should the church pray but it should pray fervently and with consistency. If you've ever had a child to ask you for something, you know that they can get on your last nerve, asking you repeatedly for the same thing. They never give up. Yet, that is the spirit that the church should have when it prays.

Since we know that our father in heaven can do what we want, we should never tire of asking. Jesus told the parable of the importuning neighbor who beat on his neighbor's door at midnight, even though his neighbor was asleep. He kept beating so long that the neighbor finally opened the door to let him in. Jesus called that importunity or persistency.

Just as children never give up, the church should never give up when it prays. Pray persistently, even when it doesn't look like it will do any good we should pray.

The church should P.U.S.H. (Pray until something happens). God may have already made up his mind but persistent prayer can change things and transform lives. This church has been a praying church throughout its history. It should continue to be a knee bowing church that transforms the lives of men and women through fervent prayer.

TRANSFORMS THROUGH GODLY ACTIONS: The jailer saw Paul and Silas' faith in action when they refused to escape. Their action saved his life and ultimately his soul. In the same way, the actions of the church transforms lives and entire communities. It is the actions of the church's outreach ministry that provides help for the needy and helps to respond to community concerns beyond the four walls of the evidence. These actions convince non-believers that the church is truly the body of Christ in motion. Each member of the church is called upon to take action using one of the gifts detailed in 1 Corinthians 12. These gifts include: knowledge, faith, healing, wisdom, insight, arts, communication skills, and language skills. We are challenged to put these gifts into action to change the lives we touch. We are challenge to transform lives through serving others.

Serving others is time consuming. Helping the poor, the needy, the old and feeble, the young and helpless requires time, energy and money on a regular basis. Despite its time consuming nature, when the church takes action to assist in these areas lives are transformed and souls are ultimately saved. That's what happened to the jailer; the actions of Paul and Silas, ultimately transformed the life of the jailer. Those who give a cup of water to a stranger in the name of Jesus, help the homeless, and the infirmed, visit the sick, feed the hungry, heal the hurts of families, and respond to personal needs and crises actually work to transform lives.

For as long as anyone can remember, this church has worked to take action to transform the lives it has touched. Now, at this milestone, the church should not stop doing what God has commanded. It should continue loving, helping, restoring and reaching out in faith, in the name of Jesus!

Church in God' hands

Finally, brothers and sisters, the church must stay connected to God to have the power to transform lives.

The effectiveness of Paul and Silas is that they were sincere in their faith, demonstrated it under considerable pressure and always reached out to bring Christ to the lost.

As the church celebrates its anniversary today it also should recommit itself to the goal of transforming the lives that it touches in the name of Jesus.

The church is the instrument that God has used to bring forth "HIS" blessing to God's people.

Our people have been blessed because of the church, the old ship of Zion.

We have worshipped under brush arbors and abandoned saw mills.

We have lifted our voices to God in empty barns with sawdust floors.

We have praised him in the chill of winter with logs burning in huge heated stoves.

Yet God has used our feeble assembly, worship and praise experiences to bring us forth as His "water" in a thirsty land.

Through the church God has delivered us as a people from the Egypt of slavery to the borders of the Promised Land.

Through the church, God has sustained us through lynchings, murders, discrimination, depressions and unbelievable hardships.

Through the church, God has raised up our bowed down heads and lifted our broken spirits.

Through the church, God has brought forth leaders to champion our causes and speak to our troubled souls.

No wonder the song writer thought of the church and declared, "Tis the old, Ship of Zion. She has landed many a thousand. King Jesus is the captain. Get on board. Get on Board."

Sometimes in our weakness we forget that God is able to transform.

He's able to deliver us from the pit and miry clay!

He's able to transform confusion and discord into unity and love!

He's able to transform no bodies and turn them into some bodies.

He's able to transform beggars into kings!

He's able to transform lazy men into working men!

He's able to transform losers into winners!

He's done it before and He will do it again!

Long before we came to our present circumstance, God has been transforming lives!

I'm glad to know God is still a transforming God!

I'm glad to know that if I'm sick, He can heal me again!

I'm glad to know that if I'm down, He can pick me up again!

I'm glad to know that if I've failed, He can make me succeed again!

I'm glad to know that if I've lost, He can give me the victory again!

That's why I've got to tell somebody! That I serve a God who has:

-Taken the bad and transformed it into good!

-Taken the hate I've encountered and transformed it into love!

-Taken the proud and mighty and transformed them into humble servants.

It's this transforming goodness of the Lord that prompted David to write in Psalm 106:1 "O give thanks unto the Lord for he is good and his mercy endureth forever!"

It is this transforming nature that helps us to experience the Joy of the Lord!

The church that transforms reaches out to the lost with the redemptive joy of the Lord!

What is the Joy of the Lord?

The joy of the Lord is going into battle and knowing that before the battle begins the victory is won!

The joy of the Lord is knowing that no matter how tough the enemy, we will be the victor!

The joy of the Lord is the assurance that storms may rise and winds may blow, but

God is still on the throne!

That's why the song writer declared, "Victory is mine, victory is mine, victory today is mine. I told Satan to get thee behind; victory today is mine!"

Over 2000 years ago Jesus shouldered an old rugged cross up Golgotha's hill!

Early Sunday morning the ground began to shake, the stone rolled away and heaven rejoiced as He arose from the grave with all power in His hand.

Stay on the battlefield church, God is still transforming lives everyday!

SCRIPTURE:"Of the Jews five times received I forty stripes save one. Thrice was I beaten with rods, once was I stoned, thrice I suffered shipwreck, a night and a day I have been in the deep; In journeyings often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in perils by mine own countrymen, in perils by the heathen, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderness, in perils in the sea, in perils among false brethren; In weariness and painfulness, in watchings often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness. Beside those things that are without, that which cometh upon me daily, the care of all the churches. 32 In Damascus the governor under Aretas the king kept the city of the Damascenes with a garrison, desirous to apprehend me: And through a window in a basket was I let down by the wall, and escaped his hands. 2 Corinthians 11:24-33

Introduction

Do you ever reach a point in which you really feel you are about to lose it? You reach this point when you have tried everything, but nothing seems to work. These are the days when so many things happen that they start to drive you batty. The car breaks down, the food burns, the children get sick, a fuse blows, the telephone keeps ringing, the newspaper gets wet, a pot boils over, the roof leaks, your checks bounce, your prescription runs out, you lose your cell phone, your computer crashes, your purse gets stolen, your favorite TV show is interrupted, your bath water is cold, the vacuum cleaner won't work, baby won't stop crying, your spouse won't stop whining, you get laid off your job, and to top all of that off, last week you used your whole paycheck to bet on the Dallas Cowboys!

These are days when you are at your wits end. These are the days when your head begins to pound, your patience gets short and you like running around the block and screaming but you can't your shoes!

Anybody who sees you on one of these days knows that something is terribly wrong. You are acting really nutty.

When you really start to nut up, someone will whisper, "You are a basket case today!"

There are days when all of us feel as if we are basket cases; out there all alone, with everything going wrong and no one to help.

What does it mean to be a basket case? A basket case is a term that historian say began in World War I to describe quadruple amputees in the world. The soldiers had been shot up so badly that their arms legs were amputated and carried away in baskets.

Anyone that was shot up that bad was considered a “basket case.” Of course the army denies that this ever happened, but the term stuck regardless of what the army said.

Today, we say a person whose actions border mental instability is a basket case.

A family member of a friend, who does odd things for no apparent reason, is called a “basket case” even by their own relatives.

Some think their bosses and supervisors are basket cases, making unreasonable demands that can never be met.

On days when we are really pressured, really down, we even call ourselves basket cases.

For those who are came today feeling like basket cases, be of good cheer; God is still on the throne and takes on all kinds of cases, even basket cases.

As Christians, we know that our lives will not be easy; temptation and trouble are hiding behind every corner. However, we won’t lose hope, because when it looks like the devil is about to put our head in a basket, God shows up makes everything alright!

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he listed all of the troubles he experienced.

For the benefit of those who were frustrated Paul told his story to those who listened. If anyone had a reason to be frustrated, burned out or to just throw his hands up and quit it would have been Paul.

Look at his list of troubles: He was given 39 lashes five times by the Jews, that in itself was enough to break the spirit of an ordinary person.

Three times he was beaten with rods. Once he was stoned. Three times he was shipwrecked. Once he spent a whole night and a day adrift at sea. He traveled many weary miles, faced danger from flooded rivers and from robbers and danger from his own people, the Jews, as well as from the Gentiles. He faced danger in the cities, in the deserts, and on the stormy seas. He faced danger from men who claimed to be Christians, and lived with weariness and pain and sleepless nights. He was often hungry and thirsty and went without food. He often shivered with cold, without enough clothing to keep him warm.

On top of all that he carried the daily burden of all the churches.

Once he was in Damascus, the governor under King Aretas kept guards at the city gates to catch him, but he was lowered in a basket through a window in the city wall, and that’s how he got away!

He was a bona-fide basket case. Yet, in all of these sufferings, God strengthened him.

Each time he faced ultimate defeat, he became a basket case, but God swept him away to safety and victory!

Dealing with frustrations and troubles

When trouble pokes its ugly head into our lives, often frustration is the result. When trouble comes it rarely comes in ones, it often comes in large numbers, enough to turn us completely around if we are not careful. Thus, believers should:

CALL UP YOUR SPIRITUAL RESERVES: When trouble comes every believer should be prepared to tap your spiritual reserves that were stored up for just such occasions. When the going gets tough, the tough get going. This is when we open our bible and read God's word intensely, we listen to Gospel preach attentively and we pray fervently. From our storehouse of prayer and power we emerge with renewed confidence that despite sickness in the family, financial crises, someway or somehow we will rise to the occasion with God's help.

The faithful don't give up or lose their focus; instead they draw upon resources of spirit and strength that normally go unused. They exhibit a faith that has been sitting on the shelf. They demonstrate courage that is rarely displayed. They reveal an element of self control others were not unaware of.

We reach down into ourselves, that's when God comes up to show us how to draw upon energies, knowledge, wisdom and assets that have been untapped for so long.

Just when life starts to drive us crazy, God shows up to give us help and direction.

CALL ON THE LORD: When trouble comes, there are many who irritate themselves and everyone around them. They worry everyone they know: friends, neighbors, family members, co-workers and everyone else. Their cell phone records show calls made to everyone they can think of. However, too few take the time to call on the Lord when they feel themselves becoming a basket case. Some think calling on the Lord is a spiritual activity, while the problems they face require a physical and practical solution. These are the ones who busily respond to troubles brought upon them by bills, family problems, school, parents, children, bosses, losses, gains and pains. They tell themselves that when they get through dealing with troubles then they will have time to call on the Lord.

Instead of waiting until our troubles are over, the bible says when trouble comes that's the time to call on the Lord, not afterwards. Psalm 27:5 says, "For in the time of trouble He shall hide me in his pavilion: in the secret of his tabernacle shall he hide me; He shall set me up upon a rock." Don't wait until trouble is over to get yourself together because you need to be together to deal with the trouble. Before life makes you a basket case, steal away to your quiet place and have a talk with Jesus. The song writer said, "Just a little talk with Jesus makes it right."

DON'T PANIC: Many people make themselves basket cases because they are deathly afraid of the unknown. They think of all the things that could go wrong and keep asking, "But what if?" Fear causes panic and pandemonium. Fear of financial failure can turn you into a basket case as you ask, "How am I going to pay my rent? What about my car note? What about my light bill? What am I going to do If...? Those who worry about the other side of the "If" can easily become basket cases. If our fear of the unknown is greater than our faith...we are likely to become basket cases.

That's what happened to the disciples when they were aboard a ship and a storm developed. The shipped rocked and turned and many on board envisioned themselves as dead men. There was no escape. The winds were too strong and they were too far away from the bank to swim. Death appeared imminent. The disciples were about to lose it and go really crazy until someone remembered that Jesus was on board. Awakening Him they asked, "Master, carest thou not that we perish?" Jesus came to the deck, unmoved by the storm and said, "Peace be Still!"

Like the disciples we should not panic as long as Jesus is on board; He can speak to our storms and command them to be still.

A basket case

Finally, brothers and sisters, while one definition of a basket case points to a person who may be on the verge of losing control, there is another definition that points to a person who is about to be touched by the strong hand of God.

In the early days of the Greek theater the characters wore masks on stage to represent tragedy and comedy. Whenever something bad was about to happen to a character on stage the play writer always had another character above the stage wear the mask of God. When the character could not find a way out of his problem the stage hands knew that this was a case for the god in the basket and they rolled him down. Once on stage, the god in the basket would save the characters from impending tragedy.

Every now and then, life's trouble's get to where you can can't handle them all by yourself, that's a basket case.

Down in Egypt Pharaoh had given a command that all of the little boys would be killed. A Hebrew mother didn't know what to do. She was powerless to stand against the Egyptian soldiers. Can you see her saying, "Lord, I have a song named Moses and he's about to be slain. I don't know what to do; I'm almost out of my mind. "

When God heard from heaven it seems like somebody said, "That's a basket case." He inspired her to make a basket and put it on the Nile River. Don't worry about the current. Don't worry about the crocodiles. Don't worry about the possibility of turbulence; I'll hold that little baby in my hands.

Some mother today is worried about her children. When you've done all you know how to do, put your children in God's hands and he'll take care of the rest.

Paul said he was attacked on every side and he just didn't know what to do. He was beaten by the Jews five different times. He was beaten with rods three different times. He was stoned and run out of town. One time they placed guards on the wall to trap him, but that's when heaven decided that his situation was a basket case. While his enemies were waiting for him, his friends lowered him down in a basket and he made his escape.

Somebody here today is being attacked by enemies on every side. When you've taken all you can take and you just can't take any more, that's when God steps in and deals with your basket case.

Five thousand people were trying to get food to eat. The disciples were panicking, thinking they would not be able to feed the crowd. Then a little boy showed up with a little basket containing two little fishes and five loaves of bread, Jesus took the little basket and blessed and the five thousand were fed.

When you don't know how you're going to feed your family; when it seems like there is no way, that's a basket case and the Lord steps in.

When you feel like you have a basket case, remember Psalm 121: "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help, my help cometh from the Lord who made the heavens and the earth."

We serve a God who specializes in basket cases:

He specializes in mending broken hearts!

He specializes in building up what has been torn down!

He specializes in restoring what has been thrown away!

He specializes in renewing what has been worn out!

He specializes in drying eyes that have been wet with tears!

He specializes in saving souls that have been lost.

No wonder the song writer declares: Whether in a mansion made of stone or in a shanty all alone, God cares about you. He'll come down from the sky and wipe the tears from your eye because God cares about you."

He cared enough to come into this sinful world and to bear an old rugged cross!

He cared enough to allow nails to be driven in His hands!

He cared enough to allow a spear to be stuck in His side!

He cared enough to let them put a crown of thorns on His head!

He cared enough to die for the sins of the world!

But, Early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave, ready to deal with you baskets Take your burdens to the Lord and leave it there!

Get a Boaz not a Bozo

SCRIPTURE: So Boaz took Ruth, and she was his wife: and when he went in unto her, the LORD gave her conception, and she bare a son. Ruth 4:13 (KJV)

Introduction

How do you know a good man when you see one? There are many women today who are frustrated in their search for a good man. When they get one who appeals to their eye, he doesn't seem to appeal to their heart. When he appeals to their heart quite often he does not appeal to their soul. It has become so frustrating for some women that millions are settling for less; simply holding their noses and picking someone. Some have chosen to remain single and still others have unfortunately turned their eyes to other women.

The landscape is literally covered with the horror stories of Christian women who married ungodly men hoping they would change into their dream man by an act of God or through their own persuasive powers. Somehow they believed that the frog would magically turn into the handsome, loving, and lovable prince and they would live happily forever after. The frog turns into a prince only in fairy tales and those who believe they can change a man's character by their own charm, charisma, and persuasive abilities are seriously mistaken.

Godly women must exercise care in the selection of their life mate to insure that the men with whom they begin relationships have the capacity and desire to represent Christ in their family and have the willingness to learn to love them like Christ loves the church. That's a tall order but it's a must for every Christian woman.

After high school, every relationship that a woman begins is a test run for a life mate. While there are a few women who only seek a platonic friend to exchange intellectual thoughts, it's safe to say that most would like to have a permanent arrangement with a good man who will love her totally and completely.

The cycle begins with a relationship, which is a loose connection, with no permanent ties. In cycle one, they couple are friends, they talk, and they enjoy each other's company. The next level involves intimacies such as hugging and petting; it's a dangerous ground because body chemistry takes over and self control, logic and spirituality often take the back seat to raw passion. The next level involves a shared life arrangement that is still loosely connected. In this arrangement the couple expects friendship, raw passion, and a part time life partner who shares part of the bills.

In this scenario the woman finds a man who looks good, is a fun type of guy, makes her feel wonderful, and pays his part of the bills and some of hers, too. Soon, however, she learns that despite the initial charm, flash and fun they experienced, what she really has is a shell of a man who does not know how to love her. He's funny and happy go lucky, but he's afraid to make a commitment to her.

Rather than a real man she's begun a relationship with Bozo the Clown. Irresponsive, irresponsible, and impossible to live and love.

Today, there are millions of women who been wounded, hurt and abused because they began relationships with Bozo's who did not have the capacity to love and care. The hit stage drama "For Colored Girls who have considered suicide when the rainbow is enough" paints a tragic picture of women struggling to survive relationships in which they were abandoned, raped, abused, cheated on, and mentally tortured because of the Bozo's they allowed to enter into their lives.

What does God have to say about all of this? Are women doomed to endure a succession of "Bozo's" all of their lives. Can women of faith find any solace?

The word of God provides a guide to believing women, that if followed, will provide the road map to happy fulfilled lives. It begins with the woman preparing herself spiritually, allowing herself to be guided by godly principles, and exercising emotional restraint as she gleans the fields.

As Christians, our desire should be to please God in all that we do. Even in our selection of life mates, pleasing God should be our emphasis. When God is unhappy with our arrangements, then ultimately we will be unhappy. However, when God is happy we are happy, therefore our happiness is dependent upon our willingness to please God.

Exposition

The Book of Ruth gives us an example of God's grace in the Old Testament.

Ruth was a Moabitess who had come to Israel with her Mother in Law Naomi after the death of both of their husbands. To support herself she worked in the fields of the region as a gleaner.

As a gleaner, Ruth probably expected to gather just enough to make a meal at the end of the day. In her gleaning she came across Boaz who recognized her as a widowed relative.

In 2:11 Boaz tells Ruth that they had informed him that she was a widow and they had noted her family connection. In verse 12 Boaz says: "The LORD recompense thy work and a full reward be given thee of the LORD God of Israel, under whose wings thou art come to trust."

In essence he said, the Lord has recognized your work in the fields and will reward you because you have labored while trusting in Him.

After she left his presence Boaz ordered his supervisors to "let fall also some of the handfuls of purpose." The supervisors were told to order their men to drop large amounts of corn near her and leave them on purpose so that she could glean them. If she happened to glean near the sheaves that were still on the stalk, they were ordered not to stop her.

Ruth returned to her gleanings. Much to her surprise the workers seemed unusually sloppy. There were more corn ears than ever in her path. She quietly gathered them without causing attention and returned home.

When she returned she showed her gleanings and overwhelmed Naomi. Each day when she returned her gleanings were bountiful.

Before he married her, Boaz demonstrated a benevolent spirit, a caring heart and a sense of dignity.

The text says Boaz eventually married Ruth. Their union produced descendants that would ultimately bring the Christ child into the world.

Because Ruth sought a godly man, she was blessed by God for trusting in him. Her relationship and marriage was blessed and her entire fine line benefited from her choice of a Godly man.

Boaz and Bozo

Many women are working hard to get a man, any man. Instead of getting a Boaz some are getting a Bozo instead.

NOT JUST ANY MAN: Naomi guided Ruth in seeking a Kinsman-Redeemer. She needed a man who could help her retain her husband's property legacy. She didn't need just any man, she needed the right man. Many women today will settle for just any man, as long as he has pants. Settling for just any man has resulted in a plethora of problems, troubles and difficulties that range from physical brutality to abandonment. Settling for just any man can result in loneliness because, instead of having a life partner the woman gets a person she has to serve for life in a slave like relationship. In the same vein, a woman should not settle for the first man who comes along because the first man may not be the right man with whom to share her life. The clock was ticking on Ruth. The feeling of desperation was nearing as he looked for a kinsman-redeemer. Yet, Naomi guided her to the right man, despite Ruth's feeling of desperation. Women who share the same sense of desperation should not be tempted to begin relationships with just any man because the result will be everything but a kinsman-redeemer, but most certainly will result in Bozos sitting on their couches every night.

A MAN WITH CHARACTER: Naomi guided Ruth to Boaz who proved to be a man of character. She didn't find that out as an after fact, he was known in the community as a man of great character. There are 12 character traits and two assets that are essential for women who want to follow Ruth's example: Can you trust him? Will he stick by you? Will he help you achieve your dream? Is he a friendly person or is he mean? Does he consider your feelings? Does he obey the law or does he engage in illegal acts no matter how small? Does he have a spirit of optimism when the going gets tough? How does he handle his money? Does he waste time on useless idle pursuits? Is he physically and mentally clean? Does he believe in God, even so will he compete with your religious beliefs of help them grow? What about his education? Does he have any marketable skill that will lead to employment or professional opportunity? Is he morally straight or is he gay? Too often women ignore the obvious in their hot pursuit of a man they feel a fire for with the full knowledge that they are falling in love with someone who may have so many character and asset deficiencies that they only thing he can become is a bozo and certainly not a Boaz.

QUALITIES OF A BOZO: Ruth develop a relationship with Boaz with the intent of marriage. In the same sense women today should remember that every adult relationship should assume that marriage may be the outcome. If it turns out that the man is a Bozo, then it would be best to end the relationship and move on. How does a woman recognize Bozo? There are tale-tell signs:

Boaz was single, he did not have a wife or a woman on the side. He had no relationship baggage. If your man has a wife or a girlfriend already. Bozo!

Boaz inquired about Ruth and sought after her. He made the first move. A Boaz will recognize who you are and come to you and honor you with his favor. If you have to chase him down and lay down to get him...Bozo!

Boaz didn't treat Ruth like just another woman, she was special. He recognized her self worth and made her feel special. If your man disrespects you, curses you, hits you and doesn't make you feel special, or different from the rest of the women he knows, if you are just another name in his cell phone contact list...Bozo!

Boaz brought benefits to Ruth's life. She was able to glean in his fields. He was someone she could admire. If your man brings nothing to the relationship and has few traits that you really admire. If he decreases you mentally, spiritually and emotionally to the point that the relationship is draining you, it may be a clear sign. If he doesn't dazzle you with his essential goodness and willingness to make you happy and love you like Christ loved the church then there is a good chance you may have a ...Bozo!

Boaz was interested in Ruth's reputation, integrity and standing before God, sex was secondary. Even though Ruth was available he treated her with the utmost respect and refused any action that would reduce her standing before God or shame her. If your man is all too willing to jump on your bones and "hit that" without marrying you and doesn't worry about how God will see the act, not to mention possible pregnancies or STD's then there is a chance that the man in your relationship could very well be a ..Bozo!

Boaz had something going for him. He didn't need anything from Ruth; neither did he depend on her to take care of him. Women should seriously rethink relationships in which the man has nothing going for him. A man with no dream, no plan, and no ambition. He needs her more than she needs him. When she has to pay his cell phone bill, put gas in his car, buy his clothes, and keep money in his pocket then that's a good sign that her man is a ...Bozo!

Boaz was one hundred percent man, through and through. If your man treats you nicely, respects you and provides for you, but he also does the same for other men, then you have a real problem because you have a downlow-Bozo!

Boaz was a Godly man

Finally, brothers and sisters, every Christian woman needs to remember that while Boaz had resources, reputation, self discipline and a career, Boaz's strongest asset was that he was a God fearing man.

If there was ever a time when God fearing men are needed, that time is now.

These are times when:

—Respect for the church is at an all time low!

—Morality and values are in a rapid decline!

—When men are becoming lovers of themselves and abuses of themselves with mankind.

—When the sexes are changing places, women are becoming men and men are becoming women.

—Men are creating babies but refusing to be fathers.

—Fathers support their habits by mail order and the children by court order.

God needs:

— Men like, Joshua who declared, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord"

— Men with the courage of Abraham who obeyed the command of God first and found that God always provides a lamb in the bush.

—Men and women who will tell the world that the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life!

In times like these it's good to have a man who knows how to lean and depend on the Lord.

When you have a man who follows the Lord you have somebody who can help you:

-carry your burdens;

-face your future;

-fulfill your responsibilities;

-fight your battles;

-solve your problems;

-overcome your temptations;

In times like these it's good to have a man who knows how to lean and depend on the Lord.

The song writer had it right when he said, "In times like these, you need an anchor in times like these you need a savior, be very sure your anchor holds and grips the solid rock."

It's a good thing that Ruth landed her a Boaz because:

Boaz and Ruth had a little boy and they named him Obed!

Obed had a little boy and they named him Jesse!

Jesse had a little boy and they named him David, a man after God's own heart!

Down in Bethlehem, Joseph one of the great grandsons of Boaz, married a woman named Mary.

Down in a stable in Bethlehem, Mary gave birth to a little boy named Jesus!
Jesus, do you know Him?
Somebody called Him the sweet Rose of Sharon!
Somebody called Him their rock in a weary land!
Somebody called Him their wheel in the middle of the wheel!
He suffered before Pontius Pilate!
He was crucified for crimes He did not commit!
He was buried in a borrowed tomb!
But, early Sunday morning He arose from the grave with all power in His hands!
If you get yourself a Boaz and follow him, both of you will follow the Lord!

Looking For A Brick House

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

Scripture: "And Rebekah lifted up her eyes, and when she saw Isaac, she lighted off the camel. For she had said unto the servant, What man is this that walketh in the field to meet us? And the servant had said, It is my master: therefore she took a vail, and covered herself. And the servant told Isaac all things that he had done. And Isaac brought her into his mother Sarah's tent, and took Rebekah, and she became his wife; and he loved her: and Isaac was comforted after his mother's death. Genesis 24:64-67; "Whoso a wife findeth a good[thing], and obtaineth favour of the Lord." Proverbs 18:22

Introduction

In 1971 The Chi-Lites produced a hit song that caught the imagination of millions. It asked a single question, "Have you seen her?" It featured a man looking for what he believed was the perfect woman. He said, "I see her face everywhere I go, in the street and even in the picture show, have you seen her? Tell me have you seen her?" While the song talked about one man looking for that one special woman, there are millions of men who are looking for that perfect woman. They too are asking, "Have you seen her?"

Just as many women are lamenting their frustrations about finding a good man, there are millions of men who are equally frustrated. While there are men who are abusive, irresponsible and non-committal, there is an equal number of women who have similar characteristics.

There are many men who are searching for perfection. Perfection is variable in nature; it depends on whose writing the definition. One man's imperfection is another man's perfection.

There are many men who see women only with their eyes and not with their spirit, that's the spirit of the Commodores hit song of 1977, "She's a Brick House." In this song, men are looking for a woman with the perfect blend of body and sexuality. It's lyrics look mostly at the woman's body.

The lyrics say:

She's a brick house
She's the one, the only one, who's built like a Amazon
We're together everybody knows, and here's how the story goes.

The clothes she wears, the sexy ways, make an old man wish for younger days
She knows she's built and knows how to please
Sure enough to knock a man to his knees

What makes a real brick house? A woman who would be a real brick house would be solid through and through, inside and out, from top to bottom. She will not be perfect but she will be solid.

A real brick house is defined more by what is on the inside than what is on the outside. Strength of character seems to be the defining element of a real brick house. It does not fade with age, while outward beauty definitely changes.

What appeals to one man is rejected by another but many men are in agreement about what they don't want:

Men are not looking for women who are: Selfish, Gold Diggers, Argumentative, Wants to wear the pants (always has to be right and has to get the final word), Bitter from previous bad relationships, sleep arounds, Lesbian or Bi- Sexual women, so independent that they constantly remind men that they are not needed, Ghetto and Crazy.

Men must look for the characteristics of a Godly woman, a spiritual brick house, who like himself is not perfect but very close to the Godly ideal.

Does she exist, if so, have you seen her?

There are millions of spiritual Brick Houses in the world: They are solid in their thinking, solid in their lifestyles, solid in their temperament, and solid in their faith and service to God.

As Christians, we are committed to living Christian lives ourselves. We should ask God to lead us to the ideal mate, solid in mind and spirit, who can help us become complete.

Exposition

The text focuses on Abraham's search for a wife for his son Isaac.

In biblical times it was assumed that a man who finds a good woman expects to marry her. The purpose of all dating and relationships was assumed to lead toward marriage.

In many areas of Eastern culture neither sons or daughters sought their own mates, they were arranged by the fathers who considered many factors in selecting mates, but love was rarely high on the list.

Abraham became concerned that his son Isaac had no wife. Abraham had left his homeland and was troubled at what he perceived as a lack of strength and character among the women of Canaan. He felt the really strong women, who stood on the word of God and could make good wives were back home.

Since it was customary for fathers to arrange for the marriages of their children, Abraham sent his trusted servant to look for a wife for his son. The servant traveled to a distant village. He did not know how to pick a bride for his employer's son so he turned the matter over to God.

At verse 42 he asks God to show him the right woman. The servant told God that he would say "Give me, I pray thee, a little water of thy pitcher to drink" and the girl, if she's the right girl, should respond "Both drink thou, and I will also draw for they camels."

As it happened the servant looked around and a beautiful young woman came to the well to get water. He asked his coded question and to his surprise the woman answered the exact words that he had chosen as a confirmation of his blessing.

At verse 58 Rebekah was called in and asked whether or not she would go, sight unseen, to marry the stranger and she said, "I will go."

At verse 63 Rebekah saw him and instantly got off the camel. When she was told who he was she veiled her face as was the custom. When Isaac looked at her he married her on the spot and loved her, provided for her, protected her and honored her. She became the mother of Jacob and Esau.

Isaac found a strong wife who would respect, love him and bear his children.

Proverbs 18:22 describes such a woman as a "good thing."

Rebekah was beautiful, fine, godly, delivered by a servant but and handpicked by God. She was a Brick House.

Measurements of a Brick House

What are the measurements of a brick house? On the surface it is easy to cite the measurements of a woman considered to be a brick house: 36-23-36 or somewhere thereabouts. However, how do you measure a woman who is a spiritual brick house?

HEIGHT OF HER RESPECT FOR GOD: Rebekah did not know Isaac. Neither did she know anything of his father Abraham. She was being asked not only to marry a man she had not seen but to live with him in another country. However, once she was told that it was God's will that was confirmed at the well, she bowed in respect to the will of God. A man who finds a woman who is willing to bow to the will of God has found a wonderful treasure. This is a prayerful woman who will follow her husband from sea to sea if God commands that it be done.

Therefore, the first measure of a good woman should not be her looks. Attractiveness has a purpose; it draws us close enough to see the inner woman. The inner woman must have a spiritual core that desires to do the will of God. The man who finds a woman so committed that she always puts him first, has found a good thing. She's a Brick House.

WIDTH OF HER COMPASSION: Rebekah knew she would have to go a long ways from home to please her man. However, she was willing to go as far as necessary to be by his side. A man who finds a woman who is willing to share his dream as he shares hers, has found a tremendous blessing from God. This is the woman who is willing to go any distance, endure any hardship, and face any obstacle as she stands by her man. This willingness to go to any distance for the man in her life is the second measure of a good woman, which has nothing to do with her body or shape, but with her willingness to pray, hope, and aspire for the same things that her husband has in his heart. The man who finds such a woman, finds a good thing. She is a brick house.

DEPTH OF HER LOVE: Rebekah loved Isaac all of the days of her life and was loyal to him only. Proverbs 31: 11 and 12 say: "The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her, so that he shall have no need of spoil. She will do him good and not evil all the days of her life." A woman who loves her husband is loyal to him, and does not betray his trust through infidelity or otherwise compromising his safety, security or peace of mind. This is the third measure of a good woman, which has nothing to do with her sex appeal, or attractiveness. a man who has a woman that loves her so much that he can "safely trust her," has a good thing. Moreover, her loyalty to him is not conditional, but is permanent, encompassing the full range of life's experiences: prosperity and hard times, sickness and health, good times and bad times. Her loyalty to her husband is "all the days of her life," until death separates them. This type of relationship cannot be bought, bartered or sold it is a genuine gift from god. The woman who loves a man that much, is a good thing. She's a Brick House.

She knows the Lord

Finally, brothers and sisters, men who are looking for a brick house must keep their eyes on the woman who knows the Lord.

Men, looking for a brick house, should follow her trail and not her tail!

Men should not make the mistake of following the way a woman walks instead of where she walks and how she walks.

Following the trail of a good woman is not hard because her trail is long and clear.

If we follow the trail of Hannah it will find her telling the Lord to take her child and raise him in his courts.

If we follow the trail of Ruth, we'll hear her say, "Your people shall be my people and your God shall be my God."

If we follow the trail of the woman at the well, we'll hear her say, "Come see a man" who told me all I've ever done.

If we follow the trail of a good woman we'll discover the:

-spirit of Mary of Bethany

-power and strength of Deborah

-grateful and humble heart of Mary Magdalene

-faith of Ruth and the enduring hope of Rahab

If we follow the trail of a spiritual brick house it will lead us to the Lord.

A spiritual brick is strong in her faith, grounded in her commitment, and sure about her destination.

A spiritual brick house is a strange phenomenon. You can be looking at a brick house and not see her because only men who know the Lord themselves are able to know a brick house when they see one.

The physical eye can see shapes, curves and the rump in the trunk!

The physical eye can see the hair on the head, the sparkle in her eye and the glint of her teeth.

However, only a man who knows the Lord will recognize the qualities of a spiritual brick house because that which is flesh is flesh and that which is spirit is spirit. The carnal eye cannot see or appreciate spiritual things.

A man who has found a brick house, has found a good thing because a brick house is different from all of the other others.

Not every woman is a brick house, even though they are appealing to the eye.

There some women who are TEEPEES. Teepees are not expected to remain stable they are mobile and move from place to place. Some women can't stay with one man they must pack up their teepees and move on.

There are some women who are IGLOOS: Igloos are made of blocks of ice and melt in the presence of warmth and heat. Some women are cold natured. If men try to warm up to them they simply melt and go away.

There are some women who are MOTEL rooms. Motel rooms are used for short stays and layovers but nothing permanent. Some women do not want relationships, just one night layovers in cheap motels.

There are some women who are STORAGE BUILDINGS: A storage building keeps old stuff that is not being used and probably should be thrown away but we can't let it go. There are some women who carry stored up baggagge from past relationships, that should be thrown away.

There are some women who are MANSIONS: A mansion is an expensive showpiece designed to impress others at a great expense. There are some women who are expensive, with high maintenance costs whose purpose is to impress others and keep their men folk paying the bills.

There are some women who are TRAILER HOUSES: A Trailer house looks beautiful but it is a dangerous place to be when a storm comes, it is too easily blown away. Some women are not grounded when the storms of trouble begin to rise, they are gone with the wind.

There are some women who are APARTMENTS: Apartments are pretty but they are never yours. You pay for the pleasure of being there from month to month. Some women are pretty but they never marry they just charge rent to their men from month to month for the pleasure of being there.

But a man who finds a woman who knows the Lord, finds a good thing. She's a brick house

A man who has a brick house can say with his woman:

—There is no battle we can face that will stop us!

—There is no mountain that will be too hard for us to climb!

—There is no valley too deep for us traverse!

—There is no night too dark for us to make it through!

—There is no crisis that we cannot control!

—There is no storm so strong that we cannot weather it!

—There is no enemy so frightening that we cannot defeat it!

When you find a brick house you find a woman who knows the Lord.

When you know the Lord you have found the secret to your happiness, because God will not let you down.

If you find a brick house, when you've failed, she'll tell you 'that's alright baby, God can turn your failure into success!

If you find a brick house, when you get weak, she'll tell you 'that's alright baby, God can turn your weakness into strength!

If you find a brick house, when you have questions, she'll tell you 'that's alright baby, God will provide the answers!

If you find a brick house, when doors are closed in your face, she'll tell you 'that's alright baby, the Lord will make a way somehow!

If you find a brick house, every time that you fall on your face, she'll help you up to your knees, and bring you back to the Lord!

If you have a brick house, you ought to thank the Lord and tell the world about His goodness and his grace!

Don't keep it to yourself but tell somebody! That we tell the world of the goodness of the Lord!

I've got to tell somebody how He touched my life one day, picked me up and turned me around.

I must tell them how He picked up an old rugged cross and carried it up Golgotha's hill!

I must tell them that He died for me..

But early Sunday morning ... He arose with all power in his hands!

The Adam Family

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 17, 2010

SCRIPTURE: "Male and female created he them; and blessed them, and called their name Adam, in the day when they were created." Genesis 5:2; "Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh" (Genesis 2:24).

Introduction

Is it possible to have a family that really works? Today, many are receiving their instructions about family operation from television and other sources. Unfortunately, these sources often give us images of dysfunctional family, because families that don't work are the ones that people want to see. A generation ago, television was just the opposite. Programs such as Father Knows Best, Leave it to Beaver, The Brady Bunch, and the Andy Griffin Show, showed different types of families encountering real life issues in a positive way. Other programs such as the Walton's and Little House on the Prairie showed families with strong moral values even in tough times. Audiences drew their ideas about how a family is supposed to work from programs such as these.

Unfortunately, generations have been presented with: The Bunker Family, of All in the Family; a family headed by Archie Bunker, a racist, sexist and domineering. The Jefferson Family of the Jefferson T.V. show. It too is a racist family, bent on using people and climbing up at others expense to their big apartment on the Eastside. The Bundy Family, of Married with Children. They never have any money all of them seemed obsessed with sex; The Conners Family on Roseanne, is depicted as lower a class blue collar family that is often abusive and excessive. The Simpson, The Boon Docks, and Family Guy are all cartoon families that show children cursing their parents, cartoon sex and just about any other dysfunction you can think of.

Television teaches things, whether they are bad or good, about black families. Black families on television live well. The Huxtables of the Cosby's live extremely well. Riley and Granddad in the Boondocks live in a comfortable home in the suburbs. The Paynes of the House of Payne, live quite well for a single incomed public servant. The Jefferson's lived in a Deluxe apartment in the sky. In reality all families don't live comfortably, there are many that are struggling, with some sleeping on floors, couches and in chairs.

One of the most dysfunctional shows on television is the Addams Family. It is strange family that is not evil but celebrates dark themes, one member sleeps in a casket, there's a Frankenstein like member called "Lurch" and a hand that walks around by itself named "thing." The Addams family can't seem to understand why a family that dresses up like vampires, lives in a castle next to a swamp, and drinks blood for an afternoon treat shouldn't be considered normal.

There are even gay families on television in which there are two moms or two dads! Wow!

With all of this on television and in the movies, it's no wonder that the definition of family is confusing.

It's confusing until we consider what the word of God has to say about marriage and the family, it's purpose and it's operation.

It all started with the first family, The Adam Family, not the T.V. version but the Garden of Eden version. That family and God's instruction thereafter gives us the prototype of what a real family should be: not dysfunctional, but one that works together for His praise and glory.

As Christians, we must labor to keep God's example before us. He is our model, His word, not television should be our guide.

Exposition

This text focuses on God's creation of the first family of human beings.

Genesis chapter one and two gives us an overview, then a detailed, slow motion, view of the creation of the first family. In Genesis the Father, the son and Holy Ghost discussed the creation of man in Genesis 1:26. They said, "Let us make man."

In Genesis 1:27 it reads, " So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them." Chapter 2 starts to rewind the tape a little and shows us how God created "them" by giving us a step by step version of how the man was placed in a deep sleep and woman was formed from a rib from his side. In Genesis 2:23 it is written, "And Adam said, This is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called Woman, because she was taken out of Man."

The institution of marriage was spoken into place when God said in Genesis 2:24 "Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh. "

Genesis 5:2 called both the male and the female "Adam" with the woman being commonly referred to as Eve but both of them being the progenitors of the Adam Family. The remainder of Chapter 5 tells how the Adam family grew and expanded as the years passed.

The Adam family, before sin entered the world was perfect in every respect. There was no death in the family, no sickness, no jealousy, no unemployment, no strive, no arguments, no competition, no disagreements and no fear of AIDS, or STD's. The Adams family was the perfect family cradled in the perfect place in a perfect world.

Genesis Chapter 3 details how the perfect family started having problems when the devil interfered in the relations of the perfect family. First he appealed to Eve's vanity and convinced her to disobey God and ignore her husband's leadership concerning the forbidden fruit. That decision brought death to the perfect family. Their two sons who had been living perfectly together, developed problems and one killed the other. The remaining son had to leave out on his own and the entire family had to move out of the garden into less that luxurious conditions.

The creation story gives clear evidence of what happens when the devil gets mixed up in a family's business.

Keep the Devil out of the family

Marriage is honorable and is to be protected since it is the very foundation of society. Therefore, marriage is to be respected, held in the highest esteem and protected from the influences of the devil. In any marriage the devil looks for weak areas. Among African-Americans the weakest areas usually deal with money or sex related issues. All others are secondary. That's why the devil chooses those two areas first.

DEVIL CAN DESTROY A FAMILY IF HE CAN DESTROY ITS TRUST: Whether the issue is money or sex, trust is the one ingredient that makes relations between husbands and wives strong. Once trust has been weakened the bond between a man and a woman trust is fractured. Mark 10:9 says, "What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder." Even though the bible warns against anyone sowing the seeds of discontent between a man and a woman, the devil will try anyway. It starts to happen when partners hide money from the other, keep secrets, and have secret lovers on the side. These all indicate the lack of trust.

Sometimes what looks like trust is not trust at all. Consider the man and wife who won the praises of their friends because they appeared to be so romantic even after 40 years of marriage. A friend spoke to the husband to try to discover his secret. He said, "I notice you and your wife the other day in the mall. You went into a dress store and you were holding hands. You went into a shoe store and you were holding hands. You went into a jewelry store and you were still holding hands. It's amazing and so romantic. Can you tell me the secret to such romance?" The man said, "It's not so much romance. But after 40 years of marriage I've learned that whenever we go into the dress store, shoe store or jewelry store, I can't trust her to just look, if I don't hold her hand...she'll buy everything in the store!"

Trust is important to the perfect family.

DEVIL CAN DESTROY A FAMILY'S FINANCES: Every year thousands of marriages feel the strain of an increased debt load. Husbands and wives, dealing with the frustration of escalating debt, often become enemies as one blames the other for creating the debt or inability to manage it properly. That's what happens when the devil gets in your checkbook. Debts are incurred to impress the neighbors or associates, make the kids happy for a day, or to satisfy a variety of itches and impulses. When the bills in the home begin to escalate, marriages are strained to the limit. If marriages are to thrive, each partner must view themselves as stewards of God's resources, carefully managing every dime to his glory in accordance with his will.

DEVIL CAN DESTROY FAMILY LEADERSHIP: The devil can really destroy the family when the leadership of the family is questioned. When the devil succeeded in getting Eve to ignore her husband and listen to another's voice. Trouble occurred. The bible teaches: "Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord." (Ephes. 5:22). This submission does not mean the wife is less important than her husband but that she willing agrees to follow his leadership, even though she has the smarts to do it all by herself if she wanted to. Submission does not mean dominance by the man, it means followship on the behalf the wife. Whenever the devil can successfully manipulate the leadership of a marriage then he succeeds. If he can get a couple to arguing over who calls the shots over the check book or the color of the curtains on the wall, if the devil can find a way in, he will do just that. The old song writer said, "Don't let the devil ride. If you let him ride he'll want to drive, don't let him ride."

DEVIL CAN DESTROY A COUPLES LOVE FOR EACH OTHER: The devil can get into a family's business so much that they can stop loving each other. Yet, it is love that makes a the male in the marriage a husband and not just an "old man." It is love that makes the woman a "wife" not just an "Old Lady." The bible says in Ephesians 5:25 "Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it." That's a tall order. It goes beyond romance. Love goes to the point of providing for her, honoring her, believing in her, trusting her, praising her, respecting and caring for her. "So ought men to love their wives as their own bodies. He that loveth his wife loveth himself" (Ephes. 5:28). If the devil can have his way, he will interrupt that love relationship between husbands and wives. If there is no love the marriage falls apart.

DEVIL CAN DESTROY SIBLING RELATIONSHIPS: Even children can get out of hand when the devil gets into the affairs of the perfect family. In the perfect family children both obey and respect their parents. There is a element of godliness in this respect because it is ordained by God himself. Ephesians 6:1-2 (KJV) Children, obey your parents in the Lord: for this is right. Honor thy father and mother; (which is the first commandment with promise." That's why it's important that children not be allowed to get the devilish ideas to talk back to their parents, disobey them and to do anything that will dishonor them. How does the devil get into a child's mind? Generally, the devil gets in a child's mind through television broadcasts of situation comedies and cartoons that show other children not only disrespecting their parents but also disrespecting their siblings, teachers and other adult figures. We must be on guard that the devil does not find a way to destroy our children and pit them against the parents and against each other

A Loving Family

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that the Adam Family started off perfectly but fell into perfection, the only way for anyone to rejoin the perfect family of God is through the perfecting blood of Jesus Christ.

The word teaches that because of the sin of Adam and his wife in garden that sin was introduced into the world.

Romans 5:12 says, Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned:

Because of the imperfection of the Adam Family, there is more hate in the world than there is love.

Because of the imperfection of the Adam Family, there is more war in the world than there is peace!

Because of the imperfection of the Adam Family, there is more depression in the world than there is hope!

But Romans 5:16 reminds that sin may have come in the world by the Adam Family but the grace of God has created a new family, the family of God.

The Adam family is imperfect by nature but Jesus, the Son of God, has extended His love to invite all who will to the family of God.

The Family of the Lord is a family based upon love.

The love of God is a powerful sweetener that helps bind broken hearts.

The love of God heals all wounds.

The love of God restores lost joy.

The Adam Family is marked by imperfection but the family of God is guided by the hand of God Himself.

When the hand of God is on your family:

—The world may kick you down, but God will pick you up!

—The world may strike you out, but God will give you a home run!

—The world may think you are a loser, but God will make you a winner!

—The world may think you are weak, but God will make you strong!

When you are a part of the family of God the impossible becomes possible!

When you are a part of the family of God, the improbable becomes probable!

When you are a part of the family of God, the unthinkable becomes thinkable!

When you are a part of the family of God, you better get ready to have a hallelujah good time!

The families on television try to imitate it, but they can't come close.

T.V. families even have theme songs.

The Bunkers sang, "Boy the way Glenn Miller played, songs that made the hit parade, guys like us had it made, those were the days."

JJ and his family on Goodtimes sang, "Temporary, laid off, goodtimes. Easy credit ripoff, Goodtimes. Ain't we lucky we got em', Good times!"

The Jefferson family got a chance to move on up to the East Side!

They were so happy that they sang, "Fish don't fry in the kitchen, beans don't burn on the grill, took a whole lot trying, just to get up that hill!.

We're moving on up!

Oh, but one of the these old days, the family of God will have more than the Jeffersons, we're not going to the east Side but we're on our way to the other side!

We're moving on up to the other side, where every day is Sunday and it's always howdy and never goodbye!

We're moving on up, to the other side, where the wicked will cease from troubling and the weary will be at rest!

We're moving on up, to the other side, Where hearse wheels don't roll and death bells don't toll

I don't know about you but I've got to tell somebody!

I got to tell somebody about Jesus!

I got to tell somebody that He died out on Calvary!

I got to tell somebody that He was buried in a borrowed tomb!

I got to tell somebody that Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave, with all power in His hands!

Come and go with me, to my father's house! There is Joy! Joy! Joy!

He may not come when you want him

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 5, 2010

SCRIPTURE: "And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed." Luke 2:1

Introduction

Were you ever promised something but it took a long time to receive it; so long that you thought it was not going to come? We have been promised many things by many people and those promises seem, at times, as distant as the stars. We wait for them but they never seem to come.

There are some who give up hope. There are others who hang on to their faith and never give up hope. Some remember the lyrics to that old Sam Cooke song:

"It's been too hard living but I'm afraid to die
Cause I don't know what's up there beyond the sky
It's been a long, a long time coming
But I know a change gonna come, oh yes it will."

Like Cooke, we don't know the time schedule up there beyond the sky, but we believe a change is gonna come.

We were able to endure slavery and the difficulties of reconstruction because we knew that a change was going to come.

We were able to withstand the savage venom of racism and segregation because we knew a change was gonna come.

We were able stand the frustrations of second class citizenship and powerlessness because we knew a change was going to come.

Often the blessing we seek seems to take forever getting to us, but we have remained confident that if we keep the faith and never lose hope that God will bring about the changes we need, in his own time and in his own way.

When we think of advent, we think about God's response to the world's needs. His response was to love the world so much that he would give his only begotten so that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life.

When the world needed Him most, Christ came bringing hope and salvation to all who would receive Him.

As Christians, we rejoice in the Lord always because we know that He may not come when we want Him, but He's always on time.

Exposition

This text uses a familiar scriptural phrase to introduce the coming of Christ, "…it came to pass."

The phrase itself is used to indicate the passage of time from the presentation of one thought to the conclusion of another.

There are at least 86 instances in the scripture of the phrase "it came to pass," and each of them seems to suggest a transition from one phase into another. It's the ending of one situation and the beginning of another; the sunset of one experience and the dawn of another.

God told Noah to build an ark and to fill it with pairs of clean and unclean animals because a flood was coming. For 100 years the rain did not come, there was no flood, but Noah went forward anyway, collected the animals and the door to the ark was shut. Genesis 7:10 says after seven more days of waiting, "it came to pass" and the rains came.

When Hannah prayed long and waited for God to give her a son, it seemed like a long time coming but 1 Samuel 19:20 notes that "It came to pass" and Hannah conceived.

When Eliezar looked for a wife for Isaac he knew he would need help from the Lord to find her because the man who finds a wife finds a good thing. He prayed and he asked God to lead him. It took a long time, but Genesis 24:14 says, "It came to pass" that he found the woman that God had selected.

Therefore, the phrase "It came to pass" came to confirm that God's promises were delivered, what was sought was found, and what was suffered transitioned into better times.

In each instance, it showed that those who sought God were able to get a response.

It was not always immediate by the man's measure of time, but it was answered in the span of time needed for an ample response.

Surely these instances and others prove that "He may not come when you want, but He's always on time."

At the time of this text, the fourth dynasty of Rome was underway. It was a time when Rome covered entire known world. It was a time when Roman roads made traveling easy and its literary talents were excelling. It was a time of peace. In this time, God chose to answer the prayers of the people for a savior. He picked the time. He picked the place. He picked the circumstance.

Thus, Luke 2:1 begins, "And it came to pass."

One situation leads to another

Today, many of us are dealing with situations that seem to have no end in sight.

Problems in our families and personal lives seem to get more complicated with no light apparent at the end of the tunnel. We have prayed, but it appears that our prayers are not answered. We read in scripture where the fervent effectual prayer of the righteous availeth much, but we get frustrated when we don't get instant response to our prayers. We ask, "What is taking God so long?" In answer to that question we should consider:

GOD IS NOT LIMITED BY TIME: When it appears to us that God is slow to respond to our needs, we should remember that God is not subject to the limitations of time. God simply doesn't calculate time the way we do. We figure time in ways that we can understand. We calculate the years by the seasons, the months by the moons, the days by the rising and setting of the sun. To God all of these are inconsequential. Psalm 90 tells us that a thousand years to us is but a few hours to Him, or a watch in the night. Therefore, we should not feel God has neglected us in any way because He appears not to have responded to our situation. He is not dragging his feet. 2 Peter 3:9 says, "The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness; but is longsuffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance. "

Thousands of years in the sight of humankind are but passing days or even seconds with God. It was two thousand years before God fulfilled his promise to Abraham that all of the families of the earth would be blessed through his family. This occurred with the birth of Christ. It was several hundred years before the children of Israel took possession of the Promised Land as promised (And they still do not have it all). Obviously, God does not reckon time in the same manner as man.

Whatever our condition is, God is aware of it. It is not in file 13, tucked away out of his sight. When the time is right, He will respond. He may not come when we want Him, but when He comes; it is assured that He will be right on time.

ADVERSE CONDITIONS WILL PASS: One significant truth about any situation is that "it will pass." There are times when we feel extremely low. We actually hurt in our spirit and it seems that it last forever. When we are children go astray, we hurt. When our dreams are being shattered, we hurt. When our marriage is troubled, we hurt. When our finances are threatened, we hurt. When our health begins to fail, we hurt. When our business succumbs to factors beyond our control, we hurt. When hurt comes, it seems that it will never. In Ecclesiastes 3:1 Solomon said, "To everything there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven," A time to be born and a time to die. A time laugh and a time to cry. A time to plant and a time to harvest. However, while everything has a season, nothing lasts forever, except the love of God. Those who may be enduring a difficult season at the moment must rest assured that "this too shall pass." Heartaches? This too shall pass! Discomfort? This too shall pass! Sleepless nights? This too shall pass!

The old Negro spiritual put it this way, "I'm so glad that trouble don't last always." That means that one day, in God's own time, we shall hear the scripture speak to our situation, "And it came to pass." That's when we will say, "I was on my bed of affliction..and it came to pass!" "I tried my best to find a way out of my dilemma and it seemed there was not end, and it came to pass!" "I gave my problems to the Lord, …and it came to pass!"

GOD IS NEVER TOO LATE: When we are tempted to believe that God is too late, that's when we must remember that regardless to what we think God is never too late. At the tomb of Lazarus, Mary and Martha were upset with Jesus. They had sent word for Him to come and respond to Lazarus' sickness. When Jesus did not come at the time they wanted Him to come and Lazarus ultimately died, they were upset and accused him saying, "If you had come when we called you, my brother would not have died." That's when they learned that Jesus can't be late. He responded to them by raising Lazarus from the dead. The same applies to our situations as well, God can't be late. If he didn't stop you from losing your job, it could well be that He has something else in mind that is even greater. If He didn't respond to the prayer request that you submitted when you wanted, where you wanted and how you wanted, then it could very well be that He has another way of responding that will be much better for you.

In such circumstances, we must trust God to work it out for us and not demand that he respond as some do in their prayers "Right now, God, right now!" Rather than saying "right now!" we should say, "According to thy will." The danger of insisting upon right now is illustrated by the man who was caught in the flood upon a log moving down the river at a high speed. He prayed that God would rescue him. God heard his prayer and inspired rescuers to go ahead of him with a device that would scoop him from the waters as he approach the pass in the river. The man panicked as he slipped and slid on the log and demanded that God get him off the log, "right now!" In a short span, a large house floated in the flood waters and the man jumped from the log onto the roof top. However, when the house made it to the pass, it was too large to make it through and crushed against the rocks. As the man drowned, he saw the log upon which he was riding turn the pass and the rescuers waiting to pull him out. When "it came to pass" he was not there because he demanded "right now" instead of waiting for God to move. God is never late. He may not come, when we want Him, but He's always on time.

God is Always on Time

Finally, we must consider that we serve a God who is bigger than time, more precise than time and is therefore always on time.

United Parcel Service promotes the fact that it can place a package in the hands of the receiver in 24 hours. Yet there are times when UPS can't find the right address or can't make a delivery because no one is home.

Federal Express prides itself for being able to deliver a package by 10 a.m. the next morning. However, there are times when they just can't make it. They refunded the charge but they still didn't make it on time.

E-mail deliverers promote the fact that they can deliver a message in seconds! But regardless to how fast E-Mail can be delivered, the message can't get through if the server is overloaded.

We serve a God who is more dependable than the Federal Express, more reliable than U.S. mail and faster than the internet. He may not come when we want Him, but He's always on time!

I hear Abraham testifying, "I stood on a mountain with my son on an altar. I had the knife of sacrifice drawn and I couldn't see any other way, that's when I found out that God always has a ram in the bush! There on the mountaintop I learned that He may not come when you want, but he's always on time."

I hear the three Hebrew boys "We stood in front of the fiery furnace. The fires were seven times hotter than usual. It seemed like we were about to reach a tragic end when they tied us up and threw us in the fire. That's when we looked up and saw a fourth man in the fire wrapping his wings around us, just before the flames could touch us. In the midst of our fire, that's when we learned, "He may not come when you want, but He's always on time."

I hear Daniel saying, "I was in the lion's den face with an instant death. There was no way out and no one to hear my cry. I can see the hungry teeth of the enemy. I could hear the terrible roar. That's when God stepped in and quieted down lions and turned them into kittens. That's when I learned, that He may not come when you want, him but he's always on time."

When the world cried out for a savior, the answer was already on the way! God prepared to send his Son to earth to begin the redemption process.

The phrase "and it came to pass" indicates that the time of social pregnancy that was ready for delivery.

The phrase, "and it came to pass" indicates, that the prayers that had been prayed, were about to be answered!

The phrase, "and it came to pass" indicates, that their 400 years without the word of God was about to end!

The phrase, "and it came to pass" indicates that their spiritual drought was about to be watered by the living word of God!

The phrase, "and it came to pass" indicates that God was ready to move; and every believer knows that when God gets ready, you got to move!

And it came to pass, in the fullness of time, that God rearranged the biological processes of a woman named Mary!

And it came to pass, in the fullness of time, God made a hole in the ordered processes of nature!

And it came to pass, in the fullness of time, God sent the Word to dwell among men!

At the right time, and on time, he revealed himself to the world!

At the right time, and on time, he began a three-year ministry!

At the right time, and on time, he took up an old rugged cross!

At the right time, and on time, he died out on Calvary!

After the three days and nights, at the right time, an on time

He arose from the grave!

With all power in his hands!

What made them wise, Makes us wise

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the LORD is risen upon thee. For, behold, the darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people: but the LORD shall arise upon thee, and his glory shall be seen upon thee. And the Gentiles shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising. Lift up thine eyes round about, and see: all they gather themselves together, they come to thee: thy sons shall come from far, and thy daughters shall be nursed at thy side. Then thou shalt see, and flow together, and thine heart shall fear, and be enlarged; because the abundance of the sea shall be converted unto thee, the forces of the Gentiles shall come unto thee. Isaiah 60:1-6 "Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem, saying where is He that is born king of the Jews? For we have seen His star in the east, and are come to worship Him." Matthew 2:1-2

Introduction

Have you ever stood in awe of the wisdom of certain members of your family? Have you noticed that they seem to know and understand more about life? Their warnings seem prophetic. Their advice is always sound. Their insight is always revealing. Without a doubt these wise sages in the family seem to have a grip on life, and a clear understanding that is enviable.

What is the source of this wisdom? Can it be purchased in a store, learned in a class or inherited? If such wisdom is great, how can it be acquired? In our search for wisdom we have learned that knowledge alone does not make a man wise. Neither does an understanding alone make a woman wise. Wisdom seems to be the ability to review life's events, read its signs then apply that knowledge and understanding to the real circumstances we face every day.

Wisdom is not automatic. Great men are not always wise and neither are old men automatically wise. Positions do not confer wisdom upon those who fill them and neither does one suddenly acquire wisdom by attaining a certain age.

The youngest child can be wise if he can apply what little knowledge and understanding he has acquired to his daily life.

Job puts it this way in Job 28:28 "The fear of the Lord is wisdom, and to depart from evil is understanding."

The great truths that the ancients of our families have found should be the objects of our searches as well. The wisdom of grandma and grandpa or Uncle Willie or any of the aunts, uncles and grands in our family circles can be discerned if we try to see what they have seen and seek after that which they seek.

As Christians, we see the wise men in the bible seeking the Christ child. They were wise to seek Him. Today, we should do the same because what made them wise, also makes us wise. It is a good thing to find the Lord.

Exposition

This text focuses on a prophesy of Isaiah as he points to the coming of the Christ child.

Isaiah is one of the major prophets whose book, like the bible has 66 chapters, whereas the bible has 66 books. Also like the bible, Isaiah is divided into two parts: The first 39 books speak to the conditions of Isaiah's day, just the Old Testament spoke of the conditions of Israel in times past. The remaining 27 chapters of Isaiah are prophetic, speaking of a time thousands of years from Isaiah's day. It's prophecies are Messianic in that they foretell the event surrounding the birth and death of the Messiah.

This text is from chapter 60. It foretells, more than a thousand years in advance, how wise men would see the light of the Lord and would follow it to find the Christ child. These men would be considered wise because they would see the light of God and follow it. Following that light would lead them to God's promise.

As we study scripture we learn of two groups who saw lights or heard voices leading them to the Christ Child. In the biblical narrative, we learn of the shepherds and Matthew tells us about the wise men who studied the stars, who came from the East to Jerusalem and asked King Herod, "Where is the baby born to be the king of the Jews? We saw his star when it came up in the East, and we have come to worship him" We don't know where these visitors were from or even how many there were! In fact, we don't even know when they arrived in Bethlehem. Neither are we sure about the number. Many have concluded that there were three because of the three gifts brought but the bible does not say. There is no accurate record of the number.

In Biblical times, astrologers were people who believed that the stars were signs or reflections of special events on earth. These people studied the stars in a quest for knowledge. They were considered wise because they acted upon what they learned in their studies and sought to see for themselves.

Thus, when the wise men observed the appearance of the unusual star pattern, it set off a study as to what the configuration meant. When they noticed Sirius, they knew that its name meant "birth of a prince." Their consultations with learned people, among whom would have been Jewish rabbis, revealed that a special birth had been foretold. But where? They were led to the manger in Bethlehem by a light from heaven.

What made them wise is that they saw the light from heaven and followed until they found Christ.

Today, we would be wise to do the same.

What they learned

We can learn clear truths from the wise men.

They studied the stars and scriptures: The wise men studied the stars. They watched for changes and movements in the heavens. Then they compared what they saw to what they knew in the written word of God. That made them wise. We would be wise to do the same. We should study the events we see around us and watch for the movement of heaven or the hand of God in each event. Then we should compare what we see to what has been prophesied in the written word of God. For example, we see more earthquakes, strange weather patterns today that we have ever seen before. It would be wise if we compare what we see with what is written in the word, that in the last days there would be strange weather patterns. Even the rise in homosexuality and other forms of immorality have been predicted as signs that we living in the last days. If we study the events around us in light of God's word, we would be wise.

They were led by the light from heaven. The wise men saw the star in the East and followed its light. It wasn't on paper. There was no guarantee that they would find success in their quest to find the new born king. They just felt it in their souls. Even today, those who are led by the spirit seem to be closer to God than those who have only the academics. Academics helps us to understand the operations of society and gain a sense of perspective. But there is one thing that learning cannot do, and that it makes us wise. Some with great book learning are humbled by the simple wisdom of those who have been touched by the Lord. The story is told of two men who were called upon to read the 23rd Psalm. One was a seminary student and the other was an old man who spent his whole life on a farm and could neither read nor write. The seminary student read carefully, pronouncing every word carefully and demonstrating his training. The old man stood and started reciting the scripture from memory but punctuated his recitation with a witness about what the Lord had done for him: Providing a table for him in the presence of his enemies, blessing him so much that he had overflow as well as standing with him in times of death and sickness. His words were broken and his enunciation was poor but he brought the audience to its feet. The seminary student rose and commented afterwards. "Friends I know the 23rd Psalms, but this man knows the Shepherd."

It is wise to know not just the words, but to know God for yourself.

They were wise because they would not be distracted: Herod tried to get the wise men to stray from their purpose and report to him about the child's whereabouts. They would not be distracted. They knew their purpose and refused to stray. Even today, we should not take our eyes off our ultimate purpose in life, which is to please God. It is good to have high school diplomas and college degrees but it is even better if we know the Lord in addition to all of our book learning.

Unless we know the Lord, our learning is in vain.

It's good to know:

—Mathematics, how to multiply and divide. But it's wise to know Jesus because only Jesus can multiply by dividing. He took two little fish and five loaves of bread and multiplied them by dividing them among the people.

—Geology, the origins and nature of the earth. It's wise to know Jesus because "the Earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof."

—Astronomy, the nature of the stars. It's wise to know Jesus, because He's the bright and morning star!

—Botany, the study of the flowers and lilies of the field. It's wise to know Jesus because He is the Rose of Sharon and the Lily of the Valley!

—Geography, and know the people of neighboring places. It's wise to know Jesus because a song writer said "He's got the whole world, in his hands, He's got the whole wide world in His hands.!"

Wise Because they sought the Lord

Finally, brothers and sisters we must consider that what really made them wise is their willingness to seek the Lord.

There are many today who have not found this wisdom. They are content to seek their own way and to live according to their own purpose.

What made the wise men wise is their ability to look around them and see the works of the Lord in the heavens then see how the light from those great works pointed to his hand in our lives every day.

When we are able to see the light of the Lord and seek after it, we are wise.

The education of the wise men taught them that there was a great thing happening in the world and that God's will was unveiling itself somewhere in the West.

They did not know where, but they knew that if they followed the light from heaven they would find the Lord.

It's a wise man who recognizes that when he is lost he should seek the Lord. Isaiah 55:6-7 says, "Seek ye the LORD while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near: Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the LORD, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon. "

It's a wise who wants a blessing and seeks the Lord to get what he needs. Psalm 119:2 says, How blessed are those who observe His testimonies, Who seek Him with their whole heart."

It's a wise man who searches for the riches of heaven and doesn't stop until he finds them. Matthew 7:7 says, "Ask, and it will be given to you; seek, and you will find; knock, and it will be opened to you.

What made the wise men wise was that despite the:

—SKEPTICISMS of their times, they tried to find the Lord! What made them wise should make us wise!

—DIFFICULTIES of their times, they tried to find the Lord! What made them wise should make us wise!

What makes a believer wise today, is not his degree from an institution of higher learning, but the willingness to apply what they know and follow the Lord!

The wise men were wise because they were looking for the Lord, today, those who want to be wise should also look for the Lord.

Look for Him when you are in the valley of despair, because He has promised that one day ”every valley shall be exalted!”

Look for Him when evil and crooked devices entangle you because He has promised that the “crooked place shall be made straight.”

Look for Him when sin and corruption make you sick to your soul, because ‘He was wounded for our transgressions and bruised for our iniquity, the chastisement of our peace is upon him and with his stripes we are healed.”

Look for Him when your body is racked with pain, like the woman with an issue blood who sought just touch the hem of His garment!

Look for Him like the widow woman that was down to her last barrel of meal and cruise of oil, because He has promised to make a way out of no way!

Look for Him because he can take the —Impossible and make it possible

—Crushed and make them strong again!

—Discontent and give them a new joy!

—Ruined and give them a brand new start!

—Uncertain and give them new confidence!

Look for Him because when nobody else cared about us, He picked up an old rugged cross and carried it to Golgotha’s Hill.

Look for Him because when the world had forsaken us he died for our sins!

Look for Him because when the world was kicking us down He was buried for us in a borrowed tomb!

Look for Him because when the world thought we had been defeated, He arose for us with all power in His hand!

The wise men had to go to Bethlehem to call on Him! They were wise to call on Him. We too must call Him and tell Him what you want!

A Sign even a Blind Man can see

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE "And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger." Luke 2:12

Introduction

Have you ever taken a wrong turn because you didn't see a sign? Most of us have missed a turn or two in life because we didn't see signs that were clearly posted for us to see, but somehow we missed it. The reasons were numerous: we were distracted; it was hidden, or were looking in the wrong direction. There are few times when we made bad turns even though we saw not just one sign but many of them but we ignored them.

There were several day when we realized that we were feeling unusually dizzy and often faint but we dismissed them. We should not have been surprised when we received a less than favorable medical report because there were signs.

For several weeks we received bad reports in school because we failed to turn in assignments, failed tests and performed purely. We should not have been surprised when we received poor reports at the end of the period because there were signs.

When everyone else on the job received raises, commendations and promotions but we were constantly written up for being late, showing poor performance and less than admirable work habits, we should have seen it coming. Our firing should not have been a surprise. There were signs.

Are you surprised that you are constantly broke? Why? There were signs that they day would have more bills than money in the bank. We saw them but we kept spending.

When you saw what you thought were little flying ants in your house last spring, you ignored them. So why were you surprised to know that that you now need major repairs because your house has termites? There were signs.

There are signs in the weather that should prepare us for the changing of the seasons, but often we ignore them.

There are signs that show us when there only one way and warn us when we are going the wrong way. So we shouldn't be surprised when we are faced with oncoming traffic in life. There were signs.

Last year CNN news carried the news article about the woman who had trouble with her son who was developing criminal habits. She made the boy a giant sign and made him stand on a busy intersection of the city and hold it high for an entire week, "I want to go prison and ruin by life just like my daddy," – It was her way of sending him a message that he would never forget.

What would God need to do to send the world a sign of his love? He created a garden and filled it with great fruits and easy living but didn't get that sign. He opened a walkway through the sea for Israel and fed them for 40 years in the wilderness, but they didn't get that sign. Even when He blessed them with miracles: made the sun stand still, brought down the walls of Jericho or raised the dead, they still didn't get the sign.

Is it possible that God can leave so many signs and we not get the point? Consider the woman who filed for a divorce after 20 years of marriage on the grounds that her husband never showed her any sign that he loved her. She felt lucky because her case was heard by a female judge she knew was having problems with her husband too. The judge listened as the woman complained that all her husband ever did for 20 years was clutter up the house but never showed any sign that he loved her. The judge asked the woman to explain the clutter he leaves. The wife said, "Every day for twenty years he takes my lipstick and draws my name and kisses on the bathroom mirror. When I go in the refrigerator, he has notes taped to the door with my name and little hearts on it. He clutters up my mail sending me little cards with a little man shooting an arrow at my heart. Every night for 20 years he puts these notes on my pillow that I'll be dreaming of you. Your honor, I'm tired of him cluttering up the house he bought me, the huge jewelry case he bought me, the car he bought me and the three closets of clothes he bought with all this clutter. Any fool can see this man doesn't love me he just wants someone to pick up his clutter. The judge said, honey, the only kind of clutter my husband leaves me is empty beer cans, I'll take your husband any time!" -The woman couldn't read the signs all around her.

God decided to send the world a sign so big and so obvious that it could not be ignored. He announced that his sign would be the birth of a little child and placed in a manger, wrapped in swaddling clothes.

As Christians, we recognize that the Christmas reminds us more than any other time that God is with us in our personal dilemmas. He sends us sign we cannot ignore. It's a sign that even Stevie Wonder and Ray Charles could read without Braille. It's a sign that God loves us enough to give the world His only son. That's a sign that even a blind man can see.

Exposition

This text considers how God gave the world the sign that could not be ignored; it's the birth of the Christ child, wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

Mary and Joseph had been told of the birth of Christ by an angel. They knew his birth was special. More than simply special his birth would be God's gift to a troubled world. It was his way of reconciling a distant world to a loving father.

The gift of the Christ Child was a sign from God that he still loved the world enough to allow a part of himself to assume human form and absorb the punishment for their sins.

John declared in John 3:16 "For God so loved the world that He gave his only begotten son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish but have everlasting life." –That birth was a sign to world that God's saving grace will be available to everyone.

The sign that God gave the world on Christmas day was a clear indicator of His intention to be with His people in the triumphs, joys and setbacks.

God gives believers signs that indicate His will. Our desire should be to live a life of such spiritual noteworthiness that we can recognize the sign and then have the faith to act upon what we have seen.

Just as he did in a stable in Bethlehem, God is still giving signs of his love to us.

They are signs that even a blind man can see.

What the signs mean

There are many who are struggling with various situations, but God sends them signs just as obvious as the sign of the Christ child should have been to the Israel and the birth of Christ.

SIGNS ARE SIGNALS OF GOD'S GOODWILL: God promised Abraham that the world would be blessed through his family. Isaiah built upon that promise by noting that the kingdom of God would be built on the shoulders of one known as Emmanuel. To confirm it, God would give them a sign. Signs indicate God's goodwill toward us. He often sends us signs, little hints that help is on the way, that better times are coming, solutions are forthcoming or even warning signs of danger. Whatever the signs, we will never know what they mean unless we share the mindset of God. If we can't understand the language that God speaks or remain unfamiliar with the many ways that speaks to us it is possible for us to miss the signs.

Sometimes we receive God's signs privately. No one knows the sign we receive and neither will they ever understand. It is through God's goodwill and grace that we receive such private signs; but we should know the source.

Sometimes the signs are evidenced in the goodwill that knocks on our door with a bag of food, a business opportunity, an offer of help, an encouraging word, an inspiring Face Book post, a blessed text and an especially helpful sermon. All of these, like the birth of the child in the stable, should be so obvious to us that even a blind man can see them.

DON'T CONFUSE THE SIGNS: When the shepherds were told about the child being born they wanted to be sure they had the right sign. There were obviously many babies in Bethlehem; they had to know they were worshipping the right one. The same was case for the wise men. They could not confuse the signs. God gave them a sign that would be hard to confuse. There were many babies but only one lying in a manger.

We should be equally careful not to confuse the signs we see. If we pray to the Lord for help on our light bill and then a cashier in the local super market gives us $20 too much change, on the surface it appears like a sign from the Lord! But Satan has tempted us, when we were at our lowest point, by appearing to be an answered prayer.

There are plenty of signs Negro Folklore, but they are not signs from God. Negro Folklore says when your:

— Right eye jumps, it's a sign that good news is coming!
— Left eye jumps, it's a sign that someone is mad with you!
— Left hand itches; it's a sign that some money is coming your way!
— Right hand itches; it's a sign that you will lose some money!
— Left Ear burns, it's a sign that somebody is talking bad about you!
— Right ear burns, it's a sign that somebody is talking good about you!
— Nose itches; it's a sign that somebody's coming your way — Bottom of your feet itches, it means you'll soon be walking on strange ground!

The old timers in our history may have found these signs to have a level of consistency, but they are hardly the kinds of signs that God would give to confirm his goodwill toward us.

When God sends us a sign it will be unique and undeniable. It will be the kind of sign Moses displayed with his rod or that Gideon received just before going to war. When Joshua fought his battles in the Promised Land, God made the sun stand still to give him the victory. When God makes the sun stand still for you, that's a sign that even a blind man can see.

These may sometimes be true but they are not signs from the Lord!

God has given you many signs that he has not abandoned you. Is it possible that you are feeling bad because although the signs are all around you cannot see them?

God is sending us all different signs. When we pray for his revelation, then we will see that the signs are so big that even a blind man can see them..

SIGNS POINT THE WAY: if we travel the highways, we depend upon signs to give us direction. Signs tell us when to exit and what to expect when we exit. The sign of the Christ child gave directions to those who sought him. The signs pointed the way for the shepherds and the wise men. It was a sign written in scripture in Isaiah 7:14 and "Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes" Luke 2:12.

If you have been asking, "What do I do now, where do I go from here?" Why not read the signs. The signs are everywhere, but we must at least glance in their direction. We should not speed through life so fast that the signs that tell us which exit to take zip by so fast that we miss them. It might be necessary to stop and study the signs and study them. God speaks to our situation but often we miss the sign because we fail to worship and hear the word. God gives us the solution, but we have schedules that are so busy that the signs are buried beneath our unopened email, and full agendas.

God responds to our needs but just before he does he usually gives us a sign, a hint that there is something coming our way. We should look for the signs. Look for them like highway signs. When God answers, He gives us signs that even a blind man can see.

It's all in God's hands

Finally, brothers and sisters, the little baby in the manager was a sign that despite the way the world appears the world is still in God's hands.

God told Isaiah to prophesy that in the fullness of time that He would give the world a sign that would be so obvious that even skeptics would have to take note; a virgin shall conceive and bear a son!

The birth of this child will be a sign to a world groping in despair that there is still hope!

The reason the world celebrates the birth of the Christ child is because this child is a sign of renewed hope that "weeping endures but a night, but joy comes in the morning."

The birth of this child gives us new reason to sing, "I'm so glad that trouble don't last always!"

The sign will be more memorable than any signs we have seen.

Geico advertises insurance using a little green Gecko with an Australian accent.

It's a memorable advertisement, but the babe in the manger would be a sign that even a blind man can see.

The Good Year Blimp often posts advertisements on its side while hovering above public events. It's a big sign, but the babe in the manger would be a sign that even a blind man can see.

Marketing companies are putting signs on city buses, park benches, on television screens above urinals in bathrooms, but the babe in the manger would be a sign that even a blind man can see.

The M and M candy company now allows customers to put their faces on each specially designed M and M candy bites, but the babe in the manger would be a sign that even a blind man can see.

The babe in the manger was a sign that:

—When darkness covers the land, that I am able to turn darkness into light!

—That although war is talked about in every corner, there will be peace on earth and good will toward all men!

—That although problems make life difficult, that God will make a way somehow!

This child is a sign of God's unending love.

It was demonstrated in Bethlehem but it was proven on Calvary!

One evening out on Calvary, the world saw the sign of God's abiding love.

For he died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave!

Early Sunday morning an Angel declared, He is not here He has risen, come see the place where the Lord lay. It's a sign that even a blind man could see!

The Day After

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 26, 2010

SCRIPTURE: "And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them. Luke 2:20

Introduction

What do you do, now that Christmas is over? There is a Tremendous buildup to the Christmas holiday that is so overwhelming that the day after for many is like coming down from the mountaintop.

The day a team wins the super bowl there are parades and parties that linger into the night.

The day after Mardi GRAS the entire city of New Orleans shuts down for Ash Wednesday celebrations.

The day after graduation thousands of graduates scratch their heads and ask, "What do we do now?"

The day after the assassination of Martin Luther King there were race riots all over the nation.

The day after a wedding, the honey moon begins.

The day after a person wins the lottery he discovers friends and family he never knew had.

The day after the birth of his first son and new dads starts passing out cigars.

They even have a pill for those who did something the day before that's making the worry the day after!

We know what to do the after big events in our lives, but do we do the day after the Son of God is born a laid in a manger?

We can't throw a ticker tape parade; neither can we party until the wee hours of the morning. The day after we celebrate the birth of Christ should be the day that we decide to celebrate his work, carry out his mission and praise his name.

As Christians, we know what to do after the Christmas celebration: we should continue to praise His name.

Exposition

This text focuses on the events immediately following the birth of Jesus that describe the shepherd's response to what saw and heard in Bethlehem.

Matthew described the visit of the Magi, the wise men from the East. He told how they came bearing gifts of Gold Frankincense and Myrrh. Although instructed by the king to return to the palace with information about the child they refused. Matthew only said that they returned by another direction. The Visit of the Magi was different from that of the Shepherds if the text because their visit occurred long after the actual birth. Some scholars have noted that their visit may have been as many as two years later.

However, the shepherds did not travel a great distance. They were grazing their flocks in the fields, so their arrival and return were coincident with the birth of Jesus.

The text details what the shepherds did immediately after they left the stable. They told what they saw and what they heard and praise God all along the way.

They heard the angel's proclamation and praised God.

They saw the Lord for themselves and they praised God.

They witnessed a miraculous event and for that, they praised God.

The day after Christmas those who knew the full implications of the virgin birth were excited. They told all that they knew about the glories of the Lord. It was a joy that did not end on Christmas morning but was continued the day after and for the centuries that followed.

Day after activities

We know that the shepherds glorified God the day after Christmas. That should serve as an example of what each believer should do after the Christmas celebration ends.

THE DAY AFTER WE SHOULD GLORIFY GOD: The shepherds saw the fulfillment of God's promises and they testified to all that would hear them. They were told that something great was to happen in Bethlehem and God did not disappoint them. That's an example for believers today. When God has kept His promises to us, we should be willing to testify about his greatness. Romans 4:20 encourages every believer not to"stagger" when it comes to trusting in God. Neither should we hesitate to glorify Him; when we do we show others that God keeps His word. On the day after Christmas and every day, we should be witnesses for our Lord.

THE DAY AFTER WE SHOULD ELEVATE OUR PRAISE. Before the shepherds went to Bethlehem they were were content to mind their sheep. The day after, they elevated their praise. They had a sense of excitement about them keeping the spirit of 1 Corinthians 10:31 that reminds us to acknowledge God in everything, including the seemingly small and mundane things. After Christmas, we acknowledge God for every gift we received, remembering that some of our best gifts were not under a tree. This glory and praise that we give to God for His perpetual blessing is not a seasonal occurrence; it never ends. We should praise the Lord 365 days out of every year and glorify him continuously.

THE DAY AFTER WE SHOULD HAVE RENEWED FAITH. There is nothing like experiencing God for yourself. When that happens we should be better prepared to live for God in the days ahead. There is never a year that passes when the faith of God's children is not tested. By the time Christmas comes we will have endured a year of trouble, frustration and sweat. In the run of every year our faith gets tested. It is almost as if each of us were one of the three Hebrew Boys being thrown into the fiery furnace. They encountered God in their fire and praised Him afterwards. When we have survived sickness, defeat, and setbacks thanks to God's help we should close out the year without obtaining a renewed faith in God. After Christmas we should have a renewed faith that because of our encounter with the Lord we can endure any hardship or troubling situation because this year our God has proven Himself able. It's not a Christmas day thing; it's an everyday thing that begins the day after Christmas.

Keep the gift

Finally brothers and sisters as we close out the Christmas season we can throw out the wrappings but we should not throw away the gift.

After Christmas there will be many who leave their lights and decorations hanging for a few days. Soon, however, there will be Christmas trees on the roadside. The beautiful strings of lights will be packed away and the ornaments will be stored in boxes to gather dust until next year.

While we will be packing away the trappings and throwing away the wrappings, we should be careful not to throw away the baby in the manger.

Those who are taking down decorations and packing them away, have a story to tell. It is more than a story of beautifully decorated homes, bright colors and festive spirits. It is a story of how the love of God brought joy and hope into the hearts of every family member.

The spirit of Christmas does not end on Christmas but it should continue the day after. At the manger the world sang "Joy to the world" but it doesn't end there because the day after we still have that same joy; we sing this joy I have the world didn't give it and the world can't take it away!

As we celebrated the birth there were lights everywhere, but it doesn't stop with Christmas day because every day of our lives we sing, "This little light of mine, I'm going to let it shine."

At the manger we sang "Hark the herald angels sing," but the day after our hearts should still be singing with angelic voices, "Glory, Glory, Hallelujah, since I laid my burdens down."

At the manger we celebrated with great fellowship and food, but the day after the food may be gone but are still singing "Bread of Heaven feed me till I want no more."

The day after should begin our renewed effort to build the kingdom of God.

The day after should be the first day of our renewed faith in the promises of God.

The day after should be the first of the new story that we have to tell. It is a story of how God loved the world so much that he gave the greatest gift.

"For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life."

Every Saint has the same story to tell!

It is the story of that began in Bethlehem and ended in Jerusalem.

After Christmas angelic voices are no longer singing but our song should be "Go tell it on the mountain"

The day after and every day we should tell somebody how he woke me up this morning and clothed me in my right mind.

We still have a story to tell!

We still have to tell somebody that he was born in Bethlehem!

We still have to tell somebody that he died on Calvary!

We still have to tell somebody that Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave wit

The first day on dry ground

SCRIPTURE: "And it came to pass in the six hundredth and first year, in the first[month], the first[day] of the month, the waters were dried up from off the earth: and Noah removed the covering of the ark, and looked, and, behold, the face of the ground was dry." Genesis 8:13

Introduction

Have you ever been anxious about the beginning of something new? Most people have butterflies when they begin a new venture; no matter how prepared they seem to be. Whether it's beginning a new marriage, starting fresh in a new city or starting a new year most have a special blend of curiosity, anxiousness, and uneasiness as they face the unknown.

As each New Year begins most of us are at least a little curious about the year ahead. Past experience has shown that very few years work out the way we plan them, and every year always brings the unexpected. What seems to be strong and solid in one minute proves to be inadequate in another. Life often deludes us with deceptive appearances and shallow relationships that frustrate us increasingly as we move throughout the year. Thing are seldom what they appear.

What we have learned is that we can make plans but the will of God supersedes our most thought out courses of action. Whatever happens in the year to come depends on God's will for our lives because He holds our future in his hand.

So, as the New Year begins our faith experience has taught us to fast, pray and seek God's guidance before we make a single step in any direction.

As Christians, we should not be too anxious or fearful. The same God who brought us through last year is still in control. We will trust in Him. He will guide our steps in the days ahead.

Exposition

This text focuses on Noah as he takes his first steps on dry ground after surviving the flood.

The biblical record explains how God became angry with the world because of its sin and decided to destroy it all with a flood. Noah, his wife, his three sons and their wives were the lone human survivors of the flood along with one pair of every unclean animal and seven pairs of every clean animal.

The rains pounded the land for forty days and nights and produced a flood that destroyed the known world of the period. It wasn't the longest rain ever known because in 1994 Oahu, Hawaii recorded 247 days of rain, but the 40 days and nights were sufficient to flood the world of that time.

After the flood ended Noah and his family remained on the ark for a year and 12 days before they stepped forward to begin new lives for themselves.

This text indicates that on the first day of the first month of the year that Noah saw dry ground. When he saw the ground himself he was no doubt encouraged, but he approached his new beginning with careful, obedient, and faithful patience.

He saw the dry ground but he did move hastily. He sent out a raven, and waited. He sent out a dove twice and waited after each return. Then he waited nearly another month before he finally stepped forth from the ark.

To Noah's eye the ground appeared dry enough to move, but he decided to wait until God gave him the command to step forth, assured that whenever he was ordered to step forth, he would step forth on dry ground.

Types of Ground

There is a message for each of us as we face a new year. That message is that we should proceed into the unknown only when we are sure that our path has been directed by God and our steps are ordered to comply with His will.

LET GOD TEST THE GROUND: Noah saw the ground with his eye, but he chose to let God test it and confirm it, before he acted. That should speak volumes to our actions in the year to come, proceed with patience. Patience is very difficult to acquire in a society that is geared toward instant gratification, yet the word of God teaches us to be patient, weigh our options, and proceed only as directed by God. Luke 21:19 says, In your patience possess ye your souls.

Patience does not mean that you do nothing; just as Noah continued to seek signs, we should continue to pray and prepare for God's command. God will test the ground ahead and will signal when it's time to move. The promise of God is that those who follow his will benefit from his favor. Hebrews 10:36 says, For ye have need of patience, that, after ye have done the will of God, ye might receive the promise. Whatever plans we have for our personal and family pursuits, let's put them in God's hands and He will signal when it's time to move.

AVOID SLIPPERY GROUND: There is a reason Noah waited on God, even though the ground appeared dry, because soggy ground can appear dry on the surface but it's slippery and muddy underneath. The year ahead will promise some opportunities to advance quickly, with little effort. It will be the chance to get rich quick, make A's on tests without study, get tax refunds we are not eligible for, or acquire items by hustle. These all represent slippery ground and those who plan to venture into slippery ground, run the high risk of being discovered while drawing the absolute disfavor of God. Reaching too high too fast is slippery ground.

Slippery ground can force us to lose our balance. A limousine encountered a red traffic light and was waiting for it to change when a small Hooptie also drove up. It looked to be just a beat up Volkswagen. The brother in the Limo rolled down the window and started bragging that his car was the best car that money could buy. "It has ABS, airbags for all passengers, automatic climate control, onboard computer control system, photo chromatic glass, mini bar, a television with satellite dish and hydraulic shocks."

At this point the Hooptie owner rolled down his window and pointed, "But do you have live streaming video in there?"

The brother in the Limo had been dissed. He immediately bought live streaming video for his limo.

A few days passed by, and again the limo was at a traffic light when the limo brother spotted the Volkswagen again. He bragged about his limo and showed his rollaway king-sized bed.

"But does it have voice activated GPS?" asked the Volkswagen owner as he drove off. Upset the limo owner hurriedly had a Voice activated GPS system installed. He laughed a few days later when he saw the little Volkswagen pulled to the side of the road with its windows all steamed up. Steam was even coming from the windows and water was dripping on the ground.

The limo brother knocked on the window and said, "I got a GPS system now!"

The Volkswagen owner said, "You got me out of my morning shower to tell me that?"

There are many who have no balance in their lives. They are constantly trying to get more and keep up with their neighbors or outdo someone else.

That quest is slippery ground. It consumes our time, eliminates our spiritual life, diminishes our family life and robs of the joy of really knowing the Lord. Remember Matthew 6:33, Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness and all of these things shall be added unto you. Avoid slippery ground.

SEEK FERTILE GROUND: Not all ground is good ground. That's another reason for us to trust God to show us fertile ground. Fertile ground is ground that will feed our hopes and dreams and help us to grow. A man passed along a road side and noticed a beautiful flower. He pulled it up from the ground, placed it in a vase and placed it high on a mantel in his home. The flower remained beautiful for a few days, but soon he noticed that it started to wither; it later died. It was only beautiful as long as it remained in fertile ground. In the year ahead, seek fertile ground. Seek opportunities that will provide you with nurture and security in the Lord.

What has made you unique? Your relationship to God, your strong faith, attention to godly matters, family and personal discipline has served as your fertile ground in the past. In the New Year, don't cut yourself off from those things that made you fertile in the first place; the results is that you will begin to wither before the year ends. The good news is that those who have experienced infertile ground last year can repot themselves and like David in Psalm 51:10-12 Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me. Cast me not away from thy presence; and take not thy holy spirit from me. Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation; and uphold me with thy free spirit.

Step forward on Dry Ground

Finally, brothers and sisters when God gives the command we must be prepared to step forward and claim his promised while standing on dry ground.

When we look back on the year that has passed we see a way that has been watered with floods of trouble, sickness and distress, but now we must prepare to move forward at God's command to possess our promise while standing on dry ground.

Last year we stood on slippery ground, but now we stand ready to move forward on dry ground.

Last year some of us wallowed in the mud of life's lost opportunities and failed experiences, but this year, we are ready to move forward, standing on dry ground.

Last year we were nearly drowned by heart breaking, career wrecking experiences, failed relationships and lost opportunities, but this year we are standing on "dry ground."

James Weldon Johnson penned it so eloquently when he said in the second verse of Lift Every Voice and Sing, "Stony the road we've trod, bitter the chastening rod, felt in the days when hope unborn had died; Yet with a steady beat, Have not our weary feet come to the place for which our fathers sighed? We have come over a way that with tears has been watered, We have come, treading our path through the blood of the slaughtered, Out from the gloomy past, Till now we stand at last Where the white gleam of our bright star is cast. "

As this New Year begins it is time for God's people to come forth from the ark and step out on dry ground.

On dry ground we remember the promise of Psalm 34:22, "The LORD redeemeth the soul of his servants: and none of them that trust in him shall be desolate."

On dry ground we remember the promise of Psalm 37:5 "Commit thy way unto the LORD; trust also in him; and he shall bring it to pass"

On dry ground we echo the words of Solomon in Proverbs 3:5 "Trust in the LORD with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding."

If we stand on the word of God and put our faith in Him in the year to come we'll be standing on dry ground.

This dry ground is rooted in our faith in Christ who gives us a solid foundation upon which to stand.

Not only is our faith in God dry ground, but it is PROVEN ground. For thousands of years before us the old warriors decided to stand on the promises of God because He never failed them.

I can hear them singing in the midst of slavery, depression, persecution and racism, "I know the Lord will make a way!"

I can hear the old warriors affirming their faith in God's promise sometimes with a shout but then with an old chant, "If I can't say a word I'll just wave my hand!"

When we stand on dry ground, God will turn our:

—Backward steps into forward motions; Failing health into growing strength!

—Losses and defeats into gains and victories; Hard times and bad times, into easy days and good times.

It doesn't matter what the future brings as long as we are standing on the dry ground of God's promise.

As long as you are standing that dry ground there will never be a:

—CROSS that we won't be able to bear; MOUNTAIN that we won't be able to climb!

—ENEMY that we won't be able to defeat; BATTLE we won't be able to win!

—DARKNESS so dark that we won't be able to see the light!

—TRIAL that we can't make it through; TEST that we won't be able to pass!

The Lord is the justification for my faith!

The Lord is the chief corner stone of my hope!

When we stand on dry ground we are standing on the rock.

This rock is Jesus. When we are standing on this rock we are on secure ground.

No wonder the song writer wrote: "On Christ the solid rock I stand, all other ground is sinking sand, I dare not trust the sweetest frame but wholly lean on Jesus name!"

Jesus, somebody here today knows him!

Jesus, the Lily of the valley!

Jesus, the Bright and Morning star!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary and rose up early Sunday morning!

No wonder the songwriter declared, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame, but wholly lean on Jesus name. On Christ the solid rock I stand...

All other Ground!

All other Ground is sinking sand!

Give me my life back

SCRIPTURE: " Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation; and uphold me with thy free spirit. Then will I teach transgressors thy ways; and sinners shall be converted unto thee. Psalm 51:12-13

Introduction

Have you ever felt your life getting out of control? That's the time when had everything just right and then on its own, it just shifted into another gear and took off in another direction? Remember the dream of having the perfect future meeting prince charming and marrying the beautiful princess and living happily ever after? Somewhere along the line something happen and our fairytale life took a wrong turn and like Alice in Wonderland we fell through a hole and found ourselves pursued by the unexpected, chased, distracted and frustrated at the least, and discouraged at the most.

When life gets out of control we ultimately end up in a situation that is frustrating and sometimes dangerous. It's what happens when we drive an automobile; it goes along fine until we lose control. Sometimes we end up in the wrong lane, in a ditch or worse.

It would be nice if we could always control the steering wheel of destiny ourselves, but forces beyond us often seem to grab the wheel and stir us in directions we do not want to go. When that happens it takes a tremendous amount of effort, prayer and will power to regain control of our lives.

Regaining control of your life could mean regaining control of your family life, finances, career goals, dreams, health, and a plethora of other particulars.

Remember the movie "It's a wonderful life?" George Bailey was given a chance to see what the world would have been like without him and he realized how much he really mattered. He cried out, "Give me my life back!" In a similar sense, many of us have seen a time when our lives were going in the right direction, at the right speed, with the right purpose. Some of us have known the sense of enjoyment that we felt when everything was going right. However, when things start to slip away from the norm like George Bailey, we start to shout, "Give me my life back!"

When we silently scream our frustration in the corridors of our mind, God hears us. We know He hears what we think because Psalm 139:2 says, “Thou knowest my down sitting and my uprising. Thou understandest my thoughts afar off.” He sees our frustration and has prepared a response to our plea.

God wants not only to give us our lives back, but to give us a new and improved version, upgraded to meeting specifications of today’s operating system. He wants to give us a chance to wipe and reload our lives leaving out all of viruses, bugs, and hacks that have taken complete control of our spirit.

However, to get the upgrade we must “Click Here” here to begin download the upgrade. The “Click Here”, we must accept Christ, if we want our lives back.

As Christians, we know that God can restore our lost lives, hopes and dreams. He can give us renewed joy, enthusiasm and happiness; all we need to do is ask.

Exposition

This text focuses on David as he asks God to give him his life back after losing control himself in a way that cost one man his life and brought shame on the nation.

This psalm is the result of an instance in David’s life which he made a major error despite being given a golden opportunity.

David was on his palace roof one day when the army had gone out to battle and he saw a beautiful woman bathing herself. He entered into an adulterous relationship with her for she was a married woman. Her husband, Uriah, was a soldier in the king’s army. He was away from home fighting for his nation.

A love child was conceived in the relationship and David panicked and tried to cover it up David ordered Uriah to be put in the forefront of the battle where he would most certainly be killed. When news of Uriah’s death reached the king he felt he had safely covered his sin. In Psalm 32 David records how he felt during that terrible time when he was trying to cover up his sin. “When I kept silence,” he says, “my bones grew old through my groaning all day long. For a year he tried to live with a bad conscience. But, as the story records, God sent the prophet Nathan to David.

Nathan approached David in a way that he could not deny and singled him out as the man responsible for both adultery and murder. In a prophetic moment the prophet Nathan pointed a finger at the king and said, “Thou art the man!” David knew then that his sin was uncovered.

At this point David came to grips with the fact that despite the way it appeared to others, his life had actually gone out of control. He had caused a man’s death, stolen his wife, and disgraced the nation. All of the problems that resulted afterward were his own making. He felt his life slipping away.

He fell on his face before God and out of his remorse came the fifty-first Psalm. He asked God for forgiveness. He wanted his joy back! He wanted the saving grace of God back! He wanted his life back.

God heard his prayer and restored him. Once restored David went on to become the greatest King in Israel’s history. His past discretions were never forgotten by his history, but his new life was so awesome that it completely overshadowed that one dark period in his life when he lost control.

New Start

If life has snatched our lives away, and literally gained control of us, steering us in ways we don't want to go, what can we do take get our lives back?

GET OUT OF MY LIFE: The enemy (Satan) tries to take the wheel of your life every day. He grabs our steering wheel every day. We shout at him when his actions almost kill us and he releases us for a moment or two. It won't be long however before he tries again. Matthew 12:43 tells how the devil left a man, but soon returned when he realized that his life was still unoccupied and brought with him seven other bad spirits. Matthew 12:45 says, instead of getting a new life the man was worse than he started. What he did wrong is what we must recognize: It's not enough to tell the devil to "get your hands off my wheel" If we do that he'll leave us alone for a while but he'll come back and bring with him more bad spirits. We must tell him to get out of our lives completely. If we want our lives back we must look at every weakness we have incurred on this wrong turn then change the people we run with, places we go and the things we do. If the devil sees that you simply made a resolution to do better your life is still headed in the same direction. Like The Terminator he says it loud and clear "I'll be back!" -Get your life back by putting the devil out of your mind and our life, completely.

GET BACK TO GOD: The life we want is available for the asking, but we have to get back to the basics of truly living: God, family must take priority over all other things to get control of our lives. Only God give us our lives back. Through worship, prayer, and service we invite God into our lives. However we must follow David's example first: He admitted his own role in his problem, asked forgiveness then asked God to give him his life back. The life we once knew can be restored. The pride you once had can be rejuvenated. The drive we once demonstrated can once again be seen. Dr. Robert Schuller has a book entitled, "Tough times never last, tough people do." It is a basic truth that every life will experience bad turns and tough times that get us completely off track. It is also a basic truth that for people who turn to God, tough times don't last always. If we truly want to get our lives back then we should pay more attention to the most important qualities of the good life: God and family. Is it possible to improve our spiritual lives and get closer to God? Is it possible to rebuild our families so that we are closer together? If you have gone through a tough time because life has taken control of the wheel of your destiny, get back to God, get back to your family, and begin the first steps of getting your life back!

GET GOD'S ASSURANCE: God assures us that if come to him that we can get our lives back and more. The enemy comes to take your life and all that is important to you, but Christ comes to give it back and give it back better than it was before the enemy took it. John 10:10 says, " The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." The devil may have stolen our joy, happiness, marriage, finances, career, but God promises us that He can give it back and give it back in a way that was better than we had before. Isn't that what happened to Job. The enemy stolen his money, took the lives of many of his family members, destroyed his healed and caused his friends to turn on him, but God restored it all and restored it in a way that was better than he had at first. We have God's assurance that if we trust Him we can get our lives back! No matter how difficult the times or how badly we have errerd the blood of Christ has assured us the ultimate victory. This assurance is revealed to his in the many ways that he carefully provides for us. It is revealed in the way that he protects us through difficulties. Moreover, this assurance is revealed to us in his written word in Isaiah 54:17 "No weapon formed against us shall prosper!" -We have God's assurance that we can get our lives back! No wonder the song writer declares, "Blessed assurance Jesus is mine, Oh what a foretaste of Glory divine. Heir of salvation, purchase of God. Born of his spirit, washed in His blood."

Getting it back

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that if we put our lives in God's hands, the devil can't snatch it back!

Herein lies the danger of simply making a resolution. A resolution to modify a few things here and there doesn't change much because everything about us is still vulnerable to the enemy who is seeking to kill and destroy.

If we intend to get our lives back we must put our lives back in God's hands. We must once again, put our trust in the Lord.

Trusting in the Lord is not a trite saying, an empty colloquialism that tickles the ear but lacks substance and power!

Trusting in the Lord is not a failed experiment, or the testimony of the weak and faint hearted.

Trusting in the Lord is a statement of faith that affirms that the life we live has been placed in God's hand. He is the pilot; we sit in the second chair and wait his instructions.

Trusting in the Lord is an affirmation of faith that better than all state, we are in good hands when we are in His hands.

Trusting in the Lord is a belief that greater than State Farm, better than a good neighbor, God is always there!

To get our lives back we must trust in the Lord.

When we put our trust in the Lord he makes our:

-RACE worth running and our BATTLE worth fighting!

-COURSE worth finishing and our FAITH worth keeping!

-DIFFICULTIES worth facing and our BURDENS worth bearing!

-ANXIETIES worth enduring and our TEARS worth shedding!

When we trust in the Lord, we turn dark days into sun shiny days; MIDNIGHTS into noontimes and hard times into good times!

If the world begins to "hate" on you, you need to tell them to "get you a life" because I have a new life in the Lord.

Because I have my life, I'm going to praise the Lord.

We should praise the Lord because his:

Grace is always sufficient; Love is always abundant

Mercy is everlasting and; promises are sure!

We should praise the Lord for the burden he's going to lift off our shoulder!

We should praise the Lord for the hill he's going to help us to climb!

We should praise the Lord for the bills he's going to help us to pay!

We should praise the Lord for the job he's going to help us to find!

We should praise the Lord for the home he's going to help us to buy!

I'm praising the Lord because He gave me my life back.

I'm praising Him because he plucked us from the very mouth of despair and gave me a second chance!

I'm praising Him because He lifted my life out of the miry clay and placed my feet on solid ground! for me and gave it to me as a free gift.

I'm praising Him he purchased my salvation!

I couldn't buy for myself because it couldn't be bought with dollars, but only by the ultimate sacrifice.

The song writer said, "Jesus paid it all, all to him I owe. Sin had left its crimson stain but he washed it white as snow"

Jesus came and died out on Calvary!

But early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave, guaranteeing my new season!

No. 9474-King Day

If King had sneezed

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 16, 2011

SCRIPTURE: If it had not been the Lord who was on our side, now may Israel say; Psalm 124:1

Introduction

Are you aware of the many ways that God protects you every day? Probably not. Yet, God surrounds us with his mercy and protective grace for a special reason. He has a purpose in mind for each of our lives and he provides shelter, protection and escape whenever life circumstances threaten our existence.

Historically, we have praised those who have succeeded in escaping injustice and wrongful acts.

We have a great romance with the Harry Houdinis and David Copperfields of history, men who seemed to magically escape confinement although wrapped in chains, strait jackets, and handcuffs. Our theaters and literature reflect our attraction, pander to our imaginations and feed our desire to see the righteous escape the pitfalls prepared by Satan.

When Martin Luther King set out on a journey to tear down the walls of racism in America the devil immediately planned ways to stop him. Yet, even while the plans were being made against him, God was moving to protect him, moving him ever closer to his ultimate goal.

Among the writings of Dr. King is this description of an episode in his life in which he felt protected by the hand of God. He said:

"Several years ago, I was in New York City autographing the first book that I had written. And while sitting there autographing books, a demented black woman came up. The only question I heard from her was, "Are you Martin Luther King?" And I was looking down writing, and I said yes. And the next minute I felt something beating on my chest. Before I knew it I had been stabbed by this demented woman. I was rushed to Harlem Hospital. It was a dark Saturday afternoon. And that blade had gone through, and the X-rays revealed that the tip of the blade was on the edge of my aorta, the main artery. And once that's punctured, you drown in your own blood, that's the end of you. It came out in The New York Times the next morning, that if I had sneezed, I would have died."

A little girl later wrote Dr. King a letter that said, "I'm glad that you did not sneeze."

Today, all of us are glad that Dr. King did not sneeze because that sneeze would have aborted his ultimate purpose.

If he had sneeze there would have been no "I have a dream speech."

If he had sneezed the probability of passing the 1964 Civil Rights Act would have been diminished.

If he had sneezed there probably would not have been a 1965 Voting Rights Act.

If he had sneezed the union of races to achieve the common good would not come as far as it has today.

Like the little girl, we are glad that Dr. King didn't sneeze. Yet, we are even more thankful to God, because we know if it had not been for the hand of God he would have died before he achieved His purpose.

It is reassuring to every believer that God is still in control, guiding each of us to our ultimate purpose.

As Christians, we celebrate the life of Dr. King, but we celebrate even more the God whom Dr. King served. The God whose steady hand guides our footsteps and keeps us from that "sneeze" that could divert us from our destiny.

Exposition

This text focuses on David writing about His miraculous escapes from enemies by the power of God.

The text is the fifth in a series that seem to describe God intervention into the affairs of men with one word, all beginning with a "P." Psalm 120 has "prevarication" as its theme as it speaks of God sheltering us from lying tongues. Psalm 121 has "Preservation" as a theme as it speaks of God neither slumbering nor sleeping in his efforts to preserve us. Psalm 122 has "Piety" as a theme is focuses on His delight in worshiping in the House of God. Psalm 123. Has prayer in mind as it speaks of seeking help from God in heaven.

Psalm 124 notes David referring to the power of God to protect Israel. Had it not been for that power the nation would not have been able to accomplish its purpose.

In this text, David gives thanks to God for delivering him dangers seen and unseen that would have prohibited him from fulfilling his purpose as King of Israel.

David praised God for saving him from physical enemies in the land of Canaan. They sought him but were always unable to snare him. His enemies ranged from Saul to the Philistine giant Goliath.

David therefore gave thanks to God for deliverance from adversity. If it had not been for the Lord the nations in their anger would have destroyed them (vv. 3-5). The raging waters of arrogance would have overwhelmed them and the nation's ultimate goal of independence and sovereignty would have been thwarted. (Ps. 123:4)

Truly, if it had not been for the Lord, David would not have achieved his great accomplishments and raised Israel to its highest heights.

God will not abandon us

Each person has a destined purpose. When that purpose is to fulfill the will of God we are assured that his protecting hand will always shield us from dangers seen and unseen. That's what the lone survivor of tragedy feels, "God is protecting me for a purpose." There is something else that must be done with this life before it ends.

This is the great confidence that believers bring into every circumstance. It is this knowledge that has sustained men like Martin Luther King as they stepped forth to fight against injustice. Without this assurance none of the great men of our history would have ever stepped forward to champion the cause of Christ. These are the same assurances that every believer has today.

God speaks to us like he did to Moses in Deuteronomy 31:6, "Be strong and of a good courage, fear not, nor be afraid of them: for the LORD thy God, he it is that doth go with thee; he will not fail thee, nor forsake thee.

We walk daily with the threat of violence

Martin Luther King, like every person who steps out of the shadows to participate in a great work, lived with the threat of violence. He was beaten, jailed and threatened by people inside and outside of his own race. Yet, he boldly marched on confident that he would accomplish his goal of sensitizing our nation to the needs of the poor, and foolishness of war, all while extending the brotherhood to all who would accept it.

Every year the nation mourns those who threaten our peace, attack our leaders, and even kill our children. In Tucson, Arizona, a man killed a federal judge, shot a Congresswoman, and others were killed and wounded including a nine year old girl. We have seen threats against Presidents, principals of schools and even children bullying and threatening other children in school yards or over the internet.

In the face of these actions we must continue to pick up our wounded, console those who are hurt and move forward. Dr. King evidenced that resolve after being stabbed with a letter opener and threatened on so many occasions. There is a journey we must all take even if there are those who would prevent us from fulfilling our course.

Our national experience has been a journey through the fire. The courage of men like Dr. King continued to remind us that God was with us and we found the courage to march forward until "Justice runs down like water and righteousness like a might stream."

In all of our struggles we can clearly see that it was only the grace of God that brought us through.

A poor family lived in a shack on the outskirts of town. There was great alarm in the city when the fire bells began to ring and the volunteer fire department made a mad dash to put out the flame. By the time the flame was finally extinguished, there was nothing left but a pile of charred rubble.

The husband pulled his wife and children together and hugged them and as he looked at the smoldering remains of his little shack he said, "Thank you Jesus." The son was puzzled. "Daddy, what are you happy about? Our house is gone. Our clothes are gone. Everything we have is gone! I can't see anything to be happy about."

The father looked at the son and said, "All you can see in the pile is what we lost. I look at that same pile and praise God that what could have been in the pile, is not there and that is us!"

If it had not been for the Lord on our side, we would have been consumed by the fire.

Faith stands firm even in face of the fires of life

The success of the Civil Rights movement was achieved through faith in God. If it had not been for the grace of God, Dr. King's dream would have been a fantasy rather than an achievable goal.

Today, the challenges we face are just as formidable. We still live in a nation that is racially divided. While many thought the election of Barack Obama as the first African-American president signaled the end of racism, we soon found that racism is still alive in the nation and will be around for decades to come. The quest for equal treatment under the law continues as old laws that barred us from full participation are slowly repealed. The struggle for economic parity is the next battleground and the enemy is oblivious to color, sex or creed.

It was the faith of God that brought us to the present plateau in our journey, and faith will see us through.

Those who have a strong and abiding faith in God are not intimidated by the fire.

Faith stands firm even though your fraternity or sorority may blackball you!

Faith stands firm though your political career may be jeopardized!

Faith stands firm though your financial future may be threatened!

We walk by faith because our journey has proven that "If it had not been for the Lord on our side, we would not have survived."

The grace of God guides us to a divine purpose

There is a divine purpose in the gradual but sure rise of African-Americans from the obscurity of the slave house to the power and the prestige of the White House. When we consider that we were a people who were constitutionally only three-fifths of a human being but were viewed as fully important to the heart of God, then we recognize that God must have been at the heart of our deliverance and elevation.

If it had not been for the grace of God where would we be? There is no doubt that our people would not have come as far as we have without the hand of God delivering and protecting us along the way.

When the grace of God is upon us it is for a divine purpose.

Dr. H.W. Beecher relates the story of the traveler who came upon a bridge in a storm.

Despite the howling winds he rode across the bridge to find lodging in an inn. The next morning he was asked how he was able to cross the bridge. The man answered he just rode across. The inn keeper took him to the bridge site and showed him that the bridge washed out days earlier. Only a strip of plank lay across the raging river and he managed to cross it in the middle of a storm, without missing a step.

The traveler nearly fainted when he saw the 100 foot drop that could have been his fate. Then the innkeeper asked, "Where are you going?"He answered, "I'm delivering a vaccine to the hospital across the valley; without it hundreds will die." –The innkeeper then answered, "Now you know why you were able to do the impossible, grace carried you across the bridge because you are an answer to someone's prayers."

In the same sense, God's grace is upon us because we may be the answer to someone's prayers. We were saved from the fire for a reason. We survived the hardships of our past for a reason.

If it had not been for the Lord

Finally, brothers and sisters, when we think about the journey that we have traveled, we cannot ignore the fact that we have made it thus far, only by the goodness of the Lord.

If not for the intervention of the Lord, something as small as a letter opener could have stalled the civil rights movement. We dare to think about what the world would have become if Dr. King had sneezed. Would there have been a Black president? Would there a Hispanic on the Supreme Court?

If King had sneezed the pendulum of fairness would have halted in it's inevitable swing toward the day the prophet Amos declared that, "Justice would run down like waters and righteousness like a mighty stream."

If King had sneezed, the steady march toward a color sensitive, but yet color blind society would have skipped a beat and slowed its pace.

If King had sneezed the trumpeting sound of hope that echoed in the ears of those accustomed only to the sound of their own sighs of despair would have been silenced.

Yet, for every book store in New York where the letter openers of the devil miss their mark, there is a corresponding Memphis, where destiny meets it's final call.

In Memphis, Dr. King declared that "Like anybody, I would like to live a long life. Longevity has its place. But I'm not concerned about that now. I just want to do God's will."

In Memphis, Dr. King went to the mountain top and glimpsed the Promised Land but down in Bethlehem, a baby was born who would begin a journey that start in Galilee and end in Jerusalem.

If he had been aborted by a teenaged unwed mother, what would have been our hope?

If he had succumbed to the temptations of the devil who challenged Him to turn stones into bread, we would not be able to sing "Bread of Heaven feed me till I want no more."

If he had been successfully tricked by scribes and Pharisees who sought to abruptly end his mission of mercy, he would not be able to tell, "Lo, I am with you always."

Even when they nailed Him to an old rugged cross, if He had come down from that cross, he would not have been able to declare, "And I, if I, be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me."

If had not risen from the dead after three days and nights we would have no hope!

But I'm so glad that Early Sunday morning that He arose from the grave, renewing our faith, securing God's promise to us all.

If it had not been for the Lord on our side, where would we be?

Thanks to His saving grace we can declare, "Mine have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord; His truth is marching on!

Foot Dragging

Scripture: And Joshua said unto the children of Israel, How long[are] ye slack to go to possess the land, which the Lord God of your fathers hath given you? Joshua 18:3

Introduction

Waiting for tomorrow; are you guilty? There are far too many of us who are procrastinating about what essentially needs to be done today, putting it off until another day. We make lofty plans and fill our daybooks with dates, times and places only to schedule them out as we put them off until tomorrow.

What was that Shakespeare said about tomorrow? "To-morrow, and to-morrow, and to-morrow, creeps in this petty pace from day to day,To the last syllable of recorded time; And all our yesterdays have lighted fools the way to dusty death." He may have been correct. Those things that we put off until tomorrow do have a way of suddenly creeping up on us. Before we know it tomorrow is today.

Delay and uncertainty are the main villains of progress. They are deadly. They prompt us to make wonderful pledges at the beginning of a thing but by the end of a thing still not have done what they said they would at the beginning; even worse, many have not even made the first step.

The colloquial term for this type of delay is foot dragging. Whether the foot dragging is intentional or not is not important because the end result is the same: the thing that needs to be done is not done but is put off until another day.

If there is something that we should be doing, but are failing to do, what's taking us so long? If we are constantly putting it off, why are we dragging our feet?

When it comes to improving our relationship with God, are we foot dragging here, too? Do we constantly promise ourselves to do better, but delay in doing so? Is there a reason? Whatever the reason, there is certainly a consequence.

As Christians, we must not delay as we carry out our mission and purpose in kingdom building. The time to act on our faith in God is now; there is no time for foot dragging.

Exposition

This text focuses on Joshua as he rebukes Israel for being slow to take advantage of the opportunity to enter the Promised Land.

It had been a long journey through the desert; forty years of wandering. Israel had moved into the Promised Land but seven of the 12 tribes had not taken any steps to claim their inheritance in the new land. For one reason or another they were satisfied with having an inheritance without actually laying claim to one.

In the initial conquest they had collected spoils from several cities and they were enjoying the moment. They postponed the day when they would need to move out and claim their inheritance which could mean more trouble and sacrifice. The land they inherited was occupied by the Canaanites. Taking their inheritance meant rebuilding cities, driving flocks great distances and carrying their wives and children to strange places.

They simply had no desire to move forward so they dragged their feet. They enjoyed living in the moment.

Thus, Joshua was prompted to ask, "How long will you slack?"

Causes of Foot Dragging

DOUBTS CAUSE MANY TO DRAG THEIR FEET: Doubt means that there is distrust. It means that we believe in God but we don't trust him completely.

There are many who live by the old maxim: A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush. That was Israel's dilemma in the new land, they knew what they had in hand, but they were uncertain about the outcome of future enterprises, therefore they delayed taking actions. Their uncertainty was rooted in their doubt.

When we are faced with the hard circumstances that life presents, doubts enter our minds. Those doubts keep us from doing what we should be doing. They detain us. They restrain us. They hold us back.

When we doubt it indicates that at least for a brief moment, we let our faith in God slip. These are the times that we trust only the known and put little trust in the unknown. God should not be an unknown entity to believers; we know His strength and power; we also know He delivers on all of His promises.

Moving forward we should sing the hymn, "I will trust in the Lord, I will trust in the Lord until I die."

FOOT DRAGGING DELAYS PROMISED BLESSINGS: Foot dragging delays promised blessings: A by product of foot dragging is that blessings God has in store for us are unnecessarily delayed. Whatever the foot draggers of this text enjoyed, it could not compare to what God planned for them as part of their inheritance; procrastination only delayed their eventual blessing. The same is true today. The results of foot dragging are numerous: it's that business never gets started, the expansion that never happens, the relationship that never begins; or never ends the way we know it should. The actions we should take but delay, often force us to miss opportunities God has prepared for us. We should hear the word of God say in Isaiah 41:10 "... I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness."

What's taking you so long? The longer you wait, the longer it will take to claim the great blessings that await you.

TOO MANY ISSUES CAN DELAY YOUR BLESSSINGS: The tribes that delayed claiming their inheritance began to deal with many issues that caused them to delay their promised blessings. Some began to immolate the habits of the Canaanites by worshipping the gods of their neighbors, intermarrying with Canaanite women. This resulted in a number of legal, personal and relationship issues that prompted them to delay moving forward to claim God's promise for them.

Even today, there are many who cannot move forward to claim their promise because they are dealing with so many issues that they never seem to get around to it.

You have seen it so many times. Before you can finish dealing with one issue there is another and another. In fact, on a daily basis you deal with so many issues that you have very little quality time for your family, the service you promised God or the spiritual life that you need.

These issues can become so cumbersome that instead of moving closer to God, the promise seems to move farther away. Sometimes, the issues that seem so important to us actually become dead weights that hold us back. Hebrews 12:1 suggests that we should turn aside from issues that are weighing us down. It says, Lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us.

The foot dragging will end for us when we lay aside the weighty issues that are slowing us down and lay claim to God's promise.

When God gets ready

Finally, we must consider that God may allow us to drag, and delay for a while, but when God gets ready, "you got to move."

We may procrastinate, but the time will come when God will shake us into action. When He gets ready for us to move, we won't be able to resist Him we will move.

That's the lesson that Jonah learned, when God gets ready, you may run, but you won't be able to hide.

It's the lesson that pharaoh learned, when God gets ready, even the mighty armies of Egypt won't be able hold back His hand of deliverance.

It's the lesson that Saul learned on the Damascus Road, when God gets ready, even those with power and influence to hurt God's people, must change their direction.

When the world suffered from a lack of direction, sin stained lives, and moral corruption, God needed somebody who come down to the earth and make the eternal sacrifice.

In the fullness of time God scanned the roll of His saintly warriors and asked the question, "Whom shall I send?"

In the fullness of time somebody's coming from heaven to say, 'And God shall wipe all tears away' Whom shall I send?

In the fullness of time, somebody's coming that that will remind us that, 'Lord is my shepherd and I shall not want," Whom shall I send?

In the fullness of time God searched the staff files of heaven and looked for someone to send, but every man every name that popped up on the screen had a problem. Spiritually, they were dragging their feet:

-David had blood on his hands!

-Samson had a woman problem

-Hosea had a cheating wife

-Esau had a crooked brother who may cause a problem!

-Balaam had a pocket full of bribery money

I heard the voice of the Lord, saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then said I, Here am I; send me.

He didn't drag His feet, but He said, 'Send me and I'll tell them that 'blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God.

'Send me and I'll tell them that 'blessed are the merciful for they shall obtain mercy.

'Send me and I'll tell them that 'blessed are they that mourn for they shall be comforted

'Send me and I'll do more than tell them, I'll show them how much God loves the world!

When the time was right, He didn't drag His feet, He came down through 42 generations.

When the time was right, He didn't drag His feet, He was born down in Bethlehem!

When the time was right, He didn't drag His feet, He healed the sick and raised the dead!

When the time was right, He didn't drag His feet; He fed thousands and made the blind see!

When the time was right, He didn't drag His feet, He picked up an old rugged cross and carried to Golgotha's hill!

They buried Him in a borrowed tomb, but Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave!

And right now, when you call, He won't drag His feet, He'll be there right on time!

Scripture: Then you'll be free to enjoy GOD! Oh, I'll make you ride high and soar above it all. I'll make you feast on the inheritance of your ancestor Jacob." Yes! GOD says so! Isaiah 58:14. (msg)

Introduction

How do you know you're at the top? When have you achieved? Many youth are striving to get to the top but their definitions of success are thwarted. Some buildings have wings that ascend to different heights. While one building may have 10 floors another wing may have fifteen or more. Elevators in the shorter building can't take riders to the top of the extended floor, only to the top of its building. Reaching the top floor in the first building doesn't get you to the maximum height available, to get to the highest level riders have to change elevators.

In that sense youth definitions of success seem dependent upon which elevator they are riding. Some can take them a portion of the way, others can take just so far; then they stop.

A 2010 song by Lil Wayne is entitled, Right above it. It features Wayne bragging about his success, his women and his fame. He brags that he knows he's at the top because he's reached a point where only heaven is above him. The main lyrical hook says,

"Now tell me how you love it, you know you at the top when only heaven's right above it."

He extolled his airplane flights filled with women and his "Bollywood flow." Yet, there is a touch of sadness as Wayne says, "My real friends never hear from me. My fake friends write the wrong answers on the mirror for me." He is popular and sought after but he said he doesn't run with different crews, he and some of those close to him walk the same path but "got on different shoes."

True believers don't focus on the life that Lil Wayne projects, but they are focused on the life that's right above it. It's life on a higher plane and higher ground. It's a life free of the clubs, and drugs, and fast living. It's a life not dependent on glitz and bling and shiny things.

Young believers may be walking the same social path by accident of social circumstance, but young believers should have different crews and be wearing different shoes, the gospel shoes that destined toward the Canaan land.

As Christians, our quest is higher ground. We desire more than fake friends and empty relationships that the world offers. We desire the life above it, but that world only comes through Christ.

Exposition

This text focuses on Isaiah as he tells Judah about the coming day in which they will ultimately rise above of their troubles and achieve their destiny.

Israel, exiled in Babylon, heard a word of encouragement from the Prophet Isaiah who projected a time of restored prosperity and happiness provided that the people obeyed God. The entire nation of Israel suffered exile and disenfranchisement as a result of their failure to obey the will of God. They had adopted many of the ways of their neighbors, serving false gods and abandoning the laws of Moses. Many had abandoned their private altars and no longer observed the Sabbath. This angered God and He allowed their ungodly neighbors to triumph over them, forcing them into exile away from their own homeland.

The text verse begins with the word "Then." That implies that there is something prior to the promises of verse fourteen that must be considered before focusing in on the text.

What are the prerequisites necessary for verse fourteen to be realized? Look at the conditions that begin in verse eight

In Isaiah 58:8 he promised to restore their good health, noting that "thine health shall spring forth speedily."

In Isaiah 58:9 He promised to hear their prayers when they called on Him and to answer them. He said "then shalt thou call, and the Lord shall answer; thou shalt cry, and he shall say, Here I am." Yet, that promise was predicated upon the condition that they would not get in involved in vainity.

In Isaiah 58:10 the people were told that if they once again showed compassion to the poor, fed the hungry and helped the afflicted, that God would help them to rise out of obscurity of their exile and turn their darkness as the noonday.

In Isaiah 58:11 Isaiah noted that God promised to guide them continuously and give them a spirit of satisfaction, completeness and wholeness that would sustain them in difficult times of drought and trouble. He would be like a perpetual spring to them whose waters would never run dry.

In Isaiah 58:12 God promised to raise Judah to high heights on a solid foundation of faith that would extend to their children and grandchildren. This promise is given provided each generation continues to walk in the restored path.

In Isaiah 58:13 God said his promises and blessings would come provided that the people not turn away from the Sabbath, and actually found enjoyment in worship, and found pleasure in doing those things that would please God.

The preceding thirteen verses explain why verse fourteen begins with "Then." The conditions spelled out in the preceding verses would be followed by God's promise to lift them so high that they would achieve ultimate of success on earth, the only thing greater would be heaven itself. “Riding upon the high places of the earth” is the phrase that is used in verse fourteen to describe the circumstances that believers would experience who choose to obey God. Nothing on earth would be able to compare to these blessings because they will come from God Himself.

Keys to success

There are several considerations that youth should make as they plan their own success. We should set priorities in life that can withstand three levels of judgment.

EVALUATE OURSEVLES: The first step to success for any person is to evaluate the present situation. In Shakespeare play “Hamlet” Polonius speaks to his son about avoiding thing this that do not accurately reflect who is he is. In Act 1, Scene 3 Polonius says, “This above all: to thine own self be true, And it must follow, as the night the day, Thou canst not then be false to any man.” The man or woman who succeeds must do so without betraying himself. There are so many young people who have not heard the Shakespearian call, “to thine own self be true” and they daily betray, deny and distance themselves from who they really are as they strive to become what will make them popular.

Is this why the respected young lady takes on the dress and manner of the school hussie; so that she can be popular? Is this why the well groomed young man ignores the instructions of his parents and dresses and acts the part of the thug, so he can be popular. Is this why the Sunday Christian is the Monday devil? Self evaluation forces us to ask why we really want to do the things we do? Do we want success so that we can achieve a high purpose or because we want the fame and notoriety associated with success? Self evaluation is the test that each of us takes each morning as we stare into mirror. The humble person will think little of his accomplishment, apart from God. The proud man will think he is all of that and a bag of chips. Yet, Galatians 6:3-4 says, “For if anyone thinks himself to be something, when he is nothing, he deceives himself. But let each one examine his own work, and then he will have rejoicing in himself alone, and not in another.” The first key for success is to be true to yourself and to your calling as a child of God. Don’t be fake, make your life real and your faith real; and when you are among others, “Keep it real.”

MONEY AND SUCCESS ARE NOT THE SAME: There are many who believe money will put them on top of the world. Riches, they believe, are the answer to all of their problems. Obviously, money has its place, but it doesn’t guarantee you a place at the top, only a quick elevator ride up and a fast fall, if money is all that you are about. Money can guarantee that you have many people calling your name, knocking on your door and patronizing you every second. It cannot guarantee true friendship or love. Neither can it buy God’s favor, which is what everyone needs to truly succeed. Unfortunately, many are like Solomon, doing things for the sake of the money. Often what we do conflicts with the voice of our conscience. The pursuit of money and riches can push us to do many things that we normally consider against our better judgment if we are not careful. As we set priorities, acquiring money should not be ruled out as admirable end but it should not be an end in itself. Many at the top have found that it provides temporary sensations of happiness. There millions with money who are committing suicide, filing for divorce, stealing, and living miserably. So, money can guarantee the symbols of success but not success itself.

George Washington Carver discovered over 300 ways to make products from the peanut. In his generation he was one of the most respected agri-scientists in the world. Based on his ideas products such as Miracle Grow, the system of crop rotation in farming and other innovations were discovered. He was no doubt a successful man who turned down offers to earn salaries valued at $1 million a year today. Early in his life he filed three patents then decided to give them all to humanity: peanut butter, shaving cream, wood stain nearly 1,000 others. He lived a comfortable life, died without great wealth, but was extremely successful. On his desk was a bible to which he pointed whenever asked about the source of his innovations. He gave God the glory and without money his life is one of the great American success stories.

PLEASING GOD BRINGS SUCCESS: Pleasing God is the epitome of success for a child of God. For a student the trick is to learn what kind of things can I do to please God. Is God pleased because our team won the game or that you made it to the playoffs? God is probably pleased if your team played fair, had fun and did its best. He has no interest in who wins a championship, only that those on each team exhibit the qualities of champions. What many say they are doing for God is really for themselves. We want men to salute us and give us credit. We want Oscars and Grammies, Tonies and Super Bowl Rings. We want the praises of men so badly that it becomes the full focal point of our lives. It seems that what we really want is the approval of the world; its endorsement and stamp of approval are vigorously sought. Yet, we have really achieved when we make God happy.

God told Isaiah what he sought from Israel. In return He promised to take them higher than they ever imagined. He promised them reasonably health, strength, peace and satisfaction.

To achieve godly success must please God. We must worship him and testify of his goodness to others.

We must live a life that is sanctified and devoted to him.

We must do whatever we have promised Him we would do.

When we keep those promises to him, he is pleased; when He is pleased we have become a success in the eyes of God.

Lift Him Up

Finally, brothers and Sisters, we must aspire to more than what those like Lil Wayne have put in front of us; to be so high that only heaven is above; we must aspire to go to that place that is above, that place called heaven.

The ultimate success for every believer is to gain entry into the place called heaven.

To get into heaven, it is not required that we live high but rather that we live in a way that we can touch the most common man but walk humbly before God

To get into heaven, it is not required that we own a large house or ride in a stretch limousine, even though those might be admirable luxuries. What is required is that we seek a building not made by hands.

To get into heaven, it is not required that we have diamonds in our ears, gold in our teeth, and enough bling to blind the angels, but it is expected that when we've been tried in the fire that we come through as pure gold.

To get into heaven, we are not required be famous or have our names called on the nightly news, but it is expected that we should be ready to testify and tell the good news that Jesus Christ is Lord.

There is only way to achieve heavenly success, and that means we must be born again.

It is a guaranteed fact; those who are born again will be lifted up higher than they have ever been before

There is no doubt that every believer shares in this assurance, Our God will lift you up.

To be lifted up means to be raised up in honor and respect.

To be lifted up is to be picked up when you have been knocked down!

To be lifted up is to have doors opened when they have been closed in your face!

To be lifted up is to be set free when you have been a captive all of your life!

He's brought me from a mighty long way!

The Lord has promised in Matthew 6:33 that those who "seek ye first the kingdom of God and his "righteousness" shall all of the other things added unto them.

If I surrender all, when I've failed, some way or another, he will turn my failure into success!

If I surrender all, when I'm weak, some way or another, he will turn my weakness into strength!

If I surrender all, when I have questions, some way or another he will provide the answers!

If I surrender all, when I am frustrated, some way or another he will give me hope!

I surrender all!

I surrender all!

All to Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

All to Jesus, who arose Early Sunday morning!

All to thee my precious savior, I surrender all!

In search of Paradise

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

January 2011

SCRIPTURE: "And the LORD God planted a garden eastward in Eden; and there he put the man whom he had formed." Genesis 2:8; "And Jesus said unto him, Verily I say unto thee, today shalt thou be with me in paradise." Luke 23:43

Introduction

What would you consider paradise? Generally paradise is a state in which we are surrounded with positive images, where everyone and everything works together for our good, and time is of no consequence. Paradise is illusive and has been sought after for generations. Politicians and social planners have tried to manufacture paradise or create the ideal "Utopian" society that would give us paradise, such as that depicted by the philosopher Plato.

What is paradise? The Native American calls it an eternal happy hunting ground. Egyptians call it Aaru, the reed-fields of ideal hunting and fishing grounds where the dead lived after judgment. The Celtics call it the Fortunate Isle. The classical Greeks called paradise the Elysian Fields, a land of plenty where the heroic and righteous dead hoped to spend eternity living in the fields of Ambrosia. The Vedic Indians believe that the physical body was destroyed by fire, but in the Third Heaven a state of bliss they call paradise it lives continuously. In the Zoroastrian Avesta, the "Best Existence" and the "House of Song" are places of the righteous dead; their version of paradise.

Most of us don't need to go that far in our thinking. For some, it would paradise if they had a week with no problems, headaches or hindrances. For others, paradise is soaking in a hot bath with bubbles up to their necks. Still others see paradise as a relaxing day on a beach without a care in the world. In these contexts paradise is the moment in time when everything seems perfect and working in sync for our pleasure, enjoyment and security.

The quest for paradise is universal. It has always eluded man's feeble attempts to achieve it totally. One of the greatest literary works in the English language is Paradise Lost by John Milton. In it he describes how mankind lost the gift of Eden in the garden and progresses through life trying to regain what was lost. In its ten thousand lines of free verse, Paradise Lost tells the story of the world's first paradise, Garden of Eden, how we lost it, and our journey to life to "get back to Eden."

Eden was a real paradise. It was inhabited by the highest form of God's creation: mankind, the male and female of which God named Adam and Eve. Eden, located in area bounded by Africa on the West and Saudi Arabia on the East, was described as a Garden planted by God himself. It was the place God intended his first creatures to live, without difficulty or aging, from time to eternity. Life was so simple; they did not even need shoes or clothes. It was the world's smallest city. There were no governments as we know it today. There were no mayors or governors or presidents, yet this small two person city was a real paradise. How long it existed is not known. Since time and aging was not a factor, Adam and Eve could have been in the garden for thousands of years.

Eventually, however, the garden paradise that was known as Eden fell. It fell because of the disobedience of its citizens. There has been a succession of efforts since Eden to restore the state of paradise enjoyed by Adam and Eve. All have been unsuccessful despite their best efforts.

A popular contemporary Gospel song by Donald Lawrence features these lyrics:

When God made man, He made a spirit
It was his plan that we live blessed.
The tempter came, we were distracted the tempter came and we fell
We were deemed to live a life that's beautiful,
A life that's full, A life that's rich and plentiful
It is my goal to remind you of this principle
You're redeemed, A new born soul.....

Let's get back to Eden live on top of the word.

Getting back to Eden or recreating the paradise lost is the theme of the Old Testament. Yet, there is no reference at all to going back to Eden in the New Testament. The New Testament only looks forward to a state greater than Eden. It's the place the New Testament describes as paradise.

As Christians, our goal is to pursue the kingdom of heaven. It is the reality of our spiritual existence. Our forefathers sang, "I'm on my way to the Canaan Land." It is the land greater than Eden, is the homeland of the soul, a place called "heaven."

Exposition

These texts paint a portrait of two places, both blessed by God, whose occupants enjoy the experience of peace, love and security. One is in the past; the other is being prepared for us.

Genesis 2, points to the Garden of Eden. Although called a garden, it was not a garden as thought of in modern times; a small patch of ground in which fruits and vegetables grow. It was an expansive territory that spanned from Kenya in Africa to what some scholars say is modern day Iraq. In it God placed man in a state of luxury, peace, security and protection from all hurt, harm and danger. Yet, because of sin, this garden existed was destroyed and turned into a literal desert as it is today. The door was literally closed on Eden, never to be revisited again. Never on this earth would mankind ever enjoy what was lost in Eden: Perfect Peace.

The New Testament doesn't look back, it continuously looks forward. Luke 23:43 focuses on Christ on the cross. As he died hoisted high between two thieves, one of the thieves belittled Christ and challenged him to save himself and the other cross victims as well. However, the second thief had a different respect. Luke records the exchange this way: Luke 23:40-43 "But the other answering rebuked him, saying, Dost not thou fear God, seeing thou art in the same condemnation? And we indeed justly; for we receive the due reward of our deeds: but this man hath done nothing amiss. And he said unto Jesus, Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom. And Jesus said unto him, Verily I say unto thee, today shalt thou be with me in paradise."

The idea of paradise, a place where life will be eternal, love unending and joy unimaginable is permeated throughout the New Testament. There is no talk of returning to Eden, but of moving to another level of existence, one that will be in the presence of God forever.

Searching for Paradise

Throughout our lives we have searched for paradise. Even today, the world is still searching for paradise. It seems that we are looking for the perfect place or the perfect city.

Is there any city in the world that we can call paradise? Even in biblical times the search was endless to find paradise. Abraham journeyed from place to place trying to find a perfect city, a literal paradise.

What is this city? Where is this paradise?

Is it Babylon?

Babylon was known for its hanging gardens, one of the seven wonders of the world. It was known for its tower that reached up to heaven. This was the city that housed the lion's den where Daniel met his test of faith and where the three Hebrew boys were thrown into the fiery furnace. This was a city made by warlike Babylonia hands, it was not a city made by the hands of God.

Is it Bethel?

Bethel was a well constructed city important in biblical history. It was named by Jacob one night after he had a dream of a ladder reaching up to heaven. But Bethel was a place where Golden calves were built and idol worship flourished. It was not a city made by the hands of God.

Is it Bethlehem?

Bethlehem was certainly an important city. It was the birth place of David and the birth place of Christ. It was the home of Ruth and the place of anointing for the king of Israel. But Bethlehem was destroyed by the Roman army 200 years after Christ. It was a beautiful whose foundations have been destroyed. It was not a city made by the hands of God.

Is it Sodom and Gomorrah?

They were the twin cities of the plain. Known for their industry and commercial importance. But they were cesspools of immorality and homosexuality and were destroyed by God with fire that rained down from heaven. They were not cities made by the hands of God.

Is it Jericho?

It was a powerful city surrounded by large walls that defended it against enemies. But its walls were destroyed by Israel led by Joshua who marched around them 7 times and blew trumpets at the command of God. It was not a city built by the hand of God.

Where is the city?

Then John said "I saw a new heaven and a new earth...and I saw the holy city New Jerusalem coming down from God out of heaven prepared as a bride adorned for her husband."

It's a city not made by the hands of men!

It is painstakingly clear if we are trying to find paradise we can't find it with anything made by the hands of men.

God created Eden and outside of God, no one can really find paradise. God must create paradise.

God Has Prepared Paradise

Finally, brothers and sisters while it is impossible for mankind to get back to Eden, it is possible for all believers to get to paradise. It is a prepared place for a prepared people.

Paradise cannot be achieved through acts of governments, dictates of monarchs, or the philanthropy of the rich. It can only be achieved as millions respond to the Gospel of Christ.

The church's quest is to keep teaching and preaching the Gospel message until paradise is ultimately achieved.

The church must teach the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, that's what will exist in paradise!

The church must teach its young about the goodness of God. We must write it on the door posts and tell them in the morning, evening and at night. That's what we will have in paradise, the goodness of God.

The church must continue to remind the world that we serve an Omnipotent God, whose power is second to none. That's what we will know in paradise!

Abraham traveled all of his life, looking for paradise, it was a city not made with hands!

Elijah received a one way ticket to paradise!

Over yonder, in paradise, the wicked will cease from troubling!

Over yonder, in paradise, the weary will be at rest!

In paradise:

-There are no wars because there is only peace, in the place called paradise!

-There is no hatred, because there is only love, in the place called paradise!

-There is no sadness, because there is only gladness, in the place called paradise!

-There is no weakness, because there is only strength in the place called paradise!

-There is no death, because there is only life in the place called paradise!

I know paradise exists because I heard Jesus say, "I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am ye may be also!"

Paradise is a land, on a far-a-away strand where we will never grow old.

In paradise, there will be perfect streets, made of solid Gold!

In paradise, there will be perfect lighting, because it will be illuminated by the glory of God!

In paradise, there will be perfect medicine, because there will be a tree in its midst that will be good for the healing of the nations!

I don't know about you, but I want to go the place called paradise!

Paradise, a city that sits on 12 foundations!

Paradise, a city that has twelve gates. Three gates on the North. Three gates on the South. Three gates on the East and three gates on the West.

Paradise, a place where everyday will be Sunday and it's always howdy and never goodbye!

Paradise, a place where the undertakers will have no jobs and hospital beds will be empty!

Paradise, a place where judges will be unemployed and policemen will never make an arrest.

Paradise, a place where there will be no more tears because God shall wipe all tears away!

We must tell the story!

We must tell the story about paradise!

We must tell the world about Jesus!

Tell them how Jesus came and died on Calvary!

We must tell them how he rose after three days!

We must tell them about the promised paradise when he returns!

When all get to heaven, what a day of rejoicing that will be. When all see Jesus, we sing and shout the victory!

When you get more than you Request

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 30, 2011

SCRIPTURE: And he leaping up stood, and walked, and entered with them into the temple, walking, and leaping, and praising God. And all the people saw him walking and praising God: And they knew that it was he which sat for alms at the Beautiful gate of the temple: and they were filled with wonder and amazement at that which had happened unto him. He was was introduced to the power of God. He sat at the gate called beautiful. He was being introduced to a new temple, a new priest, a new sacrifice and a new access to the glory of God. So, he received much more than a healing; he received the Lamb of God himself. Acts 3:8-10

Introduction

Have you ever asked for something, then received more than requested? Occasionally all of us see something that we like and ask for it; sometimes we are surprised that we not only get what we requested but more.

You asked for a slice of cake, but you received ice cream, too.

You only wanted one piece of chicken and your plate was filled.

You asked for a $50 bonus but you received a $100.

You asked for a half way decent looking man and you got an absolute hunk.

All you wanted was a just a plain God fearing woman and you got a bombshell.

All you really asked for was a passing grade in your class but you received a much higher grade.

We all know the feeling of excitement we get when we get more than we ask for. It's exhilarating to say the least.

Whenever we get more than we ask for it means that we are enjoying God's favor. Favor is when God goes beyond our prayer request and gives us more than we request.

Yet, there is something that we must consider: God doesn't make mistakes. He does not confuse your prayer request with that of your neighbors. If He sent you two blessings when all you ask for was one blessing, He did not make a mistake.

A widow woman prayed to God for enough meal and oil to make a final cake for herself and her son. The prophet Elijah came to visit her shortly afterwards and told her to reach in her barrel and make the cake of bread. When she reached into the barrel she retrieved enough meal to make a cake for herself, but there was also enough for visitor as well.

Each day, she found that the barrel never ran dry. That was not a mistake. There was a reason her barrel never ran dry and why there was always just enough to make one more for the visitor. God blessed her so that she could bless the prophet who was spending a few days under her roof.

Is it possible that God blesses us with more than we need, so that we can help someone else?

We may have two coats so that we can share one with the man who has no coats.

We may have 20 pairs of shoes so that we can share some with the woman who walks in her bare feet.

We may have extra food in our pantry, so that we can provide a meal for someone in need.

That may explain the strange way that God seems to answer prayers. Sometimes we ask for one thing and He gives us something else; not even close to what we requested.

One author put it this way:

I asked for strength, God gave me difficulties to make me strong.

I asked for wisdom and God gave me problems to solve.

I asked for riches and God gave me plenty of work to do I asked for courage and God gave dangers to overcome.

I asked for love and God gave me troubled people to help I asked for favors and God gave me opportunities.

I asked for power, that I might have the praise of others I was given weakness, that I might feel the need of God.

I asked for all things, that I might enjoy life, I was given life, that I might enjoy all things. I received nothing I wanted, but everything I needed.

As Christians, we know that our savior has promised to hear our prayer and provide for all of our needs. When He goes beyond that and favors us immensely beyond what we actually need, He has another purpose in mind. Let's seek His purpose and follow His will.

Exposition

This text focuses on Peter and John as they encountered a lame man entering into the temple.

The lame man, according to the text, had been lame since birth and a very familiar site around the temple. Unable to support himself because of a physical impairment the man asked for alms at the door of the temple on a regular day. When Peter and John approached the man asked them for alms and expected either to receive a coin or two or a rejection.

Much to his surprise the text indicates that Peter spoke to him and said, "Silver and gold have I none but such as I have, give I thee in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk."

To the man's amazement strength returned to his legs and he was able to stand and walk.

He asked for money but he received something more than money.

This biblical incident gives us a dramatic snapshot of God providing for the wants and needs of believers, according to His purpose. It suited God's purpose for the lame man to walk. He would be a witness to God's power. For that reason he received more than He asked for.

His jubilation, witness and testimony would help advance the kingdom, so gave Him more than he asked for.

The lame man did exactly as God wanted. He praised God openly and went into the temple to testify to the goodness of the Lord.

Reasons for Abundance

The Bible has provided numerous examples of how He provides abundance to some for specific reasons. These show us how God operates in the community of mankind. Joseph saw a dream of seven years of plenty and seven years of famine. The years of plenty were sent to Egyptians for a reason, so that they could prepare for the seven years of want. It was not chance. In that sense we should view any level of abundance that we have a season with a reason and seek to fulfill God's purpose.

OVERWHELMING FAVOR: When you have too much of a good thing, it is easy to be overwhelmed by it all. That's the way it is with God's favor. There are times when we are overwhelmed at the goodness and mercy of the Lord. This often happens when we achieve a long sought after goal or receive a blessing that we desired but felt unworthy to receive.

Overwhelming favor requires an overwhelming response. God does not intend for us to fill our barns when we have reaped a great harvest then tear them down and build even bigger barns. If you need one egg a day and God fixes it so that you have a half dozen every day, it may be time for you to start sharing your eggs with others who have none. If he has given you health and strength in abundance, then maybe it's time to do something for those who are a bit weaker.

For every action from God, there should be an equal action from us in response. If we are given more we should give more. If we have more we should do more. "To whom much is given, much is required."

OVERWHELMING EXCITEMENT: When God has given us more than we expected there should be an overwhelming excitement. The woman at the woman was given another chance and she was excited. She was so excited that she ran through the city telling all that she met, "Come see a man who told me all that I have ever done." The lame man in this text jumped and leaped for joy He was excited about the goodness of the Lord. In a similar sense, believers who have received more than they expected or requested from God should feel some level of excitement just thinking about the goodness of God.

When the Lord blesses us financially in ways that we did not expect, it's shouting time!

When a wayward child starts showing signs of hope, it's shouting time!

When a lost family member finds the Lord, it's shouting time.

OVERWHELMING WORSHIP: The lame man of this text sat outside the gate for many years, but never went in. He thought all he needed was money to make it every day. When he was healed, the first thing he did was to praise God then he immediately followed Peter and John into the temple.

In the sanctuary, we who have received the favors of God can lift him up in praise and thanks!

In the sanctuary, we who have been the recipients of His grace can tell the world that our God is an awesome God!

In the sanctuary, we who have been the beneficiaries of God's benevolence can tell the world that He will make a way out of no way.

In the sanctuary we can lift our voices in praise and give Him our testimony.

Because of Jesus, we should be shouting

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must know that God gives us a blessing to make us a blessing in the name of Jesus.

There is a blessing in sharing abundance with others. That's why often people who give gifts want you to open them in front of them so they can see the joy on your face when you see it. They get a blessing from giving, sharing and helping others.

We get a blessing whenever we bless someone the way God has blessed us.

I can't please God if I have 20 pairs of shoes in my closet and won't give a single pair of the good ones to someone who barely has one pair on his feet.

I can't please God if I have a freezer full of frozen foods that's been there for months, but I won't share a single pound of hamburger meat with struggling single mother down the street.

I can't please God if I have a new car or SUV, but won't use it to give a ride to a person walking the street in the rain.

Whenever the Lord has done something good for you, there ought to be a whole lot of sharing and shouting going on!

Whenever you think about how God has blessed us, there's a whole lot of hand waving going on!

Whenever we think about how God has picked us up and turned us around, there's a whole lot foot patting going!

Whenever we think about how he provides food for us when we are hungry, there's a whole lot of hand clapping going on!

When we think about how he brought us out of nowhere and carried us to somewhere. There's a whole lot of shouting going on!

We're shouting because of what He has done!

We're shouting because of what we expect Him to do!

We're shouting because he's been to us and we just can't keep it to ourselves.

Every time you think about the mountains you've climbed and the valleys in your way, you ought to feel a shout coming!

He's been a lawyer in my courtroom! I think I feel a shout coming on!
He's been a doctor in my sick room! I think I feel a shout coming on!
He's been a bridge over troubling waters! I think I feel a shout coming on!
He picked up an old rugged cross and shouldered the burden of my sin!
Out on Calvary, He died, that I might live!
They buried Him in a borrowed tomb..
But, early Sunday morning, arose from the grave with all power in His hands!
I think a feel a shout coming!
He's still blessing me with more than I need
I don't know about you, but I think I feel a shout coming on!

The Mission of an Atoned Man

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 2011

SCRIPTURE: Now after that John was put in prison, Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, And saying, The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand: repent ye, and believe the gospel. Now as he walked by the Sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and Andrew his brother casting a net into the sea: for they were fishers. And Jesus said unto them, Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men. And straightway they forsook their nets, and followed him. Mark 1:14-18*

Introduction

Have you ever thought about your life before Christ? What type of man were you? Did you drink, gamble, chase women, live ruthlessly, carelessly and without thought of God or heaven? If you did any of these then you can relate to the millions of men in the world who once traveled the meandering path that led to hell, but turned from that crooked, decrepit and sinful way.

The Black man in America and here in these hallowed Islands has strayed away from the path of our ancestry. We are men who have withstood the challenges of racial discrimination, disenfranchisement and second class citizenship, but something has happened to our sense of manhood to a point that there are many who abandoning our ancient roles as leaders, shaman, healers and warriors. We are fast becoming a generation of gangsters, dead beats and video game junkies.

Even in this context, the call is given for a new generation of men to rise up from the ashes of despair and become what God intends for them to be:

Men who reach other men.

Men who save other men.

Men who do what needs to be done for the salvation of their families and of our race.

How does an entire race of men repent? In 1995 one million black men marched on Washington D.C. to stand together and ask God to help give them atonement for their sins. It was a march, but it was a day of atonement in which black men came from across the nations, and even from these Islands to stand shoulder to shoulder with other men to say to God: We shall atone for our weaknesses as men.

Louis Farrakhan outlined eight principle steps in the atonement process. Simply stated, they are as follows: 1. Point out the wrong. 2. Acknowledge the wrong. 3.

Confess the Fault. 4. Repent. 5. Atone. 6. Forgive. 7. Reconcile and Restore. 8. Perfect Union with God. It was said in 1995 that when these principle were put into practice that a healing would take place in the nation as the sound of a new cultural revolution began.

The march was held. The speeches were given and the million men who were assembled returned home.

Much of the world they returned to remained the same. It became apparent that the march alone did not resolve the lingering problem of the inglorious presence of the black man in America.

The change black men needed could not be provided by Farrakhan and the Black Muslims. Neither could it be delivered by a political movement with a suitcase full of government programs, workshops and clinics. True repentance for the Black man can only come by the hand of God himself.

As Christians, we recognize the sovereignty and power of God. It is He who can turn lives around. It is he who can make a difference when he touches the lives of men. When men are touched by God, the world can only wonder at the glory of his accomplishment. It is then that the world marvels at the glories of the truly repentant man.

Exposition

This text focuses on Christ as He assembled his inner circle of disciples.

As Christ traveled He sounded a theme that had been introduced by John the Baptist just a few years prior to His ministry: Repent for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.

To build the kingdom of God Jesus needed men who were willing to turn from their personal pursuits and dedicate themselves to the cause of building God's kingdom on earth. As he traveled he met men of different walks, perspectives and expectations. He challenged each to follow Him and prepare to change the world.

Christ challenged these men to use all of their secular skills for the glory of God. The phrase "I will make you fishers of men" refers to the transformation of their former calling into a spiritual one. The targets of this particular invitation were fishermen by trade. They were asked to do what they knew how to do best, fish; but using the same basic principles Christ said he would show them how to become fishers of men.

Calling men in on walk of life and challenging them to use their skills in the business of kingdom building was the nature of Jesus' relationship with the disciples. His constant reminder to them was that they did not necessarily need the power to do what needed to be done, but that He would do it through them.

The emphasis therefore is on the "I will make you.." part of the text. For this work Jesus will qualify them, authorize them and give them the commission to fish for souls.

To become fishers of men the disciples had to follow Christ completely. They had to separate themselves and follow him as their Leader. That means they had to learn the nature of the new calling and how to retrain themselves for spiritual fishing.

The men that Christ recruited had one great job: reach out to others so that the Kingdom of heaven could be a reality.

Response of the Atoned Man

When Black men atone for several generations of neglect what will be the result? Will we see anything new in the approaching generation? Will we rise higher, live cleaner and enjoy the blessings of God more? Christ recruited 12 men that He challenged to change their own way of living and thinking then change the world. The efforts of those 12 have effectively changed the world. When black men truly atone the results will be similar in our community.

OUR FAMILIES WILL BE DIFFERENT: The atoned black man will resume his place as the head of the "household of faith" or the local family. Every black father or husband has an intrinsic responsibility to the family; we must serve the community, but we must take care of business in our own families. Those who serve on boards or who lead governments have an even more awesome task because beside their responsibility as community leaders, they also must function in their own families as husbands, fathers, uncles and grandfathers. They must avoid the danger of substituting one for the other.

The strength of our people has been in the solidarity of our families. Black families need strong men in every home. Three or more generations have matured with absentee dads and non-existent husbands. We have survived only by the grace of God himself. Yet, while there are millions of families that are still thriving, a great many of our families are showing signs of disintegration. As our families become more tolerant of deviant behavior and less homogeneous, the community feels the impact.

The public record chronicles why we need men in our families. The record shows that 23 percent of 20-29 year old Black men are either in jail or on probation at any given time. While there are more than 600,000 young Black men enrolled in college there are more than 800,000 under the control of the criminal justice system. The nation spends more than $3 billion a year to keep them locked up, making privately owned prisons the fastest growing new business in America.

The record shows that we are plagued with a dilemma of problems created by a generation of neglect.

Our families need strong, godly and repentant black men."

Our mothers need strong me as loving husbands and providers.

Our Children need strong men who are present and functioning in their lives.

OUR COMMUNITIES WILL BE DIFFERENT: The new black man, who has come to realize his role as a man called by God to rebuild the community, will work to make changes, starting with the way the community sees black men themselves. Earl Ofari Hutchinson, author of "The Assassination of the Black Male Image" writes that the image of Black men in America has been carefully shaped by the national media which forcefully projects the image of the Black man is that he is either the ignorant Sambo or the hate filled Savage. Sambo or Savage, that's the choice that African American women and children are given, when they consider the image of the Black man in America. The image of the black man must change.

Black men must reclaim our neighborhoods, help to make our streets safe and promote drug free, crime free neighborhoods. Across America, Black men, sensitive to the problems of our community, are organizing themselves. National fraternal organizations such as the Alpha Phi Alpha and Kappa Alpha Psi, Prince Hall Masons, The National Baptist Convention and others are energizing men to organize and take action.

Millions of Black men are forming organizations such as the 100 Black Men of America with units all over the nation. The aim of the push is to get Black men who are successful to do more than simply be successful, but to roll up their sleeves and plunge into the problem.

There is no comparison for what can be done if men of good character roll up their sleeves and do good work. Men who responding to this need should hear the words of Jesus speaking to them, "follow me." As we follow Christ, we bring the spirit of atonement to our communities as well.

OUR CHURCHES WILL BE DIFFERENT: When men atone and assume their rightful place in kingdom building our churches will be different. Over the last 50 years we have witnessed the leadership of our local churches become female dominated. This is not a putdown of women who lead, it is however a reflection of the deteriorating condition in many churches. The sad fact is that there are not many men to choose from: In their absence women are stepping up to the plate and becoming program leaders, superintendents, deacons, trustees, ministers and even pastors. This is not necessarily a bad thing but it does put an unnecessary burden on women who are acting in the absence of available men.

When black men atone and return, the church will be different. Through his church he can join shoulders with other men of faith and gain faith, fellowship and friendship as he praise God and attacks the evils that threaten the households of family that he loves.

The problem that God's men face is huge, however, with God it is not insurmountable.

God's men must search the scriptures to seek divine what needs to be done our communities and homes cannot be done without Him.

When men come to God, the church changes.

When men come to God, the community changes.

When men come to God, the world changes.

When men throw out the net of salvation, they become fishers of men who can reach others on the behalf of Christ. That is the mission of the church, it must be done if Christ is to be lifted up and the kingdom of God is to be established on earth.

The glory of the repentant man

Finally, brothers and sisters, the repentant man is a glory to himself, to his family and most of all he is a glory to God.

When men atone for our sin of neglecting God and family for so long, God will get the glory.

If ever there was a time when Black men need to know God that time is now!

A black man in business for himself soon finds that he can't succeed in the business world unless God sends the customers!

A black man climbing the corporate ladder, soon finds that he can't maintain his upward climb without the Blessings of the Lord!

A black man striving to lead a family soon finds that his job is made much easier when he and the Lord are on good terms! It doesn't matter whether you are male or female, everyone needs a blessing every now and then!

The truly repentant and atoned Black man has a new resolve that is rooted in his faith in God. It is a resolve that is rooted in Romans 8:38-39 "For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

With God's help, the atoned man is invested with a supernatural anointing to do God's work. He's not just any man; he become's God's man.

Have you heard of "Superman?" When he worked at the Daily Planet newspaper, he was just Clark Kent, a mild mannered reporter. But when he went into the phone booth and put on his blue and red suit with a big "S" on his chest he became "Superman." They called him superman because he was able to run faster than a speeding bullet! They called him superman because he was more powerful than a locomotive! They called him superman because he could leap tall buildings in a single bound! They called him superman because with his x-ray vision he could see through closed doors; with his strength he could bend steel bars like pretzels; and bullets bounced off his chest! Brothers and sisters, a man who knows the Lord is a superman!

A man who knows the Lord finds that Problems bounce off his chest like rubber bullets! A man who knows the Lord finds that he leaps tall difficulties with a single bound! A man who knows the Lord can grab hold to a tough situation and bend it like a pretzel! The only thing that hindered superman was Kryptonite. It made him weak! It took away his power! The only thing that hinders a believing man is losing his faith in God and losing faith in himself! As long as a man or woman trusts in God, nothing is impossible, because God will take our:

—Questions and give us Answers; Frustrations and give us confidence —Weaknesses and give us strength; Failures and give us success!

No wonder the song writer wrote, "I will trust in the Lord! I will trust in the Lord till I die!" A man, who knows Jesus, cannot be hindered because he knows that the Lord has promised that "no weapon formed against thee shall prosper!"

A man, who knows Jesus, cannot be hinder because he knows that he is never alone, for Jesus has said, "And lo, I'll be with you always, even until the end of the earth!" Nothing should hinder men because Jesus, the man of God has paved the way!

He died out on Calvary!

But Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with the victory in his hand!

For they are Virgins

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 2011

SCRIPTURE: "These are they which were not defiled with women; for they are virgins. These are they which follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth. These were redeemed from among men, being the first fruits unto God and to the Lamb." Revelation 14:4

Introduction

Is it possible that a person who has made a mistake can be redeemed? Can such a life be salvaged? Can men who have faltered along the way, ever be restored to a strong relationship with God? Can the purity of our spirit be restored?

Every person makes a mistake or two in life and deserves an opportunity for restoration, but society is unforgiving, merciless and with a few exceptions, punitive.

If ever there was a race that has felt the sting of society's rejection it is the Black American male. More than any race the Black male has felt the sting of social, political and economic disenfranchisement. We who have built the railroads, picked the cotton, and provided the creative genius that has helped this nation to become great, know that pain of falling into the worst conditions.

Some of our tragedy has fallen upon us because of the harshness of our masters and superiors and the military might of our adversaries. However, some of our plight has been at our own hands. We have contributed to our own demise is many ways. The jails across the nation are rapidly filling with people of our race, but are responsible for at least some of the crimes for which we are accused? Teenage pregnancy is soaring in our community and black fathers are disappearing in large numbers; are we at least partially the blame for leaving our children to survive on a child support check that we do not pay? If a generation of young men are growing into men with more concern for sagging pants than they are for tightening their belts and walking straight, who can we blame?

For a race in which men were the strong towers in the family, it is tragic to see how low we have fallen today. It's tragic to see black men beating women like punching bags, running away their children as if they had the plague and resorting to drugs and alcohol in such large numbers that entire communities are being devastated. Even more tragic is the loss of Adam and Eve in the place of Adam and Steve.

It is true that the Black man has fallen into impure state, but it is equally important to remember that the repentant man will rise again.

An understanding of the scripture helps us to know that Ethiopia will rise again. There will be a resurrection of the Black man in conjunction with the rise of the faithful, from all walks of life, who have chosen to accept Christ as their personal Lord and Savior.

When that resurrection comes God will find a truly repentant a dedicated man standing before him ready to serve and to help build the kingdom of God

As Christians, we are happy to know that the Black man is not doomed to failure, but on the contrary is destined for success and glory. This divinely appointed destiny can truly begin when all men everywhere, repent and turn to God. Once a man repents, there is no limit to his strength, energy and upward mobility because he is being led by the power of God.

Exposition

This text focuses on a passage of scripture that foretells a day in the tribulation period in which 144,000 Jews will come forth to praise God, having purified themselves before the Lord.

John, writing the Revelation, told of seven years of tribulation in which the world would endure a purging for its refusal to accept Christ. Between Revelation Chapter four and chapter 20 the picture of sinful man is portray and the various judgments that God will place upon the unrepentant to bring them back to God before the final judgment.

This text often raises eyebrows because it uses the word “virgin” to describe the purified state of those who come forth out of the tribulation. The Greek work “parthenoi” which is translated “virgin” in this text has been the subject of theological dispute for centuries. Some think that the bible is literal in its meaning that those who come will only be the virgin men, who have had no contact with women.

However, the greater body of scholars believe that the text does not refer to the atoned of chapter 14 as literal virgins but as men had not defiled their bodies in either a physical or spiritual sense. According to the Easy to Read Commentary “There is no irrefutable scriptural basis upon which these positions can be either proved or disproved, it is clear that the characteristics of these selected people were, though not perfect, purer than most. They were not faultless in either the eyes of God or the eyes of man, but they were certainly commended for their virtuous lives.”

The text points to the spiritual state of the redeemed among men: pure, untouched and chaste purified and ready to follow the Lamb.

We Must Purify Ourselves

Those who want to truly want to follow God must come to him in a spiritually chaste state of being.

For centuries, believers in every faith, denomination or religion have known that God cannot be approached or rightly followed unless those who would be his disciples first purify themselves. Even Christ Himself, spent forty days and nights in the wilderness to purify himself for His ultimate purpose.

If men intend to do any great work ourselves, our families and our people then we must follow this example, we must "cleanse ourselves" to succeed in spiritual things. This means we should make sure our motives and reasons for doing things are pure. Jesus said, "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God."

When we do any work for the Lord it should be with one objective only, "that God be praised."

Whatever men are doing, it cannot be achieved successfully without purification. If we sing so we can be praised, perform a service so we can be praised, or minister so we can be praised, then we need to check our motives. James 4:8 says, "Purify your hearts." To be successful in Christ, we must do whatever we do for the intent of glorifying God.

We must come before him in a virgin state, a state of purity, a state of celibacy to one Lord, one faith and one baptism.

We must be willing to follow

Men who will change the world for Christ must be willing to follow Him wherever He leads us. Throughout scripture, when Jesus called men, He called them to follow Him. He never found anyone who was already walking the path towards the Kingdom of Heaven, but they had to turn from a self directed path to follow Him.

Describing how the disciples forsook all, Mark 10:28 says, "Then Peter began to say unto him, Lo, we have left all, and have followed thee."

Luke 5:27-28 says, "And after these things he went forth, and saw a publican, named Levi, sitting at the receipt of custom: and he said unto him, follow me. And he left all, rose up, and followed him"

Christ Himself warns that those who purport that they are His disciples cannot do so unless they are willing to give up all. Luke 14:33 says, ""So likewise, whosoever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my disciple."

Today, the spirit of God is calling Black men to come forth to put the spirit of God in action in our local communities. Following Christ with a pure intent means rolling up our sleeves to tackle the problems that are before us. It means following His example of ministering to the poor, the imprisoned and showing compassion for the less fortunate. Following Him also means becoming fishers of men, reaching out, drawing, and sustaining those who need his Godly embrace.

Men who follow the Lamb do so because they have "washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." They follow Christ into eternity because they first met Him at Calvary and gave Him their lives.

Men who follow the Lamb do because it is he who keeps them saints. "He keepeth the feet of his saints."

If men are to reclaim our communities that have fallen, then that reclamation begins when men decide to follow Christ with pure motives, with no secret political or social agenda. The power of God itself will begin the restoration.

Willing to witness

We must be willing to witness and willing let God give us the words to say.

Prior to the 1960's the black male assumed the role of leadership in His family, church and community. He was the living witness to the strength and power of God as he stood before angry racists, political systems and barking dogs to defend his family. However, today, we are increasingly depending on women to lead us.

While black men don't claim a gender bias, there is something unsettling about women fighting battles as men stand on the sideline and watch; we must assume our roles the symbols of strength and stability in the community.

Some rightly say, "I don't know what to say." They point to story of the barber who thought he should share his faith with his customers more than he had been doing lately. So the next morning when the sun came up and the barber got up out of bed he said, "Today I am going to witness to the first man that walks through my door. Soon after he opened his shop the first man came in and said, "I want a shave!" The barber said, "Sure, just sit in the seat and I'll be with you in a moment." The barber went in the back and prayed a quick desperate prayer saying, "God, the first customer came in and I'm going to witness to him. So give me the wisdom to know just the right thing to say to him. Amen."

Then quickly the barber came out with his razor knife in one hand and a Bible in the other while saying "Good morning sir. I have a question for you... Are you ready to die?"

He didn't know what to say and said the wrong thing. However, men who led by the spirit of God begin a witness with God speaking, acting and moving through them.

We don't know the words, but God does. He will show us the way, if we are willing to witness for Him.

Putting God first

Finally, brothers and sisters, if men are to place their virgin faith in practice we must stand ready to give God the first fruits of their time, talents, and resources.

John saw the vast number of men marching forth out of the tribulation, with the robes washed in the blood of the lamb. These men, with virgin faith, untarnished by doubt, fear, or frustration, came forth ready to present God their first fruits or their best.

These men will be virgin men in that they will have only one motive and that will be to please God.

These men will be virgin men in that they will have only one purpose, and that will be to build His kingdom.

These men will be virgin men in that they will have only one destination, to make to marriage feast of the Lamb.

Men who are going forth in the faith should seek to increase their witness and double their efforts to build the kingdom of God.

There can be no increase in wisdom, maturity, and favor with God and man unless there is a proportionate increase in our faith.

We need to increase our faith in our own abilities, assisted by the power of God.

We need to increase our willingness to step out on God's word although the waters and storms of life are raging.

The just shall live by faith. That means we walk with the Lord, not in the same old beaten path, but every year we climb higher.

Men who have atoned and presented themselves to God seek new levels of achieve for Him.

These are men who want to increase from weakness to strength.

These are men who want to increase from defeat to victory.

These are men who want to increase from discouragement to hope.

These are men who want to increase from loneliness to comfort

The man who fears the Lord is a man who lives a good life before his children and his wife, but most importantly, he lives a good life before God.

Like a virgin, He knows no other God; he knows no other woman, and he knows no other cause that he places before his God, his wife and his family.

Like a virgin, the man who fears the Lord clings to the Lord and to Him only.

The men of every generation must tell the story of their own atonement. They must tell the young men of their own Damascus Road experience. They must tell somebody how, like David, they cried out, "Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation.

When the young men of a congregation see men tell the story! They tell the story of mountains climbed and valleys traveled!

They tell the story of a young man who came to himself in a pigpen and decided that "in my father's house" there is plenty of what I need.

I heard somebody testify, "I met God one morning, my soul feeling sad, heart heavy laden, with a bowed down head. He lift my burdens and made me so glad all that I know is, there is something within."

They tell the story of answered prayer. A man who knows the Lord knows that the Lord will answer prayer.

They tell the story of men who bowed down before God to worship and praise him!

Tel the story of the prophet who said, "Here am I, send me!"

Men who fear the Lord tell the story of salvation and redemption.

Men who fear the Lord are quick to testify that one day the savior "picked me up and turned me around and planted my feet on solid ground"

I heard the songwriter declare, "Shackled by a heavy burden, neath a load of guilt and stain, but then the hand of Jesus touched me, and now I am no longer the same"

He touched me!

He touched me! And oh the joy the floods my soul!

Something happened and now I know, he touched me and made me whole.

A man who fears the Lord has to tell somebody about Jesus!

Jesus, who carried an old rugged cross!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who stayed in the grave for three long days!

But Early, Early Sunday morning he arose from the dead!

The man who fears the Lord has to tell somebody that Lord is my light and my salvation, “Whom shall I fear?”

He’s got to tell somebody!

Tell somebody!

Possessing Family Blessings

Scripture: And said unto me, Behold, I will make thee fruitful, and multiply thee, and I will make of thee a multitude of people; and will give this land to thy seed after thee for an everlasting possession. Genesis 48:4

Introduction

Did you know that God provides for the needs of every family? It may appear at times that God is distant, but in reality, God provides for every family; those who are obedient are the recipients of that benevolence.

If we listen closely to the stories of our ancestors we can track God's movements in our family circle. Listen closely to the stories of hardship, depravation, and frustration that your ancestors endured and you will also hear about the fortuitous intervention of the Lord. God knows what each family needs and how much it can bear; and He always provides.

Biblical record suggests that God considers each family's requests and measures them by two factors: His will for our lives and our history of faith and sacrifice. Combined, a true believer usually provides that God sees our need and provides for it every day of our lives.

As Christians, we are convinced that when God sees what we require and hears our pleas, he will provide for all of needs and many of our wishes because he is Jevovah-Jireh, our provider.

Today, God sees and He knows your situation. Because he loves us, He will respond today in the way that is in our best interest.

Exposition

This text focuses on God's promise to Israel, a promise of prosperity, possession and peace.

Theologians differ on the specific application of the text. Some believe the text should be used in a limited sense, pointing to the many centuries during which the Jews were occupiers of the Holy Land. Others think the promise has a wider application, pointing to the restoration of the scattered tribes of Israel to their homeland as their "everlasting possession."

God's word never returns void, so it is notable that God has reshaped history to accomplish his goals toward mankind.

Obtaining the promise made to Abraham became a quest of Abraham's descendants for generations. Through centuries of successes and failures, enslavement, achievement, exile and suffering they endured for the single purpose of obtaining the promised blessing of God.

On the strength of that promise they persevered while clinging to their faith that God would bless their family beyond measure.

Families Must Be United

To obtain the fullest blessings that God has provided, families must be united.

All too frequently we have observed dysfunctional families who appear more as enemies than blood relatives. Many harbor emotional wounds that have lingered for decades; wounds that have formed barriers that have separated them and crippled their efforts to succeed as a family.

When families are dysfunctional it is difficult for them to obtain the blessings of God. Cain and Abel competed for the favor of God by presenting sacrifices. Jealousy resulted and Cain killed Abel. Jacob and Esau were in constant competition for the birthright that was to be given by Isaac. Esau hated Jacob most of his life because he was cheated out of his inheritance. The prodigal son's brother was disturbed at the favor shown his brother when no such favors were bestowed upon him.

To achieve the fullest blessings of God families must seek the good for every family member. In prayer, public support and conversation, families must support each other. Even those who have strayed from the path must be included in the family's embrace. A wayward son or daughter, an estranged father, mother or "baby daddy" or "baby mama" must also be kept close. While some may achieve individual success outside of the family, the fullest blessings come when the entire family works together to possess the future God has prepared for those who trust Him.

God blessed Abraham's family through the generations. He continued His promise through his son Isaac and his grandson Jacob and to all of the Children of Israel. In similar sense, promises made to our ancestors are being prepared for every family, but possession of those promises can be acquired best within the confines of the family's embrace.

Achieving Purpose through the family

The long arms of the godly family help each family member to achieve God's ultimate purpose. Through the family, members receive sustenance, encouragement, direction and correction. Through the family, God begins the flow of his ancestral promise to each generation.

Many of those who have achieved success in life credit the support, encouragement and discipline they received in their family for their success. For some it was the strong hand of parents, for others it was support of siblings. For still others, it was a favorite aunt or uncle that kept them on target. In a variety of ways believers have been touched by their families that have been used by God to strengthen their life experience.

The immediate way that God helps us is through the family. Those who are fortunate enough to have strong families, learn that God touches a mother and father in such a way that they are able to provide unique sustenance for their children, beyond mere food and drink.

For young believers, mothers and fathers are strong, like mountains and hills. They stand for strength and control. They protect us from enemies, teach us how to worship, help us to learn the meaning of sacrifice and provide a home life that gives us a sanctuary from the storms of life.

The family is the vehicle God has chosen to use to guide us to our promised possession. Through the family God will guide each family member safely to their individual Promised Land.

Ancestry shows family legacy

No family member exists independent of his or her family ancestry. Each generation is a continuation of the preceding generation's effort to live according to its blessings. However, family members must analyze their family history to see what God has called the family to be and what talents he has historically showered on its family members.

Each family member has a story and a legacy. There are families of educators. The gift of knowledge seems to run in the family. There are families of athletes; for generations these families have had men and women who were athletically inclined to one level or another. There are families of artists, builders, tinkerers, preachers, politicians, healers and craftsmen. It's in the family's genes. It is the way God organized the social order.

Family members need to know the history of its members. We need to know about our family successes and what we did when we succeeded. Those times when we failed, what did we do? When we suffered, how did we overcome? What mistakes have we made as a family? Does our family history show us that we could have done better if we had avoided certain paths? As a family, what have we learned from our mistakes?

When families explore their history and dissect their strengths and weaknesses, it brings great strength and a sense of purpose to young lives when they from whence they came.

Promise will not be void

Finally, brothers and sisters, God has given us the promise of a great possession, it is the dream of every family, it is dream will not die and a promise that will not return void.

The family that prays together, shares the same dream for each of its family members:

that each will achieve their destiny according to the will of God.

This was the dream that Abraham had for Isaac.

This was the dream that Isaac had for Jacob

This was the dream that Jacob had for all of the Children of Israel.

But even greater than Abraham, Isaac and Jacob there is Jesus, who went beyond merely believing in God's promise Jesus BECAME the promise.

Families that expect to climb higher and possess the promise of God must know that climbing to God without Jesus is impossible because there is one mediator between God and man and that is Jesus.

Jesus is the source of our salvation.

Jesus is the hope upon which our struggle depends.

Jesus is our dream of moving out of our:

-Hunger and acquiring a satisfied soul!

-Darkness and walking into the marvelous light

-Sinking sand experience and standing on the Solid Rock!

-Spiritual Slavery to complete spiritual freedom!

-Defeat into the glory of victory!

-Despair to unspeakable joy!

Jesus helps the family move from singing 'soon I will be done with the troubles of the world' to 'I'm so glad that trouble don't last always'

Jesus helps the family move from "Why has thou forsaken me" to "Lo I'll be with you always!"

Jesus helps the family sing, "I don't feel no ways tired. He brought too far to leave me."

Jesus was misunderstood, rejected and persecuted but He persevered because He had promise to fulfill.

He was prosecuted by the scribes and Pharisees, and they whipped Him mercilessly all night long and tried Him in hostile courts, but He will would not turn back because He had a promise to fulfill.

, They hung Him on a cross, stretched out between two thieves, but He would not give up because He had a promise to possess.

Though buried in a borrowed tomb and guarded by soldiers, He couldn't be held down because Early Sunday morning the Vision of Bethlehem, and the nightmare of Calvary became the resurrected promise to every family in the world!

Every family should revel in His promise.

He promised never to leave us..never to leave us alone.

4th Down and Inches

SCRIPTURE: "He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" Micah 6:8

Introduction

Have you ever attended a football game and watched some of the things that happen off the field? There is a lot of activity on the sidelines that often affects the outcome of the game. A very important part of every game is the measurement of forward progress. That measurement is kept by two people who carry two poles tied together with a chain on the sidelines. One man stands at the point a play begins, the other stands to mark how far the team has to progress to get for more tries at a touchdown. Each time a team progresses 10 yards, they get four more tries.

When a play ends, an on-field official estimates the new spot of the ball marks it with his foot and tosses the ball to another official to set for the next play. When the new spot is close to the first down end of the chain, that's when the "chain gang" trots out to "measure" whether or not the offense gets a new set of downs. When that happens, the whole game comes to a halt. It's dramatic, especially in an important game. It's a breathless moments in a football game. A length of a chain link often decides the difference.

Despite the availability of modern technology that can mark the position with GPS lasers, football teams still remain "old school" because they bring out the chain. At home, those watching by television see brightly colored lines of blue and yellow that indicate the progress, but the television screen doesn't count. What counts is the chain on the field.

Sometimes a team is just inches away from winning or losing a game, so that little chain gets to be mighty important. Even though whole careers depend on the accuracy of the referee's call, the standard for measuring first downs hasn't changed in over 100 years. Spalding's Official Foot Ball Guide of 1907 set down the rules that have lasted for more than 100 years: "To assist in measuring the progress of the ball, it is desirable to provide two light poles about six feet in length, connected at their lower ends with a stout cord or chain 10 yards in length." Thus, the "chain gang" was born.

Over a century has passed, but at every football game from pee wees to pros, a group of officials stands about six feet off the sideline holding blaze-orange "poles" with a 10-yard length of chain stretched between them.

There have been debates in athletic circles about using more modern techniques to measure what progress requirements, but the old "chain gain" survives.

The standard has not changed.

How far are we from what the Lord requires? Many us have made many first downs and are just inches away from victory. There are many fancy ways to measure our forward progress when it comes to God but there is one old fashioned way, like bringing in the chains at a football game, that tells our story. The ultimate test of progress in football is the chain, but in the Christian life it's the word of God which requires that we"act justly, love mercy, and walk humbly with thy God."

It's old fashioned, but then God does not change. He's the same yesterday, today and forever more.

As Christians, we strive to progress toward the ultimate victory of the Christian life, heaven. Our progress is measured not by the standards of men but by God himself. When we reach 4th down situations, he'll bring out the chain.

Exposition

The text considers the prophet Micah who spoke to Israel about the three essential elements needed for the nation to meet the approval of God. Micah prophesied while three kings were on the throne: Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah. Of the three, Ahaz was a wicked king, which gave Micah the opportunity to experience life under a good king, watch its fall from goodness and see how it returned to goodness under Hezekiah. In the midst of its wickedness and apostasy Micah made the declaration that has become known as a standard by which the righteous are judged. With wickedness all around, Micah raised the question: "What doth the Lord require?" He answered it by noting that God requires from his people that they do justly, love mercy and walk humbly before God. These three elements comprise the measure of the godly man.

To "do justly" means to do those things which "right" requires. According to Micah, God requires that his people strive to do the right thing in matters pertaining to family, business and inter-personal relations. For Israel these were principles that were becoming old fashioned as the nation abandoned its allegiance to God and adopted a "succeed at any cost" philosophy of life. Doing right was equated with doing the necessary, so the scales were weighted, the people cheated and the poor oppressed. Yet Micah called for men of conscience to adopt a godly lifestyle that would encourage them to "do the right thing."

If "do justly" means to do those things which right requires, then to "love mercy" a man must do those things which "love requires." The laws of Micah's time permitted certain injustices. It was legal to take the land of widows, or to leave children homeless and orphans. It was legal to suppress the oppressed and to subjugate the weak. It was right, by legal standards, but Micah called upon the people to do what love requires, show mercy and compassion to the poor, hungry and to all who stand in the need of help. His call was for the people to rise above the legalisms that perpetuated poverty and despair and respond to a higher law that came from God. This law was the law of love that is dipped in mercy and compassion.

Micah's final call was that the men and women of Israel and Judah would return to a spirit of humility that they showed under King Jotham. His advice to them was to keep God foremost in their lives and humble themselves before his will and they would receive his blessings daily. His challenge was for every father to lead his family back to a humble walk before God. It was for every husband to lead his wife in walking the godly path. It was the final measure of righteousness that would decide whether the people would succeed in regaining the grace and protection of God.

Centuries have passed, but that measurement has not changed. It remains the biblical litmus test by which our spiritual progress is measured.

4th Down Situations

The skill and ability of a football team is often reflected when the team is facing a tough battle and fighting for literally inches of turf to stay in the game. In such situations, that's when the tough get going. In a 4th down situation a team has only two choices.

PUNT: A team punts the ball when it feels that the defense of the opposing team is too great, and the coach or quarterback lacks confidence in their own teams ability to overcome the opposition. When a team punts it has come to the conclusion that its progress has been stopped and the odds against succeeding are too great, it decides to punt the ball to the other team. There are many in the Christian life who face 4th down situations often, unfortunately there are many who come to the conclusion that they should punt rather than go for the touchdown. It's fourth down: Bills are due, money is short, and resources are poor. Some choose to punt, bankruptcy is the choice. It's fourth down: There are problems in the marriage, the fire seems to be gone. Some choose to punt, divorce is their choice. It's fourth down: School is getting to be a problem, grades are bad and getting worse. Some choose to punt, dropping out is their choice. We choose to punt only when we have decided that the opposing team is too great and we doubt our own abilities to resolve the situation. When you put you can't make a field goal, run the risk of getting your kicker injured and you give the enemy better position, but you do live to see another day.

How great are the odds against us in life? Is the enemy really able to overwhelm us and stop our forward progress? The bible says in 1 John 4:4 "Ye are of God, little children, and have overcome them: because greater is He that is in you, than he that is in the world. " If we are trying to carry out God's purpose, before you decide to punt remember Philippians 4:13 "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

GO FOR THE FIRST DOWN: The other alternative in a 4th down situation is to go for the first down. When a team is confident in its abilities and knows the weaknesses of its opponents it does not think twice about going for the first down. If the team is sure, it doesn't matter how far they are away from the line of scrimmage. In 2002 the Houston Texans played Indianapolis. The Texans faced a fourth down situation with 35 yards to go. They decided to go for it. In November of 2010 LSU played Alabama and were trailing by one point with just over 9 minutes left in the game. On a fourth down, with one foot to go, the team lined up to kick and field goal but ran a reverse play instead and carried the ball to the three yard line. In life, punting is not always the only course; those who are confident in their abilities have chosen to go for it.

When you go for it, you choose not to give up. When you go for it you are not intimidated by the odds. Fourth down situations are generally described as "crunch" time. It's the time that we either walk by faith or fail in fear.

It's 4th down: a new opportunity presents itself, pray get God's advice, if He says so, go for it.

It's 4th down: A major family challenge is front of you; pray get God's advice, if He says so, go for it. If God says "Go for it" go forward, even if you every expert says it sounds crazy; whether its 4th down and 40 or 4th down and inches, go for it.

Bring out the chains

Finally brothers and sisters, when you have given it your best shot, and life's on screen camera shows that you have come up short in your 4th down try; when you are just inches away, that when it's time to bring in the chain.

Those who have lived the Christian life a while know from experience that there is only one standard in life that really counts, our God determines whether we have progress enough to keep going.

When you seem to come up short in your efforts, your neighbors may say you should give up and stop trying because you have fallen short, but what doth the Lord require?

When you have tried your best, will that be enough for God? If you have tried to love your God and your neighbors, in a life that is just and humble with Jesus Christ at its center, will you come up short in the eyes of God.

This is the point where God and football differ. When the referees bring in the chain to measure your progress, they don't cut you any slack, you either make it or you don't. However, when Christ comes in the picture to measure whether we get one more chance, He doesn't bring in the chain, but he brings in the cross.

Unlike the referee on the field, if we come up a few inches short, if He gives us another chance anyway because of His amazing grace.

That's why it's a mistake to count a believer out, because God always gives believers the benefit of the cross.

I don't know about you but I've seen my share of fourth down situations, but when the Lord brought in the cross, I was given a second chance.

In a fourth down situation we should remember that we serve a God who can take:

—Defeat and turn it into victory; failure and turn it into success
—Misfortune and turn it into good fortune; Tragedy and turn it into opportunity
—Blunders and turn them into wonders; Doubts and wipe them out!
When you face 4th down situations remember there is no:
—Battle the Lord cannot win;
—Burden the Lord cannot lift;
—Loneliness that the Lord cannot comfort;
—Promise the Lord cannot keep.
—Dark Cloud the Lord cannot brighten;
—Heartache that the Lord cannot soothe.
When you reach a 4th down situation have confidence in your team.
On your team is the father, who created the world in the palm of His hands.
On your team is the Son, who came through 42 generations to die for you.
On your team is the Holy Ghost, your comforter in times of trouble.
Heading your team is a man who can speak to the winds and they obey his will.
On your team is a quarterback who was born in Bethlehem, trained in the wilderness, promoted by John the Baptist, traded by Pontius Pilate, but who is so good that every blessing he has passed has been received.
He's so good that somebody called him bread in a starving land!
So good, that somebody called Him a bridge over troubling water!
So good, that somebody called Him a doctor in the sick room!
So good, that somebody called a lawyer in our courtroom!
At Calvary it was a 4th down situation. In the huddle he told his father, I'd rather punt than go to Calvary.
I'd rather punt than let them drive nails into my hand!
I'd rather punt than let them stick a spear into my side.
I'd rather punt than die on an old rugged cross.
Nevertheless, not my will, but thy will be done!
They crucified him!
They buried him! They assumed the game was over!
But Early Sunday morning I can hear in my sanctified imagination a cry going out "Bring out the chain!"
Early Sunday morning they discovered that it ain't over till it's over; you can't keep a good man down!
Early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave, with all power in His hands!
All Power!
All Power!

SCRIPTURE:But Martha was cumbered about much serving, and came to him, and said, Lord, dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? bid her therefore that she help me. And Jesus answered and said unto her, Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things: But one thing is needful: and Mary hath chosen that good part, which shall not be taken away from her. Luke 10:40-42

Introduction

Did you know that for every Rosa Parks or Coretta Scott King in our history there are thousands of others, just like them who help bring us to victory? When a great work is done, we see many familiar faces out front, but we seldom see the ones behind the scenes who minister anonymously to help achieve ministry goals.

We've read about the historic march on Washington where Martin Luther King gave his historic I have a dream speech, but cleaned up the debris left behind by 250,000 people? Who packaged the meals, delivered the water, manned the first aide stations, stapled the signs, and cared for the hundreds of children on hand? Who were these nameless warriors of our history, the unsung heroes whose selfless acts of dedication were so crucial to the success of the movement?

We've heard of Harriet Tubman's 300 trips into the forbidden south to help runaway slaves on the Under Ground Railroad, but we rarely hear about the hands that sewed their clothes or prepared the traveling meals that were eaten, or the rugged praying hands that clasped those of the fleeing wretched. Those hands were blended into the larger picture of a movement that sought to see that our people were treated fairly, equitably, and responsibly. They were hands that were never seen but were important to overall success of the cause.

History often ignores the unsung heroes of our past. There are no songs written about hundreds of women who walked to work in Montgomery while King and others protested the bus boycott. There are only a few references to the women who filled factories and worked like men while the males were off to war in the Pacific during World War II. We hear the big names associated with the victories, not the thousands of women who served in the WACS or served as medics, typists and clerks.

There is no part of American history that has realized victory without the unseen help of Florence nightingales or the legions of former slaves who cooked meals for the conquering union troops. They are rarely mentioned, but without our victories would have been much more difficult.

In the struggle to build the kingdom of God, each person has a part to play that is integral to the success of the movement. Christ evidenced it and Paul referenced it when he made note that God is not a respecter of persons, each person has a role to play.

As Christians we are peculiarly aware that everyone has a role to play in the struggle. Yet, one life is no greater than another, someone must feed the masses, someone must do the dishes.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he spoke with his disciples regarding the roles that each believer plays in kingdom building.

The passage indicates that Jesus entered into a village and chose to dine at the home of two sisters named Mary and Martha. As the meal was being prepared Jesus talked with disciples concerning the kingdom of God and the nature of the sacrificial service that each disciple would be called upon to make.

Christ traveled in the company of His disciples, 12 men with hearty appetites, who came to Martha's home unexpectedly. It's enough to feed and entertain one guest, but suddenly there were 12 men in Martha's house; the rules of cordiality required that she make them comfortable and feed them.

While Martha busied herself with providing for the nourishment of her special guest, Mary sat and listened as Jesus spoke the word. Martha was upset because Mary sat at Jesus feet leaving her with all of the work. She almost asked, while you are sitting at the feet of the savior, who does the dishes? Who does the service and ministers while others are praising?

Jesus' response did not reprimand Mary for listening and not helping serve, but noted that by listening to the word of God and preparing for ministry Mary was attending to the spiritual aspects of the kingdom. She was not ordered to leave her part to join Mary, but neither was Mary told to stop her part.

Mary had chosen "that good part" while Martha had chosen another good part. Both roles are important to the building of the kingdom. One was a pietist and the other an activist, both of whom are needed for the advancement of the kingdom.

The Activist and the Pietist

Elton Trueblood in his book "The new man for our time" makes the claim that Mary and Martha represent two different schools of religious thought, the activist and the pietist. Many believe that Martha represents those who believe that faith should reflect itself in the social concerns that touch the lives of people. Her concern for the nourishment and comfort of the disciples is said to represent millions who believe that true faith is best represented when it is put into action.

SCHOOL OF MARTHA: The Martha's among us are those who insist that the church should reach out to the poor, fight social injustices, and work to make the kingdom of God a reality now while waiting on the kingdom of heaven that is to come.

The school of Martha maintains that the church should actively fight against illegal laws, work to free the unjustly imprisoned, provide nurture for families, educate and protect the children, and provide for the welfare of the elderly and less fortunate.

The school of Martha says we should be in the kitchen preparing the meals instead of spending all available time listening to sermons, singing and praying. Martha was impatient with her sister and demanded that Jesus tell her to stop listening to lofty talk and start serving. She could start by helping with the dishes.

SCHOOL OF MARY: While many subscribe to Martha's belief, there are others who follow Mary's example. Mary sat at Jesus' feet and listened to the Word. Martha was the activist, but Mary was the pietist.

The school of Mary maintains that prayer and fasting along with praise and worship are roles that believers should play. The pietist emphasizes intense and fervent prayer, emotionally fervent worship, focused study of the word, and regular worship and listening to the gospel.

The pietist sees social ills as problems that should be prayerfully brought before God and placed in His hands through intercessory prayer and intense worship. Mary ignored the pleas of her sister for help in the kitchen. "I don't do dishes seemed to be her response."

The school of Martha asks, "Who will do the dishes, feed the poor or respond to the human needs of the world?

The school of Mary asks, "Who will pray and give God the adoration He deserves? Who will fast and pray for revival? Who will sit at Jesus' feet and hear the word?

Trueblood concluded that the church needs both the activist and pietist, both the woman who prays intently and the woman who takes care of social concerns and sees that the dishes are cleaned.

In a perfect world there would be a little of Mary and Martha in all believers. We should study, pray, worship, fast and intercede for others like Mary. Then we should get up off our knees and tend to the wounded and reach out to a hurting world like Martha.

Ideally, each of us should pray and serve, but at the least the church needs both kinds of members: the activist and the pietist; they both have a good part to play.

Millions do both

Our history is replete with examples of women who were both activists and pietists, praying women who did what they had to do for their own families then reached out to do the same for others.

These are the women who prayed intently at night for the sick and the shut in then rose from their knees to visit and comfort them the next day.

These are the women who listen to sermons, and sing in choirs, but when people are hungry, they see that they are fed. When people have no clothes or have worn holes in their socks, they help clothe them. When people are scared or lonely, they sit with them through a scary time no matter how long it takes.

These are the unsung heroes of our past and present who sang and prayed while they worked to make the community better.

These are bible scarred warriors who recited the 23rd psalm while they assumed anonymous places of service in unknown villages and towns always singing, I don't feel no ways tired, I've come too far from where I started from; nobody told me that the road would be easy; I don't believe He brought me this far to leave me.

They will be rewarded

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that those who pray, worship and wash the dishes, will be rewarded.

There is no significant victory in our history as a people that did not include that small army of people who give of themselves as teachers, bus drivers, guards, cooks, and unnamed record keepers. They are the unsung heroes who are rarely saluted in programs or held up for public acclaim.

Yet, their service does not go unnoticed. God sees what they do and He will reward both the praying saint and the dishwashing servant according to his mercies in heaven.

Follow the record of the unsung heroes it will show them following the Lord. Mary and Martha followed Christ, to Calvary and to the empty tomb, praying and serving.

If we follow the trail of other unsung heroes, their trails will carry us to God.

If we follow the trail of Hannah it will find her telling the Lord to take her child and raise him in his courts.

If we follow the trail of Ruth, we'll hear her say, "You people shall be my people and my God shall be your God"

If we follow the trail of the woman at the well, we'll hear her say, "Come see a man" who told me all I've ever done.

Serving the Lord by serving others will be rewarded in heaven, but the servant is also rewarded in this life; they live their lives with an indescribable feeling of accomplishment that the word describes as the "Joy of the Lord."

The Joy of the Lord it is the satisfaction of knowing that their little part helps to build the kingdom of the God.

It's the satisfaction that a little boy felt when he saw his five loaves and two little fishes used to feed five thousand!

It's the satisfaction that the Good Samaritan felt when he watched the injured man walk away from a battered situation after weeks of love and care!

What is the joy of the Lord?

Those who live in the joy of the Lord are recipients of his goodness and are instruments of his compassion!

When you know the joy of the Lord you know the goodness of the Lord.

It is the goodness of the Lord that transforms our:

—BURDENS into blessings; CARES into comforts

—DEFEATS into delights; HEARTACHES into hallelujahs!

—PROBLEMS into praises; HOUSES into homes

—SORROWS into songs; SADNESS into gladness

It's the goodness of the Lord that prompted David to write in Psalm 106:1 "O give thanks unto the Lord for he is good and his mercy endureth forever!"

What is the Joy of the Lord?

The joy of the Lord is going into battle and knowing that before the battle begins the victory is won!

The joy of the Lord is knowing that no matter how tough the enemy, we will be the victor!

The joy of the Lord is knowing that weeping might endure for a night, but joy comes in the morning!

The Joy of the Lord turns SADNESS into GLADNESS; WEAKNESS into strength; DEFEAT into victory!

The joy of the Lord is the assurance that storms may rise and winds may blow, but God is still on the throne!

That's why the song writer declared, "Victory is mine, victory is mine, victory today is mine. I told Satan to get thee behind; victory today is mine!"

Over 2000 years Jesus shouldered an old rugged cross up Golgotha's hill to secure our reward

He was buried in a borrowed tomb, but Early Sunday morning the ground began to shake, the stone rolled away and heaven rejoiced as He arose from the grave with all power in his hand.

Can't you see the angels celebrating the victory chanting, "Bring forth the royal diadem and crown him! Crown him! Crown him Lord of all!"

Making a Name for yourself

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

SCRIPTURE: And they said, Go to, let us build us a city and a tower, whose top[may reach] unto heaven; and let us make us a name, lest we be scattered abroad upon the face of the whole earth. -Genesis 11:4

Introduction

Do you want to make a name for yourself? Whether we want to or not we are making a name for ourselves in the circle of our friends. At birth our parents give us a name that identifies us. We spend the rest of our lives making that name mean something.

What's in a name? Webster says a name is a title by which one is known. Shakespeare in his play, Romeo and Juliet, said, ""What's in a name? That which we call a rose By any other name would smell as sweet." The Bible says a "good name" is better than riches. (Prov. 22:1)

Our names tell our family's story. It tells our history, what we have done. It's our pedigree. In slavery, a slave's last name changed from plantation to plantation, depending on the name of his master. He had no identity of his own, but only that of his master. In the mid sixties the late Malcolm Little dropped his last name, saying it was a slave name and changed it to Malcolm X to represent the unknown family name of his origins. We can track our history through our last name; it can carry us back hundreds of years.

While our last name tells our family's story, our first name tells our story. It distinguishes us from the rest of the members of our family. For about 100 years after the Civil War Blacks commonly gave their children Bible names. Names such as Samuel, Joseph, David, Matthew, Thomas, Ruth, Mary and Martha were common. Parents hoped their children would grow to take on the characteristics of these great Bible characters. In the age of the Soap Opera, many named their children after characters on the afternoon soaps and children born during the Afro American Renaissance found themselves with names from Africa or at least an African sound.

What we do and how we do it, what we say and how we say it, the way we live and how we live it, what we achieve and how we achieve it, are the ingredients that make our name.

Consider the new teacher whose first day at school was a challenge. She did not know a single child in the class and expected to get acquainted on her first day. Then she met an incorrigible kid named Dennis. He threw spit balls and she said politely, "Dennis, sit!" He pulled a little girl's hair and she quietly but forcefully said, "Dennis, please stop." Every five minutes or so her class presentation was interrupted by an ever ending chain of commands "Stop Dennis! Quit Dennis! Sit Down Dennis!" Finally at the end of the day her husband asked did she get to know her students she replied, "I'm sorry to say there were 30 children in my class, but I only got to know one name, "Dennis."

There are many who have made names for themselves already. When we hear their names images come to mind. We associate courage and strength to the names of Martin Luther King and Rosa Parks. We associate intelligence and achievement to the names of Barack Obama, Condoleezza Rice and Colin Powell.

There are others who have made a name for themselves, too. The images that come to mind when we hear their names are not always positive, inspiring or noteworthy.

Even today, youth are making names for themselves. Certain words are said in our family that associate us with how we are perceived: smart, mischievous, helpful, pain in the neck, arrogant, disrespectful, darling, perfect, and no-good are just some of the names that are being applied to us by others...what's important, is which of those names we will apply to ourselves.

In our quest to make a name for ourselves, God promises to give us a name that will be recognized in heaven, if we follow Him, believe in Him and trust Him. In fact, we have been promised that if we walk humbly, repent and honor His name that he will heal, bless and raise us to high heights. 2 Chronicles 7:14 says, "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land. "

As Christians, we are making a name for ourselves. It is a name that brings glory to God and lifts up the name of the savior. If anybody asks you who I am, tell them I'm a child of God.

Exposition

This text focuses on the quest of the people to make a name for themselves by defying God.

The central character is a man named Nimrod who is identified in Genesis 10:8 as a descendant of Ham through Cush. Cush is the area of the world on the African-Continent closely associated with Black people. Nimrod is remembered as a "mighty one in the earth." He rose as a powerful ruler over men. Three times in Genesis 10 and again in 1 Chronicles 1:10 the word "mighty" is applied to Nimrod. The verse in Chronicles is in perfect agreement with these in Genesis- "And Cush begat Nimrod; he began to be mighty upon the earth." The Chaldean paraphrase of this verse says, "Cush begat Nimrod who began to prevail in wickedness, for he slew innocent blood and rebelled against Jehovah."

Genesis 10:10 tells us that the beginning of Nimrod's kingdom was Babel which, in the language of that time Babel meant "the gate of God" but afterwards, because of the judgments which God inflicted there, it came to mean "Confusion," and from here onwards this is its force or meaning. Nimrod demanded and received Divine honors; many scholars believe that it is at Babel that the world saw the introduction of idolatry.

As Nimrod led the people to build a mighty tower that would be the gateway to heaven, he told them that by doing so that would make a name for themselves. They would be remembered for building a building so tall that they could march right into the throne room of God.

The name they wanted to make for themselves and the tower itself did not please God. So, the father, the Son and the Holy Ghost, together decided to stop them. Genesis 11:7 says, ".. let us go down, and there confound their language, that they may not understand one another's speech."

What of the name itself? The place called Babel, which began as the "gate of God" was called "Confusion" and ultimately represented evil and ungodliness; it became known as Babylon.

Nimrod made a name for himself, but it was not a name that pleased God.

Making a name

What is your name, really? For youth it's their "rep." In defense of their "rep" many youth have fought, been suspended from school and even died. What's your rep? How do you build reputation? The bully builds his reputation by beating up on persons that he knows he can beat. The snitch, builds his reputation by telling all he knows. The scholar builds a reputation for constantly achieving high marks. Those who have a reputation for being ghetto build it by constantly associating with the lesser appealing side of our community life in speech, lifestyle and values. Your rep is your brand. When people think of you they think of your brand. The business community understands this principle well, studying their model will help us understand ourselves.

YOUR BRAND, ONCE BUILT, CAN NEVER BE TAKEN AWAY. Howard Kosgrove, a marketing expert for major U.S. companies says, " "A brand is the one thing that you can own that nobody can take away from you," Once a brand is locked in the mind of the public, people may copy the product, or try to defame it, but it will outlive them all. The brand says it all. When we think of tissues, we say "Kleenex" although there are hundreds of tissues. When we think of tape, we say "SCOTCH" tape although there are others. When a child thinks of Hamburgers they instantly think of "McDonald's" It doesn't matter how much bad news is reported about these names, the brand, once built, is forever locked in the mind of the public. Young people are building a brand name for themselves. Often they are branding themselves without even noticing it. On face book, it is not uncommon to see a person insert a long middle name for themselves that describes themselves to others. "Lady Killer" or "party hard" become their brand names. We should exercise care in the reputation we are trying to build, because once built, we'll have to live with it for their rest of our lives.

YOUR BRAND MUST HAVE MEANING: Often young people think the reputation they are trying to build for themselves means the same thing to everyone. The bully thinks that when he beats up on little guys that he is being respected, when it fact he is being feared by some and rejected by most. It's possible for your brand to mean different things to different people. The Chevrolet Company produced a car that was popular in America called the "Chevy Nova" but it didn't do well in Latin America. They later learned that in that part of the world the name "Chevy Nova" means "It doesn't go." Reebok shoes produced a brand of women's shoe called the "Incubus" only to learn that women were not buying the shoe because it turns out that an incubus is an evil spirit that rapes women in the middle of the night. The name sounded good at the time, but it didn't have desired effect. Is your rep, having the desired effect? That's what Jesus wanted to know when he met with his disciples in Matthew 6:13 and asked, " ..Whom do men say that I the Son of man am? " He found out that many perceived him as a man from God, but not everyone saw Him as the Son of God. Youth who are building their own brands, should seek those virtues and qualities that associate them with success and godliness. These are the brand qualities that will last.

BRAND QUALITY IS DETERMINED BY ASSOCIATIONS: There is an old saying, "Birds of a feather, flock together." It simply means that we are known by the company we keep. Companies building brands associate their names with positive things. McDonald's sells hamburgers, but it's name is also associated with hundreds of Ronald McDonald Houses across the nation, giving living space to those helping sick children. NIKE spends millions to associate its name with people who succeed. It will spend millions on a television commercial that shows a person doing something great, then focus in on that person wearing their shoe. Youth can build their brands by carefully choosing the persons with whom they are frequently seen. Scholar who hangs out with thugs begins to take on the brand of being a smart-thug. The virgin who hangs out with the school sluts, takes on their brand despite her best efforts otherwise. So youth should strive to protect their name by choosing their associations well

If you really what a name

Finally, brothers and sisters, those who really want to make a name for themselves should that those who follow Christ all call on one name, the name of Jesus.

Christian youth should associate their names with things that please God.

In 1972 a cute baby was born by the name of Marshall Bruce Mathers III, but the cute baby made himself around the world as "Eminem"- the master rapper with 29 million likes on Face book.

Like Eminem there are thousands who have made a name for themselves by changing their names: Curtis Jackson became, 50 cent; Terrie Bolea became, Hulk Hogan; Norma Baker became, Marilyn Monroe; Annie Mae Bullock became, Tina Turner; Caryn Johnson became, Whoopi Goldberg; Eldrick Woods became, Tiger Woods, Anna Bullock became Tina Turner; Chad Butler became, Pimp C.; Calvin Brodaus became, Snoop Dog; and Kenneth Edmonds became, Baby Face.

However, you have want to make a name for yourself in the eyes of the Lord, there is a name you must know....

There is a name that reaches beyond the narrow confines of my loneliness and brings me comfort!

There is a name that reaches below my deepest failure and guides me to success!

There is a name that transcends my weakness and brings me strength.

It's the name of Jesus! There is none other name whereby we must be saved! It's the name of Jesus!

At the name of Jesus, every knee shall bow!

At the name of Jesus, every tongue shall confess

No wonder the song writer declared, "There is a name I love to hear. I love to sing its worth. It sounds like music in mine ear, the sweetest name on earth. Oh how I love Jesus. Oh How I love Jesus. Because he first loved me."

He loved me so much that He hung out on Calvary!

He loved me so much that died for my sins!

But early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave with all power!

All power in His hands!

What you see is what you get

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church

March 2011

Scripture:"For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known." 1 Corinthians 13:12

Introduction

How do you see yourself? When you look into the crystal ball which is your future do you see success or failure? Do you see the pharmacist or the street corner drug dealer. Do you see the business executive or the crime lord? Do you see the White House or the Jailhouse? What we become in life is determined by many factors, but one of the most important factors is our belief in our own ability to achieve.

Dana Andrus of New Orleans, La is often called on to make motivational presentations to youth around the nation. One of his presentations features an illustration showing self realization is important. On a table, he lays out a variety of items familiar to youth: a gun, football jersey, basketball, football, cap and gown, beer can, bible, golden chain, mini dress and a pair of Jordan tennis. Youth were asked to select an item from the table that best represented how they envisioned themselves in the future. In nearly every presentation youth selected every item except the cap and gown and bible. They could see themselves carrying a gun, but not a bible or wearing a pair of Jordans, but not a cap and gown. His point to educators and youth leaders is that youth need experiences that help them to visualize themselves in more positive ways than what they see on television.

Years ago, Rev. Jesse Jackson wrote a slogan for the PUSH for excellence program that has now become famous and is taught all across America: "If my mind can conceive it and my heart can be believe it, I can "achieve it."

Those words are true and they compose what Dr. Robert Schuller would call the essential components of possibility thinking..to become something, I must first visualize it in my mind, believe in my heart that it is possible and "go for it."

These concepts did not have their origin with men like Norman Vincent Peale, Schuller and Jackson...they originated from God and are recorded in his word.

To become a Christian in the fullest sense, we must be able to see ourselves leading lives as Christians, believe that it can happen to us and "go for it."

Even further, to fully possess all the blessings God has promised us, we must be able to visualize them. We must see what God wants us to be!

As Christians, we strive to open our minds and hearts to the spirit of God so that He can show us what is in store for us. He has promised us that what you see is what you get.

Exposition

This text focuses on God's promise to Abraham, a promise of land and expansive blessings for centuries to come.

The promise to Abraham was so vast that it may have been difficult to internalize what was being offered, so God says to Abraham, "now lift thou up thy eyes, and look, and see thy own." He wanted Abraham to see with his own eyes, the depth of the Promised Land. It was rich, fertile and would sustain all of his family for generations to come.

God showed Abraham something that was infinitely better and more desirable than anything that he could imagine.

Despite its vastness, God told Abraham, what he saw he would receive and his family would enjoy.

Abraham pursued the land that he saw for the remainder of his life; he saw it and believed it.

Paul, writing to the Corinthians made a similar comparison about Christians pursuing heaven. In 1 Corinthians 13 he noted that often believers are unable to see clearly all that God has in store for them, that's why we live by faith. However, he noted that a time would eventually come when every believer would be able to see clearly the truths of God's word. Diminished perspective is common, but those who come to know God fully get a new perspective. The new perspective gives them a new appreciation of what is truly important, lasting and most effective in the service of God. The carnal man sees life through a dark glass, without the ability to see the whole picture. Yet, when we see God face to face, we will understand it all.

Seeing is Believing

There is an old maxim that maintains that seeing is believing. It is easier to believe an idea if it can be pictured in the mind. While there are many illusionists such as David Copperfield who purport to have made the Statue of Liberty disappear on live television, for the most part we still subscribe to the idea that seeing is believing. At the very least, seeing assists the believing process. That's why, from time to time, God gives us glimpses of the Kingdom of Heaven. John's vision on the Isle of Patmos provided us with peek into homeland of the saints. He showed us a city whose streets are paved with gold, lighted by the glory of God. Propelled by that glimpse we are motivated to continue our journey to the Promised Land.

1 Corinthians 13:12 says, “For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known.” It means, we can’t see the fullness of what God wants us to be now, but one day we’ll see it all.

Today, we see only a glimpse, but one day, we will see the full picture. The glimpse we see is enough to satisfy our souls that the journey is worthy of our sacrifice.

Mirage or Reality

We must always consider whether what see or think we see is real or whether it is just a mirage. By nature, a mirage reflects light in ways that present images. The images that are seen are interpreted differently, depending on the mindset of the beholder. The images that we see in life work the same way; how we see it depends upon who does the interpretation. Often the world presents us with views that are flattering and enticing, but are not always true. These images are lures and traps that are dangled before us to reel us into a life that may not be commendable.

One day while walking down the street a pimp who known for his generosity in the neighborhood was hit by a bus and he died. His soul arrived up in heaven where he was met at the Pearly Gates by St. Peter himself. ”Welcome to Heaven,” said St. Peter. “Before you get settled in though, it seems we have a problem. You see, strangely enough, we’ve never once had a player like you make it this far and we’re not really sure what to do with you.” ”No problem, just let me in,” said the pimp. “Well, I’d like to,” replied St. Peter, “but I have higher orders. What we’re going to do is let you have a day in Hell and a day in Heaven and then you can choose whichever one you want to spend an eternity in.” ”Actually, I think I’ve made up my mind, I prefer to stay in Heaven,” said the player. ”Sorry, we have rules...” And with that St. Peter put the pimp in an elevator and it went down-down-down to hell. The doors opened and he found himself stepping out onto the fine green carpet. There was plenty of food, ribs, chicken and some of the finest women he had ever seen. Some of the women who were once in his stable were there; they cheered for him. They ran up and kissed him dead on the mouth and they talked about old times. They danced a little and drank a little.

The pimp met the Devil who was actually a really nice guy who dressed very well in designer threads. He had a great time telling jokes and dancing. He was having such a good time that before he knew it, it was time to leave. Everybody shook his hand and waved good-bye as he got on the elevator. The elevator went up-up-up and opened back up at the Pearly Gates and he found St. Peter waiting for him. ”Now it’s time to spend a day in heaven,” he said. So he spent the next 24 hours lounging around on clouds and playing the harp and singing. He had a great time and before he knew it his 24 hours were up and St. Peter came and got him. “So, you’ve spent a day in hell and you’ve spent a day in heaven. Now you must choose your eternity,” he said.

The pimp paused for a second and then replied, “Well, I never thought I’d say this, I mean, Heaven has been really great and all, but I think I had a better time in Hell." So St. Peter escorted him to the elevator and again he went down-down-down back to Hell. When the doors of the elevator opened he found himself standing in a desolate wasteland covered in garbage and filth. Old watermelon rhines were everywhere. There were flies, chicken bones and garbage for miles. He saw some of his friends who were dressed in rags and were picking up the garbage and putting it in sacks. The Devil came up to him and put his arm around him. "I don't understand," stammered the pimp, "yesterday I was here and there was green grass, pretty women, parties and fun. Now all there is, is a wasteland of garbage and all my friends look miserable." The Devil looked at him and smiled. "Face it my brother, Yesterday we were recruiting you, today you're staff. Welcome to hell." The pimp was fooled by a mirage and was rudely introduced to the reality.

When you can't see it

There are times when it is difficult to visualize the promises of God because our present looks like a battlefield of unfulfilled aspirations and frustrations.

Even though God has promised victory, it is hard to visualize when we are surrounded by defeat.

We can't see ourselves rising if we focus on the number of times we have fallen.

We need to clear our thinking and refocus on the truth that anything that God promises he can deliver, despite the way things appear.

Keeping focused means believing God. We must not fall victim to the doubt that has placed a strangle hold on so many others.

Like Sarah, they find it amusing when God makes a promise that seems impossible in light of the circumstances.

Like Pharaoh, they believe that faith in God's promises are the folly of the ignorant and whatever signs we see are cheap magician's tricks.

Like King Saul, they believe that should follow their own mind because God's will should only be trusted when his will mirrors our will.

As long as we can believe in God's power and grace that which He has for us is not far away.

What you will see, you will get

Finally, brothers and sisters we must consider that when it comes to heaven, what you see and visualize is what you get!

Unlike the heat soaked images seen in the heat of the desert, heaven is not a mirage.

Unlike the mythical pot of Gold that sits at the end of the rainbow, heaven is not an imaginary fantasy.

Unlike the farcical spin of a bedtime children's story, heaven is not a fairytale!

When it comes to heaven, what you see is what you get.

Heaven has been the hope of believers in all ages.

Abraham took a journey in faith 'looking for a city with foundations.

Moses led Israel but Hebrews 11 says, 'for he was looking to the reward.

Those who labor to witness for Christ in spite of personal peril expect to receive, a house not made with hands eternal in the heavens.?(2 Corinthians 5:1)

In heaven you'll see a city that sits on 12 foundations, what you see is what you get.

In heaven you'll see a city that is surrounded by 12 gates, each one made of pearl, what you see is what you get.

In heaven you'll see a city whose streets are paved with gold, what you see is what you get.

In heaven you'll see a city that will have no street lights because it be illuminated by the glory of God, what you see is what you get.

In heaven you'll see a city that will have no hospitals because in the midst of it will be tree that will bear 12 manners of fruit whose leaves will be good for the healing of the nations, what you see is what you get.

'What you will see will be beyond comparison to anything you have seen on earth.

I don't know about you but I want to do a little site seeing in heaven!

I'll be more than a tourist, because what I see I will get!

I want to see Abraham, Isaac and Jacob!

I want to see the streets paved with gold!

I want to see the city that sits on twelve foundations with twelve gates!

I want to see the city where hearse wheels won't roll!

I want to see the city where everyday will be Sunday and it'll always be howdy and never good-bye!

I don't know about you, but I want to see Jesus!

Jesus, the author and finisher of my faith!

Jesus, who said I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am, ye may be also!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary, but arose early Sunday morning!

Come and go with me to my father's house!

No more dying there! No more crying there!

No more sickness and pain!

Come and go with me to my father's house!

To my father's house!

He brought us out, to bring us in

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 6, 2011

SCRIPTURE:"And he brought us out from thence, that he might bring us in, to give us the land which he sware unto our fathers." Deuteronomy 6:23

Introduction

Have you ever wondered why God chose to favor you when so many others have fared much less? Think about it! God spared your life and rescued you from some circumstances that should have destroyed you; why? He healed you from a sickness that has crippled or killed others; why? He opened doors of opportunity for you that were closed to others; why? Since God has a reason and a purpose for everything He does, then there must be a good reason why He has delivered us so often. What is His purpose for us?

We have the biblical accounts of scores of patriarchs who were delivered from adverse situations, miraculously, by the power of God himself. However, each of them had an associated purpose connected with God's intervention. Noah was delivered from the belly of the fish for the purpose of preaching to the people of Nineveh. Samson's strength was restored in blindness for the purpose of bringing down the Philistines. Noah was rescued from the flood in an ark for the purpose raising up a new, more God fearing world. Saul was delivered from blindness for the purpose preaching the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

In the larger scheme of God's divine plan He places us in certain positions and gives us special gifts for a special role that we will play in the unfolding drama called life. Psalm 89:19, says, "I have laid help upon one that is mighty; I have exalted one chosen out of the people."

Unseen by the hand of man God has exalted or lifted those He has anointed to promote the building of His kingdom. This unseen hand guides and controls, tears down and builds up. It also heals, soothes and encourages. That unseen hand is called providence, the will of God working itself out among men.

As Christians we should remember that the power of God is working everyday to deliver us from adversity. He's bringing us out to save us so that we can be available for His service.

Exposition

This text focuses on the final instructions of Moses to the Children of Israel before they entered into the Promised Land.

At 120 years old, Moses was aware that the people would make it to the land of promise, although he himself would not get there with them.

In the first 14 verses of Deuteronomy 28, which means "a second look", Moses looks back over where God has brought them from and peeps over into the future as well.

The remaining verses of the six chapter provide a rationale to the people that explains the reason God brought them out of bondage in Egypt, forged a path for them through the Red Sea, sustained them in the wilderness and brought to the edge of Jordan.

Deuteronomy 6:23 notes that"... He brought us out from thence, that he might bring us in, to give us the land which He sware unto our fathers."

It was a promised that must be full of sentiment and power for Moses. As he stood atop Mt. Nebo, he must have remembered those who left Egypt with hope in their hearts, on their way to the Promised Land. Now as the children and grandchildren of those old warriors stood on the threshold of the promise, sigh of appreciation can still be heard across the centuries.

Today, the story must be told of the old warriors who worshipped by the light of lanterns and kept warm by wood burning stoves. The story must be told of the old warriors that kept the church doors open despite depressions, hard times and wars.

Like Moses when we look back, we must say to the world, 'He brought us out, to bring us into the land of promise.

We are placed in a position for a reason

GOD INTENDED TO SAVE THEM FROM IT: God's deliverance of Israel was intended to save them from destruction. It was a destiny that seemed inevitable especially since Israel had lost the political power to control its own direction and its will to resist further degradation.

When God made the announcement there were many who thought that was impossible. It was not impossible or improbable because God intended to raise them to a height they had never imagined. They felt it was too marvelous to be true.

God asked them the same question that he asks us to day, "Just because it is too marvelous for your imagination, does that mean it is too hard for God?"

God's answer to them is the same answer He has for us, don't think that it can't be done because you can't visualize it, believe that it can be done, if God wants it done. Nothing is too hard for God.

God has the power to save us, even from ourselves.

This was the hope that God restored to Israel and it is the same hope he brings today, that from East to West, he will bring things together again. He will lift us up. He will save us from our adversaries but we must roll up our sleeves and prepare to make it happen and receive it when it comes.

GOD PROTECTED THEM IN IT: Before God delivers us from it he protects us while we are still in it.

The process of our deliverance is rarely instantaneous; it happens over time. While the deliverance is taking shape God arranges to protect us until it is time to move.

Believers must remember that God is at work, delivering us even if we don't readily notice His hand in our affairs.

If we get a promotion on the job, God is working, but if we are not selected for promotion...God is working that situation too! Romans 8:28 reminds us, "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose."

The prophet Elijah sat by a brook and was fed daily by ravens and drank from a brook. When Elijah wouldn't move, God dried up the brook and called the ravens home. Elijah recognized the hand of God in his situation and moved on with his life.

The man who missed his flight, thought he was having a bad day until he read how those who caught the flight were stuck for days in the snow! He praised God for missing the flight.

The man who thought he was having a bad day because he had a flat tire but as he changed the tire he notice his gas tank had a slow leak that could have caused an explosion and killed him. He praised God for the flat tire!

God protected our people while we were in our bondage experience. He protected us in it before saving us from it.

WE CAN'T LOSE HOPE WE MUST WIN IT: Standing on the Jordan, we can't lose hope because the waters are raging. We have seen our leaders assassinated, persecuted, suspended and publically humiliated. We have suffered the bitter cup of difficult times to reach this; but we are too close to stop now.

Before we lose hope in it we should remember how God has done it before.

Often, like Israel, we forget how God has delivered us from similar situations. In the wilderness The children of Israel grumbled and could not see all the ways that God had blessed them as they met and overcame one obstacle after another with the Egyptians and the Red Sea.

Whether it was legal slavery, the separate but equal doctrine of Plessey versus Ferguson or the Brown versus the Topeka Kansas school board decision, or Jones vs. the United States it is obvious that each time we came before our Red Sea or faced destruction by the approaching armies of our enemies, God has stood in the gap on our behalf. Every battle we have fought, we have done so realizing the presence of God without whom any victory could have been won.

Today, we are facing a new Red Sea but we are serving the same wise God. While we are in this situation, we need to keep hope while we are in it because God will truly save us from it.

God will lift us from it

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that God brought us out of it so that he could take us to places that we have never been.

When God delivered us He brought us out of a horrible past. He brought us from a hopeless past and a helpless position.

He brought us out by making us the beneficiaries of His divine favor.

We are standing on the banks of Jordan!

On the other side of Jordan lies a land filled with milk and honey

On the other side of Jordan is the promise of eternity, in a land where the wicked will cease from troubling and the weary will be at rest!

On the other side of Jordan we will realize the fullness of God's favor.

This the same favor that was showered on Samuel that caused him rise from obscurity to become a great prophet. 1 Samuel 2:26 says, "And the child Samuel grew on, and was in favor both with the LORD, and also with men."

It's the same favor that Job talked about in Job 10:12 when he said, "Thou hast granted me life and favor, and thy visitation hath preserved my spirit."

This is the same favor that the angel told Mary about in Luke 1:30 when he said, "...Fear not, Mary: for thou hast found favor with God."

It's the same favor that David enjoyed because Acts 7:46 says David was a man, "Who found favor before God.."

God favored us and brought us to a land where honey is plenteous!

God favored us and brought us into edge of victory!

God favored us by giving us a glimpse of heaven's provisions!

Because of His favor we have been able to come through our Egypt, cross our Red Sea and enter our Promised Land.

It is His favor that gives us:

-STRENGTH when our burdens become heavy.

-ASSURANCE when everything seems to go wrong.

-INSPIRATION when difficulties arise.

-COMFORT when disaster strikes.

Because of His favor we are able to:

-Keep on going, when our road gets rough.

-Keep on singing, even though our pain becomes intense.

-Keep on working, even when our body gets weary.

I'm glad that He is a wonder working God!

I'm glad that He is a favor giving God!

I'm glad that He is a soul saving God!

I'm glad that one day He saw me in it and decided to save me from it!

I'm glad that He decided to protect me from it while He guided me through it.

I'm glad that He decided to lift me from it and elevate me above it.

I'm glad that one day he decided to pick up an old rugged cross!

I'm glad that He carried it to Golgotha's hill!
They nailed His hands to it, but he didn't stay on it!
They buried him in a borrowed tomb,
But, early Sunday morning He was buried in it, stepped out from it with all power in His hands!

Why settle for Less?

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 13, 2011

SCRIPTURE: "And Terah took Abram his son, and Lot the son of Haran his son's son, and Sarai his daughter in law, his son Abram's wife; and they went forth with them from Ur of the Chaldees, to go into the land of Canaan; and they came unto Haran, and dwelt there." Genesis 11:31

Introduction

Has there ever been a time in your life when you started out chasing a big dream, but settled for something less? There are many people who have settled for a level of life that is far from their original dream and even further from the life that God has in store for them?

Remember your dream? What happened to it? Are you living in the power of your dream or did you get side tracked? The Army has a slogan that says, "Be all you can be" are we being all we can be or have we settled for whatever we can get? Have we given up on that big dream?

Consider the hungry wolf who dreamed of having chicken for dinner. So he watched the hen house carefully and saw all of the fat hens moving around. Finally, he chased after one big fat hen, but just as he was gaining on the hen a rabbit crossed his trail. It was the biggest rabbit that he'd ever seen. He instantly forgot about the Hen who was eluding him and started to chase after the rabbit that seemed bigger and closer. After a few twists and turns a squirrel appeared in the road. The squirrel was so close that he could touch it, so he changed course and went after the amber little animal. Just as he was about to catch the squirrel, it disappeared. He spotted a rat and chased it for a small distance until the rat ran into a hole. As the sun went down he found himself standing outside waiting for a rat to come out. He started out looking for chicken and dumplings and ended the day standing guard over a rat hole!

How many of us today are guarding rat holes when we should be doing much more? Even more, how many are satisfied just where they are all and no longer desire dumplings but are content with rat soup?

God has blessings waiting for every believer, but many have not claimed them because they have accepted less than what they should have and have become comfortable in their acceptance.

If God has promised more, why should anyone settle for less?

If God has promised a full meal why should the hungry settle for a snack of crumbs?

As Christians, our desire is to work to build the kingdom of God. We strive constantly to make that happen. We have been promised salvation and life eternal in heaven. Regardless to how difficult our journey, we won't settle for less.

Exposition

This text focuses on the decision of Terah to pursue the promise of God, but he stopped short in Haran and died there.

Terah was the head of a great family who received instructions from God that he and his family were to move up to another level. They were charged to move out and move into a land that would given to them by God. The land, located in Canaan, has become known as the Promised Land.

Terah departed out of Ur of the Chaldees, with his son Abraham and Lot, and the rest of his family, in obedience to the call of God. His journey carried them to Haran, or Charran, a place about mid-way between Ur and Canaan, where they dwelt till Terah's head was laid, probably because the old man was unable, through the infirmities of age, to proceed in his journey.

Haran was beautiful and comfortable, but it was not the level God had in store for the family. The journey was not complete; God had something more in store. Yet, for a variety of reasons, Terah went no further. The scripture concludes "and they came into Haran, and dwelt there."

Dealing with Settling ways

DON'T MEET GOD HALF WAY: Terah moved out to claim the promise of God, but stopped half way; content with the fact that he had moved from his old surroundings and was, at the least in a new place. There are many, like Terah who hear God's command to climb to the top level, but they become comfortable several levels below the promise. We try to meet God half way, but He has promised us a full victory, not a compromise.

Too many are happy with a better blessing, and settle for better when they could have best. Half-way is better than we were, but nowhere near where we should be. Half way, is an improvement, but it is not the ultimate achievement. If God commands us to be a doctor, will he be pleased that we settled for being a doctor's assistant? If God commands us to be a missionary, is it sufficient for us to be a Sunday School teacher? If God commands us to reach the world, wouldn't he be satisfied if we just reached the neighborhood? If God commands it and we only obey a part of the command, that is the same as full disobedience. We do not have the liberty to reach the level we please and settle in, especially if that is not the level God has in store for us. Don't meet God half way, but be prepared to go all the way with Him.

CUT TIES THAT HOLD YOU DOWN: Terah settled in Haran and stopping reaching for the Land of Promise. However, Abraham was told to prepare to move out and to cut ties with those that would impede his journey. Read Genesis 12:1,"Now the LORD had said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will shew thee:" He was told to cut ties with things familiar to him and even kinfolks that might get in the way. There are some friends and family members that have stopped the faithful from reaching the next level for years. Out of loyalty to the old crowd or to certain family members we let them hang on to us; yet there may come a time when we must cut ties. Abraham tried to move out to claim his promise and carried Lot with him. It was long before the herdsmen of the two families started fighting, they were hating on each other and all progress stopped. Abraham didn't move forward until he cut ties with Lot. Cutting those ties freed him to move forward.

What ties are holding you? Is it your old running buddies, do you hate to leave them behind? Will you miss them too much to climb higher? Will you miss the old stomping ground? Is there a relative that always gets you off track? If so, it might be time for you to loosen some of those ties that are holding you down. God has a blessing for you, but it's on another level. Look around! There's someone around that's pulling you down, cut ties before you lose your way!

DON'T WORRY ABOUT THE DEVIL ON THE NEXT LEVEL: There were many among Abraham's entourage who worried intensely about the enemies they would face if they left Haran and moved to the Promised Land. They were not warriors, but the enemies they would meet would be formidable. Abraham was sure that if God commanded Him to make the journey he would provide for him during the journey. He did not receive a secret path that would not be filled with trials and tests, in fact Abraham was sure to meet adversity, but with one caveat; he had God's promise.

There are many today who have failed to move to the next level because they are afraid of the devil on the next level. How many could be supervisors, but they settle in where they are because their present position is safe. How many could be division heads or top bosses but the devils on that level could end careers abruptly. Is that settling for less?

If you have been commanded to move into a position that would better enable you to help the kingdom and you turn it down for fear of the devils you'll meet, is that settling for less? It is no doubt that the closer you get to what God has promised you, the more opposition you will encounter. Yet, you should look at the verses of Genesis 12:2-3 again for they contain a word of encouragement, "And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing: And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee: and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed." God says, "I want to put you in a position where you will be a blessing to others in my name. I will bless anybody who helps you, but I will also curse anyone who tries to get in your way!" He told Abraham that through Him many would be blessed...take out Abraham's name, put in your own and what you have is God saying that he wants to bless you so you can be a blessing to others, but the blessing is on another level, go for it, He'll take care of the devils!

Don’t settle for the unsaved life

Finally, brothers and sisters, there are many who have improved their lives considerably over the years, but they should not settle for less; the Godly life in Christ is the best!

There are many people in the world today who have improved themselves over the years, but that improvement is not their best.

There are many who no longer drink, gamble, party hard or live wildly, but even that improvement, as important as it is, is not where God wants them to be.

The great life that God has in store for us, is not defined by what we do not do, but by those things that we actually accomplish and achieve; we must always reach higher.

The only thing that is higher than a life that is free from worldliness is world that is filled with Godliness.

Those who climbed half way to where God wants them to be must now be prepared to make the next step, get closer to God and to know him for themselves.

There is no success we can hope to achieve in this world without God’s help!

There is no peace we can hope to acquire in this world without God’s help!

There is no forgiveness we can hope to receive except it comes through the blood of the Lamb.

I’m reminded of the little girl who spent the summer with her grandmother in the country. She enjoyed helping grandma make her special pound cake recipe. She enjoyed watching grandma mix the flour, eggs, milk and other ingredients. She saw her when she reached for a stick of real butter and mixed it in the bowl. Her heart jumped when the cake was sliced and placed on her saucer. It was so soft that it seemed that it could be cut with a feather. It was so flavorful that it seemed to caress her taste buds. Once she returned home her mother tried to satisfy her fancy. She brought her basket full of Little Debbie, but the little girl wouldn’t eat them. She made her cake out of the box that was Betty Crocker’s best, but the little girl still turned her head. “What’s wrong with these?” asked the mother. The little girl turned and said, these cakes don’t have what grandma puts in hers, she has something in it called scratch. Scratch is the best. When you’ve had the best, you don’t want the rest!”

Is there anybody here who can say, “I’ve tried the best, and after you’ve tried the best, you won’t settle for less.

Is there anybody here who can testify that God is a healing God? I see a woman pushing her way through the crowd saying, “If I can just touch the hem of His garment I know I’ll be made whole.” -I’ve tried the best and I won’t settle for less!

Is there anybody here who has been surrounded by a judgmental crowd and you needed a lawyer to plead your case. I see woman being accused of living in sin and was about to be convicted and stone to death until Jesus stood to plead her case asking, “He without sin, let him cast the first stone.” -In my courtroom he is the best, I won’t settle for less!

Is there anybody here who can testify that when all doors were closed for you and everyone had given up hope, that the Lord made a way out of no way. I’ve tried the best, I won't settle for less!

Is there anybody here who can truthfully say, "I know the Lord will answer prayer, because I've tried him for myself"

Is there anybody here who is still holding on because, you've tried the best and you won't settle for less?

Is there anybody here who refuses to stop hoping because they know how to sing, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame, but wholly lean on Jesus' name!"

I've tried the best and I won't settle for less!

Over 2000 years ago God went through heaven's inventory of able men looking for savior to redeem lost men.

He saw the names of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, they were all good men, but they were not the best!

He saw the names of Daniel and the three Hebrew Boys, they were all good men, but they were not the best.

He saw Solomon in all of his wisdom and David, a man after God's own heart, they were both good men but they were not the best.

Then I heard a voice say, "If the Lord needs somebody, here am I send me!"

Down through 42 generations came the best that heaven had to offer. Born in Bethlehem, raised in Nazareth. Tested in a wilderness for 40 days and nights!

Down in Jerusalem God's best, picked up an old rugged cross and was crucified on Calvary's hill.

But Early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

I've tried Him for myself!

When you've tried the best, you won't settle for less!

What shall we eat today?

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 20, 2011

SCRIPTURE: Therefore take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? or, What shall we drink? or, Wherewithal shall we be clothed? (For after all these things do the Gentiles seek:) for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things. But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you: Matthew 6:31-33

Introduction

Have you ever asked the question, "What are we eating today?" Whether it is a child or a spouse opening their lunch box at school or work or the fatigued laborer returning home after a hard day's work the question in every generation is , "What are we eating today?"

A generation ago that question was a tantalizing mystery. A lunch box could be stuffed with sandwiches, chips fruit, a thermos of soup and a delicious drink. An evening meal could easily be fried chicken or pork chops, a plate of greens, rice and gravy, corn on the cob and a slice of corn bread. A generation ago, there was a sense of excitement when we asked the question, what are we eating, today?"

Today, we may get an answer, but it may not offer excitement. If there is a lunch box it will be chunked full of fast, microwavable foods or handy munchables. If there is anything on the table, in many cases it might be a sack full of McDonald's, a 15 piece chicken bucket, and a plastic bag filled with white Styrofoam contained chunked full of catfish filets and fries.

While many men and women in this generation enjoy cooking, it is unquestioned that the number of people is declining who are willing to come home from a hard day and stand in the kitchen for another two hours to prepare a meal that will be gobbled down in front of the TV set without even a thank you. Many wives serve notice on their husbands before they marry that they "don't do the cooking thing." So it's Junk Food or no food. It's either fast food or growling stomach. It's either McDonald's, Uncle Ben's or DiGiorno.

Consider the man who was not very happy with his wife's cooking, but tried to put a good face on it when he talked with his friends. In fact, his wife cooked so badly that he hated to come home and ask "What are we eating, today." However, whenever he was surrounded by his friends he often bragged on what a great wife he had. He bragged that she was a perfect manager, great mother, an excellent housewife, a true friend and partner and treated him like a king. All of his friends were envious, but soon they noticed that in his list of excellent qualities that he attributed to his wife, he never mentioned her cooking. When asked, he thought for a moment then answered, "When I come home every day, I ask what are we eating today, and she makes me feel like a God!" The other men looked in amazement. "Wow! Man, how can just asking a question make you feel like a god?" The man then answered proudly, "When I sit down to the table I feel like a god, because every time I look at my plate there is always a burnt offering!"

On a spiritual note, we could ask a similar question of God, "What are you serving today?"

His answer will surely be, "I'm preparing a table for you in the presence of your enemies, I plan to fill your cup until it overflows!"

As Christians, we rejoice in the knowledge that our God prepares a table for us that is never filled with junk food or munchables. What he has for us is filling, enjoyable and nourishing; food from heaven's table for those who will be dining with the King.

Exposition

In this text Jesus speaks to his disciples about their commitment to building the kingdom that should have been foremost on their collective mind.

Jesus preached to and taught his disciples for three years. During that time He showed them the mysteries of heaven to come and the kingdom of God on earth. He urged them to stay focused on their immediate mission and to place less attention on the things that attract the attention of the world.

He told them that they should not be totally consumed with what they would eat it and where or what they will wear and when. Their total focus should be the kingdom of God and His righteousness.

The emphasis of the kingdom of heaven is not in asking the question "What shall we eat or what shall I be served, but rather what can I prepare for others and what can I serve that will help them. Assume that attitude, says Christ, and all of the other things shall be added unto you.

Meals and Service

There are many social scientists who believe that there are parallels between the way we approach meal times and the way we approach life in general. Even further, there are those that say our approach to meals often reflects the way we relate to God. Joy Overstreet posed a series of questions that can help us to draw the connections. She asks us to consider our last full meal and answer the following questions about it:

1) Who were you with at your last meal? Were you sitting at a table specifically set up for eating? Were you feeling relaxed?

2) Were you hungry when you began the meal? Did you pay attention to what was on the plate, the colors, the quantities? Did you focus on the meal at all or was your mind someplace else?

3) Did you eat your meal slowly or did you gobble it down? Did you really taste the food and savor it?

4) Did you feel grateful for the food and for the person or persons with whom you shared the meal. Did you feel satisfied? Would you like that eating experience again?

The social scientist say the way we approach meals may be the same way we approach life and…maybe even our service to God.

There are many today who are eating more but enjoying it less. They are eating, but never seem to get full. They are eating, but they didn't get to enjoy the experience.

When Jesus spoke to his disciples he told them to be focused on why they do what they do, not the deeds themselves. The businessman who focuses on why he's trying to make money and not the money itself, enjoys his money more. The deacon who focuses on why he visits the sick and encourages the broken hearted enjoys the service more. Singers who focus on why they sing enjoy it more.

When you enjoy the experience, you don't want to gobble it down. You approach it with a hunger to be fulfilled. You enjoy the company, you savor it and you taste it and after having completed the meal you are satisfied.

Jesus said seeking the kingdom of God and its righteousness is the first priority, that's what every disciple is charged to do. What we will eat or wear is only important as it relates to helping us achieve our top priority. When our top priority is addressed all of the other things, He said, will be added to you, but they will be secondary.

What are we eating? Bread!

What shall we eat today? In a spiritual context the answer is bread. Bread is good for both the body and the soul.

Nutritionists tell us that we need certain quantities of food from certain groups every day: milk and meat requires 2-3 servings a day; fruit and vegetables require 3-5 servings, but breads require 8-11 servings per day. In the mind of the nation's nutritionists, breads are needed most to nourish the human body and maintain health.

Each day we should ask ourselves, from a spiritual context, "What shall we eat today?" We will be sustained by the bread of life, Jesus himself. As we work as clerks, teachers, businesspersons, students, retired service and a plethora of other fields, approach them with the power of God's words that colors your whole attitude about what you do.

Jesus said in John 6:35, I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst. The presence of Christ in a believer's life is essential to satisfying life's hungers. He meets all needs and satisfies all desires.

In John 6:51 Jesus says, "I am the living bread which came down from heaven: if any man eat of this bread, he shall live forever: and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world.

The Lord's supper is a spiritual meal we share with good company. We enjoy the experience; we approach it with a hunger that needs to be satisfied. Our mind is here, not far away. We are enjoying every minute of the experience, without distractions. We don't want it rushed, we don't want to gobble it down.

What are you serving?

Sometimes our attitude about the meals we eat is set when we hear the answer to the question, "What are you serving today?" That can also apply to our service to God, when we ask, "Who am I serving, and what am I serving?"

We are serving a powerful and awesome God. We are serving a God who hears and answers our prayers, lifts our burdens, inspires us in moments of despair, and forgives us and cheers us and saves us from ourselves. Who are we serving? We are serving a God who is so high we can't go over Him, so low we can't go under him, so wide we can't go around him. We are serving a God who is an awesome God.

What are we serving?

Singers what are you serving? Is just any old warmed over song or is it a song that will help build up the body of Christ and communicate the word?

Ushers, what are you serving? Is it just a dry look and a folded program or a service of warm outreach that ushers in the spirit of God.

Ministry leaders, what are you serving? Is it just another thankless day of driving the van, preparing homeless meals, climbing on a ladder and changing the sign, repairing broken facilities, playing another hymn on the same old organ, dealing with the problems of youth, handling the finances; or is it another chance to touch a life, through my service, in the name of our Lord and savior.

If we lose focus on why we do what we do, the entire service becomes an interruption.

Choir rehearsal becomes an interruption from what's really important to you. Meetings and other gatherings with the church become less enjoyable. In fact, when do come we want to gobble it down and get it over with as quick as we can. If there is a drive through edition, maybe by television or podcast, then I could gobble it down even faster. If we lose focus on why we do what we do, the whole experience with Jesus is lost and we never understand why others seem to get so much from it, but when we leave all we think about it what it cost.

So, Jesus told his disciples, "Seek ye first the kingdom God," make serving God your primary goal and everything else will fall into place.

What are you serving? The love of God, to all who will hear and receive Him!

When you are hungry

Finally, brothers and sisters, the answer to the question, "What shall we eat today?" is especially important when you are hungry.

When we are hungry we desire to be fed.

When we are hungry we anxiously await the food that will be served.

There are many people who approach their worship and service the same way, they walk in our doors hungry for worship, hungry to be in the presence of God.

If you understand that, then you understand what David meant when he said he satisfies my longing soul. He fills every empty cup. He provides bread for every hungry soul.

I heard him say, I am the bread of life. He that eateth of this bread shall never hunger!

Somebody here today knows what it's like when your soul gets hungry.

When your soul is hungry you only see the impossible, but after you are fed the —IMPOSSIBLE becomes possible.

When your soul is hungry you only see the improbable, but after you are fed the —IMPROBABLE becomes probable.

When your soul is hungry you only see the unbelievable, but after you are fed the —UNBELIEVABLE becomes believable.

When your soul is hungry you only see the unconquerable, but after you are fed the —UNCONQUERABLE mountains are made low.

After you are fed —IMPASSABLE valleys are exalted.

—UNDESIRABLE rough places are made plain.

—UNRELIABLE crooked places are made straight.

I hear the old warriors say, Bread of Heaven, Bread of Heaven, feed me till I want no more!

Lord, I hold up my hunger for more faith, feed me till I want no more!

Lord, I hold up my hunger for strength, feed me till I want no more!

Lord, I hold up my hunger for obedience, feed me till I want no more!

Lord, I hold up my hunger for blessings, feed me till I want no more!

What shall we eat today? We shall eat the bread of life?

It is bread not hurriedly prepared in a back room kitchen, or popped from a can like a biscuit.

The bread we need cannot be found on the shelves of a store!

The bread we need came down here over 2000 years ago into a little place called Bethlehem,

The house of Bread. He died on an old rugged cross, between two thieves!

But Early Sunday morning! He arose, with all power in his hands!

What shall we eat today? The bread of life!

We shall eat at a table especially prepared, without distractions, in the company of good friends. And won't eat it in a hurry, but we will savor its meaning and enjoy the experience.

What makes it even better is that this meal is free…Jesus paid the bill!

One Call Does It All

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: I will hear what God the LORD will speak, for He will speak peace to His people and to His saints. —Psalm 85:8

Introduction

What if you tried to talk to God and could not get through? What if there was a busy signal each time you called? Or worse, suppose you reach an automated angelic voice that instructs you to dial one for prayer requests, two for confessions and three to report an emergency? To speak with the big man Himself please hold. Please note because of the high volume of calls that the big man receives your wait time may be several days. If you prefer, you can leave a message on his voice mail and He'll get back to you at his earliest convenience.

Such a heavenly call would be disappointing at the least; especially since we expect VIP service as a child of God.

We have come a long way since Alexander Graham Bell patented the telephone. We have grown from scratchy voices that were nearly inaudible to crystal clear voices delivered by fiber optic cables on the ground and satellite signals in the air. Fiber optics, cellular and electronic communications have prompted many to both expect and demand access.

Gone are the days when a real person greets you on the other end of a phone call. It seems as though whenever we try to "reach out and touch someone," we are greeted with a computerized voice.

I'm glad this isn't true of our Father in heaven. He is always there. No voice-mail boxes, no "press 2 for more grace" and no "call waiting" interruptions. Thankfully, "Call to Me, and I will answer you" (Jer. 33:3) has not been replaced by, "All lines are now busy. Your call is important to Me. Please stay on the line."
Yet I wonder what kind of access He has to us?

We expect direct access to God whenever we call day or night.

Communication with God is a two-way street. He speaks to us through His Word when we come before Him in prayer. We feel his presence and hear His voice through the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. He paid a great price to keep the mainline open so that we can talk to him and he can talk to us.

As Christians, we are thankful to Christ for giving us access to God; now we can call Him up tell what you want.

Exposition

This text finds David showing believers how to call on God and to wait for an answer.

In this psalm David uses the first seven verses as a tutorial based on his prior experience in talking to God. If we look closely we see an outline take shape:

Thank God for past favors and blessings; that's the tone of verses 1-3. It's a way of saying that our present problems should never cause us to lose sight of all that God has done for us in the past.

Then we are shown how to make our petition for our present situation. In this situation, David asked for the troubles of the people to be turned. Thus, in verse 4 we hear the petition to turn us or change our condition. He asked for relief.

Then, in verses 5-6, we are shown David appealing for revival, not just relief but full restoration of the favor and grace once known.

That's one side of the conversation, our side.

The text, beginning at verse eight now tells us what to do next, wait to hear God. We are reminded that if we wait to hear God, he will speak to our souls.

Calling on God connects us to his strength

For generations saints have learned that there are advantages to calling on God. Those advantages include:

Calling God connects us to His strength: Believer's call on God to benefit from his strength. There are times when the strongest believers experience weakness; it is a part of our nature. The spirit is often willing but the flesh is weak. These are the times that we draw strength from God.

In Psalms 19:14 David said, "Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength, and my redeemer." He acknowledged God as his strength. When our strength is rooted in our faith we are blessed and assisted in ways that could not happen otherwise. Psalms 84:5 says, "Blessed[is] the man whose strength[is] in thee; in whose heart[are] the ways[of them]."

For that reason we are encouraged to stay connected with God and to constantly look for opportunities to be in his presence. Psalms 105:4 encourages us to "Seek the Lord, and his strength: seek his face evermore." Connecting with not only brings us strength but it sustains through difficult times.

Calling God connects us to restoration

Connecting gives us restoration. No one is perfect. Even the best person makes mistakes. That's why pencils come with erasers and computers have spelling and grammar checkers. Mistakes are inevitable. Without the redemptive blood of Christ no believer has a chance to acquire eternal life. Connecting with God through faith in Christ gives us access to the restorative power of the blood. It is through this relationship that we have a hope of forgiveness. Our connection with Christ is our opportunity to begin again. Not only is it an opportunity, but starting over is almost a requirement. He said, "Except a man be born again" he cannot begin life in the kingdom of God. We are inspired by the truth that believers who are in Christ are "new creatures." Old things are passed away and all things become new.

The potential to begin again is exciting. It lifts the spirits and it provides us hope of a brighter future.

The birth of the Christ child inspires this hope because we know that as a man and as the son of God, he looks beyond our faults and sees our needs.

Calling on God gives us direction

Connecting with God gives us direction: One of the great advantages of connecting with God is that He is constantly with us, providing us with inspiration and direction. Because God lives in us, through the indwelling of His spirit, He directs and motivates us.

How does God direct us? To answer this question we can look at the way God has directed believers in the past. He spoke to Abraham directly and told him about the promised land. Based on his conversation with God, Abraham set out on a lifelong quest searching for a city. The prophet Elijah heard God's direction in a still small voice in the wilderness. Saul received his direction on the Damascus Road. Once they connected with God He spoke to them and gave direction to their lives.

The Holy Spirit speaks to us in similar ways. Sometimes we hear His voice as clear as crystal. At other times we feel Him nudging us gently. In moments when we found ourselves in a slump were impossible times; we came to a complete halt and it was only the Holy Spirit that prompted us to get going again.

The same is true when we were saved from big mistakes. Sometimes it was the stumbling block that frustrated us that saved us from the troubling situation. It has been the Holy Spirit; living in us who helped us passed our most troubling moments. We can't quite describe how God lives in us.

One song writer said, "Something within me that holdeth the reigns. Something within that banishes pain…all that I know there is something within."

It only takes one call

Finally, brothers and sisters we should remember that when we call on God, one call does it all.

The great thing about the Lord is that He is all in one. He is all knowing, all powerful and everywhere at the same time.

That means wherever we are we can call on Him.

Jonah called on Him from the belly of a whale and found out that all he needed was one call; after one call that whale spat him out to begin a new life mission.

Joseph called on Him from a dungeon in Egypt and God raised him from a prison cell to become prime minister of Egypt. Ask him and he will tell you that one call does it all. Daniel called on Him from the Lion's den and was rescued from the hungry claws of the lions. He will tell you that one call does it all Hezekiah called on Him while laying on his death bed and received an immediate answer of 15 more years of life. He will tell you that one call doe it all. When you call on God, all you need to get through is to call on the name of Jesus! You don't have to be perfect to call on God, but you do have to know Jesus! You don't have to be wealthy or smart to call on God, but you do have to be willing submit to His will in the name of Jesus. To make that one call to the trine of grace you need an obedient life, a desire to submit to His will, and request in Jesus' name! All you have to do is ask God to forgive you and it's done. David sinned so badly that God turned His back on His family and the whole nation. But David dropped to his knees and said, Create in me a clean heart oh God. Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation, and renew a right spirit within me. When we get right with God we'll find that it's easy to get a prayer through. I don't know about your experience, but I found out that prayer changes things! Prayer can take a seriously ill body and make it whole again! The good thing about it is that one call does it all!

Prayer can take your failures and turn them into victories! The good thing about it is that one call does it all!

Prayer can take your blunders and turn them into blessings! The good thing about it is that one call does it all!

Prayer can take your fears and turn them into confidences! The good thing about it is that one call does it all!

Prayer can take your stumbling blocks and turn them into stepping stones! The good thing about it is that one call does it all!

Prayer can take your weaknesses and turn them into strength! The good thing about it is that one call does it all!

In Jesus' name, burdens have been lifted!

In Jesus' name, finances have been restored!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who arose early on Sunday morning!

Call on Him, trust in His words, and ask what you will in Jesus' name and God will hear you when you pray.

One call does it all!

You didn't see me, but I saw you

SCRIPTURE: "Nathanael saith unto him, Whence knowest thou me? Jesus answered and said unto him, Before that Philip called thee, when thou wast under the fig tree, I saw thee." John 1:48

Introduction

Have you ever been in a distant place, only to bump in to someone from home? Those who have traveled know this experience. These were the times when you were hundreds of miles away from home, but stumbled into a familiar face in a supermarket, in a shopping mall or while attending a public activity. Some learn that our neighbor saw us much earlier, from across a room or from a distance in the crowd, and had been watching us before speaking. It lets you know what a small world in which we live. There are very few places we can go in this world and not be seen.

The little children play hide and go seek in the house. Where can anyone hide in your house that they cannot be found? There are just so many places you can hide. They are usually always found even those who hide themselves in closets, cupboards, under beds and even in the dirty clothes hamper.

We all have our hiding places. Corrie Ten Boom wrote of her secret sanctuary from the Nazis in her book the "The Hiding Place." Ali Baba and the 40 thieves of the Arabian Nights hid themselves inside of a mountain whose door only opened with the words "Open Sesame." The prophet Elijah tried to hide from King Ahab under a Juniper Tree. We go to our hiding places because we don't want to be seen.

It's an eerie feeling to be watched in secret. In 2002 a Monroe woman, Susan Wilson, was the victim of a neighbor who installed video cameras all over her house, including her bedroom, and recorded everything. When discovered, prosecutors were frustrated because while there were laws about unlawful entry, and peeping toms, there were no laws about installing cameras in a neighbor's house. Wilson went on a campaign to get laws changed; nine states now have video voyeurism laws.

Very few people relish being watched in secret. So we install curtains, and blinds in homes, darkly tint the windows in our cars, protect our email passwords, and register in hotels under assumed names when we don't want to be discovered. But, suppose I told you that despite our best efforts at remaining anonymous, that God knows who we are, where we are, how we got where we are and why?

It might be a surprise to some, but God knows all of our identities and hiding places and even our thoughts. He has written it in his word. Psalms 139:2-3 says, "Thou knowest my downsitting and mine uprising, thou understandest my thoughts afar off. Thou compasseth my path and my lying down, and art acquainted with all my ways." It means God knows and sees everything we do. He sees us, even though we can't see Him.

As Christians, we are aware that God knows all about us. He keeps his eye on us, not to spy on us, but to protect us, provide for us and direction. It should give us a sense of security to know that He sees us, even though we can't see Him.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he assembled his disciples and called upon Nathaniel to follow Him.

Jesus had entered into Galilee and requested Philipp to become one of his disciples. The text says Phillip found Nathaniel and told him that the one prophesied by Moses had come. Phillip told Nathaniel that the promised savior was the son of Joseph from a small town called Nazareth. Phillip doubted that Jesus could be the Messiah because he was born in Nazareth. He asked the question, "Can any good thing come out of Nazareth?" Phillip's only answer was, "come and see."

Soon Jesus met Nathaniel for the first time. Instantly he discerned that Phillip was a good man and addressed him as "an Israelite in whom is no guile."

Nathaniel wondered how Jesus could make such a statement when they had never met and neither knew anything about the other. Nathaniel asked, "when knowest thou me?" In other words he asked, "Have we met before? How do you know me?"

Jesus could have answered that he knew Nathaniel before he was born. He could have said that while he was yet just a heartbeat in his mother's womb he observed him. He could have said, before his existence was even a thought floating in the eons of time, he knew him. Such an answer would have been too confusing, so Jesus answered him by saying, in John 1:48 "..Before that Philip called thee, when thou wast under the fig tree, I saw thee."

That was enough to convince Nathaniel that Jesus was the Lord because he knew that only a man of great discernment, a man of God or God himself could have known that he had been under the fig tree.

J esus told him that he believed because He revealed that He saw him under the fig tree, but he promised him that "thou shalt see greater things than these."

From that day forward, Nathaniel became a believer.

What Jesus Saw

Jesus revealed great truths about Himself when he responded to Nathaniel. Those truths allow us to get an insight into how God sees us as well.

HE SEES US AT WORSHIP: It was a common practice in the Eastern Culture to have a place of worship and prayer. It was not unusual for many to pray under trees. The text does not tell us exactly what Nathaniel was doing under the fig tree, but if common practice is a guide, he probably prayed. In his quiet moment, whatever it was, Christ saw Him. Even today, the Lord sees us in our moment of worship. When no one else is looking, He sees us and hears us. He sees our devout and contrite spirit. He hears our prayers. If we look around in this room, we can't see Him, but He can definitely see us. For Nathaniel, that point of contact was a fig tree. For you, it might be your dining room table in a quiet time of the day. It might be special moments that you spend on the side of your bed as you begin and end your day. Your fig tree could be one of many places where you talk to God and you can feel His presence. Moses climbed to the top of a mountain, Abraham made sacrifice before an altar, and Jesus went into a garden. We know about the garden. It might be this same garden that the song writer spoke of when he said, "I come to the garden alone, while due is still on the roses. And the voice I hear falling on my ear, the Son of God discloses. And he walks with me and he talks with me and he tells me I am His own. And the joy we share as we tarry there, none other has ever known."

HE SEES OUR WEAKNESSES: God knows everything about us, including our strengths and weaknesses. Often we try to hide our weaknesses and sins from others, but God knows. Adam and Eve faced discovered this truth in the Garden of Eden. They had broken God's law and eaten of the forbidden fruit and they hid their nakedness behind fig leaves and tried to hide themselves behind the trees. However, their fig leaves were transparent. They hid their nakedness from each other, but not from God. There is nothing about us that God does not see. If we cheat, steal, lie or misrepresent ourselves, we may successfully fool others, but God knows. David was able to deceive the people of Israel about His sins with Bathsheba and his state ordered assassination of her husband Uriah, but God knew.

Jesus said in Luke 12:2, "For there is nothing covered, that shall not be revealed; neither hid, that shall not be known." The title of Tyler Perry's stage play said it all, "What's Done in the dark, will come to the light." It will come to light because God sees our weaknesses.

Unlike our enemies, while God sees our weaknesses, he loves us anyway. He does not condone our sins. He does not endorse our sins. He does not bless us in our sins, but he loves us. God hates sin, but he loves the sinner. Unlike our enemies he looks beyond our faults and weaknesses and sees our need. He forgives us, we repent. He gives us another chance because he sees us in our weakness.

HE SEES OUR NEED: God sees our daily needs. He scrupulously separates our needs from our wants and knows exactly what we need to both survive and thrive. Physiologically, we need food, clothing and shelter at the offset. Beyond that we need health care and emotional support. The scriptures indicate that God sees the need of even the most ordinary person. A widow woman who struggled to provide for family saw God meet her need by giving her what she needed on a daily basis. Christ saw the health care need of the man sitting by the pool for 38 years and provided it for him. The Apostles saw a lame man at the temple gate and answered his plea by saying, Silver and Gold have I none but such as I have, give I thee. Mary and Martha grieved over the loss of Lazarus and we see Jesus responding to their need in a unique way. The preponderance of scripture teaches that God sees the immediate need of every believer. Whether our needs are financial, involving the payment of loans, meeting daily demands or just making ends meet; God sees our need. This should be a reason for hope for every believer because we know that our individual situation is not unnoticed by the savior. Therefore, the songwriter asks, Why should I be discouraged? Why should the shadows come? Why should my heart be lonely and long for heaven and home. For Jesus is my portion. A constant friend is he. His eye is on the sparrow and I know he watches me.

We cannot see it, but ..

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider there is much more waiting for those who trust in the Lord.

We cannot see God but he sees us. He doesn't see what we are today, but he sees our potential.

Sometimes we can only see our weakness, but even when we can't see Him, God sees our strength.

When we have failed all we can see is defeat, but even when sadness clouds our vision and we cannot see Him, God sees our ultimate victory.

When Jesus spoke to Nathaniel he revealed to him another mystery. Nathaniel was convinced because Christ saw him under a fig tree, but in verse 51 a greater truth was revealed both to Nathaniel and to every generation, "John 1:51 And he saith unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Hereafter ye shall see heaven open, and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of man." It was a promise of greater revelations received from being in the presence of God.

If Nathaniel was excited about the fig tree, his faith would be doubled when he experienced fullness of the Lord. Jesus said, "Ye shall see"

Saints should be excited about the "Ye shall see" because it is a promise to take present blessings which we can see and expand upon them in the realm of the "Ye shall see." This is realm that the word speaks of when it says 1 Corinthians 2:9, "…Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."

Jesus said, "I go to prepare a place for you that where I am ye may be"

This place is in the land of the "Ye shall see!"

What God is preparing for us is:

—Better than good; richer than rich!

—Softer than soft; and sweeter than sweet!

In the land of "Ye shall see" the wicked will cease from troubling and the weary will be at rest.

In the land of "Ye shall see" the crooked places will be made straight and the rough places will be made smooth.

In the land of "Ye shall see" you'll have a new house, because Jesus said, "In my father's house are many mansions"

Don't get too comfortable with your newly paved street of blacktop and asphalt, because in the land of "Ye shall see" the streets will be paved with gold!

Don't get too comfortable with your digitized alarm clock that wakes you up every morning, because in the land of "Ye shall see" time shall be no!

Don't get too comfortable with your new dress and shoes because in the land of "Ye shall see," every saint will put a new robe and slippers.

In the Land of the "Ye shall see"

—Those who have fallen will stand on their feet.

—Those who have cried tears of pain, will dry their eyes, because God will wipe all of their tears away!

—Those who are lost will find their way to the throne!

I don't know about you, but I'm on my way to the land of "Ye shall see"

Jesus, is preparing that place for us!

On his way to get everything ready he stopped by Bethlehem!

On his way to get everything ready he hung around Palestine for 33 years!

On his way to get everything ready he stopped by Calvary and died!

But early Sunday morning he arose from the grave!

We may not be able to see Him, but after while, bye and bye, we shall see Him face to face!

Sweet Water

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 3, 2011

SCRIPTURE:"And he cried unto the LORD; and the LORD shewed him a tree, which when he had cast into the waters, the waters were made sweet: there he made for them a statute and an ordinance, and there he proved them," Exodus 15:25

Introduction

What do you do when you thirst for life's fresh experiences but all you seem to get is bitter water? Bitter experiences are those that are troubling, disturbing upsetting, unrewarding and disastrous. Most of us have had at least one bitter experience in the course of our lives. Those bitter moments are the ones that frustrated us and prompted us to throw up our hands saying, "What's the use!"

There are many people who have been wounded by so many bitter experiences that they themselves have become bitter and unbearable.

When we become bitter we quickly become one of many characters we associate with bitterness: Ebenezer Scrooge and The Grinch quickly come to mind but there are many more that we know who are closer to home. Their faces are curled up and they are always frowning, complaining and rarely have a kind word to say. Sometimes our bitterness can make us unbearable.

We should be encouraged to know that just as life can bring us to bitter water that our God can change bitter water into sweet water. The power of God can transform bitter situations to better situations. God can take bad and turn it into good, loss and turn it into gain. Therefore, we should not be overwhelmed by the bitter circumstances of this life because we are "more than conquerors" in Christ Jesus.

As Christians, our goal in life is to trust God to help us turn bitter experiences into sweet water through his power.

Exposition

The text focuses on Israel in the wilderness, and its thirst for water. Three days journey into their march toward the promise land, Israel encountered thirst that shattered their faith. Three days earlier they had sang great songs about how God drowned pharaoh's army in the Red Sea and delivered them. They praised God and laughed at their enemies. Now, three days later they faced a new enemy and fear struck them again.

Their thirst in the wilderness was one of their fist tests. It was a trial by water. When they finally acquired water, they learned that it was bitter. Exodus 15:23 says that the name of the water they found was called Marah because it was bitter and unfit to drink. They complained about the bitter water and God showed Moses a tree that was thrown into the water and the water became sweet.

The tree symbolized the power of faith in God's gospel message, applied to bitter situations, turning them sweet. The tree was not a special creation; it was actually standing there at the time that Israel complained of thirst. Even Moses himself did not see it, it was revealed to him by God.

God took what was already at their disposal, but never considered and used it to turn bitter water into sweet water.

Bad Water

Life has a way of presenting us with situations that are not always what we plan or expect. What we get are:

DEFICIENCES: Israel traveled through the wilderness, excited about going to the Promised Land, but went three days with no water. Nearly a million people complained at the same time about the lack of water; that deficiency stood between the people and their dream. In a similar sense we have often begun pursuits only to learn that we can't get our hands on what we need. For some its money, for others its assistance of any kind, still others just want a little less interference. Too often it appears to us that we are always deficient in some way. We either don't have enough experience or too much experience. We're either too young or we are too old. We're not tall enough or we are too tall. Somehow we always seem to come up short. Fortunately, God doesn't operate with deficiencies when it comes to his people. We often come up short, but He makes up the difference every day with His Amazing Grace. We come up deficient every day but God still tells us the same thing that He told Paul in 2 Corinthians 12:9, "My Grace is sufficient for thee. For my strength is made perfect in weakness." When we are deficient, God is sufficient.

DEFILEMENTS: When Israel finally found water in the wilderness, it was defiled and bitter. They had it, but could not drink it; it was no-good. Sometimes what we want seems to elude us, then we get it, it causes us more problems that it's worth. It's the used car that we bought at a deal. We saved a bundle when we bought it for just $500, but we've spent $3,000 to keep it running. We have all experienced Marah. What we thought would be a sweet romance toward into a bitter experience. Our dream job turned into literal slavery. Our dream marriage turned into a nightmare. When it turns bitter, that's Marah. When we received our first credit card it was sweet, but our lack of discipline turned them into bitter water.

When we experience Marah or bitter water they it can sour our whole outlook on life if we are not careful. Bitterness can seep into every aspect of our lives to that point that even when we try to pray we bring the ashes of past bitter experiences into the solitude of their prayer room. Some find difficulty praying for those who may have mistreated them, misused or abused them. Some can't pray for a former spouse and can't stand the baby's daddy.

Yet, Christ calls on us to move on with our lives. The spirit of our faith is that we should rise above bitter situations and strive for the sweetness that comes with the love and mercy of God.

Paul said, "..Forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.(Philippians 3:13)

DECONTAMINATED: Israel complained to Moses and Moses complained to God. Then God sanctified something that had stood right by the water all of the time, a tree, that once thrown in the mix, bitter water became sweet water. It wasn't the tree, but it was God getting involved in the bitter situation that turned things around. That's what happens when people of God encounter bitter water. We go to God. We must go to God because bitter and troubling situations are too much for us to handle alone. We need help that reaches beyond ourselves; we need the help of God.

When sickness comes in the family, financial crises perplex us; we draw upon resources of spirit and strength that normally go unused. While bitter experiences are crippling, bothersome and time consuming, there is only one way to get help; God must intervene. He and He alone can make bitter experiences sweet, often by using what should have been obvious, but we never thought about it.

Who are the people who must let God make the water sweet? It is those of us who have reached a bitter experience, a loss, a failure and disappointment and asked God for an answer. This is cook who couldn't find a job and faced eviction until God showed her how to sell lunches every day. The man who was laid off at the landscaping company, leaned on his lawn mower, bitter over his loss until God showed him that he lived in a neighborhood where folks were often too busy to cut their own grass. It was there all of the time, but God took what should have been obvious and decontaminated their bitter water. Have bitter water experiences? Tell Jesus. The song writer says, "I must tell Jesus, I must tell Jesus. I cannot bear my burdens alone..Jesus can help me, Jesus alone."

Sweet Water

Finally, brothers and sisters we should remember that we serve a God who specializes in turning bitter water into sweet water.

In their midst of their wilderness complaints, Israel found that God was truly sufficient for all of their needs. He was able to give them sweet water.

When Egypt suffered from seven years of famine, God used Joseph to reveal a plan for them to experience sweet water.

After 400 years of the bitterness of slavery, Moses told Pharaoh to, "Let my people go." It was sweet water.

When Israel found itself between a rock and a hard place with Pharaoh's army behind them and the Red Sea in front of them, God stood between them and their enemies and made a path through the sea on dry land. That was sweet water.

The biblical record is filled with examples of how God takes bitter waters and makes them sweet!

Joseph was thrown into a prison and left for dead, but God took the bitterness of a lonely pit and prison and turn it into the sweetness of the palace!

Moses was exiled from Egypt as an outcast of Egyptian royalty, but God took the bitterness of a dry barren desert and turned it into the sweetness of victory that let the Israelites go free.

Naaman found that the bitterness of his leprosy could be sweetened by seven dips in waters touched by the hand of God.

Some, in the poverty of their youth, could not afford to buy soft drinks, or even a lemon to make lemonade. There are many who can remember, though how the children would take teaspoons of sugar and put in glasses of water, without any lemons or cool aide and drink it down like it was ambrosia from heaven. Back then they called it sweet water.

That's what God can do for us, even today. He can take the worse situation and make it sweet.

When our funds run low we are tasting bitter water, but the good news is that God can fill empty wallets and turn bitter water into sweet water.

When we give up hope for our big dream, we are tasting bitter water, but the good news is that God can renew lost hopes; he takes bitter water and turns it into sweet water.

When we become afraid of failing and our progress stops, we are tasting bitter water, but the good news is that God takes our fears and give us renewed courage, turning our bitter water into sweet water

Are your doubts multiplying? God can take our doubts and give us assurances!

No wonder the song writer wrote, Blessed assurance, Jesus is mine. Oh what a foretaste of glory divine! This is my story! This is my song! Praising my savior all the day Lord! When He changes our doubt into confidence that's "sweet water."

I don't know about you, but I have encountered many bitter water situations, but I serve a God who showed me how to take bitter water and make it sweet.

Maybe that's why the songwriter declared, He's sweet I know! He's sweet I know!

I've found a savior and he's sweet I know!

His name is Jesus! He's sweeter than blue berry jam!

His name is Jesus! He's sweeter than strawberry jelly!

His name is Jesus! He's sweeter than homemade peach preserves!

His name is Jesus! He's sweeter the syrup and molasses!

His name is Jesus! He's sweeter than the icing on a chocolate cake

His name is Jesus! The Lily of the Valley! The Bright and Morning Star!

He died out on Calvary!

But Early Sunday morning, he arose from the dead!

Dark clouds may rise! Strong winds may blow! But I've found a savior and he's sweet I know!

Heavenly Faucets

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

Scripture:"And it shall come to pass in that day,[that] the mountains shall drop down new wine, and the hills shall flow with milk, and all the rivers of Judah shall flow with waters, and a fountain shall come forth of the house of the Lord, and shall water the valley of Shittim. Joel 3:18

Introduction

Have you ever stopped to think about the source of your blessings? There are many who enjoy tremendous bounty from God each day without really thinking about the source. The source is the favor of God.

Some are like the pigs that held a meeting in the barn to discuss an important issue. It appears that there were many apples on the ground in the orchid and the pigs ate them freely. However, they were frustrated because there were so many trees in the orchid. The trees took up all of the space, dropped leaves on the ground and created so much shade that the apples were hard to find. The pigs concluded that the best way to solve the problem was to get together and cut down all of the trees so that they could get to the apples. So all of the pigs cut down the trees and cleared the fields and praised each other for all of the wisdom they learned at the University of Pigology. However, the next year the pigs were surprised when they went to their big, clear, field. There were no apples. While they complained about the trees being in the way, they never stopped to consider that the apples on the ground fell from the trees.

Life is often the same way. In the frailty of our humanity we often forget where our blessings come from. The child that disrespects a parent forgets the source of their blessing. An employee that disrespects an employer, forgets who writes the weekly paycheck. A citizen that talks down the nation in which he/she lives, forgets the source of their freedom to speak freely.

God is the source of all our provisions whether it's food, clothing or shelter. It's as if there is a great fountain in heaven and God just turns it on and lets it flow; not just to us but to all of God's creation. Jesus made this clear in Matthew 6:28-30, "And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin: And yet I say unto you, That even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which today is, and tomorrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?" Whether it is a house, a car, a little money, a few possessions or the pillow under your head all flow from the fountains of God's favor and blessing. He is our source.

Hebrews 12:2 says, "Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God." It is His hand that is on the faucet in heaven. It is His hand that controls the flow of blessings that we receive.

Like the little pigs, we may be enjoying the apples, but the source, the author of our salvation, is Christ Jesus.

As Christians, we thank God for the fountains in heaven from whence our blessings flow. We give praise to our Lord for regulating that flow so that it always reaches us just in the nick of time.

Exposition

This text focuses on the Prophet Joel as he explains how God will supply blessings to the people of God in the latter days.

Joel often prophesized of improved conditions and blessings that will flow from heaven in what he called "the day our Lord." Many of his prophecies dealt with changing conditions that will exist when the fullness of God's glory reveals itself in the church age.

Many are familiar with his most quoted prophecy which is: Joel 2:28, "And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions:"

In this text Joel spoke also of a time far in his own future, a day when the people of God would receive blessings from the fountains of heaven. The fact that he used the phrase "in that day" indicates that he looked far to the future. He used highly poetic language to describe the way the blessings would come. He said they would drop like new wine and flow like milk from the mountains.

The people themselves are represented by the place called the Valley of Shittim. It is a dry, desolate valley, seldom the beneficiary of great waters. Yet, Joel notes that the promise of God is the God will open up the faucets and fountains of heaven and water valley Shittim.

The direct recipient of this flow from the faucets of heaven would be the church, that would be infused with a great outflow of God's blessings. In the presence of its enemies, Joel noted that the church receive great and immense blessings when the fountains of heaven were released.

Thus, Joel gives an encouraging word to the body of Christ. In difficult and dry times, God will open the faucets of heaven to fill the cups of his people. He will fill them until they overflow.

Dealing with Faucets

There are fountains in heaven through which our blessings flow, but the faucets to the fountains that allow us to tap into the heavenly reservoir are close by. Consider certain truths about faucets:

THE MIRACLE IS NOT IN THE FAUCET: A man who lived in the desert all of his life was brought to the city for a week to visit. At the end of his visit, he was asked if there was anything he'd like to take back to the desert with him; the man pointed to the faucets. He thought they were miraculous: turn them and out comes water. He wanted to take them back to the desert. That day he learned that the miracle is not in the faucet but in water tanks, plumbling and water source behind the faucet. Behind every blessing we see today is a link to heaven. Your education is faucet, but that's not your source. Education alone does not guarantee blessings. Your job, talent, abilities or skills alone are not the miracle, they are the faucets. The miracle is what lies behind the faucet! The world watches the joy of a believer and is amazed! The miracle is not in the smile and the happiness, but what lies behind the smile. It's the assurance that God will provide and make a way for us. The song writer said, "This joy I have, the world didn't give and the world can't take it away."

FAUCETS ARE NOT SELF REGULATING: Faucets have handles or digital mechanisms to turn them on and off and to regulate the mix of hot and cold water. We either turn a knob, set a thermostat or otherwise adjust them to get water at the right temperature. Faucets, as great as they are, do not regulate themselves; they must be set, mixed and controlled. In any given day, God knows what we need. He knows when things are hot, so He sends the cooling waters. He knows when we are cold, so He sends the warming waters. He knows how to mix it to fit our situation. God regulates our blessings every day. The setting that He has for one person changes for another each person has a different need, but it is God's hand on the faucet that controls that mix, the faucets do not regulate themselves. God knows just the right mix of pain and joy to fulfill our lives. He knows just the right mix of success and failure. He also knows the burdens we bear and sends just the right mix of relief and assurance to help us through to better times.

FAUCETS FLOW UNTIL BLOCKED: Often the faucets in one room of the house seem to have less force that the faucets of another room. Plumbers say often there are sediments in the pipes or nozzle that retard or prevent the regular flow. When that happens you can turn all of the knobs wide open, but all that comes out is a small stream. Often, it's not the faucet, but something stopping up the line. Could that be the reason our blessings seem to come very slowly while everyone else gets more, faster? Are we doing something or failing to do something that is blocking our flow? Are we praying, worshipping, giving and serving as we should? Is it possible that my lack of attention to my spiritual life may be blocking my flow? If that is the case then perhaps we should say like David in Psalm 51 "Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation, and renew a right spirit within me." We should change our ways and return to the life that made us flow in the beginning.

EVEN THE BEST FAUCETS MUST BE CONNECTED: When you turn both the knobs on your faucets and nothing comes out, it usually means that you have been disconnected from the reservoir. When your water is turned off it makes little sense to get a new faucet, a prettier faucet or a faucet of a different size. If there is a disconnect we should get it properly connected. There are many who have lost their connection, for one reason or another and their faucets don't work. For awhile, many try to survive off the connections of others, carrying buckets of water or tapping into their faucets. Some even have their own water keys and they keep the water flowing through illegal means. There is no substitute to having your own connection with God. That connection is maintained through the life we live, the way we worship and the way we give. There is nothing like knowing God for yourself.

WHEN FAUCETS DRIP, BLESSINGS ARE WASTED: Often faucets drip, despite our efforts to stop the flow. When faucets drip, we pay higher water bills at the end of the month. The water that is lost from drips is wasted and is a misuse of resources. This is often true in our lives as well, we are wasting our blessing. We are connected properly, but we waste so much water from drips that it gets harder to stay connected. Is it possible for that to happen to us in life as well? Is it possible that we fail to manage our money and time wisely? Is it possible that we have been blessed with the opportunity, but we won't take steps to further ourselves? Is it possible to be prayed up, connected with God and benefit from his blessings but waste them because of a lack of faith. Jesus often chastised the disciples because of their lack of faith. On a ship, they worried about stopping the wind, in a crowd they worried about how they would feed them, at tax time they worried how they would pay them. They were connected, but they repeatedly failed to act on their fact causing a steady drip. So, the dropout does not seek to get a diploma: drip, drip. The unemployed does not seek a job: drip, drip. The able bodied play video games all day: drip, drip. We can stop the drip by acting on our faith and believing God for divine direction. The Lord will make a way, but we must give Him control of our lives.

When it flows

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember that what comes out of the faucet is dependent upon that quality of the water supply.

Israel often found themselves tempted to get blessings by tapping into bad water. When they entered the Promised Land, they began to emulate the Philistines around them and worship Baal, they tapped into bad water.

Samson was a man of God, but he loved and married among the women of the enemies of Israel, it proved to be bad water.

No matter how great our intention, we can't expect the faucet to deliver drinkable, potable water if we are tapped into a bad supply or have rusted or corroded lines.

When there is a bad supply of water, what comes out is not fit to drink because it is contaminated.

When there are corroded lines, what comes out may look like mud, have a awkward color and will make you sick.

But brothers and Sisters there is good news. There is a fountain! It's a heavenly fountain!

This fountain is not a physical fountain. If it were then the world could have gone to the Pools of Solomon near Bethlehem, there was and still is a continuous flow of cool fresh water.

This fountain is not visible to the eye. If it were then the world could have gone to the Fountains at Jerusalem that were supplied by several underground sources. They were beautiful to the eye but they didn't last long.

If you don't believe there is a fountain, ask the woman at the well. She came to the well but ended up drinking from the fountain. Jesus told her in John 4:14 But whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life.

No wonder then that the song writer would write, There is a fountain filled with blood, drawn from Immanuel's veins. And sinners plunged beneath the flood, lose all their guilty stains!

The fountain is the blood of Jesus!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who was buried in a lowly grave!

Jesus, who arose after three days and nights!

Jesus, who calls out to the thirsty and searching hearts!

Come unto me!

Come unto me!

And I'll open up the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing!

The Last words of Jesus

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

April 2011

SCRIPTURE: "And he said unto them, It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power. But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judaea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth. Acts 1:7-8

Introduction

We usually remember the last words of people close to us; do you remember the last words of anyone close to you? Perhaps it was a parent or a close relative or a friend; it doesn't really matter whom it is, only that you remember what was said. Somehow those words are chiseled into our brain, carved in our heart and emblazoned in our consciousness. First and last words are so important that many businesses make it mandatory for employees to greet customers warmly when they enter and bid them a warm farewell when they leave. At Walmart, the local bank and most other successful businesses the importance of both the greetings and the salutation are emphasized. While the first impression is a lasting impression, the last impression lasts longer.

Ironically, we remember the last words of a person often more than any others; they often carry the weight of authority, almost divinity as we reflect on the life of the one who spoke them. When we visit we often remember our first impression and the last words spoken. Ushers in church often meet visitors and give them the both the first impression of a church, and their warm goodbyes are often the last words they hear as they leave. If those last words are memorable then the body of Christ is edifice, if they are not, they bring us shame.

Sometimes the lasts words of a person are brief and to the point. Sometimes they are long and rambling, like a man sentenced to death who tries to extend his life by babbling extensively. Sensing the shortness of time some mouth great truths repeatedly. When Moses was 120 years old he started saying his last words and they ended up being the entire Book of Deuteronomy. The last words we say are powerful.

Last words reverberate. They linger. We often remember those words forever.

That's why the last words of Jesus on the cross seem to ring in our ears. We remember the cross and the tragedy that turned into triumph. We remember what was said there and repeat them so much that we forget that these were not the last words of Jesus on earth but merely the seven last words on the cross.

While hanging on the cross, amidst groaning, blood and death, these words ring out over the centuries because each of them presents a framework by which the Gospel and its declaration of inclusive love will be judged. Yet, beyond that, there are other words of Jesus, spoken beyond the cross that give us a renewed sense of faith and hope.

The last words of Jesus on the cross remind us of the humanity of Christ. However, His last words beyond the cross remind us of His divinity; they are filled with power, vision and hope.

As Christians, we remember the last sayings of Christ. More than that, we remember the last acts of Christ which included his death and his resurrection; all for our sins. His last acts and His actual words on earth lift or spirits and increase our faith.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus' last words on earth before catching a cloud and returning to heaven.

While Jesus' last words on the cross were spoken out of His humanity, His last words spoken before the ascension were from his divinity. They contained both a commission and a promise; a directive and a word of hope.

In Matthew 28 Jesus commissioned all of his disciples to go into all of world and preach, teach and baptize. That was a tall order because the disciples were all unlettered men from Galilee. They wondered how they were to speak to all of the nations with their diverse languages and tongues. They wondered the cultural dynamics of such a challenge. Despite the apparent impossibility of the task they were given the charge anyway.

In connection with mission they were also given a promise. The promise was that god would give them the power to accomplish the mission through the Holy Ghost. It was a promise that God would empower their efforts to build the kingdom despite physical absence of Christ on earth.

These last words were remembered by the disciples and they served as a stimulus to encourage them in their mission. They were prophetic. They were empowering and filled with hope.

Even today, we are still empowered by these same last words of Jesus. In fact they are often the first words we think of in relation to the mission of believers. They were His last on earth but he Has spoken to us many times since. Each time he gives a new charge and new inspiration to spread the gospel throughout the world.

On the Cross

From the cross the last words of Jesus were definitively human. His utterances indicated both sympathy and empathy, the spiritual and the divine.

FATHER FORGIVE THEM: Forgiveness is a character trait that Christ talked about during His ministry. More pointedly, Christ urged His disciples to forgive their enemies. Now, as a man hanging on the cross, He showed us that even when we have been wronged the most forgiveness is still the order of the day. What Christ demonstrated through his plea for forgiveness for his enemies is God's love for every man even though He hated the sins committed, He still loved the sinner. He spoke to God for His enemies but His words speak to us today. He was speaking about us as well. He died for our sins, so we directly or indirectly are responsible for Jesus making that declaration. That should compel us to do the same. Though this saying was filled with compassion and meaning, it was not the last word!

WOMAN, BEHOLD THY SON: In John 19:26, 27, Jesus said: "When Jesus therefore saw his mother, and the disciple standing by, whom he loved, he saith unto His mother, Woman, behold thy son! Then saith He to the disciple, Behold thy mother! And from that hour that disciple took her unto his own home." These two sayings speak of Jesus' concern for His mother's well being after his demise. It should also speak to us about the importance of family, legacy and nurture. Even in His pain He thought not of himself, but for the welfare of those He loved. Yet, as notable as they are, these words were not His last words.

WITH ME IN PARADISE: in Luke 23:43, He says to the desperate and dying thief, "This day you will be with Me in Paradise" Both thieves on the cross were helpless sinners. The two of them represent all of us. We are murderers, robbers, and rebels. We've each rebelled, gone our own way. Yet they both needed to be saved. Only one asked for the kingdom, while both wanted to escape the cross. Only one of them repented while the other one was lost. Like the repentant thief, we should all resolve to be with Christ. If we are with Him, we will always be with us. That's when we will say with the songwriter, "I'll go with Him, with Him all the way." Even this invitation to the thief, as compassionate as it was, was not the last word of Jesus.

WHY HAST THOU FORSAKEN ME? In Matthew 27:46. "And about the ninth hour Jesus cried out with a loud voice, saying, "Eli, Eli, lama sabachthani?" Translated it meant "My God, My God, why hast thou forsaken Me?" He quoted the words of David in the Psalms. He cried out from the depths of His humanity when all of the world was against Him. It was not an outcry of despair it was an outburst of frustration. There are times when all of us feel the frustration of the moment; feel alone. Jesus, in his humanity spoke for us all, but in his divinity reminded us all that, I will be with you always, even unto the end of the earth. However, these words, as sympathetic as they are were not the last words of Jesus.

I THIRST: John 19:28 records Jesus saying, "I thirst!'" Jesus had dehydrated from His long trials and the loss of blood. He'd been whipped in the back and pounded in the face by the soldiers. They also shoved thorns on His head. His tongue was swollen with thirst. Instead of giving Him water for His thirst, they offered Him bitter wine. In His humanity Jesus suffered the bitterness of the cross. He tasted the dregs of this life, but promised those who believed in Him a life in which they themselves would never thirst. Yet, these words, as painful as they were, were not the last words of Jesus.

IT IS FINISHED: John 19:30, testifies to this. "So when Jesus had received the sour wine, He said, 'It is finished!" Christ's mission was a total success. He accomplished everything He came to do. His mission was to come to this earth and provide a way for sinful mankind to be reconciled to God. He became the ultimate sacrifice for our sins. This mission is reflected in the words of John 3:16 "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." His death on the cross made it all possible; salvation is available and free. No wonder the song writer wrote, "Jesus paid it all, all to Him I owe. Sin had left a crimson stain, but he washed it white as snow." It is true, that on the cross Jesus said, "It is finished," but those were not His last words!

INTO THY HANDS: The seventh and last statement of Jesus on the across is recorded in Luke 23:46, which says, "Father, into thy hands I commit My sprit.' In this statement Jesus affirmed what he had told disciple often that "No man takes my life" that he would freely lay it down. Before the Romans could come to break His legs. It was finished. Before the mockers would come to ridicule him groaning after several days on the cross. It was finished. When Jesus completed His life's work, he gave up the ghost, it was not taken from Him. The same is true for every believer. We should work until our day is done; only then can we say, "It is finished." As final as those words sound, and even though they were his last words on the cross, these were not the last words of Jesus.

The last words of Jesus

Finally, brothers and sisters, while we commemorate the last words of Jesus on the cross, it is last words that bring us renewed hope!

The seven last sayings of Jesus on the cross were more than the mere babblings of a dying man, they were words of dipped in humanity, suffering and pain. Those words on the cross were not the last words. We know they were not the last words because His first words after His resurrection were, "Woman, why are you weeping?' (John 20:15 NKJV).

He spoke many words after that. He commissioned the disciples to go to all the world.

He challenged them to teach, preach and baptize!

He also told them that a comforter would come.

His last words were, "But ye shall receive power.."

His last words contained a promise of empowerment when the Holy Ghost comes!

His last word is the last word!

God always has the last word!

We should remember the last words of Jesus:

—Who picked his own mother and was the same age as His father —Who went to school, but taught His teachers

—Who hungered for bread but was the living bread

—Who said He was thirsty but at the same time was the living water

—Who could walk through doors, while telling the world he's was the only door!

We must remember his last words because when life's problems give us sadness, it helps us to remember that God's got the last word, because he can take your sadness and give you gladness!

If life has given you doubt, God's got the last word, he can take your doubt and give you assurance!

If your troubles have given you bondage, God's got the last word; he can take your bondage and give you freedom!

For every cross you bear, God's got the last word!

For every ditch someone digs for you, God's got the last word!

The world may declare, "Put him down!" But for every "put down" God's got the last word! They took the first word and nailed him to a cross. They heard him speak seven words and thought that was the last of the word.

On Calvary, Jesus dropped his head in the locks of his shoulder, but that wasn't the last word! They stuck a spear in His side, but that wasn't the last word! He cried out to his father, "Into thy hands I commend my spirit." But that wasn't the last word!

Even though they buried him in a borrowed tomb and he stayed there for three days and nights; that wasn't the last word either, because Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

One of these old days he's coming back again. When he does I want to be in the number who hears his last words to saints, "Servant, well done!"

Spiritual Perfection in Ministry

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 2011

SCRIPTURE: And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; For the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ: Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ: Ephesians 4:11-13.

Introduction

Are we doing all that we can to advance the Kingdom of God? Really? The ministries of the church are wide and vast, encompassing nearly every aspect of life, but are we reaching as far as we should? Are we teaching all who need to be taught? Jesus commanded His disciples to go into all of the world and teach, preach, and baptize in the name of the Father, Son and the Holy Ghost. His command is called the great commission, but has the church returned with gloomy faces to report "mission impossible" or "mission accomplished." Are we on task or off task. Is the work of the church in high gear or low gear? Are we talking loud and saying nothing or speaking soft and carrying a big stick of service to God and our fellowman? The ministry challenge that Christ gave the Church is a great responsibility. Often those who shoulder the responsibility for carrying out the mission feel overwhelmed by the vast nature of the challenge.

No matter how successful we are at the moment, there is still much work to be done. In fact our present success is just a precursor to something greater. Each day we are perfecting our ministry, getting closer to God and preparing for the tough days ahead.

All of those who lead the people of God should have been tried in the fires of life's experiences and having shown a propensity toward spiritual understanding and guidance as well as a willingness to work hard to advance the kingdom of the Savior.

As Christians, we minister to the masses on the behalf of our God. We do so with the greatest joy because our service helps us bring the kingdom of God into a greater realization in the lives of those who are trust and believe in Him.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he explains that the gifts given to saints were designed to equip them for ministry. Paul noted that saints are equipped (perfected) for ministry in a variety of areas closely associated with their gifts. He listed evangelists, teachers, pastors, and prophets as examples of various areas of ministry for which believers should be equipped.

Equipping the saints helps create an orderly spiritual state among believers and then works to strengthen, confirm, and advance them in their proper place and function. Operating in this context, each believer contributes to the good of the whole. Proper preparation for ministry insures that the doctrines of the gospel are correctly interpreted and that believers successfully discharge the functions of their specific ministry

The purpose of equipping or perfecting the saints is the edifying of the body of Christ; that is, to build up the church, which is Christ's mystical body, by an increase of their graces, and an addition of new members.

Christ charged believers to go into the entire world and preach the gospel, baptizing, teaching and reaching in his name. He provided believers with certain gifts to equip them to do that task. These gifts, when amplified by the Holy Ghost and training, would equip the saints to do what he wanted them to do.

Equipping church leaders

Equipping church leaders has one essential prerequisite: Leaders must be servant believers. Being a servant believer means that every leader must perceive of himself/herself as a believer who is a servant of God, not one who is served BY God because he or she believes.

Jesus defined his ministry in terms of serving others. "This is how one should regard us," Paul writes in 1 Corinthians 4:1, "as servants of Christ and as stewards of the mystery of God." The word used over and over again for "servant" is hupertes, which originally meant an "under rower," someone who worked in the galleys, or the lower deck of a ship's crew. It eventually came to mean a servant or steward. Jesus' "upside-down thinking" defined leadership first in terms of followership. The best definition of a Christian leader is as a follower or a servant. A Christian leader is one who follows Christ, and in the name of Christ, serves the needs of the world.

Biblical Leadership is not from a book

Biblical leadership is not a skill or a technique that can be learned from a book, although training brings out leadership qualities. Biblical leaders have a calling. To be called by God to lead in some way is to have been chosen by God's Spirit regardless of whether you think you are able or not. Of course you are not able. None of us is. But we have a God who is able. In the words of Martin Luther, "God carves the rotten wood and rides the lame horse." Or in the more recent words of former Oakland Raiders coach John Madden, "Don't worry about the horse being blind. Load up the wagon." God uses even the likes of you and me to show God's glory and to proclaim God's truth, beauty and goodness.

Five aspects of spiritual perfection

The best leaders who lead in the biblical tradition exemplify five qualities that help them to lead God's people. Those who lead best are those who demonstrate the aspects of spiritual perfection:

1. DREAMS — Don't be afraid to dream God-sized dreams. Keep alert. Be attuned to everything happening around you without getting sucked into any of it. Those who can clearly see the vision can stand on the rock of salvation and sing, "My faith is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame but wholly lean on Jesus name!"

2. SCHEMES — Lead a disciplined life that your dreams may come true. Keep a clear head about your life and your life projects. Let both the invitations and the insults pass you by as you stay focused on God's plan and purpose for your life. When the schemes of men frustrate biblical leaders, they talk to Jesus and keeps them on the path. That's what the song writer meant when He wrote, "I must tell Jesus, I must tell Jesus. Jesus can help me. Jesus alone."

3. TEAMS — Humble yourself in the realization that you can't do it alone or "go it" alone. Admit your weakness in wanting to go through life solo, and rely on God's strength as well as network with others. That's when you sing, "I want Jesus to walk with me. All along this tedious journey, I want Jesus to walk with me."

4. LEANS — Cast your anxieties on God. Believe in God's care, trusting in God's love and lean on His everlasting arms! That's what the song writer meant when he wrote, "Leaning, Leaning, safe and secure from all alarms. Leaning, Leaning, leaning on the everlasting arms.

5. BEAMS — Constantly beam in on God's word for strength, steadfastness and confidence. Firmness in faithfulness, both individually and as a community, is a byproduct of marinating one's life in the Word of God.

Leaders lives should reflect a theme that resonates

Biblical leaders must have lives that are commiserate with the life they profess. There should be consistency. It gets ugly when we praise God on one day and get down and nasty on the dance floor on the next. The message is confusing when we drink communion wine on Sunday and Malt Liquor on other days. Such confusing signs indicate that we have a conflicting spiritual theme. Biblical leaders must adopt a life theme that is consistent with our professed faith in God.

We should also be consistent with personality traits and skills with which we have been gifted. That's why Paul would note that not everyone has the same gift.

Everyone can't be the pastor, somebody has to be in the pew. Many of us are leaders others are followers. Some are support team members and others are support team leaders. Some are soloists and some are members of the choir. We know our purpose and we have a consistent life theme that helps us achieve what we see as our life's purpose.

Even leadership styles differ while purposes are the same. Martin Luther King and Shirley Chisholm were confrontational; Andrew Young was a consensus builder. The Black Panthers were revolutionary and the NAACP is aggressively conservative. Each has the same general purpose but a different theme. Similarly, Samson used physical strength as his theme. Solomon used great wisdom and diplomacy. Elijah and Elisha were oratorical. John the Baptist was confrontational. Jesus assumed a humble and unassuming style about his life, from his humble birth in Bethlehem to his crucifixion on Calvary; he remained true to his theme throughout his life.

Church leaders must walk with the Lord

Those who want to lead must first show that they walk with Lord. Jesus told Nicodemus: You must be born of the spirit. No believer who assumes the role of a pastor, teacher, church deacon or trustee can expect to please God if that person does not know the Lord for himself. Thus, all of a believers past experiences come together to demonstrate a faith in God in matters of the spirit. That means those chosen to serve have proven themselves to be persons who can walk by faith.

They have proven it in their personal lives and in their relationship with the church. Most often, such a person will feel inadequate. The feeling of adequacy is natural because it admits human limitations and requires a dependence on God.

Such persons have learned that God is able to do what they cannot do alone so they plunge into life with a positive spirit. In the words of Martin Luther, God carves the rotten wood and rides the lame horse. Or in the more recent words of former Oakland Raiders coach John Madden, Don't worry about the horse being blind. Load up the wagon. Every believer must know the Lord for himself.

Faithful leaders will be rewarded

Finally, brothers and sisters those who are charged with the work of ministry must work faithfully with the full knowledge that he that overcometh will be rewarded.

The work of equipping the saints never ends, but is a constant struggle.

Perfecting the work of the ministry means deepening our spiritual insights!

Perfecting the work of the ministry means broadening the scope of our vision beyond our local circumstance.

Perfecting the work of the ministry means sharpening our administrative skills!

Perfecting the work of the ministry means learning more and understanding more about the Will of God!

Perfecting the work of the ministry means preparing ourselves to forge ahead, not intimidated by obstacles but determined to overcome. Who is he that overcometh?

He that overcometh is the man who believes that God I serve is bigger than the problems I have! He that overcometh is the woman who believes that no matter how tough the road gets, the Lord will make a way somehow!

He that overcometh is the man who believes that you must stand for something in life or youll fall for anything! He that overcometh is the man who declares that God is able, as for me and my house we will serve the Lord! John said in the Revelation of Jesus Christ, He that overcometh, shall inherit all things!

He that overcometh will enjoy that day when the wicked shall cease from troubling and the weary will be at rest! He that overcometh shall enjoy that day when the mountains will be made low, rough places will be made plain and the crooked places will be made straight! Storms may rise! But he that overcometh shall inherit all things!

One of these days, by and bye, it'll all be over down here! He that overcometh will keep telling the story! He'll keep telling the world about Jesus and a place called Calvary! Bye and Bye when the battle is over, we'll tell the story!

We'll tell the story of how He died on an old rugged cross!

We'll tell the story of how He arose from the grave after three days and nights!

He that overcometh shall inherit all things!

Shouting with the crowd

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 17, 2011

SCRIPTURE: And many spread their garments in the way: and others cut down branches off the trees, and strawed them in the way. And they that went before, and they that followed, cried, saying, Hosanna; Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord: Mark 11:8-9

Introduction

Have you ever received a shout out? A shout out is a way of sending best wishes, praise, thanks or hats off to someone to lift their spirits or to encourage them. Some radio broadcasts allow callers to send a shout out to a friend. On Face book there are apps for sending shout outs, birthday greetings or ways to poke your friends just to let them know that you are thinking about them! It's a lot of fun to receive shout outs, especially on our birthdays! There are some who get over a hundred shout outs, pokes and greetings on their birthdays. Does each shout out really mean that the sender is doing it because they thought about you, or is it because they saw others doing it, so they just jumped in. Did those who sent all of those birthday greetings really wake up that morning with you on their mind or did they see all of the other people praising, so they jumped in as well?

Sometimes we send shout outs out of general principle. It's like the crowd wave in a football stadium. You look across the stadium and you see all of the other people standing and waving their hands, so when the wave gets to you, you stand wave both of your hands and shout for no other reason than to keep it going. Your shout has nothing at all to do with the action on the football field.

Sometimes it is easy to misread people's actions. Not all arm-waving is an expression of exuberance. Not all laughter is the laughter of happiness. Not all tears are tears of sorrow. Not all shouting is the shouting of triumph and victory. And not everyone who says, Lord! Lord! will enter the kingdom of God.

There are many who sing, but they have no idea what the words they sing really mean? Some sing about Jehovah-Jireh and shout, but have no idea what that means? Others sing about the Lion of Judah and jump around in praise, but have no idea who the Lion of Judah is or what it means? Ask many why they were excited over the song and they respond that it sounded good and the soloist had a beautiful voice.

That's what happened the day Jesus came to Jerusalem. People, who had never seen Him started sending him shout outs! He came into the city riding on a donkey and they cut down palm branches, waved them in the air, then took off some of their clothes and threw them in the street, shouting out “Hosanna!” They shouted it sometimes; they sang it sometimes, Hosanna! Hosanna!

Many of them sent Him shout outs because everyone else in the crowd was sending shout outs! They had an idea who he was. They knew who they hoped he would be. They were not sure, but they sent shout outs anyway.

A few days later he started saying things that stepped on their toes. He ran the money changers out of the temple and he insulted the scribes and Pharisees. A few days later, the same crowd, for varied reasons, that sent him Hosanna shout outs, cried out, “crucify Him!”

As believers we should praise God continuously, not because the crowd praises Him but because He is worthy to be praised. Not because we have been directed to do so, but because we are happy that He has touched our lives.

Exposition

This text focuses on the actions of the people as Jesus as Jesus entered the city of Jerusalem. The arrival of the Messiah had been predicted by the prophet Zechariah many years before. The people of Jerusalem expected a champion to come into the city and establish himself as the one person who would lift their domination by the Romans. In Zechariah 9:9 the prophet wrote, “Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion! Shout aloud, O daughter of Jerusalem! Lo, your king comes to you; triumphant and victorious is he, humble and riding on an ass, on a colt the foal of an ass”

Intoxicated with the idea of liberation the people met Jesus outside of the city singing and shouting “Hosanna (save now).” The expected Jesus to announce a rebellion against the Romans. They expected to see the Roman legions running in fear of the power of Israel. So they sang, “Hosanna” -Not just “save us” but save us “now!” The words of the Psalm 118 make it clear what the people wanted. They shouted Hosanna because they wanted a blessing and success. Later, in the same week,their shouts of praise turned to shouts of death, once Jesus failed to meet their expectations.

Reasons to shout

There are times in every person’s life when you feel liking shouting. Those are the times when God’s grace and favor seem to have showered themselves on you. The biblical record shows us how the crowds have shouted over the years.

SHOUT WHEN GOD LIGHTS YOUR FIRE: Leviticus 9:24 notes that the Jews shouted when God lit the altar fire for the first time. Fire came down from heaven and lit that altar and they were so excited that only did they shout, but they kept the fire going night and day many years. That’s the way it is with believers. When God’s spirit moves us we get excited. In fact, we get so excited that we emulate the woman at the well who ran through the city saying, “Come see a man.”

SHOUT WHEN GOD KEEPS HIS WORD: Numbers 23:21 Balaam testified that that "God is not a man who lies, what he has promise will come. When they heard that the people shouted like the King of the universe was in their midst. Even today, when we know that God does not lie and neither will his word return to Him void, that gives us something to shout about. When he promises to never leave us alone and guide us through the storms of life, that's when we have something to shout about.

SHOUT WHEN THE WALLS ARE HIGH: Joshua 6:20 shows a crowd of believers marching around the walls of Jericho. Seven times they marched around the high walls in absolute faith in God. Then they stopped, blew their trumpets and the walls fell down. Today, believers by the millions are following Israel's example. They shouted before the walls fell down! In obedience, they did exactly as God commanded and shouted. Sometimes our problems mount up as high as the walls around Jericho. Yet, if we act in obedience to God's word we should be prepared to shout before the walls fall down; then watch God work.

SHOUT WHEN THE DEVIL THINKS HE HAS WON: Judges 15:14 shows the Philistines thinking they had captured Samson because they had tied him with new ropes, so they shouted. They shouted thinking the strong man was finally bound, then God strengthen him and he whipped them all with the jawbone of a donkey. How many enemies of believers are shouting because often we appear defeated. How many of them think their hating and back biting has succeeded only to learn that God strengthens the weak and gives power to the faint. When the we rise victorious when the devil thinks he has won, that's something to shout about!

SHOUT WHEN WE HAVE BEEN SAVED: John 4:29 Jesus met the woman at the well and offered her the water of life. It was Jesus who told her that she had five husbands and the man with whom she was living was not her husband. Yet, he offered her the water of life and chance to be in the king. She was so excited that she did not wait on the crowd, she dropped her water pot and started running through the city saying, "Come see a man." When God has touched our lives and give us a new start, we have something to shout about. We then say with the song writer, "God gave me a song to sing that the angels cannot sing. I've been washed in the blood of the crucified lamb."

When our lives have been touched by the hand of God, we don't need the crowd, we can shout all by ourselves! When we see the ways that God has blessed us we don't need to wait for someone else when can the let the world know!

No Crowd needed

Finally, brothers and sisters while there were many people who shouted with the crowd, the man or woman who has been blessed by God, does not need the crowd to praise the Lord! When Jesus came into Jerusalem there were many who saw him coming and started shouting with the crowd! They waved palm branches over their heads and shouted with the crowd!

They threw their clothes into the streets and shouted Hosanna with the crowd! They hailed him as a conquering hero with the crowd! Their praise was dependent upon the crowd! I believe that while there were many who shouted with the crowd, there were some in that crowd that didn't need the crowd!

I'm sure that Lazarus must have been in the crowd. He had been in the grave for four days, but was raised by the power of God. When he shouted, he wasn't shouting with the crowd, he was in the crowd, but he was shouting all by himself!

The woman with the issue of blood knew about crowds, for she found the power of the Lord, not by shouting with the crowd, but by pushing her way through the crowd! I can hear her say, if I can just touch the hem of his garment I'll be made whole!

Zaccheaus knew about crowds. He was a little short man who wanted to see Jesus, but couldn't because of the crowd, He had to climb up a sycamore tree, up above the crowd to see Jesus as He passed by. Zaccheaus was shouting, but not with the crowd, because that day Jesus said, Zaccheaus come down, I'm coming to your house for supper. He wasn't shouting with the crowd because he had his own personal invitation! Whenever the Lord has done something good for you, you don't need a crowd, you can shout all by yourself! Whenever you think about how God has blessed you, you don't need a crowd, you can shout all by yourself!

Whenever we think about how God has picked us up and turned us around, we don't need a crowd we can shout all by ourselves. Whenever we think about how He provides food for us when we are hungry, we don't need a crowd, we can shout all by ourselves. When we think about how he brought us out of nowhere and carried us to somewhere, we don't need a crowd, we can shout all by ourselves! We're shouting because of what He has done. We're shouting because of what we expect Him to do. We're shouting because when we were stained by a life a sin, He carried a cross for us up Calvary's Hill! We're shouting because He allowed Himself to be nailed to an old rugged cross on our behalf! We're shouting because He died out on Calvary! But early! Early, Sunday morning He arose from the grave!

We're shouting because He's still blessing us every day!

We're shouting because He's still healing us every day!

We don't need a crowd, we can shout all by ourselves!

Reopening a Cold Case

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 24, 2011

SCRIPTURE: Then arose Peter, and ran unto the sepulcher; and stooping down, he beheld the linen clothes laid by themselves, and departed, wondering in himself at that which was come to pass. Luke 24:12

Introduction

Have you seen or heard of a cold case? A cold case is one in which the investigation into an incident has been closed because of a lack of evidence, witnesses and public demand. Cases are generally closed when a suspect has been arrested. Sometimes cases are closed, but no one believes the report. So in the public perception the case grows cold.

We've heard of many cold cases: Jack the Ripper, Jimmy Hoffa, Jon Benet Ramsey, Chandra Levy, Natalie Holloway and dozens of others that have occupied our time and interest over the years. Cases get closed for a variety of reasons such as: previously available technology was not able to adequately analyze the evidence in order to form a conclusion; witnesses became hostile or uncooperative; various time constraints hindered the investigation; heavy workloads for law enforcement; or the most common, a lack of worthwhile leads stalled the case.

Sometimes cold cases involve deaths, robberies, unexplained events and missing persons. The number of cold cases seems to grow every year.

According to the FBI, there are over 6,000 new cold case files every year. The agency says there are over 200,000 cold case files that have accumulated over the last 50 years. Our community was excited in 2008 when we heard that about 100 cold cases involving Civil Rights atrocities were being reopened with the availability of new technology to get at the truth.

A cold case can be solved as long as there is evidence, witnesses and a public that has not given up completely.

On Easter Sunday in Jerusalem over 2000 years ago, Peter began an inspection of an empty tomb that reopened a cold case. There are witnesses, even today, there is plenty of evidence and there is plenty of public interest, but that's all the world is talking about.

As Christians, we are interested in this cold case. The truth we have learned about the resurrection of the savior has proven to be the foundation of our faith. By reopening that cold case to learn that He lives, we also reopen our own cold cases, to learn that we can live again as well.

Exposition

This text focuses on an inspection made by Peter on the morning of the resurrection; an inspection of what he thought was a cold case, but ultimately left him wondering about what he saw.

Christ had been crucified and buried in a new tomb borrowed from a wealthy man of the area named Joseph. His body had been hastily removed from the cross so that it would not be hanging during the Passover Sabbath. On Sunday morning the women came to tomb and found his body gone.

Their report as dismissed because the case was closed. They had watched Christ die on the Christ. They watched Him removed and buried in the tomb. They watched the mighty stone placed in front of the tomb. The case was obviously closed.

However, the report of the women suggested that the case should be re-opened. Obviously, there must be evidence that would lead to a different conclusion if verified.

Realizing that there had been no close inspection of the cross, the tomb Peter ran to the tomb to investigate for himself. Once inside he saw nothing but the strips of linen cloth that were used to wrap the body for burial. The cloth strips were neatly folded and laid by themselves. He was extremely specific in his observations, taking note of every detail with his own eyes, not counting on the testimony of the women.

Peter left "wondering in himself at that which was come to pass." He left no wiser than he came. Yet, it was enough to confirm that the cause of Christianity was not over; that the cross and the tomb had not quenched the divine fire. He left that morning convinced that there was sufficient evidence to re-open this cold case.

Reopening Cold Cases

There are many who believe that those who trust in God are borderline fanatics who are ignoring the facts of the case. They believe that the case of Jesus Christ ended on a hill called Golgotha about 2000 years ago. They say the facts of this case are that a man named Jesus was crucified on a Roman cross and He died. They point to the cross the nails, the crown of thorns and his own last words "it is finished" as evidence that Christ is dead.

In 1966 Time Magazine shocked the world by asking one question: "Is God dead?" They maintained that God was no longer necessary to explain the natural order of things. They also noted that God plays an honorary role in the lives of people rather than the obligatory role of Master. For all purposes they claim that God is dead, because there is no evidence that He lives. They say the matter is a cold case

Yet, today we who believe submit that God is NOT dead. We further submit that Jesus has been raised from the dead. To prove our case let us re-open this cold case.

CONSIDER THE EVIDENCE: There is evidence of His life. On Easter Sunday morning several women, including Mary Magdalene, Joanna and Mary the Mother of James came to the tomb and found that the body of Jesus was missing. An angel told them He is not here, but is risen. The disciples later saw the empty tomb, they saw the folded clothes, they spoke with Him on the road to Emmaus, they watched him eat fish and bread in front of them, and hundreds watched as he took a cloud and ascended back to heaven. The evidence is incontrovertible. To those who say Christ is dead, we say that is a cold case that needs to be reopened. Even today the evidence of God's movement in the lives of people is undeniable. Those who have faced impossible situations only by the help of God give evidence to His living presence.

Cancer victims who survived when doctors had give up hope, homes that were restored despite all of the predictions of the critics, the sick that that were healed, the lost that were found and those who picked themselves up from the curbs of life to stand on their own two feet, are clear evidences that God is alive and hears and answers prayers. We don't understand His ways. We don't understand why there are wars and famines. We don't understand why there is pestilence and trouble, but we see enough evidence in this world to know that when a prayer breaks through the clouds of confusion and frustration that cloak this world, God moves, saves, heals and answers prayer. We are His living evidence. The old warriors once sang, 'I know the Lord will answer prayer, cause I tried him for myself!"

CONSIDER THE WITNESSES: The Angel invited the Mary and the other Mary to bear witness to the reality of the resurrection. They were invited to see the empty blood stained winding sheet. They were invited to see the neatly folded napkin that lay across his face. They were invited to investigate the interior of the tomb and see for themselves. A witness does not repeat second hand information, but they know for themselves. Even today, there are millions of witnesses, who can testify about the Goodness of the Lord because they have tried Him for themselves. There is no witness like the witness who can say "I have seen it with my own eyes." That's why the angel invited the women to "come see the place where the Lord lay." The angel wanted them to be in a position to speak with authority. We who have been down to our last dime and facing tragedy and despair can best testify, that God is a good God. We who have stood at the brink of death only to be snatch out of the jaws of destruction, can best testify that God will be a shield around us every day. We who have weathered the hurricanes, strong winds and gales of life, are best able to testify, that God is a shelter in a time of storm. We who have been dismissed as dead and beyond help know the joy of resurrection morning. We can truly testify..."I know God lives for He woke me this morning with a touch of His finger. I have felt the warmth of His smile; I know he lives because he lit the sun and hung it in the sky. I know God lives, for I've tried Him for myself.

CONSIDER THE FAITH OF HIS FOLLOWERS: Even if the evidence is undeniable and the witnesses are available a cold case remains cold if there is no one interested in re-opening the case. On the days following the crucifixion there was very little interest among the Romans of re-opening this cold case. Scribes and Pharisees refused to talk about it and had no interest in dealing with it. While they refused to talk about it, investigate it or explore its implications, there were thousands who refused to believe the official account. Their numbers grew by the thousands as they announced their faith in God and belief that He raised Jesus from the day. Today, brothers and sisters there are 1.2 billion Christians around the world who have an interest in re-opening this cold case. The faith of believers sustains us and is never diminshed. No matter how tough times get, faith helps us to believe that no matter what comes God is still God. He is still our God whose

-Power never weakens
-Grace never disappoints
-Love never leaves
-Promises never fail
-Glory never diminishes
-Joy never ends
-Foundation never shakes
-Truth never changes
-Supply never shrinks

People of faith around the world can testify that if the world thinks God is dead, they should reopen that cold case.

Solving My Case

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that those who reopened the cold case on Easter Sunday morning found the same truth that millions today share as well, that Christ lives and so does our hope for life everlasting.

The crucifixion and death of Christ was a cold case, but it was not a closed case. It was not closed because the unseen hand of God was moving to bring new life into a dead situation. The disciples witnessed the gory details of the crucifixion. To reopen this cold case would mean believing that the man they saw crucified and buried was indeed alive. Reopening this cold case was a circumstance of hope lost and found again. Reopening the cold case required a leap of faith. These 11 men were with Him in the garden when the temple guards came to seize him. They were close by when He was tried by the Sanhedrin Council and found guilty. They were close by when Herod mocked and ridiculed Him. They were in the crowd when Pilate handed him over to the soldiers for crucifixion. They watched as he carried a cross toward Golgotha. They watched as He was nailed to the cross and lifted up high. They were present when He gave up the ghost and died. They saw Him buried in a freshly hewn tomb. They saw the stone rolled in front of the tomb and guards placed in front of the tomb.

For the disciples there was considerable evidence of Christ's death. To reopen this cold case was testimony and evidence that he was truly alive. Today, there are millions of cold cases who face the prospect of failure, defeat and hopelessness. There world has given up on their cases and they have all been written off.

The message of the resurrection is that cold cases like ours can be reopened, hope is still alive, failure can be overcome, and the power of God has not been conquered.

When Joseph was thrown into a pit by his brothers and left to die, it looked like a cold case mystery when his father was brought a blood stained coat of many colors. However, God reopened that cold case and raised Joseph to be prime minister of Egypt.

When Lazarus lay in his tomb for four days, Mary and Martha dismissed it as a cold case. They chastised Jesus saying, "If you had been here, our brother wouldn't have died." Despite the sadness of the moment, The Lord reopened that cold case and gave him new life.

When the Hebrew Boys were thrown into the fiery furnace, there were many who saw the hot fire and thought it was a cold case, but God reopened that cold case and protected them in the fire.

Ezekiel was carried into a valley of dry bones, the ultimate cold case, and asked Son of Man can these bones live? The answer came that they can live if they will hear the word of the Lord! I hear Isaiah saying, "He was wounded for our transgressions, bruised for our iniquity, the chastisement of our peace is upon him, and with his stripes we are healed! On Easter Sunday morning they reopened a cold case and found that Christ lives! Because He lives, He reopens my cold case and gives me another chance!

Because He lives, I can face each day standing on the promises of God
Because He lives, I can get up if I mess up and start all over again!
Because He lives, there is no mountain to high for me to climb!
Because He lives, there is no valley of frustration so wide that I cannot cross!
Because He lives, there is no defeat that I cannot turn into a victory
Because He lives, there is no failure that can conquer my soul and hold me down!
Because He lives, I can face tomorrow,
Because He lives, all fear is gone;
Because I know He holds the future,
I'm glad that He came down here and lived for 33 years.
I'm glad that He died on an old rugged cross for me!
But I'm so glad that early Sunday morning He arose from the grave with..
All power in his hands!

Great Praise for a Great God

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 2011

SCRIPTURE: For great is the Lord, and greatly to be praised: he also is to be feared above all Gods. 1 Chronicles 16:25

Introduction

Have you ever felt undeserving for an award you received? Was the award a special plaque or a trophy? Perhaps it was a certificate or some other token of recognition. The purpose of the award was to recognize and to praise you because of a noteworthy accomplishment and contribution, but you felt unworthy to be praised.

The feeling of unworthiness increases with the size of the accolade. Sometimes presentations may get bigger than mere plaques or certificates. Sometimes there are busts and memorials and even rooms, windows and buildings that bear our names. One reason a true servant of God feels unworthy is because the true servant recognizes that the real praise for any accomplishment belongs to God.

Tributes usually follow significant accomplishments. We feel unworthy because we know that God was the underlying source of our success; He deserves the praise. God should be praise, not us; that's the way humble saints feel. We know how to recognize people for their accomplishments, but how do we recognize God when he has helped us? That was the question that puzzled David in Psalm 116:12 when he asked What shall I render unto the LORD for all his benefits toward me? David concluded that he would drink from the cup of salvation, pay his vows and continue to call upon his name. He decided that was the best way to give tribute to God.

As Christians, we recognize that every accomplishment we make is a reflection of God's handiwork. We cannot take credit for the work the church has done; God gets all of the glory. The trail of life that marks our journey is speckled with markers, large and small, that testify of the help we have received from God. Without Him, we can do nothing. If we have accomplished anything, the glory is His for He is God who is great and is greatly to be praised.

Exposition

This text focuses on a psalm of David that extols the greatness of God in midst of the people. The occasion for the psalm is the public entry the ark made into the tent prepared for it. David had written many songs and hymns but this special psalm was placed in the hand of Asaph, for the use of the church. Its words spoke to the celebration of the moment, but they also spoke to believers of all generations as the tell of the greatness of the Lord. What does this psalm said about praising God? Beginning at verse eight it says we should glorify God in our praises; let his honor be the center of our faith and hope. We should glorify him by our thanksgivings, by our prayers (Call on his name, v. 8), by singing songs to Him and talk about all his wondrous works, v. 9. By the time we reach this text verse, David says we should glorify God as a great God, who is not only to be praised, but greatly to be praised (v. 25). He is to be praised as a supreme God who is above all of the false gods of the pagans; He is the sole God, for all others are idols, v. 26. Our joy and praise of God should be endless.

Any accomplishment that we make, any milestone reach, and achievement that we celebrate is an occasion to praise God for it is through Him that all blessings flow.

Why the Church Praises God

David made it clear in verse 25 that there three things that we should consider when it comes to the divine attributes of God with respect to his creation and His church:

GOD IS GREAT: God is great, much greater than anything we can imagine. Even as we celebrate anniversaries and pat each other on the back for our serious and dedicated labor, we must remember that our accomplishment does not shine a light to the greatness of God. In comparison to the greatness of God our small achievements are miniscule. Lest we think more of ourselves we should remember that while we, as creations of God, are wondrous works, the one who created us is greater. Man has 263 bones, 600 muscles, and 970 miles of blood vessels, but God is greater! Man has 400 cups on his tongue for taste, 20,000 minuscule hairs in his ears to tune into sound, 40 pounds of jaw pressure, 10 million nerves and branches, but God is greater! Man has 600,000,000 air cells that breathe in his lungs and his heart beats 4,200 times an hour, but God is greater because everything man has and is made by God. No wonder the song writer says, “Oh Lord My God, as I in awesome wonder, consider all the worlds thy hands hath made. I see the stars, I hear the rolling thunders thy power throughout the universe displayed...then sings my soul my savior God to thee, How great thou Art, How great thou art!”

GREATLY TO BE PRAISED: David said God should be praise “greatly.” That refers to the intensity of our praise. Not just a ceremony of lip service but a praise that reflects the power and majesty of the almighty God. The church should praise God intensely because Has blessed us intensely. Yet, there are some in the church who share in worships such as this who question the need for so much praise. They can’t see the need and believe we are wasting our time “greatly praising” God.

They are like a Church goer who wrote a letter to the editor of a newspaper and complained that it made no sense to go to church every Sunday.

I’ve gone for 30 years now, he wrote, and in that time I have heard something like 3,000 sermons. In all of those years people were shouting praises to God that sounded like the ones before. I hear the sermons and the praises but for the life of me, I can't remember a single one of them.. So, I think I'm wasting my time and the pastors are wasting theirs by giving sermons and all of those words of praise.

This started a real controversy in the Letters to the Editor column, much to the delight of the editor. It went on for weeks until someone wrote this clincher:

I've been married for 30 years now. In that time my wife has cooked some 32,000 meals. But, for the life of me, I cannot recall the entire menu for a single one of those meals. But I do know this... They all nourished me and gave me the strength I needed to do my work. If my wife had not given me these meals, I would be physically dead today. Likewise, if I had not gone to church and lifted God up in praise I would not have been spiritually nourished, I would be spiritually dead today! When you are DOWN to nothing.... God is UP to something! Faith sees the invisible, believes the incredible and receives the impossible! God is great and He is greatly to be praised!

THE FEAR OF THE LORD: David said the fear of the Lord should be the Hallmark of every Christian life. The fear that David spoke of was not the feeling of endanger that a prey feels when stalked by a predator, but it is a feeling of awe, respect, and reverence one has toward a loving God who offers joy, peace, and eternal life. So, this idea of fear is not a matter of trembling and shaking. It is the fear that springs from recognizing that he is God, our Creator, and we are his creation. It is the fear that comes from recognizing that it is he who gives us the very next breath of life on this earth, and as a result we find our hearts filled with love for him and thankfulness to Him.

This is the kind of respect, reverence and dedication that prompts the church to ben instrument that God uses to bring forth HIS blessing to His people. It is this fear that transforms the church from a building to an assembly of baptized believers in Christ. In fear, our people have been blessed because of the church, the old ship of Zion. We have worshipped under brush arbors and on sandy and abandoned beaches We have lifted our voices to God in empty barns with sawdust floors. We have praised Him in the chill of winter with only the crackling sound of logs burning as our music. We have sweltered, without air conditioning, in the humid and scorching heat of a thousand summers.

Yet, God has used this great church for 16 years of worship and praise experiences to bring forth His water in a thirsty land. Through the church God has delivered us as a people from the Egypt of second class citizenship to the borders of the Promised Land. Through the church, God has sustained us through, discrimination, depressions and unbelievable hardships. Through the church, God has raised up our bowed down heads and lifted our broken spirits. In fear and trembling we still sing the glory of God's church, "Tis the old, Ship of Zion. She has landed many a thousand. King Jesus is the captain. Get on board. Get on Board."

As we go we should keep praising the Lord

Finally, brothers and sisters, as we look back over the journey we have traveled over the years, we must give God the glory and the praise! That is the essence of all that David had to say on that great day that the Ark assumed its place. Yes, there were men who fought to bring it home. Yes, there were sacrifices made by women and children who labored in so many ways to sustain the hope! The people did their part, but when the Ark came home, the people gave God the glory and the praise!

As we celebrate this anniversary today, we should consider ourselves unworthy recipients of God's grace. We should greatly praise the Lord because it is He who has helped us. David's conclusion for Israel was that there is sufficient reason for Israel to praise God because of his wondrous works. Today, believers have sufficient reason to praise God. God is greatly to be praised because in our Egypt experience He fed and sustained us! God is greatly to be praised because he made a way for us out of no way!

God is greatly to be praised because even today, He is blessing us!

Every day, God is blessing us!

Every day, God is still opening doors!

Every day, God is still wiping weeping eyes!

Every day, God is still raising bowed down heads!

Every day, God is still putting food on our tables!

Every day, God is still making a way out of no way!

We should praise the Lord because His:

—Grace is always sufficient; Love is always abundant.

—Mercy is everlasting and; promises are sure.

We should greatly praise the Lord for the burden He's going to lift off our shoulder!

We should greatly praise the Lord for the hill He's going to help us to climb!

We should greatly praise the Lord for the bills He's going to help us to pay!

We should greatly praise the Lord for the job He's going to help us to find!

We should greatly praise the Lord for the home He's going to help us to buy!

However, there is one more thing for which we should greatly praise the Lord; we should praise Him for saving our souls and washing us with the only solvent that can make our sins white as snow!

The song writer asked, "What can wash away my sin? What can make me whole again? Nothing but the blood of Jesus! Oh precious is the flow that makes me white as snow, no other fount I know, nothing but the blood of Jesus!"

Jesus, the prized son of Palestine.

Jesus, the epitome of perfection.

Jesus, who is the Prince of Peace.

Jesus who died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

He is great!

He is great!

And greatly to be praised!

There arose a storm

A sermon By Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 1, 2011

SCRIPTURE: "And there arose a great storm of wind, and the waves beat into the ship, so that it was now full. And he was in the hinder part of the ship, asleep on a pillow: and they awake him, and say unto him, Master, carest thou not that we perish? And he arose, and rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea, Peace, be still. And the wind ceased, and there was a great calm. Mark 4:37-39

Introduction

Has the increase in the frequency and intensity of storms caught your attention yet? Some were in the direct path of great storms; others were on the fringes but nevertheless felt the storms as they passed by? They commanded our attention!

Last year there were 19 tropical storms, 12 general hurricanes and five major hurricanes. Yet, something is happening this year that is touching hundreds of communities across the nation, storms and tornadoes. In the first three hours of this year there were seven tornadoes in Mississippi and nine more before the month ended. In March there were 59 tornadoes. In April there were 42 tornadoes and 1200 reports of tornado scale wind storms. Meteorologists report that there have been 1,028 tornadoes in the U.S. alone.

We have seen a massive storm system that has swept through the nation leaving a trail of destruction and pain in its wake, impacted the lives of thousands.

When storms come suddenly and with little or no advance notice, we are often caught unprepared, left devastated and drained. We mourn the loss of life. We shed tears over the loss of property and those who survive pick up the pieces and start again.

How can the faithful strip water soaked carpet from homes, cut away trees that have fallen through our roofs, or see so much that we thought was important in a pile on the side of a street, and still maintain faith in God? Those who do not believe see the faithful up to their knees in flood water or scavenging through piles of discards looking for mementoes, pictures and keepsakes; they see us and they ask, how can you still have faith in God?

We have faith because we believe the promise of God's word that all things work together for good to those who are the called. The phrase all things includes any storm that may sweep through our lives. We say it because we believe it, God is good all the time, all the time God is good.

As Christians we maintain our faith in God. We echo the thoughts of the songwriter who said, “I trust in God where ever we may be; out on the land or on the raging sea; though billows roll, he keeps my soul, my heavenly father watches over me.

Exposition

This text focuses on an instance in which Jesus restored peace in the middle of a storm. Jesus and his disciples were riding in a boat to reach a place of peace and rest from the crowds that followed him. As His disciples, most of whom were able boatmen, handled the ship Jesus went below deck and went to sleep.

In Palestine, there were two rainy seasons: the early rains of October and the latter rains of March. Between autumn and spring the Jews expected the rain to fall in large quantities and prepared themselves for its coming. The winter rains often brought thunder and lightning, strong winds that toppled houses and caused destruction. On the sea these rains often came quickly and with little warning.

This is the context of this passage. Without warning, a great storm arose and the shipmen became afraid because of the severity of the storm.

As the wind and waves increased in intensity many feared for their lives until someone remembered that Jesus was on board. They went to him and found that he was asleep. One cried out “Master, the tempest is raging, carest thou not that we perish?” Jesus awoke, saw the tempest and quieted the storm with the simple words “Peace Be Still.” Immediately the storm ceased.

These things must be

There are many reasons believers are not shaken by the sudden increase in storms, tornadoes, earthquakes, famines and diverse kinds of pestilences. One of the main reasons is because Christ has warned in His word that if we are among the living when we approach the last days of this world, giving way for the heavenly kingdom to come, that we would experience the trembling signs in the earth, the ecosystem and in the atmosphere.

The signs that we will see will be unavoidable, undeniable and are a prerequisite to the establishment of the new kingdom on earth

Look at this passage: Matthew 24:6-8 And ye shall hear of wars and rumors of wars: see that ye be not troubled: for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet. For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom: and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in divers places. All these are the beginning of sorrows.

Verses six and eight say “see that ye be not troubled for all these thing must come to pass; they are the beginning of sorrows.

God is not punishing us; he is getting us ready for the return of Christ. When he returns all that we lost will be returned "more abundantly," including the lives of believing friends and family members that may have been claimed by one of life's storms.

There is a season for storms

Ecclesiastes 3:1 reminds us that there is time and season for everything under the sun; that includes storms. In the bible there was a rainy or stormy season and we too have seasons. There are times when it will be hot and other seasons when it is cold. We know approximately when to expect the cold, and the summer heat, we have an idea about storm seasons. However, storms have a way of developing instantly and unpredictably.

When sudden storms come all of our preparation seems inadequate once the winds begin to blow.

Most families have already assembled essential documents in safe boxes, indicated an agreed up meeting place in case they are separated, and made provisions in case resources are limited.

The general idea is to get to safe ground with everyone safe.

In a stormy season we need to know the way to safe ground. When waters rise we need to know how to find higher ground.

In times of storms believers know how to find a refuge. The word of God says, God is our refuge and our strength, a very present help in times of trouble.

Believers know the way to God and constantly lean and trust him to take us to higher ground then give us the strength to pick up the pieces, rebuild and to stand. Maybe that's what the song writer had in mind when he said, "Lord lift me up and let me stand, by faith on heaven's table land, no high ground I have not found, Lord plant my feet on higher ground."

God is aware of our storm

God is always aware of our storms. When storms break there are many who lose faith, throw up their hands and ask, why our community? Why our family? Why me? Is not God aware of our danger and our predicament? Is He asleep?

The disciples felt that way. In Mark 4:39 Jesus was asleep below deck on a ship when a storm arose. When they panicked He questioned their faith as he spoke to the winds and the waves saying, Peace Be Still.

There are many today who react to storms like the disciples who lost faith.

Even though they knew Jesus was on board in Mark, they screamed, Master, carest thou not that we perish?

Somehow our faith seems to operate in degrees. Some storms don't bother us and we are confident that God will take care. When the rains come we don't worry. In fact, many people find it easy to sleep in the rains, snuggled comfortably away. Even when winds blow many look out of their windows in awe at the bending of the trees, but never with much worry.

If we cant understand the confidence we have in a light rain and wind, then we can understand why Christ could have been asleep during the storm. His faith in the power of God was intact.

However, some of us who are confident when the rains come begin to tremble and fear when the thunder rolls or the lightning flashes.

We lose faith when a tornado is sited or hurricane force winds come. When the water rises, many forget that God is still God and wonder whether we will be able to weather this storm.

This storm may not be weather related.

This storm could be the loss of a job.

This storm could be the sickness of a breadwinner.

This storm could be a family difficulty. This storm could be a serious marital problem.

This storm could be a financial disaster.

When we worry about the storm, it may be that we have forgotten that we serve a God who can speak to the winds and they will obey his will, or just by his mere presence, storms will disappear.

That's why we love the song that says, When the storms of life are raging, stand by me.

It is well

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that even as we pick up after storms, it is well. Have you suffered any losses due to storms? Don't focus on what you have lost, count your blessings. Things can be replaced, injuries will heal. Even the fatalities among believers will one day be restored. That's God's promise. After the rain, the sun will shine again. The spirit of faith in God is our response to life's storms. A woman whose house and personal property was destroyed in Tuscaloosa, Alabama was shown on television. She held her two girls beside her as they looked at their home in shambles and all of their personal belongings buried under what seemed to be a mountain of debris. She looked and she cried then started to stroke a little silver cross that she wore around her neck. The news reporter saw her holding her daughters with one arm and stroking the cross with the other and asked how she felt. She looked at the fallen house and her scattered belongings, then looked at her daughters. While holding the cross in her fingertips she responded it is well.

The world wants to know, how can we say it is well when a storm has disturbed our peace? Because we know God is still on the throne. We know peace and order will be restored because Jesus is on board. Today storms still break out in our lives, but it's good to have Jesus on board.

When the storms of life are raging, we need to have Jesus on board to speak peace and blessings onto our pickup and restoration activities. When Jesus is on board no matter how fierce the storm, there is still hope.

When the storms of life are raging Jesus brings:

-Hope for the hopeless

-Light for our darkened paths

-Inspiration for dispirited hearts

-Encouragement for the discouraged.

As long as Jesus is on board, we can call on Him and He will speak to the winds and command them to be still!

When Jesus speaks to our storm He summons the eye of God to shine upon us.

When Jesus speaks to our storm He promises to make sense out of our difficulty.

When Jesus speaks to our storm, He promises to restore our sense of security.

Peace be still means that when the storms of life are raging, God is still in control.

Peace be still means that even though the rains come and the winds blow God has not stopped loving us!

Peace be still means that even though the lightning flashes, the thunder rolls and the rain pours ...after the rain, the sun will shine again.

When the storms of life are raging, we our plea is the same as that of the song writer who said, 'When the storms of life are raging, stand by me."

Stand by me and speak peace to my troubled situation

Stand by me and strengthen me to remember Romans 8:28 that all things work to the good for them that love God.

When the storms are raging help me to remember that My grace is sufficient for thee: When the storms of life are raging, stand by me Lord and help me to remember that no matter how rough the storm this too shall pass! When the storms of life are raging, stand by me Lord and help me to that weeping endures but a night, but joy comes in the morning. After the storm, the SON will shine!

When the Son of God shines hope is renewed!

When the Son of God shines faith is revived!

When the Son of God shines Happiness is restored and joy will never end!

The world tried to hide his glory in a storm!

His enemies tried to destroy his majesty by nailing him to an old rugged cross!

His detractors tried to bury his omnipotence in a borrowed tomb!

But Early Sunday morning, after storm....

The SON was shining again!

Pleasing a Godly mother, also pleases God

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 8, 2011

SCRIPTURE: "For do I now persuade men, or God? or do I seek to please men? for if I yet pleased men, I should not be the servant of Christ. But I certify you, brethren, that the gospel which was preached of me is not after man. For I neither received it of man, neither was I taught it, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ. For ye have heard of my conversation in time past in the Jews' religion, how that beyond measure I persecuted the church of God, and wasted it: 14 And profited in the Jews' religion above many my equals in mine own nation, being more exceedingly zealous of the traditions of my fathers. But when it pleased God, who separated me from my mother's womb, and called me by his grace, Galatians 1:10-15

Introduction

Have you ever found yourself doing things that would please your mother? Many spend their lives trying to please their mothers and bring a smile to their faces. What we learn about Christian mothers is that what pleases God pleases them. Doctors who deliver newborns often report that they are struck by the sight of a mother smiling when she hears a newborn baby cry out. That smile is not an ordinary smile but it's secretive, gentle, and ineffable. Many doctors report that they have become accustomed to the mother's smile after childbirth and they have never been disappointed. It didn't matter what the conditions that brought the child into the world, whether the baby was planned or not, whether it had married parents or not, whether it was from rich family or not, that unambiguous smile always seems to appear to transform the mother's face that was recently contorted in pain and agony into a beautiful moment of calm. From the moment of conception, a mother smiles.

At the moment that a child takes its first breath, it seems to cry out, yearn for and long for the touch, the voice and the smile of its mother. Many spend the rest of their lives trying to keep their mothers smiling. Think about the things that you do that please your mother. As a child your mother was pleased when you bowed your head and said grace over your bowl of cereal. She was pleased when you emptied the trash and made up your bed without being told to do so. She was pleased when you saved a dime out of your $1 allowance to put in the church offering tray. She was pleased when you broke one of her expensive what-nots but did not lie about your deed. She was pleased when you brought home a report card that reflected your best work, even though it wasn't the highest grade possible.

She was really pleased when you crawled up on her lap, put your hands around her neck and told her that you loved her. When mothers are pleased they smile.

There is a connection between the kinds of things that bring a smile to a godly mother's face and those that please God. Often they are one and the same.
God smiles when he sees us being obedient. He smiles when we give him praise Him and bring our offering. He smiles when we demonstrate integrity in our dealings with others and do our absolute best in any work that we undertake.
God seems to be pleased with the same things that make mother smile.

As Christians, we work hard to please God through our words and deeds. Jesus gave His life for us and has nurtured us even while we were in the womb. We like it when He smiles on what we say and do.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he explains how his ministry pleases God. Paul spent a large portion of his life fighting the cause of Christ. Since his past was well known he often had to explain how he passionately defended the Christian cause.
His explanation to the Galatians, in this text, is that even while in his mother's womb he was ordained with a purpose, nurtured in the womb for a specific cause and birthed into the world to achieve a specific end.

His mother probably had no idea of his purpose. Unlike Mary or Elizabeth who both were given advance notice of the special nature of the children the carried, Paul's mother was not told his purpose. She received no divine hint. What did was rear him to the best of her ability. She insured that he was given the best education she could afford. That education prepared Paul to be a great speaker, and teacher. The fact that he learned at least seven languages attested to his early training. She did not know what he was to become, she reared him in the fear of God, and obedience to the Law of Moses. When he accepted his calling to witness for Christ another woman, the mother of Rufus who was a Christian, nurtured him in the faith to the point that Paul referred to her in Romans 16:13 as his mother. Though no details are given, it is apparent that Paul learned the fear of God from his mother, just as any other Jewish boy; but he was nurtured in his Christian faith by the mother of Rufus, the son Simon of Cyrene, the black man who helped Jesus carry his cross.

Thus, Paul writes that when it pleased God he was separated from mother and plunged into a ministry that would spread the gospel around the world. When he lived a godly life and gave respect to God he pleased his mother. When he spoke with passion about the cross of Christ, he pleased his other mother. When he pleased his mother and those who had a hand in mothering him, he also pleased God. Whenever anyone pleases a god fearing he also pleases God.

Mother is pleased when we live out our purpose

A mother is pleased when it becomes obvious that her children are fulfilling their life's purpose. Good mothers spend most of their time trying to help their children discover and achieve their personal destinies. When it is attained, mothers are pleased. Mary, mother of Jesus, was aware of his purpose before He was born. She knew he was to be a mighty man of God, but she did not know the details of His persecution and crucifixion.

Jesus was born in a small town, to poor parents, in very restricted and impoverished circumstances. By the age of 12 it appears he had learned his destiny because after being found in the temple with the scholars he said, 'It's time for me to be about my father's business." Mary knew his purpose and helped him achieve it.

A godly mother does what is necessary for to help her children achieve their life purpose. Some have been known to work to or three jobs, scrub floors and suffer humiliations to help their children achieve their purpose. When that happens, mothers are pleased.

Mothers are happiest when they see their children motivated to succeed, despite the circumstances of their birth or their parentage. Since a godly mother only wants to see her children fulfill the will of God, when mother is pleased, the child knows God must be pleased. It is certainly true to the converse, if God is pleased a godly mother is pleased as well.

Mother is pleased when we trust her words

A mother is pleased with her children when they trust her words and obey them. There are so many children today who disobeyed their parents and bring hardships and anguish on their mothers.

Mothers tell us to watch the crowds that we hang out with because birds of a feather flock together. She is pleased when we follow her advice.

Mothers tell us to exercise care so that we can avoid mishaps and trouble because an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of court.

Mother are happy when we follow their advice and treat each person with kindness as we climb up, because the same people you trample on your way up you will meet them on your way down.

Mothers are happy when we follow her instructions even though we don't understand why she does what she does.

Consider the little rabbit that was fascinated with its newfound speed. The bunny loved to out run the creatures of the wood. He out ran the toad frog and Brer snake could never catch him. In fact, he took on ever creature of the woods to test his skill.

The little rabbit was disturbed however, because each time his folks let him go to the woods alone, mama rabbit would prick the bottom of his foot with a thorn. When they left, without explanation, the little rabbit limped around for hours in pain. When they returned they said nothing.

After a while, the little rabbit was concerned and asked mama rabbit the question, "Why do you stick my foot every time you leave me alone, it doesn't make sense and it seems cruel for you to do me this way."

Mama rabbit hopped over to her son and said, "There is a hound dog and hunter that love to chase little fast rabbits. Knowing you, you would give them a run. It may not make sense to you now, but it's better to be a living bunny with a sore foot than a dead rabbit with a fast reputation."

It did not make sense to him at the time, but that sore foot was keeping him alive.

Mama rabbit was pleased that he finally got the message.

When mother is not pleased

Life at home can be terrible if mama is not pleased. You can often tell when she is not pleased by the tone of her voice or the way she calls your name. When she calls your whole name, it usually means trouble.

Whenever we seem to stray away from the path, mother is not pleased and she has a tendency to get in our business.

Mothers and grandmothers are the voice of responsibility in most families. We pride ourselves in all the new things we purchased with a credit cards, but mother and grandmother wants to know our credit score, has it been raised or lowered as result of spending. They are the voices that keep warning us to spend more time at home and less with our friends, political connections, business partners and drinking buddies.

When mother is not pleased, she can and will get in your business. It doesn't matter whether you are grown and have your own, home, if mother is not happy, she'll get in a car or catch and airplane and show up at your front door. Mother is not pleased if a son is failing to care for his children. Mother is not pleased when a daughter is failing in her marriage commitment. Mother is not pleased if her children, even if they are grown, are drifting away from God and drifting aimlessly. When mother is not pleased, she won't keep it to herself she will let every child know his/her place. And when she gets angry, she may be heard to say, "I brought you into this world, I will take you out!"

Pleasing God is the highest order

Finally, we should remember that God gives us good mothers to guide and protect us, we want to please them, but more than that, we should strive to please God.

Godly mothers copy many of their traits from the Lord.

Like the Lord, God mothers are pleased when we do our best.

Like the Lord, Godly mothers are upset when we don't achieve.

Like the Lord, Godly mothers are happy when we follow their words.

Like the Lord, Godly mothers can get in your business when things are not right.

Paul told the Galatians that he walked his own walk for many years until he began a new life in Christ that pleased God.

Our desire should be to please God, who is the source of our help.

Our help comes from a God who neither slumbers nor sleep.

Our help comes from a God who watches over us by day or by night.

When we show respect and honor for our mothers, we please God because he told us to honor our father and mother!

We thank God for mothers who provided us with a happy home!

We thank God for mothers who placed their lives on hold and invested their entire substance in us!

We thank God for mothers whose towering influence gave us a bold sense of family!

We thank God for mothers whose optimistic spirit showed us how to live long and happy lives!

We thank God for mothers who showed us the way to the hill!

Over 2000 years ago, when it pleased God, He sent his Son to that hill.

Not to a mountain peak or elevated blocks of land in a distant place but to a hill called Calvary!

We thank God that we had a mother who knew the man on the hill!

That man on the hill was Jesus who died on that old rugged cross.

It was a death that pleased God because he paid for our sins.

But when it pleased God, early Sunday morning, He rose again

Every day of my life I want to please God. When we please God we know our mothers will be pleased as well!

When she could no longer hide him

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 8, 2011

SCRIPTURE: "And when she could not longer hide him, she took for him an ark of bulrushes, and daubed it with slime and with pitch, and put the child therein; and she laid[it] in the flags by the river's brink." Exodus 2:3

Introduction

Has there ever been a time when you just didn't know what to do? Every mother can answer "yes" to that question because there have been so many times that they have tried everything they knew, but nothing seemed to work.

New mothers panic in the night when a baby won't stop crying, even though they may be miles away, they call home to ask their mothers what to do. Was it a rash? A few that that wouldn't break, a constant cough, a sore that wouldn't heal? No matter what the problem, every mother has had one point or another when they tried all that they knew how to do, only to be frustrated even more.

Young mothers often find that a call to an older mother can solve the problem, but there comes a time when even the advice of those more experienced doesn't seem to get the job done.

A child that wants to squander his/her talents and run wild with a loose crowd, frustrates a mother. A son who seems to be lawless and constantly breaks every rule and disrespects all forms of authority frustrates a mother who can only see a troubled future ahead. A daughter who ignores all motherly advice and flirts with activities that could lead to pregnancy, disease or death, troubles every mother.

After you have talk and talked until your face has changed colors and voice becomes hoarse, what do you do?

When that happens there is only one course to follow: put it in God's hands and trust Him to do what he does best: solve problems and turn lives around.

As Christians, we are grateful for having Godly mothers who struggled with us for so many years; when we frustrated them and they didn't know what to do, we're so glad that they put us in God's hands.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jocebed, the mother of Moses as she placed her son in a basket to hide him from danger.

Israel had been in bondage for over 400 years and in the process had increased in population from 70 when Joseph's family moved to Egypt to nearly a million people. The Pharaoh worried about the increase in the slave population and speculated that soon they would be able to overthrow their Egyptian rulers. In response, he ordered all of the male babies drowned to reduce the potential threat of an uprising.

As babies all over Egypt were taken by soldiers and drowned, one mother, Jocebed, hid her newborn in her house. She nurtured him with food, clothing and shelter for as long as she could, but eventually it became impossible to hide him. Too many people knew of his existence. The threat of discovery was too great.

She made a small basket and secured it so that it would be water tight and placed her son in the basket and with his sister as a guide placed the basket on the Nile river. She did not know what would become of the child. The Nile river was known for Crocodiles that could swallow the basket and the child with one fatal gulp. The prospect of drowning was on her mind as well as the chance that the soldiers might discover the little basket and drown the child despite her efforts. She resolved to put the child in God's hands and trust Him to guide the child to safety.

The basket drifted to an area where Pharaoh's daughter bathed. Once discovered, she decided to raise and educate the child as if it was her own. The child grew into a man and led the people of Israel out of slavery to the brink of the Promised Land.

Jocebed never gave up hope in her son, when she could no longer hide him, protect him and care for him; she put him in God's hand.

Mothers protect their children

Good mothers are protective of their children. The instinct to protect their offspring is intrinsic. In this respect every mother can empathize with Jocebed. They sense when danger is ahead and try to take actions to avoid anything that will have a negative impact on their children. Very few mothers can rest easy if they are aware that there is danger facing their children. Whether it is something as simple as a cry in the night or a broken leg, mothers will do their best to protect their children.

Often our mothers protect us from ourselves. Sometimes we really mess up our lives by dumb actions, stupid mistakes and insensitivity. Good mothers can see the danger coming and try to help us avoid many of life's pitfalls. One of Solomon's first decisions involved discovering the identity of the real mother when two women became embroiled in an argument over a newborn child. Since each woman claimed the child as her own Solomon proposed to cut the baby in half and give each woman half, instantly one woman rose to protect the child offering to give him to the other so that the child could live not be cut in two. He knew the unwritten truth: a real mother will always seek to protect her child.

Just as Jocebed listened for the sound of danger in the night and worried about the child's safety in the day, mothers today also seek to protect their children for all hurt harm and danger. That's why many pray constantly for the welfare of their children, asking God to be a shield around them by night and by today.

Today, I suspect that there are many who are enjoying a great life, because we living off the prayers of intercession offered by our mothers.

Godly mothers know when to let go

Jocebed held on as long as she could. Hiding her son became more difficult. He cried in the night. He gurgled in the day. It wouldn't be long before he would be discovered. Though she wanted to protect him with all of her being, she knew it was time to let go. All she could do was to trust in God.

There are some mothers who are over protective. An overprotective mother can do more damage than good. However, the Holy Spirit will speak to a godly mother and tell her when it's time to let go.

Godly mothers always ask God for the wisdom to know when to let go, and to know when they are loving their children too much. That's important because a child with an overprotective mother never fully matures, remains a baby, and is unable to think independently is always on the lookout for someone to depend on.

Over protective mothers cripple their children because they never learn to shoulder responsibility and are seldom held accountable for their actions. The children over protective mothers usually can't take criticism, even if it's positive and they expect to be pampered making them unable to succeed in relationships and to make necessary adjustments.

An over protective mother cannot accept the fact that her children make mistakes, do stupid things, and are capable of losing control. That may explain why their children only care about themselves and have difficulty caring about others.

Godly mothers know when to hold on and when to let go. That wisdom is not innate. It comes from God. Mary loved Jesus, but she knew when to let go. When he was 12 years old Jesus was separated from the family on a visit to Jerusalem. When Mary found him and asked why He had stayed behind, listening to the teachers in the synagogue, He answered, "It is time for me to be about my father's business." She knew when to let go. When Hannah had weaned her son, where he could be reared in the ways of the Lord by the priests, she took him and gave him to the priests. She knew when to let go.

Wise mothers know that there comes a time when they must let go. Even when their motherly instinct screams at them to intervene in the lives of their children, the spirit speaks to them and directs when to dip in and when to butt out.

Godly mothers are guided by the spirit of God and they move at His command.

Point children in the right direction

Jocebed spent considerable time preparing the little basket. In the night, away from the peeking eyes of the overseers she collected bulrushes and weeds, pitch and slim and made the little water tight basket. When she placed Moses in the basket, she placed the basket in the high weeds along the bank then pushed it in the direction of Pharaoh's daughter.

Many mothers, often more so than fathers, spend time trying to point their children in the right direction. That's why mothers are trying everything in their power to prepare their children for the future that is to come by placing them in the right hands. They seek out programs and activities that will help them to learn the essentials of living. They want their daughters to learn finer womanhood so they seek out groups to help them learn the rudiments of womanhood. They want their boys to learn to be men and they place them in the hands of men who add to the teaching they get at home. They look for schools, tutors, and extra-curricular activities that will help their children to be well rounded and ready for the world.

Most importantly, they see to it that their children have religious education. More than anyone else they know their children must know the Lord, be familiar with the word of God and know how to pray fervently and live a Christian life.

Jocebed pointed the little basket in the right direction, and let go, God took care of the rest. He saw to it that Pharaoh's daughter and not a crocodile found the basket. He saw to it that Pharaoh's daughter would raise the child and spare it from death.

Jocebed pointed the child in the right direction, God took care of the rest.

Thank God for good mothers

Finally, brothers and sisters we thank God for having given us godly mothers, through them He has blessed us. That's the lesson that Moses learned many years later. He had been reared in the great halls of the Egyptian court, but it was God who had blessed him through his mother. He had learn to read, write, build cities and lead people, but it was God who had blessed him through his mother. When she could no longer hide him, she put him in God's hands and God raised him up to be a leader of his people.

There are many mothers today who are worrying about the fate of their children. They have done all they know how to do; that's when you remember Jocebed, when you can no longer protect them, put them in God's hands.

When you put your children in God's hands, it doesn't matter which way the river of life flows, you will always float in the right direction.

When you've done all you know how to do, put your children in God's hands. It's safe in God's hands because we may:

—Grow WEAK but God is always strong!

—STUMBLE but God is always able to pick us up again!

—FAIL but God can do anything but fail!

Good mothers tell their children, to remember the words of Zechariah 4:6, "Not by might, nor by power, but my spirit said the Lord of hosts!" Good mothers show their children how to live, by the way they live! Good mothers show their children how to walk by faith, by walking with God themselves! Good mothers show their children how to deal with frustrations, by throwing all of their trust on the Lord.

I'm reminded of the old mother who was always so confident that the Lord would make a way. The young women of the neighborhood asked her one day, "Tell us mother, why are you so confident?" The old lady said, "When I was a girl, my mother taught me to ride my bicycle and she ran beside me. I could feel her hand holding me as I paddled along. One day, I rode a long distance. When I stopped I realized that mama wasn't beside me. I asked mama, how was it that she was not there but I still felt her hand. She told me that she realized that as long as she ran beside me and held me up, that I'd never learn for myself. She said she stopped running that day and put me in the Lord's hand. She said the hand I felt that day, wasn't her hand, but it was God's hand guiding me. She had put me in God's hands."

Every Godly mother says, "I won't always be there with you child, but if you if feel like you're going to fall, let the Lord hold you up!"

—If you feel like you're going to cry, let the Lord wipe your tears away!

—If you feel like you need someone to talk to, take it to the Lord in prayer!

—The world may knocks you down, God will pick you up!

—The world may strike you out, but God will give you a home run!

—The world may think you are a loser, but God will make you a winner!

Come what may, from day today, hold to God's unchanging hand!

The same hands that healed the sick and raised the dead!

The same hands that fed five thousand with two little fishes and five loaves of bread! The same hands that were nailed to an old rugged cross!

He died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave!

When you done all you know how to do...put it in God's hands, He will work it out!

Quit Lying to Yourself

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 2011

SCRIPTURE: "Against thee, thee only, have I sinned, and done this evil in thy sight: that thou mightest be justified when thou speakest, and be clear when thou judgest." Psalm 51:4

Introduction

Have you ever lied to yourself? If we tell the truth most of us have lied to ourselves at least once. Lying to ourselves is what psychologists call being in a state of denial. It's refusing to accept reality while we pursue a course that is obviously different from what is in our best interest. We really can't improve until we accept the obvious.

People who smoke three packs of cigarettes a day, but claim they don't have a smoking habit are in denial. If you are ever going to kick the habit you must quit lying to yourself. The man who says he's trying to stop drinking, but drinks a fifth a day is in denial if he believes he is not an alcoholic. If you are ever going to kick the habit you must quit lying to yourself. The person who says he is serious about losing weight but can't stop over eating is in denial if he or she believes there is no eating disorder. If you are ever going to correct the problem you must quit lying to yourself. The man who says he loves his wife but beats her every time he gets angry is in denial when he says he doesn't mean to hurt her. If you are ever going to get over this domestic violence problem you must quit lying to yourself. There are millions of people who are lying to themselves.

Many know that there is a conflict between what they profess with their lips and their actions, but they do nothing to change; they keep lying to themselves. What is for certain, those who do not change anything will probably get no further than they have in the past. There is an old riddle that says, "Two toad frogs sat on a stump. One took a notion to jump off, how many are left? Two! One took a notion to jump, but that's all." Many of us have "Notion Motion." We take a notion to improve ourselves but more often than not, our notions never translate to motion."

Unfortunately, there are many who lie to themselves about their relationship with God; some are living under the flawed notion that their disobedience to God does not separate them from God. Some even profess Christianity, while involved in ungodly activities. They are lying to themselves. They take a notion to change, but make very few motions.

We will get closer to God when we accept our own weaknesses and prayerfully ask God for forgiveness. When we stop lying to ourselves things will change.

As Christians, we know our God is a God of empowerment and restoration. When we ask Him, He will forgive us and restore us." When we do, God has promised that His kindness will not depart from us.

Exposition

This text focuses on David as he ends a long period denial and admits to God that he sinned when he broke God's law.

This psalm is the result of an instance in David's life which he made major errors in his life and finally seeks to reconcile himself with God.

David was on his palace roof one day when the army had gone out to battle and he saw a beautiful woman bathing herself. He entered into an adulterous relationship with her for she was a married woman. Her husband, Uriah, was a soldier in the king's army. He was away from home fighting for his nation.

A love child was conceived in the relationship and David panicked and tried to cover it up David ordered Uriah to be put in the forefront of the battle where he would most certainly be killed.

In the interim, David enjoyed the traditional protection afforded the king against prosecution or blame involving any action he took. He was invulnerable to prosecution and there was no court, tribunal or board that could hold him accountable. Under the law of the land the king could do no wrong.

Therefore David concluded that it was within his right to have an adulterous relationship with Bathsheba. It was also within his power and imperial right to order her husband to the front line of battle. David convinced himself that he was justified in his actions.

In the midst of his state of denial God stepped in to indicate to him that there was an authority higher than the king.

The prophet Nathan approached David in a way that he could not deny and singled him out as the man responsible for both adultery and murder. In a prophetic moment the prophet Nathan pointed a finger at the king and said, "Thou art the man!" David knew then that his sin was uncovered.

When he quit lying to himself, David came to the conclusion that his actions against Uriah and Bathsheba were actually sins against God. He took actions against the two victims, but his real sin was against God. Sin by definition is transgression of God's law.

When he quit lying to himself he admitted that he had sinned against God the only authority able to hold him responsible for his actions.

When he quit lying to himself David admitted that despite the way it appeared to others, his life had actually gone out of control.

He had caused a man's death, stolen his wife, and disgraced the nation and sinned against God.

He prayed for God's forgiveness and he was restored.

His past discretions were never forgotten by his history, but his new life was so awesome that it completely overshadowed that one dark period in his life.

Some knowingly lie to themselves

There are many who are lying to themselves with the full knowledge that they are trying to lie to the one person who knows better; themselves.

These are the individuals who have seen the road map, know the route needed to get to their destination, but have traveled the opposite direction knowingly. Why would a person know the right thing to do but do the exact opposite? Some think they can defy God and hide from his presence.

This was Jonah's situation, he was doing wrong and knew he was doing wrong but convinced himself that he was right. Like Jonah, there are many today who have their own reasons for defying God's laws. They have provided themselves wealth reasons to support their actions.

Each reason they give seems justifiable and satisfactory to them. In Romans 7:20, Paul explained how a person can do wrong, knowing full well that it is wrong. He said, "Now if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me." He said the presence of sin in any person's life pushes them to do wrong, with the full knowledge that it is wrong.

Paul said the only way such a person can redirect themselves is to allow Christ to come into their lives. He will make each person a new creature. That only happens when we quit lying to ourselves.

Some Procrastinate rather than reform

One element of denial is procrastination. Procrastination is a denial in the sense that we delay make necessary life decisions until a future date with the full knowledge that we have no intentions of making the change when that date comes.

Procrastinators lie to themselves frequently and often lie to themselves. To accommodate their indecisive nature, Procrastinators usually make up weak excuses that lie to their associates and to themselves.

Consider the pastor who tried to a get a man to come to church for many years. Each time he went to see the man his invitation was always refused. The man said, "Reverend, when I get straight, I'll promise you, I'll come to church."

The minister tried to persuade him to come to Jesus while he had time, but the man always refused saying, "I can't come the way I am. When I get straight I'll be there." Before the pastor could visit the man again he received news that the man died in his sleep. At his funeral, the pastor struggled to find a kind word to say about the man who never came to the church once in life.

The pastor finally said, "My friends, there is one thing that I can say about our friend. He kept his promise. He promised me he would come to church when he got straight.

Well, now he's straight and there he is."

Many have promised God that they would live for Him, but instead have given Him nothing but excuses and alibis. Each time we make a date with the Lord to reform our confused life without commitment that comes from the heart, we put off the Holy Ghost and deceive ourselves. To be truthful with God we need to quit lying to ourselves.

When we stop lying to ourselves, we repent

As long as David lied to himself and denied the sinfulness of his actions he never repented. However, was he felt the sting self condemnation and accept his sin against God, then he could start to get right with God.

Those who continue to live in denial never repent. They are like the first thief on the cross with Christ, he refused to accept responsibility for his crimes. He sought a way to escape his punishment not to make atonement for his sins. Even though he was hanging on a cross with death looming over him within just a few hours and pain and agony racking his body he was still stubborn. While hanging on the cross he made fun of and mocked Christ. He taunted Christ saying, "You say you are the Christ, then why don't you save yourself and me too." His unrepentant nature made him act foolishly, mocking one that could have saved him.

There are many in the world today who act similarly. There are some who have decided not to live by God's law but by man's law. They don't believe they deserve any punishment they receive and conclude that they are guiltless. They are lying to themselves.

There were some things about God that this thief and all like him didn't know. No one has to keep lying to themselves because God is a forgiving God; a compassionate God who doesn't care about the intricacies of our past, but only about the sincerity of the present. God will take shattered and broken lives and put them back together again. God will take the jangling discords of a dysfunctional life and weave them meticulously back together again. God will take the frightening roar of a midwinter storm and quieted it to the faint whisper of a warm spring breeze. God will take a shipwreck soul, stranded on the sea of life and "throw out the lifeline of hope and call out, "get on board, get on board."

That's what that second thief exemplified. He did not lie to himself; he said he deserved to be where he was but Jesus did not. He said to the other thief in essence: "We have been thieves all of our lives, we have transgressed the laws of God and the laws of the Romans, but this man has done no wrong." He recognized that the crucifixion of Christ represented the key to salvation, the door of spiritual blessing, the implementation of a divine plan.

When the blessings begin

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that when we quit lying to ourselves, that's when the blessings begin!

When we do as David did and fall on our knees in the presence of God and ask for forgiveness, God will restore us to the family of God and once again make us the recipients of his favor.

David asked the Lord to restore unto me the joy of thy salvation. Once again he wanted to have a clean heart. He wanted to put his life back in God's hands.

If we want to be restored, we must put our lives back in God's hands. We must once again, put our trust in the Lord.

Trusting in the Lord is not a trite saying, an empty colloquialism that tickles the ear but lacks substance and power!

Trusting in the Lord is not a failed experiment, or the testimony of the weak and faint hearted.

Trusting in the Lord is a statement of faith that affirms that the life we live has been placed in God's hand. He is the pilot; we sit in the second chair and wait His instructions.

Trusting in the Lord is an affirmation of faith that is better than Allstate; we are in good hands when we are in His hands.

Trusting in the Lord is a belief that is greater than State Farm, better than a good neighbor, God is always there!

To return to the joy of our salvation we must quit lying to ourselves and once again put our trust in Him and Him alone.

God and God alone can make our:

-RACE worth running and our BATTLE worth fighting!

-COURSE worth finishing and our FAITH worth keeping!

-DIFFICULTIES worth facing and our BURDENS worth bearing!

-ANXIETIES worth enduring and our TEARS worth shedding!

When we trust in the Lord, we turn dark days into sun shiny days; MIDNIGHTS into noontimes and hard times into good times!

It is no lie; God is a good God whose mercy endureth forever!

It is no lie, God is worthy of praise because His:

—Grace is always sufficient; Love is always abundant

—Mercy is everlasting and; promises are sure!

It is no lie; there is a burden He's going to lift off our shoulder!

It is no lie; there is a hill He's going to help us to climb!

It is no lie; there are bills He's going to help us to pay!

It is no lie there are jobs He's going to help us to find!

When we stopped lying to ourselves we turned to Jesus to get another chance.

Every since the day we accept Christ as our savior He's been restoring our souls.

I don't know about you but I'm praising Him for giving me one more chance!

I'm praising Him because He plucked me from the very mouth of despair and gave me a second chance!

I'm praising Him because He lifted my life out of the miry clay and placed my feet on solid ground!

I'm praising Him because He purchased my salvation!

The song writer said, “Jesus paid it all, all to Him I owe. Sin had left its crimson stain but He washed it white as snow”

Jesus came and died out on Calvary!

But early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave, guaranteeing my salvation!

Sweet Bread

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

May 15, 2011

SCRIPTURE: "And Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst." John 6:35

Introduction

What is the best bread you've ever tasted? We've tasted many types of bread in our life time, we all have our favorites. There are some who fondly remember eating light bread sandwiches, filled with nothing but mayonnaise. There are others who can remember sitting on their garrets eating cornbread, dipped in a glass full of cold butter milk. Some prefer biscuits with the butter oozing from them. There are some who even prefer hot water corn bread.

There are breads to fit every fancy: White bread, wheat bread, or rye bread. Toast, biscuit and muffins are some favorites with a little butter or a few with raisins. Some like Leavened or un-leavened, flat bread, foccacia bread, fried bread, bread sticks, bread crumbs, sour dough bread. French bread, Italian bread, bread made in rolls, bread made in loaves, bread made on buns, bread for burgers, and bagels for breakfast.

Despite the fact that the whole world seems to be hooked on low carb diets that shun most of the best breads..the good news is bread is back! Bread is back with a vengeance. In fact, it' in such demand that it's cost has skyrocketed. In 1943 a loaf of bread cost 5 cents. Today, depending on brand and location a loaf could cost as much as $2.00 We love our bread: Bread for hotdogs. Bread to sop gravy with. Bread for Sandwiches. Bread to nibble on while we wait on our meal at restaurants. We love our bread!

There is a favorite type of bread for many in the South, it's a bread that many simply call "sweet bread."

What is sweet bread? It depends on the side of the track you favor! On one side of the track Sweet Bread refers to a delicacy made from the heart, stomach, pancreas, throat or the neck of a cow, lamb or and pig. They strip the membranes away, soak it salt water, poach it in milk, dry it, chill it, bread it and then fry it. When eaten it looks and tastes like a large hunk of bread that that has a sweet taste. On that side of the track they call that concoction sweet bread.

On the other side of the track sweet bread has a different meaning. It has a little flour, a pinch of salt, eggs, a little cooking oil, a little baking soda, sugar and a little milk.

Nobody knows why they call either version sweet bread. One is not bread at all and only imitates being sweet but is not really sweet. The other is not bread at all, but is really a cake that does the same thing as bread, but makes it so much easier to eat and leaves a great taste in your mouth.

When Southern folks talk about sweetbread they usually mean a little small cake, sometimes cut in squares, presented on a sheet or in little paper container, they call it a cup cake instead of sweet bread with an icing.

Bread and cake have about the same nutritional value. The difference is that one is good for you and tastes great while the other is good for you, tastes great and is sweet, too!

Must of enjoy a good slice of bread, but for many, sweet bread is better! But there was another kind of bread. It's not corn bread, light bread, sourdough bread or sweet bread, it is from heaven. It's doesn't have an adjective to describe it like "Wonder" bread, although it is a wonder. We just refer to it as the bread from heaven.

It's the blessing of Christ in our lives every day helping us to grow stronger as it means our daily needs. It's the daily bread we pray for in our prayers. It's the bread that helps us deal with sour dough situations with the sweetness of God's word.

As Christians, we thank God for sending us bread from heaven. This bread is His son Jesus who feeds us daily. The song writer wrote, "Bread of Heaven, Bread of Heaven, feed me till I want no more." -Fill me with, Sweet bread!

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he explains how He is the bread from heaven which will feed believers in a way that their hunger will be satisfied.

The text was spoken after a crowd of several thousand people, detailed at verse nine, had gathered to hear Him and there was no food available to feed them. One lad in the group had brought along two fishes and five loaves of bread. Jesus had the men in the crowd to sit and he took the little fish and bread that was available, gave thanks for it, and began to distribute it to his disciples. As they distributed it among the crowd it never ran out until all had been filled; and even then there were leftovers.

The people were so excited about what they had seen that they immediately wanted to make Jesus their king because they envisioned feasts for everyone under his administration. They wanted more fish and more bread. Jesus rebuked the crowd for following their growling bellies, seeking food. He offered them food, but it was not of mere fish and bread. He told them that just as Moses gave them manna or the "bread from heaven" in the wilderness so had the father made it possible for them to have a greater bread.

He summed up this truth by telling them "I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst." What Christ told the crowds was simple: "If it's fish and bread you seek, keep looking; but if it's food for your soul that you want, I can satisfy your needs."

Thus, John 6:35 describes Christ as the Bread of life. However, 2 Corinthians 2:15 describes the "Sweet Savor" of Christ when it says, For we are unto God a sweet savor of Christ, in them that are saved, and in them that perish:. Paul describes Christ as having a sweet savor for the saved. In 2 Corinthians 2:16 he says, “To the one we are the savor of death unto death; and to the other the savor of life unto life. And who is sufficient for these things? “

To believers Christ is the sweet taste and savor of the abundant life, centered in Christ and acceptable to God. The non-believer’s rejection of Christ doesn’t have a great savor at all; it is the savor of death to them.

Christ is bread from heaven with a sweet savor. To plain folks that means just plain sweet bread.

What Bread Does for us!

When Christ described himself as the bread of life He gave us a comparison drawn from life that was so clear that we could fully understand what he means to our spiritual lives. When we walk down the aisle of a grocery store there are many kinds of bread on display, each claiming to be more than the other. There is the house brand of bread such as the Walmart “Great Value” or there is bread by Pepperidge Farms or Wonder Bread. They could all be placed in one plain wrapper that says “Bread” because they all do the same thing, except that some have raisins, or a designer touch. If we walked down the aisle of Heaven’s Grocery Store that would be only one brand on the shelf it would be “Bread of Heaven”- Because it does what bread is supposed to do.

BREAD RELEASES ENERGY: Bread is a source of protein in the body. It contains vitamins, iron and calcium. Most nutritionist agree that bread is a source of slow release energy. That’s good to know especially since Jesus said He is the bread of life. What does the presence of the Holy Spirit do in any life? He invigorates us like a vitamin, He strengthens us like iron and He gives us strong bones like Calcium, enabling us to stand. Then amazingly, the spiritual bread that is within us releases the power of God within us to do the work of God in a mighty way. It’s like a spiritual time release capsule; all through the day little bursts of energy just push us, just a little bit. When we feel dispirited, He lifts us. When we feel dejected, He raises us. When we feel tired, He energizes us. No wonder Jesus said, ‘I am the bread of life.”

BREAD HELPS US GET RID BAD STUFF: Certain kinds of bread, such as wheat bread contain fiber. What does fiber help us do? Get rid of the bad stuff. Nutritionists say, foods with fiber have a tendency to fill you up without making you fat. They help you to go longer without feeling hungry, help you to fight off disease and fiber helps you to sweep the kitchen. That means fiber foods help you to get rid of the bad stuff in your body quickly..It sweeps the kitchen. Jesus said those who have the bread of heaven “shall never hunger” for the things of this world, or thirst after the things of this world. This bread will help us get rid of the bad stuff in our lives. Maybe that’s why 2 Corinthians 5:17 says, “ Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new.” Old things such as sinful living, adultery, thievery, gambling, drugs, alcoholism...all passed away. Those who accept Christ find that His spirit starts working quickly. We don’t enjoy sinning as much as we once did, we start thinking more about doing right by God..That's the Bread of Heaven at work; it's getting rid of the bad stuff so the new creature in Christ can live.

BREAD IS NOT EVERYTHING: While Bread has plenty of iron, calcium and some vitamins.. bread does not have everything we need. We do not exist on a diet of bread alone. We do not remain healthy by eating a couple of slices of bread three times a day. The fact is modern technology takes out about 30 essential vitamins when bread is processed. So, bread becomes a part of a system of essential foods that we need. Why would Jesus say that He is the bread of life if bread is not everything? Can't we just praise Jesus? Can't we just worship Jesus, isn't that enough? Can't we just raise holy hands of praise, isn't that enough? Jesus said in Matthew 4:4 "But he answered and said, It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." We must live by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. We need Jesus to serve as our mediator between us and God. We need Jesus because He alone can connect us to God, but it is God who answers our prayers, heals us and grants us pardon for our sins. 1 Timothy 2:5 "For there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus." We need Christ, but we must also obey God's commandments. We must have the bread of life.. but we also must live by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God.

He's sweet

Finally, brothers and sisters we must consider that when Jesus offered his disciples the bread of life, He offered them the presence of God. By any measure, that's sweet bread.

The people were bombarded with the taste of Roman hatred, but this idea of loving your enemies was sweet bread.

Israel's relationship with its neighbors had soured, but Jesus said love your neighbor as yourself, that was sweet bread

Sweet Bread was greater than the show bread of the temple; greater than unleavened of the Passover

When the people ate manna in the wilderness they lived by the laws of Moses, an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. But Sweet Bread eaters lived by a different rule: if men smite you on one cheek turn the other, do not return evil for evil.

When they gathered Manna one day, the people were always hungry again the next day because Manna fed the body. However, Jesus said those who have the bread of life, Sweet Bread, would never hunger.

God's bread gives:

STRENGTH to those who are weak; INSPIRATION to those who are frustrated and confused! HOPE to the hopeless; RENEWAL to those who are in despair!

PICKS UP those who are let down; LIFTS UP those who have been let down!

SAVES those who are lost and gives NEW ENERGY to those who wait on him. For

I hear the word declare that they that wait upon the Lord shall mount up on wings as eagles, they shall run and not be weary. They shall walk and not faint!

God's bread is QUICKER that hoe cakes. While we are still praying, our help is on the way! LIGHTER than light bread. Those who wander in the dark will find that he is the light of the world! SWEETER than raisin bread. His goodness takes the bitterness of hard times and sweetens its taste. No wonder the song writer said, "I found a savior and He's sweet I know!" I heard Jesus say, I am the bread of life. I am the bread that came down from heaven!

Here is the Devine recipe:

I was prepared with from a special divine recipe!

-Three parts of the trinity, the father, Son and Holy Ghost

-A dash of compassion, and a cup full of love.

-Pour in a portion of understanding, and another portion of forgiveness.

-Shape it the cradle of mankind for 33 long years.

-Hang it out on a hill for all the world to see.

-Place in grave and let it sit for three days.

-But Early Sunday morning you'll see its self rising power!

No wonder the song writer declared, Bread of Heaven! Bread of Heaven, feed me till I want no more!

At Last

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: For the land, whither thou goest in to possess it, is not as the land of Egypt, from whence ye came out, where thou sowedst thy seed, and wateredst it with thy foot, as a garden of herbs: But the land, whither ye go to possess it, is a land of hills and valleys, and drinketh water of the rain of heaven A land which the LORD thy God careth for: the eyes of the LORD thy God are always upon it, from the beginning of the year even unto the end of the year. Deuteronomy 11:10-12.

Introduction

What do you do when you have strived to complete a goal for many years and you finally succeed? Do you scream? Do you shout? Do you dance? The feeling is exhilarating and electrifying; it's the feeling that comes immediately after you have graduated from high school or college or achieved an elusive goal. It's an Oscar! It's a Grammy! It's a Tony! No matter what type of achievement it may be, the excitement of the moment is indescribable.

There is an old proverb that says, "Good things come to those who wait." When that special moment comes the excitement builds and it becomes difficult to sleep at night. Sometimes even in the day we dream about it. Is it an engagement? A Wedding? Is it the return of a loved one? A Birthday? Christmas? When that special day gets closer it seems as if the days get longer, the clock ticks slower and the pages on the calendar never turn. I can't wait is the phrase we use! We are bursting with excitement.

Most high school graduates of this class have been waiting 18 years! Eighteen years is 6,570 days. Eighteen years is 938 weeks Eighteen years is 157,680 hours. Eighteen years is 9,460,800 Minutes Eighteen years is 587,708,000 seconds

After Eighteen years, when the big day comes we breathe a sigh of relief and say, "At last." That's what happened when Barack Obama became President of the United States. On the night of the inaugural ball he took his beautiful wife Michelle in his arms and they danced to the tune of Etta James' song, sang by Beyonce Knowles, "At Last." The song spoke to the hearts of millions of people, at last we saw dawning on the horizon, the Promised Land. They danced to the tune "At Last," but their journey was just beginning.

So it is with every believer. When we reach a milestone such as a graduation of special achievement, we may say "At last," but it's really just the beginning of a long journey ahead.

Isaiah said that they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength. They shall mount up on wings as eagles. They shall run and not be weary, walk and not faint.

As Christians, we praise God for bringing us to a pivotal moment in life. We now look to Him who strengthens us to make the rest of the journey.

Exposition

This text focuses on Moses' instruction to Israel when they reached Jordan, at last, after a 40 year journey. Since leaving Egypt, the people had one purpose: to reach the Promised Land. It was their overriding purpose. Moses guided them in their journey with a clear plan and a sense of direction. Now, having completed a journey that consumed most of their lives, Moses encouraged the people to continually walk in God's ways as they proceed into the next phase of the journey.

The Book of Deuteronomy is Moses' last message to Israel. Moses, at 120 years old saw many changes they had experienced to reach this point. He saw them change their life-style from slaves in Egypt to nomads. He saw them change their diets to accommodate the manna, or bread from heaven, that fell every day. He saw them move from a people who called on God faithfully and continually in Egypt, to one that complained incessantly. Moses saw children grow into adults and he watched God provide, food, water and clothing for the people in miraculous ways. He saw it all.

As they paused, just before going into the Promised Land, Moses wrote, through the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, the Book of Deuteronomy. The name means A Second look. In it, he reminds them where they had been and then points them to where they are going.

Israel had made it to the Promised Land at last, but their journey was just beginning. Moses told them that the journey ahead of them was different than their past. Things will change. In Egypt their houses were given to them by the Egyptians. In Egypt their food was provided for them by the Egyptians. In Egypt their clothing was provided for them by the Egyptians. In Egypt they had one purpose: Obey the Egyptians and do exactly as they were told. They built cities for the Pharaohs and prepared their graves.

Even in the wilderness God fed them with bread from heaven, he chastised them when they made mistakes, and kept guiding them to their purpose. They didn't have much, but what they had came from the bounties of God. Their clothes and shoes were all provided miraculously by God, for they wore the same clothes for 40 years and they didn't wear out.

Now that they had made it to Jordan at last, the purpose changed. It was no longer to make it to the Promised Land but they had to now possess it. That was easier said than done. In the Promised Land the free bread from heaven would stop. They would need to have their own houses. They would have to work and take care of themselves.

They had made it to Jordan at last, but they had much more to do. Moses warned the people that as things change and opportunities of the future avail themselves to remain faithful to God. He warned them not to forget where they had come from, and how they made it, at last, to their present destination. The only way they could lose the benefit of God's blessings would be to turn to ungodly living. Change is going to come, Moses said, but the people should not change their belief and faith in God.

Now What?

Just as Israel stood on the banks of Jordan, having reached the Promised Land at last, today's graduates stand on the same plateau, facing the same dilemma: We've made it here at last.now what? The response should heed the instructions of Moses to Israel.

PURPOSE MUST BE CLEAR: Through 400 years of slavery and 40 years of wandering in the wilderness, Israel had one purpose: Make it to the Promised Land. They never wavered from that purpose. Today, believers must be driven by a clear purpose. Those who have achieved much all seemed driven by purpose. Name the person who succeeded and you will find men and women driven by a purpose: Susan B. Anthony, Ford, Edison, Frederick Douglass, Obama, Winfrey; all seemed to be purpose driven. Graduates have made it last, now what? Some will say college or trade school, but even that must be toward a clear purpose, without it, your life will dwindle down to finding a job, going to work every day, paying bills and finally dying have done little more than exist for 75 years. Christians must ask God to show them their purpose, and then anoint them with a heavenly passion to pursue it, come hell or high water. Once the purpose is clear, the passion will follow.

POSSSESS THE PROMISE: Israel's dream was to reach the Promised Land, but they were totally unprepared to possess the land once they got there. They had the promise but the promise had to be possessed. Today, there are many believers who have faith in God's promise but they have no plan to possess it. Life plans include a variety of components: Educational needs, a financial plan, a faith anchor and a life ladder. Believers should acquire the education needed for their life goal. For some that may be college, trade school or career training, but every goal will require some post high school education.

In addition, believers should have a finance plan that will not require them to work themselves to death. It begins with opening both a savings and checking account, managing your money, learn your credit score, invest in small opportunities, and avoiding the temptation to spend so much that you have nothing left out of each pay check. Your life ladder is the route you plan to take to achieve your purpose. The life ladder must be clear in your mind because it will determine the kind of people you associate with, the types of establishments that you frequent; when, where and how you party, where you choose to live and places you go for entertainment and relaxation. The route you take also dictates the books you read, movies you watch, and the things you do. Each rung on your ladder is designed to help you possess your promise.

You need a faith anchor. To possess the promise of God you must live your life in accordance to God's will. You must worship regularly, live obediently, tithe regularly, and praise God constantly. Moses warned Israel not to be so consumed with life that you forget that the key to abundant living is Jesus. In John 10:10 Jesus said, "I am come that you might have life, and have it more abundantly."

PUT YOURSELF IN GOD'S HANDS: It is customary at Graduations to quote the English Poet William Henley who wrote a poem called "Invictus" the closing lines of which read, "It matters not how strait the gate, How charged with punishments the scroll, I am the master of my fate: I am the captain of my soul." Henley's thought is that we alone control our destinies, but believers see that differently. For believers the last lines of Invictus should read, "God is the master of my fate, He and He alone is the captain of my soul." Moses told Israel that it was about to move into a new land; in it they could not depend on anything they knew, they would be totally in God's hands. In Egypt the land was flat and they knew how to shift the river water to irrigate the fields.

However, the land is filled with hills and mountains and the waters came from the rains that fall from heaven. Nothing they knew could help them because they were traveling in unchartered areas; they had to put themselves completely in God's hands. Even today, believers must do the same. That means as young men and women we trust God to lead us. We ask God about what school to attend, what person we should marry, how to rear our children. We ask God to show us, then we must follow where He leads us. That's when we sing with the song writer, "Where He leads me I will follow, I'll go with Him, With Him, all the way."

At Last

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that when we reach the point of "at last" we are at the point where we must begin again. At the Jordan the Israelites breathed a breath of victory, saying at last! When they saw the cooling waters of the Jordan after seeing nothing but sand for 40 years they said, at last. When they realized that they would no longer be required to roam aimlessly in the wilderness, they said, at last.

Yet even as they spoke, the future stared them in the face and they realized that their "at last" was more of a benchmark than a life goal, there was much to be done.

Graduates are charged to possess the new land ahead and go forth, trusting in the Lord. When trust in the Lord, He creates the steps for us!

He opens the doors!

He makes the opportunities!

He baffles the critics who doubt our abilities.

He mystifies the skeptics who said, we were doomed to failure!

He intensifies our commitment and builds our strength

When we commit to live our lives according to His purpose, He breathes his Holy Spirit on us and promotes us higher and higher.

That's why the old warriors used to sing, We are climbing Jacob's ladder, We are climbing Jacob's ladder, Soldiers of the cross...every round goes higher higher! Soldiers of the cross!

Trusting in the Lord means asking God to hold my hand!
As I move from level to level, hold my hand!
As I take the next step in my life's journey, hold my hand!
I may be young but I know the meaning of the old song, Lord hold my hand, while I run the race, I don't want to run this race alone!
Trust in the Lord, He will never let you down!
Trust Jesus, who died for you out on Calvary!
Trust in the Lord, who arose after three days with all power in his hands!
Trust in the Lord because He holds your future in His hands!

A Memorial before God

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 28, 2011

SCRIPTURE: "And when he looked on him, he was afraid, and said, What is it, Lord? And he said unto him, Thy prayers and thine alms are come up for a memorial before God." Acts 10:4

Introduction

How should we remember the fallen among us? Should we remember them with a slab of barbecue over a pit of hot coals? Should we remember them with a fun day on the beach or shopping day in the mall? Are these the best ways to memorialize the fallen soldiers among us? Is that the way we remember?

Memorial Day was first observed on May 30, 1868. At first, it was a day to remember the Civil War dead. Hundreds of thousands died then protecting the sovereignty of the union and by doing so ended the plague of slavery in the United States. After World War I the nation began remembering the dead who fell in any war.

In 1971 the U.S. Congress changed the day of Memorial Day from May 30 to the last Monday in May, thus creating a three day weekend. The day of remembrance has been all but forgotten in many sectors of the country. It has been replaced by parties, mall sales and stock car racing.

Yet, Memorial day remains a day of reflection for the military dead and for the Christian Soldiers who have fallen over the years in our families. How should we remember the fallen heroes of our faith? One way is to pray for them. We should pray that the sacrifices they made and the goals they sought will continue as a lasting legacy before men and a memorial before God. The story is told of an elderly woman who had a tradition on Memorial Day of placing flags on the graves of the deceased soldiers, then sitting on the steps of neighbors and praying for them.

When asked to explain her unusual habit she said the flags symbolize her remembrance of the dead, the prayers is her way of remembering the living descendants of those whose lives have been blessed because of the flag draped coffins in their families.

What we do each day is a testament to our faith in God. Our kind acts, thoughtful words, and prayerful responses send up memorials before God that are not ignored.

These memorials are everlasting

As Christians, we should strive to build the kingdom of God everyday through our words and deeds; they open doors for future generations who will remember our spiritual memorials placed as shrines of God's goodness at the throne of grace.

Exposition

This text focuses on Cornelius whose prayers and faith became a memorial before God. Jim May says Cornelius was an oddity. He was a Roman soldier, and not just a common soldier, but a Centurion. He was a man of rank among the enemies of the Jews and was a symbol of the power of Caesar that held Israel as a conquered people. He was despised by most of the Jews and feared by the men of his own band. He lived life on the edge of disaster all the time. As a commander in the Roman Army he knew that each day brought new dangers and new temptations to exercise his authority, and yet he was able to be a Christian in spite of it all.

Cornelius was very compassionate to the poor. He gave Roman coins to those in need and supported the causes of the faithful. Acts 10:2 says he gave "much alms" to the people, so much that it distinguished him as a compassionate man. He was also a man of prayer; not just routine prayer in the morning, but apparently throughout the day.

God used Cornelius' prayer life and compassion to open doors of faith for the rest of the non-Jewish world. In his prayers, God told him to that his life had come before God as exemplary. He was also told that he should seek out a Christian preacher named Peter and listen to him.

At the same time God spoke to Peter and showed him that the message of faith should be extended beyond his own race and that doors should be opened. He told him that three men would knock on his door and ask him to follow; he should obey.

True to form the events happened as told. Peter preached Jesus to Cornelius and he was saved. Cornelius became the first non-Jewish Christian and the gospel spread throughout the world to all generations from that day forward. Certainly Cornelius' life was a memorial before God.

Building Memorials

There are thousands of memorials across the nation. They are little reminders of the words and deeds of someone who touched our lives in a great way. These memorials tell our story:

MEMORIALS BEFORE THE NATION: In Washington, D.C. There are memorials of great men and women everywhere. The Lincoln Memorial, The Washington Memorial, The Vietnam War Memorial, and memorials of the great wars are everywhere. In Pearl Harbor the memorial of the bombing of the harbor is over the watery grave of hundreds of sailors. In Atlanta, the tombs of Martin Luther King and his wife Coretta stand isolated in a pond of remembrance. On Mount Rushmore the heads of four great presidents have been carved into the side of a mountain in the Black Hills of South Dakota. The people saluted lived lives that were dedicated to serving the nation. Their contributions were memorials before the nation. As grand as they are, they cannot overshadow over 300,000 graves in Arlington National Cemetery. These mark the resting place of those who paid the ultimate price for our freedom.

MEMORIALS BEFORE OUR FAMILIES: In every family there are fallen heroes of the faith. They were Christian soldiers who may not have fought on great battlefields of the nation, but who waged war against Satan for the soul of our families. On the walls of our homes, tucked away in photo albums are memorials of them. Their stories are told to each new generation. Do you remember the grandfather in your family who worked to buy land or a home and taught each generation the importance owning your own land and being self sufficient. Do you remember the aunt in every family who was a prayer warrior in her family, bringing family issues before God and teaching others to take their concerns to him in prayer. We look at their pictures, touch a lock of their hair, or read some of their writings and reflect on the lives they lived before us. Their contributions to our family story serves as a memorial before our family that will live on through each generation.

MEMORIALS BEFORE GOD: More importantly than leaving a memorial before the nation and our families is the need to leave a memorial before God. Cornelius' prayer life and his alms caught God's eye. Acts 10:4 listed, "Thy prayers and thy alms" as key elements of the Christian memorial. When believers pray, they open themselves up to God and He speaks to them. Often believers pray for others: for their strength, deliverance, healing, prosperity and salvation. Those prayers are not unnoticed, the get God's attention. We usually call those who believe in the power of prayer, "Prayer warriors" –soldiers who fight on their knees, sending petitions for blessings before God. Lillie Blanche Holt was nearly 100 years old when she died. In Monroe, Louisiana she was known as the "prayer lady." She went to city hall and prayed for the mayor, elected officials. She prayed for children in school and was often seen praying for bus drivers, Sunday School teachers and others. It was not unusual for her to call important city leaders in early morning hours and pray for them over the phone.-Without a doubt her prayers were a memorial before God.

In addition, our alms, are a memorial before God. We give alms or financial assistance to the poor, the needy and those in distress. We support charities such as the March of Dimes, the Red Cross, send monies to those who suffering in disasters, and struggle. We give a tenth of what we earn to the church and even more. Our giving spirit, serves as a memorial before God. He sees what we do. It is not unnoticed. It gets his attention.

Remember God's Blessings

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember God's blessings upon our families and give him praise.

Memorials call attention to something that has been done. They help us to remember.

In Wilmington Delaware, there is a memorial to Harriet Tubman, it reminds those who visit that a great woman who saved the lives of many slaves passed this way.

In Battle Creek Michigan there is a larger than life memorial of Sojourner Truth that reminds those who came that a great spoke out for justice and echoed across time.

In Washington D.C. there is a National Historic Site that revisits the legacy of Frederick Douglass and lifts him up to every generation as an example of strength and perseverance. In our own home time there are markers scattered all over the place that tell the story of our journey. The purpose of memorials is to tell the story to the children. Joshua ordered 12 stones to be erected as a memorial. Every succeeding generation would ask, What mean these stones? At that time Joshua said the people should tell the story of how God brought us over on dry land?

Our family memorial tells the story of how we were down and out, and God picked us up and turned us around! It's the story of how God healed our sick and open the blind eyes of lost family members! It's the story of how he planted our feet on solid ground. That's why every generation must pass by another memorial. It is not in Washington, D.C. or lying under an eternal flame, it's an empty tomb and a cross on a hill.

I've got to tell the story about Jesus!
How He died out on Calvary!
-How early Sunday morning He arose from the grave!
I've got to tell somebody!
I've got to tell somebody!

Thank God for the Morning Star

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 5, 2011

SCRIPTURE: "I Jesus have sent mine angel to testify unto you these things in the churches. I am the root and the offspring of David, and the bright and morning star." Revelation 22:16

Introduction

Have you ever seen the morning star? Only those who rise early in the morning have seen it, although it is always there. It seems to hover just over the horizon and twinkle. It's a marvel.

A while ago a friend traveled with us in an early morning trip. As we talked and sipped coffee the friend looked out of the window and saw a light blinking in the horizon. She was mystified. She thought it was the warning lights of an airplane but it never moved. It was too high to be the safety light on a tower. As we traveled along, our passenger was glued to the window, looking at the light that seemed to form a little cross in the horizon. Everywhere we went, it was there. The sky was empty. All of the other stars had disappeared, but it was still there. We tried to explain that what she saw is often referred to as the morning star.

"I've never heard of that!" she exclaimed. She was over 60 years old, but had never seen the morning star or even heard of it. We laughed at what we thought had to be an exaggeration. However, when we saw the look of amazement on her face, we knew she was telling the truth.

As we drove along, the day began to break and the sky began to brighten. When we looked again, the morning star had disappeared. It was as if it was no longer needed, a new day had begun. What is this morning star? As children we were often told that the first star we see just before daybreak is the wishing star. The common legend is that all we need to do is see the wishing star, close our eyes, make a wish and the wish will come true. Pointing to the wishing star made the wish happen even faster.

In reality, the morning star is not a star at all. It's a planet, the planet Venus. In 8th grade science classes we learned about the planets, (there were nine of them then, now there are only eight). One we learned about was Venus. It was very close to the earth and had a very great luminosity; it shined brighter than a star. In fact, on a clear day, Venus can be seen in the sky in broad daylight, but is seen best as it reflects the sun at its back. Venus is bright, but Venus is not a star.

In biblical times people didn't worry about the specifics, they focused on the truths. What they saw in the heavens may have actually been the planet Venus, but the truth was that what the night was the darkest, it always appeared. They may have seen the bright luminosity of the second planet closest to the sun, but the truth was that every day, right on time, it was there pointing the way.

As Christians, we may not have risen early enough in the morning to see the "morning star" but we know it's there. We take confidence in knowing that even though we cannot see Him; our God is there, showing us the way.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as He describes Himself as the "Bright and morning star." The Revelation of Jesus Christ to John while exiled on the Isle of Patmos contains many promises and many warnings. There are warnings against apostasy, following false prophets and disbelief. There are warnings about coming destruction, punishment for the wicked and the end of modern times. There is a warning about the coming Day of Judgment.

It also includes promises. There are promises of redemption of the faithful, salvation of the lost and the creation of a new heaven and a new earth. The closing verses of the Revelation seem to seal the promises. The clincher comes when Jesus reminded believers that He gave this Revelation to John, referred to as "mine angel" for the purpose of testifying to the generations. Hear his words in, Revelation 22:16 "I Jesus have sent mine angel to testify unto you these things in the churches. I am the root and the offspring of David, and the bright and morning star."

For our purposes we note that "preachers or pastors" in the Revelation are referred to as angels. Jesus refers to himself as the promised savior who would be a descendant of David. Then He referred to himself as the "bright and morning star.

Jesus calls himself, "the bight morning star." This fulfilled an old Testament prophecy, by the prophet Balaam, who said, "I see him, but not now; I behold him, but not near; A star will come out of Jacob; a scepter will rise out of Israel," (Numbers 24:17). It is interesting to note that Jesus did not refer to Himself as a star, but the "bright and morning star." He is not one of billions of stars of the universe that happens to twinkle around us, but He is the "bright and morning star" or that sign that we see in the heavens that reminds us constantly that He is there.

As the Revelation closed it gave us the picture of Christ looming over us, watching, protecting and concerned. Even though He is not seen with the eye, He is there. He is our bright and morning star.

The Star

This passage of scripture should provide hope to believer in three separate ways.

It reminds us that God:

SHOWS US THE WAY: For years mariners and travelers looked to stationary stars to give them a sense of direction in the night or day. In that sense Christ as our morning star is a constant presence to point the way for us. Our goal should be to make sure that what we are trying to do in life lines up with God's course. Will the activity with which I'm involved keep me on course with God's course? Or will it take me in a different direction? We should let the light that shines from heaven guide us every step of the way. All we need to do is follow the guiding light. This guiding light flows from the throne of Grace and is none other than the Son of God himself. For I heard Jesus declare in John 8:12 "I am the light of the world, he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness but shall have the light of life."

If we follow the guiding light he'll show us the way to move:

—from death into life

—from gloom into glory

—from sin to salvation

—from misery to comfort

—from panic into peace

The light from heaven will show us the way.

SHOWS UP WHEN THINGS LOOK WORST AND BEST: In the course of our lives we reach a point when things look really bad for us. Isn't it amazing that when things look their worst that God shows up? That's why Christ described Himself as the bright and morning Star. After a long night of darkness, when you can hardly see your way, suddenly in the horizon, the morning star appears. Whenever you see the morning star you know that it won't be long before the night is ended.

It won't be long before the doubts are settled.

It won't be long before the suffering ends!

It won't be long before the flood waters subside!

It won't be long before the sickness heals!

When God shows up, He brings us hope. We should shout and give praise when He shows up because He inspires us, motivates us keeps us going. He doesn't just show up in the morning, but on a clear day, just like the day star that Peter spoke of in 2 Peter 1:19, He can be seen high above the clouds, sparkling, shining in His majesty. That's a reminder that He is responsible for our successes, our achievements and the wonderful life that we live. After every storm we see His rainbow. Above every cloud we see His light shining from heaven.

When He shows us, whether in good times or bad times…He brings us a renewed spirit and faith. He is our bright and morning star.

SHOWS US NEW PROMISES: In the American Classic novel "Gone with the wind." Scarlet O'Hara looks back over all of her losses and says, "I'll think of some way to get back, after all tomorrow is another day." Each morning when we rise the morning star gives us a twist on Scarlet's last words, by showing us that "today is a new day." In the Western skies the morning star appears around 4:00 am, soon after that the birds will begin to sing. Shortly after that, in the eastern sky, the sun will begin to rise. The bright morning star represents the promise of a new day; it indicates that something better is coming. Believers rise and share a moment of devotion with the Lord. In that moment they feel God's assurance that no matter what comes in the day ahead, they won't be alone. Psalm 118:24 says, "This is the day which the LORD hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it."

Some have never seen the morning star, just as they have never realized the strength and assurance they get from every day by just having a moment of meditation, thought and prayer with God. It's then that you can see the "bright and morning star" of your situation. It doesn't matter whether it involves a personal problem, a family matter, business, or a matter weighing heavy on your heart. When the morning star appears, you have hope for the day.

The morning star

Finally, brothers and sisters, the morning star of our lives is not just a twinkling star, but the bright and morning star who is the key to our salvation. The stars twinkle brightly and wink at us from distant horizons, but it's not the stars which provide for the saving of our souls, but our salvation comes from the one who said, "I am the bright and morning star." The stars are awe inspiring, sprinkling the canopy of the midnight skies with a million beams of light, but it's not the twinkle of the stars that can save our souls, but our salvation comes from the one who said, "I am the bright and morning star."

The North Star points the way North, but it is not the North star that can show us the way to glory, but it's the bright and morning star.

It is no mystery why Christ chose to describe Himself with the characteristics of the planet Venus as the bright and morning star. It is because the more we know about Venus, the more we know about Him.

There are eight planets in our solar system, but Christ compares Himself to Venus.

Venus is not the closest planet to the sun, but it is the brightest. When it gets dark, it shines brightest in the heavens. When the stars have hidden their faces, Venus shines and points the way.

Of all eight of the planets, Venus is the hottest. That's good to know because when we face to cold realities of this life, our God can provide us with the warmth of His love.

While the other seven planets of the Universe rotate counter clockwise around the sun, Venus goes just the opposite direction. That's good to know because it means that our God can turn things around.

When everyone says we should fail because that's the way we seem to be going, our God can turn things around.

When we have given up, He can turn things around!

When we have dropped our heads in despair, He can turn things around!

When we have fallen along the way, He can turn things around!

There's one final thing we might note about the goodness of the Lord.

We know that early in the morning, for about an hour before the dawn we can see the morning star. We know that on a clear day, we can see the day star shining in the sky all day long. But, in the evening, when the sun is going down, for a just a few minutes between the day and the night, something happens in the heavens…the evening star appears and flashes a light to us for only a few minutes.

In the evening, when it appears that things are turning dark for us, there is a sign from heaven, called the evening star, that says, the night is coming, but don't worry, everything is going to be all right.

In the evening, when funds are running low and it appears that your family is headed for a dark night, the evening star flashes you a reminder: "Weeping may endure for a night, but Joy comes in the morning!

In the evening, when happy days seem to be filled with trouble, the evening star flashes a telegram from heaven, "Trouble won't last always!" What is this bright and morning star? What is this light in the heavens that the scientists call Venus, that some call the wishing star, that somebody else calls the day star, and others call the evening star? Who is this star and what is His name? Isaiah said he was wounded for our transgressions. He was bruised for our iniquities, the chastisement of our peace was upon him and by his stripes we are healed."

His name is Jesus, our hope in a weary land!

His name is Jesus, our bridge over troubling water!

He came to this earth to show us that He is the light of the world!

He died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave with all power in His hand!

His name is Jesus, the fairest of ten thousand!

His name is Jesus, the bright and morning star!

No Child left behind

SCRIPTURE: "But they, supposing him to have been in the company, went a day's journey; and they sought him among their kinsfolk and acquaintance. And when they found him not, they turned back again to Jerusalem, seeking him." Luke 2:44-45

Introduction

Are we losing a generation of children? Is there something missing in their education and upbringing that is making them strangers to their own families, community and culture? Across America those who live in minority or poverty stricken areas have watched as a generation of our children gets left behind by the nation's system of public education. The government's official program is called "No child left behind." It was signed into law in 2001 by President George W. Bush and has been both the source of praise and blame for the failure of millions of children.

Ideally, the program sets high standards of accountability for each school by giving students tests. If students do well schools are rewarded, if students perform poorly schools are publicly humiliated, and if no improvement is made funds are cut and students are given the option to leave and go to other schools. The process has been criticized because it places extremely high pressure on schools and students to score high on tests.

Since the tests measure performance in math, reading skills and science, schools have begun to teach the test to score high. Teaching the test and the test only leaves little room for art, music, sports, literature and the life skills usually associated with school. Many schools, for example, spend very little time teaching cursive writing beyond the very basics; memorization of poems, sonnets and classical quotations have also been abandoned since they are not a focus of the testing.

Many schools have been pressured to cheat. Teachers have been fired for giving student's answers, whole faculties have been found responsible for changing the scores of students in private. Since school performance also counts dropouts and suspensions against schools, many have resorted to creative tricks and play on words to change the reality; dropouts are called remediation candidates, and suspensions are called parent referrals to avoid being flagged by the law.

While all of this is happening, a generation of children is being left behind by a system that is so test conscious that it can't adjust to the millions of students who are passing the tests by circle C but can't read and understand the questions. No child left behind is leaving millions of children behind.

Suppose God had a No Child Left behind program, how would it work? Suppose God said he would reward or punish churches and their leaders if the members of their churches did not score well on a Ten Commandments test that would be given at the end of the year. Churches that score well, their leaders, preachers and Sunday school teachers would be highly favored. Churches that scored low would be placed in corrective action and in the interim its members would be given the choice to go to other churches. At the beginning of each year the church would immediately begin to teach, preach, and lecture about the Ten Commandments. There would be plays about the ten commandments, after work tutoring sessions on the ten commandments, Saturday instructions about the ten commandments, not to mention Ten Commandment teas, programs, rallies, bible studies and the annual big ten picnic. At the end of the year the church would take practice ten commandment tests, and a lot of instruction about how to guess on the big test if we still didn't know. When in doubt...circle C.

When the results are reported we will all celebrate that we are a church of excellence where everyone scored approaching basic to mastery of the Ten Commandments. In the process though only a few of us learned how to pray, serve, worship, or could even recite the Lord's Prayer or the 23rd Psalm. We didn't learn them because the big test only focuses on the 10 commandments. Those who didn't learn the other things on their own would be left behind. Thank goodness, God does not measure us by a standardized test; every one of us would flunk. No child of God is ruled unacceptable. No child of God gets a bad grade, because His grace is sufficient.

As Christians we have the assurance that our God, will never leave us alone. He will never leave us to struggle because we have fallen short. He promised never to leave us, never to leave us alone.

Exposition

This text focuses on an instance in which Mary and Joseph lost Jesus in the crowd. Joseph and Mary and Jesus made the three or four day trip to the Temple for Passover every year. At the Temple there were separate sections for the men and for the women. Normally children would be with their mothers, but when a boy was twelve, as Jesus was on this particular occasion, he could be with either his father or his mother. That is where the problem arose. Apparently Jesus wandered off and both parents thought Jesus was with the opposite parent. When they discovered he was missing, they searched for three days before they found him.

When Mary found Him she asked Jesus, "Why did you do this to us?" Jesus answered her simply as if to say: "Didn't you know I had to be about my Father's business?"

The text notes that Mary and Joseph stopped what they were doing and immediately went to find the child that was left behind.

What's left behind?

Today, childhood is endangered. If there was ever a time when parents should exercise due vigilance in the nurture and care of their children, that time is now; we can ill afford to leave our children behind.

CHILDREN MUST BE TRAINED TO LIVE: In biblical times children were taught what they needed to live; today they need the same training. Living involves more than just math, English and science. It is more than just test taking skills. Living involves instilling them with values, goals, discipline, direction and a sense of self worth. It's not an easy task, but it is essential.

Today, to a large extent many parents, as well as the school system are leaving their children behind.

The bible is clear about parental responsibility. Deuteronomy 6:7 says, "And thou shalt teach them [commandments] diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up"

CHILDREN MUST BE TRAINED TO LIVE WITH OTHERS: Children must be trained to function as social beings; how to live with other people. Social development is hands-on, it is personal and it often requires touching, listening and interaction. Unfortunately, the social development of many of our children is being left behind; it has been delegated to the Cartoon Channel and Sesame Street. Too often children are hearing "Don't bother me right now, go watch T.V."

What's being left behind? The essentials of social living are not being taught for the most part. This includes how to be: Patient, giving, joyful, loving, kind, helpful, peaceful, loyal, caring, not bragging, arrogant, jealous or selfish.

It doesn't take a teacher but a few minutes to identify which students in a class room have been exposed to proper "home training." Those who have not been taught at home usually disrupt, disrespect, fight, curse and insist breaking the rules even if others are hurt or disturbed. The school rejects such behavior, by suspending or expelling the student. Parents in turn, curse at the child who cursed in school, beats the child who fought in school and ironically reinforces the same unacceptable behavior. Learning to live with others is essential. It starts at home, at play, and at school. It is not on a standardized test, but it is important.

The bible says in Proverbs 22:6, "Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it." Without this training a child is left behind.

CHILDREN MUST NOT WANT TO BE LEFT BEHIND: When Mary and Joseph found Jesus, he was in the temple speaking with the scholars; he'd been there three days. He was not left behind; he was trying to get ahead. This shows us a 12 year old who was thirsty to know, understand and learn from those who were experienced. In that day the great teachers taught in the temple including:

• Gamaliel, the great teacher of Paul or Saul of Tarsus.
• Hillel, one of the most revered liberal teachers with a large school of followers
• Simeon, who was to later succeed Hillel.
• Nicodemus, who was so revered by his peers that he was sent to interview Jesus alone.

In the presence of men of great experience, he listened and asked questions. He wanted to know "why?" He wanted to know "How?" and then took their answers and formed new conclusions that astonished them.

Every child should be striving to get ahead, and not be left behind. It means that at some point children must say to themselves, "It's time for me to be about my father's business."

There was a time when we spent every waking hour in front of a television set, video game or internet chat room. There was a time when all we wanted was to do silly things, sleep and goof off. There was a time when we refused to read, selected only easy classes in school and only wanted to listen to music and chill out.

However, as children mature they learn that while some these activities have their place in moderation; too much of them leaves them behind. As children mature they resolve in the words of 1 Corinthians 13:11 "When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child: but when I became a man, I put away childish things."

God never leaves us behind

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that that we leave our children behind because God never leaves us behind.

The danger with leaving children behind is that we suggest to them that they are insignificant and do not matter. It is important to know that you won't be left alone.

This is why every soldier learns to trust his unit, not to leave him behind in the midst of enemy fire. Often if he falls in battle, the unit goes out of his way to rescue him and bring him hope.

Just as every soldier must that he matters to his unit, every child must know that he or she is important and they won't be left behind, passed along and shuffled away.

That's what every believer knows about God. That each believer matters. We won't be discarded, passed over or scuttled for a better model. God will never leave us alone.

We can't leave our children behind because God needs them to change the world

Jesus charged his young disciples to go into the world and make a difference, under the power of the Holy Ghost. He challenged them to go to the world and teach, preach, baptize and observe all things that he taught. We can't leave them behind because one believing youth can make a difference and change the world!

Today, young people must remember that while the school system may leave them behind; even friends and family may leave them behind, God will never leave them behind.

Joseph was a boy who angered his brothers because he had a coat of many colors.

They threw him in a pit and left him behind. They left him behind, but God didn't. Despite hardships and difficulties he arose to become prime minister of Egypt and saved a nation from starvation and changed the world!

Samuel was a baby that was left in the care of the temple. His mother left him, but she did not abandon him, she placed him in God's hands. As a child he came before God and learned his ways and his advice effected the direction of Kings and Queens.

David was shepherd boy who was left behind as his brothers went to fight in the war. They left him behind, but God didn't. God helped him slay a giant establish a kingdom that changed the entire face of the earth.

Down in Jerusalem, Mary and Joseph left Jesus behind, but God took care of him. He was never alone.

Because He was never alone, He saw a world filled with hatred and tried to bring love!

Because He was never alone, He saw a world filled with defeat and brought a message of victory!

Because He was never alone, He saw a world filled with weakness and brought a message of strength!

Because He was never alone, He saw a world filled with darkness and challenged it to walk in the light!

Long before George Bush started talking about "No child left behind" God decided that "No child of God would be left behind."

If we call Him, He will answer; He will never leave us alone!

If we pray to Him, He will answer; He will never leave us alone!

If we fall, He will pick us up again; He will never leave us alone!

No, never alone! He promised never to leave me, Never leave me alone!

They arrested Him and tried him before unjust courts, but I still hear His promised, I'll never leave you alone!

They placed a crown of thorns on His head and whipped him all night long, but I still hear His promise, I'll never leave you alone!

They nailed Him to an old rugged cross, but l still Him say, I'll never leave you alone!

He died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning He arose from he grave.. still saying, "I'll never leave you alone!

No never alone.

He promised never to leave me, never to leave me alone!

A Noble Woman

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: "And now, my daughter, fear not; I will do to thee all that thou requirest: for all the city of my people doth know that thou art a virtuous woman." Ruth 3:11

Introduction

The Christian walk is a long journey; how important is it to walk every step with dignity, honor and purpose? There was a time in our history when each child was taught to sit and walk as if you were a king, with your shoulder's squared, back straight and every limb in its proper place. The old teachers said, "When you enter a room, walk in like a king or queen."

Just as our walk leaves a trail of where we have been and places we have ventured, our lives also leave similar trails, summed up in epitaphs that define us in just a few words.

The Christian life is one that is challenging and rewarding. Those who live for Christ experience the entire gambit of life events from success to failure, sickness to health, as well as happiness and sadness. the question is not whether we will walk through a meandering valley of joys, sufferings and victories and defeats, but how will we make our walk.

The person who is rooted in faith approaches life and its various nuances with a pristine nobility that does not cower in the face of adversity or shirk from disappointment. They live their lives one day at a time and approach their graves with nobility.

This is what William Cullen Bryant had in mind when he wrote the closing lines of his famous poem "Thanatopsis,"

Thou go not, like the quarry-slave at night,
Scourged by his dungeon; but, sustain'd and soothed
By an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave,
Like one who wraps the drapery of his couch
About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams

She who lives a noble life, approaches eternity with the same sense of confidence, faith and nobility, not screaming and kicking, begging to hold on, but as one who lets go of one hand to fall gracefully into another.

As Christians, we strive to walk tall in the Lord. It is not a prideful walk, but a humble walk that reflects the values by which we live. This is a calm, deliberate and prayerful walk that gives us the appearance of nobility; for we are children of the King. It is a noble walk that is tied to our confidence in our relationship with God; that we can walk into the unknown, confident that the God who held our hand on this side of Jordan will welcome over to the other side.

Exposition

This text focuses on the description of the character of Ruth, a woman who was respected in her community as a woman of integrity and honor.

Ruth was a widow who moved from Moab to Israel with her mother-in-law Naomi. In Moab, she was a faithful wife in every respect, loyal to her husband and to her family. When her husband died she continued to live the chaste, dignified life of a widow in a way that drew praise and attention from all who knew her.

When Naomi returned to Israel, Ruth returned with her declaring, "Your people shall be my people, and your God shall be my God."

The community noticed how she carried herself. She worked dutifully everyday gleaning the fields of a rich man named Boaz. Her manner and quiet grace caught his attention as well.

It was obvious that she was not just any woman; there was something about her that identified her as a woman of quality and grace. He ordered that she should be provided for, protected and honored.

He described her as a woman of excellence, a woman of virtue; a noble woman.

The fact that she was a noble woman was the definitive hallmark of her character.

She has been described in various ways, but all conclude that she was a remarkable woman, with a solid reputation among those who knew her and before God.

The various translations of the bible seem to detail an outline of her personality and character. Look up Ruth 3:11 in comparative versions of the bible and her nature becomes clear.

The King James version says, "a virtuous woman."

The New International Version says, "A woman of noble character."

The American Standard Version says, "A worthy woman."

The Bible in Basic English says, "A woman of virtue."

The complete Jewish Bible says, "A woman of good character."

The New American Standard says, "A woman of excellence."

They all seem to echo one universal thought reflected in The International Readers Version which says she was a, "A noble woman."

Becoming A Noble Woman

How does one become a Noble woman? Certainly it's" not by decree or accident of birth as some think. Some think that moving in aristocratic circles confers nobility. Station in life has its place, but it does not confer automatic nobility. Jezebel had station and a the title of queen, but her evil ways ruled her out as a noble woman. Drusilla was a woman of position and power, but her incestuous relationship with Felix hardly made it possible for her to be called a noble woman. Sapphira was well known in the church, but she lied about her giving and was stricken dead in church. She had notoriety, but still could not be called a Nobel woman. Obviously there are other factors that determine whether a person is a noble woman.

A NOBLE WOMAN DEMONSTRATES CHARACTER: A woman's character is shaped and formed in the crucible of her upbringing, but is displayed when she responds to circumstances that life presents. Esther was a woman of simple means, taught by her family and reared to be godly, respectful and loyal to her people. What she was taught was demonstrated when she became queen; her character shined. Ruth was grounded in her faith and well schooled in the essentials of womanhood; it was tested when she came to Israel with Naomi. In a like manner, the lives we live reveal our inner strengths when we are tested and tried. It is easy to speak of love in friendly circles; it is also easy to speak peace when all is calm. However, a sign of character and strength is our ability to demonstrate our finer qualities when the going is tough. Those who are able to do this demonstrate qualities that exhibit their nobility in undeniable ways.

A NOBLE WOMAN IS RESPECTED BY HER FAMILY: There are some aspects of our lives that we can control through our words and deeds, but respect and admiration are not automatic; they are the products of our words and actions, reflecting how we have been received by others. What is it that we do that elicits respect? We respect the sister who put the love and care of her sibling before her own concerns. We respect the woman who always seems to see the best that we do, are discreetly notes our weaknesses in a gentle way. We respect the woman who lives by the personal creed that she talks about. We respect the woman who can remain positive even in difficult times.

A NOBLE WOMAN HAS A LOVING HEART: The truly noble woman has a loving heart. It is her mark of distinction. What is a loving heart? Psalm 73:1 notes that pure hearts draw the goodness of God. A loving heart desires to reflect the goodness of God and thinks on that constantly. This is the person who seems to live the words of Psalm 19:14, "Let the words of my mouth and meditations of my heart be acceptable in thy sight." A loving heart is a giving heart that reflects the spirit of 2 Corinthians 9:7, it gives freely and cheerfully to those purposes that would advance God's kingdom. A loving heart is a rejoicing heart. It is a heart that may spontaneously say "yes" to a truth in ways that reflect Acts 2:26, "my heart rejoiced, and my tongue was glad." It is her believing, obedient humble heart that separates the noble woman from the well intentioned; her goodness is not artificial, but flows from within, it is the wellspring of her nobility.

Knows the Lord

Finally, brothers and sisters, the noble woman's greatest attribute is that she knows the Lord for herself.

That is knowledge that is learned as a child and is carried throughout life.

It is the knowledge that regardless of what circumstances life brings, God will not forsake us or leave us alone.

Ruth proved herself a noble woman by the way she lived with her husband as a faithful wife. She proved herself a noble woman by the way she lived after his death. She proved herself a noble woman by the loving way she responded to her sister and to Naomi. She but she also proved herself a noble woman by her willingness to make Naomi's people her people and Naomi's God her God.

Today, believers need to be reminded that we are children of the King, the offspring of spiritual nobility who have access to the throne of grace.

A noble woman can live her life at peace with her family and friends!

A noble woman can face each day with a smile, even if slowed by age and sickness!

A noble woman can lift her voice in praise to God even from the confines of her home.

She can do so because she knows the Lord for herself.

When you know the Lord for Yourself, you know that when you are:

—Sick, He will be a Doctor in your sickroom!

—In Trouble, He will be a Lawyer in your courtroom!

—Lost and confused, He will make a way out of no way!

—Hungry and thirsty, He will feed you with bread on high.

When you know the Lord for yourself, you know He will pick you up when you are stumbling!

When you know the Lord for yourself He will plant your feet on solid ground!

When you know the Lord for yourself, He will give you a new song to sing, a new walk to walk and a new talk to talk!

When you know the Lord for yourself you can approach your grave with the blessed assurance that Jesus is mine, Oh what a foretaste of glory divine. This is my story this is my story, this is my song!

I'm a child of the king, and my walk is a noble walk!

I walk like I have wings on my shoulders!

I walk like there are golden streets under my feet!

I walk like I'm on my way to my mansion in the sky!!

It is a humble walk that is based on faith in Jesus!

Jesus, who lived on this Earth for 33 long years!

Jesus, who bore an old rugged cross!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus , who arose from the grave Early Sunday morning with all power in His hands!

No. 9508-Patriotism

Give me liberty or give me death

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

July 3, 2011

SCRIPURE: "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the brokenhearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised to preach the acceptable year of the Lord. " Luke 4:18-19

Introduction

What does it mean to really be free? Americans celebrate freedom with annual displays of patriotism. We wave the flag, send fireworks into the air and enjoy a festive atmosphere that is rooted in our belief that all men are created equal and endowed by their creator with certain inalienable rights, including: life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

In the land of the free and the home of the brave, do we really enjoy unrestricted liberty? While we celebrate our national independence and exercise certain individual liberties, it doesn't take much for us to realize that we are not really free, even as we enjoy more liberties than others in the world.

Our liberty does have limits. We can vote, if we have a government issued ID. We can speak freely as long as that speech does not anger those in government. We have freedom of religion, as long as we don't exercise it in public, pray at school or have a religious view different from others. We have the right to bear arms if the government says we are approved. We have a right to march, parade and protest if the government gives us a permit. We can drive a car if the government gives us a license. We can hunt, fish or put our motorboat in the river and enjoy a relaxing day, if we have the appropriate government licenses and permits. We can marry whomever we please if the government gives us a license; we can break up the marriage if the government says it's OK. We can discipline our children, as long as we follow government rules.

When we think about it, we may have more liberties than other nations in the world, but we're not exactly free. There are limitations on our liberties.

In 1852 Frederick Douglass asked a pointed question, "What, to the American slave, is your 4th of July? I answer: a day that reveals to him, more than all other days in the year, the gross injustice and cruelty to which he is the constant victim. To him, your celebration is a sham; your boasted liberty, an unholy license; your national greatness, swelling vanity; your sounds of rejoicing are empty and heartless; your denunciations of tyrants, brass fronted impudence; your shouts of liberty and equality, hollow mockery; your prayers and hymns, your sermons and thanksgivings, with all your religious parade, and solemnity, are, to him, mere bombast, fraud, deception, impiety, and hypocrisy- a thin veil to cover up crimes which would disgrace a nation of savages."

Douglass' comments then still resonate today as we consider that so many in our nation still do not enjoy the basic freedoms enjoyed by others. This nation still discriminates against women, minorities and other groups in systematic ways. There are still laws on the books in this nation that can take life, limit liberty and curtail the pursuit of happiness.

We celebrate our independence from England as a colonial state, but we can't yet celebrate our liberties until the last vestiges of bondage have been erased.

We should never relinquish the desire to be free; to obtain full and complete liberty.

When we think of liberty, we can't forget the words of the great patriot Patrick Henry who said:

"If we wish to be free we must fight!....I repeat it, sir we must fight! An appeal to arms, and to the God of hosts, is all that is left us. It is vain, sir, to extenuate the matter. The gentlemen may cry "Peace, peace!..."Our brethren are already on the field. Why stand we here idle?...Is life so dear or peace so sweet as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God. I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

Even today, we still hold Patrick Henry's words close to our hearts. Around the world we fight for liberty of nations and peoples everywhere.

Yet, while we cherish freedom under the law, many have chosen to remain slaves to sin, and accept this condition without resistance.

Today, many reject liberty and salvation, even though it was paid for with a very high price by Christ on Calvary.

Salvation is available without a charge, but spiritual freedom was not free, it was bought with a price, which was paid by Jesus Christ Himself.

As Christians, we celebrate our liberty as Americans, but more so as Children of the King. We enjoy the liberty and salvation we have found in Christ, but we remember it was bought with a price.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he selected a passage of text to read during a service at the synagogue. It has been described by theologians as Christ's inaugural address, or first sermon, in which he set the tone for his ministry. He read a passage from Isaiah and pronounced to the leading religious scholars of his day that the scripture was prophetic of himself and would be fulfilled in his ministry.

The overriding idea of this short announcement message was liberty or freedom.

Jesus said it was his mission to show those who are captives the way to freedom; to encourage those who had given up to continue the struggle, to give a renewed vision to those who were blinded by circumstance, and to announce the year of the jubilee. Liberty is what Jesus talked about and some in the audience immediately recognized the tenor of the message and immediately applied their own interpretation to his challenging announcement.

On this backdrop of social circumstances Jesus makes a public proclamation that he would bring good news to the poor, raise their spirits, liberate the captives and announce the acceptable year of the Lord, or the Jubilee when all captives are set free. He did not intend to jump into such a task because he wanted to make a name for himself, but because the Spirit of God was upon him. Paul wrote the Corinthians and explained that wherever the spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom and liberty.

Liberty from sin, but not God

Believers celebrate our liberty from sin, however, we do not desire or celebrate any disconnection from God.

The Declaration of Independence cited the many wrongs that that King George placed upon the colonies from excessive taxes on tea and other imports to taxation without representation in parliament.

We have no desire to live independent from God. He has done us no wrong; in fact all God has done for us is to bless us, lift us and save us.

We don't want independence from God because more than anything we depend heavily upon Him for everything. The colonist concluded that they could exist without King George. He supplied them with nothing, but constantly took from them.

We can't say the same about Christ our King. He supplies us with everything. Many have discovered what the song writer found out when he wrote, Without God I could do nothing.

Without him, I'd surely fail. Without him, my life would be drifting. Like a ship without a sail.

Solomon made it clear when he said, Trust in the Lord with all thine heart and lean not unto thine own understanding.

A final song writer said, I learned how to lean and depend on Jesus.
I found out, if I trust him, he will provide.

Liberty requires change not restructure

Christ has given each believer liberty. He said he came to "set the captives free" and He did so in many ways.

The liberty that Christ has given us requires us to change our whole perspective on life, not simply to restructure it around an attitude change. 2 Corinthians 5:17 puts it this way, "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new."

In Christ our entire lives have been set free from the need to seek approval of this world. We no longer feel the need to get the endorsement of others for our thoughts, actions, or dreams, as long as those actions are in line with the will of God. Because we are new creatures, we pledge our hearts to God and live freely His presence without worrying about keeping up with Joneses next door.

There are many today, who have joined a church, but they still have no real liberty; they have sought symbol over substance. Put another way they are mistaking the smell of chicken frying for the taste of taste of chicken fried. When you smell chicken frying you know it won't be long! But no matter how good it smells while it's frying, it's no substitute for chicken going down!

Real liberty is not that we don't go to clubs any longer; it's that we have no desire to go!

Real liberty is not that we don't get drunk any longer, it's that we have no desire to get drunk or get high!

Real liberty is not that we don't engage in sexual promiscuity, but it's in the fact that we now desire to love and commit like Christ loved and committ.

Real liberty requires us to change, not just to restructure our old lives with a new layer of activity called "going to church."

Full liberty must be pursued

Our nation has not granted full liberty to all of its citizens, neither has it opened its arms to all of those who are within its borders, but God has.

In America we still remember the prayer of the benediction offered by the Reverend Joseph Lowery at the inauguration of President Barack Obama. He said, " .... We go now to walk together, children, pledging that we won't get weary in the difficult days ahead. We know you will not leave us alone, with your hands of power and your heart of love. Help us then, now, Lord, to work for that day when nation shall not lift up sword against nation, when tanks will be beaten into tractors, when every man and every woman shall sit under his or her own vine and fig tree, and none shall be afraid; when justice will roll down like waters and righteousness as a mighty stream."

God has given us spiritual liberty, but it must be used effectively.

1 Peter 2:16 says we should use our freedom to serve God.

Galatians 5:13 says we should use our liberty to serve God's people.

1 Corinthians 8:9 says we should use our freedom to strengthen God's people.

1 Corinthians 9:19 maintains that we should use our liberty.

God has given us liberty that has been secured by the blood of Christ. There is much work to be done to secure it for all of His people.

Our liberty will be secure, in that day

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that while Americans died so that they we may have liberty, we serve a savior who died that we might have life.

There are perhaps just a few who know the full implication of Christ's sacrifice for us. He came to offer himself as a sacrifice so that we might live. Those who follow Him also die to this world so that we can enjoy the full liberty of salvation.

It does not matter whether we came to this nation on the Mayflower or on a slaveship, we should be able to look at our own family history or struggle and see how God has brought us from slavery to liberty.

Whether it's from the poverty of the barrios or the abject neglect of the ghetto, every child of God should be able say the love of God has given me liberty. Whether its from sleeping four to a bed on corn shuck mattresses or eating hog bacon for breakfast, pig ears for lunch and hog chit'lins for supper, every child of God ought to be able to say, God has brought me a mighty long way.

Patrick Henry said, "Give me liberty or give me death," but I serve a man who was born in Bethlehem who said just the opposite. He said, "Give me death, so that they may have liberty."

He is the man who said, "No greater love can a man have than this, that a man would lay down his life for his friends."

"I have come that they might have life and have it more abundantly!"

"Give me their burdens so that they will have the liberty of living a life where the burdens are light."

Give me their weakness, so that they will have the liberty of finding strength

Give me their losses, so they will have the liberty of regaining a foothold in life!

Give me their failures, so they will have the liberty to try one more time.

Give me their confusions, so they will have the liberty of obtaining peace and understanding.

Give me their death, so that they will have a chance to live.

Can't you hear him saying, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosever believeth on Him should not perish but have everlasting life."

God has given us many liberties, but the best is yet to come..

God has opened many doors for us but there is still something on the way God has given us:

-WATER in the wilderness, but in the morning, ye shall see the glory of the Lord!

-FOOD when we were hungry, but in the morning, ye shall se the glory of the Lord!

-CLOTHES on our backs, but in the morning, ye shall see the glory of the Lord!

Hang on brothers and sisters, there is a new day coming!

In that day, it won't matter whether you are black or white!

In that day, , it won't matter whether you are Hispanic, Asian or Native American

In that day, every mountain shall be made low!

In that day, every valley shall be exalted!

And the glory of the Lord shall be revealed!

No wonder the songwriter said, Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord, He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored. He has loosed the faithful lightning of his terrible swift sword, his truth is marching on!

Glory, Glory Hallelujah, His truth is marching on!
Liberty is on the way
It started marching over 2000 years ago!
It started marching to a hill called Calvary!
He died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning He arose from the dead!
In the morning, we shall receive the fullness of his victory! Glory! Glory! Glory!

Supposing him to be a Gardener

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

July 6, 2011

SCRIPTURE: "Jesus saith unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? She, supposing him to be the gardener, saith unto him, Sir, if thou have borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away. " John 20:15

Introduction

Is it possible to be around a person all of your life, but not really know them? Many have lived across from their neighbors and have watched them come and go for years, but never knew them.

We sit next to people at worship and praise God with them, but don't really know their story. The same is true for many of our co-workers, team members and classmates. We know their names, and a few things about them, but we really do not know their story. We don't know what makes them who they are.

We see the neighbor that always washes his car on a given day, like clockwork. We see the mail carrier delivering the mail, the trash collector riding the back of a truck; we see the policeman, and the fireman regularly. We see our doctors and tell them all of our secret flaws, but do we really know them?

That gentle old fellow who works so faithfully in his garden, tilling, weeding, pruning and cultivating the most delicious vegetables; we see him, but do we know him? We see him with his hat and towel in the summer, and a warm coat in the winter, persistently and consistently tilling the ground; waving at those who pass by with a big smile, but studiously attending each row of produce. We see him, but do we know him?

We see the kind old gentleman on Sunday who seems to dress so precisely, always matching, always looking so well kept, with a touch professionalism that suggests that somewhere, long ago, he was more than a man who sat quietly in the church smiling and waving, being assisted to his seat on a regular basis. The young ladies hugged in a fatherly way, suspecting that in another time he must have been a dapper fellow. They saw him, they hugged him, but do we really know him.

We are acquainted with many people, but we don't know the full range of their story. We know their names and their present occupation, but, too often, we don't really know them. That includes members of our own family. There are parents who don't really know their children; children who don't really know their parent's story, just bits and pieces here and there. There are husbands who are married to their wives for years and don't even know their favorite color, and wives who can't tell you their husband's greatest fear.

We often think we know people, but we really don't know them at all. Consider the little toad frog that defied the instructions of the bull frog and played daily with the crocodile. "Son, stay away from the crocodile, he is dangerous" said the old Bull frog who had been around for a long time. "Nonsense" replied the young toad who played with the crocodile daily. "That may have been true in your day, pop but this crocodile is different. He takes me for rides through the Bayou. I dance on his back and often using it for my diving board." The old bull frog kept warning him to stay away from that crocodile because he could be dangerous. The young toad felt safe with the crocodile. He knew he was strong and powerful but he wasn't afraid because the crocodile was so gentle when he was around. One day the toad frog came to play. The crocodile was in usually grumpy mood. He would not lay still and his stomach seemed to groan. Suddenly without notice the crocodile open his huge jaws and snapped at the frog who barely got away as he hopped home to his papa the big bull. "Pop, I don't know what got into the crocodile; he snapped at me and almost killed me." The old Bull frog looked at the little frog and said. "You thought you knew that old croc. You probably did. But what I know that you didn't know, is that when he gets hungry he'll eat little toads like you for an afternoon snack. You don't know a crocodile until you know what he eats for lunch!"

Pulitzer Prize winning playwright, Lorraine Hansberry, in her award winning drama "A Raisin in the Sun" had mama to say these words to Beneatha who criticized her brother. "When you starts measuring somebody, measure him right.. make sure you done taken into account what hills and valleys he come through before he got wherever he is."

That's the way God judges every life. He knows where we have been and what we came through to reach our present point. Our neighbors see us as what we are now, but God not only sees us as we are now, but what we shall be in His kingdom.

As Christians, our desire is to live our lives in such as way that when we come before God that He will be pleased. We rejoice in the knowledge that when He sees us, He won't concern himself with the frailty of our physical form or the multiplicity of our errors and mistakes, but He will see our whole life and recognize us as children of God.

Exposition

This text focuses on how Mary saw Jesus in the garden on the morning of the resurrection and mistook him for the gardener.

Early Sunday morning the women came to the tomb to anoint his body with spices. They had hurriedly wrapped him without completing the process. When they left home they fully expected to find Jesus' body just as they had left it. The men arrived and inspected the empty tomb and saw the folded clothes.

Mary stood outside of the tomb after the men left. She stood in the beautiful garden that surrounded the tomb. The disciples had met Jesus so many times in gardens, which were enclosed plots of ground filled with trees and security. Jesus often went to the Garden of Gethsemane to pray and to meet with his disciples. Gardeners were employed to attend large gardens. Their job was to sow seeds, prune, and water the gardens.

As Mary cried she stooped and looked inside of the tomb. She saw two angels inside, one sitting at the head and the other at the foot of the slab upon which Jesus was laid. Since angels often took on the appearance of men, it is possible that Mary did not recognize them as angels. They asked why she wept and she explained that that someone had stolen the body of Christ.

Suddenly, behind her, Mary heard another man ask the exact same question as the angels, "Woman why do you weep?" Mary answered without looking, assuming that the third voice she heard was that of the gardener or grounds attendant.

Then the man behind her called her name. At hearing her name she turned she looked at the man behind her and realized it was Jesus.

When she saw the master, her faith was restored. Despite the darkness of the moment she was encouraged, Jesus was indeed alive and well.

The Garden

Mary's experience that Sunday morning should be an encouragement to others who mourn the loss of loved ones. Consider:

JESUS WAS A GARDENER, BUT NOT JUST A GARDENER: When Mary supposed Jesus was the gardener she was both right and wrong at the same time. She was wrong in her assumption that the man who spoke to her was the gardener of the burial grounds. However, she was right without knowing it. Jesus often referred to believers as his garden and to Himself as the husbandman who waters, tends and prunes. There was more to the man who stood behind Mary than just a gardener; he was also the savior. In a similar sense, there is more to our lives than what meets the surface. We may see a man who works a garden and admire his green thumb. We may marvel at his ability to make things grow and protect seedlings from weeds and critters. Yet, there is more to that life than just a man who enjoyed being a gardener. Just as there is more to the life of a teacher than a person who stands in a classroom or a mechanic who is often soiled repairing engines. No, Jesus was not the man who attended the cemetery garden, but He was a gardener; a gardener of souls. Similarly, we have lives beyond our professions. We rear children, serve our community, fight for our nation's freedom, worship God, and revel in the love our family. There is more to any of us than people see when they drive by. Thankfully, God knows our whole story. He knows we are more than just gardeners.

SHE SUPPOSED HIM TO BE A GARDENER: The fact that Mary "supposed" the man who spoke behind her was a gardener worthy of note. She did not readily recognize Christ, but she was not alone. Luke 24:31 tells us of the men who walked the road to Emmaus. They talked with him for hours without recognizing him.

However, when He broke bread, "..their eyes were opened, and they knew him; and he vanished out of their sight." John 21:4 notes that the disciples saw Jesus standing on the shore did not recognize him. When Mary "supposed" Jesus to be the gardener, her doubts took over, but when she recognized Him, her faith was restored. In times of hardship it is often hard for us to recognize the hand of God touching us on the shoulder and comforting us. We shift into our "suppose to" mode. We feel God is "supposed to" to protect us from hardship, keep us from injury and shield us from pain. We suppose that He should make us prosperous. We suppose that He should keep us healthy. We suppose many things, when like Mary, our tears are flowing. However, when our eyes are opened and we see Him things changed. When Mary turned and she saw Jesus, she recognized that all was not lost. For us today, when we can see Jesus, we too look beyond what think is "supposed" to have happen and know that all is not lost because Jesus said, "He that believeth in me shall never die."

SHE HEARD HIM CALL HER NAME: What was the turning point of Mary's experience? It's when she heard Him call her name. She heard His voice asking, "Woman why weepest thou?" but it was when the savior called her name that she was turned from her sadness. Today, in a moment of sadness, each of us must recognize the voice of God calling out to us as we mourn. He calls our names one by one. He speaks to our souls in an instant and reminds us that all is well. That's why the song writer wrote, "I come to the garden alone. While the dew is still on the roses. And the voice I hear, falling on my ear, the Son of God discloses. And He walks with me and He talks with me and He tells me I am his own. And the joy we share as we tarry there, none other, has ever, known." He called her name and her sadness was turned to gladness.

More than Just a Gardner

Finally, brothers and sisters we must note that, at first, Mary thought Jesus was just a gardener, but she found out what we already, He's more than a gardener, He is our everything.

As Mary cried that morning she received a wakeup call. Christ is not dead, God is still in control.

At first she called him a gardener, but he has proven that supposition false a million times over.

Even the life we celebrate here today has proven to be more than just a gardener, a man who tills the soil on his hands and knees. No, the life celebrated here is more than just that of a gardener.

This is the life of one who labored honestly to care for others.

This is the life of one who dedicated himself to the service of his country.

This is the life of one who was a patriarch to his family!

This is the life of one who helped educate children.

This is the life of one who cheered others with a quick smile, an impish grin and warm spirit.

This is the life of one who knew the Lord and enjoyed being in His presence.

Mary reported to the disciples that she thought he was the gardener, but He is the risen Lord.

John said when the disciples heard that they were glad!

Just like those disciples, every believer has something to be happy about!

Somebody is glad today; glad to be reminded that God is still able!

He's able to:

—Take our valleys and raise them to mountain tops

—Take midnights and turn them into noon days

—Take our briny tears and turn them into mighty cheers

—Defeats and turn them into victories

—Take our losses and turn make them work for our gain

Mary stopped crying about the tomb and starting talking about Jesus!

We should do the same; not talk about death, but talk about Jesus, the fountain of our joy!

Jesus, Our shelter in time of storm!

Jesus, Our wheel in the middle of the wheel!

Jesus, The answer to our prayer!

Jesus, who died on Calvary!

Jesus, who rose on Sunday morning!

Tell the world about Jesus

On Wednesday, June 29, 2011 Cleophas Williams took his last breath. He was more than a gardener, He was a child of God.

The Blood Reverses Curses

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

July 2011

SCRIPTURE: "And, behold, a woman, which was diseased with an issue of blood twelve years, came behind him, and touched the hem of his garment: For she said within herself, If I may but touch his garment, I shall be whole. Matthew 9:20-21

Introduction

When things are not going well for us, often in a moment of weakness, we briefly consider that we may be operating under a curse. Is there an evil Voo-doo priestess around somewhere casting a spell on us with a set of enchanted dolls? Is there a soothsayer forecasting gloom and doom on us? Is that the reason for all of the maladies that we are facing?

We earned a lot of money over the last ten years, what happened to it? It vanished as if it were cursed!

We accumulated many things that were supposed to bring us joy, but we had more problems instead, as if they were cursed!

At times our marriage seemed to be cursed; our children seemed to be living under a curse. Our whole family seemed cursed with one problem or another. Even our cars seemed to be cursed; there was always something wrong with them.

When all of this starts to happen we begin to feel that we are living under a curse.

We really feel that way when our blessings seem to be cursed.

A Blessing is only a blessing when it brings peace and joy. When either of these elements is missing, a blessing becomes less of a blessing and more of a curse. A new house is a blessing, but stops being a blessing if struggling to pay the monthly note becomes a source of confusion and pain in the home. A good job is a blessing, but it is less of a blessing if its demands rob you of peace of mind and an enjoyable spirit.

A good-looking husband or wife is a blessing, but despite how well they look, they become a daily migraine if neither ceases to bring peace and joy.

Many of the circumstances we call cursed are really of our own making. Either our actions, failure to act or abusive actions caused them.

The blood of Christ is given for our salvation. Yet, many have used their relationship with Christ for purposes that are ungodly and unholy. Those who worship, but only if they can worship to a handsome single man or beautiful single woman, distort the purpose of worship. Those who give, but only because they hope to gain more in return, distort the reason for giving. Those who serve, but only for the purpose of notoriety, dishonor the service. When we distort the relationship we create an issue with our waywardness and the blood. In essence there is an issue in our blood relationship that won't be healed until we get close to God again.

As Christians, we search for Jesus in the crowded corridors of this life, knowing that if we find Him he can once again save us from ourselves and the issues we have that have turned our blessings into curses. If we can just touch the hem of his garment, everything will be alright.

Exposition

This text focuses on an incident in the life of Christ in which a woman with a curse in her blood was healed by exercising her faith.

The incident tells of a time in which Jesus was surrounded by a crowd of people as he passed, only to be touched by a single woman who received a healing blessing as a result.

According to added insights into this incident provided in Luke 8:43-47, the woman had an "issue of blood." That's another way of saying she had a hemorrhage of some kind. Her condition had existed for 12 years despite the fact that she had consulted all of the best physicians of time. No one was able to cure her disease. Receiving a healing became quite an issue with her. The hemorrhaging complicated her life considerably and she sought a resolution. Adding to the complication was the fact that people who shared her illness were considered unclean under the Mosaic Law. Not only was she considered unclean because of her "issue," anyone she touched was considered unclean as well. The unclean were forbidden from public socialization and forbidden from participation in any part of Israel's public worship life.

The woman heard that a healer from God was in their midst. She made up her mind to deal with the issue of sickness by taking it to the Son of God. Defying all of the laws, she made her way through the crowd, no doubt touching many people as she forged through. She felt she probably wouldn't be able to get a personal interview with him, but concluded in her mind that if she could simply touch the hem of his garment that she would receive the same blessing. After all, God's healing power certainly would not be limited by such a small thing as a personal interview.

The woman's faith was not a perfect faith, based upon a great knowledge of Jesus, for she knew no more about him than what she heard. What had she heard? Perhaps it was accounts of his miraculous healings and cures! Perhaps it was testimonies of others who had seen him perform mighty acts. It became obvious from what she heard that Jesus was some type of man of God who was being used to do mighty acts. She heard about Jesus, she knew about God. Her faith was in the power of God, whom she knew much about. She knew that God had the power regardless of the man. Her faith in God was strong.

When the woman touched Jesus' garment, he immediately felt something. With hundreds of people around him, obviously pushing and shoving out of curiosity, he was able to “feel” the prayerful touch of a woman who had been sick for many years. He felt power going out of him. He sensed that someone had just been healed.

When it became known that someone had been healed by the master, the woman told her story to the amazement of the crowd. Jesus responded to her by saying that her faith had made her whole.

The blood reverses curse

When the bible speaks of curses, it does not refer to the colloquial use of the term “cursing” as we use it today. In modern times we might say, “She cursed me out,” or “He cursed me.” These refer to the fact that someone used unacceptable or vulgar language. It’s not what cursing means in the bible. In the bible, a curse had nothing to do with vulgar language, but it had a lot to do with evoking, wishing or praying for evil to come upon a person.

Sometimes biblical curses were given by individuals such when Noah cursed the descendants of Ham because Ham saw him naked. Sometimes came from God Himself as when God cursed Eve in the garden or pronounced curses on those who stole from Him with their tithes and offerings in Malachi.

Cursing is referred to in the bible 199 times, almost exclusively in the old Testament. According Holman the Old Testament, speaks of “curse” (89), “cursed” (65), “curses” (18), and “cursing” (8). The New Testament uses “curse” only 8 times, “cursed” in 9 places, “curses” in a single verse, and “cursing” in one reference. Of the 199 biblical uses of the words, 180 are in the Old Testament and only 19 in the New Testament.

In the Old Testament curses usually stuck; without a way to absolve them. In the New Testament, persons living under curses whether real or imagined could fine absolution and forgiveness. That’s where the blood of Christ comes in. Whether it’s the crazy man that ran through the cemetery or the woman with the issue of blood for 12 years, the blood of Christ deals with curses and can reverse them.

Even today, those who have transgressed the laws of God are not totally lost, the curse of sin can be reversed. Romans 6:23 says, “The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Christ Jesus our Lord.” It means that the penalty of sin can be reversed, but it can only be reversed by the blood of Christ who paid the price on Calvary.

Is everything going wrong for you? Do you seem to be living under a curse? Check your sin-o-meter and see whether Romans 6:23a applies to you. If so, then let the (b) part of that verse apply by finding Jesus and touching the hem of His garment.

Curse of Affliction? The blood!

Sicknesses are physical and mental in nature. They plague us trouble us like curses. They seem to plague us for eternities. Physical afflictions, mental afflictions, and emotional afflictions can be extremely troublesome both for the persons who have them and for those who love them. A long-term illness is more than a difficulty, it is an affliction. Yet, the word of God reminds us that these are not outside of the bounds of God's abilities and power.

The woman with the issue of blood found Jesus in a crowd and concluded that if she could just touch the hem of his garment that her affliction would be relieved. A man sitting by the pool waiting to be healed for 38 long years had an affliction that seemed beyond reach, until he met Jesus. These instances provide hope to those who deal with long term illnesses that they are not beyond God's power. They pronounce the word of faith that those who have been diagnosed as beyond recovery are not beyond God's power!

While afflictions can be reversed by God, there are times, when for God's own purposes he chooses not to reverse an affliction. Paul was one of God's greatest ambassadors who had an affliction that Paul called a thorn in his flesh. It crippled his efforts to work for the kingdom, slowed his pace and troubled him. Three times Paul prayed to God for relief from his affliction and his answer was always the same as he received in 2 Cor 12:9, My grace is sufficient for thee.

When you have prayed that same prayer and received that same answer, then take God's words to be true that his grace is sufficient. God says, My grace is sufficient.

Push your way through the crowd

Finally brothers and sisters, if you are dealing with what appears to be cursed situations in your life, we recommend that push your way through the crowd and give it to Jesus!

Don't say in your mind, "I am insignificant!" or "He doesn't know who I am!"

Don't say in your mind, "I haven't been as faithful as I should have been!"

Don't say in your mind, "I can't get to him because there are others closer to him!"

Push your way through the crowd and say, "If I can but touch the hem of his garment, I will be made whole"

If you feel cursed because of:

FAILURE, he can turn failure into success;

SADNESS, he can turn sadness into gladness;

SICKNESS, he can turn it into good health!

BURDENS, he can take your burdens and make them light!

DEFEAT, he can take your defeat and turn it into victory!

LOSSES, he can take your losses and turn them into gains!

HEARTACHES, I know a God who specializes in mending broken hearts!

TROUBLE MARRIAGE, I know a God who can turn your old lady into the first lady, who can turn your old man into the King of the Castle!

LOST GENERATION, I know a God who can take Gangsta Rap and turn it intoSaint's testimony!

Push your way through the crowd; reach out and touch the hem of his garment and his blood shall make you whole!

If you want to deal with the issue, push back your fear of embarrassment or insignificance and give it to Jesus!

Jesus said, “I come that they might have life and have it more abundantly”

Jesus came to take the curse of our:

-Tragedy and turn it into triumph!

-Defeat and turn it into victory!

-Despair and turn it into hope!

-Sadness and turn it into joy!

-Failure and turn it into success!

-Weakness and turn it into strength!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who was buried in borrowed tomb!

Jesus, who arose early Sunday morning!

If there is a curse on your life issue, give it to Jesus and everything will be all right!

Laughing at the Power of God

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

July 10, 2010

SCRIPTURE: "He said unto them, Give place: for the maid is not dead, but sleepeth. And they laughed him to scorn." Matthew 9:24

Introduction

Have you ever watched a comedy on television and heard the sounds of laughter, but you were not laughing?One of the tricks of the trade of the television industry is to create audience moods with the power of suggestion. We see it best in television broadcasts and most movies. Movies tell us that we should be afraid by giving us fear music. Remember the music in the movie Jaws? Each time we heard those deep base violins, thumping and grinding we knew we were supposed to be afraid even if the only thing on the screen was water. We became anxious because the music told us to be anxious.

If you've ever watched a comedy often the characters say a series of one liners that are not very funny, so the producers inject what is known as a "laugh track." The laugh track is composed of pre-recorded laughter, injected at a certain point in the dialogue to let the audience know that it is supposed to laugh. Many of us are not familiar with laugh tracks. We think there is a live audience watching the show and they are laughing. We don't want to look stupid, so often we chuckle at home even when we fail to the see the humor of the joke.

Even when there is a live audience, the laughter and applaud is often orchestrated. A sign lights up with the words "applaud" and the audience applauds and cheers on command. Sometimes there is even an off camera staff person who urges the audience to clap and laugh on demand. In these instances, even the live audience is laughing on demand.

Laughter differs. When you are rejoicing and sharing the humor of a moment or thought the world laughs with you. When you are considered pitiful and miserable the laughter takes on a different form. Instead of laughing because you are sharing a joke, the world laughs at you because you ARE a joke. Unfortunately, there are many who do not know the difference.

Whenever you act on faith, do you know that the devil will play a laugh track. Although you said nothing funny everyone around you begins to begins to laugh at what they call the absurdity of the idea. They laugh at the idea that God speaks to you. They laugh at the idea that you believe it. They laugh at the idea that you are changing your whole life to claim something that God promised to you. The laugh track plays, and the world laughs, but God's promises are not funny.

The world laughs because our dreams seem impossible and the fact that we say that we know God personally seems improbable. Yet, we do know God. He does speak to our hearts, fire our imaginations, motivate our spirit and give us inspiration. We know that, with Him, all things are possible, so we don't laugh.

As Christians, we take our relationship with God seriously. It's no laughing matter. When He promises us something we expect it. When He warns us we take note. Christ is our Lord, what He has done for us in the past and what He is doing for us right now is no laughing matter.

Exposition

This text focuses on an instance in the ministry of Christ when people laughed when he told them a dead child was actually sleep.

This incident happened just after a woman had pushed her way through the crowd and touched the hem of his garment. Then a messenger came to Jarius and notified him that his daughter had died. In Luke 8:50 Jesus told Jarius not to worry that his daughter was not dead but just sleeping.

When Jesus arrived at Jairus' home, the flute players and the noisy crowd had already assembled to weep for the family. They believed the child was dead, for when Jesus said the girl was merely asleep... they laughed.

Not only did they laugh, but they laughed to scorn. The crowd of professional mourners laughed, but not Jarius. He had received a promise for Christ and He was serious. The crowd had other reasons for scorning Jesus. They did not want His words to be true. They were professional mourners. If the child was not dead, but only sleeping they would not be paid.

There are debates as to whether the child was dead or sleeping. Literally, she was apparently dead. Figuratively, she was sleeping. Jarius was told to have faith in Christ and He would be rewarded. Jarius maintained his faith, even while the crowd laughed.

These consoling words were the same words he used in John 11:11 "Our friend Lazarus sleepeth; but I go, that I may awake him out of sleep."

These two instances underscored an important truth, nothing is permanent, even death when Christ has decided otherwise. In both Jarius and Lazarus' case the skeptics were on edge. The crowd laughed at Jarius' house. They thought he was a little touched outside of the tomb of Lazarus. The resurrection of both proved that Christ is in control of everything, even death.

When People Laugh

There are times when people we know laugh. Often they laugh out of ignorance; sometimes out of scorn.

PEOPLE LAUGH AT WHAT THEY DON'T UNDERSTAND: When Jesus told

those around him to consider Jarius' daughter asleep because shortly she would be awakened, most people did not understand who He was and the nature of His relationship with God. Had they understood that, they would not have laughed. This is also true with believers. There are many people who do not understand us and our relationship to God. It probably looks peculiar to them to see us praying to a God we cannot see. Waving our hands, crying, saying "Amen" and living by a set of rules that keep us from participating in some of the darker aspects of life, but never-the-less exciting. They don't understand us, so they laugh at us when we read our bibles, attend Sunday worship and special programs and express a faith that God will make a way out of no way. We don't laugh because we understand who God is and what God can do. So, when God promises us something and it sounds unbelievable, we don't laugh because even though we don't fully understand we still say, "God works in mysterious ways his wonders to perform." We remember that Romans 11:33 says, "O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out!"

STOP LISTENENING TO THE LAUGHTER: When Jesus entered Jarius' house the people were laughing him to scorn. They were laughing at Jarius,too. He was an educated man, a leader in the community, falling for superstition. When Jesus went inside he put all of those who wanted to laugh outside. Then he went to work. That's what believers must do. We must put those who are skeptics and doubters outside. We must shut them out. Those who believe you are doomed, shut them out. Those who believe you can never climb out of your present situation shut them out! Those who doubt the power of God, shut them out! The beauty of it all is that when we shut them out, Christ will come in. We may be socially, economically or morally disabled, but He is able to meet us at our point of need.

Inside, Christ "took her by the hand" and raised her out of her sleep. That's the faith that every believer takes into any situation. It's faith that when we are down, our God has the power to speak a word to our situation and raise us up. We don't have that power, but He does. He can speak a word to our poverty and it can be reversed. He can speak a word to our troubled and tangled life and bring clarity to our confusion. Jesus brought power into a 12 year old girl's life; He can do the same for us today if we stop listening to the laughter.

THE LAST LAUGH IS THE BEST LAUGH: When Jarius daughter walked out of the house, alive and well, the people inside were laughing and shouting and praising God in joy. The last laugh didn't come from those scorned, but from those who trusted God. In the same way God speaks to the faithful today. We should not be discouraged because of wicked people all around us, because if we remain faithful, we will get the last laugh. The people who seem to prosper without God laugh at us, but God will get the last laugh. The drug dealers, pimps and prostitutes, hustlers, gamblers and cheats who laugh at you because you work at a job and won't make that quick money; their day is coming. When it comes God will laugh at them. Psalm 37:12-13, "The wicked plotteth against the just, and gnasheth upon him with his teeth. The Lord shall laugh at him: for he seeth that his day is coming." Why does the Lord laugh at them? He laughs because "their day is coming!"

Inside Jarius house there was laughter, too, but they were laughing and shouting over the power of God! It was a joyous laugh. A laugh of celebration. It's the laugh of Abraham who learned not to laugh at anything that God promises, no matter how ridiculous it may sound. When Isaac was born Abraham named him "Isaac" which means laughter. He was a constant reminder that God laughs at the wicked, scoffers, haters and detractors. He gets to laugh last. He who laughs last, laughs the loudest.

No laughing matter

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that while there are some things in life that are funny, faith in God is no laughing matter.

The world may laugh at us because we live a life of faith, but we don't laugh because we believe in a living God who can do anything except fail.

The skeptics around us urge us to accept our plight because it is afraid of the challenge. We are not intimidated by challenges; we are ready to act with the available knowledge we have. They laugh, but we trust God.

We don't laugh because we have been drenched in the word of God and we are dripping with faith. It is a faith that despite the obstacles before us that the Lord will make a way!

The world laughs at our report. It says, "The road is rough and going is tough and hills are hard to climb, but I started out a long time ago and there is no doubt in my mind, I've decided to make Jesus my choice!"

The world laughs at our report and our testimony. Even Isaiah 53:1 asks, "Who hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the LORD revealed?"

There world may be laughing, but our report is that no one should ever doubt the power of God.

Sarah laughed because she doubted that she could deliver a child at 99 years old, but a year later she set the world record for being the oldest woman to birth a baby.

Who have believed our report?

While scoffers are laughing at us, God is laughing at them.

God laughed at the fact that Pharaoh thought his 600 chariots and the Red Sea could keep Israel in bondage. God must have been laughing all the while he opened up the Red Sea and forged a path for the people on dry land.

God laughed at the fact the River Jordan stood between his people and the Promised Land. He must have been laughing when he rolled up the waters of the Jordan and ushered the people across to camp ground.

God laughed at the fact that something as feeble as the walls of Jericho were thought strong enough to protect the enemies of God from his wrath. He must have laughed at the looks on the faces of the people of Jericho when the walls came tumbling down!

God laughed at the fact that the people doubted that the dry bones of Israel could ever come together again! But I hear the Word of God declare, Son of Man, can these bones live?

God laughs at the fact that people think you are in an impossible situation!

Your enemies laugh as you struggle to climb the walls that separate you from your dreams; let them laugh. Nothing is impossible for God; put it in God's hands and watch the walls come tumbling down!

Your enemies laugh because you have a Red Sea in front of you and enemies behind you; you seemed trapped with nowhere to go. Let them laugh because God still opens up ways out of no way. He's still making paths through the Red Sea!

Who hath believed our report?

The world laughed at Isaiah when he said, "He shall be wounded for our transgressions and bruised for our iniquities. The chastisement of our peace is upon him!"

They laughed, but God gets the last laugh.

They laughed at Jesus when they whipped him all night long!

They laughed at Jesus when they put an old rugged cross on his shoulder!

They laughed at Him as he hung out on the cross saying, "He saved others, but he can't save himself!"

They laughed at Him, when he died out on Calvary!

They laughed at Him, when they buried him in a borrowed tomb!

They laughed at Him, when they rolled the stone in front of His grave!

But Early Sunday morning, God got the last laugh!

He arose from the grave with all power in His hands!

God will make it right

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

July 24, 2011

SCRIPTURE: "I don't just talk to myself or mumble under my breath. I never told Jacob, 'Seek me in emptiness, in dark nothingness.' I am GOD. I work out in the open, saying what's right, setting things right. (Msg) Isaiah 45:19; "Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake. Rejoice, and be exceeding glad: for great is your reward in heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you." Matthew 5:11-12

Introduction

Have you ever messed up and tried to make it right? Most of us have made some bad turns in life that have offended or hurt others. Sometimes we have made bad decisions along the way that have injured others in the process. Once we have learned the error of our ways, we often try to make it right in some way.

Often those who have damaged the property of others are ordered by the courts to make restitution for losses. A person who has stolen something is usually told to make restitution to the victims. Persons who damaged property in some way have also been ordered to make restitution as a way of trying to make it right.

Making it right gets more difficult when the loss is not tangible.

How does a person who murders another person make it right? They can't give back the life they took. O. J. Simpson was found not-guilty for the murder of Nicole Brown Simpson in 1995. The family was not happy and pursued him until they obtained a $33 million judgment against him for wrongful death. Even his incarceration later on unrelated charges on a 33 year sentence didn't make it right.

If you have been molested, raped, mentally traumatized, lied on, mistreated or cheated out of opportunities, can anyone make it right? Is there any amount of money that can receive that even the score?

Consider the high school senior who was the victim of a jealous attack by three of her classmates. The young lady was an outstanding student and in her senior year was destined to become valedictorian. Her envious classmates devised a plot to stop her from achieving that goal by contriving a scheme that made it appear that she had stolen test keys and copied answers to get her perfect score. When questioned, the girl denied copying or cheating in any way. However, in light of the testimony of three witnesses the school had no other choice but to suspend her and prohibit her from becoming the valedictorian of the class. At home she was scolded by her parents for her lack of integrity and ruining the family name. After many years, the young lady graduated from college and became a vice-president of a major company. The company advertised for 25 new jobs in its factory. Much to her amazement 22 of the jobs were filled immediately. There were only three left. At the close of the day three women appeared in her office. Push your way through the crowd; reach out and touch the hem of his garment and his blood shall make you whole!

If you want to deal with the issue, push back your fear of embarrassment or insignificance and give it to Jesus!

Jesus said, "I come that they might have life and have it more abundantly"

Jesus came to take the curse of our:

-Tragedy and turn it into triumph!

-Defeat and turn it into victory!

-Despair and turn it into hope!

-Sadness and turn it into joy!

-Failure and turn it into success!

-Weakness and turn it into strength!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who was buried in borrowed tomb!

Jesus, who arose early Sunday morning!

They immediately recognized each other.

"You are not going to hold that high school thing against us, are you? We really need these jobs," said one of three.

"I have no intention of holding anything against you. You see, after that incident, my parents moved me to another school where I landed a work scholarship with this company. After graduation, they hired me and here I am today," said the girl.

"So, we really did you a favor didn't we? Look at you now!"

The young lady said, "No, don't misunderstand me because I'm hiring you today. You did me wrong. It was very wrong. The only reason I'm not holding it against you today is because you did me wrong then and God made it right."

There are some things that happen to us in life, that only God can make right; and He will, if we trust Him each and every day.

As believers we trust God to right the wrongs that we have endured. We believe His words when He says we will receive a great reward for our suffering. He will make it right.

Exposition

These texts records two passages of Scripture one from the old and one from the new, both of which attest to the fact that those who have suffered a wrong will be restored through the power of God.

The prophet Isaiah made predictions concerning the status of Israel long before the actual events occurred. He foretold the nature of Israel's captivity in the first 39 books of his prophecy. In the remaining 27 books of his prophecy he foretold how Israel would be restored. In this text, he prophesied how God would take and enemy king who did not know God and use this king to make right the wrong of captivity that had been placed upon Israel. The king of this text is King Cyrus of Persia. The Persians did not believe in the most high God. They had their own beliefs and they had their own gods, but yet the God of Israel would use this foreign king to make right an injustice that had been placed up on God's chosen people.

Verse 15 of this text makes it clear that God works in mysterious ways his wonders to perform. The text notes that God often hides himself or hides the way he does things, but he is working behind-the-scenes to make things right.

Verse 16 notes that when he completes his work that those who see what he has done will be both confused and ashamed when they see the powerful hand of God at work.

Verse 19 makes it clear that while God will work behind-the-scenes in mysterious ways, it is no secret that he will make right that which is been done wrong to His people. He will declare that all things will be right. behind-the-scenes to correct the wrongs that have been done against us . Keep the faith, never give up hope. God will make it right.

OUR FAITH IS NOT IN VAIN: Believers have no reason to doubt God. Verse19 has a message of hope for today's believers. God spoke to Isaiah and said I am one who speaks in public, makes no secret about what I say, and would not have promised this seed of Jacob anything and let them believe in me in vain. That verse makes reference to the seed of Jacob. Jacob was one of the descendents of Abraham; one night he wrestled with an angel and his name was changed from Jacob to Israel. The seed of Jacob are the descendents of Israel or the children of Israel, as we know them today. In the new testament the children of Israel was expanded to also include all believers in Jesus Christ, including gentiles. So, even today, this verse speaks to believers by saying God will not let your worship of him be in vain.

The chapter points out all of them mighty things God has done for Israel. Then God accentuates his history with Israel by saying that he would not have brought them from their Lowly estate to put them in a situation where their worship and faith in him would be in vain. That goes for us, too. God would not have brought you through all of the circumstances of your past just leave you as the victims of injustice with no hope of restoration. Your prayers are not in vain. Your faith in God is not in vain. Your worship of God is not in vain. Your giving to promote the kingdom of God is not in vain. Sometimes it might appear that God is moving awfully slow. That must've been the way that the children of Israel felt when they prayed to God about their enslavement in Egypt. They must've thought that God was not moving on their behalf. They didn't see the little baby being born and put in the arc. They didn't see Moses growing up in Pharaoh's court. They didn't know about the burning bush. They didn't know that God was taking care of the business for them. Today, we should continue our faith, confident that although we can't see how he's doing it, that God is working to make things right. Our worship is not in vain. Our decision to follow Christ is not a useless exercise. He will make it right.

GOD SPEAKS RIGHTEOUSNESS: As believers we should always remember that when God says something it shall be done. The word of God reminds us that his word will not return void. In Isaiah He said I speak righteousness. That means when God says something and has made a promise to us we can be assured that whatever he has promised us will come to fruition.

What has God promised us? He has promised that if we are persecuted, if we are talked about or falsely condemned or experience losses unjustly because of his namesake, we will be rewarded. That's what Jesus meant when He told his disciples blessed are you, that means God will favor you, God will take up the slack. He will make it right when others have done you wrong.

God has also promised us that no matter what happens to us, including wrong things, that they will all work to our good in the end. Romans 8:28 says "All things work do the good of them that love the Lord, who are the called according to his purpose." It is a promise from God that believers who endure suffering and hardship as well as injustices for the cause of righteousness will be rewarded. He will orchestrate the events of their lives to ensure that it works out for their good. He will make it right.

When we have lost so much, how can God make it right? The answer to this question may lay in a review of what happened to Job. Remember, he lost money, property and family members. God restored the property and gave him a new joy in a greater, stronger family. God made right. If He made it right for him, He can make it right for us. He will make it right.

Make it right

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that when it came to our salvation, Jesus decided to make it right.

Often believers feel like footballs, we are tossed around and kicked from one end of the field of life to the other. There are so many people that take advantage of our benevolent spirit that we wonder if we can ever find justice? Is there anyone that can bring a sense of balance and justice into our lives.

Money can't make it right!

Court ordered restitution can't make it right!

Only the power of God and the soul saving blood of Christ can make it right!

This world may do us wrong by:

—Parading our shame, but God will turn our shame into a testimony. He will make it right.

—Rejoicing in our failure, but God will forgive our failures and help us to succeed. He will make it right.

—Triumphing over our defeat, but God will pick us up and show us the victory! He will make it right.

He will make it right when He takes our:

— SORROW and turns it into joy;

—HATRED we received and turns it into Love!

—PIG PEN existence and turns it into paradise.

Jesus told his disciples about the Good Samaritan who picked up a wounded man along the road and took him to an inn and told the innkeeper to give him a place to rest, bind up his wounds; and "When I come back tomorrow, I'll make it right."

Today, brothers and Sisters, Jesus is saying the same words to His father.

Father, I see a traveler, who has been tattered and torn along the way, build them up where there have been torn down, whatever it cost, I'll make a right!

Father, I see a family struggling to make their ends meet, bless their home with mercies from above, whatever it cost, I'll make it right!

Father, I see a wounded soul crying over the loss of a loved one. Give that soul your comforting spirit; whatever it cost, I'll make it right!

Father, I see a lost soul whose sins are as red as scarlet, wash them and make them white as snow. Whatever it cost, I'll make it right.

In order to wash the stain of sin of way, someone would have to pay the price, because the wages of sin is death.

What can wash away my sin, nothing but the blood of Jesus! What can make me whole again, nothing but the blood of Jesus!

Trying to make it right, Jesus, picked up an old rugged cross and carried up Golgotha's Hill!

Trying to make it right, Jesus, let them put a crown of thorns on His head and nails in his hands!

Trying to make it right, Jesus died out on Calvary!

But Early, Sunday morning arose from the grave with all power in His Hands!

Power!

Power to make it right!

What happened to the Raven?

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

July 31, 2011

SCRIPTURE: And he sent forth a raven, which went forth to and fro, until the waters were dried up from off the earth. Genesis 8:7

Introduction

What best describes your view of yourself? Are you a user or abuser? Are you a giver or a taker? Lorraine Hansberry in her classic play, A raisin in the sun, described two types of people in the world. After her main character Walter Lee lost all of his money to a friend who cheated him and disappeared Walter concluded that life was filled with either "takers or the tooken." He put himself in the class of those were the "tooken;" the used and the abused.

When you give your best in love and someone takes your heart and leaves, you feel "tooken."

When you open your soul and pour out your most intimate secrets on the shoulders of a friend, only to hear your confessions in the circles of hot gossip, you feel tooken.

When you try to help, but your benevolent spirit is trampled and rejected, you feel "tooken."

What about God? Does this idea of giving and taking apply to God's people? When it comes to our relationship with God are we givers or takers? Do we seek to get what we want from God and stay close to Him until we get what we seek? Are there people who ask God to save them, then once saved disappear never to be heard of again?

How does God feel when we disappear from His presence after He has answered our prayers, healed our bodies, and blessed us immensely? He probably feels "tooken." Jesus healed ten lepers one day and all ten immediately left him. However, one came back and said thanks. That's when Jesus asked, "What happened to the nine?"

A similar question is asked about a little bird in the story of Noah's ark. It's a story of a bird called a raven that was saved from the flood, was released after the flood, but once freed never came back. The question is asked, "What happened to the raven?" it was saved and released, but it never came back.

Some in life are like the raven on Noah's ark; once set free He was never seen again.

Others are like the dove who repeatedly returns bearing good news on their lips.

As Christians, we should be eternally grateful to God for his blessings and his mercy. We are not the "tooken" we are the blessed; every time we get a chance we come before God and give Him thanks for saving our souls and setting us free.

Exposition

This text focuses on Noah's Ark as a symbol of God's mercy and the raven and dove as symbols of the response of sinful man.

Most cultures have a version of the great flood in its history. From East Africa to Bolivia; from Egypt to Iceland, from Mexico to Vietnam it seems that most nations have one version of the flood story or another. One web source distilled the various accounts to 35 different versions. ALL 35 of them talk of humans being spared in the flood. Thirty-two of them include a boat. Twenty four include an account of animals being spared. At least six of them include references to a dove. One referred to a hawk and only one, the bible version referred to a raven.

So many accounts of the flood makes it obvious that something happened. The bible tells us what happened, why it happened and it seems to be the only source that tells us about the raven.

This text describes the events that happened at the end of the great flood in the days of Noah. In the flood, all perished with the exception of one man and his family who were saved by God's grace. That man was Noah.

The flood waters covered the earth for over a year. In the text the flood waters were receding. Soon Noah and family would be exiting the ark. The entire earth had flooded and every creature who breathed air was destroyed, except for those on the ark. Eventually this ark rested upon the mountains of Ararat. Soon Noah could see the top of the mountains, and eventually sent out two birds to see if it was time to come out.

First he sent out the raven. This raven kept going to and from the ark. Eventually the raven did not return. Next, Noah sent out the dove. Unlike the raven, the dove did not find a resting place, and returned to the ark. Noah then waited another 7 days, and a second time sent out the dove. This time she returned with a freshly plucked olive leaf in her beak. Noah waited yet another 7 days, and sent out the dove a third and final time. This time she never returned.

The raven took wing and never returned. Since no other version of the flood story m entions this little bird, the raven itself must bear some significance for God to make note its presence and small role.

All the scripture noted is that the raven didn't come back. What does this mean? Theologians tell us that the ark is a symbol of the church as a vehicle through which God saves. The animals on board the ark represented the whole of mankind both the good and the bad. The raven, which is a scavenger is one of the thousands of unclean animals on board. The dove represented the hundreds of thousands of clean animals on board.

Both were given an opportunity to be saved from the flood. One returned to the world at the first chance and was never seen or spoken of anymore. The other returned repeatedly bearing olive branches of hope; its act of gratitude, returning with an olive branch in its mouth, has been depicted as a sign of hope and faith for generations.

The Raven was saved from the flood

Although the raven was listed as an unclean animal it was saved from the flood. For a year, the raven changed its ways. It is a scavenger that feasts on dead things, but for a year it changed its diet because nothing on the ark died. The raven changed its habit but not its taste.

In a similar sense many people come to God in an hour of crises. They pray and ask God for special considerations after a major sickness, tragedy or failure. They make promises to God that are real at the moment. For a while they change their habits, they attend church, and seem to be different; yet, on the inside they are still the same people. A truly repentant person becomes a new person, not just a person who attends church. 2 Corinthians 5:17 says, "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." There is no substitute for being "In Christ." Those who join a church, but have no real relationship may attend a worship occasionally, but on the inside think and feel like a raven.

There are many who are unhappy in marriages because one partner still thinks like a raven. There are many who live in circumstances that limit their movements and access. They do what they are required to do, but they have ravenous feelings.

The raven took advantage of the safety of the ark and diet of fresh foods it offered for year, but at the first opportunity it intended to go back to its old ways.

After a year of safety, nourishment, and protection, the raven was sent forth from the ark. In a single day, a raven can fly as much as 40 miles. The waters were receding, there was an ample supply of dead things to feast upon, so the raven flew away, never to return.

There are many today who waiting anxiously for the door of opportunity to open so they can get away, promising never to come back.

What lured the prodigal son away from home? It was prospect of fun and good times without the limitations of his father's house. Once outside of his father's house the prodigal son acted foolishly, only extreme poverty pointed him back home.

God must feel played by those he blesses, protects and showers with blessings, only to see them leave him the first time the world presents them an opportunity.

When they had no job, they worshipped regularly, but after they landed one, they had no time for Him.

When they were in jail, they read their bibles daily, but once free, they seldom opened a page.

When they were sick, they prayed every hour on the day, When He healed them, they did not have time to pray any longer.

When we walk away from God after He has blessed us, we have essentially used him to achieve an immediate purpose with no intention of developing a long term relationship. We played Him. It's the same idea as a man who dates a woman on the rebound after being hurt in another relationship. He only needs the new woman to help him get over the loss of the other; they he disappears.

That's what Bill Withers calls "Using me, until you use me up."

When Noah sent the raven forth, he must have felt like Saul when he realized the stupidity of his acts against David and said in 1 Samuel 26:21 "I have played the fool and have erred exceedingly."

The Dove came back

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must note that the raven didn't come back the dove came back with a signs of God's goodness in its mouth.

The raven represents all of those who received the offer of salvation from God, but chose to fly away from God's presence.

The raven represents those who were blessed, but would not return.

We don't know what happened to the raven, but we know what happened when the dove was set free.

The dove returned two times to Noah and the last time he returned he had an olive twig in his mouth.

The image of the dove holding that olive twig in its mouth has outlived that of the raven.

That's what happens when the people of God put words of praise in their mouths; they bring glory to God!

Like the raven, the dove was lost, but was saved by the hand of God, but unlike the raven the dove not only came back to the ark but brought back a sign of hope for everyone on board.

That's what happens when a saint testifies about the goodness of the Lord, we bring back a sign of hope for those who are still on board.

Don't be like the raven that received a blessing, but wouldn't come back, but be like the dove that came back with a testimony on its lips.

If God has blessed you, you oughta tell somebody!

If we've made a mess but God has continued to bless, we oughta tell somebody!

If we've fallen down but God has picked us up again, we oughta tell somebody!

If we've turned down the wrong path but God gave us another chance, we oughta tell somebody.

We don't know what happened to the raven, but dove came back to ark!

We don't know what everyone else who has been blessed will do, but I heard Joshua say, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord!"

We're going to serve the Lord because, despite the mess that we've made of our lives, He gave us one more chance!

Every chance we get we're going to be in the presence of the Lord with words of praise on our lips to say:

Thank you Lord, for taking my weakness and turning it into strength!

Thank you Lord, for taking my doubts and giving me assurance!
Thank you Lord, for taking my failure and giving me victories!
Thank you Lord, for taking my discouragement and giving me hope!
Thank you Lord, for taking my test and giving me a testimony!
Thank you Lord, for looking beyond my faults and shortcomings and seeing my need!

Over 2000 years ago, Jesus came into a world that was sinking in sin to give it one more chance.

We don't know what happened to the raven, but when Jesus began His ministry and was baptized in the Jordan River, God sent a dove down from heaven and spoke through it from heaven saying, "this is my beloved son in whom I'm well pleased."

In middle of the worlds mess, God sent his best!
A sinful world put an old rugged cross on his shoulder!
A world of unbelievers and haters drove nails in his hands and feet!
A world of doubters and skeptics stuck a spear in his side!
And he died, out on Calvary!
But early Sunday morning, he arose from the dead with all power in his hands!
I don't know what happened to the raven, but I want to be like that dove and say:
Thank you Lord, for blessing me one more time.

Facing Giants with nothing but stones

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

(First Delivered May, 1976)

SCRIPTURE: " And he took his staff in his hand, and chose him five smooth stones out of the brook, and put them in a shepherd's bag which he had, even in a scrip; and his sling was in his hand: and he drew near to the Philistine." 1 Samuel 17:40

Introduction

Have you ever faced a giant? We are familiar with giants. We read about them in books, fantasize about them in fairytales and watch images of them in movies, videos and cartoons. We are familiar with giants

Children learn of giants when they read stories that describe Gulliver's Travels into the land of the Lilliputians or chilling sound of "fe fi fo fum" of the giant in "Jack and the Bean Stalk." There is even a giant on the cans of vegetables we purchase in stores called the Jolly Green Giant.

Giants are usually referred to as larger than ordinary individuals, and because of their size are fearsome and grotesque. In our lives we are often faced with giant sized problems that are fearsome and just as grotesque as any oversized giant. Sometimes it's a problem that dwarfs our abilities; other times it's obstacles opposition that shutters our will. Either way, these giant sized situations can make tremble in your boots.

The challenges we face everyday are real. They are giant sized, but they are not invincible. They can be overcome. If we are nervous, it is because we focus on all the things that can go wrong. We ponder our possible failure instead of bathing in the prospect of success. Those who are prepared for the challenge stand boldly, without fear of failure. They are confident that God is able to deliver them in any challenge.

As Christians, we rejoice in the knowledge that although we may face giants in our lives, God empowers us to overcome each and every one. Every day, we face the fearsome challenges of life with little more than a stone of hope, but God gives us faith for the fight.

Exposition

This text focuses on the shepherd boy David as he rose to fight the giant named Goliath, using nothing but a slingshot and five smooth stones.

Israel under King Saul constantly faced the challenge to their presence by Philistines, who were natives of Canaan.

The text reveals a forty day standoff between the armies of the two countries. The Philistines offered to settle the difference by a duel of the champions. In a duel of the champions each country would send its greatest fighter in a one on one contest, fighting for victory for his country. This method would save needless bloodshed.

A challenge had been issued to Israel by the Philistine champion, Goliath, to send their best man to fight him in a duel to the death.

The Israelites however, could not control their fears. They shook in their sandals and wondered who would be the one that would fight Goliath. King Saul, himself a great warrior, would not meet Goliath. His sons were great warriors but they would not fight either. They were all afraid of the size of Goliath. Their fears got the best of them.

However David, a little shepherd boy, took up the challenge. He refused to wear the king's armor or to use swords and shields. He chose only to carry his shepherd's bag and his sling shot.

Though he went forth there was certainly concern in his heart because of nature of his foe. That concern was reasonable because he faced a giant, fabled to be 13 feet tall. There was fear in his heart.

He faced an opponent who wore a coat of armor that weighed 194 pounds.

David was concerned but not intimidated.

David secured five smooth stones from a brook, and armed his slingshot, with which he killed the mighty Goliath with a single stone.

It Takes Courage

As we consider the giants in our own lives we should consider these three truths:

IT TAKES COURAGE TO FIGHT GIANTS: The giant Goliath presented a formidable challenge to Israel. He struck fear in the hearts of the men of Israel, so much fear that not even their most valiant warriors would come forth. Yet, when David heard the challenge he arose and courageously faced the giant. In life, we have the same challenge from Goliath sized problems; we must respond with courage like David.

David's giant was a man, but our giants may not have faces, but they are just as dangerous. Our giants are the things that we feel dwarf our abilities.

To face our giants we must arise. To arise means, get up from where we are. Life often knocks us down, but we are encouraged to arise.

Succeeding in life does not mean that you won't be knocked down, but real success comes when we muster the courage to rebound after being knocked down.

As believers, we must face our giants with David's courage. When we trust in God we receive a new perspective when we see every situation in light of God's promise to protect every step of the way.

GOD CAN HELP US TO OVERCOME OUR GIANTS: Goliath was one man who frightened an entire army of men, yet every man was afraid of him. Israel saw the giant of a man and trembled, thinking It doesn't take much to frightened a chicken. That's where the common use of the term chicken comes from. You can wave your hand and frighten a chicken.

They run from any perceived threat. Chickens can fly, but very few ever try to fly over the fence. They are afraid of getting their wings clipped if they caught on the other side. Fear of failure stops many people today from flying over the fence of their own poverty. Fear of rejection. Fear of fear itself has stopped so many.

The word of God reminds each of us that, "The Lord is my light and my salvation, in whom should I fear?"

As we face the giant sized obstacles thrown in front of us daily, we must remember, just as David did, that though we are frail in comparison to our inequities, God is stronger, bigger, and more powerful than any adversary. He has shown that to us in the past and he can continue to do repeatedly.

David was sure that he could overcome Goliath, not by his own might but by grace of God.

FIVE STONES, BUT ONLY ONE WAS NEEDED: David retrieved five stones from the brook, however he only needed one to achieve his goal. David's selection of the stones indicates both his faith and the practical application of his faith. He didn't know whether he would be successful on his first shot at the giant, but he felt sure that five would be enough.

What do we really need to accomplish our goals in life? An education, marketable abilities, personal discipline, and a deep-rooted faith in God would appear to be high on anyone's list. The goal, it would appear, is to acquire as many skills, experiences and abilities as possible, with the full knowledge that God can make our dreams using one of them, some of them or even none of them.

That knowledge helps us to go forward without intimidation. We know we have enough stones to slay the giant.

Our individual family histories are filled with accounts of how our ancestors overcame the giants of slavery, poverty, racism and ignorance to achieve excellence. The old timers always seemed armed with a multiplicity of "stones" but only needed one, the power of God.

Any person who expects to succeed should expect difficulty and live constantly armed with a plan "B,C,D, and E." Underlying everything is faith that God can make our dreams a reality using one of our plans.

Faith is the factor, our plans reflect our faith in action.

There is a way! If there is no way, God can create a way, if we trust Him.

Remember, God can do it

Finally brothers and sisters we must remember that God is bigger than any giant we may face.

David did not hesitate to use what was available to him because he had faith in the miraculous intervention of God.

He picked up five stones from the brook, but he carried with him, outside of the sight of any man, five other stones that were more powerful than the stones from the brook.

In his heart he carried the stone of courage, faith, hope, discipline and preparation. These five gave something that was bigger than Goliath himself; it gave him confidence.

David was confident because he knew the source of his victory. He knew where his blessings came from.

Today, we must remember where our blessings come from.

Before we burden ourselves with unnecessary worry about the giants that we face, we should remember that we serve an awesome God who reigns and can help us defeat any foe.

Believers should not worry today, because, like David, we remember what He did yesterday.

Somebody remembers that when they were:

-WEAK He provided them strength

- DOWN He picked them up!

- DEFEATED He gave them the victory

-DISCOURAGED He restored their hope!

-LONELY, He gave them comfort

-TROUBLED He gave them peace of mind

Somebody remembers how He came to a little town called Bethlehem

That He died on an old rugged cross!

Somebody remembers that Early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave!

He's still blessing us today, just like He did yesterday!

Promises, Promises

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church

August 2011

Scripture:"Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises: that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust." 2 Peter 1:4

Introduction

Promises, promises! We have all made promises, but do we keep them all? Think of all the promises, commitments, engagements, dates, appointments and engagements you have broken over the years! How many of those did you break? For no fault your own some of them you broke because of circumstances beyond your control. It's easier to make promises than it is to keep promises.

Suppose I told you that I know a person who keeps every promise he makes, would you believe me?

There are very few of us who actually know any individuals who are able to keep all of their promises. They may try hard, but it is not humanly possible to keep every promise.

We can't, but God can. In fact, If we look back we'll quickly see that despite all of its ups and downs, good days and bad days, God has delivered his promises to us, just as he said!

What has God promised us? He has promised strength for the mountains that we will face in life. He has promised to walk with us through life's dangerous trails and that He would deliver us and lead us away from temptation if we ask Him. Moreover, He promised to be with us always, in every situation and circumstance and to be only a prayer away.

As Christians, we may not be able to keep all of our promises, but we rejoice in the fact that God can and will keep all of His promises to us.

Exposition

This text focuses on Peter's characterization of God's promises as precious.

Peter's purpose for this epistle is to encourage the faithful that God would be faithful in his pledge of abundant living to believers. Believers sought an increase in grace and peace. Lest some would become anxious about the promises, Peter reminded them that God's promise is central to our faith. The same glory and virtue are employed and evidenced in giving the promises of the gospel that are exercised in our lives of faith.

The promises God made with respect to the gospel and its message as well as the salvation of the saints, are the same promises upon which believers pin their hopes and aspirations.

His Promises

There are several thoughts we should consider concerning God's promises to us:

GOD's PROMISES ARE EXCEEDINGLY GREAT: The promise of salvation is the greatest of all of the promises to believers. Psalm 119:18 notes that it is a wonderful thing to be forgiven for the heinous sins we have committed before God. Salvation is an exceedingly great promise that God has given to each of us.

Just as salvation is a precious promise of God, so are all of God's promises; they are all sure and dependable even though at times, we cannot fully understand how He works. These are times when the old saying is true, "God works in mysterious ways His wonders to perform."

He has promised to ultimately deliver us from any evil aimed at us and to lead us away from temptation if we ask him.

He promised to be with us always, in every situation and circumstance and to be only a prayer away.

THE PROMISE OF THE SAVIOR IS PRECIOUS: It is good to know that God's promise of a savior is precious. In the Old Testament believers were promised that a savior would come through the seed of a woman. That promise has been realized through the birth of Christ and now through the presence of the Holy Ghost who is enlivening, enlightening, and sanctifying. God's presence has sustained us and brought us through some of the most difficult times of our lives. Those were the times that we knew we survived or arose victorious on nothing but the grace of God. Those were the times we were living totally on the precious promises of God.

The fact that we cling to the promises of God amuses some. They are amused only because they do not know the savior as we do.

Like Sarah, they find it amusing when God makes a promise that seems impossible in light of the circumstances.

Like Pharaoh, they believe that faith in God's promises are the folly of the ignorant and whatever signs we see are cheap magician's tricks.

Like King Saul, they believe they should follow their own mind because God's will should only be trusted when His will mirrors our will.

We have a friend who saves us and raises us, so we have learned how to lean and stand bon his promises because they are precious and true.

GOD'S PROMISES ARE REAL AND TRUE: Matthew Henry said those who receive the promises of the gospel partake of the divine nature. They are renewed in the spirit of their mind, after the image of God, in knowledge, righteousness, and holiness; their hearts are set for God and his service; they have a divine temper and disposition of soul.

Those who follow the promise of the gospel usually find that God's promises are real and true.

Although we often make promises that we have neither the will or capacity to carry out that is not the case with God. The promises of God are real and sure despite the fact that there are many who are skeptical because they have seen the promises of so many others fall by the wayside. If God has spoken it, it shall come to pass. If God has forbidden it, it shall not be.We can depend on the precious promises of God.

Good has kept his promise to us

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should praise God continuously because of His promise to save us, bless us and usher us into eternity.

Despite the difficulty of the times, we have seen how God has bent, shaped and directed events and circumstances to ultimately keep His promises to us.
God's record of diligently seeking our good is why we praise Him. It's why we lift Him up in worship.

Can God do what He says? Can He keep His promises to us? The record bears testimony that God is able!

That makes His promises precious. He has promised to take our:

—Fears and turn them into faith; SADNESS and turn it into gladness!

—WEAKNESS and turn it into strength; RESERVATIONS and turn them into confirmations!

—FAILURES and turn them into successes; LOSSES and turn them into gains!

Those are precious promises!

We should keep our promises to God because it is our way of saying "thank you" for being so good to us!

We give thanks to God for:

—Muzzling the mouths of lions that came to devour us!

—Quenching the flames of fires that tried to destroy us!

—Conquering the enemies that came to destroy us!

—Penetrating the walls built to divide us!

—Unlocking the prisons designed to hold us down.

The Lord we serve is worthy to be praised and worthy because of the fulfillment of the promises that He make.

His worthy because He is Lord!

He is worthy because He healed the sick!

He is worthy because He raised the dead!

He is worthy because He answered our prayers!

He is worthy because He carried an old rugged cross for us, up Golgotha's Hill!

He is worthy because He died for our sins!

He is worthy because Early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave with all power in His hand and a promise of redemption on His lips!

If loving God is wrong, I don't want to be right

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

Scripture: Luke 4:8: And Jesus answered and said unto him, Get thee behind me, Satan: for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve.

Introduction

Have you ever been criticized because you believe in God or because you say that you will trust God to lead and guide you?Two generations ago, the thought that a person could be ostracized for believing in God would have been unheard of in the United States. This is a Christian nation. Yet, each year millions of believers take stands of faith, like the Three Hebrew Boys, choosing to suffer the snickers and anti-religious venom of their detractors rather than abandon their faith in God.

In 1972 Luther Ingram sung about a man who was in love with a married woman. His love for her was so overwhelming that he was willing to risk losing all he had to have it. He knew it was wrong but he'd rather be wrong than to be right.

Ingram's lyrics contained these words:

If loving you is wrong I don't wanna be right
If right means being without you
I'd rather live wrong doing life

Ingram's lyrics described an illicit relationship between a man and someone else's wife, but what if we flipped that statement and said, "If loving God is wrong, I don't want to be right." That paints a position statement for every person who is claiming to be a Christian in modern society.

It is becoming a crime in America to publically express a love for God. Despite the fact that the nation itself was built upon godly principles, founded by men and women seeking religious freedom, and predicated on godly ideas, the nation has drifted away from open expressions of godliness.

There are those who want to remove "under god" from the pledge of allegiance. Others want "duty to God" removed from the boy scout oath. Still others, want "In God we trust" removed from American currency. There are great debates afoot in hundreds of cities across America as to whether prayers can be said in schools or mumbled by those beginning a work or classroom day.

Those who openly express faith in God are called far right, religious fanatics and borderline nut cases. It is not politically correct these days to say "Merry Christmas" or to mention the fact that the first pilgrims offered thanks to God. The next step after being dubbed politically incorrect is for faith in God to be declared wrong as it has been outlawed in many nations of the world. Expressing a faith in God is becoming unfashionable at the least.

There are many who hear the words of scripture that remind us that we should love the Lord with all of our mind, body and soul. When that happens we sing the sanitized version of Luther Ingram's lyrics, "If loving God is wrong, then I don't want to be right."

As Christians, we openly express our love for God and for Jesus His son. We sing proudly, 'Oh How I love Jesus! Oh How I love Jesus!" Oh, how I love Jesus! Because he first loved me!"

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he makes a major decision about the direction of his life and chooses to love and obey God rather worship the devil.

Before Christ began his public ministry, he spent 40 days in the wilderness to pray for strength and direction. Those forty days must have been a wonderful experience. He had just come from the baptismal scene which had ended when God declared, "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased." So, in the beginning of his ministry, Jesus faced a crucial decision making period in which he had to decide whether to take the long way around or take the short cuts.

The passage shows the devil presenting Jesus with three temptations: 1) To turn stones into bread and satisfy his human needs and desires 2) To worship the devil and free himself from being plagued by the devilish plots and tricks that would follow him all through his ministry and 3) Throw himself off the side of mountain in the full view of thousands of people below who would witness when God sent angels to catch him before he hit the ground.

All three of the temptations would have jump started Jesus' career with popularity, fame and certain world power. There would be no doubt that he would be the one true Messiah because he would be the one man who could turn stones into bread and be rescued by angels dispatched from heaven.

He could change the world from such a position. He could order governments to follow his rule. He could outlaw hypocrisy and open the floodgates of opportunity for thousands.

There was only one big hitch: to do what the devil asked would require him disobey God, abandon his mission and begin a ministry that was based on wrong rather than right.

He refused them and chose to love God with His whole mind, body and soul.

Being faithful to God

Believers are often criticized for our faithfulness to God. They criticize us because we find a reason for joy in sad situations, do good to those we know will probably stab us in the back and believe that God will eventually work things out for us, according to His will.

Those outside of the faith say such loyalty to God is foolish. They say it is wrong.

If being faithful to God is wrong, then the we don't want to be right.

The devil's voice is just as loud and clear in your voice today as it was clear and succinct to Jesus. That voice tells that we are wrong to trust God so completely; that we should use common sense. Yet, trusting God often compels us to ignore common sense and wholly lean on our faith in the Lord

We are not alone. Many before us have chosen to walk by faith and not by sight

Noah lived a life according to the will of God. Although all of the people around him chose to ignore Gods warnings Noah sought direction from God, built an ark, and survived a flood. He chose to act on faith while others chose another course.

Enoch walked with God. He spent his entire life communicating with God and talking with him. Because he talked with God on a daily basis and walked with him constantly he did not see death. Even though all those around turned away, he remained faithful.

The three Hebrew boys were faithful to God even in the face of death. They desired to please him and when they were thrown into a fiery furnace, God protected them.

In each instance the great warriors of our past have chosen to trust in the Lord and to lean not unto their own understanding.

They sang the old song, "Trust and obey, for there is no other way to be happy in Jesus, but to trust and obey."

Like them we say, if being faithful to God is wrong, then we don't want to be right.

Being Obedient to God

Believers are also criticized for our obedience to God. The world criticizes us because we strictly follow the commands of God and approach Him with respect.

In Deuteronomy 13:4 God told Moses to tell the people, You will walk after the Lord your God and fear Him and keep His commandments and obey His voice and serve Him and cling to Him.

Obeying God's commandments keeps us from self destructing. Obviously, we have failed at making up our own rules. Without a higher command we would simply self destruct.

The commands of God set the standard by which we are to measure our action and provide the litmus test to gauge the quality of our reverence toward God.

His commands push us to be honest in dealings with others, faithful in our engagements and exemplary in our deportment. A businessman who obeys God's commands places limits on what he will do to make a dollar. It becomes a matter of integrity and obedience to God involved in every transaction. It also translates into our daily affairs.

Some laugh at us because we refuse to participate in shady activities that will bring us a profit, but will most certainly cross the line of acceptability with God. There legal activities that are sanctioned by society, but frowned upon by God. When given the choice believers remember Acts 5:29 "Then Peter and the other apostles answered and said, "We ought to obey God rather than men."

If given the choice of doing what is socially sanctioned or being obedient to God, the believer chooses God even if it means suffering the ridicule of friends and associates.

If being obedient to God is wrong, then we don't want to be right.

Praising God is right

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should consider that it is never wrong to praise God!

When Jesus was confronted by the devil He had to choose to do right or wrong. He chose to follow His father and to turn His back on Satan.

Each believer has that same challenge, we too must tell the world to "get thee behind me Satan" and follow Jesus, even if the world laughs at us. That why many sing that old song, "I have decided to follow Jesus. I have decided to follow Jesus. No turning back, no turning back!"

There is something about believers that makes us forget about what is socially acceptable when we think about the goodness of the Lord. Even though the colleges and universities teach us that the right thing to do is to listen with intense interest and show little emotion; we find it difficult to do what is academically right.

Even though the rules of order forbid us from standing on our feet and blurting out words of praise, we find it restrictive to do what is socially right.

When we think about the goodness of the Lord it is hard to do what the world calls the right thing.

When Jesus came into Jerusalem, the people shouted praise to him all along the way. Somebody asked him to tell his followers to tone down their praise and Jesus said, in Luke 19:40 "And he answered and said unto them, I tell you that, if these should hold their peace, the stones would immediately cry out."

Consider the old lady who moved in with her great grandchildren up north. They were wealthy professionals who attended a big city quiet church. Her grandchildren went to church regularly but they asked grandmother to remember that she wasn't down south. Up here it is not right to say Amen like they do down south. It's not to right to wave your hand in agreement. It's not right to stand on your feet and applaud a song. Don't embarrass us. Every Sunday the old lady went to worship and tried her best to keep quiet as the name of Jesus was glorified. Her grandchildren would give her the eye and she would hold her peace. They didn't mind the funny looking red coat she wore. They didn't mind the flower that dangled from her hat. If she'd just sit quiet, they'd be happy. A guest preacher from down south was in the pulpit. He started talking about the goodness of the Lord. As he talked the flower started dangling on the old lady's hat as she moved from side to side. Her heels started clicking on the floor. Before she knew it she was standing on her feet shouting, praise the Lord. She looked at her granddaughters and said, "I'm sorry girls, if praising God is wrong, I don't want to be right!

I don't know about you, but I've decided that if:

—being faithful to God is wrong, I don't want to be right!

—being obedient to God is wrong, I don't want to be right!

— praising God is wrong, I don't want to be right!

If praising God for changing me from a sinner into a saint is wrong, then I don't want to be right!

If praising God for changing me from being corrupt to consecrated is wrong, then I don't want to be right!

If praising God for changing me from being miserable into a happy man is wrong, then I don't want to be right!

If praising God for changing me from being a victim into the victor is wrong, then I don't want to be right!

If praising God for changing me from being a slave and giving me freedom is wrong, then I don't want to be right!

Thank you Lord, for taking my:

—Bitterness and turning it to sweetness; Sadness and giving me joy!

—Loneliness and give me companionship; Emptiness and giving me fulfillment!

—Failure and showing me the victory; Discouragement and giving me encouragement!

More than that, I want to thank you Lord for saving me soul!

I don't know about you, but every now and then, I want to tell somebody that I serve a good God!

I want to tell somebody that he carried an old cross for me!

I want to tell somebody that he died out on Calvary!

I want to tell somebody that early Sunday morning that he arose from the dead!

If telling somebody about the goodness of the Lord is wrong, then I don't want to be right!

Gather up the fragments

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 14, 2011

SCRIPTURE: And Jesus took the loaves; and when he had given thanks, he distributed to the disciples, and the disciples to them that were set down; and likewise of the fishes as much as they would. When they were filled, he said unto his disciples, Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost. Therefore they gathered them together, and filled twelve baskets with the fragments of the five barley loaves, which remained over and above unto them that had eaten." John 6:11-13

Introduction

Have you ever known people who collect what others throw away?One man's trash is another man's treasure. That's the idea that contributes to the success of garage and rummage sales. At a rummage sale a person sells items for which they no longer have use. The items can range from paperback novels to computers; from silverware to living room suites. Such sales have extended themselves to estate sales and auctions to listing on the Internet's Ebay or Craig's List.

You may not want that old fishing rod, but there is a man looking for an old fishing rod.

You may think that no one wants a copy of a book you bought in 1950, but there is a person who is looking for that book.

What makes such sales attractive is that the items being sold may be truly valuable; they have simply been unused or unwanted.

We throw away our trash, but there are people who collect our trash.

We scrap fragments of food from a hardy meal into the trash, but there are those who consider our discarded fragments a feast.

In a greater sense we also tend to view people as fragments. We often see the man sitting on the street corner begging for food and see him as a fragment. We see the man standing at the intersection holding a sign "I will work for food" as a fragment. Even the man who has failed in business, marriage and life is often seen as a fragment. There are even some who view the elderly as fragments.

The good news is what others see as fragments, God sees as a treasure. When we have failed and seem to have little purpose for our lives, God picks us up because he sees our purpose. Consider the drunk who searched the garbage for a taste of wine and found what he believed was an old fiddle. "It's nothing but an old fiddle" he thought and tossed it aside. A second scavenger came and found the old fiddle, he tried to play it but he got was screeches and scratches and he threw it away because it had no value. A third scavenger sold the fiddle to an antique store whereupon a great violinist happened upon it. The violinist tuned its strings and gently rubbed the bow them. Out came the finest sound, much to the amazement of all. As the violinist bought the fiddle and walked out of the door, the owner remarked "it was just an old fiddle, until it was touched by the master's hand."

As Christians, we rejoice in the fact that our God always sees our potential and never dismisses us as mere disposable fragments. If we fall, he picks us up and puts us to use again.

Exposition

This text focuses on an episode in the life of Christ in which he ordered fragments of food leftover from a meal to be gathered up for future use.

This passage occurred on an occasion when Jesus preached to a crowd of thousands who listened to him for hours. When the crowd began hungry his disciples worried about how such a crowd could be fed. A boy with his own lunch of two little fish and five barley loaves offered his little gift which was blessed and used by Jesus to feed 5,000

A miracle was performed that day when the 5,000 sitting in 100 groups of fifty were fed fish and bread.

A second miracle was to follow, but is often unnoticed. When all had been fed Christ ordered the disciples to pick up all of the remaining fragments. There were enough leftovers to fill twelve baskets. The fragments were collected so that they would not be lost, implying that they could be used on other occasions.

Jesus repeated the same miracle again. A crowd of four thousand was similarly fed in Mark15:36-38. In this instance the people had followed Jesus for three long days and had nothing to eat. At the close of the meal there were seven basketfuls of fragments. They were quickly collected also.

Fish spoils quickly, bread molds after just a short time. What possible use could leftover fish and bread have? We are never told what happened to the fragments; we surmised however, that the master had need of them for a future purpose.

Some scholars have theorized that He wanted us to be concerned with the leftovers, the pieces nobody else wanted. Society is full of fragments of people whose hearts are hurting and looking for compassion. They feel they're the leftovers or the parts no one else wants. The Greek woman told Jesus she was willing to settle for the fragments, or crumbs from the Master's table; she knew even in the fragments, there was life; every morsel invaluable!

In a greater sense, the entire ministry of Jesus was directed toward those who were life's fragments. He was once criticized for spending so much time with the outcasts of the community; he responded by saying that it was not the well who needed a physician, but the sick.

The order to gather the fragments is the same passion that Jesus showed for saving the lost and reviving the homeless.
He gave His life to gather up the fragments.

The fragments

Jesus ordered that the "fragments" be gathered. It is interesting he did not describe that which was to be gathered as "remains" because that would have implied that they were dead. If he had used the term "scraps" it would have implied unusefulness. The term leftovers would have implied "after thoughts." The term used was "fragment." Herein lies special truths for us to consider. A fragment, by definition is an incomplete piece of something. It is good but it is not whole; it needs something else to make it useful.

A FRAGMENT NEEDS A PURPOSE: A fragment does not have everything it needs to stand alone. In English, we are taught that a phrase that has no verb or action is a fragment. Herein in lies the first truth: our lives need activity based purpose. The phrase "the poor this year," is a fragment because it has no verb. It needs action. Today, there are many people whose lives are missing "verbs" there is no purpose driven action. Rick Warren in his book "The Purpose Driven Life" highlights the importance of individuals and family's having a purpose that drives their action.

A person who is passionate about fighting cancer, helping the poor, protecting battered wives, restoring lost souls or sheltering abandoned animals have a sense of purpose. That purpose is the power behind the life. When that purpose is a godly purpose it gets supercharged!

People who have no purpose in life, usually have an interest, but rarely do anything. They just talk. They sit in church groups and talk about the crime in the community, but do nothing. They talk about the effect of the heat or cold on the elderly and the homeless, but they do nothing. They are like the man who sat on the crowded bus and shook his head when he saw all of the women standing. "This world is going to the dogs. Look at all of the women standing on this bus. I hate to see it." His neighbor asked him, "What are you going to do about it? The man answered, "I'll just close my eyes!"

We often have good ideas and intentions, but they are only fragments unless we act upon them. Jesus gathered his disciples together in Matthew 28:19 and showered them with three verbs: Go, teach and baptize.

Are you leading a fragmented life that has no godly based action or purpose? Why not resolve to let God use your life to make a difference? When that is done you move closer to being more than just a fragment.

A FRAGMENT NEEDS A SUBJECT: In English a fragment not only needs a verb, but it also needs a subject in order to be complete. The phrase "feeds the poor this year," has a verb but still has no subject. The subject is the person, place or thing that is doing something. Today, there are many people whose lives have plenty of activity, but their lives seem to have no central subject. When you have defined what your life is all about it gives meaning to your actions. If partying and having a good time is the subject of your life, then that explains your actions. If sex is the main subject of your life it will explain your actions. It determines how you spend your money, wear your clothes or the type of entertainment you seek. If power or politics is the subject of your life it explains many of your actions. If God is the subject of your life then that explains what you do on Sunday, the clothes you purchase, the books you read, etc. The subject of every believer's life is God. Acts 17:28 says, "For in him we live, and move, and have our being." God is the center of our lives. Song writer Richard Smallwood put it this way, "Jesus, you are the center of my joy. All that's good and perfect comes from you. You are the heart of my contentment. The hope for all I do. Jesus you are the center of my joy.

What is the subject of your life? Is God at the center of that subject? If He is, then it will determine the people with whom you associate, the places you go and the things you do. Making Jesus the subject of your life is the next step in living the complete life in Christ.

SUBJECT AND VERBS MUST AGREE: Fragments become complete sentences, when the phrase has both a subject and a verb. However, the sentence is only acceptable when the subject and verb agree. This is a complete, but incorrect sentence. "We is going to the store." It is complete because it is not a fragment, it has a subject and a verb, but it is incorrect because the subject and the verb do not agree. A plural subject requires a plural verb.

Many people today live just above fragmented lives, they have a subject, but their actions and their subject don't agree. The man who has God as the main subject of his life, but the things he does, places he goes and people he associates with are ungodly, has an agreement problem. That was Samson's problem. He was a man of God, but he was attracted to ungodly women; it became his downfall. David was a man after God's own heart, but he was an adulterer and murderer. He couldn't get it all together until both the subject of his life and the actions of life were in agreement.

Our lives must be in step with God. Psalm 37:23 says, The steps of a good man are ordered by the LORD: and he delighteth in his way. The idea is to keep our actions in line with the will of God, just as the members of the Godhead stay united. 1 John 5:7 says, "For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one."

When the fragments have both a subject and actions that agreement they complete in the fulfillment of their purpose.

Gathering the Fragments

Finally, brothers and sisters when Jesus said, "gather the fragments" it was a call to preservation and restoration of that which others thought was useless.
God has a way of recycling the fragments to rejuvenate them and make them useful for his purpose.

Many people have computers in their homes and are frustrated because they seem to run slow, even though there are no viruses and everything else is running well.

That's when you learn that you may have a fragmentation problem. It seem that each time you save a picture, letter or a file your computer breaks it up in small pieces and puts into the first available empty space it can get. One photo could possibly be broken into 50 pieces and stores all over your hard drive in fragments. When you want to see your photo it takes a long time because the computer has to search all over the hard drive for all of the parts, and hook them together so you can see them. However, a wipe and reload with data capture, clears it all out and puts everything back in place without the fragments.

If a wipe and reload can remove the fragments and make the files contiguous and whole, maybe we need to think about getting a spiritual wipe and re-load.

That's what David had in mind when he said, "Psalm 51:10,12 Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me. Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation; and uphold me with thy free spirit.

When Jesus said, "Gather up the fragments" it was a call for restoration.

Today, we cannot afford to ignore the fragments, because the master can use them.

The alcoholic is seen as a fragment and is often ignored.

The drug addict is seen as a fragment and is often ignored

The prostitute is seen as a fragment and is often ignore

What can God do with fragments?:

Often we encounter fragments in life but we don't recognize them because God wipe and reloaded them and today are called by a different name.

Today, they call him preacher but there was a time they called him pimp.

Today, they call him deacon but there was a time they called him devil

Today, they call her mother and deaconess but there was a time they called her hot mama

Today, they call you a saint, but there was a time they called you a sinner!

If you don't understand why Jesus would say, "Gather up the fragments" then take a look in your own kitchen.

The other day the meat and potatoes you ate were recycled and served again, but this time it was called hash!

The leftover turkey from your family dinner was recycled and served again, but this time it's called turkey salad.

The left over corn bread was recycled and served with baked hen or turkey and called dressing!

The leftover light bread that was hard and observable was mixed with sugar raisins and eggs and served again, but this time it was called bread pudding.

The leftover peas, corn, and chicken pieces that cluttered the refrigerator were recycled and served again, but this time they called it chicken gumbo.

Every now and then when we look at our lives we should see a fragmented life recycled by the grace of God.

I heard Jesus declare, they are left over but they have some use.

Gather up the fragments and I'll come down to give them a chance to be wipe and reloaded and to get a brand new name!

Gather up the fragments and I'll become the subject of their lives.
Gather up the fragments and I'll give their hands a great work to do and add purpose to their lives.

Gather up the fragments and save their souls as they lose themselves in agreement with my will.

No wonder Paul declared, "If any man be in Christ he is a new creature. Behold old things are passed away and all things become one.

Gather up the fragments, I'm coming to give them one more chance!

Jesus, died that I might have a second chance!

Early Sunday morning, arose from the grave that I might have a chance at eternal!

Every day He still calls out, "Gather up the fragments" -So they can be made whole again!

Lord Save me from me

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church

SCRIPTURE: Then called I upon the name of the Lord; O LORD, I beseech thee, deliver my soul. Psalm 116:4

Introduction

Have you had to rescue someone?We admire first responders, fire fighters and emergency medical responders who quickly arrive on the scene of an accident and offer assistance that often saves lives. We are relieved because we believe they know what to do to help us. We trust them and follow their instructions to the letter.

A conversation with a first responder can entertain you for hours as they unravel hair raising accounts of near death experiences for victims of fires, accidents and sickness. As we listen to them we are enthralled with their accounts and impressed with their knowledge, skill and bravery.

A firefighter who dashes into a burning house to save a victim or a first responder who responds to our emergencies with calmness and strength, are heroes in our eyes. We admire them because of their courage and their willingness to sacrifice themselves to provide assistance to others. That's what happens all too often. When storms rage, flood waters rise or other natural disasters strike our neighborhoods we expect them to be present, forgetting that they also have families. Many assist us in such times while thinking of their own loved ones at the same time.

One of the things that is probably disheartening to the first responder is when he or she is called upon so save a person repeatedly from the same tragic situation. The man who seems to call get drunk and smash his car repeatedly against trees and other objects, gets to be a regular. The boy that has to be pulled out of the pool once every week is a regular 9-1-1 near drowning victim. The couple that fights, cuts, shoots or abuses each other regularly get to be regular feature on the calls for help. Some want help at the moment, but they may not want to be saved because they constantly repeat incidents that tend to lead the same result.

When we call on God and ask him to save us, are we asking Him to save us or to restore us so that we can continue in the same path? We ask God to save us, but for many what they really mean is help us get out of this bit of trouble- until next time.

When Christ came into the world He came to save us from sin. To do that He has to save us from ourselves.

As Christians, we give God praise for sending His son to save us from the penalty of sin. Even more, we are grateful that through the Grace of God we have been saved from ourselves.

Exposition

This Psalm shows David asking God to save him from his own self inflicted maladies.

In the course of his life, David experienced many moments that were life threatening. Most of these moments were caused by enemies or by animal predators. On more than one occasion his life was threatened either by wild animals as a boy, or as a fugitive under King Saul. In each instance he saw the power of God at work saving him from danger and allowing him to skirt capture by his enemies.

However, the most difficult of his challenges did not come from enemies; his most serious challenges were prompted by his own foolishness, and disregard for the laws of God. When David sinned with Bathsheba it was a situation that he created. His murder of Uriah was a sin devised in his own mind. The tragedy that followed, the shame he endured, the feeling of guilt could not be blamed on others; he caused it himself.

In this psalm David recounts the contributory nature of his situation. In verse three he notes that the "pains of hell gat hold upon me." That's when he asked God to deliver him from himself.

He called upon God to save him, once saved he never returned to those sins again. God pulled him back from the brink of despair. In Psalm 116:5 he characterized God as considering his situation and then being merciful to him. Realizing God's mercy, David came to himself and God literally snatched him back from the brink of despair.

Thus, David pens a psalm of thanksgiving To God for saving him from himself; for showing him that even when we think there is no reason to go on, the Love and power of God prevails.

Savior

WE NEED A SAVIOR: One of the undeniable realities of life is that we often need someone to save us from ourselves. That person has to be stronger than we are or at least as strong. Every wise leader has a team of advisors who have his best interest at heart; among those there is always one who is strong enough to challenge the leader if he appears to be going in the right direction. A loving spouse will not sit idly by while their mate makes a decision that leads to destruction. Parents often take corrective action to stir their children in the right direction. It's necessary because, despite our wisdom and experience.

George Washington was the father of our country, but he was often saved from himself by Alexander Hamilton and Thomas Jefferson.

Franklin Roosevelt was a great president but it was the compassion of his wife, Eleanor, that often saved him from himself.

General Colin Powell tried to save President George Bush from plunging the nation into the Iraqi war, but it seems Bush's desire to fulfill his father's unfilled agenda became his own undoing, cost us thousands of lives and plunged the nation in debt.

Whether on a national scale or personal level, we all need someone to save us from ourselves.

What is a savior?

A true savior would have to be one that is able to protect, deliver and bestow balance in our lives. Who can protect us better then the Lord?

The psalmist reminds us that the Lord is our fortress in a time of trouble and a shelter in a time of storm. David declared in Psalms 27 that the Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear? In the time of trouble He shall hide me in His pavilion; in the secret of His Tabernacle shall He hide me. v5.

When faced with the prospect of defeat, failure or disaster, every child of God knows that friends and neighbors are fine, but his real protection comes only from being safe in the arms of Jesus.

That's why the song writer penned our plea, "Savior, Savior, hear my humble cry. While on others thou art calling. Do not pass me by!"

GOD LETS US FAIL TO SAVE US FROM US: Is it possible that we are on a path to destruction, that only a failure can correct? Sometimes nothing can save us better than a failure. A lost battle let's you know that it is possible to lose the entire war. Often small failures work to our advantage.

The family that makes good money but often spends recklessly on things that it wants but does not need, exceeding their budget is on a path to financial destruction. When the first financial problem occurs that family then prays to God to restore them to their former position. If God answered that prayer, then they would get the temporary problem solved and then return to their previous spendthrift package. However, sometimes God lets us fail up the road so we won't be destroyed down the road.

A football team with plenty of hotshots who think they know more than the coach. In their first scrimmage game, the coach said nothing. The hotshots ignored the plays sent in from the bench, but the coach said nothing. They were exhausted after playing just one quarter and played miserably, but the coach said nothing. When the team was defeated 50-0 in its first scrimmage game; surprisingly, the coach said nothing.
At the next practice however, the coach said, "You did not function as a team, you ignored instructions from the bench, you were not in shape and you failed. I let you fail because then and only then would you listen to me and get you ready to win." The team went on to become the state champions, but they had to fail in order to win.

The Reverend Richard Winn of Atlanta preached a sermon at the Ben Hill United Methodist Church in 2010 entitled, "What do you do when the problem is you?" Pastor Winn said often one family member accuses the other one thing or the other, but in reality the problem is "you." When that is the case, what do you do? That's what happened to David. God sent the prophet Nathan to say to him, "Thou art the man." The problem is you!

Only when we accept the fact that we may be our own worst enemy, can be saved.

That's when we reach the point of saying, "Lord, I'm a sinner." I can't help myself. Save me."

When we pray that prayer all the forces of heaven shift quickly to save us from us.

THERE MUST BE A NEW ME TO SAVE ME: The reality of salvation is that we are not saved if the same person emerges from the threatening situation. There must be a change of direction.

The person who avoided lung cancer is not saved if he still smokes two packs a day.

The criminal who avoided a lengthy jail term is not saved if he's still involved in criminal activity.

The man who avoided divorce because he cheated on his wife is not saved if he is still cheating.

To be saved is to turn away from our sins.

We are fooling ourselves if we claimed that we are saved, but we are still shacking, getting drunk, using drugs, stealing, fornicating, and lying. We are now IN our sins, we are saved FROM our sins. The unique nature of salvation is that many of us were saved from some of these things, but we were not SAVED so that we could continue them.

1 Corinthians 6:11 says, " And such were some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God." The key word to note, is the word WERE. It points to the past, not the present.

When we are saved we begin a new life, turning our backs completely on the life God saved us from. 2 Corinthians 5:17 says, "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new."

We are powerless to save ourselves. We can try, but we will fail every time. There is something inside of us that is more powerful than we can control. Paul, writing to the Romans said, "Romans 7:18-20 " For I know that in me (that is, in my flesh,) dwelleth no good thing: for to will is present with me; but how to perform that which is good I find not. For the good that I would I do not: but the evil which I would not, that I do.

Now if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me."Then in Romans 7:24 he said, "O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death? "

David answered Paul's question before it was even asked; only God can deliver us.

The song writer wrote, "Saved by is power divine, Saved to new life sublime. Life is so sweet and my joy is complete because I'm saved, saved, saved!"

Deliverance

Finally, brothers and sisters we must consider that there is no one who can save us from ourselves, but the Lord.

Is there a power anywhere in the world greater than the power of God?

There was once a young military the leader called Alexander the Great, the people called him the "Savior"

Alexander may have been great, but he was not the savior!

He was a deliverer, but he was not the savior!

He was great, but he was not the greatest!

He was strong, but he wasn't the strongest!

He had power, but he didn't have all power!

He was high, but he was not the highest!

He was victorious, but he didn't have the ultimate victory!

To conquer the beast within us we need a savior greater than Alexander, Julius Caesar, the Tsars or the Presidents.

There are some who say, I don't need a savior, I can save myself.

If you are your own savior then you have an impotent savior.

If you are your own savior you have a savior who cannot:

-Protect, you have a cup that can't hold water

-Deliver, you have a match that cannot strike

-Bless you, you have a light that cannot shine

-Direct you, you have a car that will not start.

-Inspire you, you have a cell phone with no minutes

-Correct you, you have a gas stove in an all electric home.

You are trying to save yourself if you do it every way, but God's way!

You are trying to save yourself if you never take yourself to the Lord!

Who can save us from us better than the Lord?

Our God is able to deliver us

The Three Hebrew boys are a glaring example of God's ability to deliver the faithful. Even though they stood glaring into the belching flames of the furnace they resolved that Our God is able to deliver us.

A song writer asks: Have you any rivers that seem uncrossable? Have you any mountains that you cannot climb? God specializes in doing the impossible, and He can do what no other power can do?

No matter what our dilemma or how wretched we may appear to ourselves, God is able to deliver us if we will but trust Him.

To save us from us, God sent his only Son to be raised up for our mess ups.

For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life!

Isaiah said he was wounded for our transgressions. He was bruised for our iniquities, the chastisement of our peace was upon him and by his stripes we are healed.

With these stripes, Jesus paid the price for our sins!

With these stripes Jesus, the lily of the valley, paid the price for our wrong doing!

With these stripes Jesus, the King of Kings, paid the penalty for our negligence.

With these stripes Jesus, the Lord of Lords, bore the agony of our irresponsibility.

He died on Calvary to save us from us!

But early Sunday morning he rose up from grave to raise us to a new life and a new hope in Jesus Christ!

Reaching the unreached

A sermon by A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church

SCRIPTURE: "And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up: That whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life. John 3:14-15 And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me. John 12:32

Introduction

What are we doing to actually reach the lost today? There are many who are embarked upon a multiplicity of activities designed to reach the lost but somehow fall short of their goal because their central pain has been misplaced.

Is it possible that our quest to reach the lost has been replaced by our desire to reach bankable membership numbers? Has our desire to build taller steeples and to fill more pews replaced our desire to save lost souls? These are questions that live at the heart of our understanding of the nature and function of the church.

It is the mission of the church to save the lost by lifting up Christ.

It is the mission of the church to expand the kingdom of God in preparation for the return of Christ.

Yet, there are many among us who have transformed that mission so much that it is hardly recognizable.

We all still preaching but what we are preaching has been reduced, in many areas, to mere entertainment. For many, the Gospel has been changed to a message of prosperity rather than a message of salvation. The appeal is not to come to Christ for the salvation of our souls, but to come to Christ so that he can bless us, enrich us and expand our territory.

In many parts of the country our revivals have been reduced to three night preaching expositions designed to inspire the saved and motivate those who are already in the service, but hardly lifting up Christ by calling for repentance and offering Christ for the pardoning of sins. Many seminaries now teach that it is not necessary to preach about Calvary and the resurrection of Christ as the source of salvation. They say going to the cross is old school.

They are right. The old school requires us to speak about the venomous snakes of sin, and Christ as the cure for sin. The new school only requires us to look to Christ to show us how to get to the promise land of prosperity meandering through a path filled with the sinful venoms of worldliness.

We have a compelling reason to preach about sin, salvation, and Christ as the sacrifice for our sin! That compelling reason is that Christ Himself has commanded us to go into the entire world and preach the gospel, save and baptize the lost and to teach discipleship to the converts. It is a prerequisite. It is a "must."

Preaching about sin and salvation is not popular these days, but we must speak of the sin so that we can show Christ as the cure. Only in the presence of sin is there a need of savior. Without preaching Christ being lifted up for the forgiveness of sin all that is left is to preach Christ so that he can help us pay our car note or give us winning lottery numbers.

There is only one way to reach those who are sinking in the sea of life, we must throw them the life line of salvation offered through faith in Jesus Christ.

As Christians, we must lift up the cross. It is through the preaching of Christ as the sacrifice for our sins that the masses of this world will have a chance to everlasting life. They key to reaching the unreached is to preach, Christ and Him only.

Exposition

This text is Jesus' response to questions posed to him by Nicodemeus about the nature of the kingdom of heaven.

Jesus told Nicodemeus that He came into the world to offer Himself as a sacrifice for the sins of the world. When asked "How can these things be?" Christ compared himself to the brazen image that Moses raised in the wilderness. At the core of the comparison was the sin of the people and the method God used to allow them achieve forgiveness.

The brazen serpent referred to a time in Israel's history when the nation wandered in the wilderness. The people endured many frustrations that included hunger, thirst, and fear. Their problems were compounded because the King of Edom would not allow them to pass through his borders complicating their situation.

The people responded by murmuring and complaining first against Moses then against God. They complained that they had no bread. They complained that they had no water even though God provided them the best of both. When they railed against the man of God, they sinned, but when complained against God himself they committed the ultimate sin. "Would God we had died in the wilderness.

The sins of the people angered God to the point that he sent snakes in the midst of them to destroy them all. When they repented and went to Moses in a spirit of humility he went to God on their behalf. The method God chose to use save them was a type of the salvation that was to come in the age of the church. He raised up a brazen shaken on a pole and all who looked upon it were saved from death.

Speaking of his death by crucifixion Christ compared his being lifted up on the cross as a way to provide salvation for the sins of men.

In John 12 Jesus, knowing what lay ahead made reference to being "lifted up" referring to the crucifixion on the cross. He made it clear to his disciples that his crucifixion would lift up the kingdom of God for the world to see and once revealed it would draw men of every persuasion, race, creed and color unto the father.

When that message and fact is presented to the world with a practical application for the lives of men and women everywhere, Jesus said "I'll draw all men unto me."

Sin, forgiveness and the cross therefore are the center pieces of church's mission. We must reach out to the masses with the cross of Jesus offering salvation to the world.

Reaching the Masses

Reaching the unreached is as much a problem today as it was in biblical times. In both cases the problem is how to get the attention of the masses. After Moses set up the brazen serpent he still had to get the people to look at it to be saved.

Today, how can we reach the unreached? We must confront sin and offer salvation in the places where the masses congregate and network. Increasingly those places are not the church itself but social networks that are on the Internet. Millions of the unsaved gather daily for hours at a time on Face book and other sites. Millions gather on twitter and similar connections as well. Yet, too few churches and even fewer pastors take advantage of these captive audiences to denounce sin and to lift Jesus up. Many churches have no websites and too many pastors have not embraced the newest and most effective ways to lift Jesus up.

The old moaner's bench approach to evangelism will not reach the masses; the church must use radio, television, the Internet, podcasts, video conferences, one call systems along with everything else that is available to lift Jesus.

All Moses was asked to do was to lift up the brazen serpent; God took care of the rest. Similarly, Christ only asks us to lift him up, He will do the drawing himself.
Dealing with the snakes

The snakes in the wilderness were venomous. They also cause problems for believers today. The presence of sin in our lives operates much like the snakes we often see.

BOA CONSTRICTORS: Survive by throwing themselves around a prey, squeezing the life out of them and then swallowing them whole. Likewise some sins are dangerous not because of their bite but by virtue of the way they throw themselves around us and, play up to us. Once they have us completely wrapped us up, they swallow us whole.

RATTLESNAKES: Are deadly and poisonous. They usually make a great noise before they strike. Each year that a rattler lives adds another rattle to its tail. The louder the rattle, the more cunning and dangerous is the rattler. Likewise, there are sins that openly attack us prompting actions filled with hate, envy and jealousy. They've been around a long time, they have destroyed many. You should be careful because they will attack you whether you are leaving them or approaching them.

EXPECT A SNAKE TO ACT LIKE A SNAKE as long as it's a snake. We should not expect the snake to act differently from its nature. A woman found a snake frozen in the cold and brought it in her home and warmed it and fed it until it returned to life. One day she held the snake to her bosom to caress it and the snake bit her. She asked him: "Why did you bite me after all I did for you?" and the snake replied, "You knew I was a snake when you took me in, so why are you upset because I do the things that snakes do."

If we embrace sin, no matter harmless it seems at the moment, it will eventually do what sin does: destroy and kill.

Has sin caused you to lose a little something? Have you drifted away from the faith? Have you lost confidence in yourself and taken a dim view of your fellow man? If so then you are suffering from snake bite. If you are already suffering from snake bite, MUST call the doctor!

I know a doctor who can:

— heal wounds caused by snake bites!

— remove poisonous venom and give new life!

— rebuild lives, shattered by the effects of sin!

— free us from the shackles of sin.

His name is Jesus and we must lift Him up!

Lifting Jesus up!

We say that we must lift Jesus up, but how? What the areas in which we need to lift up the principles of Christianity in hopes of saving lives and dying souls?

JESUS MUST BE LIFTED UP TO OUR FAMILIES: The Black family needs the church more than ever. The church must challenge the culture and forces that have hurt the black family and community, including those who "demean, degrade and belittle our mothers and daughters. To do this the church must partner with others to provide senior citizen housing, charter schools, mental health clinics, opportunities for first-time home-buyers, even restaurants to train people for work. Such action puts the word of God into concrete forms that people can see and helps families survive and thrive. Jesus says, when He is lifted up, He'll draw all men unto himself.

JESUS MUST BE LIFTED UP TO THOSE WHO HAVE LOST HOPE: There are many men and women today, who are throwing up their hands in defeat, resolved that they are in a lost cause. The defeated need the church. The defeated need to know that God is able to respond to their needs. When they feel that God does not know or care about their situation they lose hope.

Parents who have talked to and chastised wayward children with little or no visible effect have dropped their heads and dismissed them as reluctant lost causes. They need the church.

Many marriages have ended in the divorce courts because husbands and wives, frustrated with the presence of uncomfortable symptoms, have thrown up their hands in defeat. They have dismissed their sacred vows as a lost cause.

Many men and women who have been living on the wrong side of the right track take a low opinion of themselves and think because they are not, did not, and could not, that they cannot, will not and should not be anything less than a failure and have dismissed themselves as lost causes. That's why we need to lift Jesus up. When we lift Jesus up we let the world know that there is no reason to lose hope because God is still on the throne.

Reach out to lift Jesus up!

Finally, brothers and sisters, the church must go into the world and bring the message of God's grace in both precept and example. The emphasis here is on MUST. It is absolutely necessary for the church to lift Jesus up!

There are many churches today that are involved in various forms of outreach for a variety of reasons. In each case they are attempting to reach into the world in the name of Jesus.

Outreach may include providing food for the hungry, assistance to battered families, housing for the homeless, assistance to wayward youth, or promotion of benevolent causes.

Outreach is essential to kingdom building. We must reach out and touch the wounded and the lost of the world in the name of Jesus. Yet, even our outreach must come from the heart. It must be pure in its intent, not a mere photo opportunity designed to promote other goals and causes. When we help others it must come from the heart.

The church must show and tell the world that God cares; thus, we are compelled to go into the entire world.

Israel in the wilderness tried to live outside of God for a while and he punished them with a plague of snakes that bit them and they became deathly sick.

But Moses set up a brazen serpent, at the command of God, and any man that would look up at the brazen snake could be healed.

But I hear Jesus saying that just as Moses told Israel that it could be healed from snakebites by lifting up their eyes to look upon the brazen serpent, so can men today be saved from sin if they would look to Jesus.

I hear Jesus saying, "And I, if I, be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me."

The cross has drawing power because it offers the hope of Salvation.

The higher the cross is lifted the more men are drawn.

So, men women of God, assembled from across this great district, let's lift Jesus up, so the world can receive the gospel message of hope.

We must lift Jesus up and with Him the good news of salvation.

We must lift Jesus up with the gospel message of compassion and concern.

We must lift Jesus up knowing that if we lift Him up He will draw all men to Himself.

We must go into the world so that it will know that the power of God can change lives.

We must go into the world so that it will know that the power of God can change communities and nations!

I hear the words of the song writer who said, "How to reach the masses, men of every birth, For an answer, Jesus gave the key: "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, Will draw all men unto Me."

Lift Him up, lift Him up; Still He speaks from eternity: "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, Will draw all men unto me."

We must lift Him up because He saw a world filled with hatred and tried to bring love!

We must lift Him up because He saw a world filled with defeat and brought a message of victory!

We must lift him up because He saw a world filled with weakness and brought a message of strength!

He saw a world filled with darkness and challenged it to walk in the light!
They called him Jesus; he made a world of difference!

Before he left he told his disciples to stay ready because "I'm going to create another world! "That where I am ye may be also!"

In that world, every day will be Sunday and the Sabbath will have no end!
In that world, it'll always be howdy and never good-bye!

In that world, hearse wheels will not roll!

No wonder the song writer declares, "When we all get to heaven, what a day of rejoicing that will be! When we all see Jesus, we'll sing and shout the victory!"
In that world we'll see Jesus, who died out on Calvary and arose early Sunday morning.

Until he comes back again..
Lift him up!
Lift him up!
Lift him up!

A Text that only love understands

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: This they said, tempting him, that they might have to accuse him. But Jesus stooped down, and with his finger wrote on the ground, as though he heard them not. So when they continued asking him, he lifted up himself, and said unto them, He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her. 8 And again he stooped down, and wrote on the ground. John 8:6-8

Introduction

Have you ever tried to read a message but could not understand what was written? It's that way with some handwriting; only those familiar with the writer can figure it out. Penmanship was once a prerequisite in school and was looked upon as the mark of intelligent man or woman. Today, cursive writing isn't emphasized other than the basics since computers have become so predominate.

Even among computer users the emphasis has changed. There is very little emphasis on learning the keyboard on a typewriter to get speed and avoid mistakes because all computers allow for quick back spacing if a word is mistyped and instant identification of misspelled words. Many users, including children can input data very quickly without actually mastering the keyboard.

The emphasis today is on speed. Spelling is not as significant as getting the right thought across. That makes it possible for a whole new way of communicating to develop, called texting. The idea began in 1993. It was called SMS or Short Message Service. It didn't catch on until 2001-2004 with the mass use of cell phones.

A text message usually carries about 140 characters. It's short and to the point. A generation of youth latched onto the new communication method they could use on their cell phones and texting was born, complete with its own language. Since messages must be short, those who text have developed their own shortcuts to say longer phrases in as few characters as possible.

Today, text messaging is the way many people communicate. Yet it has a typology that is unique to those who understand it.

"Lol" means Laugh out loud.

"BC" means because.

"BRB" means "Be right back."

"OMG" means "Oh my God!"

It doesn't take much space to say, "I love you," ILU

When God was angry with the world he destroyed it with a flood. When He was angry with Sodom and Gomorrah for sexual sins, he destroyed it by fire. When God decided he would no longer destroy the world with floods, he sent a rainbow.

When God wanted to show His love for the world He sent a five letter text message to the world in the person of His son..Jesus.

Jesus was a living text message from heaven. His name said it all.

If world needed healing, Jesus!

If the world needed a mediator between God and man, Jesus!

If the world needed a savior and sacrificial lamb for its salvation, Jesus!

The international distress signal is S.O.S when the world is in trouble, but the international response is J.E.S.U.S.

Jesus was heaven's answer to man's problems. The answer could be summed up in one name "Jesus"

As Christians, we may not know all of the syntax of the modern SMS system, but we are excited to know the name of Jesus. It's the sweetest name we know!

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he writes a message on the ground. It was a message that only love could understand.

His accusers sought an opportunity to trick him and brought before him a woman that was caught in adultery. What shall we do with her? That was the question. The Mosaic Law required death for a man and a woman caught in adultery and the religious leaders hoped to catch Jesus in a self incriminating circumstance. If He said she should be put to death He would be exercising an authority only given to the Roman government and would be turned in as treasonous. On the other hand if He said she should not be stoned He would contradict the laws of Moses. Jesus stooped and wrote on the ground and then responded "He that is without sin among you, let him cast the first stone." Convicted in their own minds they left one by one without throwing a single stone.

No one knows exactly what Jesus wrote on the ground. It has been the subject of many books, articles, and research papers. What He wrote has never been revealed, but that has not stopped the speculation about its content.

Among the many ideas is the one that says since Jesus was a rabbi that He may have written in a shorthand used by rabbis called Kesher. Kesher was a special shortcut that allowed the rabbis to write just a word or two that instantly referred to a passage of the law. It's what we would call texting. If that was the case then Jesus might have scribbled the reference to Deuteronomy 17 which required witnesses to a crime to cast the first stone to kill a person accused of a crime. Since his command that the persons without sin should cast the first stone referred to this passage there are many who believe what he wrote on the ground may have pointed to this passage.

No one understands the message that was written, but everyone understood the final result. The love of God was shown when Jesus told the sinful woman to go and send no more.

That was a message not written in the punishing tone of the Old Testament, it was a message that only love understands.

God's message

God sent his message to the world in many different ways. Sometimes He has sent prophets to speak his words before the people or before the leaders of the land. Once he left a message in the rainbow. When Balaam refused to see his angel he even had made a donkey talk. However, the method he used most frequently was his written word, the Holy Bible. Despite the fact that we know our bibles have a message from God often we don't read them or take them seriously; our cell phones are treated more importantly.

An anonymous internet post posed a series of questions about the priorities we place on our cell phones as compared to our bibles:

What if we carried it around in our purses or pockets?

What if we flipped through it several times a day?

What if we turned back to go get it if we forgot it?

What if we used it to receive messages from the text?

What if we treated it like we couldn't live without it?

What if we gave it to Kids as gifts?

What if we used it when we traveled?

What if we used it in case of emergency?

However, unlike our cell phone, we don't have to worry about our Bible being disconnected because Jesus already paid the bill.

Message of Love

While the world does not know what Jesus scribbled on the ground, it is sure that it must have meant love because the whole ministry of Jesus was about love. It is a recurring theme throughout the bible.

In Genesis we see God's love for the world restored after the flood with the rainbow in the sky.

After 400 years of slavery God showed his love for Israel by freeing them from slavery and carrying them to the Promised Land.

He showed His love through the example Hosea marrying a wife of whoredom to show the world what real love was about. Even though she cheated he was willing to restore her again.

The message about real love made it clear to us that:

Real love is not in the physical attraction but a product of a godliness.

Real love is the kind that the woman about to be stoned encountered. It is often not understood.

Only a person who loves and has been loved understands the language of love. The woman was about to be stoned, not being a rabbi, probably could not read the writing on the ground, but she understood when the ordeal ended that she had been forgiven for her sins. She could not read the writing, but she knew it meant forgiveness and another chance.

This man named Jesus, wrote her a love note on the ground. Her eyes could not interpret the letters, but her heart knew what they meant; she had been given another chance.

God's love

Finally, brothers and sisters we should note that when God decided to send us His message of love He did not take a shortcut, He sent His son Jesus.

The decision to send the world a message that would be meaningful and sufficient has been lost on those who do not understand God's way. They failed to understand how one man dying could bring salvation to all; but love understands.

They fail to understand how one man's touch can heal the sick; but love understands.

We can only imagine what God must of have thought when He decided upon his ultimate message to the world that would demonstrate his love.

I could give them the stars, but soon the stars would stop twinkling!

I could give them the moon, but after awhile, the moon would cease to shine!

I could give them the warmth of a summer day, but summers last only for short and then comes the fall!

I could give them silver and gold, but there will come a time when they will lose their value!

I could set them afloat on the calm seas of life! But there will come a time when storms will rise!

I want to give them a message that will be with them always, even until the end of the world!

What did God decide to give? John 3:16 says, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life!

Jesus was the Son of God in the flesh. John 1:14 says, "And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth."

He gave the world His only son!

He was wounded for our transgressions

He was bruised for our iniquities!

They whipped Him and tried Him all night long

They put a crown of thorns on His head!

They hung him up high and stretched him out wide!

You ain't the only one

SCRIPTURE: For she said within herself, If I may but touch his garment, I shall be whole. Matthew 9:21; "And when the men of that place had knowledge of him, they sent out into all that country round about, and brought unto him all that were diseased; And besought him that they might only touch the hem of his garment: and as many as touched were made perfectly whole." Matthew 14: 35-36

Introduction

Have you heard the old song, "It's me, it's me o' Lord, standing in the need of prayer?" It's an old song that has been stripped from the pages of our cultural experience expressing our need for God to respond to our special situation. The idea is that while mama and papa, sister and brother stand in the need of prayer; we do, too. They are not the only ones.

The old slave song made the point clearly: we all need the touch of God's divine hand in our lives. Those old songs had a way of underscoring great truths although the English language may have been massacred in the process. The heavy use of contractions and passive voice were unique to the old way.

"Ain't" is one those terms from our experience that seems to say whatever we need it to say. In once instance it means "do not have" such as "ain't got long to stay here." In another instance it means "Is not" as in the song, "Ain'ta that good news." It also means "am not" as in "I ain't gon' study war no more." It also means "are not" as in "You ain't the only one."

The hand of God is awesome and widespread. It touches everyone: rich and poor, black and white, male and female because everyone, even if they don't know it yet, needs a touch of God's goodness upon their lives.

As Christians, we all want to feel the power of God. While each of us has needs we do not have exclusive rights to God's grace, because "We ain't the only ones" who need to be touched by the hand of God.

Exposition

These two texts focus on two incidents in the ministry of Jesus in which He touched the lives a woman and then many who were brought to Him by men.

Matthew 9 focuses on an incident in the life of Christ in which a sick woman was healed by exercising her faith.The incident tells of a time in which Jesus was surrounded by a crowd of people as He passed, only to be touched by a single woman who received a healing blessing as a result.

The woman had an "issue of blood." That's another way of saying she had a hemorrhage of some kind. Her condition had existed for 12 years despite the fact that she had consulted all of the best physicians of her time. No one was able to cure her disease. The woman heard that a healer from God was in their midst. She made up her mind to take her condition to the Son of God. Defying all of the laws, she made her way through the crowd, no doubt touching many people as she forged through. She felt she probably wouldn't be able to get a personal interview with Him, but concluded in her mind that if she could simply touch the hem of His garment that she would receive the same blessing. After all, God's healing power certainly would not be limited by such a small thing as a personal interview.

When the woman touched Jesus' garment, He immediately felt something. With hundreds of people around Him, obviously pushing and shoving out of curiosity, He was able to "feel" the prayerful touch of a woman who had been sick for many years. He felt power going out of Him. He sensed that someone had just been healed.

When it became known that someone had been healed by the master, the woman told her story to the amazement of the crowd. Jesus responded to her by saying that her faith had made her whole.

While Matthew 9 deals with one woman who need to touch Jesus, Matthew 14 tells what happened when the news that a woman was healed by touching the hem of His garment. The passage reveals that a group of men, when they came to the knowledge of Jesus, sought to bring as many people as they could to also touch the hem of His garment. True to form, all those who touched His garment in faith were healed as well.

The woman wasn't the only one, but men too learned that all are welcomed into the healing presence of the savior.

The woman touched

The woman with the issue touched the hem of Jesus' garment. It wasn't the garment that provided her instant healing, but her faith.

There is something amazing that happens when our faith touches the soul of the savior; the power of God flows. This woman touched Jesus' garment and felt His power, but on the morning of the resurrection there were other women who had been touched by the power of God.

Several women, including Mary Magdalene, Joanna and Mary the Mother of James came to the tomb and found that the body of Jesus was missing. An angel told them He is not here, but is risen. When they realized that the savior had risen they had to run and tell the disciples.

He had touched their lives and they could not contained themselves.

The women gave a testimony of their experience..

Even today, those who have been touched by the hand of God perform a mighty work when they share what God has done in their lives with others.

The woman in Matthew had been healed. The women on the resurrection morning had been inspired.

They needed to touch and be touched!

Maybe that's what the Angelic Gospel Singers had in mind when they wrote their popular song, "Touch me Lord Jesus"

Touch, touch me Lord Jesus
With Thy hand of mercy
Make each throbbing heartbeat
Feel Thy power divine
Take my will forever
I will doubt Thee never
Oh, cleanse, cleanse me dear Saviour
Make me wholly Thine

The women needed to touch and be touched so they could benefit from God's power.

The women needed to touch and be touched so they glorify God in all of His majesty!

The women needed to touch and be touched so they be whole in the presence of God.

The men needed a touch too!

Matthew 14 makes special note that the men of the area acknowledged the woman's faith and when they came into the knowledge of God they brought others to Jesus.

The action of the men almost echoed the text subject, "You ain't the only one needing a touch." There were hundreds of others who needed a touch as well. Inspired by the action of the woman, the men brought others who had issues to Jesus.

The text notes that as many as touched were made whole. Whether they touched Jesus, his garment or whether he touched them, we don't know, but we are sure that as many as touched were made whole.

Just as the women wanted to be touched the men wanted to touch and be touched as well.

Everyone who is touched has a testimony to give, like the woman at the well who said, "Come see a man, who told me all I've ever done!"

But the woman at the well wasn't the only one who needed a touch, a blind man was asked to tell his story of how he was touched, all he said is "I was once blind, but now I see."

Women ain't the only one's with a testimony, men have a story to tell as well.

Each time we testify, we say like the songwriter, He touched me, he touched me.

And oh the joy that floods my soul.

Something happened and now I know he touched me and made me whole.

Everyone with an issue needs a touch

Finally brothers and sisters, we must consider that everyone who has an issue in life needs a touch.

The men brought people from all around. The types of problems that they had were not enumerated, but one thing is for certain; they all had one issue or another.

The good thing about this text is that it said, all who were touched were made whole.

Are you dealing with an issue in your life? Push your way through the crowd and give it to Jesus!

Don't say in your mind, "I am insignificant!" or "He doesn't know who I am!"

Don't say in your mind, "I haven't been as faithful as I should have been!"

Don't say in your mind, "I can't get to him because there are others closer to him!"

Push your way through the crowd and say, "If I can but touch the hem of his garment, I will be made whole"

If you think you are all alone with your own personal issues, pleased be advised that you ain't the only one who needs a touch!

If you are dealing with:

FAILURE, you need a touch, and He can turn failure into success;

SADNESS, you need a touch, and He can turn sadness into gladness;

SICKNESS,you need a touch, and He can turn it into good health!

BURDENS, you need a touch, and He can take your burdens and make them light!

DEFEAT, you need a touch, and He can take your defeat and turn it into victory!

BLOSSES, you need a touch, and He can take your losses and turn them into gains!

HEARTACHES, you need a touch, I know a God who specializes in mending broken hearts!

TROUBLE MARRIAGE, you need a touch, I know a God who can turn your old lady into the first lady, who can turn your old man into the King of the Castle!

If you need a savior, you ain't the only one, millions have found Him and you can too!

Push your way through the crowd; reach out and touch the hem of His garment and His blood shall make you whole!

His name is Jesus

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who was buried in borrowed tomb!

Jesus, who arose early Sunday morning!

If you are standing in the need of a blessing, you won't be by yourself! You ain't the only one!

The Second Time Around

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 25, 2011

SCRIPTURE: "When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man, he walketh through dry places, seeking rest, and findeth none. Then he saith, I will return into my house from whence I came out; and when he is come, he findeth it empty, swept, and garnished. Then goeth he, and taketh with himself seven other spirits more wicked than himself, and they enter in and dwell there: and the last state of that man is worse than the first. Even so shall it be also unto this wicked generation. Matthew 12:43-45 When he shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe (because our testimony among you was believed) in that day. 2 Thessalonians 1:10

Introduction

If you could live a portion of your life over again would things be different? If you could roll back the years and relive certain periods of your life would you do everything the same way? If you could go back in time and take what you know now with you, would you be a stronger, wiser, more fulfilled person than you are today? We often say," If I only knew then what I know now what a difference things would be." We probably would've studied more in school. We probably would not have quit that job. We might have turned down that night of romance. Things might have been tremendously different if we knew then what we know now.

We have read many books and seen many movies about people who attempted to go back in time and correct what they thought were major errors of the past. Books about time travel and movies such as back to the future titillate our fantasies as we wonder what could happen if one thing from our past could be adjusted just a little. If there were no Hitler or Mussolini or Saddam Hussein perhaps the world as we know it today would be different. If there had been no Osama bin Laden the world would not live on the edge of terror as it does today. Certainly the world would be different, but there is no guarantee that it would be better.

If given a second chance many of us would not make the same mistakes we made before. If given a second chance we would approach life differently and embrace all of its moments more sacredly than we did at the first. There are even some who agree with the late Luther Vandross when he said these words in his hit song, "The Second Time Around:

It's such a silly thing
For you to say
That you don't want love around

Don't you know that ...
Love will be better (Yeah), better than ever (Oooh Yeah)
The second time (Around), around
Ooo Yeah
Love will be better (Yeah), better than ever (Oooh Yeah)
The second time (Around)

If you leave the devil and go back, what do you think life would be like the second time around? If you begin a life in the church, start to study your Bible, begin to worship regularly, and begin the walk a life of faith; what would that life be if you suddenly stopped and returned to the life you left? Would the devil welcome you with arms wide open? Would all be forgiven? Would the misery you once knew be restored?

What about God? Is the life of a person who has returned to God better or worse because of the decision? Will God turn you around, or punish you for having left in the first place?

What we know about God has taught us that God is a merciful God who forgives our past transgressions and gives us a chance to a brand-new life more abundant than we have ever known before.

As Christians, we are the recipients of God's amazing grace. We are living new lives in Christ. We are living examples that, with Christ, life is truly better the second time around.

Exposition

This text focuses upon Jesus as he explains what happens to those who reject God the second time around.

Throughout his ministry Jesus had been the subject of attack and ridicule by the scribes and Pharisees. They characterized his ministry as one that came from the devil himself. They questioned his claim to be the son of God. They sought to discredit him in the eyesight of the people by constantly asking him to give more details about the kingdom of God. In this passage they approach him again asking him to give them aside that would prove that he was truly the son of God.

Answering his critics Jesus said that he would only give them one sign and that would be the sign of the prophet Jonas. At verse 40 he begins to describe how Jonas was commissioned to go to the people of Nineveh and tell them to repent. Their chance at revival only came after Jonas went through three days and nights in the belly of the fish. After that, Jonas went to Nineveh and preached repentance to a rebellious nation. The people heard him and they turn from their wicked ways. Their lives were saved and they were given brand-new starts to help them to know God better the second time around.

In making this comparison Jesus compared Himself to Jonas in that like Jonas He would be in the grave three days and three nights and the resulting message of salvation that the people would hear would give them an opportunity for life more abundantly the second time around.

In contrast Jesus gave a second example. This time he told of a man who had been swept clear of a demon. He noted that when the evil spirit left he roam the land and desert places in a non-restful state. When he could find no place else to dwell the evil spirit decided to return to his old stomping ground. Upon his return he found the house to be swept and cleaned but unoccupied, so he decided to return and take up residence, but he did not return alone; he brought seven other spirits with him that were more evil than himself. Jesus said the state of this man the second time around was worse than his beginning.

Jesus used this illustration to point out to the scribes and Pharisees the fallacy of their thinking that their rituals and ceremonies led men to righteousness. The people appeared to be righteous for a while but they were not filled with anything; they had only emptiness, if they were not filled with the abundant life teachings of Christ. This emptiness would lead ultimately to a greater fall than the first.

Life without Jesus would be terrible the second time around.

Paul, writing to the Thessalonians in 2 Thessalonians 1:10 gave of this the picture of life with Jesus when he returns to establish His kingdom on earth. The second time around He will triumph over Satan completely. The second time around He will be received by believers in glory. The second time around He will begin eternity, abolish death, pain and sickness. The second time around we will have life without Satan and it will truly be more abundant.

The First Time Around

The example that Jesus gave allowed us to see the second time around of the man whose life had been filled with demons. What about our lives? What did our lives look like the first time around?

WE WERE FILLED WITH SIN: Our lives before Christ were nothing to brag about. If we are truthful many of us could confess that our lives were filled with many unmentionables that are far from the lives we live today. There are some of us who were drunkards, drug addicts, thieves, prostitutes, and a plethora of other sinful types that are described in 1 Corinthians 6:11 when it says: “but such were some of you, but ye are washed, ye are sanctified, in the blood of the lamb.” Indicative of our lives was a virtual maze of bad choices, sinful living and rejection of God. In our youth we felt invulnerable to the power of God as we tasted the brew prepared for us by a sinful world. In our professional lives we absorbed ourselves in the pursuit of worldly gains mostly by sacrificing our worship and service to God. We found ourselves increasingly seeking the whole world but losing our souls. We became wretched creatures, spiritually tormented between what we knew we should be doing which was a stark contrast to what we were actually doing. Like David we reached a point in our lives when we said, “Create in me a clean heart O God and restore unto me a right spirit.”

WE REFORMED OURSELVES BUT WE DIDN’T REPENT: When we considered our position many of us decided that it was time for us to reform ourselves. We made some very serious resolutions about our lives. We decided to stop some things. We decided to alter some of the things. And we also decided to go in a different direction. Like the man in Christ example we swept our houses clean. We swept out the whiskey bottles. We swept out the drugs. We swept out the promiscuous activity. We even changed directions when it came to our merciless pursuit of profit and gain. The demon of sin left us as we lived very clean lives. Yet despite our house cleaning there were still residues of what we once were. The old carnal man was still there. The residues of the street life, that urge for whore mongering, gambling and that mean and revengeful life was still present in one form or another. We swept away the actions, but the urges were still there.

The devils that once haunted us came back on occasion and peeked in our windows and they found that while we had reformed we had not repented. Our house was clean, but we had not filled it with the one thing that could keep the devils away and that was a life filled with the spirit of Almighty God.

We tried to kick the world cold Turkey. We revamped our selves, but we were not new creatures. 2 Corinthians 5:17 says, "If any man be in Christ he is a new creature, old things are passed away, all things are become new." There was no prayer life, Bible study regimen, regular worship or passionate service that took the place of what we swept away; the devil saw our empty state and returned with a vengeance the second time around.

SIN PAYS YOU BACK WHEN YOU COME BACK: There are many who can testify that once you leave the street life and then returned to it sin has a way of paying your back when you come back. It is like the person who stopped smoking for years and then finally took that for smoke; that's when the pack grab them back. It is like the alcoholic who takes that first drink after being off the wagon for such a long time. Jesus said when the demon saw that the house was empty that he returned and brought seven other demons with him making the man's final condition worse than his first.

Those who have attempted to change their lives must remember that the devil has never taken his eyes off of you. Scripture says that the devil goes to and fro like a roaring lion looking for an opportunity to devour you. Once you sample the forbidden fruit in the words of Al Green one more time, "for the good times," the devil latches on and will cause you considerable problems in payment for leaving him in the first place.

The only real solution is to keep your mind focused on the right track so that you never go back. That's when the words of the song become meaningful to you, "I have decided to follow Jesus no turning back, no turning back."

The Second Time

Finally brothers and sisters we must consider that while the devil pays you back when you come back, our Savior still offers you a crown the second time around.

If we tell the truth we will have to admit that God has not failed us, we have failed

God. We should take consolation in knowing that we serve a God who is forgiving by nature and will always offer the truly repentant a second chance.

We want a chance to make it right with God and if we could do it right this time things would be better the second time around.

We don't want to simply reform ourselves; we want to give ourselves totally and completely to the Lord and put ourselves in His hands.

We are not by ourselves when we confess that we didn't do it right the first time, but there is an army of believers that can testify that life was better the second time around.

The first time around, Jonah ignored the will of God and tried to go in another direction. However after spending three days and three nights in the belly of the whale he told the Lord if you'll give me another chance I'll do it right the second time around.

The first time around, Samson was hard headed and did not observe his Nazirite's vow. He flirted with ungodly women and costume both a strength and his sight. However in a Philistine dungeon he cried out to the Lord if you just give me one final chance I'll do it right the second time around.

The first time around, Hosea's wife cheated on him repeatedly even though he expressed love for her on every hand. Though she ridiculed him, left him and ran after other men, Hosea found her in her despair and brought her home proving that with true love it can be better the second time around.

The first time around we were not altogether faithful to God.

The first time around we came to church but the church was never in us.

The first time around we gave an offering but it was far from what it should have been.

The first time around we sang a song but we didn't live the life we sing about in the song.

The first time around we showed our face and worship but we never turned out face to the Lord.

Then one day we stop to think about and realized how much we have misplaced our priorities.

When we were in danger God protected us.

When we were weak God strengthened us.

When we were discouraged God inspired us.

When we were burdened God lightened our load.

When we would helpless God helped us to help ourselves.

That's when we say it lauded you give me another chance I'll do it better the second time around.

The second time around I'll praise you because:

You've given me an everlasting hope;

You lifted me out of the miry Clay;

You have comforted me in my sorrows;

You have healed me in my sickness;

You have protected me in times of danger;
You have corrected me when I strayed;
You have sanctified me through your blood!
The second time around, I'll lift you up everyday because Out on Calvary you died for me!
I'm glad that it didn't end there because Early Sunday morning you arose from the grave!
And you are coming back again, to set things in order!
The second time around, the wicked will cease from troubling!
The second time around, the weary will be at rest!
I don't know about you but I want to be in that number when Jesus comes to rule this old world...
The second time around!

"Get Ur Done!"

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 2, 2011

SCRIPTURE: Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest."-Ecclesiastes 9:10.

Introduction

Have you ever planned to do something, then put it off until another date? When that day came did you put it off again? Are there several things on your to-do list that still remained undone? Are some of those things plans that have been lingering for quite a long time? If so then welcome to the world of procrastinators; those people who are very good planners, but find it difficult to actually do the things they plan to do.

By nature, a procrastinator is a person who always delays during the necessary until it is absolutely unavoidable. These are the last minute people, those who struggle to make deadlines, but often fail to get it done on time or at all. The procrastinator never gets around to fixing the leaking pipe, repairing the roof, filing the necessary paperwork, beginning the diet, getting the appointment, saving the money, or doing anything else that must be done.

There are many kinds of procrastinators. Preachers, deacons, choir members, the young and even the old make up the ranks of the procrastinators. Many have trouble making up their minds to do what needs to be done, when it needs to be done, the way it needs to be done.

One of the famous punch lines of Larry the cable Guy a nationally popular self-proclaimed redneck comedian is "get ur Done." Of course the emphasis of this line of comedy is completing that which is started.

The sales manager of a large real estate firm was interviewing an applicant for a sales job. "Why have you chosen this career?" he asked.

"I dream of making a million dollars in real estate, like my father," the young man replied.

"Your father made a million dollars in real estate?" asked the impressed sales manager.

"No," replied the young man. "but he always dreamed of it."

Many are dreaming, but their dreams never take form because they never take action. In the New Testament of the Bible there is a book that has a title that every procrastinator should observe: it is not called the dreams of the apostles or the plans of the apostles but the emphasis is the Acts of the Apostles. It records things that were done.

As Christians, it is important that we be about the business of kingdom building. Talk is cheap but when it comes to advancing the kingdom of the Savior it is incumbent upon all of us to "Get ur Done."

Exposition

This text focuses upon Solomon as he gives observations about life and our need to use each day for fruitful purposes.

The book of Ecclesiastes is a summary of the wisdom of King Solomon as he reviewed life and the men and women who meander through it each and every day. His conclusions were recorded in the book of Ecclesiastes as a guide to those who would come after him and profit from the wisdom of his evaluation.

In this chapter Solomon observed that there is a certain time frame in which things must be done. In chapter three he noted that there was a time for everything under the sun. He listed off various examples including: a time to be born and a time to die, a time for war and a time for peace and other observations. In this chapter he underscores the urgency of the moment noting that each person only has a certain allotted time for this life after which nothing can be done.

In the first ten verses of this chapter he observes that the limits of each person is defined by the length of time that God has given them on this Earth. Once that time has come nothing else can be done. Once our allotted time frame has expired there can be no accomplishments or enjoyments in this world. Since that is the case Solomon concludes that each person should do that which is divinely assigned to them, and do it quickly reported around time. He points to running out of time as approaching your grave.

This text encourages every believer too busy himself doing that which God has assigned him to do with enthusiasm, energy, and vigor. We all encourage to "Get ur Done."

What needs to be done?

Solomon spoke across the centuries and urge each individual to look around them and take a mental survey of what needs to be done then do it. Jesus speaking to his disciples encourage them to "work while it is day for when the night comes no man can work." Considering that we are urged to become activists rather than conversation-alists we might consider the following:

DO WHAT YOUR HANDS KNOW HOW TO DO: With respect to the work that is before you, we should answer the question about what to get done by beginning with those things that we already know how to do. We could engage in lengthy discussions about missionary work on foreign shores, feeding hungry children in Africa or assisting the distress in a faraway place, but that would be frustrating because our arms can't reach that far. At best, we can send contributions or missionary representatives, but for the most part it is out of reach. However, there are some things we can do that are within our reach. We can fight poverty in our own neighborhoods, we can have a child find his way, we can server meal to a hungry person, we can speak for an injured person who cannot speak for himself. We can let God use us in our own neighborhoods touching the distressed, the lonely and the needy.

The text encourages us to do whatsoever our hands find to do. The implication is that we should do that which we know how to do. The cook can cook for others. The mechanic can provide mechanical services for others. The doctor can provide medical advice and assistance to those who otherwise would not receive it. The teacher can assist those struggling with course work. And those with the gift of healing hands can sit with the sick, visit the shut-ins, and touched the world around them every day. We are not called upon to go beyond our abilities, but we are required to do whatsoever our hands can do. We will be held accountable for our failure to give back to others as God has blessed us.

ATTACK THE REASONS THAT WE PROCRASTINATE: If we know that God has commanded us to help build the kingdom of God yet many of us are receiving but we have been to members in the kingdom we must analyze why we procrastinate. There are six reasons that we failed to "get ur Done."

-Things that look too big we put them off. Whether it's the church, the community or a professional assignment, we tend to put things off if they appear to be large, cumbersome, and time-consuming. Those who have succeeded in this area have learned to break large tasks into small tasks and attack the small ones one by one. Those who are unable to do this usually procrastinate.

-We procrastinate about doing unpleasant things. Those things which would require pain, discomfort or increased stress we tend to put off. Those who have succeeded have learned to give themselves small rewards when an unpleasant task has been done. Youth will spend a day cleaning debris from the streets if they reward themselves with a pizza party afterwards. Perhaps every unpleasant duty that has to be done should be followed by a more pleasant reward reducing the tendency toward procrastination.

-Those who cannot prioritize usually procrastinate. Priorities suggest putting first things first or making the main thing the main thing. Many people have difficulties listing what needs to be done and placing the most important things at the top of the list, therefore they usually run out of time when it comes to things that I important because they did less important things first. They committed to a service at a church which was a high priority, but the service contradicted with their favorite television program which was a low priority. The inability to do first things first causes many people to procrastinate and become distracted.

-Fear of failure causes many others to procrastinate. Many do not tackle a task because they're afraid if they do they may fail. When America faced the prospect of World War II president Roosevelt reminded the country that the only thing it had to fear was fear itself. Many fear the rejection of others if their actions fail. However, when God has given us a work to do we should plan it, and carry it out seeking only his approval and not that of men.

WE SHOULD WORK WITH ALL OF OUR MIGHT: There are many people who begin a service for the Lord, but they do so with half their heart and not with all of their might. Solomon encouraged us to do what it is that we have to do with all of our might. There are many people today who have a show your face toward their service. They join the church and a handful of organizations whose activities, times and goals often conflict. Those individuals find themselves showing their faces in some circles but not serving with all of that might. All of your might implies all of your talent, all of your ability, all of your time, and all of your strength. When we give the Lord our service with all of our might the devil would not be able to stand the great work that we would be able to do. As it stands, many churches are filled with members who show their faces occasionally but have not committed themselves to serve the Lord with all of their might. Samson was a strong man who did a great work for the Lord but it wasn't until he served him with all of his might that he brought his greatest victory. Pastor, are you serving the Lord with all your might? Deacons are you serving the Lord with all your might with all the time and talent that you have available? Ushers, teaches, and members in the pew, is your present service the best that you could possibly do? Are you serving the Lord with all your might? Solomon reminded us that there's only a certain amount of time that each of us has, and during that available time we must "Get ur Done."

Salvation, Jesus got it done

Finally brothers and sisters, I'm glad to know that when the world needed salvation Jesus did not put it off, but he got it done.

When Solomon finished his analysis of the needs of the kingdom and the temptations that man can faced he summarized his findings by saying, "let us hear the conclusion of the matter, dear God and keep his Commandments for that is the whole duty of man."

Whatever God needs us to do we should be willing to do, making service to the kingdom our number one priority. We should do this remembering what he told us in Matthew 6:33, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and its righteousness and all of these things shall be added unto you."

Therefore we should keep the words of Galatians 6:9 in our hearts, "and let us not grow weary while doing good for in due season we shall reap if we do not lose heart."

When we look for an example of the kind of commitment necessary to build the kingdom we can't look to mortal man because he is flawed and will make errors. We can't look at the pastor, neither can we pattern after the deacons, Sunday school superintendent or members of the usher board. If we want to know how to get it done we have to watch the one who came down here from heaven to show us the way.

When the world suffered from a lack of direction, sin stained lives, and moral corruption, God needed somebody who would come to the earth and show men the way.

In the fullness of time God scanned the roll of His saintly warriors and asked the is there any among you who can get it done?

Is there anybody among the prophets willing to die for the sins of mankind? Who will get it done? Whom shall I send?

In the fullness of time God searched the staff files of heaven and looked for someone to get it done, but every man every name that popped up was in adequate because they had their own problems, distractions and woes

-David can you get it done? No I have blood on his hands!

-Samson, can you get it done? No have a woman problem!

-Hosea, can you get it done? No I have a cheating wife

-Esau, can you get it done? No I have a crooked brother who may cause a problem!

-Balaam, can you get it done? No I have a pocket full of bribery money

I heard the voice of the Lord saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then said I, Here am I; send me.

Send me and I'll get it done!

Send me and I'll tell them that 'blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God.

Send me and I'll tell them that 'blessed are the merciful for they shall obtain mercy.

Send me and I'll tell them that 'blessed are they that mourn for they shall be comforted.

Send me and I'll do more than tell them, I'll show them how much God loves the world!

He did not procrastinate, He came down through 42 generations.

When the time was right, He was born down in Bethlehem!

He healed the sick and raised the dead!

He fed thousands and made the blind see!

When the time was right, He picked up an old rugged cross and carried to Golgotha's hill

Hanging on the cross I heard him tell His father, Father, It's done! It is finished! and he dropped His head and died

They buried Him in a borrowed tomb, but Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave!

Standing Upon My Watch

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 2011

SCRIPTURE: Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. Ephesians 6:11-12; "I will stand upon my watch, and set me upon the tower, and will watch to see what he will say unto me, and what I shall answer when I am reproved." Habakkuk 2:1

Introduction

How would you like to stand in front of a hostile and unappreciative audience and tell them things that they did not want to know? How would you like to speak against an evil that many found acceptable and rewarding? How would you like to face an enemy knowing that often you would be standing alone? None of us would like that situation. In fact, many of us would find that a very distasteful task. Yet, that is often the task of the local pastor as he proclaims the gospel of Jesus Christ.

The pastor often has the responsibility to stand firm when he sees danger approaching and to sound the beacon of hope when the multitude is hiding in despair. It is often a lonely task because the crowds follow those who bring them the good news. Every prophet would love to have a message that is always optimistic and filled with promises of victory but the Lord doesn't always lead him that way. Sometimes there is a Goliath challenging all that which is good and he must stand alone with only his faith against the forces of evil.

There is an old saying that still remains true, "If you don't stand for something you will fall for anything." Despite the passing of years, this truth has not diminished. That is also why the pastor must stand on the word of God and bring the good news from heaven at every opportunity.

Every church should lift up the arms of its pastor and draw close to him so that he is better enabled to stand tall on the wall as he declares the word of God.

As each year passes the church celebrates the fact that God has given them a watchman who stands on the wall with courage and vision to protect them from their enemy, the devil, and to point them in the direction of heaven. It is a reason to celebrate! It is a reason to rejoice!

As Christians, we celebrate the man of God who stands on the wall. We lift him up before the Savior as an ambassador of goodwill from heaven. We ask God's blessings for him and pray that he will have continued strength to stand his watch on the wall.

Exposition

These text shows us the importance of believers, especially ministers, standing firm with a watchful eye as the vision of God unfolds.

Paul, writing to the Ephesians encouraged them to remain committed to the struggle for Christ. In the Ephesians 6:10 he tells them to, "be strong in the Lord and in the power of his might."

Paul encouraged the Ephesians, and likewise Christians today, to put on the whole armor of God that we may be able to "stand against the wiles of the devil" (v.11). He warned them to remember that "we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of darkness of this world, against spiritual weakness in high places."

Ancient soldiers, during the crusades, often wore heavy metal armor that protected the vulnerable parts of the body. They carried heavy shields, wore blouses made of chain nail , and their hands were covered with heavy metallic gloves. Soldiers who fought without the whole armor could expect to be injured.

Paul encouraged the Ephesians to put on the whole armor of God that they may be able to stand against the devil.

The Ephesians were told to prepare themselves to withstand evil.

Stand, with their loins girded with truth.

Stand, with their feet shod with the Gospel of peace.

Stand, with the shield of faith in their hands.

Stand, with the helmet of salvation on their heads.

In a similar sense the prophet Habakkuk had a charge to stand and watch over the people of Judah.

The opening verse of Chapter 2 finds him saying "I will stand upon my watch."

As a watchman on the tower kept watch for the enemy Habakkuk said he stood his watch as well. From his vantage point he saw both trouble and salvation.

"I stand upon my watch," he declared as he mourned the trouble in the nation and waited for an answer from God.

"I stand upon my watch," he announced as he shared a glimpse into the future assuring the people that their afflictions would not be permanent.

Like Habakkuk every pastor also declares, "I stand upon my watch" to tell the people not to lose faith because would respond to their needs in the course of time, but always on time.

On My Watch

Each watchman has an enormous task that requires three essential elements:

HE MUST KNOW THE ENEMY: Every watchman must know the nature of the enemy that seeks to destroy God's people. In biblical times the enemy was always a foreigner who was distinguishable by uniform and bodily features. Crafty enemies often found ways to drift among the people with clever disguises. The watchman must be alert for the presence of evil that is often disguised as godliness. He must work against bad feelings and troubling attitudes that slip into the congregation. He must know the enemy.

Consider two sheep dogs that were acquired to guard the sheep of a certain shepherd. The shepherd told the sheep dogs to guard the sheep with their lives because there were dangerous wolves in the hills that would destroy simple and powerless sheep. The sheep dogs went to work. One sheep dog prided himself in the fact that he could spot a wolf a mile away. He studied the ways and sounds of wolves. He felt qualified to stand guard over the sheep. The second sheep dog had heard about, but had never seen a wolf. He was new on the job and felt uneasy. While the first sheep dog laid back against the tree and watched for fanged teeth, pointed ears and cold deadly eyes, the second dog just watched the sheep. As days passed, the routine was the same; the first dog watched for wolves, the second never took his eyes off the sheep. One day the wolf decided to dress up in sheep skins and slip pass the sheep dogs. The first dog, looking for tell tale signs, missed the wolf. But the second dog immediately began to bark and growl and attacked the wolf and ran him away. Later the first dog asked: "How were you able to discover the wolf and you'd never seen one and I missed it?" The second dog answered: "You spent your time studying wolves; I spent my time studying sheep. I know how a sheep sounds, looks and moves from head to toe. I didn't know what a wolf looked like, but when I saw those big O' feet, I knew it wasn't a sheep!"

We must know the nature of the enemy, but the wise watchman can protect against invasion by specializing in knowing his sheep.

MUST STAND HIS WATCH: The prophet must conclude that if an enemy approaches he will not be welcomed on his watch. The watch is considered the period of time that a soldier is on duty. Today's pastor must conclude that sin will not be welcomed "On my watch."

Our history shows that we have lived through wars, hurricanes, tropical storms, depressions and hardships, but we have resisted the temptation to abandon our godly principles. Each time we have leaned in that direction we heard the voice of the watchman on the wall saying, "Not on my watch."

He says in words that echo across the centuries: We will not abandon the Lord, on my watch. We will not bow to cowardice and lose our faith in troubling times, not on my watch!

Standing on his watch the pastor must remind believers that that God has:

—Given us the sight for our eyes and breath for our lungs!

—Given us the sound for our ears and taste for our food!

—Given us the strength for our bodies and joy for our hearts!

—Given us forgiveness for our sins and Salvation for our souls!

He must stand firm when the enemy comes to conquer and say in the words of Joshua, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

HE MUST PROVIDE HOPE: The watchman does not just warn when the enemy approaches, he also sounds the alarm when the day breaks. He is among the first to see the bright and morning star and sends out a call that can be heard by everyone, "All is well."

This is important because there are many who have lost hope in themselves. They see themselves in the worst way. They feel as if they have failed miserably and are beyond repair. They have given up hope on themselves because they have wasted so many years.

The watchman reminds the people to take courage and keep their faith in God. His words of inspiration reflect those of the song writer who said, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame but wholly lean on Jesus name. On Christ the solid rock I stand; all other ground is sinking sand."

Every watchman declares: "On my watch, we will never give up!"

—On my Watch, we will past the darkness of any moment and see the bright shining light!

—On my Watch, we will stand taller than our adversaries and rise victorious over our enemies!

—On my Watch, we will sing with new mean, "I have hope when trouble comes my way. I have hope since Jesus came to stay. I have hope, it's a beautiful hope that sets me free!"

Just Stand

The final admonition for the watchman when it is all said and done is to just stand.

That is the watchman's greatest challenge, to stand up for Jesus!

It may require a great sacrifice on his part but he must stand his watch!

To stand up against the devil requires an abundance of prayer and faith!

Just like the watchman must stand, every believer must take a stand for Jesus!

Each of our lives must have:

A little more Love and a little less hate!

A little more trust and a little less suspicion!

A little more faith add little less doubt!

A little more courage and a little less fear!

A little more action and a little less talk!

We must stand and we must stand together. For I hear Jesus say, a House divided against itself cannot stand.

We must stand, but we must stand with our fear. For I hear God speaking to Moses when armies of death approached from the rear and a watery grave stared them in the face..."Stand still and see the Salvation of the Lord."

Though storms may rise, stand up for Jesus!

Though winds may blow, stand up for Jesus!

We must watch fight and pray. We must be ready because we don't know the day or the hour that the master will return. We, must watch because we want to be ready when he comes!

In closing, I'm reminded of the grandmother who kept a suitcase beside the front door. It didn't matter what time of year, the suitcase always sat by the door. One day her grandchildren, puzzled by the suitcase at the door which sat there year after year, asked why it always sat by the door. The grandmother pulled the children together and said "I got one daughter in California. I got a son in Chicago. I got another daughter in New York. On any given day, I expect to get a phone call that says mama I need you. When that call comes, whether its morning, noon or midnight, I going to be ready. Everything I need is in that bag; I'm going to be ready whenever the call comes!"

I don't know about you but I want to be ready when He comes!

I got my bags packed! I don't know the day or the hour, but I want to be ready!

Standing on my watch, I'll tell the story of how I got over!

Standing on my watch, I'll tell the story of forgiveness of sin!

Standing on my watch, I'll tell the story of a brand new life!

Standing on my watch, I'll tell the world about Jesus!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who was buried in a borrowed tomb!

Jesus, who stayed in the grave for three days and nights!

I will tell them that early Sunday morning He arose from the grave with all power in His hand!

As long as I'm standing on my watch, I will be ready when Jesus comes!

A Passionate Shepherd with a Clear Vision

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

September 2011

SCRIPTURE: For the vision is yet for an appointed time, but at the end it shall speak, and not lie: though it tarry, wait for it; because it will surely come, it will not tarry. " Habakkuk 2:3

Introduction

Have you ever become frustrated on your journey only to be encouraged to see a road sign indicating that there are only a few miles to go? If so, then you should appreciate the role of the prophet, pastor or preacher who stands on the watch tower each Sunday as a spiritual road sign pointing the direction, and calculating how far we have go.

The passionate pastor who is anointed by God has a clear vision of the road ahead. It is a vision given to him by God.

Often when we start on a journey we prepare ourselves well. We pack sufficient clothing, provide for our meals and prepare for our lodging. We even use maps and GPS systems to precisely pinpoint our destinations; yet, there is nothing more reassuring than to see that road sign that confirms we headed right or shouts at us, "Wrong Way." The journey would be more difficult without the road sign.

The same is true for our pastors, they reassure that we are traveling in the right direction, and they also warn us when are going in the wrong direction. Without them our life journey would be more difficult and certainly less enjoyable.

As Christians, we are but pilgrims who are a long way from home. We thank God for the presence of pastors with vision who can shepherd us through this maze that we call life by the grace of God. He points us to the day when our journey's end will come and we will see our Lord, so let's thank God for the pastor and give God the praise every step along the way.loo

This text focuses on the prophet Habakkuk as he shares a vision of hope with the Children of Israel."

Previously, the prophet had complained to God that the people of Judah were being punished at the hands of the Babylonians for their unfaithfulness. What disturbed him was that God punished Judah at the hands of a nation that was more evil than itself. He questioned why God allowed injustice to be inflicted upon his own people.

This passage begins as the prophet mourns the trouble in the nation and waits for an answer from God. In response God gave him a vision of things that would happen in the future, including punishment to the Babylonians.

Of special note in this text the prophet stands upon a watch post or lookout that is high above the city and is shown a vision of the future. On his watch post the watchman withdraws his soul from his body and focuses on heavenly revelations that will answer his questions of God.

The visions of the prophet provide a glimpse into the future and become an assurance that the afflictions that the people were enduring would not be permanent. The visions were God's way of speaking "unto me," speaking, not to the prophet's outward ear, but inwardly. When God speaks He does not speak to the prophet's ear, but to His heart.

The relief that the prophet spoke of was both for the age and it was Messianic. Truly, Judah would be relieved in that present age, if not that very moment, but even greater Judah would completely liberated with the coming of the Messiah. Habakkuk was told to believe the vision because it came from God.

Like every prophet, Habakkuk was urged to tell the people not to lose faith in the vision because it would be realized in His appointed time. Even though that time is unspecified; it will be fulfilled.

Visions are revealed to prophets

Historically, God has revealed His plans for his people through special revelations to pastors. The reasons for these revelations to the prophets instead of the people directly is that the prophets tend to hear God with their inner ear and see the vision with spiritual eye. The pew often views life with a carnal eye, but the pulpit sees it differently. From the perspective of the pew:

LIFE MAY BE A BLUR.: If we lose sight of our objective, our energies and activities are spread out over a variety of patterns that are blurred and unclear. The passionate pastor helps us to see vision clearly. Standing on the watch tower he helps us keep our objective in sight when we fail to concentrate our energies.

THE VISION MIGHT BE NEAR SIGHTED: Habakkuk stood on the tower so that he could put some distance between himself and vision. He didn't want to fall victim to spiritual near sightedness. The near sighted can't see their goal because they can only see things that are close to them. They live for today. Therefore their energies are not concentrated on achieving a goal because all they can see is today. They follow the general creed that they should eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow may never come. The Holy Spirit inspires the pastor to help correct our nearsightedness as we focus clearly on those things that are present as well as in our distant future.

THE PASTOR IS SPIRITUALLY FAR SIGHTED: The far sighted person is just the opposite. He or she is able to see the goal, but can't see how to manage the daily flow of time, talents and resources to achieve the goal. They see their goal but can't discipline themselves to make it happen.

They see the NFL but can't focus on the high school and college education that comes before the NFL. God's spiritual glasses correct this flaw in our spiritual sight and help us to get control of our lives now in preparation for the future.

Unlike a physically farsighted person, the prophet is able to see the big picture and is able to focus on the details as well. The prophet not only sees the vision, but has the task helping those learn of the revelation to see and understand what God wants. This is often a challenge because the prophet is shown things from his watch post that others may not understand.

Passionate pastors look for ways to give us snapshots of what the vision will be. Without these images it is difficult for believers to follow it all.

Often the prophet becomes the example or the snapshot for the congregation to study. These are instances when he says, "follow me as I follow Christ."

The passionate preaching of pastors helps to start picturing ourselves differently.

We see ourselves as happy families.

We see ourselves as content and fulfilled.

Pastors don't see us the way we are, but continuously show us our potential. That's when we fully realize the meaning of 1 Corinthians 13:12 that says, "For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known." It means, we can't see the fullness of what God wants to be now, but one day we'll see it all.

When we start feeling bad about ourselves our pastors remind us of the song writer who said, "Please be patient with me, God is not through with me.

When God gets through with me, I shall come forth as pure gold.

Diligent pastors teach believers where not to walk.

The passionate pastor teaches believers through precept and example where "NOT" to walk.

We are repeatedly warned in scripture not to walk after the flesh, Rom. 8:4; not after the manner of men, 1 Cor. 3:3; not in craftiness, 2 Cor. 4:2; not by sight, 2 Cor. 5:7; not in the vanity of the mind, Eph. 4:17; not disorderly, 2 Thess. 3:6." Galatians 5:16-17 says, "This I say then, Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfill the lust of the flesh.

For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye cannot do the things that ye would."

In every way imaginable, the pastor must help believers understand that they are never away from the sight of God.

He always sees us because he never slumbers or sleeps.

Remember, God can do it

Finally, brothers and sisters we must note that our pastors help us to remember the God of our salvation.

Habakkuk stood in his watch-post and reassured the nation that trouble won't last always.

He encouraged them not to give up the faith because help was on the way.

The pastor today has the same mission. He must stand on the wall and declare the word of the Lord with passion and power.

He must continuously remind us to remember where our blessings come from.

Before we burden ourselves worrying about Babylonians of our time we should remember that we serve an awesome God who reigns and blesses us in many ways.

It is the passionate pastor who encourages us to hang on and never forget the power of God. When we remember we are not amazed!

Only those who have forgotten how God healed their sicknesses and lifted them from their sick beds are amazed at His healing power!

Only those who have forgotten how they repeatedly failed in life but have been restored over and over again are amazed at His spirit of forgiveness.

Only those who have forgotten how they took the wrong paths in life, only to be placed on the right road again are amazed at the direction of the Holy Spirit.

Passionate pastors remind believers not to worry today, because we remember what He did yesterday.

Somebody remembers that when they were:
WEAK He provided them strength
DOWN He picked them up!
DEFEATED He gave them the victory
DISCOURAGED He restored their hope!
LONELY, He gave them comfort
TROUBLED He gave them peace of mind
Somebody remembers how He came to a little town called Bethlehem
That He died on an old rugged cross!
Somebody remembers that Early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave!
That's the good news that the pastor brings...
Jesus lives and He's still blessing us every day!

Supper for the worms

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church

SCRIPTURE: And immediately the angel of the Lord smote him, because he gave not God the glory: and he was eaten of worms, and gave up the ghost. Acts 12:23

Introduction

Have you ever met a person who brags? A person who boasts is a person who enjoys flaunting their accomplishments in front of others in ways that suggest that they are superior while others are inferior. No one likes a person who brags because the ultimate intent of bragging is to belittle others.

Can we really brag about anything we have achieved or acquired? Was it all our doing? Christians don't brag about things because we know that none of what we have comes from own effort. We may wear fine clothes, but we never brag about them or belittles others whom cannot or chose not to do the same.

We don't brag about how much money we earn while belittling someone else's family. Neither do we brag about the quality of our neighborhood and berate those who have not been blessed in the same way. We can't brag because we know the source of our blessings. Our pond is filled with fresh water, but we know that it is fed constantly by a stream coming from the hills. That's why Psalm 121 says, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help my help cometh from the Lord who made the heavens and the earth."

We can't take credit for what God does for us. Prometheus was a character in Greek mythology who stole fire from Zeus the main God of the Greek pantheon. Zeus became angry with Prometheus all a trick that was played upon him that challenged his omnipotence and omniscience. In retaliation, Zeus decided to withhold fire from moral men on earth. Without fire the mortal creatures would have a miserable life. Prometheus stole the fire that Zeus withheld and gave it to mortal men. This angered Zeus and he ordered Prometheus pinned to a rock so that an eagle could eat out his liver. Zeus caused the liver to grow back each day only to be eaten again forever as punishment to someone who would dare steal fire from the gods. Today a person who takes credit for something that someone else has done is usually accused of stealing that persons fire. Those who take credit for what God has done are seen as persons who are emulating Prometheus.

It is dangerous to steal fire from God. Moses learned this lesson in the wilderness.

God told Moses to satisfy the thirst of the people by going to a certain rock and speaking to the rock which would produce enough water to satisfy their thirst. In response to the constant complaining of the people Moses, in anger, struck the rock instead of speaking to it as instructed and gave the impression that it was he who was providing them with water instead of God. He took credit for God's miracle and his punishment was that he would not be able to enter into the promised land. In his last days he climbed to the top of Mount Moriah and viewed the promised land, but he never stepped foot into the land of promise because one day he took credit for God's miraculous work.

The braggart's conversation is filled with "I and My." The believer's conversation is filled "Thanks be to God."

As Christians, we have learned that we should give God praise for all He has done for us. We have done nothing on our own, but all has come as the result of the mercies and favor of God.

Exposition

This text focuses on an instance when a King was praised as a god and was instantly struck down and became supper for the worms.

The background of this text indicates that King Herod, dressed in royal and regal gowns, gave a lengthy dissertation to the people of his kingdom concerning Royal matters. According to the Bible Knowledge Commentary, Tyre and Sidon were in Herod's dominion and for some reason had incurred his wrath. Because these cities depended on Galilee for grain, they desired to make peace with Herod Agrippa. The two countries would totally dependent upon Herod's favor without which they could not exist. They had no military power by which to bargain with him and the king owed them no favors and was not obligated to them in any way. The only hope of success they had was to ingratiate themselves before him and to shower him with praise and adulations. On the appointed day when Herod was delivering a speech, the people went out of their way to praise his words, extol his greatness and lift them up before men as a living God. This would not have been unusual for a Roman Emperor because Romans believed that the Emperor was God honored; so did Egyptians and many other pagan nations. However, Herod was not Roman, he was a Jewish king and Jews believed in only one God.

The ancient historian Josephus also recorded the events of that day. He notes that Herod came into the room wearing a dazzling robe made of fine materials that caught the sunlight and almost blinded the eyes of those who look upon him. To many, the glitter and the flash, the dazzle and the bling only served as proof of his divinity. When the people of Tyre and Sidon honored him as a god Herod was no doubt flattered. He did not call himself a God but he allowed them to attribute godly status to him. He allowed the people to refer to him and treat him as if he were God.

An Angel of the Lord intervened in this process and cast judgment upon Herod. He was struck down and was eaten up with worms because he tried to abrogate credit that belonged to the Lord.

This New Testament occurrence reflected similar occurrences in the Old Testament where those who tried to take credit for things God had done were punished or those who refused to give God credit were equally punished.

It sends a New Testament signal to all believers under the new dispensation that is not a good idea to steal fire from the true and living God.

Stealing fire

There are at least three thoughts that we should derive from the demise of King Herod.

NO REASON TO BOAST: Herod's demise was a case of misplaced pride. While he did not boast aloud, he allowed others to give him more credit than he deserves. Believers have no reason to boast about anything because anything that we have comes directly from God. This makes us extremely humble. We do not consider ourselves great in our own eyes because we know that without Gods divine influence we would be nothing. So we are not quick to boast; we know we are empty without Him. In 1 Corinthians 15:10 Paul said, "But by the grace of God I am what I am: and his grace which was bestowed upon me was not in vain; but I labored more abundantly than they all: yet not I, but the grace of God which was with me." The Christian recognizes that he/she has been guided to this point in life, not by our own knowledge but by the wisdom and intervention of God himself. That knowledge should humble us to know that we are what we are only by his Grace.

THERE IS AN ANGEL WATCHING: when Herod accepted the praise that he did not deserve an angel of the Lord immediately smote him. We like to think of Angels as those beings that are standing close by to bless us. However, if we look at this passage just a few verses up to verse seven we will see the same angel smiting two people in different ways. In the first instance Peter was imprisoned and the Angel of the Lord smote him to wake him up and to free him from his imprisonment. This is the angel who opened the jail doors open the gate and blessed Peter with his freedom without having to post a bond. This angel demonstrated the delivering hand of God. It demonstrate the blessings hand of God. Yet by the time we get to verse 23 this same angel who smote Peter now smote Herod but the results was just opposite. We all have an angel looking over our shoulders, but unlike the television series angel who touches us is not always blessing, especially if we are living outside of the will of God.

It was angels of the Lord that brought down fire on the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah. It was also an angel of the warned Balaam when sought to prophecy for profit. The same angel that touched one man and blessed touched another man who displeased God and made him supper for the worms.

We need to be careful how we act when God blesses us, the same angel that blessed in GOD's name in one verse of your life is still around when you decide that you don't need to praise him, keep your promises or pay your vows.

We should resolve to praise God continuously for he is good and his mercy endureth forever.

WORMS ON THE INSIDE: When Herod was stricken by the angel it was discovered that he had worms that were eating him up from the inside. He was smote by the angel of the Lord, but worms had been eating away at him for a long time, it just didn't show. It is the same thing that happens when we slice into a juicy red apple and discover that there is a worm inside. How did it get there? There is no hole on the outside! There is no bruise that obviously indicates something is wrong, but there is a worm inside. Somewhere before the apple made its way to your table, a fly using something we would call a stinger or shoot punched an almost invisible pin sized hole in that apple and deposited eggs in that apple that grew into worm that grew fat and slimy eating its insides. The outside look perfect but the inside was infested. In a spiritual sense, the same thing happens when we first begin to feel that we don't need to really worship, praise or serve God on a regular basis. It's like a little pin hole that leads to skipped worship, failure to read our bibles, short prayers, shorter prayers, then no prayers. Inside the little worm of self reliance grows bigger. We feel we can succeed in school, business, politics and life without God, at least not in heavy doses. Like Herod, we look the same on outside, but on the inside the worms are growing.

Yet there are certain fruits that have no worms. Oranges, tomatoes and lemons have no worms! Why? There is too much citric acid in them; worms can't live there.

We are the fruit of the sprit Galatians 5:22-23 But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, Meekness, temperance: against such there is no law. When our lives are filled with righteous living, regular worship and praise and service to others, it puts together a citrus mix that so strong that the worms can't get in!

Glorifying God

Finally, brothers and sisters, we need to remember that the reason for Herod's demise is that he gave not God the glory. If we want to continue to be blessed then we need to keep praising the Lord!

Herod was part of family of men, all named Herod who had a history of doing terrible things and thinking more of themselves than they should.

One Herod was so stuck on Himself that he called himself Herod the Great. He built the third temple, but when he found out that might be a new king born in Bethlehem that might be greater than himself, instead of praising God he ordered the murder of all the little boys in Bethlehem.

Another Herod called himself Herod Antipas was the one who conducted the trial of Jesus and put a purple robe on his shoulder and laughed at the Son of God.

Another Herod called himself Herod Agrippa II, the son of Herod Agrippa and great-grandson of Herod the Great. He was so bold that he made his sister his girlfriend.

When Herod Agrippa came along in this text, he was one in a long line of Herods who felt they really didn't need to recognize God or live by His rules.

There are many Herod's among us today!

Some, like Herod, are living lives by their own rules!

Some, like Herod, are view themselves as above the laws of God!

Some, like Herod, are violating God's laws about relationships and marriage!

Some, like Herod, are beautiful on the outside, but on the inside they supper for the worms!

Anytime we begin to believe we can make it without publicly worshiping God, we are getting ready to be supper for the worms!

Anytime we begin to believe that regular praise and worship is not necessary, we are getting ready to be supper for the worms!

Anytime we being to believe that we can just keep asking for blessings without showing God some love in return, we're getting ready to be supper for the worms!

I don't know about you, but I have found out that when God has done something good for us, we should be willing to glorify him and show our gratitude.

We should tell it on our jobs! Tell it in the songs we sing! We should tell it in the joy that bubbles in our soul!

We should give God the glory for taking our:

—Bitterness and turning it to sweetness; Sadness and giving me joy!

—Loneliness and give me companionship; Emptiness and giving me fulfillment!

—Failure and showing me the victory; Discouragement and giving me encouragement!

More than that, we should give God glory for saving our souls

I don't know about you, but every now and then, I want to tell somebody that I serve a good God!

I want to tell somebody that He carried an old cross for me!

I want to tell somebody that He died out on Calvary!

I want to tell somebody that early Sunday morning that He arose from the dead!

I won't be supper for the worms because every chance I get, I'm going to praise the Lord.

Glory for the story

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

SCRIPTURE: "And one cried unto another, and said, Holy, holy, holy, is the LORD of hosts: the whole earth is full of his glory." Isaiah 6:3 (KJV)

Introduction

Have you ever taken time to look back over your own journey? Have you counted the hills and valleys that you have come through? What about all of the tight squeezes that you survived, dangers you overcame and failures from which you rebounded? Whenever we start the count our tally goes into infinity because we have come a mighty long way.

Sol Rosenburg's biography, Sol's Story tells about his journey from the concentration camps of the Holocaust to a successful businessman in Monroe Louisiana. His book, written by Dr. Richard Chardkoff, describes the horrors of his youth and the tremendous hope that brought him to America and finally to Monroe to live a full life as an outstanding businessman and community leader.

Alex Haley told his family story in an epic novel called Roots. In his novel, Haley traces his family back to a tiny village in Africa and weaves a story of courage, persecution, strength and vigilance as his family took its place in the annals of historic families that have overcome wars, persecutions, hard times, and a plethora of maladies to achieve its dreams.

Barack Obama in his book Dreams of My Father details the story of life in Kenya, Indonesia, Hawaii, and Chicago; a journey that took a long meandering trail that finally ended at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue as a president of United States.

If there is a book written about your life's story would it be a bestseller? Bestsellers seem to have the perfect mix of drama, love, tragedy, triumph and victory despite adversity. Would it be a page turner that future generations wouldn't be able to put down, drawn into it by the power of your passions, the depth of your commitment, and your indefatigable spirit? Most of lives are filled with plenty of drama if nothing else. It seems like we seldom have a boring day. We've also known our share of love, tragedy, failure and triumph. Our story could easily top the New York Times bestsellers list. If we told all the details, it would probably be a page turner, too.

No one's life story is a soliloquy. No achievements or honors are attained by the singular acts of one person alone. Behind every world champion there is a small army of coaches, assistants and advisers. For every Oscar-winning actor there are directors, screenwriters and coaches that have contributed. Every politician who wins an election stands on the shoulders of staff and volunteers who sacrificed to make it happen. Every woman who achieves a challenging goal is surrounded by a supporting family. Every man fortunate enough to have a good wife will see her signature at the end of every line of his epitaph. John Dunn had it right "No Man is an Island."

What role has God played in your story? Are there chapters in your life story where you detailed your accomplishments, noted your failures, but never mentioned the Lord? Were there times in your own life when you tried to live outside of God's will?

And when those great moments came and you embraced great success, did you recognize God's role in your story? Did you know that without the invisible hand of God working in the background and the power of his inspiration working in the foreground, you could not have achieved your dreams so far? Those who recognize that can relate to the words of Bette Midler when she said, "I could fly higher than an Eagle because you are the wind beneath my wings."

Your family story reaches back for generations. Your grandmother and grandfather and before them their grandmothers and grandfathers have left a rich legacy of achievement, struggle and hope. Today, we stand on the shoulders of their accomplishments. We reap the benefits of their sacrifices. There isn't a single moment in our lives in which the lifeblood of those who've gone before us is not evidenced in our words and deeds. Godly families gladly report that through it all God has helped them to achieve, to survive and thrive.

A generation ago Gladys Knight sang a hit song that Christians have changed around to be our testimony about God's involvement in our lives. The new version says, "If anyone would ever write my life story for whatever reason there might be you'll be there between each line of pain and glory, Jesus is the best thing that ever happened to me."

As Christians, we recognize that between every line of pain and glory of our story, God has been there to sustain us and give us hope. To God be the glory for the things He has done!

Exposition

This text focuses on Isaiah's vision about the decline of Israel and its ultimate glory under the risen Lord.

The 6th chapter sets the time of Isaiah's calling as the year that King Uzziah died. Uzziah had been a dominating figure in Jewish history and in many respects the people placed him before God. Many could not see God's hand in their national affairs because of the overpowering presence of King Uzziah, which hid the from their view the dazzling glory of God

When Uzziah died many were able to see that he was just a shadow of the awesome power of God. They could not see God because Uzziah, to many, became the person upon which they depended. In that context, Isaiah says, “In the year King Uzziah died I also saw the Lord.”

Isaiah saw the Lord in a vision that showed him standing in the presence of God who was high and lifted up, surrounded by cherubim with six wings and a host of angels.

In this vision he saw the suffering of Israel, but he saw their eventual triumph as well. When it all ends, Isaiah said the hosts of heaven will give all of the glory to the Lord of Hosts.

Three Thens

There are three “thens” in verse five through eight. They seem to chime like time markers that show points in Isaiah’s life where he came to grips with himself, was touched by the hand of God and then made a decision about his life’s work. Each phase of his story seemed to be marked by the steady chiming of then, then, then.

Each of us knows the sound of the “thens” because our stories are similar. At first we felt inadequate for our service, then we arose from our fear and went to college, entered a profession, started a business or began a marriage or a gainful pursuit.

Like Isaiah every believer remembers the point where our lives were touched by God. For Isaiah, it was an angel pressing a hot coal to his lips. For Paul, it was a bright light on the Damascus Road. For Samuel it was a still voice calling in the middle of the night.

Some can remember the wild and reckless lives we once led. We can remember the loose way we talked, the mischievous way we walked, and the less than prurient ways we thought. We lived for the weekend and couldn’t wait to let our hair down at every given chance. But, then, like a bell tolling, we met the Lord!

It might have been in a silent moment of prayer. It might have been while we were sitting at the bed side of loved ones praying for their survival or special moment of decision. That’s when we remember the words of the old song, “Shackled by a heavy burden. Neath a load of guilt and stain, then the hand of Jesus touched me and now I am no longer the same.

We may even remember another then! That was the day we decided to go forth boldly to change the part of the world that we touch.

Then we decided to be an advocate for breast cancer victims!

Then we decided to mentor young people lost along the way!

Then we decided to champion the cause of the homeless and less fortunate!

Then we decided to seek a cure for diseases that take the lives of children.

In Isaiah 6:8 Isaiah wrote these words, “Then said I, Here am I, send me!”

It is good to know that God is a “but then” God.

We were down to our last dimes, but then!

We were laying on our sick beds, but then!

We were facing defeat and failure, but then!

We were lost and couldn’t find our way, but then!

We gave it our all and almost gave up hope, but then!

But then the power of the Lord, picked us up and turned us around and gave new meaning to our lives!

I'm so glad that we serve a "but then" God!

Who gets the glory?

Finally, brothers and sisters, as we review where we have been and see the challenges ahead, we must ask who gets the glory for our story?

At the end of a journey toward a great prize the winners will assemble people for the victory photograph. There is always someone who did not contribute much to the victory who will try to get in the picture.

In the final analysis the devil will try to take credit for our successes, he'll try to Photoshop himself into picture, but who really gets the glory for our story?

Come here Joshua, who gets the glory for your story? I can hear him say, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord!"

Come here Ruth, who gets the glory for your story? I can hear her say, "Your people shall be my people, and your God shall be my God!"

Come here Three Hebrew Boys, who gets the glory for your story, I can him them say, "Our God is able!"

Come here angels standing around the throne, who is worthy? I can hear them say, "Worthy is the lamb!"

Our history declares that God is able, but will tell the story?

Who will march forward into the future telling the story of our past as we hold up the blood stained banner?

Who will tell the story of how God brought us a mighty long way?

Who will tell the story of how we marched through hardship and trouble into this present day?

Today, we celebrate the church anniversary, but Isaiah saw a day when not only the church dispensation, but all the hosts of heaven will celebrate and declare Him holy! Holy! Holy!

We are celebrating because after all these years, God is still on the throne. He's still King of Kings and Lord of Lords and I'm glad about it!

As long as God is still on the throne there will never be a:

—CROSS that we won't be able to bear; MOUNTAIN that we won't be able to climb!

—ENEMY that we won't be able to defeat; BATTLE we won't be able to win!

—DARKNESS so dark that we won't be able to see the light!

—TRIAL that we can't make it through; TEST that we won't be able to pass!

What I'm glad about is that as I walk through this tedious journey, I don't have to walk it alone.

Why? Because I know a man!

I know a man, who had a lonesome journey that was 33 years on this earth!

I know a man, who healed the sick and raised the dead!

I know a man, who can cool scorching fever and heal aching pain!

His name is Jesus! It doesn't matter what the future brings as long as the Lord is on our side! If the Lord is on our side there will never be a:

—CROSS that we won't be able to bear; MOUNTAIN that we won't be able to climb!

—ENEMY that we won't be able to defeat; BATTLE we won't be able to win!

—DARKNESS so dark that we won't be able to see the light!

—TRIAL that we can't make it through; TEST that we won't be able to pass!

Moses saw the promised land from the top of Mt. Nebo, but I know a man, who saw the world from the top of Mt. Calvary.

His name is Jesus!

Jesus, somebody here today knows him!

Jesus, the Lily of the valley!

Jesus, the Bright and Morning star!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary and rose up early Sunday morning!

He gets the glory for story!

Your Cheating Heart

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 23, 2011

Scripture:And I will not have mercy upon her children; for they be the children of whoredoms. For their mother hath played the harlot: she that conceived them hath done shamefully: for she said, I will go after my lovers, that give me my bread and my water, my wool and my flax, mine oil and my drink. Hosea 2:4-5; And I will betroth thee unto me forever; yea, I will betroth thee unto me in righteousness, and in judgment, and in loving-kindness, and in mercies. I will even betroth thee unto me in faithfulness: and thou shalt know the LORD. Hosea 2:19-20

Introduction

Has anyone ever cheated on you? When someone cheats on you it leaves a painful feeling that tugs at your heart and causes a thousand deaths that come only minutes apart.

We have seen it in all stages of life. In high school a boy and a girl pledge to go steady together, but one breaks the pledge and entertains another. In college a couple pledges loyalties to each other, but the relationship ends in tears when one breaches their promise. In marriage a couple pledge fidelity until death do them part, but one breaks the vow and secretly begins a relationship with another. When that happens the person who is left behind feels a striking pain in his/her heart that is worse than death.

Tears result.

Sleepless nights result.

Trust dissolves and the relationship shatter in the wake of the mates cheating heart.

In 1953 Hank Williams wrote a song whose core thought has survived for over a half century, "Your cheating heart will tell on you." It was the song of a man whose wife cheated on him and the sorrow and pain he felt as a result. One portion of the lyrics said:

"Your cheating heart will make you weep
You'll cry and try to sleep but sleep won't come the whole night through
Your cheating heart will tell on you!
Your cheating heart will pine someday
And crave the love you threw away
The time will come when you'll be blue

Your cheating heart will tell on you.

Nearly everyone has had the experience of being cheated upon at one stage of their lives or another. Those who have never been cheated on are a rare breed and must rank high among those who have been blessed and highly favored. Most of the world knows what it's like to be the victim of a person with a cheating heart. They have hearts that have been shattered into a thousand pieces, but the proverbial "heartbreaker" seems to avoid ever becoming the victim.

Heartbreakers and broken hearts seem to be the story of many of our lives, with very little in between.

Since we know what it feels like when someone cheats on us, then we should have some idea how God feels when He has loved us, provided for us, blessed us, favored us, and gave his only begotten son for us only to learn that despite his faithfulness to us we cheat on Him.

God has made known that he is a jealous God. He is not happy when the people he loves fail to return his love.

As Christians, we have played down loyalty to God. We have promised to love Him with our entire mind, body, and soul. We will never approach our relationship with Him with a cheating heart.

Exposition

This text focuses on the prophet Hosea who was told by God to preach to the people of Israel.

The immediate command that Hosea was given was to tell the people that they were an evil and adulterous generation and that they were living in whoredom.

Hosea was commanded to illustrate this whoredom by marrying a woman of whoredom. Her deviant actions although married to a loving husband would illustrate Israel's relationship with God.

This must have been a troubling relationship, but Hosea obeyed God's command. His wife, Gomer, signified corruption, defilement, contamination and pollution. It was a demoralizing relationship in which her determinations were captured by her lusts.

As Gomer bore children for Hosea he gave them names that demonstrated the ruin of the people. He named the first Jezereel which means scattered people. It suggested the destruction of the royal family of God as His creations scattered away from Him. The second child was named Lo-Ruhamah, which means "not beloved." It showed how Israel had abused its relationship with God and its refusal to reform itself to God's will. It also indicated that God would not always bear the burden of dealing with an unfaithful people. The third child was named Lo-Ammi which means "not my people." It mean that the people had become out of fellowship with God.

Hosea's marriage to Gomer had a reason. It was designed to demonstrate God's experience of being rejected by His covenant people Israel. In the first 24 verses of Hosea chapter two the Lord described this rejection in detail. He compared Israel to an unfaithful wife who chased after lovers. God announced his anger feeling of rejection, but at the same time announced His first reaction, which was to bring down judgment upon the people. In Hosea 2:3 God became so angry that he pledge to strip her naked and leave her just like he found her.

However, by Hosea 2:19, God had decided His initial judgment would not be final, for God intended to draw Israel back and restore the broken covenantal relationship. God moves from judgment to Salvation. From condemnation to forgiveness.

The Cheating Heart

There are several aspects of the cheating heart that are worthy of our consideration:

THE CHEATING HEART IS DIVIDED: The cheating heart is a divided heart. One day it is loving and faithful and the next day it pants after another. David was king of Israel and was known as a man after God's own heart. He failed in his flesh, but he never turned against God. In fact, when David sinned he asked God to "restore unto me the joy of thy salvation. On the other hand his son Solomon turned his heart away from God. 1 Kings 11:4 says "for it came to pass, when Solomon was old, that his wives turned away his heart after other gods: and his heart was not perfect with the Lord his God, as was the heart of David his father." Hosea found this to be true in his relationship with Gomer. Her heart was turned to other men. There are many today whose love of God is being turned. For many, it is not a complete turn, but a half turn. We want to hang on to God for old time's sakes, but we just don't feel it anymore. These have fallen into the B.B. King syndrome: "The thrill is gone." Perhaps we should then ask ourselves when did the thrill of worship become a chilling experience? Solomon's wives turned his head, who has turned ours? What has drawn us away from God?

The first step toward developing a cheating heart is to have a turned head. In this first step we begin to flirt with the world and we call it innocent fun. Yet, God expects us to love him totally or not at all. He is not happy with the cheating heart.

A CHEATING HEART HAS OTHER INTERESTS: One sign of a cheating heart is when one partner loses interest in things that once excited them. Many come to Jesus singing the words of the old hymn, "I surrender all." They began a passionate love affair with the Lord. They worship regularly, study seriously, serve studiously and give freely. Then the second stage of a cheating heart develops: they developed other interests. Extracurricular activities, sports, civic and social responsibilities, political affairs, educational pursuits begin to take precedence over the things of God. We begin to notice it when we start to make excuses for our absences at Bible study, Sunday school, special worships, and Sunday worships. This is the second sign of a cheating heart. It's similar to Israel's relationship with God. They still loved him at heart, but they pursued allegiances with the gods of their neighbors in hopes of bettering their own social and economic circumstances. When this happens God is not a happy camper.

A CHEATING HEART TRIES TO CHEAT IN SECRET: Anyone who cheats, by the very nature of cheating, attempts to deceive another party. Cheaters think their secret rendezvous will never be discovered. A man can tell when his wife is cheating; only a fool would miss the signs. A woman knows when her man is being unfaithful, she can feel it in her bones. Yet, cheaters believe in their hearts that no one will ever know. There are even individuals who believe they can cheat on God and He won't know it. God knows when we cheat on him. He knows if we are giving our best. He knows if our offering is what it should be. We can fool some of the people some of the time, but we can't fool God anytime. Numbers 32:23 says, "But if ye will not do so, behold ye have sinned against the Lord: and be sure your sin will find you out." May cheaters have learned this lesson the hard way. Sooner or later a mistake will be made or a comment uttered that will reveal that which is hidden making true the old adage that says, "What's done in the dark will come to the light." Ecclesiastes 12:14 goes even further. It says, "For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil."

Achan tried to hide stolen merchandise from God, but it was discovered.

David tried to hide his adultery and murder from God, but it was discovered.

Samson tried to hide his passion for Philistine women from God, but that was discovered, too.

Cheaters try to cheat, but their sins scream out for detection.

A changed Heart

Finally, brothers and sisters, as much as a cheating heart pains God, He is willing to forgive us, if we have a change of heart.

At the offset Hosea was upset with Gomer because she betrayed him, but soon she discovered that all of her suitors had abandoned her and left her broken and alone. God appealed to her to have a change of heart. Not because of her abandonment, but because of the foolishness of actions.

The first step to changing a cheating heart back to a faithful heart, is to do a little soul searching. That's when we ask the question is my spouse the problem or am I the problem? David in the Psalm 139:23 said, "Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me and know my thoughts and see if there be any wicked way in me and lead me in the way everlasting."

That's what Thomas Dorsey had in mind when he wrote the words to the song "Search me Lord." He said "Search me Lord, Search me Lord. Turn the light of heaven on my soul. If you find anything that shouldn't be, take it out and straighten me. I want to be right, I want to be saved, I want to be whole."

After we have searched ourselves, we must go back and make things right!

The prodigal son left his father's home and wasted his substance in riotous living. But, there in the pigpen he said, "I will arise and go to my father and say, I have sinned before God and before thee."

He demonstrated a repentant heart.

A repentant heart does not place blame on anyone else!

A repentant heart does not make excuses!

A repentant heart throws itself before the mercy God!

Hosea found his cheating wife standing on the auction of the auction block and said to her the same words that God says to backsliders today:

"If you are willing to quit this cheating business and come home with me, we can put this thing behind us!"

"If you are willing to love with me with your heart and not just with your lips, we can start all over again!"

"If you are willing turn your heart away from the men who have captured your time and passion and come back home, I will forgive you and make everything all right!"

"If you will come home with me "I'll restore our covenant relationship!"

The book of Hosea shows God making an appeal to Israel to come home, but there is no record of what happened to Gomer, only that God made the offer!

He opened wide the arms of love and held out the olive branch of reconciliation and he still making that same offer today!

My people, who have taken the beautiful lives I have given them and turned them into ashes!

My people, who have taken the blessings that have I showered upon them and turned them into gods!

My people, who have taken the peace that I have offered them and exchanged it for confusion.

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land. " 2 Chronicles 7:14

Come home, and I hear your prayers!

Come home, and I will forgive your sins!

Come home, and I will heal your land!

If we abandon our cheating hearts, God will give us a chance to do right!

I know He'll do because I hear John say, For God so loved the world that he gave His only begotten son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not prosper but have everlasting life!

I know He'll do it because one day on a Hill called Calvary, He showed His love for me!

I know He'll do it because when He died on an old rugged cross!

I know He'll do it because Early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave with all power in His hands!

Even today, we can still hear Him say, Come home, I'll make everything all right!

The Taste of True Blood

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

October 30, 2011

SCRIPTURE: But now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ. Ephesians 2:13

Introduction

Have you ever noticed the growing fascination the nation has with creatures of the night? Television and movies seem more focused on this fascination today than ever before.

Today, there are over 300 movies, television programs, novels and dramas that focus on this phenomenon. How many movies about Werewolves are there? American Werewolf in London, and Wolf easily comes to mind. There are scores of movies about the walking dead, and vampires. Of course this is not new. As long as there have been movies it seems there have always been vampires of the Boris Karloff, Vincent Price genre. However, today the world's fascination with vampires seems to have reached an all time high.

The most popular vampires stories today are embodied in the two theatrical productions: Twilight and the HBO series called "True Blood." Unlike the old vampire movies of the past that kept vampires confined to their caskets in the day and allowed them to roam the streets at night, today's vampires have found a way to co-exist, in broad day light with humans. Some exist on a synthetic blood manufactured by Japanese scientists and are able to "come out of the coffin" and integrate themselves into regular society. Despite the presence of their synthetic blood, called "Tru Blood" there is a narcotic attraction to real human blood that causes some to want to drain humans they meet of every ounce of what they have to offer.

Of course vampires, in the mythical sense, are not real. There are no creatures of the night that live eternally off the blood of others, but there are some real blood suckers among us who walk and breathe among us and who attached themselves to us in ways that drain us of that which is necessary for our survival.

Believers in Christ have something that the world wants.

We have a peace and security that only comes from knowing Christ.

We have an inheritance that is true and guaranteed to us by the Father.

There are many who have come out of their coffins and live among us living on the synthetic happiness that they convinced themselves is happiness. However, what believers have is joy that supersedes happiness; the world didn't give it and the world can't take it away.

As Christians, we are sustained in our faith by the blood of Christ. It saves us, sustains us, and revives us. It is His blood that gives use hope and inspires our faith. It is the real "true blood."

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he explains the way the blood of Christ has given all people the opportunity to everlasting life.

Christians, Jews and Gentiles existed together in Ephesus but there was tension between them. The Jews were critical of the Christians and the Gentiles were attracted to them. There was something different about them that seemed to attract people by the thousands.

They were loving, friendly, honest, charitable and intensely united. Beyond that they seemed connected by the fact that they all believed in Jesus Christ and were bound by his bloodshed on the cross.

The Christians talked strange talk. They talked about rising from the dead one day. They talked about living new lives by drinking what they called the blood of Christ and eating bread they called the bread of life. They talked about dying to the world so they could live in Christ. Nearly every phrase they spoke seemed to be filled with references to Christ's blood.

In fact, it was His blood that made them one.

It was his blood that made them whole.

It was His blood that gave them hope.

The gentiles saw them share in communion services where they drank wine and shared bread to remember His sacrifice and His blood and they desired this blood for themselves.

Paul said in Ephesians 2:11-12 that they were once aliens and strangers to the faith, but because of Christ's blood they were now one. They once far off without a saving knowledge of God, but now they are one. They were once alienated from the things of God, but now they were made whole through the blood of Christ that demolished old barriers erected by the Mosaic law and cultural taboos.

The blood of Christ connected all believers to the grace of God, which is the source of salvation even to this day.

Fangtasia

There are many in the world today who are easily compared to the vampires in the "Tru Blood" television series. From it, we should be able to see the premium that God has placed on our own saved lives.

SYNTHETIC BLOOD: The vampires in the T.V. series hang out in a club called "Fangtasia" but they exist on synthetic blood that allows them to move around in the world of humans and appear normal. There are many people today who exist on synthetic realities. They have synthetic happiness that is dependent upon their social status. They feel a need to be in a certain organization, club or society so that they can be somebody. They feel a need to have clothes with certain brands, houses in certain neighborhoods and increasing amount of things surrounding them. These things bring them pleasure for a while, but soon they learn that they do not bring real joy. They have been infused with synthetics that they use to replace the real thing.

The beauty of the Christian life is that it is not synthetic. It is real. It is not dependent upon anything superficial for its existence. A Christian family may desire a big house, but would be just as happy in a cardboard box if they could all be together. They would love to drive a Lexus, but will be just as happy riding public transit or walking the city street if need be. They would love to eat steaks, but we feel great if all they had was pork chops and biscuits. Their existence may enjoy things, but does not depend on things. It is real and not synthetic. It is rooted in their faith in God.

When believers pray, it is not synthetic, it is real!

When believers worship, it is not synthetic, it is real!

When believers serve, it is not synthetic, it is real!

It is that realness that caused Paul's jailer's to watch him in his affliction, imprisonment and his deliverance and be so impressed that that he asked asked in Acts 16:30, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?"

Because the blood of Christ is real and true, the world sees what we have and they too, want true blood.

WHAT'S IN TRUE BLOOD: The essence of who you are is in your blood. The blood is usually composed of red blood cells, white blood cells, platelets and plasma. The red blood cells provide oxygen to the body. The white blood cells contain your DNA and special ingredients that help you fight off diseases. The platelets helps to clot your blood enough white cuts and bruises heal. Plasma delivers hormones and nutrients and picks up wastes and leftovers.

Everyone has blood but not the same blood type. Some people, for example are A-Negative and B-Negative. Spiritually, these describe clearly people who are outside of the faith.

Generally, "A-Negative" people think negative. B-Negative people act negatively. These are the kind of people who think and talk destructively. B-Negative people rarely act alone. They are miserable, angry, and frustrated and they want others to feel just as angry, miserable and frustrated as they are. They generally bring in as many people as they can to share their misery because "misery likes company." B-Negative people usually make phone calls and visits, encouraging others to make negative action. Negative actions indicate B-Negative blood.

There is another type called, "O." "O" people are on the sidelines. They could go either way. They rarely take an action for or against anything. They are not "O" positive or "O" negative; they are just on the sideline. They are what the bible describes as lukewarm, neither hot nor cold. "O" is not acceptable either because Revelation 3:16 says the Lord will spew the lukewarm out of his mouth.

The vampires who hang around us notice that believers seem to have A-Positive blood: A-positive viewpoint in life, A-Positive glimpse of the future, A-Positive view of yourself and others.

HOW TO GET TRUE BLOOD: The vampires that hang around believers try to get what believers have by copying some of the things we do all the while missing the whole point.

The vampire who tries to suck your blood notices that even though he goes to church now and maybe even sings in the choir or serves on committees he still doesn't have what you have. Why? He has your blood? He does what you do?

The answer is in the nature of the blood. Our DNA (Divine Nature and Access to God) is non transferrable by transfusion just as DNA is not normally transferred through a transfusion. Even if my White blood cells are transferred there is a built in system that will kill off my DNA so that it won't live in you.

If those vampires want what you have, they must get their own. That requires a complete bone marrow transfusion. The old white blood cells must be completely destroyed and new cells are replaced, complete with a new DNA. The only way to get the true blood of Christ is not through imitation and emulation but through denying this world and accepting Him. 2 Corinthians 5:17 puts it this way, "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new. "

True Blood

Finally, brothers and Sisters, we must consider that when a man has true blood he becomes a child of God in that he now has a divinely inspired nature and total access to God.

The believer is a new creature, transformed by the blood of Christ.

It's that spiritual DNA, that divinely inspire nature that has access to God that makes our lives appealing to those who watch us from afar.

Those with true blood, can pray and wait patiently for God to act because they know that they wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength!

Those with true blood, are never helpless because they say like David, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help."

Those with true blood, seem to be fearless, because they constantly say, "The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear?"

It's the presence of true blood that prompts us to sing, "I sing because I'm happy. I sing because I'm free. For His eye is on the sparrow and I know he watches me."

There is a something I noticed in most of the old vampire movies. No matter how close the vampire became to sticking his fangs into a victim, whenever the sun came up, he turned and ran away.

There is something about the sun that makes the ungodly run away.

While there are no real vampires in the world, the devil is real and he doesn't like the SON either. When the SON rises in your life things start to happen.

When the son rises in your life, the devil will get away from you.

When the son rises in your life, the demons that try to possess you will depart.

I don't know about you, but I thank God for the SON and I thank God for the cross!

The cross of Calvary is a symbol of our salvation!

The song writer said, “There to my heart was the blood applied, Glory to His name!”

Thank God for the cross!

At the cross, true blood is applied and the power of sin is broken and the power of salvation is released!

At the cross, true blood is obtained and the spirit of bondage is shattered and a new spirit of freedom is unchained

At the cross, true blood is secured and those who have been disillusioned receive new hope!

At the cross, true blood is issued and those who have been discouraged find new inspiration!

No wonder the song writer wrote, “I know it was the blood. I know it was the blood that saved me. One day when I was lost, he died upon a cross. I know it was the blood that saved me.”

Young warriors, don’t worry about the creatures of the night, just keep walking in the light!

Don’t worry about the powers of darkness, just keep your hands in God’s hand and the devil will leave you alone!

There is power, power wonder working power in the precious blood of the lamb!

Lift Jesus Up and stomp the devil down!

Jesus, my light in a world darkness!

Jesus, my defender against all enemies!

Jesus, my shield in the midst of battle!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

But, Early Sunday morning, He rose up from the grave!

I know it was the blood..true blood that saved me!

As Is

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 6, 2011

SCRIPTURE: "And such were some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God." 1 Corinthians 6:11

Introduction

Have you ever been interested in a certain product but then saw a tag or label that said "as is?" If you have you are not alone. Millions of shoppers around the world have seen the little tags that indicate that the merchandise that is being displayed is being offered without warranty or guarantee. It is a warning to the customer that the merchandise may or may not be functional, or may require some level of attention to become operable.

We have seen examples of this on used car lots, in damaged merchandise stores, rummage sales, estate sales, and even commercial establishments that have sections that specialize in offering seconds. The frugal shopper can often save money by purchasing items that need just a little touch up to be usable. Sometimes shoppers can save considerable amounts of money when they buy furniture or appliances that have small scratches or dents.

In recent years used cars have started to post warnings to customers in big letters that advised that a pre-owned vehicle is being sold with no warranty so the buyer should beware that the purchase price does not include a return, repair, or any other consideration; it is being sold as is.

As-is does not always mean that the product is bad but it does always mean that no warranty is attached to it. Anyone who purchases it does so with the full knowledge that once they get home there is a possibility that their purchase may disappoint them.

That doesn't disappoint a person who has a restoration in mind. The young man that buys an old car, that is dented, in operable, and ugly knows that he's probably buying a lemon, but he has a restoration in mind. He's planning to remove the dents, given a new paint job, give it some new wheels, spruce up the interior, and add a few hydraulics. He buys the old car as is, but he has something else in mind.

Is it possible that God had something of this nature in mind when he looked down on this world and saw its sad estate and decided to redeem it to himself. What he saw was a world filled with sin, hate and ungodliness. Yet he loved the world so much that he gave his only begotten son who purchased our salvation with his own blood. What he purchased was a real wreck but what he had in mind was restoration.

As Christians, we should rejoice that our God looked down on our feeble estate and loved us enough to look beyond our immediate faults and flaws and see our needs. We came to him in a state of "as is" but when God gets through with us we shall come forth as pure gold.

Exposition

This text focuses upon the apostle Paul as he explains to the Christians at Corinth how their lives in Christ should progress from sinfulness to righteousness.

Paul explains how the former state of a Christian compares to the present state. Before Christ a Christian was a person who stood condemned before God, but after Christ is a new creature.

The believer has reached a point in life where he or she has evolved from the "unrighteous" state into the full knowledge of God as they live and walk in the spirit. Having once been a practicing sinner, the believer has moved to a higher level; that of knowing Christ fully. He or she has stepped forward and up to a better life. Thus Paul says, "And such were some of you!" He seemed to say you have been there! You have done that! You have the tee-shirt! But you have stepped out of darkness into the marvelous light!

Paul indicates the three fold state of every believer who is a part of the kingdom of God. He gives a list of the three states, which actually incur in the reverse order. 1) A person is justified, meaning that God's affirmative action program has made up for his short comings and mistakes. 2) A person is sanctified, that means they have changed their life's path and modified their list of concerns to include only those things which would be pleasing to God. They become special and set apart. 3) A person who is washed by the spirit of God is no longer of the world but is a new creature.

The believer's best testimony to a non-believer is that we have not always lived in an isolated world of bible classes, hymns and church services, but that the believer has experienced the world enough to know that God offers a better way.

He sees more than we see

The love of God for his creation is not unconditional. He loves what He sees, but He sees more than we see.

GOD SEES THE FLAWS: Everyone has flaws, but often they are not visible. Only those who have been around us a while learn our flaws. Stores such as TJ Max and Ross for Less often sell designer clothing at one fourth of the price because there is a small flaw in the garment somewhere. It's so small that it is hardly visible. That's the way it is with us. He would be perfect, but…" She would be perfect …but!" God's loves us with the full knowledge that we are flawed. He knows about our temper, our tendency to cheat, our wild ambition and our vices. He knows everything about us and chooses to love us anyway. In much the same way a couple chooses to love each other, despite the flaws they find. God knows our flaws. In fact, Psalm 139:2 says, "Thou knowest my down sitting and mine uprising, thou understandest my thought afar off." God sees the scratch, the bad stitching around the mouth that won't shut up, the zipper that won't stay up, the dress tail that won't stay down, the faded colors of our temper, but He chooses to love us anyway. Christ paid the price for our salvation on Calvary, with the full knowledge that some of the souls He purchased were really messed up, but His purchase gave them a chance.

GOD CAN FIX IT: When a person buys a flaw item it no longer belongs to store, it belongs to him. In the church world we call that "Justification." That's when God claims us as His own even though we are a little messed up. One reason that some people buy flawed merchandise is because they hope to fix it up. A wood worker sees a scratch on a piece of furniture and says, "I can fix that." An auto body mechanic intends to remove a dent in a car. A seamstress intends to fix the zipper that doesn't work. Christ saves us from our sins and brings us into the family of God, but the intent is to help us fix what is broken. In the church world we call fixing what is broken and flawed "sanctification." Every day God is working on the scratch, polishing our rough edges, restitching. It's a life long process. Some of us are in the first stages of God's "fix it" plan. Others are much further along, but we are all flawed. Church critics say that Christians are messed up; they are right. We are all spiritual rejects purchased at "Life for Less." The difference is that we've been purchased and God is fixing is up, and they are just as flawed, but they are still on the shelf.

The idea is that as God works with us we should progress in the faith.

We may have come to Jesus dressing sexually to draw attention to ourselves, but we have since learned better!

We may have come to Jesus requiring the choir to sing musician that had the sound and feel of the clubs, but we have since learned to listen salvation of the words than the sound or the beat.

We came to Jesus broken and looking for a quick fix, but we have since learned that what He offers are not quick fixes but extreme make-overs!

GOD SEES WHAT WE CAN BE: When we present ourselves to God we are in bad shape spiritually. The reason that He accepts us is because He sees what we can be. Just as your beautician sees the final design of your hair; the doctor sees your health after your surgery; the teacher sees your life after graduation; God sees what you can be when He gets through with you. If you've ever watched an auto body mechanic work, you'll notice that he is never intimidated by the condition of the wrecks that are brought to his shop. He gets a picture of what it will be in his mind then proceeds to tear it apart. Fenders, bumpers, hoods, windshields even seats are removed and seem to be scattered everywhere. Soon broken parts are repaired, dents are removed, it is reassembled, painted fresh and returned improved and ready for us.

In a similar sense God does us the same way. He sees what we can be, but to get us there He may find it necessary to take us apart, strip us down, so He can put us back together again. He told the prophet Jeremiah to go the Potter's House and watch the potter work. As the potter worked with the clay, when he found a flaw he tore down the whole creation and started over again. God told Jeremiah that is what he has to do to His people sometimes: tear them down, to build them up again. 1 Corinthians 2:9 says, "….Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."

God is working with us. We are not there yet. That's why the song writer wrote, "Please be patient with me. God is not through with me, yet. When God gets through, I shall come forth as pure gold."

Just As I am

Finally, brothers and Sisters, we must remember that when Jesus purchased our salvation He paid a high price for damaged merchandise.

Whenever a person purchases an item, he expects a discount if the item has been used, broken, or damaged in some way. Very few people would pay the retail price for "as-is" merchandise.

Yet, when God looked down on the world He decided to redeem it for Himself but that redemption would not be discounted. His word remained unchanged Romans 6:23, "For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life."

How does a sinful person like me, come before God? There is only one way to come, that's to come "As-is"

That's what Charlotte Elliott learned many years ago when she was visiting friends and met a preacher at a dinner who asked her if she was a Christian. She was offended by the question, but it would not go away. Weeks later she met the same preacher again and told him that his question troubled her, but she did not know how to find Him neither did she feel worthy. The preacher told her that God is always near by, "Just come to him as you are." She accepted Christ that day and later wrote a song that said, "Just as I am without one plea, but that thy blood was shed for me; and that thou bidst me come to thee, O lamb of God, I come, I come."

Those who come to Jesus come, Just as I am

Someone is crying out, Lord my life is a shambles, but I'm counting on you reassembled the pieces, Just as I am, I come!

Someone is praying, Lord I have a house, but I don't something is missing, I need your help to turn it into a home, Just as I am I come!

Someone is confessing, Lord I lived with the loved of my life for a long time, but we are not married. We need your power to move to the next step, Just as I am, I come!

Someone is witnessing, Lord I'm considering a profession or business venture, but my reasons are spiritual, you can help me see clearly for right now I'm blind, Just as I am, I come!

Isaiah approached God by saying, I'm not worthy, but I come before you Just as I am, and the Lord made him a great prophet.

Saul came before God a persecutor of the church, but in a little house on Straight Street he came to Jesus, "Just as I am" and the Lord made him the greatest evangelist of all time.

Every believer at one point or another meets God on the markdown shelf of life, after the world has rejected us as damaged goods.

It may have been in a jail cell, like the jailer in Philippi, but there we met the Lord!

It may have been while working in an unsavory job, like Matthew the tax collector, but there we met the Lord.

It may have been while we were just looking on like Zacchaeus, who met the Lord in a Sycamore tree!

That's the day when we found ourselves saying, "I came to Jesus as I was, weary, wounded and sad. I found in Him a resting place and He has made me glad!"

I came to Jesus, just as I was and whenever I needed him, He's been there!

I don't mind telling the world, I know He's real!

I know the Lord will answer prayer for I tried Him for myself!

For me, a flawed soul, He endured the pain of Calvary!

For me, damaged goods, He Died an unsavory death!

But early Sunday morning He arose with all power in His hands!

I came to Jesus "as is" and He claimed me as his own!

No. 9531-Harvest

Reaping the Fruits and binding the tares

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 2011

SCRIPTURE: And now, behold, I have brought the first fruits of the land, which thou, O LORD, hast given me. And thou shalt set it before the LORD thy God, and worship before the LORD thy God: 11 And thou shalt rejoice in every good thing which the LORD thy God hath given unto thee, and unto thine house, thou, and the Levite, and the stranger that is among you. Deuteronomy 26:10-11; Matthew 13:30 30 Let both grow together until the harvest: and in the time of harvest I will say to the reapers, Gather ye together first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them: but gather the wheat into my barn.

Introduction

Have you ever heard the phrase, "You reap what you sow?"It has been accepted as general truth, but in actuality a person reaps what has been sown, regardless to whether or not he is the person who did the sowing. Sometimes we reap what others have sowed in our field, with or without our knowledge.

When we are reaping quality fruits from our own fields of labor there is cause for celebration. At harvest time the humble spirit offers thanks. It does not matter about a person's country or language, it is appropriate to offer thanks after reaping the harvest.

How many ways can you say thank you for the harvest?

If you were in Mexico you would say, Gra-ci-ous.

If you were in Germany you would say,Dan-Ka and Mercee is what the French would say.

Celebration is biblical. Especially celebration of the harvest. Whenever believers looked back upon what God did for them they celebrated.

When Abraham secured a wife for his son Isaac there was a celebration.

When Moses announced that after 400 years that Israel would finally leave Egypt; there was a celebration.

When Joshua led Israel into the Promised Land which flowed with opportunity like milk and honey, there was a celebration.

When David finally secured the return of the Ark of the Covenant to Israel he was so happy that he celebrated by dancing nearly naked in the street.

At harvest, when the reapers bring in the fruits of their labor they all expressed heartfelt emotions that looked at the sum total of the harvest with humility and gratitude.

As Christians, we have labored in the fields for the master. It is a time of celebration! Our greatest joy is to enjoy the fruits of our labor as the reaping begins. We have shed tears, but they become tears of joy as see the fruits of our labor. To God be the glory for the things He has done.

Exposition

This text focuses on the practice of reaping the harvest and offering the first fruits. When Israel had taken possession they were instructed what to do after the first harvest. They had been a nomadic people for 40 years and knew very little about agriculture. They planted seeds, but were unsure of the results. They planted and depended on God for the yield.

All year the people were unsure of crops. They saw the tender shoots rise above the ground, but they also saw tares grow in some areas. The stalks gave them hope, but were not a guarantee in themselves that their crops would be successful.

When the first ears of corn or other products were gathered there was great excitement. These first fruits, first baskets of the harvest, we're signs of the full harvest that was to follow. The Mosaic law required Israel to give God the praise for the harvest that was approaching. The first fruits celebration was a celebration of things to come.

The first ritual consisted of taking the first fruits to the priest at the central sanctuary to present evidence that God had been faithful in providing for them in the new land. Each family in the entire nation had the opportunity to come before God individually and confess his or her faith in God. The priest took the basket of first fruits, prayed over it, and gave it back to the worshipper. The worshipper presented the basket again, this time leaving it before the altar as an offering to God and a show of faithfulness and obedience to God.

When the ceremony ended there were acts of adoration and praise that were required to insure that the offering was accepted. Worshippers were expected to have humble, reverent, thankful hearts, without which no offering would be accepted.
Worshippers took comfort in these signs because the first fruit was an indicator of the bountifulness of the harvest to come; they were told to rejoice!

Matthew Henry says, "It is the will of God that we should be cheerful, not only in our attendance upon his holy ordinances, but in our enjoyments of the gifts of his providence. Whatever good thing God gives us, it is His will that we should make the most comfortable use we can of it, yet still tracing the streams to the fountain of all comfort and consolation."

In the New Testament, the initial work of the Holy Spirit is called the first fruits. The evidences of signs and wonders that were seen by thousands was not the whole harvest, but just the first signs of the harvest to come. Yet, warnings were given by Jesus himself that there would be those who would attempt to sow bad seeds in the fields to frustrate the hope of the first fruits and the eventual yield of the harvest itself.

Jesus warned that there would be those who would sow doubt, dissension and mistrust among the believers, trying to destroy the eventual harvest. This dissent and doubt he described as "tares" which were not to be pulled up and destroy, but allowed to grow beside the "wheat." Seeking to destroy the tares only sidelined the harvest effort. They are to be allowed to continue with the knowledge that when the harvest truly comes, the tares would be destroyed in the fires of condemnation.

The Holy Spirit's work is producing the first fruits among believers, despite the presence of the tares. Believers should continue to rejoice for the work of God that we see now is only a fore-runner of things to come.

Bringing the first fruits

These texts indicate precisely how believers should approach the harvest and the presence of tares as the reapers begin their work.

REJOICE OVER THE FIRST FRUITS: Israel celebrated when the first ears of corn and other crops were reaped. They rejoiced and gave thank for the first fruits in expectation of greater things to come. Today believers have many signs in the individual and corporate life of the church that the harvest will be great. When the first fruits come, we should rejoice and give thanks. We should thank God and rejoice for the unseen spiritual blessings of salvation, heavenly promise and peace of mind. This spirit of thanksgiving for the first fruits is supported in scripture. The verb ''to give thanks'' occurs thirty-eight times and the noun ''thanksgiving'' another fifteen times in the New Testament. Paul gave thanks. Jesus gave thanks for everything. The disciples gave thanks to God for every sign and every wonder He gave as an evidence of His faithfulness to believers. The first fruits represent the full harvest which is yet, unseen; yet it was the object of thanks. So, believers today give thanks for both the seen and the unseen; both the blessing already received and the blessing expected.

ADORATION AND WORSHIP: When believers celebrate the harvest, we revive the Old Testament tradition of celebrating what God has done for us through worship and praise. That is important because there are some who cheat God by withholding worship and praise

One day those who refuse to worship or sit in worship services like statues refusing to say Amen or show any sign of gratitude for the blessings of the Lord will find themselves outside of the ark of safety and in their place, the rocks will cry out glory and honor! Israel worshipped by commandment, but today's believers celebrate out of gratitude and appreciation for what God has done for us.

When God has blessed us, we should be willing to praise him and lift him up in the sanctuary so that everyone can see the joy we share in the Lord. Instead, many whom God has blessed richly, choose to stay home regularly and refuse to praise him publicly, or if they do worship, it is in a very unresponsive manner.

What we offer God today should be 24-karat adoration and praise that can withstand beatings, twisting, anger, confusion and any other malady that may come our way. The beauty of our praise is based on our relationship with God that is never diminished by time or circumstances.

BIND THE TARES: As the harvest approaches there will be many who will plant bad seeds hoping to destroy the harvest. We see this in operation today as many of the good works of the church are brought into question by skeptics and doubters. We see false religions and prosperity twists being applied to the works of the Holy Spirit all over the world. Yet, when the harvest comes, the reapers will be commanded to bind the tares and destroy them, just as the devil himself will be bound and cast into the everlasting fires of hell.

Church leaders should not be overly frustrated that there are tares in the field because the savior has given us specific instructions. Don't spend too much time trying to pull up tares lest we harm the harvest, but when the time is right the Savior Himself will do the separating. Our main focus should be the gathering of the "sheaves." When we bring in the sheaves we will sing the words of the old hymn, "Bringing in the sheaves! Bringing in the Sheaves! We shall coming rejoicing, bringing in the sheaves!"

Don't forget to give God thanks

Finally brothers and sisters, when we have seen the evidence of the first fruits let us not forget the importance of saying thanks to God for the harvest!

There are many who receive from God, but forget to say thanks, but we who are laborers in the vineyard must keep a spirit of perpetual gratitude.

We have the first fruits in our hands, but there is more to come if we can say thank you.

We have the first fruits of health and strength, but there is more to come if we can say thank you.

We have the first fruits of peace and tranquility, but there is more to come if we can say thank you.

We have the first fruits of joy and happiness, but there is more to come if we can say thank you.

Even the little children know how to say thank you:

Thank you for the world so sweet,

Thank you for the food we eat,

Thank you for the birds that sing,

Thank you, God, for everything.

It may sound too simple for the adult mind, but it does not take a Harvard scholar to understand that a simple Thank you can go a long ways in life.

When God has blessed us with the first fruits of the harvest we need to say thank you.

We should say thank you because we serve a God who is in the prayer answering business.

If the week is about to begin with financial troubles looming everywhere, take it to the Lord in prayer.

If there is a problem in your family that you can't solve take it to the Lord in prayer.

After you have prayed about it, step back and watch God work!

God can take bad situations and turn them around!

God can take unemployed hands and help them find work!

God can take empty purses and filled them with blessings!

God can take failures and turn them into successes!

There has never been a problem that God couldn't solve!

There has never been a valley too low for God to pull you out!

There has never been a mountain to high for God to climb!

There has never been a river so wide that God couldn't cross it!

Call on Jesus!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Call on Jesus, who arose after three days and nights!

When He arose He was the first fruit of the kingdom, but when the harvest comes.....

All the people stood up

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 13, 2011

SCRIPTURE: "And Ezra opened the book in the sight of all the people; (for he was above all the people;) and when he opened it, all the people stood up," Nehemiah 8:5

Introduction

What does it mean to stand up for the Lord? A new practice was introduced into the church just over two decades ago in many non-denominational churches. It is the practice of standing when the minister reads the initial text of the sermon. No matter how long the passage many are now being taught that they should stand whenever the word is read. This practice indicates that those standing have respect for the word of God. It is a ritual rather than a doctrine or creed, because worshippers only have to stand the first time the word is read, not all of the other times that the word is read in the course of the sermon.

It is a new practice because in the old church only the person who read the Scripture actually stood; and even then, standing was only required in formal situations. In the old church people would stop walking if someone was in the process of reading the Scripture. Conversely, if a person was reading the Scripture and someone continued to walk, the person reading would stop until that person was seated. It was an old-fashioned way of indicating the holiness of the word.

At best all of these practices are rituals and ceremonies that have little meaning to the Lord. It is doubtful that God is impressed with the fact that we stop walking when the word is read, if we continue walking in disobedience of what is being read. God is probably not impressed with any of our rituals whether it is standing when the Scripture is read, pausing and not walking, or making sure that no one stacks anything on the Bibles in our homes. Rituals are meaningless unless they are backed up by heartfelt and sincere actions.

While there is no harm in the practice believers must be aware that there is no saving grace in any of our rituals and customs, or practices. They are just that, practices that differ from worship center to worship center. In one worship center people stand and in another worship center people sit until asked to stand. It's all ritual and custom that has some basis in Scripture but is always secondary to the life we live and present to God.

Standing up for the Lord means more than simply standing when a Scripture is read; it also means standing for Him even if we have to stand alone. Consider the boy who sat on the back row of his school classroom and watched as his teacher stood from behind his death and posed a challenge to the class: "If there is anyone in this class that considers himself stupid, will you please stand up!" There was a long silence. Not a student moved. The teacher bellowed his challenge again: "If there is anyone in this class that considers himself stupid, will you please stand up?" After a long silence the boy slowed rose from his back row seat and stood tall." Taken aback, the teacher asked the boy "Son do you consider yourself dumb?" The boy looked at the teacher and dropped his head in a half smirk and half smile then said, "No teacher, I just hate to see you standing all by yourself!"

Crazy Cassie Bell came to church every Sunday wearing the same funny hat, beat up jacket and torn dress. She never set down in the church service she always stood at the back door right next to one of the ushers. In her pocket she carried a small bottle of whiskey out of which she sipped all during the church service. She always had a brown paper bag which she placed on the floor and placed her right foot upon it. No one knew what was in that paper bag and not a soul in the church would dare ask. Finally, one day one of the children asked her, "Miss Cassie Bell what's in the paper bag?" She looked at the child with a frowning eye and pulled out a giant family Bible. She took a sip of whiskey and told the child, "I believes when you come to church you should stand on the word." With that she took another sip of whiskey and put her foot back on the Bible.

Standing up for the Lord has very little to do with ritual, but it has a lot to do with character, humility, faith, and obedience.

As Christians, we are committed to stand up for the Lord in real ways that demonstrate our faith and our trust in the power of God. Our ceremonies mean nothing if they do not reflect themselves in the way we live, breathe and have our being.

Exposition

This text focuses upon the reading of the Scripture by the prophet Ezra as the people stood to hear his words.

Ezra had been in Jerusalem for about 13 years trying to reestablish the worship and study of the Holy Scriptures. It had been many years since the people had heard the word of God read to them. They made a special request of the prophet Ezra to retrieve the sacred scrolls and to read to them the word of God as it was revealed to Moses. People came from near and far to hear the Scriptures read.

To accommodate the large crowd of people a special pulpit was made and raised high so that Ezra could be seen and heard by as many as possible. The old man was assisted by several men who stood by his side as he read to them for six hours. They were all ears. As he read the Scriptures to them the people stood and remained standing for half a day.

According to John Gill the people stood up so that they might better hear the law were read as well as out of reverence for the occasion.

The Jews say that from the times of Moses to Rabban Gamaliel, they learned the law only standing; but after his death they learned it sitting. Today it is the rule with them, that it is not necessary to stand at the reading of the law.

When Jesus came ceremonial rules such as these were debated among the scribes and Pharisees who split hairs over whether the fine points of the law and Jewish custom were being carried out. He emphasized the importance of character, love, and faithfulness to God over any of the traditions of the scribes and Pharisees. He never issued a command to His disciples to stand up and read, but he did expect them to live so that their lives would stand for something.

All the people

The text notes that all the people stood up. They were hungry for the word of God and asked for the word to be read to them even if they had to stand six hours to hear it read. That is the kind of commitment that Christ looks for in believers today; willingness to stand for the word of God.

What if all the people today would stand up for the Lord? Would the world be different?

In Ephesians 6:13 Paul says all believer should put on the whole armor of God that they might be able to withstand the devil. He concluded that verse by saying, "Having done all, to stand."

It is the responsibility of every child of God to stand up for those things which are right and stand up against those things which are wrong.

But sometimes to stand up requires us to speak up. To be the lone voice in the wilderness that declares that the "kingdom of Heaven is at hand." Speak up to declare that the wages of sin is death but the gift of God is eternal life."

To stand also implies two other "ups." To stand up means that you will not back up and you will not give up.

I hear Paul saying "I am persuaded that nothing shall separate me" form the love of God.

Storms may rise. But I won't back up!

Winds might blow. But I won't give up!

Grow Up

The text says all the people stood up. They walked many miles and sought to know more about God's word for themselves. This indicated that they had grown in their faith. Before anyone is able to stand up for the Lord, we too must be willing to grow up!

There are many in the world today who have failed to assume the responsibility that their age requires. To these we say, it's time to grow up.

Too many young people who are still depending on their parents to perform minor tasks for them such as making their beds, washing their dishes, and dirty clothes; it's time to grow up.

Too many the adults who have achieved the maturity of years but still behave like teenagers; it's time to grow up.

To the marginal Christians who pray little, read nothing and are only held to the faith by good singing and hard preaching; it's time to grow up.

When I was a child, I thought like a child, but now that I have matured I shall put away childish things

Pray up

Text says all the people stood up. When Ezra spoke words of adoration to God they answered Amen. We too should be prayed up and ready to say Amen that indicates we are willing to follow the will of God.

James 5:16 says, "The reverent effectual prayer of a righteous man availeth much." I Thessalonians 6:17 says, "Pray without ceasing". Every Christian is reminded of the need to "pray up."

Unfortunately there are many today who have not been convinced of the power of prayer.

They want to stand up and speak up, before they get themselves prayed up!

They reject the weekly prayer meeting as an exercise good for others but not good enough for themselves. They conveniently time their arrival at meeting, worships and rehearsals so they can make their entrance when they feel the prayer has ended.

The people of the text understood this biblical truth, that's why they answered "Amen" meaning so be it.

We are encouraged to pray without ceasing, because regardless to what the skeptics say, prayer changes things.

Prayer can move uncrossable mountains.

Prayer can lift us from the valley of despair.

Prayer can resolve difficulties and maintain the peace.

Prayer can change the direction of wayward lives.

Prayer is the key to the kingdom. Faith unlocks the door.

More Ups

All the people of the text stood up, but there are many people today who are doing everything except standing up.

There are some who are trying to store up and lay up treasures on this earth. In Matthew 6:20 said, "But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, nor thieves do not break through and steal, for where your treasure is, there will be your heart also." Jesus is encouraging us to lay up treasures in heaven.

All the people in the text stood up, but many today can't stand up because they are too busy shacking up and racking up, slipping up and messing up.

Lifting Jesus Up

Finally, brothers and sisters, what would happen if all people stood up and lifted Jesus up?

If we shifted our focus from empty ceremony and meaningless ritual and actually ministered to those in prison, fed the poor and the hungry, comforted the lonely, and saved the lost we would stand up for God in such a powerful way that all of the heavens would take notice.

What would happen if all the people stood and told the world that we serve a risen savior who provides:

HOPE for the hopeless and STRENGTH for the weak.

DIRECTION for the lost and COMFORT for the lonely.

FREEDOM for the bound and BLESSING for the BURDENED

When the storms of life are raging, what would happen if all the people stood and said, our God is able to speak to any storm

POLITICAL storms, FINANCIAL storms, EMOTIONAL storms, MEDICAL storms, PHYSICAL storms;

What would happen if all the people stood and said, "Our God is able to speak to your storm and say, Peace be still?"

What would happen if all the people stood and said, "We serve a God who HAS:

—DELIVERED us from our sins!

—GIVEN Us unspeakable joy!

—COMFORTED in our time of sorrow!

—STRENGTENED us in our time of weakness!

—SATISFIED US with the bread of heaven

—QUENCHED OUR THIRST with the living water!

What would happen if all the people stood and lifted Jesus up, not by just standing up when someone reads, but in their words actions and deeds?

What would happen if all of the people told the world about the power of the Cross as the source of salvation?

What would happen if all the people stood and lifted Him up saying, "He's the Lily of the Valley?"

Lift Him up; He's the bright and morning star.

Lift Him up; He's the fairest of ten thousand.

Jesus said, " And I, if I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me."

What if all people stood and said, "When I was lost in my sins, He picked up an old rugged cross and substituted Himself for me!

What if all people stood and said, "They crucified Him for me?" He died for me!"

...But Early Sunday morning!

Early Sunday Morning!

Let all people say Amen!

No. 9533-Deliverance

It's not how you got in, but how you get out!

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: And he said unto Abram, Know of a surety that thy seed shall be a stranger in a land that is not theirs, and shall serve them; and they shall afflict them four hundred years; And also that nation, whom they shall serve, will I judge: and afterward shall they come out with great substance. Genesis 15:13-14

Introduction

Have you ever found yourself in a world of trouble? If so, how did you get out? There have been many stories told about our brushes with trouble and how we found a way. We have heard a variety of hair raising recollections over the years. The accounts have included auto accidents, financial disaster, family tragedies, business failures, medical dilemmas and worlds of troubles that seem to seize us and squeeze the life out of us.

Those of us who hear these testimonials can relate to the causes of the various quagmires described. We can relate to symptoms ignored, leading to major illnesses or over spending our budgets resulting in financial problems. We know how weeds came into our gardens the problem is, "How do we get them out??

That's the joy of listening to a Christian testimony. We don't just tell our friends and neighbors the depth of our situation, but we offer bold testimony that describes how we resolved the problem.

The world doesn't expect believers to never face problems, what they wait for is the rest of the story; they want to see how we work it out. When the preacher and his wife are having problems that is not unusual; what people want to know is how they worked it out! The Sunday school teacher that has a personal issue is not unusual; we know how easy it is for personal issues to appear. What the world wants to know is how did the dilemma come out?

We are inspired by many of the characters of the bible because, like us, many of them found themselves in trouble, but found the way out. The widow woman who was down to her last cruise of oil placed her trust in God and worked that problem out! The same is true of the woman with issue of blood; she had a problem but she worked it out with the just a touch of the hem of His garment. That's why we like David who got himself in trouble, but he worked it out by repenting.

As we study God's word we see many people just like ourselves who found themselves in a world of trouble, but somehow arose from their situation. When we watch what they did and try it ourselves, we find that we too can resolve our troubles the same way.

As Christians, we revel in the fact that God reaches down and touches the faithful, while they are in the midst of their troubles and shows them the way out. That's when we can testify that it is not important how we got ourselves into our troubles, but how we got out.

Exposition

This text focuses on God restating a promise that he made to Abraham concerning his family's future.

In Genesis 12 God told Abraham to leave his homeland and begin to travel from place to place until he reached a land that God would show him. That land became known as the Promised Land.

God promised Abraham that his family would possess and own all the land he could see and that his family would be so great that people would have a better chance counting the stars of the heaven than counting his offspring.

This chapter finds God repeating that promise to Abraham, but with a caveat.

At Genesis 15:13 God gives Abraham a warning that between the promise and the fulfillment of the promise many things would happen that would to be a lost cause and futile. He was told take heart.

He was told that "of a surety" his family would move around a lot, and would be strangers in distant lands that were not their own. The same verse notes that they would endure 400 years of hardships and affliction. God said he would judge the nation that enslaves them, but in the end he would bring Abraham's descendants out of their troubles more blessed than when they went in.

Four hundred years later this prophecy proved true. Joseph became a prominent official in Egypt and in a gesture of goodwill invited his family to move to Egypt. They served Egypt for many years. However, the death of Joseph a king arose who "knew not Joseph" and their troubles began. Their children were killed, the people were enslaved and endured unheard of afflictions.

At the end of the 400 years, as promised By God they marched out of Egypt as free men and women carrying with them both the wealth and knowledge of Egypt as they traveled to the promised land.

It did not matter how they came to be slaves in Egypt or how they suffered afflictions. What was important was how they came out. They came out with great substance, having been blessed by the hand of God.

Three ways out

We know how we got into our Egypt, but how do we get out? We have a pretty good idea what caused our problems, but the primary question is, "How do we get out?" We must do what can be done under our own power, but while we are doing what we know how to do, we must put our spiritual lives into high gear, if we intend to get out! There are three ways to arise and step out of our troubles:

PRAY YOUR WAY OUT: The first step to getting out of dire situations is to pray your way out.

When we want something from God the first step is to pray.

When we pray we talk to God and tell him the sincere desires of our heart. When we pray we pour out our souls to him. We empty our spirit and prostrate ourselves before Him.

When we pray God hears us and responds to our prayer request. The only requirement that God has of us is that we abide in him and that his words abide in us.

Before we start talking to God about our troubles we must humble ourselves before him and repent for our sins. We repent because we dare not ask God for blessings while we are practicing sinners. Second, we ask God to show us His and submit ourselves to Him. In humility, we pray, without ceasing, not that our troubles would end, but that His will should be done. Praying for the will of God to be done opens doors for us. When doors open we can find a way out.

It does not matter how we came to be in a situation, what matters is how we get out. The first step is to pray your way out.

PAY YOUR WAY OUT: When we are seeking God's help in a troubling situation, we must remember to pay our vows to Him, despite the circumstances that we face. In Psalm 116:14 David said, "I will pay my vows unto the LORD now in the presence of all his people." Our vows are the promises that we made to the Lord at one time or another. David writing the Psalms asked, "What shall I render unto the Lord for all His mercies?" That's when he answered that one thing he would do is pay is vows.

Despite our troubles we must find a way to pay our vows to God.

There is a story told about a 300 lb. man who went to his preacher and said, "Pastor, I'm so depressed. I've tried to lose weight & I can't. I'm in trouble. I can't even get a date. Can you help me?"

The preacher said, "Well, I think I can. Go home & be ready at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning." The preacher warned him that even though he was showing him the way out of his problem, the day would come when he would have to pay it back. The man agreed.

The next morning his doorbell rang and the man opened the door expecting the preacher to be there. But instead, there stood a beautiful girl with the face of Halle Berry and a shape like Beyonce' who said, "The preacher says that if you can catch me I'm yours." Then she took off running. Well, this guy took off after her, huffing and puffing. Of course, he couldn't catch her. This continued for six months he lost 120 pounds. The next to last morning, he almost caught her. Well, he could hardly wait for the next day to come because he knew that he would catch her that morning for sure.

The next morning the doorbell rang. He opened it eagerly, but there stood a 400 lb. woman. She said, "The preacher said that if I can catch you, I can have you." As he took out running, he remembered the preacher's warning…it was now payback time!

Somebody here today told the Lord:

—If you heal me I'll give you my service all the days of my life!

—If you get me a job I'll give a tenth of my earnings unto the Lord!

—If you save my child I'll give you the praise until I die!

No matter what we promised God, we must keep our promises to Him. Hannah told God if he would allow her to conceive a child she would dedicate the child to His service. Despite every motherly instinct in her, once the child was born, she took him to the priest and kept her vow.

Likewise, when we are facing difficult times we must continue to pay our vows to God.

That promise you made to read your bible more, pay it!

That promise you made to start praying and worshipping more, pay it!

That promise you made to start doing more in the service of the Lord, pay it!

Pay it even in trouble. Not only should you pay your vow, but it might be a good idea to shift it into high gear in troubling times!

It doesn't matter how you got in your situation, it's how you get out. One way out is to keep your promises to God!

PRAISE YOUR WAY OUT: When you find yourself in difficult situations we must continue praise and give thanks. That might sound odd to some, but believers have learned that we should praise God constantly, even when we are in trouble. Not only do we give God thanks for blessings, but we also give Him thanks for our troubles. 1 Thessalonians 5:18 says In everything give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you. The word everything includes our troubles and problems. We thank God for everything, because we remember Romans 8:28 "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." This is the strange biblical principle in which God turns bad into good, poverty into riches, sickness into health, jail into freedom, and failure into success. Since believers know that the troubles we face will ultimately be for our good we praise and thank God in the middle of our troubles.

Thus, we thank Him for everything, even if it appears there is nothing for which to be thankful, thank Him anyway!

Thank God for the bill collector!

Thank God for your enemies and haters!

Thank God for the family problem!

That means wherever I go I will praise the Lord!

I may be flying in an airplane but I'll praise the Lord!

I may be sailing on board the rolling sea, but I'll praise the Lord!

I may be driving along the crowded highways, but I will praise the Lord!

Lift His name up in praise because you know that even though you cannot see how, God is using your situation to your good.

He allowed you to get in it, so that when you get out of it, you will be better off from having been in it!

To Get out, follow God's command

Finally, brothers and Sisters we must remember that to get out of trouble we must move at God's command.

God told Abraham that his family would see difficulties, but those difficulties would prepare them to come out with greater substance.

They went in a small family of 70 people; they came out a great nation of more than one million.

They went in without possessions, but they came out carrying the gold and riches of Egypt.

They went in and became wards of the state, slaves and second class servants; they came out as free men and women, first class citizens of the kingdom of God.

When it was time for Israel to come out they moved at God's command.

Even when it appeared that they faced more trouble at the Red Sea Moses told Israel to stand still and see the Salvation of the Lord!

If trouble erupts in your home, it doesn't matter how you got in, Stand still and talk to God about it; and he'll show you how to get out!

If there is an answer that seems to evade you, it doesn't matter who posed the question, stand still and talk to God about it and He will show you how to figure it out!

Have you reached a Red Sea? Are you faced with a River Jordan? Have you done all you know how to do? It doesn't matter how you made it to it, but stand still and talk to God about it and He'll you how to get out!

The voice of frustration speaks to you when you are in trouble, it says, "Look at the trouble you are in." Yet the word of God reminds us not to focus on how much trouble we are in, but how God will get us out! That's why Isaiah said in 40:31, But they that wait upon the LORD shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint.

The voice of defeat tells you to look down, but the voice of God says, don't focus on the severity of the situation, but focus on how God will get you out! Don't give up! Just look up! Psalm 121 says, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help, my help cometh from the Lord who made the heavens and the earth!"

When the storm rages, stand still, do your best and let God do the rest!

When trouble is all around you, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the Lord...stand still!

When your worries overwhelm you, be not dismayed, God will take care of you!

Through every day over all the way, He will take care of you!

God will take care of you!

When trouble comes think about the goodness of the Lord!

Vol 22-5332

Think about how He died out on Calvary!

The joy that we have is not focusing on the events that put Him in the grave, but our joy comes when we remember how it got out of it!

Early Sunday morning! He arose with all power in his hands!

They could not know Him because they knew Him

SCRIPTURE: Is not this the carpenter's son? is not his mother called Mary? and his brethren, James, and Joses, and Simon, and Judas? And his sisters, are they not all with us? Whence then hath this man all these things? And they were offended in him. But Jesus said unto them, A prophet is not without honour, save in his own country, and in his own house. And he did not many mighty works there because of their unbelief. Matthew 13:55-58

Introduction

Is it possible that people who have known your family for as long as you can remember may not know you at all? There are many people in your neighborhood who profess to know your family, its history, and its origins. When the elders speak they detail events, circumstances, and peculiar actions of members of your family with such striking attention to detail that it becomes obvious that they are, at the very least, extremely familiar with your family circumstances. With such a large amount of knowledge available to them, is it possible that the same people may not know you as an individual? Is it possible to know the family but not know individual family members.

It is extremely difficult to compete with the neighborhood image of your family. It is often frustrating to many young people when they hear of the great accomplishments of members of their family in the past; they feel compelled to live up to the expectations of their neighbors. When another generation of students attends a school their family name conjures recollections of previous scholars in their family. Conversely, students who must follow in the paths of family members who have a less than honorable trail can also feel frustrated because they are expected to act according to the pattern set by those who preceded them. In any event, it is extremely difficult when you are not evaluated upon you own abilities, accomplishments, goal and mission, but are characterized by those of other people.

How many of the people who claim to know your family actually know you? They knew your dad or your mother, they were familiar with your cousins and your uncles, but how many of them know you? It may very well prove to be true that many people who know your family and are acquainted with your relatives may not know you at all. That's primarily true because you don't really know a person until you've had some interaction with them. You won't know people until you have seen their response to the various issues of life.

How well does God know us? Is he our the neighbors? Is he familiar with our movements and what we do and say but is unfamiliar with the thoughts of our mind? God knows us very well. In fact, God knows us better than we know ourselves. The psalmist wrote "He knoweth my down sitting and mine uprising; he knoweth the thoughts of my mind before I think them." God knows our family and unlike the neighbors he knows all of the intricate details of the lives of every member of our household.

As Christians, we should be pleased to know that God knows who we are, where we are, and what we need. We know God and God knows us, that is the assurance that we take with us as we proceed to light each and every day.

Exposition

This text focuses on Matthew as he explains the difficulty that the residents of Nazareth had trying to accept the divinity of Christ.

As a boy, Christ was reared in the town of Nazareth. It was a small town with a population between 1600 and 2000 people. Small towns are clannish; everyone knows everybody.

In small towns, there are very few secrets.

In small towns it is very difficult to hide a specific gift, profession, or calling.

Someone in a small town knows nearly everything about everything.

For the first 30 years of Jesus' life He lived in a small town atmosphere with the neighbors were familiar with His father the carpenter. They knew His mother Mary and they knew His four brothers: Joses, James, Simon and Judas. They also knew his sisters. The neighbors were fully acquainted with all of the attributes of Joseph's household: their education, finances, abilities and disabilities. In fact, there was very little about this family that the neighbors did not know.

While the neighbors thought they were familiar with every aspect of Joseph's family there were a few things that were family secrets, things that were kept private until the appropriate time. For 30 years, Mary and Joseph did not tell a soul in Nazareth about the circumstances of Jesus' birth down in Bethlehem. Neither were they told about the visit of the shepherds, the songs of the Angels in the heavens, the star that shone brightly in the night, or the expensive gifts they received from travelers from the East who came to see the Christ child.

When Jesus began his public ministry he began it at home. He began preaching and teaching the word of God although he had no formal training. He noticeably taught as one who had authority and they begin to wonder among themselves. They saw Jesus as the boy down the street. They saw Jesus as a young man who assisted his father in the construction of chairs in the building of houses as a Carpenters apprentice. They saw Jesus as a regular man; they did not see him as a son of God because they saw him in his humanity rather than his divinity. It is Jesus operating in his divinity that saves our souls. Is Jesus through his humanity that feels our pain. Believers see him both as a Savior and the personal God that he is.

POTENTIAL IS OFTEN BURIED: For 30 years the people of Nazareth did not notice the hidden potential in Joseph's son. They watched the way He carried himself, His self discipline, and his respect for the law. However, they did not see his hidden potential. They saw him every day but did not see the signs. When we are able to see the potential in a person it raises our expectations. Too often people around us expect very little from us because they cannot see the potential. We are often blind by what we see. This blindness keeps us from seeing the potential.

We see the bad boy in school; we can't see the police chief in him.

We see the person who sprays graffiti on the wall; we can't see the next Impressionists artist that is in him.

We see the kid who likes to crack jokes; we can't see the next Bob Hope, Jay Leno, or Cedric the entertainer.

When God sees us He does not see us as our neighbors see us; He sees our potential.

One reason God never gives up on us is that he sees what we can be. Often we do and say some crazy things, yet God never gives up on us. Somehow he looks beyond our faults, flaws and failures and sees our needs.

In the same sense there are many who have been familiar with God for many years but do not know him either. Because they do not know him their expectations are reduced to fit what they actually know. Jesus once showed his believers a little small mustard seed and told them if they had the faith of a mustard seed they could do the impossible. He showed them the potential of what they could release if they had faith in him. We have not done much for the Lord often because we have low expectations despite having high potential.

We expect little from a big God who is frustrated from our small expectations.

Our achievements are small although we know a big God who is frustrated because we won't ask for anything bigger.

When our potential is recognized we start to realize that we don't have to have small expectations. We can dream bigger! We can expect God to bless the work of our hands!

The advantage of knowing God is that he knows our potential, but most importantly we know his potential to make a difference in our lives.

Familiarity is Not Intimacy

The people of Nazareth were familiar with Jesus as a neighbor, they did not know him intimately. If they had known him intimately they would not have been surprised by his teachings, and unique relationship with God as his Son. Today, there are many people who are familiar with us but they don't really know us. On your job there are coworkers who know your name and a few facts about you, but they don't really know you.

In a broader sense there are many people who walk with Christ without knowing him.

They are familiar with them but they don't know him. There are millions of people who have been associated with the church, work in its ministries, sing, pray and even attend its worships, but do not know him.

There are many who are church members but are not Christians.

They are members of a church but they are not a part of the body of Christ.

The men on the Emmaus Road walked with Christ and talked with him, but they did not know Him. God has been blessing us in our walk, but many still do not know Him. That's when we remember the 1972 Harold Melvin and the Blue Notes song title, If you don't know me by now, you will never, never, never know me!

The people of Nazareth were familiar with Jesus but they did not know him. They could not sing the words of the song that says, "I come to the garden alone while the dew is still on the roses.... And he walks with me and he talks with me and he tells me I am his own. And the joy we share as we tarry there, none other has ever known."

When you know the Lord is more than familiarity it is intimacy.

When you know the Lord there is a closeness that exists between you and he that lifts you when you are down, inspires you when you are discouraged, and restores you when you are completely exhausted.

This is the intimacy that the old warriors sang about when they said, "I've tried the man and the man is all right."

No miracles at home

Since Jesus lived in Nazareth it would appear that his neighbors would have an inside track to receive the benefits of the wonder working power of his ministry. Yet, Matthew 13:58 speaks volumes about what the people of Nazareth actually received: not many mighty works. In all other areas around Nazareth Jesus was able to do many mighty works. Heal the sick, raise the dead, and cause the blind to see. However at home there was a sad note, "not many mighty works."

The same verse gives the reason the people did not believe him. At home those who did believe in him were blessed by him. Not many implies that there were some who did believe and were blessed. The large crowds that pressed to see Him in other towns were nonexistent in Nazareth.

In Nazareth, they could not know Him because they thought they knew him.

In response to his rejection by his own neighbors Jesus said prophets are always received r wherever they go, except in their own hometown. The same may be said of many great people who are acknowledged around the world, but when they come home their greatness is not recognized.

Just as the people of Nazareth did not take advantage of the power that was within their borders, today we often failed to capitalize on the power of God that is within our reach.

When we are sick often are healing is just a prayer away. Yet, some won't pray because they dismiss prayer as superstition.

When we are in trouble our deliverance is nearby. Yet, some are never delivered because they don't believe God is able to address their situation.

When we have failed our restoration is forthcoming. Yet, some wallow in self-pity rather than rebound because they believe God has abandoned them.

Jesus was not able to do in a great work in Nazareth because the people had no faith in him. The only thing that stops the power of God from being released in our lives is our lack of faith. We have not because we ask not.

Those who know the Lord

Finally brothers and sisters, those who know the Lord know what to expect from him because they have tried Him for themselves.

The people of Nazareth were not blessed the way they could have been because they didn't know the Lord they only knew his family.

Since they did not know him they did not expect him to respond to them in a personal and intimate way.

However that is not the case among those who know the Lord for themselves. Those who know the Lord have a different set of expectations, but most importantly they what God expects of them:

God expects us to keep the faith and never let go of our passion and love for Him.

God expects us to resist the temptation to flirt with the world.

God expects us to get up after we stumble and try again!

God expects us to continue to worship Him and give him praise!

God expects us to get up if we fall, fail or experience defeat!

God expects us to keep trying, never stop striving and always move forward!

God expects us not to doubt Him. As long as God is still on the throne, God expects you to remember that if you are:

—Praying for Rain, you need to get your umbrella ready!

—Praying for bread, you need to grease the pan!

---Praying for a job, you need to get your resume ready!

Why? Because God is able!

Don't stop expecting God to bless you!

Don't stop expecting God to open doors for you!

There is only one door. I heard him say in John 10:14, " I am the door: by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved."

The Lord expects for you to remember to call His name!

His name is Jesus!

He came and died to raise our expectations and give us new hope!

He died on an old rugged cross to give us hope!

Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave to help us sing the old song, 'I know the Lord will answer prayer, I' tried him for myself!"

Don't judge the gift by the wrapping

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 18, 2011

SCRIPTURE: "And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn."Luke 2:7

Introduction

Have you ever received a gift that was beautifully wrapped? A beautifully wrapped gift has a tendency to raise our expectations as to the contents. On the contrary, gifts that are poorly wrapped seem to indicate that the contents will be of very little value. Although we've all been warned not to judge a book by its cover, many of us still fall prey to the practice of judging the gift by the quality of the wrapping.

Each year more than $2.6 billion is spent on gift wrapping in the United States alone. Gift wrapping has become a self contained industry. The industry focuses upon paper, packaging and bows which comprise the majority of its revenues each year. Most gift wrapping revenue is generated during the Christmas season when it is unthinkable to simply place an item under a tree without some type of packaging, ribbon or beautiful method of presentation.

For many families wrapping gifts is a part of the Christmas experience. There are many humorous memories tied to the tradition of wrapping the presents. Remember that little small gift that was placed in the giant box stuffed with newspaper? Remember the bottomless box that had the puppy on the inside, but looked strange as the box moved across the floor? Remember the diamond ring that was wrapped with $.25 wrapping paper to disguise its presence? Every family has a few gift wrapping stories that are hilarious.

Our fascination with outward beauty often causes us to look under the Christmas tree for the biggest, most beautifully wrapped, presents and reach for them first on Christmas morning. Without knowing it we judged the quality of the gift by the beauty of the wrapping. That is why the gift wrapping industry has become a $1 billion enterprise around the world: we often Judge what's on the inside by what we see on the outside.

When God decided to give the world the gift of His son He didn't spend much time worrying about how he would be wrapped or whether there was a blue bow or not. In fact, there was no ribbon or fancy packaging at all; not even a Hallmark card to announce His presence. He was born in a cattle shed, laid in a manger and wrapped in inexpensive baby clothes. Yet, despite the inexpensive, even poverty-stricken appearance of the babe in the manger, this gift was the greatest gift that God would give to the world. It was a great gift that could not be judged by the wrappings.

As Christians, we should be appreciative of the gift that God gave to the world; the gift of his only begotten son. We should not judge the quality of that gift based upon its outward appearance but rather we should appreciate that what God gave to the world was a gift that far superseded its wrappings; it was the gift of salvation and the opportunity for eternal life for all of those who believe.

Exposition

This text focuses upon the circumstances surrounding the birth of Jesus in Bethlehem.

Caesar Augustus issued a decree that all persons living in the province of Judea should return to their home cities to register for taxation. Mary and Joseph being descendents of David returned to Bethlehem, the city of David, to register.

The couple had been informed in advance that Mary had been selected to serve as a surrogate to bring the son of God into the world. Through her, the words of John 1:14 had a fulfilled meaning, "And Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth.)" The couple found no room available in the town of Bethlehem because so many people came for the taxation. However, they did acquire space in a stable in the back of the inn. It was a difficult and uncomfortable situation, however the stable with its accompanying manger tucked away in a cave provided shelter for the night.

During the night Mary gave birth to Jesus of Nazareth, the Son of God; he was wrapped in swaddling clothes and laid in a manger.

The swaddling clothes, the manger, and the Inn are all symbolic of the poverty of Jesus; it was a low estate, certainly not one that would be expected of the person who was being born into the world as the son of God. This was not an accident. Christ intentionally came into this world in a low estate so that he could show by the humbleness of his arrival that he would be accessible to even the poorest of God's creation. 2 Corinthians 8:9 says, "Ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich.

The circumstances of Christ's birth did not raise any high expectations. Those who would've expected him to be born in a palace would have been disappointed. Those who expected his clothing to be anything but the swaddling cloth they found were also disappointed. Little did the world know that a mighty big God had delivered the source of its salvation using an unknown 13 year old girl, a little baby, a manger and a swaddling cloth.

Three Kinds of wrappings

There are three kinds of wrappings that reflect special truths about life that we should consider:

WRINKLED WRAPPINGS: A certain woman had a practice of saving the wrapping paper from her gifts each year and using it again the next year. She'd wait until her grandkids opened their presents, insisting that they not tear the paper, collect the paper, fold it and tuck it away. Without looking, they knew each year that the present under the tree with the wrinkled wrapping was from grandma, but despite its wrinkled, used look, she went out of her way and spared no expense to make sure that inside of the wrinkled paper was a gift of love. John Bonkoff in his book "Wrinkled Wrappings" talked about the gift that seniors bring into the lives their families. Grandparents and elderly caregivers are God's great gift to every family. It's the cakes and pies in the oven, the warm hugs and all that other stuff that comes wrapped up in grandparents.

A certain boy whose parent's died had to choose between living with his fun loving, loose living uncle or his elderly grandparents. Both wanted to care for him and a judge was asked to decide. The judge gave the boy the final choice. The young couple promised him a great time and lots of fun. The elderly grandparents promised that they would protect him, provide for him and love him. The boy looked at the two and said, "Judge I have two gifts in front of me, but I think I'll take the one with wrinkled wrapping." Sometimes the best gifts we can get is the love of parents and grandparents. 1 Samuel 16:7 "..for the LORD seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the LORD looketh on the heart."

BIG GIFTS COME IN LITTLE BOXES: Often we assume that a big box under the tree means there is a big gift inside. We are all familiar with the pranks that some people play at Christmas. They put a very small gift in an oversized box then stuff it with paper and other items to disguise its content. The size of the box doesn't always indicate the quality of the gift. Consider the mother who received gifts from her two sons, neither of whom she had seen for a long time. One was successful and wealthy. The other was a beggar who sold cans just to eat every day. At Christmas the mother received a gift from each son. One was beautifully wrapped in the finest paper and came in a huge box. The other was about the size of an envelope and wrapped with old newspaper. As she opened the big box she was surprised to receive a coffee cup. The price tag of $1.98 was still stuck to the bottom. The poorly wrapped gift contained two dollar bills. It contained a note that read, "You gave me your all, and I give you all I have!" Though shabbily wrapped with newspaper and stuff in an envelope the mother cherished the two dollar bills and tucked them away with joy. One son had much, but gave little. The other had only two dollars to his name and gave it all. Big gifts come in little boxes.

In Bethlehem the world received a big gift, but it was in a little manger. It proved that you can't judge a gift by the size of the box or quality of its wrappings.

WRAPPINGS ARE NOT THE GIFTS: We often spend considerable time selecting the perfect paper, the perfect ribbon and the perfect bows for our gifts. They sit under the trees and we stare at them as we pass by each day. We admire the wrappings, the colors and their appearance under the twinkling lights. On Christmas morning we get a reminder of what's important. The paper is torn away, the ribbons are tossed and the bows are thrown aside. It's not the wrappings that people want; they want what is inside. The same is true when we think of the gift of love that we give to God. We can strip away our titles, achievements, status when we come before him because these are just the wrappings. What we should say to God is "here I am Lord, I am wrapped in so many things, but today I humble myself before you and surrender all." In Bethlehem we learned that it is not the swaddling cloth or the manger that the shepherds came to worship, it was the gift of salvation; that's what the world wanted then and still wants today.

Best gifts in poorly wrapped packages

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember that some of the greatest blessings we have ever received came in poorly wrapped packages.

We can all testify that some of the best gifts we have ever received were poorly wrapped and some were not wrapped at all.

God has blessed our people in great ways sending us blessings in packages that would ordinarily be cast aside as worthless and unusable.

At a time when we need inspiration because of slavery and direction once we became free people, God sent us blessings in the persons of Booker T. Washington and Frederick Douglas. Both were former slaves whose poverty and ignorance was exceeded only by their willingness to achieve. They were big gifts to our people, but the circumstances of their births were poorly wrapped.

Jesse Jackson was reared in dirt poor poverty with newspaper on the walls for wall paper. Yet he rose to champion the cause of the poor and has helped millions. He was a big gift to our people, but the poverty of his background, suggested he was very poorly wrapped.

Barak Obama was reared in the poverty of Indonesia and picked on as a child for having big ears and big dreams that would never come true; a child of mixed marriage and troubled adolescence was presented to the world as a future president, but the world would have never known if it judged the gift by its wrappings.

Wilma Rudolph was a young girl who could not walk without braces. She appeared doomed to an invalid's life. But when she won gold medals in the Olympics in track the world knew that she had a gift that could not be judged by the wrappings

The baby Moses came poorly packaged by modern standards. He was found floating in a basket among the bushes. The package was not pretty, but that young boy grew to become a great leader of his people. You can't judge the gift by the wrapping.

David came poorly wrapped He was small in stature, in comparison to his bothers; he was ruddy in nature. Yet God took a young shepherd boy and made him a king whose character was of such that he was described as “man after God’s own heart.” David proved that you can’t judge the gift by its wrapping.

John the Baptist came in wrappings that disguised his true value. He roamed the deserts dressed crudely and eating wild locusts. Yet despite his package his was “the voice crying in the wilderness, Prepare Ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.” You can’t judge the gift by looking at the wrappings!

But Brothers and Sisters there was another gift that the world received but didn’t know what it had. John 3:16 says “For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life!”

There was no greater gift that God could give the world than to send His Son.

Instead of sending Jesus into the world like a king, with armies all around him and trumpets blowing, God sent Jesus into the world as a little, tiny baby. He came in a plainly wrapped package

He was born in a stable and laid in a manger.

His family was poor and surroundings suggest frugality rather than royalty.

On the outside the small child born in poverty appeared to be marked as an “Article of no value.”

The world soon found out that you can’t judge the gift by the wrapping!

Those who have tried him declare that what they found in the gift of salvation was:

—Courage in the face of trial. Now they boldly say, “The LORD is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? The LORD is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?” Psalm 27:1

—Satisfaction in times of want. “The Lord is my Shepherd and I shall not want.” Psalm 23:1

—Guiding Hand in times of darkness. “Guide me oh thou great Jehovah, pilgrim through the barren land!”

He was delivered in a plain package!

He lived a plain life!

He died on a plain cross!

He was buried in a plain tomb!

But Sunday morning the world discovered that the man:

—who was born in a stable and came poorly wrapped in Bethlehem;

—grew up in the plain town of Nazareth;

— walked around in plain shoes for 33 long years;

— was crucified between two plain thieves;

—who was wrapped in plain burial clothes.

—who was sealed in His tomb by a plain old rock

Early Sunday the world learned that you can’t judge a book by its cover because this plain because He had risen with…

All Power!

All Power in his hands!

The Greatest Gift was not under the Tree

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 25, 2011

SCRIPTURE: "When they had heard the king, they departed; and, lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was. When they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceedingly great joy. And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him: and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh." Matthew 2:9-11

Introduction

What is the greatest gift you ever received on Christmas Day? No doubt you have received many gifts today, but what was the best one? Was it the one in the big box? Was it the one with the pretty paper? Was it the one in the back of the tree hidden from all of the rest? Some were fortunate this Christmas because they received many gifts; so many in fact, that some will have a hard time trying to decide which of them was the best?

What determines the best? Cost? Usefulness? Desirability? If it has fulfilled a long term wish or need? Each person who receives a gift may measure its greatness differently. Consider the young man who announced to his family that he wanted no one to bring him any gifts for Christmas because he already had the greatest gift. He wanted all of his nieces and nephews to come to his house on Christmas morning and see it. His nieces and nephews rushed to his house on Christmas morning to see the great gift, but they were surprised to find nothing under the tree; not a single present. "Where's the great gift you said you have received, we want to see it?" said a nephew as he and all of the other children looked all over the living room for the gift, but found nothing. The young man said, "It's not under the tree, but it's the greatest gift in the world!" The eyes of the children were expanding. "Better than Power Rangers? Better than Spider Man? Better than Transformers? Better than an Xbox?" they asked. The young man told them that he spent his teenage years with the wrong crowds. He lived wildly, used drugs and was finally arrested and served several years in prison. He said one night he listened to a preacher tell him about Jesus and his grace. That night he accepted Christ as His savior, and Jesus gave him a new spirit. "He took away my wildness, calmed my spirit, and gave me eternal life. A few months later I was granted a parole. The greatest gift I have is not under the tree, it's the love of God in my heart. There's nothing anyone can give me that can top that!"

The bible tells us that God loved the world so much that he sent his only begotten son to offer salvation. In the past he sent Moses, Elijah, Samuel and many other great prophets, all with a message of reconciliation. When he ran out of remedies to resolve the issues of the world, as a last resort, he sent his Son to the world to bring the gift of eternal life.

As Christians we are eternally thankful to God for the gift of his Son. The wise men brought him gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh, but he brought the world the opportunity for eternal live; that's the greatest gift of all; it's too big to fit under the tree.

Exposition

This text focuses on the gifts brought by the Magi to the Christ Child. Much ado has been made about these men from the East who came to worship the Christ Child.

Officially, the wise men are known as Magi or astrological wise men. They studied the stars and claimed to be experts in interpreting dreams and other magical arts. The wise men in this text saw the star in heaven that indicated the birthplace of Christ. They chose to follow it although the journey would take them outside of their own land. Most theologians believe that the wise men in this text were from Babylon, Persia or the Arabian Desert. They were not Jewish by religion or nationality. Popular folklore claims that there were three wise men, but the text does not cite a number. Many believe the number of three came as a result of the three gifts that the wise men brought to the Christ child.

The wise men brought the Christ child gifts of Gold, frankincense, and myrrh. Since these items were of immense value and were brought such a long way, they suggest the importance that the wise men placed upon the Christ child; who was even recognized by the great leaders of other lands as well. The fact that they came to see Jesus and that they brought him gifts as well, attests to the importance they placed on the deity of Christ. They gave the gifts and departed, asking nothing of him but returning filled with the joy of having seen the Lord for themselves.

The came from afar to bring Him gifts, but John 3:16 says, "For God so loved the world that he gave His only Begotten son that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

That Christmas morning was perhaps the world's first gift exchange. The wise man gave gifts to the Lord and God gave the world His son. That's was the greatest gift of all.

The wise men gave great gifts

The gifts given by the wise men represented the most treasured products of their nation. Gold frankincense and myrrh represented the gifts being present to one they presumed to be a great King, although he was only an infant at the time. What they gave was the greatest gifts they had available. Believers today, give God the greatest gifts that we have available. Our gifts are our time, talents, and financial resources. Whenever anyone gives one of these to anyone it is considered a great gift. Many of us are stingy without time; we only share with those home we feel are important and we dole it out in proportion to the importance of the recipient. Likewise, we share our talents the same way reserving the right to place a charge on the use of our talents if need be. We are extremely careful about money that we give away even though we may not be as careful with monies that we throw away. When we give a gift more than a dollar, we often feel have done a great thing.

Believers give God all three of these gifts for the furtherance of the kingdom. Yet, despite how we feel about our gifts to God and no matter how great we think they are, our little gifts are hardly measurable when compared to what God gives to the world. If we had all the time in the world and all the money in the world and could focus all of the talents in the world upon lifting God up in praise and expanding his kingdom it could not compare with what God has done for us. What we do and what we give is certainly great but it is not the greatest gift of all.

Sometimes great gifts are not appreciated

God has given us great gifts both large and small, but often the gifts he has given us have going on used. First Corinthians 12 lets us know that God has given a variety of gifts to believers for the purpose of furthering his kingdom, yet many have not used those gifts; they remain unopened. To some he gave the gift of knowledge, others received the gift of wisdom, faith, healing, miracles, or languages, but too often these gifts have gone unused. They are like packages on the tree there were meant to bless us but have sat idle for many years. What you do when you put a gift under the tree and it goes unopened for years?

Consider the man who had an in-law that really irritated him every Christmas. The woman was a real pest, badgering him repeatedly about getting her a gift. As Christmas approached, with one shopping day left he couldn't find anything she didn't have. She called nearly every hour to remind him not to forget her present. In frustration, he called up his friend at the funeral home and arranged to buy her a funeral plot. On Christmas morning the in-law opened the envelope and saw the gift certificate for a funeral plot. She was pleased because it was a valuable gift. She hugged her relative with a big hug. However, the next year at Christmas she started doing the same thing. Every day she called reminding him about her gift. On Christmas morning however, she did not get a gift from him. Angry she called him and wanted to know why she didn't get a gift. The man said, Why should I get you a new gift this year, you haven't used the one I gave you last year!

All the talents that God has given us all available and come with batteries included, that the the power to make them work is included. All we really have to do is use them, but yet each year we ask God for more gifts and he is probably asking why should I give you more than you have and used the ones I have given you?

The greatest Gift

John 3:16 tells us about the gift that is not under the tree. It is God's greatest gift. Look at John 3:16 closer and see seven reasons why.

IT REVEALS THE GREATEST GIVER: God! Yes! God is the giver of the gift. He must be the greatest giver of all time, for He existed before time began. In the beginning He created the heavens and the earth - but that is not the gift. Then He created the water and the clouds, the fishes and the birds, the trees and all plant life, the animals and the angels and the crown of all his creation, mankind; GOD is "the greatest giver.'

THE GIFT WAS GIVEN FOR THE GREATEST REASON. There are many reasons why we do things including: greed, jealousy, hate, compassion, and kindness and But the greatest is true love, which springs from within and gives just to bring joy.

THIS GIFT WAS GIVEN TO THE GREATEST NUMBER. God's love is so all encompassing that have this this gift to every man, woman and child without discrimination: red, yellow, black, or white are all just shades of brown. No place or people is exempt. This is the greatest give because it is given to everyone

THIS GIFT WAS THE GREATEST BECAUSE GOD GAVE A PIECE OF HIMSELF-His son. The only gift that really satisfies is the gift of one person to another. To give of ourselves is a great gift, but when the greatest giver gives of Himself it is the greatest gift.

THIS GIFT HAS THE GREATEST INVITATION: God has offered this give to WHOSOEVER, that means anyone in the world who receives it and acts on it; opens it up and uses it can benefit from it without giving an RSVP.

THIS GIFT HAS GREATEST CONDITION. God makes this gift offer to everyone, but he must be opened and acted upon. It's a check on the bank of heaven, but it will never be cashed unless we believe that it is good. So the condition is that we believe that Jesus was born in Bethlehem, that He lived and then died for the sins of the world, and that He rose from the dead on the third day having victory over sin and death and the devil.

THIS GIFT HAS GREATEST GUARANTEE: This gift promises all who believe that they will not perish, but will have everlasting life. This guarantee is not like the average warranty that comes with a gift from the store. That warranty runs out, only covers parts and labor or factory defects. If the products breaks after the warranty wears out too bad, but this gift has a life time warranty. Whenever our lives break down, He will fix it. And when it finally breaks down, he guarantees the owner eternal life....

Exchanging Gifts

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must look at the nature of the gift exchange demonstrated by these two texts: What we give to God and what He gives to us. Neither of the gifts can be put under a tree.

On Christmas morning God gave us love.

The song writer said, Oh how I love Jesus, because he first loved me.

It would be wonderful if we would give him our trust and devotion.

This Christmas the Lord would certainly be pleased if we gave Him a little more attention and a little less neglect.

It would be great if we gave the Lord a little more love and little less hate;

-A little more peace and little less confusion;

-A little more gratitude and little less ungratefulness;

-A little more prayer and little less lip service;

-A little more compassion and a little less heartlessness;

-A little more real Christian love and little less imitation;

-A little more do as I do and little less do as I say

-A little more bended knee and little less crooked hearts

Can't you imagine God trying to make a decision about what to give us!

I could give them the stars, but soon the stars would stop twinkling!

I could give them the moon, but after awhile, the moon would cease to shine!

I could give them the warmth of a summer day, but summers last only for short and then comes the fall! I could give them silver and gold, but there will come a time when they will lose their value!

I could set them afloat on the calm seas of life! But there will come a time when storms will rise!

I want to give them a gift that will be with them always, even until the end of the world!

I want to give them a gift that will give them:

STRENGTH when they are feeling a little weak; COMFORT when they are feeling all alone!

VICTORY after they have suffered a defeat; HOPE when all hope is gone!

LIFTED HEAD when they are bowed down low; SIGHT when they can't see their way!

He decided to give us the gift that keeps on giving!

He was born in a manger, but He kept on giving!

He was wounded for our transgressions, but He kept on giving!

He was bruised for our iniquities, but He kept on giving!

They whipped him and tried him all night long, but He kept on giving!

They put a crown of thorns on his head, but He kept on giving!

They hung him up high and stretched him out wide, but He kept on giving!

He died but even in death, He kept on giving!

Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

The greatest gift is not under the tree..it is the gift of Salvation...

The year of God's favor

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 1, 2012

SCRIPTURE:To proclaim the acceptable year of the LORD, and the day of vengeance of our God; to comfort all that mourn; To appoint unto them that mourn in Zion, to give unto them beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness; that they might be called trees of righteousness, the planting of the LORD, that he might be glorified. Isaiah 61:2-3

Introduction

January 1st is an especially important day for African-Americans, do you know why? It's the first day of the year of Jubilee. Our history tells us that on June 19, 1862 Abraham Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation, announcing that all slaves in states still in rebellion against the United States would be free on January 1, 1863. The declaration was made on June 19th, called Juneteeth, but the big freedom day is January 1st.

Like the Children of Israel in the bible we waited on the last night in what we called "Watch meetings;" we waited for Jubilee.

Also like Israel we began a memorial meal to remember our journey. On January 1st we pledged to eat the food of slavery to remember the bitterness of our struggle: Black eyed peas, ham hocks, hog maws, chitterlings, and pig ears were the delicacies of the day. It was said that if we didn't remember our past with at least one of these items that we would have bad luck and would be returned to slavery.

All across Black America, at the very least, there will be black eyed peas on Jubilee Day.

The idea of Jubilee came from the bible. It was commanded by God that every 50 years that God's favor would be shown on all people. In the 50th year all debts were canceled including mortgages, loans, and personal guarantees. It also meant that all slaves were free to return to their homes. It was the year of Jubilee, the year of God's favor.

In the Old Testament they only celebrated Jubilee, or the year of God's favor every 50 years; that changed in the New Testament. Jesus set a new standard, He proclaimed that those who heard His voice and obeyed his commandments could make every year an acceptable year of the Lord, where sins were forgiven and the lost could be restored.

As Christians, we rejoice in knowing that each New Year we have a chance to settle our debts with God and get a chance to start over enjoying His grace and favor. As we prepare to step into the New Year, we have joy and our hearts because He has promised that we about to step into the acceptable year of the Lord, full of mercy and grace.

Exposition

This text focuses on the prophecy of Isaiah as he explains what is known as the acceptable year of the Lord.

Isaiah told Israel that God's spirit had directed him to bring good news to believers. It was a word of hope to those who were in prison, broken hearted, and otherwise dispirited by the difficulties of that present moment. The prophecy looked ahead to a day in which God himself would usher in an outpouring of divine actions that would lift the downtrodden and avenge wrongs done to the godly.

Isaiah's words were prophetic in that they looked forward to the coming of the savior who would fulfill them. When Jesus began his ministry he went to the synagogue, stood and read from Isaiah 61:1-2, but he stopped at the words to "to proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord." -After reading it He sat down. His abrupt closure of the reading of Isaiah's prophecy focused considerable attention to the phrase "accepta ble year of the Lord." What does it mean?

The Hebrew word for acceptable is râtsôn (raw-tsone') which means to be shown: favor, delight, and godly pleasure. When Jesus accentuated this part of Isaiah's prophecy he indicated His mission on earth: to save, lift, raise, inspire, motivate, comfort, and strengthen and to bring God's favor to believers.

The second part of Isaiah's prophecy would come later, but it is coming. Attached to the "acceptable year" was "and the vengeance of our God." The word "and" is a conjunction. Its use implies that the year of favor will also bring with it, in due season, the vengeance of our God. As it relates to Christ's mission, His first advent was to bring the good news and to lift the broken hearted. His second return will be to bring vengeance upon the enemies of God.

In between Christ's first and second coming believer's cling to the hope that each new year will be a year of God's favor and assurance that the enemies of the godly will be addressed.

It is a promise given to Isaiah for Israel and by Christ himself for the church. Keep the faith; a year of God's favor is on the way.

A year of favor

When we think of favor we think of extra kindnesses over and beyond the ordinary. If the coming year is to be a year of God's favor we should look closely at what Isaiah prophesied would happen in a year filled with God's favor.

COMFORT TO MOURNERS: Isaiah 61:2b-3 notes that God promises to bring comfort to those who lament over the conditions of the world around them. In Isaiah's time the threat of war troubled the people and saddenened them; they yearned for peaceful times. Today, many people are mourning the loss of peaceful times. In recent years we have seen wars in Iraq and Afghanistan. We have seen its cost in human life and watched our nation stumble into debt, costing us jobs and threatening our security. Yet, in this mournful time, Isaiah brings a word of comfort "unto them that mourn in Zion." God is still in control. No matter how bad things look on the national horizon, be of good cheer. Even on the personal level when physical losses of life or comforts touch believers, the words of the text remind us that the acceptable year of the Lord is coming; don't give up, God is still on the throne.

RESTORATION OF LOSSES: When the acceptable year of the Lord comes there will be restoration of losses. Isaiah 61:3 notes that beauty or crowns will be exchanged for ashes, joy for mourning and praise will be exchanged for depressed spirits. What does that mean? It means that we should not focus so much on what we have lost, but rest assured that whatever our losses may be God will sift through the ashes and pull out a beautiful jewel. This year we saw images on television of communities totally destroyed by fires, floods and tornadoes. Our hearts dropped when we saw thousands of homes leveled and others buried beneath the ashes. We also saw heavy hearted families sifting through the ashes looking for a photo, an heirloom or some other sign of restoration; often a single photo, doll or keepsake. No picture was more touching than that of the mother lifting her charred bible from the ashes and holding it close to her heart; it was a clear sign of hope. The Greeks believed in a bird called the Phoenix. It lived a thousand years, but just before its death it was consumed in fire and reduced to ashes; then suddenly it was reborn and rose from the ashes. That's mythology, but the God we serve as promised to sift through ashes of our failed experiences and find beauty, and joy. He will give us something to sing about. It is this hope of restoration that gives us the incentive to look forward the acceptable year of the Lord.

MIGHTY MEN AND WOMEN OF GOD: In the year of God's favor, those who were weak and timid in the past will become stronger. Isaiah 61:3 says they shall become trees of righteousness. The Hebrew word for trees in the text is "ayil" which means strong, unmovable like a post or oak. It also means a mighty man or woman. Under God's favor the weak will become stronger and bolder. They will be so different from their past that people will notice that they are not falling victim to the same weaknesses that followed them in the past. Their sense of spiritual responsibility will increase, and their lives will become focused and enriched. It will be obvious that they are the "planting of the Lord" or that God is working in their lives. The mighty men and women of favor shall be like the trees of Psalm 1:3. Trees that are planted by the rivers of water, that bring forth fruit in season, whose leaves do not wither, and in under God's favor "whatsoever he doeth shall prosper." Trees put down deep roots. Trees stand tall and raise their arms to God in praise. In the year of God's favor we have the promise of renewal if we stand firm in the promises of God.

Glory In the New Year

Finally, brothers and Sisters, we must consider the reason that God will shine favor on the faithful in the New Year, because He will be glorified.

The last phrase of Isaiah 61:3 says, "that he might be glorified." It gives the reason that He will comfort, restore and strengthen us; because others will see what He has done in us and through us and He will be glorified.

This year when people see your renewed spirit, they will ask, What came over you; you are not the same. Your answer will be, "to God be the glory!"
This year when people see your cheerful spirit, they will, ask, "How did you come about this very positive attitude?" Your answer will be, "To God be the glory!"

Just because we expect this year to be the year of God's favor, it doesn't mean that you won't fall, but it does mean that you will get up again. Proverbs 24:16 says, "For a just man falleth seven times, and riseth up again.."

Just because this will be the year of God's favor, it doesn't mean that you won't face any high water or troubling times, but it does mean that God will see you through to dry ground. I heard Isaiah 43:2 says, "When thou passeth through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the river, they shall not overflow thee."

Just because the New Year is promising to be favorable, it doesn't mean that you won't have some frustrating moments, but it does mean that God will work it out. Romans 8:28 says, "..all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose."

Just because the new year will be the acceptable year of God's favor, that does not mean that people are going to stop lying on you and saying bad things about you, but it does mean that God will take every evil word and fix it so that it blesses you. Matthew 5:11 says, "Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake."

I don't know about you, but I have a good feeling about 2012. There is something full and complete about the number 12 that makes you feel this is a miraculous number because it's used all over the bible.

God created the world in six days, but when he rested on the 7th day he had created 12 things.

God spangled the midnight skies with a canopy of stars that have been group into 12 astrological signs with strange names like Aries, Capricorn, and Sagittarius, twelve signs of the Zodiac.

There were 12 tribes of Israel and Jesus was surrounded by 12 apostles.

When Jesus said, "It's time for me to be about my father's business, he was 12 years old.

A woman came to Jesus with an issue of blood that she'd been dealing with for 12 years.

Jesus fed five thousand, but when it was over, there were 12 baskets of leftovers!

When Israel crossed over Jordan, the select 12 stones and placed in the middle of the water

The new Jerusalem will have 12 gates, each one made out of a pearl.

The city will sit on 12 foundations.

In that city there will be a tree that will bear 12 manner of fruit whose leaves will be good for the healing of the nations.

I don't know about you, but I've got a feeling good about 12.

I got a feeling that God is going to open up the windows of heaven and pour out his favor!

The source of that favor won't be luck or good fortune. Only one name will get the glory His name is Jesus!

He carried an old cross up Golgotha's hill.

The hung Him up high. His feet were positioned on six. One hand was on three and another on nine, but with His head on 12 He called out to Father! Father! Forgive them for they know not what they do!

He died, but Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave with all power in His hands!

Congealed by the Power of God

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe,La

January 8, 2012

SCRIPTURE: And with the blast of thy nostrils the waters were gathered together, the floods stood upright as an heap, and the depths were congealed in the heart of the sea. Exodus 15:8

Introduction

How did you make it to the New Year? Was it the black eye peas and hog maws you ate on New Year's Day? The black eyed peas were ceremonial, but they had nothing to do with you making it through all of adversity you faced last year. Neither was it the rabbit's foot, you medallion you wear around your neck or the horseshoe nailed over your door. You faced a lot of stuff last year and it was nothing but the grace of God that saw you through.

Think about it. Crime was high, employment reached 9 percent, the housing market plummeted, your 401K lost value, plants shutdown, sickness hit your family, and you were hit from all sides, yet you survived. How?

It's was not luck or good fortune, it was the Grace of God.

Last year, it was the as if the grace of God surrounded, protected and strengthened us.

The circumstances that you faced would have swallowed the average person, but yet you survived. God Himself stepped in and took the situations that should have destroyed us and held them back long enough for us to escape.

As Christians, we give thanks to God for making a way for us through dangers seen and unseen. His presence was with us in times of trouble to help us. In the year ahead, we are counting on that same Grace to carry us through.

Exposition

This text focuses on a song of praise Israel sang after passed through the Red Sea walking on dry ground.

This passage described their celebration after they made it to the other side. It shows them looking back and recalling that it was God, not good fortune, that delivered them.

For over 400 years the children of Israel lived in the land of Egypt, first as guests then as slaves. God delivered them from their enslavement and pointed them toward a land that would be flowing with milk and honey.

The word of God records how He began to rewrite the laws of nature and reorder scientific principles He established at the creation so that he could make a way for His people.

God prepared to perform a great miracle for his people. What He prepared to do was scientifically impossible, and philosophically illogical. God planned to split the Red Sea in half and to allow his people, along with their flocks and herds to walk through on dry ground. This would not be a small trail but a wide chasm large enough to accommodate the passage of two million people.

What God performed was an obvious miracle. He used a strong wind to blow back the waters and to hold them back until all of the Israelites passed through.

There would be no doubt that this was a miracle. The people were accustomed to strong winds blowing from North to South, because of the location of the sea and the surrounding topography. However, God chose to use neither the north wind nor the south wind but He caused a strong east wind to blow all night long, indicating that what was being done was in no way the usual blowing of the wind.

When the time came the waters rolled up like a scroll on the left-hand side and the right hand side creating a path through which Israel traveled to safety.

Exodus 14:22 says these waters formed a "Wall" on both sides. The word for wall that is used in the text is used in many places in Scripture to signify fortification and protection is "Homa" or God's protective presence.

To make that wall happen Exodus 15:8 says God "Congealed" (kaw-faw) or he froze them in place. It is the presence of the Homa and the Kaw-faw, the wall and the congealing presence that helped Israel to survive its 40 year journey in the wilderness and to ultimately cross over into the Promised Land to stand proudly on dry ground.

It is the same presence that helps believers today. God builds a wall around us and He often congeals that which is supposed to destroy us, long enough for us to escape.

When Israel thought about what the Lord did for them, they could only sing His praises even more.

What we learn about God

Israel's journey to the Promised Land was made possible by the presence of God with them. God was present as the:

HOMA OF GOD'S PROTECTIVE PRESENCE: Israel was shelter by the Homa of God, His protective presence. Look at Exodus 14:20 And it came between the camp of the Egyptians and the camp of Israel; and it was a cloud and darkness to them, but it gave light by night to these: so that the one came not near the other all the night. The cloud and the fire were curious in that God made it dark on the side of the enemies, but always kept it light on the side of His people. He stood as a wall between them. In the same way, God has protected believers today. Even as we slept, God protected us from burglars, thieves and murderers. He protected us from rapists, con artists and a plethora of other enemies that wanted to destroy us. Even when we were thrown into the Lion's Den of affliction and persecution, God's Homa shut the mouths of the lions.

When we reflect we can now see that there were situations where it was only the Lord that helped is out because were situations that were beyond our control, yet God stood between us and destruction. These are times when only the power of the Lord can help us.

When God acts He stands between us and despair and mystifying critics and puzzling all of those who expected our demise.

That's why the old warrior's sang, "If it had not been for the Lord on our side, where would I be."

KAW FAW OF GOD'S CONGEALING PRESENCE: When Israel passed through the sea he not only rolled the waters back, but he held them back and dried the ground as well. Holding water back is one thing, but God congealed the depths of the waters; he dried the ground as well. We experienced some of that last year as well. We saw how God not only held back our enemies, but how he also made a clear, solid path for our deliverance. It's obvious to any believer when they see God at work. Last year there were some families that encountered physical sickness and death. There are others that have experienced strained relationships, financial loss and suffered attacks on our reputations, but God not only held back the enemies, but He congealed the situation, he dried the ground, opened up doors and helped you march into a new year on dry ground.

We have been sustained by the eternal presence of God in our lives in the past year. When difficult times were upon us God was there. He was only a prayer away.

He lifted our burdens and renewed our strength in the midst of our weaknesses. His congealing presence led us through.

Now we look forward to that same congealing presence in the year to come. We know He will be there because he said in Matthew 28 "Lo I'll be with you always." That was not an empty promise, it meant exactly what it said; He will be with us continually.

A REASON TO PRAISE GOD: When Moses reviewed what God did for Israel he could only lead the people in praise. In Exodus 15:1 he said, "I will sing unto the Lord gloriously…" He pointed the people to God's past accomplishments and told them they had plenty of reason to continue trusting Him in the journey ahead.

What Moses taught Israel is the same truth expressed in Psalm 31:1 that says, "In thee oh Lord do I put my trust."

It means that we depend on God. It means we count on God.

It means we put our confidence in God that He will protect us, guide us and bring us into his perfect will.

We are taught to do the best that we can in any situation, and then afterwards, trust God to do the rest.

That's why we sing the song, "I will trust in the Lord, until I die."

He has protected us from our enemies and congealed forces that should have destroyed us; we will serve Him until we die

God will protect us

Finally, brothers and sisters, this text suggests that God will make a way for believers, even in the face of trouble. Israel's journey from slavery to freedom was possible only because God stood between them and their enemies, opening doors of escape and paving pathways in the wilderness and highways across seas and bulging rivers. The good news is that God is still watching out for believers by protecting them providing for them and insuring their survival and growth from generation to generation.

Today, we should move forward with renewed hope when we think about God's protective presence and His congealing presence going with us. It's faith that despite the dangers ahead God is watching over us.

Because God is watching over us we can sleep in the midst of the storms of life.

In the midst of slavery our forefathers could sing, All day, All night angels watching over me my Lord.

Because God is watching over us, we don't get overly concerned when things get tough because His eye is on the sparrow and I know He watches over me.

Because God is watching over us, we don't wallow in self pity when we slip, because we fall down, but we get up!

Because God is watching over us, we don't wither and shrink in the face of trouble, because we know trouble don't last always!

Because God is watching over us, we can have joy in the midst of sorrow!

Because God is watching over us, we can have peace in the middle of confusion!

Because God is watching over us, we can have faith in the middle of doubt!

Because God is watching over us, we can have love although we are surrounded by hate!

Because God is watching over us, we can have happiness although all around us is only sadness!

Because God is watching over us, we can have hope in the middle of panic because We are our heavenly fathers children and he knows how much we can bear!

He knows, yes He knows!

He knows, when we have come to the end of our rope!

He knows, when our faith is challenged and our hope is waning!

He knows, when our names have been put on the highway and we have been called everything but a child of God!

He knows, yes He knows, just how much we can bear!

I don't know about you but I've decided to stay on the battlefield!

I've decided to keep telling the story of Jesus and His love!

I've decided to keep telling the world how He came to this wicked earth!

I've decided to keep telling the world how He died out on Calvary!

But Early Sunday morning, arose from the grave…

With all power in His hands!

A stone of hope

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 15, 2012

SCRIPTURE: "Forasmuch as thou sawest that the stone was cut out of the mountain without hands, and that it brake in pieces the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver, and the gold; the great God hath made known to the king what shall come to pass hereafter: and the dream is certain, and the interpretation thereof sure." Daniel 2:45

Introduction

Have you paid close attention to Dr. Martin Luther King's famous words of Dr. King delivered in 1963? Certainly, most remember the words, "Free at Last, Free at Last," but there were countless metaphors and hyperboles that spoke to the heart of America's troubles. One phrase, when expanded upon, gives a clearer vision of his meaning.

A 30 foot statue of Martin Luther King, Jr. now stands in Washington D.C. as a memorial to the man and his dream of a united America. The inscription on the memorial which shows Dr. King standing with arms folded as if projected in 3D from the side of a mountain says, "Out of the mountain of despair, a stone of hope."

The inscription was extracted from Dr. King's "I have a dream speech," which was delivered on the Washington Mall in the summer of 1963.

In that speech he mentioned "Stone Mountain of Georgia." Stone Mountain, to those who remember it, was a symbol of racism and the old South. In 1915 the Second Ku Klux Klan was reborn on Stone Mountain. A permanent memorial to the confederacy was carved in the side of a Stone Mountain by the famed sculptor Gutzon Borglum.

When King spoke about Stone Mountain in 1963 it had become a symbol of racism, segregation, and hatred. It represented everything that brought despair to the poor, Blacks, Asians, Hispanics, Immigrants and all of groups that were the target of America's hatred. When Blacks saw Stone Mountain, it brought them hard memories of despair and stirred ill feelings.

After Dr. King's death something started to happen in Georgia as it did across the land. The State of Georgia now runs Stone Mountain. The figures of the Confederate Leaders are still carved into the side of the mountain and thousands of people come to see it every year. However, now they don't come only to see the symbols of racism carved in the mountain as they once did, many come to see the light show every night. During that light show the images of racism are flashed on the side of the mountain under giant lights, but the show ends with an image of Martin Luther King superimposed over the Confederacy. As the music plays and the flags wave, the cold stone of the mountain seems to shout, "out of the mountain of despair, comes a stone of hope."

Martin Luther King was not God; he was a messenger from God. His message to the down trodden and the lost is that when it appears that injustice rises unanswered and conquers all challenges, there is still hope. That was the message that Dr. King brought America.

As Christians, we cherish that hope. It's a beautiful hope that sets us free.

Exposition

This text focuses on Daniel's interpretation of the dream of a king who dreamed he saw a great statue but fell because it had clay feet.

King Nebuchadnezzar had a dream and his heart was troubled. What made it worse was the fact that he could remember what the dream was and this troubled him ever the more. He determined to force his soothsayers and wise men to ease his troubled heart. He commanded them to tell him what he saw in his nightmare. The second command was that they give him the right interpretation of what he had seen in that dream. If they failed they and their families would be killed.

The wise men could tell or interpret the dream. However, after considerable prayer, Daniel came before the king with the answer he sought.

Nebuchadnezzar's dream involved a statue with a Head of Gold, Breast and Arms of Silver, Belly and Thighs of Brass, Legs of Iron, and Feet and Toes of Iron and Clay mixed together.

It was interpreted as being a dream that depicted all of the history of man from the time of Nebuchadnezzar (head of Gold) and the Babylonian Empire, through the rise of the Medio-Persian Empire (chest and arms of silver), then the rise of the Grecian Empire under Alexander the Great (bronze stomach and thighs), then the rise of the Roman Empire under the great Caesars (Legs of iron). Then the Roman Empire would split into the two divisions shown by the legs and the Iron. The final earthly kingdom would be represented by the feet and toes of mixed iron and potter's clay to show just that while there is strength and power in this final kingdom, there is also much weakness and impurity.

The text notes Daniel explaining to the king that images of the dream represented the rise of evil powers in the world that would dominate for a time forming a mountain of despair for those who are crushed under their power. However, out of that mountain would come a single stone of hope that would bring about the era of peace and love; so much so that justice would run down as waters and righteousness like a mighty stream.

The last world kingdom will be crushed by the stone is Jesus Christ. The stone will come forth out of the despair and will become a mountain that fills the whole earth. His kingdom will never end.

For Nebuchadnezzar the dream was devastating. It meant that with all of the power, knowledge and splendor he had been able to amass, he still had "clay feet."- his kingdom would be brought down.

Believers take heart in the prophecy because it notes that the "dream is certain" and its interpretation is sure.

The mountain of despair

What is the mountain of despair that America faces?

Just as Stone Mountain in Georgia ushered depressed images in the minds of African-Americans across the nation there are conditions in our nation, even today that, form a mountain of despair for us.

We are discouraged by much of what we see in America.

We are discouraged that our people are slowly drifting away from the desire to be self sufficient as millions have adopted an attitude that the government owes something. It begins when we believe that we are entitled to free lunch in school, while we save our money for the football game on Friday night. We feel we must pay for the game, but we are entitled to free lunch. We feel that we are entitled to money from the government for life if we have children out of wedlock; when we have more children we feel we are entitled to a raise and free housing, transportation and healthcare as well. Farmers feel entitled to subsidies, businesses feel entitled to bailouts and the whole nation seems to want someone to give them something for nothing. That is a mountain of despair.

We are discouraged when we see our schools once icons of achievement now failing. It is discouraging to see students coming to high school with third grade reading skills. Since the business community knows that the average prison inmate has just a 3rd grade reading ability, plans are being made across the nation to build new prisons directly proportionate to the number of teenagers who read on third grade level. It is discouraging to see so many students who have sentenced themselves to lives less than their potential, abandoning college or higher education in hopes of landing a job at McDonalds or the military. That is a mountain of despair.

We are discouraged when we see our moral values falling apart, to the point that many of our children will live together rather than marry, steal until they get caught, and see nothing wrong with buying hot merchandise from stolen television sets to pirated DVD's sold on the street corners. That is a mountain of despair.

Even some of those who seem to worship give reason for despair. There are thousands who have stopped reading the bibles and seeking salvation through the kingdom of God. Many only think of God as a person who can help them get money, material blessings and prosperity; if He can't do that they feel He is of little use to this generation. That is a mountain of despair.

The economic climate of our nation is despair. It is despairing to have the right to sit at lunch counter and not have enough money to buy a burger. It is despairing to have the right to sit at the front of the bus and then don't have bus fare. It's despairing not to have a job and even more despairing when there are no jobs to be found.

There is certainly a mountain of despair in America. On some days, if we are not careful the feeling of desperation that it creates can get into the fiber of our being and we can become pessimistic.

This was the atmosphere that Martin Luther King stepped into in 1954. It was a time when we our people had become sick and tired. That's when he told the nation in no uncertain terms that we should be "sick and tired of being sick and tired."

When we were tempted to wallow in self pity and wrap ourselves in the draperies of despair, we heard the words of a song by James Cleveland, "I don't feel no ways tired, I've come to far from where I started from. Nobody told that the way would be easy. I don't believe he brought this far, to leave me."

A stone of hope

Finally, brothers and sisters we much consider that in the midst of the despair of our times, there is a stone of hope.

Daniel painted a picture for Nebuchadnezzar of all the evil nations, oppositions and tragedies that would befall Israel. He showed how one subsequent government after another would work against the people themselves and even the efforts of the people themselves would topple as a giant with clay feel.

Out of all of this despair, Daniel saw a stone of hope. That hope represented the presence and power of God, rolling out of the mountain of despair to bring down the forces that bring misery into the world.

This stone came in the form of a dream. Daniel said the promise of the dream is certain..

The dream is for us to have one nation under God!

The dream is for us to boldly say what's written on our money, "In God we trust!

The dream is for us to hold to God's unchanging hand!

This dream did not begin with Martin Luther King, it is a dream given to the world by Christ himself.

It is a dream that one day, the wicked will cease from troubling and the weary would be at rest!

It is a dream that one day, every valley shall be exalted and every mountain shall be made low!

I'm glad to know that for every mountain of despair that there is a stone of hope!

The true heroes of the faith are those who teach us how to keep our eyes focused on the stone of hope. For African Americans, the racism that surrounds us seems insurmountable. For Dr. King, the challenge is to find in these insecure times the real source of security and hope and "hew out of the mountain of despair the stone of hope."

The stone is our faith in Jesus Christ. This is the only hope that the song writer spoke of when he wrote, "The only hope we have is Jesus. Confusion is great in this world today. Persecution is great, with such a heavy load, but we have this hope and it is Jesus!"

This hope, is the only real hope that is in the world today. Every other hope is impermanent and untrustworthy.

This hope, was painstakingly hewn out of our troubles and presented to us as a dream of what can been when God has His way.

Even when we look at the despairing situations in our families, God always shows us a sign that things will be better; He gives a stone of hope.

Our children often seem to wander off is strange paths, but then we see a stone of hope! Our finances seem to dwindle to nothing, and then we see a stone of hope!

When we are lost and can't find our way and darkness is everywhere, then we see the stone of hope!

This is the hope that prompted the song writer to say, "I have hope when trouble comes my way. I have hope when Jesus comes to stay. I have hope when things are not well with me. It's a beautiful hope that sets me free."

Nebuchadnezzar had a great kingdom, but it had clay feet that would be broken by a stone. That was the hope of the people.

There are many who know this stone of hope.

When Israel faced the challenges of Goliath, a small boy brought him down with a slingshot and a single stone of hope!

A woman stood surrounded by accusers who were ready to stone her, but Jesus said, "He without sin, cast the first stone," When no one threw the first stone it became her stone of hope for one more chance!

Nebuchadnezzar saw his kingdom being replaced by a stone, but believers today are standing on a rock

What is this rock that is so strong that it can bring transform a mountain of despair?

What is this rock that is so influential that it could turn enemies into friends, bring down barriers of segregation and provide opportunities for justice for all?

This little rock superseded the empire of the Babylonians.

This little rock surpassed the empires of the Medes and Persians!

This little rock surpassed the glory that was Greece and the Grandeur that was Rome!

This little rock began in Bethlehem and continued to grow in Nazareth
This little rock grew larger as He fed thousands, healed the sick and raised the dead.

This rock is Jesus.

This rock is Jesus, yes he's the one!

He's the one who died on Calvary!

He's the one who was buried in a borrowed tomb!

He's the one who arose, Early Sunday morning!

No wonder the song writer declares, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame, but wholly lean on Jesus name. On Christ the solid rock I stand, all other ground is sinking sand. All other ground is sinking sand."

A Long Sermon and a Deep Sleep

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 22, 2011

SCRIPTURE:"And there sat in a window a certain young man named Eutychus, being fallen into a deep sleep: and as Paul was long preaching, he sunk down with sleep, and fell down from the third loft, and was taken up dead." Acts 20:9

Introduction

Have you ever fallen asleep in church? What about in class or in a meeting? What about in life?There are many people who fall asleep easily, in fact in any situation where they sit still too long they may doze off to sleep. You may see them sleep in their cars at red lights, slumped over books in the library; some fall soundly asleep in the movies and snore.

There are many people who fall asleep easily, in fact in any situation where they sit still too long they may doze off to sleep. You may see them sleep in their cars at red lights, slumped over books in the library; some fall soundly asleep in the movies and snore.

Students sleep in class. One man had what he thought was a hot date, but he went to sleep on the date. Another went to sleep on his wedding night. Did you hear about the graduate that was sound asleep when they called his name to receive his diploma?

The National Sleep Foundation says that all of us have what is known as basal sleep and sleep debt. Basal sleep is the amount of uninterrupted quality sleep your body needs to function properly. Sleep debt is the amount of sleep that is owed to your body. Whenever we rob our bodies of the sleep they need that amount is recorded in the sleep debt section of our brain. Every time we sit still or become idle for even a short period of time, sleep debt comes to collect; unfortunately it can come when you need to be alert most: when you are taking a test, need to think, driving a car or studying. You try hard to stay awake, but sleep debt must be paid and you nod off; even doze.

Sometimes people doze because medications make them sleepy, but usually its sleep debt collecting for all of those all night movies, long hours on the internet, late night parties, and double shift revolving door jobs.

The sleep debt man must be paid; he may come to collect when you are at worship in church!

Is it possible that some believers have gone to sleep on God? When it comes to serving God have we run out of steam? Have we dozed off? Are we in a deep sleep?

Fortunately, God doesn't sleep. Psalm 121:3-4, reminds us that God will not allow our feet to slip; he will not sleep on the job because, "He that keepeth Israel neither slumbers or sleeps." God doesn't sleep on the job when it comes to caring for the needs of believers. If its prayer that we need answered or help in times of trouble we have the assurance that our God is always by our side. The question still lingers: do we doze off on Him?

As Christians, we should rejoice in the fact that God is vigilant and alert and keeps His eye of protection on us every day of our lives. There will never be a day that we need Him, then find him in a deep sleep.

Exposition

This text focuses on a boy who went to sleep in church.

Paul was in the city for only a short period of time, about seven days. On his last day he had much to say and he probably reached the point of "as I close" several times. He preached well past midnight. There was a young man named Eutychus and he had been sitting on a window sill as the preacher St. Paul was trying to make an impression on the folks in Troas since he was leaving the next day. It proved to be more preaching than Eutychus could handle and so he nodded off. He fell from the third floor to the ground and died. Thankfully, it was the apostle Paul that was preaching. Paul stretched himself over the boy and brought him back to life again.

The act of new life is what everybody remembered from that night, not the long sermon. For hundreds of years both the written word of God and spoken word have made reference to the long sermon and the deep sleep.

Deep Sleep

There are many people today who have fallen into a deep sleep while life's opportunities and God's favor pass them by. There are several ways that we have fallen asleep:

SOME ARE SLEEP WALKING: A sleep walker is a person who walks in his sleep, totally unaware of what is going on around them. A sleep walker does things, but is not aware of anything that he does. Often he or she hears, but is not aware of what they hear. They just walk aimlessly. There are many who even come to church and participate, but they are totally unaware of why they do what they do. The just do it. Consider the case of Walking Willie. Walking Willie was a member of the church, but there was a time when he drank whiskey and wine with a vengeance. He joined the church during a great revival and came to church each communion Sunday. During each Sunday service Willie would doze off to sleep and begin to walk in his sleep. After a while the members ignored him because it was not unusual to see him walk down the aisle sound asleep. Lately however, Walking Willie started talking and walking in his sleep. One Sunday the preacher was expounding on the evils of drinking. "We need to take all that whiskey and pour it in the river." The preacher shouted! "We need to take all the wine and pour it in the water, and the gin and vodka. We should pour it all in the river." At that point Walking Willie stood on his feet and started walking for the back door. Folks thought he was sleep walking again but had their doubts when he started singing, "I'm gonna Wade in the Water, wade in the water children.." Walking Willie woke up when he thought gin and whiskey were near! Some are sleep; have movement in their sleep, but only catch a small bit of what's going on around them and miss the whole point of life. Romans 13:11 says, " "And this, knowing the season, that already it is time for you to awake out of sleep: for now is salvation nearer to us than when we first believed."

SOME ARE SLEEP TALKING: Sleep talking is called Somniloqy; it's a person who talks in his sleep and is totally unaware of what he is saying; and it often makes little sense. It usually occurs in children, but some grown folks talk in their sleep as well. A person who is not aware of the world around them is asleep and it's frustrating to hear them talk. You hear them pray that God would destroy their enemies. You hear them ask God to help them win the lottery. They tell the doctor they won't be treated because the devil is in the operating room. They are totally unaware of the nature of God, but they talk about Him all of the time. If you read their Facebook posts they talk about God in every posts, even while posting a new profile photo that shows them taking a picture of their rear end. They quote scripture, but do not live by them. Sleep talkers are those who talk a lot but do nothing. They talk about poverty, but do nothing to help the poor. They talk about crime in the neighborhood, but won't join the neighborhood watch. They talk about our wayward youth, but won't work with them. They talk about the growing number of homeless who need food, but they won't prepare a meal. They are asleep to the need for their personal involvement, but continue to talk in their sleep.

Sleep talkers rarely hear from God because they are always talking. They are praying, asking, claiming, but they rarely have a waking moment with God. A very talkative woman went to her husband's doctor and complained that he talks in his sleep. She said all day long he says nothing, but he just has a conversation. The doctor asked, "What do you do?" the wife answered "I just listen." The doctor said, "His problem is simple, he talks in his sleep because that's the only time you'll be quiet and listen!" -Sometimes God has trouble getting a word in, so He has to talk to us in our sleep.

WAKING UP FROM A DEEP SLEEP IS HARD: A person who is in a deep sleep is totally disconnected from everything around him. Babies are the best examples. Babies can sleep through hurricanes, tornadoes and earthquakes. You can shake them and speak to them, but they are oblivious to anything happening around them. There are many people today who are in a deep sleep and it is very difficult to wake them up.

Young people are dropping out of school, while more prisons are being built to receive them-Deep sleep!

The moral fiber of the nation is deteriorating, traditional families are changing and many don't notice-Deep sleep!

Technology is on the uptrend while many are still waiting on the mailman, a paper text book, and a rotary phone-Deep sleep!

Millions are trying to live their lives with a general belief in God but without worship or service to God—Deep sleep!

There are millions who believe that racism has died and is a thing of the past - Deep sleep!

It is hard to awaken anyone from a deep sleep. Only God can do that.

Despite our slumber, the word of God calls for us to wake up! 1 Thessalonians 5:6 says, "Therefore let us not sleep, as do others; but let us watch and be sober." When we wake up we are watchful and observant.

What is more frustrating to the Lord is that those He expects to be watchful are dozing off. When Jesus went to the garden to pray He asked His disciples to watch. When he returned they were sound asleep. In Matthew 26:40-41 says, "And he cometh unto the disciples, and findeth them asleep, and saith unto Peter, What, could ye not watch with me one hour? Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak."

The church cannot afford to sleep when the Lord needs us to watch. We must awake from our deep sleep.

Time to wake up

Finally, brothers and Sisters, we must consider that when the little boy fell in his sleep, the power of God brought him back again!

For the boy, it was a long sermon, but the world around him was in a deep sleep. When God used Paul to bring him back again something else happened that many did not observe...the sermon didn't end. Acts 20:11 says the Paul talked with the believers until daybreak.

We may be asleep, but the word of God continues.

Once awakened there is no indication that Eutychus went back to sleep again. He had been awakened by the fall and restored by the power of God.

Brothers and Sisters, if ever there was a time when we need to wake up and see clearly the vision of the Lord, that time is now!

If ever there was a time when we need to become serious about battling the rise of crime, drugs, juvenile delinquency, family dissolution and many other problems, that time is now!

The church holds up the beacon of hope for the world to see.

If you have been in a deep sleep walking and wander aimlessly through life, it's time for you to wake up.

Wake up for the power of God awaits you!

Wake up and realize that there is no night so dark that you cannot endure it!

Wake up and realize that there is no fear too great for you to face!

Wake up and realize that there is no enemy too mighty for you to conquer!

Wake up and realize that there is no crisis too critical for you to confront!

Wake up and realize that there is no burden too heaven for you to bear!

Wake up and realize that there is no doubt too strong to weigh you down!

Wake up and tell the world that you were shackled by a heavy burden, 'neath a load of guilt and shame, but then the hand of Jesus touched me!

He touched me, the man who picked up and old rugged cross and carried it to Calvary's hill!

He touched me, the man who let them drive nails into his hands!

He touched me, the man who dropped his head into the locks of his shoulders!

He touched me, the man who died and was buried in a borrowed tomb!

He touched me, the man who stayed in the grave for three days and nights but Early Sunday morning arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

He touched me and made me whole!

Facing the Giants

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, LA

February 5, 2012

SCRIPTURE: "And there we saw the giants, the sons of Anak, which come of the giants: and we were in our own sight as grasshoppers, and so we were in their sight." Numbers 13:33

Introduction

Have you have ever faced giant sized problems while trying to patriotically remain loyal to God? If we are truthful there have been times in our lives when the giants won because they intimidated us. There have also been times when the patriots won, but only when they believed in themselves and acted in faith.

Today, we're probably thinking a lot about patriots and giants, but there have been face offs in the bible between the two that didn't always turn out as the experts predicted.

When Moses approached the Promised Land he sent over a 12 member special team whose job it was to investigate the prospects of possessing the land of promise.These 12 men were Patriots. Each was especially chosen by their individual tribes to explore the possibility of claiming God's promise.

Those selected were:

Shammua son of Zaccur, from the tribe of Reuben
Shaphat son of Hori, from the tribe of Simeon
Caleb son of Jephunneh, from the tribe of Judah
Igal son of Joseph, from the tribe of Issachar
Hoshea (Joshua) son of Nun, from the tribe of Ephraim
Palti son of Raphu, from the tribe of Benjamin
Gaddiel son of Sodi, from the tribe of Zebulin
Gaddi son of Susi, from the tribe of Manassah
Ammiel son of Gemalli, from the tribe of Dan
Sethur son of Michael, from the tribe of Asher
Nahbi son of Vophsi, from the tribe of Naphtali
Geuel son of Maki, from the tribe of Gad

They were all heroes and champions in their own respect sent forth to spy out the new land.

Canaan itself was populated in many areas by a race of men who were the offspring marriages between people and angels. Genesis 6:4 describes them as mighty men. The Hebrew language described Giants by a variety of names including Nephilim and Repha'im, but they all pointed to powerful men who were a force to be reckoned with.

Today, there are many who are thinking of football when they think of Giants; they are thinking about the New York Giants. When they think of Patriots, they are thinking of the New England Patriots.

When they think of Giants they think of a battle tested team that has faced awesome opponents led by Aaron Rodgers, and Drew Brees. Whoever came against the Giants in 2011 felt their power whether it was Vernon Davis of San Francisco, Jermichael Finley of Green Bay, or Tony Gonzalez of Atlanta.

In 2012 the super matchup brings the power of the giants against the Patriots who are not without their own power houses Rob Gronkowski, Aaron Hernandez and Tom Brady. Both are battle tested. Both are strong.

What happens when Patriots face Giants? Do giants always lose? King of Og biblical fame was a mighty warrior. Do Patriots always win? No because the bible records that while David defeated the Giant Goliath with a sling shot, but 2 Samuel 21:16 says when David faced Ishbibenob, the son of Goliath he fell he fell many years later.

So Giants do not always lose and neither do Patriots always win.

What makes the difference when anyone faces an intimidating force? Skill and ability have something to do with it, but faith has a lot to do with it as well.

As Christians, we are loyal patriots of the Kingdom of God, but even still as we face our giants every day, we do so with courage. We don't expect to win every battle, but we know who controls the ultimate victory; our God.

Exposition

This text considers the attitude of ten of the 12 spies sent to survey the Promised Land when they discovered the presence of giants.

Twelve spies had been sent to investigate the Promised Land, inhabited by strange looking wooly haired, broad featured, Black people, descendants of Ham.

The report of the spies, who returned after 40 days, showed that the land was all they had expected. They brought back numerous items of fruit, including figs, pomegranates and grapes.

The grapes they carried were so large that the bunches required two men to carry each bunch on poles.

The first part of the report was positive, it filled the people with hope, the land is so abundant; life would be filled with ease.

Two men among them rose and declared "Let us go up at once and possess it". God has given it to us and we should lay claim on our future.

However, the other ten were not confident; in fact they were afraid. The source of their fear was the presence of giants whose size intimidated them so much that they felt like grasshoppers in their own eyes.

When they were forced to choose whether to proceed to the Promised Land or not, the ten influenced all others that the presence of the giants made conquering the new land impossible.

They wandered in the wilderness for forty years as a result.

Don't be a grasshopper

The men feared entering the Promised Land because they felt like grasshoppers in their own eyes. That's a fancy way of saying they were intimidated.

There should never be a time when the people of God are intimidated about life. Unlike the world we have knowledge of our potential if we receive the anointing of God. We are confident because we know that there is nothing too hard for God.

God is powerful.

Because He is powerful we hold to his hand to add stability to our own lives. This sense of security we derive from holding on to a powerful hand comes from the fact that God is a pillar of strength.

We are not grasshoppers because we know how strong God is.

Isaiah 40:15-30 attempts to describe the strength of God. Isaiah painted a picture of God being so big and powerful that all of the nations of the world form but a single drop in the bucket in comparison to his strength.

There is no strength greater than the strength of the Lord, therefore we should adopt grasshopper mentalities about life.

James Weldon Johnson the poet said, He batted his eyes and the lightning flashed.

He clapped his hands and the thunder rolled.

He waved his hands and the waters came down..his footsteps hollowed the valleys out and bulged the mountains up.

What does all of this say?

It says, Whatever problem I have, whether it is sickness or finance, love or social reform, God is big enough and strong enough to handle it!

Jeremiah 32:17 reminds us of God's greatness, "Ah, Lord GOD! Behold, you have made the heavens and the earth by Your great power and outstretched arm. There is nothing too hard for you."

There is nothing too hard for God.

No matter how big the problem set before him, He can handle it.

Isaiah 59:1 says, Behold, the LORD'S hand is not shortened, that it cannot save; neither his ear heavy, that it cannot hear.

There is no need for a grasshopper mode of thinking because even in difficult times we should wait for him and his deliverance.

Don't shrivel in the face of your giants, God can and will take care of it.

When Obstacles stand in the way

The future that awaits each of us uncertain, but rarely is it laid out plainly before us without a mountain of giant sized obstacles standing in the way. We should not focus on the size of the obstacle, but we should resolve a strategy to chisel it down to size.

We should resolve like Caleb, "let us go and possess it."

Caleb's mind was stayed on the Lord. He did not focus on the impossibilities but on the possibilities if he kept his mind on the Lord.

When Moses kept his mind focused on the Lord, the Red Sea opened and bread fell from heaven. Centuries later when Peter kept his mind focused on the Lord he defied gravity and nature and walked upon the water.

No wonder the song writer wrote "I woke up this morning with mind stayed on Jesus; I'm walking and talking with mind, stayed on Jesus!

While Caleb told the people that there were grapes in the new land and urged Israel to go and possess it, ten of the spies rose to say that while there were grapes of opportunity in the land, there were giants standing in the way of the grapes.

In one sense the report of the ten was good. It informed the people of the risks involved. Wise decisions are based on a careful evaluation of all the facts, the good and the bad. Jesus told his disciples that those who decide to follow him should count up the cost before making a decision.

The fact that there were obstacles to their goal did not mean that Israel would not get to the Promised Land, but only that they should find ways around them.

No easy journey

Finally, brothers and sisters we must consider that the journey to the Promised Land is not an easy one, but we must march forward in faith.

We have received the report of our future; the Promised Land is flowing with milk and honey.

The report we receive is that the future is indeed bright.

There are great opportunities that exist in the Promised Land.

It will be a land where opportunities exist for every person without regard to his color or creed.

It will be a land where the people will have worked vigorously to eliminate discrimination and will have taken affirmative steps to make up for past mistakes and place everyone on an even plain.

It will be land where the bottom rail has risen to the ranks of the top rail and those who have been among the last will be among the first.

Economically, socially and politically, it will be a land flowing with milk and honey.

However, there is a down side to the report.

The land is filled with conservative Jebusites, Amorites and Republicans.

They are entrenched and pose a formidable barrier.

There are a few giants among them who have built great walls to fortify themselves and keep us at a distance.

Once, the Lord gave Zachariah a word from the Lord when they faced challenging situations.

That word was simple. Walk in my ways and I will help you to walk in places you've never dreamed.

This promise is just as good today as it was then, face your giants with the faith of a Patriot and God and He will bring you into the land of your dreams.

Believers are encouraged to walk each day by faith.

To walk in God's way is to walk in faith.

Through faith we can achieve the unachievable.

Through faith we can accomplish the impossible.

Through faith we can reach the unreachable.

Those who trust God and step out to pursue their dreams must resolve that although there may be giants, can still succeed!

The giant standing in the way of our dream might be a:

-Desert, but God will provide an Oasis in the wilderness!

-Hunger, but God will provide a table in the presence of our enemies!

-Unbelievable odds, but God will help us to achieve the impossible

Those who trust in God:

-Think the unthinkable; Reach for the unreachable!

-Believe the unbelievable; Hope for the imaginable

-Live for the incredible; achieve the improbable!

Those who trust in God know that all things are possible!

Maybe that's why the song writer wrote: I will trust in the Lord, I will trust in the Lord until I die!"

I don't know about you, but I've decided to trust in the Lord!

Storms may rise! Winds may blow!

I will trust in the Lord till I die!

When your giant falls, don't forget to tell the story.

Tell somebody about Jesus!

Tell somebody how he died!

Tell somebody how he arose after three days and nights!

Tell somebody that he is alive in your soul today!

No. 9542-Anniv.-Women

A Certain Woman

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
for the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 11, 2012

SCRIPTURE:"And a certain woman, which had an issue of blood twelve years, And had suffered many things of many physicians, and had spent all that she had, and was nothing bettered, but rather grew worse,When she had heard of Jesus, came in the press behind, and touched his garment. For she said, If I may touch but his clothes, I shall be whole. Mark 5:25-28

Introduction

Are there any special women that you know; those who really stand out? Most of us quickly point to our mothers and grandmothers, but there are thou sands more who have played integral parts in the development of our race and nation.

Many of the women of our history are unnamed; they remain a virtual sea of unsung heroes who have given of themselves to help our people rise to the demands of the moment.

It seems that God has always touched a few women in every generation to rise above the norm and speak, lead and champion the cause of their families specifically or our race in general.

We have heard their voices, even if we don't remember their names. Among those less remembered are those who served as nurses to the sick, wounded and ailing. We know a few names such as Harriet Tubman, who in addition to her role as a underground railroad conductor was also served in the U.S. Army as a nurse along with others such as Sallie King Taylor.

Today, there are over 350,00 minority nurses, practitioners and aides in America. They are the nameless angels who come to us when we are hurting and lift us with smiles and strength.

No generation has been without great women who have championed our causes. However, the greatest champions are not in the history books. We often don't remember their names. Perhaps these angelic personalities are like the nameless women of faith in the bible who are often referred to as "a certain woman." - The names were left blank for us to fill in the spaces.

Our history is filled with the accounts of women who seemed to have been equipped with the essentials necessary to address the circumstance we faced. Whether it was courage, scholarship or willingness to rise above depravation, God always seemed to use them in peculiar ways, as if they were born for such a time as this.

As Christians, we salute the unsung heroines among African-American women, the nameless masses who have cared for us and given us strength through the favor of God.

Exposition

This text focuses on an incident in the life of Christ in which an unnamed woman was healed by exercising her faith.

The woman had an "issue of blood." That's another way of saying she had a hemorrhage of some kind. Her condition had existed for 12 years despite the fact that she had consulted all of the best physicians of time. No one was able to cure her disease. The hemorrhaging complicated her life considerably and she sought a resolution. Adding to the complication was the fact that people who shared her illness were considered unclean under the Mosaic Law.

The woman heard that a healer from God was in their midst. She made up her mind to deal with the issue of sickness by taking it to the Son of God. Defying all of the laws, she made her way through the crowd, no doubt touching many people as she forged through. She felt she probably wouldn't be able to get a personal interview with him, but concluded in her mind that if she could simply touch the hem of his garment that she would receive the same blessing. After all, God's healing power certainly would not be limited by such a small thing as a personal interview.

When the woman touched Jesus' garment, he immediately felt something. With hundreds of people around him, obviously pushing and shoving out of curiosity, he was able to "feel" the prayerful touch of a woman who had been sick for many years. He felt power going out of him. He sensed that someone had just been healed.

The presentation of an unnamed woman presents us with a generic example of what any believer can do when faced with the situation. If the woman had been named it might have implied that her healing with specific to her situation, but a "certain woman" indicates it could easily be any believer.

The healing of this "certain woman" demonstrated the concept of healing in the New Testament. Jesus did not come to this world primarily to be a physical healer; he came to be its savior or restorer. He came to bring forgiveness of sin and reconciliation with God. Incidental to that role many were the beneficiaries of many miracles as he passed their way.

Challenges for women

While many people look at this text and see only the references to the certain woman there is also a wealth of knowledge to be gained from looking at the last phrase of verse Mark 5:28. It says I shall be whole. This idea of being whole is one that is expressed in the New Testament by the use of three words: iaomai, that refers to being in the presence of the healer; Therapeu, that refers to the relationship between the healer and the person being healed; and sozo that refers to a healing that involves both body and soul. Viewed separately, believers get a clear understanding of what the certain woman wanted when she touched the hem of his garment.

IAOMAI-IN THE PRESENCE OF THE HEALER: Those who are injured must be in the presence of the healer. The term iaomai is often used to refer to those who have been brought into the presence of a healer for the purpose of physical healing. Generally anyone who is healed is immediately brought into the presence of the healer. A person who is injured in an accident may be assisted by individuals who administer first aid and temporary assistance, but as soon as possible that person is rushed to a hospital so that the victim can be in the presence of the person who knows what to do and has a capacity to heal. The word iaomai has particular reference to physical healing, but is not usually associated with anything beyond that. In Luke 17:15 Jesus healed 10 lepers. All 10 had been in the presence of the healer, but only one returned to say thanks. The other nine received their physical healing and what about their way. The word used to describe their healing was iaomai. In a similar sense many today, desire to be in the presence of the Lord seeking a physical remedy to a debilitating circumstance. Once they receive what they came looking for they leave and never return. It's possible therefore to receive a physical healing and have no connection with God whatsoever. The nine lepers who receive their physical healing left with their souls in the same condition; there was no healing. Just being in the presence of the Lord does not change our spirituality or grant us forgiveness of sins; what we receive is physical and that's all.

The challenge for women of this generation is to bring young women into the presence of the Lord. We must resist the temptation to ignore those who are on the fringe; we must reach out to those girls and young women who are need to know how to get in the presence of the healer so that they lives can be turned around.

THERAPEUO-A RELATIONSHIP WITH THE HEALER: The next step up from simply being in the presence of the healer is to develop a relationship with the healer. The word therapeuo is the same word from which we get our English word therapy. A therapist is a person who works with us to help us regain our strength. A physical therapists, for example, will help us to move our legs, stretch our fingers, or move other limbs in ways that will help to restore strength and mobility. The therapist usually has a warm smile, a pleasing personality, and a demeanor that sets us at ease. In time, we develop a trust relationship that helps strengthen the healing process. In Matthew 4:23-24 there is an account of thousands of people who were brought to Jesus for healing. The word used to describe the type of healing they sought was therapeuo. In many ways he touched them. In some cases he touched them physically. In other cases he spoke to them or gave them instructions. A relationship was developed with each person. Today there are many who expect blessings from God without developing a relationship with Him. The relationship needed requires us to allow God to touch our lives. When God touches our lives He changes us in ways that are for our betterment. When we have developed a relationship with God we pray frequently and we listened intently to what He has to say to us. We listen by reading His word and by listening to the preached word. This relationship is probably what the songwriter had in mind when He wrote, "And He walks with me and He talks with me and He tells me I am his own and the joy we share as we tarry there none other has ever known."

The challenge for women is strengthen their personal relationship with God. Plunge yourself into the word of God. You will find strength in God's promises, power in his word, and renewed enthusiasm to face the challenges set before you. Whatever your situation, take a page from the certain woman of this text and reach out to God. Know Him for yourself.

SOZO-HEALING BODY AND SOUL: The word that is used in all three of the synoptic Gospels is sozo. This term refers to healing of both the body and the soul. It refers to keeping the wounded person safe physically and spiritually. It refers to the healing of the body and the restoration of the relationship between sinful man and God. All three of the synoptic writers used this term when they referred to persons who may whole by Jesus. So when the certain woman believes she would be made whole she was not just seeking physical restoration, but she was also seeking spiritual restoration. For the word used for whole was sozo, meaning she sought to be fully restored. This woman wanted what many who were healed did not seek; she wanted and her soul. Of course this is what Jesus is often recorded doing many times. We have seen him tell the lame man your sins are forgiven take up your bed and walk. We have seen him tell the woman at the well to go and sin no more. In addressing the spiritual state of the person who needs healing Jesus uses what practitioners called the holistic approach. He deals with both the body and the soul. Today, believers would do well to take note of the certain woman in this text; she sought relief from her situation but she also sought restoration from God. Without that restoration her body might be healed, but are sold would be as sick as before.

The challenge for women today is to help bring those who need a complete healing into a relationship with God so that there is healing for both body and soul. The young girl whose only joy in life is to continue having children out of wedlock needs more than advice about motherhood. The girl who carries herself like a harlot, curses and like a sailor and fights like a man needs more than a probation officer. Jails, probation officers and government agencies deal with physical, but the problem is spiritual. Christian women must help a lost generation of girls and young women to find the Lord.

Who is this certain woman?

Finally, brothers and sisters, every woman must fill in the blanks, If the woman who sought the healing, was not named, then each woman could rightfully conclude, I might be that certain woman.

In search of that certain woman, we must follow the trail of the great women of the bible.

That trail will take us to a certain woman named Hannah telling the Lord to take her child and raise him in his courts.

That trail will take us to a certain woman named Ruth; we'll hear her say, Your people shall be my people and my God shall be your God

That trail will take us to a certain woman named at the well, we'll hear her say, Come see a man who told me all I've ever done.

That trail will take us to a certain woman named grandma who made it clear that we should keep following the Lord.

It was a certain woman named Auntee who said, if you follow the Lord you have somebody who can help you:

-carry your burdens
-face your future
-fulfill your responsibilities
-fight your battles
-solve your problems
-overcome your temptations

Because He's good God we worship him like:

-A certain woman named Mary of Bethany, who had spirit and truth
-A certain woman named Deborah, power and strength
-A certain woman named Mary Magdalene, who was grateful and humble of heart
-A certain woman named Rahab who had an enduring hope.

I see a woman pushing her way through the crowd, saying "I want to be whole"

I see a certain woman trying to touch the hem of his garment because His blood shall make you whole!

I see Jesus picking up an old rugged cross for a certain woman, who lives in our hometown.

I see Jesus allowing nails to be driven in his hands for a certain woman.

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who was buried in borrowed tomb!

Jesus, who arose early Sunday morning!

He died for a certain person, and that person is me!

When One Good Man is God's Custodian

SCRIPTURE: But Noah found grace in the eyes of the LORD. Genesis 6:8

Introduction

Have you ever felt insignificant? There are many people in the world who work tirelessly, but are seldom considered important in the scheme of things. Among such people are those who work in the background to maintain the lives we have come to enjoy. They are our custodians.

In every aspect of American life there is someone who has to serve as the custodian. We enjoy a football game, but it wouldn't be too enjoyable if the stadium, its restrooms and grounds were not maintained. We enjoy the movies, but it would be as enjoyable if it was left unkept.

The importance of custodians has been highlighted all of America because it's a job that few people want, but no real enterprise succeeds without them. What do they do? Custodians my clean floors, shampoos floors, remove trash, fix leaky faucets, replenish bathroom supplies, monitor to air conditioning, vacuum, sweep, dust, make minor repairs, exterminate insects, wax and dry mop floors. Those who are employed at schools also discipline unruly students, wait for late parents, break up fights, monitor halls, and serve as role models for fatherless youth.

The school custodian is essential to a school's operation. He is one good man.

While it doesn't take a PhD to serve as a school custodian, it does require many other qualities, most important of which is trust. Often the custodian has the keys to the building; in many cases he is the first man in and the last man out.

It is not the kind of profession that can be taken lightly because the custodian knows more about the building than the principal and is often closer to many children than the teacher.

If you are a custodian of anything it requires you to care for it, tend to it, protect it and hold it until it is time to let it go. It requires a good man.

A good man is one who obviously has learned to live his life in a way that is favorable to God. Such a life finds grace in God's sight and earns him favor.

As Christians, we strive to live a life that will be pleasing to God. To the best of our ability we strive to obey His will and respond favorably to his call. When we do that, we become good men in His eyes.

Exposition

This text focuses on God's decision to spare Noah from the flood.

The world had become sinful to the point that God wanted to destroy his creation. It was reckless, wild and lost. Yet, when He considered all of his creation, Noah appeared a just man who obeyed God and respected Him. In addition, Noah was a man of faith.

Noah was selected to serve as the custodian of living things as God prepared to punish the wickedness of the world.

Hebrews 11:7 says, "By faith Noah, being warned of God of things not seen as yet, moved with fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house; by the which he condemned the world, and became heir of the righteousness which is by faith" . It took faith to prepare an ark on dry land when there was no sign of rain let alone a flood.

Noah was selected because of the qualities he had already displayed in his own family. He ruled well his own house and demonstrated faith and responsibility at home. He remained faithful to God and led his family to do the same; God saw it and that brought favor upon him.

God preserved Noah because he was one man who remained true to God up until he died. "Noah found grace in the eyes of the Lord" (Genesis 6:8). What does this mean? It means that Noah believed God's promise concerning the godly seed, the coming Savior. Noah believed that God was going to preserve a godly people and send the Savior through that people. Therefore, God showered His grace and His favor upon Noah. God had mercy upon Noah and chose Noah to be the person to be saved through the coming judgment. Noah's faith in the promise of God—his faith in the coming Savior—saved him.

Noah was a man of faith, obedience, strength and unfaltering trust in the power of God. He was one good man.

Source of a good man's Blessing

When we see a good man operating well in adverse circumstances, doing things others cannot or would not do; often we don't know where that ability comes from. What is the source of the inspiration and blessings of the good man?

Believers have come to know that such abilities are the result of God moving in our lives. God puts us into positions in life for a divine purpose.

For Noah, that divine purpose was to obey God. He became a custodian of God's creation as he built the ark and later populated it with samples of every living creature on the face of the earth.

A young lady once testified at a bible study that she prayed for a job and was given a part time job at a fast food restaurant. One of her assignments was to clean the toilets. She said clean the toilets as if it was an assignment from heaven, with a smile on her face and singing in her heart. As far as she was concerned she was cleaning the bathrooms for Jesus. Later, management noticed her attitude and work and she was promoted to other positions.

Across the nation thousands of believers have similar testimonies; they began low in a sacred trust, but with God's help were made custodians of even higher trust as they retrained themselves and moved up the career ladder. When that happens they all recognized that God was the source of our glory.

It is God's involvement in our affairs that his resulted in our promotions, commendations and awards. It is his constant presence that has glorified us. It does not matter whether we are elected to a political office, appointed to an influential position of leadership or accomplish a great feat.

The believer knows that the source of his accomplishment is God himself is humbled by that fact and never takes credit for what God has done through him.

Source of a good man's salvation

There is no better man than a man who knows the Lord.

He may be a good looking man, but a good looking man who does not know the Lord is ugly.

He may be a man with a great body and strong physique, but a strong man who does not know the Lord is weak.

He may be a smart man, but a smart man who does not know the Lord, is not that smart at all.

A good man knows that he is the beneficiary of God's grace.

Ephesians 2:8-9 says, "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: not of works, lest any man should boast" (Ephes. 2:8-9).

Consider the ex-convict who found it impossible to get a job after his release from prison because of his record. In prison he repented of his sins and accepted Jesus as his savior. Outside he remained faithful, but was unsuccessful and landing a job. One night God spoke to him in a dream and told him to fill out his application, but to answer questions about his background with only one word. Obediently the young man did as he was instructed and applied for a custodial position with a local company. The owner was an elderly man who had no children. He had spent most of his life as a businessman and a young men's Sunday school teacher. When he read the young man's application he instantly hired him on the spot. When his manager question why he would hire a man with a one word response to his background, the old man said, what he wrote said more than what was written: For previous experience, he wrote, Jesus. "Have you ever been convicted of a crime," the young man wrote, Jesus. When asked to provide three references, the young man wrote, Jesus, Jesus, Jesus. The old man said, "Anyone who knows the Lord that well, can't be all bad." Later, the young man worked his way up to become the manager of the store. When the old man died, he left the entire store to the man who was once his custodian; and man who knew Jesus.

A good man is a saved man. A good man knows Jesus. Noah was a recipient of God's grace and therefore was spared from the judgment (in contrast with those who aspired to immortality).

A good man is the recipient of God's grace and favor. Acts 15:11 says, "But we believe that through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved."

We recognize God's grace when doors are opened for us that should have been closed; when punishments we should have received are dismissed. We recognize God's favor when rewards and opportunities come our way that we do not deserve.

A good man is the recipient of both God's grace and favor.

Titus 2:11 says, "For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all."

Good man does not lose hope.

Noah served as the custodian of life while he was on the ark for a year; despite the frustration of his situation, he never lost hope. Every day he heard the splashing of the waters against the hull of the ark and wondered, "How long?" but he never lost hope.

This is another mark of a good man, he is optimistic! He never loses hope.

There are many who have lost hope in themselves. They see themselves in the worst way. They feel as if they have failed miserably and are beyond repair. They have given up hope on themselves because they have wasted so many years.

That can happen if our hope is misplaced. If we have placed our hope in any person, place or thing, we have misplaced it. People can let us down. Places and things change. We can lose hope in ourselves because we change.

A good man is optimistic in difficult times because his life is rooted in faith. This hope and knowledge that because God is with us that our lives can be turned around; that conditions can change!

That's why the song writer says, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness." I dare not trust the sweetest frame but wholly lean on Jesus name. On Christ the solid rock I stand; all other ground is sinking sand.

Never count a good man out

Finally, brothers and sisters, there is one aspect of a good man's life that cannot be overlooked, his ability to bounce back after being pushed back; never count a good man out.

The biblical record is filled with instances that indicate that its unwise dismiss a good man as a failure or a loser because God has a way of working with good men to bring out the best in them, especially when the game of life gets in a fourth down and goal situation.

Joseph's life was destined to greatness! He saw himself doing something great for God. But his dream met head on with that of his brothers who were equally determined to stop him. They threw him in a pit. It appeared that it was over; his brothers left him thinking that his life was over. However, God raised him from the pit and placed him in the palaces of Egypt. It just proves that a just man falleth seven times, but riseth up again. Don't count a good man out.

Samson was a strong man who was brought down, chained and blinded. As he stood in chains without strength or sight it appeared that it was over, until we look at the rest of the story! He repented for his sins and slew thousands of Philistines in his last and final act!

Job was a pitiful sight. Once strong, wealthy and healthy he was broken to a poor man with ill health. Job's story looked to be one of defeat, until we see the rest of the story! He was blessed more after his trial than he had been before! All of these went to prove that we should never count a saint of God out just because he is down!

When the winds were blowing mightily the disciples thought their ship would sink, some believed it was all over! But the good part was not in the storm, it was in the rest of the story! Jesus rose to rebuke the wind saying peace be still!

I don't know about you but I'm glad to know that we serve a God who doesn't count us out. When we have failed miserably and fallen behind.

We serve a God who can take:

—Defeat and turn it into victory; failure and turn it into success

—Misfortune and turn it into good fortune; Tragedy and turn it into opportunity

—Blunders and turn them into wonders; Doubts and wipe them out!

At Calvary the world thought the Savior was out, but they learned what we now know when it comes to people of God, a good man may be crushed down, but He will again!

They buried a good man after Calvary…

But Early Sunday morning He arose!

Living a life that counts

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 26, 2012

SCRIPTURE:"He reigned in Jerusalem eight years and, to no one's sorrow, departed." 2 Chronicles 21:20

Introduction

How important are you to the life of your family? Your church? Your community?Our importance is measured in relationship to the service that we render to others; if we are disconnected, live for ourselves and care little about the welfare of those around us, then our existence is of little importance to anyone. If we cease to connect only a few would notice; some would exclaim, "Is he still around; I thought she had moved out of town."

A man had a conversation with his friend and said that his oldest brother had died. His friend expressed surprise and apologized because he had not heard. The man said, "Don't be sorry. We didn't announce to anybody, nobody came to his funeral, nobody cared about him because he didn't care about anybody."

It's unsettling, but it is true; there are some who care little about others and others care less about them.

There are some who are missed when they are absent, but not fondly missed. The student in the class that disrupts it every day is missed when he's absent, but not fondly missed. The heckler in the crowd that follows a speaker from one appearance to another, is missed when he's absent, but not fondly missed. The church hell raiser who raises hell about everything is missed when he or she is absent from a business meeting, but not fondly missed. Gossips, backbiters and haters are missed when they are not around, but not fondly missed.

We are important to our families and extended community when our relationship renders a noticeable benefit that is recognized and acknowledged.

That's the key to being fondly missed: relate to others in such a way that your presence is deemed beneficial and necessary. It's the kind of service that elicits the words, "We sure do miss her" or "What are we going to do without him?"

What if God didn't show up for us one day this week? What would we do? Would he be missed? Would we miss his protection? Would we miss his blessing? Would we missed the inspiration we get from him?

What's the flip side? Do we praise God enough for him to miss us? Do we give enough for Him to notice if we don't? Do we serve others in His name in a way that would noticeable if we stopped?

Our objective should be to live lives that matter to God, our families and the community around us. The crossing guard who smiles every morning and cheers the children, will be missed. The teacher who inspires children to learn more, will be missed. The church member who renders service in one ministry or another, will be missed. What we do for God and others does not have to be big, but it must be enough to matter to someone, to register on the goodwill meter.

As Christians, we know God knows everything about every one of us. He is aware of all that we do and say. Let's live in such a way that what we do and say is recorded in heaven and fondly missed whenever we can't serve any longer.

Exposition

This text focuses on a King of Judah whose life meant so little to the people around him that no one mourned him when he died.

The primary focus is on King Jehoram of Judah who was, by all definitions, a vicious man who killed his brothers when he became king. He was extremely cruel, insensitive, ruthless and murderous. He cared little for others but only about perpetuating himself. He is described as a king who walked in the way of the house of Ahab, that idolatrous bloody house; for his mother was Ahab's daughter he literally sucked in wickedness with his milk.

After he became king he was attacked by many of the nations surrounding him and because of a lack of coalitions and friendships in the community of nations, was regularly invaded and he lost much of possessions and territories. The resources of the nation were depleted frequently and the people quickly grew to dislike him.

2 Chronicles 21:6 gives Jehoram this short and tragic epitaph, "He did evil in the sight of the LORD." His reign was so evil, self serving and narcissistic that the prophet Elijah sent him a letter just before his assent to heaven in a chariot, denouncing him prophesying that God would punish him with a disease that would kill him.

The prophesy was fulfilled and king Jehoram died. No one missed him when he died. The text declared that he "departed without being desired." He was not even given a respectable king's burial.

Challenge to youth

When youth study history, they see and study the lives that have been lived by others; yet, their challenge is to live the life in front of them it in a way that counts. It would be a tragedy for a man or a woman to live his or her life in a way that saddened no one that they have left. It would be even worse if they celebrated at your demise. When Iraqi dictator Saddam Hussein was hung on December 30, 2006, the people of Iraq celebrated. In 2011 when terrorist leader Osama Bin Laden was killed by U.S. Navy Seals many in the free world celebrated his demise. Each time a false report about the death of Cuban leader Fidel Castro was reported over the years there was virtual partying in the streets.

How can we live a life so that our absence is noted and mourned and not celebrated? There are many ways, but here are a few:

MAKE THE WORLD YOU TOUCH A BETTER PLACE: Those who count the most, touch the most in a positive way. Those who touch the least are never missed. Many spend their lives reaching out to touch as many people as they can as they move through the maze of life. We tend to mourn the loss of people who brought us hope such as John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King, Jr., we celebrate the demise of the Adolph Hitlers of the world. Those who reach out to provide food for the hungry, assistance to battered families, housing for the homeless, assistance to wayward youth, or promotion of benevolent causes are those whose lives are significant, especially to those they have touched. When we reach out to the wounded and the lost of the world with a passion that comes from the heart, our lives have significance. Jesus told the sons of Zebedee who sought a high position in the Kingdom that true greatness would not be measured by sitting high, it would come through the quality of their service to others. He who would be greatest among you, let him be your servant. Those who desire to live a significant life should heed the words of Diana Ross' hit song Reach out and touch somebody's hand make this world a better place if you can.

LIVE SO THAT GOD FAVORS YOU AND THOSE AROUND YOU: God smiles on us when we live and give righteously. In Acts 10:35, Peter said that believers who live in the fear of the Lord and live righteously are accepted. Those who are accepted by God are favored by Him. When you are blessed, bless others. When God gives you a bountiful blessing share that blessing with others. In Panther Burn, uncle Doug often killed hogs on the farm. When he finished processing all the ham, tripe, chitterlings and skins; he'd walk up and down the dusty road and share some of his kill with the neighbors. Years after he died he was missed because he shared with others. Even today there are many who give of their time, talents and resources to help others without a thought of personal profit. A popular hymn says, "Make me a blessing. Out of my life let Jesus Shine, make me a blessing to someone today."

We must live and give righteously. Living righteously implies doing God's will every day. Giving righteously implies sharing our financial gifts and spiritual gifts according to God's plan. To obtain a favor from God we must both live and give righteously

LIVE SO SOMEONE CAN FOLLOW YOU: Youth study the trails that have been walked by those before them, but their challenge is to blaze a trail that others who come after them can follow proudly. Those we study made history, those who are living today are making history. The question is: "What kind of history lesson are we writing?" Will it be a lesson of a young man or woman who chose to live an obedient life, walk humbly, serve unselfishly, and share freely? Or will it be another story, not so austere or disciplined. Youth often follow their grandparent's moreso than their parents for some reason. For that reason grandparents seem to have a lingering influence that reaches beyond their own lifetimes as grandchildren and great grandchildren learn of their strengths and weaknesses and emulate them. Many years later a grandchild or a great grandchild remembers the life work of a grandparent and points its generation back to some level of sanity. Yet, each youth themselves must recognize that there are younger children that are following their steps already; they want to be just like them. Today little children admire Justin Bieber. Generations ago there were other child wonders: Michael Jackson, Stevie Wonder, just to name a few. Even in our city, there are youth who admire believing youth and want to follow in their step. Let us walk humbly before God so that those who "follow" us in life, will follow an admirable trail.

Live in the joy of the Lord

Finally, brothers and sisters, each believer should strive to live a life that displays the joy of knowing the Lord.

What is the joy of the Lord?

The joy of the Lord is knowing that you are on the right track and that God is pleased with both your life and your goals.

Beyond the material rewards that believers receive for their service, it is the satisfaction of knowing that their little part helps to build the kingdom of the Lord. This satisfaction leads to a spiritual peace of mind that has been described as the joy of the Lord!

It's the satisfaction that a little boy felt when he saw his five loaves and two little fishes used to feed five thousand!

It's the satisfaction that the Good Samaritan felt when he watched the injured man walk away from a battered situation after weeks of love and care!

What is the joy of the Lord?

Those who live in the joy of the Lord are recipients of his goodness and are instruments of his compassion! When you know the joy of the Lord you know the goodness of the Lord.

It is the goodness of the Lord that transforms our:

—BURDENS into blessings; CARES into comforts

—DEFEATS into delights; HEARTACHES into hallelujahs!

—PROBLEMS into praises; HOUSES into homes

—SORROWS into songs; SADNESS into gladness It's the goodness of the Lord that prompted David to write in Psalm 106:1 O give thanks unto the Lord for he is good and his mercy endureth forever!

What is the Joy of the Lord?

The joy of the Lord is going into battle and knowing that before the battle begins the victory is won!

The joy of the Lord is knowing that no matter how tough the enemy, we will be the victor!

The joy of the Lord is knowing that weeping might endure for a night, but joy comes in the morning!

The Joy of the Lord turns SADNESS into GLADNESS; WEAKNESS into strength;

DEFEAT into victory!

The joy of the Lord is the assurance that storms may rise and winds may blow, but God is still on the throne!

That's why the song writer declared, Victory is mine, victory is mine, victory today is mine. I told Satan to get thee behind; victory today is mine!

This victory was won on a hill called Calvary!

This victory was won on an old rugged cross!

This victory was won after three days and three nights in a borrowed tomb!

This victory was won early Sunday morning when He arose from the grave with all power in His hand!

If you live victoriously, you will live a life that counts!

I Will Do A New Thing

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 4, 2012

SCRIPTURE: "Behold, I will do a new thing; now it shall spring forth; shall ye not know it? I will even make a way in the wilderness, and rivers in the desert." Isaiah 43:19

Introduction

Have you ever listened to those who dwell on what we used to do? It seems that they have fixed on a point in the distant past and constantly relive that moment in their mind, especially if that moment was a great moment for them. The danger with nostalgia is that it tends to trap us in the past without allowing us to gaze into the future.

It is often said that people can tell their age by categorizing their conversation. A man who is young at heart and forward thinking constantly speaks about the future and what he plans to do. The old man always reflects back and speaks about what he "Use" to do. The more we talk about what we use to do, the older we are in our thinking.

There in lies the challenge of African-American History. We must reflect on where we have been; its absolutely essential, but at the same time we must spend more time charting where we are going. History has its purpose, but it also has its place. Our forward momentum as a people can become slowed and even stagnant if we dwell too much on past accomplishments while ignoring the challenge to chart new ways commensurate with the present challenge.

It's good to reflect on the accomplishments of the past and to chronicle the accomplishments of our heroes who arose victorious despite slavery and adversity, but we must spend more time thinking about our response to the challenges before us today.

In our past we survived on pidgin broken English and Ebonics, but in a global economy, will "What's happening, bro?", sagging pants, potato chip painted cars help us to be real players when corporations are looking for those who are multi-lingual and able to move easily from cultural level to another.

In our past we built our own schools in churches and old tin buildings; then we became dependent on the public and abandoned our teaching institutions, colleges and universities. The number of historically black colleges has declined over the decades, those that remain are struggling, yet very few black alumni send checks back to their old schools to help the future, they simply enjoy remembering the good old days.

As public education changes many are fighting desperately to hold on the same failed system we have become dependent upon that is generating proportionately too many of our young minds unprepared to compete. While remembering the past is great, yet in the world of education we should be bold enough to grasp a new thing and make it work to our benefit, just as our ancestors did nearly 200 years ago.

History has shown us that things have changed, but things are still the same. Our average income is still significantly lower than our white counterpart. We are still the last to be hired and the first to be fired in most cases. Our communities are still the major target of illegal drug distribution. We are still rejected for bank loans at an alarmingly high rate. Our children still make up the largest percentage of the incarcerated. Too many of us still live, week to week.

History has its place; we must look back with pride, but we must be prepared to do a new thing to face the challenges ahead.

What we have learned from our history is that God has always made a way for us when we boldly made what Martin Luther King called, strides toward freedom. We don't have to settle for memories of past glory we can confidently move in a new direction, secured by faith in the same old God.

As Christians, we should walk forward in confidence that as we learn from our past and proceed into our future, our God will help us do a new thing and make a way for us in the wilderness.

Exposition

This text focuses on the prophet Isaiah as he reminds Israel of God's promise to be with them in return for their faithfulness.

To reassure them, Isaiah began to remind them of the great wonders God had done for them in the past. He reminded them how God had made a path for them that carried them through the red sea and across the desert. He urged them to look back at the victorious journey of their ancestry and take heart because that same God was still with them with undiminished power and ability.

After rehearsing how God's power had been displayed in times past and reminding them of how God broke the powers of mighty nations opposing them in the past (v17) God tells Israel at verse 18 not to dwell on the past, because he would do a new thing for the people. Just like he had blazed a path for their forefathers he was about to do a great thing in their lives as well. God promised ". I will even make a way in the wilderness, and rivers in the desert." (v19)

These were references to his great work with their ancestors in providing food, clothing and protection for them while they wandered for 40 years in the wilderness. During this time they completely depended upon God who provided the bread from heaven every day and meat. When they were thirsty God provided water for them that flowed from a rock like a mighty river. That is what he did in the past. The fact that he was talking to a new generation is evidenced by the phrase "I will." The wilderness experience was sure to come, but promised to sustain them regardless to the difficulty of the journey even to the point of providing for their food, clothing and shelter in life's wilderness, and rivers of waters to satisfy their thirsts.

This 43rd chapter of Isaiah is important to believers because it reminds us that those who trust in him will find that God will make a way.

We need a new thing

When Israel marched out of slavery each generation was faced with new challenges. Many enough courage to march out of Egypt, but lost their faith when they made it to the Red Sea. Some crossed the Rea Sea, but lost their faith when they faced the drought conditions of the wilderness and a whole generation died before they moved forward.

Even as they decided to move into the Promised Land there even more challenges; some were intimidated by the giants on the other side and by the raging Jordan river. However, the biblical record shows us that at each important juncture of their journey, God intervened and helped them do a new thing.

As a people, we should be looking for the ways that God is helping us to do new things.

It's great to know that God has sheltered and protected us through difficult times, but it is frustrating, but we are looking for God help us do some new things.

We are reaching epidemic numbers of unwed mothers in our community, producing babies without fathers, and the number of shacking relationships is resulting in a high number of homes without husbands. We should be looking for God to help us do some new things. We must redouble our efforts to religiously educate our young and take back our families.

It's great to have a Black man in the Supreme Court; but justice is still unjust when the prisons are filled with "just us". Our criminal justice system must remain firm, but it must administer justice in ways that reclaim troubled lives rather than support the warehousing of an entire generation for profit.

It's great that the Constitution gives us the right to vote, but what good is that right if we don't vote or fail to educate ourselves to the issues. We need God to show give us a new thing and show us a better way. We must roll up our sleeves and educate our communities and join in the effort to mobilize the masses for voter participation.

How long will we sit back and accept the fact that many of our children are being taught in failing schools that were great in the past, but as standards constantly change, they are proving inadequate to adjust to today's needs. We can remember the past, the glory days, of what our schools once were, or we can seize the opportunities that are available and do a new thing, with God's help.

God will make a way

Finally, brothers and sisters, we need to remember that as we look back on our past, that our hope is in our future; in that quest we should remember that God will make a way.

For Israel the prospect of the wilderness was both a challenge and an opportunity. It was a challenge of their faith and an opportunity for God to reveal himself in their lives.

We must march forward remembering what God has said, "Remember ye not the former things, neither consider the things of old." We must expect that God IS going to do a NEW THING.

God is not through with us yet. If He can make "a way in the wilderness, and rivers in the desert", we know that He is able to move our present mountains out of our way.

If the Lord can cause a virgin to conceive a child, He can restore our families.

If the Lord can open the Red Sea, He can open doors of opportunity.

If the Lord can resurrect Lazarus, He can resurrect our ailing communities.

We must have faith that God is going to do a new thing!

When there seems to be no way, the Lord will create a way.

When there seems to be no present hope, the Lord will give us hope.

When there seems to be no present joy, in Christ we will discover new joy.

We must have faith that God is going to do a new thing!

The challenge is to remember that what God did for your mother or grandmother, he will do for you! What God did for your grandfather and your father, he will do for you! God has brought our families through the wilderness of oppression and hard times. He has brought us through slavery, depressions and world wars!

He's bought us from a nomadic life of moving from place to place and set our feet on solid ground. He's put food on our table and clothes on our backs.

But what God did for our parents, he will do for us! No wonder the song writer declared, "It is no secret what God can do. What he's done for others, he'll do for you. With arms wide open he'll pardon you. It is no secret what God will do."

As we move forward we should remember that the Lord will make a way!

In the wilderness of:

—Despair, I know the Lord will give you hope!

—Weakness, the Lord will give you strength!

—Danger, the Lord will guide you to the other side. No wonder the song writer declared, "Guide me oh thou great Jehovah, pilgrim through this barren land!"

—Sorrow, the Lord will bring you comfort! "Beneath his wings of Love abide God will take care of you!"

It doesn't matter whether you are in the wilderness or on the mountaintop.

It doesn't matter whether you are doing a new thing or the same old thing. If you call on the name of Jesus! He will make a way for you!

He will provide rivers of hope in the middle of your deserts!

Call on the name of Jesus!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who rose from the grave in victory!

Call on Jesus...

He will make a way for you!

Broad Phylacteries and Narrow faith

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: "But all their works they do for to be seen of men: they make broad their phylacteries, and enlarge the borders of their garments; 11) "But he that is greatest among you shall be your servant." Matthew

Introduction

Have you ever seen a Jack-in-the Box ? A Jack-in-the-Box is a children's toy that has been for scores of years. It consists of a little box that contains a clown puppet that sits on a spring. On the side of the box is a handle. When the handled is turned music plays and when the music gets to a special point the top of the box opens and out pops the Jack, bouncing around on the spring bringing laughter to little kids. Whenever the kids wanted another laugh they would turn the wheel again and the Jack would pop up again. When we tired of playing with Jack when closed the top down and pushed the box in a corner. However, whenever we needed a laugh or a giggle, we could easily pull out the box and Jack would pop out?

If Jacks in the boxes had feelings, that probably wouldn't appreciate being stuffed in a box and played with like a toy! Jack probably became tired of both the box and games people played with him.

Today, there are many people who have a Jack-in-the-Box attitude about God. We think of him as this magician who lives somewhere in space, who can make things happen for us if we learn the magic words; therefore many spend their lives trying to learn the magic words.

They learn words, without learning the WORD.

In pursuit of the magic words, the words themselves become objects of worship and faith becomes synonymous to believe in the power of good luck charms that are activated by the recitation the correct series of words. Many have reduced their spiritual lives to the recitation of a collection of verses from the bible quoted frequently to receive good luck or favor? Some have a verse they recite when we need money. Some have recitations for challenging situations. What about when we want to succeed? Many of us have completely worn out Philippians 4:13. Folks are reciting that verse frequently, posting it on their Facebook pages. Evander Holyfield, heavyweight champion of the world, had it embroidered on his robe and recited it as he punched his opponents in the head. Tim Tebow, quarterback for the Denver Broncos recited it before and during every game. It became a national good luck charm as Tebow mania spread to millions across the nation. Millions started bowing and reciting good luck verses as well.

When our faith is limited to scraps of paper or verses we've memorized for good luck, it minimizes our God to a Jack-in-the-box who responds whenever an incantation or spell is recited. God begins to serve us instead of the contrary.

How does God feel being the Jack-in-the-Box of those who call on Him, but do not worship him, live by his laws, or support his kingdom? How does God feel being the God in the box who is supposed to pop up whenever a verse is recited by people who will not commit themselves to live for him every day?

The believer who lives the Christian life lives his faith each day. He worships God whom he cannot see and he serves his neighbor whom he can see. The believer does not live by phylacteries or quotations in a box; scripture tells us that the just shall walk by faith in God. In business, family, social or public encounters; the just live by faith not by quotations posted for the public to see.

As believers, we are reminded that God is with us always. We speak to Him out of the sincerity of our hearts; never for public display or show. He responds to us not because we recited a verse or posted it on a social networking page, but because we live by his teachings daily and walk faithfully in the community.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he denounces the hypocrisy of the Scribes and Pharisees who he said made a big show about their religious piety, but did not live the life themselves.

Jesus' words to them castigated them for ceremony and show. He in his discourse he referred to phylacteries, a word only used once in the bible.

Phylacteries were strips of vellum that were tied to their arms and foreheads. They contained boxes in which four passages of scripture were written. These four passages served three purposes: 1) They reminded them of the promises of God to Israel and the nature of their journey 2) They made the priests look holy in the presence of the people; and 3) They were thought to be good luck charms that would effectively keep demons away and fight off bad luck.

The priests took the phylacteries as serious business. Lengthy rules were established that described how they were to be worn, tied and stored. They were to be tied to their hands and frontlets on their eyes. The size and nature of the phylacteries themselves became an object of worship because some wore larger phylacteries than others making it possible for more scripture to be written upon them, inferring that the wearer was more religious than others.

The phylacteries allowed the priests to appear holy and righteous, to gain status among the people, yet their lives did not reflect the holiness that they depicted in their ceremonial robes. They did not practice what they preached. They wanted position and the praise of men without earning that praise through their service to men. At best they were hypocrites because not only did they wear phylacteries, they made them bigger so people could see them.

They wore broad phylacteries, but their service to others and true loyalty to God was extremely narrow.

Jesus challenged their piety and outward shows of religious fervor, while noting that all of their fervor was self serving in that it was not to honor God, but to elicit the praise of men and to elevate themselves. He concluded in Matthew 23:11, "He that is greatest among you, let him be your servant." His challenged to them was to live their faith rather than writing it on little strips of paper and strapping it to their heads and arms.

In the box

The four passages written down by the Jews and placed in the box represented four biblical truth from the writings of Moses that they kept before them to symbolize their remembrance of God's grace. Recitation of the passages from memory and carrying them in boxes tied to their foreheads and strapped to their arms became a ritual so intense that many thought that simply following the ritual brought them favor.

THE STRENGTH OF THE LORD BROUGHT YOU OUT: Exodus 13:3 notes that the strength of the Lord brought Israel out of bondage. It was among 10 verses in the passage which called upon Israel to dedicate their first fruits to God. Even today, there are many who give lip service to how God brought them out of difficult situations. They speak loudly about how He healed them, blessed them and opened doors for them, but they ignore the command to give Him the first fruits or the best of their time, talent, and resources. It is a lip service that Jesus dismisses as hypocritical. Just as the scribes and Pharisees spoke broad phylacteries and did little service, believers today are reminded that we are expected to demonstrate our gratitude for God's goodness not simply talk about it.

Those who walk by faith constantly demonstrate their remembrance of God's grace not by constantly saying it, but by demonstrating it. In recent, unseasonal hurricanes that have devastated parts of the nation volunteers came from across the nation to help families recollect their lives. One volunteer was asked why she came so many miles and she responded, "I have survived a tornado myself. I know what it's like. I couldn't just do nothing." Those who have been brought out by the Lord feel compelled to do more than talk and wear their gratitude in a box, but to respond with acts of faith.

WHEN YOU RECEIVE THE PROMISE REMEMBER THE LORD: Exodus 13:11-16 was copied by the Jews and place in their prayer box. The passage told them they would receive what was promised of God, but not to forget Him once they receive it. Today, there are many who receive promises from God, but forget him when he delivers. Yet, He expects us to do more than give Him lip service. We are blessed to be a blessing to others. It is a phylactery to constantly say the words, "I'm blessed and highly favored" with your lips, but do not tithe, worship regularly or help others in need. Those who do so give God lip service, but not real service.

We are blessed for a reason. Louise White, at age 81, was concerned about the condition of her family and her generations. Every night she slept with her bible and prayed. Last week, it was announced that the lottery ticket she bought at the local Stop and Shop was worth $336 million dollars. She signed it and put it in her bible. She told the media that one of her family members wanted some rainbow sherbet ice cream. She went to the store and by chance bought the ticket. When she found she had won, she formed a legal trust called the "Rainbow Sherbert Trust" for her family and said, "I have am truly blessed. This will make my family happy." -When your receive your blessings, remember the Lord.

LOVE GOD WITH ALL OF YOUR HEART: Deuteronomy 6:4-9 was a command that was placed in the box. It was a command to love the Lord with all your heart. It included a command to teach the love of God to children and to teach it continuously. Today, there are many who love God, but not with all of their heart. It sounds good as the words roll off their lips, but they lose their appeal once that love requires a sacrifice of any kind. Too often, we love God if it is convenient to do so. Increasingly, many families are neglecting teaching the bible to their children. A recent 2008 study of American households showed 93 percent had a bible in them. Yet, only 37 percent read their bibles at least once a week and only 12 percent taught the bible regularly to their children. Jesus said the scribes and the Pharisees made a big show about loving God for the public to see, but their show was just broad phylacteries that evidenced very little real faith. If we have bibles in our homes, but never read them; is our display of the family bible in the living room a show? If we never teach our children the bible ourselves and see to it that they are formally taught in Sunday school and bible studies; are our professions of love of God phylacteries?

Believers love the Lord in precept and practice. We give God first place in our lives and we teach our children to follow our example. At home we discuss the bible, study our lessons and teach the same to our children. Psalm 119:105 reminds us, "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path."- They even add Psalm 119:11, "Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee. " The desire of every Christian is embodied in the words of the old song that says, "Lord, I want to be a Christian in my heart. In my heart, in my heart. Lord I want to be a Christian in my heart."

RAIN IN DUE SEASON: The last passage included in the box was God's promise contained in Deuteronomy 11:13-21. In these nine verses God promised to give Israel rain in due season if they loved God and kept his commandments. That promise was put in the box. Today, there are many who look forward to the shower of blessings promised by God when our "due season" comes. It is the promise that in His own time God will make things happen for us and shower us with the essentials necessary for us to flourish in our quest to build his kingdom. In our quest we focus on the rain and the season, but we forget that the promise is conditional. Deuteronomy 11:13 says, "If ye shall harken diligently unto my commandments..." The season comes when we have diligently obeyed God. We hear many today singing about their season of prosperity, but even as they sing, they neglect the poor, skip the offering plate, and conduct themselves faithlessly. Jesus told the Pharisees and scribes that such expressions were hypocritical if they were not followed by acts of faith. He called them Broad phylacteries.

Believers who love the Lord trust in Him daily. We sing His praises in season and out of season, in good times and bad because the word tells us, "In everything give thanks." We pray for His will to be done; inclusive in that will is a season of health and a season of sickness. A season of prosperity and a season of famine. A season of joy and a season of pain. We make our wishes known to God privately, and he rewards us openly, in due season.

Out of the Box

Finally, brothers and sisters we should remember that if we let God out of the box, He will see our faith and our sacrifice, and He will provide our needs.

The ancient Jews reduced their faith to special verses hidden in boxes. When they prayed the scriptures in the box became the focal point of their faith. It was as if they kept God in the box.

Today, we must be careful not to reduce our faith to phylacteries, good luck charms and omens. We don't want to confine God to a box, dangle Him from the end of a rosy, or keep Him on the end of chain.

Our God is an awesome God when He is out of the box and off the chain!

In the box we ask God to hide Himself from our presence and only appear when we need Him. However, when we let God out of the box He becomes a constant presence in our lives every day.

When God is out of the box He walks with us and talks with us and becomes whatever we need even before we ask.

Out of the box God is free to be God.

Out of the box He becomes JEHOVAH-JIREH our God who sees and provides.

Out of the box He becomes JEHOVAH-RAPHA our God who heals us.

Out of the box He becomes JEHOVAH-SHALOM our God who brings us peace in the midst of trouble.

Out of the box He becomes JEHOVAH-NISSI our God who is the banner of victory.

When our supply of food is running low, it is good to know that the Lord will provide.

When our money is gone and provisions have nearly disappeared, it is good to know that God will continue to provide for us.

When there is disruption, or insecurity all around, it is good to know that God can bring peace in the midst of confusion..

No matter how tough times get, God is still God. He is still our God whose

-Power never weakens

-Grace never disappoints

-Love never leaves

-Promises never fail

-Glory never diminishes

-Joy never ends
-Foundation never shakes
-Truth never changes
-Supply never shrinks

If you think God does not see what you are going through, remember the words of the songwriter, “We are our heavenly father’s children, and he knows just how much we can bear!”

God sees our tears in the midnight hour!

God sees our concern for our families and loved ones!

God sees our despair over our current situation and while we are still praying about it, help is on the way!

For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life!

On the same hill where Isaac asked, “Where is the lamb?”

God made the eternal sacrifice of his only beloved son!

His name is Jesus!

He died out on Calvary!

But early Sunday morning arose from the dead!

A Call to Worship

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 2012

SCRIPTURE: One thing have I desired of the LORD, that will I seek after; that I may dwell in the house of the LORD all the days of my life, to behold the beauty of the LORD, and to enquire in his temple. Psalm 27:4

Introduction

How do you know when it is time to worship? When we think of a call to worship, we usually think of a point in a worship program when a speaker calls the audience together and notifies them by reading a scripture, or singing a song that is time for the church to begin its worship. It is the traditional way that churches formally begin worships. There are lines on church bulletins that include the words, "Call to worship."

Why would we need a call to worship? Generally, congregations gather before the beginning of a worship service and discuss life, exchange personal information and other trivialities. The call to worship is a call to set the cares of the world aside and begin the worship of the Lord.

In our history the church itself gave the call to worship by ringing its bell on Sunday mornings. Not many in this generation have heard a church bell ring, except in the movies. There are many who can recall a time when the bells of churches actually rang. It was a common occurrence. Nearly every church had a bell. The architecture of churches of the past required that a tower be erected to house a bell.

Among the various reasons that the church bell rang was a call to worship.

Yet, even today church bells remain silent. They are beautiful pieces of construction, but they never ring. It could mean too that the church has lost touch with its ability to call the community to worship.

Just as we assemble before a worship event not really focused on the purpose of the assembly and must be called to worship. God has a way of calling all of us to worship if we get so caught up in ourselves that we forget our purpose in life.

When sickness comes..we sing and pray!
When hard times come...we sing and pray!
In times of war...we sing and pray!
God knows how to call us to worship.

Consider Waving Wanda who rarely came into the church without waving her hand. Often when Wanda came early she sat in her seat and just waved her hand. It was strange because in the moments before the beginning of the service the church had a rule that no one talked, each was required to sit quietly. Wanda obeyed the rule, but each Sunday she walked in the door waving her hand and then sat in her pew, waving her hand. When the call to worship was given she suddenly stopped waving her hand and started to singing and shouting. Confused by this practice a church deacon asked her, "Wanda why do you wave your hand until the call to worship then you start singing?" Wanda, with a joyous look on her face said, "When I woke in the morning I hear the voice of God calling me to live a new day for him and worship him. I start worshipping him before I walk out the door. When I get to church, I'm still worshipping him when I walk in the door, but I obey the rule and keep quiet. I wave my hand because I got my call to worship when I opened my eyes, but since I can't say a word at the beginning of church..I just wave my hand!"

The church should find a common need to worship God even without a formal call.

He has seen us through difficult times...that is a call to worship!

He has blessed us in so many ways...that is a call to worship!

He has touched, protected and saved us from dangers seen and unseen, that is a call to worship.

As Christians, we are called to worship God in season and out of season and to give thanks and praise regardless to the circumstance. In solidarity with the savior, we worship Him in spirit and in truth.

Exposition

This text focuses on David as he expressed his desire to give pleasing worship and service to the Lord.

In Psalm 27 David made it clear that one of the major objectives of his life was to live in solidarity with God. Living in communion with God cannot be done without a humble and committed spirit. This spirit helps believers create a life work that is a masterpiece or a work of spiritual excellence.

David said his entire life was consumed with one desire. That desire was to live in the presence of God in a way that was pleasing to him. As a shepherd boy, a wanderer and as king, he wanted to please God and do those things that would meet God's approval.

David did just that, most of his life. He had a few flaws and made some mistakes along the way, but his life is described as enviable. He was described as a man after God's own heart.

His ultimate desire was to worship God in spirit and in truth.

Each circumstance of his life became his own personal call or reason to worship.

The Call to worship

We worship God because He is great and His mercy endureth forever. We worship

Him because of what He has done for us and what He is going to do for us in the future. When we consider our call to worship, we must consider the following:

WE MUST REMAIN FIRM IN OUR WORSHIP: We must resist all temptations to detour to other paths and remain firm in our worship of Christ. When we worship send out a call that resonates throughout the community and declares that our God is king. When we worship we testify to the importance of God in our lives. In Matthew 5:14 Jesus said, "Ye are the light of the world, a city that sits on a hill that cannot be hidden." When we worship we let our lights shine. When we worship God we agree with Johann Neethling and, "declare the truth about God's worth, God's honor, God's greatness, and God's love. We declare it to Him, we declare it to the hosts of heaven, and we declare it to all creation."

When we assemble on Sundays each believer says to the world, God is a good God and we believe it!

TRUE WORSHIP CANNOT BE HINDERED: Just as true believers do not need a call to worship, it is also true that it is difficult to stop a true a true believer from worshipping. The Scribes and Pharisees learned this truth when they tried to get Jesus to stop His followers from praising Him as He rode into Jerusalem. That's when Jesus pointed them to the impossibility of muzzling a person who has been blessed and one who expects to be blessed.

When Jesus healed a man whose lives were plagued with demons He told them man not to tell anyone, but the man couldn't keep it to himself. His healing was a call to worship!

The woman at the well couldn't keep it to herself she had to run all over the city saying "Come see a man who told me all I've ever done."- Her restoration was a call to worship!

Lazarus, who had been dead for several days but given new life, when he saw Jesus it was a call to worship!

Even today, there is somebody in the crowd, whose life has been made whole and that fact alone is a call to worship.

When Jesus has touched you and made a change in your life, no one has to tell you, that fact alone is a call to worship.

TRUE WORSHIP NEEDS NO CALL: When the saints of God get together, those who really know the Lord, need no call to worship. True worship is from the heart. It is spontaneous. It cannot be orchestrated. We clap when we are moved to clap, not because we are told. We stand on our feet, wave our hand or even do our dance when we are moved to do so; when our hearts demand we respond. There are many who orchestrate praise. In some choirs the singers clap when they are told to clap, jump when they are told to jump and lift their hands in praise on cue. Yet, true worship is spontaneous, it has no particular order, it comes as the spirit gives utterance. Some may cry. Some may shout. Some may sit still and soak in the atmosphere. Others may dance the holy dance. No matter what method is used, true worship is from the heart, it does not need a call because believers assemble for the express purpose of worshipping Him in the beauty of holiness.

Our worship is Exciting

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that when we know what God has done for us, our worship is exciting!

When Jesus entered a city the crowds met Him at the gates and praised Him.

They were excited about what they expected Him to do.

In other places he had healed the sick and raised the dead.

In other places the blind were given the sight and even those caught in sin were forgiven.

When the people worshipped Him they were excited about what he had done and what they expected him to do.

Even today, we are excited about what Christ has done for us in the past and what he's going to do for us in the days ahead.

We're excited about the healings that could be coming!

We're excited about the job that we've been trying to land.

We're excited about the renewed spirit of growth we share today.

We can't help it but all of that good news makes us wave our hands, stand on our feet at times, smile at others and for the most part we give God praise for being a just God.

Every believer should be ready to worship the Lord because long before we saw a need to give it up for the Lord he gave it up for us.

We know God gave us His love because the bible tells us, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life."

When God showed us His love, it was a call for us to worship!

It was a love that was:
—higher than the heavens
—deeper than the oceans
—lovelier than the sunsets
—sweeter than the honeycomb —stronger than the wind
—fresher than the morning dew

It was a love that could not be:
—measured for it is immeasurable
—described for it is indescribable
—evaluated for it is invaluable
—comprehended for it is incomprehensible
—explained for it is unexplainable

There's no other love that can:
—bless and benefit
—penetrate and saturate —glorify and magnify
—satisfy and beautify
—encourage the discouraged!

We should worship God because He first loved us. No wonder the songwriter declared, Oh How I love Jesus. Because he first loved me.

Somebody came to the worship service today sporting your DC degree. Day Care Center Certificate. It certifies that you know how to act! You were told in Day Care to sit politely and to be quiet in your seat. We may forget many things, but we remember what we learned in Day Care. Somebody came to the worship today, determined to keep their praise turned down low.

I said I wasn't going to tell anybody but I can't keep it to myself.

I've got to tell somebody about Jesus!

Jesus, who died on Calvary!

Jesus, who arose early Sunday morning!

I said I wasn't going to tell anybody but every time I think about Jesus; it's a call for me to praise His name!

Ice Tea and Skittles

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church

SCRIPTURE: "...Share the sorrow of those being mistreated, for you know what they are going through. Hebrews:13:3; "Be ye angry and sin not: let not the sun go down on your wrath" Ephesians 4:26

Introduction

Are there some things that challenge your sense of justice and fair play? Most of us get angry when we see someone cheated out of an opportunity or robbed of their liberty. When we watch the news and see men released from prison after serving decades on bogus charges, our sense of justice is disturbed. When people are prosecuted without reason and unreasonably persecuted we get angry.

Everyone has a breaking point. Even Jesus himself, usually soft spoken and philosophical in his demeanor, became angry when he saw the money changers in the temple. He turned over tables and shouted, "It is written that my father's house is the house of prayer, but ye have turned it into a den of thieves."- He was visibly angry.

There was never another occasion when he showed so much rage, but on that day the presence of so much sin, made him angry. Sin pushed his buttons.

Sometimes we are same way. We try to hold our peace on some subjects, but every now and then one subject or another really touches that last nerve. Consider the country boy who came to the city one Friday night in midst of the segregated South. He had been warned by the folks back home to keep his temper and not to be too upset by anything people did to him along the way. With a brand new pair of blue suede shoes on his feet he went into town and bumped into some ruffians who decided that this lone Negro was an easy target for some heckling and fun. They called him names. The young man stood silent. One slapped him on his head. He stood silent. He endured a list of personal harassments but he remembered his warning not to react to anything done to him. Finally, the ruffians saw his brand new blue suede shoes and decided to scoop mud and spread it all over the shoes. That was it. They young man responded as he started swinging left and right, "You can mess with me and give me the blues, don't mess with my blue suede shoes!"

Injustice has a way of challenging our sense of order. It stirs our anger and we must struggle hard to remain in control.

This is the feeling that many have in the aftermath of the February 2012 slaying Trayvon Martin in Sanford Florida. Seventeen year old Martin was killed by George Zimmerman. Martin was black. Zimmerman is Hispanic who passes for White. Zimmerman was a volunteer neighborhood watchman in a gated community, armed with a semiautomatic handgun. Martin was armed with a can of ice tea and a package of Skittles. Zimmerman claims self-defense. What has enflamed this situation are of the facts that: Zimmerman is a hundred pounds bigger and ten years older. He had the gun, not Martin. He followed Martin in his truck and he called 911 and was told to stand down and wait for police, but he ignored the instruction and later gunned down the youth in what he claimed was "self defense." No arrests were immediately made because of Florida's "Stand your ground law" which seems to give the right to shoot to persons who feel threatened. Many in the nation appear to be frustrated that little effort was taken to discern if his self-defense claim is valid.

The incident is so frustrating that even the President of the United States noted that if he had a son, Trayvon Martin would look just like him. The implication was clear; if he had a son who had worn a hoodie and walked through that gated neighborhood, he might have been killed, too.

The national sense of fair play and justice has been assaulted and the cries of protest and outrage are coming from all sectors of the nation.

How should the Christian community respond? What does the word of God say about our response to injustice? Ephesians 4:6 says, ""Be ye angry and sin not: let not the sun go down on your wrath." Yet, there is another passage from Hebrews 13:3 " ... Share the sorrow of those being mistreated, for you know what they are going through."

God's word indicates that God is concerned about any injustice inflicted upon believers. It also says that we should be empathetic, toward the victims of any injustice while seeking justice for anyone suspected of infringements.

As Christians, we know that God demands justice because we read in Amos 5:24 the prophet Amos declare, ".. let judgment run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream." From every corner of the nation that clarion call is being sounded. The voice of God's people echoing His word will be heard.

Exposition

This text focuses on scripture that instructs believers how they must respond to injustices.

The word anger in verse 26 is from the Greek word "Orgizo" which implies godly indignation against evil. Orgizo is slow in its rise but lasting in its nature. While "orgizo" suggests an emotional response it is always free of indignation, resentment and hate. This characterization is just the opposite of verse 31 which says, "let all..anger..be put away from you." One seems to say anger is acceptable while the other says it is not. The anger of verse 31 does not refer to godly indignation but emotional responses that stem from a desire for revenge. It is characterized by the limiting adjectives that surround it: Bitterness, wrath, clamor and evil speaking.

Believers should be angry about injustice, but that anger should not result in a clamor for evil and revenge. It should lead to a call for justice.

Hebrews 13:3 reminds us that we should feel the pain of those who have suffered injustice and empathize with them because we have been there ourselves.

Through the believer's response we show the world that God cares.

What God expects

The mind and heart of God compels Christians who confront injustice to keep three important truths in mind. God expects us to respond to injustice with a Godly anger that defies evil while refusing to hate. This mindset is reflected in the first three verses of Hebrews 13.

LET BROTHERLY LOVE CONTINUE: Hebrews 13:1 encourages believers to promote brotherly love. To continue implies that brother love exists. There are many factors that promote brotherly love. When we understand each other, listen to each and appreciate each other's differences we create atmospheres where brotherly love can exist. Conversely, there are many factors that threaten brotherly love. In America, racial hatred had been one of the most divisive traits of our national history. It has caused us to imprison, enslave, kill and destroy each other mercilessly. Even as bigotry and hatred raised their bitter heads there were voices in the faceless masses that cried out, "Let brotherly love continue." In every struggle we saw that the real culprit that divides us is not color, but the presence of evil showing itself in the form of greed, envy, jealousy and hatred. Even in the aftermath of death, tragedy and injustice there have always been millions who refused to resort to hate, but worked even harder to heal wounds, seek justice for all, and to reach out to the hurting all over the world. This is the work of love that must continue, even in the face of injustice. It is not a call to ignore injustice, but it is rather an invitation to increase our efforts to "let brotherly love continue." It is tempting to let incidents like the tragic slaying of Trayvon Martin disrupt efforts to build bridges between the races and bury hatred. That should not happen. It should prompt us to speed up our efforts to change unjust laws and become more sensitive to the rights of others. While the nation is disturbed over the injustices we see around us, we are compelled to, "let brotherly love" continue.

BE CAREFUL HOW WE RESPOND TO STRANGERS: Hebrews 13:2 reminds us to "be not forgetful to entertain strangers: for thereby some have entertained angels unawares. Our society often paints caricatures of people who are different. We use racially descriptive terms to describe people of other races and cultures. Often these descriptions are offensive and negative. Even worse, we tend to stereotype and lump everyone into categories. Thus, we believe everyone who lives in a housing project is a drug dealer and low achiever. Everyone who is of Hispanic origin is an illegal immigrant and only Native Americans act crazy when they get drunk. These stereotypes force us to assume that every black person who walks in a store in a mall is coming to steal and every black or Hispanic person walking the street wearing a hoodie is up to something bad and must be watched. Yet, we are compelled by scripture to be careful how we respond to strangers or those who are different from us. We can't assume that every white man is a Klansman, that every Democrat is good and that all Republicans are evil. We can't assume anything about anyone, but must judge each person by their own actions. Thus, we must be careful how we entertain people who are different from ourselves; we must not allow our hidden prejudices to guide our actions. This is a lesson that Jesus taught by example. He made no judgments about the woman at the well and didn't buy into custom that He should avoid contact with Samaritans, publicans and sinners because all of them are suspicious and tainted people. While Jesus followed that principal the world did not respond to Him the same way. He was a stranger among many, but they didn't know they were entertaining the Son of God. The tragedy of the Trayvon Martin slaying was a clear example of what happens when our hidden prejudices and stereotypes cause us to respond out of fear rather than respect. He was an innocent youth, who appeared strange and out of place, and for that He died. It is an injustice that screams to the throne of God and surely heaven will respond.

SHARE THE SORROW OF VICTIMS: Hebrews 13:3 entreats believers to have a sympathetic heart to the victims of injustice. An injustice is an action that has defied all of the rules of fair play. An injustice leaves its victims wounded, troubled, and unsettled. Too often injustice leads to death. We have seen too much of death in this respect: Emmitt Till, Medgar Evers, Malcolm X, John F. Kennedy, Bobby Kennedy and Martin Luther King, Jr. are just a few who have been the victims of hatred and injustice. Too many times we have seen sorrowing mothers, crying sisters and brothers holding their hearts in their hands. The word of God says we who have walked in their footsteps and felt the sting of tragedy ourselves should be sympathetic to those who are the newest victims of injustice. That sympathy should go beyond mere sympathy must be galvanized into the energy necessary to make something good come out of an injustice. Laws that perpetuate or promote injustice should be repealed. Conditions that allow racism to flourish must be improved and there must be a resolve to work with all of our might to insure that never again will the innocents of our nation be lost to something as senseless as a boy wearing a hoodie looking for Ice Tea and Skittles. We who have felt the pain should help bear the pain of the victims of injustice everywhere. We should lift them up in prayer and call upon the God we serve to wipe their tears away. Make no mistake, God will wipe all of their tears away. God will take care of the victims in ways that only he can do. Let us continue to response to all victims of tragedy and injustice anywhere in a similar manner. Let's commend them to our God.

Respond with Love

Finally, brothers and sisters, we are compelled to respond to any injustice by putting it all in God's hands while we work to repair injuries to hearts and souls.

In all of our responses we must never lose the capacity to love. Martin Luther King reminded us that while we, as a people, are angry with the racism of the American system; we should not lose our capacity to love every American.

Our God has shown us the way, if we would just follow his example.

He was angry when Israel sinned and began to follow Baal but he continued to love her anyway. He told the Prophet Hosea to dramatize that love by marrying a wife of whoredom who cheated and was unfaithful. But Hosea's call to his wandering bride was "I don't like what you are doing to yourself, but I still love you!"

Today that call is still going out from the throne of God, "I am angry with sin, but I love the sinner!" I don't like what the world is doing but I still love the world.

In fact, "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life" (John 3:16).

Jesus the son of God loved us so much that one day he carried a cross to Calvary!

He loved us so much that he cried out "father forgive them for they know not what they do"

He loved us so much that he died on Calvary, but rose early on Sunday morning!

He loved us so much that today he still says all is forgiven, come on home!

The Red Carpet Treatment

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 1, 2012

SCRIPTURE: " And a very great multitude spread their garments in the way; others cut down branches from the trees, and strawed them in the way. And the multitudes that went before, and that followed, cried, saying, Hosanna to the Son of David: Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord; Hosanna in the highest. Matthew 21:8-9

Introduction

Have you ever had anyone to greet you with enthusiasm? How did you feel? If you are like others, we are impressed when we given an enthusiastic welcome."Rolling out the red carpet" is an idiom of speech that refers to a lavish welcome that has all of the trappings of honor and royal hospitality. It is an idiom, it does not mean that there will always be a red carpet rolled on the floor, but it does mean that people are really going out of their way to make you welcome.

When soldiers come home from battle their hometowns greet them with parades and pageantry. When a team wins the World Series or the Super bowl thousands of people meet them at the airport waving signs and banners and the air is filled with music playing.

If a dignitary from another country visits there are lavish preparations that include bands, state dinners, soldiers on parade and the highest fashion. Nothing is spared, they are given the best of everything and treated with the highest honor.

We are probably most familiar with the "Red Carpet" when actors make their appearances at the Academy Awards, Emmy Awards or Grammy Awards. A long red carpet blazes a crimson trail from the arriving limousine to the entrance. On each side of the isle there are thousands of people shouting praises, "I love yous" and screams. Cameras flash, hands wave and thousands of fans swoon at the sight of their favorite star wearing expensive gowns, diamonds, rubies and $1,000 hairdos. The stars who walk the carpet themselves know that they have made it to stardom, they have a ticket and fans are screaming their names!

What do you think would happen if you heard that Jesus was coming to town? There would be a frenzy of activity, security would have to be arranged and his route well planned. The arrival of the Son of God would definitely be a Red Carpet event.

When Jesus enters our lives that should be cause for excitement. We should be prepare to roll out the red carpet, lift his name in praise and receive Him like the King He is.

As Christians, we should strive to roll out the red carpet for our Lord every day. Let's give Him our best praise and service for He is truly the King of kings and Lord of lords.

Exposition

This text focuses on the praise and acclamation that Jesus received when he made his entrance into the city of Jerusalem. It occurred shortly after Jesus raised Lazarus from the dead. On his way to Jerusalem he stopped again in Bethany to eat supper with Mary, Martha and Lazarus (John 12:2). The word spread among the crowd of people which had grown to hundreds of thousands because of the upcoming Passover celebration. As he approached Jerusalem, the crowds praised him and took branches from the palm trees and went forth to meet him shouting "Hosanna!" and praising him.

They rejoiced greatly and took their cloaks and threw them into the street to welcome one they expected to save them and bring them prosperity.

As the people praised Him they were filled with new hope by His coming because He was the object of all their praise.

They rolled out the Red Carpet for Him in a grand way!

The Treatment

When Jesus came into Jerusalem he was given the Red Carpet treatment even though there was no carpet. The carpet is an idiom, figure of speech that refers to the fact that they were paving the way for Him to enter.

THEY THREW DOWN THEIR CLOTHES: What they took off became the carpet. If we want to invite Jesus into our lives maybe we should give Him the red carpet treatment and take off a few things that would make us better followers. For Israel, taking of the garments and throwing them before a triumphant king was an act of submission. It meant the people were submitting themselves and paving the way for his leadership.

What if we took off some of our weaker qualities and cast them down before Him to pave the way for him to come into our lives.

That Hat of Conceit. What if we took it off and threw in the way and shouted Hosanna?

That Coat of Bitterness; what if we took it off and threw it in front of Him and said "Come thou oh mighty king!

That Shoe of Living In Darkness; What if we took it off and stepped into the marvelous light?

There was no carpet, but the road was literally paved with the garments of people who took off something to welcome Him into their lives. We can roll out that same red carpet by clearing the way for Him to live within us.

THEY HEARD HE WAS SOMEBODY: Those who stand outside at the awards shows do so because the believe those who walk the carpet are "somebody." Some come days ahead of time so that they can get a chance to get a good look at somebody. This is what happened to Zaccheus. He climbed to the top of a Sycamore tree to see Jesus. There is no record of anyone shouting for the disciples, although they walked among the strewn way with Jesus. Matthew 21:10 says someone in the crowd asked, "Who is this?" Is that Him? Is He the one? They had to ask because He was riding on a donkey. In today's way of thinking, he did not arrive in a chauffeured limousine, who is He?

When they learned who Jesus was they shouted! Jesus was praised because of His mighty acts among the people. They knew about his raising of Lazarus from the dead, healing the sick, giving sight to the blind, feeding thousands with a handful of fishes and bread, and therefore they praised him and shouted Hosanna!

Today we should roll out the red carpet of praise for Him because we too know of his mighty acts in our own personal lives. We have seen him take the jangling discords of our lives and bind them into a bond of meaning and purpose.

We know about His mighty works. We know He is somebody and He is worthy to be praised!

THEY SHOUTED TO BE SAVED: There is a difference between those who stand outside of the Grammy's and shout to those on the carpet and those in Jerusalem. Outside the Grammy's they shout for a star to pose for them; they shout for an autograph. However, those who shouted in Jerusalem were shouting to be saved. That's why they said Hosanna, it means 'Lord save us!" We want Christ to enter our lives to save us, so we roll out the red carpet.

Jesus met the woman at the well and offered her the water of life. It was Jesus who told her that she had five husbands and the man with whom she was living was not her husband. Yet, He offered her the water of life and the chance to be in the kingdom. She was so excited that she did not wait on the crowd, she dropped her water pot and started running through the city saying, "Come see a man." She was shouting because she was saved! We too have something to shout about. We can say with the song writer, "God gave me a song to sing that the angels cannot sing. I've been washed in the blood of the crucified lamb."

When our lives have been touched by the hand of God, we don't need the crowd, we can shout all by ourselves!

When we see the ways that God has blessed us we don't need to wait for someone else we can the let the world know!

Reasons to Shout

Finally brothers and sisters, we must consider that when we roll out the red carpet for the Lord we are inviting the King of Glory to come into our lives.

When Jesus rode into Jerusalem He came into the lives of the people of Jerusalem in a way that changed the world forever.

I don't know about you, but I've found out that powerful things happen in the life of a church "when he comes in."

When he comes in:

—Sons and daughters start to prophesy; old men dream dreams; young men see new visions.

When he comes in, he will:

—Comfort us in our sorrow; Assure us in our difficulties;

—Strengthen us in our weakness; Encourage us in our trials;

—Direct us in our decisions; Help us in our duties;

—Anoint us in our ministries; defend us in our battles;

I heard David declare: "Lift up your heads, O ye gates; even lift them up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory shall come in."

Who is the king of glory? The Lord Strong and Mighty!

Who is the king of glory? The Lord mighty in battle!

I'm going roll out the red carpet for the Lord and welcome Him, because when He comes in He will make things happen!

I'm going to roll out the red carpet because When he comes in:

- He'll give me Comfort in the middle of my sorrow;

—He'll give me Assurance in the middle of my doubts;

—He'll give me Strength in the middle of my weakness

—He'll give me Encouragement in the middle of my trial;

—He'll give me Direction in my moments of indecision;

—He'll give me Help in the middle of my helplessness

I'm going to roll out the red carpet for Him because He's coming in to prepare a place for me!

I'm shouting because He's preparing a place up there to welcome us!

The carpet won't be red, but the streets will be paved with gold!

I'm going to praise Him down here because, bye and bye, when the morning comes, I'm going to walk around heaven all day!

I may not walk in Marc Jacobs, but I'm surely walking in Peace.

I may not walk in Stacy Adams, but I'm surely walking in Truth.

I may not walk in Jimmy Choo, but I'm surely walking in Glory.

I may not walk in Kenneth Cole, but I'm walking in Victory.

I may not walk in a pointed toe or a high heel, but I'm pointed in the right direction high hopes and expectations

I may not walk with gold on the tip, but I've gone through the fire and come out as Pure Gold.

I may not walk with fancy straps, but I'm strapped in His presence and wrapped up in His love!

Whenever you think about how God has blessed you, that's when we know it's time to roll out the red carpet!

Whenever we think about how God has picked us up and turned us around, that's when we know it's time to roll out the red carpet!

Whenever we think about how He provides food for us when we are hungry, that's when we know it's time to roll out the red carpet!

When we think about how he brought us out of nowhere and carried us to somewhere, that's when we know it's time to roll out the red carpet!

We're rolling out the red carpet because of what He has done.

We're rolling out the red carpet because of what we expect Him to do.

Lift up your heads oh ye gates and the King of Glory shall come in!

We're rolling out the red carpet because when we were stained by a life a sin, He carried a cross for us up Calvary's Hill!

We are shouting Hosanna because He allowed Himself to be nailed to an old rugged cross on our behalf!

We're shouting because He died out on Calvary!

But early! Early, Sunday morning He arose from the grave!

We're shouting because He's still blessing us every day!

We're shouting because He's still healing us every day!

Eye Witness News

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 8, 2012

SCRIPTURE: "Mary Magdalene came and told the disciples that she had seen the Lord, and that he had spoken these things unto her." John 20:18

Introduction

What if there had been television news on Easter Sunday morning? Can you imagine the broadcast? "We interrupt this broadcast to give you this breaking news; a man crucified and buried three days ago has reportedly risen from the dead. For more on this breaking news story we take you to our Jerusalem correspondent John.

"Thank you Mark. Jesus of Nazareth was crucified three days ago on a hill outside of Jerusalem. His body was taken down and buried in Joseph's new tomb and guarded by soldiers. Miraculously, despite a huge stone and armed guards this morning the stone is rolled away and the body of the slain martyr is missing. I have here Mary Magdalene, who reports that she came to the tomb of Jesus early this morning and found the stone rolled away and the body missing and his clothes neatly folded."

"Mary what did you see?"

"I came to the tomb to anoint his body, because we didn't get a chance to do it after the crucifixion because of Passover Sabbath. Then after that was the weekly Sabbath I waited until Sunday when the Sabbath was over. When I got here I found that the stone was rolled away and that he had risen."

"How do you know that his body was not stolen?"

"Because I saw him. At first I thought he was the gardner then I heard him speak and call my name. I recognized him. I'm not telling you what I heard. I saw him with my own eyes!"

"There you have it friends. A strange thing at sunrise. Jesus of Nazareth has risen from the dead. You heard it first on Eye Witness News!"

If it had been reported on television the news would have traveled around the world at lightning speed. Yet, even without television the word spread quickly. Disciples were told, the Roman guards had to report, the Scribes and Pharisees learned about it, and soon hundreds knew about the amazing events of that Sunday morning as they received reports from eyewitnesses who saw Him at the tomb. Eyewitnesses who saw him later that day. Eyewitnesses who talked to Him along the road to Emmaus. Eye witnesses who saw Him ascend to heaven on a cloud.

Eye witness testimony is convincing. In fact, in court there are two types of evidence that are hard to impeach: A high quality video or audio and the testimony of one or more eyewitnesses that are absolutely sure of what they saw.

Eyewitness reports what they saw, not what someone else saw.

Eyewitness reports from firsthand experience not hearsay or word of mouth.

As Christians, we celebrate the resurrection of our Lord as eyewitnesss to His living presence in our lives. He lives, He Lives, salvation to impart, ask us how we know He lives; He lives within our hearts.

Exposition

This text focuses on how Mary saw Jesus in the garden on the morning of the resurrection and mistook him for the gardener.

Early Sunday morning the women came to the tomb to anoint His body with spices.

They had hurriedly wrapped him without completing the process. When they left home they fully expected to find Jesus' body just as they had left it. Instead the women arrived and inspected the empty tomb and saw the folded clothes and Jesus himself.

The crucifixion of Christ was a tremendous blow to his disciples. They had high hopes of establishing the kingdom of God on earth with Jesus as King and themselves as his royal court, some sitting on his left and others on his right. As the stone was sealed in front of the tomb, their hopes were also sealed away.

John's account tells how the women saw Christ himself risen and spoke to him. Other Gospel accounts tell more details.

In Matthew the women are told by the angels that Jesus had risen. They said, "Come see the place where the Lord lay."

In Luke 24 the women are told not to be afraid, but are asked, "Why seek ye the living among the dead?"

Each Gospel account of the resurrection morning presented the facts as reported by eyewitnesses.

Types of Witnesses

If you are called to be a witness you will be one of three types:

Expert Witness

In a trial you may be called as an expert witness if you have knowledge about a situation that is outside of the ordinary knowledge of the judge and jury. You can be called as an expert because a court would not have knowledge in this area accept from your reliable testimony. If there were a trial of the facts, the guards at the tomb would have been expert witnesses. They would have testified that they had stood watch on hundreds of nights and were experts on guard duty. They would have testified that the tomb was sealed and would have required the services of more than one man to open it from the outside and it would have been impossible from the inside. Their testimony is undeniable. Yet, even today believers can qualify as experts. We have knowledge about some situations that people who try to be our judges and juries do not know.

The old warriors once sang, "You don't know like I know, what the Lord has done for me."

We are experts at hard times because we have seen so many and we have also seen how the Lord has brought us through.

We are experts at sickness because we been on our sick beds so many times only to see the Lord, put us on our feet again.

Only an expert in these types of situations can say, "You don't know, you wasn't there. You don't know when and you don't know where. You don't know what the Lord has done for me."

Character Witness

If you are called as a character witness you will be asked to describe the character of the accused. Character witnesses usually help judges and juries see the positive aspects of a person's life. In criminal trials, character witnesses are often called after the verdict to determine the sentence. In civil trials, character witnesses are called during the trial if character is an issue in the case. At the three trials of Jesus there were no character witnesses called. There was no one to testify to his goodness. Sinners and publicans may have been called to testify to his willingness to eat with them and be seen with them when others would not.

A man who sat by the pool for 38 years may have been called to tell how He healed him when others would not help him.

A woman with an issue of blood could have been called because she touched the hem of His garment and made her whole.

There are millions of people today who can testify; therefore every child of God is invited to bear witness to the truth of the resurrection...that Christ is alive. We can testify to His goodness because He loved us when we did not love ourselves.

We can testify to His willingness to respond because we have called on him in the midnight hour and he has responded.

We can testify that our God is Omni-present because while he was blessing Miss Sally on the other side of town He was healing Aunt Jane down in Mississippi.

We can testify that our God is omniscient because when we are on our knees praying for something, often times the answer is already on the way.

We can testify that our God is omnipotent because there is no problem we have had that is too hard from Him to solve. There is no mountain He cannot climb and no river He can't cross.

We can testify that our God is an awesome God.

Eye Witness

An eye witness in a trial is called to give testimony about a situation that has been personally witnessed. Your testimony will be limited to what you actually saw, not what you heard or assumptions you made from what you saw.

On resurrection morning Mary gave eye witness testimony. She came to the tomb. She saw the stone rolled away. She saw the folded clothes. She saw Jesus and He spoke to her.

The disciples gave eye witness testimony. They were locked in a room and Jesus appeared. They saw Him with their own eyes. He spoke to them. They watched Him eat food. They saw the nail marks in his wrists and feet.

Today, believers are eyewitnesses, not to the resurrection morning, but to the way the Lord has risen in our lives.

We have witnessed with our own eyes, those who have been diagnosed with cancer later declared cancer free.

We have witnessed with our own eyes, those who have failed given chances to succeed.

We have witnessed marriages that have been torn apart restored by his power.

We have witnesses dwindling finances restored just in the nick of time.

Our testimony is not what we have heard, but what we have witnessed with our own eyes.

To those who claim that God is dead, millions of believers are eye witnesses that He is alive.

These eye witnesses can testify that He gave up the ghost in the agony of the Cross, but He reclaimed the spirit in the ecstasy of resurrection morning.

We who are eye witnesses can testify that, “I know God lives for I’ve tried Him for myself.”

Powerful witness

Finally, brothers and sisters, the best witness is when the expert witness, the character witness and the eye witness are all the same person.

That’s the beauty of the Christian witness; we are three witnesses in one.

We witness to his character. We are experts on His mysterious ways and we have seen Him operate with our own eyes.

There is no witness like the witness who can say “I have seen it with my own eyes.”

That’s why the angel invited the women to “come see the place where the Lord lay.”

The angel wanted them to be in a position to speak with authority.

We, who have been down to our last dime and facing tragedy and despair can best testify, that God is a good God.

We, who have stood at the brink of death only to be snatched out of the jaws of destruction, can best testify that God will be a shield around us every day.

We, who have weathered the hurricanes, strong winds and gales of life, are best able to testify, that God is a shelter in a time of storm.

We, who have been dismissed as dead and beyond help know the joy of resurrection morning. We can truly testify..."I know God lives for He woke me this morning with a touch of His finger. I have felt the warmth of His smile; I know he lives because he lit the sun and hung it in the sky. I know God lives, for I've tried Him for myself."

Skeptics might doubt His existence, but all evidence and testimony points to the fact that our God is alive.

I heard a song writer say, "If God is dead, what makes the flowers bloom...if God is dead what makes summer come in June..if God is dead who mends a broken heart...if God is dead who can show me where His body lies...I'm so glad I know He lives...He lives! in me!"

Today, there should be an eye witness in the house..

I see an eye witness coming forth; they called her the woman at the well. She had to run all over the city saying "Come see a man who told me all I've ever done."

There is another eyewitness in the crowd, his name is Lazarus. He had been dead for several days but given new life, when he saw Jesus riding into the city, he just couldn't hold his peace.

There is an eyewitness in the crowd, that had been blind, but the hand of Jesus touched him and made him whole.

There is an eyewitness in the crowd, Zaccheus whose life had been made whole because Jesus had dinner at his house!

Who will be a witness for the Lord?

Who will tell the story of how He brought us a mighty long way?

Who will be a witness and testify that there has never been a:

—CROSS that He didn't help us to climb to bear; MOUNTAIN that didn't help us to climb!

—ENEMY that he didn't help us to defeat; BATTLE He didn't help us to fight!

—TRIAL that He didn't help us make it through; TEST that we won't be able to pass!

Somebody today can testify...His name is Jesus!

Jesus, the Lily of the valley!

Jesus, the Bright and Morning star!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary and rose up early Sunday morning!

He lives! He lives! Christ Jesus lives today. He walks with me and talks with me along life's narrow way. Ask me how I know he lives..

I'm a witness.. He lives within my heart!

No. 9551-Anniv. Ushers

Born to live, Live to Usher

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: Take the sum of the sons of Kohath from among the sons of Levi, after their families, by the house of their fathers, From thirty years old and upward even until fifty years old, all that enter into the host, to do the work in the tabernacle of the congregation. This shall be the service of the sons of Kohath in the tabernacle of the congregation, about the most holy things:" Numbers 4:2-4

Introduction

Have you ever wondered why you chose to be an usher? There are many ushers who have an abundance of gifts, but they chose to be ushers. Why?There are ushers who can sing, decorate, cook, handle money, pray, teach, make repairs, play musical instruments as well as perform a number of other services, but they chose their main area of service to be ushering?

What is it about ushering that gets into their blood and compels them to serve in this capacity.

We don't know why God chose to make us the way we are and place us where we are. The answers seem beyond our wisdom.

They are just as profound as asking why was he born so tall? Why is she so short? Why is one man born into riches while another man is born into poverty? Why are some born healthy and others born sickly? Why do some seem to be blessed and others lack blessings?

We wrestle with those questions regularly and the answers that we find usually point us to our purpose in life.

Each of us has a purpose that is unique and often different from that of others.

There are many ushers who can testify that they became ushers because ushering or serving others is in their family history. They can point to parents, grandparents, uncles or aunts who found joy in serving others either from their homes or in the church.

Many can fondly remember their great grandparents starching and ironing white uniforms or storing small bottles of smelling salts in their pockets. They can remember great grandparents passing out fans, and distributing programs. Those who can remember even further can recall the ancient ones warming up the church before members arrived and insuring that there was a Sears and Roebuck catalog in the outhouse.

It seems that there are families of ushers just as there are families of preachers, teachers, deacons and singers. It's almost as if God blesses one family to teach and another family to prepare foods. He lets one family lead and another family prepare the way.

Ushering seems to be no different. It looks like ushers were born to the humble life of service; they are born to usher.

As Christians, we don't know why God has inspired us to be ushers, but we do know that we are challenged to live the life of service that ushering requires. Whatever we do, we do it for His glory.

Exposition

This text focuses on the Koathites, a family of Levites who were born to serve the tabernacle.

The Kohathites were the descendants of Kohath, the son of Levi. Kohath was the grandfather of Aaron, Moses, and Miriam. His descendants were considered the most important of the three major Levitical families (that is, Kohathites, Gershonites, and Merarites).

The Kohathites were active throughout Israel's history. The Kohathites, along with the Gershonites and Merarites, were placed around the Tabernacle and were charged with caring for and moving it. The Kohathites were to camp on the south side of the tabernacle and were responsible to care for and move the ark, table, lamp stand, altars, vessels of the sanctuary, and the screen. The Kohathites could not touch these objects and could move them only after they had been properly prepared by Aaron and his sons.

Any child born into a Kohathite family was expected to serve the Tabernacle just like grandpa Kohath and all other members of the family before them. There were 212 families that were assigned the task of serving the temple on a rotating basis. It was never left unattended, 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

If a child was born a Kohathite it was a foregone conclusion that he or she would be a doorkeeper, steward, ark bearer, vessel protector or some form of servant to the temple.

They were proud of their service and lived to carry out their purpose.

Koathites Today

Today, the modern board of ushers in churches is typical of the service of Koathites in the bible. They serve God in their assigned roles from youth to death, faithful unto the end.

YOUR STATION IS NOT A PASSPORT: The Koathites had various places of service, some were more visible, but none carried more importance than others. They understood that their glory was not in the specific station but was in their willingness to obey God's command and live out their purpose. There are some who believe that the passport into the kingdom of God is simply to join a church any find a place of service in the church program. Ushering, for example, is a fine place of service. Ushers provide warm salutations for those who come to worship. They are the standard bearers of hospitality and the finest example of the true meaning of the word servant. But simply serving as an usher is not a "passport" to heaven. Some believe that their station guarantees them a position in the kingdom. Some argue over whether they will stand at the front door, in the middle isle or at the most visible door, as if the doors themselves give them rank or position in the kingdom. This is the situation of the sons of Zebedee who wanted a high position in the kingdom, both on the left and right of Jesus. That's when Jesus told them, "He that is greatest among you, let him be your servant. Unfortunately there are some who are uniformed but are not transformed, by the renewing of their minds. Simply looking good and marching down the aisles is not a "passport" to heaven. There are too many who are good at marching on the right foot, but their feet don't always walk up the king's highway. Great ushers were born to live, but they live to usher any place where they are needed.

YOUR LIFE SHOULD REFLECT GOD'S WILL: The first ushers lived their lives according to the will of God. Although they could carry the ark of the covenant on poles they were not allowed to touch them unless properly prepared by the priests. They only moved when directed. They waited for God's command. Today, ushers have a similar charge to live their lives in the complete will of God. Ephesians 5:17 encourages each of us to understand the will of the Lord. When we work in the will of the Lord we understand fully what we are about and why we do what we do. There are many however, who have become slack in their service and insist upon their will rather than God's will. Ushers, like all Christians must be careful to become possessed by their positions on their boards. Will you serve if you are not the chief usher? Will you serve if you not the president? Will you serve if you can't choose your station or have the uniform style of your choice? Ushers have really learned to live when they have resolved that "I can be happy passing out programs, holding a door, serving as a follower or a leader. My job is to serve the Lord not a position." God has a purpose for us all and as believers we must strive to walk daily in his will.

YOUR PRESENCE INSPIRES OTHERS: When Israel returned from its exile the prophets looked for the Kohathites. It had been years since the temple service had been used following the Mosaic law, but yet they still called on the Kohathites. They were special. Their presence had meaning. Consider the little country church that only had three ushers: One for the front door, one for the back door and one to pass out programs. Anytime it rained the people of the congregation expected to see "Wet Willie" at the front door. In fact, they complained if "Wet Willie" wasn't at the front door. The other two ushers became a little jealous because folks seem to want "Wet Willie" at the door on rainy days, so one day they cornered a few of the members after church and asked them what was so special about "Wet Willie." They were surprised when one old lady said, "Miss Louise, you lives right behind the church. Miss Martha, you lives right up the road. When it rains, the weather don't bother you much; you be nice and dry. But Willie lives ten miles down the road by the creek. The road is muddy and wagons get stuck. It gets dark under all of the trees and the roads flood up the way. When Willie gets to church on a rainy day, his hair is still wet and clothes are a little wet, too, but he comes out to our wagon and helps us in. You see, we had to come a long way, too and sometimes we barely gets to the front door. When we see Willie it's like the good Lord with nail prints in his hands saying, "I know what you been through, Just like you, I've been through the storm and the rain, but come on in it's gonna be alright." There is a reason God has inspired each usher to serve. Someone draws inspiration from each, especially those who have traveled the same road in life and made it to the other side.

We Must Serve the Lord

The first ushers perceived themselves as men and women who were chosen by God to serve the Tabernacle and that's all, but we must be men and women who do more than serve on the board, but every day of our lives we serve the Lord.

Our service should go beyond just service in the building but should extend to the bounds of the great commission to "Go ye therefore" and "teach, preach, and reach" men and women for the Lord.

The first temple they served was built by Solomon, but it was destroyed and the 212 families of Koath found themselves without a job.

The second temple was rebuilt by Zerubbabel but it too was destroyed by invading armies and the doorkeepers had no doors to keep.

The third temple was built by Herod who restored it to much of its original beauty, but it too was destroyed leaving the Koathite ushers with nothing to do.

When these Koathite usher families found that there was no temple to serve they were in a bind.

But I hear Jesus declare in Matthew 12:6 as he talked to men and women married to the ritual of the temple "That in this place is one greater than the temple."

The temple that man builds is made of rocks and stones!

The temple that man builds is held together with mortar and clay.

Jesus reminded them that there will come a day when not a rock or stone of this man made temple will stand.

Jesus pointed them to himself as the temple that would be everlasting. In John 2:19 he said "Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up." Somebody answered, that it took 46 years to build this building, how can you raise it in three days?

Jesus wasn't talking about a building made from rocks stones, but he was talking about a building not made with the hands of men, but was touched by the hand of God.

If you've chosen to serve in the house of God:

— Don't let your service get limited to mortar and bricks!
— Be determined by the color and style of the uniform!
— Don't be selected about which places you will serve!
— Don't worry about whether you can hold an office
— Don't restrict your service to things made by man!

I heard Dr. Watts declare, “To serve this present age my calling to fulfill, oh may all my powers engage to do my master’s will!”

I don’t know about you but I’ve found out that good things happen when you serve the Lord.

Serve the Lord who can take darkness and turn it into light!

Serve the Lord who can take defeat and turn it into victory!

Serve the Lord who can take sadness and turn it into gladness!

Serve him as an usher, but also serve him as you teach in the Sunday school

Serve him as an usher but also serve him as you minister to the needy

Serve him as an usher but also do the work of an evangelist and tell a dying world about Jesus!

Jesus, who died on Calvary!

Jesus, who rose on Sunday morning!

Tell them he’s alive today and forever more!

When life throws you under the bus

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 29, 2012

SCRIPTURE: And she came in straightway with haste unto the king, and asked, saying, I will that thou give me by and by in a charger the head of John the Baptist. Mark 6:25

Introduction

Have you ever been blamed for someone else's mistake? Was it at work? Home? School? It's bad feeling to have all the fingers pointing at you when something goes wrong, especially when you are not the blame.

When we are forced to take the blame for someone's errors that's when you know that you have been "thrown under the bus."

While there are a few exceptions, generally speaking, those who throw people under the bus are usually those who have a position of authority, placing the blame for a mistake or an embarrassing action upon a subordinate.

Recently, several members of the Secret Service have been in the news for hiring prostitutes. It has caused a national scandal. Immediately someone was fired, others resigned and some were placed on leave. When the scandal continued even more actions were pursued.

The GSA came under the news for promoting lavish conventions that cost hundreds of thousands of dollars at the taxpayer expense. When the news was revealed, low level officials were forced "thrown under the bus" before the former GSA head herself resigned. Now as congress investigates more midlevel executives will probably be thrown under the bus.

It happens on every level. If a school performs poorly on a state evaluation, there will be many below the level of superintendent to be thrown under the bus. If a cook in the kitchen is caught stealing leftover cornbread, the system will throw cafeteria manager and even the principal under the bus if there is a scandal.

If you are thrown under the bus, usually you are being unfairly sacrificed to save someone else.

That's when all fingers point to you.

When God frowned on Adam for eating of the forbidden fruit, he threw Eve under the bus. Eve threw the snake under the bus for persuading her.

Samson threw the Philistines under the bus for his destruction of their fields, when they killed his wife. David got Uriah's wife pregnant and tried to fix it so the blame point at her husband. He not only threw Uriah under the bus, but he put him in the front of the battle and had him killed. Pilate worried that the Jews would revolt against him and get him in trouble with the Caesar, so Pilate ordered the crucifixion of Jesus; he threw Jesus under the bus.

Family members are often battered and bruised because they often throw each other under the bus on a regular basis.

Harry S. Truman was famous for a small sign that was placed on his Presidential desk. The sign read simply "the buck stops here." It meant he would not throw anyone under the bus for his actions or inaction. He said he was ultimately responsibility for anything good or bad that happened during his administration.

As Christians, we share an unusual paradox. Our savior, did took the blame for all of our sins and threw himself under the bus for us. Through his death, we are free of blame, because he bore our sins for us. The sign above the cross read "Jesus of Nazareth, King of the Jews" but what it meant was He threw himself under the bus for me.

-I-

The text considers how the life of John the Baptist was offered up to silence his preaching.

John the Baptist was a fiery preacher in the New Testament who tended t expose the wrongs of religious leaders and even the King. In the instance of this text, John had preached against an immoral relationship between Herod and his wife Herodias. It seemed that Herodias was an ambitious woman who had slept with many others to work herself to the top of the power chain, prompting Herod himself to divorce his former wife to marry her sparking a moral outrage among the faithful.

John condemned her publicly. It became a scandal. Herodias could care less about the scandal, but she wanted John punished. So she arranged for her daughter Salome to dance for king. She knew the king would offer her great rewards if he was pleased. She told her daughter what to request if asked.

Sure enough she danced and the king asked what she wanted in return, even if it was half his kingdom. It would have been an even bigger scandal for the king not to honor his word. Salome, on the instruction of her mother said she wanted the head of John the Baptist brought to her on a platter.

The king was upset. He like John the Baptist even though the old preacher kept making life hard for him. However, the scandal would be even worse if he did not deal grant her request. He ordered John killed and his head was delivered on a platter.

Herodias was happy. The public preaching about her relationships with powerful leaders would end, the people will be satisfied and the Herod's position would be secured..all by throwing John the Baptist under the bus.

When you become the scapegoat

Before the term "thrown under the bus" became popular, there was another term which meant the same thing: being called a scapegoat.

What's a scapegoat?

On the Day of Atonement the people of Israel could get rid of their sins by transferring them to a goat.

It involved offering the blood of a bullock for mercy, and a sin offering for past sins and to take away the reproach of sin.

The entire ceremony required two goats. One was slain and its blood was sprinkled on the altar. Since the law required death for many sins, the goat was a symbol of the requirement of the law being met. In essence, the goat died in the place of thousands of sinners in the nation.

While one goat was slain, the other goat was kept alive. The priests were ordered to place their hands upon the head of the goat and transfer the blame for all of the shortcomings and sins of the people to the goat.

The goat, carrying the sins of all the people, was released in an open field. As the goat walked away, so did the sins of the people.

The scapegoat itself had done no wrong, but it took the blame for all of the sins of the people.

If people have to blame someone and the finger points wrongfully at you, you are the scapegoat. They put it all on you!

If everything that can go wrong has gone wrong and someone has to take the fall, the finger points toward you.

It is uncomfortable and frustrating to be the scapegoat, to take the blame for something you know you didn't do, but there are many who have become scapegoats not by their own choosing.

Often we feel just like the scapegoat in scripture because one of two things happens: A career dies or the blame for an action is transferred to us to save someone above us.

Yet, from time to time, we see someone who volunteers to become the scapegoat to achieve a greater goal.

Rick Santorum, a 2012 presidential candidate was critical of the No Child Left Behind program started by George Bush. Yet, Santorum voted for the program when he was a senator. When asked why he voted for something that he did not believe in he said, "Sometimes you have to take one for the team." –Politically, he threw himself under the bus for the entire Republican party.

It happens in many areas of life. A basketball player draws a foul to stop an opposing player from scoring a point, "takes one for the team." An organized crime soldier chooses to serve time rather that cooperate in the prosecution of his partner's in crime, "takes one for the team." A person who accepts blame for something they did not do to save the career of someone else, “takes one for the team.”

That’s exactly when Jesus chose to do when God became angry with the world because of its sin. He chose to live on earth for 33 years and endure the difficulties of life as a human to absorb the penalty for mankind’s sin. He chose to “take one for the team.”

He became our scapegoat. He both died to satisfy the penalty and transferred the guilt for our sins to himself.

He took one for the team.

Looking for someone to throw under the bus

There are too many people today who are looking for somebody to throw under the bus.

When we have fouled up, often the first response is to blame it on someone else. Flip Wilson, the comedian, often excused all of his wrong acts by saying, “The devil made me do it.”

Many find it hard to accept responsibility themselves. However, often there is no one we can throw under the bus, because we are the blame and we know it.

Who could Jezebel blame for murdering hundreds of prophets of God and stealing Naboth’s vineyard? Nobody but herself.

Who could Absalom blame for rebelling against his father and losing his life while dangling from a tree? Nobody but himself?

Who could the rich young ruler blame for his failure to make it into the kingdom of heaven? Nobody but himself!

There was a time when children were held accountable for the sins of their fathers and grandfathers. They could blame their present circumstance on something their father did because God would visit his vengeance upon a man’s sons, even to the seventh generation. But that time doesn’t exist anymore, for I hear the old timers remind us “every tub must sit on its own bottom.”

Every person today is responsible for his own sin and must stand before the judgment bar of God.

If I fail to serve the Lord like I promised, try as I might, there is nobody to blame but myself.

No wonder the song writer declared: “It’s me, it’s me oh Lord, standing in the need of prayer, Not my brother, not my sister, but its me oh Lord, standing in the need of prayer.

There is no bus

Finally brothers and Sisters, the Old Testament provided for the death of a goat for atonement for sins committed and a scapegoat, but Jesus became the universal sacrifice that both died and took away the reproach of sin at the same time.

Today there is no scapegoat, only the lamb of God. There is no sin offering, only the blood of the crucified lamb.

Whatever sins a man has committed, I hear Jesus saying take it off him and put it on me.'

"Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light."

Brother if you are burdened down with guilt and stain, don't throw yourself under the bus, the guilt stops at Calvary

Sister if you are weighed down with the cares of the world, don't throw yourself under the bus, the weight is lifted at Calvary!

See that man walking in shame with a bowed down head, don't throw yourself under the bus, He was lifted up a Calvary to help raise your bowed down head.

Isaiah in his 53rd chapter looked over in time and gave us a description of this sacrificial lamb!

He is a man of sorrow; a lamb acquainted with grief. A lamb that was despised and we esteemed him not. A lamb, who bore our griefs and carried our sorrow. He was wounded for our transgressions; he was bruised for our iniquities and the chastisement of our peace is upon him, and with his stripes we are healed.

This is the lamb, who took all of our sins and turned our lives around!

This is the lamb who threw himself under the bust to lift us from the:

—Gutter unto the glorious!

—Miserable unto the Marvelous!

—Filthy unto the Fabulous!

—Wretched to the wonderful!

—Pathetic to the precious!

—Horrible to the heavenly!

—Dingy to the desirable!

—Immoral to the Immaculate!

—Pig pen to paradise!

This is the lamb that picked up an old rugged cross and carried it to Calvary!

This is the lamb that had so much love that that He would rather take one for the world than suffer one child to be lost.

Can't you hear him say? "Father forgive them for they know not what they do."

This is the lamb that died out on Calvary!

But early Sunday morning….

What God Sees fit

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 6, 2012

SCRIPTURE: " In those days there was no king in Israel, but every man did that which was right in his own eyes." Judges 17:6

Introduction

How do you choose your direction in life? There are many who are traveling paths in life that reflect their own interests or those chosen for them by others. A generation ago a group of brothers known as the Isley Brothers coined a phrase, "It's your thing, do what you want to do." It epitomized what many people believed about choosing life directions; it's my life, I live it the way I choose. Another popular group Sly and the Family Stone reflected acceptance of this idea in their song, "Everyday People" in which they said, "Different strokes for different folks." Everybody can do their own thing.

The poet William Henley caught the spirit of individualism when he wrote his epic poem "Invictus" which said:

It matters not how strait the gate,
How charged with punishments the scroll.
I am the master of my fate:
I am the captain of my soul.

There are others who go even further, they espouse the ideas of Ralph Waldo Emerson in his treatise "Self Reliance" in which he taught that each individual should trust himself alone, chart his own course and answer to himself alone.

Following these lines of thought many have blazed life trails of their own making without ever once stopping to ask whether that path is the path that God has chosen for them. Sometimes, we sense it when we wake up to lives that are not happy, go to jobs that are not fulfilling, and pursue careers that do not speak to our souls.

In time we begin to notice that the road we are traveling is getting us nowhere. We get frustrated.

How do we correct such a flawed life choice? We do what we should have done in the first place; we pray and ask God for direction. We ask Him to show us His will for our lives. We have seen it when it happens. We have seen men change the entire direction and focus of their lives and turn on a dime. We have seen the fallen rise. We have seen the failed regroup themselves. We have also seen the lost find themselves.

Doing what feels good to us at the moment may be a temporary fix, but it doesn't take long for us to learn that, "everything that feels good to you is not always good for you." Following God's directions is always good for us.

As Christians, we constantly ask God to give us direction and to guide our path. The steps of the righteous are ordered; so we move at his command.

Exposition

This text focuses on a dark period in Israel's history in which he did not seek or want direction from God.

It is an ironic text because it comes in the aftermath of evidence of God's power. In slavery, Israel called upon God and he delivered them and pointed them in the direction of Canaan. At the Red Sea he still pointed them in that direction and made a way for them through the waters. In the wilderness, he gave them the same direction, and fed them for 40 years. At the River Jordan, despite the fears of the military strength of their enemies, he gave the direction to cross over and he brought down the walls of Jericho and gave them victory.

Now, in the land the people divided into twelve sectors, each headed by a tribal leader. Without a central voice, each tribe seemed to go in its own direction. Only a few sought direction from God.

There was no king of Israel at that time, and the people turned from the mighty God who had brought them out of Egypt and from the laws that he had given them for their own good. They were stubborn and did what they thought was right rather than follow their Father's guidelines.

Both Judges 17:6 and Judges 21:25 repeat exactly the same words: "In those days Israel had no king. Each man did what he considered to be right" (NET). Or as the New American standard puts it, "Each man did what was right in his own eyes."

They found deliverance only when they listened to the word of God. It provided the light they needed as the stumbled in darkness. In the word they found God's will. Psalm 119:105 says, "Thy word is a lamp to my feet and a light unto my path." It shows us the path that is "fit" in the eyes of God. Once we are shown that path, the faithful will follow.

God provides the vision

One of the difficulties of living life as we see fit is that it requires us to provide our own vision. That sounds like a great idea at first, until we realize that vision is seeing the invisible and striving to make us other see it too. We often have a vision for our lives, but that is often within the possible. Seeing the possible falls just short of a vision. It is possible to dream of building yourself a house. It is a vision to dream of building houses on the moon. It is possible to dream of owning a car. It is a vision to dream of a day when cars won't be necessary. It is possible to dream of being a doctor to treat diseases. It is a vision to dream of day when there are no diseases.

Visions come from the beyond us. They are bigger than we can imagine and often cannot be seen or understood by others for years.

What God sees fit for us, he also fits us for it. He prepares us to walk a different path.

The vision that God gives may present challenges that represent changes of direction.

It may mean giving more to the education of our youth through the support of public education both mainstream and chartered.

It may mean giving more to support to positive activities that will help them develop into stronger Christian men and women.

It may mean devising programs that will strengthen the home, promote finer womanhood and build manhood.

It may mean working to reduce the prison population by working to deter those who seem committed to hell bound paths.

It may mean showing more concern for our elderly by increasing our elder care ministries.

Every chance we get, we must work together to make this heavenly vision a reality.

God provides the way

If God gives us a vision, He will also provide a way for the vision to be accomplished, as foolish as it might seem. That's what Israel should have learned when repeatedly God pointed them to a place that was impossible for them to reach by the route he suggested. He provided them a way through the Red Sea. He provided them a way through the wilderness and then provided them a way in the Promised Land. It should have been obvious to them and even to us today, that if God provides us with a vision for our lives He will also provide a way.

The road that God chooses for us to get where he wants us to be may not be an easy road, but it will get us. The student who locks himself away and works hard to learn takes the hard road, especially when all of his friends seem to have so much fun doing something else, but that's the road to excellence. The family that chooses to save because they have a vision of home ownership and financial security may make many sacrifices to accumulate the resources necessary, but' that is the road they must take. The path to making visions realities are not always easy paths, but they are sure paths.

Consider the old man who took his grandson on a trip to what grandpa called home.

The little boy was fascinated with the fine highway. He loved to count the lines in the highway and see the pretty cars as the raced by. After a few hours however, his grandpa turned on an old dirt road. Gone were the hard pavement, brisk traffic and brightly colored lines. The road was bumpy. It wound through trees and went over hills. At some points it was filled with pot holes. The little boy asked his grandfather, why did we have to take this ugly road with all of these mud holes. Nobody is on this road?

Why couldn't we stay on the pretty road with all of the cars. The grandpa looked over at his grandson and said, Look up on the top of that hill, that's where we're going. There's only one road up to that old house and it goes straight up that hill. The highway is pretty, but it won't take me where I'm trying to go and that's up that hill!

The song writer says, "There's a highway to heaven. None can walk up there, but the pure in heart. There's highway to heaven, I'm walking up the king's highway."

God provides the favor

One of the drawbacks of living life is as we see fit is that if does not earn the favor of God. Favor is the accumulated extra blessings that come from God because He sees we are trying to do things as he sees fit. To do what God sees fit is to act wisely. Whenever we act wisely we earn the favor of God. Proverbs 8:35, For whoso findeth me findeth life, and shall obtain favour of the LORD."

When we act wisely and respond to life situations by asking the question, 'What would God have me do? Then God is pleased. He smiles on us and gives us favor. When we choose a Godly wife or husband, it shows wisdom and God shows favor on the relationship. When we choose to show mercy and to forgive, it shows wisdom and God smiles and shows us favor. When we have a thirst for truth rather than lies, God smiles on us and shows us favor. When we demonstrate that we can patiently wait for God to move in any life situation, God smiles on us and shows us favor. Follow God's direction

God will not fail

Finally, brothers and sisters we should remember that if we follow a God blazen trail we will not fail.

The simplest definition of doing what God sees fit is to follow a path in life that has been blazed by God himself.

This is the quest of every believer to walk the path that God sees fit for us.

To do whatever God sees fit.

To go wherever God sees fit!

To say whatever God sees fit!

Lord lead me. Like you lead the children of Israel as a pillar of cloud by day and pillar of fire by night!

Lead me...through the wilderness of hard times that looms on my horizon.

Lead me...through the dark shrouded midnights that will darken my days.

Lead me...through shadow laden valleys of difficulty.

Lead me...through and meandering streams of uncertainty!

Lead me, guide me along the way, Lord, if you lead me I cannot stray. Lord let me walk each day with thee, Lead me oh Lord lead me.

When we live the way God sees fit, we have the assurance that He will never leave us alone.

When we live the way God sees fit, He will be with us wherever we may be.

If we take the wings of Eagles and fly in the sky, behold God is there!

If we fall to the depths of the sea, God is there!

When we live the way God sees fit, He'll wipe tears from our eyes; He'll encourage them when we are low. "He's always right there by our side."

When we live the way God sees fit we have the assurance of Philippians 4:19 that declares "My God shall supply all your needs"

When we live the way God sees fit, He'll take our darkness and turn it into light!

When we live the way God sees fit, He'll take our defeat and turn it into victory!

When we live the way God sees fit, He'll take our sadness and turn it into gladness!

When we live the way God sees fit we won't miss a chance to tell a dying world about Jesus!

Jesus, who died on Calvary!

Jesus, who rose on Sunday morning!

Tell them He's alive today and forever more!

For this child I prayed

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church

May 12, 2012

SCRIPTURE: For this child I prayed; and the LORD hath given me my petition which I asked of him: Therefore also I have lent him to the LORD; as long as he liveth he shall be lent to the LORD. And he worshipped the LORD there. 1 Samuel 1:27-28

Introduction

What did you think when you first heard the news that you were pregnant? When you heard your wife was pregnant what was your response? Whether expected, planned or surprised, believers know that every child is possibility package from God. One that can make the difference for millions.

There are many women who give birth; not all of them can be called "Mother."

Those who nurture the possibilities of their pregnancy through birth and maturity are those who earn the title "mother."

Believing mothers know that every child, regardless to the circumstance creating its presence, is a possibility. Like Hannah, that possibility may reflect the salvation of the nation in a Son like Samuel. It could be a daughter like Deborah or a voice in the wilderness like John. Whatever the case, believing mothers are aware of the fact that their children are pregnant with the seeds of possibility so they assume the responsibility of nurturing them to maturity.

When a mother accepts the fact that they are nurturing someone that God intends to do a great work, they do two things: they observe prenatal care and they take pains to observe postal natal care.

In prenatal care mothers protect their children by watching their own diets knowing that "What I eat, my baby eats." Therefore, pregnant women are advised to eat vegetables and fruits and calcium rich foods that are low in fats. In addition, pre-natal care involves avoiding alcohol and drugs because what mama smokes, drinks or snorts, the baby drinks and consumes as well.

Mothers exercise prenatal care, but there is also post-natal care. Post natal-care is similar to pre-natal care, but the emphasis is on showing mothers how to feed and care for a newborn while at the same time helping the mother get back on her feet.

A mother who assumes that her child is destined for a great purpose assumes a postnatalistic attitude that will extend for 20 years and beyond. She assumes that the child she has birthed is destined to do something great so she continues to watch what the child eats, drinks, hears and is exposed to insure that the child is able to achieve its ultimate purpose.

When a Christian mother learns that she is pregnant, she starts praying for her child. She asks that God would allow her the strength to bear the burden of childbirth. She also asks that she would have the strength to bear the lifetime burden of nurturing her offspring until it can achieve its purpose.

Praying mothers such as these are seldom deterred by chance or circumstance. Even if born into non-achieving environments where very few are expected to exceed, believing mothers ignore sociologists, doubters, skeptics and even friends who question the prospects of greatness for their children.

When God has blessed, nothing but greatness can result. Parents such as these invest in the potential of their sons and daughters. They struggle against the jokes of their friends to help their children achieve. They seek out organizations that help instill character. They seek out activities that will instill discipline and scholarship.
They look for churches that help mold and shape their spirituality.

No matter what the world says, they believe in their children's potential and tell them so repeatedly.

As Christians, we recognize that every life has a purpose. Christian mothers pray for strength and favor to guide their children to their destinies.

Exposition

This text focuses on Hannah's placing her son Samuel in the hands of God for a life of service.

Hannah was barren, considered a shame among women, but she prayed that God would give her a son to love and nurture. In her prayer she said in 1 Samuel 1:11"…if thou wilt indeed look on the affliction of thine handmaid, and remember me, and not forget thine handmaid, but wilt give unto thine handmaid a man child, then I will give him unto the LORD all the days of his life, and there shall no razor come upon his head."

She promised God that she would give her son to His service for the rest of his life. God heard her prayer and she conceived and birthed a male child.

After the child was weaned she brought him to Eli the prophet. In biblical times, weaning could be as long as three years, so the prophets were able to nurture the child to adulthood and teach him the way of the priesthood. The term "Lent" him to the Lord is used. This term is based on the Hebrew word "Sha'al" which means to "lay in the charge." It is the irrevocable placing of something in the hands of another.

The boy Samuel was reared as a Nazarite. He did not drink wine or cut his hair, but lived a life devoted to the service of God.

Her son was born for this purpose and his mother placed the child for which she prayed in God's hands.

Mother's three prayers

Hannah gives us a snapshot of motherhood before, during and after childbirth.

SHE PRAYS FOR GRACE: Hannah prayed to God before her child was born. She prayed for the grace of God upon her life (v18). None of us can expect to get far in life without the grace of God. Christian women pray that God would grace their lives with peace and happiness. The burdens of the world are enormous but after Hannah prayed for God's grace she approached her life with a different attitude. The scripture records that she was "no more sad." Mothers pray for the grace of God because it is only God's grace that helps them endure. The grace of God surrounds and strengthens us. God's grace is beside us in times of trouble and the grace of God causes a full plate to be placed on our table when we hunger. The grace of God puts us in the hands of the right doctor, teacher, coach and mentor and advisor. Wise mothers know it's nothing, but God's Amazing Grace that works out the intricacies of their daily existences. Hannah was "no more sad" because she found that when she prayed God smiled on her and it changed her whole attitude about her circumstance. We feel that same way sometimes. That's why we sing the song, "God has smiled on me, He has made me glad. God has smiled on me; He's been good to me."

SHE PRAYS FOR HIS PURPOSE: Hannah knew her child had a special purpose and she planned for him to live out his purpose. In verse 27 she said, "..that he may appear before the Lord and there abide forever." The life of a Nazarite was his purpose and she directed him in that way. Today, godly mothers see the possibilities of their children and try to place them in the hands of those who will help them perfect their possibilities. Many run themselves thin attending dance and music lessons, teaching them to sing, perform or excel higher in their studies. Most godly mothers recognize that their children are pregnant with possibilities and they work themselves to the bone to help them achieve their purposes and to protect them from evil and negative influences that might detract them. In the bible we saw mothers such as Jocebed, the mother of Moses who put him in the hands of Pharaoh's daughter to save him. We have seen the good mother who stood before Solomon willing to give her child alive to a lying neighbor than to have it half dead. We have seen the sacrifices of good mothers who want to help their children achieve their purposes, even at their own expense. We have also seen the mother who knows that for a child to achieve a godly purpose, He or she must be placed in the hand of the Lord "and there abide forever." That's why she insists that her child has a religious education and experiences that will stand firm, all of the days of his/her life. With this foundation, mother knows that when the storms of life are raging a child who knows the Lord will know how to call on the name of the Lord!

SHE GUIDED HIS DESTINY: Hannah prayed for the child, placed him in the hands of God and he responded by spending his life in the service of the Lord. Verse 28 ends with the phrase, "And he worshipped the Lord there." Today, nothing makes a mother happier than to know that her children are living out their life's purposes. Every purpose is not to be a preacher or Sunday school teacher, but each child has a different purpose and destiny. When mothers place their children in God's hands their prayer is for God to guide their destiny. For little Samuel, that destiny was to be a prophet. However, the little ones of our individual households the destinies might be in science, sports, academics, entertainment, education or a thousand different arenas. Samuel found his place and grew to fill its requirements. That is every mother's dream: to see their children step into their destiny and walk well in the path that has been charted for them.

She prayed and rejoiced

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that Hannah prayed one more prayer; she prayed a prayer of thanks.

1 Samuel 2:1 says, "And Hannah prayed and said, my heart rejoiceth in the Lord…" It becomes obvious from reading the next 10 verses how happy this mother was because her prayer had been and answered.

She said my heart rejoices because I've been exalted before the Lord!

In verse two she said, my heart rejoices because there is no rock like our God!

In verse three she said, my heart rejoices because the lord is a God of knowledge!

In verse six she said, my heart rejoices because the Lord brings up new life to that which is dead.

In verse eight she said, my heart rejoices because he lifts up the poor out of dust of this life and sets them among princes.

In verse nine she said, my heart rejoices that God has shown that he will keep the feet of the saints

In verse ten she said, my heart rejoices because God will exalt the horn of his anointed.

For this child Hannah prayed, and God gave her a reason to be glad!

When a mother sees her child take say her first word or take his first step, she speaks the words of Hannah, "For this child have I prayed, my heart rejoices in the Lord."

When a mother sees her child marching in the band, playing in the band or performing in a school play, I can hear her say, "For this child I have prayed and my soul rejoices in the Lord!

When a mother sees her child graduate and begin a life of service that is true to his calling in the fulfillment of his destiny, can't you hear her say, "For this child I have prayed and my soul rejoices in the Lord!"

When a mother sees her child stand in marriage and have a child of their own, her soul cries out, "For this child have I prayed and my soul rejoices in the Lord!"

When we are really glad, we should show our gladness.

Like mothers, every child of God should rejoice in the Lord!

Rejoice and replace sadness with gladness!

Rejoice and replace tears with cheers!

Rejoice and replace bowed down heads with uplifted spirits!

Rejoice with smiles on our faces!

Rejoice because He clothed me in my right mind!

Rejoice because He put food on my table!

Rejoice because He saved my soul!

Rejoice because one day, over 2000 years ago, that he picked up an old rugged cross and died out on Calvary!

Rejoice because early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave with all power in His hands!

Rejoice in the Lord for He has made us glad!

Thank God for the Middle Man

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 20, 2012

SCRIPTURE: "For there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus; 1 Timothy 2:5"

Introduction

Have you had to deal with a middle man? The middle man is usually the one inserted into an arrangement making it possible for two incompatible ends to touch and agree. Middle men are seldom called "middle men," so many don' recognize them as such.

In the legal world the middle man is called an "arbitrator" or someone tries to referee between two opposing sides.

The corporate world there is a layer of assistants the stand between the consumers and the corporate leaders; they solve problems, hear complaints and field suggestions.

In the marketing community there are ad agencies, advisors and consultants who tweak what the customer's demand with company's price.

Often middle men irritate us because they seem to drive up the price. You can get a better deal if you purchase a used car from the owner rather than a car salesman because the car has been marked up in price to cover the salesman's commission. The same is true for a new car, if you can rule out the middle man; you can save hundreds of dollars.

The Middle man performs a necessary service. Very little business can be transacted without the army of agents, brokers, salesmen, arbitrators, negotiators, consultants, ambassadors and advisors necessary for the successful negotiation of a plethora of transactions.

Sometimes we try to avoid the middle man and go straight to the top only find that the person at the top sends us to a middle man who works out the details. It is not unheard of for two company executives who agree in principle on the terms of a deal to say, "Have your man to contact my man to work out the details." In this way they place the whole matter in the hands of middle men to make their deal happen.

We often try to avoid the middle man, but suppose the middle man is the only way to get to the woman at the top. Suppose the middle woman is the doorway to the top man? Suppose dealing with the chief of staff is the only way to get an appointment with the President? Can the middle man be avoided?

If a believer wants to speak to God about matters of health, family, or personal choice, can we bypass the middle man and go straight to God ourselves? We can try, but the likelihood of success is minimal if scripture is correct. We pray to God, but we need the middle man. John 14:14 says, “If ye shall ask anything in my name, I will do it.” John 16:23-24 puts it this way in the Message paraphrase, “You’ll no longer be so full of questions.”This is what Iwant you to do: Ask the Father for whatever is in keeping with the things I’ve revealed to you. Ask in my name, according to my will, and he’ll most certainly give it to you. Your joy will be a river overflowing its banks!”

We pray to God, but our prayers go through a spiritual mediator to make them happen. Knowing this truth many believers tag their prayers, “In Jesus name.” The old warriors had a way of mumbling under their breath when they heard a beautiful prayer than ended with a simple “Amen,” but not in “in Jesus’ Name.” They said, “That prayer didn’t go anywhere, it’s just bouncing around on the ceiling.”

When it comes to matters of the spirit, we can’t avoid middle man. In fact, the middle man is essential to our salvation and to our relationship with God.

As Christians, we thank God for Jesus, who presented himself to the world as one person who can mediate between God and feeble mankind. He is the man in the middle who guarantees our connection to God.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul’s reminder to Timothy that Christ is the mediator between God and man.

The Roman and Greek world was familiar with many gods to whom they gave credit for the creation of the world and the control of its events. Paul told Timothy to be reminded that despite the learned opinions of the Romans and others there is but one God and that Jesus Christ is mediator between earth and heaven.

The Greek word for mediator means literally, a middle person, one whose office it is to reconcile two parties at odds with each other. When mankind sinned in the Gardeof Eden, God was offended; and he banished Adam and Eve from the garden and often cruelly punished men for disobedience and disloyalty. To restore them to his peace, Jesus Christ was incarnated; and being God and man, both God and men met in and were reconciled by him. But this reconciliation required a sacrifice on the part of the peace-maker or mediator, thus Calvary became necessary.

Without the middle man there would be no salvation to believers today.

Been in the Middle

Jesus is able to be the middle man between God and man because He has been both God and man. He is a member of the Godhead, but during his 33 years old earth also lived as a man. Therefore, because he’s been in the middle of our problems, He can be in the middle of our solutions. He has been:

IN THE MIDDLE OF OUR TROUBLES: When Israel left Egypt God went before them as a pillar of cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night, but when Pharaoh’s army came to attack them, the presence of God stood between them day and night. In the same way Jesus has been in the middle of our troubles keeping enemies at bay and hellhounds off our track. How many times has he had to shelter us like the priests did David or sustain us like Hagar in the wilderness or hide us like Jocebed did Moses? In our time of trouble the Lord has been in the middle of our situations. We almost find ourselves singing with David, "If it had not been for the Lord on our side, where would Israel be." The fact that He has been in our troubles what qualifies Him to take our troubling situation to God. The good news is that while God is deciding what He will do, like the cloud between Israel and the army of Egypt the Lord is standing in between, until the Lord makes a way.

IN THE MIDDLE OF OUR FIRE: Daniel 3 records how three Hebrew youth were thrown into the fiery furnace because they refused to bow to the political pressure of the King. As their persecutors threw them into the fire, they were astonished to see that in the middle of the fire, a fourth man appeared who was none other than the presence of the Lord. Today, we know what it is like to be persecuted and assailed. We know what it is like to face the fiery furnace. Yet, in the middle of our fiery furnace experience, we have seen what happens when Jesus shows up. When we were literally broken in spirit by all of the cruel things said and done by our enemies, the Lord showed up! When we were falsely accused on every side, literally crushing us to the ground, the Lord showed up! When we tasted bitter and briny tears after verbal assaults, attacks and threats, the Lord showed up. Nearly every believer has endured a furnace situation and sang that old song, "Have you been tried in the fire? Yes! Did you come forth as pure gold?" The fact that Christ Himself suffered the fires of persecution and felt the affect of backstabbing friends, false accusations, and abandonment by those close to him qualified him to take our burdens to God. He could truthfully say, "I know what it's like to be in the fire."The good news is that even while the fire is still raging, there is a fourth man in the fire protecting us from hurt harm and danger.

IN THE MIDDLE OF OUR STORMS: When the disciples were sailing and were accosted by a sudden storm they became afraid that their little boat would sink; until someone remembered that Jesus was onboard. Awakened, He rebuked them for having failing faith and spoke to the winds and said "Peace be still." Today, like those weary disciples, many of us have faced our storms that appeared suddenly and without notice. Sometimes there were hurricanes of sickness or tornadoes of family trouble. For some there have been tsunamis of financial disaster. We felt like the lame man who sat by the pool for 38 years or the widow woman who reached the bottom of her barrel. Yet, millions of believers can testify that in the middle of their storms, Jesus spoke to the winds and the waves and commanded them to be still. That was the command that restored health in the middle of sickness. That was the command that opened new job opportunities when other doors were closed. That was the command to rise up after being knocked down! Jesus faced the storms of life himself and on many occasions found his own life rocking and reeling only to be steadied by the strong hand of God. That's what uniquely qualifies him to bring us into the presence of God. It is also what gives us the face to sing, "When the storms of life are raging, stand by me. When the hosts of hell assail, and my life begins to fail, thou who has never lost a battle, stand by me."

In the Middle

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that that in the middle of our sins Christ came to bring us back to God.

We are a sinful people and that sin separates us from God. When we are separated from God we are disconnected. Some are finding that when they try to connect back to God on their own, it just doesn't work.

Most of the new power cords have a three prong plug on the end. It is designed to be plugged into a three pronged receptacle. Every now and then we run upon a situation where the old two prong plug meets up with a new three pronged receptacle. When that happens the two won't fit.

The three pronged end reminds me of the fullness of the spirit of the father, son and the Holy Ghost.

The two pronged end reminds me of frail humanity the flesh and the blood.

The problems come when my old two prong sinful self tries to plug into the three prong power of God.

My two prongs is flesh and blood!

My two prongs are greed and gluttony!

My two prongs are lust and adultery!

My two prongs are pride and arrogance!

My two prongs can't receive the power of God, because it requires three prongs.

To connect, a mediator that is God on one side (three prongs) and flesh and blood on the other is needed.

Electricians call that third prong a grounder. Jesus is the only spiritual grounder we know. person who was both God and man because John 1: 14 says the Word became flesh and dwelled among men. I

I was on the ground with them. I was in the middle of their storms. I was in the middle of the troubles. I was in the middle of their fires. Jesus was the only one able to mediate between God and man.

With the Jesus as the mediator, we have the hookup! Thank God for the middleman!

Whatever we are in the middle of, the Lord will connect us to the power!

He'll show up in the middle of our sickness!

He'll show up in the middle of our weakness! He'll show up in the middle of our pain!

He'll show up in the middle of our sleepless nights!

Thank God for the middle man, because in the middle of our sins, He showed up to save us from our sins!

On a hill called Calvary there were three crosses. On one side there was a thief who was unrepentant even unto death. On the other side there was another thief who said, "Remember me when you enter into my kingdom."

In the middle was the savior of the world! Thank God for the middle man!

In the middle was the man who:

-Lifts us above the shadows; Plants our Feet on solid ground;

-Brightens our day and blesses our soul!
-Blesses our thoughts and guides our feet!
-Makes life worth living; Makes the Bible worth reading!
-Makes church worth attending; Makes Prayers worth praying!

From the middle of that old cross, I hear Him saying, “Father, forgive them for they know not what they do!”

He lived in the middle of a sinful world!
He died in the middle of sinful men!
The buried him in the middle of a beautiful garden!
Early, Sunday morning He arose from the grave to stand in the middle of our lives!
Thank God for the middle man!

No. 9556-Graduation

Earning your Wing

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 3, 2012

SCRIPTURE: " Above it stood the seraphims: each one had six wings; with twain he covered his face, and with twain he covered his feet, and with twain he did fly." Isaiah 6:2 ; But those who wait on the LORD Shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings like eagles, they shall run and not be weary, they shall walk and not faint. Isaiah 40:31

Introduction

How did you feel once they placed your diploma in your hands? Did you feel a sense of accomplishment? Were you excited? Did you feel as though you could just fly?

Graduation is a rite of passage that signals the completion of one set of goals as we begin another. It also signals the beginning of a journey toward personal maturity and chronological majority. The diploma is one of the big three of high school achievement. Depending on who we ask, it is in competition for first place with a driver's license and a cell phone ranks pretty high.

It is only a sheepskin with a name on it, but represents a level of accomplishment that has been pursued for 18 years. It marks a proud moment for both the recipient and for the family supporting a graduate standing in the shadows.

When an individual joins the United States Air Force he/she learns the basics of navigation through a rigorous training and study in a boot camp format. Those who will fly airplanes go even further. They learn the basics of air navigation in a simulator. They learn how to take orders from the tower. They also learn how to take off and land. When they have learned these essentials then they are given their wings.

That process is similar to what each graduate is doing. Completion of high school is similar to completing basic training, instead of 13 to 15 weeks, it has been 18 years. Just as new military recruits complete basic training with a ceremony, but must continue their training to get their wings, so must every graduate.

For nearly two decades graduates have lived in a simulated world. Their school challenges and rewards have simulated challenges and rewards they will receive in life. There have been simulated successes such as athletic victories and simulated failures that seemed important at the moment, but really serve to show us how to be gracious in victory and resilient in defeat. In the real world there will be many defeats so the simulated teaches students how to handle them. There were simulated assignments that tested whether they could follow through. The stress imposed by the term papers, book reports and science projects was real, but it was only preparatory for the stress sure to come as they climb the ladder in real life. Simulated rewards called trophies and ribbons were important at the moment. The trophy in the showcase or sitting on a dresser in a student's room simulates the rewards of victory such as financial gain, influence and power that offered in the real world. There was even simulated imprisonment and punishments to show what happens in the real world if laws are broken. In the simulator their terms are short and names are protected. In the real world the punishments are visible for a lifetime and are never private.

High school is a life simulator because although the situations feel real to students, most of them have a real world support group somewhere that picks them up when they fall, supports them if they fail; constantly inspiring, motivating and encouraging and disciplining. Many feel that if the simulator experience ends, their families will sustain them.

Everything we need to know about life can't be learned in a simulator. At some point we must get behind the wheel and sit in life's cockpit with real controls in our hands knowing that if we crash or fail it won't be simulated; it will be reality.

The basic training for these young men and women has ended. They have lived a simulated life, with someone to catch them completely if they fall; or even if they refuse to try. Outside the simulator life gets real.

The prospect of poverty is real, it is not simulated. The prospects of homelessness, hunger, imprisonment, and career failure are real; they are not simulated. Likewise, the prospect of living a happy life, success, achievement and a meaningful existence are real as well.

During this process Christian families have tried to also simulate the kind of spiritual life that must be lead outside of the simulator. They have brought graduates to church, bible studies, Sunday School Vacation Bible Schools, musicals, revivals and exposed them to nearly 2000 sermons with only one thought in mind that is to teach them that if they want to fly in life they must learn that they must trust someone in the tower to direct them onto the runway and let them know when it is safe to take off, how high to fly and if they get in trouble while they are flying high; there is someone in the tower that can talk them down again.

The man in the tower is God. Parents have been telling graduates about this unseen person who sits high and looks low for years. In the simulator, we learned that he is up there. In the real world we learned to always check in with the man in the tower or face sudden destruction.

In the simulator you have heard words about the man in the tower that you must follow in the real world: "Trust in the LORD with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths." Proverbs 3:5

As Christians, we have learned that real world offers us many challenges, but if we learn our simulated lessons well, the man in the tower will clear our runway, and help us to fly having learned our lessons and earned our wings.

Exposition

This text shows the prophet Isaiah using the image of wings to illustrate the believer's life.

The 6th chapter of Isaiah sets the time of Isaiah's calling as the year that King Uzziah died. Uzziah had been a dominating figure in Jewish history. When Uzziah died Isaiah says, "In the year King Uzziah died I also saw the Lord."

Isaiah saw the Lord in a vision that showed him standing in the presence of God who was high and lifted up, surrounded by cherubim with six wings and a host of angels.

In this vision saw the suffering of Israel, but he saw their eventual triumph as well. When it all ends, Isaiah said the hosts of heaven will give all of the glory to the Lord of Hosts.

Isaiah said he saw a vision of seraphims or messengers from God. Daniel 7:10 suggests there were thousands of seraphims coming forth like a mighty army toward the throne of God. His description of them was dreamlike because they had six wings: Two over the face to suggest that they saw only what God wanted them to see. They were his eyes. They turned toward what he wanted them to see. They also had two over their feet, suggesting that they went where God wanted them to go. Two to fly away. They executed what God commanded them to do. Godly believers, like these seraphims, begin service in whatever field the Lord gives them. They patiently wait for his instructions and even when all around them fail and lose their strength him, when he moves they mount up on wings.

Having done this the seraphim has two more wings, that he will use after having completed his mission; he will have two wings to fly away.

Flying Lessons

It takes humans longer to learn our life lessons than the creatures of the earth. Yet, there are certain parallels that are especially important for those who intend to fly. All we need do is consider the little bird whose mind and body seems destined to fly. God in his infinite wisdom, constructed them in a way that would guarantee they could fly. If we want to fly we should study their model.

BIRDS ARE CENTERED: A birds body is so designed by the creator that it has a perfectly centered gravity point. Its center of gravity is the balance point between its wings and its head and its tail. It stays centered. Young people moving forth through life must stay balanced or centered. What has destroyed millions of young adults beginning their journey is the tendency to move off center as they indulge in too much of the left or the right. In the center are your core beliefs about God and country. In the center is your commitment to live according to God's will and to follow his command. It's that center in your life that keeps you balanced, never losing sight of what is really important in life.

BIRDS HAVE SMALL HEADS: Seldom will you find a flying bird with a big head. A big head would bring a small bird crashing to the ground. The same is true about life. Those with big heads won't take instruction or correction. The man with the big head thinks he knows it all and seemed destined to ignore all advice, especially for the parents, grandparents or those who urge them to take a safer more reasonable path. Big, hard heads have been the fall of many strong men. Samson is a clear example of a big man with a big head. He ignored the advice of everyone and married Philistine women. They proved to be his downfall despite his strength. Those who want to fly need to remember birds have small heads.

BIRDS CARRY NO DEAD WEIGHT: Birds travel light and live light. They avoid anything that will prevent them from flying. Birds have small lungs, careful to take in only what is necessary. They have no bladders either; they hold no waste. They are selective about what they eat choosing those things that can be consumed quickly, will give them energy, but will not weigh them down. Youth must do the same, striving especially hard to avoid those things that will weigh them down. Likewise, youth should avoid any associations with people, places or things that will weigh them down. Alcohol, cigarettes, drugs and foreign substances that will blur their vision should be avoided. Friends and acquaintances whose habits and influence will prove burdensome should also be avoided. Any such influences should be considered dead weight, destined to lead to a crash.

One wing birds don't fly

Finally, brothers and sisters we should remember that the seraphims that Isaiah saw had two wings which reminds us that one winged birds don't fly.

The high school graduation marks the attainment of only one wing.

Yet, Isaiah said he saw a seraphim with two wings: two wings over his feet. Two wings over his eyes and two wings with which to fly.

Graduation gives us one wing:

Learning the circumference of a circle or figuring the hypotenuse of triangle is one wing.

Learning to read books, operate computers and acquire job skills is one wing.

Learning Greek mythology, writing term papers, essays and completing home assignments is just one wing.

Learning the geography of the world and topography of the land is just one wing.

Learning the sociology of the people and anthropology of origins is just one wing.

Learning the biology of animals and botanical essence of its plants is just one wing.

Learning interest rates, economics, world and American history, is just one wing.

Isaiah said the seraphim had two wings to cover his eyes. Two wings to cover his feet and two wings to fly away.

Birds with one wing don't fly!

A high school graduate can earn one wing by finishing courses and passing test, but one wing is not enough!

A believer knows that flapping a high school diploma in the wind won't make him fly because it takes two wings!

Where is the second wing?

Psalm 36:7 says, How excellent is thy lovingkindness, O God! therefore the children of men put their trust under the shadow of thy wings.

Psalm 63:7 "Because thou hast been my help, therefore in the shadow of thy wings will I rejoice."

The grace of God is the second second wing.

Every child of God knows that he can't make it in this world without the Lord and he has found out that Jesus is the wind beneath his wings.

You may soar to great heights in the world of business and become the president of a million dollar corporation, but you should never forget that it takes two wings to fly; Jesus is the wind beneath your wings.

You may fly high in politics and become the mayor, governor of our state or president of our nation, but on your way and when you get there you should never forget that it takes two wings to fly; Jesus is wind beneath your wings.

Because we have two wings we have:

—Encouragement in times of despair

—Strength in times of weakness

—Comfort in times of sorrow

—Inspiration in times of difficulty

—Guidance in times of danger

—Shelter in times of storm

—Help in times of trouble

Because we have two wings we know that if the going gets tough and the road gets rough that if we wait on the Lord he will keep us soaring because his word has promised that "They that wait on the Lord shall renew their strength. They shall mount up on wings as eagles, the shall run and not be weary, walk and not faint."

You can earn your first wing by your own hard work and perseverance, but you can't earn the second wing, because it is the gift of God.

It doesn't cost you anything, but it was bought with a price.

Jesus paid it all!

On Calvary, He died and three days later He arose from the grave!

His victory speaks to our soul, "If I can't soar to the edge of the sky, I'll just lift one wing and try!"

He will catch me if I fall and help me to soar!

His eye is on the sparrow and I know he watches me!

Just like my daddy

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church

SCRIPTURE: "Jehoshaphat walked in all the ways of his father Asa." 1 Kings 22:43

Introduction

How many of your father's traits do you have? Do you recognize the good ones? What about the bad ones? There are millions of men who are great fathers in the eyes of theie wives or significant partners or in the eyes of their children. They are seen as good fathers because they are more than just "Baby Daddies" or sperm donors. They are also more than the man who does or does not pay the monthly child support on time. There are millions of men who are real fathers, men who love, protect and provide for their children. These are men who seem to do the right thing when all others around him are doing wrong and are willing to shoulder responsibility for the care of themselves and those in their charge.

Many of these character traits were not learned in school or taught by their elders; these traits were inborn, inherited from their fathers and nurtured in a positive home environment until they reached maturity.

Whether we admit it or not, every man has many of his father's traits, good or bad. Whether its intellectual or physical, practical or impractical, impulsiveness or carefulness, loving and crude; much of these tendencies are inherited from fathers, sometimes grandfathers. Unfortunately we often inherited some undesirables such as: gullibility, tendencies toward addictive behavior, abusiveness, even an irresponsible spirit. Science has shown us that many of our traits are inherited from our gene pool; we notice it when they start to exhibit themselves without any prompting on our part. Older members of the family spot it quickly and note, "he's acting just like his daddy" or "his grandpa use to act just like that."

We often inherit special things from the dominant gene contributor: whether or not we have freckles, high blood pressure, pointed ears, hair texture, and skin color which often are contributed by our fathers.

Usually, when we hear the phrase, "Just like your daddy!" it is used to depict a negative idea; seldom is it used to describe the kind of dad shown in Tyler Perry's movie "Daddy's Little Girls" or depicted by the charter played by Will Smith in the "Pursuit of Happyness." These dads were loving black men who did everything possible to love, protect and care for their children. These were the kind of men that any child could proudly say, “I want to be just like my daddy.”

The ultimate depiction of a father’s love is this:

”For God so loved the world that He gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life.” John 3:16

When dad loves like God loves, we want to be like him.

As Christians, we have learned that we are the sum total of everything that our fathers are or were; both the good and the bad. We are also the sum total of our heavenly father as well. While it’s hard for us to see Him because He is God, it is easy for us to know Him because He is love. In that respect we all say, “I want to be just like my daddy.”

Exposition

This text focuses on a man who rose to serve as king, but he served in righteousness just like his father.

In 872 BC, Jehoshaphat became co-regent with his father, Asa , as king of Judah. Following Asa’s death in 869 BC, Jehoshaphat reigned. During his reign, Jehoshaphat strengthened Judah’s military position by placing garrisons of troops throughout the tiny nation. He broke with previous practice by entering into a parity treaty with King Ahab of Israel and arranged for Ahab’s daughter Athaliah to marry his son Jehoram.

Jehoshaphat followed the godly example of his father. He did away with heathen worship (1 Kings 22:43, 46) and sent out traveling teachers of the law of Moses (2 Chronicles 17:7-9). He reorganized Judah’s system of justice, placing judges in key cities and a court of appeals in Jerusalem (2 Chronicles 19:4-11).

His father was a godly, man and he proved to be godly man himself, just like his father.

Traits to Admire

Children should emulate the better traits of their fathers and learn from their weaknesses.

INSPIRATION TO SUCCEED: Great fathers inspire their children to succeed. They may not say the words, but their children watch their example.

Whenever major league baseball player Curt Schilling pitched, he wrotes his dad’s name on the free-ticket list for that game. It’s a practice he started in 1988, and continued as long as he played the game.

This wouldn’t be all that unusual, except that a few months before Curt’s major league debut his dad died of cancer. Putting his father’s name on that list is an ongoing tribute to the man who for 22 years provided guidance, instruction, encouragement, and inspiration.

Just as Curt Schilling’s dad gave him the incentive to succeed in baseball, so we need to instill in our children the knowledge, desire and wisdom to succeed in the arena of faith. Nothing is more important than to spend time building into our children the skills to do right in God's eyes.

King Asa in the text was loyal to God and he must have imparted that quality to his son, because Jehoshaphat "walked in all the ways of his father Asa" (1 Kings 22:43).

We should inspire our children to successfully follow the will of God.

Children have complete faith in their parents.

INSPIRATION TO TRUST GOD: A great godly father is a man of faith who trusts God. When he moves before his children they see him trusting God in everything from the way the house works to great life decisions. He trusts that no matter what the problem, that God will take care of the matter.

Children see their father's steadfast faith in God and never doubt for a second that He has the ability to secure what they need. When a child prays to his heavenly father, He prays with the same faith and inspiration shown by his father. Like daddy, they have no doubt that God can answer their prayers, too. We must believe that no matter what our concern is that God can handle it and has the power to deal with it in the way that we ask.

Great fathers display a faith so strong that their children, say, "I will trust that God will make a way, just like my daddy did!"

INSPIRATION FOR INTEGRITY: A godly father inspires his children to live with integrity. Godly fathers have a sense of integrity that is rooted in Godly principles. Some have the notion that a man should do anything to feed himself and his family. This is true, if by anything it is meant any "moral and just" thing. On the contrary, it is the real man who trusts God to strengthen him to be a provider as he uses every legal and moral channel available to secure his household.

The godly road is the high road; it is the path that men of integrity travel. The high road is not an easy path, in fact it is often a difficult and treacherous path. Unfortunately, there are many men who have taken the road to least resistance. Too many are selling drugs, bootlegging movies, compact discs, and stolen merchandise, while involving themselves in a variety of unlawful activities all under the guise of feeding themselves and their families. They brush off the illegality of their actions by saying, "A man's gotta do, what a man's gotta do."

Despite hard times our history shows that we have lived through wars, slavery, floods and depressions, but, for the most part, the men of our families refused to steal or involve themselves in wrongdoing in the name of "doing what we gotta do."

Great fathers make tough choices to prepare themselves for leadership of their homes and the community in general.

Just like my daddy

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that one reason that we want to be like our godly fathers is that a godly father is not just a good man, but he's a good man in God's hands.

We have seen many good men and we have seen what they were able to do when their lives were in God's hand.

That's why every child who has known a good father says, "I want to be just like my daddy!

I want to be like my daddy because my daddy was like Elijah. Elijah was a real man. He was strong, independent and courageous; he was a real man in godly hands.

I want to be just like my daddy because my daddy was just like Abraham. Abraham was a good man who put his trust in God and moved at his command.

I want to be just like my daddy because my daddy was just like Jacob. Jacob was a good man who prospered with material wealth and became respected as a man with a head for business. But one night he wrestled with the Lord and refused to let Him go. My daddy was like Jacob because he was a good man in godly hands!

I want to be just like my daddy because my daddy was just like David. David was a good man. He was a great leader and military strategist. But one day he realized his own vulnerability and said, "Create in me a clean heart oh God and renew in me a right spirit."

I want to be just like my daddy because he is a powerful man and because God uses him!

I want to be just like my daddy because he is an influential man because God controls him!

I want to be just like my daddy because he is an effective man because God directs him!

I want to be just like my daddy because he's as courageous as Moses who stood before Pharaoh and said, "Let my people go."

I want to be just like my daddy because he's as strong as Joshua who declared "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

I want to be just like my daddy because like Hosea he could love even though he was not being loved in return

I want to be just like my daddy because like David he could stand and say without a doubt, "The Lord is my shepherd and I shall not want."

Every good father who keeps his hand in the hand of God should remember to always take the Lord with you!

Daddy said, If you take the Lord with you, your greatest enemies can be conquered; I want to be just like my daddy!

Daddy said, If you take the Lord with you, your greatest obstacles can be overcome; I want to be just like my daddy!

Daddy said, If you take the Lord with you, your gravest doubts can be overcome; I want to be just like my daddy!

Daddy said, If you take the Lord with you, your heaviest burdens can be lifted; I want to be just like my daddy!

Daddy said, If you take the Lord with you, your highest mountains can be climbed; I want to be just like my daddy!

Storms arose, But daddy held on, I want to be just like my daddy!

Winds blew, but daddy held on, I want to be just like my daddy!

But while I was watching my daddy, I found out something that I had not notice; that daddy was watching the Lord!

I had my eye on him, but he had his eye on Jesus

Jesus, who carried an old rugged cross!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who stayed in the grave for three long days!

But Early, Early Sunday morning he arose from the dead!

As long as daddy keeps his eye on Jesus, I want to be just like my daddy!

It's hard to stumble, when you are on your knees

SCRIPTURE: "And they said, Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house. And they spake unto him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in his house. And he took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes; and was baptized, he and all his, straightway. And when he had brought them into his house, he set meat before them, and rejoiced, believing in God with all his house." Acts 16:31-34

Introduction

Have you ever considered all of the struggles of this family? Think about it. It has survived hard times, financial difficulties, wars, depressions, racial dis crimination and death, yet it is still standing strong.When was this family the strongest? As we listen to the old warriors in the Klan we learn that we have been strongest when we came to together and prayerfully asked God to guide us. We have been our weakest when we were separate, disconnected and unconcerned about achieving our purpose or seeking God's will.

As we celebrate this reunion we are standing in memorial to the great family warriors gone before us. Just as those who visit great battlefields of our nation realize a sense of awe as they appreciate the fact that they are standing where brave men and women gave their lives for the cause of freedom, we also know that we are standing on hallowed ground. We are standing on a family history that is filled with victories, a few defeats, both triumph and tragedy. We are standing on a family history that acknowledges one truth: as long as we humble ourselves before God, we thrive; when we try to stand on our own we fail.

As we celebrate this family we must inevitably announce the roll call fathers, grandfathers, aunts and uncles who paved the way for our next generation to have a better opportunity while clinging to an unwavering faith that God will make a way.

As Christians, we believe that we are blessed when we humble ourselves as a family before God; humbled before him, on our knees, makes it difficult to fail because it is hard to stumble when you are on your knees.

Exposition

This text focuses on a family whose members heard the gospel preached and humbled themselves before God.

Paul and Silas preached a powerful message of repentance and faith as they traveled from city to city. Often their sermons were not accepted. Just prior to this passage the two had been jailed for their preaching and during the midnight hour they prayed and sang with fervor. God heard them and sent an angel to open the jail doors. The jailer himself was prepared to die, but came to know the Lord.

He invited Paul and Silas to his home where the two preached to the whole family. They told the family about the love of God and his compassion and mercy. They told of his power to forgive and restore lost lives and to deliver them from the grasp of Satan.

In that night the jailer and his hold family believed in God and humbled themselves before him. They were baptized and began new lives as Christians.

The family needs God

This family has endured many difficulties over the years. The family burial ground is filled with the tombstones of the faithful who left us one legacy to remember, "nothing can knock us down if we stay close to God."

Many families are stumbling today because they are not humbling themselves before God as families. As difficulties comes we seek help from many sources, but a growing number of families have failed to ask God for help. To ask God is to admit that we need the help of someone greater than ourselves. Yet, we have not because we ask not.

Roy Buck tells the story of a little boy who was tugging at a big rock and doing his best to lift it. He was grunting and pulling at it but it didn't budge. His father came along and asked him if he was having any trouble.

He said, Yes, I am trying and trying and can't move the rock. The father said to him, Well, son, are you using all available energy? The boy replied, "Yes, Father, I think I am."

Then the dad looked at him and said, "No, son, I don't think you are, for you haven't asked for my help."

What this family has learned is that on our knees we can talk to God.

On our knees we can say to God, "I need thee, oh I need thee. Every hour I need thee!"

On our knees we can make our requests known to God!

When we are on our knees we have great confidence because we know that it is hard to stumble when you are on your knees.

Don't Forget the Source

When families gather there are many who are concerned that each generation of the family knows the source of its strength. With so many forces influencing the family, there is concern that each generation should appreciate the secret to the family's longevity and power to persevere.

Today, many of our seniors look at the generations of their children and grandchildren and mourn at what appears to have sprung forth from them. Many are disheartened to see so many of the young who are growing away from the fear of God or even a respect for God. They see so many who have begun lifestyles that have rejected the faith of their fathers as they pursue the interests of a new generation. Some are saddened as they ask "are these the children of our wombs?" Although they are blood of our blood and bone of our bone, it appears that the very heritage of faith that has brought them and taught them has been intertwined with a strange presence that prevents them from knowing the God of their past.

Yet, while there are some in the family who have distanced themselves from its roots of faith, there are others who are learning the truths and embracing them as their own.

The old warriors when they hear the children sing, "Yes, Jesus Loves me!"

The old warriors are encouraged when they see the young fathers in the family holding hands with their wives and leading the family in prayer.

The old warriors are excited when they see the bible being read and families seeking the will of God.

These are the family members who have not forgotten the lessons of history. They remember the hard days of syrup buckets and cane fields. They remember drawing water from the well, feeding the chickens and chopping wood. They remember Sunday morning church preparation, straightening combs, and papa's Sunday suit.

They also remember how the family prayed when somebody was sick and how fevers were broken. They remember how the family prayed and worries over threatening weather and worsening conditions were calmed.

They also remember when the family prayed for a wayward brother and asked God to deliver an uncle from his philandering ways. We remember the prayers and we remember the answered prayers.

What we learned from all of that is that as long as the family humbled itself before God, it rarely stumbled. It rarely faltered, despite encountering difficult times, because it is hard to stumble when you are on your knees.

Family Knee Problem

The world has infiltrated the family and in a general sense has given it a knee problem. Many members of the family have knee injuries. They have forgotten how to pray. A knee injury may be the result of a strain, a quick turn, a hit or a fall. When the knee is injured ligaments and tissues are inflamed and they can cause pain and discomfort.

When the family begins to embrace the world, worldliness creeps into the family to a point that many families are leaning away from God.

Male promiscuity and irresponsibility in previous generations was tolerated but it was never viewed as an expected behavior. Too many families have accepted the fact that marriage is a trial and run experience. Husbands and now even wives are expected to cheat; it is considered a part of the marriage experience. When marriages are filled with cheating there is no real praying. The family gets a knee injury.

Children outside of wedlock is not new for the family, but laying up having babies to get increases in welfare and food stamps is a new thing. When this occurs repeatedly, it gets hard to pray earnestly and the family gets another knee injury.

Homosexually has come out of the family closet. There has always been someone in the family that walked this path, but today there are many who are claiming that their sexual taste is God's fault. They don't pray for transformation, but they pray for acceptance and endorsement; that's when we know there is a knee injury.

There is a generation growing among us that has only a superficial appreciation of God. These are the ones who select a Sunday worship to attend by the entertainment factor, avoid Sunday School completely, and calls on God only in times of peril. These are signs of a spiritual knee injury.

Over the years this family has learned this family has learned how to deal with knee injuries. Some of our family members have experienced straining situations or have experience trouble from quick emotional falls, unexpected financial hits. Some are in pain because of scar tissue left over from previous marriages and relationships. Some are trying to deal with the pain by taking pain killers, drinking or drugs; these only take away the pain for a while, but the injury is still there.

What we need is knee surgery!

When we have knee surgery, we get the problem fixed!

Knee surgery allows us to get back to the business of helping our families!

Knee surgery allows us to get back to the practice of praying and trusting God!

Knee surgery allows us to get back to the habit of taking our burdens to the Lord in prayer!

Praying family

Finally, brothers and sisters, this text suggests that there is rejoicing when family acknowledges God and humbles itself before Him.

God will uphold, bless and protect the Godly family.

Charles Finney reminds us that a man may know all human knowledge, but if he hasn't learn to pray what can he do?

The family that does not pray cannot touch the hearts of its individual members nor communicate with the heart of God.

The family that does not pray cannot know its purpose or achieve its Godly goals because knowing the purpose of God requires an open-faced communion with God.

The family that does not pray may have many talents, acquire much knowledge, but won't be able to stand in times of trouble because knowledge and material success can't help us when what we really need is a blessing from the Lord.

The family needs to reach back and learn from great grandpa and great grandma and get back on its knees because it's hard to stumble when you are on your knees!

We should get renewed hope when we think about how God is watching over our families.

Because God is watching over our families we can sleep in the midst of the storms of life.

In the midst of slavery our forefathers could sing, All day, All night angels watching over me my Lord.

Because God is watching over us, we don't get overly concerned when things get tough because his eye is on the sparrow and I know he watches over me.

Because God is watching over us, we don't wallow in self pity when we slip, because we fall down, but we get up!

Because God is watching over us, we don't wither and shrink in the face of trouble, because we know trouble don't last always!

Because God is watching over us, we can have joy in the midst of sorrow!

Because God is watching over us, we can have peace in the middle of confusion!

Because God is watching over us, we can have faith in the middle of doubt!

Because God is watching over us, we can have love although we are surrounded by hate!

Because God is watching over us, we can have happiness although all around us is only sadness!

Children of this generation, listen to the old warriors. It is hard to stumble when you are on your knees!

If Samson would have been on his knees he would not have stumbled and fell into the hands of the Philistines.

If David had been on his knees he would not have stumbled into the bed of Bathsheba.

If the men of Sodom and Gomorrah had been on their knees they would not have stumbled into each other's arms.

If Goliath had been on his knees he would not have stumbled before David's sling shot

If Absalom had been on his knees he would not have died hanging by his hair

If Saul had been on his knees he would not have fallen on his own sword

If Cain had been on his knees he would not have killed Able in the garden

If Judas had been on his knees he would not have been selling the savior for 30 pieces of silver

If Jezebel had been on her knees she would not have been such an evil woman.

When the family gets on its knees, it talks to God!

Because God is listening when we pray, we can have hope in the middle of troubles because "We are our heavenly fathers children and he knows how much we can bear!"

He knows, yes he knows!

He knows, when we have come to the end of our rope!
He knows, when our faith is challenged and our hope is waning!
He knows, when our names have been put on the highway and we have been called everything but a child of God!
He knows, yes He knows, just how much we can bear!
I don't know about you but I've decided to stay on the battlefield!
I've decided to keep telling the story of Jesus and His love!
I've decided to keep telling the world how He came to this wicked earth!
I've decided to keep telling the world how He died out on Calvary!
But Early Sunday morning, arose from the grave
With all power in His hands!

A Dark Night and A Morning Prayer

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

July 22, 2012

SCRIPTURE: "Shall thy wonders be known in the dark? And thy righteousness in the land of forgetfulness? But unto thee have I cried, O Lord; and in the morning shall my prayer prevent thee." Psalm 88:12-13.

Introduction

Have you been disturbed by the increase of senseless mass murders we have witnessed in the last few years? The frequency and morbidity of the rash of murders, killings and shootings has placed a dark cloud over the sense of comfort and security we have come to expect in this nation.This week the nation watched in horror as the media detailed the murder of a dozen people and wounding of about 60 others by a man who acted out a scene strikingly familiar to a batman comic strip in which a man walks into a crowded theater and begins to shoot people. The shootings in Aurora, Colorado were not comic book musings, neither were they scenes from a movie; they were the chilling actions of a gunman who entered a crowded theater during the midnight screening of the new movie "The Dark Knight Rises," tossed a canister of gas and then opened fire on the moviegoers.

We have seen such horror scenes frequently. In January of 2011, Arizona Congresswoman Gabrielle Giffords and others were shot in by crazed gunman. In November of 2009 thirteen soldiers and civilians were killed and more than a dozen were wounded on an army base in Fort Hood, Texas. There were 13 killed and 32 injured. In March of 2009 Michael McLendon killed 10 people, including his mother, four relatives and the wife and child of a sheriff deputy in Alabama. In 1999 two students killed 12 classmates and a teacher and wounded 26 at Columbine High in Colorado. In 1991 a man opened fire at a Luby's Restaurant in Texas and killed 23, wounded 20 and then killed himself.

We know of similar tragedies in small towns across the nation. The rapidity of the occurrences troubles and consumes us in a shroud of darkness that tests our faith and strains our hope. Ironically, our national horror begins to resemble the plight of the people of Gotham City in the movie. They were being threatened by the presence of an evil character who was beyond their power to defeat. Batman hadn't been seen or heard from in eight years; they looked for a hero to defeat evil. This villain, however, was so evil that even Batman had his hands full.

The Dark Knight is a movie about a hero who saves the people from evil. It seems that any well made movie that presents audiences with a super hero can pack theaters. Look at the short list: Superman, Spiderman, Thor, The Avengers, Cat woman, the Fantastic Four, X-Men, the Hulk, Spawn, Blade, The Phantom and dozens more. All of these movies have one common theme; they present heroes with extraordinary power who can save the world from the darkness of evil.

Our world is under a dark cloud of evil; it is everywhere. We see so much evil that it causes us to lock our doors, bar our windows and peep out of our windows. We are experiencing a dark night when children are molested in parks, women routinely raped and young people are dying by the dozens every hour in the nation. In the middle of our trouble we send out a distress signal to the only power we know that can respond to evil. In our distress we sing, "Hear our prayer oh Lord. Incline thine ear to us and grant us thy peace."

In the darkness of our night, God heard us and has sent his answer. His name is Jesus.

Exposition

This text focuses on David as he struggled to come to grips with events impacting his life that brought him to a low point. It gives us the believer's response to dark night situations caused by the presence of evil.

The 88th Psalm of David is a dark psalm, but it has a glimmer of hope. While most of the Psalms are inspirational in nature, the 88th Psalm is solemn. It was written at a time when David was at a spiritual low. He had suffered emotionally and possibly physically. He felt besieged by evil all around him.

This psalm presents David as the believer who is struggling to make it through the night, but has lost hope in the midst of the darkness, that God would deliver him. It is filled with expressions of difficulty for the troubles he faced. In verse 12 he asks the question, "Shall thy wonders be known in the dark?"

He gives a continuous litany of dismay and hopelessness that recites his afflictions and difficulty. The 88th psalm is a striking contrast to the other Psalms. They express hope, joy and faith that God responds in a time of trouble. The other 149 psalms always strike great chords of hope, but only a single verse of this psalm remembers that despite the darkness, God is able.

This psalm represents those occasional moments, when even strong believers find themselves distracted from the faith and questioning why God would allow evil to exist.

It is described as the saddest of the psalms because it presents a picture of a strong believer who is down in the dumps and can't see beyond the darkness of the night. It represents those times when events and circumstances are so horrific that normally strong believers become weak. It is a time when a believer is overcome by the melancholy of a dark night.

However, if we focus on verse 13 we see the ray of hope that gives us a solution. The first 12 verses paint the picture of the night, however verse 13 begins with "but." It is a declaration of faith that despite the darkness, there is still a final recourse. David resolved to tell God about it and "in the morning my prayer shall prevent thee." The word prevent, in this context means "be before thee." In this simple phrase, believers are pointed to their next step when suffering in the night. Tell God about, He can help us. Keep our prayers before Him and he will answer.

In the dark

In the dark it is difficult for see the hand of God. It is a time when believers should remain firm in their faith that God is aware of the presence of evil. When we consider the dark times in which we live we should remember that:

VILLAINS SHOULD NOT DESTROY HOPE: We have seen the villains of history; they are intertwined into fact and fiction. Whether it's Cain killing Able or Jezebel and Ahab stealing the fields of the innocent, we have seen evil. We have seen entire races enslaved by the powerful and read with horror of the acts of Kings like Herod who ordered the slaughter of the innocents. We have seen the Hitlers, Mussolinis, Saddam Husseins, and Osama Bin Ladens of history; we have felt the impact of their atrocities. The Bible says evil is the work of the Devil who constantly seeks ways to destroy. In fact 1 Peter 5:8 says, "Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour." The works Devil works his mischief through natural forces such as storms, droughts and Tsunamis. He also works through people who become the very personification of evil itself. The presence of such unbridled evil is unsettling and sometimes causes people to question God. Yet, we have the assurance that Satan's attacks on the innocent will be avenged; God is not mocked. In the meantime, 1 Peter 5:10 says, " But the God of all grace, who hath called us unto his eternal glory by Christ Jesus, after that ye have suffered a while, make you perfect, stablish, strengthen, settle you." In the dark of night be strong in the Lord because even in our suffering he will put us together again, strengthen us and settle us. That's why believers sing, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus Blood and righteousness...on Christ the solid rock I stand. All other ground is sinking sand."

BAD THINGS CAN HAPPEN TO GOOD PEOPLE: Whenever a tragedy injures someone, takes a life or troubles a family the question "why" immediately comes to mind. Some mistakenly accuse God of endorsing evil acts. When George Zimmerman the Florida security guard explained his recent shooting of Trayvon Martin, he said he did not set out to kill the youth, he said it was apparently God's will. Was it God's will that a teenager would die? Was it God's will for the victims of mass shootings to be killed or injured? I think not. God's permissive will gives mankind a rope to hold on to, but it's man's choice if he uses the rope to hang himself or others. God puts free will within the grasp of every individual; some use that free will in ungodly ways causing bad things to happen to good people. That's the meaning of a tragedy: when bad things happen to undeserving people. On the other hand, Satan, the master of evil things causes bad things to happen out of mischief and often good people suffer. God is not the author of evil. God is good all the time, all the time God is good. When evil shows its ugly head people of faith should resolve like Job, "All the days of my appointed time, I'll wait until my change come."

GOD DOES WONDERS IN THE DARK: David asked in the 88th Psalm, "Shall thy wonders be known in the dark?" To that, every believer can answer that even in the dark of night God still does wonderful things. We hear the reports of those who died in mass shooting, but we cannot ignore the fact that there was a "wonder in the dark" for those who managed to escape even though bullets were flying all around them. The survivors of tragedies will be among the first to testify that God does wonders in the darkest of nights. Believers have experienced some dark nights of their own. We may not have been in a mass shooting experience, but we have faced the possibility of death, sickness or financial ruin only to watch the God we serve harness the powers of nature and man to perform wonders in the dark. When schemers like Bernard Madoff stole the dreams of millions with his Ponzi schemes, God worked wonders in the dark to save millions more and is still lifting millions more from the ruins. In 1982 we labored under a cloud of darkness when people started dying because of poisoned Tylenol capsules, but God worked wonders that saved millions from instant death and today every pill bottle has a plastic seal and a tamper proof top. Evil may cause us to weep for a while, but we remember that "weeping endures for a night, but joy comes in the morning."

A hero from heaven

Finally, brothers and sisters we should remember that when evil seems to triumph God always sends an answer from heaven.

Moviegoers went to theaters and observed people waiting, hoping and looking for a dark knight to appear and save them from the impact of evil. In the movie it was a man wearing a black suit and a bat like cape, but the God we serve does better than that!

In Egypt, Israel waited for 400 years for God to send them a deliverer, a hero who would carry them to the Promised Land. God sent them Moses.

When the Old Testament closed the bible says Israel became a subjugated people. For another four hundred years they waited for another deliver to free them from Roman domination.

In their darkest hour, God prepared to send them a word from heaven, a hero greater than Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. A hero greater than Moses, Joshua, Samuel or Elijah.

In their darkest hour, God prepared to send them a hero. He would not be a comic character, but He would be a superman.

David said in the darkness of night I will send up a prayer and in the morning, God will hear!

In our darkest hour God visits us and brings joy in the morning.

In our darkest hour, when we don't know which way to go, God visits our souls!

In our darkest hour, when it appears that all is lost, God shows us the light of day!

Out of the dark night, God rises!

When God rises up we can see the glory of his light.

When God rises up there is no fear of the howling winds!

When God rises up there is no frustration over the meddling of the devil!

When God rises up there is no wonder about what tomorrow will bring!

I don't know about you but I've found out that in the darkest hour, God always seems to show up and rise up!

When God rises up my burdens seem lighter! Maybe that's why he said, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest My yoke is easy and my burden is light."

Over 2000 years ago God sent His only son, in the darkness of the night to bring hope to a world in despair.

In the dark, somebody called him the bright and morning star!

In the dark, somebody called him the sweet rose of Sharon!

His name is Jesus!

They nailed Him to an old rugged cross and He died!

When He died it was the ultimate tragedy, because a good man had died for evil world!

The sky became dark as the sun hid its face!

They buried Him in a borrowed tomb. It was dark night for three nights…

But early Sunday morning, He who was buried in the dark night was lifted up from the grave with all power in his hands!

…Even in the dark of night, there is hope in the morning!

Partners for life

Scripture:"And Adam said, This is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called Woman, because she was taken out of Man. Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh. Genesis 2:23-24

Introduction

Do you have a life partner? Is the partner temporary of permanent? Is your partner relationship civil or spiritual? There are many types of relationships. Some relationships are civil in nature others are both civil and spiritual. There are others that are neither civil nor spiritual.Despite the differences in the types of relationships, nearly everyone engaged in a relationship falls in one category of another.Some people prefer to live single with no emotional relationship to any person. Millions of people in the world live happy lives as singles without the need of another to fulfill themselves. Such singles have friends with whom they share important moments, successes and failures. Their relationships are purely platonic with without intimacy or commitment of any kind. Such arrangements are actually encouraged in the bible, especially for those involved in ministry.

Beyond the godly single life, there is growing list of other types of relationships including:

A Spuggie is a single person who wants no relationship, but just needs someone for the moment for a quick fix. Spuggies specialize in one-night stands, hookups and late night calls with people with they may not even know.

Sponsor. A sponsor has no feeling in the relationship at all. It is strictly commercial. A sponsor pays bills, provides resources and doles out money. A sponsor is the gold miner, the person with money; the other partner is the gold digger, whose role is to get as much gold as possible before the strike runs out. The gold digger has no concern about the mine or the miner.

There are some who have relationships that only be described as Friends with benefits. This is a relationship in which two friends share space and meet each mother's physical needs without any expectation of commitment.

An intimate roommate is a partner that shares the same bed and some responsibilities, but keeps separate agendas, finances and secrets. An intimate roommate describes their partner as a "significant other" or a very important person at the moment, but that could change.

Some partners share civil unions. They love each and remain loyal to each other through good times and bad. Civil Union partners are usually of the same sex. Some states recognize same sex unions. Most organized religious bodies in the world reject them because they are inconsistent with the word of God.

Shackers live together, care for each other, and share lives together. However, at least one of the parties will not promise to be faithful to the arrangement if it becomes uncomfortable, troublesome or is hit with sickness, or financial distress. Often shackers are called "common law" couples that are considered married by common practice, but there is no paper work to seal the deal.

While there are many types of partners in the world, the only partnership that God recognizes is the institution of marriage. The term marriage itself refers to a spiritual relationship endorsed by God. A marriage has three ultimate purposes: It provides a companion for life, sanctioned intimacy and procreation, and an example of the relationship of the covenant relationship of Christ to the church. All three comprise a Christian marriage. Christians are highly offended when anyone tries to apply the term ?marriage? to any relationship other than one ordained by God.

As Christians, we enjoy a covenant relationship with the savior because we are part of the bride of Christ. He has made promises to the church, His bride and we have made promises to Him. When we enter into a marriage partnership we demonstrate each day our spiritual relationship with Christ based on love, trust and faith. We have fallen in love with our mate in the same way that we have fallen spiritually in love with Jesus. We can call all truthfully say, "Falling in love with Jesus was the best thing that ever happened to me."

Exposition

This text focuses upon God's establishment of the institution of marriage in the Garden of Eden.

Scripture records that God created man from the elements of the earth, summarily called dust, and blew into him the breath of life. Initially, man was the only creature in scripture created singly. All other creatures were made in complementing pairs indicated by the words, "male and female" created he them.

Man was created single and through a special arrangement God took a rib from the side of Adam and formed a second man, but this man would have a womb. Because of the presence of the womb and other organs designed for procreation, the second man was called wo-man or man with a womb.

The human pair differed from all others of the creation. They were uniquely made with a divine purpose: to jointly manage all of creation and to mate and reproduce after their own kind. God approved their union with respect to its purpose, holiness and service to plan of God.

In the aftermath of the first marriage as recorded in this text, a married man's primary allegiance is not to his father or mother, but to his wife. The same is true of a woman, she cleaves to her husband and they become one flesh, one mind, and one purpose, with one destiny.

The marriage partnership of Adam and Eve did not have a ceremony. There was no ritual to follow or paper work to make it legal. What was important was the fact that God joined them together.

In later years ceremonies were developed. Early Jewish weddings involved the bride wearing a new gown in the presence of the groom and his best friend, known as the best man. The priest read the contract agreement between the two; they would taste a sip of wine, exchange rings and break the glasses after the ceremony.

In the first marriages love was not a major consideration, perpetuating and protecting the family was the major concern. A man was expected to protect and provide for the woman he married, but he also had the obligation to protect others in the family circle. If his brother died, he had the responsibility of marrying his wife to keep his family alive. Some wealthy men often married poor women in the family to protect them and provide an inheritance for them. This is what happened between Boaz and Ruth. When a wife proved barren, biblical men often married an additional wife for the purpose of child bearing such as the case of Abraham, Sarai and his concubine, Hagar. Because of this practice it was not unusual for a man to have several wives or concubines the first one being close to his heart and the others out of a sense of duty or need to perpetuate the family. Solomon had 300 wives and 700 concubines, most of who whom were political marriages arranged to avoid wars with foreign nations.

In the Christian era marriage was no longer seen as a duty but a godly relationship that recognizes the holiness of God and the perfection of his creation. In the Old Testament a man was frowned upon if he was unfaithful to any of his wives. In the New Testament both are commanded to be faithful in a relationship with one wife and one husband. In the New Testament, a marriage represents the covenant that Christ has with the church. The bride represents the church and the groom represents Christ himself. Since Christ does not have a second or third wife and the church does not have a second or third savior, there is only one wife and one husband for Christians. It is a holy arrangement that is filled with symbolisms of the future.

The bible says in Proverbs 18:22, "Whoso findeth a wife findeth a good thing,and obtaineth favour of the Lord." Relationships that fall short of marriage are not considered "good" in the sight of God and the parties involved cannot expect to receive God's favor, according to the bible.

The purposes of marriage

Unlike other kinds of partnerships, marriage has three god-centered purposes.

COMPANIONSHIP: The first purpose of marriage is to provide companionship. When God created Adam in the garden He said Adam needed a companion to assist him in carrying out his purpose. These partners share everything. One helps the other in many ways: physical, psychological, emotional and spiritually. Genesis 2:24 notes that when a man or woman marries their spouse becomes their companion, not their parents or circle of buddies. Many marriages today are troubled because one partner or the other is still hanging on to someone other than their spouse as their "companion" or running buddies. Many marriages have been ruined because husbands hang out with the boys, without their wives or wives spend more time with the girls than they do their husbands. Many are troubled because husbands cling to their mothers more than their wives and wives cling to their fathers more than their husbands.

Marriage provides a companion for life who shares every part of life with the other. Marriage companionship is friendly, fun, spiritual, enjoyable, truthful, and supportive. In this companion relationship the husband leads with input from his wife. They enjoy each other's company. Rarely is one seen without the other, they are inseparable.

INTIMACY and PROCREATION: Marriage is the framework through which God promotes the building the families. Building families, rearing children and establishing a godly heritage is one of the goals of marriage. It is expected that married couples should be intimate. 1 Corinthians 7:5 teaches that couples that refuse intimacy to each other put their marriage on shaky grounds. Child rearing in the fear and admonition of God is also essential to marriage. Those partners able to conceive are urge to do so and make it a high priority over career or professional opportunity. Those unable to conceive have turned to adoption to compensate, but the nurture of a Christian family is one of the core reasons for marriage. Husbands and wives lead their children by godly examples of virtue, love, trust, obedience and faith in God in Christian homes. Other relationship have intimacy and even procreation, but the Christian model of obedience to God and placing his will first is lost on ungodly relationships.

PATTERN FOR THE CHURCH: A Christian marriage is a pattern of the covenant relationship between Christ and his church. One reason God favors marriage and not Spuggies, shacking, civil unions and friends with benefits is that marriage glorifies God and the others do not. Our relationship with God is forever and is based on unconditional love. Unconditional love means partners love each other despite their weaknesses, faults and mess ups, not because they are perfect. That's the way God loves us. He will not dump us or divorce us. We may leave him, but he won't leave us. Marriage, unless defiled is forever, just as God's love is forever. Marriage is also patterned after Christ's relationship with the church. The couple makes a promise and Christ makes us a promise. That covenant relationship is represented in marriage. Carrying out that covenant, the Christian husband to the best of his ability tries to do what Christ would do by his family and children. Likewise the wife tries her best to function in the fellowship role of the church as it follows Christ's lead, so she follows her husband as he follows Christ. None of the partnerships that are popular among non believers commit themselves to following Christ's example in this way. This is why God blesses and favors marriage above all other relationships.

For Life

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that those who marry in Christ are expected to be partners for life.

Adam and Eve were partners for over 900 years. In that time they endured the shame of banishment of from the garden, endured the pain of dealing with the murder of their son. They built a home and served as a head of large family of children and grandchildren that spanned many generations. They were partners for life.

Abraham and Sarai were partners for life.

Isaac and Rebecca were partners for life.

Boaz and Ruth were partners for life.

Even among our friends and neighbors we have seen couples that seem to represent the godly model. Like Adam and Eve they have weathered many storms, struggles and have shared them together for 20 years, 30 years and even 60 years. We have seen their happy lives and we see the love of God moving in their lives.

We desire to be partners for life so we can rehearse for the days when we will spend eternity with our Lord.

That day will begin when Christ returns and we hear the shout "The bride groom cometh."

When the bridegroom cometh it will begin the day when those who are a part of the Kingdom of God will enter into the Kingdom of Heaven!

When the Bridegroom comes, there won't be tears in our eyes, but there will be joy in ours heart, for God shall wipe away all tears!

When the Bridegroom comes, there won't be any fear of sickness or death, for the former things shall be passed away!

When the Bridegroom comes, he will be waiting at the end of the isle, with arms wide open in love and compassion!

When the shout goes up, the bridegroom cometh, the Holy City will come down!

It will sit on 12 foundations, with streets paved with gold!

When the Bridegroom comes, every saint will have a new song to sing!

When the Bridegroom comes it will be too:

TREMENDOUS to talk about; THRILLING to think about

DELIGHTFUL to dream about; SATISFYING to sing about

PRACTICAL to preach about; GLORIFYING to gloat about

Here comes the Bride will be a triumphant shout, but the best is yet to come!

I don't know about you but the best part of the ceremony will be when we, the Bride of Christ get to see Jesus, face to face!

I want to see Him. See Him face to face!

Tell him about my journey, trying to run this race!

Jesus, the Bridegroom of the church!

Jesus, the lover of my soul!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary! Jesus, who arose from the dead!

I want to be there when the bridegroom comes!

I saw Satan fall from Heaven

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church

SCRIPTURE: "And the seventy returned again with joy, saying, Lord, even the devils are subject unto us through thy name. And he said unto them, I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven." Luke 10:17-18

Introduction

Has there ever been a time when you succeeded at something despite the odds? How did you feel? We've watched competitions of various kinds and cheered for those who seemed to succeed despite the odds against them. In the Olympics we saw many such stories, such as the struggling story of young Gabby Douglas who fought the odds and naysayers to become an Olympic Champion or the success of thousands of people around the nation who excelled despite what the critics, analysts and naysayers thought.It's a really exciting when the devil sets out to destroy your dream and you defy him on every hand.We are often attracted to the underdogs! These are the people who are not given any chance at success, but their do it anyway. The pages of History are filled with underdogs who beat the odds. Muhammad Ali, Michael Jordon, Barack Obama, Wilma Rudolph, Booker T. Washington and Condoleezza Rice are just a few who seemed to defy the skeptics and achieve success in their various fields, despite the odds. It's as if the world threw every possible obstacle in their way but they succeeded anyway.

When we read the bible, it appears that the underdogs have usually tried to be on God's side of life. David was an underdog. Samson was one man against thousands. Gideon only had 300 men and the chances of Esther becoming queen of Persia and saving her people were a million to one. Under dogs have often chosen God's side and God has rewarded them.

Even in our own lives we have experienced many moments when we defied the odds. We landed the job they said we couldn't get. We received the honor that seemed beyond our reach. We gained entry into programs that were thought impossible. We won awards no one thought possible. Those were "Wow" moments. We were so excited because we achieved what everyone said could not be done.

Today, many of us can count the weapons that have been used against us in our journey. Some have been verbally attacked by family members, criticized by co-workers, demonized by enemies and fallen victim to numerous plots and tricks; yet somehow we seem to always escape destruction and succeed much to the anger of our enemies. Whether we know it or not God often places a protective shield around believers who are attempting to live according to His law.

The Olympics and other contests inspire us because we see people like ourselves rise to the top as a result of their hard work and faith in themselves. We listen to their stories and we are inspired to achieve ourselves.

The same holds true of those who work to build the kingdom of God. There are many who trying against all odds to build Christian homes and lead Christian lives. In our smallest efforts, evil seems to stalk us in an attempt to prevent us from achieving what the Lord desires. However, we are not alone. God sends us into the world as sheep among wolves, but he gives us His promise never to leave us alone. This does not mean that believers are invulnerable to attack but it does mean that the agents of Satan who attack the children of God usually find that their efforts do not achieve the desired result. They do not prosper. They do not succeed. Despite the weapons in Satan's arsenal no a single one of them will prosper against us as long as we stay in the will of God.

As Christians, we rejoice in the knowledge that while Satan may often frustrate us he will not succeed in thwarting the will of God. We know that if we remain faithful, the day will come when we will see all of the efforts of the devil to defeat his people fall like lightening from the sky. We know we will be victorious if we remain in the will of God.

Exposition

This text focuses on the excitement of 70 disciples who reported great success in their godly mission despite the devil's presence.

Jesus had twelve disciples in his inner circle. This text notes that he also selected 70 others and commissioned them to go into the surrounding towns and bring the good news of the kingdom to all who would hear. Their job was to serve as advance men to prepare the cities for his coming. They were told not to be concerned about money or how they would live because God would provide. They were also told not to worry if they were not received, but to shake off the dust off their shoes on any town that rejected them.

When the 70 returned they came back with glowing reports of success despite the odds. The scripture does not detail the success, but notes that it appeared that even the forces of Satan himself could not prevent them from accomplishing their God.

Jesus heard their reports and said, "I saw Satan like lightning, fall from heaven." For the 70 it was an inspirational phrase, but for Jesus it was a statement of historical fact. In Isaiah 14 there is an account of Lucifer, the devil, falling from heaven to the earth. How art thou fallen from heaven, O Lucifer, son of the morning! how art thou cut down to the ground, which didst weaken the nations! Isaiah 14:12. Jesus quotes Isaiah as he describes the fall of the King of Babylon whose rise was like that of the day star in heaven and whose demise was like that of Satan's banishment from heaven. He didn't really need to quote Isaiah because he was present when Lucifer fell and became known from that time forward as "Satan" or "Devil."

Lucifer was one of the archangels, yet he put himself before the will of God and even desired to become God himself. Isaiah 14:13-14 says, "For thou hast said in thine heart, I will ascend into heaven, I will exalt my throne above the stars of God: I will sit also upon the mount of the congregation, in the sides of the north: I will ascend above the heights of the clouds; I will be like the most High." When he thrust himself against the sovereignty of God he caused his own fall; he fell like lightning from the sky.

Over the years many others fell, even though at the time they seemed invincible; Nebuchadnezzar, Ahab, Jezebel, Herod and even the glory that was Greece and the Grandeur of Rome, all fell like lightning from the sky.

For the 70 disciples Jesus' words were prophetic. It meant as they went forth to complete their mission in His name the forces of Satan would ultimately fall and despite the odds against them the kingdom of God would be victorious. This promise is not for undertaken for their own success to make a name for themselves, but those that are done "through thy name."

As believers we must accept certain truths:

SATAN IS REAL: There are many who doubt the presence of Satan in the world because they have never seen him with their eyes. We have not seen the wind either, but we know it exists because we see and feel its effects. In a similar sense, we have not seen Satan, but we have seen the effects of his presence. The bible notes his presence in more than one instance and he is referred to by a variety of names: Serpent: (Genesis 3:1) Lucifer: (Isaiah 14:12) Crooked Serpent: (Isaiah 27:1) Piercing Serpent: (Isaiah 27:1) Tempter: (John 8:44) Father of Lies: (John 8:44) Devil: (John 8:44) Murderer: (John 8:44) Prince of This World: (John 14:30) God of This World: (2 Cor. 4:4) Roaring Lion: (1 Peter 5:8) Great Dragon: (Rev. 12:9) Old Serpent: (Rev. 12:9). The fact that the bible gives so much attention to him, let's us know that Satan is real. Of course, we don't need a PhD to know when evil is at work. We've seen what happens when members of our families get possessed by the devil; they act in devilish and evil ways. We've seen the devil in our social order promoting evil, death and destruction.

Jeff Chacon in his book "Dare to Dream Again" says, Satan is your worst nightmare. He is more cunning than a serial killer, more dangerous than a terrorist, and more powerful than all the armies of the world, combined. He is sneaky, underhanded and covert. He is very good at what he does, in fact, he's the best. He's a killer, a liar and a thief - but most people never even know they've been taken by him. He's stolen your self-esteem, damaged your relationships, and crippled your walk with God. He's been in your house, in your car, in your bedroom, and in your heart. He fights dirty, hits below the belt, and doesn't play by the rules. He has one goal in life: to destroy you and everything you love and hold dear. And he won't stop - until he sees you burn in hell with him.

SATAN IS NO MATCH FOR GOD: Isaiah 14:13-14 notes that Satan was in heaven but sought to compete with God. He learned that Satan is no match for God. Believers today have learned the same thing. Sometimes we are tempted to worry over the apparent success of evil, but Psalm 37:1-2; reminds to "Fret not thyself because of evildoers, neither be thou envious against the workers of iniquity. For they shall soon be cut down like the grass, and wither as the green herb. " Satan is no match for God. A believer, empowered by the Holy Spirit is impossible for Satan to defeat. His best strategy is removed God out of a believer's life. If Satan remove his worship, his bible study, his service, his worship and his giving, then Satan can impact his living. Look at those who show the most evil and often you will find them very distant from those things that draw them closer to God. Anytime Satan has to face the God in you, he falls. Anytime he tries to speak to you, but all you hear is the word of God; he falls. Each time he tries to get you to join than world and you desire to do the will of God; he falls. Every time you feed the hungry; he falls; Every time you visit a hospital or a nursing home or give assistance to someone in trouble, he falls. Satan is no match for a man or woman who is anointed by the spirit because "No weapon formed against" such a person will prosper. Without a way to destroy us; He falls. We need to turn up the volume on our praise, service and giving. When do that, we drown out Satan and he falls, because he's no match for God.

WALK BY FAITH AND WATCH SATAN FALL: Believers who want to achieve what Satan says is impossible should walk by faith; then watch Satan fall. When the 70 disciples went forward they did so with power of God working within them. They did not know what they would face, but they were surprised at what happened when they let the power within work. Every believer has the power of God working on the inside. The power of God directs us when we can't find our way and this same power motivates us when we are slow to start and stimulates us when we need a little more just to keep going. Don't let Satan stand between you and your godly dream. What's wrong with dreaming big? What's wrong with dreaming of being the first woman president? What's wrong with dreaming of being the first scientist to find the cure for the common cold? What's wrong with dreaming being the best parent that the world has ever seen? A better preacher? A better musician? What wrong with dreaming of changing the world? One thing the power of God does for us is releases us to dream and then go forth and unleash the power of God! Work the power! Follow your dream! Satan wants to stop you, discourage you and slow you down, resist that temptation and go forth to change the world!

Victories to Shout About

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that those who go out in Jesus' name will have something to shout about when they return!

The seventy disciples went out in faith, not knowing what was ahead for them, but they were turned with something to shout about!

They were shouting because God had given them victory!

As they gave their reports their voices were filled with joy, that even Satan himself could not stop children of God powered by the anointing of the Savior!

They were celebrating the joy of the Lord.

What is the joy of the Lord?

Those who live in the joy of the Lord are recipients of his goodness and are instruments of his compassion!

When you know the joy of the Lord, Satan may invade your home, but he won't steal your joy with the worries of the world because, "This joy I have the world didn't give and the world can't take it away!"

When you know the joy of the Lord, Satan may try to give you the blues, but the Love of God gives you a brand new song, "I sing because I'm happy. I sing because I'm free. His eye is on the sparrow and I know he watches me."

When you know the joy of the Lord you know the goodness of the Lord, you know what it means to say, "I saw Satan fall like lightning from heaven when he tried to give me:

—BURDENS, but God turned them into blessings;
—CARES, but God turned them into comforts
—DEFEATS, but God turned them into delights;
—HEARTACHES, but God turned them into hallelujahs!
—PROBLEMS, but God turned them into praises
—SORROWS, but God turned them into songs;
—SADNESS, but God turned it into gladness

Every time I see Satan fall, I remember that David said, "Thou prepares a table before me in the presence of my enemies."

Every time I see Satan fall I understand what they songwriter meant when he wrote, Victory is mine, victory is mine, victory today is mine. I told Satan to get thee behind; victory today is mine!"

Over 2000 years Jesus shouldered an old rugged cross up Golgotha's hill to secure our reward

He was buried in a borrowed tomb, but Early Sunday morning I saw Satan fall like lightning from heaven as He arose from the grave with all power in His hands!

SCRIPTURE: "Thus he shewed me: and, behold, the Lord stood upon a wall made by a plumbline, with a plumbline in his hand. And the LORD said unto me, Amos, what seest thou? And I said, A plumbline. Then said the Lord, Behold, I will set a plumbline in the midst of my people Israel: I will not again pass by them any more:" Amos 7:7-8

Introduction

Do you know what it means when something is out of plumb? The first time I heard that phrase was many years ago when a carpenter I knew looked at something I thought was well constructed and said, "It's a little out of plumb!" Those in the building profession or Brothers in the Masonic order are familiar with the phrase, but it refers to things being lined up properly so that buildings stand firm and do not collapse because of poor construction. Consider the world in which we live, are things a little out of plumb? Are the values of our nation lined up properly? It appears that the nation is growing further away from our founding principles of God, family and country. It is relaxing its guard against evil and has embraced ideas, trends and practices that have brought us shame and threaten to bring down the wrath of God upon us. This has frustrated believers in every sector, many who are shaking their heads in despair. Immorality is on the rise and the powerful have neglected the poor altogether. Many are struggling to make ends meet while balancing their family needs with those of the church. Crime is rising and our youth seemed more detached than ever from the Godly way.

Despite our frustration, the church should not be discouraged. The challenges we face are not insurmountable. God is still on the throne. He is still in control.

We, the faithful must continue to remind those who hear us that God is measuring us with a plumbline, but there is no reason for us to give up; we should strive to straighten up so we can measure up when He judges our witness in the land of the ungodly.

If the bible record holds true today then God's love and wrath is visited upon the earth in a visible ways. When he is pleased the world enjoys rainbow experiences of fertile crops, mild winters, abundant foods. When he is angry there are floods, earthquakes, famines, and destruction in diverse places. Today, it feels that the world is a little off plumb in ways that have angered heaven. It could very well be that the raging fires in the west, hurricanes in the heartland and melting snow caps in the arctic are signs that we have measured and been found wanting.

There is a plumbline in the hand of God and the church must sound the alarm that God is not pleased, but all is not lost; He will show mercy to the faithful. We can rise to the occasion because we serve a God who has proven that He can make a way out of no-way, open doors that have been shut and lift fallen hopes and dreams.

Alone, the task of measuring up would be too much, but together with Christ we can do all things which strengthen us. Measured against God's plumbline we see the hurt that sin has brought into this world; we must respond, but we can't do it alone.

Alone, we cannot adequately speak to the poverty that exists in our neighborhoods, but together with Christ we can reach out to the poor in ways that are significant and meaningful.

Alone, we cannot provide food for the hungry masses of our neighborhoods, our church kitchens are not big enough; but we serve a savior who takes two little fishes and five loaves of bread and feeds thousands.

Alone, we can't curb the raging storm of violence that is sweeping our communities, but we serve a Savior who specializes in speaking to the wind and rain and commanding them to be still.

As Christians, we know that just as God has a plumbline in His hand, He also has mercy and forgiveness in His hand. With Him, we can become the foundation of hope in our communities. Our hope, built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness, can inspire the dispirited around us, to know that help is on the way.

Exposition

This text focuses on the Prophet Amos as he foretells God's coming judgment against Israel.

In the first six chapters of this prophecy their indictment was spelled out. The people were guilty of legal injustice, economic exploitation, religious hypocrisy, luxurious indulgence, and boastful complacency. All of these infractions of the moral law applied to the people as a nation even though there were many righteous people in every province who remained faithful and obedient to God. Because of these covenant violations "the LORD God Almighty," the great suzerain Warrior at the head of His armies, would crush His rebellious vassal.

This text shows God evaluating the people using a plumbline which is a contractor's tool to determine whether a building is constructed properly. In its simplest form, a plumb line is a piece of lead tied to the end of a string. When dangled the force of gravity will pull against the lead weight and form a straight line. Builders can determine whether the foundation of a building is perpendicular with respect to gravity, but they can also determine whether the building is reaching out horizontally in ways that will form perfect right angles on each end. By using the image of a plumbline Amos told the people that they had been measured and have been determined to be out of line with the perfect will of God.

God's judgment would be brought upon the people for the reasons cited in the first six chapters. However, individuals who repented might yet be spared, but the nation as a whole was irrevocably doomed.

The Plumbline Challenge

The fact that there is a plumbline in the hand of God presents a challenge to the churches of America. Our challenge is to urge believers to atone for our lackadaisical attitudes and be about the business of building the kingdom.

Our men have been challenged: When judged by the plumbline of God's judgment, men are coming up short when it comes to kingdom building. Over the last 50 years we have witnessed the leadership of our local churches become female dominated. This is not a putdown of women who lead, it is however a reflection of the deteriorating condition in many of our churches. The sad fact is that there are not many men to choose from: In their absence women are stepping up to the plate and becoming program leaders, superintendents, deacons, trustees, ministers and even pastors. This is not necessarily a bad thing, but it does put an unnecessary burden on women who are acting in the absence of available men.

Male participation is being measured by the plumbline in God's hand. We can atone.

God's men should arise because when men come to God, the church changes.

When men come to God, the community changes.

When men come to God, the world changes.

When men throw out the net of salvation, they become fishers of men who can reach others on the behalf of Christ.

Our families have been challenged: When judged by the plumbline in God's hands the black family is proving to be a little out of plumb. Just as Amos sent the warning to Israel we too must send out the warning. The church has a responsibility to respond to the issues that plague Black families. It begins when the church translate its Sunday rhetoric into real action. In St. Louis in June 2007 Reverend R.B. Holmes, then president of the National Congress of Christian Education urged black churches to set goals for reducing by 25 percent the rate of black divorce, teen pregnancy, illiteracy, murder and HIV infection by 2012, and increasing the adoption of black foster children. He said it was time for black clergy to lead a movement, not unlike the fight for civil rights 40 years ago.

The Black family needs the church more than ever.

The church must challenge the culture and forces that have hurt the black family and community, including those who "demean, degrade and belittle our mothers and daughters. To do this the church must partner with others to provide senior citizen housing, charter schools, open mental health clinics, create opportunities for first-time home-buyers, even open restaurants to train people for work and to provide business opportunities.

Such action puts the word of God into concrete forms that people can see and helps families survive and thrive.

When the family comes back to God its members will be in line with the will of God.

There is a plumbline in the hand of God, that demands every believing family to say, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

Individual believers are challenged: When judged by the plumbline in God's hand, even some individual members are coming up short. Too many believers are giving God half hearted service in the pulpit, choir, usher board, Sunday School and other ministries of the church. Yet, we are being challenged to give God our best.

This lack of attention to our personal service is best demonstrated by the story told by an old preacher by the name of J. Wallace Hampton.

It seems that there was a very wealthy man who owned a construction company who was fond of his foreman. He left on a long journey but entrusted the foreman with a large sum of money, a set of plans and instructions to spare no pains or expenses in building this fine luxury home. Whatever it cost in money or time was to be dedicated to this building.

The foreman was irritated at the amount of time that this project would take because some of the materials needed would have to be imported from other places. The foreman proceeded to build the house.

He used materials that were less than specification.

Molding, trimming and finishings were quickly thrown together.

Instead of imported gold he used imitations.

In many areas he used quick to attain inferior materials that helped him save time but was less than acceptable quality.

When the owner returned he looked at the house with great pride.

Without inspecting it, he called all of his workers together and presented the foreman with the keys to the house.

You have been so faithful to me, that I wanted to reward you with a house built solid, secure and lacking nothing. I give you the keys. The house you built is yours.

The foreman could have had a lavish mansion; instead he had a house made of shortcuts.

We should rise above mediocrity in our service and give God our best. He is holding a plumbline and measuring us.

Our work should edify the body of Christ. He never calls us to an insignificant or unimportant work; no matter what others think. It is always a great work. We must work with all of our ability and live out the spirit of the song that says, 'I'm going to work until my day is done. I'll cease from sorrow. There'll be no tomorrow. I going to work until my day is done."

Press Toward A True Goal

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should keep in mind that while God's plumbline brings judgment to the ungodly, it also brings a reward to those who measure up.

Just what does God require of any man? The prophet Micah answered this question in Micah 6:8 when he said, "What doeth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?"

God has a plumbline in his hand and he will be rewarding the righteous who run their race with patience and endures to the end.

John said, "He that overcometh shall inherit all things."

God has a plumbline in His hand ready to reward the man or woman who runs this race in pursuit of the prize of the high calling of Jesus Christ.

God has a plumbline in His hand that assures us that if we press on and run this race, with our faith in tact, that God will give us the victory.

Like the old warriors, we too must declare, "I'm pressing on."

I'm pressing on because, I want to enter that land on a far away strand, the beautiful homeland of the soul...a land where we'll never grow old."

I'm pressing on because, I want to be in the place where the wicked will cease from troubling and the weary will be at rest.

I'm pressing on because, I want to see that day when the mountains shall be made low and the valleys will be hollowed out.

I'm pressing on because, I want to be in that number when the saints go marching in.

I'm pressing on because, I want to put on my robe and walk with the elders and see every inch of heaven from pillar to post.

I'm pressing on because, I want to see Abraham, Isaac and Jacob!

I'm pressing on because, I want to see the streets paved with gold!

I'm pressing on because, I want to see the city that sits on twelve foundations with twelve gates made from solid pearls!

I'm pressing on because, I want to see the city where hearse wheels won't roll!

I'm pressing on because, I want to see the city where everyday will be Sunday and it'll always be howdy and never good-bye!

I don't know about you, but I want to see Jesus!

Jesus, the author and finisher of my faith!

Jesus, who said I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am, ye may be also!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary, but arose early Sunday morning!

Come and go with me to my Father's house!

No more dying there!

No more crying there!

No more sickness and pain!

Come and go with me to my Father's house!

There'll be joy, joy, joy!

Living well with the Lord

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: "....I am GOD, your God, who teaches you how to live right and well. I show you what to do, where to go." Isaiah 48:17

Introduction

What is your idea of the good life? Each person has his own idea about what it means to live the good life. In the 1880's James Whitcomb Riley wrote a series of poems about the ideal life. He described it as a life that is humble, safe, care-free and filled with hope. Riley's poems depicted a life where dreams were created, promoted and supported; where the home is happy, problems are few and comforts are freely available even without riches. The life depicted in these poems became known as the "Life of Riley." Living the "Life of Riley" became a popular phrase for living the good life. There was even a popular 1950's television show about it called, "The Life of Riley." Pinning down the meaning of the good life is slippery, but living "The life of Riley" gets pretty close to definition used by many people.

Living the life of Riley for some means living a life where they are not required to do much, get more and are protected from loss by various means that may border on the illegal if necessary. Maintaining such a good life becomes their goal and consumes all of their energy, time and focus. It determines their friends, activities, politics and sometimes, even their religion.

For some, living the good life means to escape poverty and live a few levels above their present situation. That was the theme of the television series, "The Jefferson's." Its theme song defined the good life for many of the nation's poor,

Well we're movin on up,
To the east side.
To a deluxe apartment in the sky.
Movin on up,
To the east side.
We finally got a piece of the pie.

Even though the family only had an apartment, it was located in a prominent Neighborhood where "fish don't fry in the kitchen and beans don't burn on the grill."- George Jefferson and his family, were living the good life.

For others living the good life means "Living Large." A person who is living large splurges and is able to afford expensive and frequent vacations to the hot spots, expensive homes in exclusive neighborhoods, lavish parties, big cars, maids and servants.

Our picture of the good life usually doesn't include: Taxes, unemployment, sickness, divorce, law suits, layoffs, thefts, discrimination, plant closures, failing stocks, false imprisonment and disease. Neither does it include living daily with the threat of having our utilities disconnected, being evicted, visits to probation officers or having being investigated by child protection workers. Every picture we can image of the good life, excludes –problems!

In America, our ability to live "The Life of Riley" is often described by our class. Paul Fussell in his book "Class:A Guide through the American Status System" describes the constant struggle of America's poorest to live the life of its richest. Fussell notes that the super rich have no idea what it is to be very poor and the very poor don't have the faintest idea of what it means to be really rich. Fussell said only the very poor live in houses that can be seen from the street, near railroad tracks, with plastic on their furniture, pictures of the relatives on the walls and carpet on their floors. Only the middle class wears Brooks Brothers Suits, wears clothing with a designer's name written them, flies first class, or works in high paying jobs as professionals or business owners. The poor or the middle class, according to Fussell, can't even imagine living in the world of the super rich where no one works, drives their own car, has art on his wall that cost less than $1 million, flies in anything other than his own jet, watches weekly television programs or carries cash money in his pockets. These worlds, according to Fussell are far apart and those who try to move from one life to the other would become virtual "Beverly Hillbillies."- out of place and uncomfortable.

What does God have to say about all of this? What constitutes the good life for a believer? Obviously, living well has nothing to do with money. It's possible to live a bad life, one that is not pleasing to God, while living in the "Deluxe Apartment in the sky." Living well may have a lot do with living a life that pleases God and is according to his purpose. Sometimes that life comes attached with money, sometimes it does not; but no one lives well before God who lives outside of his will.

As believers, our goal in life is to not just to live well, but to live well before God. We want to do His will and to live our life's purpose. Then and only then can we say we are "living well."

Exposition

In this text the prophet Isaiah reminds Israel that God has been its teacher, leader, provider and protector; if they follow him He will show them how to live well.

Despite the fact that God brought Israel so far on its journey the nation often strayed away from Him. They experienced many periods of trouble, war, and loss when they moved away from Him. In this text God, speaking through Isaiah, reminds them that He has been their life teacher throughout all times and that if they follow what He instructs they will live well.

The King James Version uses the phrase, "thy God which teacheth thee to profit." Many have taken that phrase and others like it to mean that God places an emphasis on making money, earning a profit and gaining physical prosperity. A closer look however, shows that the phrase actually means to "Live well" or to live profitably for His purpose.

God promised Israel not only to teach them the principles of living well, but that He would "lead thee by the way thou shouldest go." The Message paraphrase of this same text says, "....I am GOD, your God, who teaches you how to live right and well. I show you what to do, where to go."

The thought is clear: If God's people listen to Him and follow his direction He will, as Matthew Henry declares, "Open their eyes and direct their steps. By his grace He will lead us in the way duty and by his providence he will lead us in the way of deliverance.

To live well before God is to be obedient to Him. In verse 19, He notes that if the people had been obedient their lives would have been peaceful, happy, and productive like peaceful river, with joys rebounding frequently like the waves on a sea.

To live well before God is to love Him, praise Him and acknowledge Him. That's why the word says in Proverbs 3:6, "In all thy ways acknowledge Him and he shall direct thy paths."

The path to living large is obtaining money, but the path to truly living well is to live a life rooted in the word of God.

Guide to Living Well

God teaches us how to live well in a variety of ways, and he will show us if we allow him to direct us:

LET GOD LEAD YOU: Each day we should strive to let God lead us. Johnny Knight says there are four steps we need to take to let God lead us daily: 1) Pray over the day ahead and pray that God will lead you through it 2) Read a passage of scripture everyday and ask God to reveal how you should think during the day 3)Pay attention to what you feel most consistently as you pray, because that's the way God talks to you. 4)Give God a blank sheet of paper in your mind and tell him to fill the day's events and your respond with obedience." In Isaiah, God told Israel if the people would allow Him to instruct them, their joys would abound and they would live well. Even here we will live well if we let God lead us.

LIVING LARGE AND LIVING WELL ARE NOT THE SAME: Many focus on "living large" instead of focusing on living well. If our focus is on "living large" it means that are goal in everything we do is to make big money, swing big deals, and collect the Benjamins. There are many who are so focused on prosperity that when they read the bible they are only interested in the things about seasons of prosperity. The only verses in the bible that they know are verses that seem to promise prosperity, such as, "My God shall supply all my needs." Our conversation and songs are about living large and contain lyrics about "enlarge my territory" or getting increase. Living well is not about how many "Benjamins" we can collect. Living well is not about quantity in life, but about quality of life. Not a single apostle died rich or even middle class, but they all lived well. Peter preached Jesus to the multitude and thousands came forth and sold their land and possessions and decided to live well than live large. Do what you do for the kingdom without thought of being paid; you are only paid once. If man pays you, God owes you nothing. Those who receive the Godly reward reap the benefits of truly living well.

THE FAITHFUL PROFIT EVEN FROM LOSSES: God told Israel that He would teach them how to profit from every situation. That was not a business plan or profitability model that was sure proof, but it was a promise that those who are faithful have learned that God has always kept. He has promised to insure that we will gain by every experience that we encounter, even those that appear to be a loss at the time. God says if we listen to Him he will alter the course of every situation we face and make it turn out to be for your good. Romans 8:28 "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." Those who live well don't nut up over losses, even though we may be disappointed, because we know God's going to work that loss to our advantage. This is the way you feel when you someone with great insurance smashes your car and there are no injuries. You feel bad at the moment, but you know up their road you're going to feel much better, especially when the settlement check comes. Well there's good news for believers; God has you covered with a special insurance plan that will see to it that you benefit from every one of life's fender benders. Living well means having the assurance that Romans 4:11, offers to those who learn to be content. Paul said he'd been poor and he'd also enjoyed abundance, but it either situation he learned that he can live well, through Christ that strengthens Him.

It will be all right

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember that living well before the Lord means keeping the faith that no matter what life brings God's got your back!

Israel tried living large under King Solomon who built the temple, a palace and enjoyed a thousand women, but he didn't live well.

Adam and Eve lived a life of luxury in the garden without need of anything, but didn't live well and were expelled from the garden.

King Belshazzar lived large drinking from the golden cups of the temple until he saw the handwriting on the wall, he lived large, but he didn't live well.

The Rich Young Ruler obeyed the commandments of Moses, but turned down heaven because it required it require him to give up living large and live well.

It's all right to have a little money in your pocket and a nice place to live, but that's not living well.

It's all right to have a closet full of clothes and shoes and color television in several rooms, but that's not living well.

We are living well only if are living in obedience to God's command and according to his purpose.

Somebody here has learned that living well means to live a life of faith.

It's a faith that proclaims that if I please God with my life, come what may, He will work it out.

Faith in God takes an ugly situation and makes it beautiful.

Faith in God finds strength in the middle of weakness; success in the midst of failure; peace in the midst of confusion; joy in the midst of sadness; comfort in the midst of loneliness.

In closing, I'm reminded of the true story of Horatio Spafford, who was a successful businessman who suffered extreme financial failure. His son died and the world seemed to topple around him. To take a rest he sent his wife and four children overseas on a boat to later join them. But the ship had a wreck and his four children died along with others. As he joined his grieving wife, Spafford read his bible and considered all that had happened to him and looked at the waters that had buried his children. His whole world had been destroyed, but yet he sat down and wrote these words, "When peace, like a river, attendeth my way, when sorrows like sea billows roll, whatever my lot, thou has taught me to say, it is well, it is well with my soul!"

I don't know about you but I have learned how to say, "It is well!"

Storms may rise, but it is well!

Winds may blow, but it is well!

It is well because Jesus, my fortress in the storm is on board!

It is well because he died, and rose for my salvation!

It is well! It is well, with my soul!

An Expensive Free Meal

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 18, 2012

SCRIPTURE: "Thou prepares a table before me in the presence of mine enemies, my cup runneth over." Psalm 23:5; And he took bread , and gave thanks , and brake it, and gave unto them , saying , This is my body which is given for you : this do in remembrance of me . Likewise also the cup after supper , saying , This cup is the new testament in my blood , which is shed for you. Luke 22:19-20

Introduction

What is the most you have ever paid for a single meal? $25, $50? What about $100? What we pay for meals often depends upon what's being ordered and where it is being served. There are many places in the world where a diner can sit at a beautifully decorated table and dine in an elaborate atmosphere, but that table and atmosphere are far from cheap; they dig deep in your pockets. There are many tables in fine restaurants that are reserved only for those who can really afford them. In fact, such places don't even have prices on the menus because those who sit at those tables are not concerned about price they are concerned about atmosphere and service.

Some meals at such places can be expensive:

At Fleur's Burgers in Las Vegas the famous Fleurburger sells for $5,000. It contains a Kobe beef patty with a cube of seared foie gras, shaved black truffles and truffle-spiked "special sauce" and all buttery brioche buns. And as a bonus, it comes with a bottle of 1990 Chateau Petrus wine.

The Restuarant in New York's Parker Meridian Hotel features a breakfast egg dish that contains six eggs, Lobster tail from Main and 10 grams of caviar. The cost of the breakfast dish without the orange juice is $1,000

While you are in New York you can walk a few blocks from the breakfast bar and go to a place called Serendipity 3. There you can purchase a Sundae. Not your regular Sundae, but one that features Madagascar vanilla beans flavored ice cream with cocoa chunks from the Venezualan coast. Toppings on your sundae will include candy from Paris-based Fauchon and a trio of infused caviars: passion fruit, orange, Armagnac served with 23K gold decorative leaves and a golden spoon. Price for your Sundae,

$1,000.

In Manhattan there is a place called Nino's Bellisimi that specializes in luxury pizzas. It features chunks of lobster tail, crème fraîche and four types of caviar. It costs $33 a bite or $1,000. If that's too rich for your blood there is a resort Hotel in Las Vegas that specializes in a $500 pot pie that contains yellow tail, crab and Bluee Fin tuna served in a custom made pot. For an extra $95 you can also get one scoop of white tuffle ice cream for dessert.

There is no guarantee that these expensive items will appeal to your taste or that the $1,000 pizza will taste any better than your $7.00 pepperoni delivered to your door, but there are some who think paying more for something always means that it is better. It may be exotic, different, tasty, but not necessarily better.

There are some who are the recipient of free meals courtesy of a friend who decides to provide a treat. The meal may have been free to you, but someone paid the price. In Psalm 23 David said, He prepareth a table before me in the presence of mine enemies. That meal has been served to us many times, but it was not free.

What if God charged us for the bounty we receive, how much would it cost? Could we afford it? Suppose we had to pay for blessings? What if heaven placed a price on answered prayer would there ever be specials or buy one get one free offers? Would we need a lay-a-way plan? The good news is that the table that God prepares before us every day is available to us without charge, but it does have a price, but the price has already been paid.

As believers, we are happy to know that the savior has made the bounties of heaven available to us without charge, including the opportunity for eternal life. It's free to us, but it was not cheap. Thankfully, Jesus paid it all.

Exposition

This text focuses on the Lord's last supper with his disciples.

When Jesus and his disciples met in the upper room, they thought they were meeting to keep the 1500 year tradition of celebrating the Passover. The traditional meal and its accompanying ceremony had been passed down through the generations since Moses.

Jews were told to prepare a memorial meal that was to commemorate their deliverance from slavery.

The meal was simple, but elaborate in its preparations.

In general, here is the procedure: Lambs were roasted on a wooden pit, with pomegranate wood so there would be no sap. No bone was allowed to be broken and the meat was not to come in contact with any foreign substance, if so that portion must be cut away. Unleavened cakes of bread were prepared along with bitter herbs and four cups of wine per person. The meal was not eaten until midnight.

The Passover meal in practical terms probably costs less than $50 for all 13 of the participants.

If it was only the Passover that was being celebrated the meal's cost could be measured in dollars, but Jesus carried the Passover further. The meal was no longer to commemorate their exodus from slavery, but the bread was to represent his body and the wine would represent his blood, both of which will be given in sacrifice by Christ to insure salvation.

The fact that the elements on the table represented the body and blood of Christ placed a higher value on them than just $50, it was expensive because it required the life of the son of God. Yet, despite the cost, Jesus paid the price and offered Salvation to humankind free of charge.

Life's Tables

God sets many tables before us and many of them resemble tables set for other believers.

MIRACLE TABLES: When Jesus preached to 5,000 people there was no way to feed so many. That's when a boy with two fishes and five loaves presented them to the disciples; in Jesus' hands they fed everyone with food left over. It may not have been two fishes and five loaves, but we have all experienced the miracle of God's provision. We have seen him show us how to take a little and stretch it further than we ever imagined. Who would have thought that without food stamps or government assistance in any way that black families could have survived slavery, reconstruction, the depression, two world wars, and life threatening situations with the little that we owned. It's those miracle meals that great grandma prepared cooking stuff that was not supposed to be eaten and storing stuff in jars that would have gone to waste. It's those miracle meals in which she recreated something new out of old corn bread and left over turkey trimmings. God prepared a table before us in hard times and seemed to always have a way to keep food on our tables. Today, God is still showing us how to take a little and make it go further.

JOB'S TABLE: Job was a righteous man who lived according to God's will. Yet, there came a tie when Job's faith was tested and Satan was allowed to dabble in his life. One day while eating, Job received one piece of bad news after the other: His children had been killed, his cattle was stolen, and finally his health began to deteriorate. Job's plate that once overflowed with provision and opportunity, now seemed filled with misfortune. Yet, even then he declared, "Yea though he slay me, yet will I serve him." There will come a time when each of us will be served something that is distasteful. No one likes death, sickness, hardship, frustration or difficulty, but it is served in every life. It comes with living. Job's plate shows us that even good people can suffer misfortune. The key is to remain faithful that God will change the menu. He did that for Job He will do it for us as well.

BELSHAZZAR'S TABLE: When Belshazzar conquered Jerusalem he ordered a great feast in celebration. To highlight his own power and to accentuate his arrogance he insisted on adorning his table with the golden vessels from the temple of God. These vessels were dedicated to the worship of the most high. As he sat at his table he saw the handwriting on the wall that warned him that his days were numbered. Even today, many have been shown the handwriting on the wall, but they have ignored it. Some have chosen to live outside of God's will and are presently enjoying themselves, feasting on the best that this life has to offer, but the handwriting is on the wall. The table that is set before them, is a table of warning. Belshazzar met his fall that very night; for us the time may be approaching; the wise will atone.

WILDERNESS TABLE: While Israel wandered in the wilderness, God provided for their survival in a miraculous way: There was manna and quail meat for them each and every day; they didn't know how, but God always made it happen. God does the same today. He prepares a wilderness table for each of us. As we move through our wilderness journey, God takes care of the faithful. He opens doors that we cannot see and makes a way out of no way. Some of us have been blessed with opportunities beyond imagination and every day we get blessings we do not expect. We sing that song freely, "Great is thy faithfulness, morning by morning, new mercies I see. All I have needed thy hand hath provided, great is thy faithfulness, oh Lord unto me." In our wilderness experience, God provides all we need, proving that He is surely a "Way Maker."

An Affordable Table

Finally, brothers and sisters, there is one more table that has been set before us and that is the table of Salvation, it's an expensive table, but it comes without cost.

While it is true that the Passover meal may have served 13 for less than $50, that cannot be said of the Lord's Supper. This meal is the table of Salvation, it came with a high price, but Jesus paid it all.

The table of Salvation is different from the table set before Adam and Eve in the garden; it offered the knowledge of good and evil, but there was no salvation.

The table of Salvation is different from the table set before Isaac by his deceptive son Jacob; that table was filled with venison and lies, but there was no salvation.

The table of Salvation is different from the table set before the Three Hebrew Boys with all of the best food of the king's table, they refused that table because it was filled with fine meats, but there was no salvation.

On the table of Salvation is the bread of heaven. It's the same bread that Jesus promised would satisfy our hunger.

Since the table of salvation requires bread, the old warriors declared, "Bread of Heaven, Bread of Heaven, feed me till I want no more."

On the table of Salvation is the blood of Jesus. It's the same blood that Jesus would shed for the remission of sin.

This the blood that the old warriors sang about when they said, "What can wash away my sins? Nothing but the blood of Jesus. What can make me whole again? Nothing, but blood of Jesus"

There someone thinking that the table of Salvation is so high that it is beyond reach.

Though the table of Salvation is expensive, the price tag for entrance into the kingdom of heaven is absolutely free because Jesus paid it all.

Sin had left its crimson stain, but he washed it white as snow.
He paid it all, by picking up an old rugged cross and going to Calvary!
He paid it all, by dying for my sins and your sins!
He paid it all, when Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave!
Salvation came at a great cost, but Jesus paid it all!

When an old man applied for a young man's job

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: As yet I am as strong this day as I was in the day that Moses sent me: as my strength was then, even so is my strength now, for war both to go out , and to come in . Now therefore give me this mountain , whereof the LORD spake in that day ; for thou heardest in that day how the Anakims were there, and that the cities were great and fenced : if so be the LORD will be with me, then I shall be able to drive them out , as the LORD said. And Joshua blessed him, and gave unto Caleb the son of Jephunneh Hebron for an inheritance. Joshua 14:11-13

Introduction

How do you know when it's time to retire? In the work place the answer to that question is rather simple; the calender will give the answer. For many, retirement is dictated by time. After 20 years in the military many call it quits and retire with full benefits including the GI Bill guarantees and medical benefits. Many union based jobs say employees can retire after 25 years, 30 at the most. Some politicians can retire in 12 years, professional athletes in 10 years and some judges at age 75.

Even when they reach these magical thresholds there are millions who quit one job only to begin another. There are millions who work ten or twenty years beyond their official retirement. It's as if no one told them that they were expected to retire permanently. One reasons that it is difficult for retirees to completely exit the workforce is the escalating cost of living, which is forcing many to return to work. In addition, the market place has discovered that older, more mature workers are more reliable, extremely loyal, have fewer absentees and less expensive to maintain; there are often no pension expectations because older workers are already retired.

It is not unusual to find seniors flipping hamburgers at McDonald's or delivering orders at sonic (without the roller skates of course.) Neither is it unusual to see a 50 year old flight attendant or 65 year old crossing guards. John Glen and George H. W. Bush were skydiving well into their 80's and there are teachers still working everyday 20 years after they retired. According to the Christian Science Monitor, the largest employer of seniors 55 years and above is Walmart. A full 22 percent of its 1.1 million employees in 2012 were seniors. Seniors are greeters, cashiers, stockers and managers. Employers like Walmart have discovered that it is good business to rehire those who retire.

While there are some that consult calendars to discover a retirement age there are others who have decided that they would rather wear out than rust away.

That applies to kingdom building, too. Seniors, most of whom are grandparents, are the backbone of most church operations. Many seniors work vigorously in the church doing everything from serving meals, operating computers, to preparing lessons. Just as the workplace has discovered seniors to be an invaluable asset, the church too knows that without the direction of and guidance of its senior membership the church, in many areas, would come to a screeching halt.

As Christians, we believe we must work until our day is done. We are not satisfied until we give our best and God is glorified. If any group understands this truth it is grandparents; men and women who have pledged to give of their best to God and family until their day is done.

Exposition

This text considers 85 year old Caleb, asking for an inheritance that was considered tough, even for younger men.

Caleb was one of the two spies who had once encouraged Israel to move forward and take the Promised Land even though it was occupied by giant sized men. The spies reported to Moses that the land could be conquered but the people failed to move for 40 years. Now, 45 years later, at the age of 85, Caleb stood before Joshua as the spoils of the Promised Land were being divided and requested "this mountain."

His request for "this mountain" was unique because a man of his age, notoriety and respect could have asked for a much easier task and received it. He had his choice of any of the lands available. There were fertile farm lands, rich valleys and acres upon acres of land fed by a never ending network of rivers and streams.

With all of this available, Caleb chose, "This Mountain."

Caleb said he was as strong as he was 45 years ago, "as my strength was then, so it is now." While some think that Caleb referred to his physical ability, others have concluded that what made Caleb strong was his great faith in God. In verse 12 he expressed it again, "If the Lord be with me" as he told of his confidence that with God all things are possible.

Why would an 85 year old great grandfather choose to settle an area much more suited for a younger man? The mountain region he selected was important to his heritage.

This was the mountain upon which Abraham settled when he separated from Lot.

This is the mountain where Abraham purchased a plot and buried his wife Sarah.

This is the mountain that 10 spies reported 45 years earlier was too tough to tackle because it was occupied by giants, the sons of Anak.

Not only was this the mountain of Caleb's past, it would be the legacy for future generations of his family.

This is the mountain where David would eventually live during the seven years that he ruled as King of Judah only.

The historical record reports that Caleb received the mountains and went on to conquer his inheritance, and defeated the mighty giants and their leaders. (Judges 1:20).

He was an old man, who demonstrated the strength of his faith in God in a way that would provide a history of faith to all of his grandchildren.

He was a grandfather of 85 years, but he had the strength of a young man in his heart. He applied that faith and set an example for all of his grandchildren who would follow for generations

Legacy of seniors

Seniors set an example for the young in many ways, all which were demonstrated by Caleb.

CONSISTENCY AND PERSEVERANCE PAYS: Caleb's optimistic spirit and drive was consistent throughout all of Israel's journeys. When Israel left Egypt he was just 40 years old, but he proved consistent in his determination to reach the promised land. There is something to be learned about consistency and dependability; it's something that many grandchildren learn from their grandparents. Consider the old man who applied for a job on the farm baling hay. When told that baling hay was a young man's job, the old timer looked at a strong young man carrying bales on his shoulder and told the farmer to let him work for a week. He promised to meet the quota of 50 bales a week. He said if he did not equal or better the work of the strongest man on the farm then he'd work for free. The farmer took the deal, thinking he'd surely get a free week's work out of the old timer. The young man was unaware of the old man's bet, but was amused that a man old enough to be his grandfather was taking on a job that was obviously for a younger man.

On the first day the young man lifted each bale on his shoulder and climbed a ladder and tossed it in the barn's loft; he completed 15 bales that day. Instead of lifting his bale the old man rolled his to the barn, hitched up a pulley and lifted the bale to the loft. It was slow work. At the end of the day he had only competed 10. On the second day the young man came to work late and finished 12 bales. the old man did 10. On the third day the young man was energetic. By noon he had bailed 8, but he knocked off early, to get ready for a party; the old man did 10. On the fourth day the young man reported sick and didn't show up; he had a hangover. The old man did 10. On the last day the young man showed up 30 minutes late and took a long lunch break, but not before completing 12 bales; the old man never missed a day, and baled 11 on the last day. At the end the week, the old man baled 51 bales and the stronger, younger man only baled 47. It continued that way for several weeks until eventually the young man was replaced by an older man whose experience had taught him that its better to do a good job every day than it is to do a great some days, but come up short at the end of the week.

FAITH DOES NOT DIMINISH WITH AGE: Caleb demonstrated that though his body showed the obvious signs of aging, he still had the same faith and confidence he had 45 years earlier. He believed that God would make a way just as much at 85 as he did at age 40. He had experienced the hard wilderness journey and watched younger men fall. He saw how God fed and clothed Israel in miraculous ways. The fact that he aged made him more confident. He was just as bold at 85 as he was at 40. His experience in the wilderness strengthened him to the point that at age 85 he could say like many today, "Age ain't nothing but a number." instead of working against him his advancing years provided him with a wealth of experience.

A certain amount of wisdom often comes with the years. That's why a 16 year can drive a car, but can't own one or a person under 14 can't work without a permit. A high school freshman will find herself in a world of trouble when her parents find out about her college freshman boyfriend.

A young man can start a company and become a billionaire before he's 30, but he still can't be president of the United States before he's 35. You can go to prison at age 17, sign a contract when you are 18, but you are not fully grown until you are 21. At age 50 you have lived a half century but you are still too young to get a senior citizen's discount.

Obviously, age is more than just a number; there is something to be attibuted to the experience factor. Our grandparents have seen enough of life to give wise advice to their children and grandchildren.

Those gray hairs and wrinkled brows usually indicate that a person has graduated from the school of hard knots and may have some valuable advice to give.

Very few seniors want to fight the first person that calls them a name; they've learned that sticks and stones may break my bones, but words will never hurt.

Very few grandparents will walk off the job without giving notice, because they've learned not to burn the bridge that brought them over.

Very few grandparents will squander food, accumulate large debts or live above their means because they have learned that a fool and his money are easily separated.

When it comes to faith, age is not a delimiter. On the other hand faith is intensified by the years. Those who who weathered the storms of life are assured that God will work it.

This is the faith that an aging grandmother brings to a wayward grandson when everyone else has given up on him.

This is the faith that a believing grandfather brings to a family crises that calms fears and reassures the anxious.

It is a faith that has grown stronger as the years have passed.

HISTORY AND LEGACY ARE GRANDPARENT'S ROLES: Caleb wanted the mountain region of Hebron because of its history.Important events in the family happened there, Sarah, revered as the matriarch of the 12 tribes was buried there. In addition, its legacy became the capital for David's first reign. That indicates two roles for grandparents in every family: Keepers of the family history and protectors of the family legacy. A part of a grandparent's task is to share his/her own life experiences with their grandchildren. They must provide the comparison and contrast of the experiences of the family with those of their grandchildren in ways that are meaningful and important. They must know the names of the ancestors, their accomplishments and the mistakes. They must cherish that which is important to the family's history.

As grandparents tell the family stories, some grandchildren might be surprised to learn that granny and gramps, big mama, big papa and paw-paw, were once young. They were not born then suddenly became grandparents.

Like Caleb, grandparents must leave their grandchildren a legacy, an example, that points them to work, industry and and godliness.

It can be done by parents, but often parents are too young to teach what they have not fully learned themselves. There is no better instruction about life and its expectations than that which comes from someone who has walked the path.

No Retirement

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must note that serving the Lord has no retirement date.

Caleb began his walk of faith as a boy in Egypt. He was one of the 12 spies sent into report on the Promised Land at age 40. He took on the challenge of conquering Hebron at age 85. Yet, there is no record of his retirement or even his death. He simply served until the Lord called him home.

Today grandparents must do the same. Grandparents must bring to the family the ageless faith that never diminishes.

It must be a faith that is just as strong today as it was when they first believed.

It is a faith that no matter what problem comes in life, God will make a way.

It is a faith that no matter how hard the wind blows, that God can speak to the winds and waves!

It is a faith that no matter how dry the wilderness, that God can provide a way out of no way.

It is a faith that never grows old.

It is a faith believes in the goodness of the Lord.

It is the goodness of the Lord that transforms our:

—BURDENS into blessings; CARES into comforts

—DEFEATS into delights; HEARTACHES into hallelujahs!

—PROBLEMS into praises; HOUSES into homes

—SORROWS into songs; SADNESS into gladness

It doesn't matter how old you are, you never get to old to know the joy of the Lord.

The joy of the Lord is going into battle and knowing that before the battle begins the victory is won!

The joy of the Lord is knowing that no matter how tough the enemy, we will be the victor! The joy of the Lord is knowing that weeping might endure for a night, but joy comes in the morning!

The Joy of the Lord turns SADNESS into GLADNESS; WEAKNESS into strength; DEFEAT into victory!

The joy of the Lord is the assurance that no matter what problems each day brings, it will be alright because God is still on the throne!

The old warriors must tell the young to never lose their sense of eagerness to serve in the kingdom.

The old warriors must tell the young to never lose their sense of enthusiasm and excitement about praising the Lord!

Telling the old story, is not a young man's job. It's not an old woman's job, but it's every believer's job.

We must tell them about Jesus, the Lily of the Valley!

Tell them about Jesus, the Bright and Morning Star!

Tell them how He died on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning.....

No. 9566-Communion

What a Fellowship

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, Louisiana

September 16, 2012

SCRIPTURE: The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ? For we being many are one bread, and one body: for we are all partakers of that one bread. 1 Corinthians 10:16-17

Introduction

Since accepting Christ have you grown in faith and fellowship with the saints? There are many believers who have accepted Christ and trust Him completely with their lives and eternal future, but they have very little connection with others who share the same experience.There is a sense of comradeship that develops between people who have a shared experience. We often see it among veterans of wars. In 2009, Romualdas Prenskas passed in 2009, he was veteran who served in the military in 1967-68, but his body remained in an Arkansas mortuary for three years because no one, even family, remembered his death or came forward to bury him. However, in July of 2012 a group of army veterans from across the nation, traveling on motorcycles gave him a military funeral and he was buried in a national cemetery as the law provides. One of the soldiers said, "As soldiers we go through a lot together and this relationship stays on for our whole life."

That's the sense of identification that also develops between storm victims. Many who have survived storms travel thousands of miles to help others. There are others such as cancer survivors or those who have overcome certain traumas that respond in similar ways. They have a special bond because they went through similar things together.

When we accept Christ we should grow in our faith, but we should also grow in our fellowship with other saints as we learn that they, like us, have shared a common life story; they have been forgiven for something and given a new chance.

Ours should be a happy fellowship of those who are surviving and thriving in life with God's help. Others who have been there, share that feeling and connect with others who are similarly situated. We bond when we fight the same battle, protect ourselves against the same enemy, overcome the same obstacles and share the same passions.

This is the fellowship that pushes us to go beyond just attending a worship event and sitting on the same pew, but to share each other's burdens and victories.

Many have reached that level, but there are others who still have a ways to go. They feel no connection with other saints outside of their social circle.

The saint who has matured in the faith feels a bond with every other saint and does whatever is necessary to contribute to the growth of others. A fully mature Christian gets joy out of invitations and opportunities to serve and fellowship with other Christians and will give time, energy and resources to improve the quality of the experience.

This connection with one another is described as a "communion" or bond between brothers and sisters in Christ that is celebrated and renewed each time they gather to celebrate the Lord's supper. It is a renewal of our faith in Christ and our commitment to each other at the same time.

As Christians, our goal is to be in communion with Christ through faith and with each other through renewed fellowship and friendship.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul writing to the Corinthians about the relationship that should exist between those who participate in the Lord's supper.

After the crucifixion of Christ the disciples continued to meet regularly to observe the Lord's supper as Christ commanded. The gatherings became a social event in which they brought not only the bread and wine that was to commemorate the death of Christ but other food stuffs as well. They became love feasts. Some had plenty, others had only a little and eating became the central point of the gathering.

Paul's letter emphasized the importance of the fellowship of the saints who remember the sacrifices of Christ. He used the word "communion" from the Greek word Koinonia which means friendship, fellowship and commonality.

Believers often used the two terms interchangeably: Lord's Supper and Communion, but Paul distinguished that the Lord's supper represents the body and blood of Christ, but there can be no communion unless there is a spirit of commonality, friendship and fellowship among the saints.

Essentials of Fellowship

There are three Essentials to Christian fellowship; all of which show us what it means to be in communion with God and man.

FELLOWSHIP IS BEST AMONG THOSE WHO ENDURE AND SACRIFICE: Paul explained that the Lord's supper is the symbol of the fellowship of those who have endured difficulty, struggle and sacrifice together. The supper marked a fellowship between those who had all been saved by the sacrifice of Calvary. In 1 Corinthians 19:16 he makes it clear that we all have the body of Christ in common. Wherever there are believers there are men and women who have been saved from lost lives and given new chances. These are the once hopeless and the helpless who have one thing in common; we have been saved by the blood of Christ. For the saved the Lord's supper is more than the mere sharing of bread, but it is renewal of a pledge of loyalty to the body of Christ. It started as a full meal, but soon lost its meaning as some believers lost focus on the sacrifice and focused more on eating. Today, the portions are small so that we focus on the sacrifice and the fellowship rather than the meal itself. Among friends, the Lord's table means much more than crackers and wine; it marks the day and the way that God gave us another chance, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

FELLOWSHIP IS TO SHARE WITH OTHERS: The New Testament teaches that there can be no real fellowship among believers unless we are willing to share with other believers. In his writings about sharing Paul used the word Koinonia to describe sharing among believers. He believed that those who had received the word should share it with others. In Galatians 6:6 Believers were urged to "communicate" or teach what they have learned about the word of God to others. Paul actually used the word Koinonia in some translations to describe financial support to those in need. That's why He collected contributions from one congregation to help other congregations in need. Even today, there can be no real fellowship among believers if we are not willing to share with those who are in need. To claim fellowship with a brother or sister in the faith we must share his/her pain and loss and help to restore their strength. The old song said it clearly, "If I can help somebody as I pass along then my living shall not be in vain."

THE FELLOWSHIP EXTENDS TO ALL: When Paul spoke of fellowship it was not restrictive to one class, race or culture. The bond of Christian love extends beyond any boundaries that are created by man-man differences that separate and divide. For Paul, the fellowship of the faithful was inclusive of everyone. In Galatians 2:9 Paul showed how the pillars of the church had accepted he and Barnabas and commissioned him to reach out to people of all races. In the next verse Galatians 2:10 he was told not to forget to extend the hand of fellowship to the poor. Koinonia for Paul meant to share the grace of God without regard to meaningless barriers. Even today, the fellowship of Christ cannot be restricted to one race, one culture or even one gender. The communion of Christ does not discriminate. Galatians 3:28 says, "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus." Yet, today many Christians remain clannish with our fellowship. We open our arms to those in our class and reject others even while we are praising the savior for extending His grace to wretches like ourselves. Yet, there can be no communion if it's only a communion among men. There can be no common if it is race specific. There can be no real fellowship if it excludes the less fortunate. The sweet communion of the Holy Spirit binds us all.

The cross is common to all

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that regardless of our experiences, there is one thing that is common to all believers everywhere, the cross of Jesus Christ.

Mathematicians tell us that if there are several fractions that one way to turn them into whole numbers is to look for something called the least common denominator. Among the thousands of Christian believers what whole entity divides all of the denominators equally. What one thing do they all have in common?

When we ferret out the distinctions between us we learn very quickly that despite our difference there is one common denominator between all Christians, it is the cross.

The Baptist believer doesn't have a bishop or a pope, like the Catholic believer, but the common denominator between the two is the cross.

The Jehovah's witness may not celebrate birthdays and the Mormons may have an additional Testament in their bible, but the common denominator between us all is the cross.

The Assembly of God and full Gospels may worship in tongues and the Primitive Baptists may wash feet, but the one common denominator between us all is the cross.

The Presbyterian may worship with formality and the Church and God in Christ may dance the holy dance, but the one common denominator between us all is the cross.

The store front church may have 10 members meeting in back room and the Mega Church may have thousands, but the one common denominator between us all is the cross.

A white congregation may gather in the North side, an Asian congregation may bow on the Southside, Vietnamese believers may huddle on the East side and blacks on the West side, but the one common denominator between us all is the cross.

The cross stands as the symbol of our hope in Christ.

When all of our rituals, structures and debates about who is right and who is wrong are ended the cross stands central, not debatable and is undeniable proof of the love of God for His people.

When every symbol that man makes crumble to the dust, rising like a Phoenix from the rubble with the hopes of every believer clinging to it is the cross of Jesus!

When the sun is hidden from view and soot and clouds form a blanket around us, the cross of Jesus beams through the darkness and brings hope!

The cross stands because it is a symbol of:

-Strength in the midst of weakness; victory in the midst of defeat

-Comfort in the midst of despair; hope in the midst of hopelessness!

No wonder the song writer declared, at the cross, at the cross, where I first saw the light and the burdens of my heart rolled away. It was there by faith I received my sight and now I am happy all the day!

Over 2000 years ago, on an old rugged cross Christ died for our sins

But Early Sunday morning the tragedy of the cross was turned into a victory!

Those who have been saved by the power of the blood and the cross, who have come through the storm sing with new meaning, "What a fellowship, what a joy divine, leaning on the everlasting arms! What a blessedness what a peace is mine, leaning on the everlasting arms!"

When Hell Hounds pull you to pieces

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.
September 23, 2012

SCRIPTURE:"And when there arose a great dissension, the chief captain, fearing lest Paul should have been pulled in pieces of them, commanded the soldiers to go down, and to take him by force from among them, and to bring him into the castle. And the night following the Lord stood by him, and said, Be of good cheer, Paul: for as thou hast testified of me in Jerusalem, so must thou bear witness also at Rome. Acts 23:10-11.

Introduction

Have you ever had so many problems that they seemed to tear you apart? It's those times when everything that can go wrong does. Things break, a check bounces, car won't start, air conditioning goes out, blood pressure goes up, money goes down, truck is out of gas, credit card won't work, milk spoiled, biscuits burned, cable out, toilet overflows, hot water tank bursts, student loan didn't come in, got fired, got a ticket, rent due, car repossessed, husband cheating, wife creeping, children acting up in school, neighbors hating and the dog ate up your favorite shoes. — When it happens it really gets on our last nerve and when it happens one after another it is something that makes you want to scream!

When it seems like an evil presence is just following you around everyday bringing one type of misfortune or another, that's when you start to think about Hell Hounds. In mythology a hellhound is a supernatural dog that hunts down souls. Different cultures have a variety of references to hell hounds. Some have them guarding cemeteries, others have them chasing down the souls of the lost. They are said to have sharp teeth and are vicious with supernatural powers to tear their victims apart. Hell Hounds are not real of course, but when conditions begin to tear us apart we think about hell hounds.

In the 1930's the term "hell hounds" became a part of the African-American folklore when the famous Mississippi Bluesman Robert Johnson recorded a hit song entitled, "Hell Hounds on my trail." Earlier Sylvester Weaver had written, the lyrics "Hellhounds start to chase me man, I was a running fool, my ankles caught on fire, couldn't keep my puppies cool." As the years passed "hellhounds" began to refer to trouble, evil, difficulties, or storms, in the common vernacular. Whenever the hellhounds chase someone it means that trouble or enemies are always close by.

We are familiar with hell hounds, especially if it means trouble and difficulties. These are the times when we feel just like Job. As soon as we seem to get a grip on one problem another occurs. They happen so rapidly that we find ourselves saying, "If it ain't one thing it's another."

What do you do when the hell hounds tear you to pieces? What do you do when the storms keep coming? What do you do when trouble keeps knocking on your door day after day? That's when you remember Job who didn't do anything wrong to cause all of his problems, but felt frustrated because of all of the problems he faced. He concluded, "Yea thou he slay me, yet will I trust him." The Apostle Paul was chased by enemies in every town he visited and was troubled by an ailment that he called a thorn in his flesh. God told him "My grace is sufficient."

The bible record shows that the hell hounds will track down and attack even the best believer. Our response should be the same as the men and women of faith we study in the word of God: we should be as cool as the Hebrew Boys in front of the fiery furnace and resolve that "our God is able to deliver us."

As Christians, when we are attacked by life's hell hounds, we should speak words of faith to our situation with confidence that God will step in at the right time and lift us from our misfortunate circumstance.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he appears before religious leaders and is almost killed by their angry response to preaching about Jesus.

The Apostle Paul made three missionary journeys to preach about Jesus. His greatest opposition usually came from the Jews who often sought to kill him because of his views. This text records one such incident in which Paul stood before the religious leaders on trial for preaching about Jesus.

The panel that judged him was unanimous in their disdain for his preaching about Jesus, but they were divided among themselves on their beliefs. One group called Sadducees did not believe in the resurrection of the dead, angels or any of the more spiritual aspects of the faith. The other group, the Pharisees believed in the resurrection of the dead, and an afterlife.

The differences between the two groups were deep. They were seriously divided. When Paul stood before them the only thing they agreed on is that Paul's preaching about Jesus was disruptive to traditional Jewish beliefs.

The Holy Spirit led Paul to admit before the group that he was a Pharisee and believed in the resurrection of the dead. Instantly, the Pharisees began to defend him and the Sadducees begin to attack the Pharisees instead of Paul.

The dispute became heated to the point that Paul himself was physically in danger. The Pharisees were willing to hug him to death and the Sadducees were willing to smother him to death just to spite the Pharisees. He was about to be torn to pieces as one side showed spite for the other.

The captain of the guard removed Paul from the courtroom and kept him in the Tower of Antonio for safety, otherwise the hell hounds' dissent would have torn him to pieces.

That night, in his jail cell, the Lord appeared to Paul and reminded him that he would never stand alone. The hell hounds would not go away, but each time they growled He would be present. Even as God spoke to him the hell hounds were regrouping, 40 strong, who vowed neither to eat or drink until Paul was dead.

For years the hell hounds stayed on Paul's trail, but were never able to destroy him. God protected him until his mission on earth was finished; prompting Paul to write at the end "I have fought the good fight. I have finished my course."

Hell Hounds

As we read of Paul standing before his accusers, we see how God moved to rescue him this time and so many times after. We should consider:

WHEN HELL HOUNDS CAUSE STORMS, GOD KNOWS: Even as the hell hounds howled Acts 23:11 says God told Paul to "be of good cheer." It sounded like an odd statement. Everything was going wrong. His enemies were plotting to destroy him, trouble followed him on every hand, but God told him to "be of good cheer." What does that mean? The attitude of a Christian when hell hounds are attacking is always a spirit of confidence that God will take care of the situation. The idea of being cheerful does not mean that we are happy about losses, troubles or problems, but it indicates an attitude. A cheerful attitude is one that looks on the bright side. The first bright side we should consider is that God is always aware of the storms these hell hounds are creating in our lives. If God is aware of it and permits it, then he has a purpose in mind. If the hell hounds continue to bark and the strong winds continue to blow and God permits it, he has a purpose in mind. Hellhounds, storms, droughts and other problems may come in many forms; the loss of a job. the sickness of a breadwinner, a family difficulty. a serious marital problem or a financial disaster. The bright side is that no matter what form the hell hounds take God knows. Secondly, if God knows about and permits it, then he has a purpose in mind that will work for my good in the long run. So when the hell hounds are barking and the storms of life are raging we should be confident that God will not allow anything person or thing to prevent us from achieving our purpose in life. When the hell hounds bark and the storms rage, hold the faith because God knows.

WHEN HELL HOUNDS GROWL, GOD STANDS BY HIS OWN: Acts 23:11 has five words that should be of importance to every believer, "the Lord stood by him." As Paul was being castigated by his accusers, "The Lord Stood by him." When he was jailed, attacked and persecuted, "the Lord stood by him." The Lord even gave him the words to say at precisely the right moment that would confuse his enemies. These five words should inspire confidence in every believer who is confronting hell hounds. If we are trying to live the godly life and have submitted ourselves to the will of God, God will stand by us when the hell hounds create storms in our lives. The fact God can and will stand by us should be an encouragement. If God stands by us, no weapon formed against us shall prosper. Weapons will be formed, but they shall not succeed. Bills won't be able to break you, persecution won't drown you, malicious talk won't bury you because God stands by his own. When the hell hounds growl, speak words of faith and confidence to yourself and remember that as long as God stands by you, you can weather any storm. Never forget that we serve a God who can muzzle hell hounds and speak to the winds and they will obey his will. That's why the old warriors sang, "When the storms of life are raging, stand by me. When the hosts of hell assail and my health begins to fail, though who never lost a battle stand by me."

WHEN WE CAN'T SEE THE HELL HOUNDS, GOD DOES: Acts 23:10 has a phrase that brings a word of hope, " should have been pulled in pieces of them.." The Lord moved through the captain of God and gave him the insight to see what Paul himself or anyone else in the room did not see, that he would literally be pulled to pieces by the situation. Resultantly, Paul was removed to safety. That happens to believers on a daily basis; often we are not aware of it until after the fact. We see some hell hounds and hear them growl, but there are others even more vicious that we were not aware of that have never attacked us because God has protected us from unseen danger. Unseen danger is the worn tire-rod end on your car that was about the break, so you had a flat and while repairing it discovered the danger. There were 40 people plotting to kill Paul. He didn't even know it. God knew and was already on the case. If a list is prepared of all of the unseen dangers that God has saved us from this week, every believer would be shouting, "Hallelujah!" We HAVE SEEN what God has been doing for us. We celebrate his goodness because we have seen how much he has blessed us and how far he has brought us. God has been our rock in a weary land; our shelter in the time of storm; our way out of no way and our bridge over troubling waters. When hell hounds are planning and plotting, God is in control.

Heaven responds

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember that when heaven responds when the hell hounds are on your trail.

In 1937 Robert Johnson got the blues when the hell hounds followed his trail, but today believers, there is no need for the blues because there is good news.. heaven is got a muzzle for the hell hounds on your trail.

When the hell hounds were on Paul's trail God stepped in.
He was imprisoned repeatedly, but God stepped in.
He was Flogged an uncounted number of times, but each time God stepped in.
Faced death over and over, but God stepped in.
Received 39 lashes from the Jews 5 times, but God stepped in.
Beaten with rods 3 times, but God stepped in.
Stoned one time, but God stepped in.
Shipwrecked 3 times, but God stepped in.

Spent a day and night in the sea, but God stepped in.

And was in continual danger from rivers, robbers, but God stepped in.

He was often hungry and thirsty, cold and naked, but God stepped in.

When the hell hounds get on your trail heaven gets busy because God hears and answers prayers.

The hell hounds are disturbing your peace and disrupting your sleep.

The hell hounds are interfering with the tranquility of your family life.

The hell hounds are trifling with your personal finances.

When the hell hounds are on your trail, be of good cheer, heaven is already responding. You can't see it now, but help is on the way!

The hell hounds could care less about the burdens we bear, but in the fullness of time God will send an answer that will let the world know that he cares.

The ambassador from heaven will be one that would say, "Come unto me all ye that are burdened and heavy laden and I will give you rest!

The hell hounds could care less about the tears you shed, but in the fullness of time somebody's coming from heaven to say, "And God shall wipe all tears away!"

The hell hounds could care less about your cares and wants, but in the fullness of somebody's coming from heaven who will remind us that, "the Lord is my shepherd and I shall not want!"

Can't you hear the cry echo through hallways of in heaven, "the hell hounds are on my servant, I need somebody to step in and build a shield around them."

All the old warriors had their own hell hounds to deal with:

—David had blood on his hands, but I hear the voice saying, "I need somebody."

—Samson had a woman problem, but I hear the voice saying, "I need somebody."

—Hosea had a cheating wife, but I hear the voice saying, "I need somebody."

—Esau had a crooked brother who may cause him a problem, but I hear the voice saying, "I need somebody."

—Balaam had a pocket full of bribery money, but I hear the voice saying, "I need somebody."

I heard the voice of the Lord, saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then said I, Here am I; send me.

Send me and I'll tell them that blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God.

Send me and I'll lift up their bowed down heads!

Send me and I'll remind them that weeping shall endure but a night, but joy comes in the morning!

Send me and I'll show their hell hounds the way back home!

He was born down in Bethlehem!

He healed the sick and raised the dead!"

He fed thousands and made the blind see!

And when the hell hounds were troubling the world the most, He picked up an old rugged cross and carried to Golgotha's hill!

They buried Him in a borrowed tomb, but Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave!

When your hell hounds are on the loose, call Jesus he’s got a short leash and long chain for every hell hound you can name!

Life Ends, but Love Continues

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: Charity suffereth long, and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil; rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth; beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things. 1 Corinthians 13:4-7

Introduction

Have you ever wondered why at death some people grieve and some do not? Why is it that some feel a loss and others are unmoved? Why is it that the hearts of some ache and others feel no pain? When a loved one leaves this life we grieve the loss of the relationship, the support, affection and endearment that we have shared over the years. The longer and closer the relationship, the greater our loss. What draws most people to a memorial service such is one level of grief or another. The more lives we touch with friendship, affection, compassion and understanding the more who sense a loss when our lives end. What we are grieving today is the loss of a person who has loved and whom we loved.

To love one deeply is admirable and desirable, but the consequence of love is grief. The writer, Hilary Stanton Zunin observes that "The risk of love is loss, and the price of loss is grief." Today, this family and these friends mourn the loss of a wife, a mother, a daughter, a sister, and a relative. Some are mourning the loss of a classmate or friend. There are some who are mourning not only their loss, but the family's loss because the family means much to them in many ways.

We are grieving today because we chose to love. The risk of love is loss and the price of loss is grief. The only way to avoid the agony and pain associated with loss is to never have known real love at all. The more we love and have been the object of love, the more we grieve. A hermit can detach himself from others and live alone. In the course of his life he touches no one, helps no one, befriends no one, cares for no one, loves no one. When he dies no one grieves his departure.

Yet, grief is lifted somewhat when we consider that while the life we memorialize has ended, the love that brought us together continues. The same love that drew us to a bedside for months, through long hard nights in hospital rooms and a hospice home; that love didn't end the other day. All of the years of memories and good times, struggles, victories and defeats didn't end that day; the life among us has ceased, but the love continues.

That's the hope that our Lord brings each of us; that those who believe in Him may cease to live on this side of heaven, but the love they created will never die; it continues.

As Christians, we are saddened whenever a loved one goes to be with the Lord, but at the same time we are encouraged when we embrace the love that lingers after them and the hope of reunion that Christ has promised us on the other side.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he makes it known that love is the most essential ingredient in any relationship.

The 13th chapter of 1Corinthians is the second of three chapters in which Paul addressed the importance and use of spiritual gifts. In Chapter 12 he noted that each believer has special gifts, according to God's purpose. He warned believers not to become overly occupied with the quantity and type of gifts because all gifts come from God. In chapter 13 Paul notes that the most essential element to any believer is love. Without love, which is translated charity, the unique nature of a believer cannot reveal itself.

Love is demonstrated more than it is felt. It reflects itself in the words and deeds of an individual and is closely associated with actions.

Paul noted that all the gifts and important they are less important than love itself. Beginning at verse four Paul begins to describe the attributes of love that are demonstrated by actions and responses to the needs of others.

When we leave this life what is often remembered is our faith in God, our hope for our children and descendants and the love we have shown others.

Paul said in 1 Corinthians 13:13 "And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity.

When the almighty removes us from this earth, the greatest thing we leave behind is the love we have shared and the lives we've touch; that love never ends.

What we leave behind

When a loved one is called home often family members will cling to certain keepsakes such as articles of clothing, a bible, a piece of jewelry, a pictures, and other memorabilia that are important. These items are not important in themselves, in fact they may have little or no meaning to others because the items bring to our memory the salient qualities of our loved one. When a life ends we should cling to that which remind us of their character and spirit, that's what continues. Paul said three things abide: Faith, Hope and Love.

FAITH IS REMEMBERED AND PASSED ON: A person is remembered for his/her level of faith. That is important because there are many who have no faith or belief in God. People of faith know the importance of trusting God in times of indecision, weakness and distress. People of faith know what it means to trust that God will make a way out of no way and has the power to accomplish anything in His will. Faith is trusting in the unseen and relying on the power of God alone. Faith is also trusting that even if things don't go the way we want or prayers are not answered to our specifications that God is still ordering all things to our good. When a person is reared in a household of faith and has been surrounded by siblings and parents who have shown faith, living a life of faith is easier; it helps us to bear difficulties, sicknesses and hard times. Even when our journey here has ended those who speak our name, will recall our faith, especially in difficult time. When Paul wrote young Timothy in 1 Timothy 1:5 he said, "When I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and thy mother Eunice; and I am persuaded that in thee also." Faith is remembered by our children who often pass it on to our grandchildren, who will remember the legacy of faith we leave behind.

HOPES LEFT BEHIND ARE EMBRACED: We are remembered in part because of our hopes and dreams. These hopes and dreams are often embraced by those who love us and they are carried out in our names. Every mother knows the meaning of hope because she has hope that her children will grow strong, know the Lord and achieve their purpose in life. This is a hope that is rooted in our belief that every life has a divine purpose ordained by God himself. Like a farmer who ploughs a barren field in hope that one day a full harvest will come, every believer lives her/her life with a hope of providing an opportunity for those they love to live better, climb higher and come closer to achieving the goal that God has appointed for their lives. A believer's hope is based on our faith in God alone. That's why we like that old hymn that says, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame, but wholly lean on Jesus name. On Christ the Solid Rock I stand, all other ground is sinking sand. All other ground is sinking sand." When we leave this life we leave behind a few trinkets; some of them remind those who mourn for us of our hope for the future. As we embrace them we pledge to make our loved one's hope become our reality.

THE LOVE WE HAVE SHOWN IS REMEMBERED MOST: Paul said faith and hope linger, but what abides more than anything else is our legacy of love. To make sure we understand, he told us how love is demonstrated. Long after we have physically left this earth our ability to bear all things including the challenges of moving away from home, marriage, child rearing, career pursuits and accepting the good with the bad will be remembered.

We will be remembered for our ability to love the members of our family despite their flaws and short comings, seeing the good in that family member who got on everyone else's last nerve.

We will be remembered for our loyalty to our spouse and the fidelity of our union.

We will be remembered for sharing the burdens of sickness, poverty, and misfortune of those around us, even beyond our family, always looking for the best, expecting the best and encouraging them when others have abandoned them.

That's what Paul called real love. It's the kind of "Agape" love that is unconditional and universal. It is the kind of love that once shown to others makes them travel miles to sit at your bedside and hold your hand and race to the telephone to hear your voice one last time.

When we have loved in that way, those left behind grieve when we leave this life. Of all the things we leave behind, Paul suggests that "the greatest of these is love."

Jesus gave the example

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that Jesus gave the best example of what happens when life ends because when His life ended on this earth his love was resurrected and continued by those who loved Him.

For 33 years, Christ lived on this earth demonstrating love and compassion and inspiring hope.

We saw Him happy and laughing at the marriage celebration.

We saw Him lamenting the death of Lazarus.

We saw Him crying outside of Jerusalem and praying in the garden.

We saw Him healing the sick, raising the dead and feeding thousands.

His was a life of love.

The life before us was a life of love as well.

We saw her dancing and laughing with friends on the high school team.

We saw her happy and laughing at her own wedding and standing arm in arm at the wedding of her daughter.

We saw her grieving at the illness and death of family members.

We saw her showing love to friends and family that were ailing and hurting

We saw her praying in quiet moments, even in her last hours, we shared the whispered prayers together.

Those who live a life of love best are those who know the Lord the most. These are the ones whose lives seem to have -A little more peace!

-A little more gratitude!

-A little more prayer!

-A little more compassion!

-A little more real Christian love!

Those who love the Lord really know how to sing, "Oh How I love Jesus.. because He first loved me."

Oh How I love Jesus because he gives me STRENGTH when I am feeling a little weak;

Oh, How I love Jesus because He gives me COMFORT when I am feeling all alone!

Oh, How I love Jesus because He gives me VICTORY when I have suffered defeat;

Oh, How I love Jesus because He give me HOPE when all hope is gone!

Oh, How I love Jesus because He LIFTED MY HEAD when it was bowed down low;

Oh, How I love Jesus because he gave me the spiritual SIGHT to see that He is preparing a place for me when this life of doctors and hospital rooms and hospice houses is over!

Oh, How I love Jesus because “God so loved the world that he gave His only begotten son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life!”
On Calvary Jesus showed us love with nails in His hands and feet!
On Calvary Jesus showed us love with a crown of thorns on His head and spear in His side.
But early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave with all power in His hands.
His life on earth ended, but even now His love continues.

Chicken Wings

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, Louisiana

October 7, 2012

SCRIPTURE: "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!" Matthew 23:37

Introduction

What's your favorite part of the chicken? Is it the drumstick or the short drum? Those who are from the country remember necks, backs and butts; that's when you cut up your own chicken instead of buying them from the store. For many, the favorite part of the chicken is the chicken wing and its subcomponent the Buffalo wing.

Our fascination with chicken wings has spawned an entire industry. No matter where you travel in the country you will probably find businesses selling chicken wings under one name or another: Wing Stop, Wings and Things, Hot Wing Paradise, House of Wings.

There is a pair of wing eateries that cater to Christians called " His Wings" and "Two Wings." Obviously, the nation hasa fascination with chicken wings: barbecue wings, hot and spicy wings, country fried wings, buffalo wings, baked wings and broasted wings.

We love chicken wings!

We love chicken wings even though they don't have much meat on them! We just love bathing them in a sauce and leaving a stack of bones. They don't even have a bone worth hanging on to. A breast will leave us with a wish bone. A leg will leave us with a drumstick, but all we get with a wing is little bones.

Science teachers try to tell us that the big bone we like to tear apart is the Humerous. When it is separated from the radius and Ulna we get Buffalo wings. They try to tell us about the metacarpal and finger bones that we usually leave on the plate, but we usually not listening. We're just thinking about the muscle we like to eat after it's bathed in a bowl of hot sauce with some ranch dip on the side.

We love chicken wings!

Those who have lived in the rural are familiar with chickens and baby chicks. Those who are familiar with the little creatures know that there are some similarities between the nature of chicks and thoughtless people. There is also a similarity between the hens and protective parents.

In a way we are like little chicks in a barnyard. Jesus acts similar to a mother hen, too.

In fact, Jesus compared himself to a hen who tries to save her little chicks from destruction. He often lamented that the little chickens he came to save would not heed his call. It's almost as if he said, "I'm trying to keep you save, but you are determined to grow up and become a nugget."

As Christians, we rejoice at the knowledge that the savior is reaching out to us to place us under this protective care. With him we are safe from all hurt harm and danger. We are assured because we know that "beneath his wings of love abide" -God will take care of us all.

Exposition

This text focuses upon Christ as He considers the wayward ways of the people of Jerusalem and His love for them.

As the final days of His life approached Christ lamented over the people of Jerusalem. This text finds Him outside of the city, looking upon it and brooding over its tendency to act counter to what God wants. Just a few days earlier he had cried over Jerusalem and now He looks at them again.

His lament is prefaced with "Oh Jerusalem"; not the buildings, but the people. This was the city whose heart was so hard that its inhabitants stoned the very prophets of God.

Jesus said he would like the people of Jerusalem to be like humble chicks that respond to the gentle clucking of the mother hen and run to her for shelter and succor. This desire to gather in the lost to himself has always been an attribute of Christ's person. To gather the poor, disenfranchised and lonely to himself, much like a mother hen does her chicks.

The idea that there is shelter in God is what Christ wanted the people to know. It is the essence of Psalm 91:4 which says, "..He shall cover thee with his feathers."

Under His wing He would provide Shelter, comfort and healing if only the people would repent and heed His words.

Chicken Wings

There are many similarities between ourselves and little chicks especially when you consider that chickens are birds, but they can't really fly.

CHICKENS CAN'T FLY BECAUSE THEIR WINGS ARE TOO HEAVY. It's in their wings. Chicken wings are popular because there is lots of meat on those little bones, but that's one of the reasons that it can't fly. Most birds have hollow bones in their wings, but chicken bones are not hollow, the extra weight holds it back despite the fact that it has feathers. With considerable effort a chicken can flap its wings and come up off the ground a few, but soon comes back down. Aren't we children of the king? Shouldn't we be soaring in the sky like eagles? Why aren't we? It could be that we are carrying a lot of extra weight that is holding us back. On good days when we are really at our best we can get a few feet off the ground and we seem like we are soaring, only to come back down. We spend our days scratching for worms, trying to climb the ladder of success and never really fly! No wonder Jesus would want to cuddle us and hold us close and show us the way to real joy in life which is not in the accumulation of things, status or power, but doing the will of God. As we wonder aimlessly we should hear Him say, "Oh Jerusalem, Oh Jerusalem, How I often I would love to gather you to me and show you the way, but you would not." If we would just consider Him, how different our lives would be.

CHICKS CAN'T REGULATE THEIR OWN TEMPERATURE: A baby chick like a human baby is not able to regulate their body temperature well. A chick in the first days of life simply does not know how to keep itself warm or to cool down. Some think it doesn't even know. While it is feathering and maturing the mother hen takes the chicks under her wing and keeps that constant 95 degrees necessary to protect the chick from the elements. Soon the chicks in a coop will know how to huddle together close to heat to keep warm and how to keep cool, but until then, they are safe under the hen's wings. When Jesus compared us to chicks could it mean that we often have difficulty regulating ourselves, knowing what we should do, but finding ourselves unable to do right. Romans 7:18-19 (Msg) says, "I realize that I don't have what it takes. I can will it, but I can't do it. I decide to do good, but I don't really do it; I decide not to do bad, but then I do it anyway." Jesus knows our hearts and the struggle that we have within us and reaches out to us through the voices of our parents and friends. "Son, I'm trying to show you the way, why don't you let me help you? Daughter, you need to change your life, before it's too late, Why don't come and let me show you?" Oh Jerusalem, Oh Jerusalem, How Often I would gather you to me and show you the way, but you would not!" He wants to take us under his wing, but many will not come.

CHICKENS WILL POOP IN THEIR OWN FOOD: Little chicks have to be cared for because in their excitement about life they don't pay attention and often poop in their own food. It's a strange thing, but you can throw chicken feed on the ground and a few vegetable bits to feed little chicks and they will step on them, stomp on them and even poop in their own food. Some feed chicks out of feeders to protect them from themselves. Is it possible that there are people in our families who trying to help us, but we step on them, curse them, fight them and disrespect them? Sometimes in our ignorance we poop in our own food when we bite the hand that feeds us. We have to be protected from ourselves because many of us have talked ourselves out of own homes because we tried to walk on good people who were trying to help us but we decided to trample them. Jesus sat on the side of a mountain and cried. John 11:35 says, "Jesus wept" because he already knew before hand that the people would betray him and spit on him, when all he wanted to do was save them. Oh Jerusalem, Jerusalem, How often I would gather you to me and show you the way, but you would not." - If we but let him take us under his wing he can show us a better way.

CHICKS PECK EACH OTHER, BUT NOT UNDER THE WING: The mother hen watches over her chicks in a way that only the observant person notices. Little chicks peck each other as they argue over food and position. Soon a dominant chick appears in the group and the "Pecking order" is established, the dominant chick gets his first and the others fall in line. However, under the hen's wings there is no pecking; they all are warmed the same. Even in our lives we are frustrated trying to find our places in the pecking order. Our lives our filled with winning and losing, getting ahead and falling behind, climbing up and falling down.

We are overly absorbed with the need to keep up with our neighbors and to have a designer purse, bigger car, a more expensive suit. We fight to be the president, captain, pastor, chairman, or top dog or the HNIC. The pecking order in Christ is established through your service to others and faith in Him. Under His wing there is no pecking, struggling and rivalries. He cries out to the world, even today, "Oh Jerusalem, Jerusalem, How often I would gather you to me and show you the way, but you would not." -If we would just follow him we would understand the way to peace on earth.

Under his wings

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that when they are threatened, the little chicks run to the mother hen and are covered by her wings.

Jesus said, "Oh Jerusalem, how I would have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings."

Anyone who has ever lived on a farm can tell you that you can get in some serious trouble if you try to mess with the little chicks when the hen's around.

When a mother hen is sitting on her eggs to incubate them, you have a problem if you try to mess with those eggs.

After the eggs hatch and the little chicks are on the ground, you have a problem if you try to tamper with them when the mother hen is around.

She's just a hen, but the barn yard dog knows to leave her alone if something is threatening her chicks.

A smart dog will keep his eye on the chicken wing, because it will start to raise up in the shoulder and flap a time a time or two!

To protect her young that mother hen will flap her wing, cackle, and peck anything that gets in the way.

I don't know about you but I'm glad to know that there is safety under the wings of God. Even though a hen is a chicken, she forgets she's a chicken when something starts to threaten her chicks.

The mother hen gets defensive when you threaten her chicks!

The mother hen is dangerous when the safety of her little ones is in peril!

The mother hen is protective when the little ones come to her for cover!

That's the way God is.

He offers shelter in a time of storm!

He is a rock in a weary land!

He is a bridge over troubling waters!

He is a strong deliverer in times of peril.

No wonder David said, “The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life, of whom shall I be afraid?

Under the wings of God, storms may rise and winds may blow, but I’m safe in the arms of Jesus

Under the wings of God, the thunder my roll and I may feel waves breaking against my soul, but all is well because he promised never to leave me, never to leave me alone!

Under the wings of God, we don’t worry about the weasels!

Under the wings of God, we don’t worry about the barking of the dogs!

Under the wings of God, we don’t worry about the coons!

That’s why the song writer said, “I’m leaning on the everlasting arms. Safe and secure from all alarms. Leaning on the everlasting arms!”

I’m safe in the arms of Jesus!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who was buried in a borrowed tomb!

Jesus, who stayed in a grave three days and nights!.but Early Sunday morning, he arose in my soul!

I’m safe in the arms of Jesus!

Breaking The Sin Cycle

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 14, 2012

SCRIPTURE: 'Whenever the LORD raised up a judge for them, he was with the judge and saved them out of the hands of their enemies as long as the judge lived; for the LORD had compassion on them as they groaned under those who oppressed and afflicted them. But when the judge died, the people returned to ways even more corrupt than those of their fathers, following other gods and serving and worshiping them. They refused to give up their evil practices and stubborn ways.' Judges 2:18-19

Introduction

Have you ever noticed that many things in life happen in cycles? There seems to be a certain pattern about everything that is tied together by a cause and an effect. The longer a person lives the easier it becomes to spot the patterns and to project the cause and the effect of an action based on our historical knowledge.There are cycles in every sphere of life. In science there are cycles in physics, biology, and astronomy. In psychology there are cycles in our emotions, brain activity, and various behaviors. In history there are cycles in wars and politics there are cycles. In economics there are cycles that determine business success, personal wealth and national security.

Even the human body has cycles called "chronobiology" or biorhythms or "biological clocks;" we see evidence of cycles everywhere.

We see evidence of cycles in nearly every aspect of life. If you look at the rings around trees they will give evidence of cycles. Strange things are determined by the cycles of the moon that cause the tides to rise and babies to be born and nearly anything that flows seems to flow faster.

There are geological cycles that determine earthquakes, volcanoes, and sediment deposits.

The solar system has cycles in the planet's path around the sun and how the planets rotate on their own day and night.

Even the seasons have a cycle. If there is a spring there will be a summer, a fall and definitely a winter. Everything seems to come in cycles.

This idea of cycles is referred to in the book of Ecclesiastes. Solomon said there is a time for everything under the sun. That means everything follows a pattern or some type of cycle.

If we study the biblical sin cycle we can understand what causes sin and what can lead to our salvation.

As Christians, we have observed that God blesses us regularly, but the blessings are routinely interrupted by cycles of sin. Our desire should be to learn how to atone for our weaknesses and once again enjoy the salvation of the Lord.

Exposition

This text focuses on the seven cycles of sin and punishment that Israel inflicted upon themselves after the death of Joshua.

Joshua carried on the traditions and teachings of Moses for a generation. At the age of 110, Joshua died having successfully brought Israel into the Promised Land. However, once in the Promised Land their actions changed tremendously. They began to assimilate the habits and practices of the Canaanites and sin in the sight of God

The book of Judges records the sad record of a generation of once God fearing people who went through a series of cycles of faith followed by apostasy and righteousness followed by ungodliness. It was a vicious cycle of sin, bondage, repentance, devotion, followed by sin and bondage again. Israel would follow the Lord when there was a leader who reminded them of the ways in which they should walk, but with his death they again wandered off following other gods and their own desires. God would then allow an enemy of Israel to conquer the people so that, through desperation (unfortunately) they would again look to Him.

The cycle begins in chapter three. Israel sins and God allows Mesopotamia to put them in bondage for eight years. The people cried out and God sent Othniel to lead them out and they enjoyed 40 years of peace.

The people sinned again and God used the Moabites (Ch 3) to make their lives miserable for 18 years. The people cried out and God sent Ehud to lead them out and they enjoyed 80 years of peace.

The people sinned again and God used the Canaanites (Ch 4) to punish them for 20 years. The people cried out and God sent Deborah to lead them out and they enjoyed 40 years of peace.

The people sinned again and God used Midian (Ch 6) to punish them for seven years. The people cried out and God sent Gideon to lead them out and they enjoyed 40 years of peace.

The people sinned again and God used the Ammonites (Ch 10) to punish them for 18 years. The people cried out and God used Jephthah to lead them out and they enjoyed six years of peace.

The people sinned again and God used the Philistines (Ch 13) to punish them for 40 years. The people cried out and God sent Samson to bring them out and they had 20 years of peace.

It was a recurring cycle that repeated itself only when Israel stepped outside of the will of God.

It showed how God operated on the life cycle of a nation, but it indicates how God operates in the spiritual life cycle of every believer.

The Cycle

The book of Judges has great meaning to believers especially if we substitute the word "Israel" for our own names. Then we can see that there is a cycle of faith and faithlessness in our own lives that triggers unique events and circumstances each time we step outside of the word God. Here is the cycle:

BLESSINGS: There is first a season of blessing, peace and happiness that we all enjoy. The word of God has promised believers extended seasons of relative peace and happiness if we abide in His will. The promise began in Deuteronomy 7: 12 -Wherefore it shall come to pass, if ye hearken to these judgments, and keep, and do them, that the LORD thy God shall keep unto thee the covenant and the mercy which he sware unto thy fathers: And he will love thee, and bless thee, and multiply thee: he will also bless the fruit of thy womb, and the fruit of thy land, thy corn, and thy wine, and thine oil, the increase of thy kine, and the flocks of thy sheep, in the land which he sware unto thy fathers to give thee. Thou shalt be blessed above all people: there shall not be male or female barren among you, or among your cattle. And the LORD will take away from thee all sickness, and will put none of the evil diseases of Egypt, which thou knowest, upon thee; but will lay them upon all them that hate thee. Even in the New Testament the promise is continued in text such as Luke 11:28 that says, " But he said, Yea rather, blessed are they that hear the word of God, and keep it." The conclusion is that peace and happiness follows obedience to God's commands and living inside His will.

DISOBEDIENCE: When we step outside of the will of God we disrupt the era of peace and happiness. For Israel it was often 40 years as a nation. Many of us enjoy as many as five years of unbroken peace and happiness and then somehow we step outside of the will of God. This disobedience may take the form of obvious sins such as adultery or theft or murder. Often it takes more subtle forms such as taking your life in a different direction than God intended. Jonah, for example stepped outside of the will of God and refused to go where God told him; he went in the opposite direction. While he did not commit any obvious sin, he stepped outside of God's will and the sin cycle began. Likewise, we trigger the sin cycle when we take our lives in a direction that is outside of God's will. When the sin cycle begins it draws the wrath of God. Ephesians 5:6 says, Let no man deceive you with vain words: for because of these things cometh the wrath of God upon the children of disobedience.

DISCIPLINE: Once we step outside of the will of God it triggers the next spiritual phase, which is discipline. It begins like the agitator in a washing machine; peace is disturbed and the world begins to pull at us, twisting us left and right. In Israel's case God let their enemies have fun with them, their haters increased, they were constantly troubled for years, even decades. It happens to us similarly. Why? God disciplines us because He loves us and wants to bring us back into His will. Hebrews 12:6 says, "For whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth." We cannot return to our period of blessing by abruptly yelling, "I'm not going to do it anymore" no more than we can stop the cycle on a washing machine and start it over in mid cycle. To return to blessings and peace we must take the next step.

CONFESS OUR SINS: When we have felt the sting of God's discipline long enough, there are some who reach a point when they say to themselves. "I've got to make a change." "I can't keep going in this direction." This is the point in the cycle that we accept responsibility for our mistakes and confess them to God. 1 John 1:9 says, "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us [our] sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." Our confession triggers another process, similar to a wash cycle, He drains out all of the dirt and grime out of our lives and begins a spin cycle or movement toward godliness. We are not ready to get back to blessings yet because even though the dirty wash water has been drained, some of the world is still in us. However, our confession triggers the next process.

REPENTANCE: When we repent we go further than just confessing. When we repent we look back over our mistakes and conclude that we are "sorry" for our mistakes and sorry that we disappointed and disobeyed God. When we repent we close the door on those actions and resolve not to return. To get back to peace and blessings in our lives requires us to complete the cycle. The result of repentance is repeated throughout the bible, but is best reflected in 2 Chronicles 7:14 "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land." The New Testament says the same truth in a different way in Acts 3:19 "Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord. – Those who repent say, to God "Wash me, whiter than snow!" Wash me in the blood of the Lamb!

Deliverance

Finally, Brothers and sisters, the good news is that just as we can begin the cycle of sin, we can end the cycle of sin. We can get back to the peace and the joy of the Lord.

After we have been disobedient and stepped outside of the will of God..

After we have been disciplined by the hand of God..

After we have confessed our sins before the throne of God…

After we have repented and turned from our wicked ways..

The deliverance comes.

If you want to know how it works, just watch your washing machine! After it has washed the dirt from your clothes and drained away the dirt and grime..it's not over because there is still a little dirt left.

You used Tide and Cheer, but there is still a little dirt left.

You used Clorox and Purex, but there is still a little dirt left because it was in the wash water itself.

Somebody here can testify that after you have been through the discipline and have confessed, there still a little dirt left.

After we have started going to church and singing church songs, there still a little dirt left that makes you want to sing a little Hip Hop and the blues.

After we have started taking the Lord's supper, there is still a little taste for a Johnny Walker Red.

There is still a little dog in us that makes us want to chase the cat!
There is still a little taste in us that makes us continue to look for Mr. Goodbar!
But keep your eye on the last cycle of that washing machine. It will sit still for a while, but then the tub begins to fill with something that has no Purex or Clorox. It fills with something that has no Tide, Cheer or Oxydol.
It gets in all of the clothes that are stuck against the wall. Anything that is left by the wash is caught in the rinse.
When we truly repent we are washed in the blood of the lamb and filled with the Holy Ghost.

He gets in your hands! He gets in your feet!

The Holy Ghost picks you up and turns your around and puts you in a spin cycle! When He turns you loose you say, "I looked at my hands and I had brand new hands!

I looked at my feet and I had brand new feet!

I looked at my walk and I had a brand new walk!

A change has come into my life!

There is only one way to break the cycle of sin and that is to be washed in the blood of Jesus!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who stayed in the grave for three long days!

But, Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave!

What can wash away my sin? Nothing, but the blood of Jesus!

Mine eyes have seen the glory of the Lord

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: But blessed are your eyes, for they see: and your ears, for they hear. For verily I say unto you, That many prophets and righteous men have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them. Matthew 13:16-17*

Introduction

Have you ever stopped to think about all that you have seen and experienced in your life? Over the years our eyes have seen scanned millions of sights, pictures, faces, land marks, documents and events. Our ears have heard the sounds of crickets, birds chirping, babies crying, crowds cheering, screams, yells. Our hearts have felt the full pendulum of joy and sadness, anger, love, excitement and disappointment. If we could climb to high place and paint the canopies of heaven with all that we have seen and heard, we could produce a masterpiece that would shame Davinci or Michelangelo.

One of the benefits of maturity is the ability to compare what it is now with what has been and project what can be. It's the ability to see a grandchild and see her mother's eyes her grandmother's smile and project what the woman of the future may be. It's the perspective of looking at the now through the prism of the past and getting an idea of the future.

That's what anniversaries do. Whether it's a wedding anniversary, birthday or a church celebration, it provides a moment to pause and reflect on what is now compared to what was then, with an eye toward what will be in the not so distant future. It's a chance to see the forest after being so busy looking at the trees.When we consider what our eyes have seen over the course of our journey, we are awed. From this mountaintop today, we look across the valley of time and survey the road we have traveled. We have seen wars and depressions. We have seen battles for civil rights and the deaths of the martyrs.

We have seen the towers tumble and watched as they rose again from the ashes like the Phoenix. We have seen babies grow to world leaders and dreams become realities.

When we see the vastness of God's creation and how he molds and shapes events like putty in the palms of his hands. That views prompts us to share with the song writer who said, "Oh Lord, my God, as I in awesome wonder, consider all the worlds thy hands hath made. I see the stars. I hear the rolling thunder. And marvel at the universe displayed. Then sings my soul my savior God to thee. How great thou art. How great thou art!"

The view from the mountaintop breathes hope for those who have perhaps concluded that it is all fruitless and non-productive.

As Christians, we thank God for anniversary moments that give us a chance to look back at the long journey and see from whence He has brought us. In this moment we also look to the future, to the great promise that lies ahead. Today, we celebrate because our eyes have seen the majesty of God's creation. We have seen the sick healed, the lost found and the wicked confused and confounded. What a mighty God we serve!

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus' response to a question by his disciples about his reason for using parables.

As a general rule, Jesus had two modes of conversation when among the scholars he quoted scripture because they had access to the Torah and the biblical writings. When He was among the common people he often spoken in parables to help them understand.

The parable of the Good Samaritan, the Prodigal Son and the wheat and the tares, were some of the more memorable of his stories.

His disciples began to notice this pattern and questioned Him about the reason. Jesus said in verse 13 that the people "see, but they don't see. Hear but don't really hear and don't understand anything." He quoted Isaiah 6:9-13 noting that the people often see and hear the glories of the Lord, but really don't see them.

The people did not see or understand what he taught about the Kingdom of God, they only saw the miracles. They did not understand about being saved from sin; they only saw the fish and the bread.

However, Christ said his disciples were believers. They saw more than just miracles. They saw more than just healings. They saw the glory of God moving in their midst, an eternal presence preparing them for a kingdom that would be everlasting. It was something that the ancients wanted to see, but did not. It was something that scholars search for but never found.

In this respect, Jesus said those who believe see more because they can see what others can not see. They see more than mere events, but in each they see the glory of the Lord being revealed.

We see and we hear

Vol 23-5521

Believers today are celebrating because we see more than a mere church anniversary. We see the hand of God at work. We see more than the litany of names and faces of the past recited for our hearing, we see God moving through them to achieve His purpose. More than others, we are celebrating because our eyes have seen the glory of the Lord.

WE SEE WHAT GOD HAS DONE: In our personal journeys we have seen how God has provided for us, often when we were too foolish to provide for ourselves. There are some who are like the Israelites in the wilderness who grumbled and complained that God had abandoned them in the desert of Zin. Their eyes could not see that God had been with them every step of the way. Can't you hear the old warriors saying, "Our eyes have seen God roll back the Red Sea?" We have seen how He fed more than a million people in the wilderness for 40 years. We have seen how He protected us from our enemies. We have seen how He brought to borders of the Promised Land." Even today, we have seen how God has provided for our families and this community over the years. We have seen storms tear the roofs from our houses and flood waters float away our memories. We have also watched as God restored and helped us rise again. We have seen the tears fall as we wept at gravesides of our loved ones and we have also seen how God restored us and strengthened us to go on. Today, the faithful celebrate because unlike Israel, we HAVE SEEN what God has been doing for us. We are celebrating because we have seen how much he has blessed us, and how far he has brought us.

We have seen how God has been our rock in a weary land.

We have seen how God has been our shelter in the time of storm.

We have seen how He has been our way out of no way.

Our eyes have seen the glory of the Lord!

WE SEE WHAT GOD IS DOING: Jesus told his disciples that many of the prophets and the righteous have desired to see the wonderful works that they saw in their lifetimes, but did not see them. He told them it was their desire to see the progress and hope that was unfolded in front of their eyes or to hear the words that they hear, but they were unable to hear them. In 2008 the eyes of millions around the world were filled with tears of joy at the election of an African-American President of the United States. They saw more than a single event; they saw the hand of God moving to bring us closer to the Promised. The striking picture of the Reverend Jesse Jackson watching that moment with his eyes filled with tears seemed to say, "Mine eyes have seen the glory of the Lord."

Today, our eyes are beholding the gradual unfolding of the millennial kingdom where there will be peace on earth. What we see today is not what it shall be, but it is a step toward what will be. The lines that divide the rich and the poor still exist, but our sensitivity has been heightened and that line is blurring. There are still whites who hate blacks, Democrats who hate all Republicans and Republicans who think little of all Democrats, but more than we have ever seen before, whites and blacks are working together, worshipping together and even putting aside partisan views for the common good. We have seen the sons of former slave masters working along side the great grandsons of slaves to build Habitat homes, race for a cure for cancer, comfort the families of military bereaved, and sit down at the same table for the common good without burning crosses, Rebel Flags or clinched fists. It is not what it should be, but we have seen what our grandparents thought would never happen in a million years. In our life time, we are beginning to see the wisdom of judging men by the content of their character and not by the color of their skin.

Who gets the glory for these changes in our national character? Henry David Thoreau? Thomas Jefferson? Who first put this idea in print? Who gets the glory? Is it Martin Luther King who articulated these ideas in his lifetime? No, If it is God who gets the glory!

We have seen him trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored!

We have seen him transforming hearts and minds!

His truth is marching on!

WE SEE WHAT GOD IS GOING TO DO: The bible reminds us that "Eyes have not seen, neither has it entered into the heart of man the things God has in store for those who trust Him." We don't know exactly what God has in store for us as believers, but we know it will be better than what we have now. The old warriors, whose legacy we celebrate here today had dreams for the future. They kept the faith because they had dreams of a better day.

Great grandma didn't know exactly what it would be, but as she scrubbed floors through the Great Depression and washed the dirty laundry of millionaires for pennies, she dreamed of a better day!

Aunt Betty did not know exactly what the future held, but sat on the back of the bus for years as her beautiful face became rubbery and dark and her cold black hair turned silver and grey, she dreamed of a better day.

Great grandpa didn't know exactly what it would be, but as he pushed a plow behind an old mule and bowed under the weight of cotton sacks on his back he could see in his mind's eye, a better day ahead. Our ancestors endured singing, "The Lord will make a way somehow."

On his last night on earth Dr. Martin Luther King told a crowd of frustrated followers, thirsty for a word of hope. "I may not get there with you, but I've been to the mountain top… mine eyes have seen the glory of the Lord."

Every now and then God shows us a glimpse into the future He is preparing for the faithful of all races, creeds and colors.

Lift up your heads and behold the day when there will neither be first nor last, rich or poor, white or black, but only children of the most high God!

Lift up your heads and behold the day when we will beat our swords into plough shares, the lions will share space with the lambs and we will study war no more!

Lift up your heads and behold the day when the wicked will cease from troubling and the weary will be at rest!

Lift up your heads and cast your eyes on the day when justice shall run down like waters and righteousness like a mighty stream!

I know it is coming because, “Mine eyes have seen the glory of the Lord!

Blessed Eyes

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider the very first phrase of this text, “Blessed are your eyes for they see” for what we see is none other than the hand of God.

I’m reminded of an old blind man who attended church every Sunday for 70 years and never missed a chance to shout Amen when the preacher described the beauties of heaven. He shouted “Amen” when the preacher said, “Ye shall see the golden streets!” He shouted when the man of God said, “Ye shall see the cloudless blue skies of the glory land!” He cried with joy as the word painted a picture for his darkened eyes, saying “Ye shall see the green grasses of peaceful valleys and the sparkling jewels of the twelve pearly gates.” On speaking meeting day the old man stood to tell his determination. He said, “Church I can’t see the beauty of a sunset, the glow of the moon at night or the smile on a baby’s face, but I want the church to know that I keep hearing the preacher talk about it and I’m on my way to the land of the “We shall see.”
Jesus said, “I go to prepare a place for you that where I am ye may be”
This place is in the land of the “Ye shall see!”
In the land of the ‘”We shall see God is preparing something for us that is:

—Better than good; richer than rich!

—Softer than soft; and sweeter than sweet!

In the land of “Ye shall see” the wicked will cease from troubling and the weary will be at rest.

In the land of “Ye shall see” the crooked places will be made straight and the rough places will be made smooth.

In the land of “Ye shall see” you’ll have a new house, because Jesus said, “In my father’s house are many mansions!”

Don’t get too comfortable with your newly paved street of blacktop and asphalt, because in the land of “Ye shall see” the streets will be paved with gold!

Don’t get too comfortable with your digitized alarm clock that wakes you up every morning, because in the land of “Ye shall see” time shall be no!

Don’t get too comfortable with your new dress and shoes because in the land of “Ye shall see,” every saint will put a new robe and slippers.

In the Land of the “Ye shall see”

—Those who have fallen will stand on their feet.

—Those who have cried tears of pain, will dry their eyes, because God will wipe all of their tears away!

—Those who are lost will find their way to the throne!

I don’t know about you, but I’m on my way to the land of “Ye shall see”

Mine eyes have seen the glory of the Lord!

Jesus, is preparing that place for us!

On his way to get everything ready He stopped by Bethlehem!

On his way to get everything ready He hung around Palestine for 33 years!
On his way to get everything ready He stopped by Calvary and died!
But early Sunday morning He arose from the grave!
Glory Hallelujah!
Glory Hallelujah!

No. 9572-Anniversary, Pastor

We remember your Labor of Love

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 2012

SCRIPTURE: Remembering without ceasing your work of faith, and labor of love, and patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ, in the sight of God and our Father; 1 Thessalonians 1:3 (2-10)

Introduction

How do you say thanks for someone who has shown you love? Over the years we have tried many methods to show our appreciation for acts of love that have been showered upon us. Some try to buy gifts but find it is difficult to buy gifts that express real love. Some try to write poems but find it difficult to find the right words. This search has spawned an entire industry that presents prewritten greetings cards with just the right words. Yet, even the best Hallmark card often comes up short when it tries to express the love we feel. Sometimes we try to do things like the little child that prepares breakfast for mom on Mother's Day or the husband who plays Mr. mom for a day to give his wife a day of appreciation.

We pause to show love because sometimes those who show us the most love become frustrated and believe they are wasting their time on fruitless and thankless efforts. It happens in nearly every walk of life. Teachers feel that way sometimes. They give their best energy and time to prepare lessons that seemed to go in one ear and come out the other. Parents feel that way, too. Those who work in the criminal justice system often see so many cases of misplaced values parading before them that they wonder whether there is an end to the revolving door that seems to have trapped some in an endless spiral. Those who help the poor, the elderly or the homeless reach the same point. In frustration, many good people often wonder whether they should continue their good work.

It is certain that pastors feel that way because they carry the load of the entire congregation on their backs. They show much love, but often that love does not come back; or so it seems. Some may wonder if anyone remembers the hundreds of hours spent counseling, helping assisting, listening and helping others.

That's why many search for ways to let those who preach the gospel know that we care and we remember. Andre Crouch asked the same questions in his song, "My Tribute." Crouch asked,

"How can I say thanks for the things you have done for me?
Things so underserved,
yet you gave to prove your love for me;
the voices of a million angels could not express my gratitude all that I am and ever hope to be
I owe it all to thee.
To God is the glory!
To God be the glory!
For the things He has done!

As Christians, know the value a labor of love. That's why we thank both the laborer and the God we serve. Today, we remember one who has labored in love in faith and in hope. He has helped us to live this Christian life in a better. To God be the glory for the things He has done!

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he reminded the Christians in Thessalonica that he remembers their dedication to building the kingdom of God.

The believers in Thessalonica were zealous in the their kingdom building work. Paul was impressed with the sacrificial nature of their service. He characterized their ministry as a "labor of love." Labor of Love is phrase used to describe service that is given without thought of pay, that usually goes beyond normal expectations. Those who labor in love usually don't even consider their service a labor at all, but an honor and a privilege.Paul used three terms to describe the nature of the Thessalonian service that details the three characteristics of a labor of love.

First, verse 9 notes that they had performed an important work produced by faith in Christ. They had turned to the true God from idols. Faith in Christ had produced true repentance.

Second, they performed labor prompted by love for Christ. This consisted of their serving the living and true God in the midst of persecution.

Third, they had endurance or the ability to bear up patiently under a heavy load" that inspired by hope in Christ.

These three are essential to any service that is characterized as a labor of love—faith, love, and hope.

The Thessalonians had exercised saving faith in Christ in the past when they had believed the gospel, they were loving Christ in the present, and they were hoping for His return in the future. Their lives were certainly focused on Jesus Christ.

The work of any believer who does the same can be described as a "Labor of love."

We labor because Christ labor

In the local church the pastor is representative of Christ among believers. He represents Christ, but he is not God. He represents Christ in the nature of his faith, hope and love. In that respect we should remember the pastor who labors in love:

HE LABORS IN THE WORD: The pastor labors in word. No believer can be saved if he/she does not know what the word of God says about life and salvation. People must hear the gospel. Romans 10:17 says, "So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God" That is the natural part of the process. But that doesn't end it, because the Word of God is a supernatural book. Without the Holy Spirit the gospel is merely words. With the Holy Spirit it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believes. As we consider the labor of this pastor who has devoted countless hours to study and preparation of the word of God so that he can not only preach the gospel, but answer questions about God and life eternal. We hear the pastor on Sunday morning, but we don't see the hours of preparation. We don't see him in the early morning hours in study or late at night in prayer. This pastor labors in the Word so that he can bring us a message from heaven. We remember him to day for this labor of love.

HE LABORS TO BRING RESTORATION TO US: The believers in Thessalonica turned away from idols and turned to the true God. Those responsible for helping others to make that change had performed a labor of love. The pastor of the congregation labors to restore weak members to the full grace of God. He prays for the Holy Spirit to change lives. He labors on our behalf because he knows that the Grace of God can wipe the slate clean.

Isaiah 53 reminds us that he was wounded for our transgressions and bruised for our iniquities with his stripes we are healed.

Whenever we consider what we once were, we testify that, I'm not what I want to be. I'm not what I'm going to be, but thank God, because of Jesus, I'm not what I was.

We praise the pastor today because he has labored with us to bring us back to the cross when we have strayed. We remember him today for this labor of love.

HE LABORS TO KEEP OUR HOPE ALIVE: When the Thessalonians were frustrated because of heavy loads, there were many among them who encouraged others and kept hope alive. Paul remembered their spirit of hope and ability to endure. In a similar sense, that is also a reason that we pause to remember the pastor today. There have been times when we were fatigued and frustrated and threw up our hands along the way, but he fanned the smoldering embers of our enthusiasm and kept our hope alive. He constantly reminds us that when we work for the Lord our work will never prove to be empty or void. He gives us a labor of love and inspires us to remember God's work is done every time we pray for another person; when we call someone on the phone or send a note of encouragement. It's the labor of love when we teach a child, teen, or other adults; when we paint the wall in a Sunday School room, change a light bulb in the hallway, manage the sound system, play an instrument or sing, work on a committee, or care for the offerings that are brought. When we feel like quitting he lifts Christ up before us. In John 12:32 Jesus says, "And I, If I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me." When he lifts Christ up and we are invigorated, inspired and renewed.

He should be remembered

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember the pastor's labor of love because we know that serving the Lord does have its rewards.

Just as Paul remembered the work of the believers in Thessalonica, we know that God will remember the work of every believer.

He will remember our sacrifices and the pain. He will remember our difficult times and stormy seasons!

He will remember every good deed. He will remember and give each believer something that money can't buy; he will give us the "joy of the Lord."

What is the joy of the Lord?

The Joy of the Lord is the satisfaction of knowing that our little part helps to build the kingdom of the Lord. This satisfaction leads to a spiritual peace of mind that has been described as the joy of the Lord!

It's the satisfaction that a little boy felt when he saw his five loaves and two little fishes used to feed five thousand!

It's the satisfaction that the Good Samaritan felt when he watched the injured man walk away from a battered situation after weeks of laboring in love!

Those who live in the joy of the Lord are recipients of his goodness and are instruments of his compassion!

When God remembers our works He will provide us with his grace and favor!

When God remembers our labor of love He transforms our:

—BURDENS into blessings; CARES into comforts

—DEFEATS into delights; HEARTACHES into hallelujahs!

—PROBLEMS into praises; HOUSES into homes;

—SORROWS into songs; SADNESS into gladness.

Because we labor in love we go into battle knowing that before the battle begins the victory is won!

Because we labor in love we are assured that no matter how tough the enemy, we will be the victors!

Because we labor in love we are not stopped by the tears we encounter because we know weeping might endure for a night, but joy comes in the morning!

When we labor in love the Lord turns our:

—SADNESS into GLADNESS;

—WEAKNESS into strength;

—DEFEAT into victory!

We encourage this preacher today to continue preaching the word, in season and out of season.

Preach, because the lonely need to hear words of comfort!

Preach, because the lost need to be found!

Preach, because the fallen need to rise again!

Preach, because the world needs the assurance that storms may rise and winds may blow, but God is still on the throne!

Keep telling the world about the best labor of love the world has ever seen!

Tell them about a man who loved us so much that He carried our burdens on an old rugged cross!

Tell them how He labored from the sixth to the ninth hour!

Tell them how He cried out, “Father forgive them for they know not what they do!”

Tell them how He died and was buried in a borrowed tomb!

But, Early Sunday morning He arose with all power in his hand!

Remember His labor of love! Remember His sacrifice!

To God be the glory.. for the things He has done!

Dealing with Crazy People

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church

October 28, 2012

SCRIPTURE: "Lord, have mercy on my son: for he is lunatic, and sore vexed: for ofttimes he falleth into the fire, and oft into the water. And I brought him to thy disciples, and they could not cure him. Then Jesus answered and said, O faithless and perverse generation, how long shall I be with you? How long shall I suffer you? Bring him hither to me." Matthew 17:15-17

Introduction

Have you ever had to deal with crazy people? Generally, we describe things that don't make sense as "crazy." When a person talks in a way that does not make sense, we say that person is "talking crazy." When a person acts in a way that does not make sense, we say the person is "acting crazy." The same would apply to persons who drive crazy, write crazy or otherwise perform out of the norm in a variety of ways.

Usually we are quick to call others crazy. Very few people actually think of themselves as crazy. We use nicer terms to describe ourselves: "Individualistic", "idiocentric", "eccentric" or a plethora of other terms. They all mean that we viewed as a little crazy by others.

What seems crazy to others often makes perfect sense to us. The man who wears a raincoat on a sunshiny day does not consider himself crazy, just cautious because whether could change instantly. The late Howard Hughes kept himself shut away in a dark room without clothing afraid of germs; people said he was a billionaire, but he was crazy; he said he was being cautious about contracting and spreading diseases. People who do crazy things rarely consider them crazy. In fact most feel that others are crazy for not following their example.

This is a crazy world. Our nation spends $100 billion or more to bomb a country and destroy its infrastructure then spends $150 billion to rebuild what it tore down! That's crazy.

A poor child stands in a lunch line in school wearing a $200 pair of shoes, $100 pair of pants, a $400 gold chain around his neck, diamonds in both ears, and a thousand dollars worth of gold in his teeth. What makes it crazy is this expensively dressed youth is eating lunch free because his parents said they were too poor to pay. That's crazy.

When churches need armed guards; schools need metal detectors and law enforcement profiles anyone who wears a turban as a possible terrorist, we know we are living in dangerously crazy times.

Such times really challenge our mental stability. Believers struggle hard daily to overcome our fixation on these crazy situations, because we see so much craziness all around us. Consider the two men who stood in the park every day at the same time acting very strange. One man seemed to lean and push against something huge and strained himself to move it. The other man always stood a few feet away from him and waved his arms. They were a sight to see, one pushing and the other waving every day. Finally, a curious passerby stopped and asked the man who was pushing a question, "What are you doing? He asked. "Every day I come to the park somebody keeps putting this big stone in the middle of the road." The passerby was curious because it was obvious that there was no stone, but the man was convinced and continued straining trying to move it. "If I don't move this stone, there is no telling what can happen." The man said as he strained and pushed. The passerby asked the man who was waving, what he was doing. Without missing a single wave, he told the passerby, "See that man over there. He's crazy. Every day he comes to the park and thinks he ís rolling a stone. He's really crazy!" The passerby then asked the man, "What are you doing? The man answered, "He rolls that stone in the middle of the street, I'm directing the traffic so no one will hit it!"

We can do some crazy things sometimes. It's crazy to get mad at your husband or wife and smash up all the dishes, tear pictures off the wall and destroy each other's property then spend the next year trying to save enough money to put them back. It's crazy for two women to fight over a man who doesn't want either one of them. Its crazy for a man to walk down the street with his pants below his behind and then try to run from the police.

The more we continue the more it seems each of us starts to fit into the crazy category. It's crazy to believe that I can never give, worship, read my bible and continue to live in sin and still be blessed! It's crazy to think that by slipping away to a hotel in another city for my rendezvous, God won't see me.

How does anyone deal with crazy people like us? How do you deal with a crazy world?

The only person who is capable of dealing with the craziness of this world is God. In fact, the Lord is the only one who really understands crazy folks like us, even when everyone has written us off.

As Christians, we are thankful that our God knows how to deal with us. His constant love, despite the crazy things we do, gives us a sense of balance, spiritual strength and mental stability that exceeds human understanding. The way God deals with crazy folks like us, gives us a good idea how we should deal with other crazy people; love them, anyhow.

Exposition

This text focuses on a man who brought his lunatic son for healing and it shows Jesus' response.

In biblical times many of the diseases that we know to today by a variety of names were characterized as either being of the devil or lunatic. This was the case when a man came to Jesus asking mercy for his son who was often stricken with a spell that forced him to fall on the ground and sometimes fall into fire. The father described his son as "lunatic."

The word lunar describes something associated with moon. The word lunatic comes from a Greek word "Sele-lia-zo-mai" which means struck by the moon, or "moonstruck." It was believed that a mental disease that is caused by the moon afflicted this young man. They noticed that his attacks usually came whenever the moon was high, and rarely otherwise. They quickly assumed that it was the moon, that was causing his problem and dubbed him "lunatic"

The disciples tried to cure the boy without success. Each time the moon rose the boy's fits returned and he fell into the fire.

Thus, the father approached Jesus with the problem. He wanted Jesus to "stop the moon from attacking his son."

Jesus' answer to the father was simple, "Bring him hither to me."

Jesus rebuked the devils and they left the man, never to return.

Dealing with Lunatics

The way the man sought to deal with his son should give us some insight into the nature of dealing with a crazy people like ourselves.

BLAMING THE MOON WON'T HELP: The father blamed his son's actions on the moon. Certainly if the disciples could make the moon stop affecting him the son would be healed. Jesus didn't speak to the moon he spoke to the spirit inside him. Even today we blame some of our deviant on sources that obscure the real problem. Can a homosexual or lesbian really blame God giving them same sex tastes? Can we adulterous spouse blame the moon for his cheating heart? Can the thief blame society or poverty for his decision to steal from stores or burglarize homes? Can we really blame our sins on the moon? In Shakespeare's Julius Caesar Cassius says, "the fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars, But in ourselves,…." In that momentous line Shakespeare wrote a truth. We can't blame our sinful ways on an astrological sign, the position of the moon or an accident of birth. in reality we are responsible for every crazy thing we do. The father and everyone around this young man readily blamed his actions on the moon. Today many of us regularly blame some of our cultural ills on society. Yet, despite our impoverished history, we have not embraced thievery, lawlessness, and charity as a way of life. We have always been poor people, but grandma would say, "We may be poor, but we don't steal." When we act crazy, we can't blame our crazy actions on anyone but ourselves. We are responsible.

THEY COULDN'T DEAL WITH IT: The disciples, the father or those standing around the boy were not able to deal with the situation. Evangelist Paula White in her book "Deal with it" has a chapter called "Dealing with my own issues." White said she came to a point in her life where she did not want to keep going around in circles, but picked up her bible and asked God to help her face her issues head on! To deal with the many issues in our lives we too must learn to deal with it! To deal with an issue does not mean to "accept it" or brush it off to the side. To deal with it is spiritually wrestle with it with an eye toward victory. Don't accept addiction, deal with it! Don't accept a diagnosis from your doctor as the last word, Deal with it! Don't accept your handicap as life crippling. Deal with it! Don't brush off your anger and attitude issues. Deal with them! The only way to deal with the one really crazy person that you know, which yourself, is to get a hold on yourself and deal with it! Jacob, returning home had to wrestle with an angel. He had an issue, he was afraid of being killed by his brother Esau. So he wrestled with an angel and refused to let go until he was blessed. He had to deal with it. He went home a better man. Are life's concerns prompting you to act really crazy? Get a grip with God's help and deal with it!

BRING HIM HITHER TO ME: The father tried all everything, but Jesus said "Bring him hither to me." In the presence of Jesus the man's good mind was restored. That's the solution to dealing with the crazy woman or man you see in the mirror everyday. Jesus says, "Come to me." Jesus can do the one thing that doctors, analysts, and counselors can't do, he can forgive sin. The presence of evil caused the boy to act crazy, Jesus went to the root of the problem. Today, Jesus offers that same invitation to those dealing with similar issues that are driving them crazy. He says, "Come unto me all ye that burdened and heavy laden and I will give you rest. For my burden is easy and yoke is light." Is there a life troubled by personal issues? Bring him hither to me! Is there a life that seems so out of control that it is acting really crazy? Bring him hither to me!

Keep your eyes on Jesus

Finally, brothers and sisters, the only way to deal with a crazy world that is filled with crazy people doing crazy things is to keep our eyes on Jesus.

We live in a crazy world where on one side people strap bombs around themselves for a cause and on another side they dose themselves with lighter fluid for no cause.

We live in a crazy world that prays for peace and prepares for war even while it is praying.

We live in a crazy world that praises the beauty of every color, but lives in black and white.

The only way to deal with a crazy world is to have what others may call a crazy faith that makes a whole lot of sense.

David dance nearly naked, it was crazy, but considering the blessing he enjoyed, to him it made a whole lot of sense!

On the day of Pentecost when the Holy Spirit descended, folks thought believers were crazy and drunk. However, they were not crazy; they were in the presence of God and that made a whole lot of sense!

It may seem crazy to praise God when you're sick, but since God is able to heal the sick, it's not crazy, it makes a whole lot of sense!

It may seem crazy to praise God when you don't have any money in your pocket, but since the word of God declares that, the earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof then praising God makes a whole lot of sense!

It may seem crazy to praise God when a loved one has died, but since Jesus has promised us life after death with him in heaven, then praising God makes a whole lot of sense!

It may seem crazy but believers are able to smile in the midst of troubles and stand firm in the midst of strong winds, because God is still on the throne. It may seem crazy but it makes a whole lot of sense.

It may seem crazy, but faith in God takes an ugly situation and makes it beautiful

Faith in God finds —Strength in the middle of weakness; success in the midst of failure; peace in the midst of confusion; joy in the midst of sadness; comfort in the midst of loneliness.

When this father found that an evil spirit had overtaken his son, he set out on a journey to find Jesus!

He had tried the disciples and no doubt the philosophers, doctors and counselors had failed too, but he came up with a crazy idea, "If I can just find Jesus, everything will be alright!"

Some people call it crazy, but we have found out that when everything seems at its worse, there is always hope, if you can just find Jesus!

The woman with an issue of blood for 12 long years had the crazy idea that if she could just touch the hem of his garment she could be made whole. It wasn't crazy, because knew the power that could come if she could just find Jesus.

The disciples were riding in a boat out on the raging sea. When the storms began to rage, somebody had the crazy idea of calling on Jesus.

Shaking him one disciple asked, "Master, the tempest is raging. carest thou not that we perish" Jesus spoke to the wind and waves and said "Peace be still"

If there are storms raging in your life, just find Jesus!

When you find Jesus, he'll take your misery and turn it into delight!

When you find Jesus, he'll take your sadness and turn it into joy!

When you find Jesus, he'll take your pain and turn it into gain!

When you find Jesus, he'll take your cross and replace it with a crown!

Others may call you crazy, but call on Jesus

He'll pick you up and turn you around!

He'll plant your feet on solid ground!

Call on Jesus! The lily of the valley!

Call on Jesus! The bright and morning star!

Call on Jesus! Who died out on Calvary!

Call on Jesus! Who arose early Sunday morning!

Call on Jesus! ..He'll make everything all right!

Scripture: And see the land, what it is; and the people that dwelleth therein, whether they be strong or weak, few or many; Numbers 13:18

Introduction

Have you ever heard the phrase it is what it is? It is one of those silly redundancies that we hear from time to time that makes a profound statement in a rather simple way. It is a phrase that sums up a situation without any frills or embellishments by simply stating reality.It's popular within the circles of coaches, business execs, and those of us who just want to say "It's happened. 'I'm going to forget about it. I'm going to move on. There is nothing that can be done about it."

"When NASCAR driver Jimmie Johnson, finished second in the Nextel Cup championship he said, We showed up and gave 100%, and it is what it is."

Sometimes situations are too difficult to explain; in fact, they defy explanation! Consider two women who were discussing the problem one was having with her man friend: "So what's the deal with you and Bobby? I thought you guys were together, but then someone said you broke up, and then somebody else told me you were broken up but 'friends with benefits, so what's the true relationship status? Girlfriend: it is what it is.

There is a dark side to this simple phrase as well. Those who respond, "It is what it is" are generally frustrated with the difficulties life has presented them to the point of resignation. It is what it is becomes a statement of acceptance of a circumstance as inevitable and therefore unchangeable.

Thankfully God does not operate on the dark side of life. He is the God of the second chance, the extreme makeover and the second time around. He is the God that helps us change the "What is" into the "What can be."

As Christians, we rejoice in the fact that we serve a God who can take the "is" and make it better. We are not doomed to defeat or a failed life that we must accept; we can turn to Jesus and He will lead us every step of the way.

Exposition

This text considers the report of ten of the 12 spies sent to survey the Promised Land. Israel had been in bondage for over 400 years, crossed the wilderness and stood on the banks of the Jordan just a few miles away from the land of promise. Moses assembled twelve spies to perform a military reconnaissance inclusive of an objective report of the land inhabited by the strange looking wooly haired, broad featured, dark people who were descendants of Ham. His instructions are detailed in Numbers 13:18-20 "...see the land, what it is; and the people that dwelleth therein, whether they be strong or weak, few or many; And what the land is that they dwell in, whether it be good or bad; and what cities they be that they dwell in, whether in tents, or in strong holds; And what the land is, whether it be fat or lean, whether there be wood therein, or not

The report of the spies gave a factual summary of the land and its people. The land was all they had expected and they brought back numerous items of fruit, including figs, pomegranates and grapes.

The charge to the spies was specific.

The first part of the report was positive, it filled the people with hope, the land is so abundant; life would be filled with ease.

Despite the positive nature of the report there was a dark side. Conquest of the land would be a challenge that militarily speaking Israel could not overcome.

Like it or not the spies reported on what is:

The land has abundance, but a warlike people occupy it. It is what it is.

The inhabitants have walled cities and plenty of military weapons, we have neither. It is what it is.

Though the land is flowing with abundance we don't have what it takes to take possession. It is what it is.

The report of the ten fulfilled their charge from Moses. It was the majority report.

Two men among them arose and declared, "Let us go up at once and possess it". God has given it to us and we should lay claim on our future.

However, the other ten were not confident; in fact they were afraid. They convinced the people that facts are facts, realities are realities, that they should accept the fact that conquering the land was not an option.

It is what it is.

They wandered in the wilderness for forty years as a result.

Dealing with What is

Much of the way we receive life's ups and downs, pitfalls and challenges is centered on the way we view the world. Whether we see it for what it is or for it what it could be. The way the spies looked at their situation provides insight into our own view of life.

THEY ACCEPTED WHAT IS: The spies reported on reality. They accepted as inevitable that they would be a wandering tribe without roots and that the dream of the Promised Land was just that; a dream. They basically told Moses, "Wake up and smell the coffee, there are some things you would like to do, but you just can't. It is what it is." Today, there are many who have a similar view about challenges and obstacles. Whenever there is a crisis, they survey the prospects and the realities and often conclude that it is useless to struggle. It is what it is.

When bills are stacked high and income is low, some conclude that there is no way out and give up in frustration. They say, it is what it is.

When relationships are in trouble or families are threatened some don't even see resolutions, they only see the extent of the problem and say, "It is what it is." Many have doomed themselves with an attitude about life that accepts defeat and failure and resolves to simply walk away.

"It is what it is" is an acceptable idea in the aftermath of a situation. A lost contest is what it is. A lost financial resource is what it is. A divorce is what it is. In this context the phrase simply describes the present circumstance. However, it should not be acceptable if it means that the situation is irreversible.

A man may be a drunk and a deadbeat at the moment, it is what it is. He will be a drunk as long as he accepts his drunkenness as his lot in life. He will stop being a drunk when he refuses to accept what "is" as inevitable.

Our fear sees the worse of a situation and responds, "it is what it is."

Our faith sees what can come out of a situation and says "what it is does not have to be."

Our frustration sees the downside of a situation and responds "it is what it is."

Our faith sees the opportunity in a troubling situation and responds "It is, but it won't be long."

QUE SERA SERA: In 1956 Doris Day produced a hit song called "Que Sera Sera"- Whatever will be will be. It was popular because it spoke a truth that is at the heart of the Christian faith. Whatever God has for us, it will be, despite what is at the moment. That was the essential truth that the 10 spies overlooked in their report. They reported on the "Is" but they did not report on the "can be."

No one should ignore what "is," that would irresponsible. However, we don't have to accept "is." The great benefit of the faith life is to change what "is" into "was." It's for a whole family to stop saying that's just the way we "are" and start saying that's the way we "were." That's the principle behind 1 Corinthians 6:11 And such were some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God

We don't know what the future holds for us, but it certainly holds more than what it is.

We don't know what we will ultimately become, but thanks to Jesus, we are not doomed to "what it is."

We look forward with hope and say, "Que sera sera" Whatever will be, will be. That offers much more hope than "It is what it is."

I AM THAT I AM: The spies gave up when they saw the challenge and said "it is what it is." Had they shared the same experience of old man Moses before the burning bush they would not have given up so quickly. Standing before God Moses was commanded to tell pharaoh to let Israel go free. Moses looked at the reality of what God challenged him to do and gave excuses, literally laying out the facts. He was told to trust in God whose name is "I am that I am." That is the same challenge that believers have today when we are faced with the realities of life. We can either focus on "what it is" or what can be if we are back up by the great "I am." In fact, that is how we have survived so many trials in the past. The "I AM" over powered "what it is" and turned things around for us.

We have learned this truth as we encountered physical sickness and death. There are others that have experienced strained relationships. These are the believers who will quickly testify that things changed when the "I AM" God stepped in and spoke to "What it is."

If the "I AM" God had not stepped in we would not have been able to stand the trials and difficulties of those tough moments.

Financial trouble is what it is. We need help. God says, "I am" that answer!

Sickness is what it is. We need healing. God says, "I am" that healing!

Confusion and frustration is what it is. We need direction. God says, "I am" the way the truth and the light!

Give your "what it is situation" to the God of "I am" and watch how your life changes!

More than what is Finally, brothers and sisters we must consider that the promise of the savior goes further than what it is.

Our God is a God of the past, and of the moment. However, He is also a God of the future. That's why we as believers should not be dismayed by the frustrations of the moment. We are living in the "what it is," but God is operating in the "What will be."

The spies only saw what was at the moment, however Joshua and Caleb saw what could happen when God moved.

The spies saw the walls of Jericho, but the faithful saw the walls of Jericho tumbling down!

The spies saw the shortness of fighting days, but the faithful saw the Sun standing still in the sky!

The spies saw the giants, but the faithful saw giants falling!

It is what is –is a statement of fact, but believers don't accept it as inevitable!

Don't be afraid to move to the next level of your life because that level has devils. It is what it is, but what it is won't be the same when God gets through!

Don't be afraid to step out and try something new because of the prospect of failure. It is what it is, but what it is won't be the same when God turns failure into success.

The closer you get to your promise, the more enemies you'll attract, it is what it is, but what it is won't be what it will be once God turns your enemies into your footstools.

Believers should keep the faith even in the face of tough times.

Yes, there is a Red Sea in front of you, it is what it is, but God can part the waters of your sea!

Yes, you are wandering in the wilderness going around in circles, it is what it is, but God can lead you out if you will just hold his hand!

Yes, you are having a tough time making ends meet, it is what it is, but if I can just trust Him, God can make a way out of no way!

The story is told of the church that allowed its members to complain about what they didn't like. One member said the choir sings the same old songs. Another member said the deacons pray the same old prayers. Somebody else said the preacher preaches the same old sermons.

After everyone finished there was an old mother who sat on the front seat. They asked her for her complaint.

She said, I don't complain about the choirs singing, it is what it is, but God gave me a song to sing, that angels can't sing because I've been washed in the blood!

I don't complain about the way the deacons pray it is what it is, but I know that prayer changes things!

I don't worry about the preacher talking about the same God every Sunday, it is what it is, but I know who God is. He's the same God who brought me over the mountain and I know He'll carry me through the valley!

I don't know about you, but I've decided that while some in frustration and unbelief will focus on "it is what it is" I will focus on what "God is."

You may say it is what it is, but I have found that God is:

—MY HELP in a time of trouble; MY BRIDGE over troubling water.

—MY STRENGTH in a time of weakness; MY VICTORY in a time of battle

God is the source of my inspiration!

God is the object of my determination!

God is the sum total of my revelation!

I won't complain about the frustrations of this life because I know God is still on the throne!

He sits high and looks low!

Our God is a loving God. He loves us so much that He gave His only begotten son!

Jesus came and shed his blood so that we don't have to accept a life a sin as "What it Is"

He died that we might have a chance to live again!

He died that we might have a right to the tree of life!

He died so that we could change "what it is" to what "God wants us to be"

They nailed Him to an old rugged cross and he died a horrible death.

Somebody must have said, "He lived and he died. it is what it is"

But early Sunday morning, God took the "what it is" and turned it into thy will be done!

Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave with all power in His hands….

With One Finger

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: "This they said, tempting him, that they might have to accuse him. But Jesus stooped down, and with his finger wrote on the ground, as though he heard them not." John 8:6

Introduction

Has anyone ever pointed a finger at you? What were they doing? People point for variety of reasons. Sometimes we point to identify people, places and things. We point at planes in the sky, a squirrel climbing a tree or a curious sight.Our parents tell us not to stare or to point fingers at those who may be disfigured of physically challenged.One Voodoo teaching that is still followed by many in Louisiana and other Southern states is that if you point a finger at a grave yard you have to bite your finger or it will fall off.

Fewer people are learning the typewriter keyboard today because most are typing with one finger on each hand, formally called hunt and peck.

If you've ever witnessed a trial, the witness on the stand is often asked to point out the suspect in the courtroom…and with one finger the suspect is thus accused.

If you put your finger in someone's face, you throw down the gauntlet; it's tantamount to declaring war. It has the same effect of raising your third finger to someone in anger. Tempers flare immediately.

In January of 2012 Arizona Governor Jan Brewer was photographed pointing her finger in the face of President Barack Obama. He wanted to talk to her about Amnesty for illegal aliens and she wanted to talk about securing the boards; the photographers captured her pointing her finger in his face.

Yet, one of the most serene images is among the paintings of Michelangelo in the Sistine Chapel is one scene showing the finger of God bringing man to life.

The phrase the "finger of God" is used four times. In Exodus 8:19 Pharaoh's Magicians tried to duplicate the plague of lice and concluded that it was the finger of God. In Exodus 31:18 It is noted that the Ten Commandments were written on tablets of stone by the finger of God. This truth is repeated again in Deuteronomy 9:10. Then in Luke 11:20 Jesus describes some of healings as being none other than the finger of God.

Obviously, there is something going to happen when the finger of God points our way.

As Christians, we are grateful that the finger of God has touched our lives. With just one finger God guides us, protects and provides for us in ways that only he can.

Exposition

This text focuses on an instance when Jesus wrote an unknown message on the ground with his finger.

Jesus sat down to teach his disciples but his session was interrupted when the Scribes and Pharisees brought a woman before him who had been caught in the very act of adultery. They wanted to trick him into speaking against the laws of Moses. Their charge was to be validated by witnesses who were ready to execute the penalty of stoning.

The Mosaic laws were male dominant and protected men in marriage and in social relationships. Although the woman was caught in the very act, no death sentence was brought against the man. Jesus had been defying many of the Mosaic customs, forgiving sins, fraternizing with women in public and speaking unheard of ideas that God was gender neutral.

They expected Jesus deny his own teachings or those of Moses, either which would have archived their purpose. Instead Jesus ignored them and began to write on the ground. What he wrote is unknown, but he wrote a second time as they pressed Jesus for an answer.

His answer was baffling to them because He could not be condemned by His word. “Ye without sin let cast the first stone.”

The woman left and was given second chance to start anew.

No one knows what Jesus wrote, but for that woman on that day, whatever he wrote with one finger turned out to be her pardon.

Finger of God

The symbolic phrase the finger of God usually refers to mysterious experiences we have shared wherein the only source could have been God himself. The Finger of God has touched our lives in many ways.

FINGER OF POINTS OUR WAY: Most people have had defining moments in their lives. It’s the time when a decision is to be made that impacts the rest of our lives. For the woman caught in adultery, her moment was when she came face to face with death and the Son of God. There she made a decision that changed her life.

What was your defining moment?

It’s the moment you decide that I must do something about my future.

It’s the moment you decide I can’t go on like this, something must change!

It’s the moment you see that my present course is leading me toward disaster.

It’s that one moment in time when everything that you have learned, seen and heard merge precisely and you have an epiphany. You sense the finger of God pointing you in one direction or another.

The woman in this text was told which way to go and what to do by none other than God himself.

When God points the way, he will provide the opportunities necessary to achieve his purpose.

FINGER OF GOD HAS SAVED SOULS: Most believers will testify that they once lived another life outside of Christ, but at some point the finger of God touched their lives. When the adulterous woman appeared in Jesus presence she had no idea that her life was about to be touched by the hand of God. The woman at the well drew water, but went running through the city declaring come see a man, when her life was touched by the finger of God. Today, there are millions like these who have been condemned by the world as lost causes. These are the ones who are throwing up their hands in defeat. Yet, God chooses to touch them with His finger of love and lives turn around.

Parents who have talked to and chastised wayward children with little or no visible effect notice instant change when their children are touched by the finger of God.

Many marriages are troubled and leading toward divorce, those that survived ware those touched by the finger of God.

FINGER OF GOD PROVIDES FAVOR: A life that is touched by the finger of God enjoys God's favors. Not only are we favored, but also we are overwhelmingly favored. Since favor is that extra help or blessing we need, beyond what's expected, believers know instantly when God's finger has touched a situation in their lives.

When we think about the many ways that the finger of God has touched us we would be overwhelmed. How many times has God made a way out of no way?

How many prayers has he answered for us? How many rivers has he helped us to cross? How many battles has he helped us to win?

If we count them we can only conclude that God has favored us. Psalm 40:5 says, " Many, O LORD my God, are thy wonderful works which thou hast done, and thy thoughts which are to us-ward: they cannot be reckoned up in order unto thee: if I would declare and speak of them, they are more than can be numbered."

With One Finger

Finally, brothers and Sisters, we must note that with just one finger, God can lift up that which has been torn down and bring new hope.

We can touch images on a screen with one finger and operate an I Pad or phone,

We can place one finger over a cell and gain entry into secret places.

All that we can do with just one finger cannot match what our God can do with just one finger!

Those who have touched by the hand of God share the same testimony.

With just one finger God stopped Jonah as he fled from his mission.

With just one finger God drowned Pharaohs army as he pursued Israel across the Red Sea.

With just one finger God destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah and turned Lot's wife to salt.

With just one finger God ended Job's suffering caused by the devil!

With just one finger God provided for a widow woman to keep her barrel from running dry

With Just one finger God bestows blessings!

With Just one finger God provides His anointing.

With Just one finger God opens doors that have been closed in our faces.

With Just one finger God rebuilds broken lives!

Maybe that's why the old warriors sang, "Hold to his hand, to God's unchanging hand!"

God's hand is his soul saving hand!

God's hand is a wonder working hand!

Every Christian warrior today declares:

With one finger he signed my pardon

With one finger he pointed my way

With one finger he touched me and turned my life around

That's why like the woman at the well I've got to tell the world, come see a man!

Come see a man who with one finger grace made the lame and gave sight to the blind!

Come see a man who with one finger of mercy raised Lazarus from the dead!

Come see a man who with one finger of compassion forgave sinners!

Come see a man who carried an old cross up Golgotha's hill!

Come see a man who died on an old rugged cross!

But Early Sunday morning….

Infallible Proofs

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 18, 2012

SCRIPTURE: To whom also he shewed himself alive after his passion by many infallible proofs, being seen of them forty days, and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God: Acts 1:3

Introduction

How do we know that God is as good as we claim? Are our claims of His goodness exaggerated? Is He really in the blessing, healing and restoration business? For believers, all three of those questions are moot issues. We have seen God do so much and have experienced his presence so many times until there is no question in our mind whether God is good or whether or not He is able to respond to our needs.

There is an old colloquialism that says, "The proof of the pudding is in the eating." It means that the one true test of any claim is whether or not it actually does what it claims. Believers say with confidence that God is a mighty God by simply observing His works in their own experiences. The proof, as far as believers are concerned, is in the answered prayers, healed bodies, and revived spirits they have encountered along the way.

Actually, what believers call proof is actually evidence. We consider the evidence, though not empirical and scientific and validate it as the proof we need. It's called faith. Hebrews 11:1 says, "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for and the evidence of things not seen." We cannot prove anything about God in a way that complies with the scientific method, but we do see the evidence.

Consider the old man who tried his best to convince his grandson that God is real. The grandson had studied in college and came to the conclusion that God is not real, but a figment of the imagination. All of the grandfather's reasoning seemed to fail; it appeared hopeless. Months later the grandson was involved in an auto accident and was visited in the hospital by the grandfather. "How do you feel, son?" asked the grandfather. "I'm hurting everywhere grandfather?" The grandfather looked at the grandson and realized that he had a teachable moment, then he asked, "How do you know that the hurt you feel is real; how do you know that it is not just a figment of your imagination?" The boy looked at his grandfather and said, "Why do you ask such a silly question grandfather, I know I'm hurting because I can feel it!" The grandfather smiled and said, “Ah, now you know how I know that there is a God, because I can feeeeel him in my soul.” - After that the boy no longer questioned his grandfather’s belief, but learned to know God for himself.

As Christians, we know that there are some things about God that cannot be proven. What we can do is testify to the realness of God in our own lives. We know He lives because we can feel him in our souls.

Exposition

This text focuses on Luke as he explains how Christ talked with His disciples for 40 days after the resurrection, explaining to them what things are to come. The resurrection itself proved to be an “infallible” proof of his divinity.

An infallible proof is a proof that cannot be denied. It is publicly verifiable and is not subject to opinion or subjective conclusions. While Christ talked to His disciples about the things that are coming, He began by demonstrating to them that He was truly resurrected by showing them both his hands and feet. They were infallible proof that He was resurrected. Even Thomas who doubted the testimony of the women and other disciples had to accept the proofs that Christ presented. They were undeniable.

Christ gave many convincing proofs of this. The word “proofs” (tekm?riois) occurs only here in the New Testament and looks at demonstrable evidence in contrast with evidence provided by witnesses. In other words, the Resurrection was proven by touch, sight, and feel as evidence in Luke 24:39-40.

The disciples and all of those who encountered Him from the resurrection to His eventual ascension were impressed that what they had seen and heard were infallible evidences that He was truly the Son of God.

Proving the faith

A believer confirms his faith in God through many ways, included among those ways are:

KNOWING GOD PERSONALLY: The best test of God’s existence is personal experience. There are many who have accumulated immense Biblical knowledge about God, but their daily lives suggest that they really don’t know Him. There are no proofs that they acknowledge in their own lives that give infallible evidence that God is real to them. In theory:

They know that God is powerful.

They know that He is all knowing.

They know He is everywhere at the same time.

They know that He is beyond comprehension and they know all that is written about Him, but they don’t know Him for themselves.

Knowledge is great, but the best proof of God’s power is our own experience. Our live show how God helped us overcome the worst situations and lifted us to safe ground.

Our lives testify that He is able to hear and answer prayer. Those who know him for themselves need no further evidence than to see how He moves in our lives and that's enough.

SEEING HIS HANDIWORK: Those who need proof that God exists need only to look at the universe itself. If they would only peer into the stratosphere they will see celestial evidence of God's greatness. Those who look up will be captivated by the beauty and immensity of the stars of the universe. Consider Mars, the angry red planet with its 55 million square miles, the mysterious rings of Saturn and its 19 billion square miles of landscape or Alpha Centura, thousands of light years away and suddenly we come face to face with the majestic power of God.

When we see his handiwork in the stars we are encouraged because when trouble is all around us the word of God declares: "God is our refuge and our strength, ..a shelter in a time of storm."

All around us we see God's handiwork and we know that there must be a God somewhere. We know God exists and is not a dead God, but is alive. That's why we agree with the lyrics of the song writer who said, "If God is dead, tell me what makes the flowers bloom. If God is dead what makes summer come in June. I'm glad I know He lives, He lives in me."

KNOWING HOW GOD OPERATES: Believers know when God has acted because they know from what they have learned in the word and from their own personal experiences how God operates. They know that God moves mysteriously to achieve His purposes and only those who really know Him are able to recognize his presence and actions.

Those who know God must focus on Him and His ways and not the world. Consider the class offered by the smart mouse about knowing the ways of cats. The smart mouse read constantly and often led debates about the virtues of living the life of a mouse. One day, since he had such great knowledge, he decided to conduct a class for the other mice. The class would teach them all he knew about Cats. He posted signs everywhere announcing his class.

The young mice were excited, because this was one of the smartest mice around. If anyone could help them learn about cats, he could.

On the day of the first class, the room was filled with little mice. However, there were no old mice present. Just the little ones. There was a big guy who came too. He sat in the back of the room. The mouse proceeded to lecture the little mice about cats. The cat has nine lives. The cat has fur and great claws. The cat purrs and meows. The cat has peculiar looking eyes. He went on for many minutes. Suddenly the guy in the back of the room stood and showed his teeth and started chasing all of the little mice.

The young mouse ran outside the room and barely escaped being clawed. Several days later the little mouse met a group of old mice and he asked them a question.

"Why didn't you attend my class on cats the other day?", he asked. One old mouse responded, "You know what the book says about cats, but you had never seen a cat yourself. We didn't come to your class because we have seen cats and we know what cats eat for lunch!"

Those who know God, didn't get it from a book, they have tried him for themselves. That is an infallible proof.

The women gave a testimony

Finally, brothers and sisters, we are encouraged because one Sunday morning the world saw one infallible proof of the divinity of Christ: the empty tomb.

There were many who doubted the divinity of Christ when He walked the earth and although he healed the sick and even raised the dead, they demanded proof.

He touched a blind man's eyes with spittle and he was able to see, but yet they demanded proof!

He walked on water across an angry sea, but yet they demanded proof!

He fed five thousand with two little fishes and five loaves of bread, but yet they demanded proof.

Three days after the crucifixion the women came to the tomb looking for the body of Jesus. They found that the body of Jesus was missing.

They did not know it then, but that was the first infallible proof of the resurrection, the empty tomb.

An angel told them"He is not here, but is risen." The angel explained how Jesus predicted his resurrection and how its fulfillment resulted in the empty tomb.

The testimony of the angel was the second proof; because angels are emissaries of God and do not lie, an angel's word that Christ had risen was infallible proof.

The women gave a testimony of their experience. They told what they had seen and heard. That was the third proof,

There is nothing more encouraging to a person who faces the prospect of fighting cancer than to hear the testimony of a cancer survivor. The words of a person who has failed in business and found success after failing multiple times is encouraging. The encouraging words of persons who have overcome adversity serve as evidence that we too can do the same.

The fact that they themselves overcame adversity was infallible proof.

That's why it is important for every believer to share the benefit of their experiences in life with others.

Their testimonies become undeniable proofs that God is still in the miracle business.

I don't know about you, but I don't need to see Jesus walk on the water to know He is God, because I've seen how He has caused me to do the impossible in my own life!

I don't need to see Him heal the sick to know that He is God, because when I was on my own sickbed He touched my body.

I don't need to see Him run the demons out of a man in the tombs because one day he saved my soul and chased my demons away!

I am living proof that God can pick you up and turn you around!

I am living proof that God can take a broken life and put it back together again!

I am living proof that God can breathe new life into spirits smothered in despair!

We are living proof of God's goodness.

Every time we testify about God's greatness,

Every time we testify about God's power

Every time we testify about God's strength, we provide enough proof that no matter how dark it gets, there is always a bright light in heaven.

Every saint can say, I know he lives because "He touched me, he touched me. And oh the joy that floods my soul. Something happened and now I know he touched me and made me whole."

They may have put a crown of thorns on His head, but I have infallible proof that He lives!

They may have whipped Him all night long, but I have infallible proof that He lives!

They may have nailed Him to an old rugged cross, but I have infallible proof that He lives!

They may have buried Him in a borrowed tomb, but I have infallible proof that He lives!

I know He lives because Early Sunday morning, the earth shook, the stone was rolled away and an Angel declared "He is not here!"

I know He lives because "I met God one morning soul feeling sad. Heart heavy laden with a bowed down head. He lift my burdens and made me so glad!"

He lives! He lives!

I'm living proof that He lives because He lives in me!

You don't hear that much anymore

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 2, 2012

SCRIPTURE: "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and to day, and for ever." Hebrews 13:8

Introduction

Have you ever noticed how quickly things change? What's in style today is out of style tomorrow. A new technology today is forgotten tomorrow. In fact things change so fast that our traditional references and names are fading away. In fact, sometimes we date ourselves just by the fact that we can remember some things that you don't hear anymore.

Do you remember when received a call from someone in another city and someone told you "hurry up, its long distance!" -You don't hear that anymore!

Do you remember when 45 rpm records had scratches in them and repeated? Then someone would say, "You sound like a broken record" - You don't hear that much anymore!

When is the last time you heard someone say, "Get up and change the channel!" or "Does your new car have electric windows?" -You don't hear that anymore!

Times are really changing only a few people can remember the saying "If you don't know, look up in the encyclopedia. In a day when everyone has a cell phone, when is the last time you heard someone ask, "Does anyone have a camera?"

Somebody here remembers a time when the fastest way to send a message was to "send it it Western Union" and the fastest way to mail a letter was to send it air mail. -You don't hear that anymore.

Just a few years ago somebody said, "I saw it on Myspace" and someone else said, "Facebook is for kids"- You don't hear that anymore!

If a person couldn't find a job a generation ago, folks once said, "You can always get a job at the post office," but you don't hear that anymore!

If you want to know how outdate you are try saying, "A woman's place is in the home!" or "A black man doesn't have enough sense to be an NFL quarterback and certainly not the President of the United States." -You don't hear that anymore!

Remember when folks say, "I ain't using no devilish microwave, they'll give you cancer." -You don't hear that anymore, just as you don't hear anyone saying, "hang out the clothes on the line," or I have to "wash and fold my baby's diapers."

IBM typewriters? What's a typewriter? When is the last time you heard someone say, "Is there any film in the camera?" or "Rewind the cassette tape?"

When is the last time someone said, "I'm going to B.T.U." or "They are showing a double feature at the movies"- You don't that much anymore!

There are some things you don't hear much anymore, but it should be refreshing to know what we hear about God is still the same as what we heard years ago.

If we look back we'll quickly see that despite all of its all of the changes and innovations of the past including its ups and downs, good days and bad days, God has delivered has been faithful. What we said about God then is the same thing we say about Him today.

Every day he provides new mercies, blessings and favors in the same old way. He hasn't changed!

We like it that way!

As Christians, we praise God for his faithfulness to us and give him praise for his constancy and dependability. . He has been faithful toward us in the past and we expect him to do the same in the days ahead. The world may change, but it's encouraging to know that our God is same yesterday, today and forever more.

Exposition

This text focuses on the constancy of Christ and underscores the assurance that believers can expect from his "sameness."

It is a simple statement of fact. Jesus Christ, the son of God, is the same today as He was yesterday and will be the same forever.

The bible is replete with references to the immutability of God. In Malachi 3: 6 God says, "I Yahweh do not change; therefore you, O sons of Jacob, are not consumed." God made it known in times past that He does not change with respect to his power, compassion and faithfulness to his creation.

In reality God is not affected by anything outside himself. He does not age. He does not deteriorate, wither or diminish in any weather. He is not influenced by the earth, wind or fire. He does not rust or wither. He has no weaknesses, no Achilles heel or vulnerabilities.

God is not subject to politics. He cannot be overthrown from power, voted out of office or changed by a referendum. Unlike people who change who can their mind because of unforeseen circumstances or weak resolution, Dr. Piper says, God foresees all circumstances and has no weaknesses. Nothing in all creation takes him off guard and backs him into a corner where he might have to act out of character or compromise his integrity.

James 1:17 says, “With him there is no variation or shadow due to change.” He is the same yesterday, today, and forever.

Whatever was said about Him in the past is still the same today.

If they said he healed the sick, He does the same today!

If they said he answered prayer. He does the same today!

If they said He saved the lost, He does the same today!

Unlike the world which changes quickly; what you heard yesterday, you don’t hear anymore today, God never changes. What we heard yesterday about Him, we still hear the same today!

What do we hear about God?

Because God does not change, what we hear about him is the same year after year.

WE STILL HEAR THAT GOD FAITHFULLY PROVIDES: We often hear that God provides for the faithful. We’ve heard that God provides food clothing and shelter for those who trust him. We’ve heard how he showered food on Israel in the wilderness for 40 years and never missed a day. We even heard our grandparents say God helped them put food on the table. The good news is even though they said that about God in the past, believers around the world are still saying that same thing today. Like he did in the past, he’s still putting food on the table, he’s still providing a shelter over our heads. We heard he blessed others every day, but we can testify that he is doing the same thing faithfully today. No matter how we look at it; the powerful hand of God has blessed us.

WE STILL HEAR THAT GOD PROVIDES INCREASE: We often hear that the faithful have talked to God and he provided them an increase in spiritual and material territory. We heard that Jabez went to God and asked that he would expand his coasts and boundaries. God heard Jabez and made good on His promise, giving him exactly what he prayed for. We heard our grandparents say that God opened doors of opportunity for them that had been closed in their faces. We heard them testify that opened their eyes and increased their spiritual awareness. Today, the good news is God is still providing increase. It has not gone out of style and His ability and willingness to do so has not diminished. While we don’t hear much about some things of the past, today we still hear believers saying “God is a way maker” and a provider. We have seen God increase our families, increase faith, increase our spirituality, and expand our hopes and dreams. He did it in the past, but He’s still doing it today!

WE STILL HEAR THAT GOD STANDS BY US: We often hear how God stood with the faithful in difficult times. We have hear how God stood with David as he fought off bears and lions attacking his father’s sheep. We have heard how he stood with the Three Hebrew Boys in the fiery furnace. We have even heard our grandparents speak of God standing with them through difficult times of crises in the family. The good news is that today, we still hear believers saying the same thing. God has not changed. This has been an extremely difficult year for some us. There are some families that have encountered physical sickness and death. There are others that have experienced strained relationships. Yet, the faithful among these struggling families are still saying, " if it had not been for the Lord on their side," they would not have been able to stand the trials and difficulties of these tough moments. During not hear much any more there are some things that we said then that are still saying today.

Because God doesn't change his love for us never changes.

Because God doesn't change his compassion for us never changes.

There are some things that grandmother said that we are still saying today.

Can you remember hearing Grandmother say, "Lord Have Mercy!"

She said "Lord have mercy" because she knew that God is a merciful God.

Today we still say the same thing, "Lord have mercy," because:

It was the mercy of the Lord that helped us to recover after a staggering loss!

It was the mercy of the Lord that helped healed our broken hearts and mended our wounded faith.

You still hear me saying "Lord have mercy" because:

Every morning when I rise I see another burden God's going to lift off my shoulder!

Every morning when I rise I see another hill God's going to help me to climb!

Every morning when I rise I see another job God's going to help me to find!

Every morning when I rise I see another investment he's going to help me to make!

Every morning when I rise I see another test God is going to help me to pass!

We heard Israel say it in the wilderness, we heard grandpa say it on the steps, and today we are still saying the same thing, "Thank you Lord!"

The old warriors said thank you because they knew God had blessed them!

Today we are still saying the same thing because God is still blessings us!

If you come around the faithful you'll hear them say, "Thank you Lord for the food we eat!"

Thank you Lord for waking us up this morning!

Thank you Lord for clothing us in our right mind.

Thanks you Lord for blessing me more than I deserve!

Thank you Lord for raising me to heights I have never seen!

Thank you Lord for inspiring me when my head hangs low!

Thank you Lord for saving my soul!

Thank you for picking up an old rugged cross and carrying it to Calvary!

Thank you purchasing my pardon with your own dying blood!

Thank you for the cross and the borrowed tomb!

They buried Him and put a watch around His tomb!

They said He was dead and would never live again!

Those who said he would never rise are keeping silent, what they said then, you don't hear that much anymore!

What you do hear is that our God is able! Able! Able!

No. 9579-Christmas

Wrapping for Christmas

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 16, 2012

SCRIPTURE: "The voice of him that crieth in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway for our God. Isaiah 40:3

Introduction

Have you started wrapping your presents yet? There are many who are still shopping for Christmas and have begun the task of wrapping presents one by one. Wrapping presents for many families is part of the holiday fun, along with decorating trees, cooking and shopping. It's a time of cheer that gives us a hint of what life will be without the troubles that make life so difficult.

A part of this seasonal spirit is the idea of wrapping presents. To some it is just a waste of time; they simply hand their gifts to someone unwrapped. The idea behind wrapping a present is to conceal the contents until the right time. When the right moment comes there is an outburst of joy we share when we discover what has been hidden behind the beautiful paper.

Did you know that God conceals a few things from us for the same reason. He doesn't tell us what's in his bag of goodies for us in the future. It's as if he intentionally hides a few things until the right time. In fact, 1 Corinthians 13:12 says, " For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known." It's as if all of life is a great present given to us by God that we unwrap one by one, each day.

Just as each gift we receive was picked out and wrapped ahead of time, God has a few goodies for us, too that he plans to give us when the time is right. Some we have already received; there are still many to go.

On the first Christmas morning there was no Christmas. The air was cold, the ground was hard and accommodations for a young man and his wife were limited. Yet, in a little town called Bethlehem, a mother by the name of Mary presented to the world a gift that had been wrapped by God himself before the beginning of time.

As Christians, we join the millions who will prepare gifts of love for family and friends. However, none of the gifts we prepare can compare with the gift that God gave the world on the first Christmas morning.

Exposition

This text focuses on Isaiah as he describes the one who heralds the coming kingdom of God as a "voice in the wilderness."

For Israel, his words indicated a return from Babylonian exile. But they also point to the coming of the Church era, when John the Baptist proclaimed the approach of Christ.

When eastern princes marched through desert countries, ways were prepared for them, and hindrances removed. Isaiah's words seem to reach into a future time and point to one that would come to prepare the hearts of the people for the kingdom of God.

Isaiah noted that the voice of the preparer or forerunner would come at a time when Israel, and in a greater sense the people of God, were experiencing "wilderness" type conditions.

When John the Baptist appears in the Gospels, Isaiah's prophecy becomes clearer in its fulfillment. John's voice echoes through, telling those who would listen to, "Turn away from your sins and be baptized and God will forgive your sins." John was a strange looking man, dressed in animal hair, his breath heavy with locusts and wild honey. He proclaimed that someone was coming; someone so spectacular that it was not good enough to simply wait around for him to arrive. It was time to get ready, to prepare the way, to make hearts and lives right for the coming of the one "whose sandals he is not worthy to untie."

The voice of the prophet served the purpose of preparing the people for the coming of the Lord. He announced the glad tidings Nothing but the Grace of God can account for our survival in these perilous times.

Nothing but the Grace of God can account for the milestones we have made along the way.

Each year God wraps up another bundle of grace and favor and puts it, not under a tree, but within the grasp of our faith.

It's a gift that has been prepared for us, by the master himself.

Personalized

Finally, brothers and Sisters, we must consider that while it is great to wrap gifts for Christmas, there is one final step, we must put a name on it.

Some trees will have one or two gifts under them, tucked away in boxes and wrapped in an assortment of papers.

While we are excited about the growing number of presents under the tree, we are peculiarly interested in the one that has our name on it.

When my name is on it, it means that it is prepared especially for me.

When my name is on it, it means that the giver had me in mind

When my name is on it, it means that it is meant to address my personal need. Maybe that's what the Miami Mass Choir meant when the wrote the lyrics that said, "I know without a doubt that he will bring me out, what God has for me it's for me."

The gifts that we expect to receive on Christmas Day are being prepared a few days ahead of time, but the gifts that God has for the world is not something that began a few days before Christmas.

When Isaiah wrote about preparing the way in Isaiah 40, it was about 700 years before Christmas morning. But the Preparation began before that.

When Abraham was preparing for a large family and was given the promise that a child would be born in his family that would bless the world that was about 2,000 years before Christmas morning.

When Adam and Eve were enjoying the garden, but brought sin into the world, God made a way for sin purchased by one man to be paid for by another, that was about 4000 years before Christmas morning. But the preparation began before that.

Long before the dinosaurs, and the T-Rex, the Cro-Magnon and the Neanderthal.

Long before the oceans, rivers and seas or birds split the air with their wings.

Long before the details of the creation unfolded I can hear God say," the world we are going to create is going to produce some good and some bad; but we need to prepare a way for the good to get back to us."

We need to prepare a way for man to find hope when he threatens to give up!

We need to prepare a way for man to find forgiveness when He has lost his way!

We need to prepare a way for man to receive grace and favor in the midst of his journey!

I can hear the Lord say, "If you need somebody, here am I send me!"

Prepare me a body and I'll go down and restore their hope!

The hope that I will give them will remind them that no matter how bad things get, that God is still in control

The hope that I will give them will remind them that despite opposition that we are more than conquerors and the victory is ours!

Prepare me a body and I'll go down and forgive their sins.

The forgiveness I'll give them will take their sins and wash them white as snow!

The forgiveness I'll give them will wipe their slate clean and give them a second chance!

Prepare me a body and I'll go down and grant them grace and favor!

The grace I give them will be sufficient for all of their needs!

The favor I give them will give them life and give it more abundantly!

In the fullness of time it was all wrapped up and the word became flesh!

Down in Bethlehem, the world received a gift that was conceived and wrapped up before the beginning of time!

Down in Bethlehem a child was born

Down in Bethlehem a Son was given and the government was on his shoulder, his name was called wonderful counselor, mighty God, everlasting father, Prince of Peace!

Thirty three years later, a gift that was delivered on Christmas morning, was fulfilled on Calvary!

He lived a prepared life!
He died on a prepared cross!
He was buried in a prepared tomb!
And Early Sunday morning....

Wrapping Things Up for the New Year

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 30, 2012

SCRIPTURE: "And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them." Luke 2:20; "And being warned of God in a dream that they should not return unto Herod they departed into their own country another way." Matthew 2:12

Introduction

Are you ready for the new year yet? After all of the excitement of the Christmas season the final days of the new year prompts each one of us to reflect upon the year that has passed weighing both our strengths and our weaknesses. Just as we gathered the wrappings from Christmas Day and sorted them out saving bows and wrapping papers that could be reused and throwing away others, we also evaluate ourselves in light of the events of the year. There were Some good moments in the year that has passed and there were some moments that we would prefer to forget.

As we wrap up the Year that has passed we now have to look forward to the future with an eye toward holding on to those things which helped us while tossing away those things that have hurt us.

At the end of the year we usually focus on our personal goals and desires and if only for a moment resolve that we will take steps to improve ourselves in the future.

Some have made so many resolutions that have been filed away in drawer 13 That they have made one final resolution; They have resolved not to make any more resolutions, Because file 13 is full.

So, without making any resolutions let's simply look back over the year and make two stacks out of all we've done this year. In one stack let's place the things we did right. In the other stack let's place the things that need improvement. If you are like most people one of those stacks is higher than the other.

Among the things we may have done right could be our employment, our education, our relationships, our finances, our health, our faith and our service to others. For good measure you may want to add our weight and your beauty. All of these could be some of the great things that happened to you this year in a positive way. Conversely, we could take the same list and many of the items on that list could also be those things that highlight our weaknesses.

As we analyze our own performance we must judge ourselves objectively. Have there been opportunities we missed because we procrastinated? Could we have done better? Are there areas in which we failed and can blame no one but ourselves? No one can really answer those questions but us. As we wrap up this year, we must remember the words of the sage: "To thine own self be true."

As we wrap up after Christmas we have to also ask ourselves all important questions: Did we improve this year in our relationship with God? Did we pray more or less this year? Did we worship more or less this year? In proportion to the way we were blessed did we give more or less this year?

Since drawer 13 is filled and there's no more room for unfulfilled resolutions it seems that it's now necessary for us to act upon at least a few more resolutions especially those that refer to God.

As Christians, perhaps we shouldn't say we are not going to make any resolutions, but maybe we should say that we are going to keep the resolutions we make in the new year. Holding onto our faith let us resolve to walk into the next year, stronger, bolder and more rooted in our faith than we have ever been before.

Exposition

This text focuses on what the wise men did after they saw the Christ child.

The wise men of this text traveled from the east following the great star they saw in the heavens.

Such stars had always been thought to herald the coming of great leaders such as Alexander the Great or Julius Caesar. This star, even greater than those they had seen before, brought them to Palestine.

Meeting with King Herod, they told of the wonders they had observed in the heavens and the King faked a devotion to the Christ child. He told the wise men that he wanted them to report to him so that he could come and "worship him also." His desire was not to worship Christ, but to destroy Him because he feared he might grow to become the next King of Israel as predicted in the scriptures.

The wise men proved themselves to be "wise." They did not return to Herod and give a report, but returned home by a different route.

Wrapping it all up

As we wrap up this year we should look closely at the acts of these travelers then extract from it our own life lesson

THE WISE MEN WENT OUT OF THEIR WAY TO FIND JESUS: The wise men traveled a great distance to get to Jesus. No one knows for sure, but some have theorized that they traveled hundreds if not thousands of miles to see the Christ Child. It was obvious that they went out of their way to worship Him. Today, as we think about the year ahead, we should be prepare to go out of our way to be close to God and the people of God in the year to come. That's a tall order because there are so many things on our schedules that we often find very little time for God, although we really want to. We reduce our relationship to posting a few quotes on Facebook and saying a quick praise the Lord when we get a blessing. Yet, God and the kingdom of God require your active presence. The wise men could have sent their gifts by servants with a note that they had meetings and career related engagements, but could not worship Him. They made no excuses, they went out of their way to find Him. If we want to see Jesus, we should go out of our way. A certain church member prayed for a job, but the job required her to work on Sunday. She was so committed to her worship that she arranged to have a two hour lunch break on Sunday and worked an extra hour to make it up. She worshipped on her lunch break; she said it was the source of her blessings and she could not risk breaking the tie. She went out of her way and found a way to make it to her personal altar. We should do the same.

THE WISE MEN WENT OUT OF THEIR WAY TO RETURN: The wise men did not return the same way they came. They listened to the voice of God and returned by a different direction. What we need to do to improve make take us a long way from our normal routine, but it may be necessary to get back to God. To enter the new year another way try the following: 1)Make sure the reason you want to do something is strong enough to make you change. You want to lose weight for health reasons; you want to save money because of your children. You want to worship frequently and give regularly to please God. 2) Write your goals down and tackle your list one item at a time. Don't try to be a totally new person in the first month of the year. Your goal may be the end of the year and your objectives are conquered one month at a time. 3) Surround yourself with supporters who know what you are trying to do and encourage you, but also hold you accountable. Why does a person hire a personal trainer? The trainer encourages, but he also holds them accountable for every breach in the regimen; he knows your goal and is committed to help you get there. Your church is your support system. Among your church family members you find encouragement, but that same family will also hold you accountable when you are tempted. 4) Reward yourself for small miracles. Encourage yourself with positive self talk in which you constantly repeat for your own hearing your commitment to your goal. 5.) Expect it to happen. Start making plans for the celebration you will have at year's end when you achieve your goal. Plan the family dinner you will have when announce the completion of your goal. Plan the day at church when you will announce that you and the Lord achieved your goal. Expect it, plan for it and immediately step into it!

THE WISE MEN GLORIFIED GOD IN ANOTHER WAY: The Wise Men were not Jewish. They were astrologers likely from Persia and other portions of the non-Jewish world, but after they saw the Lord for themselves they left praising God and glorifying Him in another way. That gives us a clue of what we should do as we wrap up after Christmas, we should prepare to praise God more intensely, sincerely and regularly than we have ever done before. If we whispered our Amen in the years past, we should say it a little louder next year! If we sang once or twice last year we should sing more in the year ahead. The wise men didn't know God at first, but when they met Him for themselves they had a new song to sing. That should be our resolution.

Wrapping it up

Finally, brothers and sisters we should wrap up this Christmas season, with praise on our lips and thanksgiving in our hearts.

Thanksgiving is how the wise men wrapped it up and that should be our resolution as well.

Somebody will ask why should I wrap up the year with praise, when all I had this year was trouble?

Somebody will ask why should I wrap up the year with praise, when I had a death in my family?

Somebody will ask why should I wrap up the year with praise, when my father, mother, sister or brother had a setback this year?

Somebody else will ask, what do I have to praise about, my finances fell through this year, and I had to make unplanned moves?

We should end the year in praise because we serve a God who did not abandon us in our trouble.

We should end the year in praise because we serve a God who did not leave us alone when death knocked on our door!

We should have praise on our lips because despite the setbacks of our family members, God showed up on time!

Despite the unplanned moves, God helped us have a safe journey!

We should end the year in praise because He is a merciful God.

We should praise him because with His mercy He:

—Opens the windows of heaven!

—He answers our midnight prayers!

—He supplies all of our needs!

—He blesses us with daily benefits!

We should praise Him because we know that in the new year, He will renew our strength day by day!

We are not going to praise Him like we did before, but we are going to take our praise to another level as we praise Him in another Way!

We are going to clap our hands a little louder!

We are going to sing a little bit longer!

We are going to preach a little stronger!

Why are we praising Him now and the new year hasn't begun?

Because we know when tough times comes He's going to help us in our difficulties!

Because we know that when the road gets tough He's going to hold us in the hollow of His hand!

We're going to praise him now because we know if we praise him now, he's going to pick us up if we fall down!

We don’t have to wait until Midnight on New Year’s Eve!
We don’t have to wait until the clock strikes 12!
We don’t have to wait until the ball drops in Times Square!
We don’t have to wait until the battle is over, we can shout now!
We can shout now because we know the man who who saw:
—THE SICK and made the well!
—THE WEAK and gave them strength.
—THE LONELY and gave them comfort
He saw a world drifting in sin and picked up an old rugged cross and carried it to Calvary!
He died, but they couldn’t keep Him down because early Sunday morning....
You don’t have to wait until the new year comes...shout now!

I am With Thee

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: "And, behold, I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest, and will bring thee again into this land; for I will not leave thee, until I have done that which I have spoken to thee of." Genesis 28:15

Introduction

Do you like traveling to an unknown place alone? If you are like most Christians you prefer to have a little company to help you venture into the unknown.We have no idea what this year will bring, just as we had no idea about the past year. For some it began in marriage and ended in divorce. For others it began with hope and ended with a ring. Some started out broke and found financial windfalls. Others started out with full pockets, but before the year ended had their pockets picked. Some started out wearing one size and ended up wearing another, for better or worse. We have no idea what lies on the road ahead.

In our Christian experience we have learned that it is always best not to travel the roadways of life alone; we need to travel with the Lord by our side. He will help us to enter into the strait gate and to avoid the road the leads to destruction.

As Christians, we don't expect the road we walk to be filled with crowds of people, but we do know that we can't travel the road ahead without God by our side. David said even if the road carries us through the valley of the shadow of death, he was comforted in knowing that "thou art with me."

The songwriter summed it up by saying, I want Jesus, to walk with me. All along this tedious journey. I want Jesus to walk with me.

Exposition

This text focuses on a promise God made to Jacob as he began his journey into the unknown.

In Genesis 28, Jacob was leaving home after a dispute between he and his brother Esau over Esau's birthright which Jacob acquired through a crafty bargain. In anger, Esau pledged to kill Jacob if he ever saw him again.

As Jacob prepared to leave he worried about how he would be received by his angry brother and about what life would be like with his Uncle Laban. One night he made himself a ground bed with a stone for a pillow. While sleeping, Jacob dreamed of a ladder, or staircase, ascending in ramp-like fashion. And on this ramp, in this dream vision, God's angels are seen going up and down.

Verse 13 records God standing at the top of the ladder renewing the promise he made to Abraham to give him all the land of Palestine including the very ground upon which he slept.

In addition, at verse 15, he promised to be with Jacob in his journey and to bring him safely through.

The Unknown

As we face the future we know that we are moving into unknown territory, but there should be several thoughts that we carry with us on our journey.

GOD HAS GIVEN US HIS PROMISE: What Jacob had going into the immediate future was God's promise. It was personal and clear. "I am with you." That's important for every believer to remember because there many who stepping forth into the new year with nothing, but a plan and the promises of God. Depending on His promises some of made changes in our career paths, business plans, relationships, family ties, educational pursuits and commitments to our church. Like Jacob, we have wrestled with the decisions that we have made and concluded that we will step out on faith trusting what God has said to believers like us so many times in the past, "I am with you." In Isaiah 41:10 He said "fear you not; for I am with you; be not dismayed; for I am your God; I will strengthen you; yea; I will help you; yea; I will uphold you with the right hand of My righteousness." That's a big promise, but we have seen what happens when God's hand gets in the plan. In a way we are just like Abraham whose faith did not falter once he was fully persuaded to trust God. Hebrews 11:17 says, "By Faith Abraham, when he was tried offered up Isaac.." So we too shall walk into the new year "By faith" that the same God that was with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob will be with us as well. Moses stood before Pharaoh, but he did not stand alone. When he was faced with the Red Sea he did not stand alone. By faith Joshua crossed over the Jordan, based solely on the promises of God. Therefore, we as believers should go forth confident that our God will not abandon us when the going gets tough as the months roll by.

GOD WILL HOLD US WHEN WE ARE WEAK: God told Jacob "I will keep thee." The phrase "Keep thee" implied that God will protect, nurture and preserve us. Jacob's movement toward Laban was a part of God's plan for Jacob. As long as Jacob moved within the will of God he had an assurance that God would "keep" him "In all places thou goest." That is a references to his physical journey to Laban but it is also a reference to all circumstances that he will encounter on the journey.

In times of trouble and despair those who know God best have certain assurances that should be a comfort to us.

God strengthens and encourages those who are on His side. When the weight of the world gets heavy, God lifts our spirits and we find strength that we did not know we possessed. Psalm 46:1, "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble."

God will never abandon those who are faithful to Him. Though it is tempting to do so, those who remain faithful to God will find that God is always with them. As David wrote in Psalm 46:7, "The Lord of hosts is with us; the God of Jacob is our refuge." We can say the same.

God gives us courage to face the angry faces of our critics and haters? When the words and actions of those who want to destroy us begin to take their toll they will remember, Psalm 56:11, "In God have I put my trust: I will not be afraid what man can do unto me."

God will protect those who are on his side from ultimate destruction. Isaiah 54:17 makes another promise, "No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper; and every tongue that shall rise against thee in judgment thou shalt condemn. This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord, and their righteousness is of me, saith the Lord."

GOD WILL BE THERE UNTIL WE MAKE IT THROUGH: God told Jacob that he would be with him until everything he had promised had been done. The exact words of the text are: "Until I have done that I have spoken to thee." His statement to Jacob seems to answer the questions that we have. How long will you be with me Lord? How far will you go with me?" How long will you hold me up?" That was the question the little girl asked her father who was trying to teach her to ride her new bike. "I'm scared daddy," she said. "I might fall." The father assured the girl that he would run beside her and never let her go until she could ride by herself." For several days the father ran beside his daughter as she slowly found her balance. One day she looked back and he was not running beside her but was standing waving proudly at her. When she returned she said, "You said you would always run with me, but you let me go." The father said, I promised to run with until you could ride by yourself.- You were never alone. Today, God promises to run with us. There are times when we find our balance and do quite well, we can feel him cheering us on. If we falter, he's always close by. He never takes his eyes off us. Psalm 121 says "He that keepeth Israel neither slumbers or sleeps." In Psalm (Psalms 34:15,17-19), it says "the eyes of the Lord are upon the righteous, and His ears are open to their cry. 17-19 The righteous cry, and the Lord hears, and delivers them out of all their troubles. The Lord is near to them that are of a broken heart; and saves such as be of a contrite spirit. many are the afflictions of the righteous, but the Lord delivers him out of them all".

Courage for the future

Finally, brothers and sisters we must consider that as we move into the remainder of this year, we should approach it with attitude of courage.

Just as Jacob moved toward his destiny with a certainty that God's promises would be fulfilled, we should be prepared to do exactly the same.

Today, brothers and sisters we, need to remind ourselves that the same God who kept back the destructive forces that sought to destroy us during the past year; that same God is working ahead of us in the year ahead.
If there is a Red Sea blocking your way, remember he says, “I am with thee.”
Whatever comes at us in the days ahead, we should never forget God’s eternal words, “I am with thee.”.

I don’t know what the tomorrow will bring, but I know what God has done in the past. I know what God is doing right now!

“I do not know how long it will be or what the future holds for me, but this I know, if Jesus leads me, I will get home someday!”

If I can just leave here today remembering these simple words, “I am with thee,” it won’t matter what comes in the days ahead.
Because I remember “I am with thee.”

—There won’t be a CROSS that I won’t be able to bear;
—There won’t be a MOUNTAIN that I won’t be able to climb!
—There won’t be an ENEMY that I won’t be able to defeat;
—There won’t be a BATTLE I won’t be able to endure!
—There won’t be a DARKNESS that keep me from seeing the light!
—There won’t be a trial that I can’t make it through;
—There won’t be a TEST that I won’t be able to pass!

If we fall into sickness or despair, the echo of his words fills our ears, I will never leave thee!

If our friends forsake us and family turns on us, the sound of his words is loud and clear, I will never leave thee!

This promise from God overrides the material!
This promise from God plunges us into the supernatural.
This promise from God cancels the logical and pushes us into the realm of faith.
This promise of God padlocks fear and unlocks hope and optimism.

Do you have any reservations about what this new year will bring? Remember Gods words, I will never leave thee or forsake thee!

If you take the Lord with you during the new year the:
—IMPOSSIBLE can become possible;
—IMPROBABLE becomes probable
—MOUNTAINS that standing your way can be reduced to molehills
If I fall down, he’ll pick me up!
If I make a mistake, he will forgive me!
If I stumble, he’ll hold my hand!

If I can’t find my way, I can say, Guide me oh thou great Jehovah, pilgrim through this barren land. I am weak but thou art mighty hold me with thou powerful hand!

The same hand that touched a blind man’s eyes!
The same hands that were nailed to an old rugged cross in death..
But the same hand that was raised in victory early Sunday morning!
That same hand will be with you all of the way!

Going without Knowing?

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church?

SCRIPTURE:And I said, What shall I do, Lord? And the Lord said to me, Rise, and go into Damascus, and there you will be told all that is appointed for you to do. And since I could not see because of the brightness of that light, I was led by the hand by those who were with me, and came into Damascus. Acts 22:10-11

Introduction

Have you ever thought what it really means to step out on faith? Many people use the term loosely to mean that they are not quiet sure about what they are doing, but they are doing it. Others take the phrase to mean that they are undertaking a venture with an unknown outcome. While each of these circumstances clearly points to evidence of stepping out on faith, they do not mean that one is stepping out on faith in God.?

To step out on faith in God means that we are taking a direction in life that has been inspired or revealed to us by God himself. It is not something of our choosing, but rather it is something of God's choosing. If God reveals a path for us to take, especially one that will carry us through uncharted waters, we are stepping out on faith when we move in that direction. However, if the path we take is our own conjecture, we may be stepping out, hoping that God will bless something that is our will, but may not be His will.

The move you are planning to make, was it revealed by God? The new career you are began was it your choice or a door opened by God and he pushed you through it? The business plan you developed, is it God inspired or profit based? Is it for the advancement of the kingdom or for the improvement of your bottom line?

When God points us into unchartered waters we are stepping out on faith. When we are placed in difficult circumstances as a result of acts of God, we respond by stepping out on faith. The essential element to 'faith stepping" is that our direction should be the result of prayer and revelation. Once we are convinced that our new direction is Godly inspired, then we step out on faith.

Consider the elderly woman who had a neighbor who criticized her for stepping out on faith. Every morning she stepped out on her porch and shouted, "Thank you Lord for blessing me today." The neighbor laughed at the old lady because the old woman obviously had very little, but she was thanking God everyday. One cold winter the Lord spoke to the old lady and she gave up her food money to a young couple who had no heat in the winter. She had no idea how she would eat herself, but she obeyed the voice of God. Though days passed without food she still stood on the porch and shouted, "Thank you Lord for blessing me today!" The neighbor thought the old woman was a bit nutty for giving away her food money, but he went to the store and brought her a month's supply of food and put it on her steps!" When the woman stepped out on her porch, she saw all of the food and raised her hands and said, "Thank you Lord for blessing me today!" -The neighbor shouted out, "The Lord didn't have anything to do with it, I bought you that food!" The old woman smiled and lifted her hands again and said, "Thank you you Lord. You not only blessed me with this food, but you made the devil bring it!"

When we step out on faith in God, He will move heaven and earth to provide for us; even if he has to use the devil to get it done.?Ê When God speaks we must be prepared to move and respond in faith.ÊWhen God speaks to our hearts, we sense it immediately. Then we look and listen for confirmations as God repeats the message to us by sending us other signs and indicators. His Holy Spirit directs us through inspiration. We can test what we sense against the Word of God itself. When it is time to make your move, you will know it; that's when you step out on faith.

As Christians, we trust God in many ways and we move at his command. We may not know all about where we are going, but we have learned that we can never go wrong by following God's command.

Exposition

The text focuses on the aftermath of Saul being struck blind on the road to Damascus and his subsequent instructions to witness for Christ.?

Saul was a religious leader who spent much of his time persecuting Christians. He believed that the new sect was dangerous because he challenged the teaching of Moses. He used every opportunity available to him to persecute Christians. He developed a reputation as one of the most vocal opponents of Christianity.

Having obtaining warrants, he journeyed to Damascus to arrest more Christians, but met Jesus on the Damascus Road. A blinding light knocked him from his animal and the voice of Christ spoke to him on the road and asked, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?" He was stricken blind.

The voice of the Lord ordered him to rise up and go into the city and wait for his instructions. He was led by the hand by those who were with him into the city of Damascus and for three days he could not see.

There in the darkness, God spoke to Saul and gave him instructions to help build the kingdom of God. He had seen Christ himself on the Damascus Road and was to go around the world, into places he had never traveled and tell all who would listen about Jesus.

At the end of the three days, his blindness was lifted. He arose, prepared to go, without fully knowing what lay ahead.

He changed his name from Saul to Paul and became the greatest ambassador for Christ the world has ever known.

Being Led by the spirit

When God has a direction for our lives he speaks to us. In the family he speaks to its head first, then to family members. In the church he speaks to the pastor and then to the congregation. Individually, he speaks to us directly, then sends us confirmations. Consider what it means to step out on faith:?

TO STEP OUT WE MUST BE LED BY THE SPIRIT: God's spirit directs believers. When we are making serious direction changes in our lives we must pray that God will reveal his will "through the spirit." Galatians 5:5 says, "For we through the Spirit wait for the hope of righteousness by faith." Thinking about marriage, a career change, or a major decision in life? We should not do so without fasting and prayer. This is a time we have carved out for God to speak to us "through the spirit." This is what Jesus did before he began his ministry. He was led by the spirit into the wilderness to commune with God. By fasting and prayer we acknowledge that we are not depending on our own strength, but the strength of God. God will speak to you directly just as He spoke to Abraham directly and told him about the Promised Land. Based on his conversation with God, Abraham set out on a lifelong quest searching for a city. The prophet Elijah heard God's direction in a still small voice in the wilderness. Saul received his direction on the Damascus Road. When the Holy Spirit gives the direction, we can be assured that He will also provide the sustenance, protection and encouragement needed as well. That's when we step out on faith, not fully knowing how it will work out, but God has placed us on this path.?

GOD HOLDS THE HAND OF BELIEVERS: Saul was led by the hand after his Damascus Road experience. He could not see his way. In a similar sense, when we step out on faith, we really don't know what's ahead. We are blind. Yet, we have the assurance that God will hold our hand. God will hold our hand when we can't see, when we are afraid, when we are unsure. He holds are hand to reassure us that we are not alone.?

Stepping out on faith in this context means to be led by the hand of God. It's what Galatians 5:16 describes as walking in the spirit. What does walking in the spirit mean? Often a pilot flies a plane high above the clouds or even into clouds and storms. When he looks out of his window he often sees no visible landmarks, only clouds and sky. Yet, the pilot makes it through because he is guided by the various instruments in front of him that tell him when to turn left or right or go up and down. Those who are walking in the spirit are being guided not by what they can see, but by the instructions of the Holy Spirit every step of the way.

The journey into the unknownÊwill challenge our faith, shake our confidence, weaken our spirit, and dash our hopes. Yet, we know that when we can't see our way the Holy Spirit shows us the way.?

IT WON'T BE EASY, BUT IT'S SAFE: Those who choose to step out on faith need to know that the journey will not be "a piece of cake." There will be some scary moments ahead. Israel reached the Red Sea and the waters rolled back. Led by the spirit of God they walked into the waters rolled back like a scroll, but it took a tremendous amount of faith to walk through to claim their blessing.The prospect of death and failure was imminent; there were some among them that wanted to turn back. It is the same with us today.

We see how God has opened up opportunities for us, but the risk involved is so great it scares us. We see the healing on the other side. We see the opportunity on the other side. We see the victory on the other side, but even though the waters are rolled back, it takes faith to walk through!?

When God is preparing to do a miracle for you it may be a scary experience; you may even get nervous. That's when you draw upon your faith and take that examination or undergo that surgery or invest in that opportunity. The miracle might look scary but we should proceed with confidence that God will bring us through on dry ground. Hebrews 11:29 says, "By faith they passed through the Red sea as by dry land: which the Egyptians assaying to do were drowned."

Claiming your blessing won't be easy, but it's safe! We have God's assurance.

We don't know everything about the direction that God is sending us, but we are going anyway..by faith that God will see us through!

Abraham acted in faith. He was led completely by the hand of God. He did not know where he was going, but God saw him through!

Saul began a ministry that would carry him to angry mobs and unfriendly places, but God saw him through!

We don't know what lies ahead, but we are going without knowing, trusting in the Word of God.

Going without Knowing

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember there is a blessing for those who "go" leaning and depending on the Lord!?

For Saul, God's command to "go" called on him to completely change his direction and take up a new cause.Saul did so being led by the hand of God.

Every believer today should know that if God's hand is guiding us, we have a good chance of being blessed and living to your fullest potential.

The hand of God is a guiding hand! Those who let God's hand lead them cannot go wrong. That's why the songwriter says, Lead me Guide me along the way, Lord if you lead me I cannot stray. Lord let me walk each day with thee, Lead me oh Lord, Lead me!

If the Lord leads us, we'll be able to climb the highest of mountains

If the Lord leads us, well be strong even though surrounded by weakness

If the Lord leads us, we'll be able to stand when the world is trying to knock us down!

If the Lord leads us, we'll be able to walk when the world around us is stumbling!

However, there is one truth that every saint who has stepped out on God's word has discovered is that if the Lord gives you a "Go" there is always a "Lo."

For every "Go ye therefore" there's always a "Lo, be with you alway."?

Lo represents the promises of God When storms rise, "Lo" means he'll say peace be still.

When sickness comes, "Lo" means he'll be a doctor in your sickroom.

In the middle of failure, "Lo" means he will give you victory.

In the middle of doubt, "Lo" means he'll give you assurance. No wonder the song writer declared, "Blessed Assurance, Jesus is mine oh what a foretaste of glory divine"?

When you reach a mountain and you don't know how you'll make it to the top, that's when you do like the man who drove an old stick shift car through the hills. Whenever he came to the hills, he pushed down on the clutch and pulled down on the stick and shifted into "lo." When he shifted into low the old car could go!

I don't know about you, but every now and then we have to shift into "Lo!

When doors are closed in your face, that's the time to shift into lo!?

When you tried everything and nothing seems to work, shift into lo!

When you are down to last and your barrel is empty, shift into lo!

Prayer can chisel victories out of mountains of defeat!

Keeping on praising and praying in Jesus' name!

Jesus, the Son of God!

Jesus, the Rose of Sharon!

Jesus, the Bright and Morning Star!

Jesus, who died on Calvary and early Sunday morning, arose from the grave!

Keep praying in the name of Jesus and "Lo" he'll be with you always!

What shall become of his dreams?

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 20, 2013

SCRIPTURE: And they said one to another, Behold, this dreamer cometh. Come now therefore, and let us slay him, and cast him into some pit, and we will say, Some evil beast hath devoured him: and we shall see what will become of his dreams. Genesis 37:19-20

Introduction

Have you dreamed of a better life for yourself and your family? What about your dreams of improving yourself in all respects? What became of your dreams? In 1963, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. delivered his famous "I Have a Dream" speech in front of over 200,000 people at the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D.C. He spoke of his personal dream; it was so broad and sweeping in its appeal that any of the millions of Negro Americans that watched him on television could have easily associated themselves with his words and chanted with him, "I have a dream!"

Dr. King dreamed of a world that closely resembled the kingdom of God.

As the world grimaced at the hopelessness of the Vietnam conflict where a half million Americans eventually died in frustration, Dr. dreamed of a world where the lion and the lamb would live together in peace.

As the world lumped whole races into descriptive categories that prejudged them by conflicting social standards, Dr. King dreamed of an America where all people and all genders would be judged by the content of their character and not by the color of their skin or even their age or sexual orientation.

As the world wrestled with a growing populous of have-nots in a nation of haves, Dr. King waged a war on poverty and dreamed of a world where compassion would flow from every heart for the least of these.

As the nation denied basic rights to many for a variety of foreign reasons, Dr. King spoke of a day when justice would run down like waters and righteousness like mighty streams.

As the world grappled with the growing propensity for violence, assassination, and retribution, Dr. King dreamed of a non-violent world where differences were resolved at the table of brotherhood.

As the world began to question the very existence of God and the front pages of prominent magazines declared 'God is dead," Dr. King dreamed of world that not only acknowledged God, but the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man.

On April 4, 1968 after being stalked, wiretapped, spied on and threatened, conspirators that some believe included the U.S. government itself pulled a trigger on a rifle and killed him. The world felt the hollow, haunting chant "Come let us see what will become of his dreams."

Today we are standing on the threshold that separates the present and the past. We now must ask what has happened to his dreams? Are we closer to fulfilling those dreams or do we still have a way to go?

We commemorate his dream and his legacy, but we should also rededicate the founding ideas of his dream as they touch all aspects of our lives.

As Christians, we thank God for sending us larger than life prophets who bring larger than life visions of what is to be. We pray for the strength to measure up to divine expectations as we work to establish the Kingdom of God on earth.

Exposition

This text focuses on a description of Joseph by his brothers, as the dreamer.

Joseph was the favorite son of his father, Jacob. That favorite son status often drew the envy of his brothers who were jealous of his position. Joseph's position became dangerously imperiled when he shared his dreams with them. The dreams exacerbated the problem because they depicted the brothers in a subordinate role to Joseph, bowing down to him and treating him as their Lord. Joseph's brothers were bothered by his dream, not that the brothers believed they would ever happen, but because Joseph believed in them. They threw him into a pit and reported his unfortunate Semites to his father. Throwing him into what they believed as eternal silence they quipped, "And we shall see what will become his dreams."

Years passed before they saw Joseph again, but in the interim many things happened to Joseph, which seem to threaten the dream, but actually positioned him to realize the dream to its fullest extent. Eventually, the brothers saw Joseph again. They also saw what became of his dreams.

What has happened?

It has been 50 years since Dr. King delivered his historic "I have a dream" speech at the March on Washington. What has become of his dream?

WARS CONTINUE: While Dr. King dreamed of an end of war, it still continues. The nation is no longer involved in the war with Iraq, but hundreds are dying each year in Afghanistan and the threat of war is developing with Iran. U.S. drone planes are pinpointing attacks that are resulting in the deaths of thousands of non-combatant women and children in foreign places. So, what has become of Dr. King's dream? While our nation has not completely adopted an isolationist view that we will only fight if attacked, it has reduced its military presence and is calling some of its troops in Afghanistan and other places home. Wars and rumors of wars continue; the dream of a world without war still lingers on the distant horizon.

RACIAL BARRIERS FALLING: The dream of a "rainbow" of colors and persuasions accepted and appreciated by all is closer to fruition that it was 50 years ago. Legal barriers that perpetuated race, age and sex discrimination no longer exist. Social barriers that separate the races and genders are falling. And the nation is even wrestling with the heart-wrenching idea of recognizing that all Americans have the right to live outside of the mainstream and choose life partners that may not fit biblical definitions. The election of a bi-racial president by a cross section of America society also speaks to the progress the nation has made. The barriers are falling, but racism and sexism still exist. We still think women as the weaker sex and we still think this is a "man's world." We don't openly say the "N" word, but we reverently call ourselves "niggers" and claim its some kind of family privilege to do so. So, what has become of the dream? We are closer now than we have ever been, but it seems there are still many more rivers to cross.

VIOLENCE IS INCREASING: The dream of a non-violent nation was at the heart of King's vision. What has become of that dream? We have seen fewer instances of public lynchings, church bombings and the mass, violent resistance to change over the last 50 years, but violence has taken another form. We have developed a taste for violence that is reflected in our reading material, movies, and television programs. Even cartoon characters fight and kill each other. The most popular video games destroy or blow up something. We are becoming so violent that we think a movie dull if no one dies violently with blood spurting everywhere. The culture of violence is resulting in unpredictable behavior: Over 60 mass shootings in schools, malls, parking lots and public venues have occurred in the last 30 years alone. Children are shooting up schools and writing poems about killing their parents and teachers. Churches have armed guards and gun sales are at an all-time high as the public responds to the chilling epitaph of the National Rifle Association, "The only thing that stops a bad guy with a gun is a good guy with a gun." So what has become of the dream? The violent world Dr. King lived in has changed course. In many ways, we are more violent now than ever, a violence that has even reached its fingers into abusive relationships, battered wives and bullied children. We are obviously, much farther from the realizing this portion of the dream, but we are still trying to make the dream a reality.

We shall see

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that while of Dr. King's dream has not been fully realized, we are marching to a steady beat toward the day of full completion.

Joseph's brothers cast him into a pit and said, "We shall see what will become of his dreams."

Before the brothers saw what became of the dreams, many things happened that they "did not see." They did not see Joseph being sold into slavery or becoming the chief steward a Potiphar's house. They did not see him being thrown into prison and his interpretation of the king's dream. They did not see him wisely advise the king about preparing for the famine after interpreting the dream of the seven fat and skinny cows.

They did not see God's hand in all of these events that brought them to Egypt so that their eyes could see what became of the dream!

The nation takes hope today, because the hand of God is at work arranging events and circumstances to bring about the world order that King dreamed out.

It won't all happen in this sphere, but that world is coming!

It won't be accomplished by a president or a world leader!

It won't be the result of electing officials or acts of Congress!

What we shall see, can only be accomplished by the power of God himself who will establish his millennial kingdom!

When we get to that land we shall see what became of the dreams of our forefathers!

We shall see, a land where swords will be beaten into plowshares and we will study war no more!

We shall see, a land where our streets will be safe, our children will laugh and joys will never end!

We shall see, a land where there will be no rich or poor, but all of God's children will share in the bounties of heaven together!

When we get there, we shall see what became of the dreams of our forefathers.

We shall see, what became of Frederick Douglass' dream of freedom from slavery.

We shall see, what became of Booker T. Washington' dream of skilled and educated Negro workforce!

We shall see, what became of W.E.B. Dubois dream of a thinking and intelligent race of African-Americans.

We shall see, what became of Marcus Garvey's dream of a race that would be proud of its blackness!

We shall see, what became of A. Phillip Randolph's dream of a day when the laborers, cooks, janitors and porters would get their fair share!

We shall see, what became of Malcolm X's dream of people who desire and thirst for freedom by any means necessary.

We shall see, what became of Shirley Chisholm's dream about a day when our leaders will be boss, black and unsought!

We shall see, what became of Jesse Jackson's dream of former slaves moving from the outhouse to the Whitehouse!

We shall see, what became of Thurgood Marshall's dream of a day when the Supreme Court will let justice run down like waters and righteousness like a mighty stream.

We shall see, what became of Rosa Parks' dream of being able to choose a front seat and sit down

We shall see, what became of General Colin Powell's dream of a day when we shall study war no more.

In the land of "We shall see" the wicked will cease from troubling and the weary will be at rest!

In the land of “We shall see” there will be hope for the hopeless and homes for homeless!

What we shall see is beyond our comprehension for “eyes have not seen nor has it entered into the heart of man” the great things that God has in store for us!

If you want to see what shall become of the dream, come and go with me!

Come and go with me to my father’s house!

In my father’s house, there is peace!

In my father’s house, there is joy!

In my father’s house, there is redemption, paid for in the blood of Christ!

Somebody said, let’s put a crown of thorns on His head and we shall see!

Let’s nail his hands to an old cross, and we shall see!

Let’s bury him in a borrowed tomb and seal it with a stone, and we shall see!

But Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with all power in His hands!

Today He sits on the right hand of God and one of these days; we shall see what became of the kingdom of God as it is welcomed into the heavenly realm!

As thou hast believed

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church

SCRIPTURE: "And Jesus said unto the centurion, Go thy way; and as thou hast believed,[so] be it done unto thee. And his servant was healed in the selfsame hour." Matthew 8:13

Introduction

Is it possible to achieve any work, whether it is large or small, without a belief that it can be done?When venturing into the unknown or experimenting with the unprecedented, there must be an element of belief present somewhere. Benjamin Franklin labored over the idea of electricity, the others on his team may not have believed in the idea, but at least he believed. The same could be said of Bell's telephone, Whitney's cotton gin, Edison's light bulb, someone believed even if everyone did not believe.

It has often been said that we must believe in order to accomplish a task.

Many students succeeded in a profession because a teacher or coach believed in them. Many who had given up on their dreams reclaimed them because someone else believed in them.

It appears that the more people who believe the more likely are the results expected. Conversely, the fewer who believe, the harder it is to work faith based miracles.

It's good to believe. It's even better to be surrounded by others who believe as well. It seems God responds to the presence of belief; the more the better.

As Christians, we have faith in God. We believe that through Christ, we can accomplish anything that is in His will for us. As we believe, we receive.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he demonstrated His authority over life and death.

When Jesus entered Capernaum a Roman Centurion came to him asking for help for a servant. He believed that Jesus had authority over diseases or at the least could command miracles into existence. The servant's condition required miraculous attention because Luke 7:2 indicates that he was paralyzed and suffering intensely.

In response, Jesus prepared to go to the servant, but He was interrupted by the Centurion and told that His personal visit was not necessary. As a man who was accustomed to giving orders, he understood the principle of authority. One with authority does not need to be present to accomplish a task. Orders may be carried out by others even at a distance. Jesus marveled at the centurion's great faith for this was the kind of faith He was vainly looking for in Israel.

This text is a demonstration of Jesus' authority over health and sickness and it is also a demonstration of great faith.

The servant was going to being healed by Christ, but he was healed at a distance because the Centurion believed that He had that power and would do it.

"As thou hast believed" is an endorsement of great faith that has been exhibited by the believer. Not only did the servant receive what was requested, but just as he requested by virtue of his great faith spoken without doubt, but in confidence that with Christ all things are possible.

How faith works

WE RECEIVE IN PROPORTION TO OUR FAITH: A repeated theme in God's word is that believers receive in proportion to the extent of their faith, even while facing the illogical. Naaman wanted to be healed and was told to wash himself seven times in muddy water. That must have been a humiliating experience, but he accomplished it successfully because his faith was equal to the promise. If we expect big promises from God then we must have faith that God can and will do what he promised. What's unique about this truth is that your faith does not have to be equal to the promise but equal in proportion. Faith the size of a mustard seed, said Jesus, can move mountains. We don't need faith the size of a mountain, but we need the faith required for the job; in this case it's mustard seed sized faith. God doesn't require you to have giant sized faith, but David proved that Giants fall if we have faith for the fight. When friends and relatives have needs or we ourselves face needs, that's when we demonstrate our faith. Faith in God is tied to trusting God. When we trust God, we are willing to go out on a limb, fully trusting that God will see us through. Even when storms come, we are often like the disciples on the ship, shaking in our boots. Jesus chided them just as he chides us today, 'O ye of little faith." If we believe, all things are possible.

FAITH NEEDS TO BE PRESENT: Scripture teaches wherever faith is present God's work can be done. When the centurion spoke to Jesus, the text shows that he had faith in Jesus, but there is no indication that the servant receiving the healing had any faith at all. However, faith was present in the centurion himself. One third of the healing accounts in the Gospels involve the person being healed having faith. Yet there are instances where it was not the faith of the person receiving the healing, but the faith of others. Mark 2:5 notes that the friends of a paralytic man had faith so great that they tore the roof off the building and lowered him down. Verse 5 says, "When Jesus saw their faith." There must be a spirit of faith present for God to act. When there is no spirit of faith present, God closes up shop and goes somewhere else. The best example of this is the town of Nazareth, Jesus' hometown. They had no faith in the town and an entire town could not be blessed. Mark 6:5-6 says, "And he could do no mighty work there, except that he laid his hands on a few sick people and healed them. 6 And he marveled because of their unbelief." If we want God to do a mighty work in our lives, faith needs to be present. Today, many of us are the recipient's of blessings because of the faith of our forefathers, who like the centurion soldier asked a blessing upon their children and grandchildren in faith that God would make good on his promise despite the passage of time. We may not have great faith, but faith needs to be present.

FAITH PROMPTS AN IMMEDIATE RESPONSE: When a believer exercises faith in God it gets attention in heaven. The text says, "And his servant was healed in the selfsame hour." For the servant, faith required action in the same hour. There are other instances when the response to faith was best exercised when it was needed most. When Daniel prayed to God daily in faith, nothing seemed to happen daily even though he received an immediate response from heaven. However, when he was thrown into the Lion's den, the response to his faith was acted upon when it was needed most. The same could be said of the Three Hebrew Boys. The faith of Jesus prompted an immediate response from heaven, but not in the way men expected. It was exercised most when he arose on Sunday morning. The same can be said for each of us. Faith responds immediately, but swings into action when we need it most. Faith triggers when we need it most, perhaps not when we are knocked down, but certainly when we need to get up. It's like those time release capsules that we take for an illness. They are immediately taken into our system, but they are time triggered every two hours, for several hours at a time. When it seems that God is not aware of our situation, he is working. Keep the faith. It is by faith that he opens doors for us and allows us to step through.

If we believe, nothing is impossible

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should go forth in the year confident that as long as we trust in the Lord, nothing is impossible for us to achieve.

The centurion believed in the power of God to move beyond the moment and extend himself to where his servant lay.

We should have that level of faith as well.

There can be no increase in wisdom, maturity, and favor with God and man unless there is a proportionate increase in our faith.

We need to increase our faith in our own abilities, assisted by the power of God.

We need to increase our willingness to step out on God's word although the waters and storms of life are raging.

The just shall live by faith. That means we walk with the Lord, not in the same old beaten path, but every year we climb higher.

As we have believed we increase from weakness to strength.

As we have believed we increase from defeat to victory.

As we have believed we increase from discouragement to hope.

As we have believed we increase from loneliness to comfort.

As we have believed we increase from trouble to peace of mind.

If we increase our faith this year we can do the impossible!

If we increase our faith we can reach the unreachable!

If we increase our faith we can achieve the impossible!

In the midst of fearful times, there is a reason for joy, it's a strange combination, only enjoyed by those who have uninterrupted faith in the Lord.

Those who have faith can:

—stay CALM in midst of crises

—have PEACE in the midst of problems

—enjoy GLADNESS in the midst of sorrow

—receive ASSURANCE in the midst of afflictions!

—press on in the midst of pain.

—be FRUITFUL in a time of famine!

This faith we need for the year has been secured for you by a God who loves you. I know it's true because John 3:16 says, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life."

This faith has been assured to you by a savior who said in John 15:13, "Greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends."

This is the faith that has been declared to you by a savior who promised us that no weapon formed against you shall prosper as long as you stay in the will of God.

This is the faith that was proven to you on an old rugged cross on Calvary's Hill!

This is the faith that was proven with nail scarred hands, a wounded side and a bowed down head!

This is the faith that was proven Early Sunday morning when He arose from the grave!

Punt Decisions can change your game

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 2, 2013

SCRIPTURE: "But Caleb quieted the people before Moses and said, "Let us go up at once and occupy it, for we are well able to overcome it."-Numbers 13:30

Introduction

Have you ever tried to move forward with your life, but burned out along the way? If so, you are not alone. There are millions who have tried to tackle a problem with all of the energy and spirit they possessed, but ended up in the same position or did not advance enough to warrant more effort. That's when many people give up and walk away. They say, "Take this life and shove it." They have the same attitude about their marriage, education, career and spiritual development.

There are others who have found such situations challenging, but they refuse to give up. They did the unthinkable, they went forward, with a new life plan that left their critics scratching their heads.

In football, these are called punt situations. A team is given four tries to show at least 10 yards of progress. If they can't they give up the ball. The problem with giving up the ball is that usually it will put your opponent closer to scoring. So, if a team fails three times, it will kick the ball to its opponent on the last try. The idea is to give up the ball, but to kick it so far back that the opponent is not close to the goal.

It's almost understood; a fourth down will mean a punt. At this point the team will bring in the kicker. There is also the option of trying that last run and hoping for the best.

In life the decision we make in our 4th down situation could be a game changer. We've tried several times, but failed. We can try again using the same methods, but we would probably fail again. If you've been earning the same money for the last 10 years, earning more will require you to acquire more skills or assume more responsibility. We have to either change our plan or punt. No progress in your marriage? It's fourth down; punt or go for it!

Football teams know there will be punt situations so they spend $300 million a year to hire men to kick the ball. According to Sports Illustrated, kickers earn an average of $868,000 a year. Punting is serious business in the NFL. Super Bowl Historians note that decisions to punt can be game changers so most teams recruit super punters. The Most punts in a career record is held by Mike Eischeid with 17. When the New York Giants played Baltimore in Super Bowl 35 Kyle Richardson punted 10 times and in the same game Brad Maynard punted 11 times. In Super Bowl 23 Lee Johnson punted 63 yards.

What if a team decides not to punt at all; even in 4th down situations? What if a coach says, "We're not going to punt because punting gives the advantage to the other side, but we can't try the plays we've tried before either?" What if we try a different play on the 4th down?

It's never been done in the NFL, but there is a team in Pulaski Arkansas that has won multiple titles and championships since 2009 without punting the ball more than three times in three years; even then it was just to give the punter some practice when the team was far ahead.

The coach of the team, Kelvin Kelly says punting is giving up. So he turned punting situations into winning situations. He kicked the ball, but kicked it to his receivers or used on side kicks. He refused to kick the ball to his opponents and give them an advantage.

That probably won't happen in the NFL, but it works for Pulaski Academy.

It can work in life, too. If our punt situations become offenses rather than defensive plays of frustration and defeat, we'll get a different outcome.

The difference between the winners and losers in life is not decided by who can run fastest or who is the swiftest in the crowd. It is often decided by those show they can make game changing decisions. Among those decisions is the decision to go forth in marriages, relationships, business endeavors, educational pursuits, political campaigns and any other pursuit in life. Often the decision to punt or not to punt can change the game.

As Christians, we know what it means to rely on the strength of God. Those who are inspired by the passion and courage of the savior, know that it is never a good idea to count a good man out. Don't expect him to punt and give up on life. When knocked down, he may do the unthinkable and rise again.

Exposition

This text focuses on the response of Caleb after the report of the 12 spies that had been sent to investigate the prospects of the promised land.

Israel's journey to the promised land was historic. They spent 430 years in slavery in Egypt. Though their fighting age men were nearly 600,000 in number, they were untrained militarily and unskilled at self management. Yet they moved in a wave of hope and expectation, toward the promised land.

Once there, Moses selected 12 spies, one from each tribe, to go into the land and confirm God's promise.

The spies discovered that the land was truly fertile and rich with all the resources to support the people. However, 10 of the 12 spies also gave the down side of their report. The land was fertile but there were too many obstacles preventing a successful invasion.

Because of God's promise, Joshua and Caleb felt confident enough to say "we are able to possess it." Not by their own strength, but because they would be supported by the power of the almighty God.

Despite the promising report the people listened to the majority. In Chapter 14 verse 1, they began to complain and weep about the difficulty of their situation. Their final conclusion was to give up the struggle. They wandered around in the wilderness for 40 years, until the entire generation of adults that participated in the faithless decision died. In their old age, Joshua and Caleb still gave the same report: "Let us go up at once, and possess it!"

Their decision not to "go for it" was a game changing decision that set them back 40 years.

What to do at 4th Down

ANTICIPATE 4TH DOWN SITUATIONS: Good coaches know that there will never be a game in which there is not a 4th down situation. Because they are inevitable, teams spend considerable time preparing for 4th down situations: What to do if its 4th down and its goal to goal; what about 4th and long or 4th and one yard to go? In life we must prepare for the inevitable. It is logical to assume that sooner or later we will face financial trouble, sickness, death or setbacks. It is wise to prepare for these. We prepare fiscally, but we also prepare spiritually. Believers attend bible study, Sunday School and worship to build up strength and knowledge for 4th down situations. The coach who does not anticipate 4th down situations is a sorry coach. The family leader must anticipate the logical and foreseeable and plan a spiritual response that draws on the power of God's word.

CONSIDER GOING FOR IT: Anticipating 4th downs does not mean you only need to know how to punt, but perhaps it can also mean to have a way to victory despite the setback. There are many believers who decide to "go for it." Going for it may require a special play to succeed. One football play is called the "Statue of Liberty." In this play the quarterback fakes a pass to a receiver, but his free hand hands off to a running back who sweeps around behind him as he stands like the Statue of Libery and gains ground. It was a special play designed for a special situation. To go for it may require us to retrain ourselves. It may mean having alternatives prepared to confuse the enemy and achieve the victory. The decision made in this situation is often a game changer. It is certain however, if you have not been able to gain ground with your regular plays, it's a no brainer that "going for it" with the same plays may not be the best route to take.

IF YOU MUST PUNT, PUT YOUR FOOT IN IT: There may come a time when you feel you must punt. Even the Pulaski Arkansas team punted three times. If you must punt, put your foot in it. When Samson was blinded and captured by the Philistines he asked God for strength to perform one more feat of strength. He placed his arm around the pillars of the temple and brought down the entire structure killing thousands of Philistines. He had to let go, but when he went he took down plenty with him. If you find yourself in a situation where you must punt then be prepared to "put your foot in it." There are punters who can punt the ball over 60 yards; when they are brought into the game they are expected to "put a foot" on the ball. Punting does not mean that you get a pistol and shoot up everybody. It means you may face a set back, but you give up the ball in a way that will give you the best long term advantage. If you lose a job, don't cuss out the boss when you walk out the door; you need the reference.Iif you divorce don't depart as enemies; if you lose a contest, shake hands with your opponents, so he'll shake yours when you defeat him next time. If we lose control of our finances, then we must try to get long term advantage from the situation by retraining ourselves financially. The same applies for relationships, business and spiritual development. Put your foot in efforts to gain the most advantage in the long term.

Crown of Victory

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that every player in a Super bowl wants to get a super bowl ring to wear on his finger, but every Saint is trying to get a golden crown.

When a team comes out of a locker room and runs onto the field it has one thing on its mind; winning.

So it is with every believer. Each day we step forward into the super bowl of life, we should do so with a positive attitude that is reflected in Philippians 4:13, I can do anything that strengthens me, through Christ.

Even if we have faced punt situations and have fumbled, with God's help we have a chance to turn a losing situation into a winning situation!

Even though we've had to punt, God gives us another chance to turn:
—defeat into victory!
—Shame into respect!
—Disgrace into honor!
—Fear into Faith!
—Desperation into hope!
—Sorrow into Joy!
—Eternal Death into Eternal Life!

If a team makes it to the Super Bowl, it does not matter whether it wins or loses; the team members get a Super Bowl Ring; it is the symbol of their success.

To get that ring each player is willing to endure pain and punishment as they struggle for inches and yards of turf to make touchdowns.

To get that ring they take hits, fall down and get back up again!

To get that ring they give everything they have with all of their hearts/1"

But there is a reward for believers that is greater than a Super bowl ring.

It's what Paul told Timothy in 2 Timothy 4:8 "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."

When we wear our crown, we'll sing a new song!

Victory is mine, Victory is mine. I told Satan to get thee behind Victory today is mine!

To guarantee that crown, Jesus was crucified on an old rugged cross!

There were not crowds cheering or bands playing!
There was no half time show or million dollar commercials
When Jesus died out on Calvary, there was no two minute warning!
They buried him in a borrowed tomb..
But early Sunday morning…..

Whence Camest Thou? and Whither Wilt Thou go?

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 10, 2013

SCRIPTURE: "And he said, Hagar, Sarai's maid, whence camest thou? and whither wilt thou go? And she said, I flee from the face of my mistress Sarai." Genesis 16:8

Introduction

Do you remember the song, "Nobody knows the trouble I see?" The old Negro spiritual spoke of the loneliness of the journey for the African-American slave. Nobody knows, but Jesus. The African-American woman could sing that same song with equal passion. Nobody really knows her struggles and frustrations, nobody knows, but Jesus.

It's been 147 years since slavery ended in America, but the black woman is still singing, "Nobody the trouble I see." No family among us has survived with a "Muh-Dear", "Granny", "Aunt-tee" who seemed able to do the miraculous, stand against the odds, and exercise the strongest faith in the world.

It seems that God has always touched women in every generation to rise above the norm and speak, lead and champion the cause of their families specifically or our race in general.

We know the names of history: Sojourner Truth, Harriet Tubman, Rosa Park and Phyllis Wheatley. They are the champions we study about in school as they fought against slavery, prejudice and the right of our people to be free.

Yet, while we know much about the women of national history, too often we know very little about the women in our own families. We don't know the troubles she has seen in her life or the trouble that she faces each day. Very few know what she thinks about or what troubles her heart. Very few know what frustration she has endured to provide for her family. In the play "Happy Ending" by Douglas Turner Ward, a son is upset that his mother who is a maid for a rich family, accepts such a lowly a degrading position. He belittles her for scrubbing floors and bowing and scratching. When she came home crying because the family she worked for broke up, the boy was upset that she was crying over white folks problems. Then he learned that they ate steaks everyday out of the boss' freezer. The fine suits he wore were from the boss' closet. If the boss and his wife broke up, they wouldn't need a maid and the steaks and suits would stop. With that knowledge, the son began to cry, too. He didn't know.

Nobody knows, but Jesus.

Nobody knows how our mothers and grandmothers became our first beauticians using straightening combs and twirlers. Nobody knows how she could endure the scent of all that singhed hair. Nobody knows how made up for what she didn't have by using paper bag strips to roll and tomato paste cans to roll and curl hair. Nobody knows how she was able to find so many uses for lard, including greasing the legs of the girls before they went to church.

Nobody knows how she stood beside her man in difficult times, endured his frustration when he failed then held things together in the family without ever making him feel that he was less of a man or a failure.

Nobody knows, but Jesus.

Our history is that of great women who seemed to have been equipped with the essentials necessary to address the circumstance of the family. In the time in which they lived, they had what it took to get the family through. Whether it was courage, scholarship or willingness to rise above depravation, God always seemed to use them in peculiar ways, as if they were born for such a time as this.

As Christians, we salute the African-American woman because God has used her beauty, courage and strength throughout the generation to help lift our race. Very few know from whence she has come. In fact, it seems that nobody knows, but Jesus.

Exposition

The text focuses on Hagar, a black woman, who was troubled in the house of Abraham until she was met by an Angel.

Abraham was frustrated in his marriage to Sarai because his wife did not bear him any children. God made him a promise of a great family, but he and his wife were aging without any offspring. Sarai decided to allow her young maid to bear a child for her husband. The woman's name was Hagar, an African woman. At age 86, it was announced that Abraham would be a father.

There was joy in the tent, but bad feelings developed between the young fertile Hagar and the old and infertile Sarai, especially after Sarai seemed to flaunt her pregnancy before Sarai. Verse 5 says Sarai felt contempt in Hagar's manner.

Eventually, Hagar fled from the household, unable to bear the criticisms and envy of Sarai who seemed to punish her for doing her job. She did what she was asked to do and was humiliated afterwards.

An angel of the Lord found her in the wilderness and asked her "Whence camest thou, and whiter wilt thou go?" It was a challenging question because it prompted Hagar to consider her past journey, her present and to look at her future. The angel told Hagar not to run from her circumstance, but to return to Abraham's house and continue her service.

The angel went even further. He told her of her present condition: that she was pregnant. She told her that she would bear a son and what type of person he would be. He also told her about her future: that she would be the mother of a great nation.

She knew the angel spoke for God. In verse 13 it recorded, "And she called the name of the Lord that spake unto her, Thou God seest me: for she said, Have I also here looked after him that seeth me."

She returned and did what she had to do, confident that God had seen from whence she had come, knew her present situation, and prepared a great blessing for her in the future.

Abraham and Sarai didn't know her troubles, but there, in the wilderness, God showed that he not only knew what she has been through, but that he offers her a bright future.

What God Sees

The fact that God saw Hagar's condition and felt her sorrow should be a message to other women of African descent as well.

GOD SEES WHERE WOMEN HAVE BEEN: Just as Hagar was found in the wilderness and told about her journey away from Abraham, God also knows the tough journey women have endured today. For the most part the quest of Black women has been the desire for respect. That was the theme of a popular song by Aretha Franklin that sold millions of copies a generation ago, and is still sung today, R-E-S-P-E-C-T. Despite her strength, beauty and intrinsic power, Black women have found it difficult to get respect. White men have used her, black men have abused her and her self esteem has been trampled. In the present it is even more frustrating to older black women to see young black women refer to themselves as "B's" and "H's." That's why the Staple Singers produced a song entitled "Respect yourself." Mavis Staples said, "If you don't respect yourself ain't nobody gonna give a hoot," about you. Zora Hurston in her book Their eyes were watching God painted a picture of a grandmother who wanted her granddaughter to achieve what she called high ground that would bring her respect. Nobody knows what it's like to have done so much for the family or the race then, not receive the respect deserved. Nobody knows, but Jesus.

GOD SEES WHERE WOMEN ARE TODAY: The angel told Hagar how to respond to her present situation; He told her to do what she had to do. In that same sense women today are doing just as Hagar did, they are "doing what they gotta do." Though most women would like the privilege of being a stay home mom with a working husband, that is often not the case; she does what she has to do to keep the lights on and food on the table. She does what she has to do to provide for the health and welfare of her family. God sees women struggling to overcome sex discrimination in the workplace, abuse in the home and loneliness of single parent, but heaven smiles when grab hold to the ring of faith and woman-up! To woman-up is to play the game of life with dignity and grace. A woman may live in a shanty house with wooden floors or in a high rise apartment, but those floors and that apartment will be kept clean and spotless. She may not have a new dress for every occasion, but what she wears is always neat and clean. God sees today's woman striving to be a woman of integrity, true to her husband, respecting her vows and remaining a woman a faith. Nobody knows her troubles, but in the wilderness of her struggle God sees her and responds. Nobody, knows but Jesus!

GOD SEES WHERE WOMEN ARE GOING: The angel told Hagar about her future. He told her that God had a blessing for her because of her troubles. Today, God paints a bright future for women on the canopy of time. Women are rising to take their place in the world. Gone are the days when women were kept ignorant, doomed to lives filled with dish pans and wash pots. Women are rising to heads of corporations, positions of leadership on local and world scene. To prepare women must continue to prepare themselves for the destiny that is sure to come. Black women must achieve the highest education possible, polish their talents and learn the art of 21st century networking to achieve their dreams. Women must become literate: today that means you send and receive email, read blogs and newsletters, know how to prepare a resume'; and have skills other than talking on the phone and shopping. To prepare for the future ahead our girls need mentors who will teach them how to walk, talk, and carry themselves as they prepare for their upward climb. Nobody knows what God has in store for women, because eye hath not seen nor hath it entered the heart of man to even imagine of the great things God has in store for those who trust Him!

Whither wilt thou go?

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider not only where women have been, but where women are going who follow the Lord.

We know that Hagar in this text went back to Abraham following the command of God and she was blessed.

Where does the woman of faith today, go? What does she do?

If we want to know where women are going then we should follow the trail of women of God from the past and go in the same direction.

If we follow the trail of Hannah it will find her telling the Lord to take her child and raise him in his courts.

If we follow the trail of Ruth, we'll hear her say, "Your people shall be my people and my your God shall be my God."

If we follow the trail of the woman at the well, we'll hear her say, "Come see a man who told me all I've ever done."

There may be many women who are frustrated because nobody seems to know or care about their circumstance. However, there is another crowd that likes the second part of that phrase, Nobody knows, but Jesus.

The fact that Jesus knows and cares has lifted the spirits of the faithful over the generations and made following the Lord is a rewarding experience.

Because the Lord knows from whence we have come and whither we are going, we worship Him with the:

-spirit of Mary of Bethany

-power and strength of Deborah

-grateful and humble heart of Mary Magdalene

-faith of Ruth and the enduring hope of Rahab

Whither is the woman of faith going? She can only answer that question with a question, ‘“Where can I go, but to the Lord?

In my time of trouble, where can I go but to the Lord?

In my time of confusion, where can I go but to the Lord?

In my time of frustration, where can I go, but to the Lord?

The song writer said, “I must tell Jesus, all of my troubles, Jesus can help me Jesus alone.”

Like every woman of faith of our past, today’s believing women must continue to tell the world of the goodness of the Lord!

I must tell them how He touched my life one day, picked me up and turned me around.

I must tell them how He picked up an old rugged cross and carried it up Golgotha’s hill!

I must tell them that He died for me..

But early Sunday morning ...

He arose with all power in His hands!

Shall We Look for Another?

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church

SCRIPTURE: And said unto him, Art thou he that should come, or do we look for another? Matthew 11:3

Introduction

Do have a special person that you admire and want to emulate? Most of us have focused on someone in our lives! That's the person we admired so much that we said, ''I'm going to be just like him when I grow up!"We study the people we admire. We read books about them, study their life styles, and copy their unique skills. Millions of young athletes practiced Kareem's sky hook, Arthur Ashe' s serve or Michael JordanÕs gazelle like float through the air. How many youth have tried to Camel Walk like James Brown or moonwalk like Michael Jackson? Whether itÕs the giant fro of Angela Davis or the dreds of Whoopi Goldberg, we are often impressed with the lifestyles of others. There are millions who wear their hair like one star, dress like another star, and live like another. If the life we dream about living is a puzzle then the lives of those we admire are the box tops we study to achieve perfection.

It's always amazing that when a great person moves off the scene his generation always says there will never be another. Yet, there always seems to be another conceived in the mind of God to respond to the needs of each generation. After Frederick Douglass there was Booker T. Washington, Douglass spoke to the problem of slavery, Washington spoke to problem of life after slavery; After William Dubois there was Marcus Garvey. Dubois spoke to our need to intellect and scholarship, but Garvey spoke to our need for self-respect and pride. After A. Phillip Randolph there was Martin Luther King. Randolph addressed our need organization respect before the law but King spoke to our need for justice and basic civil rights. After Jesse Jackson there is Barack Obama. Jackson spoke of our need for political strength and spiritual hope, but Obama speaks to our need for fairness and opportunity to all.

In every generation of youth God has another. Another King, Another Obama. Another Beyonce. Another Rosa Parks. Is that you or should we look for someone else?

There are many who waste years looking for the Next talented leader in various areas of pursuit, often the person we seek is right in front of our eyes, but we never notice them.

Where is the next one? We tend to look for greatness in some place other than our own hometown. Even our friends often doubt our capacity to do great things because they think they know us. When tell them about our dreams to become lawyers, doctors, educators, scientists or other lofty areas of profession requiring skill or special training, they often listen to us but are privately but our ability to achieve our dream.

Is there anything to hard for God to do? Can He use someone from our town to open the doors of invention, discovery or opportunity?

As Christians, we know that God is able touch the humblest life and use it for His service. As Christian youth look at their own lives, they should never doubt their own ability because with God all things are possible.

Exposition

The Old Testament closed with Israel waiting for the coming of a deliverer or savior who was often referred to as Elijah. They had seen the works of the great prophets of old Samuel, Elijah and Elisha. They had heard the oracles of Jeremiah, Amos and Isaiah. Yet, as the nation struggled to restore itself they looked forward with hope for the coming of the next Elijah or the next Joshua; someone who would lead them back to the days of their glory.

When Jesus began his ministry He went to be baptized by John. On that day a voice from heaven was heard and a dove hovered over his head and said,This is my beloved son in whom I am well pleased It was obvious to all present that He was the chosen one of God.

From his prison cell John sent two of his disciples to ask Christ a question, that should have been obvious: Art thou he that should come, or shall we look for another.Scholars think John knew the answer to the question, but sent his disciples to confirm their belief. He wanted them to know with the same certainty he possessed that Jesus was the one sent from heaven. What was Jesus answer? It came in Matthew 11:5The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, and the poor have the gospel preached to them.

His works were his best evidence.

Anointed to Serve

God anoints persons in every generation to receive the baton in the next leg of the circle of life. Since that is true we should consider that:

OUR POTENTIAL GREATNESS REVEALS ITSELF EARLY: Potential reveals itself early in life. A child destined to be a great teacher starts showing that ability as a child. When children play she is always the teacher, the scholar or learner. The inventor begins to imagine things as a child and search for new answers to old questions. The gifts are not hidden because we live in small towns or were born into races not known for the role we are destined to play. Jesus was born in a small town, to poor parents, in very restricted and impoverished circumstances.

His destiny, in these circumstances was not clear it had to be discovered.

By the age of 12 it appears he had learned his destiny because after being found in the temple with the scholars he said, Its time for me to be about my fathers business.

Those in Nazareth saw the signs of his greatness revealed to them, even though they dismissed what they saw.

The challenge for todays youth is to clarify who you are and what you are about. Often others who observe you, know you better than you know yourself.

Once you discover your gifts, dont be ashamed of them. If you are great in a science class, but horrible on a football field, dont be embarrassed; embrace your gift.

Our potential shows itself early, seize upon it, polish it and use It for the glory of the Lord!

DARE TO BE DIFFERENT: Those who want to improve upon what exists or change the direction we currently travel, will, by necessity be different. Basketball players were often content to shoot the ball and score 2 points. Then Bob Kurland came along in 1945 a caused stir with something he called dunk shot. In 1967, a 7 foot tall Kareem Abdul-Jabbar routinely began what became known as the slam dunk, it was so powerful that in 1967 the NCAA passed a rule banning slam dunks! Kareem dared to be different.

In this generation are those who dare to be different. Being different might mean challenging established ways of doing things. The believer often searches for a way to accomplish a goal and is not afraid to try a different approach. Dare to be different! That is easier said than done, because being different usually carries with it the stigma of nonconformity. Yet, one of the most salient features of the lives of great men and women is the fact that they had the courage to be different from the rest of the crowd marching toward mediocrity.

POSSIBILITIES ARE LIMITLESS: Youth who will be a part of the next generation of scientists, inventor and great imaginative minds should remember that those before them have proven what can be done, this generation must go one step further. Our great astronomers and mathematicians such as Benjamin Banneker and our great chemist and agricultural scientists such as George Washington Carver have underscored the fact that the possibilities for each generation are limitless. If Percy Julian could invent Cortisone and Madam C.J. Walker could invent the curling iron, certainly this generation can go even further.

There are two things that control whether you achieve your dreams in life, one of them depends on God,Êthe other depends on you. God makes the way for your dream to happen but the probability of achieving it is in your hands. Probability has to do with the chances that someone like you can make it to the top. If success lies at the top of a giant stairway with a door at each level, possibility comes into play when God moves ahead of you and unlocks each door just before you get there. Probability comes into play when you decide to make the climb.

God can make a college education possible, but we control the probabilities through hard work and determination. Probability looks at the factors that work against you, but the believer keeps focusing on the possibility which is that God is working for you. As you work to defy the odds remember the words ofÊ Jeremiah 32:27 “Behold, I am the Lord, the God of all flesh: is there anything too hard for me?”

Youth can change the world and destiny

Finally, brothers and sisters, when John sent his disciples to ask Jesus if he was the one, Jesus showed them his works and pointed to the challenges ahead.

Johns disciples were mostly young men and women who were being charged to go into the world and make a difference, under the power of the Holy Ghost.

The previous generation was content to meet and discuss the Torah and biblical truths, but the next generation was challenged to go to the world and teach, preach, baptize and observe.

One believing youth can make a difference and change the world!
Are you the one, or shall we look for another?

This is the question that every anointed teacher asks students with potential, are you the one? You have the gifts, skills, and abilities; will you use them to their greatest potential or will you squander them foolishly and throw your life away? Are you the one, or shall we look for another?

Are you the one who God has anointed to rear an abandoned child, or shall we look for another?

Are you the one that God has appointed to mend a breach in your family or shall we look for another?

Are you the one that God has ordained to speak to the problems of your generation, or shall we look for another?

John baptized many people in the river Jordan and while he was locked in prison he sent word to the master to ask “are you the one?”

“I know you are from a town called Nazareth, but are you the one?!

“I know your stepfather was a poor carpenter and your mother was poor too, but are you the one?

Jesus did not answer John directly, he only showed his disciples his works. Today when the question is asked whose is the one sent from God, every believer can answer His name is Jesus! There is no other!

Jesus is the one.

He was born in a manager in Bethlehem and reared in a little town called Nazareth; he made a world of difference!

He saw a world filled with hatred and tried to bring love!

He saw a world filled with defeat and brought a message of victory!

He saw a world filled with weakness and brought a message of strength!

He saw a world filled with darkness and challenged it to walk in the light!

When nobody else cares, he cares because he is the one!
When nobody else knows, he knows, because he is the one!
When nobody else can, he can, because he is the one!
When we need assurance, he is the one!
When we need inspiration, he is the one!
There is no other because the word says,"for there is none other name under heaven given among men, where by we must be saved."
It's the name of Jesus, because he is the one!
Jesus, the Lily of the Valley!
Jesus, the Bright and Morning Star!
Jesus, who died out on Calvary!
But Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave!

Remember our Chains

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 3, 2013

SCRIPTURE: The salutation by the hand of me Paul. Remember my bonds. Grace be with you. Amen. Colossians 4:18

Introduction

African-Americans are progressing, but despite our progress do you sense that in many respects we are going backwards rather than forward? Today, African-Americans are integrated into the social, economic and political fabric of American society more than ever before, but it is becoming apparent that as many move forward they are becoming increasingly insensitive to the struggles of millions of others who are still trapped in the mud and mire of poverty, ignorance and racial discrimination.

When we forget the story of our journey, the chains, and the lessons learned, it is difficult to move forward with a sense of community because the drive for individual success overpowers our sense of community.

We live in better houses today, but have we forgotten those who do not? The government tells us that there is an increase in the number of African-Americans who own homes compared to 50 years ago, but there are still millions who have no homes of their own and live from month to month at the mercy and benevolence of a landlord. As we move forward, we should not forget the houseless and the homeless who are still in chains.

We earn more money today, but have we forgotten about those who still struggle to make ends meet? We are earning more than we did 50 years ago, but we are still behind what the average American earns. According to Blackdemographics.com an African-American male who gets a good job will probably earn about $37,000 a year; if he marries a woman who has skills she may earn another $32,000 a year. Between them, they may earn about $60,000 a year. That's not ideal, but it's far more than many in our community who only earn about $17,000 a year or less, with three or more children to support. As we climb the economic ladder, we should not forget those who are struggling to get by with very little and are barely holding on.

We are better educated than we have ever been. The latest statistics show that as late as 2011 there were 1.6 million African-Americans with advance degrees: Doctorates, Masters, and legal degrees. There were 3.9 million African-Americans enrolled in college and 18% of blacks under 25 have bachelor's degrees. Yet, as we progress we must not forget the millions who still cannot read, who are dropping out of school and have not connected the dots enough to know that there is a relationship between the amount of education they receive and their personal success.

As we progress we must not forget that we are disproportionately represented in the jails, alternative schools, juvenile facilities and unemployment lines of America.

We must remember those who are in still in chains. Even in our own families we have been frustrated in our attempts to transform that wayward son, misguided nephew, or deviant sister-in-law. The temptation is to move on and leave them behind. We have lectured, preached, threatened, ranted and raved tirelessly, but all of our expostulations seem to fall on deaf ears. Yet, we cannot rest comfortable, knowing that there bwmight something we can do to help them. We must remember their chains.

Our History has shown us that real change happens when the eyes of the people seek God's face and are guided by His hand. Real change happens when God gets in the picture. Without his presence and power things may change but they also remain the same.

As Christians, we are committed to marching forward, with a spirit of remembrance of our own struggles. As we climb up our goal is to transform our communities and families through the power of the blood of Christ. We go forward empowered by God's grace, but we must remember our chains.

Exposition

This text focuses on the closing words of Paul in his letter to the Colossians in which he prayed Gods blessing on them as they moved forward, but asked them not to forget his chains.

Paul was under house arrest in Rome at the time of his letter to the Colossians. Scholars note that his words word probably dictated to Tychicus and Onesimus who wrote the four chapters for him. However, as was customary, Paul signed the documents with his own hand and included his customary benediction.

He asked a blessing for believers as they moved forth to establish the church throughout the world, but he also asked that they not forget his imprisonment. In verse three of the same chapter he asked believers to pray that God would open a door of opportunity for the word of God to be declared. He reminded them that preaching the gospel of Jesus is the cause of his imprisonment. He encouraged those who were going forward to do so with wisdom (4:5) and with words "seasoned with salt." Grace for the journey and remembrance of the sacrifice of those like himself is the theme of his benediction: "Remember my chains. Grace be with you."

My Chains

Paul encouraged believers to go forward, but not to forget his chains. Today, African-American believers have the same challenge to go forward, but not to forget the challenges that still chain many of our people to empty existences. What are our chains?

OUR FAMILIES ARE CHAINED: Individually, many are succeeding in the corporate and social communities, but the family remains chained to a growing trend that is tearing at the heart of our community. We are seeing a rapid increase in female headed households and a diminished presence of the black men in our families. Too many of our families are being headed by parents who are still children. Before they learned the nuances of family: the importance of education, creating a supportive home environment, budgeting, etiquette, career planning, religious instruction, family management, tending relationships, problem solving, health care, insurance, investments, saving, and home ownership.. before they finished learning most of these things, they became parents themselves. Now many are teaching their children the parts they did learn: how to pay bills, fuss, beat children when they misbehave and put food on the table. Those who are succeeding must partner with at least one struggling family and help unlock the chains. If each family can reach another family with a word of hope, wisdom and instruction, we help break the chains. Those who have learned, teach it to others. Those who need the help, must also allow their chains to be broken and be receptive to assistance. The alternative is to smh shake my head and do nothing. Paul told the Colossians, go forward, but remember my chains. Todays struggling families are speaking the same words.

MANY ARE CHAINED TO A POVERTY MINDSET: The 13th amendment to the Constitution outlawed slavery in America, but 148 years later, most of our community is still in chains. These are not shackles on our feet, but they are the social conditions that hold us back. There is a 25% poverty rate among us, but of equal concern, too many of us have adjusted and accepted poverty as our destiny. While many are working desperately to break their chains others have embrace a lifestyle that is depended on a handout from others. We dont even think of paying for our own lunch in school, living in a house thats not government subsidize, eating without food stamps, or surviving without some kind of assistance from one program or another. Assistances are not supposed to be lifestyles. When your back is against the wall you do what is necessary, temporarily, but emergency assistance for too many has become a lifestyle. There are many who refused to accept poverty as their lot in life. These are the mothers who are surrounded by abject poverty, but refuse to let it in come in their front doors, creep into the minds of their children or become their way of life. These are the ones who are saving, scraping and praying to break this cycle of poverty. Paul told the Colossians, go forward in kingdom building, but remember my chains. Those who have escaped the ghetto mindset must remember the chains of those who still left behind.

HOW TO BREAK THE CHAINS: In the movie Django Unchained, Jamie Foxx played an ex-slave who went back and killed the people who treated he and his wife unfairly. His response was to kill everybody: men, women, old, young, black or white. Samuel L. Jackson played a house Negro who lived in the big house and thought he was unchained. His House Negro status depended on his ability to keep the others in line. We can learn an important lesson from this movie: 1) We cant respond to our condition by killing off or lashing out at everyone who has chained us. 2) We who have made it to the big house must work to unchain the others, without become masters ourselves.

To unchain the millions of our people who are still in shackles a conscience effort is needed by the institutions of influence in our community: the church, school and fraternal organizations. Through these three we must teach our girls the intricacies of finer womanhood and show our boys how to be men. Principals of our schools are more than educators who teach the three Rs, but they also must become chain breakers. Our masonic groups, fraternities and sororities must commit themselves to becoming chain breakers. Churches must take the gospel of Christ to the streets and work to break the chains of poverty, ignorance and moral decay. This cannot be done with one-day photo events. A struggling family needs our time. A child in school who acts out may be crying out for long term help that cant be provided by just volunteering one weekend. Some are very good at staging one day events, but breaking the chains requires long term commitment. Paul told the Colossians, remember my chains. Everyday of our lives we should hear the silent cries of our people, Remember our chains!

When chains are broken

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that the mission of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ is to break the chains that tie us to godless lives.

While Paul told the Colossians to Remember my chains, our God hears the cries of the people and responds.

In bondage, Israel cried out to God to remember their oppression and he sent them Moses.

In subjugation, they cried out to God to remember their captivity and he sent them judges like Samson, Deborah and Samuel

In Exile, they cried out to God to remember their isolation and he sent them words of hope and restoration from Daniel and Ezekiel.

In Hopelessness, they cried out to God and God sent them Jesus.

In Luke 4:18-19 Jesus announced his calling, The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the brokenhearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, To preach the acceptable year of the Lord.

We are encouraged to know that we serve a savior who came to break our chains!

Like Paul, we must pray that the grace of God be with our people as we go forward, but we must continue the work of the savior: to break the chains that bind us to lives of sin and despair.

Though locked in a Roman jail cell, I can hear Paul declare, We can’t give up now!

We must roll up our sleeves and reach out to those who are lost and dont even know they are lost,We cant give up now!

The task ahead will be frustrating and challenging, but we must remain committed to the journey of faith, We cant give up now!

Like Paul, I can hear them say, “I wouldn’t take nothing for my journey now!

We have to continue. Principals must lead their faculties to do more than pass tests, but to go the extra mile it takes to break the chains! We cant give up now!

Teachers cant get weary. Churches cant get tired! Leaders must not get weary, We cant give up now!

If we learn anything from studying the bible it is that though the apostles were jailed and persecuted and chained, everyone of them seemed to say,I wouldnt take nothing for my journey now!

Today every believer must continue playing your part to help break the chains.

If you sing encouraging words in the choir, keep singing!

If you wash pots, mop floors and lick stamps, keep giving your service!

If you volunteer with you, work with the elderly or mentor youth, keep your hand tied to the winding chain!

Keep on walking! Keep on Talking! You cant stop now!

We must join the chorus of the faithful who now recognize the importance of the last verse of Lift every voice and sings, “God of our weary years, God of our silent tears, thou who brought us thus far along the way. Thou who has by thy might led us into the light, keep us forever in the path we pray.

Our cry is,Lord, remember our chains!

I hear God saying, In the morning, ye shall see the glory of the Lord!

In the morning, ye shall see the glory of the Lord!

Hang on brothers and sisters, there is a new day coming!

In the morning, it won’t matter whether you are black or white!

In the morning, it won’t matter whether you are Hispanic, Asian or Native American.

In the morning, every mountain shall be made low!

In the morning, every valley shall be exalted! And the glory of the Lord shall be revealed!

In the morning, every chain will be broken

No wonder the songwriter said, Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord! Hes coming to break our chains!

He started breaking the chains over 2000 years ago!

On a hill called Calvary! He died, but Early Sunday morning he arose from the dead!

In the morning, we shall see His glory! Glory! Glory!

Acts 1:7-8

Introduction

Last words linger on after us. If they are profound, they are quoted. If they are desperate, they are mourned. If they are challenging, the inspire.The late Huey P. Long was known as a powerful politician who did much to help the poor. When he was assassinated and lay dying, his last words were Not now, Iove got so much to do.

Suppose the last words you said just a few minutes ago were your last words? When you argued with a spouse, parent or enemy, suppose those were your last words? We never know. What we do know is that our last words are often repeated.

While hanging on the cross, amidst groaning, blood and death, these words ring out over the centuries because each of them presents a framework by which the Gospel and its declaration of inclusive love will be judged. Yet, beyond that, there are other words of Jesus, spoken beyond the cross that give us a renewed sense off faith and hope.

The last words of Jesus on the cross remind us of the humanity of Christ. However, His last words beyond the cross remind us of His divinity; they are filled power, vision and hope.

As Christians, we remember the last sayings of Christ. More than that, we remember the last acts of Christ that included his death and his resurrection; all for our sins. His last acts and His actual words on earth lift or spirits and increase our faith.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus last words on earth before ascending back to heaven.

While Jesus 'last words on the cross were spoken out of His humanity, His last words spoken before the ascension were from his divinity. They contained both a commission and a promise; a directive and a word of hope.

In Matthew 28 Jesus commissioned all of his disciples to go into the entire world and preach, teach and baptize. That was a tall order because the disciples were all unlettered men from Galilee. They wondered how they were to speak to all of the nations with their diverse languages and tongues. They wondered about the cultural dynamics of such a challenge. Despite the apparent impossibility of the task they were given the charge any way.

In connection with the mission they were also given a promise. The promise was that God would give them the power to accomplish the mission through the Holy Ghost. It was a promise that God would empower their efforts to build the kingdom despite the physical absence of Christ on earth.

The disciples remembered these last words and they served as a stimulus to encourage them in their mission. They were prophetic. They were empowering and filled with hope.

Even today, we are still empowered by these same last words of Jesus. In fact they are often the first words we think of in relation to the mission of believers. They were his last on earth but he has spoken to us many times since. Each time he gives a new charge and new inspiration to spread the gospel throughout the world.

On the Cross

From the cross the last words of Jesus were definitively human. His utterances indicated sympathy and empathy, the spiritual and the divine.

FATHER FORGIVE THEM: Forgiveness is a character trait that Christ talked about during His ministry. More pointedly, Christ urged His disciples to forgive their enemies. Now, as a man hanging on the cross, He showed us that even when we have been wronged the most forgiveness is still the order of the day. What Christ demonstrated through His plea for forgiveness for his enemies is God's love for every man even though He hated the sins committed, He still loved the sinner.

WOMAN BEHOLD THEY SON: In John 19:26-27, Jesus uttered what is probably His second statement from the cross. When Jesus therefore saw His mother, and the disciple standing by, whom He loved, He saith unto His mother, Woman, behold thy son! Then saith He to the disciple, Behold thy mother! And from that hour that disciple took her unto his own home.

In one sense, Jesus was simply setting His house in order. Yet, how should you feel if you were on the cross as your mother watched? You would probably be preoccupied with your own suffering. But here, Jesus becomes concerned with the suffering of others. He considers her anguish and also her earthly welfare. And He tenderly makes provision by directing her care to His disciple. What an incredible display of selflessness.

TODAY, YOU WILL BE WITH ME IN PARADISE: JesusÕ third statement comes in Luke 23:43. He says to the desperate and dying thief, Assuredly, I say to you today, you will be with Me in paradise. The two thieves crucified with Christ represent all of us. We are murderers, robbers, liars, cheats; sinners all. We are helpless sinners. One thief refused to accept Christ; the other asked to be remembered by the savior. The second thief turned to God for His salvation and He was saved. The day that we do so, we too shall be given a seat in paradise.

WHY HAVE YOU FORSAKEN ME?: The fourth statement is found in Matthew 27:46. And about the ninth hour Jesus cried out with a loud voice, saying, Eli,Eli, lama sabachthani?Those words mean, What hast thou forsaken me? Some people wondered if Jesus if Jesus lost faith, thinking God had left Him. Yet, it was not a loss of faith, but a connection with the humanity of all believers who in times of pain feel abandoned. It is human at some point to cry out, but it is divine not to give up faith in God.

I THIRST: John 19:28 records Jesus fifth statement. After this, Jesus, knowing that all things were now accomplished, that the scripture might be fulfilled, said, I thirst. On the cross, Jesus was dehydrated from His long trial and loss of blood. There was a crown of thorns on His head. His tongue was swollen with thirst. Instead of water, He was offered sour wine. The world responds to believers often in the same way, instead of responding to our desperate thirst for help and salvation, we are given sour wine. In His humanity on the cross, Jesus understood, but we remember Him saying if any man thirst that He would give that man the waters of life.

IT IS FINISHED: John19:30, says, So when Jesus had received the sour wine, He said, It is finished! Christ's mission was a total success; thats wonderful news! He accomplished everything He came to do. And why did He come? For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life(John3:16) When Christ died on the cross that prerequisites of that promise were complete..

He didnt make a down payment; He said it is canceled, paid in full. Thats good news.

INTO THY HANDS I COMMEND MY SPIRIT: The seventh and last statement of Jesus on the cross is recorded in Luke 23:46, And when Jesus had cried out with a loud voice, He said, Father, into Your hands I commit My spirit.And having said this, He breathed His last. He put his entire life in Gods hands. Now, even at the river that separates life from eternity, He still places his destiny in Gods hands. Every believer should do the same. We should place our lives and destinies in Gods hands and watch Him work. His last words seemed to say "Father, I trust you." Thats a perfect example for us.

Not His last words

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that our hope is no in the last sayings on the cross, but in the last words said after he arose from the grave.

Our last words are just that, our last words. Yet, scripture tells us that after the letter of love was completed on Calvary there was a P.S. When there is a P.S. that means there is a Post Script, it means there is more.

We know the words spoken by Christ on the cross were not His last words because His first words after the resurrection are recorded in John 20:15, Woman, why are you weeping?

We know the last words on the cross were not his last words because he walked with the men on the road to Emmaus and talked with them and they said, Didnt our hearts burn within as he talked with us along the way?

Just before taking a cloud and ascending back to heaven as hundreds watched, Jesus spoke His last words on earth.

But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in Samaria, and the uttermost parts of the earth.

His words were a promise and a commission. His last words were promised us that when we have reached the end of our rope, hold on, ye shall receive power.

His last words were a promise to not to feel faint in the face of impossible odds trying to do a Godly task, hold on because ye shall receive power.

His last words were a promise to not become impatient because help seems so long coming, hold on ye shall receive power.

His last words were a commission to keep on teaching, preaching and saving souls!

His last words reminded us that although He would not physically be with us that the Holy Spirit would be our guide.

I dont know about you, but Ive found out that the last words on the cross were not His last words because He talks to me every day.

I hear the song writer say, I come to the garden alone, while the dew is still on the roses and the voice I hear, falling on my hear the Son of God discloses. And he walks with me and He talks me and He tells me I am His own.

I'm talking about Jesus, do you know Him?

I'm talking about Jesus who picked his own mother and was the same age as His father!

Jesus who was both human and divine; who hungered for bread, but was the bread of life.

Jesus, who was thirsty on the cross, although He was the living water.

Jesus, who walked through doors, but was the door to salvation.

When we think about Jesus on the cross some focus on the last words, but we focus on the fact that He is the last word.

If we have failed, we dont give up because He is the last word!

If we are weak, we dont stop praying for strength because He is the last word!

If we have fallen, we dont stop trying to get up because He is the last word!

If your experience has brought you a bowed down head, God's got the last word, for I heard the word declare, "Lift up your heads oh ye gates, and be ye lifted up, ye everlasting doors and the king of glory shall come in!

If lifes problems have given you sadness, God's got the last word; he can take your sadness and give you gladness!

If life has given you doubt, God's got the last word, He can take your doubt and give you assurance!

If your troubles have given you bondage, God's got the last word; he can take your bondage and give you freedom!

They crucified Christ on Calvary, but that wasnt the last word!

He cried out seven times on the cross, but those were not His last words!

They stuck a spear in His side, but that was the last word!

They buried him in a borrowed tomb, but that wasnt the last word, because Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave with all power in His hands.

Even that wasnt the last words, because just before he left He said ye shall receive power!

But there are three more words Im still waiting to hear him say, these will be the last words to every believer, Servant, well done!

He's not dead

SCRIPTURE: "And as they were afraid, and bowed down their faces to the earth, they said unto them, Why seek ye the living among the dead?" Luke 24:5

Introduction

Have you ever felt that there is someone out there somewhere who is waiting to write your obituary? They have seen life throw you a few wicked punches and they are ready to count you out. What did they do when they learned that despite losing a job, or failing in a marriage or filing bankruptcy or a thousand other situations that you are not dead as they suspected, but are alive and well? Life knocked you down, but you wouldn't stay down. You were hit with a deadly blow, but you refused to die.

Life hits hard, often with a deadly punch. When we have been hit with life's strongest blows and still climb back to our feet, that's when our critics wonder what keeps us going. They marvel at our ability to bounce back after so many set backs.

Look at the people who refused to accept defeat. Colonel Sanders tried his best to sell his chicken idea. They pronounced the idea dead. When he tried again at age 65 and the idea became Kentucky Fried Chicken people realized "He's not dead." Henry Ford tried to start two car companies and fell flat on his face. When one became known as Ford Motor Company and the other Cadillac; they realized that even after failing, "He's not dead." Ray Kroc came up with the crazy idea of selling burgers fast. He was over 50 years old when his idea took off and became "McDonald's." Those who thought he was out for good had to say, "He's not dead."

If the resurrection of Christ says anything to us, it reaffirms the truth that our hope of resurrected dreams and new life is not dead. Just as Christ rose from the dead, we too can rise again. This does not simply apply to the afterlife, but it also applies in this life. Because He is not dead, neither are my chances of living in His power dead! He lives and so do we!

As Christians, we celebrate the resurrection because it brings us hope. We are overjoyed because Christ overcame every obstacle put in His way and arose triumphant over death. He is not dead and neither are we.

Exposition

This text considers what the women who came to the Jesus' grave were told when they arrived.

Three days and three nights earlier Christ had been crucified and buried in a tomb belonging to Joseph, a friend of the cause. The women prepared spices to anoint his body and waited until both the Sabbath involving the Feast of the Passover and the Weekly Sabbath had past then came to the tomb to complete their task "very early" in the morning on the First Day of the week. They found that the stone had been rolled away and that the body of Jesus was missing.

The women were perplexed. They fully expected to find a body in the tomb because they came prepared to anoint it. When they found no body, the women were disturbed. Mary Magdalene and the other women wept because she could not find the body. Mary wept and the others were afraid. In their fear, two angels appeared, and told them not to be afraid. Then they were asked the probing question: "Why seek ye the living among the dead?"

The tomb was the place of the dead. They did not believe Jesus' promise fully so a body is what they fully expected to find. They came to the place of the dead, looking for the dead.

The angel told them "he is not here, but is risen." The angel explained how Jesus predicted his resurrection and how its fulfillment resulted in the empty tomb. They had come to the place of the dead seeking a dead leader and they left knowing that they were serving a living God.

Not Dead

The idea behind the crucifixion was to kill the growth of Christianity by trampling the hope and faith of its followers. Enemies of the cross learned after burying the hopes of believers in a tomb, they are not dead! No matter how life kicks us we are never dead.

We should consider:

DON'T GIVE UP ON YOURSELF: The faithful followers of Christ left the crucifixion site defeated, thinking the kingdom of God was dead and it could never be revived. They had effectively lost hope in the promises of God and in their own strength and ability with God's help. They quickly disassociated themselves from the cross! They counted themselves out! They had to be reminded of the words of Christ when he told them that he would be crucified but would rise again after three days and nights. They had to be reminded because they forgot.

It would be tragic if believers lose faith in our own dreams. We who know God and the word of God and believe in the power of God would effectively announce our own defeat if we give up on ourselves. Giving up is easy to do when life hits hard. However, believers should expect to be hit by the experiences of life. On occasion, we expect to be knocked down. But each time we are knocked down we get back up! Just as the believers at the cross had to be reminded of the promises of Christ, we too, must remind ourselves of God's promises. Romans 8:37 says, "Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us." Don't give up on yourself! You will be hit with intimidations, pressured by principalities, powers, present frustration, a bad past and everything except the kitchen sink; but we should resolve that nothing, "shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." 1 John 5:4 says, "For whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world: and this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith." One songwriter said, "Don't give up on God and He won't give up on you!" He's not dead! He's able!

IF YOUR PRINCIPLES DIE, YOU DIE: You are what you believe. If an enemy wants to destroy you he first attacks your belief system. During the Vietnam conflict, American soldiers were attacked with leaflets and loud speakers. The leaflets were designed to question the principles of America's involvement. Some leaflets targeted black soldiers reminding them that they were fighting for a country that treated them as second class. The idea is to crumble their principles.

Our principles are the beliefs that guide us every day. A godly man or woman is guided by a set of beliefs about God. Even when a believer is knocked down, his principles do not change. Christ gave us a glaring example of this when he was persecuted and tormented. He believed in the principle of love, even for enemies. Even when he was spit upon, tortured and crucified by Roman soldiers he remained true to the principle by which he lived. As believers, we believe that no matter what we go through in life God will lead us through it. Whenever, when we lay down our principle take the first step toward spiritual death.

It is our principles that keep us from becoming prostitutes to pay the rent.

It is our principles that keep us from stealing to keep the lights on!

It is our principles that keep us away from immoral activity.

Even when we are down, we should take a page from the life of Job and say, "Yea thou he slay me, yet will I trust him."

DON'T JOIN THE WALKING DEAD: On the day of the crucifixion the believers of Christ joined the Walking Dead. They were alive, but they were defeated. The men locked themselves in a room and trembled. It wasn't until resurrection morning that they were reenergized.

If you ever lose your passion you join the walking dead. Your passion is the energy, enthusiasm and excitement that you bring to your life's work. Your passion is what makes you rise early and stay up late doing what you enjoy doing.

The religious leaders had difficulty dealing with Christ because no matter what they did to Him he never lost His passion. He walked among men and talked freely of forgiveness and mercy and hanging on the cross; even there, he never lost that passion to bring people to God. In one breath he invited a thief to join him in paradise. In another breath, he asked his father to forgive them for they didn't know what they were doing. Even on the cross they could not steal his passion!

Yet, there are some who have lost their passion for life. They just don't care anymore. They don't care about school, work, their families or even themselves. An ugly husband and an ugly wife who are passionately in love can weather any storm. However, a beautiful woman and a handsome man won't last a week in the sunshine without passion!

When the devil wants to bury a believer he goes after his faith in himself, his principles, then works on his passion. Once these three are taken, we're down for the count. If you want to get up, never lose faith in God, keep your principles and never lose your passion.

Not Dead

Finally, brothers and sisters we remember that the resurrection of Christ restores our hope and faith in a living God.

Unlike the women who were at first discouraged by the empty tomb, we are encouraged by its emptiness. It reminds us that we serve a risen Lord who has not been held down by the powers of death and the grave. Paul writes in 1 Timothy 4:10 "For therefore we both labor and suffer reproach, because we trust in the living God, who is the Savior of all men, specially of those that believe."

The empty tomb announced to the world, "He's not dead!"

The good news is that if He's not dead, then I'm not dead!

The Scribes and Pharisees thought that the crucifixion and burial of Christ ended it all, but Sunday morning they were astonished to learn, "He's not dead!"

The Roman soldiers placed guards around the tomb and sealed it with a seal, but when the stone was rolled away, they had to declare, "He's not dead."

Has the world pronounced your death?

The world saw you when you lost your job and your income was sliced, but today you are miraculously still around, all they can say is "He's not dead!"

Your critics saw you fail in business several times, but yet you are still trying with yet another venture, all they can do is say, "We thought she was gone, but she's not dead!"

Your haters saw you struggle in school and fall down once or twice afterwards, but yet you keep getting up for another round at life, all they can say is "He's not dead!"

They are baffled because they do not know the source of our passion, faith and hope. It's what the songwriter referred to when he wrote, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame, but wholly lean on Jesus name. On Christ the solid rock I stand all other ground is sinking sand!"

The world can't keep you down because you serve a living Lord.

The world can't keep you down because there is no:

—Battle the Lord cannot win;

—Burden the Lord cannot lift;

—Loneliness that the Lord cannot comfort;

—Promise the Lord cannot keep.

—Dark Cloud the Lord cannot brighten;

—Heartache that the Lord cannot soothe.

Are you looking for us in the valley, wallowing in pity parties, why seek ye the living among the dead? Our God can take our valleys and raise them to mountaintops

Are you looking for us to stumble in our midnight of despair, why seek ye the living among the dead? Our God can take our midnights and turn them into noondays

Are you looking for us to drown in a river of tears? Why seek ye the living among the dead? Our God can take our briny tears and turn them into mighty cheers

Are you looking for us to be buried six feet under in defeat? Why seek ye the living among the dead. Our God can take defeats and turn them into victories

Are you looking for us to give up because we have suffered a loss? Why seek ye the living among the dead? Our God can take our losses and make them work for our gain.

The message of the resurrection is that Christ is alive. Because He lives, I have hope!

He's not dead, He is alive!

He's not dead; I know it because He is still blessing me!

He's not dead, I know it because He is still raising my bowed down head!

He's not dead, I know it because He is still picking me up and turning me around!

Somebody called him bread in a starving land!

Somebody called him a bridge over troubling water!

Somebody called him a doctor in a sick room!

Somebody called him a lawyer in our courtroom!

His name is Jesus!

He picked up an old rugged cross and they crucified Him on Calvary!

Death said, "He's dead! Let's put him in a tomb!" but life kept shaking his head!

Death said "He's dead, let's put a rock in front of his tomb to make sure he stays dead," but life kept shaking His head!

The scribes said, put a seal on the rock, so they won't claim he's not dead! –but life kept shaking his head!

The Romans put soldiers to watch the seal on the rock in front of The Rock, - but life kept shaking his head

But early Sunday morning, life rolled the stone away and the world found out that He is not dead!

Early Sunday morning he arose, with all power in His hands!

He lives! He lives! He walks with me and talks with me along life's narrow way. He lives, He lives salvation to impart!

Ask me how I know He lives…He lives within my heart!

Ain't nobody got time for that

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 7, 2013

SCRIPTURE: Remember how short my time is: wherefore hast thou made all men in vain. Psalm 89:47

Introduction

Has anyone ever wasted your time? Have you ever participated in an event and concluded when it was over that it was a waste of time? Have you ever been invited to a meaningless activity that had not purpose that threatened to consume a large block of your time? What was your response?

If you are like millions of Americans you probably responded like the woman named "Sweet Brown" whose apartment was destroyed in an Oklahoma City blaze in 2012. When interviewed Sweet Brown said. "Well, I woke up to get me a cold pop and then I thought somebody was barbecuing. I said, 'Oh Lord Jesus, it's a fire.' Then I ran out, I didn't grab shoes or nothing. I ran for my life and then the smoke got me, I got bronchitis! Ain't nobody got time for that."

That last phrase, "Ain't nobody got time for that" was made into scores of videos and broadcast on national television and viewed by millions. Instantly, "Sweet Brown" became a celebrity. Sweet Brown, a poor woman, is now a television icon. She makes real estate commercials, has her own website selling "Ain't nobody got time for that"-memorabilia, endorses products, appears on national television and has landed a part in an upcoming Tyler Perry movie "Madeas' Christmas."

What made the phrase so popular is probably fact that many people agree with it in principle, they simply don't say it aloud.

We are frustrated over wasted time. We are also frustrated over things and people that waste our time. Social scientists tell us that in minutes: We spend two years of our lives trying to return phone calls to people who are never at home when we call back-Ain't nobody got time for that!

We spend six months of our lives waiting for the traffic light to turn green. "Ain't nobody got time for that!"

We spend eight months of our lives reading junk mail, "Ain't nobody got time for that!"

We seem to lose a lot of time doing a lot of useless things such as waiting in line, being held on hold, and waiting for water to boil. There is so much time loss that many feel like Sweet Brown and say, “Ain’t nobody got time for that!”

Is it possible that there are some who say the same things about God, the church and Christian living?

Someone says we should say a prayer before we eat our food, then someone answers, “My lunch break is only 30 minutes, “Ain’t nobody got time for that!” Someone else says, we should attend worship regularly and attend bible study regularly and someone answers, “Ain’t nobody got time for that!” Is it possible that when God says wait until you are married to have sex, that someone answers, ”Ain’t nobody got time for that?”

While Sweet Brown’s colloquialism is popular it is an indicator of growing feeling among many people who have little time for anything that does benefit themselves.

We should be grateful that heaven doesn’t subscribe to Sweet Brown’s website. If so, when we called on God to tell him our problems we might get the answer, “”Ain’t nobody got time for that!”

As Christians, we are grateful that God is never too busy to hear us and answer our call. We have decided to use all of our time living for him and expanding his kingdom.

Exposition

This text focuses on the Maschil of Ethan the Ezrahite.

A maskil is a skillfully written poem aimed at imparting wisdom in song. “They spoke of reality. This is a reality where murder, violence, hatred and suffering were the constant inescapable burden of the author. A reality where only the unfailing love and unending forgiveness of a perfect God could give wings like a dove to fly away and be at rest.

One reality that is mention in this Mischil is the shortness of time. It is letter truth, set to music, that emphasis that we have but a short time on this earth and therefore we must live each day well.

That there is little time to waste on matters that will not carry to our ultimate destination is certain, so the psalmist advises that each should “Remember how short my time is.”

Some things we should have time for:

There are some things we should have time for including:

LOVE REQUIRES TIME: Love requires time. Quality time. Love and the word instant are incompatible because love deals with two things: feelings and action. Love is a succession of feelings that are nurtured through time spent together. A minute here and a moment there is instant love, but it is also frustrating love.

You may not have a lot of time, but a love that last takes time. If we don’t have time to listen, share, think, laugh, feel and grow together love will die.

FAMILY BUILDING REQUIRES TIME: The strength of the family is directly related to several elements: Quality time, understanding, support, and love. Too many families underestimate the importance of quality time. Quality time is time dedicated to the interest of other family members, with nothing else on the agenda. It's the family gatherings, the in-house talent show, and the animated funny moments when everyone feels free enough to let their guards down and laugh and relax.

We should never reach the point when it comes to family that we say, "Ain't nobody got time for that."

RELATIONSHIP WITH GOD: We can't get so busy that we don't have time for God.

Things that are godly often take up tremendous amounts of time. Bible study is not quick, it takes time.

A real prayer life is not instant, but it takes time. True worship is not instant, it takes time.

A person who never has time considers the amount of time set aside for worship, prayer, bible study and spiritual growth as an encroachment upon his schedule.

Such a person looks for the quick version that can give a quick fix. Is there an instant way to tell God thanks for His blessings? Is there quick way to praise him for His goodness?

Some things we should not have time for any more

There are sometimes that we should tag with a "Sweet Brown stamp, including:

WASTING TIME IN JAIL: There are many who regular visitors to the courts and have seen jail cells so often that they have a reserved space. Count the years spent in court, hearings, jail and in in police custody and someone should be say, "Ain't nobody got time for that."

WASTING TIME ON POINTLESS RELATIONSHIPS; There are millions of people who are wasting time in relationships that are going nowhere. He won't marry you or you are not interested in marrying him. Months and years go by without any intention of marrying or making the relationship permanent. "Ain't nobody got time for that."

WASTING TIME IN LAZINESS: There are millions who spend most of their day at home watching television or sleeping without exercising any effort to find a job or involved in some worthy pursuit. Playing video games, watching T.V. and talking on the phone is their occupation. It produces no fruit and upsets the family. "Ain't nobody got time for that."

WASTING TIME IN RIOTOUS LIVING: Too many are like the Prodigal son who wasted his substance in riotous living. He wasted his money, wasted his time, and wasted all of his resources on so called friends who used him until they used him up. Then one day he came to himself and realized how much time and money he wasted and repented. He must have said, "Ain't nobody got time for that.

All of our time

Vol 23-5613

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should be so busy working in the kingdom that we don't have time for the foolishness of the world.

The world will make demands on our time, but saint's often find themselves saying, "I'm sorry, but I don't have time for that!"

We turn down invitations to party and drink with old wild friends, because we now have a new walk in Christ. They ask, but we say, "Ain't nobody got time for that!"

We turn away from offers to smoke dope with our hommies, because we are now walking in the light of the word of God. They ask, but we say, "Ain't nobody got time for that."

We are no longer attracted to run the clubs looking for one night stands, because we have fallen in love with Jesus and "Ain't nobody got time for that!"

We don't have time for that because we are giving our best to God who is on time when we need a blessing.

We don't have time for that because we are giving our best to God who is on time when we need a healing.

We don't have time for that because we are giving our best to God who is on time when we need forgiveness for our sins.

We need to be busy building the kingdom, giving Him all of our time.

—I don't have time to see what time you came in because I'm trying to make it in!

—I don't have time to see who you were with, because everyday I'm walking with the king!

—I don't have time to speculate how much you have in the bank, because my father is rich in houses and land and he holds the wealth of the world in his hand

—I don't have time to worry about what kind of shoes you are wearing, because when I get to heaven I'm going to put on my shoes and walk!

I don't have time for the foolishness of the world because it takes all of my time to praise God for His mercy!

It takes all of my time to thank him for anointing my life with the Holy Spirit!

It takes all of my time to praise him for picking me up and turning me around

It takes all of my time to praise God who sent his only begotten Son to be a living sacrifice!

He took His time, coming through 42 generations.

But in the fullness of time, he picked up an old rugged cross!

In the fullness of time He died on Calvary!

But early Sunday morning, right on time; He arose from the grave with all power in His hands!

SCRIPTURE: "And now, Lord, what wait I for? my hope is in thee." Psalm 39:7

Introduction

Are you guilty of waiting for your shrimp boat to land? If a shrimper is lucky he may get a single load of shrimp that could bring thousands of dollars at once. Seeing that, many South Louisianans dream of what they will do when their shrimp boat finally comes in. Shrimpers don't sit around and wait on the boat to come in, however, they go out every day and drop their nets. Sometimes they come back with nothing, but they keep trying. They never wait on the boat to fill itself with Shrimp, they work at it every day.

There are far too many of us who are procrastinating about what essentially needs to be done today, putting it off until another day. We make lofty plans and fill our daybooks with dates, times and places only to schedule them out as we put them off until tomorrow. What was that Shakespeare said about tomorrow? "To-morrow, and to-morrow, and to-morrow, creeps in this petty pace from day to day, To the last syllable of recorded time; And all our yesterdays have lighted fools the way to dusty death." He may have been correct. Those things that we put off until tomorrow do have a way of suddenly creeping up on us. Before we know it tomorrow is today.

There are many today are waiting on their future instead of making their future happen through their actions today. Today, is the first day of the future you talked about yesterday.

Many of us are waiting on our Shrimp Boat to come in, but we are not casting a net.

When it comes to improving our relationship with God, what are we waiting on? Do we constantly promise ourselves to do better, but delay in doing so? Is there a reason? If we know we need to give God first place in our lives and reprioritize ourselves, what are we waiting for?

As Christians, we must not delay as we carry out our mission and purpose in kingdom building. The time to act on our faith in God is now; there is no time for procrastination.

Exposition

This text focuses on the fact that believers place their trust in God and wait for His direction.

David was a man after God's own heart, but he often sinned and sometimes failed to act on the faith within. Though God loved him, David was punished for his transgressions for both his deviant actions and his inaction.

In this text, written in the midst of David's affliction, he raised a question, "What wait I for?" which is still being asked today. The answer depends on the circumstance that prompts the question.

Some are waiting for truth. Psalm 25:5 says, "Lead me in your truth and teach me, for you are the God of my salvation; for you I wait all the day long." The truth, said Jesus, will make us free.

When surrounded by evil, some wait for someone to show integrity. Psalm 25:21 says, "Let integrity and uprightness preserve me; for I wait on thee."

Others wait for God to shield them. Psalm 33:20 says, " Our soul waiteth for the Lord: he is our help and our shield."

Like David, if believers delay; it is to receive a sign from the Lord. However, once that sign is received, we are then prepared to move.

Waiting

What does it mean to wait on the Lord. There are many concocted definitions.

WAITING ON GOD DOES NOT MEAN IDLENESS: Some confuse waiting on the Lord with foolish idleness. The utility bill is due but the misinformed believer watches television, waiting on the Lord. The car is out of gas but the misinformed believer keeps driving, waiting on the Lord. To wait on the Lord does not mean that a person should sit around and wait for their dreams to fall out of the sky fully developed. To wait on the Lord means to have confidence WHILE we are working with the knowledge that God will provide the strength persevere and the outcome according to His will.

Those who know they should retrain themselves for jobs in the future, but have not begun, are foolish if they are waiting for God to drop the training out of the sky. That new room you plan for your house, the new skill you plan to learn, they new direction you plan to make with your life; what are you waiting for? If we trust God we should not remain idle, but actively seek its end. The beauty of such activity is we get to watch clear a path for us even as we take steps into the unknown.

SOME ARE WAITING FOR COURAGE: There are many who have not claimed their blessings in life because they don't have the courage. They have doubts. Doubt means that there is distrust. It means that we believe in God but we don't trust Him to handle our situation. That often happens when we leave the mountaintop experience of worship and move into the valley of reality. When we are faced with the hard circumstances that life presents, doubts enter our minds.

A tire company can attest to the durability of its products in the laboratory and factory. It can brag of its safety under heat and pressure. It can say it a thousand times, but the real test comes when the rubber meets the road. For many people when the rubber meets the road they don't have the courage to make their move. That's when precept meets practicality. If there is doubt it will keep us from doing what we should be doing. Doubts detain us. They restrain us. They hold us back. Our response should be the same as the Three Hebrew Boys Our God is able to deliver us... It should be the same as Daniel, faced with a tenacious and horrible death in the lion's den, but he entered it confident that God would make a way.

SOME ARE WATING FOR GOD TO HURRY UP: There are many who have set a "right now" time for God and are frustrated when God doesn't show up on their time schedule. A great truth we learn about God is that if He has promised something, it will happen, we just don't know when. However, if he gives us a time expect it. When he told Israel to prepare to leave Egypt in the morning, they packed and waited and the morning they left. Usually, however he gives no specific time. Even when Christ came Believers who place a date and time when they expect God to act frustrate themselves because God does not move by our time. The wait seems longer because we have placed a time limitation on God's action. We cannot hurry God. When the time is right God will move. The saying is, "He may not come when you want him, but He's always on time."

Worth Waiting For

Finally, brothers and sisters we must consider that the blessings of God are worth waiting for.

There are many who are idle and have not moved; they have no idea what they are waiting for.

There are many who have come to a complete standstill and scratch their heads when someone asks, "What are you waiting for?"

People are waiting for a variety of things.

The defeated are waiting for the final victory. Jesus has promised that victory. He told John, "He that over cometh shall inherit all things."

The weak are waiting for more strength! The faint in strength are waiting for God's promise to Isaiah that their strength would be renewed.

The discouraged are waiting for encouragement. In his discouragement David said, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord who made the heaven and the earth."

The confused are waiting for answers! "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart and lean not unto thine own understandings. Acknowledge him in all thy ways, and he shall direct thy paths."

The lonely are waiting for comfort. Jesus said, "And lo, I'll be with you always, even unto the end of the earth."

I don’t know about you, but I’ve decided to wait on the Lord!
Wait on the Lord, and mountains will be made low!
Wait on the Lord, and valleys shall be exalted!
Wait on the Lord, and crooked places shall be made straight!
Wait on the Lord, and rough places shall be made plain!
Hold to his hand, hold to God’s unchanging hand!
While you are waiting, keep your faith turned up high and hold to his hand!
While you are waiting, keep watching and praying!
While you are waiting, keep telling the story!
Tell everybody about the goodness of the Lord!
Tell them how he woke me up this morning and clothed me in my right mind!
Tell them how he walks with me and talks with me!
Tell them how he died out on Calvary! But don’t stop there..tell them how Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with all power in his hands.
Wait on the Lord ...and everything will be alright!

Let's Have Church

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 2013

SCRIPTURE: For we are the circumcision, which worship God in the spirit, and rejoice in Christ Jesus, and have no confidence in the flesh. Philippians 3:3

Introduction

Have you ever heard the phrase, "We had church today?" It is a common phrase heard among African-American churchgoers that indicates that all of the elements for God to be present were in place and they were bathed with the spiritual power of God.

In the African-American mindset we "have church" when a worship is really touching, powerful, relevant, and meaningful. What makes such services valuable is the fact that through a combination of rhythmic, powerful preaching and litany of songs and rituals that we praise in God in such a way that we conclude that, "We had church today."

In our history as a people, "Having Church" meant following a prescribed ritual, that no matter how meaningless or disconnected it was from the life we lived; it was stilled perceived as real worship. Having church included a costume for the preacher, usually a penguin tailed coat called a preaching coat, a white dress for the mothers, black suits for deacons, members dressed in "church' clothes.

"Having church" requires us to stand, sit, stand, sit and then sing certain songs, talk back to the preacher and even includes a few shouts.

When all of that happens at the same time, there are many who say, "Chile we show had church."

Worship was connected with participation in the ritual. Even today, there are many of us who associate the rituals of our slave ancestry with true worship. "Having Church" allows us to give the appearance of worship even while we participate in ungodly activities, which in themselves indicate that we are not in solidarity with the savior, but simply participating in a ritual that feels good, but offers no connectivity with the savior.

There is no harm with "having church" as long as it is not a substitute for real union with Christ.

Ain't no harm in clapping our hands, as long as our hands are busy doing God's work.

Ain't no harm with stomping our feet, as long as our feet are carrying us in the right direction.

Ain't no harm in shouting every now and then, as long as we are shouting from within and not from without.

I suspect that among the old warriors that there were many who were on fire for God when they walked in the front door. They were prayed up before they left home. They were in communed as stood on the church grounds. They were "Having church" before the big worship even started.

Real worship is in the heart and doesn't need a single ritual to make it happen.

As Christians, we worship God in spirit and in truth. It is not about organs, choir robes, pews and singing "Amazing Grace;" it's about being connected with Christ in our spirit in a way that makes our worship true.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he explains that real worship does not depend on rituals, but on being in the spirit or in solidarity with Christ.

The Jews had reduced worship to a series of meaningless rituals that substituted themselves for worship. These rituals included special hand washing ceremonies, special songs that were ordered, a variety of clothing that was specified or even special foods that were to be eaten –or not eaten.

Chief among the rituals was that of circumcision. Men who were circumcised were considered in union with God. All adult males among Jews were required to show their allegiance and solidarity with God through circumcision. It was an outward ceremony that gradually became unique to the Jews.

Circumcision was gender specific. It only applied to men because it was men who were intended to bring the sacrifices and participate in the ceremonies that indicated true worship. There was no similar requirement for women, indicating that worship was for men only.

Paul address the ritual of circumcision by noting that true believers worship God not through rituals such as circumcision, but worship God in the Spirit— The oldest manuscripts read, "worship by the Spirit of God"; our religious service is rendered by the Spirit (John 4: 23, 24).

Depending on rituals and meaningless phrases is legalism and it is outward, but is not considered worship because it only consists of outward acts, restricted to certain times and places.

Christian worship is spiritual, flowing from the inworkings of the Holy Spirit, not relating to certain isolated acts, but embracing the whole life.

Circumcision represented a trust in human methods and tradition, but those who worship in spirit, don't emphasize glorifying God in the flesh, but rather they promote glorifying Christ in the spirit.

To truly worship we must be in union with Christ. It is inclusive of both men and women who are, Insolido, or connected with Him in all matters of truth. That truth will lead us to spiritual freedom, a truth that Jesus says, "will make you free."

Impact of true worship

True worship makes an impact on believers and non-believers as well. The world takes notice when the church, in solidarity of Christ worships him by precept, example, song and prayer. Here's what happens:

TRUE WORSHIP ATTRACTS : If our worship is meaningful and not just an empty ritual it will get the attention of non-believers. When believers are excited about worship, the sincerity of their songs and praise attract non-believers, who want to know how to change their lives to feel the same excitement. True believers sing God's praise and thank Him for everything, even our adversities. When the unsaved see the church thanking God for the unseen spiritual blessings of salvation, heavenly promise and peace of mind, they are drawn to the faith by an invisible attraction that tugs at his soul. It's a powerful picture: humble believers like ourselves thanking God and singing His praises for the seen and the unseen.

So solidarity with Christ, we should sing God's praises for everything.

In solidarity with Christ, we should praise Him for the greens and butter beans our little car and house and everything! That true worship attracts the lost to Christ.

TRUE WORSHIP IS SPONTANEOUS: Those who have learned how to live their lives connected with God worship him spontaneously. There is no set time for them to lift Him up. There is no set place either; they can praise in sitting in their automobile parked at the red light. They can praise him in the shower, too. When the saints of God get together, those who really know the Lord don't even need a call to worship because true worship is from the heart. It is spontaneous. It cannot be orchestrated. We clap when we are moved to clap, not because we are told. We stand on our feet, wave our hand or even do our dance when we are moved to do so; when our hearts demand we respond. It has no particular order; it comes as the spirit gives utterance. Some may cry. Some may shout. Some may sit still and soak in the atmosphere. Others may dance the holy dance. No matter what method is used, true worship is from the heart. It is a spontaneity that comes when believers are in solidarity with Christ.

TRUE WORSHIP NEVER GETS OLD: Those who worship God from their spirit never get tired of praising Him. They lift Him up with joy continuously, day after day because they love him. A person who really didn't love the Lord criticized his neighbor, who was a true believer, for constantly praising God saying the same words over and over. So one day that believer left a note in his neighbor's mailbox that read: "I've gone for 30 years now and in that time I have heard something like 3,000 sermons. I don't remember the points of all of them, but combined that helped me to see God better. I've been married for 30 years now. In that time my wife has cooked some 32,000 meals. But, for the life of me, I cannot recall the entire menu for a single one of those meals.

But I do know this... They all nourished me and gave me the strength I needed to do my work. If my wife had not given me these meals, I would be physically dead today.

Likewise, if I had not gone to church to hear the gospel preached or to hear the same songs I would have died for lack of nourishment, I would be spiritually dead today! It never gets old because when I'm down to nothing, God is up to something! It never gets old with me because through singing, what you call the same old songs, my faith sees the invisible, believes the incredible and receives the impossible!"

I'm glad I live in solidarity with the savior. He keeps on blessing me every day!

True Praise Can't be contained

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that true praise cannot be contained. When true believers think about God's grace and mercy we have to worship him all over again.

We try our best to be civilized and to how back our feelings, but when we think about all that God has done for us, it's hard to hold our peace; we must worship Him in spirit and truth.

It's hard to hold your peace when we think about the grace of God.

Consider the old lady who moved in with her great grandchildren up north. They were wealthy professionals who attended a big city quiet church. Her grandchildren went to church regularly but they asked grandmother to remember that she wasn't down south.

Folks up here don't say Amen and stuff like they do down south. Don't embarrass us. Every Sunday the old lady went to worship and tried her best to keep quiet as the name of Jesus was glorified. Her grandchildren would give her the eye and she would hold her peace. They didn't mind the funny looking red coat she wore. They didn't mind the flower that dangled from her hat. If she'd just sit quiet, they'd be happy. A guest preacher from down south was in the pulpit. He started talking about the goodness of the Lord. As he talked the flower started dangling on the old lady's hat as she moved from side to side. Her heels started clicking on the floor. Before she knew it she was standing on her feet shouting, praise the Lord. As her embarrassed grandchildren stared at her along with the whole church, she put her hands on her mouth and said, "I'm sorry ya'll, but I just got to praise the Lord!"

I don't know about you but there are times when we just can't keep it to ourselves, we've got to tell somebody!

Tell somebody about the goodness of the Lord!

I've got to tell somebody about a savior who picked me up and turned me around!

I've got to tell somebody about a risen savior who tells me I am his own for he walks with me and talks with me!

His name is Jesus!

He died out on Calvary!

Early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave!

He saved my soul! I said I wasn't going tell nobody, but I couldn't keep it to myself!

And they watched Him there

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 5, 2013

SCRIPTURE: And sitting down they watched him there. Matthew 27:36

Introduction

Have you ever struggled with a problem unsuccessfully, then concluded, "The only thing I can do is put it in God's hand?" If so, then you know what it means to wait on the Lord and to watch His will unfold. In such instances, the circumstances are out of our control; all we can do is wait and watch how God works it out.

In 1937, Zora Neale Hurston wrote a novel entitled "Their eyes were watching God." It was a picture of the African-American community of Eatonville, Florida who who eat, laugh, love work and kill all while watching God. It was not a religious work; it was a work of fiction that painted a picture of African-American in the real world as we hope for something better from God.

To a large extent there are many today whose eyes are watching God, waiting for Him to step in and make things better.

The woman who is being abused by an abusive husband, her eyes are watching God.

The man who is turned down for an opportunity, his eyes are watching God.

The family that is wallowing in poverty struggling to make ends meet, its eyes are watching God.

The community that is reeling for the effects of merciless acts of terror, bombings and threat, the eyes of all of its citizens are watching God.

Our eyes are watching God because he is the source of our hope. We have been able to endure storms, floods and misfortunes. We have successfully meandered the slippery slopes of life only because our eyes were fixed on God. We have been lynched from trees, our houses have been burned and some of our most vocal leaders have been assassinated, incarcerated or persecuted. Through it all we have continued to look toward heaven with a hope that God would make a way somehow.

Our eyes have been focused on God.

In hospital rooms, when all hope has dwindled to a flicker, our eyes are watching God.

When we are looming over a stack of unpaid bills wondering what to do next, our eyes are watching God.

We watch God because we have seen him keep our enemies at bay.

We watch God because we have seen him hold back the economic waters and the social injustices that should have destroyed us.

We watch God because we have seen him make a way out of no way.

As Christians, we are not discouraged by the terror we see in the media or witness with our own eyes because "he that keepeth Israel neither slumbers or sleeps." While others stumble in dismay, our eyes will be focused on the Lord.

Exposition

This text focuses on those who watched the crucifixion of Jesus.

Crucifixions were public spectacles that drew large crowds of people who for some strange reason wanted to watch convicted men die. Many traveled for miles to see a crucifixion.

The crucifixion of Jesus drew an exceptional array of observers who watched him for a variety of reasons. Among those who watched him were: A Roman Centurion and those who were with him; his mother and the disciples, his critics and naysayers and hundreds of curiosity seekers. They all watched him there.

It is important to note that while there were three men crucified they watched Him. There were three men groaning in agony but they watched Him. There were three men stripped of their garments and exposed to public humiliation, but they watched Him.

While watching Him and the events that followed, some of those who observed were convinced that He was truly the Son of God and they left the scene better individuals after watching God work.

Who watched Him?

Those who came to the cross that day came for a variety of reasons that are strikingly similar to those many watch Him today.

SOME WATCHED OUT OF ADORATION: Many watched at the crossed out of adoration for Christ. These are the ones who remembered how he fed the hungry, raised the dead and brought them hope. They adored Him for His wonderful works performed before their eyes. Today, our eyes are watching God because, "He has done great things for us." We assemble ourselves each week to adore Him for His goodness and His mercy towards us. To adore someone is to show an affection for them in word or deed. We adore Him for the way He has moved in our lives, a movement that has restored us and brought us new life.

SOME WATCHED IN CONDEMNATION: There were many at the cross who came to condemn him and ridicule Him. These are the ones who challenged him to save himself and come down from the cross. They ridiculed His mission, his faith and His purpose on earth. They watched Him and condemned Him. In a similar sense, believers today are watched in condemnation. Often it is co-workers, neighbors and friends who watch as we struggle with the issues of life and they rejoice in our frustrated efforts to get it right. They condemn us if there is trouble in in home, if we stumble in the handling of our finances or we are caught up in a sin that threatens us. They watch us with smirks on their faces and belittle our faith in God. While they are watching us with laughter in their hearts, what they don't know is that our eyes are watching God! "I will lift up mine eyes to the hiss from whence comets my help. My help cometh from The Lord which made the heaven and the earth."

SOME WATCHED WITH EXPECTATION: There were some at the cross who watched him with expectation. Most notable of all the watchers was the thief on the right hand side. He told told "Remember me when you enter into your kingdom." That was a statement of expectation despite and bad looking situation. He expected Christ to enter into the kingdom of heaven and he wanted to share that moment. Today, believers keep their eyes on God because we are expecting great things. We are not expecting to avoid troubles, but we are expecting God to remember in our trouble and delver us from evil. We don't expect to avoid the rain and storms, but we expect him to guide us through the storms of life. It is our expectation of heaven that motivates us to keep living the Christian life. It is our expectation of glory divine the drives us and pushes us to sacrifice, serve and sing His praise. Our eyes are watching God because we expect him to move in mighty way to perform his divine way.

They watched him

Finally, brothers and sisters we must note that although there were others hanging on the cross on Calvary, those who came had their eyes on him.

The two thieves, no doubt had family and friends who were concerned about them, but the record only records that they "they watched him there."

It is is interesting to note the last two words of the passage "him there," because they prompt us to ask, "Why was he there?'

He was there because he assumed the sins of the world upon himself and was crucified in our place.

"Him there." Why was He there? He was there because his death would bring an end to the ceremonial law and open the door to the opportunity of grace.

"Him there." Why was He there? He was there because the scripture had predicted that he would be, "wounded for our transgressions, bruised for iniquity and the chastisement of our peace is upon and him and with his stripes we are healed."

"Him there." Why was He there? He was there to echo the truth of John 3:16 that God so loved the world that he gave His only begotten Son so that whosever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

They watched Him there, but those who watched him became witnesses for Him.

The centurion and all his soldiers watched him there, but after they saw the sky turn darks and felt the ground shake. After they saw the tombs of the saints open the centurion declare, “Surely he must be the Son of God.”

Even today, the same is true; those who watch God work leave as his best witnesses!

The woman at the well watch him and left telling everyone, come see a man who told me all I’ve ever done!

The man who had his sight restored, told the world, “I was blind, but now I see!”

If we watch God we will see him give new life to dead dreams!

If we watch God we will see him paint pictures of hope on the bland canopies of despair!

If we watch God we will see him give hope to the hopeless and help to the helpless!

Believers are not overly frustrated by what they watch on T.V. because their eyes are watching God.

They watching the same God who blessed them yesterday by rolling back their Red Sea waters and bringing down their walls of Jericho

Our eyes are watching God because when we were WEAK he provided us with strength

DOWN he picked us up!

DEFEATED he gave us the victory

DISCOURAGED he restored our hope!

LONELY, he gave us comfort

TROUBLED he gave us peace of mind

Our eyes are watching God both day and night. In the morning we sing, “I woke this morning with my mine staid on Jesus.” At night we, “I may not have done all that I wanted to do, but Lord it’s been a mighty good day.”

We are watching Him, when we at our lowest He picked up and old cross and carried to Calvary!

He died that day, and they watched him there!

They buried him and they watched him there, all night long!

But early Sunday morning, He arose from the dead with all power in His hands!

Take your burdens to the Lord…and watch God work!

Mama told me there would be days like this

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 12, 2013

SCRIPTURE: My son, hear the instruction of thy father, and forsake not the law of thy mother: For they shall be an ornament of grace unto thy head and chains about thy neck- Proverbs 1:8-9

Introduction

Did your mother ever give you advice, that later proved to be true? Do you still hear her words today, although sometimes you ignored them when they were spoken? If so then you are like millions over the years who have heard their mothers instructions about life, love, godliness and happiness, but ignored those parts that conflicted with our own ideals. You are also among millions who stumbled upon lifes realities years later, and had to say, Mama told there would be days like this.

In the 1960s the Shirtless was the first womens group to top the Billboard 100. They sang songs about innocent girls who were tempted to fall in love for the wrong reason. Many remember them for songs such as Soldier Boy And will you love me tomorrow? One of their hits was a song about advice that mother gave a young girl, it was called Mama Said there would be days like this.

The song became an instant hit because nearly everyone can relate to ignoring the words of their mothers, strong advice about life, love and happiness until one day what they were told unfolded in front of their eyes and they remember mamas words clearly. Then they find themselves saying, Mama said their would be days like this.

There are two factors that contribute to mothers ability to give sound advice. Generally, the more distance in years that a mother has from her child, she is able to pass on advice from her life experience. A mother that is 25 years older than her child has more life experience to pass on than a mother who is only 15 years older than her child. Having lived Two decades or more, mother usually has a wealth of experiences in life, love and happiness to share with those following behind. The second factor has to do with spirituality. Mothers, regardless to age, who are closer to God, seem to have more wisdom in their advice. This wisdom is not from their lifes experience, but from their relationship with God who reveals lifes secrets to her in ways that seem mysterious.

Its dangerous to ignore a godly mothers advice, because the advice is often the result of prayer and revelation directly from the throne of God. A praying mother finds it difficult to sleep when her children are struggling to find their way in life. There, in the solitude of the night, God speaks words of wisdom to inquiring mothers and gives them insights to share. Often this wisdom, that comes from God himself and is profound, providing revelation on lifes mysteries. Sometimes it is prophetic, pointing to outcomes if certain paths are chosen.

The bible teaches us the importance of listening to a godly mothers advice, heeding it as if it came from God himself.

As Christians, we thank God for giving us godly mothers who tried to guide us and keep us in the path of righteousness. Let us keep their words close to our heart, because the day will come when we shall realize the truth and power of her words on our lives.

Exposition

This text focuses on the wisdom of Solomon as he advises the young to remember the instructions of their fathers and the teachings of their mothers. In the biblical context it was the responsibility of parents to provide instruction and law to children. Each parent had the responsibility to learn and follow the laws of God themselves, and then both teach and enforce them in their homes.

Verse 8 uses the term instruction and associates it with the role of fathers. The responsibility of fathers was to teach the laws of God to the family with the authority to command that they be followed.

Verse 9 uses the term law or teachings and associates it with the role of mothers. Their responsibility was to explain why the laws of God must be followed. In a greater sense, it became mothers duty to explain the ways of the world to her children, examining life from the perspective of Gods will and His divine purpose.

Mothers teachings, usually became a mixture of repeating the instruction of the father, quoting the scripture, and a litany of wise sayings designed to guide the young matters of life, love, happiness and godliness. Children are reminded to remember what their mothers have said to them throughout all of their lives. When what mother says reflects the laws of God, it will fill the lives of children with the grace and mercy of God and serve as a source of strength and distinction (ornament) when followed in the years that follow.

What did mama say?

Many people remember the teachings and the sayings of their mothers throughout their lives. They may remember her words as she tried to prepare them for life. In addition, godly mothers not only gave wisdom from their own experience, but also regularly pointed their children to what God would have them do.

MAMA TOLD ME ABOUT LIFE: Mothers try to help us understand life. Their teaching are usually reduced to hundreds of proverbs or wise sayings such as:Never talk to strangers, If It aint broke dont fix it, Dont get the big head, You cant eat your cake and have it, too, Dont start it, if you cant finish it and hundreds more. As the years roll by, if we cataloged all of the things mother said about every subject, we could actually read a book because she had something to say about everything. Mama sayings were filled with promise and warnings. When things are going well because we followed the laws of God and the teachings of our mothers, we enjoy the good times mama told us would come. When we fall under the pressures of life or suffer betrayal the hands of friends, or experience difficulties in life, we also remember that mama said there would be days like this. Somewhere in all of that remember her saying talk to God about it. In days like this, remember Proverbs 3:6, In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths.

MAMA TOLD ME ABOUT LOVE: Some remember clearly remember Gods instructions about matters of love, romance, relationships and marriage. We remember how she warned us to choose our mates wisely, love passionately, build relationships honestly and marry for life. We also remember her telling us that there would be days when love, romance and marriage would bring both smiles and tears. When relationships are strained, romance dwindles to a flicker, and despite our best efforts marriage crumbles, we can hear mothers prophecy as we mumble,Mama told me there would be days like this.Whether walking happily hand in hand on a beach or sitting alone in the pain of rejection, we remember, Mama told me there would be days like this.

Mama said there would be days when we feel that nobody cares, and then she reminded us that God cares. His eye is on the sparrow and he also watches us.

Mama said there would be days when we dont have the strength to love and we feel drained. Then she reminded us of 2 Corinthians 12:9 My grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness..

Mama said there would be days in when love and relationships will be filled with confusion and trouble. Then she reminded us of John 14:27, Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid.

MAMA TOLD ME ABOUT JOY AND HAPPINESS: Godly mothers try to explain lifes issues to their children in ways that we lead them around the pitfalls and potholes of life. Many feel obligated to help their children avoid the potholes that cause them to stumble. Mothers try to point their children to lifestyles that will bring them joy and happiness.

Mama said there would be days when we succeed and joy abounds. She said we should remember Psalm 9:2, I will be glad and rejoice in thee: I will sing praise to thy name, thou most High.Give God the praise.

Mama said there would be days when we find it difficult to achieve our dreams. She said we should remember Psalm 37:4, Delight thyself also in the Lord; and he shall give thee the desires of thine heart.True happiness comes when we do Gods will.

Mama said there would be days when we we feel that happiness is taking too long. Thats when she told us to remember Isaiah 40:31, But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint. Dont get too impatient your good days are right around the corner.

Mama said there would be days when we stray and lose our joy. That when she told us to remember, Psalm 51:12 ÒRestore unto me the joy of thy salvation; and uphold me with thy free spirit. Dont give up on life; whatever you lose God can help you find it again.

Mama said there would be days when money is short and we cant see our way. She said we should remember Psalm 37:25, I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread

MAMA TOLD ME ABOUT GODLINESS: Godly mothers try to explain to their children the importance of living Godly lives that are guided by principles of morality rooted in Gods word.

Mama said there would be days when we would be tempted to stray away from the godly path. Thats when she told us to remember Matthew 2 6: ..lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. Ask God for deliverance out of sinful situations.

Mama said there would be days when when we will be tempted to copy the ways of wicked people around us just to succeed. She reminded us that Psalm 37:1-2 says, Fret not thyself because of evildoers, neither be thou envious against the workers of iniquity. For they shall soon be cut down like the grass, and wither as the green herb. Dont copy the ways of the ungodly.

Mama said there would be days when we will tempted to cheat to get ahead. She said we should remember, Micah 6:8, What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God. Do the right thing.

Mama told me that there would be days when I would not be able to see my way, thats when she said reminded me that the Lord will make a way somehow.

Mama told me to trust God

Finally, brothers and sister we need to remember the one thing that every Christian mother tells her children: Trust God and hold to His hand.

What makes a godly mothers advice important is because her children know that she is god fearing and tries to follow God. There are some who get their wisdom from textbooks, philosophers or from the internet, but a godly mother gets hers from God.

Since we know that mama gets hers from God, we listen intently when she tells us and we remember her words.

As we have traveled through life we have learned that what mama told us about God has proven to be true

Mama told us that if we should do what we can in life, then put things in Gods hands and He will work it out!

Mama told us that if we have fallen down, God would pick us up again!

Mama told us that if we fail in life God will give us a second chance!

Mama told us that if we become weak that God will renew our strength!

Mama told us if there is trouble in your home, go somewhere and get quiet “Be still and let God work it out!

If you let God work it out mountains will be made low!

If you let God work it out valleys shall be exalted!

If you let God work it out crooked places shall be made straight!

Mama said one of the days, I wont be with you, but you remember what Im telling you!

One of these days, I wont be able to hold your hand, but when that day comes, put your hands in Gods hands.

When we are in Gods hands hes always by your side

When we are in Gods hands hes with you in the midst of blessings or despair

As the years go by, and you are walking in the sunshine, remember mama told me, if I walked by faith, there would be days like this!

When you are standing tall in walking in the winners circle with a victory reef on your head, remember, Mama told me that if I trusted in the Lord, there would be days like this!

When you are have basking in light of victory after so many failure, remember mama said, if you never give up and keep the faith, there would be days like this!

Mama said never be ashamed to tell somebody about the goodness of the Lord!

Tell them how he woke me up this morning and clothed me in my right mind!

Tell them how he walks with me and talks with me!

Tell them how he died out on Calvary! But don’t stop there.. tell them how Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

Mama told me if I gave my life to Jesus there would be a day when I would be able to say, I came to Jesus just as I was weary, wounded and sad. I found in Him a resting place and he has made me glad!

Bread on the Waters

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: "Cast thy bread upon the waters: for thou shalt find it after many days." Ecclesiastes 11:1

Introduction

Have you ever faced a hopeless situation that seemed to be a lost cause? That's the point where we feel that all of our efforts are in vain, serve no purpose and are a waste of time. It's the feeling of the teacher who pours her heart into her profession, but sees little or no results. It's the anxiety of the reformer who makes an effort to fix a broken system, but keeps hitting the stone wall of opposition. It's the parent who keeps spending money on special lessons, schools and tutors, but gets little success or appreciation. It's the activist that keeps trying to help the poor, but the demand for help never diminishes and efforts appear useless. Those who plunge themselves into a cause bigger than themselves, are often frustrated, but should not give up hope, because their efforts are not in vain.

Our community has faced a long history of challenges over the years. Whether it was the elimination of slavery, forging an education in reconstruction, building colleges and universities at the turn of the century, pushing for civil rights in the 60's or pushing for economic parity at the present, there have always been dedicated men and women who give of themselves to tackle the issues of our times. In 1905 a group of men led by W.E.B. Dubois met in Niagara Falls to begin a movement that resulted in what we know as the NAACP. In 1913 Twenty-Two women met to form what we know as Delta Sigma Theta, and others followed, all pledging to pour themselves into a cause bigger than than their own existence: the advancement of an entire race.

That journey has not been easy. Each successive generation of activist, leaders sorors, frat brothers, Masonics and others have met repeating waves of frustration that often appeared that their efforts were useless. The more they worked, the worse situations came. They fought crime, and crime increased. They tried to help children, and delinquency doubled. They tried to educate, and found a generation without a thirst for learning. When we look back over decades of service, some conclude that we have made little progress proportionate to our efforts. They conclude that we are pouring money into a bottomless pit, burning up energy and casting bread on waters that will never return.

Despite the hopelessness that some feel, there are others who forge forward, confident that their efforts are not in vain. They believe the energy spent reaching a lost child, will produce results. They believe their efforts to change government to be more sensitive to the concerns of the poor and disenfranchised will take root as government leaders change.

We don't accept that cause as lost because we believe in the power of God. With that faith we forge forward, confident that through His strength our service will not be in vain.

What lies before believers is a vast array of challenges that will require us to use every ounce of our ingenuity to succeed. Over the years we have accomplished much, but there is so much to be done and so many lives to be touched.

As Christians, we must continue to do good work, help the poor, reach the lost and lift up the name of Jesus, with the full knowledge that "serving the Lord will pay off after while."

Exposition

This text focuses on a passage of scripture in which Solomon challenges believers to share what they have with others, expecting it to return.

The passage uses two words that, in today's understanding, might give a confusing image to a believer. When the modern believer reads this passage it seems to conjure an image of a person tossing a loaf of bread into a river or stream and days later the loaf of bread comes back, perhaps very soggy. That was not quite the image.

Most biblical believers had agrarian roots. They understood farm talk. This passage is bathed in farm talk.

On the farm then, as it is still today, most bread was made from corn. We are familiar with corn bread or light bread, most of which is made of ground corn. However, after the harvest there was "bread-corn" and "seed-corn." Bread-corn was the nubs of the harvest that were saved to feed the farm animals that provided meat and the cows that provided milk. The seed-corn was saved to plant again so that there would be more corn next season.

A neighbor whose animals was starving after a drought or storm wasn't given corn bread, but bread-corn. A neighbor whose crops had been completely lost was not given a pan or corn bread, but seed-corn to start again.

Look at two words in the passage: "bread" and "waters." Bread in this context referred to the bread-corn and seed-corn of the farm. The term "waters," in scripture, often refers to unseen multitudes, not actual liquids in a river or sea.

To cast seed-corn or bread upon the waters meant to help others indiscriminately, not knowing how it help, but confident that it was serving a good purpose. The passage added that such action would return after after many days.

The idea of casting bread upon the waters goes even deeper. The Egyptian practice of sowing seeds upon the river Nile while it overflowed it banks. When the waters subsided the seeds would take root somewhere along the Nile bank system and would grow into fine stalks of corn. The sower would cast the seed but had no idea whether it would take root in the immediate vicinity or take root in another place. However, the sower knew properly sown they would take root somewhere. Just as he sowed in one place and expected his seed to probably grow up in another, there were other sowers in other places along the river's edge that were also sowing. The seed would probably be that which finally took root in his area. In any event, the sowers cast seed upon the waters in this way, not knowing what the final outcome would be while trusting the gods to provide for them.

Casting the Bread

Casting bread upon the waters is the mission of every believer. In that context we should consider that:

WE CAST BREAD BECAUSE WE ARE CONNECTED: There is a connection between one man and other. We cast our bread upon the waters because we sense that connection. We help because we have been helped. We teach because we have been taught. We give to others because someone has given to us. We are constantly paying forward some seed that was cast. We believe in the fatherhood of God, therefore we believe in the brotherhood of man. There are many who try to live at a distance from the needs, and tragedies of others, but that is impossible. The poet John Donne made this poem clear when he wrote "No man is an island, entire of itself; every man is a piece of the continent, a part of the main…because I am involved in mankind, and therefore never send to know for whom the bells tolls; it tolls for thee." All around us we see the connections. We plant a seed in Louisiana, but that seed ends up in California. You are suffering a drought in your neck of the woods, then a seed sown in Chicago moves into your town. Therefore, when you do good works, don't expect that exact person to repay you one day; but it will be repaid. The child you are raising, the elderly person you are helping will reap a blessing upon you; not necessarily from the person you are helping, but from a seed that will float your way, sown in another place destined to reach you in the nick of time.

WE CAST SEED-BREAD FOR LASTING RESULTS: There is an old saying that says, "Give a man a fish and he has food for a day, teach him to fish and he has food for a lifetime." That is the nature of casting seed-bread on the waters or multitudes of our people. We need to offer our assistance with a hand up not a handout. Too many of our people have become dependent upon handouts, which may be necessary in the short term, but are crippling in the long term. So the challenge is for believers to give seed-corn to young families: Stage workshops to show young families how to manage their money; and to get their money to work for them through investments in real estate, stocks, bonds and business opportunities. Show the millions of boys who are lost the road to manhood, and point young girls to the road of finer womanhood. Every believer is challenged to gear up to sow seed bread in five areas: economic development, educational development, awareness of world concerns, political awareness and involvement in the physical and mental health of our people. When we sow seed-bread we get lasting results that will benefit our whole community in name of the savior.

WE MUST CAST OUR BREAD NOW: When should we begin casting our bread? When should begin to pursue our purpose? There is a Latin phrase Carpe Diem which means seize the day or seize the moment. The time is now. There is a bug familiar to the South called the Mayfly. It's a strange little bug because it only lives about 24 hours. In 24 hours it hatches, zooms through the wonders of youth, mates, lays eggs and soon they fade away. The Mayfly doesn't have tie to waste, it has to seize the moment. In that context we must do something significant with our lives. We can't afford to remain distant, aloof, keeping our options open. The result of that path is that at the end of the day we don't achieve anything of significance, anything of meaning. We have a mission that is challenging us to act now! Our schools are failing; we must act now! Prisons are filling with our young men; we must act now! The ghettos are expanding; we must act now! Drug use and the incidences of HIV-Aids or increasing, we must act, now! The old warriors sang the song then, and we must sing it now, "A charge to keep I have, a God to glorify. O may all my powers engage to do my master's will."

After many Days

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that this text gives us a mission, but it also gives us a promise. We are told to cast our bread upon the waters, but we are also told after many days we will find it.

We are given the challenge to speak to the social dilemmas of our times, but we are given the promise that "after many days" there shall be a return.

We are given the mission to speak to the plethora of social ills that are destroying our families, under-educating our children, and eating away at the souls of our community, but we are also given the promise that "after many days" we won't regret our service.

How long is "Many days?" 1 Kings 17:15 uses the term "many days" when it described a widow woman who prepared her last cruise of oil and meal in a feast for a strange prophet. For this woman "many days" meant as it was necessary.

We serve a God who keeps refilling the barrel of those who cast their bread upon the water, for many days, as long as it is necessary.

In Ezekiel, 12:27 the phrase "many days" meant many generations into the future.

Those who cast their bread upon the water don't know how it will come back to them, it could be next week, but it could be many years into the future, but it will come back for a long as necessary, to sustain the faithful who serve the Lord.

Casting our bread on the water has its social and economic implications, but it also has spiritual implications. Jesus told his disciples in John 6:35, "I am the bread of life and he that cometh to me shall never hunger." Then, in Matthew 28:19 he said, "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

In essence, he challenged believers to throughout the world and tell the world about the bread of life. It may seem that all of your sermons, Sunday School lessons, Vacation Bible Schools and Bible Studies are not doing any good, but after many days….

It may seem that all of your prayers, testimonies and witnessing are not producing results, but we need to remember the promise ..after many days!

Who will march forward ready to cast their bread on the water and tell the story?

Who will tell the story of how God brought us a mighty long way?

Who will tell the story of our march through hardship and trouble into this present day?

Who will tell the world that if you cast your bread on the waters of faith there will never be a —CROSS that we won't be able to bear; MOUNTAIN that we won't be able to climb!

—ENEMY that we won't be able to defeat; BATTLE we won't be able to win!
—DARKNESS so dark that we won't be able to see the light!
—TRIAL that we can't make it through; TEST that we won't be able to pass!

As we move forward we should should cast our eyes upon Him who will never let us down!

His name is Jesus!

Jesus, somebody here today knows him!

Jesus, the Lily of the valley!

Jesus, the Bright and Morning star!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary and rose up early Sunday morning!

Cast your hope on Jesus! Sing together the words of the old hymn,

"My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame, but wholly lean on Jesus name. On Christ the solid rock I stand...

All other Ground!

All other Ground is sinking sand!

SCRIPTURE: He also that had received two talents came and said, Lord, thou deliveredst unto me two talents:behold, I have gained two other talents beside them. His lord said unto him, Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things:enter thou into the joy of thy lord. Matthew 25:22-23

Introduction

Have you ever considered the value of little blessings? We often spend our lives seeking after the big blessings without considering that big accomplishments begin as small opportunities. We see the mighty oaks in the forest, but we fail to see the hundreds of seedlings in the valleys. We throw away the scraps without recognizing the value of recycled scrap. We pray for sunshine without realizing that the blessing we sought was actually in the rain.

The ability to see the potential in life's little things is important; the ability to capitalize on that potential is even more important.

We often pray for the big things in life and God gives us the little things.

Consider the man whose family had fallen on hard times. Laid off from his job and several months behind on his $50,000 mortgage, he was about to lose it all after working so hard to pay it down to a mere $50,000. He went to an empty field neighboring the house he built and sat by a tree and prayed. An old miser once had a house there, but it was blown away in a storm. He asked God for $50,000. He prayed fervently and sincerely. When he opened his eyes he saw a shiny penny laying on the ground. He picked it up and pocketed it. The next day he prayed again and found two pennies before he left. Every day the number of pennies he found in that vacant lot doubled: 2 pennies, 4, 16, 32, 64,128,256, 512, 1024, 2048. By the end of the month the man had his family searching the entire field. At the end of the month they had collected $56,587.08. These pennies were from the fortune of the old miser who had collected a million dollars in pennies and stored them in sacks in his basement. The storm scattered them everywhere. From time to time, neighbors saw a few, but had no clue that there was a fortune underneath the dirt of the field. For the man under the tree, it all started with a prayer for something big, resulting in God's answer of showing him asingle penny; the rest was up to him.

Sometimes we look for greatness, success and achievement in big packages, but overlook the obvious. We see the little boy who is mischievous at school leading other boys in pranks and shake our heads. We don't see that boy capitalizing on his leadership ability and becoming a civic or government leader. We see a physically challenged person and overlook their capacity to write books, win competitions, paint, or create music with their physical challenge as the main selling point. We see the child born into poverty, but gifted with brain and an industrious spirit, does not allow his poverty to prevent his success. We don't see them excelling because of the poor background and succeeding in ways no one ever dreamed.

God shows everyone at least one penny, the question is what we choose to do with it. Should we ignore it as valueless because it is dirty or found in an unsanitary place? Should we capitalize upon it and double it? It is not always a copper penny, but it is often a talent, gift or chance opportunity.

Sometimes it is a diploma; a single sheet of paper that in itself has little value, but is filled with potential if the recipient seeks to double its value in the years ahead, adding training, experience and advanced training to that single piece of paper, can open up so many avenues for a successful life.

As Christians, we have learned never to doubt our potential once we put our lives in God's hands. He may give us a only a diploma and a penny to work with, but we know there is no limit to what we can do with them, if we put our trust in God and let him help us work with them.

Exposition

This text focuses on a parable Christ told to emphasize the importance of maximizing the gifts that we have been given.

The immediate context focused on service to the kingdom, and the value of that service to the master.

In this parable the roles in the kingdom are symbolized by the master and his servants. The master represents God who is the Lord of the Kingdom. The servants represent the members of the kingdom of heaven.

The theme of the parable is that God gives each person a measure of possessions for which he will one day be held accountable. One servant is given five measures of money called talents. A second is given two. The last is given one. The first two invest their money and return the master a profit. The last buried his talent and did not use it. There is no reason given to explain why the man with one talent did not even try to work with his gift. Perhaps he thought it too small; or insignificant. It is known that he feared that he might fail, having only one, so he buried it.

It angered the Master and resulted in the loss of favor with the master.

The message to believers becomes obvious. If we use what God has given us he will be pleased. If we do not, we make him angry and he could withdraw his favor.

What do I do now?

Now that graduates have diplomas in their hands, the question is what do they do now? For the last 13 years they have worked to get a small piece of paper in their hands; now they have it, what's next? God has opened a door, the next step is up to each individual graduate. The diploma graduates have earned represents their chance, their penny. It's now time to prepare for the next step when opportunity knocks. Education, discipline and faith are three essentials to seizing these opportunities when they come.

DON'T BE A BAD PENNY: There are some graduates who will blow their opportunities with recklessness. A bad penny is one that has been damaged, disfigured or counterfeited. It is reckless living that has caused many in the previous class to lose opportunities they should have gained, so this class must be keenly sensitive to the the influences that will pull them away from their goals. Illegal activities, riotous living and generally undisciplined living have contributed to the downfall of many young people, who started out with great potential, but ended up bad pennies. The circles of success usually reject those who are a bad influence, the old saying is, "In a pocket full of silver, a bad penny always shows up."

PRETTY PENNIES: When something is a "pretty penny" it is expensive. The old saying is, "That dress is made out of fine material; it must have cost a pretty penny." The education you have received has cost someone in your family a pretty penny. A recent national study reports that the average high school diploma costs over $100,000 over 12 years. The senior year alone including: proms, graduation fees, cap and gown, photos, class fees, invitations and other expenses. Your family has invested heavily in your education. it has cost them a pretty penny. The challenge is to use your $100,000 education well. If you go to college expect to spend another $50,000 or more on tuition, transportation, books, meals. Having paid such a price, we are challenged not to waste the opportunities ahead of us. Your education has cost your family a pretty penny, make them proud.

PENNY WORTHY THOUGHTS: There is a an old saying, "A penny for your thoughts." It usually refers to a person who wants to know what's on your mind. Now that you have graduated from high school, your thoughts should graduate to another level. It is often said that great minds discuss: ideas such as world hunger, global warming, and world peace. The average mind discusses events such as: football and basketball games, plays, movies, openings, closings and other activities. People with small minds usually discuss other people: what they wore, who they are sleeping with, how much they have, what they are doing. Your thoughts should graduate to a higher level, focus on deeper subjects and expand. They should be worth something. Philippians 4:8 sums it up this way, "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."-They'll be worth more than a penny.

PENNY-WISE AND DOLLAR FOOLISH: There are many graduates who learned everything in school except how to handle their money. They are penny wise, but dollar foolish. We have seen them. It's the person who buys groceries at six different stores shopping specials and saves $4.00, but spends $10 in gas to get there. The challenge for young graduates is to avoid being penny wise and dollar foolish, to learn to handle your money well. The first temptation is to live above your means to impress your friends, securing apartments, automobiles and expenses that depend on the generosity of others. That's a temptation that should be avoided. Learning to manage money, credit, and personal budgets is a challenge for every graduate about to step into the world of adult living for the first time. Being dollar-foolish has destroyed many. Being penny wise to the point of establishing saving habits, supporting their church and other charities and disciplined financial dealings has helped many youth to survive their first forays into adulthood.

Little blessings are from Heaven

Finally, brothers and sisters, all young believers should remember that every little blessing they receive comes from heaven.

We should not be like the last servant who thought he only received a small blessing so it should be buried, but we should realize that any blessing we receive from heaven is a starting point from which we are expected to build and grow.

In 1936 the late Bing Cosby starred in a movie entitled "Pennies from Heaven." It was about people in the depression era of our national history who never lost hope because they received every opportunity as a penny from heaven, with which they turned rain into sunshine.

There is an old saying that as we travel through life that often we worry about one thing or another and God sends an angel to walk before us; we know it when we find a penny on the ground.

I don't know whether it is true or not, it is certainly not in scripture, but there is something to consider that we often find pennies when we are also looking for answers.

He may not leave a penny, but our God is always around.

He has promised never to leave us alone.

If we fall upon misfortune his words remain true, I will never leave thee! There may not be a penny on the ground, but he's always around!

If we fall upon temporary disgrace or public scorn, His words still resonate, I will never leave thee!

If we fall into sickness or despair, the echo of his words fills our ears, I will never leave thee! We may not find a penny on the ground, but he's always around!

If our friends forsake us and family turns on us, even without a penny on the ground, He's always around!

This promise of God overrides present reality and plunges us into the supernatural. It cancels the logical and pushes us into the realm of faith. It padlocks fear and unlocks hope and optimism.

Christian graduates should go forward pledging to use their talents in ways that God will be pleased!

Use them to help promote the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man!

Use them to reach out to the lost and touch those who are in distress!

Use them to glorify God!

Use them with the full knowledge that he will not allow you to miss the mark if you are aiming in His name.

If I fall down, He'll pick me up!

If I make a mistake, He will forgive me!

If I stumble, He will whole my hand!

If I cant find my way, He will guide me! Thats why Ill say, Guide me oh thou great Jehovah, pilgrim through this barren land. I am weak but thou art mighty hold me with thou powerful hand!

The same hand that touched a blind man's eyes!

The same hand that healed a lame man and made him walk!

The same hands that were nailed to an old rugged cross in death..

But the same hand that were raised in victory early Sunday morning!

I want that same hand to guide me every day!

Living the Photo shopped life

SCRIPTURE: But the LORD said unto Samuel, Look not on his countenance, or on the height of his stature; because I have refused him: for the LORD seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the LORD looketh on the heart. 1 Samuel 16:7

Introduction

Have you ever seen a glamor photo of a person? A glamor photo is a special photograph that accentuates your positives and eliminates all of your negatives to the point that the subject appears glamorous. The extent of the glamor shot demands on how much you are willing to pay. Sometimes your hair is touched up, make up is applied and a glamorous looking costume is used for your attire. The lighting in a glamor photo is adjusted perfectly. The subject is posed in a way that their best impression is visible. Then click. When the final photo is taken, every blemished, scar, bruise or discoloration is removed with a computer program called Photoshop. The results is an image of the subject that appears spectacular. Although the subject has probably never appeared that way in real life.

A glamor photo shows the way we would appear in the perfect circumstance with: perfect lighting, perfect hair, from the perfect perspective and under perfect conditions. If Photoshop tools are used, the subject can have unwanted features removed or desired features added with the stroke of a computer mouse.

We prefer to pose for pictures because that allows people to see us as we want to be seen. In many ways our poses assume an attitude, posture or character with the intent to deceive.

Since 1988 the world has been exposed to Photoshop. Photoshop is an amazing product that can change a person's appearance in a photograph. In Photoshop a big man can be smaller and a small man can be bigger. It can make a bald man have a full head of hair, give a toothless woman a full set of teeth, or even allow you to change heads with someone else.

Photoshop is unique in that it does not change the original picture, instead it adds layers on top of the original and brightens, darkens or adjust it many ways. Using Photoshop you can be inserted into scenes in which you never participated or removed.

With Photoshop, what you see with the eye is rarely real. It's the image that has been prepared for others to see.

When a photograph looks suspect, Photoshop experts are hired to analyze it. Frauds are instantly detected.

Sometimes churchgoers strike a pose for the Lord. We present him our best side while hiding the other. If there are flaws we hide them or put a layer of good behavior on top of them.

God is not fooled by our Photo shopped lives. He can spot a fake a mile away because he never looks at the layers on the outside, but only looks at the original.

As believers, we are pleased to know that our God knows who we really are and loves us flaws and all. He is working to help us to improve the original rather than hide what we don't like under layers of disguises.

Exposition

This text focuses on young David as he was being selected by the Prophet Samuel to succeed Saul as King of Israel. Saul had been a great leader but God wanted a man after his own heart.

As Samuel reviewed the sons of Jesse he came to Eliab (v6) and thought to himself that surely this would be the son that God would select, but God told him that although Eliab was tall and towering in his presence that his heart was not right for the job that had to be done.

David, the shepherd boy, was called. He was shorter than his brothers, and he was also good looking. Verse 12 notes that David was ruddy, with a beautiful countenance, and was good to look upon. However, not only did he look good on the outside, but he also looked good on the inside.

The truth the passage reveals is that God is not impressed with what appeals to the eye, but rather he is touched by that which is within the hearts of individuals.

The Photo shopped life

There are many parallels to our real lives and the lives we want others to see, the Photo shopped lives:

THE PHOTOSHOPPED LIFE APPEARS TO HAVE MORE: It is possible to take an image of yourself standing in front of a run-down shotgun house and transpose that image in such a way that you appear to be standing in front of a mansion. Those who see it think you own a mansion or have at least visited one. There are many who live Photo shopped lives that give the appearance that they have more than they really do. They live in houses they cannot afford and drive vehicles that impress others, but are far beyond their financial means. They project an image of prosperity that is far from the truth. These are the ones who return to the class reunion in a rented expensive vehicle to impress their classmates or boast about their accomplishments in life complete with Photo shopped accounts of the years since graduation. What's exciting about our God is that He does not require us to impress him with how much money we have or the size of our house or bank account. In fact, he loves the mansion and the shot-gun house resident both the same. God is no respecter of person, we don't have to Photoshop our lives to impress him.

THE PHOTO SHOPPED LIFE IS A MASK: Photoshop uses what is called a layered mask to place over the original picture so that it can be changed. There are many people who are familiar with masks; we wear them regularly. One great truth of life is that we never really know people until we catch them without their masks; without their game face, without their public personality. Sometimes we don't like the man or woman behind the mask. Sometimes it frustrates us and makes us angry. The beauty of our relationship with God is that he loves the man or woman behind the mask. He knows our inner spirit. Despite what he knows about us, he has chosen to love us anyway. Despite what he sees when our masks come off, he still loves us. We love him because he looks beyond our faulty masks, disguises and false faces and sees someone worthy of loving. No wonder the song writer wrote, Oh How I love Jesus, because he first loved me.

THE PHOTO SHOPPED LIFE IMPROVES APPEARANCES: Photoshop can miraculously improve appearances. It can make us young again. It can remove, wrinkles, blemishes, spots and gray hair. An appearance is the way we are seen by others, a Photo shopped life is good at working on appearances. For appearance sake many marriages, relationships, and personalities have had the blemishes removed and they have been carefully edited to create a public image. If we were selected to become the stars of our own, unedited reality show: "Lifestyles of the Saved and Sanctified" would we need to present the world a Photo shopped image with all of our blemishes removed or would they get a glimpse of how a Christian home operates on a daily basis. The beauty of our faith is that God is not impressed with how we appear to others; He is only impressed with the real people underneath the masks. We don't have to hide our scars, wrinkles and imperfections from Him; he knows they are there and loves us as we deal with them day by day.

The blood changes the original

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember, that Photoshop touches up the original, but the blood of Christ completely changes the original.

Samuel said God sees the heart and in the heart lies the true nature of any individual. Outward processes can change our appearance, but never change the heart.

In Photoshop there is one final process that must be considered; it's the undo button.

After masks are applied and hair color has been changed there is an undo button, that will return it to its original color.

After hair has been added to a bald head there is an undo button that will remove all of the hair.

After wrinkles have been removed from an aging face, there is an undo button that shows a face unchanged.

Photoshop has many good qualities, but it has one central weakness; it can alter the appearance with layers of disguises, but when all of the undo buttons are clicked all we have is what we began with.

Those who live the photo shopped life never change, they only appear to change. Underneath the layers everything is the same.

If you are tired of living the photo shop life are our God is waiting to exchange your touch up to a make over. He'll take your glamor photo that makes you look good to others and give you a divine pose that will make you look good to Him.

While Photoshop can take us back to original, God has a redo button that lets us change the original into something new.

God doesn't not Photoshop our lives He gives us a complete spiritual remake. Not a touch up. Not a highlighter, but a make-over.

What we need can only be done by God he is the divine Surgeon who can do what we need.

2 Corinthians 5:17 says, "Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new."

God does not Photoshop our lives by adding a false layer, but he clicks the redo button that involves taking out a few things and putting in others.

We'll take out hatred, fear, anxiety, bad attitudes, hatred, impatience, grumpiness, rudeness, bad language, uncontrollable desires, and immorality.

What will we put in? Galatians 5:22-23, says he'll put in "… love, joy, peace, longsuffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, self-control. Against such there is no law"

When we get a make-over, we become new creatures in Christ. New from the inside out! Not made up, but made over in his image.

As new creatures we begin to trust in the Lord!

When we put our trust in the Lord he makes our:

-RACE worth running and our BATTLE worth fighting!

-COURSE worth finishing and our FAITH worth keeping!

-DIFFICULTIES worth facing and our BURDENS worth bearing!

- ANXIETIES worth enduring and our TEARS worth shedding!

When we trust in the Lord, he clicks the spiritual redo button and turns dark days into sun shiny days; MIDNIGHTS into noontimes and hard times into good times!

We should praise the Lord because his:

Grace is always sufficient; Love is always abundant

Mercy is everlasting and; promises are sure!

We should praise the Lord for the burden he's going to lift off our shoulder!

We should praise the Lord for the hill He's going to help us to climb! We should praise the Lord for the bills He's going to help us to pay!

We should praise the Lord for the job He's going to help us to find!

We should praise the Lord for the home He's going to help us to buy!

Photoshop when obtained legally is an expensive program.

Likewise living a Photo shopped life can be expensive and stressful.

Those who get a divine retouch get their whole lives changed, without paying a dime because Jesus paid it all. All to Him I owe. Sin had left a crimson stain, but he washed it white as snow.

He died on an old rugged cross!

But early Sunday morning….

He made the stars also

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church

SCRIPTURE: "And God made two great lights; the greater light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night: he made the stars also." Genesis 1:16

Introduction

Have you ever looked at the stars and wondered about them? Even as little children we have been fascinated with the stars. We recited the children's poem, "Twinkle, twinkle little star, how I wonder what you are, up above the world so high, like a diamond in the sky, twinkle, twinkle little star, how I wonder what you are." At some point, we've all be fascinated with the stars.

We see them as little speckles in the heavens, winking, and blinking. Yet they are huge in size and some are millions of miles away. They are so close, but yet so far away. They are so small that we can touch them in our gaze with the tip of our finger but so large in reality that some can even dwarf the entire planet.

Our enchantment has grown to the point that we study their movements and predict our life patterns by them. We call ourselves Capricorns, and Libras and a variety of other names based on our belief in the movement of the stars and their impact on us.

Our movie heroes, are "stars" to us because they are bigger than life, lingering in front of us, just close enough for us to admire them, but far enough away to keep us in awe. In Hollywood there is a famous walk of the stars, children who perform well in school get stars by their names on charts. Truly, we are fascinated with stars.

There are myths about stars too. Some believe that seeing a falling star will bring luck, just as seeing the first star can grant a wish.

Despite their vastness, beauty and awesomeness, the stars are just part of God's creation. A very small part, yet he is aware of everyone of them

Just as God made every star and set the physics and science in motion that causes them to twinkle and shine, God also knows each person he created as well. In all of the vastness and beauty of his creation of stars, suns, moons and galaxies, God is mindful of every person that He has created. David in Psalm 8:4 asks, "What is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him?" It was a question asked in awe of God's power and his concern for each of us.

God made the stars and is mindful of them. God made us as well, he's mindful of us and visits us as well.

As Christians, let us rejoice in the majesty of our God. Let us also rejoice in the knowledge that although God has the whole world in his hands, he is still mindful of the concerns, hopes and dreams of everyone of his children.

Exposition

The text considers God's creation of the stars, planets and galaxies.

The general description of the creation of the world is given in summary in scripture. Science tells us the minute details and the Word of God tells us in summary that all that has been created, including the sun, moon and the stars are God's handiwork.

Generally God made the sun as greater light. The moon has no light of its own, but reflects the light of the sun. The sun is the greatest of the earth related creations. It is more than a million times greater than the earth has proved to be the most useful of the lights in heaven. The moon is lesser, but has its significance only in relation to its place near the sun.

At the end of the text is what seems to be an after thought. He made the stars "also." The stars refer to the remainder of the universe inclusive of galaxies, milky ways, black holes, and planets. All of which are but a twinkle in proximity, not significant in their own right. The symbolism of the text is that like the sun is the primary source of heat and light and the others are subservient to the sun, so should believers be humble before God. The moon and the stars rule by night, but they are subject to the sun. Mankind rules the earth, but likewise, we are subject to the rules of God.

Imbedded in one word, "also" is the entirety of the rest of the heavens, of which reflects the glory and majesty of God.

He gives life, but He gives provision in life, also.

He gives opportunities, but He gives favorable direction also.

There is a blessing in the "alsos" of life because they point to all of the other ways that God causes our lives to shine and twinkle reflecting his glory and power.

No Small Matter

Our fixation with the stars is important, but we should note that God's attention to the stars is no small matter. The stars also. Seems here to be an after thought but the stars are no small matter.

STARS IN HOLLYWOOD ARE LIMITED: Stars have no light of their own, but reflect light from the sun. In a similar way those who fix their hopes on the Stars of Hollywood and the music industry are fixing their focus on human beings who have no real light of their own, but only reflect the praise of men. A Hollywood star is a star only because the general public that is curious about them and admires them praises that person. A Hollywood stars light shines only as long as the person is favored in public opinion. Public opinion however is fickle. People love you one day and hate on another. Those who base their own worth on public opinion will always find themselves unstable being forced to redefine themselves frequently to keep up with changes in public opinion. Believers would do better to reflect the praise of God than man. God created us and He also creates the circumstances that catapult us into the public eye. It is God who made the Eiensteins, Freuds and other greater thinkers and tinkers of the world. It is God who made us, too. We are a part of His creation. We are his handiwork. Just as God and God alone created the sun, moon and the stars. It is God and God alone who can exalt anyone to the kind of stardom that would be recognized in heaven. Jesus gave the clue: "He that would be great among you, let him be your servant." It is nice to be a Hollywood Star, made by the appreciation of the public. However, it is better to be a godly star, fashioned by the hand of God.

MANY STARS BUT EACH ONE COUNTS: There are billions of stars, but God knows each of them. Even the earth that is believed to have 2 trillion inhabitants is small when compared to God's entire universe. In fact, scientist say The earth is so small a part of the already known universe that if we could cut open the sun we could, pour into it 1,200,000 earths like ours and still there would be room enough left for them to rattle around in it. Even the sun itself is very, very small in comparison with Arcturus and some of the other stars whose diameters have been recently measured, and there are now known to be more than 225,000,000 of these great worlds we call stars in this universe of ours.

Despite the vastness of God's creation, he is still mindful of every single star, and the needs of every single person. God is not so big or busy that He can't hear our prayers or respond to our needs. We are not afterthoughts of his creation, but we always on His divine mind. Millions of people pray, but God sorts through them all and hears each one individually. Millions of people need healings, blessings and restoration and God responds to them all.

WE CAN'T BLAME OUR FAULTS OR FAILURES ON THE STARS: Today many that are consulting their horoscopes and the stars but they are not consulting God. Too many are giving the stars credit for the blessings and the blame for their failures.

When something goes wrong in their family, they are looking to the stars.

When they have doubts about their future, they look to the stars.

When they have lost hope, they look to the stars!

Too many people blame their failures in life on their destiny and the stars. Shakespeare dismissed this excuse when he wrote in Julius Ceasar, "The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars, but in ourselves."

If I don't make it, I can't blame it on the eight planets of the universe.

If I fail, I can't blame it on the rotation of the earth around the Sun.

If I don't make it, I can't blame it on the new moon, or the full moon.

If I don't make it to glory I can't blame it on the rain, I can blame it on the stars that shine at night, but no amount of blaming will make it alright!

There are too many today who are living by every word of their horoscopes and the stars. But I hear Jesus declaring "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God.

When trouble is all around, it is not the stars, but the word of God that declares: "God is our refuge and our strength, ..a shelter in a time of storm."

When finances get low and you can't see your way, it's not the stars but the word of God which reminds us that, "My God shall supply all your needs, according to His purpose."

GOD IS CLOSER THAN THE STARS: When we see a star twinkle in heaven, we are seeing light that is reflected from millions of miles away. David said Jesus is "The lily of the Valley and John answered in the Revelation, He is "The bright and morning star." Some have supposed that this star was Alpha Centurial, the closest star to the planet earth. Even though the morning star is the closest star to us it is 4.3 light years over 25 trillion miles away. The good news is that the God we serve is not that far removed for I heard the song writer declare "He's only a prayer away."

God is so close that he can hear a baby cry at night.

He is so close that he knows when we are feeling depressed and sad.

God is close that he knows the thoughts of our minds before we think them. Psalm 139:2 says, "Thou knowest my downsitting and mine uprising, thou understandest my thought afar off."

God is closer than the stars because when we are low He picks us up. When we are defeated He brings us a spirit of victory.

The stripes not the stars

Finally, brothers and sisters, the stars are beautiful and mysterious but it is not the stars which hold the key to our salvation.

The stars twinkle brightly and wink at us from distant horizons, but its not the stars which provide for the saving of our souls.

The stars are awe inspiring, sprinkling the canopy of the midnight skies with a million beams of light, but it's not the twinkle of the stars that can save our souls.

The North Star points the way North, but it is not the North star that can show us the way to glory, but it's the bright and morning star.

Who is this star?

Isaiah said he was wounded for our transgressions. He was bruised for our iniquities, the chastisement of our peace was upon Him and by His stripes we are healed."

With these stripes, Jesus paid the price for our sins!

With these stripes Jesus, the lily of the valley, paid the price for our wrong doing!

With these stripes Jesus, the King of Kings, paid the penalty for our Negligence.

With these stripes Jesus, the Lord of Lords, bore the agony of our irresponsibility.

It's not the stars, but its the stripes!

Bearing these stripes, Jesus was crucified on an old rugged cross!

He died on Calvary for all of our sins!

When He died, somebody looked to the stars, but they couldn't be found!

When He died, somebody looked for the sun, but it itself from view!
When He died, somebody looked to the moon, but the moon hid its face!
He died!
He Died!
But early Sunday morning he rose up from grave with all power in his hands!
The universe acknowledge his victory and shouted Amen.
And so did the stars…also!

Ask, Seek, Knock

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

July 14, 2013

SCRIPTURE: Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you: Matthew 7:7

Introduction

Have you ever asked God for anything? Were you prepared to receive what He gave?One of the great truths about the faith experience is that God will respond to our requests in relation to the building of the kingdom.Our request list is often long and detailed, but God seems to browse through our list and pick certain items to fulfill while sending us a "not at this time notice" on others. Requests that we make that are in line with God's will are generally acted upon expeditiously. Those that are not according to His will will usually get the "Not at this time" treatment.

Paul asked God to remove the thorn from his side and he received a "My grace is sufficient notice." Abraham prayed for a son by his wife Sarai, and he received a "Not at this time notice." Jesus prayed for the cup to pass him, but he received a 'Not in the plan" response. In each of these cases the person who sought something from God received a response, even though it was not what they desired.

When we ask God for something, we must be prepared to receive what he gives us in response.

One author put it this way:

I asked for strength, God gave me difficulties to make me strong.

I asked for wisdom and God gave me problems to solve.

I asked for riches and God gave me plenty of work to do I asked for courage and God gave dangers to overcome.

I asked for love and God gave me troubled people to help I asked for favors and God gave me opportunities.

I asked for power, that I might have the praise of others I was given weakness, that I might feel the need of God.

I asked for all things, that I might enjoy the life I was given life, that I might enjoy all things.

I received nothing I wanted, but everything I needed.

As Christians, we know that we have been promised the ability, ask, seek and knock and God will respond to our request. We have learned in our journey that Kingdom specific requests have high priority with God, thus if we ask, seek and knock according to His will, we will always be pleased with the outcome.

Exposition

This text focuses upon Jesus as he taught his disciples the nature of their relationship to the kingdom of God.

One of the core attributes of Christ's teaching is the idea of faith in God. Through faith, Christ taught that anything is possible as it relates to improving, expanding, and building the kingdom of God. Nothing that a believer wants or desires can be kept from him. In other conversations, Jesus told his disciples that as long as they remained true to the purpose of building the kingdom of God that whatever they asked God would provide.

Verse 11 of the same passage notes that our God delights in giving good gifts. James 1:17 adds that "Every good gift comes from above."

In this context, Jesus lays out a dramatic picture of God providing for the wants and needs of believers, according to his purpose, if they would only ask, seek, or knock.

1 John 5:15 says it this way, "If we ask anything according to His will he hears and if we know that he hears us in whatever we ask, we know that we have requests we ask for of him."

Whatever was required to build the kingdom would be available to them. Whatever would be needed to advance the cause of Christ and the kingdom of God on this earth would be opened to them. Nothing would be kept from them if they asked in faith, and believed they would receive.

In essence, what Christ said was if you're one of my children, ask me for it, and if it will be good for you toward the accomplishing your life purpose, it will be done.

What does it mean to ask, seek, knock?

The three words that attract our attention in this text serve to show us what Christ had in mind when he used these words to describe the response of believers to needs.

ASK: Jesus said, "Ask it will be given unto you." "Ask" implies requesting assistance for a conscious need. It also suggests humility, for the Greek word used in this text was commonly used by one approaching a superior. The centurion who approached Christ about the healing of his servant responded that he understood protocol that Christ could speak and it would be done. We too should ask, knowing that the God we petition has the power to answer our prayer. The scriptures teach that we should go before God boldly (Hebrews 4:16) it means we should approach God confident that he will be merciful, forgiving and benevolent. When we ask God for blessings and approach His throne, let us remember that He owes us nothing and that we owe Him everything. The works that we sometimes feel make us worthy to approach

Him, may be the very acts that condemn us.

Jabez said in 1 Chronicles 4:9-10 Oh that thou wouldest bless me indeed. Jabez asked not only for a blessing but a blessing indeed. What Jabez wanted was a real blessing. A blessing indeed is a blessing that is received and appreciated.

Therefore we should approach God always in humility, but with confidence that he will hear and answer the fervent prayers of the righteous.

SEEK: Jesus said, "Seek and you shall find." The word "Seek" involves asking, but takes the process up another level. The idea is not just to express need, but also to get up and look around for help. It is a misnomer for anyone to believe that they should simply ask God for their needs, but do nothing else. A woman with an issue of blood for 12 years had a serious problem. She prayed about the problem humbly before God, and then she began to look for solutions. When Jesus came to her town she pushed her way through the crowd and touched the hem of His garment and was healed. What does it mean to seek? It means to take steps of your own, asking God to show you the way.

The unemployed pray for jobs, and then take steps to solve the problem relying on God to point them in the right direction.

The marriage that is in trouble is presented to God in prayer, and then the marriage partners seek counseling with God directing them to the right source.

Those with financial dilemmas present them to God, and then take steps to correct deficiencies.

To seek is to do more than just pray; it is to take positive actions. That also involves our spiritual lives as well. We cannot just pray for a more spiritual life; we must take actions to make that happen with God's help. The words of the bible won't be clearer to us if we never read them. We won't ever know God better unless we spend time with Him. We won't ever come closer to God if we are frequently absent from his presence. To seek to Lord, is to search for Him and we will find Him and be blessed.

KNOCK: Jesus said, "Knock" and doors shall be opened unto you." "Knock" includes asking, plus seeking, plus persevering. The stacking of these verbs is powerful. Jesus' words actually read: "Ask, and it shall be given to you; Seek, and you will find; keep on knocking, and it shall be opened to you." The "Knock" phase implies "Importunity." Importunity means persistence.

If a person knocks on the door of a neighbor, he rarely knocks once. Usually one knock has at least four taps. Knocking implies repetition. In Luke 11:5- Jesus tells the parable of a man who knocked on his neighbors door at midnight asking for three loaves of bread to feed his family. Despite the lateness of the hour he kept knocking until the man finally answered. Luke 11:8 says "Because of his importunity" that man's request was granted. Jesus recommended importunity to others. Never give up.

We should keep knocking until we get an answer. We should keep trying until heaven says "no."

We can always go to God

Finally brothers and sisters, if we learn anything from this text is should be that we can always approach the throne of God and seek His blessing.

When we ask God for a blessing, we are looking for mercy and grace!

When we seek we are asking God for direction.

When we knock we are repeatedly bringing our petition before Him.

The beauty of it all is that we have the ability to go to God and expect an answer.

We should ask, seek and knock because the God we serve is able to answer our prayer.

We should pray because when we pray divine mercy is extended on earthly troubles.

We should pray because when we pray we asked for the Grace of God for we who are the most undeserving.

We come before God seeking his grace although we don't deserve it. We come in confidence that God will look beyond our faults and see our needs.

I heard the Lord tell Paul in 1 Cor. 12:9, My Grace is sufficient for thee.

We are asking, seeking and knocking for His grace because His is sufficient for:
—The poor, no matter how pathetic their poverty.
—The tired, no matter how feeble their steps.
—The burdened, no matter how exhausted their body.
—The lonely, no matter how pitiful their situation.
—The wretched, no matter how despairing their circumstance.
—The sick, no matter how painful their diseases.

We ask for and seek his Grace, because Grace can:

—Take heavy burdens and make them bearable.
—Take high mountains and make them climbable.
—Take deep valleys and make them crossable.
—Take lonely nights and make them livable.
—Take lost souls and make the savable.

I heard a songwriter say, wonderful the matchless grace of Jesus, deeper than the mighty rolling sea! Higher than the mountains, sparkling like a fountain all sufficient grace for even me!

I don't know about your experience, but I found out that prayer changes things! Prayer can take a seriously ill body and make it whole again!

Prayer can take your failures and turn them into victories!

Prayer can take your blunders and turn them into blessings!

Prayer can take your fears and turn them into confidences!

Prayer can take your stumbling blocks and turn them into stepping-stones!

Prayer can take your weaknesses and turn them into strength!

Daniel will tell you that prayer is good for the Lion's den!

The Three Hebrew Boys will tell you that prayer, is good for the fiery furnace!

I know what prayer can do! I've tried it for myself!

I have found out that there is something about asking, seeking and asking in Jesus' name.

In Jesus' name, burdens have been lifted!

In Jesus' name, finances have been restored!

In Jesus' name, wounds have been healed!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary! Jesus, who arose early on Sunday morning!

Getting Away with Murder

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

July 2013

SCRIPTURE: "And Nathan said to David, Thou art the man. Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, I anointed thee king over Israel, and I delivered thee out of the hand of Saul; 2 Samuel 12:7; " For thou didst it secretly: but I will do this thing before all Israel, and before the sun." 2 Samuel 12:12

Introduction

Has there ever been a time when you felt justice miscarried? If so, you are like millions of Americans who were outraged at what appeared to be a gross miscarriage of justice when the jury in the Trayvon Martin case returned a not guilty verdict for George Zimmerman.In February of 2012 Trayvon Martin of Sanford Florida, was killed by George Zimmerman. The seventeen year old Martin was killed in a scuffle that started because the young man was black, in a predominately white neighborhood, wearing a hoodie. Zimmerman is Hispanic who passes for White. Zimmerman was a volunteer neighborhood watchman in a gated community, armed with a semiautomatic handgun. Martin was armed with a can of ice tea and a package of Skittles. Zimmerman claimed self-defense. What has enflamed this situation are factors that include: Zimmerman was a hundred pounds heavier and ten years older than the victim. He had the gun, not Martin. He followed Martin in his truck and he called 911 and was told to stand down and wait for police, but he ignored the instruction and later gunned down the youth in what he claimed was "self defense." No arrests were immediately made because of Florida's "Stand your ground law" which seems to give the right to shoot to persons who feel threatened.

After the not guilty verdict, many in the nation have vented their frustrations with marches, protests, petitions and many other acts, including sporadic violence amid calls for peace that came from the White House, chambers of leadership and pulpits across the nation.

There is no doubt in the minds of millions that George Zimmerman is "Getting away with murder."

The Bible teaches, "Thou shalt not kill." In the Hebrew translation that "Kill" means unjustified taking of a life.

What's justified? Generally, it is considered justifiable to kill in times of war, when executing capital punishment authorized by the society, when protecting oneself from violence and threats of injury, when acting as police or armed defenders of the lives of others. There are some states such as Florida which have "Stand your ground" laws that give citizens the right to shoot if they feel threatened. Louisiana has a "shoot the burglar law" and a "Shoot the Carjacker law" which allows citizens to shoot if they feel threatened.

The jury in the George Zimmerman murder case felt he was afraid for his life and killed Martin in self defense, which is, in their mind, justifiable.

For many, this case was the perfect example of justice miscarried. It was tinged with all of the factors that push our buttons: the young man was poor, black and was wearing a hoodie. People who fit that profile in America are often the victims of injustice, police profiling and trouble. That's what has sparked the outrage across the nation.

God's word indicates that God is concerned about any injustice inflicted upon believers. He is not mocked. The blood of the righteous will be avenged in God's way and in God's own time.

As Christians, we know that God demands justice because we read in Amos 5:24 the prophet Amos declare, ".. Let judgment run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream." At the moment it might seem that there are those who are "getting away with murder," but "He that keepeth Israel neither slumbers nor sleeps." He will respond in a meaningful way.

Exposition

This text focuses on the Prophet Nathan's pronouncement of judgment on King David after the death of Uriah.

Uriah was married to a beautiful woman named Bathsheba who became involved in an adulterous relationship with King David. The relationship resulted in a pregnancy that David wanted to hide from the people to avoid scandal and retribution by his enemies. So David concocted a scheme to murder Bathsheba's husband under his authority as king and leader of the military.

David commended Uriah for his military valor and placed him at the front of the battle with the enemy. He then gave orders that the entire army was to withdraw in the thick of battle and leave Uriah alone, insuring that he would be killed.

In death, the public would normally assume that his wife's newborn child was the last heir to the fallen soldier and David's adultery would be hidden.

For a while it appeared that the King was "getting away with murder." No one brought an accusation against him, even though many knew or suspected that his order to put Uriah at the front of the battle was tantamount to murdering him.

When the prophet Nathan came to the court, emboldened by the spirit of God he pointed out that David was a murderer using the phrase, "thou art the man." He announced God's judgment on his family and his peace of mind for the rest of his life and for generations to come.

David had hidden his murder from the people and escaped punishment, but not God's judgment. In matters of faith, there is no such thing as "getting away with murder."

It seems unfair for some to get away

When we see the innocent treated unfairly our first response is to voice our disgust at the unfairness of it all. Sometimes we feel like shouting, Life is not fair! What we've been thinking about is only half true..Life isn't fair. The other half is that while life is not fair God is good.

Uriah was a decorated soldier in David's army. It wasn't fair that his wife and his life were both required of him. Yet, we have this account where the King, protected by the laws of the land that gave him authority, acted unfairly toward him.

In an ideal world, everything would be perfect. Good would always be rewarded and bad would always be punished. In an ideal world, those who work hard would be able to enjoy the fruits of their labor. Farmers who till the soil and plant crops would be able to expect great harvests. Investors who wisely invest in myriad of opportunities would be able to reap a handsome profit. Those who are careful about their diet and manage their health according to all of the rules would be able to enjoy a life free of sickness and disease. In the ideal world, only criminals would go to jail; those who would not work would not prosper and those who showed little industry would not be able to be the recipients of great reward.

Unfortunately, we do not live in an ideal world where everything is fair. Our world is far from the ideal. In our world, the best teams do not always win the game; the best man does not always get the girl and it often rains on our well-planned parades. It angers us sometimes that the hardest worker does not get the raise and the bad guys actually get away.

Sometimes the bad guys slip through the wheels of justice.

In reality, life is not fair; and because life is not fair we don't always want fairness from God? If we don't want fairness from God, what do we want? We want God's goodness. We want his mercy. We want him to give consideration to our weakness and tilt the scale to our advantage. That's something He couldn't do if He was always fair. He can show mercy upon us because mercy is a part of the goodness of his divine nature.

We can deal with the unfairness of life, as long as we remember that God is still good.

Our sins will find us out

If we do wrong, our sins will be discovered and justice will prevail, if not in the court of justice, certainly before the divine court.

David hid is sin successfully from the legal processes of his time. It was not illegal for him to order Uriah to the front of the battle. Neither was it illegal for him to put him in the front guard, in the line of fire and order him to provide cover for retreating men. It wasn't illegal, but his motives had not military objectives. It was covered well, but Nathan's pronouncement pulled the cover off the entire scenario.

There are times when we do wrong and think we have succeeded in hiding our wrong doing. Did we really get away? Will our sin really be discovered? We may hide the sin for years, but sooner or later, our sins will find us out.

A few years ago, in Jackson Mississippi, a reputed Ku Klux Klansman was granted immunity to testify in the upcoming trial of his cousin, James Ford Seale, who is charged with kidnapping and conspiracy in the 1964 murders of two black teenagers. Charles Marcus Edwards admitted in 1964 that he and Seale abducted and beat the two teens, but he denied having a part in their deaths, according to FBI documents from the time. Authorities allege that Seale and other reputed Klansmen abducted the teens near the southwest Mississippi town of Roxie and beat them before the two were weighted down and thrown into the Mississippi River.

Seale, 71, was arrested on two counts of kidnapping and one count of conspiracy. Edwards was not charged.

His sins found him out:Numbers 32:23 says, Be sure your, sins will find you out. This verse says that your sin will find you out. There will come that time when the chickens come home to roost. Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap Gal. 6:7.

It does not matter who you are, or where you are, how you are, or when you are, your sins will find you out.

There will be a day of reckoning for every sin. No matter how skillful our attorney or slick we are as perpetrators….our sins will find us out.

When Justice seems out of balance

There are times when Justice seems only for some and not for others. These are times when the powerless feel that they only the weakened preys of the powerful. For those who surrounded the throne room, it appeared that there would be no justice for Uriah. His comrades in battle and friends all felt he had received an injustice, but no seemed to have the resources needed to prick the hearts of those in control.

The same feeling exists today in the aftermath of the Zimmerman verdict. Justice seems out of balance for African-Americans.

In 2007 Hillary Clinton told the NAACP that when it comes to justice in America the poor and disenfranchised rarely receive justice. She said the scales of justice are seriously out of balance for black Americans. Too many people, many of them black, are invisible in America, she added.

Clinton's sentiments then are just as real today. The system is completely out of balance for African- Americans.

The good news is that our God is in the balancing business. He has made it his business to tip the scales in ways that bring equity to the poor and disenfranchised. When Nathan confronted David and said, "Thou art the man," he tipped the scales.

Living justly is a requirement of our God. We know this because Micah 6:8 says, "He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the LORD require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?"

Jesus will bring our final justice

Finally, brothers and sisters, in the midst of our frustration over the injustices we see, we must continue to look to Jesus who is the author and finisher of our faith.

It may appear at the moment that those who have done an injustice are escaping punishment, but our God will "trample out the vintage" where the grapes of injustice are stored.

Our God will correct the wrongs that have been leveled against us!

Our God will restore the balance lost by the capsizing of this ship of circumstances.

Our God will lift up the broken hearted and bring peace to those who are confused.

Those who keep their faith in Him in their hearts will be rewarded.

Those who labor in the kingdom faithfully will be rewarded.

Though frustrated we must continue the good work of building the kingdom of God.

Though the tears run from our eyes we must work to bring about that day when justice will run down like waters and righteousness like a mighty stream!

Every now and then it is good for believers to remember that serving the Lord does pay off after while.

We have to work while it is day because when the night comes, no man can work. Maybe that's what the song writer had in mind when he penned the words, "I'm going to work until my day is done." I'm going to work until the setting of the sun. I'll cease from sorrow. There'll be no tomorrow. I'm going to work until my day is done.

Warriors, keep on embracing the faith and love of God!

Warriors, keep standing behind the shield of faith

Warriors, keep on telling the story!

Tell them about Jesus! Tell them how He died on Calvary!

But early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in His hands!

Tell them about Jesus!

As it is in Heaven

SCRIPTURE: Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven. Matthew 6:10

Introduction

We are all on a journey to return home, to a place called heaven, but have you ever wondered what heaven is like? We are journeying to a place called home that no one we know has ever seen and we have only a few ideas of what life there will be.

When Israel left four centuries of slavery in Egypt they pointed their eyes to the Promised Land. None of them had been there, but their imaginations were fed bits and pieces they gleaned from Egyptian travelers who described it the presence of Jewish servants. In the wilderness, just miles away, twelve spies were sent forth, they returned describing the land as being filled with milk and honey.

We are Christian travelers, passing through earth, on our way to heaven. Each of us has a vision we have created to describe our heavenly destination that is unique. Some see a big city the size of New York with people flying around in white sheets. Others see a picturesque farm scene with thousands of people in rocking chairs sitting by the river of life, sipping fresh milk followed by spoonfuls of honey. Still others see golden streets and large mansions with diamond-studded doorknobs and movie size television screens in every room. Everybody has a picture in the mind.

In the bible the word heaven refers to one of three realms. The first is most frequently referred to in the Old Testament as the inner space or sky or the firmament. This is the heaven that contains clouds, the area that birds fly through. The second heaven is outer space, which is the abode of the stars, planets, and other celestial objects. The third heaven, the location of which is not revealed, is the dwelling place of God. Jesus promised to prepare a place for true Christians in heaven in John 14:2. Heaven is also the destination of believers who trusted God in the Old Testament or accepted Christ as their Redeemer in the New Testament.

Generally, our images of heaven focus on the place. We visualize a place filled with costly stones made of jasper and diamonds. We think of the place with twelve pearly gates, and twelve foundations. We think of a place restored to the paradise existence of Eden with a river of the water flowing freely and the tree of life yielding fruit monthly with leaves that heal the nations. When we think of heaven we run out of ideas. Thats why 1 Corinthians 2:9 says, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him.

Beyond the physical place called heaven, however, is the heavenly existence. While the physical description is occupied with what IS there, the abstract description of heaven associated with the heavenly existence is best described by what is NOT there. If fact, its whats not there that makes the entire experience heavenly. Heaven can best be described as the land of No More. There will be no more tears, no more pain, jails, police, discrimination, wild forest fires, serial killers, rapists, murderers, raging hurricanes, floods, epidemic diseases, infant deaths, starvation, cheating, stealing, hating, backbiting, and no more sorrow. There will be no more death, for death will be conquered.

Heaven is a place created by the hand of God and an existence that is ordered by the will of God. In heaven, everything is done according to Gods will. Everyone lives according to Gods will; and everything works out according to Gods will. If everything on earth would unfold according to Gods will, earth would be heaven.

As Christians, our goal is to make heaven our home. While heaven has many attributes the best thing about it will be the presence of our Lord and Savior. We will be face to face with the savior who loved us and sacrificed Himself to give us a chance to everlasting life. Thats the way it will be when we get home.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus instruction to believers to pray for Gods will on earth as it is in heaven.

Christ instructed believers how to pray and what to pray for in their prayers. In verse ten he said believers should pray that Gods will would be followed in earth as Gods will is followed in heaven.

He used the phrase, as it is in heaven, to inform believers that in heaven, everything follows the will of God and not a single angel, cherubim or other creation of God desires to live in any way that is outside of His will.

What makes heaven a heavenly place is not its beauty, but its adherence to the divine order. What is prayed for in this text is thy will be done. Our prayer is, Lord Enable me to do what is pleasing to thee; give me that grace that is necessary to know thy will, and the humility to obey your will. We pray that earth becomes more like heaven by the observance of God's will and that saints may be made more like the holy angels in their devotion and obedience.

The prayer is that during our journey on earth, on our way home, we will help create an atmosphere where we can all experience a little of heaven on earth as a precursor to glory divine.

As It is in heaven

When the saints of God get to their heavenly home, there will be certain experiences we can look forward to that are exciting and inspiring.

GOD WILL DWELL IN HEAVEN: We may not admit it, but the value of a home has a lot to do with your neighbors. You can fix up your house and make it beautiful, but if its in the wrong neighborhood it will never have value. Who lives in the neighborhood affects the price of your house. You could get millions for your house if it was next door to Beyonce and Jay-Z. Suppose LeBron James or the Obamas lived down the street? One great thing about heaven is that God will live there. Revelation 2:3 says, And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. In heaven, God will dwell with us. Our prayer today should be that we can get our lives ready to live every day as if God lived next door, or even closer, as if God lives in us every moment of the day. On earth, we are guided by Gods presence, inspired and helped by Gods presence and strengthened by Gods presence. On earth we acknowledge His presence and glorify his presence. On earth, as it is in heaven.

His presence will affect everything.

THE SAINTS WILL FELLOWSHIP IN HEAVEN: In heaven there will be great fellowship among the saints. We look forward to fellowshipping with the personalities that we have read and studied about during our journey in this life. The saint's will be in heaven clothed in incorruptible bodies (1Corinthians 15:51-4) able to enjoy each others presence for eternity.

From time to time we get glimpses of how heaven must be. Those who have ever participated in a church raising sponsored by the Church in a Day ministry of the Pentecostals get a glimpse of what heaven must be. Hundreds of people converge on a site at sunup and raise a church facility by midnight, complete with air conditioning, pews and decorations. All of the time there is singing, laughing, talking and fellowship without regard to race, sex or class. Somebody said, thats the way heaven must be. A few years ago one million black men marched on Washington to atone for their neglect of leadership in the community. The sight of one million men, holding their children, working together without incident, was awesome. Somebody said, this is the way heaven must be. Even when our families gather with the elders and children in the same place enjoying food, family and fun without incident. Somebody says, This is the way heaven must be.

THE SAINTS WILL WORSHIP IN HEAVEN: In heaven there will be continuous worship and praise of God. In the Old Testament the tribe of Levi was responsible for maintenance of the worship. The families of singers were responsible for 24 hours of singing every day of the year. They didnt sing for an audience, but they sang to God. Nobody else heard them. In the same sense, in heaven there will be constant praising of God, singing about Him, talking about him and worshipping. Thats what going on right now. Johns Revelation in 4:1-4 paints a picture of angels, elders and beasts by countless millions praising God. In Revelation 4:10 he showed the 24 elders falling down on their faces to worship and praise Him.

Now, on our way home, we should practice our praise so that when we get to heaven we can turn our praise on big time! Praise is glorying in His presence! Praise is lifting up the most high.

There are some who dont favor praising God openly. In fact they feel it is an unnecessary show of emotion.

Consider Sad Face Susie who died and stopped at the front gate of heaven to check in. The angel said, we noticed that you didnt like to worship and praise much on earth, in fact you often missed worship. We think it best to let you see both heaven and hell and let you decide. They took her to hell first. When the elevator open the people were dancing and yelling and singing together Partee!as they waved their hands. They were drinking hot totties, eating devils food cake and dancing the Hell fire slide. She joined in and had a great time. Then she was carried to heaven. There the people were smiling and singing, eating angel food cake and praising him. When the choir sang the Hallelujah chorus she joined in. It was cool. However, when given the choice of the two places she chose to go to hell. The angel put her on the elevator and took her down. When the doors opened there was no dancing, everyone was screaming in pain and begging for a cool drops of water. When she was snatched from the elevator by two rotting corpses she screamed, Hey, what happened to the people shouting Parter and the Hot totties and the Hellfire Slide? The Zombies said, Oh that was our welcoming crew. We were recruiting you then, you are one of us now. Aint no praising here. Welcome to hell.

As it is in heaven, saints praise God down here, getting ready for heaven.

Heaven will be a place to see

Finally, brothers and sisters we must consider that while there are many great destinations on earth, there are none that are even close those in heaven.

Heaven has been the hope of believers of all ages.

Nothing man can create on earth can match what God is preparing for believers in heaven. Although we marvel at the works of man they are only a shadow of Gods creations in heaven.

Thats why Abraham took a journey in faith “looking for a city with foundations.”

Moses, led Israel, but Hebrews 11 says, “For he was looking to the reward”

Paul labored to witness for Christ in spite personal peril. He expected to receive, “a house not made with hands eternal in the heavens.(2 Corinthians 5:1)

Believers who make sacrifices to glorify God will be rewarded. Colossians 1:4-5 says there is, “hope laid up for you in Heaven”

What is there about Heaven that generates such enthusiasm that men and women would dedicate their whole lives just to see it!

New York City is a great city with many sights to see. But after you have seen the 104 stories of the New World Trade Center, Statue of Liberty, the United Nations and historic Harlem, despite their beauty, they cannot come close to the grandeur of the place called heaven.

St. Louis is a beautiful metropolis which is home of the famous Gateway Arch. But after you have seen the engineering miracle of St. Louis, the sight to see and the place to be, is the place called heaven!

New Orleans attracts thousand to what some have called the 8th wonder of the world, The Mercedes Superdome, but after you have marveled at the awesome spaceship sized superdome and witnessed the pageantry of Mardi Gras, the sight to see and the place to be is still the place called heaven!

Atlanta attracts millions to see the tomb of Martin Luther King, but after you have seen Dr. King's tomb and visited Atlanta underground, the sight to see and the place to be, is still the place called heaven!

The Alamo of San Antonio draws millions to reflect on the battle cry, "Remember the Alamo" but the sight to see and the place to be is the place called heaven!

You can journey to San Francisco and cross the Golden Gate Bridge, dash over to New York and cross Niagara Falls and spend the night in Grand Canyons of Arizona, but and nothing you will see or experience will come close to the wonders as it is in heaven.

Whether its the beautiful homes of the stars in Hollywood, the beautiful view of Lookout Mountain in Tennessee or the rumbling engines of the Daytona speedway, the sight to see and the place to be, is the place called heaven!

I don't know about you but I want to do a little sightseeing in heaven!

I want to see Abraham, Isaac and Jacob!

I want to see the streets paved with gold!

I want to see the city that sits on twelve foundations with twelve gates!

I want to see the city where hearse wheels won't roll!

I want to see the city where everyday will be Sunday and it'll always be howdy and never good-bye!

I don't know about you, but I want to see Jesus!

Jesus, the author and finisher of my faith!

Jesus, who said I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am, ye may be also!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary, but arose early Sunday morning!

Come and go with me to my father's house!

No more dying there!

No more crying there!

No more sickness and pain!

Come and go with me to my father's house!

There'll be joy, joy, joy!

Blessed and ain't nothing you can do about it

SCRIPTURE: God is not a man, that he should lie; neither the son of man, that he should repent: hath he said, and shall he not do it? or hath he spoken, and shall he not make it good? Behold, I have received commandment to bless: and he hath blessed; and I cannot reverse it. Numbers 23: 19-20.

Introduction

Do you have any haters? Haters are those who are envious of the way God has blessed and favored you. Look back over your life and consider the wonderful blessings that God has bestowed on you. Despite the difficulties of our past, and obstacles that have been placed in our way, God has blessed us in wondrous way. We have made the treacherous climb out of despair and forded the streams of frustration. We have survived the bitterness of rejection and the despair of personal loss. Despite these and other difficulties, we can truthfully say, God has blessed us wonderfully.

Many hate the faithful only because they have been blessed. The main reason Joseph's brothers hated him was because he was favored by their father and given a coat of many colors. He was blessed with a great future and that made his brothers envious of him. They tried to put him in a pit and he was sold into slavery. In Egypt, he was put into prison and even there God blessed him and he arose to be great in the kingdom. God blessed everything he did; and because of that he was hated because he was blessed. Why did Cain kill Abel? Abel did nothing besides work every day and offer praise to God. However, when his brother saw how God favored his sacrifice above and beyond his own, he killed him.

The Jews have been a race of people who have obviously been blessed by God throughout history. They work hard, live righteously and please God and for that as a people they have been ostracized, criticized, and estranged from their own land. During World War II Hitler tried to murder the entire race and burned six million people in ovens. What did they do wrong? They were blessed by God.

In a similar sense the world has seen the wondrous works that have resulted from the mind and soul of people of African ancestry. The bible often points to the great accomplishments of the African Diaspora, but the descendants of African ancestry have been hated, enslaved and treated unfairly, only because they have been blessed.

We cannot help but reflect upon the wonderful blessings that God has given us. Neither should we be intimidated by the way others are critical of the faith of believers. Our God continues to shower us with wondrous works, timely intervention, and the uninterrupted flow of blessings that fall upon us from the throne of heaven.

It's obvious that believers are blessed in so many ways.

As Christians, we should never be intimidated by those who are envious of the blessing and favor god has showered on us. We live to please him. We live to lift him up. As a result we are blessed and there is nothing anyone can do about it.

Exposition

This text focuses on the attempt of Israel's enemies to get a prophet to curse the people after God had blessed them.

Israel marched through Moab and their sheer numbers intimidated Balak the king. In this chapter Balak sought one of the prophets of God named Balaam and offered to pay him to get God to curse Israel so that they would not be successful. At first Balaam, attracted to the money, quickly took the offer, but God placed an angel of the Lord in the way and his donkey refused to go forward. Finally, Balaam hit the donkey with his staff. That's when God opened the mouth of the donkey and it talked. Numbers 22:28 says, "And the LORD opened the mouth of the ass, and she said unto Balaam, What have I done unto thee, that thou hast smitten me these three times?" Then Balaam saw the angel and heard the warning that he was only to say what God tells him to say.

Moses and the leaders of Israel were unaware of the plots going on against them. They were not in any capacity to break the plot and escape the plan that was being laid for them. It would be God, who keeps Israel, who neither slumbers nor sleeps, who would mess up their plan without Israel having to do anything.

The first attempt to curse Israel involved an empty worship. There were seven altars established and seven bulls were sacrificed. Yet, instead of asking God to curse Israel, Balaam blessed them. The King was upset. What he designed as a trap was turning into a blessing.

The second attempt was made from a different vantage point. Balaam was asked to curse them another way. This new vantage point would not completely destroy all of Israel, but the curse would at least be on some of them. That worked out the same way. The curse was reversed.

A third attempt to curse them failed as well. Balak became angry and fired Balaam for not bringing down a curse on the people. Balaam said in Numbers 24:13 "If Balak would give me his house full of silver and gold, I cannot go beyond the commandment of the LORD, to do either good or bad of mine own mind; but what the LORD saith, that will I speak?"

Balak learned that the people of God were on their way to Promised Land. They were blessed in their crossing of the Red Sea. They were blessed in the journeys and there were blessed in their march and there was absolutely nothing he could do about it.

How we have been blessed

FAVOR ATTRACTS ATTACKS: Israel was moving through Moab as recipients of God's favor. They were unaware that they were being observed from a distance. What Balak saw was a successful people obviously blessed by their God. It was that favor from God that invited the plots against them. Whenever we act wisely, making life choices that embrace the will of God, we earn the favor of God. Wise actions, according to the will of God please Him. He smiles on us and gives us favor. He favors our marriages, relationships, and business efforts because we walk a blessed path. However, it is that very favor that causes many people to attack us. It is your confidence in God that causes some of your co-workers to hate on you. It is your refusal to lower yourself to gutter levels of speech and conduct that prompts others to say that you think you are better than others. It is your sense order that causes those who are disorganized to envy. It is your ability to dress like a queen on the income of common laborer that has your friends scratching their heads. The very positive nature of your speech, your optimism and your confidence attracts attacks. It is our tendency to show mercy and to forgive, to stand for truth rather than lies and promote "righteousness" over "ungodliness" that draws God's favor. Those who are upset because of the favor God has given us should know should give up their fight and accept the fact that we are blessed there ain't nothing they can do about it!

FALSE WORSHIP WON'T UNDO YOUR BLESSING: Seven altars were established in the mountains to offer sacrifice to God to get him to curse Israel, yet God was not impressed and would not reverse himself. The Israelite ritual of animal sacrifice to God was duplicated, but it did not have any effect because there is no power in empty worship. Today, there are many people who praying for the people of God to fail! Do you think that your enemies are actually praying that you succeed? Are they praying that you get the promotion, job or opportunity they also want? Balaam set up the same ritual, but it had no effect. How much effect does an empty worship have on God? If we come to church, sing, pray and offer praise to God without obedience and personal sacrifice, is God impressed? The goal of every believer is to promote the will of God. We do it for that purpose and that purpose alone. If your enemies are praying against you, don't worry, such prayers have no affect on those who have blessed and favored. If your enemies are invoking God's name and speaking against you, don't worry, God does not hear. Only the "fervent effectual prayer of the righteous" avails much. Those who are praying that the faithful fail may as well accept the fact that we are blessed and ain't nothing they can do about it.

THOSE INVOLVED IN A DIVINE PURPOSE ARE BLESSED: Israel moved through Moab not because they were on a sightseeing journey, but they moved according to divine order. Every obstacle they encountered was removed by divine order. They were blessed so that they could achieve a divine purpose. Even today that remains true: Everyone who helps accomplish a divine purpose is blessed. We frequently refer to the widow woman in the Old Testament whose barrel never ran out of meal because of faith action. She was an example of a person being blessed because of divine purpose.

The prophet Elijah was being used by God for a divine purpose. When the woman sought to help him, she found that her barrel never ran dry. She was blessed because she tried to help a man on a divine mission. Rahab hid the Jewish spies in the Promised Land; she was later blessed because she helped them.

Today, there are many people who are the recipients of residual grace, because they are helping the divine purpose in many different ways. Those who rang the Salvation Army bells, served food to the homeless, helped the less fortunate, visited the sick, cared for wayward children or gave a helping hand in many small ways are people who helped achieve a divine purpose. That's why they are blessed and favored.

Those who are envious of the blessed should spend more time watching what they do to earn favor than trying to stop the favored from receiving God's blessing.

The more involved we are with divine purpose the more we are blessed. Those who don't like that may as well accept it because we are blessed and there ain't nothing they can do about it.

God is giving us new blessings

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that God is blessing us so that he can take us to places that we have never been.

When God delivered Israel he brought them out of a horrible past. He brought them from a hopeless and a helpless position.

He brought them out by making them the beneficiaries of His divine favor.

God has decided to bless those who are pure in heart, and ain't nothing anybody can do about it!

God has decided to bless those who are merciful and ain't nothing anybody can do about it!

God has decided to bless those who mourn and ain't nothing anybody can do about it!

Like Israel, we are traveling through an unknown land, walking in the favor of God!

This the same favor that was showered on Samuel that caused him rise from obscurity to become a great prophet. 1 Samuel 2:26 says, "And the child Samuel grew on, and was in favor both with the LORD, and also with men."

It's the same favor that Job talked about in Job 10:12 when he said, "Thou hast granted me life and favor, and thy visitation hath preserved my spirit."

This is the same favor that the angel told Mary about in Luke 1:30 when he said, "...Fear not, Mary: for thou hast found favor with God."

It's the same favor that David enjoyed because Acts 7:46 says David was a man,

"Who found favor before God.."

If God has forgiven you for your sins, you have been blessed and ain't nothing anybody can do about it!

If God has brought comfort to your heart, you have been blessed and ain't nothing anybody can do about it!

If God has healed you when you were sick, you have been blessed and ain't nothing anybody can do about it!

If God has inspired you when you were facing a challenge, you have been blessed and ain't nothing anybody can do about it!

If God has lifted a burden from your shoulders, you have been blessed and ain't nothing anybody can do about it!

If God has given you genuine peace of mind, you have been blessed and ain't nothing anybody can do about it!

If God has enriched your life with unspeakable joy, you have been blessed and ain't nothing anybody can do about it!

Because of His favor we have been able to come through our Egypt, cross our Red Sea and enter our Promised Land.

It is His favor that gives us:

-STRENGTH when our burdens become heavy.
-ASSURANCE when everything seems to go wrong.
-INSPIRATION when difficulties arise.
-COMFORT when disaster strikes.

Because of His favor we are able to:

-Keep on going, when our road gets rough.
-Keep on singing, even though our pain becomes intense.
-Keep on working, even when our body gets weary.

I'm glad that He is a wonder working God!

I'm glad that He is a soul saving God!

I'm glad that one day He saw me in it and decided to save me from it!

I'm glad that He decided to protect me from it while He guided me through it.

I'm glad that He decided to lift me from it and elevate me above it.

I'm glad that one day he decided to pick up an old rugged cross!

I'm glad that He carried it to Golgotha's hill!

They nailed His hands to it, but he didn't stay on it! They buried him in a borrowed tomb,

But, early Sunday morning arose from the grave…and ain't nothing anybody can do about it!

All that and a bag of chips

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

August 4, 2013

SCRIPTURE: "Not as though I had already attained, either were already perfect: but I follow after, if that I may apprehend that for which also I am apprehended of Christ Jesus." Philippians 3:12

Introduction

Have you ever met a really cocky person? That's the person that believes that he is "all of that and a bag of chips!" He likes to brag about what he has, who she knows, and what big things he is doing? That person is an extremely boring person because he believes that he is the only one who has attained anything in life; the accomplishments of others pale in comparison to his own. If you listen to such a person talk, they will probably say "I, Me and My" more often than they say, "We, us and Our,"

The phrase "all that and a bag of chips" is a term from 1990's. It has a two fold meaning. When someone else describes you, it is flattery and recognition of accomplishment. "She's something else. She's smart. She's good looking. She's friendly. She dresses well. She's all that and a bag of chips." However, when you start to believe that you are superior to others and act that way towards them, it that's when the phrase turns sour, "He thinks he's all that and a bag of chips. He ain't nothing!" (expletive deleted).

No one really likes the cocky person. The man who thinks he's all of that and a bag of chips, walks up to a woman and says, "I'm sorry, does it bother you that I'm standing next to you?" The woman asks, "What should that bother me?" "I thought it might bother you because I'm such a sexy person that everybody is watching no one is watching you." The woman who thinks she's all that and a bag of chips constantly brags about herself and enjoys putting others down. She's the one that says, "How do you like my solid gold earrings? I see yours. I didn't know Toys R Us sold ear rings!"

Being humble is what we learn from Jesus. When we think that we're all that and a bag of chips, when we think we're the man, what we're really doing is expressing our sense of value, and dignity, self-worth. In the same sense we are expressing our belief that we are solely responsible for our success. What we learn from Jesus is that humility is the ability to only take half a bow and give the rest to God. The boastful person takes the whole bow and pats himself on the back.

Jesus suffered humiliation on the cross because God sent him for a purpose which was greater than himself. He recognized himself as the instrument. The cocky man believes that he himself is the purpose and all the people who surround are his instruments, and tools to be used for his/her own success. The person who recognizes God's role in whatever he/she does always feels unworthy of accolades and praise. The feeling of unworthiness increases with the size of the accolade. Sometimes presentations may get bigger than mere plaques or certificates. Sometimes there are busts and memorials and even rooms, windows and buildings that bear our names.

One reason a true servant of God feels unworthy is because the true servant recognizes that the real praise for any accomplishment belongs to God.

Tributes usually follow significant accomplishments. We feel unworthy because we know that God was the underlying source of our success; He deserves the praise.

George Washington Carver was a famous agricultural scientist known for his peanut research. After his death every African-American community in America named something after George Washington Carver. In fact he and Booker T. Washington were only two Negroes who faces have ever been placed on 50 cent pieces. Carver never wanted anything named after him. He was humble. What he wanted was for his work to continue. So he took all of his worldly goods and set up the George Washington Carver Foundation at Tuskegee to fund the work of young people following him for years to come. Today, many communities fight and argue over the naming of a building after a person, most of those being honored were probably humble people who, like Carver would probably, much rather than that their work would continue and give God the praise.

God should be praised, not us; that's the way humble saints feel.

As Christians, we recognize that every accomplishment we make is a reflection of God's handiwork. Without Him, we can do nothing. If we have accomplished anything, the glory is His for He is God who is great and is greatly to be praised.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as He explained the humble nature of the Christian calling.

Paul's life was filled with great accomplishments, but he always played down his personal accomplishments choosing to point followers to the higher calling which was always before him. The higher calling he sought was to step out of the dead life of the Mosaic Law and to step into the full power of the resurrected life in Christ.

In Philippians 3:10 he said, "That I may know him, and the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his sufferings." He wanted to believer's to understand that despite all of his accomplishments that he still considered himself to be one striving for perfection, struggling to do God's will, whatever the cost.

Paul's interpretation gives us a clear example of how to explain humility.

He focused on what he was not instead of what he was.

He focused on how far he had to go rather than how far he has already traveled.

He pointed to how small he was in comparison to God's greatness, rather than how big he was compared to the limited accomplishments of his fellowman.

Therefore in the text, Paul says, in Philippians 3:12, "Not as though I had already attained.." or "Don't get the impression that I know it all or have done anything great." -It's not me, it's the Lord.

He was a man who was obviously educated, but he said he had not attained.

He was a man with many powerful friends, but he said he had not attained.

He was a man who spoke several languages, but he said he had not attained.

He was a man who traveled the known world, but he said he had not attained.

He was a man who had access to money and resources, but he said he had not attained.

He carries this idea even further in verses 13-14 when he says, "Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended, but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

Attaining the prize or doing the will of God was what Paul considered His purpose. He lost himself in the purpose and considered whatever he did in life to small and insignificant in comparison.

Despite his achievements, he never thought of himself as "all that and a bag of chips."

Without God

MANY BELIEVE THEIR OWN HYPE: Paul told the Philippians that he wasn't fooling himself. He knew he had not come close to the personal goal of knowing Christ as she should. He laid it out plain: "I have not attained. I count not myself to have apprehended.." He had a diploma, but he didn't let the diploma impress him. He had money, but that did not impress him. He had connections, but that did not impress him. He didn't believe his own hype.

There are many today who rely totally upon their own intelligence, imagination and intuition to achieve what they call success. These are the individuals who believe that with a good education and a little luck, success is just a matter of being in the right place at the right time. They believe it is their skill and knowledge alone that accounts for their climb. They attribute everything else to sheer luck. Obviously, education is an important factor in any person's development. Imagination, intuition and skill are all essential to personal development. Yet these do not supersede the need to have God in our lives.

In our smartness, we should never revel in the fact that we have graduated from Grambling, Southern, Morehouse, Dillard or some other fine institution of learning. The sheepskin diploma that hangs on our wall attests to what's in our head, but we count on the power of God to take what's in our head and put it in our hands and feet in a productive and spiritual fulfilling way.

If we are not careful we can begin to believe we are better than others. Sometimes it slips out when we make fun of someone's hair, looks, poverty, speech, dress or living conditions. That's when we pull out the chip bag of pride. We may not say the words, but our actions at that point indicate that we feel that we are all that and a bag of chips.

Anyone who thinks he succeed by his own efforts is mistaken. We are what we are because of God and God alone.

WHAT ARE WE COMPARED TO GOD'S GREATNESS?: What are we when we compare ourselves to God's greatness? We are single grains of sand on the beach, mere drops of water in the ocean. There are many people in the world who believe that because they are well connected in society, business and politics and they are big wheels among men, that this earthly prominence should demand special favors for the Lord. God owes us nothing, we owe Him.

We should remember that God is no respecter of persons.

The little that we have ranks so small against the mighty works of God. I hear the Psalmist ask the question, "What is man, that thou art mindful of him?"

Man has 263 bones, 600 muscles, and 970 miles of blood vessels.

He has 400 cups on his tongue for taste, 20,000 minuscule hairs in his ears to tune into sound, 40 pounds of jaw pressure, 10 million nerves and branches.

He has 600,000,000 air cells that breathe in his lungs.

His heart beats 4,200 times an hour and pumps 12 tons of blood everyday. ....everything man has and is....was made by God.

I hear the song writer say, Oh Lord My God, as I in awesome wonder, consider all the worlds thy hands hath made. I see the stars, I hear the rolling thunders thy power throughout the universe displayed...then sings my soul my savior God to thee, How great thou Art, How great thou art!

Whatever we are, we cannot brag because without God we are nothing.

THOSE WHO SURRENDER GIVE UP THE BAG AND THE CHIPS: Paul said he had not attained anything that he counted Spiritual humility in its purest form is to say to God, "What do you want me to do?" We don't have the option of the catcher in a baseball game that can tell the pitcher what type of pitch to make with barely visible move of his finger. If God's says go left we don't have the option of shaking our head and going right. We ask him which way to go.

A key to success is to surrender ourselves to God. What does that mean?
To surrender is to say to God, "I'm not all that and a bag of chips. Here, God you can have the bag and the chips!" First we have to surrender our sense of personal confidence. This is the notion that we can accomplish anything, alone.

When we surrender to God we change our attitude to one that says, "I can't do anything without God."
I can't succeed in business, school or my profession without God's blessings. Once that is done then kingdom building becomes the highest priority.

Surrendering is not easy because everything in us wants independence.

Everything in us says, Seek your own, do for yourself, and reach your own goals.

Surrendering requires us to put our own goals on the back burner and to put those of Christ on the front burner.

Those who are able to surrender themselves can say with the songwriter, 'All to Jesus I surrender, all to him I freely give.

I will ever love and trust him; in his presence daily live.

I surrender all.

I surrender all.

All to thee my blessed savior; I surrender all.

When we come before God's throne

Finally brothers and sisters, we see that we have been the beneficiaries of blessings that have flowed from the throne of God. It has not been us, but it has been God.

The fool says in his heart that he is what he is because he is a great football player!

Only those totally ignorant to the workings of the almighty believe they have achieved because they great scholars themselves

Everything that we have comes from the Lord. We can't take credit for anything, because without him we could do nothing.

The humble man/woman says "I am nothing without God."

There was an illustration once used by renowned educator Fannie Everfield who held up a sign with the word "Christian" written on it. Then she took a pair of scissors and cut off the letters "Christ" leaving only IAN. She said with Christ I ain't nothing.!

We are nothing without Christ because he is the one who says:

I am the way, the truth and the life!

I am the bread of life!

I am the lily of the valley and the bright and morning star!

If we just have to brag on someone who has done good things. Let's brag on the Lord because his grace is sufficient.

His grace is sufficient for:

—The poor, no matter how pathetic their poverty.
—The tired, no matter how feeble their steps.
—The burdened, no matter how exhausted their body.
—The lonely, no matter how pitiful their situation.
—The wretched, no matter how despairing their circumstance.
—The sick, no matter how painful their diseases.

Grace can:

—Take heavy burdens and make them bearable.
—Take high mountains and make them climbable.
—Take deep valleys and make them crossable.

If we have to brag on somebody, brag on Jesus who died out on Calvary!

Brag on Jesus who was buried in a borrowed tomb!

Brag on Jesus who arose early Sunday morning!

Brag on Jesus, "He's all that and a bag of chips!"

When God starts it, He finishes it

SCRIPTURE: Being confident of this very thing, that he which hath begun a good work in you will perform it until the day of Jesus Christ. Philippians 1:6

Introduction

Have you ever awakened in the morning and, just for a few moments, thought about how far you have come?Many years ago, God began a good work in you. At the beginning it was rough, crude and cumbersome, but all of the ingredients were there. It probably began when you were a child, learning the Lord's Prayer and the 23rd Psalms. It continued in Sunday School and even further as you began to learn the rudiments of walking in faith.

Laying there, staring at the ceiling, have you ever thought about the rough years of your life when you faced difficulties that threatened your safety and existence?

Did you think about your children? Your spouse? Your siblings?

After a few moments of reflection, you probably gave God thanks for the journey and arose to face the new day with a positive spirit. You are grateful because in all of your experiences you learned that God never leaves you alone and will start whatever he finishes.

This church is celebrating a long journey. For decades it has traveled together for the most part with the same block of families. Many years ago God began that great work and will not stop working with us until He finishes what he started. Look around this room. It has changed over the years, but there are times when we can literally feel the presence of the old warriors: mothers, fathers, grandparents, uncles and aunts guiding us. Sometimes we can even see them sitting on their favorite pew. God began a good work in them and He is continuing that work in this generation. He will not stop guiding us, protecting and leading us, until we all reach the Promised Land.

On days such as this we sing the words of that old song by the Mighty Clouds of Joy, "It's been another day's journey and I'm glad about it."

When churches celebrate anniversaries we are at a high point in our history. We have the advantage of hindsight. Through hindsight we can see the long meandering path we have traveled to get here.

We see the mountains and valleys of challenges and disappointments.

We see those deserts that were so dry and desolate that we thought we'd never make it through.

We also see the rivers and the streams. We see the streams of tears and rivers of despair that we have crossed. When you are able to see things from a high place, they seem differently. When we climb higher, we get a panoramic view of things that allows us to see a wider, broader picture of life, rather than a narrow perspective.

This church is like ancient Israel marching toward the Promised Land with old man Moses leading the same congregation. Like Israel there have been times when we were faithful and followed in step. There have been other times when we were hard to deal with and God caused us to wander through periods of progress following by periods when we literally stood still. Israel followed this cycle for 40 years until the people reached the shores of the Promised Land. God was with them when they began their journey and He would be with them all the way to the end. If God starts something He will finish it.

As Christians, we thank God for our journey. We consider all that we have endured we understand that it has all work to our good. Anniversaries such as the one celebrated today gives us a chance to look back at the long journey, and to look forward to the great land of promise that lies ahead.

Exposition

This text focuses on the Apostle Paul as he reassures believers that God begins a work of perfection in each believer and will work with us until that perfection is achieved.

In this passage Paul makes clear a great truth about the working of the Holy Spirit in each individual life. If the Holy Spirit begins a work in us, He will finish the same work. That principle helps every believer or congregation of believers, know that God will not leave His work undone. He will bring it to full completion.

Generally, we understand God by knowing that He has a plan to bring us to the land of promise. He prepares every believer, every believing family, and every believing church for the journey from now to what will be in the future.

God is not fickle in the implementation of His plan for us. He begins and great work and each step along the way is part of an intricate design.

From time to time God reveals it to us and we can see how He is guiding us toward our destination.

The passage says, "he which hath begun a good work in you will perform it until the Day of Jesus Christ."

The Day of Jesus Christ is the day that Christ returns and sets up His kingdom.

We rejoice that God has begun a good work in us and will not stop this great work until we enter the Promised Land.

The Good Work Began with a Promise

The good work God started with this church, began with a promise. Decades ago God touched the hearts of a few and set their hearts on fire with the idea of doing a great work, building a church.

Those old warriors stepped out on God's promise. Today we recognize that God has been good to them and has answered their prayers. In the 66th Psalm David looked back over his journey and God's promises and he decided to keep His promises to God out of gratitude for the mighty blessings God has showered upon him. Today, brothers and sisters we keep our promises to God because it is our way of saying thank you for being so good to us!

We give thanks to God for beginning the good work and:
—Muzzling the mouths of lions that came to devour us!
—Quenching the flames of fires that tried to destroy us!
—Conquering the enemies that came to destroy us!
—Penetrating the walls built to divide us!
—Unlocking the prisons designed to hold us down!

I don't know about you brothers and sisters but God has been doing a great work in my life and I'm not tired yet!

God has shown us mercy on the journey

This church's journey has not been an easy work. There have been times along the way when we knew that it was nothing but the Lord that helped us to make it through. Nothing but the Lord! He was merciful and kind to us and because of his benevolence we have made it this far.

That's why we celebrate our journey and give thanks to God for his mercy.

The Israelite's celebrated their journey by the giving of special offerings and renewing their pledges of faithfulness to God.

They celebrated their journey by giving thanks.

Should we do less for this great work that God has begun in us and continues even today?

Every believer's celebration should be filled with thanksgiving!

We give God thanks for the seen and the unseen.

We thank him for the greens and butter beans, but we also thank him for being able to sleep soundly at night.

We thank him for turkey and dressing, but we also thank him for dressing our souls with his grace.

We thank him for fried chicken, rice and a little gravy, but we should also thank him for spiritual gravy: Joy, love, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, faith, meekness, and temperance.

We thank him for cars, houses and color T.V. but we should also thank him for coloring our lives with faith and hope because they help us to see the world in a different light.

When we consider our journey we can't help but give thanks for the help the Lord has given us. He has begun a great work in us and he's showing us new mercies everyday!

It has been a wonderful journey

When Paul spoke to the Philippians about the great work that was once begun he spoke from the vantage point of years past and which offered him perspective. When we look back we can see what God has done for us.

There are many who look back with a touch of nostalgia. There are some who have shared most of those years and a small group who have shared the entire journey. They say collectively, "It's been a wonderful journey."

Like Paul, there are many believers who have worked to help build the church.

Like Paul, I can hear them say, "I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now!"

Some have lifted their voices as members of choirs, others have washed dishes and mopped floors, but still they proclaim –"I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now!"

Some have preached and others have licked stamps, folded envelopes and passed out programs.

Some have given their last dollar and others have given until they felt the pain, but still they proclaim, "I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now!"

Some have emptied trash cans; others have stood behind television cameras, snapped pictures, worked with youth, or just been in the midst of the saints for moral support. All have one thing in common.

They all say, "I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now." We all say, "I''ve come too far to turn around."

Many years ago there was no John P. Kee or Kurt Franklin. There was no Donnie McClurkin, either. There were no CD players, IPods and internet. It was a time when people would lift their voices and shout, "I love the Lord he heard my cry. Long as I live while trouble rise, I'll hasten to his throne."

Yes, we've come a long ways on this journey; and thanks to God it's been a wonderful journey.

Who will tell our story?

Finally, brothers and sisters, as we review where we have been and see the challenges ahead, the question is asked, who will tell the story?

We have seen the great work that God began in the old warriors. We have also seen them called home one by one. Who will continue the work if one warrior falls?

Who will testify like the warriors of old that God provides for our survival in the wilderness of life!

Who will tell this generation that when times are hard that God will prepare a table for them in the presence of their enemies?

Who will tell those who are despondent along the way that God takes care of the faithful.

Who will testify that He opens doors that we cannot see and makes a way out of no way.

Who will testify that God provides all we need and is truly a "Way Maker."

We have withstood tremendous difficulties over many, many years, but God is still doing a great work!

Our young men have seen war in Afghanistan and Iraq and our daughters have faced new challenges to their womanhood, but God is still doing a great work!

We have seen great leaders fall and new leaders rise, but God is still doing a great work!

In these precious years as the world changed, this church has remained stable, trusting in a God who is the same yesterday as he is today and will be tomorrow.

We have kept our hands in the winding chain.

Who will tell the story?

Who will march forward into the future telling the story of our past as we hold up the blood stained banner?

Who will tell the story of how God brought us a mighty long way?

Who will tell the story of how we marched through hardship and trouble into this present day?

Who will be willing to face tomorrow with confidence and say like Joshua, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord!"

I don't know what tomorrow will bring, but I know what God has done in the past. I know what God is doing right now!

I do not know how long it will be or what the future holds for me, but this I know, if Jesus leads me, I will get home someday!

It doesn't matter what the future brings as long as the Lord is on our side!

Today we celebrate our anniversary, but that's not what I'm glad about!

I'm glad that our God doesn't start what He can't finish!

I'm glad that God started the work of salvation a long time ago!

I'm glad that God started a work that began in Bethlehem and ended on Calvary!

I'm glad that Jesus took an old rugged cross and carried it up Golgotha's hill!

I'm glad that He died out on Calvary!

But He didn't stop there!

I'm glad that early Sunday morning He arose from the dead with all power in His hands!

An Open and Shut Case

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 18, 2013

Scripture: "I know thy works: behold I have set before thee an open door, and no man can shut it for thou hast a little strength and hast kept my word and hast not denied my name. Behold I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to him and will sip with him, and he with me." Revelation 3:8, 20

Introduction

Have you ever locked your keys in your car? Have you ever been locked out of your house? What about locked out of your computer?When those instances happen we usually call someone who can access it for us. That's when we learn that there are rules of engagement regarding the circumstances that doors can be opened.If you call technical support when you are locked out of your computer there are rules that must be followed before they will give you any information: Your mother's maiden name, last four digits of your Social Security Number and a variety of other instances.

If your keys are locked in your automobile a professional lock company or a policeman is invited to jimmy the locks on the doors to get them open. They will usually ask for some type of ID to prove you should have access.

Locksmiths can make keys to your house, office, and your safe. But there are laws that govern when and under what circumstances he can open such doors, even though he possesses the skill to open them at any given time.

Hotels, motels, schools and many institutions have master keys that can open any room, locker, or office, but there are rules that say when and how the master key can be used.

Often life seems to close many doors in our faces; doors which were once freely open to us. How do we get them open again? There are rules of engagement there, too. God opens and closes doors, but we should be able to identify ourselves as children of the kingdom when we call on Him.

When opportunities seem to pass us by, that's when we know that we have an open and shut case. This is a case that only God can open or a door of misfortune that only God can close. The first rule of engagement is to know God for yourself. The second is to try your best to live the God centered, spirit filled life, and the third rule is to trust in the Lord with all your heart.

As Christians, we often experience open and shut cases. When we do, we have learned that the best way to deal with them is to call on the Lord.

Exposition

This text focuses on John's letter to one of the seven churches of Asia Minor encouraging their great faith.

Chapter 2 and 3 of Revelation contain Christ's special messages to the seven churches of Asia Minor. Verse 8 is an excerpt from Christ's message to the Church at Philadelphia. In verse 7 he pronounced that he had the "Key" or power and authority to open and close doors.

In verse 8 he tells them that he has opened a great opportunity for them that cannot be taken away. The symbol of that opportunity is the open door.

Verse 7 and 8 let us know that Christ has the power and authority to open doors for us.

In verse 20 we see the savior knocking on the door the heart of believers asking for admission. He asks to be admitted so he can bring salvation, hope and new life.

The Opening and closing of doors

GOD HAS OPENED DOORS: God has opened many doors for believers. Doors are opportunities. Sometimes they are opportunities to advance. At other times they are opportunities to escape a bad situation. Often the doors God opens allow us to take a detour and avoid the mass confusion facing others.

We should rejoice that God has opened the door of opportunity for us this year! At first it may appear to be a misfortune and then you actually realized that it was an opportunity. A lost job for some became an opportunity for a new career. A failed marriage became an opportunity to start again. A bankruptcy provided an opportunity to get a grip on finances.

Still others found that God runs ahead of us and held doors opened for us, holding back our enemies and pushing us toward progress.

Look back over the year. Some of us have done more than just survived; we have actually improved our spirituality, financial condition and family relations. Some have expanded their boundaries by taking advantage of every opportunity God made available to grow both spiritually and materially. There are many who are experiencing stronger family relationships in addition to other quality of life measures that cannot be ignored.

God has been faithful to provide us with a door of opportunity, even while He held back our enemies.

BE READY WHEN THE DOOR OPENS: While it is true that once God opens a door for us, no man can force it shut; it is also true that doors God opens are not guaranteed to stay open forever, we must be prepared to move at His command. When Israel left Egypt to go to the Promised Land they faced a closed door: the Red Sea. God opened a door for them to travel across the Red Sea on dry land, but that door did not stay open long. They had to move quickly because soon after the door closed, drowning all of Pharaoh's army. The door to Noah's ark stayed open for months as he gathered samples of every creeping thing on earth, but the door didn't stay open forever. Once it closed, those on the outside begged for admittance, but it was too late.

We should be ready when God opens doors. We should be trained and prepared for the career opportunity we seek so that once the career we seek is open that we are ready to step in. We pray for financial blessings, but are we really ready to handle a flood of financial opportunities? If we became multi-millionaires tomorrow would we be broke in five years, because we have not learned how to handle money or how to obediently give back to God from what we already have? Are we ready for the perfect mate or are we still looking for one night stands, cheap thrills?

We don't know the day or the hour that our opportunity will open. We should be ready when it comes.

GOD CLOSES DOORS: Often we desire to go a direction in life that is the direct opposite than the direction God wants; that's when God closes doors. For the believer, this can get a little confusing when we see non-believers walking through the same doors. Our prayer to God is "Thy will be done one earth as it is in heaven." In essence we pray that God's will for our lives will be accomplished. In effect, we time God to close any door that will not take me in the direction you want me to go. That's why your friend makes plenty of sideline money selling hot merchandise and gets away with it for a while; but you get caught. God closed that door. It's why you applied for a position that has no promotion possibilities and God has plans for you to go higher; so He closed that door. It all means that there are times when God closes a door to push us in the right direction.

Then there are times when God closes a door because we abused a trust. Isn't that what happened to Adam and Eve. They lived the good live in the Garden of Eden, but they became disobedient. As a result evicted them from the garden and closed the door forever. Israel became a great nation under Solomon. He built a great nation with lavish riches and elaborate buildings. However, after his death the nation plunged into ungodliness and God closed the door to the national prosperity; it has remained closed ever since.

When God closes a door it remains closed until he decides to open it again.

One Door Left

Finally, brother and sisters, while there are many doors that God can open, there is one door that he will not open on his own; it's the door to your heart.

Yet, I hear the scripture say, "Behold I stand at the door and knock."

Have you ever heard a knock at your door?

Whenever someone knocks on your door it means that they desire to get your attention. More often than not they want to enter for one reason or another.

Our savior wants to enter the door of our heart to bring us salvation.

An old Negro spiritual focused on that door and the knocking with these words, "Somebody's knocking on your door, Oh sinner, why don't you answer, somebody's knocking on your door."

If the church has one important function it is to help people to hear the Holy Spirit knocking at their door.

When we are lost the knock is a call to repentance.

When we are saved, the knock is a call to action.

I don't know about you, but I've the knock at my door.

When I answered, I found a savior who showed me the way!

If we will let Him in, he will:

-SHOW THE WEAK how to find new strength

-SHOW THE DISCOURAGED how to find new inspiration

-SHOW THE DISENCHANTED how to find new hope!

I invite you to open the door and let Him in and let him sup with you!

He opened the door for the woman at the well and she shouted to everyone, "Come see a man," who can:

-Comfort us in our sorrow; Assure us in our difficulties

-Strengthen us in our weakness; Encourage us in our trials

-Direct us in our decisions; Help us in our duties

-Anoint us in our ministries; defend us in our battles

I heard David declare: Lift up your heads, O ye gates; even lift them up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory shall come in.

Who is the king of glory? The Lord Strong and Mighty!

Who is the king of glory? The Lord mighty in battle!

Who is he?

He's the same God that opened up the Red Sea, He can open doors today!

He's the same God that rained down bread from heaven in the wilderness and He could he can put food on our tables!

He's the same God that brought down the walls of Jericho and He can bring down the walls of trouble and difficulty in our lives.

The God we serve has never lost a battle; we ought to keep our hand in His hand!

His name is Jesus, the Lily of the Valley!

Jesus, the Bright and Morning Star!

Jesus, who they tried in an illegal court before, but they found out that it was an open and shut case.

Jesus, who they tried in front of Jewish Sanhedrin Council, but they found out it was an open and shut case!

Jesus, who they tried in front of Pontus Pilate, but they found out, it was an open and shut case!

The hung Him on an old rugged and thinking they had put an end to his ministry, but they found out that this too was an open and shut case.

But early Sunday morning God opened up the tomb, and He arose from the grave!

When people tell you that it's over and you don't have a chance, that's when you know that you know that you have an open and shut case!

God can make away!

Cracker Jack Faith

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: "I press toward the mark of the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Philippians 3:14

Introduction

Have you ever tasted cracker Jacks? The combination of caramel coated popcorn and peanuts has been attracting people for years. Cracker Jacks have been around since 1893 and very little about it has changed. It's still taste the same and still has the picture of the sailor boy on the front, but its main selling point is still there as well; in fact it's reason for product's success over years. Inside of every box there is a prize. The lure of the prize in the cardboard box sheltered between kernels of corn and peanuts is the big secret to Cracker Jacks' success. As a product Cracker Jacks is simply popcorn molasses and peanuts. However, when this simple mixture was sold at the Chicago world's fair in 1893 it caused considerable attention. It was not only tasty but it also had a prize in the box.

Like millions of others, when I was a child I was attracted to Cracker Jacks. The corn was tasty, but I was really attracted to the prize. The prizes were always mysteries the customer never knew what was inside. Very seldom were the prizes the same. The prizes ranged from temporary tattoos to decoder rings. Sometimes there were baseball cards and plastic spinning tops. There were times when we poured out the popcorn and peanuts just to get to the prize.

Whenever I had a choice of goodies, Cracker Jacks was always a favorite choice. In 2004 a baseball team tried to substitute another crunchy snack for Cracker Jacks and there was so much of an outcry from the public that it was quickly returned as the primary junk food of the league. In recent years Cracker Jacks has replaced the toys in the boxes with little pieces of paper with wise quotes written on them. Without the mysterious prizes, sales have hit a slump. It seems that people love the popcorn and the peanuts, but they also want the prize.

That's what Paul is encouraging believers to do in verse 14. Keep your eye on the prize. In our case the prize is the "high calling" or mission that Christ has given us as believers. The calling is to build the kingdom of God. Just as Millions were willing to pour out the popcorn and nuts of a Cracker Jack box to get to the prize, we should have the same attitude ourselves.

We have many "things" in life, that's our popcorn and peanuts, but they don't count as much as the prize of pleasing God.

As Christians, we have resolved to keep our purpose in life the main thing, everything else is popcorn and peanuts.

Exposition

The text focuses on Paul's Epistle to the Church at Philippi.

While imprisoned in Rome he wrote this letter to the Christians in Philippi to tell them of the joy of serving the Lord and to encourage them to keep their minds focused on their purpose in life. These passages reflect three dominant themes that permeated Paul's ministry: Humility, intense focus, and a sure goal.

Paul remained humble, throughout his life. Obviously, God had endowed him with great talents and gifts but he always received them with an attitude of humility. Although Paul was a learned scholar who spoke many languages fluently, and was well versed in the scholarship of his day, he told the Philippians, "I count not myself to have apprehended" that is to note that while he had learned much in life, he was keenly aware that he did not know everything. He counted heavily on the Holy Spirit to reveal many things to him and to call others to his remembrance. Knowing that God spoke and moved through him, Paul was always humble to know that he had not accomplished anything alone, but it was always God working through him.

Secondly, Paul's life was intensely focused on his goal. He chose not to focus on his past accomplishments, which included his education and training, conversion on the Damascus road, three missionary journeys, and the conversions of countless numbers to the faith. It would have been very easy for him, especially considering his confinement and approaching death, to dwell on the past and constantly reflect on his achievements. He chose to focus on the future rather than on the past. Whatever was done in the past remains as history, he chose, even in a moment of crises to always look to the future.

Lastly, Paul knew what he wanted and where he was going. His goal was the prize of the high calling of God. It did not lay in the praise of men, or the accumulation of worldly things. He concluded that he would not be dissuaded in his journey. In Romans 8:35 he asked, "Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword?" Then he answered in verse 37,"Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us."

His goal in life was set, it was clear and in focus, he had decided to use his life as witness to the power of God and there would be no turning back.

Popcorn and Peanuts

When compared to the glories that God offers, much of what this life offers is just popcorn and peanuts when compared to the prize offered by our God.

PROMISE OF FAME AND POWER: The world offers believers the promise of fame and power. It is certainly enticing to receive the prospect of power of fame right now, instead of in the future. That's what happened when Jesus began his ministry, the devil appeared to him after a long fast and offered him the possibility of fame, power and self satisfaction. All Jesus had to do was to worship Satan and He would have it all. Jesus rebuked him and told him get behind him. He chose to live for kingdom. The prize of salvation was more important to him.

Even today, believers receive similar temptations. We are often tempted with great opportunities that will yield fame and power, but will weaken our ability to serve the kingdom. Some turn down those opportunities to better position themselves for kingdom service. The fame and power that the world offers is fleeting. It lasts for a day and then disappears. Yet, those who give their lives in service to God find a lasting reward.

There is a song that says, "You may seek earthly power and fame, the world might be impressed by your great name, soon the glories of this life will all be past, but only what you do for Christ will last."

George Washington Carver was a famous scientist who sought only to please God. He discovered over 300 uses for peanuts, but gave all of his profits to the public. As for as he was considered, it was just peanuts, when compared to the great work he did making the world a little better.

PROMISE OF RICHES: The world offers believers the promise of riches and the good life. We see it everywhere! It becomes an overwhelming enticement. Yet, for believers, it is like the popcorn and peanuts in the Cracker Jack box, taste good and it is filling, but it is not our prize.

Jesus, speaking to believers in Matthew 6:20 said, "But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, nor thieves break through and steal, for where your treasure is, there will be your heart also." Jesus points to to the real prize in the box, not to the popcorn and peanuts. He encourages us to lay up treasures in heaven. There are too many people today who spend vast amounts of time and energy trying to store up treasures in the local bank and fail to make regular deposits in the First National Bank of Heaven.

Jesus spoke of a rich farmer who chose to tear down so he could build up. "My barns are filled with every sort of grain" so I'll build a bigger barn so I can lay up for my old age.

Ananias and Sapphira lost their lives because they chose to lay up for themselves rather than put up an investment in the kingdom of God.

Every child of God is encouraged to, "seek ye first the kingdom of heaven and its righteousness and all the other things will be added."

Every good deed adds to your treasure in heaven.

Every kind word adds a star in your crown.

Every gift of time and finance adds another star to your crown.

Treasures in heave are the real prize, all of the rest that life has to offer is just popcorn and peanuts!

THE PRIZE IS WORTH THE SACRIFICE: Believers are encouraged to remember that no matter how difficult the present struggle may be, the prize that our God offers is worth the sacrifice. What makes an athlete push himself to the limit? He keeps the promise of the prize in front of himself and goes forward. So it is with believers, when we pour out the contents of the box of goodies that life has given us, it's not the popcorn and peanuts that we seek, it is the prize.

Unlike the prizes in the Cracker Jack boxes that have reduced in value over the years, the prize that our God offers remains the same. The word of God tells us in Revelation 21:7 "He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son." Revelation 2:26 says "And he that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations:"

Rev 3:5 says He that overcometh.... shall be clothed in white raiment; and... I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels."

All of this says, that the prize is worth the sacrifice.

It says, what God offers us makes what the world have to offer, just popcorn and peanuts in comparison.

Press On

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider Paul's ultimate challenge: Move forward in faith, with your eyes on the prize.

Paul reminded believers that no matter what obstacles come their way they must keep their eyes on the prize.

He had accumulated great knowledge, but he counted it all peanuts when compared to the prize.

He had accumulated great power, but he was all popcorn to him.

What really mattered was the prize.

Today, brothers and sisters that should be the testimony of every believer: We like the peanuts and the popcorn that come in the box of life, but we're looking for the prize!

Where is the prize?

Where is the prize in accumulating wealth if it helps no one?

Where is the prize in becoming famous if we can't use that fame to build the kingdom?

Where is the prize in rising tall ourselves if we don't help someone else rise as well?

The prize of God is given to the believer who overcomes the temptations of the world and pours out his life in pursuit of the kingdom!

Prize is for those who overcome!

Who is the man or woman who overcomes?

He that overcometh is the man who believes that God I serve is bigger than the problems I have!

He that overcometh is the woman who believes that no matter how tough the road gets, the Lord will make a way somehow!

He that overcometh is the man who declares that God is able, as for me and my house we will serve the Lord!

John said in the Revelation of Jesus Christ,

He that overcometh, shall inherit all things!

He that overcometh will enjoy that day when the wicked shall cease from troubling and the weary will be at rest!

He that overcometh shall enjoy that day when the mountains will be made low, rough places will be made plain and the crooked places will be made straight!

Storms may rise! But he that overcometh shall inherit all things!

One of these days, by and bye, it'll all be over down here!

He that overcometh will keep telling the story!

He'll keep telling the world about Jesus and a place called Calvary!

Bye and Bye when the battle is over, well tell the story!

How he died on an old rugged cross!

Well tell the story! How he rose from the grave We shall overcome! Oh deep in my heart, I do believe..

We shall overcome someday!

A Grandparent's Legacy

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church

September 8, 2013

SCRIPTURE: "I will open my mouth in a parable: I will utter dark sayings of old: Which we have heard and known, and our fathers have told us. We will not hide them from their children, shewing to the generation to come the praises of the LORD, and his strength, and his wonderful works that he hath done. Psalm 78:2-4

Introduction

Have you ever thought about the many ways your grandparents influenced you? Many have fond memories of their grandparents, while others are still creating memorable moments with them. The images that flash through our mind of grandparents usually form the framework of the lasting impression we have of them; those memories are lasting legacies that will endure for generations.

Whenever a child is born, anywhere in the world, a grandparent is born at the exact same second. One is born an infant with much to learn and another is born an aged veteran with much to teach.

Godly grandparents and those who have acted as grandparents are unique. They are living examples of faith in action. Character studies of these men and women, if written, would reveal lives that are rooted in faith that God will make a way. Since 1978, the nation has paused to salute grandparent figures for their example and contribution to the development of family life in America.

Perhaps the saddest words in the entire world are, I never knew my grandparents.

Even better than simply knowing grandparents, is knowing God fearing grandparents! God fearing grandparents seem to believe that no matter how bad things get, God will work it out! Sometimes grandparents seem a little out of touch as they dismiss any crises with the words, I just put that in the hands of the Lord! They seem distant, but yet are so close because they trust God to resolve every difficulty of life. No matter how the winds blow! No matter how the lions roar the godly grandparent has learned and teaches us by example that God is still in control.

As Christians, we thank God for the legacy we have received from godly grandparents. They have taught us to trust in the Lord with all our hearts and to lean not to our own understandings. When we face difficult times or great storms, we can hear their words of assurance, "God will work it out." – That assurance is a godly grandparent's legacy.

Exposition

This text focuses on David as he expresses the obligation of the aged and wise to pass on their knowledge of God to succeeding generations.

In the text David calls the accumulated wisdom of a family's ancestors "dark sayings" not that they were morbid or mysterious, but that they were wise and deep.

In David's day, as is today, many of the elders spoke it what seemed to riddles and proverbs that had very little meaning at the time, but proved to be revelations of truth. Godly grandparents often uttered these "dark sayings" that appeared amusing at the time, but were based on a deep faith in God.

David's words in this text represent the overwhelming body of scripture that urges parents to diligently teach their children, not only the word of God, his laws and the meaning of his ordinances, but also His works and the methods of His providence.

Dt 6:7 — And thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up.

Ps 71:18 — Now also when I am old and grayheaded, O God, forsake me not; until I have shewed thy strength unto this generation, and thy power to every one that is to come.

Dt 11:19 — And ye shall teach them your children, speaking of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, when thou liest down, and when thou risest up.

Grandparents are to teach their children and grandchildren the way of the Lord and thereby leave a legacy that will be more lasting than anything else they receive.

What grandparents teach

Our grandchildren need to know that God can still do what He has always done and He is doing it in their generation as well. While it's good to tell your grandchildren stories of God's incredible deeds recorded in the Bible, we also need to tell them how God has worked in our lives They may be amazed at the Biblical account but they will be impacted when they see how their grandparents put faith in action!

Grandparents influence generations

Have you ever noticed that children sometimes cling to the influence of their grandparents rather than that of the parents? That's a good thing, if the grandparents are godly.

Pastor Glenn Pease notes that Hezekiah was one of the best kings God's people ever had, but his father was Ahaz, and he was one of the worst they ever had. But his grandfather was Jotham and he did that which was right in the eyes of the Lord. Hezekiah took after his grandfather rather than his father, and the result was victory for the kingdom of God.

The glory and the lingering influence of grandparents is that their lives reach beyond their own lifetimes and grandchildren and great grandchildren learn of their strengths and weaknesses and emulate them.

Each succeeding generation seems to grow weaker and more worldly, until a grandchild or a great grandchild remembers the life work of a grandparent and points its generation back to some level of sanity.

In this way, grandparents influence history, for generations to come.

The first 17 verses of the Book of Matthew records 42 generations of grandparents. Beginning with Abraham, every grandfather is listed leading up to the birth of Christ. It is literally the grandparents hall of fame. Each of the generations was blessed because of the life work of the grandparents.

Even when grandchildren seem to mess up things, God somehow seems to reward godly grandparents long after their life journey ends by blessing their grandchildren.

Children remember the influence of Grandparents

Today, one of the most vivid memories we have of our grandparents is their demonstrated faith in difficult times. However, the faith for their experience was not developed instantly, but over a course of years. For example, Daniel had faith for the lion's den, but it was a faith that began when he was a teenager and practiced at every stage of his life. Abraham had faith in his senior years, but it was a faith developed over a lifetime.

Every grandparent who shares that faith of their life's experience with the next generation leaves a legacy and imprint on the life of a grandchildren that will endure for generations.

The young are impressed with the wisdom of their grandparents and often seek guidance from them because they always seem to know what to say and do when faced with life's issues.

Many are like Daniel who at age 80 had reached a level of maturity in which he was unmoved by anything that happened around him having experience the Lion's den, exportation, isolation and even elevation in his life time. Today, there are many grandparents among us that share a similar resolve. They have seen wars, depressions, several presidents, good times and bad times. They have seen droughts, floods, hot summers and cold winters. In all that they have seen, they have learned that God is still under control. That's why David, reflecting would write, I have been young, and now am old, yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed, begging for bread.

Grandparents help us find a way to break through

The young are struggling to find their way in life. They often turn to their grandparents for advice about breaking through the entanglements that keep them away from success.

Grandchildren, suffering from hurt, rejection and failure often find inspiration when grandparents reach into their own experience and tell them that breakthroughs in life happen when:

When we hurt enough to be willing to change,

When we learn enough that we want to change,

When we receive enough to be able to change!

It's words of wisdom such as these that grandchildren will remember for years. They are "dark sayings" that will linger long after grandparents are no longer with us.

Each generation must tell the story

Finally, brothers and sisters, grandparents themselves must hold on, keep trusting in the Lord and tell the story of God's goodness to the next generation.

In the text David said he would not hide the goodness of the Lord from the next generation, but would praise God for His mighty works.

More than anyone else in the family, grandparents can tell of the wonderful works of the Lord because they have seen Him move in their own lives.

They can testify that in their lives, God proved himself to be a refuge or place of shelter in times of storm.

The times may have changed but God is still on the throne.

It's a great legacy to leave your grandchildren an abiding faith that influences them to trust in the Lord.

We trust in the Lord because those who trust him are rewarded with answered prayers, and heavenly glory!

We are not by ourselves. Biblical grandparents trusted in the Lord.

—Noah trusted the Lord and He brought him through the great flood!

—Abraham trusted the Lord and He showed him the Lamb in the bush!

—Ruth trusted the Lord and she found happiness while gleaning fields!

—Moses trusted the Lord and he lead Israel out of bondage

—Daniel trusted the Lord and He protected him in the Lion's Den

—Job declared that though his health was slipping away, his children were gone and his wealth was lost that he would still trust the Lord.

I hear him across the centuries declaring, "Yea though he slay me, yet will I trust Him."

Iwill trust in the Lord because if I am:

—Sad, the Lord will be my fountain of joy!

—At fault, the Lord will be stronghold of forgiveness!

—Weak, the Lord will be my pillar of strength

—Discouraged, the Lord will be my pool of inspiration!

—Defeated, the Lord will be my crown of victory!

—Darkness, the Lord will be my light!.

—Lonely, the Lord will be my friend

—Helpless, the Lord will be my help.

That brings to mind the little girl who was very close to her grandmother. Grandmother always took time to come to her room, pull up the old rocking chair and read her stories from an old story book given to her by her mother. The stories were inspiring

Sometimes she read about Mother Goose, Little Red Riding Hood, and Alice in Wonderland. However, mostly she read about David and Goliath, Adam and Eve and Daniel in the Lion's Den. After reading grandmother would say, "They trusted God and I do too,"

Grandmother would sit in that old rocker and read one each night without fail.

After a while Grandmother took sick. Shortly after the little girl learned that grandma was gone to be with God.

Only one thought came to her mind. The question plagued her day and night. She knew that grandma was with God. She knew that Grandma was safe.

However, the question that bothered her was, Who will tell the story?

As she came home that night her mother came into her room and tucked her daughter in bed. Tired, she sat in the old rocking chair. Instantly the little girl sat up in her bed and displayed the biggest smile. Why are you smiling so? The mother asked.

The girl pointed to her mother sitting in grandma's chair! The little girl pulled out the old story book that had passed through three generations and put it in her mother's lap. You are sitting in grandma's chair. You must tell the story!

That question still lingers today..who will tell the story?

Who will tell the story of your family's faith walk?

Who will tell the story of the mountains the family has climbed and the valleys it has seen.

Who will testify, The Lord is my refuge and my strength a very pleasant help in a time of trouble!

Who will testify that, I trust in God wherever I may be. Out on the land or on the raging sea. Though come what may, from day to day, my heavenly father watches over me!

Who will tell the story of how a man named Jesus was nailed to an old rugged cross!

Grandparents must tell their generation how he died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning, he arose from the dead!

Tell the story of your faith journey, that is a grandparent's lasting legacy!

He Riseth from Supper

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

September 15, 2013

SCRIPTURE: He riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself. 5 After that he poureth water into a bason, and began to wash the disciples 'feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded. John 13:4-5

Introduction

When asked to describe God what is your response? We think of God in many ways: Majestic, Awesome and powerful. We rarely think of God as a mere servant. We often find it difficult to see Jesus in any way other than a powerful provider. In reality, He wanted to be seen as a servant.

We often revere those who lead us and champion our causes and place them on pedestals. The same was true of Christ, who rejected the pedestal in favor of the role of a lowly servant. This was also the case of the Reverend Vernon Johns, the pastor of the Dexter Avenue Baptist Church in Montgomery, Alabama, from 1947-1952. He was often criticized for challenging injustice in Alabama. He challenged the people to let their faith in God rise up above Sunday morning songs. However, his congregation felt truly insulted over his demonstrations of humility when he dressed in overalls, threw a towel over his shoulder and sold watermelons in front of the church to symbolize the importance of labor and working with one's hands. His protests and embarrassing symbols caused the church to fire him and get a young pastor that would not be controversial. They hired Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

Sometimes our towels have meanings. That's what happened to the little boy who heard his Sunday School teacher say Jesus took a towel and wrapped it around himself as he showed his disciples how to become a super person. The next day the little boy insisted that his mom pin a towel to his shirt to make a cape. He said the towel made him superman. He wore the towel everyday, jumping off chairs and waving his hands in the air as he pretended to fly. On the first day of school he appeared wearing his towel.

When the teacher asked his name the boy responded, "Superman." The teacher smiled and said, "I'm sorry Superman, but at school you have to use your real name." The boy looked at his mom and asked, "Do I have to?" and the mom nodded. "So what is your real name, the teacher asked?" The boy said, "Well, don't tell anybody. It's my secret. My real name is Clark Kent."

Jesus challenged every believer to pick up the towel of service and take on the identity of a servant. What's your real name? "Servant."

The challenge of Christian service is a change to serve and to walk by faith. It is a challenge that is never ending.

As Christians, we should resolve to let Christ rise up in us so that all who know us will truly know the joy of the Lord.

Exposition

This text focuses on what Jesus did after the last supper.

With all of his disciples surrounding Him Jesus made one final attempt to get his disciples to understand the meaning of service in the kingdom of God. Just a short while earlier two of his disciples came to him requesting to sit on his right hand and his left hand when the kingdom of God became a reality. The two, James and John, desired to have high positions in the new kingdom. They sought to ensure themselves a position of power and influence in the kingdom by securing a promise from Jesus that once the kingdom of God was in place that they would have the highest positions. Their desire was to be great. Jesus rebuked them by letting them know that greatness in the kingdom of God was not the same as greatness among men. His words to them were simple, "He that would be great among you let him be your servant."

When he dealt with James and John Jesus gave an example, but in this text instead of simply speaking an example Jesus decided to show his disciples an example of what he meant my greatness in the kingdom of God. As all the disciples were gathered for the last time, Jesus stripped himself of His garments took a towel and wrapped it around himself; took another towel, and a basin or water and began to wash the feet of his disciples.

The entire action was servile in nature: The son of God serving others. It was a demonstration of what Jesus said often.

In Luke 12:37 he said, "Blessed are those servants whom the master finds awake when he comes. Truly, I say to you, he will dress himself for service and have them recline at table, and he will come and serve them."

In Luke 22:27 he said, "For who is the greater, one who reclines at table or one who serves? Is it not the one who reclines at table? But I am among you as the one who serves."

Philippians 2:6-8 "..Who, though he was in the form of God, did not count equality with God a thing to be grasped, but emptied himself, by taking the form of a servant, being born in the likeness of men. And being found in human form, he humbled himself by becoming obedient to the point of death, even death on a cross."

He rose after supper to demonstrate humility to his servants. It was a demonstration so powerful that it lasts even until this day.

When He Rises

This act of Christ gives us an example of what happens when Christ rises up in our lives.

WHEN CHRIST RISES UP LOVE IS DEMONSTRATED: After the last supper Christ rose to demonstrate his love for his disciples. When we were children our idea of demonstrating love was amusing. We sent each other little notes, like the one that read: Roses are red and violets are blue, sugar is sweet and I love you." It may have had little boxes to check if you like me or not In modern times, you may have received a silent text on your phone or an email expressing love.

God took it further, He sent Jesus. Jesus took it further when he demonstrated that any person who professes love for another should be willing to rise up and demonstrate that love with actions. When the spirit of the savior rises in any believer we see it demonstrated by loving actions. In our homes, love is demonstrated by actions. The same is true in our relationships, partnerships and church relations. Those who love demonstrate their love with their actions. When Christ rises up, love is easier to see and feel. When there is no Christ, there is tension, anger, distrust, arguments and no acts of service. It is best therefore that we let him rise up so love can abide.

WHEN CHRIST RISES UP PRIDE TAKES A BACK SEAT: The text shows Jesus demonstrating humility. He was the Son of God, yet He was willing to wash his followers feet. His pride took a back seat. When Christ rises up within us, a spirit of humility rises up in us as well. It's the spirit that says, "Whatever he wants me to do, I will do it." How many times have we lost blessings because we refuse to accept the way God chose to bless us. We prayed for a job, but didn't take the job offered because it wasn't what we wanted. We prayed for a car, but grumbled because the car we received wasn't big enough. We prayed for an end to the family feud, but were not willing to admit having made any mistakes ourselves. Pride often stands in the way of success for many people. It blocks the door to peace in our homes. However, when Christ rises up, humility comes to the forefront and pride takes a back seat.

WHEN CHRIST RISES UP WE SEE THE NEED FOR WASHING: In verses 6-11 Jesus tells Peter about the need for spiritual washing to be a part of the body of Christ. At first Peter refused then asked to be washed all over. When Christ rises up in us, we see the need to be cleansed, and forgiven. Children can play in the dirt all day and not realize that they are dirty. However, as soon as a loving parent sees the dirt, the cleansing begins. When Christ rises up in us we see our sins in a different light. We desire to be washed and cleansed. When Christ rises up in use we want to atone for sins and begin again. When Christ rises up in us we are convicted of sin and no longer enjoy doing anything that will not align itself with his will. At first, Peter did not see the need for washing, but Christ saw it. He saw him in the near future denying Him. That's why he said in verse 11 "Ye are clean, but not all." When Christ rises up we become aware that we are unworthy to approach the throne of Grace. That only through Jesus can we have hope to obtain eternal life.

The Ultimate Example

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must note that when Jesus rose after supper he was preparing to demonstrate his love by laying down His life for His friends.

It did not seem to be a great act, only a single man rising before a group of men and taking a towel to wash their feet.

It did not seem to be anything of importance that one who raised the dead and healed the sick would humble himself before those who followed Him.

Yet, Jesus, the son of God rose up to humble Himself so that those who follow Him can enter into the joy of the Lord.

When the spirit of Christ rises in us we begin to know the joy of the Lord!

It's a strange joy we feel when we give away things to help others instead of getting things.

It's a strange joy we have from placing a full plate in the hands of a hungry man.

When the Spirit of Christ rises up within us we begin to really know the Joy of the Lord!

What is the joy of the Lord?

It is the satisfaction of knowing that our little part helps to build the kingdom of the Lord.

It's the satisfaction that a little boy felt when he saw his five loaves and two little fishes used to feed five thousand!

It's the satisfaction that the Good Samaritan felt when he watched the injured man walk away from a battered situation after weeks of love and care!

When Christ rises up in us the goodness of the Lord is released and our:

—BURDENS are turned into blessings; CARES are turned into comforts

—DEFEATS are turned into delights; HEARTACHES are turned into hallelujahs!

—PROBLEMS are turned into praises; HOUSES are turned into homes

—SORROWS are turned into songs; SADNESS is turned into gladness I

When Christ rises up we humbly go into battle and knowing that before the battle begins the victory is won!

When Christ rises up we know that no matter how tough the enemy, we will be the victor!

When Christ rises up we are reminded that weeping might endure for a night, but joy comes in the morning!

When Christ riseth up we have the assurance of the Lord that storms may rise and winds may blow, but God is still on the throne!

When Christ rises up, Satan goes down!

When Christ rises up, fear begins to fall!

When Christ rises up, failure begins to tumble!

When Christ rises up, defeat is crushed underfoot.

Powerful things start to happen when Christ rises up. That's what the world found out over 2000 years ago on a hill call Calvary!

They crucified Him on an old rugged cross!
They drove nails in His hands!
They buried Him in a borrowed tomb!
But Early, Sunday morning He arose, with all power in His hands!
When Christ arises in your life, crying days will be over!
When Christ rises up, we'll have the victory!
When Christ rises up, we'll sing that old song, "I told Satan, get thee behind, victory today is mine!"

He shall preserve thy soul

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church

SCRIPTURE: The Lord shall preserve thee from all evil: he shall preserve thy soul. The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth, and even forevermore. Psalm 121:7-8

Introduction

Have you ever watched the old timers make preserves? There was a time nearly everyone had at least one jar of preserves on a shelf somewhere in the house. In our past, the old timers seldom threw away anything and learned the art of "canning" or preserving foods for the future.

With very little formal training, the old timers developed canning into a precise science so exact that they could preserve any fruit or vegetable in a way that would last for years. The old way has been passed down through the generations; there are are still jars of peaches, pears, figs, plums and just about every other fruit or vegetable imaginable in refrigerators and cupboards across the country.

The old-timers had a philosophy that in a season of plenty we should save for a season of want. In the spring and summer, kitchens were filled with dozens of mason jars, tubs of water and vegetables and fruits laying on counters and tabletops everywhere. When canning time ended there were dozens of little jars sitting one inch apart on towels cooling down to later begin a shelf life that could last for years.

There was a lot of science and good sense involved in the methods used by the ancient ones. Their techniques have been copied by industry as the old country practice has now become industrialized into the canning and preservation business we know today. Today's methods are so sophisticated that the range of preserved items now includes products such as ice cream, hamburgers and French fries. There are a few differences however. Today's canning methods usually have a sell by date and a use by date stamped on the side of every can. Those dates prompt many consumers to throw out the canned items because they are no longer safe to consume. The canned items made by the old-timers had no "use by" date; everyone knew that it did not matter how long it sat on the shelf, it would still be good when opened.

God Promises to preserve our souls, but there is a process He uses that is strikingly similar to that used by the old-timers. It protects against all contaminants and preserves and seals us until the savior's return.

As Christians, we are excited to know that God promises to preserve our souls. The process He uses to accomplish His will is foolproof and will keep us until The Lord returns.

Exposition

This text focuses on David as he relates his confidence that God will protect his people.

For Israel, the mountains and hills of Palestine afforded them protection against enemies and a certain sense of security. The Psalmist, pointing to the hills, was not implying that the assurance of every believer is in the literal mountains and hills around them, but in the power of the God who provides the protective environment in which they are able to sleep secure each night.

The God we serve protects us and keeps us continually. Our first line of reference is the hills themselves, but beyond that, it is God's hand, moving through the hills that brings our greatest assurances.

The driving idea of the text is that God will preserve his people; He will not allow them to suffer utter defeat. Verses six and seven use the word "Preserve" three times.

The Hebrew word "Samar" used in each instance means, "to build a thorny hedge around." This is truth that David wanted believers to know. God will build a thorny hedge around his people to preserve them. A thorny hedge will keep evil influences out, but the same thorns protect Israel from itself by keeping it "In."

God protects "our going out" and our "coming in" both day and night.

Preserves

How does God preserve us? How does He protect from evil within and without? How will God preserve our soul? Perhaps we should look to the canning process for clues.

PRESERVES MUST PREPARED: Preserves are not simply pulled from their vines, stalks and branches and placed in a jar, expecting to be preserved. They must be prepared. The item is wash thoroughly to remove all contaminants and cooked before it is preserved. There are many people who think they can become a Christian straight off the streets. Many believe that the only step necessary is to join a church, start reciting a few bible verses and they instantly have the anointing of God. However, salvation is acquired by accepting the blood of the Lamb of God as a sacrifice for sins. That requires that a person be washed in the blood of the lamb. There must be a confession of sin, repentance from sin and a decision never to live the life of sin again. The preparation begins as the world tempts you to return and tugs at you constantly. That's what a song writer had in mind when he wrote, "Have you been tried in the fire? Did you come through as pure gold?" Those who want to be preserved must be willing to be washed and prepared in the fires of temptation; and to come through as pure gold.

PRESERVES MUST BE STORED IN STERLIZED JARS: The old-timers used Mason Jars to store preserves. They boiled the jars in tubs of water to kill all germs and once products were placed in them they used wooden stirrers to make sure no air bubbles were hidden underneath. Those who are coming to Christ are placing themselves into the hands of God's instrument for their preservation which is the church. The church itself cannot be a contaminating factor. It does not help people trying to change their lives if they come to the church and find the same sin it that they encountered in the world. If the church endorses immoral living and ungodliness of every kind, how can it expect to act as a preserving agent to those within? Yet, too many churches have turned a blind eye to sin within their ranks in favor of large crowds and larger offerings. When members of a congregation become involved in sinful acts the church has an obligation to help its members out of sinful situations without judgment. We must stir the jar and seal it to insure that evil is kept out and that the good is kept in.

CHECK THE SEAL: Those who experts in canning tell us that after the jar has been boiled it is allowed to cool. Once its completely cool it looks as if it is seal, but the lid must be check. Generally the preparer will press the center of the jar. If the lid stays pressed it has been properly sealed. If they lid goes down and then pops back up, it is not sealed. It won't last but a few weeks; then it will probably go bad. The same is true of a person in the church. It is possible for a person to be a member of the church and not be properly sealed. We know it because when pressed to serve they are always popping in and out. Here today, gone tomorrow. In a ministry this week, in a club the next week. Drinking communion one week and drinking wine, beer and whiskey the next. Those who are not sealed don't stay with the church long. We see them for a while, but soon they return to their worldly ways. They are not lost however, that which was sealed correctly can be resealed. The whole process can be repeated so that it is done right the second time around. Thank God for the second time around!

Sealed Until he comes

Finally, brothers and sisters we are encouraged to remember that when God preserves we are sealed until He comes.

Ephesians 1:13 says, "In whom ye also trusted, after that ye heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation: in whom after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that Holy Spirit of promise" That means we have God's promise and His seal. "

We have been given God's promise that if we trust Him that he will provide a thorny hedge around us and protect us from ultimate defeat on the outside and preserve us on the inside.

The most important part of being preserved is to get a seal. The seal protects and keeps us fresh.

It is important that we are sealed with the Holy Spirit of Promise rather than man made seals!

There are many who have LIGHT BREAD SEALS that allow the user to remove the seal and put it back on again indefinitely. Even with the best of care, light bread becomes dry and stale if the loaf packaging is often opened and closed. Many church people have a light bread seal instead of the Seal of Christ. They are in and out! They are in for a while and they are out for a long time. Their seal is opened and closed so much that they have grown stale in the faith. Is our allegiance to God and in and out affair? Is it desirable for us to meander in the faith so frequently? 1 Corinthians 15:58 answers these questions this way: "..Be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, for as much as ye know that your labor is not in vain."

There are many who have POP TOP SEALS rather than seals from God. These seals are like soft drinks that are strong and powerful as long as their tops are never popped. They have plenty of power: If shaken it builds; if things get hot it builds even more, as long as they are sealed. If the seal is broken all of its power is lost in one flurry and fizzle.

Likewise many Christians have a great testimony to tell, song to sing, and prayer to pray. They appear to have plenty of power until something or somebody pops their top. It may be an angry response, or even a failure that pops their top but when it happens they lose all of their power and have as much spirit as a day old soda.

Those who are sealed by the hand of God are like food sealed in a can. Those who are sealed in Christ are protected by His seal. The tough seal that protects them allows the food items in them to remain untainted. Though they may be dropped, kicked, rolled around or tossed. They may have a dent or two but they are almost indestructible when they have been sealed in the faith nothing can separate you from the Love of God. In Romans 8:35 Paul asked the question: "Who shall separate us from the Love of Christ? Shall tribulation or distress or persecution or famine or nakedness or peril or sword?" He answered his own question with our testimony: "I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels nor principalities, nor things present nor things to come, nor height nor depth nor any other creature shall be able to separate me from the Love of God which is in Jesus Christ."

It's good to be sealed, but how long will it last? In the store, the food is sealed, but it only holds until a certain date.

Food must be taken off the shelf when the date runs out. How long will God's seal last?

It will last until He returns. Ephesians 4:30 says, "…we are sealed until the day of redemption."

In Revelation 7 John said he saw 144,000 Jews from the 12 tribes of Israel all bearing the seal of the lamb. Beyond that he saw another crowd which no man could number, whose robes had been washed in the blood of the lamb.

Those who have been sealed by the blood don't have to worry, the seal of God will not break and if you are sealed by His power it lets the world know that you are on your way to the Canaan land.

I don't know about you but I'm preserved until I get to the place where:

—Graves never open and gates never close

—Hearts never break and dreams never fade

—Tears never fall and tempers never rise

—Hopes never diminish and Happiness never sorrows
—Friends never part, flowers never fade
—Doubts never rise, Joy never ends
He died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave.
But, He's coming back again!
We are sealed until he welcomes us into the kingdom!
Oh don't you want to be in that number!
Crying days will be over!
Joy will never end!

God's Got Your Number

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 13, 2013

SCRIPTURE: And fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul:but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell. Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? and one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father. But the very hairs of your head are all numbered. Fear ye not therefore, ye are of more value than many sparrows. Matthew 10:28-31

Introduction

Have you ever considered how we have been reduced to numbers in today's society? No sooner than anyone asks your name before the conversation ends, especially in the business world, someone wants to know your number.

Who's got your number? It is almost impossible to hide in America. You are identified by numbers that are stored in huge databases, scanned and programmed into computers and evaluated, searched and compared millions of times every day.

Why are we defined mostly by numbers rather than by our names? Often numbers are unique to us, unless stolen, whereas there could be hundreds of people who share the same name. We would like to believe that our names are unique, but with over 300 million people in the United States it's hard to find a name that is not in use now or is unique to us alone. I found it interesting that 2013 there are 72 people named Roosevelt Wright and five of them are married to a Joslyn Wright. It can get confusing when you think about the fact that there 429 people named Mildred James. There are 2,519 people named Debra Davis, but there is only one Debra Ratcliff. There are five people named LaWanda Ceasar, but since she is now a newlywed, there is only one LaWanda Kyles and her husband Osaro Kyles is the only one. There are 1,151 Brian Reed's and two with a daughter named Briannica Reed. There is utter confusion when you have a common name such as Robert Wright and have to share it with 8,148 people.

We are being identified by numbers to get more accurate identity checks. The daddy of all identity numbers is your Social Security number. There have been 420 million Social Security numbers issued since 1936, but there are over 100,000 people who have two or more numbers tied to their name, usually keyed in by mistake. That's frustrating because your Social Security number reveals where you were born, the approximate decade you were born and where you died. Two people with the same number could be a headache, especially if one is dead and the other is alive.

Beyond our Social Security number, there are numbers everywhere. There is a driver's license number, landline phone number, cell phone number, and Employer Identification number. Your car has a VIN number that can be tracked by satellite and shutdown if you don't pay your bill. It's identified by a license tag number. You pay for gas with a credit or debit card number. Your house must have a number so you can be found in case a 911 number is called. If you go to jail you will be identified by a prisoner number. Your burial plot has your number. Your insurance policy has your number.

Your birth certificate has your number and when you die your death certificate will have your number.

If you are a deadbeat dad and move, your numbers will follow you. You can run, but you can't hide. If you are a cheating wife, sooner or later one of the hundreds of numbers that track your movements from your cell phone longitude or latitude numbers to the digital hotel key will reveal your secret.

The bible has made some predictions about the times we live in. It says in Revelation 13:16-18, that, "And he causeth all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and bond, to receive a mark in their right hand, or in their foreheads:17 And that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name. Here is wisdom. Let him that hath understanding count the number of the beast: for it is the number of a man; and his number is Six hundred threescore and six.

With all of the focus on numbers today, it is refreshing to know that although there are 2013 Donald Mitchell's in the country, God knows which one is which and will never confuse the one in California with the one on Tanglewood Drive. If all 2093 Eleanor Smith's in America called on God at the same time, he would know the difference between each one. Every Shepherd knows His sheep. (Howmanyofme.com)

As Christians, we are encouraged to know that with God we are more than just a number. Our Savior knows us individually and will respond to us personally, because he's got our number.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus' instruction to the Apostles not to fear as they ministered in His name.

The great commission to each of the Apostles was to go into all of the world and to preach, teach and baptize. Jesus warned them however that he was sending them as lambs among wolves. There would be detractors and those who attack them, but they were told not to be afraid.

The greatest fear is not those who can kill the body, but those who can destroy the soul by destroying one's faith in himself and His God. So, Matthew 10:28 says, "Fear not them which kill the body, but the soul." He then gives an illustration of two sparrows that are very small in value, but God pays attention to its every detail even though men may not care whether one falls or not. Moreso, he makes the point that He is also concerned about each disciple down to the smallest detail, such as the numbers of hairs on their heads.

He encouraged the disciples to go forth with confidence that come what may, he knows their situation and will come to their aid.

Message in the numbers

Often think of Biblical passages associated with numbers such as:

GOD'S GRACE: In 2 Corinthians 12:8-9 there is a passage that points to God's grace using the number three. Paul was afflicted with an ailment and prayed three times that it be removed. We should be encouraged by this passage, "For this thing I besought the Lord thrice, that it might depart from me. And he said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee:for my strength is made perfect in weakness." Paul, one of God's greatest ambassadors was sustained by grace, but his thorn was not removed. These three prayers should remind every believer that God's response to our prayers may not be what we want or expect, but he will give us His grace, which will always be sufficient to see us through and is always better in final outcome than what we requested.

OUR STUBBORNESS: Jonah was ordered by God to preach to the people of Nineveh. Jonah hated the Ninevites and tried to go a different direction. God caused a great storm to come upon his ship and his crewmates, sensing that he was the problem, threw him overboard whereupon he was swallowed by a great fish. After three days he repented. Jonah was stubborn and refused to follow God, in many ways we do the same. His three days of darkness symbolize the self discovery we must do to come to grips with our mission in life. His resurrection after three days is also a sign of our savior's resurrection. Matthew 12:40 says, "As Jonas was in the belly of the whale for three days and three nights so shall the son of man be in the earth." Just as Christ died and arose, we who believe in Him can arise from the depths of stubborn ways and enjoy a new life.

GOD'S BLESSING: Naaman was an important leader who was afflicted with leprosy. He asked the man of God for a healing and found it when he obediently bathed in the waters of the Jordan seven times. It took faith to repeatedly go to the Jordan and bathe in muddy water, just because God said so. It took faith, but that's what Naaman displayed and he was healed. How many times have we tried and failed? Five or six? Why haven't we tried the seventh time? Or the eighth? God has blessings for believers, but they do not always come without a trial or a series of setbacks first. Believers must continue to try and try again until God moves and acts upon His own divine will.

Faith by the numbers

Finally brothers, and sisters, we must remember that the biblical record is filled with acts of faith if we will follow them by the numbers.

Biblical numerology helps us to understand how God has moved with us and through us by the numbers.

If we take a casual look at the numbers, we'll see all the ways that God has shown that he is intimately involved in the affairs of every aspect of His creation.

The number one is God's number Deuteronomy 6:4 "Hear, O Israel: The LORD our God, the LORD is one. There is "one Lord, one faith, one baptism." Our God is number one.

Two is the number of division: The son of Man had two natures: The human and the divine. The bible has two Testaments the Old and the New. There are two types of people the Sheep and the Goat. A widow woman found favor when she was down to two sticks and a cruise of oil. There were two thieves crucified on Calvary and two who walked with him on the Emmaus Road saying, "Did not our hearts burn within?"

Three is the number of divine perfection. Three stands for the trinity: the father son and Holy Ghost. There are three qualities of the universe: time, space and matter. For three days Saul was blind until he saw the light. For three days Jonah stayed in the belly of the whale. For three days Jesus lay in a borrowed tomb.

Four is the number of creation. There are four seasons and four different directions: North, south, east and west. The Holy City of Jerusalem sits four square.

Five is the number of grace. David killed Goliath with five smooth stones. Israel marched out of Egypt in ranks of five. The anointing oil in the temple consisted of five parts. Jesus fed 5,000 with five loaves and two little fishes.

Six is the number of man. The world was created in six days and the number of the beast is 666. Ezekiel saw cherubim with six wings: two wings to cover its face. Two wings to cover its feet and two wings to fly away.

Seven is the number of completion. There are seven days in the week. God rested on the 7th day. Seven colors in the spectrum. Seven deadly sins and Jesus said seven last words on the cross, and Naaman bathed seven times in muddy water.

The number eight is the number of new beginning. A new babe was named on the 8th day. Eight people on Noah's ark were given a new start. Eight covenants were made with Abraham.

When we think of nine we think of nine lepers who walked away after being healed and did not return to say thanks. There are nine gifts of the spirit: Wisdom, Knowledge, faith, healing, miraculous power, prophecy, discerning spirits, language and ability to interpret language.

There were 10 plagues on Egypt, 10 commandments and Jesus used the phrase "I am" ten times. I am the bread of life. I am the living bread. I am the light of the world. I am the one that bears witness of myself. I am the resurrection and the life. I am the way the truth and the life. I am the true vine. I am the door of the sheep I am the good shepherd.

After Judas committed suicide there were only eleven disciples until a replacement was finally named.

There were 12 tribes of Israel, and 12 apostles. We are on our way to a city that sits on 12 foundations, with 12 gates made out of 12 great pearls guarded by 12 angels.

John said he saw a vision of the last days. He saw a 144,000 coming forth out of great tribulation, with their robes washed in the blood of the lamb. Then he said he saw another number, that no man could number. Somebody said, 'I want to be in that number!"

But there is a greater number than that!

It's the day when the trumpet shall sound and the saint's will go marching in!

That's the day when the Lord himself shall return with shout and the Church, adorned like bride for her groom will meet him.

I want to be in that number!

When the saints go marching in, I want to be in that number!

Until that day I'm going to keep telling the world about one man who lived one life.

He lived 33 years.

He prayed in the wilderness for 40 days.

He preached for three years and had 12 disciples.

He was one man who was tried three times.

He was one man who was whipped with 39 stripes.

He was one man who was given one purple robe and one crown of thorns

He was one man who was crucified on one cross between two thieves

He was one man who was buried in one tomb for three days

But one Sunday morning, Jesus who was born down in Bethlehem

One Sunday morning, Jesus, who was known as Mary's baby!

One Sunday morning , Jesus, the Lily of the Valley and the Bright and Morning Star

One Sunday morning, He arose from the grave with not one or two powers, but with..

All power in His hand!

Faith in God is not Superstition

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

October 27, 2013

SCRIPTURE: But had certain questions against him of their own superstition, and of one Jesus, which was dead, whom Paul affirmed to be alive. Acts 25:19

Introduction

Are you superstitious? There are many whose lives are controlled by superstitions, even though they say they are not superstitious. Many say they are not superstitious, but if the walk through a field of cloves they look for a four leaf clover, because they believe if they find one they will have good luck.

Many say they are not superstitious, but they bite their finger if they accidentally point at a grave yard. They also get nervous if a black cat crosses their trail. They are equally upset if the break a mirror because that will mean seven years of bad luck.

We say we are not superstitious, but we cross our fingers to keep away bad luck and to help wishes come true. We blow out all of the candles of a birthday cake to make wishes come true as well.

We say we are not superstitious, but we are deathly afraid of the number 13 to the point that eighty per cent of all high rise buildings have no "13th" floor. Hospitals and hotels regularly have no room number 13. And, there is no 13th row of seats on major airlines.

We feel doomed if our street address is 666, or we make a $6.66 purchase or come to a meeting with 666 people.

Some say they are not superstitious, but they wear special necklaces, rings and garments to give the good luck and believe that walking under a ladder is a bad luck. They will literally panic if someone sweeps their feet because it means someone is going to jail.

They say they are not superstitious, but they nail horse shoes over their doors, carry a rabbit's foot on their key chains and expect something bad to happen on Friday the 13th.

There is no time when superstition is more obvious than Halloween. In the United States it is a day when children dress up as witches, ghosts, goblins and other scary characters and move from house to house in search of candy and treats. Halloween actually began thousands of years ago in England, Scotland and Ireland and neighboring countries. November 1 was the beginning of the New Year and the first day of winter.

The people believed that there was a war between the cold and darkness of winter and the warmth and brightness of summer. On October 31 the people felt the army of darkness: ghosts, goblins and witches grew so strong that they overcame the army of summer and winter began on November 1. October 31 became a frightening time. Fires and lanterns were lit to scare away wicked creatures that would be out in full force.

Hundreds of years later Christianity came to these countries and November 1 was celebrated as "All Saint's Day." This was a day to honor all deceased saints; holy people. The night before became known as Hallowed Saint's eve or Halloween for short. While the Christians celebrated the memory of Saints most other people remembered that ghosts, goblins and witches were supposed to be powerful on October 31. They continued the old tradition of lighting fires, and putting on frightening costumes that might scare away the witches, goblins and ghosts.

Today, few people even know that November 1 is all Saint's Day. The Halloween tradition however has been elevated into a day when an entire country salutes evil, monsters, death, murderers, and the grotesque.

Halloween has become a time when our superstitions really take hold and are highlighted.

Critics of our faith rank it among the superstitions of the world. However, faith in God is not a superstition. It is real. When we pray, that is not superstition. When we praise God, that is not superstition it is open act of praise for our God who has proven himself to be a real presence in our lives. We agree with the song writer who said, "My God is real, for I can feel him down in my soul."

Exposition

The Text finds Festus speaking to Agrippa about Paul who had been tried for preaching about Jesus.

Agrippa and his wife Bernice were visiting Festus who had recently conducted a trial of accusations against Paul. Festus heard the matter and referred the case to Agrippa, having found no breach of Roman law.

Roman leaders were accustomed to handling disputes with local governments that were conjured by their legions. Their usual practice was not to interfere with local customs unless those customs, disputes and troubles troubled their power or conflicted seriously with Roman law.

In Acts 25:7 the Jews are recorded as being fully aware of the requirements needed to get Paul convicted by the Roman courts. They accused him of spreading sedition and speaking about a god greater than Caesar. It was a hypocritical charge since they themselves believed in a God greater than Caesar. Mainly they said Paul's constant preaching about Christ's rising from the dead made the people anxious and would soon cause riot.

In the text and surrounding verses, Festus said he had reviewed their complaints, but found no laws actually broken. He expected a well prepared case, but instead found that he was asked to take a position in Jewish religious matters that he dismissed as superstitions.

The word translated "superstition" in the text is the word "deisidaimonesteros" (dice-ee-dahee-mon-es-ter-os) which is a compound word that means faithless religion. It refers to people who act out fear to something that is groundless to an obsession. For the Romans, Christianity was insignificant, even less so than Judaism. None of it mattered and was not considered worthy of their time.

What Paul preached about was Jesus being the son of God, being crucified and arisen from the dead.

For the Jews it was an accusation about Paul.

For Festus, it was considered a superstition.

For Paul and all believers, Jesus is not a superstition, but He is real.

Faith and Superstition

Festus believed Paul's faith in Jesus was superstition, but there is a difference between real faith and superstition:

FAITH REQUIRES A BELIEF IN GOD: A superstition does not require a person to believe in God. It does not require faith to believe that we should knock on wood if we say a statement that we don't want to turn into a prophecy. That's just following a tradition. Faith is associated with God. Hebrews 11:1 says, "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for and evidence of things not seen." Faith is developed over the years and is a combination of what we are taught and what we have experienced firsthand. A person who has prayed and received an answer to his prayer, one way or the other, learns quickly that faith is not a superstition, but it is real. A person who answers the call of God and walks into a situation blindly, is not walking by superstition, but walking on the command of God. Unlike a superstition, faith requires a belief in God. Paul was a man of faith who stood boldly to attest his loyalty to God, testifying of His Damascus Road experience. It was not superstition, but a reality.

FAITH REQUIRES SUBMISSION TO GOD: A superstition does not require submission. A person who punches holes in a dime and wears it around his ankle for luck and prosperity does not have to submit to the dime god. However, those who have faith in God also know that real faith also requires submission to God. Paul was able to talk of his submission to God after his Damascus Road experience. He was able to speak of how he yielded Himself to God's control. Believers submitted themselves to God's will. Following His command believers have walked into impossible situations, faced impossible dangers, and treaded unknown waters, armed only with the fact that God willed them to do so. The believer who uproots himself and moves to a different city at the command of God is not being superstitious, but is following the command of God, just as Abraham did in the biblical record. Paul was a man who had submitted his life to Christ; although Festus dismissed his faith as a superstition; he knew he stood boldly on the word of God.

FAITH REQUIRES TRUST IN GOD: A superstition does not require trust; it is simply a ritual. There was a ritual that has become a superstition for many. The ancients believed that evil spirits lived outside of the door of a new house. If the new person coming to live in a house touched the threshold then the evil spirits would enter as well; a groom picks up his bride and carries her across the threshold to keep her from bringing inadvertently bringing bad spirits into the new family. That's a superstition. It does not require us to trust God. Trust in God is based on experience with God, not myths. David trusted God because God had rescued Him so many times. Paul trusted God because He protected and shielded him from death constantly. We trust in God for the same reasons. It is not a superstition to trust that "God will make a way somehow!" It is not a superstition to trust that God will move mountains and prepare a table before us in the presence of our enemies. The old warriors had it right when they said, "I know the Lord will answer prayer, I tried him for myself." When you have tried God repeatedly, your faith is not a superstition, but a reality. That's why the song writer declared, "I trust in God, wherever I may be. Out on the land or on the raging sea. Though come what may, from day to day, My heavenly father watches over me!"

Conclusion

Finally, brothers and sisters, those who know the Lord can stand firmly and proclaim that God is real because they have tried Him for themselves.

There is no need for a lucky horseshoe when you know the Lord.

There is no need for need to put garlic over your doors when you know the Lord.

There is no need to be afraid of the dark or live fearful of the future when you know the Lord.

Those who know the Lord know that He is real because after they came to know Him He changed their lives.

When you know the Lord is real you begin to see things differently.

When the Lord is real to you

—SKIES seem to be bluer

—SUN seem to shine brighter

—BIRDS seem to sing sweeter

—FLOWERS seem to blossom fuller

—AIR seems more refreshing

—STARS seem to have more luster

—BURDENS seem lighter

—FAITH seems stronger

—HEAVEN seems closer

Just like Paul, every believer who knows that God is real has something to be happy about!

Because He's real, He can:
—Take our valleys and raise them to mountain tops
—Take our midnights and turn them into noon days
—Take our briny tears and turn them into mighty cheers
—Take our defeats and turn them into victories
—Take our losses and make them work for our gain
Somebody asks, "How do you know He is real?"
Don't you hear the answer?
"I know the Lord is real because I can feel Him in my hands!
I can feel Him in my feet!
I can feel Him in my heart!
I can feel Him all over me!
He's so real that he picked up an old rugged cross and carried it to Calvary!
He's so real that he died for all of my sins!
But Early Sunday morning He arose from the dead with all power in His hands!

Defining your life's Mission

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe,La

November 3, 2013

SCRIPTURE: Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. Amen. Matthew 28:19-20

Introduction

What is your mission in life? What are you all about? In the business world a company describes itself in what is known as a "Mission Statement." The mission statement is a short sentence that simply says what the company is all about. It is the same for communities, churches, families, and even individuals.

Generally, your mission statement has about eight words. It summarizes what you are about and defines what makes you tick. For example, when Microsoft was founded by Bill Gates a generation ago, the company's mission statement was "A computer on every desk in every home." That mission was stated when no one had a computer in their home, now that it is nearing fulfillment the company has changed its mission to: "Create devices and services for the world."

Just as the corporate world defines companies by their mission statements, churches also have mission statements that describe their inherent purpose which should be more than the standard corporate mission of : buying land, building buildings, and making money. The mission statement of the New Tabernacle Baptist Church is "A church community inspired to make a difference."- Eight words that explain why we are so involved in education, civic affairs, civil rights and the domestic affairs of the community.

The preamble to the constitution summarizes the national mission: "Provide for the defense, promote the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty." The pledge of Allegiance summarizes it even further, "One nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

If corporations, the nation, communities and even churches have mission statements then it would also suggest that individuals should have mission statements that define what they are about?

A person who announces a calling on his life must focus that calling to a specific purpose. A preacher must answer the question: Called to do what? Preach, pastor, teach, counsel, evangelize, missions? Your calling is your life's mission; it's what you are about. Some have a calling to teach and spend their entire lives trying to teach. Others have a calling to help the poor and needy. Still others have a calling to make their world around them better by correcting wrongs and opening doors of opportunity.

Without a personal mission in life it's difficult to understand what a person is all about. Sometimes companies have slogans or mottos that summarize their missions. When Burger King says, "Have it your way" it summarizes the company's philosophy of allowing customers to select burger ingredients. The national police motto is "To protect and to serve."

If each of us had to pick eight words or less to describe what we are about, what would they be? For some it would be "Survive from day to day." Others might say, "Reach and touch somebody's hand, the world a better place." Still others might say, "Let my light shine for those who are in darkness."

Jesus commanded His disciples to go into all of the world and teach, preach, and baptize in the name of the Father, Son and the Holy Ghost. His command is called the great commission. It defines the church's mission; what the church is about: teaching how to live by the rules of God. The ministry challenge that Christ gave the Church is a great responsibility. It defines the church's mission and the related mission of every believer.

As Christians, we minister to the masses on the behalf of our God. We do so with the greatest joy because our service helps us bring the kingdom of God into a greater realization in the lives of those who are trust and believe in Him.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as He commissions his disciples to evangelize the known world.

This text is often called the Great Commission. It occurs after the resurrection as Jesus speaks to the disciples giving them their final assignment.

This text is called the "Great Commission." It occurs after the resurrection as Jesus speaks to the disciples giving them their final assignment. He told them to get the word out about salvation and redemption to the entire world; to baptize believers and then teach them the way of life prescribed for Christians.

The commission from Christ became the personal mission of every disciple. They devoted their lives to carrying out its challenge. It defined what they were all about.

In a few short years, this commission resulted in the expansion of the faith to Asia Minor, the Cities of Greece and to nearly the entire known world of their time. It appeared to be an impossible mission, given to penniless disciples who had nothing to move on but faith and the "Logo" of God.

Focusing Personal Mission

It is important that every believer has a personal mission in life. Often that mission is reflected in the way believers spend their time. It accounts for why they volunteer at hospitals and nursing homes, raise money for cancer research, tutor struggling students, sit with sick, assist the elderly, and do what they can to help the poor, needy and distressed. Each person is driven by a sense of personal mission.

Without a mission we simply settle into a meaningless routine that carries us around in circles until we finally disappear have accomplished nothing. Yet, Christ has given us a purpose as a body and as individuals: reach, teach and expand the kingdom of God.

OUR MISSION IS TO REACH AND TEACH: There are many today who are involved in various forms of outreach for a variety of reasons. Outreach may include providing food for the hungry, assistance to battered families, housing for the homeless, assistance to wayward youth, or promotion of benevolent causes.

Outreach is essential to kingdom building. We must reach out and touch the wounded and the lost of the world in the name of Jesus.

Yet, even our outreach must come from the heart. It must be pure in its intent, not a mere photo opportunity designed to promote other goals and causes.

When we help others it must come from the heart. It must be done out of love.

OUR MISSION SHOULD EDIFY THE BODY OF CHRIST: God calls every believer to undertake a great work. He never calls us to an insignificant or unimportant work; no matter what others think. It is always a great work. Our work may be to be the strength of our families. It may be to help the poor and the needy. It may be highly visible like public service or almost invisible, like that of a private home nurse. Regardless to our work it is important.

The end result of our work is to edify or "build up" the body of Christ. If your goal is the build the world's largest chain of prostitution houses, will that build up the body of Christ? If your goal is to become a gangsta rapper known around the world for less than admirable lyrics, would that edify the body of Christ?

On the contrary, if your goal is to find a cure for cancer, that would certainly be a credit to the faith. If you goal is to heal wounded hearts or to respond to needs in your community, that would certainly be a credit to the cross.

Personal mission that please God please God, edify him and glorify him among mankind; that is the mission of every believer.

OUR MISSION MUST HAVE THREE ATTRIBUTES: After we define our mission it should have three attributes:

1. DREAMS— Don't be afraid to dream God-sized dreams. Keep alert. Be attuned to everything happening around you without getting sucked into any of it. Those who can clearly see the vision can stand on the rock of salvation and sing, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame but wholly lean on Jesus name!"

2. SCHEMES – We must have a personal plan while at the same time staying aware of the schemes of the other man. Lead a disciplined life that your dreams may come true. Keep a clear head about your life and your life projects. Let both the invitations and the insults pass you by as you stay focused on God's plan and purpose for your life. When the schemes of men frustrate we must recall the words of the song writer meant when He wrote, "I must tell Jesus, I must tell Jesus. Jesus can help me. Jesus alone."

3. LEANS — Cast your anxieties on God. Believe in God's care, trusting in God's love and lean on His everlasting arms! That's what the song writer meant when he wrote, "Leaning, Leaning, safe and secure from all alarms. Leaning, leaning, leaning on the everlasting arms.

Jesus had something to live for and someone to die for

Finally, brothers and sisters, we remind you that we serve a Lord who gave us the example; He had a mission to save the lost and to die for the remission of their sins.

It was a mission that was clear and undeniable. It was ordained in heaven and carried out on earth.

In a similar sense every believer should have a personal mission statement that summarizes why you think God put you here and the mission you feel obligated to accomplish before you leave this earth. You may not know your mission but God has certainly ordained you and equipped you with the tools for your mission before you were born.

Your mission may be to the world, like Ghandi, Churchill or Martin Luther King

Your mission may be to the nation, like Washington, Lincoln or John F. Kennedy.

Your mission may be to the church like Charles Spurgeon or Billy Graham.

Your mission may be to the race like Frederick Douglass, Sojourner Truth or Booker T. Washington.

Your mission may be to family, like grandpa or grandma who said, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

Your mission may have been to the local church like the old warriors who sang, "I'm on the battlefield for my Lord, and I promised Him that I would serve Him till I die. I'm on the battle field for my Lord.

If your mission is from God you'll find yourself singing, " If I can help somebody as I pass along ...if I can cheer somebody with a word or song then my living will not be in vain."

Down in Bethlehem a little child was born with a mission.

He came with a mission to Bring:

—Hope to the disillusioned and Salvation to the Lost.

—Life and provide it more abundantly.

—Peace on earth and goodwill toward men.

—Comfort in the midst of calamities & Strength in weakness

—Assurance in the midst of agonies & Power in the midst of problems.

—Safety in times of trouble and Shelter in the time of storm!

Down in Bethlehem a child was born, his name was Jesus!

His purpose was to give us salvation.

Just before leaving this earth He gave us a mission to "Go ye therefore and teach all nations."

Our mission is to tell the world that:

—Life might kick you down, but God will pick you up!

—Circumstances might strike you out, but God will give you a home run!

—Critics might call you are a loser, but God will make you a winner!

—When enemies think you are weak, God will make you strong!

Our mission is to tell the world that:

When put our hand in God's hand the impossible becomes possible!

When put our hand in God's hand the improbable becomes probable!

When put our hand in God's hand the unthinkable becomes thinkable!

Our mission is to tell the world about Jesus, who carried an old rugged cross to Calvary one day!

But early Sunday morning He arose from the dead!

Early Sunday morning, His defined mission was accomplished!

It's a wonderful life

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 1, 2013

SCRIPTURE: For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain. Philippians 1:21; "And ye are complete in him, which is the head of all principality and power:" Colossians 2:10

Introduction

Has anyone ever told you that you are missing something because you are a Christian? There are many friends of ours who do not share our faith and they often question how we can enjoy life without indulging and sampling all that the world has to offer. They are mystified that we choose not to drink or use drugs. They are equally puzzled that we do not frequent the popular nightspots or dabble in at least a little hanky panky. In fact, they cannot understand in the least how we find any fulfillment in not get high every once and a while.

They quickly dismiss our faith as one that is dull, unattractive and just plain boring. If we listen to them long enough they can make us feel as if we are missing something by living a life of devotion to Christ.

Is the Christian who is missing something in his/her life or is it the non-believer who has a big hole in his life that he is trying to fill with as much entertainment and distraction as possible?

Is it the Christian who is letting life pass by without tasting its forbidden fruits or is it the non-believer who has not tasted the fruit of the spirit of God?

There is a movie that airs quite frequently in the Christmas season called, "It's a Wonderful Life." The movie is about a man who is tempted to commit suicide at Christmas because he thought his life was without meaning and purpose. In the course of the story he shown what a great life he has lived helping people and bringing joy to so many. He had a wonderful life and didn't know it!

In Colossians 2:10 Paul had this same idea in mind when he told the people of Colossae that they were "complete" in Christ and were enjoying the completeness of the godly life without even knowing it. There was no need for circumcision or any other religious additives to be saved. In fact, their faith in Christ gave them the "completeness" that people of the world seek.

There are many who try to make us feel terrible because we are not absolutely perfect or don't follow their rituals. The Buddhists say we are missing our connection with our inner selves. The Muslims say we do not know the peace of Allah. The mystics say we are not in tune with our life force. They skeptics say we are so in tune with our faith that the world is passing us by.

They don't get the point, we are not miserable creatures because we believe in God and trust in Him daily, we are at peace with ourselves. We are not sad, lonely people who do not know how to have fun. In reality we are enjoying this life!

We enjoy helping people!

We enjoy clean fellowship, shopping, socializing, worship and family fun!

What makes us even happier is the knowledge that every day when we come up short, Christ puts in enough love to make us OK with God. We are "complete in him." We don't need to pray holding our hands a certain way, speak a certain kind of language, or dance a special dance. Our faith and clean, spirit led, lifestyle is enough to keep us happy.

As Christians, we are similar to the man in the movie. Like the man in the movie, we are living a wonderful, complete, life in Christ. We are enjoying being Christians. Unlike the movie character, however, we know it's a wonderful life! To God be the glory.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul's assertion that his highest life goal is to live for Christ and even to die for his cause.

Paul spent the remainder of his life, after the Damascus Road experience, lifting up the name of Christ. He endured hardships, difficulties and sacrifices all for the purpose of building the kingdom of God.

In a similar sense, every believer should strive to live as Christ lived. The glory of Christ ought to be the end of our lives, the grace of Christ should be the guiding the principle of our lives, and the word of Christ should be the ruler of our lives. Paul maintained that the whole essence of the Christian life is to achieve our purpose in him. He is the principle, rule, and end of our existence. Those who have this life purpose, like Paul, count it a great gain, even an everlasting gain to give their lives in his service or for his kingdom.

To the Colossians Paul added that the Christian life is the complete life that needs nothing added.

In Christ, the law is fulfilled. In Christ, the requirements of sacrifice are fulfilled.

In Christ, hope is generated and salvation is guaranteed. Living the Christian life, Paul asserts, is the ultimate end in itself. It is a life that is beyond compare. It is a life that will be rewarded richly with favor on earth and eternal life in heaven.

Three aspects of the good life

There are many reasons why Christians can say we are living a wonderful life. Combined, these reasons describe why millions of believers testify that they are happy, complete and satisfied with their lives in Christ.

OUR LIVES ATTRACT GODLY FAVOR: One of the distinguishing characteristics of the wonderful life is that it is favored by God. To be favored is to be the beneficiary of God's goodness beyond what is expected or deserved. Yet, favor is a distinguishing quality of the wonderful life. To grow in favor with God means to live in such a way that God chooses us to be the main instruments of his will. Associated with that selection, comes all the things necessary for us to achieve our purpose. For example, Mary was a woman who found favor with God. She was humbled by the selection, because of that favor she found that she was protected, directed, and provided for through His grace.

WE SEE THINGS DIFFERENTLY: We live the wonderful life because God's spirit allows to see life differently than others. We are able to do this because our old spirit-man died and we are enjoying a new life in Christ.

In the Movie "Precious" Monique played an abusive mother with a spirit of ungratefulness. Precious prepared her a full plate of soul food after laboring in the kitchen. The mother's response was to be angry because there were no collard greens and refused to eat it. She had a great meal, but didn't even know it!

Without a godly spirit we won't be able to appreciate the blessings we have. Soon we will feel terrible because of what we do not have. Our cold stony hearts will want more and blame God for not blessing us with the collard greens, too. Ezekiel 36:26-27 says, "A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you: and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh. And I will put my spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep my judgments, and do them."

WE LIVE DIFFERENTLY: We live a wonderful life because we strive to live according to God's law. We choose to stay within the lines of God's moral law. We have a stressful life outside of God's no matter how appealing it make look to others. Two people who live together without being married profess love, but shacking is outside of God's moral order. The person who furnishes a beautiful home with stolen merchandise paints a lovely picture to the world, but receiving stolen goods is outside of God's moral order. Selling food stamps crosses the line! Selling your children's social security number for cash is outside of the line; dealing drugs, shoplifting and buying bootleg DVD's on the street corner is outside of the line. We live differently because we ascribe to James 4:7 that directs us to "Resist the devil" and he will flee from you. David concluded that the person who orders his life according to the will of God lives a blessed life that is pleasing to the almighty.

WE LIVE WITH OVERWHELMING EXCITEMENT: The believer lives with an overwhelming sense of excitement because he/she knows that God showers new mercies on them each day. Morning by morning we see new mercies that God has showered on us. We share the excitement of the woman at the woman was given another chance and she was excited. She was so excited that she ran through the city telling all that she met, "Come see a man who told me all that I have ever done." We share the excitement of the lame man who jumped for joy when he was healed. He was excited about the goodness of the Lord. In a similar sense, believers who have received more than they expected or requested from get a level of excitement while just thinking about the goodness of the Lord

When the Lord blesses us financially in a way that we did not expect, it's shouting time!

When a wayward child starts showing signs of hope, it's shouting time!

When a lost family member finds the Lord, it's shouting time.

That's when we know we are living a wonderful life!

Our Wonderful life is powered by God's Spirit

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that no life can be wonderful to a believer unless it is powered by the spirit of God.

As people by products for Christmas many will notice three words on many electronic products: Batteries not included. Three more words also get our attention: Some Assembly Requires.

Once assembled with the batteries in place model airplanes, remote control cars and other can operate, but not without being assembled correctly and properly powered.

Usually the batteries required are AA cells, AAA cells, D cells and 9-volt batteries. Without the battery the pretty toys we buy are just expensive pieces of plastic and wood. No matter how well they are assembled many products need power to operate. But there are many toys on the market that operate well, but the batteries are not included.

The main reason that the believer lives a wonderful life is because it has been assembled with the help of the Holy Ghost. Our old lives did not work and God himself had to break us down and reassemble out thinking, walking, talking, goals and aspirations.

Not only did he reassemble our lives, but He has given us power also. This wonderful life we live is operated by a spiritual solar cell that is powered by the Son. The son who gives our power never goes down. David in Psalms 121:4-6 Behold, he that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep. The LORD is thy keeper: the LORD is thy shade upon thy right hand. The sun shall not smite thee by day, nor the moon by night. If the Holy Ghost has helped you to assemble a Godly life, God will give you the power.

Acts 1:8 says, "But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you." You can assemble the pieces, but it's the Holy Ghost who gives the power.
