The lonely are waiting for comfort. Jesus said, "And lo, I'll be with you always, even unto the end of the earth."

I don't know about you, but I've decided to wait on the Lord!

Wait on the Lord, and mountains will be made low!

Wait on the Lord, and valleys shall be exalted!

Wait on the Lord, and crooked places shall be made straight!

Wait on the Lord, and rough places shall be made plain!

Hold to his hand, hold to God's unchanging hand!

While you are waiting, keep your faith turned up high and hold to his hand!

While you are waiting, keep watching and praying!

While you are waiting, keep telling the story!

Tell everybody about the goodness of the Lord!

Tell them how he woke me up this morning and clothed me in my right mind!

Tell them how he walks with me and talks with me!

Tell them how he died out on Calvary! But don't stop there..tell them how Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with all power in his hands.

Wait on the Lord ...and everything will be alright!

Run and Not Get Weary

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

September 30, 2007

SCRIPTURE:"But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint." (Isaiah 40:31)

Introduction

Have you ever been weary? No matter how strong we are there are times when we get weary. What is weariness? Weariness is the day you come home from working hard all day, only to find that your family is expecting you to work all night. Weariness is the day you leave your job and find yourself bringing your work home with you because it never seems to end.

Weariness is having your hands full with two children, then learn that there is another one on the way.

Weariness is dealing with your own troubles, those of your spouse and children, then have your best friends to call and share their troubles as well.

Weariness is when we look at our stack of unpaid bills as it gets higher but our income remains the same although we work harder every day.

Weariness is trying to share in a relationship only to feel that despite your best efforts nothing has changed for the better.

We are weary when we start to feel so run down and run over by life's events that we want to run out. That's weary.

Weariness is what we feel when we run the race of life for a lap or two. Those who run track condition themselves to endure the strain of a long race. The smart runners learn to pace themselves, and save themselves for the final sprint. Their know that their conditioning helps them overcome the fatigue and weariness of the marathon; when their legs will feel like concrete blocks and bolts of pain will shoot through their thighs. Only their conditioning and pace allows them to continue at a steady pace, without slowing and faltering.

The story is told of the physically challenged boy who entered the Special Olympics to run a 1/4 mile jog around the track. It was a challenge for young man whose braces made his legs heavy and his handicap slow his pace. As he walked three fourths of the way, he could not seem to put one foot in front of the other. He did not have the strength and almost fell. His father, sensing that if he fell he would lose all hope, ran onto the track and held his son's hand. Holding his father's hand the boy pushed himself to make every calculated step until he crossed the finish line. The boy was excited he looked up at his father and said, “Can I go again?” The father said, “I thought you were tired?” The boy said, “I may be tired but I can do it as long as you hold my hand!”

Maybe that’s what the Canton Spirituals meant when they wrote the lyrics to the popular song that says, “Lord, hold my hand, while run this. I don’t want to run this race in vain. Guide my feet, Lord, while I run this race. I don’t want to run this race in vain.”

That’s the secret to running life’s race without being weary. We should run it holding to God’s hand and never lose our grip.

A popular song puts it this way:

“Time is filled with swift transition-Naught of earth unmoved can stand-

Build your hopes on things eternal, Hold to God’s unchanging hand.

Trust in Him who will not leave you, whatsoever years may bring, if by earthly friends forsaken, still more closely to Him cling. Hold to God’s unchanging hand! Hold to God’s unchanging hand!

Build your hopes on things eternal, Hold to God’s unchanging hand.”

As believers, we are running the race of life. It is race that we cannot win unless we hold to God’s unchanging hand.

Exposition

This text focuses on the prophet Isaiah as he tells the people of Judah that God would bring them strength for their journey.

For 40 years, the people of Israel were shifted from one world power to another. They waited impatiently for the time when they would return home, but everything seemed so slow. The prophets came telling them that God would prepare a way for them but the long highway home that God promised, seemed so far and so improbable. The prophets repeatedly told them that God would give them a divine pardon, comfort them in every major problem area, and promised the restoration of Zion and its Temple.

While the people believed God for their liberation, they were fatigued and tired from their long wait. This text encouraged them to remember that would keep them from being overcome by weariness. He would keep his promise; it seemed like a slow pace, but he would move at his time and place

Rest for the Weary

When frustrations begin to pile up on us, it seems that there is no rest for the weary. But there is a way for us to catch our wind while we make our Sprint. The secret is to watch those who run great distances. Unlike the sprinter who needs speed to win his race, the distance runner needs endurance. The great marathons such as the grueling 26 mile Boston marathon or the marathon of cycling, the Tour de France, all require endurance. Those who are champions of these events have uncanny endurance that separates them from the pact.

CONDITION OURSELVES: Every person who runs a long race conditions himself by running short races that get progressively longer. A person who has not run for years does not hit the track and attempt to run a mile. He feels good about the first hundred yards, then he loses his wind, his pace slows and he breathes hard and sweats profusely. It may have been easier if he had walked first, jog later and after some time tried his run. To run this race we need to be in condition. We condition ourselves for life by engaging in small walks with ease then gradually taking on more. God often trains us. He puts loads on us to bear. When we bear them successfully then he gives us heavier ones. Pretty soon we know that we are in such condition that no matter what life brings we can run the race and not be weary.

RUNNERS TRAVEL LIGHT: Watch runners in marathons. They wear light clothing that will not slow them down or get in the way. A person running a marathon would not come wearing a back pack filled with books, trinkets and toys. The weight would slow him down so badly that he would have no chance of victory. Is that not the problem that many people bring to their life's race? Too many are trying to run their race, but they are carrying too much baggage! Past relationship worries are baggage! Baby Daddy-Baby Mama issues are baggage! The demons of our past that haunt us are baggage! If we are to run this race without getting weary we must lighten our loads! Jesus said, ""Come unto Me all you who are weary and burdened and I will give you rest. Take My yoke upon you and learn from Me, for I am gentle and humble in heart, and you will find rest for your souls. For My yoke is easy and My burden is light." (Matthew 11:28-30) That means we can give him our baggage then run our race. The way it should be run.

PUT ON YOUR RUNNING SHOES: We must not try to run your race wearing the wrong shoes. Those who run the distance wear shoes made for distance runners. These shoes have plenty of support because of the continuous pounding the feet receive. They also have a few spike points to grip but not enough to delay speed. Too many people in life are trying to run their race in the wrong shoes. Some are trying to run wearing Slippers and Slides because they want to slip and slide their way through life. Some wear sneakers because they just want to sneak by. Others wear high heels because they want to look good even if they can't run far. What about the person who wears combat boots and tries to stomp his way through life? All of these shoes won't support us when we are running. We may have to take off our shoes, just as God told Moses, "Take off your shoes for ground upon which you stand is holy Ground." When we plan to run on holy ground we must have feet shod with the Gospel of peace.

CONSTANTLY LOOKS AHEAD: The great trainers tell us that distance runners rarely look back. They are not concerned with position. They remain focused on the future. When you look back it slows you down. Consider the man who sat at the bar drinking one whiskey after another and looking back at the calendar. Soon it became obvious to the bar tender that he was about to hurt himself. The bar tender asked, "What's the matter? Are you having troubles with your wife again?" The man nodded his head and began to cry. He looked back at the calendar again. The bartender said, "I don't usually get in the business of my customers but your wife should be ashamed of the way she belittles you, talks about you and hits on you in front of other men." The man heard that and looked back over his shoulder again and started crying. "What happened this time?" the bartender asked. "My wife told me she was leaving me for 30 days" the man said as he looked at the calendar again. He cried like a baby. "Well you should be glad" said the bartender, "As mean as your wife is to you, you should praise God for a joyful month of peace. Don't be sad, be joyful!" At that, the man started to cry even more. "What are you crying about?" The man answered, "My wife left me for a month...and today is the last day!" Every time he looked back at the calendar he got weary.

RUNNERS PACE THEMSELVES: Those who run distance races know that their race is different from that of a sprinter who gives his race everything he has in one mad dash for the finish line. The distance runner who tries to sprint through a marathon won't last long. Life is a marathon. It requires stamina, strength, endurance, discipline to live it well. Discipline is the ability to set an even sustainable pace then stick to it. No matter how many people pass you by. No matter how the crowd may urge you to break your stride. No matter how energetic you feel at the moment.. the person who paces himself will endure to the end without becoming weary. There are many who approach life as a sprinter, but sprinters can make the distance run for speed is not a quality needed, but endurance is. God promises believers the ability to run and not be weary..that's endurance.

God won't let go

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that as we run this race, and Jesus runs with us, he will see us through.

It is still possible to get weary, even though we are in condition, run light, wear the right shoes and run at a steady pace. We are able to make it day by day because the moment we get too tired to make another step, the power of God seems to give us our second wind.

Your second wind is that surge of energy and strength you get even when you thought you have given all.

Your second wind is what happened when life kicked you down and somehow you struggled to your feet again.

Your second wind is what happened when you failed in school and went back to try it one more time.

Your second wind is when you failed in an attempt and decided not to accept failure but to give it your best shot.

Your second wind is when you business venture collapsed and decided to start it all over again.

Your second wind is when the floods of life washed your past but you decided not to let it stop you from building a future.

Your second wind is when your children disappointed you so much that you could not see any future, then you decided to try one more time, urged on by the power of God.

If you are feeling weary hold on, your second wind is coming.
Jeremiah 31:25 says, “I will refresh the weary and satisfy the faint.”

Hold on, your second wind is coming!

Isaiah 41:10 says, “Do not fear, for I am with you; do not be dismayed, for I am your God. I will strengthen you and help you; I will uphold you with my righteous right hand.”

Hold on, because God says ye shall run and not be weary!

Hold on to God’s hand.

If we hold to God’s hand he will guides us.

He will slow us down if we run to face, he will speed us up if we run to slow; and if we get too high he will bring us down.

When life gets difficult and tiresome, hold to God’s hand.

When God is holding our hands, even if we stumble a little, he still holds on!

Hold my hand Lord, while I try to take care of my family, I don’t want to run this race alone!

Hold my hand Lord, while I try to deal with the raging storms in my life, I don’t want to run this race alone!

Hold my hand Lord, while I try to make sense of the madness that surrounds me, I don’t want to run this race alone

Lord, take my hand, when I can’t see my way!

Lord, take my hand, when I can’t turn to the right or the left!

Lord, take my hand, when I’m confused and don’t know what to do!

Lord, take my hand, when I’m weak and give me strength!

Lord, take my hand, when I have fallen and help me up again!

When you find yourself running out of hope, call on the name of Jesus!

Jesus, a strong hand that will not let you down!

Jesus, a mother to the motherless!

Jesus, a shelter in a time of storm!

Call on Jesus, who reaches out to us with nail scarred hands!

Call on Jesus, who died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning arose from the grave!

Call on Jesus and he’ll give you your second wind!

Walk and Not Faint

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint. (Isaiah 40:31)

Introduction

Have you ever seen those who begin with a blaze but at some point along the way, they throw up their hands and quit? They run out of steam, energy and passion to continue. It's what the bible calls a condition of being "faint."

To be faint is to lose your energy, vigor, inspiration and fire. To be faint is to become weary, frustrated and fatigued. It's when you just don't have it anymore.

The difference between the winners and losers in life is not decided by who can run fastest, or who is the swiftest in the crowd. It is often decided by those who can endure to the end without falling along the way.

This principle applies to marriages, relationships, business endeavors, educational pursuits, political campaigns and any other pursuit in life. Victory is not always guaranteed to the one who can begin with blaze like the grasshopper, but the one who can slowly and methodically pursue a course like the ant.

It takes speed to run in a flash when the starting pistol is fired; but it takes strength for the long pull.

That kind of strength only comes from God.

As Christians, we know what it means to rely on the strength of God. Those who are inspired by the passion and energy of the savior continue to do so, even as the years go by because God's power gives them strength to continue forward, despite the frustration of peril or monotony; to continue forward and not faint.

Exposition

This text focuses on the prophet Isaiah as he tells the people of Judah that God strengthen them if they became weary as he promised them that they would not faint.

For 40 years, the people of Israel were shifted from one world power to another. They waited impatiently for the time when they would return home, but everything seemed so slow. The prophets came telling them that God would prepare a way for them but the long highway home that God promised, seemed so far and so improbable. The prophets repeatedly told them that God would give them a divine pardon, comfort them in every major problem area, and promised the restoration of Zion and its Temple.

While the people believed God for their liberation, they were fatigued and tired from their long wait. This text encouraged them to remember that would keep them from being overcome by weariness. He would keep his promise; it seemed like a slow pace, but he would move at his time and place

Man Walks Piece-A-Way, God walks all the way

Many years ago when friends came to visit, they did not drive cars, call on the phone or send text messages; they walked to your home. After a friendly visit, especially as the sun began to set, the visitor would prepare to return home. It was customary for the host to share a portion of the return journey with the guest. It was called walking "Piece-a-way." Those who walk piece a way have good intentions, but they don't intend to walk the entire journey, just so far. The visitor has to walk the rest of the journey alone, often along dark dusty, dangerous roads.

In life, we soon learn that though our acquaintances are many, only a few are willing to go "piece-a-way" with us in times of trouble and even fewer are willing to stand with us all the way. That's why we appreciate all that others do for us but we still put our trust in God.

There are times when even our parents forsake us and leave us alone. Those are the lonely times that we can only call on God. Psalm 27:9-10 says, "Hide not thy face far from me; put not thy servant away in anger: thou hast been my help; leave me not, neither forsake me, O God of my salvation. When my father and my mother forsake me, then the LORD will take me up." The song writer says, "What a friend we have in Jesus." It is a testament to the fact that when all others fail God will be with us and strengthen us. When God walks with us, he does not walk "Piece-A-Way" he walks all the way. In Matthew 28 he said "Lo, I'll be with you always, even until the end of the earth."

Dangers of Walking with strangers

We are very hesitant to walk or ride with strangers; and rightfully so. We have been warned all of our lives not to walk, talk or ride with strangers. That makes good sense, but we can't begin our walk with the child's understanding of strangers. A little girl was told by her mother, never get in the car with strangers. The girl understood the instruction clearly. One day an unfamiliar man drove up to her and offered her a ride home. He smiled and offered her a lollipop. Remembering her mother's instruction the girl said, "My mother says I'm not supposed to ride with strangers, are you a stranger?" The man said no and she took a ride with him and was never seen again. She understood that she was not to ride with strangers, but she didn't know what a stranger was.

In the same sense many today are on guard to stay away from evil, but often we are not sure what evil looks like. It never comes to us wearing a sign that reads "evil." It usually appears innocent. The child predator on the internet presents himself as a friend, not an evil person. The co-worker who encourages illegal activity, does so smiling and laughing. The music that talks about drugs, murder and sex, has a good beat and exciting, it's not really evil. Psalms 1 reminds believers that there is a blessing for those who do not walk in the counsel of ungodly people. The ungodly are strangers to the godly walk. Their direction is not the godly direction. Those who want with God are in no danger because he is no stranger.

Are you tempted to follow the lifestyles of those who are strangers to Christ. Then consider the epitaph that was written on the tombstone in a British cemetery:

Pause my friend, as you walk by
As you are now, so once was I
As I am now so you will be Prepare my friend, to follow me.
A visitor added,
To follow you is not my intent
Until I know which way you went!

WALK ON GOD'S SIDE OF THE ROAD

Those who hike a walk along roadside know that there is an important rule: Those who walk must always walk facing the traffic. In America, that's usually the left side of the road. In Europe, it's the right side. We walk facing the traffic so that we can see and be seen by what may be coming up the road and avoid dangers. It's a safety precaution.

Believers who are walking the road of life must be careful to walk on God's side of the road. When we walk on the side of the road where God is he helps us see what is coming up the road. 1 Corinthians 12:10 calls that this ability to see what can't be seen as "discerning spirits." That comes from walking on God's side of the road.

There are some things we can see, but there are times when there is something coming on the other side of the hill that only God can see and he pushes us aside just in time to avoid a catastrophe. Our responsibility as believers is to walk with God. Genesis 5:22 notes that Enoch walked with God. If we walk with God he will walk with us and direct us. We walk with God by spending time in the Word of God; A consistent prayer life; A time of frequent praise; and regular witnessing, and living holy lives. When we walk with God we enjoy the song that says,

And He walks with me, and He talks with me;
And He tells me I am His Own,
And the joy we share as we tarry there,
None other has ever known.

WALK AT THE SAME SPEED GOD WALKS

Occasionally, we walk with someone who does not walk at our speed. They are either too fast for us or not fast enough. Either way it irritates us. God walks with each us of at the speed necessary for our stage of life. He does not walk with everyone at the same speed, but everyone who wants to walk with him must walk at his speed, because he sets our pace. God knows us better than we know ourselves, he sets the pace for our life walk. Many of us are moving fast in life, but it's possible that we may be moving faster than God wants us to move. There are others who are moving slowly and cautiously, but it may be too slow for the pace that God has set for us. It's important that we move at the pace God has set for us. That means we should not walk faster than God is walking. Don't linger behind either.

The speed isn't important, only that you are traveling the speed that God wants us to. The assignment for some will require a faster pace than others, because He will expect more from some than others. Don't walk faster than God is walking. Normally God's pace is much slower than ours. We are always wanting God to hurry up, but you can't hurry God.

We can tell when we are dropping behind in our walk. That's when we miss a Sunday or two at worship, bible study and personal devotion. We have to keep up with God to walk with him. At the same time there are those who try to get ahead of God. You see them: They claim blessings in advance "in the name of Jesus" even if what they claim is not God's will. We should wait to discern God's will for us in life before we get ahead of him.

YOU CAN'T WALK WITH GOD AND HOLD HANDS WITH THE DEVIL

Many want to walk with God but their lifestyles embrace the devil. They have not kissed him yet; they are just holding hands. There are many who remember walking their dates home from special occasions. Today that walk may be short, from the car to a front door but those who are holding hands walking up the sidewalk have plans for the front porch.

There are many believers who think they can successfully walk with God and hold hands with the devil at the same time. They haven't kissed him, yet but each time they get closer and closer to drinking that alcohol, smoking that cigarette, going to that club, using drugs, watching that pornographic movie and doing the forbidden.

Samson tried to walk with God and hold hands with Delilah and it cost him his life. David tried to walk with God while running around with another man's wife and he lost the joy of his salvation.

If we are going to walk with God we must not embrace evil influences at the same time. In Exodus 20:5 God says, "I the Lord thy God am a jealous God." All of those who want to walk with God should follow Joshua's example and resolve, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

God will Not Allow Us to Faint

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that when we walk with God, he will not allow us to fall faint.

There is a promise for believers between verse 29 and 31. The word "faith" meaning, fatigue, exhaustion, and weariness is used three time.

In verse 29 he promises power and strength to them that are faint and have no strength. It is a promise that is reserved for believers, those who wait with him and walk with. They are drained and weary and he with strengthen them. Those who are very weak, he will give strength.

In verse 30 he gives everyone a reality check: even the youth shall be faint and weary. It lets us know that there will be times when even the young will throw up their hands and feel like giving up, but we must wait on the Lord.

Then, in verse 31 he makes us a final promise, if we walk with him he will not fall faint. He will hold us up with power of his might, if we will just wait on him.

That's how great grandma did it. In the heat of the day in cotton fields of Louisiana, Georgia and South Carolina, she decided, I'll wait on the Lord.

That's how great grandpa did it. In the exhausting heat of the Mississippi delta and the exasperating tensions of the killing fields of Alabama, he decided, I'll wait on the Lord!

We know that's what they were doing because we heard the old warriors sing:

Walk together children
Don' you get weary
Walk together children
Don't you get weary
Oh, talk together children
Don't you get weary
There's a great camp meeting in the Promised Land

If we walk with the Lord, he will give us strength for the journey.

If we walk with the Lord, we may meet sorrow, but God will take sorrow and turn it into joy!

If we walk with the Lord, we may meet weakness, but God will take weakness and turn it into strength!

If we walk with the Lord, we may meet defeat, but God will take defeat and turn it into victory!

If we walk with the Lord, we may meet confusion, but God will take confusion and turn it into understanding!

If we walk with the Lord, we may meet hard times, but God will take hard times and turn them into good times!

If we walk with the Lord, he'll lift us up when we stumble!

If you walk with the Lord, he'll carry you when we can't make another step!

No wonder the song writer declared, "Walk with me Lord, walk with me! While I'm on this tedious journey, Lord I want Jesus to walk with me!"

If we keep traveling in the right direction, it's going take us to where we want to go!

I don't know about you, but I have decided to keep my hand in God's hands!

I've got to tell somebody about Jesus!

I've got to tell them how he gave me brand new walk and a brand new talk!

I've got to tell somebody how he died out on Calvary!

I've got to tell somebody how he arose early Sunday morning!

His name is Jesus!

He walks with me and talks me!

If he walks with me..I shall not faint!

When The Family Struggles

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 3, 2007

SCRIPTURE: "And the children struggled together within her; and she said, If it be so, why am I thus? And she went to inquire of the LORD." Genesis 25:22

Introduction

Has there ever been a time when your family was not at peace? Most families have experienced a few times when there was dissension in the family. Families generally consist of collections of individual personalities, goals, and ambitions. On occasion those personalities, ambitions and goals collide, especially if they are not the same. They also collide when personalities of equal vigor meet. It is not unusual for any family to experience internal struggle; it is expected, however, that Christian families resolve struggles in light of God's word.

There are many families today that are divided and broken because of bad feelings that have divided them over the years. Angry families hold grudges for years and treat blood relatives like outcasts and worse than strangers. It's all a part of what is known as the "family feud."

On television, family feuds appear to be simple games where everyone leaves smiling. A host introduces two families that are all smiling and cheering, hugging and kissing each other as they play against another friendly family for prizes and awards. In real life, family feuds are no fun. Sometimes they continue from generation to generation. Take, for example, the notorious Hatfield-McCoy feud.

It hit newspaper front pages in the 1880's, when the Hatfield clan feuded with the McCoy clan from across the border in Kentucky. Historians disagree on the cause of the feud — which captured the imagination of the nation during a 10-year run. As many as 100 men, women and children died. In May 1976, Jim McCoy and Willis Hatfield — the last two participated in a ceremony dedicating a monument to six of the victims. McCoy died Feb. 11, 1984, at age 99. He bore no grudges — and had his burial handled by the Hatfield Funeral Home in Toler, KY.

There was great disagreement even among the Disciples of Christ as to which of them would get special places of honor in the kingdom. As James and John sought special favors from Christ the seeds of a bitter rivalry were sown but were quickly dispelled by the master. His message to them and to us today is that God loves us all, and gives favor to whomever he pleases in whatever way he pleases.

As Christians, we have learned to love our brothers and sisters, and family members. We celebrate their accomplishments, mourn their failures and give God the praise and the glory.

Exposition

This text focuses on a family struggle that began in the mother's womb and continued for many years thereafter.

Rebekah is a snapshot of many mothers in many ways. She was young and beautiful, devout, faithful to her husband, industrious and protective of her children. She was the sister of Laban, married to Isaac. She is first presented in Genesis 24:1 where the beautiful story of her marriage is related. (B.C. 1857.) For nineteen years she was childless: then Esau and Jacob were born, the younger being the mother's companion and favorite. (Genesis 25:19-28)

She demonstrated great faith when she never gave up hope that she would bear children even after 19 years of failed efforts. But if she was a woman of great faith, when it came to one of her children she proved herself capable of devious means to assist him in gaining a foothold in life. It was Rebekah who suggested the deceit that was practiced by Jacob on his blind father. She directed and aided him in carrying it out, foresaw the probable consequence of Esau's anger, and prevented it by moving Isaac to send Jacob away to Padan-aram, (Genesis 27:1) to her own kindred.

While carrying Jacob and Esau, Rebekah was troubled by an unusual movement in her womb. She had no idea what the movements meant and they could not be explained by the midwives and women who assisted her. Her husband, Isaac, asked God to bless his wife with a child (v21) and the Lord answered by allowing her to conceive, not one child but two.

The unusual movement prompted Rebekah to question whether or not her pregnancy was a blessing or a curse. "If it be so, why am I thus?" If this pregnancy is a blessing from God, what explains the complicated struggle going on inside her? She could feel the intensity of the movement. She sensed an atmosphere of battle. If her condition was of God, blessed and sanctioned by him, she wondered, "Why am I thus?"

For an answer she asked God and he answered and gave her peace. She was told that she was carrying twins, both of whom would be the fathers of great nations that would struggle and compete with each other over generations. "Two nations are in thy womb and two manner of people shall be separated from thy bowels: and the one people shall be stronger than the other and the elder shall serve the younger." (v23)

From the onset, Rebekah felt the life struggle of her children. It was abnormal and unusual. She wondered how she could be the recipient of a blessing from God if such abnormal activity was a part of her being. No one else could feel what she felt. When Rebekah talked to God, she received an answer that helped her understand the children she would bear and her role in the process.

How Families Divide

A close look at the passage that surrounds this text paints a clear picture of how this family began its struggle. In many instances, it bears a close resemblance to the development of struggles in our own families.

HUSBAND PRAYING FOR HIS WIFE: (Gen. 25:20-21): When Isaac was 40 years old he married Rebekah (v 21). He had lived with her 19 years without any children. Concerned about their lack of children he "entreated" the Lord for his wife (v 22). Entreated is a Hebrew word lenochach ishto which means he went to God directly, purposely, especially, for his wife. The Lord answered the prayer and she became pregnant. Verse 22 shows us a man praying to God about a situation that stressed his marriage and God answering. Even today, when there are situations that stress marriages, we should pray and seek God's direction. Just as he answered Isaac, he will answer us as well.

STRUGGLING CHILDREN: The babies struggled in the womb (v 22). The word used for struggle is yithrotsatsu, meaning that they dashed against or bruised each other, there was a violent agitation, so that the mother was apprehensive both of her own and her children's safety. Rebekeh sensed that something different was happening. Parents who are observant should be able to notice the differences in their children. They are not the same as each seeks his/her own identity. Good parents should follow the example of Rebekah and consult God for answers.

DIFFERENT DESTINIES: Rebekah sought an explanation for the dilemma in her womb (v23). She learned that the children she bore had different and unique destinies. They were destined to father two great nations. Biblical scholars agree that what was predicted concerning Esau and Jacob was not verified in themselves, but in their posterity. The Edomites were the offspring of Esau, the Israelites were of Jacob. The same is true today. Every child in a family has a unique destiny of his/her own. Often parents try to shape that destiny by forcing their children to become doctors, lawyers or some professional with a high earning potential, only to find that their children have dreams of their own. When they are forced to go against their own dreams, struggles result.

NAMING THE CHILDREN: At birth, twins were born (v24). The word for twins is thomim, from which comes Thomas, properly interpreted by the Greek word, Didymus, which signifies a twin; so the first person who was called Thomas or Didymus, we may take for granted, had this name from the circumstance of his being a twin. The children were named Jacob and Esau. The giving of names in the ancient world was a significant act. A name was believed to affect a person's destiny; so the person giving the name was exercising some degree of control over the person's future. One of the twins was named Esau. The name means to make firm or hard, and also to come to man's estate, to grow old. Probably he had this name from his appearing to be more perfect, robust, etc., than his brother. The other was named Jacob (v26) which means to defraud, deceive, to supplant, i.e., to overthrow a person by tripping up his heels. The name also describes a person who dogs another's steps or betrays. Hence this name was given to Jacob, because it was found he had laid hold on his brother's heel, which was emblematical of his supplanting Esau, and defrauding him of his birthright. When we name our children, the names should have some significance. Today, among African-Americans it appears that names have no significance, usually they are cute and unique, long and oddly spelled but they have no meaning. When children ask why they were given their names parents should be prepared to tell them what their name represents.

DIVIDED LOVE: The two boys were different. Esau was a "man of the field" a phrase which meant he supported himself and family by hunting and by agriculture. Jacob is described as a "plain man" or a perfect or upright man; dwelling in tents—subsisting by breeding and tending cattle, which was considered in those early times the most perfect employment. Both were successes at in their areas but instead of their parents loving them both equally verse 28 notes that Isaac love Esau and Rebekah loved Jacob. A consequence of this divided love the peace and unity of the household was divided. It is the same today whenever a man or a woman shows makes a difference in children a struggle ensues. All parents should double their efforts to love all of their children with the same intensity and passion to avoid developing struggles in the family.

SQUANDERING INHEIRITANCE: The text shows that Esau traded his inheritance rights for a bowl of porridge. The birthright concerned only the material inheritance from the parents. The inheritance was divided into the number of sons plus one. The eldest son then received a double share. This was a customary practice throughout the ancient Near East. What Esau traded was his right to receive a double portion of the inheritance, not his entire inheritance. He still kept his 1) Authority and superiority over the rest of the family. 2)Reception of the father's blessing 3)Position as next in honor to his parents. Today, many struggles exist among family members over the division of inheritances. Many stop speaking to each other for years because of disputes over the division of properties left behind by parents. Additionally, many family members struggle with each other as to the order of influence in the family after the death of the Patriarch or Matriarch. By custom, in the Black community, it is always the oldest sibling who leads, but the oldest is not always the wisest and struggles ensue. Children should be careful about the dispensation of their inheritances especially since they often represent the life work of their parents.

No Struggles in God's Family

Finally, brothers and sisters we must learn from this text that there should be no struggles in the family of God.

Sibling rivalry exists because children want to outdo each other for a special favor. When it comes to our spiritual relationship many of us feel that we must compete for blessings from God.

James and John, two of Christ's disciples, lobbied for good positions in the kingdom of heaven, above their comrades. Their request caused dissention in the group, but was denied by Christ who reminded them that all blessings are given by God for his own reasons.

Likewise, today there are many adults who are still trying to get themselves high praise from God by out-doing someone else. To sponsor a bigger program, chair a more important committee, or otherwise co-ordinate some great work for the kingdom, is seen as the key to divine endorsement and favor.

God gives us the perfect model. He does not bestow grace upon us because we have out done someone else, but because he loves us. There is nothing we have to do to earn it. We don't have to be the head of anything, over anything or at the front of anything; he will do for us simply because he loves us.

In the same sense, every parent should create an atmosphere in the home where competition between siblings is unnecessary. It should be an atmosphere that accepts the value, worth and contribution of each family member that is both recognized and appreciated on its own merits. We should try, as best we can, to love as God loves, with unmerited grace.

In closing, I'm reminded of the little girl and her brother who had argued all day long about first one thing then another. They never seemed to get along. She screamed at him "I wish you were dead!" and he ran out into the cold. Lost and alone, her brother shivered in the cold. As time passed and it became obvious that something was wrong, the little girl went into the blizzard, calling out his name as she went. When she finally found him, curled in a small ball, covered by snow and shivering, she somehow reached down and put him on her back and walked against the wind to get him back home. She staggered under his weight, but step by step she continued. She made it to the house of the village doctor still holding him on her back. The doctor rushed to help her and said, "I know he must be heavy." The little girl replied "He ain't heavy, he's my brother."

This is the kind of love Jesus showed for us when he bore an old rugged cross up Calvary.

With a bloodstained brow and whip marks on his back he carried the cross to make it plain what real love was about "that he would lay down his life for a friend.

" He died and he rose again to demonstrate to us the love of God.

Why the Church Celebrates

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church

SCRIPTURE: And Nehemiah, which is the Tirshatha, and Ezra the priest the scribe, and the Levites that taught the people, said unto all the people, This day is holy unto the LORD your God; mourn not, nor weep. For all the people wept, when they heard the words of the law. 10 Then he said unto them, Go your way, eat the fat, and drink the sweet, and send portions unto them for whom nothing is prepared: for this day is holy unto our Lord: neither be ye sorry; for the joy of the LORD is your strength. Nehemiah 8:9-10

Introduction

Have you ever stopped to consider just how far you have come to reach your present point in life? Each of us has traveled a long and meandering road to reach this milestone on our life's journey. Our paths have brought us through a myriad of experiences that have included successes and failures. Along the way, we have witnessed many changes and have learned to take them in stride. Our joy is to know that despite the road that we have traveled that there has been one constant in life that has never changed; that is the love of God. It never changes.

Why does the church celebrate its anniversary? It celebrates anniversaries because each year is a milestone in the journey toward the Promise Land. Through the years the church has toiled diligently and faced many obstacles, yet it has survived and thrived because it is sustained by the power of an almighty God.

The world has changed in years since this church began lifting up Christ in this community. The world has changed but Christ has remained the same. That's why we celebrate.

We celebrate because this church has lifted up Christ through many generations. Its message has not changed; it is still "Jesus Christ and Him crucified."

There was a time, in grandpa's time, that the Black community was well defined. Everyone lived on one side of the track. Everyone who lived on the other side of the track was either white or a traitor to the community. Today our children live in a different world. Now communities are rapidly being defined by economics rather than by color. The people on the other side of the track are no longer defined by color but by economics.

As this change occurred, this church lifted up Christ. That's why we celebrate!

There was a time, in Grandma's day, when folks knew their neighbors by name. Neighbors shared food, cared and supported each other. Today we live in a different world. Very few neighbors know the names of every family on the block, very few exchange food and hospitalities, and even fewer support each other in times of frustration and difficulty.

Despite the fact that many are becoming less personable, this church has lifted up the name of Jesus, who knows us better than we know ourselves. That's why we celebrate

There was a time, a few generations ago, when Sundays were set aside for worship. All businesses except those providing essential services shut down on Sundays. Attending movies, baseball games and playing cards on Sunday was considered a sin, even by those who didn't go to church. Today, we live in a different world. Mom and dad often leave for work on Sunday just as they do on Monday. Malls are open and Sunday afternoon football has become the religion of choice for millions of men who bow reverently before the altars of ESPN, CBS and NBC.

Despite the fact that the world shows little respect for him, this church has gathered since its inception to teach and preach commitment to Christ, the kingdom of God and the community. Even though the world has changed, Christ has not changed in all these years. That's why we celebrate.

Yes, this is a different world, much different than great-grandpa's time. Today, Youth see sex, murder and crime in every movie they watch, kids are going to prison at age 12, people are blowing up schools, drugs are rampant and homes are threatened.

Despite all of the bad news that time has brought with it, this church still rises to bring a word of hope from the Lord. This church has lifted up Christ and provided hope for those who may be overwhelmed by the swift changes of our times.

Its message has been consistent over all the years and is best reflected in the words of an old hymn by Jennie Wilson:

Time is filled with swift transition,
Naught of earth unmoved can stand,
Build your hopes on things eternal,
Hold to God's unchanging hand.

That's been the message for all these years, "Hold to his hand, to God's unchanging hand. Build your hopes on things eternal and hold to God's unchanging hand."

As Christians, we celebrate the anniversary of the church because it reminds us that despite the changing nature of the world that God is still in control. We celebrate because these years have shown us how faith and perseverance can lead to victory through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Exposition

This text focuses on the Nehemiah's challenge to Israel to celebrate the goodness of God.

The books of the law were read to the people and they mourned as they thought of times past and their present condition. Ezra was impressed that they were sincere in their mourning; however Nehemiah was concerned that instead of mourning their past they should be celebrating. Despite the condition of Jerusalem at the moment Nehemiah saw reason to celebrate.

The fact that they mourned meant that their hearts were tender and receptive to God's words. It meant that they saw themselves as guilty before God.

Nehemiah commanded the people to stop mourning and to end their grief. There was work to do and it could not be done if the people were constantly mourning lost pasts and morbid futures.

The time for mourning had past; it was now time to celebrate what remains and what will be done in the future. The people complied. Verse 11 notes that they made mirth or celebration. They shed tears of joy for the journey thus far and for the victory they anticipated.

Reasons to Celebrate

As we pause today, to revel in this moment, we give God praise for his blessings. We pause to celebrate in three different ways:

CELEBRATE OUR VICTORY: Like Israel, the church today has faced difficult times. There are some who mourn what has been lost, and lament regularly over the current state of world affairs. Yet, just as Nehemiah encouraged Israel to put aside is mournful nostalgia, we too must stop our mourning of what has passed and the difficulties of the moment and realize that there is work to be done in a spirit of celebration.

In the midst of fearful times, there is a reason for joy, it's a strange combination, only enjoyed by those who have uninterrupted faith in the Lord.

Those who have faith can:

—stay CALM in midst of crises

—have PEACE in the midst of problems

—enjoy GLADNESS in the midst of sorrow

—receive ASSURANCE in the midst of afflictions!

—press on in the midst of pain.

—be FRUITFUL in a time of famine!

Churches should strive to remember "From whence cometh thou?" The humble beginnings of every congregation in comparison to its present always remind a congregation of the great work that God has done through its members. In addition, congregations that reflect also see how God has lifted them and related to them in a personal way that has magnified his name and their greatness in his eyes.

Churches are encouraged to remember to continue striving to advance the kingdom of God with the reward in view. The reward is promised to the churches in Revelation 21:7 "He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son"

CELEBRATE TO GIVE THANKS:W hen we consider our heritage we can't help but give thanks for the help the Lord has given us.

Every believer has experienced a time or two when we have been caught between a rock and a hard place. Those were the times when faced trouble on every side. During such times we found that all we could really do was to say like David,'''' I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help, my help cometh from the Lord who made the heaven and the earth.''''

We discovered in our life journey that only the power of God could help us because we were powerless to help ourselves. Our only hope was for someone bigger than ourselves to help us. So the writer of the Psalm says, "Then I called on the name of the LORD: ''O LORD, save me!''" (verse 4).

Asking God for help is an even better idea. Even if it seems as if nobody cares, God cares. Just ask Peter who found himself drowning after walking on water or cried out, "Lord, save me!" Immediately Jesus reached out his hand and caught him. In the same way Jesus has helped every one of us. No wonder then that the song writer would declare ''All my help comes from the Lord.'' When we celebrate, we celebrate his helpfulness. We celebrate his compassion. We celebrate his goodness for he is good and his mercy endureth forever.

WE CELEBRATE GOD'S PRESENCE: When the church celebrates it rejoices in the way that God has sheltered us through difficult times and has remained present for us in every situation. Whether it has been our ethnic struggle as a people of color or as individuals striving to overcome our personal fights with life threatening situations, we have reason to celebrate because God has helped us to survive our difficulty and even to escape death itself. The Psalmist writes, "Thou maintainest my lot" (v. 5)

When our world is turned upside down by tragic events, it is easy to become cynical and disillusioned with life.

When we witness how evil some people can be, it becomes difficult for us to trust anyone.

Yet, we are able to celebrate when others are not because we know that God will never forsake us.

Because we know he will never leave us alone, we should celebrate! Because he has been with us as we walked through the valley of the shadow of death, we should celebrate!

Now is the time to celebrate

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that now is a time to celebrate the victory that God has in store for us!

When Moses spoke to Israel he constantly pointed them to the land before them, with the ever present reminder that as long as they stay close to God the blessings from heaven will continue to flow. The implication of Moses'' comments were simple: Turn away from God and expect trouble, stick with God and expect an enriching experience.

This was Nehemiah's message to Israel. Repent for past sins, forget past mistakes and get ready to do a great work for God today.

Thus, we rejoice in the years that have passed. But there is work to be done!

We cherish the memories of those who began the work of old, but now we must celebrate the work that must be done today.

The same God that helped the founders of this church will help us today. He does not change.

The times change, but God never changes. In Malachi 3:6 God said, “I am the Lord and I change not...” Hebrews 13:8 makes it clear that the nature of God never changes. It says clearly, “Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and today, and forever.”

God does not change.

HE IS STILL OMNISCIENT: God has not changed. He still knows all about us. That’s why the 139th Psalm declares, “Thou knowest my down sitting and mine uprising, thou understandest my thought afar off...” God knows what we think. God knows what we feel. God knows our doubts. God knows our fears. He also knows just how much we can bear.

HE IS STILL OMNIPRESENT: God has not changed. He’s still available to us wherever we go. That’s why the Psalmist declared, “ If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there: if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there. If, I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea” thou art there. If I’m riding in an airplane, God is there. If I travel to a faraway place God is there. We know he’s there because Jesus promised in Matthew 28, “And Lo I’ll be with you alway, even until the end of the earth!”

HE IS STILL OMNIPOTENT: God has not changed. He’s still all powerful. There is nothing God cannot do. When Sara doubted God’s ability the angel asked, “Is there anything too hard for God to do?”

I don’t know about you but I’m glad to know that God does not change! That’s a reason to celebrate!

He’s brought us from a mighty long way! That’s a reason to celebrate!

We celebrate because when we have failed, he still turns failure into success!

We celebrate because although we are weak, he still turns weakness into strength!

We celebrate because when we have questions, he still provides the answers!

We celebrate because when we are frustrated, he still gives us hope!

In the past, he’s been with us, but I’m glad to know that wherever I go, He’ll still be by my side!

All I have to do is call on his name! His name is Jesus!

Jesus, who carried an old rugged cross!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who arose early Sunday morning!

He’s coming back again to take us to a land! A land where we’ll never grow old!

When God Calls

SCRIPTURE "And it shall come to pass, that before they call, I will answer; and while they are yet speaking, I will hear." Isaiah 65:24:" I also will choose their delusions, and will bring their fears upon them; because when I called, none did answer; when I spake, they did not hear: but they did evil before mine eyes, and chose that in which I delighted not." Isaiah 66:4

Introduction

Do you have a cell phone or know someone who has one? Cell phones are becoming increasing popular today and in many parts of the country, they are replacing land lines. Nearly everyone has a cell phone. Businesswomen and working men have cell phones. Students have cell phones, grandmothers have cell phones. There is a company that makes cell phones for babies.

They have a variety of names: Razers, I-phones, Flip Tops, Blackberries, Treos and the latest craze, the I-phone.

The technology exists today that makes connectivity a premium.

There are cell phones which take photographs and movies. The movies recorded on some cell phones can be instantly uploaded to CBS news or YouTube without the need of a computer.

There are cell phones that record conversations and print out a transcript.

There are cell phones that allow callers to leave a voice message, then transcribe the voice message and send it to your email or to your phone as a text message.

There are cell phones that will open your garage door, change the channel on your television set and operate anything in your home that operates with a remote control unit.

There are cell phones that play stereo music and razor sharp videos in wide screen.

There are cell phones that allow you buy and sell stock or make an e-trade without talking to a broker, transfer money from your account with a touch of a finger; and you can even listen to a conversation on a cell phone with no hands or wires, using a Bluetooth headset.

There are cell phones so small that they can fit in your pocket, but despite their size can beam a map from a satellite and give you voice directions to your destinations.

It's called connectivity. It means wherever we are in the world, if there is a cell phone signal you can be connected to all that is important to you.

It would seem that with all of this connectivity that our lives would be easier and simpler because it is so easy to get stay connected.

Connectivity has a price. We pay dearly to stay connected. Today, many of our cell phone bills are higher than our electric bills and almost as much as our rent. All that connectivity also turns us into literal cell phone junkies. We cook on the cell phone, shop on the cell phone, travel on the cell phone, and drive our cars on the cell phone. Some men go on dates with one woman and talk to another on the cell phone.

We are a busy generation, cell phones has made it easier to stay in touch.

But what happens when God calls?

Is it possible that when God calls that we are in the middle of something important and we inform him that we'll get back to him later; when we get our lives straightened out?

Is it possible that he sends us a message to do something for him but we refuse to do it because it comes at the wrong time, or would make us look silly or undignified?

Is it possible that we refuse to connect with him because we can't deal with him right now; not with my new job, my campaign, my new house, my household responsibilities, my children, and all of my troubles?

As Christians we should resolve to that whenever God calls, we are ready to answer and to hear his voice. If the Lord dials our number, when should make sure that he gets through.

Exposition

This text focuses on Isaiah as he reminds Israel of the ways God has tried to respond to the needs of mankind and man's thoughtless response.

This last section of the book of Isaiah covers the final events of world history, and closely parallels the book of Revelation. The book of Isaiah is in many ways a miniature Bible. It divides like the Bible. The Bible has 66 books, and Isaiah has 66 chapters. The Old Testament has 39 books, and the first division of Isaiah has 39 chapters. The New Testament has 27 books, and the second half of Isaiah has 27 chapters. The theme of the last of Isaiah is the theme of the last of the Bible: the end!

Yet before the end, God looks at the people of Israel and tracks the way he has attempted to respond to their need and their empty response. Though God has attempted to contact them through prophets and messengers for hundreds of years they have virtually ignored him. He has repeatedly attempted to minister to the people yet they have turned a deaf ear. This prompts God, as he considers the future state of believers to say, "I called them but they would not answer." In Isaiah 65:24 he notes that in the future believers will be of such that they will know that before they can call, the answer will be on the way.

Their desire to build altars, make animal sacrifices and concentrate on the ritual is the final element of frustration for God. In Isaiah 50:2, God asked for Israel to give a reason it did not answer his calls. Here he said, "Wherefore, when I came, was there no man? When I called, was there none to answer? Is my hand shortened at all, that it cannot redeem? Or have I no power to deliver?"

Israel frustrated God by not answering his call, although he always answered their prayers.

When God Calls Us

This matter of connectivity should be extremely important to believers. In our secular lives we work hard to stay connected. We are wired up with machines on our sides, in our purses, plugged into our ears in the dashes of our cars; nearly everywhere because we want to stay connected to those who are important to us.

If we receive a call it does not matter where we are, what we are doing we will instinctly pick up the phone and answer, even if we have to step outside to do so. The person making the call seems to command or demand our attention.

Yet, there should be concern on our part about being connected to God?

Do we respond the same way when God calls?

Just as God tried to call Israel many times in the text, he also tries to call us. What happens when God flips through the heavenly rolodex and decides to call our number?

DO WE OFFEND GOD WITH OUR RING TONES? There are many today who purchase ringtones for their phones that are extracted from popular music. There are others who arrange for music to be played on their phones to substitute for the traditional ring that a caller hears. There are many church members who have ringtones on their phones that do not identify them as children of God. Is it possible that God can choose to call upon a special person to deliver a blessing but when he calls he gets "Lil Wayne, Lil Boosie, Bow Wow and 50 cent?" Will he say "did I dial the wrong number?"Our lifestyles are our ring tones. Do our week day lifestyles suggest something different than what we say on Sunday morning? Is God pleased? If we live our lives in deference God's will he will leave us to our delusions (66:4) and turn us over to reprobate minds.

OUR LINES ARE BUSY AND OUR BOXES ARE FULL: We are busy people. We stay on the phone. Our lines stay busy. If anyone calls us no one gets through and our voice mail is activated. But even then it's hard to get us a message because our mailboxes are full. The irony of mailboxes is that we have received the messages but they are still often unheard because it takes too long to listen to them all.

When God calls us is it possible that our lines are busy. Even if he leaves us obvious messages do we fail to get back with him because it takes too long? Saul was a busy man. He busied himself persecuting the Jews. God needed to talk to him but he could never get through. It took an experience on the Damascus Road to get him to put the phone back on line. If we intend to hear from God must have some appointed time in which he knows the line will be clear.

Israel, once in the Promised Land, received many messages from God. For 150 years they received warnings from God that destruction loomed. As a succession of prophets gave the same message repeatedly, the nation never "got back!" When they finally decided to answer it was too late.

There are many who dread how much time it will take to get back with God. Worship is time consuming. Prayer time is time consuming. Service is time consuming. They place God's calls in their box of "good intentions" but never get back to him.

CALLER ID SCREENS OUR CALLS: The caller I.D. is a device that allows a phone subscriber to see the phone number and sometimes the name of the person making a call. The subscriber decides whether to answer the call based on the identity of the person calling.

There are some who anticipate that they are receiving a call from God and try to avoid him by not answering. However, cell phone technology won't allow us to truthfully hide. The same technology that allows us to not answer a call, also assures the caller that you knew they called, because their number will be listed in their call log. In the Garden of Eden, Adam and Eve tried to avoid God after they ate the forbidden fruit. They did not want to hear from God when they realized he was coming. There are many today who consciously avoid hearing from God. They won't read a bible, attend a bible study, or listen to the preached word. They try to hide from God.

When we Call God...

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that God doesn't answer our calls to him in the same way we treat him.

God does not use heavenly Caller I.D. Box to see if the call is coming from you and decide whether or not he wants to hear from you.

He does not listen to our prayers and thoughts and play like he is not at home.

There won't be a recorded voice in heaven that answers: "for blessings press 1. For healings press 2. For Forgiveness press 3. To speak to God himself press G.

When we call God it won't matter what type of phone we use. Down here the recorded voice says press 1 if you have a touch tone phone. If you have rotary phone stay on the line. But when we call heaven, it won't matter what type of phone we use. It won't matter whether we are old fashioned or modern, the Lord will answer prayer!

When we use our cell phone we usually use a calling plan. We get so many daytime minutes and so many nights and weekends. But when we call God it won't matter about the time of day. God's got his own calling plan. We can call him in the morning, noonday or even at the midnight hour! You can call him up and tell him what you want.

When you purchase a cell phone the company wants you to get a contract to guarantee that you won't leave them. They want a two or three year contract. But when you get your hookup with the Lord, he gives us a contract that's better than one year or two years with the cell phone company. I hear him so and "Lo, I'll be with you always, even unto the end of the earth."

One final thing about your cell phone. If you are ever in an emergency, your cell phone can get help.

There is a universal number that you can call anywhere, it's 1-1-2.

You can dial 1-1-2 and get a fire truck, ambulance or police.

Even if the keys on your phone are lock you still dial 1-1-2

If your phone service to friends has been disconnected you can still dial 1-1-2.

God's got a better plan than 1-1-2, because 1-1-2 comes after 1-1-1.

1-1-1 is a universal spiritual number that goes straight to heaven.

Even if you have been disconnected from God you can still dial 1-1-1.

Even if you have been locked out be guilt and shame, you can still dial 1-1-1.

Even if you have moved so far away from God that you can't get a signal, if you dial 1-1-1 an angel of mercy will catch your roaming call and deliver it to heaven. What do you say when God answers your call, "Father I stretch my hands to thee, no other help I know. If thou withdraw thyself from me, oh whether shall I go?"

Two thousand years ago the world sent up an emergency, "Save us from our sins"

God sent prophet after prophet but every message went unanswered!

Then God decided to stop calling. He sent his only begotten son!

His name is Jesus!

He came and lived among men, but they didn't get the message!

He healed the sick and raised the dead, but they didn't get the message!

But when he died out on Calvary….. Somebody shouted out, 'Surely, surely, he must be the Son of God!"

Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave..

You can call him in the morning! You can call him in the midnight hour!

Call him in the noonday. Call him at the midnight hour!

No wonder the songwriter said, "Jesus is on the mainline tell him what you want! Call him up and tell him what you want!

Call Him!

Call Him!

...and tell him what you want!

Beware of the Bloodsuckers!

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 28, 2007

SCRIPTURE*: My son, if sinners entice thee, consent thou not. If they say, Come with us, let us lay wait for blood, let us lurk privily for the innocent without cause: Let us swallow them up alive as the grave; and whole, as those that go down into the pit: We shall find all precious substance, we shall fill our houses with spoil: Cast in thy lot among us; let us all have one purse: My son, walk not thou in the way with them; refrain thy foot from their path: 16 For their feet run to evil, and make haste to shed blood. 17 Surely in vain the net is spread in the sight of any bird. And they lay wait for their own blood; they lurk privily for their own lives. Proverbs 1:10-18.*

Introduction

During this time of the year, there are many people who are preoccupied with things that take life and leave a blood trail. For generations, October has become the bloodiest month of the year. There are more movies, television shows, and books available in October than any month of the year because there seems to be a national fixation on anything that takes life and leaves a blood trail.

For many years on television we watched Buffy the Vampire Killer, Dracula, Blacula, Blade, and Night of the Living Dead. All of these movies and television broadcasts featured persons who survive to one degree or another by draining the lifeblood of others. Other movies such as Friday the 13th, Halloween, Amityville Horror, the Texas Chainsaw murder and many others glorify the taking of life and leaving a blood trail. Even children's video games are filled with blood and gore. There is a national fascination with blood and blood suckers.

All of the movies are fictional. Buffy the Vampire Killer is a figment of someone's imagination. Dracula was written by Brian Stoker in 1897 and told the fictional story of a Transylvania count who sucked the blood from beautiful young ladies to sustain his own life while condemning the women to existences described as the living dead. Modern author Anne Rice has made millions with novels such as "Interview with the Vampire." There are even gay and lesbian vampires, Asian Vampires and there have even been black Draculas played by Fred Williamson in the 1970's who played Blacula and the current king of the blood suckers, Wesley Snipes, who stars in the Blade vampire movies of today.

In the movies, blood suckers are exciting to watch, but there are real life blood suckers that are not funny, exciting or glamorous.

Bloodsuckers are everywhere. In nature, trees lose their life substance when certain vines wrap themselves around them and suck the sap from them. Farmers call the vines sap suckers. Those who study birds tell us that the Yellow Belly Sap Sucker bores holes into trees and drinks its sap. Leeches, Lamp Eels, and mosquitoes draw blood as well.

Bloodsuckers are those things in life that drain the life out of us. They steal our joy, happiness and peace of mind and leave us like walking zombies with no passion or spirit. They don't appear once a year in October; they exist everyday of the week, 52 weeks a year.

When life seems to be draining us of our life substance, that's when we thank God for Jesus.

It is the grace of God that renews us and gives us new energy, power, hope and inspiration.

Our Lord does not ask us for blood, he gives us blessings through his blood, if we trust him.

As Christians, we are aware that there are many forces in life that drain our life substance. We give thanks to God for his Son Jesus who gave his blood to give us a chance to an abundant, everlasting life.

Exposition

This text focuses on God's warning to young people, to avoid evil associations that will drain them of their godly virtue and righteousness.

The book of proverbs offers wisdom in three categories. Chapters 1-10 offers advice to young people. Chapters 11-24 offers advice to men and women and chapters 25-31 offers advice to kings, rulers and the those who desire to be virtuous women. The purpose of the proverbs is to give wisdom in small snippets, or wise sayings that will be a guiding influence on those who want to live the godly life.

The young are advised in this text to avoid evil friends, associations and influences because the forces of evil are out for the blood of the innocent. Their motives are not pure and ultimately their ways will lead to their own destruction and the destruction of all who associate with them.

This text presents evil influences as being bloodthirsty sinners who desire to devour and destroy that which is good for the sole purpose of robbing the innocent of their "Precious substance." (Proverbs 1:13) and leaving them empty and void.

The warning to the young is to stay clear of anything and anyone that encourages them to do evil, the ultimate end of the evil will be their own downfall. The young who follow after evil we share their fate.

How they work

How can a person fall into the influence of evil so easily? How are youth so easily fooled into endorsing or accepting evil? Let's look at the text closely.

EVIL IS ENTICING: Look at Proverbs 1:10, "My son, if sinners entice thee, consent thou not."The word entice means to lure, pull, seduce, attract by offering hope of benefit. In the movies the fictional vampire always wins the confidence of his victim and promises them immortality before he sucks them dry. Evil people do not convince others to follow them by saying, let's go do something evil. Usually they project a positive result by saying, "Let's rob the store so we can get money," or "Let's ice the dude. He dissed us. We got to protect our rep." In many cases the evil person does not force potential partners to come with them, they win their confidence through flattery and pretensions to be their "hommies."

Bloodsuckers usually entice us by using one of four methods or all four: 1) They offer us the opportunity for profit, pleasure, fun or good times 2) They offer us the opportunity to prove ourselves to others 3) They offer the prospect of anonymity: No one will know. Faced with these options, many youth fall into the trap of the bloodsuckers. Christian youth should exercise care because evil influences have one goal and that is to entice the young and the gullible into the hands of the ungodly.

Yet, the word of God warns young believers to "consent thou not" meaning that young believers should not run with ungodly crowds or befriend them because they do not mean them well. In this context they are bloodsuckers, waiting to get their fangs into another innocent life.

DESTROY EVERYTHING THAT IS PRECIOUS: Look at Proverbs 1:13. It illustrates how evil people target the "Precious substance" of believers. What is precious substance? The word translated precious in this text comes from a Hebrew word which means: Honor, reputation, and excellence. Substance is from the Hebrew word which means: everything of value. Verse 13 shows the evil influence targeting everything of value to the young including their reputations, their achievements, their personal honor and dignity. Youth enter the world with a very precious substance only to find that the world is filled with bloodsuckers and predators ready to take it away. Youth are generally innocent: They trust people and thus become fair game to bloodsuckers who abuse their trust. They desire to be accepted and become targets to those who show them shortcuts to popularity. They enter the world as innocent children and become targets of those who stick their fangs into them and rob them of their childhoods by enticing them to be grown before their time. Every industry that can legally target young people aims their commercials at them with one goal in mind and that is to acquire their "Precious Substance." Proverbs 1:15 gives a stern warning to youth, "My son, walk not thou in the way with them; refrain thy foot from their path:"

LAY TRAPS FOR THE UNSUSPECTING: Look at Proverbs 1:17. It indicates that those who would stick their fangs into our youth and drain them of their precious substance, lay traps for them. Sin is characterized in this text as a net. Hunters often catch their prey by hanging large nets out of sight and over their heads. A prey that is trying to be careful may watch the ground for the obvious but miss the net overhead that, once dropped, entangles them to their own destruction. The traps used against our young are often not the obvious, but the not so obvious. A Christian youth would instantly reject an invitation to smoke weed or drink alcohol because he's looking on the ground for the net. He's not prepared for the way that alcohol is introduced to him by the music industry in songs and videos and by paying for brands and labels to be shown in movies. It won't be long before an unsuspecting youth is caught in the net and the bloodsuckers begin their work. The church must work to expose the traps and make youth aware of those who would take advantage of them. The devil never rests. He's always looking for a way to destroy the faithful.

THEY LAY WAIT IN THEIR OWN BLOOD: Look at Proverbs 1:18. It has a very powerful message to those who would take up company with or befriend evil. The evil will find their own life purpose lost, and those who are with them can expect the same. "They lay wait in their own blood" seems to say "What goes around comes around." The ultimate end of the violent law breaker is a violent death or jail. There is no glory in the notion promoted by rapper 50 cent that we should strive to get rich or die trying. There is no glory in a violent death trying to get rich by illegal means. The drug dealer and gang banger may appear to get away with their crimes, but they are naive to think they will evade capture all of their lives and will live to ripe old ages. In 2006 the City of Philadelphia had 406 murders, mostly young blacks killing each other. This month 10,000 black men took to the streets to train themselves in conflict resolution and mentoring to save young black men from killing themselves. The gangsta mentality promoted by the music industry and some rappers is sucking the life blood from young black men increasing the odds that they will be dead or in jail before they reach their 30th birthday. The murderers and thieves often find themselves laying in a pool of their own blood, the victims of drive bys and senseless violence.

Thank God for the Sun

Finally brothers and sisters, while you are watching your vampire movies this week, pay close attention to one important comparison. The creatures of the night are afraid of the sun.

No matter how powerful the night walker happens to be, he shrivels and crawls when he comes face to face with the sun.

They may have lived for hundreds of years in the darkness, living on the blood of their victims, but I find it interesting that even the most tenacious creature of the night runs when the sun starts to rise.

They may be the masters of the underground, but when the sun rises, all of their power is destroyed.

They may be the most feared creatures at midnight but when the sun shines on them, they lose all of their power.

Therein lies the secret that every young person should learn; to be free of the creatures of the night we must walk in the light of God's word.

When we walk in the light the SON rises in our soul and devil can't do you no harm.

James 4:7 says, "Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you."

When the sun rises in your life, the devil will get away from you.

When the sun rises in your life, the demons that try to possess you will depart.

In the movies, I also notice that whenever the bloodsucker vampire sees the old rugged cross, he has to run away!

I don't know about you, but I thank God for the SON and I thank God for the cross!

The cross of Calvary is symbol of our salvation! Thank God for the cross!

At the cross, the power of sin is broken and the power of salvation is released!

At the cross, the sprit of bondage is shattered and a new spirit of freedom is unchained

At the cross, those who have been disillusioned receive new hope!

At the cross, those who have been discouraged find new inspiration!

No wonder the song writer wrote, "At the cross, at the cross where I first saw the light and the burdens of my heart rolled away. It was there by faith. I received my sight and now I am happy all the day!"

Young warriors, don't worry about the creatures of the night, just keep walking in the light!

Don't worry about the powers of darkness, just keep your hands in God's hand and the devil will leave you alone!

Bloodsuckers may try to sap your life blood and leave you without hope, but I'm so glad that "there is a fountain filled with blood that flows from Immanuel's veins and sinners plunged beneath the flood, lose all their guilt and stain!"

There is power, power wonder working power in the precious blood of the lamb!

Lift Jesus Up and stomp the devil down!

Jesus, my light in a world darkness!

Jesus, my defender against all enemies!

Jesus, my shield in the midst of battle!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

But Early Sunday morning rose up from the grave!

Tell them about Jesus..and watch the devils leave you alone!

Men Building With God's Good Hand

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 2007

SCRIPTURE: "Then I told them of the hand of my God which was good upon me; as also the king's words that he had spoken unto me. And they said, Let us rise up and build. So they strengthened their hands for this good work." Nehemiah 2:18

Introduction

It is always good for men to come together, but what do we talk about? When some men get together they talk about sports events, fishing or hunting. Others talk about their cars, or other specialties. Some men talk about women. Christian men may talk about all of these, but they will most certainly talk about their lives in Christ and share their experiences along the way.

Whenever men get together there are always different types. Some are old some are young. Some are hard workers and some don't work as hard. Consider three laymen who worked in the church who bragged about their dogs. One of the men was a brick layer, the second was a cook and the third was the lazy sort. The bricklayer called his dog, "Come here Stonewall, show your stuff." Instantly his dog jumped into the back of the truck and started throwing bricks to the ground and before long had built a small bar-be-que pit right in front of their eyes. The men were amazed but the cook called his dog, "come here Pork Chops, do your thing." Instantly his dog jumped into the back of his truck grabbed a slab of pork ribs from the cooler, built a fire in bar-be-que pit, slapped the ribs on the fire, swabbed them with bar-be-que sauce and opened a can of Coca Cola. The men were really excited. Then the lazy man called his dog, "Come here excuses, do show your stuff." The lazy man's dog grabbed the ribs from the bar-be-que pit, drank the Coke and left the bones for everyone else to clean up as he and the lazy man went home.

Whenever men get together there are some hard workers in the group, but there are also some lazy men in the group that leave nothing but the bones.

When the work of the church is done however, it won't be the lazy man that God uses to complete his mission. It won't be the lazy man because he sits back and waits for someone else to do the work. When men have a mind to work, amazing things can be done.

Occasions such as these are especially encouraging when we have been guided by the hand of God and protected under his wing. It's the hand of God that empowers us, motivates us and encourages us. It's the strong hand of God that carries us across the wilderness of despair to the lofty peaks of success.

As Christians, we want to busy ourselves with kingdom building work. In so doing we bring God's favor upon ourselves and our families.

Exposition

This text focuses on the people of Israel whose commitment to rebuilding the walls of Jerusalem resulted in it being done far ahead of schedule.

Almost 100 years after the Jews had returned from Babylonian exile to Jerusalem, the walls around the city and the gates had remained in ruins. The people were disillusioned, in debt and intimidated by the awesome commitment that rebuilding the walls would require. They had excused their failure to rebuild the walls on fierce opposition from surrounding nations and their poverty.

Nehemiah refused to accept their excuses and despite the danger inspected the walls at night (2:15). He then called an assembly and convinced the people of the need for a building program. He was an excellent leader who demonstrated engineering knowledge and brilliant organizing ability (ch. 3). He encouraged them while reminding them that they would have to watch, fight and pray. The work began.

Ye see the distress we are in (v 17)

Nehemiah asked the people to do assess the situation. He said "Ye see the distress we are in." He pointed to broke walls and a broken national spirit.

Today, those who build are still appealing to us to assess our situation. The cry is still, "Ye see the distress we are in."

Today, men must take a hard look at the situation we face today. Our homes are shattering; our sons are being targeted for death or jail.

Our daughters are prey of pedophiles and sexual predators. Crime in our community is rising and increasingly our image is being destroyed. If we have more black men in jail than in college, that's a distressing situation.

Statistically, three of five black males will have negative contact with a police officer, land in jail or be killed before age 30. That a distressing situation.

"Ye see the distress we are in" but the challenge is to rebuild the walls. It's not too late, even though the degree of disrepair is staggering. We must take positive actions to rebuild our families.

Men's groups can mentor young fathers and husbands to help them understand their role as husband, father, lover and provider for their families.

We must work diligently with our boys to help shape them.

We must rebuild interest in boy scouting, Jr. Laymen and other boy's work programs that we have allowed to die in our churches.

We must speak to the issues of drugs, crime and delinquency that ravaged our communities. Either we will address them or they will overtake us and destroy us completely.

We see the distress of our situation, what shall we do?

Let us build up

Essential to the task of rebuilding the national spirit was the reconstruction of the walls and the restoration of the temple. The people saw the extent of their situation but did not take any action to correct the problem. They saw the temple razed, polluted and desecrated but did nothing. They saw the walls broken but only looked. Nehemiah challenged them to build the walls for safety. The prophet Ezra echoed those sentiments also with the challenge to restore the temple.

When men decide to work together there is congealing of spirit and purpose that contributes to unit. When men work together there is a common cause and purpose. Divisions and differences blur and energy is concentrated when men work together.

Nehemiah challenged the men of Israel to join him in the rebuilding project. “Let us build” is the keyword to his encouragement.

Let us work together for the sake of increased unity. As we work together in this work we will become a stronger band of brothers dedicated to one purpose.

One Man’s vision

Whenever the people are inspired to rebuild, renew and regenerate it is usually the result of one person’s vision. In the text, Nehemiah had a vision, and he shared it with enthusiasm, inspiring Jerusalem’s leaders to rebuild the walls.

In the same way that Nehemiah had a vision to build; our executive secretary also had a vision for us. That vision looked beyond the shambles that existed in his day toward a picture of the vision of tomorrow. He saw men working together for the ultimate purpose of glorifying God and to expanding his kingdom.

We should never underestimate the power of one person. One powerful God given vision can inspire people to act and to achieve. When God inspires visions we should never underestimate our ability to make that vision happen. So it is with us. God has given one person the vision and we work together in the name of our Lord to make the heavenly inspired vision a reality.

The Hand of God Upon Me

Finally, brethren we must consider that when God’s good hand is upon a work, it will be blessed.

The text makes special note of God’s good hand, not simply the hand of God. Its implication is that the hand of God can help us if we are in his will and it can delay us or stop us if we are out of his will.

The hand of God stopped Jonah as he fled from his mission.

The hand of God drowned Pharaoh's army as he pursued them across the Red Sea.

The hand of God destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah and turn Lot's wife to salt. But Nehemiah told Israel about God's other hand. That God's good hand was upon him.

God's good hand is his blessing hand.

God's good hand is his anointing hand.

God's good hand is his door opening hand.

God's good hand is his way making hand.

God's good hand is his soul saving hand

God good hand is powerful; that's why we should hold to his hand.

The sense of security we derive from holding on to God's good hand comes from the fact that God is a pillar of strength.

We hold to God's good hand because there is nothing too hard for him. (Jer. 32:17).

He can handle any problem set before him. In answer to that same statement Isaiah 59:1 says, "Behold, the LORD'S hand is not shortened, that it cannot save; neither his ear heavy, that it cannot hear." So every believer should hold to God's hand. Even in difficult times and wait for him his deliverance. Don't give up. He can and will take care of it.

As we hold on to each other's hands, let us not forget to hold to God's hand.

As we make practical plans to realize what has been visualized let's not forget to hold to God's good hand.

I'm reminded of a man who had fallen from a cliff and dangled by the end of a rope being held by his friend. The friend yelled to him to hold on "I've got the rope!" As the man was eased down he suddenly made a huge drop followed by a sudden stop. Then he was eased to the ground. On the ground his friend came and hugged his neck. The man said you scared me there for a minute; you let me go for a second. The friend responded, "I did let go. I tried to hold on but I couldn't. The rope slipped out of my hand. Then suddenly, I received a surge of strength from somewhere and picked up the rope. You made it to the bottom, but I don't know who was holding the rope!" The man lifted his hand to the sky and gave praise to God. "I couldn't see his hand, but I know who was holding the rope!"

Who's holding the rope for you?

When troubles get you down, who's holding the rope?

When doctors give up on you, who's holding the rope?

When friends slip and let go, who's holding the rope?

When your best efforts fail and you seem to be lost, whose holding the rope?

The man who is holding the rope is the same man that carried a cross for us back on Calvary's hill.

He died on an old rugged cross, but Early Sunday morning, he got up with all power in his hands!

Into All the World

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 2007

SCRIPTURE: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. Amen. " Matthew 28:19-20

Introduction

What would happen if the Gospel of Jesus Christ is carried to the whole world, starting with this community? Would lives change? Would the community become safer, friendlier more compassionate place to live? Most Christians acknowledge that the Gospel of Jesus Christ is life changing. It's ultimate impact would be world changing if it ever reaches the masses.

The gospel of Jesus Christ is magnetic; so magnetic that Jesus says, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, I'll draw all men unto me."

The gospel of Jesus Christ is good news.

It's good news to the gambler, hustler, pimp and prostitute.

It's good news to the drunkard, cheater and womanizer. It's good news to the homosexual, transvestite and lesbian.

It's good news to the pedophile, wife beater, thief and murderer. It's good news to the drug addict, gangsta rapper, crooked politician, and sexual predator.

The Gospel of Jesus Christ is good news to all who are lost and need to know that despite their wretched condition that the power of God can raise them up?

Yet, there are many in the church who want to keep all of this good news to themselves.

Instead of broadcasting the good news to the gambler, thief, murderer and drunkard, we generally keep it to ourselves.

How is this so? Don't we conduct in-church revivals? Don't we stage city wide revivals? Don't we tell the story every Sunday?

While we preach the good news every Sunday and stage revivals regularly, very few of our efforts are designed to go into the world, they are generally designed to preach to those in the church and to anyone who happens to come in out of the world by chance.

There are many in the church community who have redirected the gospel message and made it exclusively for the church and none others. We speak against sin in the church. We offer hope to the lost, in the church. We lift up Christ, in the church.

Rarely do we go outside of the church. Billy Graham's daughter Anne Graham Lotz once appeared on a popular news talk program. The interviewer asked, "Are you one of those who believe that Jesus is exclusively the only way to heaven?" He added, "You know how mad that makes people these days!" Without blinking she replied, "Jesus is not exclusive. He died so that anyone could come to Him for salvation."

Salvation is not exclusively for the church; in fact the church is a body of those who were formerly in the world who now are part of the body of Christ.

Jesus wants us to change the world, but to do that we have to reach the world. Many churches are effectively reaching the "church", but not the world.

When we plan a revival, where do we send the announcements? To churches.

When we place radio advertising for our revivals, what channels attract our attention first? Religious channels.

When the crowds come to our revival, who makes up the largest part of the audience? The church.

What would happen if the church actually went into the world, starting with this community and carried the gospel message? What would happen if preachers, deacons and the faithful went into the bars, night clubs and honky tonks and witnessed for Christ?

What would happen if we actually invaded the hip hop world with young ministers who know how to talk the talk in a way that would actually reach that generation?

What would happen if we stopped having revivals to revive ourselves and actually went into the world?

Jesus said if we lift him up where the lost could see him, he would do the rest.

As Christians, we have a powerful challenge to go into all the world with a life changing message. To do that, we must actually go into the world and not just to the church. The Gospel of Jesus is world saving and soul lifting! We must intensify our efforts to reach every lost soul in his name.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus giving instructions to his disciples to go into the world with the good news.

For three years Jesus taught his disciples about this world and another, far different world that would come, called the kingdom of heaven. In preparation for the Kingdom of heaven, Jesus told his disciples to teach, preach, baptize and witness in every part of the world to create a prototype of the kingdom of heaven on earth. He called his prototype the kingdom of God.

As whole communities accepted Christianity, the world around them changed. It affected their business dealings, interpersonal relationships and general life-styles. The new world that Jesus sought was one in which the great priority of life would be placed upon the value of the heart rather than on the material things. Jesus' world would certainly be different.

It would be highlighted by those who denied themselves pleasures to seek the common good of all.

It would be a world in which each citizen loved his or her enemies and prayed for those who spitefully abused them.

It would be a world of active nonviolence in both thought and deed.

It would be a world of total dependence upon God and faith in his ability to supply needs.

Each disciple was challenged to go and deliver the message about this new world to the present world and to make preparations themselves for life in the world to come.

The World Needs the church

More than ever, the world today needs the church. With a plethora of social problems, declining moral values and the constant threat of war it is more obvious now than at any other time that the world needs the church.

FAMILIES NEED THE CHURCH: The church has a responsibility to respond to the issues that plague Black families. It begins when the church translate its Sunday rhetoric into real action. In St. Louis in June 2007 The Rev. R.B. Holmes, president of the National Congress of Christian Education urged black churches to set goals for reducing by 25 percent the rate of black divorce, teen pregnancy, illiteracy, murder and HIV infection by 2012, and increasing the adoption of black foster children. He said it was time for black clergy to lead a movement, not unlike the fight for civil rights 40 years ago.

The Black family needs the church more than ever. The church must challenge the culture and forces that have hurt the black family and community, including those who "demean, degrade and belittle our mothers and daughters. To do this the church must partner with others to provide senior citizen housing, charter schools, mental health clinics, opportunities for first-time home-buyers, even restaurants to train people for work.

Such action puts the word of God into concrete forms that people can see and helps families survive and thrive.

THOSE WHO HAVE LOST HOPE NEED THE CHURCH: There are many men and women today who are throwing up their hands in defeat, resolved that they are in a lost cause. The defeated need the church. The defeated need to know that God is able to respond to their needs. When they feel that God does not know or care about their situation they lose hope.

Parents who have talked to and chastised wayward children with little or no visible effect have dropped their heads and dismissed them as reluctant lost causes. They need the church.

Many marriages have ended in the divorce courts because husbands and wives, frustrated with the presence of uncomfortable symptoms, have thrown up their hands in defeat. They have dismissed their sacred vows as a lost cause. They need the church.

Many men and women who have been living on the wrong side of the right track take a low opinion of themselves and think because thy are not, did not, and could not, that they cannot, will not and should not ..be anything less than a failure and have dismissed themselves as a lost cause. They need the church.

Somebody within the sound of my voice thinks he or she is a lost cause. Somebody feels that his or her life is in such a shambles that they are beyond the reach of the mercies of God.

The church needs to let the world know that there is no reason to lose hope because God is still on the throne.

As long as God is still on the throne there is no reason lose hope because there is no despair that God cannot console, no problem he can't solve and no depression he cannot relieve.

The church needs to go into the world to let the world know that regardless to the problem, God is able.

THE CHURCH REACHES INTO THE WORLD: The church must go into the world and bring the message of God's grace in both precept and example.

There are many churches today who are involved in various forms of outreach for a variety of reasons. In each case they are attempting to reach into the world in the name of Jesus.

Outreach may include providing food for the hungry, assistance to battered families, housing for the homeless, assistance to wayward youth, or promotion of benevolent causes.

Outreach is essential to kingdom building. We must reach out and touch the wounded and the lost of the world in the name of Jesus. Yet, even our outreach must come from the heart. It must be pure in its intent, not a mere photo opportunity designed to promote other goals and causes. When we help others it must come from the heart.

It must be done out of love. That's what 1 Corinthians 13:3 means when it says, "And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned and have not love it profiteth me nothing."

The church must show and tell the world that God cares; thus, we are compelled to go into all the world.

Show the world another world

Finally, brothers and sisters, the church has the responsibility of going into the world to show those in the world, a better world.

We cannot afford to sit on our good intentions and send God on missionary journeys. We should not try to send God but to go into the world ourselves in the name of God.

We must go into the world with the gospel message of hope.

We must go into the world with the gospel message of salvation.

We must go into the world with the gospel message of compassion and concern.

We must lift Jesus up knowing that if we lift him up he will draw all men to himself.

We must go into the world so that it will know that the power of God can change lives.

We must go into the world so that it will know that the power of God can change communities and nations!

We must tell world about Jesus, whose life and sacrifice made a world of difference.

We must tell them that he was born in a manager in Bethlehem and reared in a little town called Nazareth; he made a world of difference!

He saw a world filled with hatred and tried to bring love!

He saw a world filled with defeat and brought a message of victory!

He saw a world filled with weakness and brought a message of strength!

He saw a world filled with darkness and challenged it to walk in the light!

They called him Jesus; he made a world of difference!

Before he left he told his disciples to stay ready because "I'm going to create another world! "That where I am ye may be also!"

In that world, every day will be Sunday and the Sabbath will have no end!

In that world, it'll always be howdy and never good-bye!

In that world, hearse wheels will not roll!

No wonder the song writer declares, "When we all get to heaven, what a day of rejoicing that will be! When we all see Jesus, we'll sing and shout the victory!"

In that world we'll see Jesus, who died out on Calvary and arose early Sunday morning!

In that world we'll live eternally!

Come and go with me to my father's house!

It's Robe Washing Time

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 4, 2007

SCRIPTURE: And one of the elders answered, saying unto me, What are these which are arrayed in white robes? and whence came they? And I said unto him, Sir, thou knowest. And he said to me, These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." Revelation 7:13-14

Introduction

Do you have a wash day in your home? No matter who you are, there is a washday in your home. Wash day is the day in which you or somebody you hire takes all of your dirty laundry and gets it clean. There are many who have the convenience of having all of the utensils for washday in their homes. They have washers, dryers, ironing equipment and everything thing else necessary to make wash day tolerable. Whether we meet our wash day responsibilities at home or hire it out, it must be met, sooner or later.

Wash days are necessary regardless of whether we are rich or poor, white or black, immigrant or native born. It is an equalizer. You can buy a tailored made shirt or a cheap one off the rack, but at the end of the day they both are candidates for washday. Your finest dress or most beautiful blouse may have cost you a fortune, but regardless of its cost, sooner or later it's going to face a wash or laundry day.

If we wear it, it will be soiled and will need to be cleaned.

In times past wash day was more difficult than it is today. In the distant past women would take clothes to a river, pond or creek and rub them together in their hands or against stones. Later, lye soap, a rub board and a tin tub modernized the process. Someone invented a machine with an agitator in the middle called a washing machine which left only the wringing and drying to be done by hand. Then someone invented a wringer that sat on top of the washer; followed later by a dryer which made the clothesline and clothespin obsolete. These were expensive, many people still do not own them, and so today Washaterias still exist where families use public washers and dryers.

Washday is a humbling experience because it reminds us that no matter who we are or high important we are, everyone has dirty laundry in their homes. We don't see it or like to think about it, but everyone has an appointment with a washroom; they will either do it themselves or pay someone to do it for them, but everyone has a washday.

The same can say about our lives. No matter who we are or how important we think we are, at the end of the day, we are all stained, some more than others, but stained never-the-less.

Just as industry has not discovered a material that will not stain or soil, neither has God created a life that is sin-proof. No matter what our station in life, we are vulnerable to sin. Preachers and deacons sin, members in the pew sin. Everyone sins. That's why Romans 3:23 says, "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God."

On wash day we apply every known technique to clean our clothes, often they appear to work, but sometimes need something stronger. The whites didn't get white enough, so we added Purex. A certain stain didn't completely come out so we worked on it longer. Then we realized that certain stains needed special solvents to remove them; then and only then were the stains removed.

That's the way it is with the Christian life. We are all sinners, people with stained and dirty spiritual lives that are constantly being washed by the Holy Spirit and dipped in the blood of Jesus."

As Christians, we are humbled by our vulnerability to sin. However, we are equally strengthened to know that there is no stain in our lives that the blood of Christ cannot remove.

Exposition

This text focuses on John's vision of the last days in which the faithful appear in white robes.

The Revelation tells the events which will take place in the last days. It describes two specific periods of time which are yet to come. One is a seven year period that is called the great tribulation. At the end of this period the New Jerusalem descends out of heaven like a bride adorned for her husband. The second is a 1000 period in during which Christ rules on earth and Satan is bound. Before the heavenly kingdom begins there are many who will come to know Christ in the last days who will be persecuted because of their faith; these will be rewarded.

Revelation 7:14 focuses on the appearance of a small army of martyrs who stood before the throne of God dressed in white robes proclaiming victory.

Their presence and attire is both prophetic and symbolic. It is prophetic in that it shows us what will happen in the last days. It is symbolic in that it represents the triumph of every believer over the plots and plans of Satan for their lives.

These represented in the vision came through great tribulation, imprisonment, loss of property and goods and even the loss of life itself. Their victory shout that is released at the end of the tribulation period equals the victory shout of every believer who has suffered, sacrificed and endured loss for the sake of the kingdom.

Of special interest is that each of them is wearing a white robe that has been washed in the blood of the lamb. The fact that their robes will be washed indicates that at one time they had been stained, but cleansed through the sacrifice of Christ on Calvary. The robes were made white by power of the blood of Christ. Thus, they will stand before the throne of God as victors. Their once stained robes will symbols of their triumph over the impact of evil in their lives.

How to wash our robes

John's vision was of an event that will occur in the last days. But what about now? Can a person who is stained with sin be forgiven, cleansed and given a new start in life? How can we wash our robes?

ADMIT WE ARE DIRTY: There are many who don't wash their clothes until they can see the dirt or smell an odor. They know that they are soiled because they have been worn, but they are not disturbed about dirt until it shows. If there is no visible stain or foul odor some ask, "Why wash it; can't we just wear it again?"

Whether it's the sheets on our beds, the socks on our feet or a shirt or blouse, there are many who say, "it ain't dirty until you can see it or smell it." They have the same attitude about sin in their lives. Many feel that unless a sin shows there is no need to worry. As long as we are not caught drunk, gambling, living a gay lifestyle, stealing, or engaging in other immoral acts, there is no need to wash our robe because our dirt doesn't show. Yet, God knows our secret. He knows that we appear to be living moralistic lives, but he also knows our secret sin. Psalm 90:8 says our secret sins are in front of God, he knows we are dirty and need of cleansing. When we also reach that conclusion that's when we agree that it's robe washing time.

WE MUST SEPARATE: Before dirty clothes can be machine washed they must be separated. It's one of the first rules we learn about wash day; colored and white clothes don't wash together. One will have a deleterious effect on the other if they are washed together. That same spirit holds true for the person who wants forgiveness for sin and a brand new start. You can't come to God and bring the world with you. You can't serve God and the devil at the same time. We must separate ourselves from our sinful life. We still know our old drinking buddies but we don't go that direction anymore. They are still your friends, but you are no longer running buddies. My old buddies chase women or hunt men but I don't go there anymore. We can't join the kingdom of God and still embrace our old lifestyles, doing the same things, going to the same places and hanging out with the same people with the exception that now we go to church on Sunday. 2 Corinthians 6:17 says, "Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you." If we try to hang on to the world and get the bleaching effect of the anointing at the same time, the results will be the same as washing whites and coloreds at the same time with bleach added. Instead of the whites being whiter they are off white, pink or light blue. If you have decided that it's robe washing time, then it is also time to separate and leave the world behind.

WANT THE STAIN REMOVED: We must want our stains to be removed, cleaned and renewed. That may sound strange, but there are many who are not willing to do what's necessary to remove the stains in their lives they simply have decided to do what they can to keep the stain from being seen without really removing it. There are many stain removers today that market themselves as stain removers, but they are actually stain concealers. They advertise that they contain whiteners that remove the stain but in actuality the whiteners don't remove the stain they whiten or brighten the area around the stain to make it appear to have disappeared. Often we don't care if the stain is really gone, as long as it is not visible. For salvation to work in our lives we have to move one step beyond not wanting it to show, we have to want the stain removed. We can hide it by attending a church service or singing in a choir or serving in the church. For a while it will appear that there is no stain, until it shows up. Our stain is hidden temporarily because of the brightness of the anointed ones around us. When we reach the point that we want a clean spirit, that's when we know that it's "robe washing time." That's when we say like David in Psalm 51:10 "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me." That's when we say Lord, don't cover it up but remove the stain of sin in my life. Make me over again!

Solvent must match the stain

Finally brothers and sisters we must remember that to really remove a stain, you must use the right stain remover; the solvent must match the stain.

We have to match the solvent with the stain because it takes certain kinds of solvents to remove certain stains from our person or our clothes

Many activities we undertake that are sinful are not visible to the public but are never the-less dirty.

There is a soap for every kind of dirt.

There are special soaps designed to clean spotless every kind of dirt and stain.

If there is dirt on...

DISHES we use Joy Dishwashing liquid
DRAINS we use Drano
CLOTHES we use Tide and Bold
WHITE CLOTHES we use Purex or Clorox
BABY we use Mild Ivory
BODY we use Irish Spring
HAIR we use Alberto Conditioning Shampoo
CARPET we use Rug Doctor Cleaning Solution
CAR MOTOR we use hot steam and water
TEETH we use Gleem or Colgate
TOUGH STAINS....We SHOUT IT OUT!
RING AROUND THE COLLAR we use Whisk!

But if there is a serious sin stain on our lives, what do we use?

But if you have a tell tale ring around the soul, there is only one thing that can clean it white as snow...

The song writer said "What can wash away my sins, nothing but the blood of Jesus. What can make me while again, nothing but the blood of Jesus....Oh precious is the flow that makes me white as snow, no other fount I know, nothing but the blood of Jesus."

Jesus, who hung on an old rugged cross!
Jesus, who died out on Calvary!
Jesus, who was buried in borrowed tomb!
But early Sunday morning…this same Jesus..
God up with all power in his hands!

Can Lighting Strike Twice?

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 11, 2007

SCRIPTURE: He directeth it under the whole heaven, and his lightning unto the ends of the earth. After it a voice roareth: he thundereth with the voice of his excellency; and he will not stay them when his voice is heard. God thundereth marvellously with his voice; great things doeth he, which we cannot comprehend. Job 37:3-5

Introduction

What are the chances that you could be blessed more than once in the same way? The historical record is filled with references to people who seem to live charmed lives as good fortune seems to follow them wherever they go. In life, they seem to have the Midas touch that turns everything they try into a success. What are the chances of great opportunities coming your way repeatedly? Some would say looking for that to happen is like looking for that "fat chance." They ask, "does lightning strike the same place twice?" The answer is very simple; God does bless the same person more than once, just as lightning often strikes the same place twice.

Those who don't know the Lord like to believe that good things only happen once in a lifetime. We often hear that "Opportunity only knocks once" so we should answer when we hear the first knock. Believers have learned that every opportunity that knocks is not a godly opportunity. They have learned to let ungodly opportunities pass, confident that if opportunity knocks once, when God gets ready it can knock again.

There are many who limit God's ability by saying that some experiences in life are "once in a life time occurrences." It means that there are things that can only happen once in the normal life of human being. But can God be limited to once in a lifetime occurrences? In 1962 Astronaut John Glenn went into outer space in a once in a lifetime experience. But in 1998, 36 years later at the age of 77 Glenn put on a space suit and went back into space again and did more than he did the first time circling the earth 134 times, traveling 3.5 million miles in nine days. George Bush Sr. parachuted from a plane in 1944 during the war. It was viewed as a once in a life time occurrence until he celebrated his 75th birthday by parachuting again, then celebrating his 80th birthday with even another dive, proving that what God has allowed to happen once he can do again.

Chief among the common notions is the idea that "lightning never strikes the same place twice." It implies that a place once struck by lightning can never be struck again. If the lighting strike produced something good, it is said that it will never happen again, so enjoy it. If it produced something bad, it is said there should be relief because at least the bad thing can't happen again.

Thunder and lightning are biblical symbols that refer to God. In fact, the bible is filled with symbolic language that tries to demonstrate the nature of God. Psalm 29 describes God as the powerful God of the storms who speaks with the voice of thunder and sends lighting crashing through the trees. Matthew 24:27 describes the second coming of Christ as being sudden. It says, "For as the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto the west; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be."

When the bible speaks about lightning and thunder it often refers to God's actions toward men.

If that's the case, a close look at lightning will reveal a little of God's nature. Lightning occurs when there is a discharge of electricity between positive and negative charges that accumulate in thunder clouds. On occasion positive charges are attracted to something negative on the ground and lightning strikes the ground. On occasion activity on the ground attracts negative charges as well.

Contrary to popular opinion "Lightning can and does strike the same place twice." Roy Sullivan, a national park ranger is listed in the Guinness Book of World Records for surviving seven strikes of lighting. There is an area between Tampa and Orlando Florida called lightening alley. According to Wikipedia, in this area lightning strikes an average 50 times a year for every square mile of the distance between the two cities. Researchers reveal that the Empire State Building in New York is struck by lightning in the same place about 23 times a year and was once struck eight times in a 24 minute span. Lightning obviously can strike the same place twice.

If the grace of God has given us opportunity, blessings and mercy, once like a bolt of lightning right out of heaven, can he do it again? If he blessed us once can he do it again? If he showed us mercy once, can he show us mercy again? If favored us once, was it a once in a life time favors. Can he do it again? Can lightning strike twice?

One thing we learn as Christians is that what God does once he can do again. God is not a "one time use" deity that acts miraculously once but cannot do it again. If there have been blessings bestowed on others, he can bless us too. If he has blessed us before, he can bless us again, and even greater.

As Christians, let us rejoice in the knowledge that our God is not limited by time or circumstance. He is able to bless repeatedly; he can strike as many times as he wants.

Exposition

This text focuses on two ways that we are mortals see the hand of God, in the thunder and lightning.

Elihu is the speaker in this text, who is a friend of Job. Job was beset by a number of maladies and setbacks that Job described as vexations.

The book of Job shows the full gamut of life experiences that the godly can expect. He was a good man who lived a righteous life before God. Despite his best efforts, Job found that he experienced not one, but multiple blows that took away both his health and fortune. His children killed, his cattle were stolen, and he broke out into sores and was afflicted to the point of death.

Elihu described the events that were happening to Job as the actions of God. Job 37:2 he described the events that happened to Job as the "noise of his voice" and the "sound that goeth out of his mouth." Elihu said in verse Job 37:3 that God has directed these events as though they were "his lightning."

Elihu said it was obvious lightning that Job faced was the handiwork of God.

In the end God shows us that just as he struck Job with the lightning of his grace once in his life by making him a great family man with great resources, he could make lightning strike twice for him and do the same again. Job 42:10 says the Lord "turned his captivity" and "the LORD gave Job twice as much as he had before." More money, better health, a large family and even greater happiness than he ever knew was the result.

The nature of lighting

Job 37:3 speaks of God directing the lightning that we experience. If we look at the way lightning makes contact with the ground we can get a better understanding of how God directs our lightning experience. We know that negative or positive activity on the ground attract lightning. We also know that any single lightning bolt we see is actually made up of several smaller parts called strokes. When lightning strikes it is actually three or four strokes at the same time. That understanding may be the key to several spiritual truths.

Many believers can attest to lyrics of the song that says, "I have seen the lightning flashing and heard the thunder roll and felt sin breakers dashing trying to conquer my soul." But what attracts the lightning to us:

OUR FAITH ATTRACTS LIGHTNING: It was Job's great righteous life that attracted the lightning. Job 1:1 says that he was perfect and righteous. That righteousness caught the devil's attention. That reminds believers that they become targets of the devil whenever they attempt to live the Godly life. 1 Peter 5:8 says, the devil is like a hungry lion looking for someone to devour, destroy and annihilate. It's almost as if the devil throws lightning bolts at us when we make up in our minds to do right. Each bolt doesn't seem to be a single event but a series of small things that all seem to happen at one time. That's what happened to Job. His children, wealth, then his health..all hit him at one time. Thus, believers should stay prayed up and on guard because the more we want to be Christians the more the devil tempts us otherwise.

WHEN LIGHTNING FLASHES, STAY HUMBLE: When the lightning began to flash what was his response. His friends urged him to curse God and die.

In Job 13:15 he responded, "Though he slay me, yet will I trust him…" He remained humble and faithful to God. The National Weather Service says that if we get caught in a lightning storm that we should bend down and lean forward with our hands on our knees, touching as little of the ground as possible, becoming less of a conduit. In a similar sense there is significance spiritually to the man or woman who bows in prayer and submission to God when the lightning is flashing, testing our faith. Great Grandma didn't know much about weather science, what she knew was that when the lightning flashed and the thunder rolled, God was doing his business. She made her children sit still and humble themselves before God. No matter how the lightning flashes during your faith test keep humbling yourself before God and you will be less of a conduit of evil thoughts and actions that result from broken faith.

OUR SINS ALSO ATTRACT LIGHTNING: While it was Job's faith that attracted the lightning, our negative actions can attract lightning with the hope that they will bring about a positive result. It was the sin of homosexuality and Sodomy that drew anger of God and fire from heaven in what some describe as huge lightning bolts destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah. It was the sin of pride and vanity that stopped the building of the Tower of Babel and was his sin with Delilah that drew the anger of God upon Samson. Our sins can attract lightning; negative lightning. This kind is not a test of our faith but the results of our sin. There are many whose very lifestyles are attracting lightning bolts of misfortune that seem to come in waves, one behind another. Each lightning bolt is a message from heaven. God is trying to tell us something. A believer who faith attracts the lightning humbles himself. The person who sins attracts the lightning gets humble but does more. 2 Chronicles 7:14 tells us exactly what to do, "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land.

Lightning does strike twice

Finally brothers and sisters we must remember that while our faith attracts the attention of the devil it also attracts the grace of God.

When God sees a believer trying to living the godly life, he rewards them with favor and grace.

The grace of God is not a once in a life time occurrence for a specific need, but the word reminds that "My grace is sufficient."

It was the grace of God that woke us up this morning and started us on our way! I'm glad that grace is not a once in a life time opportunity, but every day, I see his grace in my life.

I don't know about you but I'm glad that God doesn't just bless me one time, but he blesses me so many times every day!

When you take a shower,- and have hot water, you're blessed!

When you flip the switch and the lights come on- you're blessed!

When you sit down and eat a mess of greens and cornbread- you're blessed!

I'm glad that lightning strikes more than once in the same place.

I don't know about you but the Lord has brought me through:
—Valleys of loneliness and vales of tears
—Winds of Persecution and Storms of Opposition —Nights of Despair and Days of Frustration!
But I'm so glad to know that if he did it once, he can do it again!
Thank you Lord for turning my:
—Failures into success
—Enemies into friends
—Sorrows into Joys
—Duties into Delights
—Miseries into Miracles
I'm so glad that there is still a fountain filled with blood that flows from Emmanuel's veins, Sinners plunged beneath the flood lose all their guilt and stain!
His name is Jesus!
He died out on Calvary for our sins!
But Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!
He blessed me once I know he can do it again!

If You Catch Them, I will Clean Them

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 2007

SCRIPTURE: "And Jesus said unto them, Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men." Mark 1:17

Introduction

Have you ever had friends who had a great day fishing to share their catch with you? When they brought you those, Brim, Perches and other fresh water favorites, were they already cleaned? It's great to receive fish as a gift but it's even better when someone gives them to you already scaled, washed and ready for the frying pan.

Cleaning fish can be a nasty job. Those who catch fish enjoy the thrill of the catch, but those who must clean fish have a dirty, smelly, messy job. There are many people who enjoy catching fish, but they detest cleaning them. They often catch many fish then give them to a friend as a gift, uncleaned.

When we receive uncleaned fish we are grateful for the gift, but we may not always be happy with the prospect of cleaning them.

Different fish are cleaned different ways. Those who clean fish such as Brims and Perch usually have to scrape them. Scraping is messy because it usually splashes scales everywhere: on the hands, arms and anywhere within a scrape zone of four or five feet. On the other hand Catfish must be skinned, not scraped. Some find that you need special tools such as a pair of pliers to skin a catfish. No matter which way that is done, cleaning fish is an unsavory experience.

The person who cleans fish must know what to keep and what to throw away. Did you know that in some parts of the country there are people who fry fish with the eyes in place; so they don't throw the eyes away? In some circles fish eggs are considered delicacies. In many parts of the South those who clean the fish leave the head in place, they fry fish with the head on it. Others cut the head off but don't throw it away; they use it separately.

There are some who believe fish heads have special power. Consider Fish head Frank known to everyone in the neighborhood as one of the smartest men in the fish business. Frank started as a man who cleaned fish. It wasn't long before he owned the fish market. One of his neighbors was curious about the source of his smartness so he asked Fish head his secret.

"I wouldn't share my secret with just anyone, I don't tell many people, but the secret is Fish heads." When you clean the fish you don't through away the heads. You eat enough of them, you'll be really smart."

"You sell them here?" the neighbor asks.

Only $4 apiece," says Fish head.

The neighbor bought three fish heads from a big smelly bucket. A week later, he's back in the store complaining that the fish heads had not made him any smarter.

"You didn't eat enough," said Fish head. The neighbor goes home with 20 more fish heads. Two weeks later, he's back and this time he's really angry.

"Hey, Fishhead," he says, "You're ripping me off. You're selling me fish heads for $4 a piece when I can buy the whole fish for $2. You're ripping me off!"

"You see?" says Fish head. "You're smarter already."

Today, Jesus challenges every believer to be a fisher of men. However, while he wants us to catch lost men, we have the joy of knowing that he doesn't expect us to save them from their sins or pay the price for their redemption.

Our task is to learn to be fishers of men. Cleaning them is beyond our ability. Only the blood of Christ can do that.

As Christians, we are thankful to God that Christ, through his death on Calvary, has made atonement for our sins. As believers, our task is to get this good news to as many people as possible, knowing that if we catch them, the blood of Christ will wash them white as snow.

Exposition

This text focuses on Christ as he challenged the apostles to become fishers of men.

As Christ assembled his inner circle of disciples he challenged them to use their secular skills for spiritual purposes; building the kingdom of God. The phrase "I will make you fishers of men" refers to the transformation of their former calling into a spiritual one. The targets of this particular invitation were fishermen by trade. They were asked to do what they knew how to do best, fish; but using the same basic principles Christ said he would show them how to become fishers of men.

According to Matthew Henry, it was usual with Christ to speak of spiritual and heavenly things under such allusions, and in such expressions, as took rise from common things that offered themselves to his view. David was called from feeding sheep to feed God's Israel; and when he is a king, is a shepherd.

Calling men in one profession and challenging them to use their skills in the business of kingdom building was the nature of Jesus' relationship with the disciples. His constant reminder to them was that they did not necessarily need the power to do what needed to be done, but that he would do it through them.

The emphasis therefore is on the "I will make you.." part of the text. It is here that Jesus challenges his disciples to catch men in the spiritual net and he would do the rest. For this work Jesus will qualify them, authorize them and give them the commission to fish for souls.

To become a fisher of men the disciples had to follow Christ completely. They had to separate themselves and follow him as their Leader. That means they had to learn the nature of the new calling and how to retrain themselves for spiritual fishing.

Those who would get an acquaintance with Christ, must be diligent and constant in their service to him. The apostles were prepared for their work, by accompanying Christ all the. Those who are to fish for men, must follow Christ, and do it as he did, with diligence, faithfulness, and tenderness.

Christ never told his disciples that they would save those that they brought to the faith. They were never given the responsibility to sacrifice themselves to pay for the sins of believers. Their job was to catch the lost; salvation would be a work of the Holy Spirit living within them.

How to fish for men

If the church is to become fishers of men, perhaps it should use a few rules followed by most fishermen.

GO WHERE THE FISH ARE: Every avid fisherman knows that there are certain places that fish congregate, depending on the type of fish caught. Some fish must be caught in fresh water; others are scavengers and hang around muddy areas; some are salt water only. Regardless to what type of fish we are trying to catch, we must go where the fish are. Jesus commanded his disciples to "Go ye therefore." That was a command to scatter themselves across the earth in every nook and cranny to spread the Gospel message. The church that wants to become fishers of men must follow the same rule; we must go where the fish congregate. We often wait for the fish to jump in the boat; right into the frying pan. We are reluctant to go where they congregate; which is usually some place other than church. We must go into the highways and byways, brothels and juke joints, discos and bingo parlors, bordellos and casinos and cast our net. Don't worry about how we will clean them; Christ's command to us is to witness, testify, teach and baptize; he will do the rest.

USE THE RIGHT BAIT: What fisherman expects to catch a wide mouth bass using an earth worm for bait? Avid fishermen can testify that every species of fish has its own lure or bait. Those who fish with a cane pole and earthworms can catch Perch or Brim. But those who want the big fish must use lures. In terms of sport fishing, a lure is an object attached to the end of the fishing line and designed to resemble and move like an item of fish prey. Lures are equipped with one or more single,double, or treble hooks that are used to hook fish when they attack the lure. An exception is fly lures, commonly called "flies" by fishermen, which either float on the water surface, slowly sink or float underwater, and are based on real behavior of insect being resembled. Whether we use an old fashioned earthworm or a fancy lure; we must use the right lure. The same is true when people are drawn to the church. We should be wary of luring men to the church with promises of prosperity, riches and health. It gets their attention but it does not introduce them to the saving power of God. We should not attempt to lure them into the church out of sympathy for the loss of a loved one; this usually wears off as the memory of the loved one fades. We shouldn't try to scare them into the church either with damnation presentations that chill the soul but do not warm the heart. What we should do is preach Christ and him crucified. It is not trickery or a slick lure; it's his love for us. We don't have to do anything else but lift him up; he says, "If I be lifted up from the earth I'll draw all men unto me."

BE INCONSPICUOUS: To become successful fishermen you need to become almost invisible. When fish see the fisherman they scatter. The best fishermen have learned that fact.

Dr. Mark Guy Pearce once related an experience that presents a good lesson for the soul-winner. He said he was out fishing for trout; he had toiled wearily and caught none. His equipment was excellent but he was unable to catch any fish. Finally he came upon an old fisherman whose sack was full of trout. He asked him how he was so successful.

The old fisherman answered: "There are three rules to follow in trout fishing: first, keep yourself out of sight; second, keep yourself further out of sight; third, keep yourself still further out of sight."

The preacher walked away musing upon this thought: That is the best advice I have ever heard for becoming a successful fisher of men. I must keep myself out of sight and put Jesus Christ in full view.

We must always remember to keep Christ foremost; it is not about us, it is about him. If we catch them; he will clean them.

Fishers of Men

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that our job is catching the fish, cleaning them is God's job.

Cleaning fish can be a dirty business, that's why some don't like to fish. Yet our savior is not asking us to clean the fish, only to catch them.

He is asking us to preach the word that will increase their faith because faith "cometh by hearing and hearing by the word of God."

He is asking us to teach the word that will increase their knowledge if they study to show themselves to be workman that rightly divide the works of truth.

He is asking us baptize the world in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever he has told us.

But while he is asking to preach, teach and baptize, he is not asking us to save a single soul.

He is not asking us to personally pay the price of redemption!

He is not asking us to give our blood in payment for their sins!

He is not asking us to clean the fish; just catch them and he'll do the rest.

If we catch them, Christ is prepared to clean them.

He has prepared a way for our salvation. Romans 10:9 "That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved."

As great preachers, lay teachers and ministers won souls for the kingdom the cry went out through time and eternity...the Lord needs somebody to save them from their sins. Who will go?

Abraham couldn't go; he had to deal with the lamb in the bush!
Moses couldn't go; he had to administer the commandments!
Elijah couldn't go; he had to wrestle with the prophets of Baal!
Ezekiel couldn't go; he had to envision the dry bones in the valley!
Daniel couldn't go; he had to spend the night in the Lion's Den!
Malachi couldn't go; he was possessed by a people that were robbing God!
John the Baptist couldn't go, because he wasn't worthy to untie his shoes!
Down the halls of time I hear a voice saying "prepare me a body" I'll go!
It's a messy job but I'll do it!
It's a bloody job, but I'll do it!
He came to a prepared body!
He died on a prepared cross!
He was buried in a prepared tomb!
But Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave! He's alive today!
Keep spreading the good news!
If you catch them, he will clean them!

What's taking you so long?

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 2, 2007

SCRIPTURE:"Meanwhile, the congregation waiting for Zachariah was getting restless, wondering what was keeping him so long in the sanctuary." Luke 1:21 (message)

Introduction

Did you make a resolution at the beginning of this year? Have you been working on it? If not, what's taking you so long? There are many people who made wonderful pledges at the beginning of the year, but now, with only a few weeks left in the year, they still have not done what they said they would; even worse, many have not even made the first step.

Is there something that you know you should be doing but you are not doing it? For some there moves they need to make in their relationships, but as of yet, nothing really has been done. Why not? What's taking you so long?

There are others who have important business decisions that are constantly being put off. They need to be made for betterment of the business, but they have not been done. Why not? What's taking you so long?

For one person it's a health matter for another it is a family issue and for still another it is a moral dilemma that needs attention; we know it needs to be done but we avoid it like the plague. If it needs to be attended to, why haven't we done so? What's taking us so long?

Everyone has a good reason why they take so long to do things. Consider the new pastor of the local church who had a great reputation for finding bible verses to say what he wanted to say to members. One day he visited Looney Larry's house. Looney Larry had a reputation for doing strange things; the preacher was warned but he went anyway. When he rang the Looney doorbell he heard someone in the house but no one ever came to the door. After 15 minutes of knocking and ringing the doorbell he decided to leave Looney a note written on the back of his card; it only said "Revelation 3:20 What took you so long?" Looney took that card that was slid under his door and looked up the verse in the bible; it read, "Behold I stand at the door and knock." The next Sunday the ushers passed the preacher a note from Looney Larry, it had a bible verse written on it: Genesis 3:10 "I heard your voice in the garden and I was afraid for I was naked." -He couldn't find his pants that's why it took him so long.

When it comes to our spiritual lives there are some who were out of the church for many years before they finally returned. What took them so long? If we listen to their testimonies we will hear their horror stories of misfortune, failure, troubles, lost causes, dark alleys and lonely night. They will also tell you that they lost many precious years in the world chasing the illusion of happiness, trying to shake the money tree and settling for nuts on the ground. They are happy now, but it took them such a long time to get it together because they were convinced that what they sought was right around the corner, in the next roll of the dice, on the next bingo card, or in the arms of the next woman or man. It took them a long time to see it, but when they came face to face with God, they were speechless. The only thing they could say is, "I was once lost, but now I'm found, blind but now I see."

Jesus is standing at the door of your heart knocking, why don't you let him in?

As Christians we know that the best day in our lives is the day we decided to trust God completely, fully without fear or doubt. He's still calling for someone to trust him today but there has been no answer. What's taking you so long?

Exposition

The text focuses on Zacharias who went into the temple to burn incense and ended up staying a long time.

Zacharias and his wife Elizabeth were a priestly couple who had worked faithfully in the service of God all of their lives. There two great things that could have crowned their lives as they served in their senior years, both of which they felt were out of their reach considering their age. One great accomplishment would have been to have a child and the second would have been to have the opportunity to enter the temple, burn the incense and pronounce the blessing at the end. Since they both had reached old age, they felt both of these opportunities had passed them by.

Yet, despite their age God chose this devout couple to do both. Zacharias was a priest but he was just one of thousands of priests, many of whom waited lifetimes for a chance to lead the worship and pronounce the blessing for a week. God ordered circumstances so that Zacharias was selected.

While in service an angel appeared to him inside the Temple. This troubled Zacharias and made him afraid. He was told that he and his wife would have a child who would be the forerunner of the Messiah; his job would be to prepare the people for the coming of the Lord. Zacharias doubted that possibility, again looking at his old age, and was told that he would have a child but because of his doubt he would not be able to speak until it had come to pass.

Zacharias' encounter with the angel extended his time in the temple much beyond the usual time. Outside the people became impatient. When he finally appeared they wondered, what he took him so long? Then they figured out that he must have been in the presence of the Lord and seen a vision.

Zacharias shortly after his wife Elizabeth became pregnant and John the Baptist was born. It was a long time coming, but God was about to move on the face of the land.

What takes us so long?

There are generally three reason why we take a long time to do things, all of which have been demonstrated in this text. An examination of each one might give us spiritual insight into ways to deal with our tendencies to put off that which we know must be done.

WE ARE DELAYED BY OUR TROUBLES: Luke 1:12a says, "And when Zacharias saw him, he was troubled.." Had it not been for the fact that he was troubled, Zacharias would have performed his priestly duties and shortly after would have blessed he people, but he was troubled. In a similar manner there are many of us can't quite get it together because of troubles in our lives. We spend most of our lives responding to trouble. Bills, family problems, marriage problems, school problems, parents, children, bosses, losses, gains and pains all spell trouble. We tell ourselves that when we get through dealing with our troubles then we will have time to find the Lord.

Instead of waiting until our troubles are over, the bible says when trouble comes that's one of the times we should look for the Lord, not afterwards. Psalm 27:5 says, "For in the time of trouble he shall hide me in his pavilion: in the secret of his tabernacle shall he hide me; he shall set me up upon a rock." While trouble is rising we get it together, then. We should not try to wait until trouble is over to get ourselves together because we need to be together to deal with the trouble. Those who know the Lord agree with the song writer B. Chase Williams who said, "Trouble in my way. I have cry sometime. Lay awake at night, but that's alright. Jesus will fix it, afterwhile."

Don't until your troubles end to start getting your life together; do it now. What are you waiting for? What's taking you so long?

WE ARE DELAYED BY OUR FEARS. Look at the be part of verse Luke 1:12 "..and fear fell upon him." Zacharias was afraid when he saw the angel. No reason is given, but some think he might have been afraid that he had made a mistake that was about to bring judgment on him. He may have been afraid of the wrath of God or humiliation in the face of the people. Whatever the reason, "fear fell upon him." Therein lies the second reason that some are taking so long to get their lives on target. Fear. Many are afraid that they will fail and become the object of ridicule of their friends. We are afraid that we may make a mistake. So that business never gets started. That expansion never happens; that relationship never begins; or never ends they way we know it should. Because we are afraid we often missed opportunities God presents to us. Yet when we are engaging in a godly we have the assurance that he will be with us. Isaiah 41:10 puts it this way, "Fear thou not; for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness." Fears hold us back and stands in the way of what God has in store for us. Yet we should hear the words the angels told Zacharias, "Fear not." We should hear the words told to the women at the tomb, "Fear not." We should hear what was told Joshua at the Jordan, "Fear Not." What's taking you so long?

WE ARE DELAYED BY OUR DOUBTS: Often it takes us a long time to get to our level because of our doubts. Look at Luke 1:20. It says, "Behold, thou shalt be dumb, and not able to speak, until the day that these things shall be performed, because thou believest not my words, which shall be fulfilled in their season." When Zacharias was told that he would have a child in his old age he doubted it. God chose to bless him anyway but he received a small punishment for his slackness in faith. He doubted God. Doubt means that there is distrust. It means that we believe in God but we don't trust him to handle our situation. That often happens when we leave the mountaintop experience of worship and move into the valley of reality. When we are faced with the hard circumstances that life presents, doubts enter our minds. Those doubts keep us from doing what we should be doing. They detain us. They restrain us. They hold us back. It should have taken Israel about two weeks, a month at the most to leave Egypt and make it to the Promised Land. However, because of their doubts they wandered in the wilderness for 40 years. Doubt is why it took them so long. If we want to claim our promise we must trust God. To trust God is to stand in the face of adversity like the three Hebrew Boys when questioned whether God would deliver them. Our response should be the same as theirs "Our God is able to deliver us..." It should be the same as Daniel, faced with a tenacious and horrible death in the lion's den, but he entered it confident that God would make a way. Our faith should be the same as that expressed by song writer Daryl Coley when he said, "But if the storm don't cease and if the winds keep on blowing in my life my soul has been anchored in the Lord." Why is it taking you so long to become anchored in the Lord. When will you get it together? What's taking you so long?

God moves in his own way

Finally, we must consider that the people were in a hurry for a blessing, but God moves in his own time.

Luke 1:21 notes that, "..The people waited for Zacharias, and marveled that he tarried so long in the temple." They had come from great distances and hundreds of miles to make their sacrifices but they would not leave until they received the blessing which was the benediction of the worship.

Normally, it was a short amount of time for the priest to burn the incense and close out the worship with the blessing, so they became anxious and wanted to know what was taking Zacharias so long.

They were in a hurry to get their blessing, but when Zacharias returned they realized that he had been in the presence of God and God moves in his own time and way.

Sometimes we want a blessing and we want it in a hurry. We want to hurry God as if he is constrained to move and act according to our will. That's why the song writer says, "You can't hurry God, sometimes you just got to wait. He may not come when you want him, but he's right on time."

This text was not so much about Zacharias and Elizabeth personally, as it was evidence that God hears our prayers but he answers them in the fullness of time.

For 500 years the descendants of Abraham wandered from place to place, looking for a city not made by hands. In their frustration they remembered God's promise to Abraham and somebody asked, "What's taking you so long?"

For 400 years Israel labored in the slave pits of Egypt crying out to God every day. In their desperation they kept asking, "What's taking you so long?"

For 40 years the people wandered aimlessly in the desert unable to cross over into the land of promise because of their fear. They remember God's promise to Isaac and Jacob about a land flowing with milk and honey and they asked, "What's taking you so long?

For over 400 years between the last words of Malachi in the Old Testament there was no word from heaven or prophet from God. They remembered God's promise and somebody asked the same question again, "What's taking you so long?"

Don't you know that we are struggling down here? What's taking you so long?

Don't you know that we can hardly make ends meet down here? What's taking you so long?

Don't you know that we are living from day to day and are literally standing on your word? What's taking you so long?

Don't you know that we are being discriminated against and treated as second class citizens? Tell us, what's taking you so long?

Don't you know that many of our leaders are selling themselves to Caesar for handfuls of silver and empty seats of power? What's taking you so long?

Our homes are falling apart and our people becoming dependent on the Roman welfare, handouts and begging in the streets? What's taking you so long?

Can't you see God reaching down from glory, saying I've heard the cries of my people. I'm sending them a voice crying in the wilderness saying "prepare ye the way."

In the fullness of time God sent John to tell the world that God was getting ready to move!

Can't you hear the commandment, tell them John that God is getting ready send somebody from heaven to answer their prayers and show them that God cares.

The world could care less about the burdens we bear, but in the fullness of time God would send somebody who would say, "Come unto me all ye that are burdened and heavy laden and I will give you rest.!

The world could care less about the tears you shed, but in the fullness of time somebody's coming from heaven to say, "And God shall wipe all tears away!"

The world could care less about your cares and wants, but in the fullness of somebody's coming that that will remind that the "Lord is my shepherd and I shall not want!"

In the fullness of time God searched the staff files of heaven and looked for someone to send, but every man every name that pop up on the screen had a problem.

—David had blood on his hands!

—Samson had a woman problem

—Hosea had a cheating wife

—Esau had a crooked brother who may cause a problem!

—Balaam had a pocket full of bribery money

I heard the voice of the Lord, saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then said I, Here am I; send me."

Send me and I'll tell them that "blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God."

Send me and I'll tell them that "blessed are the merciful for they shall obtain mercy."

Send me and I'll tell them that "blessed are they that mourn for they shall be comforted!"

Send me and do more than tell them, I'll show them how much God loves the world!

When the time was right, he was born down in Bethlehem!

When the time was right, he was healed the sick and raised the dead!

When the time was right, he fed thousands and made the blind see!

When the time was right he picked up an old rugged cross and carried to Golgotha's hill!

They buried him in a borrowed tomb, but Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave!

He's alive today and he's knocking on your door! What's taking you so long to answer?

A Heavenly Visitor

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church

SCRIPTURE: "Through the tender mercy of our God; whereby the dayspring from on high hath visited us, To give light to them that sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, to guide our feet into the way of peace." Luke 1:78-79

Introduction

Have you ever had visitors in your home? During the holidays many expect visits from their family and friends. Some visits are expected and antici pated with great joy. There are other visits that are unexpected and still others that seem to never end. There are occasionally a few visitors that we dread.

Visitors in modern time differ from those of times past. A few generations ago, visitors came to visit for weeks or months at a time. It was not unusual for a cousin, aunt or in-law to visit for the entire summer or at least a few weeks. The front porch was a place where many families received visitors. Equipped with rockers and swings visitors in the past would sit on the porch and talk for hours before leaving. Technology has reduced visiting to mere contacts. Today visits are made by land base telephone, cell phones, video cams, text messaging, email, Facebook and MySpace pages. Personal visits are reserved for very special people and even those must be short.

Special preparations are usually made when we expect visitors. Visitors receive our best manners, eat out of our best plates and are afforded our most cordial courtesies. There are some visitors who are not really visitors at all. They are so familiar to our homes that we don't view them as strangers to our homes. When they visit, the shoes stay in the middle of the floor, there is no quick clean up and they know to make themselves at home if they can find an empty chair. These are the ones with whom we feel comfortable, safe and open; with no need for pretense. These visitors are not really visitors at all, because they are almost family.

However, even among family members there are always some whose visits are always anticipated, welcomed and seem all too short. Remember when Grandma visited your home. The children were excited when they heard that grandma was coming to visit. It seemed to be their greatest joy; anticipating her arrival. When asked why they were so excited about Grandma's visit, they all had the same reason. When Grandma comes to visit she pays attention to everything they do and rejoices in their accomplishments. If there is a button missing or broken toy, she fixes it. She gets in the kitchen and feeds us big meals. She listens to us when we tell her funny stories. When get hurt she tells us what to do to get better. She never leaves without hugging us and telling she loves us.

That may explain the reason the Christian world is excited about Christmas. We are excited because God came to visit man on earth. We celebrate because he listened, rejoiced, healed and blessed when he came. He did not leave without showing the world how much he loved each and every person.

As Christians, we celebrate Christmas because it marks the time we celebrate the coming of a heavenly visitor. He comes into our lives to brighten our days, correct us when we stray, bless us, heal us and love us. He shows us that he loves us every day.

Exposition

This text focuses on Zacharias' anthem of praise to God and his joy at having received a heavenly visitor in his family.

There are three songs or anthems in the 1st chapter of Luke. The first is Elizabeth's anthem as she sang about the visit of Mary saying "blessed is Mary, blessed is the fruit of her womb." The second song was Mary's song, known as the Manificat. In her song Mary rejoiced because God had magnified her. The last is Zacharias' song called the Benedictus which was prompted by the birth of John the Baptist at which time his speech was restored.

In his song Zechariah recalled hundreds of years of God's movement among the people, beginning with Abraham and going on into eternity. Then, he personalized the story by praising God for choosing his son to play a key role in the drama of the ages.

Zacharias praised God for visiting both himself and Israel and that dayspring of their experience when both sat in despair to bring them hope. For Zacharias God's visit came at a time when he thought he was beyond the point of blessing. God's visit reminded him that nothing is impossible with God.

GOD VISITS US: Luke 1:78 indicates a great truth: God does actually visit the world in general and with people in particular. Zacharias acknowledged the visit God to his family and the approaching visit of God to the world in the person of his Son Jesus. David wondered what was so special about mankind that God would so closely watch each of us. In Psalm 8:4 he asked, "Lord, what is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him?" Psalm 8:4—

There is power in the word "visited." The word translated visited is from the Greek word episkeptomai – which means to go see about, lookout for and relieve. It indicates that when God visits he intends to check on us, see about us, lookout for us and relieve us. God visited Adam in the garden to check on him. He visited Israel in the Wilderness to lookout for them. He visited Hezekiah in his sick room to relieve him.

Today, we should not be afraid for God to visit us but should invite him. When he comes he brings blessings and encouragement peace and hope. That's why some of the old warriors sang, “Spirit come in the building if you don’t stay long.” When God visits he honors us with his presence. We don’t want to miss an opportunity to visit with him that’s why we sing “Pass me not oh Gentle savior, hear my humble cry. While on others thou are calling, do not pass me by.”

HE NOT ONLY VISITS US HE BECOMES LIKE US: The unique nature of the incarnation is that God not only chose to visit us but for a while he chose to become like us. That’s unusual because Kings may visit their subjects but they do not think of living like them. Christ visited us on earth for 33 years. He was born the way we were born, lived in the community mankind just as we have, and experienced all of our passions, triumphs, joys and disappointments. He even wept. He not only visited, he assumed our nature. The incarnation marks “God with us.”

God sees our daily needs. He scrupulously separates our needs from our wants and knows exactly what we need to both survive and thrive. He sees our need for food, clothing and shelter health care and emotional support. The scriptures indicate that God sees the need of even the most ordinary person. In Matthew 6:28 Jesus told his disciples to consider the lilies of the field how God feeds and clothes them. He said if God pays attention to the lilies he would also care for their needs.

It’s easy for him to see it because he is with us.

No matter what our situation God sees our need. This should be a reason for hope for every believer because we know that our individual situation is not unnoticed by the savior because he is with us each and every day. Therefore, the songwriter asks, “Why should I be discouraged? Why should the shadows come? Why should my heart be lonely and long for heaven and home? For Jesus is my portion. A constant friend is he. His eye is on the sparrow and I know he watches me.”

HE NOT ONLY VISITS WITH US, HE VISITS IN US: When Christ ascended into heaven he sent the Holy Spirit to live in us on a daily basis. He makes our bodies his temple through the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. In this visit he does not take a body of his own but lives within us. Because God lives in us he directs and motivates us. Those moments when we found ourselves in a slump were impossible times; we came to a complete halt and it was only the Holy Spirit that prompted us to get going again. The same is true when we were saved from big mistakes. Sometimes it was the stumbling block that frustrated us that saved us from the troubling situation. It has been the Holy Spirit; living in us who helped us passed our most troubling moments. We can’t quite describe how God lives in us. One song writer said, “Something within me that holdeth the reigns. Something within that banishes pain…all that I know there is something within.”

At our darkest hour.he visits

Finally brothers and sisters, we must consider that when we are at our darkest hour, God visits and brings us a ray of hope.

Luke 1:78 says that God comes to us as the dayspring of our experience. The text says the “dayspring from on high hath visited us.”

What is this dayspring? The word dayspring is from the Greek work “Anatole” which means the rising up. The dayspring refers to a time of each day when the darkness is broken by the gradual rising of the sun.

Luke 1:79 indicates that the dayspring from heaven will bring light to them that are in darkness and guidance to those who are lost.

In our darkest hour God visits us and becomes our dayspring.

In our darkest hour, when we don't know which way to go, God visits our souls!

In our darkest hour, when it appears that all is lost, God shows us the light of day!

In our darkest hour God rises up in us.

When God rises up we can see glory of his light.

When God rises up there is no fear of the howling winds!

When God rises up there is no anxiety over the possibility of failure!

When God rises up there is no frustration over the meddling of the devil!

When God rises up there is no wonder about what tomorrow will bring!

When God rises up there is no dismay at the viciousness of life's storms!

I don't know about you but I've found out that in the darkest hour, God always seems to show up and rise up!

When God rises up my burdens seem lighter! Maybe that's why he said "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest…My yoke is easy and my burden is light."

The birth of Christ should remind us that a heavenly visitor is with us; that God's spirit is in us and that no matter how dark it gets he is our dayspring.

In the darkness of our silent nights he gives new life to our withering hopes!

Christmas should be a reminder that God so love the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life.

Christmas should remind us that over 2000 years ago that the world received a heavenly visitor who brought with him the gift of life and hope!

Christmas should remind us that no matter how troubling our times may become that as long as God is with us and God is in us we will always see the light of day.

The heavenly visitor has been called by many names.

Somebody called him the bright and morning star!

Somebody else called him the sweet rose of Sharon!

Somebody else called him Wonderful Counselor, Prince of Peace and King of King

His name is Jesus!

He was a heavenly visitor born in Bethlehem,

While he visited, when folks were hungry he fed them;

When folks were hurting he healed them.

He celebrated at the wedding he cried at funeral of a friend;

But when it was time to go, he couldn't leave with showing the world how much he loved us.

He picked up an old rugged cross and died out on Calvary.

But early Sunday morning he arose from the grave saying in his spirit..'Goodbye world, I'm going home!"

Some Assembly Required

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 22, 2007

SCRIPTURE: "And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger." Luke 2:12

Introduction

Have you ever bought a new toy or gadget, then noticed the sign that read: "Some assembly required?" One of the most dreaded experiences of Christmas is those long hours trying to assemble the pieces of a bicycle, desk, computer table, or other special product that the salesman said could be put together in a snap.

There are many who remember a floor filled with nuts and boats, diagrams and a wide assortment of tools. The item we purchased looked so grand in the showroom. Somehow, we never thought that huge indoor treadmill we purchased would have to be assembled piece by piece. Even a small table comes in a flat box that has to be assembled. Bookshelves must be assembled. Chairs must be assembled. The only way that you can avoid the drudgery of assembling it is to pay someone to assemble it for you or bribe the salesperson to sell you the model in the showroom.

How do you feel when you see the mass of plastic bags, warranty papers, screws, nuts and bolts? If you are like most people you feel as though you need a PhD to sort out the process successfully. The entire process can make you feel really stupid, especially when someone comes along and puts it together without any trouble at all.

At Christmas time, it appears that the best toys always require some assembly. Isn't life the same way? Great relationships are not bought on the shelf, already put together; there is some assembly required. Great families take years of trial and error to build. There is no off the shelf husband already perfectly assembled; neither is a great wife delivered straight from the wife factory, some assembly is required. Great children don't just happen. An excellent report card in school won't just appear; some assembly is required.

But what about the Christian life? Does it happen instantly? Do we accept Christ and get the Christian life delivered to us with everything in tact? When we are saved, we get all of the pieces delivered to us, complete with instructions. We usually spend a large portion of our lives learning to assemble a life that will be pleasing to God.

On Christmas morning the shepherds found the gift of God, lying in a manger. In the manger was salvation, peace, and blessings. There was only one problem; it was not already assembled. Even today, those who find Christ will soon discover that great life they seek in the Lord does not come pre-assembled; it requires a little work.

As Christians, we rejoice in knowing that the Christ Child came to the world on Christmas morning as a gift from heaven. We have accepted him joyfully and now commit ourselves to the task of assembling the holy, happy, peaceful and spiritually rich life he gave us when he was born into the world in Bethlehem but into our souls they day we accepted him in our lives

This text focuses on Luke's account of the birth of the Christ child, wrapped in swaddling clothes, God's gift to the world.

Mary and Joseph had been told of the birth of Christ by an angel. They knew his birth was special. More than simply special his birth would be God's gift to a troubled world. It was his way of reconciling a distant world to a loving father.

The gift of the Christ Child was a sign from God that he still loved the world enough to allow a part of himself to assume human form and absorb the punishment for their sins.

God's "gift" is available to everyone. It was the perfect gift. Scripture tells us that "...when that which is perfect is come, that which is in part shall be done away." He who was perfect came to us in the form of Jesus Christ.

The gift that God gave the world on Christmas day was the gift of his son.

The gift that he gives us is the opportunity to live an abundant life, happy and fulfilled. The gift he gives is the opportunity to achieve a happy marriage, spirit filled lives that are both productive and praise worthy.

When the angel looked into the manger they didn't see all that. All they saw was a baby, wrapped in swaddling clothes.

Today the great gifts God has in store for us may seem ordinary. That's because today, just as it was then, there is some assembly required.

Putting it together

Two boys talked about what they received for Christmas. One boy bragged that he had received a new bike. The other boy said he got a bike for Christmas two years ago. He said it had 10 speeds, dual hand brakes, high speed tires, lights, reflectors, a G.P.S system, self inflating tires, and satellite monitored night direction.

"Wow said his friend. You've had that for two years?

"That's right "the boy said.

" Why haven't I seen you riding it?

"Mama said she did not feel like putting all that together, so it's still in the box."

There are many of us who have been given the fruit of the Christian life, but it's still in the box.

How do we begin to put it all together?

WE MUST ASSEMBLE THE PIECES: When assembling boxed items, there is usually a list that tells us what is in the box. The list will say there are so many long screws, so many short ones. So many of this and so many of that. The check list allows lets us know what's suppose to be in the box. Those who are the parents of youth must help them figure out what's in their box; what gift talents and unique abilities came in their package. A sharp wit, a quick mind all have meanings. A sense of humor, a touch of stubbornness means something as well. An ear for music, the ability to dance or sing give hints. God gives each of us gifts according to the purpose we were sent here to accomplish. The prophet Jeremiah learned that God ordained him for a special purpose while he was still in his mother's womb. The same is true with us, we come here just like the babe in the manger; sent for a purpose with a pre-ordained life. But, it doesn't come assembled. The girl with the amazing ear for music and tone has to assemble the gift, by perfecting her talent. The youth with the gift of knowledge must sharpen that knowledge with mental challenges that will sharpen them. The pieces must be assembled. Yet there so many today that have reached adulthood and still have not begun to assemble the pieces. We can't quite figure out what this thing is suppose to be. That carries us to the next step.

WE NEED A PICTURE. Most boxed items come with a picture of how the product, once assembled, should look. They show us a snapshot of what the final product will be. Without that picture assembling the product is not impossible but it is difficult. It is the same with the lives we are trying to assemble; we need to picture ourselves as we shall be. We all have haters and detractors who are extremely critical of the disassembled mess that we make of our lives.

We need to start picturing ourselves differently.

We should see ourselves as happy families.

We should see ourselves as content and fulfilled, without it the world will give us its picture which, at best is only a caricature of who we really. 1 Corinthians 13:12 says, "For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known." It means, we can't see the fullness of what God wants to be now, but one day we'll see it all.

All we can see now is the husband who can't stop drinking or running away. All we can see is the nagging wife who always complains. All we can see is the son who dresses with his close hanging preparing for jail and a daughter who dresses ready for a strip club. Unfortunately, that's the way they see themselves right now. But one day, they will see the full picture. The song writer said, "Please be patient with me, God is not through with me. When God gets through with me, I shall come forth as pure gold.

WE NEED TO READ THE INSTRUCTIONS: Nearly every product comes with an owner's manual. In the first few pages it usually tells how to put the product together, how operate it, how to maintain it, and what to do if breaks down. Many people never read the owner's manual, they think they know already; saying they all work the same way. The life that we have been given comes with an owner's manual, but many of us don't read it. We think we know how to assemble our lives without it. Yet, the word of God tells us how to put our lives together, how they should operate, how to do preventive maintainence to avoid breakdowns, and what to do if something breaks. Many don't read the instructions but there are others who can't read the instructions because the language is foreign to them. Often the instructions on a product are written in several languages, but English is on the flip side. When we flip the sheet we can understand. There are many who can't understand the word of God because they are trying to read it from the wrong side of life, but once in the spirit it makes a whole lot of sense. Learning how to assemble the Christian life requires reading the manual. That's why 2 Timothy 2:15 says, "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

MISSING SCREWS: There are many people who are trying to live great lives but they are missing a few screws. Most of us remember the feeling of satisfaction when we have finally assembled a product and looked it. It looked great; then we discovered that we left out several screws and bolts. If you are like most people, you probably said, it'll be OK, and refuse to go through the trouble of putting every screw and bolt in the right place.

It is that way with our lives, too. We have most of it together, it's standing pretty good, even if we have left out a bolt or too so we don't worry about what's missing. Some are missing regular church worship, bible study, or the tithe. Some families are missing fun time, romance, and just happy days. There are some who conclude that we seem to be doing pretty good without that bolt or that screw. Leave it out. The rich young ruler came to Christ and asked what he needed to assemble his life well enough to enter the kingdom of God. He had put it all together, then Christ said, "One thing thou lackest." He needed the spirit of humility but he left it out. For us our one missing screw might be discipline, commitment or more spirituality. Life seems to work well without that one item until a few weeks later the handle bar on the bike slips out of place, then a book shelf falls, a tire falls off and our lives fall apart.. The screws are there for a reason. Life doesn't come ready to use out of the box, some assembly is required.

Batteries not included

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that many products strike fear in us when we see the words "Some Assembly Required" but we are equally frustrated by the three other words in small type, "Batteries not included."

There are many model airplanes, remote control cars and other products that once assembled can't operate without power. Usually the batteries required are AA cells, AAA cells, D cells and 9 volt batteries. Without the battery the pretty toys we buy are just expensive pieces of plastic and wood.

No matter how well they are assembled many products need power to operate.

But there are many toys on the market that operate well, but the batteries are not included.

That's the difference between the Christian that has been assembled with the help of the Holy Ghost.

The Christian life needs power, but it does not use batteries. It operates on a spiritual solar cell that is powered by the Son. The son who gives our power never goes down. David in Psalms 121:4-6 Behold, he that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber nor sleep. The LORD is thy keeper: the LORD is thy shade upon thy right hand. The sun shall not smite thee by day, nor the moon by night."

If the Holy Ghost has helped you to assemble a Godly life, God will give you the power.

Acts 1:8 says, "But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you"

You can assemble the pieces but it's the Holy Ghost who gives the power.

You can build a house but it's the Holy Ghost who makes it a home!

You can shack together in the same house but it's the Holy Ghost who makes is a marriage.

You can put together a successful profession but it's the Holy Ghost who makes it a ministry.

You can assemble group of singers but it's the Holy Ghost who makes it an angelic choir

You can assemble lights and wrap them around a tree but it takes the Holy Ghost to light up the world.

No wonder the song writer declared, "We'll walk in the light. Beautiful light. Shine all around me by day and by night, Jesus the light of the world!"

It was just a little baby in a manger, but the God we serve presented the world with a gift that once assembled would cause the world to sing, "Joy to the world, the Lord is come let earth receive her king."

It was just a little cross out on Calvary, but the God we serve presented the world with the gift of salvation that once assembled would cause the world to sing, "I once was lost but now I'm found, blind but now I see!"

It was just a little tomb in the garden, but Early Sunday morning God gave the world the gift of hope that once assembled, would cause the world to sing, "Go tell it on the mountain, over the hills and everywhere. Go tell it on the mountain that Jesus Christ is born!"

And the grace of God was upon him

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

December 30, 2007

SCRIPTURE: "And the child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom: and the grace of God was upon him." Luke 2:40

Introduction

When you look back over the road you have traveled, what accounts for your journey? There are many who credit their journey to a variety of sources including: education, opportunity, intellectual ability, connections, politics and hard work. There are some who attribute their journey to just plain luck. Many began this year praying for luck, hoping that they would be lucky enough to survive any hard times they may encounter. They also hoped they would be lucky enough to be successful in their careers and varied personal pursuits. When they reach this point they say, "I was lucky."

Was it luck that you survived the storms of life this year?

Was it luck that you overcame that family problem that plagued you?

Was it really luck that landed you the job that you sought?

The new housing opportunity that became available to you, was it by pure luck?

Some never realize the real source of their good fortune. Consider Ungrateful Gary who never gave his wife any credit for the love she had shown him over the years; it made her sad but she loved him anyway. One day Ungrateful Gary took sick and remained in coma for several months. His loving wife stayed by his bedside every day. She read to him, cared for him and loved him back to life. One day he awakened and saw her sitting by the bed holding his hand and motioned for her to come near. He whispered, "While I was in my coma I finally figured something out. When I lost my job, you were there. When I filed bankruptcy and lost the house you were there. When I was fired off my job, you were there. When I totaled the car and ended up in this coma you were there. I have finally figured it out." The wife became so excited because it finally appeared that Ungrateful Gary saw how much she loved him. Then he said, "What I found out is that every time something bad happened to me you were there. Now, I wake up out of this coma and the first face I see is yours; if I could get rid of you, my luck would change." He was so ungrateful that he could not acknowledge that without her his luck would surely change-for the worse.

While there a few who attribute their journey this year to the black eye peas and hog maws they ate on New Year's day or to the lucky rabbit's foot they rubbed or the horseshoe they placed over their door, or the four leaf clover they found; there are others who know that it wasn't luck at all. It was nothing but the grace of God.

The grace of God surrounds and strengthens us. God's grace places someone by our side in times of trouble to help us. The grace of God causes a full plate to be placed on our table when we hunger. The grace of God puts us in the hands of the right doctor, teacher, coach and mentor. Some call it luck, but those who know the Lord know that it's the grace of God.

As Christians, we reflect on the journey we have shared and often peek into the future. We know that it wasn't luck because it was grace that brought us thus far and it will be grace that will see us through.

Exposition

This text focuses on the Christ Child after Christmas; showing how the grace of God was upon his young life.

After Christmas, Mary and Joseph obeyed the Mosaic Law and presented themselves to the temple. They brought the Christ child to be dedicated, blessed and circumcised according to the Mosaic Law. In addition they came to bring their offerings of two turtledoves or two pigeons. They were met by Simeon an older man who did not see death until he had seen the savior. He was also blessed to encounter Anna the prophetess before leaving Bethlehem.

In this text the word "Grace" is translated from the Greek word "charis" which refers to the divine influence upon the heart and life of an individual in a way that is reflected in its direction and purpose. The definition seems to suggest that the recipients of God's grace are those whose hearts and lives are being directed to achieve a divine purpose.

Thus when Luke says "and the grace of God was upon him" he indicates that the life of the Christ child would be divinely influenced and directed to achieve a divine purpose.

It explains how this child was protected in the days after Christmas from soldiers of Herod who sought to kill him.

It explains how, with hundreds of soldiers searching for him, his parents were able to slip him out of the country to live in a foreign land.

It explains further, how Joseph, a poor man was able to survive and provide for his family in Egypt. Moreover, it explains how the wise men found them in Nazareth, almost two years after his birth, and brought them enough funds to carry them for many years.

All of these events were evidences of the divine influences in the child's life to help him achieve a Godly purpose.

When we follow the life of Christ, we get a clear idea of what it means to have the grace of God upon our lives.

GRACE OF GOD SERVES A DIVINE PURPOSE. When the grace of God is upon us it is for a divine purpose. Dr. H.W. Beecher relates the story of the traveler who came upon a bridge in a storm. Despite the howling winds he rode across the bridge to find lodging in an inn. The next morning he was asked how he was able to cross the bridge. The man answered he just rode across. The inn keeper took him to the bridge site and showed him that the bridge washed out days earlier. Only a strip of plank lay across the raging river and he managed to cross it in the middle of a storm, without missing a step. The traveler nearly fainted when he saw the 100 foot drop that could have been his fate. Then the innkeeper asked, "Where are you going?"He answered, "I'm delivering a vaccine to the hospital across the valley; without it hundreds will die." –The innkeeper then answered, "Now you know why you were able to do the impossible, grace carried you across the bridge because you are an answer to someone's prayers."

In the same sense, God's grace is upon us for a reason. You may be the answer to someone's prayers. We were saved from the fire for a reason. We survived the hardships of the past year for a reason. The accident we encountered should have been fatal but we survived for a reason. The conflict in your family should have destroyed your spirit but it didn't, for a reason. The people you have met have helped you out of all others, for a reason. There has been divine influence in the affairs of your life, not by chance or luck, but that you might achieve a divine purpose.

THOSE WHO ASSIST A DIVINE PURPOSE SHARE ITS GRACE. All of the people who helped the Christ child seemed to have been blessed. Simeon and Anna were blessed in their old age; the inn where he was born has blessed the town of Bethlehem for 2000 years; even the town in which he lived was blessed because it was the town of his childhood. Everyone who helps accomplish a divine purpose is blessed. We frequently refer to a widow woman in the Old Testament whose barrel never ran out of meal because of faith action. She was an example of a person being blessed because of divine purpose. The prophet Elijah was being used by God for a divine purpose. When the woman sought to help him, she found that her barrel never ran dry. She was blessed because she tried to help a man on a divine mission. Rahab hid the Jewish spies in the Promised Land; she was later blessed because she helped them.

Today, there are many people who are the recipients of residual grace, because they helped achieve a divine purpose. Those who rang the Salvation Army bells, served food to the homeless, helped the less fortunate, visited the sick, cared for wayward children or gave a helping hand many small ways are people who helped achieve a divine purpose. Many are the recipients of God's grace because they helped advance the kingdom of God in hundreds of small ways that seem insignificant but yet important to God's purpose.

THOSE WHO RECOGNIZE GRACE ARE HUMBLE: Those who realized the influence of God's grace in their lives are humble. They do not brag or consider themselves great in their own eyes because they know that without God's divine influence they would be nothing. So they are not quick to boast; they know they are empty without him. In 1 Corinthians 15:10 Paul said, "But by the grace of God I am what I am: and his grace which was bestowed upon me was not in vain; but I labored more abundantly than they all: yet not I, but the grace of God which was with me." He made it clear that whatever success he had achieved was only through the grace of God, not his own genius. He said God's grace was "bestowed" or given to him, not earned, but freely given. The Christian recognizes that he/she has been guided to this point in life, not by our own knowledge but by the wisdom and intervention of God himself. That knowledge should humble us to know that we are what we are only by his Grace.

When Grace is upon you

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider what happens when God's grace is upon you.

We know that God's grace has a divine purpose. We know that those who help in that divine purpose share in his grace. Moreover, we know that the recipients of God's grace should remain humble. But what happens when God's grace is upon you?

How does your live change when the grace of God is upon you?

When the grace of God is upon us, the wise will recognize that is not luck, but the hand of god gently nudging us in right direction.

That's when we should know that it's time to stop playing around with our lives; its time to begin to live out our purpose.

When the Christ child grew up he recognized the he was being blessed for a purpose. Even at the tender age of 12 he said "It's time for me to be about my father's business."

When grace is upon us we are about our father's business.

When grace is upon us we will be busy doing good in his name.

When grace is upon us we know that God smiles on what we do.

God smiles on us because of the children that we help along the way.

God smiles on us because of the elderly spirits that lift every day!

God smiles on us because of broken hearts we help to mend on our journey

When god's grace is upon us, it means God is smiling on us and is guiding our footsteps.

Maybe that's why the song writer wrote, "Guide me oh thou great Jehovah, pilgrim through this barren land. I am weak but thou art mighty, hold me with thy powerful hand!"

I don't know about you, but I'm glad that God has smiled on me.

When God smiles on us, he gives us:

—STRENGTH when our burdens become heavy.

—ASSURANCE when everything seems to go wrong.

—INSPIRATION when difficulties arise.

—COMFORT when disaster strikes.

Because of God's grace we are able to:

—Keep on going, when our road gets rough.

—Keep on singing, even though our pain becomes intense.

—Keep on working, even when our body gets weary.

Because God smiles on us, we have:

—Joy in spite of our sorrows: Peace in spite of our problems

—Contentment in spite of our burdens; assurance in spite of our frustrations

—Comfort in spite of our pain; Victory in spite of our defeats

No wonder the song write declared, “God has smiled on me. He has made me glad!”

I’m glad that He is a wonder working God!

I’m glad that He is a favor giving God!

I’m glad that He is a soul saving God!

I’m glad that one day he decided to pick up an old rugged cross!

I’m glad that He carried it to Golgotha’s hill!

I’m glad that He died for me out on Calvary!

But Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

No. 9293-New Year

The Year of my Increase

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 6, 2008

Scripture:"And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man." Luke 2:52

Introduction

Do you plan to do better in the New Year? Without making any specific resolutions have you decided that you will try harder to really improve your life? If so you are among millions who have also made that same decision. Unfortunately, you were also among the same number that resolved to do better last year but ended up in the same position. There is a reason some of us improved over last year; we did something differently than we did the year before and stuck with it. Others say they will improve but instead of reaching higher ground they remain stuck in sinking sand. Our goal this year, however, should be to make this year the year of our increase.

Before we can improve, we need to analyze our situation correctly and honestly. Consider the man who bought Felix the leaping frog. The man decided that he could really make it big if he took a year and taught the frog to fly. He enrolled the frog in a class that taught him time management, organizational skills and gave him a motivational talk every day. At the end of the year the class ended and the frog came home with a certificate. In the first week of the New Year he tested the frog's flying ability by throwing him out of a first floor window. The frog dropped to the ground but could not fly. Several days later the frog was dropped from the 3rd floor window. He still crashed. After a refresher course he carried the frog to the 10th floor and threw him out of the window; the frog flapped his legs but landed on a pile of rocks and died. The man analyzed all of the events of the last year and finally figured out the problem. The must have faked his grades in school, so he planned to do better in the coming year by finding himself a smarter frog!

When we analyze the reason for our missteps, it's easy to blame the frog, but we should consider whether or not our failure was based on a flawed premise to begin with. So we found our men in clubs then wonder why they don't want to spend time with us, but like hanging out at clubs. She cheated on her last boyfriend and talked to you and you are wondering why she cheats on you. You failed to learn how to add but you think if you keep taking a test on division repeatedly you'll one day you will pass. We desire to be wealthy but we spend foolishly and never save. If we are going to improve we can't blame the frog! The first step to improvement is to come to grips with the real reason for our failure to improve.

We can improve upon our present circumstance only by changing our course. If we've been working entry level jobs all of our lives, things won't change until we retrain ourselves for the next level. Some get frustrated and want the boss to pay more for entry level positions; but we never consider the possibility of increasing our skill level beyond entry level. To increase we must add something to what we had last year. We must live smarter, wiser and respond to life with more maturity if we are to increase this year.

What about our relationship with God? If we are going to increase our spirituality and get closer to God then we must improve upon what we did last year. I was a member but I gave very little service last year. I gave financially, but nothing like I should have. I prayed occasionally but not regularly. I read the bible but I avoided bible study. I came to church but I still enjoyed the party scene too. If we repeat what we did last year, we will get the same results. If we do, then we shouldn't blame your failure to increase on God or the church. We can only blame ourselves.

To increase we must add something to what we already have. We must get closer to God this year.

As Christians, our desire is to increase and improve our relationship with God. Each New Year gives us another opportunity to seek higher ground and to draw closer to him.

Exposition

This text focuses on how Christ grew toward his purpose and life's work, which was the salvation of mankind.

Luke paints three pictures of Christ. We see him as Christ the baby, small and fragile, destined to spiritual greatness. We see him as a boy, accepting the challenges of manhood. Finally we see him as an adult, shouldering the responsibility of the world as he carries the cross.

As a boy, Jesus learned many things expected of boys. Joseph was a carpenter, thus he immediately learned to be a carpenter in the Jewish tradition. He learned the scriptures early, committing them to memory as he prepared for his manhood. Yet there were other things that he was learning too, which was not common for poor boys. We know he learned to write for John 8:6 gives us an instance in which he wrote on the ground. There is little doubt that he was able to read both Hebrew and Greek. He was obviously maturing rapidly, concentrating on that which he would need to fulfill his life mission.

The Law required all Jewish men to appear before the Lord God at three major feasts in Jerusalem every year: The Passover, which included the Feast of Unleavened Bread; the Feast of Pentecost; and the Feast of Tabernacles (Exodus 23:17; Deuteronomy 16:16; Luke 2:41).

In all of the preparation for returning to Nazareth, Jesus was lost in the crowd of family members. They found him learning from and teaching the rabbis in the temple.

When they found Him, Mary's words were: Son, why have you thus dealt with us? Behold, your father and I have sought You sorrowing (2:48). And He said to them, Why is it that you searched for Me? Didn't you know that I must be about My Father's business? (2:49).

The text (Luke 2:52) then spans 18 years of time. In that span of time it explains that Christ increased in wisdom and statute as well as in favor with God and man.

Four ways we should increase

INCREASE IN WISDOM: To increase in wisdom, is to increase in discernment. Wisdom and knowledge are not the same. There are many in life who have great wisdom but do not have discernment. The old timers called discernment "common sense" or "horse sense." Every believer should want to increase in wisdom. A wise man generally leads a happy life. Proverbs 3:13 says, Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding." It is knowledge that shows us how to earn money; it's through wisdom that we are able to keep it. Good looks and charm can help us land a husband or wife but it is wisdom that shows how to keep what we have gained. It is hard work and ingenuity that helps us get to the top, but it's wisdom that teaches us how to stay on top. If we gain a lot in the coming year without the wisdom and understanding necessary to hold on to it, it will all be for nothing. That's why Proverbs 4:7 says, "Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom: and with all thy getting get understanding." As we press forward into the New Year, we should resolve that this year will be the year that we increase in wisdom and understanding.

INCREASE IN STATUE: To increase in statue involves physical growth. It also involves maturity. In fact that Greek word in the text for "statue" from "helikos" which means maturity. Although Christ was only 12 years old at the time he was lost in the temple, he was tremendously mature for his age. Maturity covers a wide range of expressions. Maturity touches on our relationships with family members. Do two grown people throw temper tantrums like children? It touches on how we handle victory and defeat; and how we receive and respond to praise? The immature Christian responds to life like a child, sees the world as a child without the ability to see deep into the realities of life. If this is to be the year of our increase we should strive to become more mature in our thinking, relationships with others, and in the way we handle the frustrations of life. We should remember 1 Corinthians 13:11 which says, "When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child: but when I became a man, I put away childish things.

FAVOR WITH GOD: To grow in favor with God means to live in such a way that God chooses us to be the main instruments of his will. Associated with that selection, comes all the things necessary for us to achieve our purpose. Mary was a woman who found favor with God. She was humbled by the selection, because of that favor she found that she was protected, directed, provided for through his grace. Jesus increased in favor. It means that each year he become more subject to the will of God and more willing to give of himself to do what God wanted done. Associated with that, despite being poor, the family carpentry business did well; resources became available to them thanks to unexpected gifts of gold, Frankincense and Myrrh; and there were no reports of disharmony in their home. To increase in favor WITH God is different from favor FROM God. Favor with God indicates how God feels about us. Favor FROM God indicates what God has done for us based on how he feels about us. Do not confuse favor with prosperity. A football player who has favor with the coach has earned his respect. He gets favor from the coach when he is called to get in the game. He is called in the game not so he personally prosper but because he can help the team win. He can take a hit and may be flipped upside down but he can score. High pay and praise may be the result but that's not why he was put in the game. We are trying to win the world for Christ. God selects us and endows us for a service because he knows we can take the world's best shots and still score. If we happen to prosper in the process, great but that's not why he put us in the game. This year, let's increase with favor in God. Let's say "Put me in coach" I'm ready to be a witness.

FAVOR WITH MAN. Christ increased in favor with man. Think back: Christ was favored by man in connection with what he did to win the favor of God. He was favored because he healed the sick, raised the dead and gave sight to the blind, but all of those miracles were performed because he was favored by God. That leads us to a great truth: believers receive the favor and praise of men because they have the favor of God. In our football example: the player who makes the touchdown receives the praise and adulation of the crowds only because he had the favor of the coach who put him in the game. What does that imply to us therefore? It may explain why some of us are always selected to get in the game: serve on the committee, chair the action, coordinate the activity, help with one ministry or another, we are selected or favored by man because it is obvious to all who see us that we are in favor with God. This means that if we intend to increase in favor among men this year, we should work to increase our efforts to earn the favor of God. Those who have the favor of their peers have their trust, support and confidence. That comes most often to those who have found favor with God.

Increase in faith

Finally, brothers and sisters, if this is to be the year of our increase then it must be the year that we increase our faith in God.

There can be no increase in wisdom, maturity, and favor with God and man unless there is a proportionate increase in our faith.

We need to increase our faith in our own abilities, assisted by the power of God.

We need to increase our willingness to step out on God's word although the waters and storms of life are raging.

The just shall live by faith. That means we walk with the Lord, not in the same old beaten path, but every year we climb higher.

Last year we were weak, but in faith, we want to increase from weakness to strength.

Last year we were defeated, but this year we want to increase from defeat to victory.

Last year we were discouraged, but this year we want to increase from discouragement to hope.

Last year we were lonely, but this year we want to increase from loneliness to comfort

Last year we were troubled, but this year we want to increase from trouble to peace of mind.

If we increase our faith this year we can do the impossible!

If we increase our faith we can reach the unreachable!

If we increase our faith we can achieve the impossible!

This faith we need for the year has been secured for you by a God who loves you. I know it's true because John 3:16 says, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life."

This faith has been assured to you by a savior who said in John 15:13, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

This is the faith that has been declared to you by a savior who promised us that no weapon formed against you shall prosper as long as you stay in the will of God.

This is the faith that was proven to you on an old rugged cross on Calvary's Hill!

This is the faith that was proven with nail scarred hands, a wounded side and a bowed down head!

This is the faith that was proven Early Sunday morning when he arose from the grave!

No. 9294-King Day

King's Forgotten Dream

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 20, 2008

SCRIPTURE: "Then the king commanded to call the magicians, and the astrologers, and the sorcerers, and the Chaldeans, for to shew the king his dreams. So they came and stood before the king. And the king said unto them, I have dreamed a dream, and my spirit was troubled to know the dream. Then spake the Chaldeans to the king in Syriack, O king, live for ever: tell thy servants the dream, and we will shew the interpretation. The king answered and said to the Chaldeans, The thing is gone from me: if ye will not make known unto me the dream, with the interpretation thereof, ye shall be cut in pieces, and your houses shall be made a dunghill. Daniel 2:2-5

Introduction

Have you ever forgotten a dream? There are some who can recall a time when you dreamed a wonderful dream but awakened only to learn that you had forgotten the dream. You knew it was a great dream but you couldn't quite remember what it was. There are some dreams we remember vividly in intricate detail, but we are troubled by those that we can't remember.

The idea of forgotten dreams does not apply to nocturnal dreams alone. There are many who have abandoned the dreams of their youth and forgotten them.

Do you remember that dream? Do you remember dreaming about your career? Do you remember dreaming about your future relationship, the kind of house you would live in and the goals you wanted to achieve? Some never abandoned their dreams and achieved many of their goals. Others were side tracked. They woke up one day, years later, realizing that they had forgotten the dreams altogether.

Martin Luther King, Jr. inspired and challenged the nation to rise up to a higher calling. He challenged America to become one that recognized the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. He spoke against unjust wars, unjust laws and injustice in the courts. He worked to eliminate poverty, organize workers and to eliminate racism and sexism on every front.

In 1963 he told the nation, as thousands assembled on the national mall in Washington D.C. listened, that he had a dream for America that was deeply rooted in the American dream. His words have been repeated by the two generations that have followed since that historic day.

Yet, as time passes, it becomes increasingly evident that while America remembers his speech, it has obviously has not fully embraced the dream or has abandoned it altogether.

In America, we remember the speech and its words of peace, but our nation still engages in unjust wars on foreign shores for the sole purpose of securing oil interests in Iraq and Iran. Yet, Dr. King dreamed of an America at peace with itself and the world.

In America, we remember the speech and its words of racial unity, but just last year over 30,000 people were still marching to protest racial injustices in Jena Louisiana.

We remember the speech and its words of brotherhood under God, but the nation is moving away from Godliness in every respect.

A new generation today is embracing the hope offered by Barack Obama who looks at Dr. King's dream and says "Yes, we can." This same generation rolls up its sleeve and prepares to take the ideas of Dr. King and put them into action in the spirit of community epitomized by Hillary Clinton in her book, "It takes a village."

As Christians, we know that God gives us dreams and their interpretations. It is incumbent upon us not to forget or abandon our dreams because they have emerged from the crucible of circumstance as symbols of our faith that God will make a way. We must keep hope alive.

Exposition

This text focuses a king who had dream but could not remember its content.

The two chief characters of the book of Daniel are Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, and Daniel, a prophet of God. In addition to the prophetic vision recorded in Daniel there is frequent reference to the ability of God to deliver his people and to reveal dark secrets.

Much of the prophetic force of the book revolves around two dreams given to King Nebuchadnezzar by God almighty.

This text focuses upon his first dream about a statue, built tall and high, composed of various elements whose fall was caused by a stone not made by hands. It was a dream of the coming kingdom of Christ.

It was a dream of something that would happen in years to come, not about something that would happen in his tenure.

It was a dream of the fall of a kingdom, but not a fall that would happen in his lifetime. It was a dream of the building of a kingdom, but not something that would happen under his authority.

This dream that revealed to him the things of God was soon "gone from him."

It became Daniel's job to tell him what he dreamed and then to tell him what it meant. With God's help Daniel was able to tell him his dream and to tell him what it meant. That was important because the dream had "gone from him."

Integration

Tamar Jacoby in her book "Someone Else's House" notes that while we have gained much since Dr. King's historic speech, much has yet to be accomplished.

The King dream in its fullest, says Jacoby, is to realize King's "vision of a single, shared community in which both blacks and whites would feel they belong" and race is not a consideration.

While our community embraces that dream in theory, for the most part we have not decided to fully embrace what Dr. King dreamed. We have torn down some of our barriers. We have desegregated, but we have not integrated. We live in desegregated neighborhoods, but for the most part we remain separated from our neighbors of a different color.

We are live by a social see-saw of values. One day we promote the King dream and the next day we hanging on to our blackness.

We want to be Miss America but we still hang on to Miss Black America.

The dream requires us to let go, but we are reluctant to do that.

The dream says, no one should refer to another as a Nr, but we still call ourselves by the very name that angers us if someone of a different race says the same thing.

We say we want to be judged by our character, but something in us still pushes us to vote for skin color over character every time.

We say with our lips that we want integration but many often belittle a student who speaks correct English as one who is acting "white."

We have come a long way toward achieving the dream, but, if the truth be told, as a people we have been reluctant to turn lose old ways.

Today, we have a modified version of Dr. King's dream that seems to yearn for whites to become less racist while we hang on to ours.

When it comes to King's dream of full integration, for many of us, "the thing has gone from me."

Economic Development

The dream of Martin Luther King involved more than racial parity. It involved revolutionary economic ideas. In fact, his ideas were so radical that many felt their wealth threatened by his dream.

In 1967, King addressed the Southern Christian Leadership Council and laid out an agenda that included using his influence to push for a guaranteed annual income for all Americans and full employment, sustained if necessary by the government. In that same speech he further endorsed the idea of promoting a redistribution of wealth, taking from the rich and sharing with the poor. In this way, he planned to eliminate poverty in America.

King's dream would require churches to plunge themselves into economic development and housing opportunities for the poor.

We have not embraced that part of the dream yet, because many of us still invest our resources in building bigger church buildings and supporting our Sheppards in lavish lifestyles.

We like to dream about eliminating poverty but only a small number of Black churches are doing more than lip service to address the problems of the poor in America; we're mostly concerned with building the treasury and bigger buildings.

When it comes to King's dream of economic development to eliminate poverty, "the thing has gone from me."

Promoted Non-Violence

A year before he was assassinated, Dr. King caused considerable controversy when he spoke against the Vietnam War, while the nation was at war.

Adam Fairclough's book, "To Redeem the Soul of America" details how Dr. King felt America's involvement in the Vietnam War was morally and politically wrong. He chided the nation for using up precious resources and lives in a fight that had nothing to do with protecting American freedom.

If King was against unjust wars, he was equally opposed to violence, lynchings, shootings, murders and black on black crime.

Today, the nation embraces the dream with our lips but we demonstrate that we are not quite ready to embrace it in practice.

Dr. King's dream would prohibit us from engaging in wars, unless our liberty was being threatened; not just our oil interests.

Dr. King's dream would be opposed to all violence and killing, including: murder, the death penalty, abortions, and black on black crime.

The man who praises Dr. King as man of non-violence hasn't yet embraced the dream if he goes home and beats his wife.

The man who perpetrates a drive by shooting of an innocent person on a street corner may say he believes in the King dream, but he is far from it.

Even when it comes to non-violence, there are many who must say, "The thing is gone from me."

King Promoted Godliness

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that while great civil rights leader, the greatest idea he promoted was the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man.

Living to the godly ideal was the essence of the King dream. We all fall short of the ideal; King fell short himself, but yet it is the goal of every believer.

We should never get to the place where our faith slips away from us and we say with Nebuchadnezzar, "The thing is gone from me."

Today, America embraces Dr. King's dream with its lips but in every area of our civic life we are attempting to place distance between ourselves and God.

The dream is for us to have one nation under God!

The dream is for us to boldly say what's written on our money, "In God we trust!

The dream is for us to hold to God's unchanging hand!

This dream did not begin with Martin Luther King, it is a dream given to the world by Christ himself.

It is a dream that one day, the wicked will cease from troubling and the weary would be at rest!

It is a dream that one day, every valley shall be exalted and every mountain shall be made low!

It is a dream that carried Christ to Calvary. It is the dream that motivated him to die on an old rugged cross.

It is a dream that was reinvigorated by his resurrection, early one Sunday morning.

It is this faith of our fathers that has kept our dreams alive.

It is the faith of the sainted warriors of our past who kept our hope alive!

As each succeeding generation marches toward its destiny, it is important that each generation familiarize itself with the dream of Dr. King and countless others who have lifted their voices to say, "I have dreamed a dream."

We must hear Frederick Douglass dreaming of our eventual freedom from slavery.

We must hear Booker T. Washington dreaming of the skilled and trained Negro workforce.

We must hear W.E.B. Dubois dreaming of the day when our thinking and intelligence would be self evident.

We must hear Marcus Garvey dreaming of the day when we would be proud of our blackness.

We must hear A. Phillip Randolph dreaming of the day when the working man of color would get his fair share.

We must hear Malcolm X dreaming of a day that we will thirst for freedom by any means necessary.

We must hear Shirley Chisholm dreaming about a day when our leaders will be boss, black and unbought.

We must hear Jesse Jackson dreaming of the day when we move from the outhouse to the White house.

We must hear Thurgood Marshall dreaming of the day when justice will run down like waters from the Supreme Court

We must hear General Colin Powell dreaming of a day when we shall study war no more.

Every believer must not forget the dream and what it really means.

We must say in the words of James Weldon Johnson:

"God of our weary years, God of our silent tears. Thou who has brought us thus far along the way.

Thou who has by the might, led us into the light, keep us forever in the path we pray.

Lest our feet, stray from the places our God where we met thee.

Lest our hearts, drunk of the world we forget thee.

Shadowed beneath thy hand, may we forever stand. True to our God; true to our native land!

Amen.

Ring My Bell

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 27, 2008

SCRIPTURE:"And beneath upon the hem of it thou shalt make pomegranates of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, round about the hem thereof; and bells of gold between them round about: A golden bell and a pomegranate, a golden bell and a pomegranate, upon the hem of the robe round about. And it shall be upon Aaron to minister: and his sound shall be heard when he goeth in unto the holy place before the LORD, and when he cometh out, that he die not. And thou shalt make a plate of pure gold, and grave upon it, like the engravings of a signet, HOLINESS TO THE LORD." EXODUS 23:33-36

Introduction

In your lifetime, have you actually heard a church bell ring? There are many who can recall a time when the bells of churches actually rang. It was a common occurrence. Bells of churches rang to give warnings, calls to worship, and to celebrate. Nearly every church had a bell. In fact, the architecture of churches of the past required that a tower be erected to house a bell. Churches raised thousands of dollars to buy expensive bells that sometimes weighed as much as 1,000 pounds.

In the past, nearly every church had a bell ringer. The bell ringer was important because he was the man who lived close by who always rang the bell to alert others of an important matter, to invite them to worship or announce a celebration. These bell ringers were church members who took upon themselves the responsibility to communicate with others messages of importance to the local community.

For most of the 20th century those few churches that still rang bells used them to announce a death in the community. The ringing of the church bell became synonymous to a death notice.

Despite their popularity for centuries however, there is a generation among us that has never heard a church bell ring? New churches that are constructed do not have bell towers. The cost of installing bells is staggering. Those that do have bells seldom ring them as lawsuit weary trustees worry that the vibrations from the huge iron and bronze bells could shake the buildings, fall and injure someone resulting in lawsuits.

The fact that few in this generation have heard a church bell ring, might reflect a growing trend in America, that is moving away from serving God to be served by God. If God cannot be of service, the many are choosing not to worship at all.

Today's youth are living in a generation that knows very little about God and less about being a Christian. A recent report by the Consultants for Religious Tolerance, an international religious study group, showed that the number of Americans claiming to be Christian was 86% in 1990 and has been declining by 1 percent a year ever since, even though the population has been growing at nine percent per year. Americans are shifting. They are studying less about religion and have gradually shifted from denominations such as Baptist or Methodist to non-denominations which are less demanding, then to just "believing in God" and finally to not having any real religious life at all.

A new generation of churches have arisen that are trying to appeal to the those with no religious life, noting that they do have to change anything they are doing; just think positive and be blessed. To attract larger crowds God is being marketed like Burger King's slogan, "Have it your way." Anyway you want to come. Anyway you want to dress. Anyway you want to live.

Those who follow this new trend have dropped anything that is traditional from the worship such as hymns, Dr. Watts, traditional gospel music and liturgy. In its place are gospel rap, Gospel Hip Hop, praise teams, high energy praise dancers, extensive technology, laser shows and highly emotional worships. There is very little emphasis on repentance or the crucifixion and resurrection of Christ for moral atonement. Instead there is increased emphasis upon coming to worship to be blessed and to prosper.

Church bells may not ring anymore but God still needs bell ringers! He still needs witnesses in this generation. While there are many new ways to worship God, there is no reason why both the old and the new cannot be embraced. As we build new bridges there is no reason to burn those that brought us over. In this generation, God needs young people, who will ring the bell for him; who will be his witness and testify to his goodness.

As Christians, we are commanded to go to every part of the world and be witnesses for Christ. We commanded to sound the alarm, call the lost to Christ and pronounce the glory of the Lord wherever we go. The bells on the churches may be silent but our testimony must be loud and clear: God is great and his mercy endureth forever!"

Exposition

This text focuses on the precise instructions given by God for the making of the priest's robes, including the peculiar use of bells.

In this text God gives Moses some very specific instructions concerning the construction of the High Priestly garment for Aaron. Moses was specifically required to make the garment with gold bells that were to be sewn onto the hem of the ephod so that the sound of the bells, as he moved inside the Holy Place could be heard. Whenever the priest moved those who heard the bells knew that he was not dead but still alive. The entire priest garment was topped by a shield that had the words Holiness to the Lord inscribed upon it.

The idea of bells declaring the holiness of God is also reflected in Zechariah 14:20, "In that day shall there be upon the bells of the horses, "Holiness unto the

The bells announced the presence of God in the affairs of men. The priests were constantly moving before God. The horses of Zechariah had bells on them wherever they went. It was a prophetic view of a day that would come when the declarations of God's goodness would be declared by many, wherever they go; they would declared, "Holiness unto the Lord."

It is significant that the bells worn by the priests indicated that they were alive and well. This is important because the priests also announced warnings to the people if they were straying away from God as well as proclamation about God's ultimate goodness and mercy upon the people.

Worship Bell

Traditionally, church bells called believers to worship. The ringing of the church bell reminded all of the sacredness of holy days and the necessity of assembling for worship.

Church bells are growing silent in this generation, not just on the buildings but in the general community.

Sunday, a day once reserved for worship has been overrun by the demands of the marketplace. Business is now conducted on Sunday in many parts of the nation. Casinos, bars and restaurants and clubs are now allowed to be opened on Sundays because they can generate more revenues for local governments.

The worship bell is growing silent; not the bell on the church but the witness and testimony of the people of God who continuously elect persons to government leadership positions who disrespect the Lord's day be secularizing it to a point it is no longer a holy day.

Yet, God needs someone in this generation who will ring the bell for his holy days and will testify to the importance of worship in the life of every believer. In Matthew 5:14 Jesus said, "Ye are the light of the world, a city that sits on a hill that cannot be hidden."

When we worship God we agree with Johann Neethling and, "declare the truth about God's worth, God's honor, God's greatness, and God's love. We declare it to Him, we declare it to host of heaven, and we declare it to all creation."

When we assemble on Sundays each believer rings a bell that says to the world, God is a good God and we believe it!

Beyond that, we ring our bells every day by the quality of the work we do, the integrity that we demonstrate, the genuineness of our friendship and love, our humility, our compassion, our kindness and thoughtfulness, our generosity, and our readiness to serve and to give.

Warning Bell

Bells have also been used to give warnings. In the past, whenever a community faced imminent danger the church bell would ring. It sound traveled through the hills and echoed in the valleys; its tone meant trouble was forthcoming.

This generation isn't hearing the church bells much because the church has become awfully silent on many of the issues of life. Taking stands on God's word is not popular, it reduces crowds and diminishes offerings; so warning bells are infrequently heard.

The church bears the responsibility to alarm the world around us that while God certainly is a God of love and mercy – he is also a Holy God, a righteous God, a God of justice who hates sin and evil.

This generation needs to hear the few warning bells that still ring out that some of our ways anger God.

God is not pleased with the growing number of people embracing homosexual lifestyles. While he still loves the people he will not sanction homosexual and lesbian marriages.

While God gives a woman the right to choose, he is not pleased when she chooses to use her choice to kill the unborn through abortion.

God is not pleased with rapid increase in divorces, increased alcoholism and drug dependency, thefts and murders.

There is a generation that has not heard the warning bells, all they have heard is the politically correct ideas being promoted in the marketplace and on television.

If our witness is silent then the church will be held responsible for our failure to sound the alarm and announce that danger is ahead.

Celebration Bell

Bells are used to celebrate significant and special moments in our lives. There are still areas of the country that ring church bells when a couple gets married or to announce great achievements by the community or the church.

The church announces to the world that our God is a God of happiness, joy and restoration.

Christians are happy people who enjoy living happy holy lives in Christ.

This generation isn't hearing the celebration bells of the church anymore. Too many churches neglect the development of the young to the point that they cannot feel the joy of the church only its condemnation, lectures, sermons and a long list of "Can't do","Can't go","Catch Watch" and "Can't listen to."

This generation needs to hear the joy bells ringing. It needs to know that being a Christian is great! It needs to hear the testimonies of those who have learned the joy of the Lord and are intoxicatingly happy as the walk with the King.

They should see how Christians celebrate marriage, birthdays and have fun!

They need to hear the bells ring! They desperately need to know that being a Christian is not a death sentence but a step up to the abundant life.

They need to hear the joy bells ring!

We need to celebrate with the believer whose soul was saved by the blood of Christ!

We need to celebrate with the woman who survived breast cancer because of the grace of God!

We need to celebrate with the man who overcame alcoholism to live a full and happy life with his family!

This generation needs to hear the joy bells ring!

Victory Bell

Finally, brothers and sisters this generation must hear the victory bell that comes through faith in Jesus Christ our Lord!

In July of 1776 a bell tolled from Independence Hall in Pennsylvania, it proclaimed the words of Leviticus 25:10, "Proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof."

That bell became known as the Liberty Bell.

Despite its historical renown, the bell in Pennsylvania cannot resonate louder than the shouts of saved believers praising God for their victory over sin and the grave.

When believers think about the goodness of the Lord they have to tell somebody.

When I think about how good the Lord has been, I have to ring my bell!

I don't know about you but I've got to tell somebody! If I can't say a word, I'll just wave my hand!

I've got to tell somebody that God will pick you up and turn you around! I've got to ring my bell!

I've got to tell somebody that God will answer your prayer! I've got to ring my bell!

I've got to tell somebody about Jesus, who died out on Calvary! I've got to ring my bell!

I've got to tell somebody that early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave!

I've got to tell somebody that he's alive today!

I've got to tell somebody I've got to ring my bell!

An Honorable Discharge

A Sermon By Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: Thou therefore endure hardness, as a good soldier of Jesus Christ. No man that warreth entangleth himself with the affairs of this life; that he may please him who hath chosen him to be a soldier.2 Timothy 2:3-4 "Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life, whereunto thou art also called, and hast professed a good profession before many witnesses. 1 Timothy 6:12

Introduction

Has anyone from your family ever served in the military? There are very few families that have never had any of its members to serve in the military. There are a few that have long histories of producing men and women who have given of themselves to serve and protect our nation's freedom. These veterans know the importance of God and country because they have served meritoriously as a part of the nation's defense operation.

Saints who spend their lives helping others and serving in the kingdom of God are soldiers in the army of God. They volunteered for the service, with the full knowledge that being in God's army requires sacrificial service that may not draw the accolades of society. They knew it could be dangerous! Like good soldiers, every saint stands ready to defend the faith regardless of the cost.

Today, a soldier who knows the Lord serves in two armies: One for the nation and one for the Son of God.

As Christians, we strive to serve God to the fullest every day. We stand ready as a soldier to serve and protect the kingdom of God. We have the joy of knowing that our honorable service will be rewarded.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul's instruction to Timothy concerning service in the kingdom of God.

Paul uses three similitudes to demonstrate to Timothy how his life work can please God. He referred to the commitment of a soldier in verses three and four, the discipline of an athlete in verse five and the persistence of a farmer in verse six.

Paul uses the similitude of a soldier to describe the Christian life.

As Paul wrote to young Timothy he pointed to the Roman military as his example because military service then, as it does now, involves self-sacrifice, endurance, discipline, vigilance, obedience, ready cooperation with others, sympathy, enthusiasm, and loyalty.

Every believer pleases God if he enters kingdom service with the commitment of a soldier. This was a important comparison for Paul because the Roman Soldier was selected for service in the legions partially on his commitment to Rome and the Emperor. Soldiers who were committed fought harder, complained less and endured more than all others. They stood head and shoulders above the rest because their commitment was based upon a love for God and country and not personal glory.

To be a good soldier, Paul said young Timothy should be prepared to "endure hardness"(v3) with a sense of commitment and loyalty. It also required a sense of commitment. In Paul's mind, commitment meant having a singleness of purpose. One goal, one mark, one prize is all that was before him, all others were secondary.

Volunteers make the best soldiers:

There are three types of soldiers: Draftees, volunteers and mercenaries. A draftee serves because he is required to do so under threat of imprisonment. A draftee has reservations about his service and would quit if given the option. A mercenary is a soldier for hire. He fights for any army willing to pay him, has little devotion for the cause and fights for the money and the money alone. A soldier who volunteers believes in the cause and does so out a love for his country.

The military has learned that volunteers make the best soldiers.

The same is true about those who choose to be soldiers in the army of the Lord. Those who decide to take up the Christian life should not enlist because they are being drafted against their will. Neither should they become a Christian because they think it's a short cut to prosperity and blessings. Those who serve in the army of the Lord are those who believe in the kingdom of God. They volunteer to teach, preach, sing, or witness. Because of their volunteer spirit, they remain committed to the cause of Christ long after all others have gone. They also go the extra mile because they are soldiers in the army of the Lord.

When does this idea begin? For the military it might be inspired by the visit of a recruiter or the enticement of a television commercial. However, for the army of God it begins when the home teaches children what is necessary to motivate them to be soldiers in the army of the Lord. They are trained to say their prayers, read the bible and inspired to live the Christian life by choice. The home encourages them to volunteer their services for the Lord.

Know his colors

When a man joins a military unit he operates under the colors or shield of his regiment. The shield tells the story of all of those who have gone before and what the unit is about. The 11th Bomber Squadron at Barksdale Air Force base, for example, is known as the "school house" for bomber training. It is the only unit in the world providing all aspects of B-52 aircrew training. The best of the best come to Barksdale for 127 days of training. It has produced some of the nation's best aviators since 1917 when it was organized. Even its maintenance crew is among the best in the world; these men, who do not fly airplanes, know how to keep them flying year after year. A soldier who serves there learns quickly that he is a part of something bigger and more historic than himself.

The same is true of the Christian soldier, when we begin our faith journey we are introduced to the historic roll call of faith bearers is listed in Hebrews 11 each preceded by the words "by faith." By the grace of God we strive to walk nobly in the footsteps of those who have gone before us.

In the same sense every Christian soldier should know the Christian warriors in your family. From generation to generation we should know our ancestors, their weaknesses and strengths. We know the unique way that God has blessed our families

Obedience and discipline are needed

A boy joins the military and a few months later he returns home a man. What makes him a man? The uniform? Certainly not.

He becomes a man as the result of the rigid training ritual he endures, usually called "Boot Camp."

He learns what it takes to be a soldier. He learns to march and live in sync with others. He learns to take orders, respect leadership and how to follow the chain of command. He learns when and how to speak up and when to keep his mouth closed. He learns how to conduct himself as a gentleman and accept others as brothers.

In short, he learns how to obey.

Anyone who expects to be a soldier in the army of the Lord must learn the same. It's not the uniform that makes him a soldier, it is his faith in God and his willingness to discipline himself to follow the will of God.

It's the discipline to learn the bible.

It's the discipline to obey God rather than man.

It's the discipline to have our steps ordered by Lord.

Boot camp for the military begins when a child leaves home but the soldier in the army of the Lord first learns discipline at home. He learns to obey the rules of his home, then the church and the greater community. He learns to budget his time and money wisely and he learns respect for those in authority. Those who want to be soldiers in the army of the Lord need discipline and self control

The Discharge

Finally, brothers and sisters, when a tenure of a soldier is complete he looks forward to going home; to do that lawfully he needs a discharge.

In the closing scenes of the Movie "Glory," which told the story of the 54th Massachusetts during the Civil War, the soldiers were preparing to attack an armed fort with the full knowledge that many of them might die. The commander looked at the flag bearer and asked the question, "If this man should fall in battle, who will pick up the flag?" That flag bearer did fall and another soldier picked it up.

The question before us today remains the same, if this soldier has fallen, who will pick up the banner?"

Who among his classmates, friends and family members will pick up the banner?

Who will demonstrate the character needed to be the next loving husband to one wife alone?

Who will step forward to be the next caring father and obedient son?

Who will step forward to be the next faithful servant of the most high God?

Now that a soldier has fallen, who will pick up the blood stained banner and stand tall for our Lord?

I heard the old warriors say, "We are soldiers in the army. We have to fight although we have to cry. We've got hold up the blood stained banner. We've got to hold it up until we die."

When a soldier joins the army he enlists, but when he gets out he gets a discharge. But a good soldier doesn't want just any kind of discharge; there's a certain one he's looking for because the benefits of being a soldier depends on the kind of discharge he receives.

If he has served meritoriously but has had a few problems, he may receive a general discharge, it's O.K. but he does not get all of the benefits.

If his misconduct has brought shame to the service, he might receive a "Less than Honorable discharge"; it's not the worse but it does not carry any benefits either.

If he has been court-martialed and found guilty of violating the uniform code of military justice, he will get a dishonorable discharge. A dishonorable discharge is the kiss of death. Very few people will hire you, government jobs are closed to you and your chances of moving up in life are limited. Despite your service, there are no benefits.

But if you've been a good soldier and you were faithful to your wife.

If you've been a good soldier and you were a loving dad to your daughter.

If you've been a good soldier and you were an obedient and loving son.

If you've been a good soldier and you served honorable in the service of the Lord;

You can expect to receive on the wings of an angel, an honorable discharge and all of its benefits.

That's what I like about serving in the army of the Lord, being a soldier for the Lord, has so many benefits.

That's why David in Psalm 103:2 said, "Bless the Lord oh my soul and forget not all his benefits."

That's why Psalm 116:12 asks, "What shall I render unto the Lord for all of his benefits toward me?"

Paul wrote Timothy and told him that he had received his discharge notice and he was looking forward to receiving the benefits of salvation.

I can hear him saying, “I have fought the good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith, henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, but not for me alone..”

For one of these old days, somebody in the 11th Bomber Squadron at Barksdale Air Force Base, will receive a discharge notice from the commander in chief.

Paul told Timothy when the battle is over, we shall wear a crown!

Until that day we must continue to put on the whole armor of God and tell the story!

We must tell the world about Jesus!

Tell them that he lived!

Tell that he one day he died!

Tell them that Early Sunday morning he arose from the dead with all power in his hands!

On January 24, 2008 William Broadway Smith, III took his last breath as soldier in the armed forces of this nation and in the army of the Lord. On the wings of angel he received an honorable discharge.

Don't Leave Until the Game is Over

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 2008

SCRIPTURE*: "And all the people that came together to that sight, beholding the things which were done, smote their breasts, and returned. And all his acquaintance, and the women that followed him from Galilee, stood afar off, beholding these things." Luke 23:48-49; For a just man falleth seven times, and riseth up again: but the wicked shall fall into mischief. Proverbs 24:16*

Introduction

Have you ever looked at the scoreboard, predicted the outcome and left a game before it was over? There are times when we leave early and find out that what seemed obvious changed and the outcome was different than we expected. Sometimes when we leave early we miss the good part! Nobody likes to miss the good part!

Often, we leave an event or an activity early to avoid traffic or to make another appointment on time. When such an occasion comes we try to stay until it appears that we have entertained the climatic moment and the conclusion is predictable.

Often our favorite team is losing the game. The final minutes of the contest are approaching but it appears the outcome won't change. In our car radio we hear, the good part!

Miraculously our team comes from behind and wins! We left before the good part!

Often we leave a movie early, after it appears that the outcome is obvious, only to learn that we left too early! It had a totally different and surprising conclusion. We missed the good part!

Our hero was losing the boxing match in every round. His face was mauled and he appeared spent. We couldn't bear to watch any more and left before the match ended. We learned later that in the last round our hero rose up with a mighty gust of power and defeated his opponent. Again, we missed the good part!

As many watch today's Super bowl game many will probably assume that the New England Patriots will win the game because they are undefeated. Yet the New York Giants have been known to come from behind and win. In fact the Giants have made it to the Super bowl by coming from behind in all three of their playoff victories. If they are losing, it would not be unusual for them to come from behind in the last 10 minutes of the game. The Giants have led the league with five fourth quarter victories. The reason you can't leave before the game is over is while the Giants are first in come back wins, the Patriots are second; they had four fourth quarter wins last year. Both teams are known for come back victories. Don't change your channel or give up on your team; anything could happen!

It all means that no one should leave before the game is over.

Those who stay to the end have learned one of life's most important lessons it may not always be wise to leave before the game is over.

In our quest for self improvement the saints of God remind the world that we may be knocked down on occasion, but don't count us out! Don't leave before my game is over!

As Christians, we are encouraged each time we think of the life and death of Christ. We see the events that day and how people gave up on him and we see ourselves. Our faith teaches us, not to give up, even if we are nailed to a cross..stick around until our games are over.

Exposition

This passage of scripture considers the attitude of the crowd at the death of Christ.

The crowd that observed the crucifixion was mixed. In its midst were supporters of Christ, many of whom were silent in their love for him. It also included the high priests who demanded his death, soldiers and the curious. All had assembled to watch the events of the crucifixion as they unfolded.

Since no one had ever been known to survive a crucifixion, once the process had begun, the outcome was predictable. The man nailed to the cross was doomed to die. End of story.

When the spectacular events stopped, there was only silence. The limp body of a fallen leader was hanging on the cross!

It was at this point that this text notes that the crowd, having apparently seen all that there was to see began to disperse. Verse 48 simply says that they came to see the sight, they saw the things that were done, smote their breasts and "returned." Even his disciples moved far away, including the women that stood so close were now far away. They waited for a great miracle that would have prevented his death. As they started considering their own safety, they moved away from the cross, and watched from a distance.

All parties thought it was over! There had been thunder and lightning, but it was over! The veil of the temple was split, but it was over! The ground shook, but it was over! They "smote their breasts, and returned."

Those that left thought it was over! They left depressed, sad and disheartened! They were disappointed.

However they left too soon! They left before it was over! They counted Jesus out before the match had ended!

An angel asked the women who came to the tomb the important question: "Why seek ye the living among the dead?" The events that occurred three days and three nights earlier were only a part of the story! But the rest of the story is the good part!

Don't Give Up

As believers, our quest to achieve godly goals is never left unchallenged. Every dream that we have is met by an obstacle or challenge. Each time we try to take a step forward there is an unseen force working equally hard to push us backward. Whether the goal is secular or purely spiritual in nature there will be a challenge. Our challenge is not to give up. There are three truths to be considered in this respect.

WE WILL FALL MANY TIMES: Solomon in the book of Proverbs notes in Proverbs 24:16 that a man or woman who is living according to God's rules falls. He did not say that there is a probability that the good people will fall or that that it his highly possible. He noted that the just fall not once but seven times. (Seven being a complete number here meaning many times). If you stop there you will leave before the gave is over. You will not see the whole essence of our struggle in this life. The rest of our story as believers comes after the comma; "and riseth up." In essence, "We fall down, but we get up." If anyone judges you when you are down, they make a mistake, tell them they will find your final end behind the comma. But not only will they find your final end, they will also find their own because the rest of the verse says, "But the wicked shall fall into mischief."

ENEMIES HAVE COUNTED US OUT! The first groups of people at the crucifixion site were the enemies and curiosity seekers. Many of us have experienced many troubling moments in life. We have been knocked down, set back, trampled upon, walked on, stomped, persecuted, violated, ridiculed and dogged. We have felt the bitter sting of the cutting remarks of our enemies. We have felt the foot of our oppressors on our necks. There are many who have been knocked down in every round of life. Lost jobs, broken marriages, failures, disappointments, death and lost opportunities have dealt very powerful punches that have floored even the strongest believers. Many, watching from a distance, believe because we have been floored so many times that the outcome is inevitable. Don't leave! It ain't over until it's over!

The critics see struggling souls on thousands of crosses! They see men who have dropped out of school, failed in a pursuit or otherwise in a hopeless situation and they drop their heads saying it is all over! They see people living in poverty; or trapped in the claws of ignorance and they respond "it's all over!" They see drug dealers, prostitutes and hustlers and they say, "It's all over!" The message to the critics is simple, "Don't count any saint out because a just man falleth seven times, and riseth up again!

DON'T COUNT YOURSELF OUT: The second group is represented by those in verse 49, "All his acquaintances and the women that followed him.." These were his disciples and other believers. Not only had the critics counted the Christian cause out, but they disassociated themselves from the cross! They counted themselves out! They had to be reminded of the words of Christ when he told them that he would be crucified but would rise again after three days and nights. They had to be reminded because they forgot.

It would be tragic if a believer who knows the word of God and believes in the power of God would do to himself what the world has already done by counting himself out! The reality is that believers expect to be hit by the experiences of life. On occasion, we expect to be knocked down. But each time we are knocked down we get back up! That's why Paul wrote in Romans 8:37, "Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us." Therefore we are not intimidated when hit by principalities, powers, present conditions, a bad past or anything else; nothing, "shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." John put it this way in 1 John 5:4, "For whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world: and this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith." Romans 8:28 put it this way, "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose."

Don't count yourself out; a just man falleth seven times, and riseth up again:

Don't Leave

Finally, brothers and sisters, it would be a mistake for anyone to assume that a person who is following the word of God can be defeated by the antagonisms of this world. Whenever a saint is down in the game of life, don't leave until the game is over!

Many people now find themselves in the fourth quarter of life and trailing by three touchdowns. In football and in life, the game is not over until the time runs out. Don't leave until the game is over.

The biblical record is filled with instances that show indicate that its unwise to leave before the game is over, because God seems to get in a believer's life in fourth quarter.

Joseph's life was destined to greatness! He saw himself doing something great for God. But his dream met head on with that of his brothers who were equally determined to stop him. They threw him in a pit. It appeared that it was over, his brothers left him there thinking that his game was over. But God raised him from the pit and placed him in the palaces of Egypt. It just proves that a just man falleth seven time but riseth up again. Don't leave until the game is over!

Samson was a strong man who was brought down, chained and blinded. As he stood in chains without strength or sight it appeared that it was over, until we look at the rest of the story! He repented for his sins and slew thousands of Philistines in his last and final act!

Job was a pitiful sight. Once strong, wealthy and healthy he was broken to a poor man with ill health. Job's story looked to be one of defeat, until we see the rest of the story! He was blessed more after his trial than he had been before! All of these went to prove that we should never count a saint of God out just because they are down! Stick around! Wait for the rest of the story! Remember a just man falleth seven times, and riseth up again:

Over 5,000 people found out that there is a blessing in waiting to get the rest of the story! When it looked like there was nothing to eat, some may have left to go home. They should have stuck around they would have enjoyed a feast!

When the winds were blowing mightily the disciples thought their ship would sink, some believed it was all over! But the good part was not in the storm, it was in the rest of the story! Jesus rose to rebuke the wind saying peace be still!

I don't know about you but I'm glad to know that we serve a God that can help us to come back even in the fourth quarter of life, when we have failed miserably and fallen behind.

We serve a God who can take:

—Defeat and turn it into victory; failure and turn it into success

—Misfortune and turn it into good fortune; Tragedy and turn it into opportunity

—Blunders and turn them into wonders; Doubts and wipe them out!

At Calvary the world thought the Savior was out, but they learned what we now know when it comes to people of God, don't leave until the game is over!

They buried him, thinking it was over!

But Early Sunday morning he arose!

A good man falleth seven times, but riseth up again!

Running With The Horses

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 2008

SCRIPTURE: If thou hast run with the footmen, and they have wearied thee, then how canst thou contend with horses? and if in the land of peace, wherein thou trustedst, they wearied thee, then how wilt thou do in the swelling of Jordan? Jeremiah 12:5

Introduction

Do you feel that you are ready to handle greater responsibility? Our present condition is always a precursor to something greater. No matter how difficult our present circumstance may appear we must always remember that it is only a proving ground for more challenging days that may come in the future. Today's strong wind may be tomorrow's hurricane. Today's dry spell may be tomorrow's drought. Today's headache is tomorrow's migraine. Whatever we are experiencing today is just practice for more challenging times to come.

A believer who is asked to serve as a deacon or trustee of the church is an individual who has met the biblical test of prior service. Many think there is a difference between biblical prerequisites for a deacon and a trustee; with the latter requiring less. In actuality, all church leaders have the same moral and faith requirements. Trustees are legal entities required by the government to hold responsibility for corporations. Yet, those selected as trustees should meet the same requirements of any person serving as an elder of the church.

1 Timothy 3:10 urges believers to exercise care in the selection of elders, whether they are preaching, teaching, helping or business elders. They must be "first proved." The same admonition is given in 1 Timothy 5:22 which says, "Lay hands suddenly on no man…" The idea is that any person considered for the sacred service of church administration should have proven himself while "walking with the footmen" before being selected to "run with the horses."

Therefore, all of those who are selected to lead the people of God should have been tried in the fires of life's experiences and having shown a propensity toward spiritual understanding and guidance.

As Christians, we know that every experience we have in life is preparatory for something bigger. Those who are asked to lead in the kingdom are those who have been tested in life's crucible and are ready for more difficult and demanding tasks. Those who serve, do so with the greatest joy because their service helps bring the kingdom of God into a greater realization.

Exposition

This text finds the prophet Jeremiah being told that his present experiences were proving grounds for the great work to come.

Jeremiah was one of the great prophets of Judah. Prior to being elevated to a greater ministry, Jeremiah had been proven by God. His preparation wasn't in a classroom but in the community. During times of peace, God gave him the unpopular task of prophesying about the fall of Jerusalem. He was immediately persecuted and his life was threatened as the number of his detractors and enemies increased.

When Jeremiah complained God answered that if he found his present circumstances difficult, his future situation would be even more difficult (Jer. 12:5). God used two metaphors to make this point: a race and a cross-country walk. If Jeremiah had raced with men on foot and was complaining about being worn out, how could he hope to compete later when he would have to run with horses? If he could trust in God only in a time of peace, how would he manage when the going got tough?

The phrase, "Contend with horses" refers to the next level of service. In peace Jeremiah had to prove that he could handle the verbal abuse and threats leveled at him. A time of war was approaching, when his ministry would also be needed but the pressures would be greater.

Thus, Jeremiah found it incumbent upon himself to prove that he could not only walk with the footmen in times of peace, but that he could also, "run with the horses" when the going became tough.

Get Ready to Run with the Horses

The word for deacon in Greek means "servant." The word for Trustee comes from a Hebrew word in Genesis 15:2 "ben-meshk" which means "son of acquisition." The title was associated with Eliezer who was a trustee or steward to Abraham; responsible for all of Abraham's possessions. He was available whenever Abraham needed him, was fully committed and deeply loyal. He constantly sought God's guidance to serve Abraham well.

Deacons and trustees are believers who serve as loyal guardians of the faith and physical properties of the people of God.

It is a task that will certainly require those selected to be able to run with the horses.

What does it take to serve as a deacon or trustee? What does it take to run with the horses?

TOUCHED BY GOD: Those who want to run with the horses must first show that they walk with Lord. Jesus told Nicodemus: "You must be born of the spirit." No believer who assumes the role of a church deacon or trustee can expect to please God if that person does not know the Lord for himself. Thus, all of a believer's past experiences come together to demonstrate a faith in God in matters of the spirit. That means those chosen to serve have proven themselves to be persons who can walk by faith. They have proven it in their personal lives and in their relationship with the church. Most often, such a person will feel inadequate. The feeling of adequacy is natural because it admits human limitations and requires a dependence on God. Such persons have learned that God is able to do what they cannot do alone so they plunge into life with a positive spirit. In the words of Martin Luther, "God carves the rotten wood and rides the lame horse." Or in the more recent words of former Oakland Raiders coach John Madden, "Don't worry about the horse being blind. Load up the wagon."

Those selected to serve in the highest levels of church leadership need God's spirit to lead them as they start to run with the horses.

WILLING TO BE OBEDIENT: Those selected to run with the horses have already been trained in the school of life, to a certain degree, except on a lower level. However, once they move into a higher level of leadership they must submit to a higher order of training; a discipline that requires them to be obedient to God in every respect. Arabian horses go through rigorous training in the deserts of the Middle East. The trainers require absolute obedience from the horses, and test them to see if they are completely trained. The final test is almost beyond the endurance of any living thing. The trainers force the horses to do without water for many days. Then he turns them loose and of course they start running toward the water, but just as they get to the edge, ready to plunge in and drink, the trainer blows his whistle. The horses who have been completely trained and who have learned perfect obedience. They turn around and come pacing back to the trainer. They stand there quivering, wanting water, but they wait in perfect obedience. When the trainer is sure that he has their obedience he gives them a signal to go back to drink. Those who want to run with horses must be trained to obey God's will completely and fully. That means to stop in full stride if God says so or to leap or race if he gives the command. They obey the word of God and remember that it better to "obey God rather than man."

ABLE TO TAKE CARE OF BUSINESS: Those selected to run with the horses should be able to "take care of the business" of the church. Deacons and trustees adhere to theological principles about their moral conduct and sound business practices as they handle the resources of the church. They know that they are called upon to look after the financial well being of the congregation. Romans 12:11 reminds us that such leaders should not be "slothful in business; fervent in spirit; serving the Lord. This requires any deacon or trustee to have personal integrity and an understanding of responsible business practices. A trustee who can't manage the finances of his own house is not able to "walk with the footmen" and is certainly no able to "run with the horses." A trustee who leaves his own house in disrepair may not be ready to "run with the horses" when it comes to seeing after the business of the church. A deacon who makes reckless gambles with his own resources as he walks with the footmen may be inclined to do the same with the church's resources after he is selected to "run with the horses."

Those selected to serve as deacons and trustees there must show that they are able to take care of business for the Lord. That means that they are ready to run with the horses.

Serving the Lord has it rewards

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must note that those who run with horses and run well, will get a crown of life.

Every now and then it is good for believers to remember that serving the Lord does pay off after awhile. The same is true for those who lead in the church. The reward is great because their task is greater than the ordinary believer.

Those who serve as deacons and trustees have been called to run with the horses; that won't be an easy job because there are so many kinds of horses in the world to deal with.

You may have to run with STALLIONS. Stallions are aggressive and pushy. It takes a special kind of person to deal with stallions because they try to push their ideas through and will trample all others. If called upon to run with stallions, be prepared to run and not get weary.

You may have to run with PONIES. Ponies are known for their gentleness and intelligence. Sometimes ponies can be stubborn and even devious. If called upon to run with ponies, be prepared to trust in the Lord with all thine heart and lean not unto thy own understanding.

You may have to run with TROTTERS. Trotters are used in harness racing. They are accustomed to moving at a standard pace; it's hard to get them to do more than a trot. Yet, if you are called upon run with trotters remember the Lord needs servants whose feet are swift to spread the gospel of peace.

You may have to run with CLYDESDALES. Clydesdales are big and pretty; but they can also pull a lot of weight. It's great to work with people who are well known, know what they are doing and who can also pull their weight for the Lord. If you are called upon to run with Clydesdales remember that "all of my help comes from the Lord.

You may have to run with THOROUGHBREDS. Thoroughbreds are horses that have been bred and trained by the finest. Even among deacons and trustees there are some who consider themselves thoroughbreds, trained in the best schools with years of hands on experience. They are sometimes hard to deal with. If you have to deal with thoroughbreds, remember that "pride comes before a fall" and keep your hand in God's hand.

You may have to run with a few OLD NAGS. The old nag can't run anymore. It only remembers past races and constantly complains about anything new. There are many deacons and trustees who are blessed to be old, but some have allowed themselves to become not just old but "nags." If you are called upon to deal with the nastiness of nags, think about the goodness of the Lord, and run your race.

We have to run with the horses until the victory is won!

We have to run our race until our day is done.

Maybe that's what the song writer had in mind when he penned the words, "I'm going to work until my day is done.

There is no reward for those who sit on the stool of good intentions singing, "I shall not be moved" but only for those who use their God given abilities and run with the horses.

Run with the horses and God will give you his joy!

What is the Joy of the Lord?

The joy of the Lord is going into race and knowing that before the race begins the victory is won!

That's why we are ready to run with the horses!

When we run with the horses in the name of the Lord, no matter how tough the enemy, we will be the victory!

When we run with the horses in the name of the Lord, weeping might endure for a night, but joy comes in the morning!

When we run with the horses in the name of the Lord, storms may rise and winds may blow, but we won't worry because God is still on the throne!

Those who run with the horses also have a testimony. It's about the joy of knowing the Lord!

Run and tell the world about Jesus!

Run and tell the lost that He is still saving souls!

Run and tell the blind that He is still giving sight!

Run and tell the infirmed that He is still healing the sick.

Run and tell the skeptics that He is still alive today

Run and tell the world that over 2000 years ago that they crucified him on an old rugged cross.

Tell them that they buried him in Joseph's tomb but Early Sunday morning the ground began to shake, the stone rolled away and heaven rejoiced as he arose from the grave with all power in his hand.

As you run with the horses tell the world that he is alive and lives he lives in my soul!

Living Behind the Shield

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 17, 2008

SCRIPTURE: "But thou, O LORD, art a shield for me; my glory, and the lifter up of mine head." Psalm 3:3

Introduction

Do you ever feel as though you were a target with a whole lot of people aiming at you? Those who do sometimes feel that they have a bull's eye painted on their lives and the world as taking aim at them. We feel that way when things go right for everyone else but they go wrong for us. We feel that way when trouble seems to find our addresses and locates us despite our best intentions of staying out of its way. It seems as though we are always ducking dodging some kind of trouble that seems directed especially at us.

There is a reason why believers feel like targets; because we are. 1 Peter 5:8 says it clearly, "Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour." That means believers are targets everyday of their lives. The devil is waiting for an opportunity to destroy your home, marriage, relationship, business, character or even your dreams.

Since believers are targets, it's only reasonable to want protection from life's dangers. We want a shield.

The type of shield we need depends on the source of danger. A police officer often wears a bullet proof vest. Ships are equipped with life jackets and life boats. Cars have airbags. Some planes are equipped with parachutes. All of this equipment is designed to shield against injury.

But what about our spiritual lives? If the devil is roaring and trying to destroy us, who protects us?

God is our protector and our faith in him is our shield. "Above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked." Ephesians 6:16. God is not a type of shield, but he is our shield. He envelopes us completely as the devil takes his best shot at us every day.

As Christians, we are encouraged to know that God is always with us. Even as the world takes pot shots at us, if we live behind the shield of faith, the devil will not be successful because anything he does work to our Good, thanks to the grace of God.

Exposition

This text focuses on David when he spoke of his faith that God Would be a shield around him.

This text was penned by David when his son Absalom revolted against him and attempted to overthrow him as king. Refusing to treat Absalom as an enemy, David was forced to leave the place and the holy city. As armies led by his son formed against him, David spoke to God and in his prayerful thoughts expressed three important truths:

"Thou art a shield for me." In battle the type of shield would be chosen to suit the type of combat one expected to encounter. If siege was being laid to defend city walls, a body-length shield that would provide protection from arrows and sling stones raining down from the walls. If hand-to-hand combat in the open field was expected the small maneuverable shield that could be used to ward off thrusts by sword or spear was used. The full Hebrew phrase means "that art a shield about me" to secure me on all sides, since my enemies surrounded me." The phrase "for me" personalizes God's role in the life of the believer and brings him close to each believer's situation. The fact that David saw God as a shield "for me" and "all about me" indicated his confidence that there were certain advantages and benefits accrued because of his relationship with God.

"Thou art my glory." Even as David's glory in the kingdom faded, he remained confident that the source of his glory was God. Absalom had won the hearts of the people. In Hebron they had actually declared him king. Yet, here David praises God knowing that his glory did not come from the accolades of men but from God himself. God selected him and anointed him King while he was yet a boy; and it is God who would lift him up.

"The lifter of my head." David was extremely frustrated that his favorite son was rebelling against him. It hurt and wounded him more than it angered him. His head was bowed low. His spirits were drained. The phrase "lifter of my head" referred to his personal frustration and discouragement, but it also referred to David's hope that God would restore his full kingdom to him. The hope was that in due time "thou wilt lift up my head under my troubles, so that I shall not droop nor be discouraged, nor shall my spirits fail." "lift up my head" is also used to show that a person is being exalted or elevated in the sight of others. Psalm 27:6 says, "And now shall mine head be lifted up above mine enemies round about me: therefore will I offer in his tabernacle sacrifices of joy; I will sing, yea, I will sing praises unto the LORD. It was as an expression of his hope of full restoration because it is God who restores that which is loss.

Three Truths

David's talk with God reveals three important truths that all believers must know to strengthen their Christian walk.

GOD SHIELDS ME ON ALL SIDES: Believers who trust God have the assurance that God is protecting from all sides. It is difficult to protect against everything that would impact our lives. We try our best. We buy health insurance to protect against sickness, life insurance to protect our families in case of death. We put locks on our doors to protect against burglars; and alarms on our cars to protect against thieves. We have metal detectors at airports to protect against terrorists, encrypted passwords to protect against identity theft, even the president as the Secret Service to protect against assassination. We are constantly trying to protect ourselves from failure seen or the unseen. The knowledge that God is a shield about us helps us to feel secure in his hand because we are shielded on all sides and on all fronts. He is able to do for us what we cannot do for ourselves. He can shield us on all sides because he can see the unseen dangers ahead; we cannot. Even if we could, there are so many variables in life that we cannot protect against every eventual possibility. That's why rejoice in the knowledge God shields us on all sides.

THE SOURCE OF MY GLORY: When believers receive honors we instantly recognize that those honors are the result of God moving in our lives. God exalts us or puts us into positions in life for a divine purpose. He is the source of our glory. It is his involvement in our affairs that his resulted in our promotions, commendations and awards. It is his constant presence that has glorified us. It does not matter whether we are elected to a political office, appointed to an influential position of leadership or accomplish a great feat. The believer knows that the source of his accomplishment is God himself is humbled by that fact and never takes credit for what God has done through him.

RESTORES OUR STRENGTH: God restores us in two ways. When we have failed or have become frustrated, it is God's presence that lifts up our bowed down head. Sometimes our failure is caused by our own sin. When David sinned he cried out, "Create in me a clean heart, Oh God!" and God restored him. Frustrations, failure and defeat zap our strength. That's when we pray to God and he hears. When we have experienced considerable loss, God also restores us, much like Job who lost considerable possession and family members. God did not bring back what was loss but restored his possessions and rebuilt his family to a point that it exceeded what he had loss in the beginning. We should be encouraged that God restores that which is lost to a believer and does it in a way that will better prepare him to promote the kingdom of God; often bigger and grander than before.

Get a Shield

Finally, brothers and sisters, those who do not have a shield can get one by accepting Jesus Christ as their Lord and Savior.

There are many in the world today who spend their lives living in front of the shield instead of behind it. When we live in front of the shield we do not enjoy its protection and security.

We know we are living in front of the shield of God when we are confident to take matters into our own hands.

We know we are living in front of the shield when we suffer and setback but can't snapback!

We are living in front of the shield when we find ourselves knocked down by a putdown.

We are living in front of the shield when we find ourselves knocked out because we got knocked up!

Living in front of the shield means living without the protective grace of God. Without God's grace, there is no chance of victory of the devil.

We must live behind the shield; it's the only way we can defeat the devil.

That's why Ephesians 6:16 says, "Above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked.

Those who live in front of the shield are walking targets for the devil who is taking aim.

Those who live in front of the shield don't spend much time praying because they believe they can take care of things themselves!

Those who live in front of the shield often miss worship because they feel it is a good thing to do but not essential to their success.

Those who live in front of the shield seldom read or study their bibles because they don't see the real need.

Those who live in front of the shield notice that their:

—Attitudes become pathetic; Relationships are usually ruined!

—Lifestyles become wicked; Thoughts become vain!

—Goals become selfish and their desires become carnal!

Our only chance for salvation comes from the Lord. That's why Romans 5:8 says, "While we were yet sinners, Christ died for us!

While we were living lives of quiet desperation, reaching for the unreachable, trying to grasp the impossible Christ died for us so we would have a chance to get behind the shield of God's amazing grace!

If you live behind the shield of faith and never stop trusting God you can:

—CONQUER all circumstances; DESTROY all doubts!

—DEFEAT all discouragements; OVERCOME all opposition!

—FACE all fears and; DEFY all devils

—STAND all storms; MOVE all mountains!

—DISPEL all darkness; FIGHT all battles!

While we were yet sinners, God was preparing a shield for us!

While we were absorbed in the cares of the world, God was making a way!

While we were yet sinners, Jesus, the Son of the living God, picked up and old rugged cross!

While we were yet sinners, the nailed his hands and feet!

While we were yet sinners, he died out on Calvary!

Living life in "High Def"

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 9, 2008

SCRIPTURE: The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly. John 10:10

Introduction

Has there ever been a time when you felt the desire to move up to another level? That's the time when you look at your present situation and conclude that while you are not doing badly, that you should strive to climb up a little higher. No one wants to remain at the same level forever; we all desire to improve.

There are many of us living black and white lives in a color TV world. We have resisted the temptation to upgrade, satisfied with that black and white box in our living room or bedroom.

In the mid 1950's many in the African-American community started getting television sets in our homes. Those first TV 's sat in fine pieces of furniture, down on the floor, with round black and white picture tubes.

The picture tube was made larger and, as time passed, color was added. When Color was added, there was a need to upgrade from black and white to color TV.

When the cameras started sending bigger sharper pictures to our sets. Many of our analog TV sets were not able to show these breath taking pictures so pictures were sliced up and modified to fit our old fashioned TV's. We saw a picture, but what we saw wasn't the entire picture.

A while back someone came up with the idea of making a television set that could show everything being sent to it just the way it was being sent, without chopping up the picture or fading the colors. They introduced it to the world and called it High Definition Television or HDTV.

These new TV sets have a sharper picture that is crystal clear and instead of chopping up the picture to make it fit into our standard box, it shows all of the picture in a format that is wider, deeper, clearer and 10 times sharper than our old TV.

That sounds like the history of our lives. Before we were saved we saw life from a worldly view, but when we accepted Christ we saw the world differently; it was colored by the grace of God. We started going to church and staying away from night clubs and bars. That was a good picture, but it was not the full picture. Only a few of us saw the whole picture that was sent to us from heaven above; that's the part of the Christian life that deals with abundant living. It is always chopped off and modified to fit our limited time and attention.

There are some today, who are ready to move up to the next level. They want to experience life in High Def.

That's the good news from heaven. God invites us to upgrade to an abundant High Defintion life in Christ.

As Christians, we thank God for Jesus because he made it possible for us not just to have life, but to have it more abundantly.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he explains the nature of the believer's relationship to God.

Jesus makes it clear that those looking for the abundant, joy filled, life can only find it in him. Those who have found eternal life, have also found meaning for their lives that is described in these verses as "pasture." If you are a sheep, a green pasture is synonymous to happiness. It is what you need in abundance! Thus, Jesus says "I am come that they may have life and that they may have it more abundantly."

We seek Christ to acquire salvation. Once we receive salvation then we move to the next level: we learn how to really live and be happy in Jesus.

Jesus offers believers the abundant life; not riches and affluence, although these may have their place, but a life that gives them a broader and deeper appreciation of the things that really matter in life including church, family and the community of God.

Advantages of the High Def Life

People see high definition living the same way they respond to high definition television.

SOME UPGRADE IMMEDIATELY: As soon as they heard that there was a better way, there were many who immediately upgraded their situations. While others are living standard lives they are already enjoying the high def life.

SOME HAVE NOT SUBSCRIBED TO THE SERVICE: There many who have new televisions with the label "HDTV" on the front, but they have not subscribed to the service. They wear the cross, they attend a church and wear the Christian label on the outside but many have not subscribed completely to the Christian way of life. They have a new set but they are still seeing the old picture.

SOME DON'T HAVE IT AND DON'T WANT IT: There are many who do not have HDTV and don't want it. They are satisfied with what they have and don't want more, especially if it requires them to do anything more than they are presently doing.

THOSE WHO WANT MORE, UPGRADE: Those who want the abundant life that Christ taught about move up to another level spirituality that reflects itself immediately in the four dimensions of the high def life: Daily living, relationships, finances, service and spirituality.

High Definition Service

Regular believers join the church and become bench members; they have no place of service. If they serve, they require recognition and praise constantly. High def believers feel compelled to serve in the kingdom. They have a willingness to serve without the necessity of pay or recognition in any way that is possible. The high definition believer actually accumulates riches in heaven through their service to others. Matthew 9:41 reminds us that even the man that gives a cup of water to a stranger in the name of Jesus, gets a reward. Those who help the homeless, help the infirmed, visit the sick, feed the hungry, heal the hurts of families, and respond to personal needs and crises, build up treasures in heaven. Those who upgrade to high def see an immediate change in their attitude toward service in the kingdom.

High Definition Finances

One of the areas that is visibly affected when we switch to high def living is our finances. Many have joined the church but they have not subscribed to God's plan for our finances. We have not accepted that everything we have belongs to him and is being managed by us. Often we waste our resources, fail to use them wisely and plunge ourselves into financial quicksand.

High Def believers move up a little higher. The most important change shows in their attitude about their money: They throw away less, save more, avoid debt and give more to God's kingdom. High Def believers seem to have more, even though they give more than they did as just regular believers.

Jesus told many parables explaining how we are stewards over the "talents" we are given and how we will be blessed if we manage them well. Moreover, those who give time, talents and money at a sacrifice get extra rewards from God.

The high definition believer handles money on a different level, because now he or she sees clearly that their finances have been entrusted to them by God. Because of that new insight he doesn't have to modify our blessings to fit our limited standard attitudes about resources.

High Definition Relationships

Many believers are involved in personal relationships as singles, married couples or families. When we upgrade to high def living our relationships instantly change.

In a low def single life we may wear the "church" label without subscribing the the Christian lifestyle. We may still drink, use drugs, have "protected" sex, or even live together all while wearing the "HD" label. Actually, they belong to a church but they haven't subscribed to Christ's teaching about being unequally yoked or in engaging in unholy activities. A high def single doesn't waste time on low def relationships based on sex, partying, drinking or drugs. The high def single lives a happy, monagamous, morally pleasing life until God sends the mate. They see clearer the kind of mate they they need and resist the temptation to modify what God has for them by accepting only what can fit into a low def life.

The same is true for married couples. In low def, they live in the same house but they are not real spiritual partners. A marriage reaches high def when a husband and wife become one in everything. We don't have your bills and my bills, everything becomes "our." In high def, we become one spiritually. We worship together, discuss Godly things together, pray together and seek God's will together.

There are low def families too. A low def family has no quality time together, do not support each other, and show little interest in the pursuits of family members. Low def families may not worship God together; sometimes not at all.

High Def families on the other hand spend time together, enjoy each other, support each other and serve Christ together.

Many are happy with low def relationship, marriages and families. Others want what Jesus called the "Abundant life."-They want to upgrade to high def relationships

High Definition Living

Those who live lives in low def are often frustrated by the twists and turns of life. They see a job lost, a family sickness, failed effort, a flooded or burned home, and experience the pain of death. Because they live in low def they can't see the entire picture.

Because everything God has in store for them must be modified to fit their picture the rest of each situation is usually chopped off to fit their low def life screens.

What's missing? What's missing is Romans 8:28 "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." That's the part that is off the screen of the believer who lives in low def.

The high def believer can see the whole picture: He sees a trouble, but he also sees God's promise that no matter what kind of trouble finds him, it will work out to his advantage as long as he or she keeps their hand in God's hand. The high def believer sees life clearer and sharper and takes that attitude into every arena. Everything works out for the believer and those who live high def lives know that are able to weather the toughest storms because they know God's word is true.

High Def Believers can clearly see the blood

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember the high definition believer is able see God clearer because he's able to see the blood.

Ask any sports fan why they want to watch their favorite team on HDTV and they'll tell you because they can see every play in such sharp detail and they feel closer and miss nothing.

Those who live high definition spiritual lives want to be close to God. To stay close to God means you want to be in his presence, talk with him, listen to him, and share experiences with him.

High definition believers have the joy of knowing that wherever we go. He is close enough to us to know our needs, sense our weakness and to respond to us in the nick of time.

If we live in low def we can forget that God is in control of things.

When we live our lives in low def:

We think we have lost the war because we lost a battle!

We think we can't get up again because we have fallen down!

We think we can't straighten up because we're so mess up and bent out of shape

We think we can't succeed because we've failed so many times

Somebody here today once lived their lives in low definition, faithless, hopeless and without faith in God. I know that true because the word says in 1 Corinthians 6:11 says, "And such were some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God. "

We have been washed in the blood we start seeing things in high definition and we remember the power of the blood

A high def believer always remembers that God is able!

When you move up to high definition you get everything God has in store for you.

Hezekiah received a low def message to set his house in order because it was time to die, but he turned his face to the wall and decided to move up to high definition and God gave him 15 more years.

A widow woman looked at her cupboard and realized she had no food, but she decided to move up to high definition and put her trust in God and her barrel never ran dry!

David lived a life of sin and betrayal. He was the epitome of low definition living but one day he prayed to God, "Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation, and renew a right spirit within me." And God turned his life around.

The power of the blood can change lives!

The power of the blood can save souls!

The power of the blood can guarantee the grace of God!

Today, there is a special offer from heaven, you can get hooked up to High Definition living without paying a thing because "Jesus paid it all, all to him I owe."

Out on Calvary, Jesus paid it all!

He died that we might have life and have it more abundantly!

He died that we might have a chance at the tree life!

He died to save our souls from sin!

But Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave all power in his hands!

He's broadcasting 24 hours a day and sending our joy and happiness!

Can you receive his signal?

The Master Calls And He Calls for Thee

A Sermon By Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 2008

SCRIPTURE: And when she had so said, she went her way, and called Mary her sister secretly, saying, The Master is come, and calleth for thee. John 11:28

Introduction

Have you ever received a call in the early morning hours and expected bad news before you answered the phone. The general belief is that when someone calls us at 3 a.m. in the morning it must mean bad news. We usually expect to be told someone is seriously ill, injured in an accident, imprisoned or worse, that someone has died. Most of us have received one of those kinds of calls.

How we feel about such a call has a lot to do with when we receive the call and also who is on the other line.

We feel the same way about visits. If the doctor makes a house call we feel someone is seek. If the local mortician stops by for a visit and we see his hearse parked out front, we think someone has died. If the preacher calls and he's wearing a black suit, it means its either communion Sunday or he's getting ready for a funeral. If the policeman calls, someone is in trouble. If the teacher calls, someone has acted up in school.

If your mother calls, and she calls out your whole name..it means you are in big trouble.

We respond in different ways to different kinds of calls; but how do we respond when God calls. Sometimes God beckons us to reshuffle our time, reapply our talents and to refocus our attention on the works of the kingdom.

There are some of us who react to God's call the same way we react to Mother's call...we let him call a few times and then get in a hurry when we think he has called his last time. But, there are others who respond quickly to his call and respond "Here I am."

We can't judge God's call by the time or the day or night. He called Samuel in the middle of the night; it wasn't bad news, it was news that he would be a holy man of God. He also called Solomon in the night and spoke to him in a dream and reveal to him that he would receive great wisdom. In the middle of the day he called Saul on the road to Damascus and told him it was time for his life to change.

Neither can we judge God's call to be glad tidings or scorn. Sometimes when God calls he brings judgment such as he brought upon the wicked cities of Sodom and Gomorrah. Sometimes when he calls he interrupts our sacrifice such as he did Abraham and provided a ram in the bush. Sometimes when he calls, carries into a valley of dry bones.

Then there are times when he calls us to join him, as was the case when Christ called all 12 of his disciples.

As Christians, we know that whenever God calls for us, it's a good call. Whether its service, sacrifice or to come to be with him; our lives and our eternity will be blessed whenever God calls.

Exposition

This text focuses on news that Mary received from Martha, that the master called for her.

The two sisters were upset over the death of Lazarus. They were mourning Lazarus' loss and Christ had comforted her. Then he sent word to Mary because he wanted to comfort her too.

Note Martha went and very discreetly told Mary that the Master cometh. She called her secretly, and whispered it in her ear, to note that his invitation was personal and not global for others. It indicated the way that God speaks to each believer, privately and personally.

The call that Mary received did not come from anyone else; it came from the master himself. That is significant because often we are called by other forces and other powers to do their bidding, but Martha distinguished this call and noted that it was the "Master" who called.

She called her by order from Christ; he bade her go call her sister. This call that is effectual, whoever brings it, is sent by Christ. The Master is come, and calleth for thee. "Lazarus is gone, and our comfort in him is gone; but the Master is come, who is better than the dearest friend, and has that in him which will abundantly make up all our losses. He is come who is our teacher, who will teach us how to get good out of our sorrow (Psa. 94:12),

When Christ our Master comes, he calls for us. He comes in his word and ordinances, calls us to them, calls us by them, calls us to himself. He calls for us in particular, for us by name (Psa. 27:8); and, if he call thee, he will cure us, and he will comfort us.

God Calls us to begin a work

God calls every believer to undertake a great work. He never calls us to an insignificant or unimportant work; no matter what others think. It is always a great work. Our work may be to be the strength of our families. It may be to help the poor and the needy. It may be highly visible like public service or almost invisible, like that of a private home nurse. Regardless to our work it is important.

Our work could be to serve as the minister of music of the church. If so, it would be a challenging work that would require training, patience and a praying spirit. This would be a great work because it would please God, edify him and glorify him among mankind.

Each begins a special ministry when we are called by God.

When God calls us to work how should we approach our task. How should we use the gift we have to his glory. The person who wants to use that gift for God must get to know him on a personal basis and accept him as his personal Lord and Savior.

INNER LIFE: When the master calls us, we need to keep a strong inner life. The inner life is the communion he or she shares with God. God's spirit communes with them in special ways through this inner life that helps them see what appears to be a bunch of weeds and arrange them into flowers. This requires a spiritual communion with God. It's that inner life that brings peace, joy and satisfaction.

INNER EYE: When God calls us we must develop an inner eye to see the value in what others have thrown away and can always find a way to take something ugly and make it beautiful. This inner eye helps them see what others cannot see. It is a special gift that comes from God. This is the same way God sees those who are less fortunate, down cast and lost. He sees our value and takes something that others call ugly and makes it beautiful.

INNNER TOUCH: When God calls us we must develop an inner touch. We feel with our hands. Saints feel with the soul. When God call us he does something to us. We use a variety of terms to describe what he does. We say we are "motivated" or "inspired" or "moved." The godly minister of music prays for God's guiding power just as the godly artist stares at the canvass waiting for God to send a beam from heaven. When God calls we must be willing to move at his command.

God calls us to end our work

When we finish our work on earth God was glorified. When it's done God's way, he gets the credit in the end. Whatever we do is done for God's glory. Our career, business or life mission has one purpose, that those who benefit from our life work will be "astonished" at the power of God. When we do that, we do it God's way, not "My way."

Be Ready When He Calls

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember that when the time comes, we need to be ready to answer when he calls.

When God called Mary when immediately went to answer his call.

When she answered his call she received good news that lifted her spirit.

When she answered his call she found joy in the resurrection of the risen Lord and a renewed faith that God was in control of life's circumstances.

This is the kind of life we celebrate here today.

We celebrate the life of one who heard the call of Christ and spent her life doing his work.

She was the kind of woman whose epitaph is inscribed in the hearts of those who knew her, for every day of her life is a testament of faith and courage!

When the chilly finger of death touches the life of such a woman, what can be said about her?

A thousand litanies only dwarf such a life!

What can you say about her?

All we can do is sing the words of the song that says "May the work, I've done, speak for me!

May the service I give, speak for me! May the life I live, speak for me!"

Each of us must hear when God speaks, for he calls every one of us to the cross.

When God speaks an indelible imprint is made upon the soul of man.

When God speaks, mountains of indecision crumble into pebbles of resolution.

When God speaks, the valleys of despair are exalted to plains of hope.

When God speaks, rivers, filled with the tears of anguish are rolled back, revealing a pathway to brighter days.

When God calls we should each say, Speak Lord, and show me the way

Show me the way of truth and righteousness!

Show me the way of glory and honor!

Show me the way of triumph and victory!

Show me the way that leads me to Calvary!

Show me how to appreciate the fact that you died for me on an old rugged cross!

Show me how to remember in my sadness, that Early Sunday morning Christ arose from the grave!

No wonder the song writer wrote: When He calls me, I will answer....I'll be somewhere listening for my name.

SCRIPTURE: Then arose Peter, and ran unto the sepulcher; and stooping down, he beheld the linen clothes laid by themselves, and departed, wondering in himself at that which was come to pass. Luke 24:12

Introduction

Have you ever played detective? If you have, it was the time when you decided to become Colombo and figure out what happened, how it happened, when it happened and why it happened. We've been the detective in our homes, on the job and in the community. In fact some of us are so good that we can solve murders on television before the program is half over. We like mysteries and we like solving them as well.

We have always been fascinated with those smart detectives who find the real killers: Whether it was the legendary Sherlock Holmes, Dick Tracy, Perry Mason or Murder She Wrote, we enjoyed watching them. We found ourselves fascinated at how they used scientific investigation of the smallest pieces of evidence to expose the killers. What these crime solvers use is called "Forensic Science" or bringing science into the public forum

Forensic science is one of the fastest growing professions in America thanks to a television series called: CSI short for Crime Scene Investigation. There are no less than three CSI programs now: CSI-New York, CSI-Miami and CSI-Las Vegas. Because of CSI juries are not so quick to condemn suspects, they now wait for the forensic evidence of hair skin samples, blood splatters, DNA, fingerprint analysis and laser- guided projectile examinations, accurate fiber and chemical analysis, Luminol applications and nationwide data base reports before they make decisions.

Depending on the quality of the forensic evidence, forensic investigators can usually tell you what happened, who did it, when and how they did it. Sometimes this has been achieved with just the smallest amount of hair, blood or skin tissue; even years after a death.

Defense attorneys have used forensic evidence such as DNA to prove clients not-guilty. Prosecutors have used forensic evidence to condemn slick crooks who would have otherwise escaped capture.

Without a doubt, a thorough crime scene investigation can bring out the truth.

As Christians, we celebrate the resurrection of Christ. What evidence could a thorough examination of the scene reveal to us? If we look at the cross and the empty tomb, what truths can we learn about these two events that would help us to reach a decision about the power of God in our lives? More importantly, what evidence could we find in our lives that he is truly risen and is our Lord and savior?

Exposition

This text focuses on an inspection made by Peter on the morning of the resurrection; an inspection that left him wondering about what he saw.

Christ had been crucified and buried in a new tomb borrowed from a wealthy man of the area named Joseph. His body had been hastily removed from the cross so that it would not be hanging on the day of preparation regarding the Passover Sabbath. After both the Passover Sabbath and the weekly Sabbath (Saturday) had passed the women came to tomb and found his body gone. When they reported what they had seen to the apostles (v11) their report was dismissed as idle tales. The women's report was dismissed because they had been at the crucifixion and watched from a distance and saw Christ's brutal death.

Yet, they had been at a distance. There had been no close inspection of the cross, the tomb or the details surrounding the mysterious report of the women.

Peter ran to the tomb to investigate for himself. Once inside he saw nothing but the strips of linen cloth that were used to wrap the body for burial. The cloth strips were neatly folded and laid by themselves. He was extremely specific in his observations, taking note of every detail with his own eyes, not counting on the testimony of the women.

The testimony of the women, the empty tomb, and the folded cloth posed a mystery to Peter because the text notes that he came to investigate the report of the women but left "wondering in himself at that which was come to pass." He left no wiser than he came.

Yet if he had remembered the words of Jesus and compared what he saw to Jesus prophecies then it would have been plain.

The query continued as they talked about what they had seen are reviewed every piece of evidence, trying to understand. On the road to Emmaus two men reviewed the details of his death, burial and the women's report. They did not understand it all but "when their eyes were opened and they knew him."

From that point forward the matter was settled; the case was closed. Jesus had truly risen from the dead.

Cross Scene Investigation

There are many today who do not believe in the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ. Like the apostles, who at first dismissed the reports as nonsense or idle tales, there are many today who do not believe in the crucifixion and resurrection of Christ.

However, a theoforensic investigation of the cross and tomb scenes might lead us to the truth. That truth is important for believers because our salvation hinges on the fact of his death, by which we are saved and his resurrection by which we have the gift of eternal life.

IDENTITY OF THE DECEASED: They removed from the cross the 33 year old body of a Jewish man. The CSI team noticed that His DNA indicated that he was the son of an earthly mother but his father was of supernatural origins. Who was he? Isaiah 7:14 "Therefore the Lord himself shall give you a sign; Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel, God with us." He was the son of God.

TIME OF DEATH: John 19:31 sets the time of his death as the day before Passover or the day of Preparation; it was Wednesday the 14th day of Jewish month of Nisan. That's the forensic report. Theoforensic report confirms that finding because Luke 23:44 Notes that he hung on the cross from the 6th to the 9th hour or from 12 noon to 3 p.m. The time of his death is marked at 3 p.m. Wednesday evening.

CAUSE OF DEATH: The forensic evidence suggests that the two most likely causes of his death were asphyxiation and hypovolemic shock. Contributing factors included dehydration and blood loss, and perhaps stress-induced heart arrhythmia or congestive heart failure. Luke 23:46 just says, "He gave up the ghost and died."

EVIDENCE OF TRAUMA: There was evidence on his body of trauma, thorn prints in around his forehead and whip marks on his back and bruises indicating that he had been exposed to considerable blunt force trauma. The bible says in John 19:1-3, "1 Then Pilate therefore took Jesus, and scourged him. And the soldiers platted a crown of thorns, and put it on his head, and they put on him a purple robe, And said, Hail, King of the Jews! and they smote him with their hands."

BALLISTIC EVIDENCE: Three spikes were found on the scene. The Forensic evidence indicates that the spikes were used to nail him with arms outstretched but not taut. The iron spikes were placed between the radial and ulnar arteries, leaving them unharmed. The nails transected the median nerve causing great pain but without fracturing the bones. Then they flexed his knees, laid one foot atop the other, and drove an iron spike through the second intermetatarsal space, which is between the second and third foot bones, without severing any major arteries. No arteries were cut, no bones were broken; it was as if something was being nailed to cross besides his hands and feet. The theoforensic report gives the answer in Colossians 2:14 which says, "Blotting out the handwriting of ordinances that was against us, which was contrary to us, and took it out of the way, nailing it to his cross." He nailed our past broken laws and failures to the cross.

FLUID EVIDENCE: Lab tests show human saliva, but the saliva did not match his DNA- It came from others around him. Those that he came to save, spit upon him and made fun of him. Can this be true? The theoforensic record bears out the facts in Matthew 26:67 "Then did they spit in his face, and buffeted him; and others smote him with the palms of their hands,"

PRESENCE OF TOXINS: At the cross there was considerable blood. However lab tests reveal that there were strange toxins in his blood. He did not drink from the cup at his last supper and had only vinegar while on the cross. What are these strange toxins in his blood? 2 Cor. 5:21 "For he hath made him to be sin for us, who knew no sin; that we might be made the righteousness of God in him." Our sins were in the toxins in the blood. That meant his blood was shed for our sins. Matthew 26:28 says, "For this is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins."

Investigation Summary

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider the findings of the investigation

The cross scene investigation concluded that it was the hands of Romans soldiers that nailed him to the cross, but it was the sins of the world that caused him to lay down his life. He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquity; the chastisement of our peace was upon him. And with his stripes we are healed. Isaiah 53:5

When Peter went into the tomb he conducted his own CSI investigation. There was no body in the tomb. The burial clothes had been neatly folded to the side indicating that there was an orderly departure.

He left "wondering" meaning that he was trying to put it all together.

The women came Early Sunday morning and found the stone had been rolled away!

An Angel of the Lord spoke to them asked, "Why seek ye the living among the dead, he is not here. He is risen.." (Matthew 24:5)

We now have the investigative report that establishes who died, what time he died and how he died.

We also have forensic evidence and eye witness reports that establishes that he was buried but arose from the dead.

The report would tell us about that tragic day in Jerusalem, but what if there was a CSI team called upon to investigate his presence in our lives? Would they find any evidence of the blood of salvation in our spirit. Would they be able to discover whether he has risen in our hearts?

When the CSI team winds up the investigation and closes the case, what does the investigation reveal for our lives?

The investigation concludes that despite the devil's best efforts, God is still on the throne!

As long as God is still on the throne everything is going to be alright!

Because he lives, I can face each day standing on the promises of God

Because he lives, I can get up if I mess up and start all over again!

Because he lives, There is no mountain to high for me to climb!

Because he lives, there is no valley of frustration so wide that I cannot cross!

Because he lives, there is no defeat that I cannot turn into a victory

Because he lives, there is no failure that can conquer my soul and hold me down!

Because He lives, I can face tomorrow,

Because He lives, all fear is gone;

Because I know He holds the future,
And life is worth the living,
Just because He lives!
I’m glad that he came down here and lived for 33 years.
I’m glad that he died on an old rugged cross for me!
But I’m so glad that early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with..
All power in his hands!

Pull Your Pants Up

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 2008

SCRIPTURE: Wherefore, having girded up the loins of your mind, [be] sober [and] hope with perfect stedfastness in the grace [which will be] brought to you at [the] revelation of Jesus Christ. 1 Peter 1:13

Introduction

Have you ever noticed the number of African-American males who now wear their pants below their waists? It seems to be a growing concern in our community so many young men find it fashionable to dress in a manner that is socially unacceptable, bordering on indecency. Across the nation, seniors in the Black community are shaking their heads as they bemoan what is happening to African-American young men. Some are tempted to reach out to every young man, grab his pants and say, "Pull your pants up."

It's called "Saggin" and it is a growing clothing trend among the Hip Hop generation. Yet, it is not exclusively a "black thang" because there are many whites who have embraced the style as well.Sagging began a while back, some say in the 80's when groups like KidNPlay, Groove B. Chill and others began to appear in music videos with their pants sagging. Since that time the gangsta trend has made the "jail house" look of sagging pants extremely popular to youth who want a way to give adults an "in your face" response to normalcy.

Before adults get too self righteous about clothing fads that have shocked the previous generation, truth requires that we note that the sagging pants is not the first clothing trend that shocked adults.

At the turn of the century, it was considered unthinkable for women to wear dresses that revealed their ankles. In the 1920's the flappers wore short shimmy dresses that labeled them as loose and immoral.

Remember the James Dean rebel look of the 50's where boys appeared with their shirt tails out, leather jackets and tee-shirts with rolled up sleeves. Boys who wore these clothes were considered gangsters and thugs.

The Beatles shocked America with the mop air styles and the Jackson Five shocked America with their huge Afro's, then considered a symbol of rebellion.

The Mini-skirts were so short when Tina Turner and Ikettes showed up on American Band Stand that the censors almost banned them from the airways, but not before inspiring a whole new fashion trend among the youth.

We were totally crossed out when children started wearing their clothing backwards, a style popularized by the group Kriss Kross.

There have always been fashion trends in every generation that have troubled the older generation.

What's troubling about sagging is that it does not seem to be a passing trend that will die as the generation matures. It seems to represents to represent a mode of thinking that rejects rules, established order and traditional.

It's been around for nearly 30 years and instead of fading into fashion trend history, has assumed a life of its own with no end in sight.

Sagging pants are associated with a "Sagging mindset." The sagging mindset is associated with low self esteem, short term goals, a subculture lifestyle and a serious identity crises.

Such a mindset is described in the bible as a "reprobate" mind. It is not the unique province of "saggers" there are many people who do not have sagging pants but they do have a "sagging mindset."

The word of God challenges everyone not to conform to this world but to be transformed by their renewing of the mind. That's the goal. When the mindset changes and starts looking up; the pants will follow.

As Christians, our goal is to keep looking up toward our God. If we keep our eyes on him and reach up; our pants will follow.

Exposition

In this text Peter encourages believers to raise their minds to a new level of thinking as they prepare for the Christian journey.

It was traditional in biblical times for men and women to wear long robes. Whenever the men had to move quickly or move freely without any hindrances they rolled up their robes and tucked them in their waistbands or belts.

Peter used this example as he urged believers to prepare themselves for the Christian struggle by "girding up their loins" or rolling up their robes - of their minds; that is prepare their minds for what lay ahead. Anything that would slow their pace, hinder their movement or distract from the service of God was to be rolled up to give place to God's service completely. The great biblical scholar Matthew Henry interprets the passage this way, "gather in, and gird up, their long and loose garments, that they may be more ready, prompt, and expeditious in their business, so do you by your minds, your inner man, and affections seated there: gird them, gather them in, let them not hang loose and neglected about you; restrain their extravagances, and let the loins or strength and vigor of your minds be exerted in your duty; disengage yourselves from all that would hinder you, and go on resolutely in your obedience."

Thus believers are reminded raise their thinking as they prepare to serve Go.

Reasons for Lifting Our minds

There are many areas in which black youth can upgrade their mindsets to help accomplish the will of God:

TIGHTEN UP THE REBELLIOUS SPIRIT. Every generation has faced the rebellious spirit of its youth. The young seem to have fun rubbing their seniors the wrong way. Consider this quote: "Youth today love luxury. They have bad manners, contempt for authority, no respect for older people, and talk nonsense when they should be working. Young people do not stand up any longer when adults enter the room. They contradict their parents, talk too much in company, guzzle their food, lay their legs on the table and tyrannize their elders." If that quote seems to describe today's youth, then consider that those words were spoken by the Philosopher Socrates, thousands of years ago, describing the youth of his time.

While rebellion is not knew, youth can tighten up. They can show more respect for their elders. While no one expects them to clone the previous generation, they can also work to demonstrate a level of restraint that holds their rebellious spirit in check.

In that respect, youth should tighten up their rebellious spirit so that they can do God's work.

OPEN UP TO RECEIVE OPPORTUNITIES: God has created many opportunities for today's youth, but they cannot be received with a "Sagging mindset." Youth must pull up their attitudes to receive God's blessings. His word will only be given to sanctify and endorse those dreams and aspirations which are according to his will and purpose. Opportunities become available for those who reflect God's will and mindset. Samson was a young man who recognized early that he had special physical gifts. However, Samson had a fascination for women of the Philistine race or off-limits to the men of Israel. Samson had been given strength but the strength was to be used in ways that pleased God. Because Samson chose to use his special gift outside of the will of God he awoke one morning to find himself without his special gifts. He became just as every other man no more or no less. Samson's situation lets us know that God gives us special opportunities that allows us to enjoy them as long as we used them in ways that pleased him. Youth today should be aware that we please God when we live our lives that are according to his purpose. Therefore each young man or woman should ask God for guidance to determine his will. If we live according to his will we will open up to great opportunities.

YOUTH SHOULD LISTEN UP: A large part of the reason so many young men are "sagging" is because they have been listening to the wrong person, Satan. For the most part the "sagging mentality" is being promoted by enemies of our community who profit from marketing to us at our expense. The idea is to promote the weaknesses among us as examples that represent us all.

Our youth should listen to the right voices. Who told them there were no Black men? Why did you believe it when you look around and see men driving cabs, buses, working in offices, holding positions in government, working in high finance and making life and death decisions across this nation? Who told you there were no Black men? Who told you that a Black man ain't nothing? Why did you believe that when the legacy of nearly every Black family includes stories fathers and grandfathers who gave their lives on farms, serving as Pullman Porters, butlers, janitors, teachers, preachers and professionals to keep their families together?

Who told Black youth that all they need to succeed in life is athletic skill? Why do you continue to believe when you know that nearly every NBA or NFL superstar has a college education an even the rapper Master P, was one of the smartest students in his high school class?

Youth must listen up to hear the voices that will raise them up to a higher level that can be achieved with their pants down.

WE MUST LIFT UP EXPECTATIONS. A new counter culture has developed over the called Hip Hop. It is a music driven voice of youth rebellion that reflects a language, culture, fashion and hairstyle that is counter to mainstream influences.

The new counter culture attempts to teach youth to go against mainstream cultural standards. If, for example, boys are expected to wear their pants fitted on their waists, Hip Hop urges them to wear them loose on their hips. Instead of wearing shirttails in, Hip Hop suggests that they wear them out. Instead of buckling belts, Hip Hop suggests that they be worn unbuckled or no belts at all. Since it is expected that men do not wear earrings, Hip Hop suggests that men wear earrings. Rather than take hats off in the building, Hip Hop suggests that they keep hats on, and turn them backwards.

The cigarette and alcohol industries have targeted African American youth as easy prey and have finance many segments of he Hip Hop Movement. Alcohol companies who influence youth to drink secretly back many of the rappers. The rap group 8-Ball is backed by Eight Ball Old English 800 Malt Liquor; Ice Cube was promoted by St. Ives Malt Liquor; and it is no coincidence that a few years ago when Snoop Dog started singing about the joys of "Gin and Juice" that packages of gin and juice began showing up in liquor stores around the country.

Even sadder, hundreds of thousands of youth are graduating from Hip Hop to levels in which they must prove that they are willing to do anything to prove that they have the "juice" or ultimate courage. This includes, drugs, promiscuity, even murder. Satan has a grip on millions of young people in this present age who are caught up so tight they cannot turn loose.

Yet we are being called to gird up our loins and lift up our minds so that we can move to a higher level beyond what the Hip Hop world is offering.

Close to God

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that as we pull up or gird our loins we get closer to God, regardless of our age. We are never too young to pull up our pants or to get closer our Lord.

There are many youth who live with a pants down mentality, but most Christian youth are trying live up and look up to Jesus rather than looking down on the ground with their pants down.

The Christian youth is an example in Christian conversation in the words they use and jokes they tell.

The Christian youth is willing to volunteer to help others out of love without asking "what am I going to get out of it?"

The Christian youth is guided by what they have learned about God from Sunday school, bible study and personal devotion.

When it comes to living the Godly life, his mind is up and his pants are up!

When it comes to praising God for his goodness, his praise is up and his pants are up.

Youth want to give God praise for keeping his hand on their plans.

If you have made advancements in education, it was God's hand in the plan.

Never too late to pull them up

If you have made career advancements, it was God's hand in the plan.

If you have achieved family goals, it was God's hand in the plan.

When God's hand is in the plan..

—The world may kick you down, but God will pick you up!

—The world may strike you out, but God will give you a home run!

—The world may think you are a loser, but God will make you a winner!

—The world may think you are weak, but God will make you strong!

When God's hand is in the plan the impossible becomes possible!

When God's hand is in the plan, the improbable become probable!

When God's hand is in the plan, the unthinkable become thinkable!

It's the same hand the carried an old rugged cross to Calvary one day!

The world intended it for bad, but God had a hand in the plan.. and early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with all power!

All power in his hands!

Making Time When You Have No Time

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 2008

SCRIPTURE: "And as the king passed by, he cried unto the king: and he said, Thy servant went out into the midst of the battle; and behold, a man turned aside, and brought a man unto me, and said, keep this man: if by any means he be missing, then shall thy life be for his life, or else thou shalt pay a talent of silver. And as thy servant was busy here and there he was gone." 1 Kings 20:40

Introduction

I don't have time!" Have you ever said that? Most of us at one time or another have said something, "I'm running out of time" or "We don't have time for that" or "How much time will it take?" We are a very impatient people. We have busy schedules filled with activity that at the time seems important. We are so busy that even never seem to have enough time.

You know that you are this type of person when you find yourself saying, "I want it now!"

We have been inundated with a long list of time saving devices that instead of saving us time, have given us less time for quality experiences as we squeeze in more. We have been reared on 30 second T.V. commercials, 30 minute sit-coms, and 60 minute mini-dramas. We want high speed internet access and can't stand to wait even a few seconds to view the website we've selected.

We spend our lives in a series of "can't wait situations." When we're young, we can't wait to go to kindergarten. Then we can't wait to get out of school. Then we wait to fall in love and get married. Then we can't wait to have kids. Then, as parents, we can't wait for the kids to go off to school. Then we can't wait for them to graduate.

Have you ever noticed that the more expensive the restaurant, the longer you have to wait? There are actually five different waits you must endure; first, you wait to get a seat, then you wait to get a menu, then you wait to order, then you wait for the food, and then you wait for the check. And then they have the audacity to call the person who serves you the waiter!

We just don't have enough time. We ride the elevator to save time but then we get impatient with the elevator because it's too slow. Have you ever watched the people on an elevator after they pushed the button? Some people are "swayers;" they sway back and forth as they wait. Others are "bouncers;" they bounce up and down while waiting for the elevator. And then there are "pushers;" they're always pushing the button, thinking that might speed things up.

Sometimes our hurry up attitude affects other people. Consider the woman who was upset because she and her husband's dream vacation was interrupted by a trip to the dentist. She had shopping to do, places to go, things to do and the dentist office was going to take too much time. "I want a tooth pulled, and I don't want Novocain because I'm in a big hurry," the woman said. "Just extract the tooth as quickly as possible, and we'll be on our way." The dentist was quite impressed. "You're certainly a courageous woman, because that could be painful." he said. "Which tooth is it?" The woman turned to her husband and said, "Show him your tooth, dear."

When we say we don't have time, does that include God, too? Unfortunately, for many people prayer, worship, bible study, and ministry building activities are not included in their personal priority lists because they take too much time. God gets second place; or depending on the day of the week, no place at all, he falls somewhere behind the beauty shop and televised sports.

As Christians we recognize that we have a responsibility to exercise steward over our time, talents and resources. Since all of our time belongs to God, we should make sure that we appropriate whatever time we need to serve him, worship him and glorify him before others. He has all the time in the world, and if we give him first place he will reward us by taking us to a place where time will have no end.

Exposition

This text considers an illustration about what happens when we are so busy going here and there that we neglect God.

The story was given by a prophet to King Ahab after the king had disobeyed a command of God to destroy the Assyrian army and its king.

The prophet gives the king a story to pronounce God's judgment. A servant went into battle and was given a man to guard and told if the man is lost the servant would lose his life. The servant said he was "busy here and there" and failed to keep an eye on the prisoner. The king pronounced a death sentence on the servant and in so doing pronounced his own sentence as well.

This servant assumed a responsibility, took on a task and didn't carry it out because he didn't have time. He was busy doing something else.

The servant was not lazy for the text says he was "busy here and there." The text indicates that whatever his activities were "here and there" they were less important than that which he had left undone.

The central focus of the Christian revolves around God, family, occupation, fellowman and social mobility.

The majority of the time of a Christian, that is his ripping and running, activity, application of his talent, use of his time and finances all revolve around God and family. The priorities of Christians always focus first on God and family and all other considerations are secondary.

How many are neglecting their service to God and to their family while they are running "here and there" for the club, their job, or political organization?

The text says, "..as thy servant was busy here and there, he was gone."

Jesus said in Matthew 6:33, "Seek ye first the kingdom of heaven and its righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you."

The best things require time

The best things in life require some time. We may not have a lot of it, but the more we give it, the better it seems to be. For example Old Fashioned oats takes longer but it tastes better. Old fashioned home cooked burgers are slower, but taste better than Big Macs and Whooper. There are other areas too.

RELATIONSHIPS TAKE TIME: Instant people have a problem building relationships. We can become so instant oriented that we judge relationships with people based upon how much time that will consume. So, caller-ids on our phones help us to ignore those that will take up our time or waste our time. Relationships take time. You may not have a lot of time but building a relationship takes plenty of quality time.

LOVE TAKES TIME: Instant love is frustrating. Love and the word instant are incompatible because love deals with two things: feelings and action. Love is a succession of feelings that are nurtured through time spent together. A minute here and a moment there is instant love, but it is also frustrating love. Love is also an action word; it is better shown that spoken. Love that is shown over time is better than instant love any day. You may not have a lot of time, but a love that last takes time.

KNOWING GOD TAKES TIME: It is possible to get in such a hurry that we have little time for God. Things that are godly often take up tremendous amounts of time. Bible study is not quick, it takes time. A real prayer life is not instant, but it takes time. True worship is not instant, it takes time. A person who never has time considers the amount of time set aside for worship, prayer, bible study and spiritual growth as an encroachment upon his schedule. Such a person looks for the quick version that can give a quick fix. Is there an instant way to tell God thanks for his blessings? Is there quick way to praise him for his goodness?

TO MAKE TIME REQUIRES DISCIPLINE: If we want to start carving out time for God it will require a measure of personal discipline on our part. Discipline for life is generally imposed, but works best when it is self imposed. If education is knowing "what you gotta know, to do what you gotta do" then discipline means, "doing what you gotta do, to get what you gotta do, done." The hallmark of discipline is when it is self imposed. It's when you force yourself to do "What you gotta do, to do what you gotta do." That's when you make time for God and kingdom building. You may not have a lot of time but you discipline yourself to make time for him.

God takes His time

Finally, it is good that we remember that despite the hurried pace of our world it better for us to wait and let God be the instant God that he is.

There was no person whose daily life was more crowded than Jesus. He was constantly surrounded by crowds who wanted to see him or touch him. Jesus always found a way to slow his pace by retreating in a boat, praying in a garden, or crossing over to the other side.

What he came to do could not be done instantly it would take time. When Jesus told his disciples that he was the bread of heaven, it wasn't instant bread but it was bread that had been prepared from the beginning of time.

Thus, the word of God encourages saints not to be in a hurry, but to learn to wait on the Lord! Isaiah said, "They that wait on the Lord, shall renew their strength. They shall mount up on wings as eagles. They shall run and not be weary. They shall walk and not faint!" Psalm 27:14 says, "Wait on the LORD: be of good courage, and he shall strengthen thine heart: wait, I say, on the LORD."

While it's not advisable for us to hurry God, it is good to know that we serve an instant God.

While it's not recommended that we tell God when and how to act, it is good to know that we serve an on time God!

Sound travels at a speed of 1085 feet per second, but before we speak the words of any prayer, the answer is on the way!

Light travels at speeds above 5,000 feet per second, but long before we can see it, God makes a way out of no way!

A widow woman with an issue of blood pushed her way through a crowd. When she touched the hem of his garment, instantly she was made whole! A centurion soldier asked Jesus to speak the word for his daughter's healing, and instantly it was done.

No wonder the song writer declared, "He may not come when you want him, but he's right on time!"

Since God is on time for us, every saint needs to make time for Him!

Since God is on time when we need a blessing, we need to give him more of our time!

Since God is on time when we need a healing, we need to give him more of our ourselves!

We need to be busy building the kingdom, giving him all of our time.

I keep so busy working for the kingdom:

—I don't have to see what time you came in because I'm trying to make it in!

—I don't have time to see who you were with, because everyday I'm walking with the king!

—I don't have time to speculate how much you have in the bank, because my father is rich in houses and land and he holds the wealth of the world in his hand

—I don't have time to worry about what kind of shoes you are wearing, because when I get to heaven I'm going to put on my shoes and walk!

In the fullness of time, God sent his only begotten Son to be a living sacrifice!

He was not in a hurry; he took his time, coming through 42 generations.

But in the fullness of time, he picked up an old rugged cross!

In the fullness of time He died on Calvary!

But early Sunday morning, right on time; he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

Something to Live For

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 2008

SCRIPTURE: For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain. Philippians 1:21

Introduction

Have you ever wondered, "What am I here for? What's my purpose?" That may seem like the kind of question some philosopher would ask, but it is a necessary question for every believer to ask. "Why am I here?" "Do I have a purpose?"

Martin Luther King, Jr. once said that if a man has not discovered something he is willing to die for, then he is not fit to live. That means that each of us is searching to discover the purpose for which we were placed on this earth; once we discover that elusive truth, we should be willing to lay down our lives to achieve its end.

A group of young people were once asked, "Do you believe that your mother would jump in front of a speeding car to save your life?" Each child answered, "Yes." A second question was asked, "Do you believe she would give up her life if it would save yours?" All of them said, "Yes." But when the questioned was reversed the answer was surprising, "Would you jump in front of a speeding car to save your mother's life? Would you die so that she could live?" Only a few hands were raised. The youth had not reached a point in their lives when they could love or sacrifice to a point that they were willing to give up everything.

Christ gave us the ultimate example when he came to this earth, willing to die for people who would not return the favor. He died so that we might live. Now, our goal should be to also have something to live for, that we can love so much that we are willing to die to achieve it.

As Christians, our desire is to do God's will. We know that is a higher calling than one that is self oriented. We are called to serve him. It is something to live for and something to die for as well.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul's assertion that his highest life goal is to live for Christ and even to die for his cause.

Paul spent the remainder of his life, after the Damascus Road experience, lifting up the name of Christ. He endured hardships, difficulties and sacrifices all for the purpose of building the kingdom of God.

In a similar sense, every believer should strive to live as Christ lived. The glory of Christ ought to be the end of our lives, the grace of Christ should be the guiding the principle of our lives, and the word of Christ should be the ruler of our lives.

Paul maintained that the whole essence of the Christian life is to achieve our purpose in him. It is derived from Christ, and directed to him. He is the principle, rule, and end of it.

Those who have this life purpose, like Paul, count it a great gain; even an everlasting gain to give their lives in his service or for his kingdom. Death is a great loss to a carnal worldly man; for he loses all his comforts and all his hopes: but to a good Christian it is gain, for it is the end of all his weakness and misery and the perfection of his comforts and accomplishment of his hopes; it delivers him from all the evils of life, and brings him to the possession of the chief good.

In Christ, Paul found something to live for and something to die for.

Something to live for

What makes the church strong today is that it is made up of millions of people who understand that the have a godly purpose.

This understanding provides believers with the ability to maintain a spiritual balance in this crazy world because they have a sense of purpose and divine destiny. The nineteenth century Polish poet Cyrrian Norwid wrote “To be what is called happy, one should have (1) something to live on, (2) something to live for, (3) something to die for. The lack of one results in drama. The lack of two result in tragedy.” Martin Seligman, the eminent psychologist, notes that the lack of meaning in our society today has reached epidemic proportions. He emphasizes that finding meaning requires “an attachment to something larger than ourselves.”

All of these smart men and women simply repeat in different words what Jesus tells every believer. “If you want to save your life, lose it. The man that loses his life saves it.” That paraphrase explains Jesus’ teaching that believers find meaning and purpose in life when we plunge ourselves into a calling and mission greater than ourselves. Those who have a sense of purpose are able to deal with life. When we find our purpose, then we achieve balance and sanity in a crazy world.

The reason the church cannot be defeated is because its cause is championed by legions of believers who are empowered by God, intent on achieving a Godly purpose, even at the risk of death.

Learn your life’s purpose

Each of us should strive to learn God’s purpose for our lives. There is an intersection between the skills and talents that we have today, that have brought together over hundreds of years of genetic refinement for one single purpose. The skills and talents that you have coincide with the quadrant of world history that you were born into, the needs that have arisen in the community you share as neighbors, and what God intends and wants for us. When we use our God given skills and talents to impact the community around us we create what Jesus called the Kingdom of God.

Look around you.

There is something sick in your community that you need to heal. This sickness may not be physical; it could be psychological or social. There are sick leaders and sick situations. Is it possible that your talents have been given to you to heal this situation?

There is something new needed in your community; something new that you need to start. You know what it is because you keep saying, "Why don't they do this?" or "They should do it this way?" or "We don't have this, why not?" It's a sign that something new is needed. When you look at your gifts and talents to talk, convince, organize and make things happen; maybe this new thing is your purpose.

There is something boring that you need to liven up. You noticed that programs need a little life, bulletins need a little spice, activities need a little pep; even sermons need a little more creativity. But when you look at your talents and skills, you know what it takes to make things more beautiful, enjoyable and exciting; maybe that's your purpose.

Discover your purpose and commit to it

When Jesus went into the wilderness for 40 days and nights; he went to confirm his purpose. He arose from that experience determined to achieve his purpose, even if it meant his own death. When he made this commitment he was a young man. Once he confirmed his purpose he decided to preach in his hometown, to recruit disciples and to build until he created a spiritual movement. He fed them. He healed them. He taught them. Soon he set his face towards Jerusalem.' He had to confront the political and religious leaders of his day. That was his challenge in his place and time. And his life was all over by the time he was 33.

We should do the same. We should discover what God has for us to do then devote our energy toward making it happen. We should pursue it with everything that we have.

The time is now

When should you begin pursuit of your life's purpose? There is a Latin phrase "Carpe Diem" which means seize the day or seize the moment. The time is now.

There is a bug that lives on the lakes in the deep south that lives its entire life cycle in 24 hours. In the morning it hatches and zooms through all the wonder of youth in the morning. By noon, it begins courting and in the late afternoon there are a swarm of these bugs that rise over the lake like funnels because the females will only mate with the guys that can fly high, so up they go. By sunset, the casualties of age are beginning to take their toll on some of them but the swarm continues through the evening. In the early hours of the dawn the next day, there are only a very few of them left and by the time the sun is in the sky the whole generation has passed. Our time on this earth is not as long as appears. Like that bug our time is short we must Seize the Day.

We must do something significant with our lives. We can't afford to remain distant, aloof, keeping our options open. The result of that path is that at the end of the day we don't achieve anything of significance, anything of meaning.

The time to act is now.

Christ had something to live for

Finally, brothers and sisters, we remind you that we serve a Lord who gave us the example, he had something to live for and something to die for.

Every person should have a "mission statement" which summarizes why you think God put you here and the mission you feel obligated to accomplish before you leave this earth. You may not know your mission but God has certainly ordained you and equipped you with the tools for your mission before you were born.

If your mission is from God it will have redeeming characteristics that will uplift, build and strengthen life in one or more persons.

Often the Saint finds himself agreeing with the Song Writer who pleads, "Make me a blessing, make me blessing. Out of my life let Jesus Shine. Make me a blessing oh Lord I pray, Make me a blessing to someone today."

Another song writer put it this way, "If I can help somebody as I pass along ...if I can cheer somebody with a word or song then my living will not be in vain."

Down in Bethlehem a little child was born with a mission. His mission was to Bring:

—Hope to the disillusioned and Salvation to the Lost.

—Life and provide it more abundantly.

—Peace on earth and goodwill toward men.

—Comfort in the midst of calamities & Strength in weakness

—Assurance in the midst of agonies & Power in the midst of problems.

—Safety in times of trouble and Shelter in the time of storm!

Down in Bethlehem a child was born, his name was Jesus!

His purpose was to give us salvation.

Our purpose must be to tell the world about him!

Tell the world that:

—The world may kick you down, but God will pick you up!

—The world may strike you out, but God will give you a home run!

—The world may think you are a loser, but God will make you a winner!

—The world may think you are weak, but God will make you strong!

When put our hand in God's hand the impossible becomes possible!

When put our hand in God's hand the improbable becomes probable!

When put our hand in God's hand the unthinkable becomes thinkable!

When put our hand in God's hand the ordinary can achieve the extraordinary!

We must tell the world about Jesus, who carried an old rugged cross to Calvary one day!

He had something to die for

But early Sunday morning he arose from the dead..

He had something to live for!

The Lawman's Lawman

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 2008

SCRIPTURE:"This is the covenant I will make with them after that time, says the Lord. I will put my laws in their hearts, and I will write them on their minds.Their sins and lawless acts I will remember no more. And where these have been forgiven, there is no longer any sacrifice for sin. Hebrews 10:16-18;And there appeared unto them Elias with Moses: and they were talking with Jesus. And Peter answered and said to Jesus, Master, it is good for us to be here: and let us make three tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias. Mark 9:4-5

Introduction

Every generation has been fascinated with lawmen and female law enforcers. We have watched them wearing their shiny badges with awe. Every boy at one time or another has toyed with the fascination of becoming law enforcement officer. Today, even girls dream of being law enforcement officers, FBI agents and deputies. Whether it's the Kung Fu and comedy antics of Jackie Chan in Rush Hour or the Tough Guy of Walker Texas Ranger, youngsters admire the heroes.

Name the generation and there is a lawman upon whom the people trusted most and feared least.

Who was your favorite lawman?

Was it Lash La Rue with his twisting walk, stinging whip and sidekick Fuzzy Jones? Was it Hop A Long Cassidy who always wore a big white hat? For some, Wild Bill Hickok represented law and order, along with his sidekick Jingles, who would always shout, "Wait for me Wild Bill!" Matt Dillon loved Dodge City so much that he saw more of Festus Hagan than he did Miss Kitty. Roy Rogers and Dale Evans wore no badge but along with Gene Autrey they were the symbols of law and order for an entire generation; just as the thundering hooves of the mighty horse Silver always brought on the Lone Ranger and Tonto.

What does it take to be a lawman? What does it take for a man or a woman to choose a career that is thankless, uncomfortable and dangerous? What kind of man or woman is it that would risk his life for meager wages, work long hours, and strain his/her own family's relationship to respond to the beck and call of the law?

Obviously the men and women who pursue such a career are responding to a higher calling beyond a mere paycheck. Such a man receives orders from a chief higher than his/her boss. Perhaps they give their lives to this service because, without knowing it, they are guided by the hand of God.

The public looks to the officer of the law to serve and protect. But who does the lawman look to for protection and inspiration. Who is the lawman's lawman?

As Christians, we have learned that there is one law giver and one hand that guides us all; the hand of God. Following his lead, we have gone through dark and lonesome valleys, and climbed rigorous mountains. Sustained by the unseen, but present, spirit of God we have been able to shoulder burdens we thought were too heavy to bear. We thank God continuously for Jesus, the Lawman's lawman.

Exposition

This text focuses on a point when Jesus appeared on the mount of transfiguration with Elijah and Moses, champions of God's law, point to Christ as the fulfiller of God's law.

Jesus took Peter, James and John to the top of a mountain. There, they saw Moses and Elijah and Jesus in a transfigured form standing with them.

Moses was the law giver. It was he who had gone to the mountain top and received the 10 commandments. It was he who had become known as the lawgiver, although the actual laws themselves came from God.

Elijah was the greatest of the law enforcers. He challenged evil governments and even queen Jezebel herself. He challenged wrong doing wherever he saw it and brought down fire from heaven to confirm his actions.

Jesus appeared not as law giver or a law enforcement prophet but as one who would fulfill the laws of Moses. The presence of Moses and Elijah confirms his role and his purpose. He did not come to destroy the law but to fulfill it, by the command of God.

As the fulfillment of the law Jesus would go beyond the hard core enforcement of the Old Testament. In the Old Testament the law required rigid enforcement with harsh penalties that included banishment and even death. Yet, Hebrews 16 says that Christ will bring a new covenant. In this new covenant the laws of God will be written in minds and hearts of men.

In the new kingdom, obedience to God will be in the hearts of men.

In the new kingdom, doing what is right will be in the hearts of men.

In the new kingdom, the original purpose of the laws of Moses, will be fulfilled in Christ and exhibited in the lives of believers.

God's law sets our standard

The laws of God tell us what we should be. They set the high standard, which we are to live and govern ourselves. The moral code, reflected in the 10 commandments teach us clearly that we should acknowledge God and him only, reverence our parents and live morally pure lives, void of cheating, stealing, and murderous tendencies. The 10th commandment, thou shalt not covet, even deals with how we should maintain our thoughts and desires. When each of us stands before the law, we fall short. We see our errors and know immediately how miserably we have not lived up to the ideal believer's life.

The law sets the standard for each of us. It is rigid and unchanging. It says live up to this standard or die. There is no room for compromise or compassion. The letter of the law must be carried out in every circumstance.

Obeying God's law gains favor

To obtain favor from God we must be obedient. God does not smile on us if we are disobedient to his command.

God smiles on us when we live and give righteously. Remember Peter's words in Acts 10:34-35, he that lives in the fear of the Lord and lives righteously is accepted. Others are rejected. Cain and Abel show us how two men can come before the Lord, one obtains a favor from the Lord and the other does not.

We must live and give righteously. Living righteously implies doing God's will every day. Giving righteously implies sharing our financial gifts and spiritual gifts according to God's plan. To obtain a favor from God we must both "live and give" righteously.

Those who embrace God's law are shielded

Those men and women who embrace God's law are shielded on all sides. Believers who trust God have the assurance that God is protecting from all sides. Law enforcement officers were a shield but God goes further than that he becomes a shield around those who trust him. The knowledge that God is a shield about us helps us to feel secure in his hand because we are shielded on all sides and on all fronts. He is able to do for us what we cannot do for ourselves. He can shield us on all sides because he can see the unseen dangers ahead; we cannot. Even if we could, there are so many variables in life that we cannot protect against every eventual possibility. That's why rejoice in the knowledge God shields us on all sides.

Lawman's Lawman

Finally, brothers and sisters, those who have respect for the lawgiver may look to Moses or Elijah, but those who embrace the whole picture look to Jesus, the fulfiller of the law. He is the law man's lawman.

Our Lord and savior is the author of the law and the end of the law.

He is the author and finisher of our faith.

Those who keep his laws in their hearts will be rewarded.

Those who labor in the kingdom faithfully will be rewarded.

Every now and then it is good for believers to remember that serving the Lord does pay off after while.

We have to work while it is day because when the night comes, no man can work. Maybe that's what the song writer had in mind when he penned the words, "I'm going to work until my day is done. I'm going to work until the setting of the sun. I'll cease from sorrow. There'll be no tomorrow. I'm going to work until my day is done."

Warriors, keep on embracing the law and love of God!

Warriors, keep standing behind the shield of faith
Warriors, keep on telling the story!
Tell them about Jesus! Tell them how he died on Calvary!
But early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!
Tell them about Jesus!
The Lawman's lawman!

Talking Asses

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 2008

SCRIPTURE: And when the ass saw the angel of the LORD, she fell down under Balaam: and Balaam's anger was kindled, and he smote the ass with a staff. And the LORD opened the mouth of the ass, and she said unto Balaam, What have I done unto thee, that thou hast smitten me these three times? Numbers 22:27-29

Introduction

Have you ever tried to warn someone but they would not listen? How did you get their attention? Did you yell at them? In the heat of an argument did you throw something at them? Did you scream or pull your hair out? Was someone hit? The ways that we use to get attention may vary but it's obvious that our actions have attracting attention as a goal.

There are many who ignore logical warnings and wise advice. They only respond when something gets abnormal. They won't respond to "Don't stay out to late." They only understand when someone sticks a finger in their face and shouts loud enough for the whole neighborhood to hear, "You better make sure you have your butt in this house before 12 or I will wipe the floor with your ugly behind."

Getting attention is essential. That's the lesson that the mule handler learned when he came to town. He had a reputation for getting his mules to move when all others in the area were too stubborn to actually do anything. One day the handler's mule stopped in the middle of town and refused to budge. The entire town looked out of its windows to see how the expert managed to get his mule to move when all others were stuck with stubborn animals that refused to budge. First the handler talked to the mule peaceably, but he would not move. Neither did the mule budge when he delicately pulled on the reins or gave him a voice command. Then the handler stopped, went to the wagon and found a 2x4 board. He then hit the mule on the head with the board. Instantly the mule began to pull as ordered. The people were amazed and they asked the handler his secret. He said, "There's really no big secret; if you want the mule to move, first you have to get his attention. When you are dealing with an ass, sometimes it takes a board up side of his head to get his attention."

That may a bit demonstrative, but it helps make the point that life sometimes offers us many attention getters. Sometimes we don't get the point until life hits us in the head.

Often we don't hear him and he has to get our attention.

As Christians, we know God has a plan for our lives and he tries to share it with us daily. We want to listen to him and allow him to speak to us without the need of unusual things such as talking donkeys.

Exposition

This text focuses on God's efforts to stop one of his prophets from doing something wrong, but was forced to make a donkey talk to get his attention.

This text occurs when the 40 years of wilderness wandering were almost over and Israel prepared to enter the Promised Land. The Kings of the Promised Land were immediately threatened by the sight of nearly a million people about to come into their region. Further, word had spread about how mighty these people could be with the Lord on their side. King Balak of Moab realized that against such supernatural help from their God their armies would have no power.

Balak devised a scheme to use their God against them. He sent messengers to enlist the aid of a famous prophet named Balaam. If the great Balaam would curse the Israelites, his curse could counteract the blessings they so obviously enjoyed. Then the Moabite army might have a chance against them.

The king offered Balaam large sums of money to curse Israel which he thought would cause God to abandon them. Balaam knew God's command; he also knew what was right to do, but the attraction of the money was too great for him to turn down.

He started along the road to do the deed and God placed an angel in the way to stop him. Balaam did not see the angel, as big and as obvious as he was, but the donkey saw him and started trying to turn. Balaam beat the donkey and continued down the road. This happened three times, but on the last time God opened the donkey's mouth and caused him to talk and tell him that there was an angel in the wrong warning him about doing the wrong thing.

Eventually, Balaam got the point. He didn't get the money from the king, but he issued a prophecy that is remembered for all time, "I see Him, but not now; I behold Him, but not near: a Star shall come out of Jacob, and a Scepter will rise out of Israel" (Numbers 24:17). These words foretold the Messiah, the Christ, Whose birth was announced by the appearance of a star. He Himself is the "bright morning star" of the book of Revelation (Revelation 22:16), the Victor Who will vanquish His enemies, those close at hand and those afar off."

That was the message he was supposed to give in the first place, but God had to get his attention first from the mouth of a talking donkey.

Three Important Balaam Events

There are times when travel the wrong road. We are going in the right direction but somewhere along the way we took a wrong road.

God sends us angels on both occasions. When we are traveling right and face life troubles his angel protects us and shows us the way. Lot lived in the city of Sodom.

When the city faced danger because of its sinful ways, God sent angels to warn him and give him direction. Lot listened to the instruction and was spared destruction. His wife did not and she turned into a pillar of salt.

Sometimes we walk through life challenging experiences, that bible calls it walking through Valley of Baca (Psalm 84:6). That's when we encounter those experiences that challenge our faith, shake our confidence, weaken our spirit, and dash our hopes. When times get tough and you can't see your way, you are going in that direction. That's also when God sends his angel to show us the way.

When you look for help but only get hurt, God sends an angel.

When you seek pleasure but only get pain, God sends an angel.

When you seek satisfaction but only get sorrow God sends an angel.

God also sends an angel when we are about to go the wrong way. That's what happened to Balaam. The angel warned him; but he was so consumed with his own idea and plan that he could not see him.

When we can't see the angel, that's a Balaam event. It's a time when God is trying to tell us something but we will not hear.

We should strive to stay close to God so we can always know his will.

Difficulties are signs

There are times in our lives when everything seems to go wrong and we can't figure out why? Sometimes we forget or simply ignore what is before us or what has worked for us in the past. We look so hard for answers that we can't see them when they appear.

Balaam's donkey walked down a narrow road that had a wall on each side. When the donkey saw the angel standing in the road with its sword drawn it tried to turn and bashed Balaam's leg against the wall. Balaam felt the pain, he saw the way the donkey was acting, but still didn't understand what was really happening. God was sending him a sign.

In a similar sense we too experience many difficulties trying to travel a road that is against God's will for us. Our methods keep us crashing against one wall or another. Often, we take out our frustration on everyone around us: our spouse, children, friends, co-workers, employees, church members and anyone else who happens to be there at that moment. Like Balaam, we strike out but we don't ever consider that what may be happening to us could be a sign from God on high.

Whenever difficulties come in our way, go to God in prayer. Ask him for direction and for the wisdom to understand the signs that he is giving. It is then that we will understand his will for our lives.

He opened his eyes

Number 22:31 says, "Then the LORD opened the eyes of Balaam, and he saw the angel of the LORD standing in the way, and his sword drawn in his hand: and he bowed down his head, and fell flat on his face." After God opened the mouth of the donkey, he also opened the eyes of Balaam. When Balaam's eyes were opened he could see the danger of that lay ahead and he could also remember the power of God.

In our difficulties sometimes we forget that we serve a mighty God who provided special provisions for us in Egypt and during our wilderness journey. Yet, in the Promised Land, they desperately worried about how they would survive without the daily rain of "manna" and turned to other gods. They didn't consider all that God had done for them in the past. When they were promptly reminded by Joshua and others they remembered the power of the God they served.

When our eyes our closed it's easy to forget who God is, what he can do and what he can do for us. In our daily struggles we wrestle with many difficulties, often forgetting the one that has successfully helped us through countless situations in the past. When our eyes are opened we remember that God is powerful.

When our eyes are open we are able to see God's plan for our lives in its fullness

Consider all he has done for us

Finally brothers and sisters we must remember that God will not abandon us; he will always send us a sign.

Abandonment has never been the problem with God; he is faithful to give us a sign.

When Noah experienced the flood and the waters descended after a year, God sent him a sign of the rainbow.

Gideon faced the prospect of fighting Midianites with a small army and God gave him a sign.

Even today the world is seeking answers from God and it cannot see the signs.

The signs he sends may not be as dramatic as talking donkeys but they are all around us.

Before we burden ourselves with unnecessary worry, we should remember that we serve an awesome God who reigns and blesses us in many ways.

Some see the sick and injured healed in hospitals and sometimes without a doctor's care, and can's see that it is a sign.

Only those who have forgotten how God healed their sicknesses and lifted them from their sick beds are amazed at his healing power!

Some see those who have failed receive second chances, but that can't see that as a sign.

But those who have experienced repeated failure in life and have been restored over and over again know that they have received a sign from God.

Believers who trust in God don't need talking donkeys to tell them that God warns them, protects them and provides for them. They know the Lord works in mysterious ways his wonders to perform.

Believers don't worry today, because they remember what he did yesterday. When the world needed a final sign of God's love, he did not make an donkey talk nor make it rain for 40 days and nights. He did not make the sun stand still or roll back the waters of the Red Sea.

He sent his only begotten Son as a sign of his love for the world

Thos who know him have seen the signs. When we were:

WEAK he provided them strength
DOWN he picked them up!
DEFEATED he gave them the victory
DISCOURAGED he restored their hope!
LONELY, he gave them comfort
TROUBLED he gave them peace of mind
Our sign came to a little town called Bethlehem
Our sign died on an old rugged cross!
But Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave!
He's still blessing us today and sending us signs of his love

One Free Thing In a World Where Everyone Pays

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 2008

SCRIPTURE: "For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." Romans 6:23

Introduction

Is it possible to get something for nothing? America is a nation that subscribes to the the notion of quid pro quo, that is something is received in returned for something of equal value or something for something. We find it difficult to believe in anything that presents itself as available without a counterbalance of that which is of equal value.

That is the reason that many people have accepting the gift of salvation; they believe if it is free it must not have real value because everything of value has to be purchased with a price. That's what our educated minds reflect.

We are definitely educated. Our scientists have explored nearly everything imaginable to man: the moon, outer space, the deep, the brain, the mysteries of our bodies. We have instant access to knowledge through our TV sets, radio, and the Internet. We can learn the secrets of the deep. We can see firsthand as a satellite of ours zooms past the monster planets in our solar system. We can see cells split. We have knowledge of things happening thousands of miles away instantly. We have knowledge beyond belief. The average citizen knows more than most of the learned men of the past knew. Yet, with all of our knowledge we can't understand something as simple as God giving the world a gift of eternal, for which no one has to pay anything to receive.

We are taught that everything and everyone has a price.

We are taught that we pay for everything.

We pay to be born, we pay to live, and we pay when we die. We even pay to be buried or cremated.

We are accustomed to asking "how much" to any proposal, request or new initiative. We attach a cost analysis to every undertaking.

That's why we have some much trouble accepting that "God so love the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life."

What God offers is free, but we are suspicious of free things; there is always a hidden string attached.

As Christians, we have come to know that while salvation is free to us; it was bought with a price. It is free only because he who purchased it chose to resell it to us for a profit of some kind, but he chose to give us to us without a charge. Salvation is truly free.

Exposition

This text points to salvation as a free gift from God in contrast to death as a payment for sin.

Paul, writing to the Romans explained the results of sinful living as compared to the results of following Christ.

The cause of sin is laid at Adam's feet. His disobedience in the Garden of Eden ushered sin into the world and all generations that follow are now compelled to suffer the punishment for his sin. Romans 5:12 says, "When Adam sinned; sin entered the entire human race. His sin spread death throughout the entire world, so everything began to grow old and die, for all sinned."

The payment for sin has been spelled out in scripture in undeniable terms. Those who sin will suffer the scorn of God. Nearly every prophet has been a voice against sin. Each raised their voice against sin and spelled out the doom of those who practice sin. Isaiah 3:11 "Woe unto the wicked! It shall be ill with him: for the reward of his hands shall be given him." The prophet Ezekiel went even further: Ezekiel 18:4 says, "Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine: the soul that sinneth, it shall die." Paul, writing to the Corinthians spelled it out in no uncertain terms by listing off the various categories of sinful behavior that will draw the wrath of God. He then told them repeatedly that the payment for that behavior would be exclusion from the kingdom of God. 1 Corinthians 6:9-10 "Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? Be not deceived: neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with mankind, Nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God."

The unrighteous will receive his ultimate punishment which is a cruel and horrible death.

Those who are righteous will receive the reward of eternal life. Paul notes on numerous occasions that the righteousness that Christians have is not of their own. They have been made righteous or justified by Christ who has taken the punishment for any unrighteousness they may have previously committed. Their daily effort to live for him, despite occasional slips, will be rewarded. It will come as a free gift to them because the penalty for their sins was paid for by Christ himself on Calvary. John 3:36 says, "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life: and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him."

Those who obtain salvation therefore, acquire it free of charge, but it does not come without a price. The salvation they enjoy has been purchased by Christ himself at the expense of his suffering and blood on Calvary.

What's the catch?

The nature of salvation is that it is free. Christ died for us on Calvary that we would have the opportunity to life eternal, without a cost.

Instinctively we ask, "What's the catch?" What is the secret part that is being held back until the end of the sale? That's the way we think because we have seen the slick salesman who shows a product and demonstrates how well it works, but never discusses the cost. The clean our carpet, shampoo our rugs and clean our dishes with a fantastic product that is nothing short of a miracle. We are attracted to it until we hear the cost. Their training has given them instructions to withhold the cost to end. So we wait for the catch.

Yet when we hear that salvation is free and there is no catch we are mystified at how this could possibly be the case.

Nothing is really free, is it?

Food is available but it is not free.

Clothing is available but it is not free.

Homes are all around us but they certainly are not free whether we are purchasing home or renting. The amounts we pay make it obvious that shelter is not free.

Gasoline is not free.

Heating oil is not free.

And the cost of electricity is going up daily. It's obvious that is not free.

Yet, we are being told that salvation is free, with no catch. Can this be so?

When it comes to the things that man makes and reproduces, nothing is free. Those who are suspicious of free things have a right to raise an eyebrow of concern at free offers.

There is a price to pay for everything, including our choice of lifestyle!

We should remind the drunkard, that while he is free to drink, there is a price to pay!

We should remind the drug addict that while he is free to shoot up and get high, there is a price to pay!

We should remind the dealer that while he is free to market packaged death at a healthy profit, there is a price to pay!

We should remind the homosexual that while he or she is free to engage in sodomitic sexual encounters that this freedom does not come without a price!

Everything has a price!

Sometimes the price is hidden and cannot be seen, but there is a price!

Sometimes the tag is marked "free" but the real price shows up later!

Whatever the case, there is nothing free anymore!

Somebody must pay the price!

However, when it comes to salvation, Christ has made it available free of charge

Salvation is the one free thing in the world. It is available to everyone, without a catch.

Even salvation had a price

Finally, we must consider the spiritual gift that Jesus offers to anyone who will believe on him. It is salvation. It is offered free, but it too has been paid for!

For many years Herbert W. Armstrong sent copies of his magazine, "The Plain Truth" to millions of people around the world absolutely free! There was never a request for a donation or solicitation of any kind. Many were puzzled at how he could afford this "free" magazine. What many didn't know is that the magazine had been paid for by members of the World Wide Church of God, which Armstrong founded. It was free to the recipients, only because Armstrong's church members paid the price!

So it is with our salvation.

Salvation is free not because it's cheap or without worth, but because it has been paid for by Christ himself and presents it to us as a free gift!

Perhaps that's what the song writer had in mind when these words were penned: "Jesus paid it all. All to him I owe. Sin had left its crimson stain, but he washed it white as snow!"

I don't know about your but I'm glad to know that Jesus paid it all!

I'm glad to know that he loved me enough to absorb the punishment for my sins!

I'm glad that he suffered humiliation for me!

I'm glad that he shed his blood for me!

I'm glad that he died out on Calvary!

But I'm even happier that early Sunday morning that he rose up from the grave offering me the free gift of life!

Nothing's free anymore, but thanks to Jesus, Salvation comes without a price!

You pay to come in the world, you pay to leave but salvation is the one free thing left, because Jesus paid for it with his own blood!

What's Done In the Dark

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 2008

SCRIPTURE: For there is nothing covered, that shall not be revealed; neither hid, that shall not be known. Therefore whatsoever ye have spoken in darkness shall be heard in the light; and that which ye have spoken in the ear in closets shall be proclaimed upon the housetops. Luke 12:2-3

Introduction

Have you ever known people who seemed to do wrong for years but eventually got caught? We've seen it on many occasions. Bank robbers who robbed banks and escaped capture for decades found themselves suddenly under arrest because someone recognized them 30 years later. We have seen the confessions of murderers, serial killers and even petty thieves put an end to investigations that were closed after many years when new revelations re-opened the cases.

As African-Americans we have seen former Klansmen who were able to hide their involvement in lynchings, murders and bombings during the 60's suddenly convicted after new evidence appeared that enabled law enforcement officers to convict them for their hideous crimes.

It all brings to mind the old maxim that most parents and grandparents tell their children, "What's done in the dark, will come to the light."

In 1970 Little Milton Campbell released a hit song entitled "If walls could talk." In that song he raised the question of what would happen if the walls of secret meeting places, hotel rooms and other clandestine places could tell what they know. He asked, "What if shoes could tell" all of the secret places that they have gone. The song became a hit because so many people had so many secrets. The playwright, Tyler Perry, even wrote a stage play that focused on the same subject, "What's done in the dark."

Sometimes our wrongs appear to be successfully hidden until God does a close inspection. Those who have ever attended a Six Flags family event know that if you leave and expect to return that your hand is stamped with an invisible florescent stamp. That stamp is not visible to the naked eye. However, when you return your hand is exposed to a black light. Under the black light the stamp is clear. That happens because the black light detects phosphorus in the ink of the stamp and shows it up.

If you walked around all night with a portable black light, you would discover that there are phosphors all over the place. There are lots of natural phosphors, in your teeth and fingernails, among other things. There also a lot of phosphors in manmade material, including television screens and some paints, fabric and plastics. Most fluorescent colored things, such as highlighters, contain phosphors, and you'll find them in all glow-in-the-dark products. Clubs use special black light paint that glows different colors. You can also buy fluorescent black light bubbles, invisible black light ink, fluorescent black light carpet and even fluorescent black light hair gel.

The idea is simple, if it has phosphorus the black light will show it up.

That's the best way to understand how sin appears to be hidden. Much of what we do is hidden from the public eye, but God's eye is light a black light. All of our sins are visible to him. We cannot hide them.

What we do in the dark is always seen by God and will be brought to the light for our neighbors to see as well, in due time.

As Christians, we are constantly aware that God monitors our activities daily. He is aware of everything that we do. We know that he knows all of our secrets so we don't try to hide them from him. There is no place for us to run or hide from his power and oversight. Whatever we do in the dark, will come to the light.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus'' instruction to his disciples about hypocrisy. The principle teaching that Christ gave his disciples was to be true to God to the Christian fellowship. When we talked to the 12 disciples or to the 70 that he sent out in two he cautioned them to avoid being hypocrites.

He warned them to make their public lives consistent with their private lives; their public words they same as those they said in private. They would be ambassadors for him in every area of Israel; he warned them not to be found privately inconsistent with what they said and did in public.

Even as he spoke to his disciples there was a Judas among them, who was a hypocrite, and Christ knew it, and would hereby startle him, or leave him inexcusable. Christ's disciples were the best men then in the world, yet they needed to be cautioned against hypocrisy.

While he spoke to his disciples directly, he spoke to all of his followers indirectly when he warned them not to be hypocrites: doing one thing in the dark and another in the light.

The great theologian Matthew Henry put it this way "It is to no purpose to dissemble, for, sooner or later, truth will come out; and a lying tongue is but for a moment. If you speak in darkness that which is unbecoming you, and is inconsistent with your public professions, it shall be heard in the light; some way or other it shall be discovered, a bird of the air shall carry the voice (Ecclesiastes 10:20), and your folly and falsehood will be made manifest. The iniquity that is concealed with a show of piety will be discovered."

It all means, "what's done in the dark will come to the light."

OUR DARK PASTS CAN HAUNT US: What happens when our past comes back to haunt us? Has it ever happened to you? That's when a chapter in your life that was once closed is suddenly reopened or revisited. It's when you stare at the results of a failed experience returned before your eyes. In happens in all areas of life. It's that moment when you look at the bad habits of one of your children and realize that you are looking at yourself at the same age. It is very frustrating when we see it unfold in front of our eyes.

In 1963 after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, most of white America became angry with Black Muslim leader Malcolm X when he made a disturbing analogy. Malcolm said that America operates with a double standard. Abroad, it opposes governments that do not support freedom for all citizens; then denies freedoms to its own. In addition, he said, the nation attempts to assassinate and remove leaders of opposing nations through the covert actions of the CIA and other secret government organizations. He said the assassination of John F. Kennedy was a case of "When the chickens come home to roost."

The phrase, "When the chickens come home to roost" is a colloquialism that refers to the tendency of chickens on a farm to roam freely. In the day, they are often seen under the house or pecking long distances from the coop. However, when the sun begins to set, without fail, chickens will always come back home to perch themselves on the roosts.

That's the way it is with sins done secretly, even though they were years ago; sooner or later what we have done in the dark will come to the light as the chickens come home to roost..

WE MUST ACCOUNT FOR SINS DONE IN THE DARK: There are many today who allow themselves to go over the edge. Many are paying a heavy price for their sin. Some are behind prison walls at this very moment. Some have lost their health and strength as a result of their activities.

Sometimes those who operate in the dark forget that Jesus is watching. Consider the man who decided to steal a few of the appliances and things from his neighbor's home and sell them for extra money.

Inside the home, he saw jewelry, and clothing items that would be valuable. As he began to bag a few items, he heard a voice that said, "Jesus is watching you." He was horrified. Someone saw him. Then the voice yelled again, "Jesus is watching you!"

In a panic, he turned on the light only to see a talking parrot. He was relieved. "Was that you talking?" The man said, "Sure was!" Answered the parrot. "What's you name?" Asked the man? "Charlie." Came the answer. "That's a dumb name to give a parrot. What kind of idiot would name a parrot Charlie?" The parrot answered, "The same kind of idiot that would leave all this jewelry and money at home and name that killer pit bull behind you, Jesus!" -He learned the hard way that Jesus is always watching.

Each individual must remember that a day comes when we must account for what we have done in the dark. Jesus is watching.

That day is not always in the distant future. Sometimes we pay instantly. What is the price we pay for an experiment with drugs? What is the price we pay for criminal ventures? What is the price we pay for hot tempers, cold shoulders, and lukewarm persuasions? Many have paid dearly for going over the edge. Like Israel, some have paid with their lives. Some are still paying.

There are many who have learned that when they stand on the edge of godliness and sin and choose to go over the edge, they will incur the wrath of God. Romans 6:23 says, "For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord."

GOD'S LAW SHINES A BLACK LIGHT ON OUR SINS: Like a black light, God's law brings our sins to the light. They are hidden from the public eye but the commandments of God are so clear and specific that we cannot deny our own failures. The laws of God tell us what we should be. They set the high standard, which we are to live and govern ourselves. The moral code, reflected in the 10 commandments teach us clearly that we should acknowledge God and him only, reverence our parents and live morally pure lives, void of cheating, stealing, and murderous tendencies. The 10th commandment, thou salt not covet, even deals with how we should maintain our thoughts and desires. When each of us stands before the law, we fall short. We see our errors and know immediately how miserably we have not lived up to the ideal believer's life.

The law sets the standard for each of us. It is rigid and unchanging. It says live up to this standard or die. There is no room for compromise or compassion. The letter of the law must be carried out in every circumstance.

We cannot escape the all seeing eye of God's law because it forces us to see ourselves in light of what we have done in the dark. Since we all have sinned, we need Christ to forgive us and give us another chance; even for those things we have done in the dark.

WE CAN REPENT FOR WHAT WE HAVE DONE IN THE DARK: God sees what we do in the dark, but God also hears us when we ask forgiveness for what we have done. David talked to God on many occasions. After his sin with Bathsheba David found it difficult to communicate with God but God was listening. He heard when David began to speak the language of repentance saying in Psalm 51 "Create in me oh God a clean heart and renew a right spirit within me" that he and God began to speak the same language.

In a similar sense there are many people today who are attempting to speak to God about a variety of issues done in the dark. When we talk of what we did in the dark, we must speak to God with an attitude and spirit of forgiveness. It is useless to go to God in prayer and ask him to bless you steal leaving an ace state of sinfulness, operating in the dark. As long as that state exists our prayers are wasted because we're speaking a language that God cannot hear in the context of our present living arrangement. We must go before God as David went in a spirit of repentance knowing that only then can we expect for him to hear us.

Until we repent and come out of darkness, God will not hear us.

God hates what we do in the dark, but loves us

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that hates the wicked things that we do in the dark, but he never stops loving us.

God hates sin, but he loves the person affected by the sin.
God's love is a powerful love that overcomes our weaknesses!

That weakness may be homosexuality, drunkenness, gambling, fornication, adultery, wild living, drugs, or criminal activity.

The good news is that there is no sin that God is not willing to forgive.

There is nothing done in the dark that God will not forgive in the light!

There is no crime committed in the dark that God will not pardon!

There is no evil deed we have done in secret that God will not forgive openly.

There is no mistake that he is not willing to forget and give us a new chance.

There is no orientation that he is not willing to redirect.

There is no life so broken that he cannot fix it.

There is no life so lost that he can't help you find it again!

There is no lifestyle so spiritually draining that he can't breathe new life into it!

God's love is a soul saving love that overlooks our past faults and only sees our willingness to live for him.

That's why Christ came to this earth, to give us another chance!

That's why he died on an old rugged cross!

That's why he arose after three days and nights.

He did it all to give us one more chance to come out of darkness into his marvelous light!

The Greatest Loser-Wins!

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 6, 2008

SCRIPTURE: "For whoever wishes to save his life shall lose it; and whoever loses his life for My sake and the gospel's shall save it. For what does it profit a man to gain the whole world, and forfeit his soul? For what shall a man give in exchange for his soul? Mark 8:35-37

Introduction

If you had an offer to become filthy rich but you would have to give up heaven to get it, would you make the deal? That's a disturbing question that has been the subject of considerable debate over the centuries. There have been many people who have taken the deal; they have chosen to lead worldly based successful lives that have often forced them to abandon their quest for Christ, heaven and the kingdom of God.

The world defines success by the amount of money and property a person acquires. A winner is a person who accumulates large sums and a loser is a person who has little or nothing, regardless to the quality of their character or spirit.

While many ascribe to that idea in religious circles they find it very difficult to apply that principle to their daily lives.

James Michener in his book, "Alaska" describes a lifestyle of native Alaskans that is a case in point. He notes that many natives pride themselves in accumulating a large amount of property, seal skins, furs and other valuable assets. However, once a person reaches that level, a great celebration is called and he gives it all away in exchange for an emblem he wears that denotes that he made it once. The native then begins to accumulate again; only to give it away. The value is in emblems received not in the things accumulated.

Anyone who tries that in the lower 48 would be called a fool.

In 1985 Richard Pryor starred in movie called "Brewster's Millions." The basic idea is that a man was told that he could inherit $300 million if he could prove himself by spending $30 million in 30 days. It sounded like a great idea except that he could not give the money away, could not invest it, could not tell anyone why he was doing it, and had to end up with nothing at the end of the month. If he was broke at the end he was a winner, because there was a bigger prize that others did not see.

That generally describes the Christian view of possessions and the world. The idea of seeking the kingdom of heaven above everything else is one of the basic premises of Christianity. Christ constantly urged believers to deny themselves, take up their crosses and follow him. In essence he wanted them to lose themselves in the pursuit of God's kingdom. There is another prize, that the world can't see that awaits them.

As Christians, we know that our faith carries several paradoxes. We become great by being servants. We gain when we lose and we live when we die. The world can't quite understand those ideas, but we know that there is a bigger prize that the world can't see; it's the approval of Christ our Lord.

Exposition

In this text, Christ tells believers that the way of the cross requires sacrificial living.

There were many who came to Christ thinking that association with him would mean instant success. They had seen him heal the sick, raise the dead and even feed thousands of people with small handfuls of food. Being a Christian, in their mind, was the sure way to avoid sickness, have plenty to eat and acquire the good life.

However in Mark 8:34 Jesus warned them that those who lived by the principles of Christianity must be willing to "Take up his cross." Under Roman law, a criminal condemned to death by crucifixion was required to carry his cross to the execution site, as Jesus was required to do (Luke 23:26). In essence, believers must be willing to part with any possessions they own, their careers or even their lives to achieve the kingdom of God.

The person who became a follower of Christ was willing to risk the loss of life, liberty and property for the cause of heaven. Those who were not were described as persons who wanted to "gain the whole world" but lose their souls.

Jesus made it clear in this passage that the person who wins, in God's view, is the person who loses himself most for the cause of Christ. The greatest winners are those who lose most.

What we need to lose

The "Biggest loser" is one of the hottest new reality television shows. The compelling weight loss reality drama features two celebrity fitness trainers who join a team of top health experts to help overweight contestants transform their bodies, health and ultimately their lives. The contestants who win are the ones who lost the most. Even those who did not win the big prize won too, because they changed their lives losing the bad habits that that were causing them to gain, but to their disservice.

It's not hard to see the spiritual parallel to this game show. Because the contestants had to be willing to lose more than just weight. They had to radically alter their lives including their eating habits, exercise habits, sleeping, free time and every other factor. They had to become different people. They had to lose their old bad habits forever.

NO CRASH DIETS: In a crash diet a person severally restricts calorie intake, bordering on starvation, for a short period of time to achieve weight loss. After it ends the person usually begins a yo-yo effect of eating more than usual and regains all that was lost and more. There are many who approach Christianity the same way. They pull themselves out of the clubs, bars and ungodly activities instantly and starve themselves spiritually. They come to church, but little else changes at home or personally. They do not develop a bible study regimen, prayer life or engage in spirit based service. Soon they are back in the world, worse than they began. This is what happens when a person tries to kick the world cold turkey. He goes on a crash diet but doesn't really change his life style. He stops clubbing but he does not replace it with Godly living. It's a void waiting to be filled. Matthew 12:43-45 says, "When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man, he walketh through dry places, seeking rest, and findeth none. Then he saith, I will return into my house from whence I came out; and when he is come, he findeth it empty, swept, and garnished. Then goeth he, and taketh with himself seven other spirits more wicked than himself, and they enter in and dwell there: and the last state of that man is worse than the first. Even so shall it be also unto this wicked generation."

HEALTY LIVING IS SACRIFICIAL: People who win by losing, ultimately change their lifestyles. They soon recognize that everything in life that may be good to us may not be good for us and they start to make permanent changes in what they choose to do. They become aware of when enough is enough. That's one of the main essentials of successful diets, participants must be willing to change what they eat, when they eat and how much they eat; if they can't do that then they are doomed to remain in the same situation. Spiritually healthy lives are the same. We must be willing to change our spiritual diet: What books we read, movies we watch, music we listen to, and places we go for entertainment. We can't maintain a strong spiritual life if we are drinking, hanging out with drinking buddies and girlfriends, watching pornographic movies, engaging in illicit sex, listening to provocative music and debasing ourselves. To really gain, we must be willing to lose the world completely; give it all up for a completely new spiritual life that is rewarding, happy and filled with joys that come from the Lord. Otherwise, all of our other efforts are in vain. We just gain dead weight.

EXERCISE IS ESSENTIAL: Every health expert includes exercise as a necessity for those who want to lose weight. We are a sit down generation of couch potatoes. No one wants to exercise anything more than our fingers on the remote control or the keypads on our cell phones. We're getting so lazy that even children in school are making low grades in physical education because it's too much trouble to dress out. Our grandparents walked miles to school, now school buses carry us around the corner. There are some who want a ride to the bus stop. Spiritually, it's the same; many of us do absolutely nothing in the church. We come to worship and sit down. We have no place of service, we participate very little. We enjoy watching others. We have become spiritual couch potatoes. Many won't even clap their hands, wave their arms or move their lips to say amen because that's too much trouble. Yet we are called upon to exercise our faith. Many will not do out actively serve to help the poor, visit the sick, feed the homeless, care for children or otherwise serve in ministry as a demonstration of our faith. James 2:20 reminds us that "faith without works is dead."

That means we have to put our faith in action. We have to become active in the kingdom of God rather than passive observers. Without exercise we become dead weight.

Keep Your Eye on the goal

Finally, brothers and sisters, as believers we must keep our eyes on the goal, which is to lose whatever stops us from making heaven our home.

Christ told his disciples that we should make heaven, not the world our number one priority. In Matthew 6:33 he said, “seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you.”

Making heaven our home is our Goal.

Living by faith and trusting in God is our goal.

That means there are some things we need to lose.

We need to lose our frustrations, to gain great confidence that God will make a way. There are many today who are weighed down by the burdens of life. They are weighed down by worry and depression. We need to lose that heavy weight; the greatest losers become confident winners in the Lord.

We need to lose our fears, to gain new courage. There are too many of us who are afraid to grab opportunities. We need to lose the heavy weight of fear. They greatest losers become fearless winners in the Lord.

We need to lose our despair, to gain new hope. There are many in the world today who have given up on God. They feel that everything is so messed up that it cannot be repaired. So broken it cannot be fixed; so soiled that it cannot be cleaned. We need to lose the heavy weight of despair. The greatest losers join the ranks of the hopeful, who cry out, “We fall down, but we get up.”

We need to keep our eyes on the prize and get rid of anything that is weighing us down.

Hebrews 12:1 says, “Wherefore seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking to Jesus the author and finisher of our faith...”

If you want to win lose yourself in the Lord!

The greatest loser becomes the winner!

If we lose our doubts we win greater faith!

If we lose our frowns we win a smiling personality!

If we lose our stinginess, we win a generous spirit!

If we lose our bitterness, we win a brand new sweetness!

If we lose our weakness, we win a new found strength!

If we lose our confusion, we win a life of peace!

If we lose our defeated heart, we win the spirit of victory!

What we lose makes it possible for us to win the rewards that God has in store for us.

What we win is calm in spite of our circumstances!

What we win is blessings instead of our burdens!

What we win is happiness instead of hardships!

What we win is determination in spite of our discouragements!

What we win is help in spite of our handicaps!

What we win is faith in spite of our frustrations!

What we win is salvation in spite of our sins!

Consider the woman who gave all she had to help neighbors that were stricken by hurricane. Then the day came when she had nothing herself. There were some who laughed at her saying "you gave everything you had and didn't take care of your own." When she couldn't feed her children there was a heavy weight on her shoulder.

In the middle of the night she prayed to God to lift this heavy weight from her shoulders. In the middle of the night God spoke to her. She wrote down the words and as she wrote the words it seemed as if the weight of all her losses shifted to that piece of paper.

Later that morning she entered a grocery store and asked the owner for enough food to make a meal for her children. When he asked how much she could afford, she answered, "I have nothing to offer but this piece of paper. The store manager thought he gave her a clever response when he said, "Put your piece of paper on the scale and you can have its weight in groceries," The placed the paper on the scales and the manager said "We shall see how much food this is worth,"

To his dismay nothing happened when he put a loaf of bread on the other side. He was even more upset when he added other items and it would not balance. When all of the items she needed to make several meals were finally placed on the scales, it balanced. The owner was puzzled at how such a small piece of paper could balance the combined weight of her groceries. He opened the paper and read the words she had written: "My God shall supply all your needs....."

No wonder the song writer said, "You can have this whole world, but give me Jesus!"

Give me Jesus, who picked up an old rugged cross for me!

Give me Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Give me Jesus, who arose from the grave Early Sunday morning!

Give me Jesus, who stands today and the right hand God offering crowns of glory to all who are willing to lose the world and win the victory in heaven!

Give me my stuff back

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 13, 2008

SCRIPTURE:"The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." John 10:10

Introduction

Have you ever had anything stolen from you? It's very frustrating to discover that something you value has been taken away by thieves. Most of us have had something stolen. It may have been money, CD's, items of clothing, or jewelry. Occasionally, the stolen item is larger. Some have had their automobiles stolen.

It gets bigger. Some have had their careers stolen.

Bigger. Some have had their wives or husbands stolen.

People will steal anything these days. If you chain your bicycle to your carport, thieves will steal the bicycle, the chain and the carport post.

Stealing has become an art form. People steal paintings, tin cans and dirty laundry.

People will steal your clothes out of the washeteria.

You can buy a guard dog to protect your property; but you should be careful because there are people who will steal the guard dog and the guard dog's house.

People will steal your computer then steal with your computer. They steal your identity, your password and your credit.

People will steal your medicine, your syringes, your aspirins and your left over Viagra.

People steal wigs, weaves and fingernails.

People will steal your trash barrel and your trash.

People steal cell phones, your minutes; and your ring tones.

People will steal toilet tissue; hand wipes, and urine samples.

There are people who steal electricity, cablevision, and siphon gasoline out of their neighbor's cars.

If it could be done there would be people who would steal the wet out of water and the white off of rice, sweet out of sugar and the hot of fire!

People will steal!

It hurts when someone steals something from us? When that happens we want to get it back.

It's bad when someone steals something from us, but it's even worse when we wake up one day and realize that the devil has stolen our relationship with God.

That's when we realize that we don't pray anymore. We don't worship anymore. We don't feel God's presence anymore. We don't have faith anymore.

We had it, but the devil stole it.

If you enjoyed that relationship with God and somehow lost it; you should join the rest others who are similarly frustrated and say, "I want my stuff back."

As Christians we know that we serve a God who is in the recovery business. He can help those who have lost something through the tricks of the devil to get it back. That retrieval process begins however, when we say, "Give me my stuff back."

Exposition

This text first considers Jesus explaining the nature of the thief as he reminds his followers that he is the good shepherd, the guardian of the door to the kingdom of heaven.

Jesus explains in this passage that the thief has three major functions: to steal, destroy and to kill, all of which have been forbidden in the commandments of God which specifically remind us that, "Thou shalt not steal" and "Thou shalt not kill."

Jesus warns us to beware of thieves, they are treacherous people!

Naboth had a vineyard which he worked to develop into one of the finest in the kingdom. His grapes provided the substance for wines served to the king and other noblemen of the kingdom. It was the product of many years of work and sweat. Queen Jezebel noticed the field and tried to buy it from him but he would not sell it, so she had him killed and then took his field. She took his life to steal his vineyard!

Uriah married a beautiful and charming woman whose radiance caught the eye of the king. The king ordered Uriah placed in the front of the battle so he could be killed and immediately after his death, he married his wife. He took a man's life to steal his wife!

The function of the thief is to take away and destroy.

Who is the thief?

While this text painstaking describes what the thief does, the thief himself is never identified in this text. Yet, the thief has been identified in other biblical episodes.

Job 1:7 shows Satan, the devil, appearing in heaven having after walking to and from on the earth. He had been causing trouble on earth and God challenged him to test his servant job. The devil was given liberty to steal and destroy recklessly in Job's life. The rest of that chapter describes how the devil stole Job's wealth, health, and destroyed his family. Yet, Job refused to surrender.

1 Peter 5:8 says "Be sober, vigilant, because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion walketh about, seeking whom he may devour."

Together these to passages reflect what the rest of scripture teaches: The thief is the devil and his job is to steal and destroy.

When we see the increase in crime and destruction in our world, it means that the devil is busy. Stealing and destroying is his business.

We see the hands of the person who burglarizes our homes, but it is the devil in the background, making it happen.

We see the handiwork of those who plot to find ways to destroy our homes, communities and even our nation. We see them but we know that it is the devil prompting, guiding, directing and encouraging the evil deeds that are troubling us.

That's why Peter reminds believers to "be sober" because the devil never stops looking for a chance to steal from us and to enlist to steal from others.

What does he steal?

We know what the devil does, but what exactly does he steal? What does he steal from us?

We have seen the devil operate in our own lives. We have seen him steal from us. Obviously, we have seen the tangible things that have been stolen, but other things have been stolen as well.

There are many intangibles, things that cannot be seen, that have been stolen from us.

SELF ESTEEM: Many people have allowed the devil to steal their self esteem. They have reached a point in their lives where they think little of themselves and have devalued their names and reputations. Some have even taken pride in being "ghetto", "Gutter" and "trash." Some young men have reached a point that they even wear their pants so low that their undergarments show, and some young women have begun to dress like tramps and refer to themselves as garden tools.

The devil has stolen their self esteem! Their sense of personal pride has been stolen! Their pride and dignity has been stolen! Those who are Satan's victims should rise up and say, "Give me my stuff back!" I want my dignity back. I want my self esteem back!

WORK ETHIC: The devil damaged an entire generation when he stole its work ethic. There are many today who have no desire to give an honest day's work for an honest day's pay. They want something for nothing. We look for the world to give us a free lunch, a welfare check, and a subsidized apartment while we spend our time with games on our Play station and cruising the neighborhoods. Many who do work become clock watchers: showing up late and spending the last 30 minutes of the day watching the clock; doing as little as possible. The nation is shocked and appalled because there immigrants slipping into our country illegally who have the work ethic we once had. They will do any kind of work: Operate computers or scrub floors and will do it all night long if necessary because they have a work ethic.

If the devil has stolen the work ethic of too many people; they have become lazy. Yet, I sense that there are many today, who want back what has been stolen. They want to go back to school, prepare themselves and work hard to climb the ladder. These are the ones who will look the devil in the face and say, "Give me my stuff back!"

DREAMS: Too many among us have stopped dreaming. We have given up altogether. We once dreamed of owning a business, graduating from college or breaking the ceiling in one area of another. We ran into a few road blocks and some gave up. We see thousands of people today who live like mindless zombies with no hope, ambition, or dream. The devil stole their dreams.

Barak Obama and Hillary Clinton are electrifying the nation because of one thing; they are helping people to dream again. African-Americans are once again dreaming about possibilities. Women are once again dreaming that barriers can be overcome. They are both attempting what was thought to be impossible and their quest bubbles down to each of us. The devil stole our dreams from us. Someone closed a door in our faces because were black or a woman or handicapped and some gave up. The devil stole our dreams from us the year we failed to graduate from high school, had a child out of wedlock, or faced failure in business or careers. Some rose to their feet in the aftermath, but many are still down.

If the devil has stolen your dreams, we challenge you today, rise to your feet and look him in the eye and say, "Give me my stuff back!" I want my dreams back! I want my hope back!

RELATIONSHIP WITH GOD: The biggest thing that the devil has stolen from this generation is its relationship with God. A godless generation is a dangerous generation. That's why we see shootings and murders on college campuses and even girls fighting each other like men on national television and the internet. A generation of godless parents has destroyed homes and broken families. A generation of godless children has wrecked their own lives and those of all they have met. When the devil stole our relationship with God he took stripped us naked and left us to the mercy of our own whims.

What happened to family prayer? The devil stole it!

What happened to Sunday school? The devil stole it!

What happened to sexual purity? The devil stole it!

What happened to our personal relationship with God? The devil plunged us into a world of activities and distractions that were so alluring that we became drunk with the wine of the world. In our drunken question for power, popularity, money and possessions...the devil stole our relationship with God.

If the devil has stolen your relationship with God; if you are not same as you were a few years ago and feel that something is missing; it's time for you to stare down the devil and tell him in no uncertain terms: "I want my stuff back!"

God will restore the stuff you lost

Finally, brothers and sisters, there is good news! Satan may have stolen all of the stuff that makes lives; but God is in the business of restore what has been taken.

Satan's aim is to steal and destroy, but there seems to be limits on what God will allow Satan to do to a believer.

Satan sent a beautiful woman to steal the strength of Samson. Satan tried his best to complete destroy and humiliate him. He had his eyes put out and threw him in prison. But that's as far as he could go.

Satan put an adulterous spirit into the heart of King David. It made him act a complete fool. He committed murder, and staged a cover up. As a result he was completely humiliated. He was indicted by the prophet Nathan, stricken with venereal disease and suffered immensely. But that as far as he could go.

How can you get your stuff back?

Samson though blind, prayed to God and asked forgiveness. And God gave him his strength back and more than he had at first.

David, though broken in spirit, prayed to God and said in Psalm 51:10 "Create in me a clean heart, Oh God and renew a right spirit within me." And God gave him his health back and restored him to his position as a "Man after God's own heart."

How can you get your stuff back?

Jesus said the thief comes to steal and destroy, but he came to give it back to you, but and give back more abundantly!

We must turn to God and declare, "Father I stretch my hands to thee, no other help I know, if thou withdraw from me, whether shall I go."

We must tell the Lord:

Satan stole my hope and I gave up on myself; I want my stuff back!

Satan stole my dreams and aspirations; I want my stuff back!

Satan stole the peace in my family; I want my stuff back!

Satan stole my personal pride and dignity; I want my stuff back

Satan stole my relationship with my spouse and I lost what I had; I want my stuff back!

Satan stole my thirst for spiritual growth; I want my stuff back!

Satan stole the joy of my salvation; I want my stuff back!

The Lord knew one day you want your stuff back!

That's why he picked up an old rugged cross and carried to Golgotha's hill!

He died on that cross; but Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

What's that in his hands!

It's all of the love that the devil stole!

It's all of the joy that the devil stole!

It's all of the faith that the devil stole!

It's all in his hands for those who will just say, "I want my stuff back" and accept him today!

Always on my mind

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 4, 2008

SCRIPTURE: How precious also are thy thoughts unto me, O God! how great is the sum of them. Psalms 139:17

Introduction

Has there ever been someone or something on your mind? There are people we always think about. There are some conditions that we always pray about. There are some situations that we always focus on. There are some decisions that we always contemplate.

When something is on your mind you can't seem to shake it. Thinking about it absorbs your time and energy.

Mothers always think about their children. They think about their safety and happiness. There is not a day that passes when their children are not on a mother's mind.

Lovers always think about their romance. Sometimes they day dream about what can be and what will be. All through the day the thoughts of their sweetheart are always on their mind.

Young minds dream about the future. They see themselves as rich and successful, happy and famous. There is not a day that passes that the dreams of bright futures are not on their mind.

In 1972 Brenda Lee recorded a simple lyric that resonated around the world, "Always on my mind." Elvis Presley sang it and Willie Nelson made it number one. It was about a man who didn't treat his lover affectionately but wanted her to know that she was "Always on my mind."

Maybe I didn't love you quite as good as I should have,
Maybe I didn't hold you quite as often as I could have,
Little things I should have said and done,
I just never took the time.
You were always on my mind,
You were always on my mind

What about our relationship with God? Is he always on our mind, does he consider us constantly?

We could take Brenda Lee's song around and the result show what the scriptures teach us that God says about us:

Maybe you didn't love me quite as good as you should have Maybe you didn't obey me quite as often as you could have Little things you should have said and done,
You just never took the time
but you are always on mind

Although there are times when we don't think about God; times when he is the furthest things from our mind. We are always on his mind.

As Christians, we should rejoice in knowing that wherever we go, even when we have spiritual lapses and stop thinking about him, he never stop stops loving us. We are always on his mind.

Exposition

This text finds David expressing praise and thanks that God always has his thoughts on us.

David acknowledges that when he thinks about it, he can see how good God has been to him, constantly. His personal history showed God protecting him as a Shepherd boy, as young man fighting Goliath and as King. Even when he sinned, God constantly thought of him and expressed concern over his condition.

Jeremiah 29:11 says God always has thoughts of peace for the faithful and regardless to our condition he often plans surprise endings or the "unexpected" to our situation.

It's because we are always on the mind of God that no one can count us out when we are down, because just when it appears that our game is over, he does the unexpected to provide us with that surprise ending.

Spurgeon says, "In our sorrows He observes us incessantly, and not a pang escapes Him; in our toils He marks all our weariness, and writes in His book all the struggles of His faithful ones."

Three words from the text

PRECIOUS: David describes this constant observation by God as something precious. When something is precious it is highly esteemed and valued. That which is precious is dear to us. God's goodness to us is precious because he has brought about things for our good, beyond anything that we can think of on our own. Jeremiah 31:28 notes that God has watched over us to build us up and the plant us on fertile ground. That thought is precious to us. It is comforting and reassuring to know that no matter what comes our way, God says, you are always on my mind.

THOUGHTS: David used the word "thoughts" to describe God's focus on us. God's thoughts about us go beyond just his ideas about us but venture to his intention and plans and purpose for us. God is constantly working his plan in our lives. He is working it, or thinking of us, even when we do not recognize his presence. Sometimes that closed door is part of God's plan to direct us to a better open door.

Sometime he allows us to mess up so that will let him fix us up. It's all because we are in his thoughts, planning ways to guide us, direct us and nudge us in the right direction. David said, he sends up praises when he thinks about the fact that God is constantly planning for us and working the plan. When we can't see him operate we must hear God say, "You are always on my mind."

SUM: David used the word "sum" to tell us to add up what God has done for us and it won't be hard for us to conclude that he is constantly thinking of us. When we think about the many ways that God has blessed us our total will be "great." How many times has God made a way out of no way? How many prayers has he answered for us? How many rivers has he helped us to cross? How many battles has he helped us to win? If we count them we can only conclude that God has been good to us in "great" way. Psalm 40:5 says, " Many, O LORD my God, are thy wonderful works which thou hast done, and thy thoughts which are to us-ward: they cannot be reckoned up in order unto thee: if I would declare and speak of them, they are more than can be numbered." No wonder the song writer would declare, count your many blessing and it may surprise you what the Lord has done. Our blessings have come because God says, "you are always on my mind."

Keep our mind on God

Finally, brothers and sisters, while it is good to look back and know that we are always on the mind of God, we must be sure that God is always on our mind.

We have good reason to keep our mind on God.

He has been good to us

He brought us out of some tough times!

He sustained us in the midst of our difficulties.

For this reason we should close out each day saying, "I may not have done all that I wanted to do, but Lord's it's been a mighty good day."

However when we begin each new day we should say with the song writer, "I woke up this morning with my mind, staid on Jesus."

"Walking and talking with my mind, staid on Jesus"

"Singing and Praying with my mind, said on Jesus"

The Lord showered Blessings on Israel during its difficult time. However, Jeremiah wanted them to know that what God did for them in the past is not a historical footnote.

It's the Lord's mercies that have kept us from being consumed. That's what Jeremiah meant when he said if it had not been for God's mercies we would have been consumed!

Consider the little boy that was told by his father to chop enough wood to keep the fire burning through the night. It was late in the fall, when the weather was warm in the day, but cold at night. The father said a hard freeze was on the way. The little boy was disobedient. It was so warm that he could wear short pants and he couldn't see the need of chopping so much wood. He collected a few sticks and put them in the woodbin. As he curled up on his pallet the flicker of the flames put him to sleep.

A few minutes later the flames started to burn low. A cold chill draped the room as the temperature began to drop. The little boy curled up in a ball and began to shiver and shake. When he awoke the next morning there was frost on the ground but the house was warm. There was a blazing fire in the fireplace. When he asked his father, how could this be, his father said, "You didn't do everything I told you to do, but you're still my son. I couldn't let you lay in the cold unprotected. I chopped enough wood to keep the fire going. Every time, it started to burn low, I put on another log. The little boy said to his father, "I haven't done everything I was supposed to do, but you kept the fire going to keep me from freezing. I don't know how to thank you, because every day you're always putting another log on the fire!"

In the winter of our discontent, God keeps putting another log on the fire! He keeps on blessing me!

Every day, there's another log of mercy on the fire!

No wonder the song writer declared, "Great is thy faithfulness, morning by morning, new mercies I see. All I have needed thy hands hath provided, great is thy faithfulness Lord unto to me!"

Over 2000 years ago we were on the mind of God.

Because we were on his mind he sent his only begotten Son to live among men!

Somebody knows him. His name is Jesus!

He died out on Calvary!

But early Sunday morning

Tell somebody no matter how bad things get our God says, "You are always on my mind!"

No. 9313-Mother's Day

Go not empty unto thy mother

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 11, 2008

SCRIPTURE:"And she said, These six measures of barley gave he me; for he said to me, Go not empty unto thy mother in law." Ruth 3:17

Introduction

Have you ever wanted to make your mother proud? Most of us want to do something with our lives that will please our mothers. We want to show them a "good report card" for our lives. Even after death we still want to please them.

It is the nature of every child who has had a loving mother to try to meet her expectations. No matter how high one climbs or how much is achieved; it never seems adequate until what we have done meets mother's approval. This began when we were children. We brought mother our drawings and waited for her approval. When we said speeches in school, we heard the crowd applaud but we waited for mother's congratulations. When we graduated, the diploma meant so much more because of mother's approval.

Meeting his mother's approval is what a four year old had in mind after his mother, frustrated with all of her duties as a mother began to scream "I think I've lost my mind." A few minutes later the mother was puzzled when she saw her son walking through the living room, looking behind things. "What are you doing?" she asked. The boy answered, "You said you lost your mind, I'm trying to help you find it." –Obviously he brought a smile to his mother's face.

Just as we seek ways to meet mother's approval, shouldn't we also try to meet God's approval? If we've lost something that would please God, shouldn't we be busy trying to find it? When God is pleased with us, we are assured of his continued blessings and helpful presence in our lives.

As Christians, we should strive to do our best to the expectations of Godly mothers. A godly mother expects no more of us than God expects; that is that we do our best.

Exposition

This text focuses on words told to Ruth, that she should not return to her mother's home empty.

The story of Ruth tells the story of a young woman from a foreign land who came to Israel with her mother-in-law Naomi after the death of her husband.

Naomi advised the young woman in all matters. Since she was motherless, Naomi mothered her. Among the instructions and guidance that Ruth was given were directions to glean the fields of a wealthy man named Boaz, a distant relative of Naomi's. She also succeeded in helping Ruth win the heart of the wealthy man who assumed the role of kinsman redeemer, continuing Naomi's family.

Ruth was instructed in matters of life, love and godliness.

The text indicates that Ruth followed Naomi's instruction and entered Boaz's tent and slept at his feet. When Boaz awakened to find her in his tent he sent her home to avoid the appearance of evil. However, before leaving he took her veil and poured out six measures of barley so that she would not "return empty" to her mother.

Naomi saw that Ruth had followed all of her instructions and had returned with an increase; she advised her to wait patiently on the Lord for everything else.

Ultimately Boaz and Ruth are married and their first child, Obed, is accepted legally as Naomi's child continuing her family's name and inheritance rights.

One of Obed's descendants, many years later would be Jesus of Nazareth.

Ruth respected, obeyed and trusted her mother's guidance and both mother and daughter were blessed. Now the whole world is blessed by the fruit of her womb, Jesus, the savior of the world.

Following Mother's Teaching

RUTH FOLLOWED NAOMI'S INSTRUCTION. In every way, Ruth remained true to Naomi's advice. At times it seemed unorthodox and cumbersome but she followed her instructions to the letter. She made the right choices and was recognized as a virtuous woman. The fact that she was a "lady" caught Boaz's attention and he treated her that way. Ruth 3:11 notes that Ruth was respected in the community as a virtuous woman. "And now, my daughter, fear not; I will do to thee all that thou requirest: for all the city of my people doth know that thou art a virtuous woman." Every mother strives to teach her children the values that will cause them to be respected in the community. Honor, integrity, cleanliness, morality and godliness are chief among these virtues. Mothers teach their daughters the essentials of finer womanhood and the sons the qualities of manliness. A child who follows the guidance of a godly mother in these matters will not come back a loser; the mother will be proud, regardless of their station in life, of the child who learned the lessons of their youth. Even in her absence, children should remember their mother's instruction and conduct themselves in ways that would make her proud. In this respect, long after childhood is past, children bring honor to their mother's by the lives that they live.

SHE RETURNED WITH ALL SHE COULD HANDLE. Ruth left empty but returned having accomplished all that was in her ability. Boaz poured out for her six measures of barley. The exact measure was not specified. It could have been shovelfuls, single or double handfuls. Ruth 3:17 says, "And she said, These six measures of barley gave he me; for he said to me, Go not empty unto thy mother in law." He filled her veil with as much as she could handle at the time. Following her mother's instruction she returned with something to show for absence. She brought home all she could carry. In the same respect, a mother is pleased when her children perform at their maximum capacity. Not all children perform at the same level, godly mothers are pleased when a child is doing his/her best. Every child honors mother best when they demonstrate to her that they are doing the best they are able to do in life. In our careers, personal affairs, and family interests we should strive to make our mother's proud of us by doing all that we can with what he have been given. Even when mother is not presence, we should strive to continue to make her proud by doing all that we can to achieve maximum results with the gifts we have been given.

SHE RETURNED WITH AN INCREASE. The Hebrew word "reqam" is used for empty. It means vain or without reward. Naomi's desire was to help Ruth succeed. Ruth return to show that Naomi's labor with her had not been in vain or wasted. Naomi was pleased to see the increase but knew there was more to come. Every child should strive to show their mother's some life improvements. These are not necessarily material assets such as homes and cars, but extends itself also to improvements in personal living, goals, attitude and spirituality. When we show our mothers, even if they are not present, that we are improving ourselves and learning important life lessons, godly mothers will be happy and proud. As we increase in wisdom and knowledge, we make our mother's proud.

Wait on the Lord

Finally, brothers and sisters, Naomi taught Ruth a final lesson: After you have done all you can do, sit still and wait on the Lord.

After Ruth returned to Naomi having done all that she was taught; and After Ruth returned with all the barley that she could carry; and After Ruth provided an increase in her situation.

Naomi told Ruth to sit still.

Ruth had done all she knew how to do. She had gleaned the fields and come home with an increase. All she could do is be still and put it in God's hands.

If there is one thing that every godly mother tries to teach her children, that would be how to wait on the Lord.

Patience is one virtue that godly mothers all seem to have. They have learned to wait on the Lord.

A praying mother knows that if she puts life's concerns in God's hands he will make a way out of no way!

A praying mother knows when she has fallen down, God will pick her up again!

A praying mother knows that when she has failed, God will give her a second chance!

A praying mother knows that when she is weak, God will renew her strength!

A praying mother knows that if she can wait on the Lord, he will realize his will. The word says, "They that wait upon the Lord, shall renew their strength. They shall mount on wings as eagles. They shall run but not get weary. They shall walk and not faint."

That's why mother has learned to "Be still" and let God work it out!

If you let God work it out mountains will be made low!

If you let God work it out valleys shall be exalted!

If you let God work it out crooked places shall be made straight!

If you let God work it out rough places shall be made plain!

Consider the mother who whose children came home to give her a report on the progress of their lives and to present her with mother's day gifts. One daughter said, "Mother I'm a businesswoman and I have a successful career. I'm bringing you what you asked, one of my business cards." The second daughter said, "Mama I've graduated from college with my PhD. I'm a professor at the university. I've done what you asked, I didn't come home empty. Here's a copy of my diploma to hang on your wall." Finally, her son came. Unlike his sisters, the son dropped out of school, became an alcoholic and stayed in and out of jail. But on mother's day the family was surprised to see him come home. He was cleaned up and well groomed and looked very good. He said, "Mama I didn't succeed in business or graduate to get my PhD. In fact, I wasted much of my life on drinking, drugs and fast living. But one day, as I sat in an alley and drank the last drop out of my bottle, I heard your voice speaking to me, saying, "trust in the Lord and he'll bring you out." I gave my life to God in that alley that day. It's been a year now mama, and I haven't had a drink, but I kept the empty bottle. I don't have a business card or a diploma for your wall, all I have is an empty wine bottle and a full testimony. 'I want to thank you for never giving up on me. I want to thank you putting me in God's hands."

Every child should say thank you to mother for putting you in God's hands!

When we are in God's hands he's always by our side

When we are in God's hands he's with us in the midst of blessings or despair

When we are in God's hands he's with us in the midst of riches untold or poverty and depravation

If we keep our hands in God's hands, we make our mother's proud

If we live our lives in a way that pleases God, we make our mother's proud!

So keep telling the story!

Tell everybody about the goodness of the Lord!

Tell them how he woke me up this morning and clothed me in my right mind!

Tell them how he walks with me and talks with me!

Tell them how he died out on Calvary! But don't stop there..tell them how Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

Another Day's Journey

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 2008

SCRIPTURE: "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God and are the called according to his purpose." Romans 8:28.

Introduction

Have you ever awakened in the morning and, just for a few moments, thought about how far you have come? Laying there, staring at the ceiling, have you ever thought about the rough years of your life when you faced difficulties that threatened your safety and existence?

Did you think about your children? Your spouse? Your siblings?

After a few moments of reflection, you probably gave God thanks for the journey and arose to face the new day with a positive spirit.

On days such as that you sing the words of that old song by the Mighty Clouds of Joy, "It's been another day's journey and I'm glad about it."

When churches celebrate anniversaries we are at high point in our history. We have the advantage of hindsight. Through hindsight we can see the long meandering path we have traveled to get here.

We see the mountains and valleys of challenges and disappointments.

We see those deserts that were so dry and desolate that we thought we'd never make it through.

We also see the rivers and the streams. We see the streams of tears and rivers of despair that we have crossed. When you are able to see things from a high place, they seem differently. When we climb higher, we get a panoramic view of things that allows us to see a wider, broader picture of life, rather than a narrow perspective.

Every now and the church stops to reflect on its journey, God takes believers to the mountaintop to allow us to see the panoramic view. From this high place today we are able to see from whence we have come over the last 35 years and see where we are going.

As Christians, we thank God for journey. We consider all that we have endured we understand that it has all work to our Good. The struggle; it was all good. The sacrifice; it too was all good. Our obedience; it was all good. Anniversaries, such is the one celebrated today, gives us a chance to look back at the long journey, and to look forward to the great land promise that lies ahead.

Exposition

This text finds Paul explaining to the Romans the nature of the Christian experience as it relates to the Christian journey.

He explained to the Romans that the entire life of man is a divinely guided pilgrimage that moves him toward a glorious end. The entire 8th Chapter of Romans, believed by some to be one of the most inspirational books of the bible, focuses on the Christian's need to be guided by the spirit. It is the spirit of God that will guide and keep us despite the difficulty of our struggle.

Paul notes that we should concentrate on the end, rather than the difficulties encountered along the way, or the difficulties ahead. The central thought of this text verse is that we should focus on the outcome rather than the troubling details of the moment.

This powerfully short verse, when coupled with the rest of the 8th Chapter suggests that Christians should approach each event confident that as long as we are guided by the spirit of God that all things will work "together" for our good and we will eventually profit from every situation no matter how frustrating it appears at the moment; or how long the journey.

A Wonderful Journey

Today, as we reflect on many years of struggle, there are many here who look back with a touch of nostalgia. There are some who have shared most of those years and a small group who have shared the entire journey. They say collectively, "It's been a wonderful journey."

Like Paul there are many believers who have worked to help build the church.

Like Paul, I can hear them say, "I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now!"

Some have lifted their voices as members of choirs, others have washed dishes and mopped floors, but still they proclaim –"I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now!"

Some have preached and others have licked stamps, folded envelopes and passed out programs.

Some have given their last dollar and others have given until they felt the pain, but still they proclaim, "I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now!"

Some have emptied trash cans; others have stood behind television cameras, snapped pictures, worked with youth, or just been in the midst of the saints for moral support. All have one thing in common.

They all say, "I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now." We all say, "I've come too far to turn around."

Many yeas ago there was no John Pee Kee or Kurt Franklin. There was no Donnie McKurlin, either. There were no CD players, IPods and internet. It was a time when people would live their voices and shout, "I love the Lord he heard my cry. Long as I live while trouble rise I'll hasten to his throne."

Yes, I've come a long ways on this journey; and thanks to God it's been a wonderful journey.

God was on the Journey

Israel left Egypt and wandered in the wilderness for 40 years, but all of that time God never left them. We have been on this journey a long time and God has never left us either; even though sometimes we felt we were struggle all along, God was constantly working things to our advantage.

Israel could not see God working in Egypt or at the Red Sea; they also found it hard to see him working in the wilderness. All some could see was the difficulty of their journey.

On the journey they were blessed but couldn't see it.

They could not see how they wore the same clothes for 40 years but they never wore out.

They could not see how they were protected from their enemies despite their own inability to defend themselves.

They could not see how they were provided water out of nowhere despite drought situations. God blessed them, but they could not see him at work.

We're celebrating today because unlike Israel, we HAVE SEEN what God has been doing for us. We are celebrating because we have seen how much he has blessed us and how far he has brought us.

In our journey, God has been our rock in a weary land.

In our journey, God has been our shelter in the time of storm.

In our journey, God has been our way out of no way.

In our journey, God has been out of bridge over troubling waters.

Today, we celebrate another year of the journey. I don't know about you, but I just say, "It's another day's journey, and I'm glad about it!"

Tell the story

Finally, brothers and sisters, as we review where we have been and see the challenges ahead, the question is asked, who will tell the story?

This congregation has withstood tremendous difficulties over many, many years.

Our young men have seen war in Afghanistan and Iraq and our daughters have faced new challenges to their womanhood.

We have seen the price of gas soar from 75 cents a gallon to nearly $4.00 a gallon.

We have seen great leaders fall and new leaders rise.

We have seen new inventions that have marveled us, cars that talk to us, beds that put us to sleep by the number and little stoves that heat food faster than ovens. If we forget our keys, somebody who we can't opens the door for us; we now televisions no knobs; that can change channels with a push of a button.

In these precious years as the world changed, this church has remained stable, trusting in a God who is the same yesterday as he is today and will be tomorrow.

We have kept our hands in the winding chain.

Who will tell the story?

Who will march forward into the future telling the story of our past as we hold up the blood stained banner?

Who will tell the story of how God brought us a mighty long way?

Who will tell the story of how we marched through hardship and trouble into this present day?

Who will be willing to face tomorrow with confidence and say like Joshua, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord!"

I don't know what tomorrow will bring, but I know what God has done in the past. I know what God is doing right now!

I do not know how long it will be or what the future holds for me, but this I know, if Jesus leads me, I will get home someday!

It doesn't matter what the future brings as long as the Lord is on our side!

Today we celebrate our anniversary, but that's not what I'm glad about!

Today, we celebrate the church anniversary, but that's not what I'm glad about!

I'm glad that after all these years, God is still on the throne. He's still King of Kings and Lord of Lords and I'm glad about it!

As long as God is still on the throne there will never be a:

—CROSS that we won't be able to bear; MOUNTAIN that we won't be able to climb!

—ENEMY that we won't be able to defeat; BATTLE we won't be able to win!

—DARKNESS so dark that we won't be able to see the light!

—TRIAL that we can't make it through; TEST that we won't be able to pass!

What I'm glad about is that as I walk through this tedious journey, I don't have to walk it alone.

Why? Because I know a man!

I know a man, who had a lonesome journey that was 33 years on this earth!

I know a man, who healed the sick and raised the dead!

I know a man, who can cool scorching fever and heal aching pain!

His name is Jesus!

Jesus, somebody here today knows him!

Jesus, the Lily of the valley!

Jesus, the Bright and Morning star!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary and rose up early Sunday morning!

Tell the world, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame, but wholly lean on Jesus name.

On Christ the solid rock I stand...

All other Ground!

All other Ground is sinking sand!

A Man for the Journey

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 2008

SCRIPTURE: And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God and are the called according to his purpose." Romans 8:28.

Introduction

Has there ever been a time when you felt you were not able to go on? Those were times you felt so frustrated that no matter how much effort you expended it appeared it was useless? Many believers feel this way at one time or another, but usually regroup after prayer. The power of the Holy Spirit energizes and inspires them to continue. With God's help they get faith for the journey.

African-American men have been on a long journey in this nation. For most of our time in America our people have been led by Black men, who have overcome many obstacles to lead us to our present state.

African-American men have made great achievements over the years despite hindrances. Depending upon who is asked, what hinders men differs. Men may cite the lack of opportunity, job skills and access to power. Women may have a different view.

Black men have made remarkable accomplishments over the years, despite a history of deprivation, slavery, racism and denial of equal opportunity. These accomplishments have been made despite adverse circumstances over the years.

Today, we look back over the years and we also look ahead. The future for Black men is only limited by our ability to see beyond any obstacle and discern that God has planned for the renewal, restoration, preservation and elevation of our race and gender.

If we watch our television every day we can watch the presidential election and see a new sense of pride in African-American men.

Black men who want to achieve should seek God and he will send them answers. They should not be deterred and God will show them a way!

As Christians, we rejoice in the knowledge that God helps us overcome obstacles. He works everything to our advantage whether it is good or bad; it will all work to our good if we continue to trust him.

Exposition

This text finds Paul explaining to the Romans the nature of the Christian experience as it relates to setbacks and persecutions on life's journey.

He explained to the Romans that the entire life of man is a suffering experience designed to move him toward a glorious end which is in heaven. The entire 8th Chapter of Romans, believed by some to be one of the most inspirational books of the bible, focuses on the Christian's need to be guided by the spirit. It is the spirit of God that will guide and keep us, despite the frailty of the human flesh and will.

Paul notes that we should concentrate on the end, rather than the means of any experience. The central thought of this text verse is that we should focus on the outcome of a matter rather than the troubling details of the moment. This powerfully short verse, when coupled with the rest of the 8th Chapter suggests that the Christian should approach each event of life looking at the end rather than the means, confident that as long as he is guided by the spirit of God that all things would work "together" for his good and he will eventually profit from every situation not matter how frustrating in appears at the moment.

For men, it means that no matter how difficult our struggle, God will make it worth our while, in the end.

God Will work It Out

Black men have fought tremendous battles to reach our present place in the world. We have not fully attained all that we should have, but we are all on our way.

Much has been placed against us, but God has worked it out for us. That's why the scripture keeps reminding us that "All things" work to the good of those who are called to God's purpose. He will work out to our advantage no matter how bad it seems.

Slavery, ignorance, poverty and lack of opportunity have been the main hindrances to the achievement of African-American men. Yet, despite these obstacles, however, African-American men have excelled. God is working it out; so we should not give up the journey.

Look at our history

Frederick Douglass was not hindered by the circumstance of slavery. He arose from slavery to become a great abolitionist, news paper publisher, statesman and politician. The peculiar institution of slavery threatened him but did not hinder him. It haunted him but it did not stop him from achieving excellence.

Booker T. Washington spent his life fighting ignorance. A former slave, he challenged the notion that blacks could not achieve and established Tuskegee Institute to promote higher learning for Blacks. God worked it out

Ray Charles and Stevie Wonder represent extremely talented African-American men who were not hindered by circumstance. Both born blind, they achieved greatness in the area of music creativity in their respective generations. God worked it out.

Barack Obama was born to mixed parents and grew up like most of us, but right now he is poised to possibly become the next president of the United States.

Don't give up the journey

Like Paul there are many men who have worked to help build the church. These are the men who have rolled up their sleeves and led the church in giving, worship and service. Even though it has been many, many years, they have been frustrated along the way but committed to making the journey by faith.

Like Paul, I can hear them say, "I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now!"

What have men in this church been doing all these years?

Some have lifted their voices as members of choirs, others have washed pots and mopped floors, but still they proclaim –"I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now!"

Some have preached and others have licked stamps, folded envelopes and passed out programs. Some have given their last dollar and others have given until they felt the pain, but still they proclaim, "I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now!"

Some have emptied trash cans, others have stood behind television cameras, snapped pictures, worked with youth, or just been in the midst of the saints for moral support.

All have one thing in common. They all say, "I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now." We all say, "I've come too far to turn around."

Some have been on the journey longer than others, but they wouldn't take nothing for their journey.

Some here can remember walking to church on country roads, trying to keep cool while fanning hot air!

Somebody remembers a time before there was central heating and air, when the entire church was heated by huge space heaters that drove away the cold until the spirit warmed up the church!-We've come so far to turn back now!

Somebody remembers a time before Kurt Franklin, John Pee Kee and Donnie McKurklin. There was a time folks used to sing without music and instruments.

Some old sister would sing, "I love the Lord he heard my cry. Long as I live while trouble rise I'll hasten to his throne."

We've come a long ways, but I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now!

Look to the future

Believers should be encouraged when they look to the future; God has great plans for his church and its individual congregations.

There is trouble all around us, but we can see a day coming in the kingdom of God when there will truly be peace on earth. There is hardship and difficulty now, but we can see the day coming when crying days will be over.

Every believer should also say in his heart that God has great rewards in store for us. "Eye hath not seen nor has it entered into the hearts of man" to even imagine the great things that lie ahead for us.

God needs good men

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that there is only one thing better than a real man and that is a good man in Godly hands.

When a real man puts his hands in God's hand there is not limit to what he can achieve on his life's journey. We need only to look at the journey of other saints for confirmation.

Elijah was a good man. By any standard, he was a real man. He was strong, independent and courageous. But he was more than just a man; he was a good man in God's hands!

Abraham was a good man, but when he put his trust in God and moved at his command, he was a good man in God's hands!

Jacob was a good man. He prospered with material wealth and became respected as a man with a head for business. But one night he wrestled with the Lord and refused to let him go. From that night forward, he was a good man in God's hands!

David was a good. He was a great leader and military strategist. But one day he realized his own vulnerability and said, "Create in me a clean heart oh God and renew in me a right spirit." he was a good man in God's hands!

A good man in God's hands is a powerful man because God guides him on his journey!

A good man in God's hands is an influential man because God controls him!

A good man in God's hands is an effective man because God directs him

As men go forward in the world we should always remember to take the Lord with us!

If you take the Lord with you, your greatest enemies can be conquered!

If you take the Lord with you, your greatest obstacles can be overcome!

If you take the Lord with you, your gravest doubts can be overcome!

If you take the Lord with you, your heaviest burdens can be lifted!

If you take the Lord with you, your highest mountains can be climbed!

If you want to make this journey, you've got to stand on the Lord'' side; you got to walk with the King!

Storms may rise, but you've got to walk with the King!

Winds may blow, but you've got to walk with the King!

All along this tedious journey, tell the world, I've got to walk with the King!

Walk with Jesus, the King of Kings and Lord of Lords!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who arose Early Sunday morning!

Jesus, who is alive today!

On your journey, keep your hand in God's hand and walk with the King!

Loved Us, Washed Us, Raised Us

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 18, 2008

SCRIPTURE: "And from Jesus Christ, who is the faithful witness, and the first begotten of the dead, and the prince of the kings of the earth. Unto him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood. And hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father; to him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen." Revelation 1:5-6

Introduction

Have you ever been loved by someone? Those who have been loved by someone will testify that it is a tremendously satisfying experience. When we are loved we feel safe, secure, understood, accepted, appreciated and supported. Most of us first experienced being loved in the care of a parent. In their presence we felt all of the feelings associated with being loved. We transferred that experience to all of our life situations. Some have been loved by special teachers, mentors, coaches, churches and special organizations.

We are attracted to those who love us. Conversely we try to get away from situations in which we do not feel safe, secure, understood, accepted and appreciated. As each of those ingredients diminishes, we feel less loved and start looking for ways out.

It's amusing we think of those first expressions of love we received. Was it a love note in school? The one that began with the words, "Roses are red and violets are blue, sugar is sweet and I love you." Did it have little boxes to check if you like me, or if you don''t. In modern times, you may have received a silent text on your phone or an email expressing love.

What we call falling in love has to do with an attraction that is based on the quality and number of the love ingredients. Around this person I feel safe, I can be myself without pretense. Around this person I feel protected because my name, reputation and person will be defended. I feel understood because this person knows the real me while others may only know the superficial. This person makes feel like I am a King or Queen and my every act or deed is appreciated. I feel supported in my successes and failures, strengths and weaknesses.

When we have all of that we are loved! It takes your breath away!

Did you know that God loves us that way. His love for us is unconditional. He knows us, understands us, appreciates us, protects and supports us. He has tried to tell us that many ways.

He didn't send us text message or a roses are red note; he sent us Jesus; his only Son, HE is our love letter from God

As believers, we are happy we have received God's love letter. We listen to him speak and we receive his words because he loves us, saves us and raises us each and every day.

Exposition

This text focuses on John as he notes the nature of Christ''s love for us. Stranded on the isle of Patmos, John received a revelation from Christ that revealed the events that were to come in the last days. In it Christ showed John the various ways that he had loved the church through his blessings and personal sacrifices.

He also showed how he had saved the church through his death on Calvary.

Morever, he showed how he would raise the church to its ultimate glory as his bride.

Christ as the living Word of God who dwelled among men to demonstrate the way of real love that began in creation and will extend unto the final restoration in the last days.

Love Demonstrated

When we seek to understand the nature of real love, what we should do is looke at the way God loves us. Anyone who really loves us; will respond to us in much the same way. It also applies to the way that we love; because when we love we, too, will love like God loves:

GOD LOVES US: What does it mean when someone says, "I love you." What they are saying is "I love you the way God loves me." How is that? 1 John 4:16 says, "And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him." Since God is love the phrase "I love you" is "I God you." God loves us unconditionally and without season. Even when God is angry with us; he loves us. Even when we separate ourselves from him, he loves us. Even when we act stupidly, selfishly, or thoughtlessly, he continues to love us.

It's difficult to say, "I love you" if we have not come to terms with the fact that we ourselves are imperfect and that God loves us despite our imperfections.

We when are loved like God loves, we understand the meaning of a song by the late Jackie Wilson that said, "Someone to share, somone to care, lonely hours and moments of despair;to be loved, to be loved, oh what a feeling to be loved!"

The love of God is indescribeable. It''s what the songwriter had in mind when he wrote, "

Wonderful the matchless grace of Jesus,

Deeper than the mighty rolling sea;
Wonderful grace, all sufficient for me, for even me.
Broader than the scope of my transgressions,
Greater far than all my sin and shame,
O magnify the precious Name of Jesus.

Praise His Name!

Another song writer summed it up this way, "Oh how I love Jesus. Oh how I love Jesus. Oh how I love Jesus, because he first loved me."

HE WASHED US: We praise God today because he has washed us or forgiven us for our shortcomings. One way to know that we are loved is that those who love us have demonstrated the capacity to forgive us for our failures. No matter how we measure ourselves we will come up short. Those who love us, see our failures more than others and choose to love us anyway. Again, it''s the way that God loves us. We feel loved when are past mess ups are forgiven. We feel less loved when we are constantly reminded of our shortcomings.

One of the functions of the Holy Spirit is to purge our sins. That is, wipe the slate clean. Isaiah 53 reminds us that he was "wounded for our transgressions and bruised for our iniquities……with his stripes we are healed." Whenever we consider what we once were, we should be willing to give it up for God. Every believer can testify that, "I'm not what I want to be. I'm not what I'm going to be, but thank God, because of Jesus, I'm not what I was." The simple truth of the matter is that the blood of Christ "purged" us of all of our sins.

He washed us in his own blood. He forgave us and made it right.

He tore up old distrusts and gave us a new covenant.

He demonstrated forgiveness in its purest sense; and showed us what it means to truly love.

RAISED US: We are loved by someone we can feel them lifting us up. We see evidences of it every day. John in Revelation 1:6 said Christ has lifted us to level of kingship and priesthood in the eyesight of God. In the same way, those who love us, lift us up, edify us and strive to build us up in every way. We feel loved when we can sense that those around us are trying to lift us, raise us. Even if a parent is chastising us, in a strange way, we still feel loved because we feel that the ultimate goal of the chastisement is to lift us up.

Despite our imperfections, Christ wants to lift us up in the eyes of God.

Despite our flaws and failures, Christ wants to help us achieve our maximum.

Despite our idiosyncrasies, Christ still wants us to succeed, according to his purpose.

He loves us unconditionally, practically and with only one purpose: to bring us to the altar as the spotless bride of Christ.

This is the kind of love that we sing about when we say, "Yes, Jesus loves me."

To Him be glory

Finally, brothers and sisters, because Christ has loved us, we should give him glory and praise!

There are no words that can describe the love of God for his children; yet we are compelled to try to give Him glory for He has done for us.

John said to him be glory and dominion forever and ever.

Long before we knew what it meant to love he loved us.

For that we give him glory!

Long before we knew what it meant to forgive, he forgave us!

For that we give him praise!

Long before we knew what it meant to be raised up, he raised us!

For that he has dominion and power forever.

We know God loved us because the bible tells us, “For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life.”

He didn’t talk about love he show us his love.

He loved us with a love that was:

—higher than the heavens

—deeper than the oceans

—lovelier than the sunsets

—sweeter than the honeycomb

—stronger than the wind

—fresher than the morning dew

It was a love that could not be:

—measured for it is immeasurable

—described for it is indescribable

—evaluated for it is invaluable

—comprehended for it is incomprehensible

—explained for it is unexplainable

There’s no other love that can:

—bless and benefit

—penetrate and saturate

—glorify and magnify

—satisfy and beautify

—encourage the discouraged!

We should give God glory because he first gave it up for us. No wonder the songwriter declared, “Oh How I love Jesus. Because he first loved me.”

I said I wasn’t going to tell anybody but I can’t keep it to myself.

I’ve got to tell somebody about Jesus!

Jesus, who died on Calvary!

Jesus, who arose early Sunday morning!

I said I wasn’t going to tell anybody but I got to give it up for Jesus!

Catch the Wind

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

SCRIPTURE: "And he rode upon a cherub, and did fly: yea, he did fly upon the wings of the wind." Psalm 18:10

Introduction

Have you ever flown a kite? There are many who remember the joys of kite flying and cherish the memory of windy March days and a sky filled with colorful kites speckling the skies. Just about every boy knew how to get a kite in the air and how to keep it there. Kite flying became a necessary skill.

Kite flying is over 2000 years old. It began in China and is now a pastime around the world. The most famous kite flying incident in America happened in 1752 when Benjamin Franklin and his son flew a kite in an electrical storm to harness the power of electricity.

Some can remember not only flying kites, but making them as well. Before the era of store bought kites, kids made their own kites. Many used news paper that was held together with glue. The glue was homemade, too; using the best flour-water mixtures of the modern kitchen. Small sticks were used, tied in the middle to form a cross. Old stockings were used to make the tails. There were some who became quite skilled a kite making and kite flying that they became kite flying experts.

There is one truth those who fly kites have learned and accepted: to successfully fly a kite one must figure out a way to catch the wind. With wind, even the best kites can't stay afloat.

If our future dreams, goals and ambitions were kites, the same would be true: if we want to achieve our goals, we must catch the wind! Without wind a kite crashes. Our ambitions crash, too unless sustained by the power of God.

As Christians, we rejoice in knowing that our goals and dreams can be realized when sustained by the wind of God's spirit. His presence in our lives makes the difference. It is the determining factor between whether we succeed or fail.

Exposition

This text describe describes God as a source of power and strength because God himself rides on the wings of the wind.

The empowering presence of God is represented by two words: ruach, in the Old Testament and pneuma, in the New Testament.

Ruach is associated with the life force of humanity. The ruach of God is his breath and his power as represented in Job 12:10 that says, "In whose hand is the soul of every living thing, and the breath of all mankind." Ezekiel was carried to a valley filled with dry bones and told to prophesy to the winds to give them life. Ezekiel 37:9-10 says, " Then said he unto me, Prophesy unto the wind, prophesy, son of man, and say to the wind, Thus saith the Lord GOD; Come from the four winds, O breath, and breathe upon these slain, that they may live. So I prophesied as he commanded me, and the breath came into them, and they lived, and stood up upon their feet, an exceeding great army." Thus, the ruach of God of the Old Testament is the literal breath of God that gives life to and power to the lifeless.

David in Psalm 18:10 projects God as being so powerful that he controls and monitors the breath necessary for any man's existence. He literally rides on the wings of the wind. He is high. He is powerful and He is excellent.

The New Testament equivalent to breath is pnuema. It is best represented by John 20:22 which says, "And when he had said this, he breathed on them, and saith unto them, Receive ye the Holy Ghost:" In the New Testament pneuma is translated "Holy Spirit" or Holy wind. It is the Holy Wind of God that empowers us to do his will and to soar above obstacles, frustrations and opposition. His presence is the pnuema or "air" that we breathe.

Thus from the Old Testament we learn that God is the ruach or the life force we need to survive. He controls that force and rides it like the wind. From the New Testament we learn that God is the wind, the very spiritual air that we breathe and need to succeed in this life and beyond.

We Need Wind

Young believers launch themselves into life with a head full of information and a heart full of dreams. With their diplomas in hand many will seek to make their dreams become realities on the weight of their knowledge and skill alone. Some who can think well think their superior knowledge is all they will need. Others who can dance believe that alone will be their ticket to success. Others can play musical instruments and excel in sports, but mistakenly believe they can launch their futures without the real need of anyone else outside of themselves.

Those who think this way should study kite flying for an important life lesson:

YOU MUST RUN WITH IT: Most who have tried to fly a kite know that barring a extraordinary strong blast of wind, to get a kite in the air you must run with it. As you run the kite pulls against the tension on your string and it begins rise. Herein lies the truth, if you can't run with it, the best kite won't get off the ground. Each youth must take the skills and talents that God has provided and use them to the best of your ability. If you sing, your career won't take off in the shower. If you dance or play an instrument, you must use it. If you are an athlete you must develop your skills to best of your ability and seek every opportunity. In Hebrews 11 most of the verses begin with two words, “by faith.” A litany of patriarchs were listed to achieved great things in God’s will by faith. Those who intend to get their dreams off the ground must be willing to step out on faith and “run with it” to get it in the air.

KITES WITHOUT TAILS FLY CRAZY: Most flat kites come with some type of tail. The tail of the kite works to keep its nose pointed into the wind. Without the tail the kite turns upside down, round and round and does crazy stuff. For young believers, your religious training and reverence to God is your tail. It keeps your dreams pointed toward those things which are godly. If you pursue your goals and dreams and disconnect yourself from God’s presence you will find yourself doing crazy stuff, going round and round, acting erratic and crashing. Matthew 6:33 reminds every believer to “seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness and all of these things shall be added unto you.” Otherwise, don’t lose your tail!

DON’T GET TANGLED UP: No matter how successful you are at getting your kite into the air it won’t stay up long if you get it tangled up in wires and branches. Too many entanglements will disturb your upward climb. This is a lesson to young believers today. There are many who have ambitions of flying high in the world, but they are trying to launch a high flying life among low level entanglements. Drugs, night life, boys gone wild, girls gone wild, drunkenness, loose living, shacking, pre-marital sex and general loose living are low level entanglements that keep you launching higher. That’s why, Ephesians 6:11 encourages us to, “Put on the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil.” When we are wrapped up and secured in the word of God, there is no danger of being tangled up in the tricks of the devil.

WE MUST GO WHERE THE WIND BLOWS: Usually the wind needed to sustain a kite in the air is high in the air. We can run with it, but sooner or later we must let out enough string, keep tugging on the line until we can get our kites into the streams of air that keep it afloat. When that happens the person on the ground does have to run anymore. The kite soars on the power of the wind alone. It will soar for hours if uninterrupted. It is soaring not by the ability of the person on the ground but it is soaring because it has caught the wind. Young believers must know that if we want to catch the wind we must move to a level where the wind blows. The wind of God does not blow in night clubs, discos, freaky nights, and spring break beach parties. We catch the wind of God in our praise and worship moments. We catch the Spirit of God in our bible reading and quiet times. The world will keep knocking on your door asking you to run, run run, but all of your running keep make your goals soar, to do that they must catch the wind. To get them there we must go where the wind blows. That means we must be in the presence of God.

When we Catch the Wind

Finally brothers and sisters we must consider that once we catch the wind, there is no limit to how high we can go.

Those who have flown a kite successfully cannot describe the feeling they get when they the string tugging against their hands and watch it move higher and higher.

In fact, its ability to go higher is only limited to climb higher by the amount of available string.

That's the way it is when a life catches the wind of God. There is no limit to how high we can go or what we can do. We are only limited by our fears, doubts and preparation. The lesson is obvious if you intend to catch the wind, bring plenty of string.

Get as much formal education as you can, so once your dreams catch the wind you have room to climb!

Get rid of your fears and doubts so that once your goals catch the wind you will have the courage to reach out and grab them.

You will only be limited by the amount of preparation, courage and faith you bring into the soaring experience.

There is a Latin word used to describe what we have been saying today, it is "Capta Ventum" it means "Catch the wind." Those who are guided by the hand of God know there is a time when the wind is right and God's spirit is moving in a life. That's described by the Latin term "Ventus Secondus" –a favorable wind!

I'm told that the best time to fly kites is in the month of Month of March because there is always an abundance of favorable winds. It's kind of hard the rest of the year because you have to wait for the winds to blow.

When you've been trying live according to the will of Lord, God sends a "favorable wind."

When you can't seem to get the next step of our life moving right direction, God sends a "favorable wind."

When you try every means you know how, but you can't seem to get your life in the air, God sends a "favorable wind!"

When you catch a favorable wind there is nothing that can stop you from achieving God's will for your life!

Isaiah 54:17 "No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper; and every tongue that shall rise against thee in judgment thou shalt condemn."- That's favorable wind!

When you catch a favorable wind, times might get tough but God will provide!

Philippians 4:19 says, "But my God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus."- Favorable Wind

When you catch a favorable wind, you may run out of strength and energy but takes your hopes and dreams beneath his wings, higher! Higher and higher!

Call on Jesus! Let the spirit of God take you higher!

Jesus, let him open doors for the performance of his will!

Jesus, let him lift you up to another plane

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who was buried in a borrowed tomb!

Jesus, who arose early Sunday morning!

Catch God's available wind and there is no limit to where you can go!

The Tragedy of Losing Jesus

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 8, 2008

SCRIPTURE: But they, supposing him to have been in the company, went a day's journey; and they sought him among their kinsfolk and acquaintance. And when they found him not, they turned back again to Jerusalem, seeking him. And it came to pass, that after three days they found him in the temple, sitting in the midst of the doctors, both hearing them, and asking them questions. Luke 2:44-46

Introduction

Have you ever thought, for a second, that you lost a child? It is a scary feeling to look for a child that was near one second and find that child missing in the next. Yet, thousands of families each year are plagued by fact that children are missing from homes.

The problem of missing children is growing every year. In 1982 the FBI reported just over 152,000 children in the United States. By the year 2000, there were over 876,000 and today there are over 1 million missing children reports investigated each year. The U.S. Justice Department makes it even plainer: There are over 2,100 missing children reports filed every day in America.

Why are there so many? Law officials say a small number of the reports are related to kidnapping. Some are the result of run-a-ways, and still others involved baby snatching, thefts of babies from hospitals, and thefts of children by one parent or another.

All of this results in thousands of families each day literally mourning the loss of one or more missing children. To get them back some parents have taken the offensive. They have plastered the pictures on the walls of post offices and safe houses around the nation. They have floated their names and photographs over the internet and place their pictures on the back of milk cartons with the words, "Have you seen this child?" or "Missing."

While it is an awful feeling to lose a child, it's an even worse feeling to lose a child who still lives and sleeps in our homes every day. There are no real statistics to document it, but we can sense from observation that there is a growing number of children who are estranged from their parents, they have no connection with them at all: They don't share intimate thoughts, discuss their dreams and frustrations, share a sense of family or bond and most of all, they feel no real love for their parents. When this occurs the child is eating and sleeping under a family roof, but his/her mind and heart is missing from the family circle.

There are more families with children lost in the house, than there are with children missing out of the house.

If a child is missing out of the house, parents go out of their way to find them. What about children missing in the house? Shouldn't the search to get them back be just as vigilant?

Whether missing from the family circle or missing in the family circle, it is a tragic feeling to lose a child. It hearts the heart. It is an irreplaceable loss; that's why many do what they must do to get them back.

There is a sense of relief felt when we hear reports of missing children that have been found. There is also joy in the family when a child lost to the family has been restored.

That's the way it is with God too? Many members of the church have lost Jesus somewhere along the way. He was there one minute and the next He was gone. We were careless, thoughtless and neglectful and we lost him in the crowd of our busy schedules and hectic lives. When we have lost Jesus there is an empty feeling on the inside.

Yet, there is hope. We can search for him, find him and get him back in our lives. As Christians, we know the joy of having Jesus in our lives. We shudder at the thought of losing him by our own thoughtlessness or assumptions. We also rejoice in knowing that if we have lost him, we can find him again.

Exposition

This text focuses on an instance in which Mary and Joseph lost Jesus in the crowd. Joseph and Mary and Jesus made the three or four day trip to the Temple for Passover every year. At the Temple there were separate sections for the men and for the women. Normally children would be with their mothers, but when a boy was twelve, as Jesus was on this particular occasion, he could be with either his father or his mother. That is where the problem arose. Apparently Jesus wandered off and both parents thought Jesus was with the opposite parent. When they discovered he was missing, they searched for three days before they found him.

When Mary found Him she asked Jesus, "Why did you do this to us?" Jesus answered her simply as if to say: "Didn't you know I had to be about my Father's business?"

The text notes that Mary and Joseph stopped what they were doing and immediately went to find the child that was lost. When they sought him, they found him.

Losing Jesus

A Close look at Mary and Joseph's parenting experience in this text reveals truths that every parent should note:

THEY ASSUMED TOO MUCH: When Mary and Joseph began the journey, they made an assumption about Jesus; but they assumed too much. Luke 2:44 says, "But they, supposing him to have been in the company." They assumed that everything is all right. On the way up, to Jerusalem he was never out of their sight, but on the return, they made assumptions about his presence. Today, there are many parents who assume too much. When their children don't talk to them they assume that it's because they are growing up. When their children find it a burden to be in the presence of their parents, they assume it's because they want to get into the world. When they have been shut completely out of the lives of their children, many parents assume that everything is still fine as long as there are no children out of wedlock and no one is in jail.

Yet, despite the assumptions, there are millions of youth who growing and maturing and seeking their own destinies, while parents are assuming. Luke 2:42 points out that Jesus was thinking different thoughts and plotting a different direction for himself and his parents knew not of it? Today, parents should not assume anything. There must be time when the family talks, laughs, dreams and shares its ideals. Don't assume anything: ask. Is everything all right? Are you happy? What can we do to make life better for you? What are your plans for your life? Is there any way I can help you? There are millions of missing children in their homes, while parents assume everything is fine. Millions are thinking about suicide, considering running away, experiencing sex, drugs or alcohol and a plethora of other maladies and like Mary and Joseph their parents knew not of it. Don't assume anything.

THEY SOUGHT WAYS TO FIND HIM: When Mary and Joseph realize that Jesus was lost they sought to find him. They looked among family members and then returned to where they last saw him. Luke 2:45 says "And when they found him not, they turned back again to Jerusalem, seeking him."

Today, parents face the same dilemma. Some have discovered that there is a wall that has developed between father and son, mother and daughter. Some parents are busy trying to find their lost child. They seek help from family members and acquaintances and they back track to their last happy moments and try to pinpoint the moment that a child began to drift away. Recheck your parenting skills, is it possible we slipped along the way?

Sometimes we would like to blame it on divorce, poverty or evil world, but if we backtrack close enough we can set a child adrift we:

1.Let your child see a conflict between your home life and your church life.

2.Permit your child to choose his own companions without restraint or direction.

3. Give your child a latchkey and allow him to return home at any hour of the night.

4. Make no inquiry as to where and with whom he spends his leisure hours.

5. Insure that he goes to church but one or both parents stay at home

6. Let him expect pay for every act of helpfulness

7. Let him spend his church-time hours outside the building instead of in the church

8. Never let your child hear you pray

9.Show no interests in your child's school or personal life especially after 6th grade

10.Let your child select the television programs he watches and music he/she hears

To reclaim what has been lost, families must rearrange some priorities with less emphasis on maintaining material status or winning grudge fights with spouses. Families need time-together, quality time.

Travel to places of interest to all members of the family. Talk, listen, laugh, have fun, attend school functions, participate in the social lives of children and be a positive factor in children's lives to the point that the last person they want to shut out of their lives is the parent who loves them. Go back to where you last had it, reclaim it, and build again.

THEY FOUND HIM WHEN THEY CAME TO THE TEMPLE: Joseph and Mary search everywhere for Jesus, but they found him when they returned to the temple. Today, families are struggling against all odds to rebuild lost relationships. But we should pay close attention to Luke 2:46, "....they found him in the temple.." No family today should down play the importance of a God fearing family that worships together and serves God together. We can consult family advisors, counselors, or television doctors but all of their advice can not measure up to the restored love and joy that families realize when they come before God together.

Even when parents are separated, children need to worship regularly in the presence of their parents. Worship gives a sense of direction, order and purpose to young lives. It helps young people see that despite any frustrations they face in life, that God can and will help them to overcome.

Families who have lost children in their family circles can find them again when they return to the presence of God. It doesn't happen overnight, but God spirit has a way of working itself through the hard shells that separate and bring in the light of God's love. Those who have missing children should seek God's help in finding them.

Finding Jesus

Finally, brothers and Sisters, we must remember that if we have lost Jesus, we need to back track until we find him.

Mary and Joseph took Jesus to Jerusalem and they lost him in the crowd, but after a while they missed him and began to backtrack until they found him.

You may not have a lost a child, but it is possible that you may have lost Jesus.

You may not have a wayward son or daughter, but it is possible that you assume too much and lost Jesus.

You may have a close relationship with your child, but it's possible that you have a failing relation with God, because you lost Jesus.

If it's been some time since you've opened up to God, do like the song writer and say, "Lord take me back, take me back dear Lord, to the place where I first received thee, take me back, take me back dear Lord to where I first believed."

Somebody will find him in a bible verse, "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want"

Somebody will find Him in a children's verse, "Yes Jesus loves me, because the Bible tells me so."

There is one more thing you should note in Luke 2:46 that for three days and three nights they thought they had lost Jesus.

For three days and three nights, the worried all day and all night long because they thought the lost Jesus!

But after three days of searching they found him with resurrected hope.

But 21 years later Mary and Joseph found themselves standing on a hill called Calvary, watching nails being driven in His hand and feet.

When they saw him drop his head in the locks of His shoulders they felt they had lost Jesus!

When they buried him in a borrowed tomb they thought they had lost Jesus!

For three days and three nights the mourned for him because they thought they had lost Jesus!

But, early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave, with all power in his hands! If you have lost Jesus, you can find him today. He's only a prayer away!

The Call for Sacrificial Service

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 2008

SCRIPTURE: And when he had called the people unto him with his disciples also, he said unto them, whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. Mark 8:34

Introduction

Have you ever accepted an important task, and then asked yourself the question, "What have I gotten myself into?" There are many who aspire to great heights without counting the costs. Those who rise to the top of their professions usually do so at a great cost. They spend thousands of dollars on their education and training, countless hours networking contacts, and even more hours preparing. Once at the top, many find that the demands of the position are endless, requiring considerable sacrifice of time and resources. Ask any person who has chaired a major project, headed a corporation, held a political office or managed a home.

The best example however is the nature of church leadership. Those who lead in the church usually find that it is time consuming, spiritually draining, and physically demanding. Church leadership is a call to service that goes beyond mere titles and protocols; it is a call to sacrificial service.

I am reminded of the story that said the animals decided that they would treat the farmer with a fine breakfast to demonstrate their appreciation for all of the years he has kept them. The cow said, "We should give him a glass of milk and butter for his bread." Inspired by the cow's suggestion the hen quickly added, "We could serve him bacon and eggs for breakfast, too!" At the mention of bacon, the pig was visibly disturbed. The others wanted to know what was wrong with their suggestion. The pig answered: "To serve the farmer milk, all the cow must do is give some milk and the farmer gets, cream for his coffee, milk and butter. All the chicken has to do is lay an egg and he gets scrambled eggs, but in order for him to get bacon on his plate, I have to do. You will give something, but I will have to give my all!" -The pig understood the meaning of total sacrifice.

Those who live for Christ must be prepared to give up the whole pig. They must be willing to deny themselves completely and plunge themselves into the service of the Kingdom of God and its people.

As Christians, we are aware of the importance of sacrificial service. Christ showed us what it means to live a sacrificial life; to do the same we must be prepared to deny ourselves and follow him.

Exposition

In this text, Christ tells believers that the way of the cross requires sacrificial living.

There were many who came to Christ thinking that association with him would mean instant success. They had seen him heal the sick, raise the dead and even feed thousands of people with small handfuls of food. Being a Christian, in their mind, was the sure way to avoid sickness, have plenty to eat and acquire the good life.

Mark 8:34 Jesus warned them that those who lived by the principles of Christianity must be willing to "Take up his cross." Under Roman law, a criminal condemned to death by crucifixion was required to carry his cross to the execution site, as Jesus was required to do (Luke 23:26). In essence, believers must be willing to part with any possessions they own, their careers or even their lives to achieve the kingdom of God. The person who became a follower of Christ was willing to risk the loss of life, liberty and property for the cause of heaven. Those who were not were described as persons who wanted to "gain the whole world" but lose their souls.

In this passage, Jesus used the term "whosoever" repeatedly. It was not a reference to just Jews, but anyone of any race, nationality or persuasion who was willing to take on the burden of the cross can become a part of the kingdom of God.

Those who have been selected to humbly lead the flock of Christ are the "who-so-evers" to whom this text makes reference. Those who choose to step into the realm of leadership of men and women, must first assume the role of followship of Jesus Christ. That will require considerable sacrificial living.

Three Sacrifices

When God places a pastor in a position of authority, he has a definite reason for causing it to happen. There is a message he wants delivered and goal he wants attained. To do that the pastor must approach his station with an attitude of humility and a spirit of dedication. Why does God exalt a person to a high position? His purpose is to advance the kingdom of the Lord and to bring salvation to the people.

The challenges are great because the needs are great.

Today, we consecrate and ordain a man who has been touched by the hand of God. We celebrate the fact that God reached down into the ranks of the people and found a man of character and strength and raised them to the pastorate to speak to this generation in the name of the Lord.

Leaders are exalted, but they must be willing to make sacrifices to effectively minister to God's people.

He who leads must keep telling the dispirited masses that despite hurricanes, earthquakes and rising tides that God is still on the throne!

He who leads must keep raising the banner of hope for a world that is wallowing in despair.

God calls the pastor to serve and ordains him in his mother's womb. His official ordination calls upon him to deny himself and follow his mission totally. He is called to three areas of sacrifice:

SACRIFICIAL LIVING: The call to "Deny Yourself" is a call for sacrificial living. As pastors, the word commands that we not be excited by what the bible calls "filthy lucre." In plain language it means that the pastor is not money hungry. Because he lives a sacrificial life, he denies the pursuit of wealth and riches as he pursues the building of God's kingdom. That does not mean that the pastor should be broke and penniless, it means that he seeks first the Kingdom of God and its righteousness, rather than his own wealth. Sacrificial living requires self denial; it is a character trait only shared by special people; those whom God ordains are those have been touched by the hand of God in a way that their pursuit of the kingdom is foremost in their mind. The call to serve as pastor is also the call to sacrificial living.

SACRIFICIAL SERVICE: The call to "Deny Yourself" is also a call to sacrificial service to others. The Greek word "Diakonos" is translated "minister" in English. It means to serve. More than anything else, the pastor of the congregation is a servant. In fact, the greatest pastors are those who serve the needs of people most. Service to God through serving others is time consuming. Helping the poor, the needy, the old and feeble, the young and helpless requires time, energy and money on a regular basis. There are no shortcuts, no quick ways to do it. It requires sacrificial, time consuming service. While many may see the pastor as an exalted figure, sitting high in the congregation of God, there are others who know that it is more than fancy robes, titles and sermons. Unseen by the public are the homes visited, hospital bed prayers offered, and family disputes resolved. Unseen are the troubled souls that are comforted, youth that are encouraged and marriage saved. This level of service requires time. The time given is usually time that the pastor gives at a personal sacrifice to his own family and personal leisure. He does so willingly because he heard the voice of Jesus saying, "Deny yourself and follow me."

SACRIFICIAL SPIRIT: The pastor is called to follow Christ with a spirit of humility. Humility is important to kingdom building because it promotes Christ above self interest. It is our nature to seek praise because it helps promote our personal agenda. It is natural for each person to desire personal glory, honor and praise, but to build the kingdom for the savior, God must get the glory; we must always be second to Him. The pastor demonstrates this spirit in everything he does and says. The humble person knows that he or she is not able to accomplish anything notable without God's help; thus they shy away from being boastful. We can't accomplish anything unless we are willing to put ourselves in the background. Humility is hard because it is against our nature. It is easy, if we have surrendered ourselves to God in the first place. When that happens, we don't want to take credit for his work in our lives. The call to "deny yourself" is a call to humble service, recognizing God as the source of all blessings and strength.

God's Man And God's Plan

Finally, the pastor should help the people of God see God's hand in every man's plan.

The pastor who approaches his ministry with the attitude of sacrificial service, sees the mission that God has given him and asks, "Why me?"

The self denying servant who has been lifted to lead large assemblies, associations and conventions, often asks, "Why me?"

To those who pose this troubling question to themselves the answer comes in Psalm 89:19, "I have laid help upon one that is mighty; I have exalted one chosen out of the people."

Unseen by the hand of man God has exalted Godly leaders to a station and position that would promote the building of his kingdom and provide spiritual help for those who follow him.

Often we cannot see God's hand, but there is no doubt that God's hand is in the plan.

When our work is touched by the hand of God there is reward for all of our sacrifices.

When we deny ourselves and stand as ministers of his word, God lifts us higher!

God gives us calm in spite of our circumstances!

God gives us is blessings instead of our burdens!

God gives us happiness instead of hardships!

God gives us determination in spite of our discouragements!

That means we must put our lives in God's hands!

When we put our lives in God's hands we depend totally on Him to lead us and provide for us

So, we say to this pastor today: Go forth and declare the word!

—The world may kick you down, but God will pick you up!

—The world may strike you out, but God will give you a home run!

—The world may think you are a loser, but God will make you a winner!

—The world may think you are weak, but God will make you strong!

God will give you the plan!

When God is behind the plan, the impossible becomes possible!

When God is behind the plan, the improbable becomes probable!

When God is behind the plan, the unthinkable becomes thinkable!

With everything you have you must tell the world about Jesus!

Jesus, the lily of the Valley!

Jesus, the Bright and Morning Star!

Jesus, who carried an old rugged cross to Calvary and died!

Tell them that Early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave with all power!

All Power!

All Power in His hands!

If you dance to the music, you must pay the piper

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

Scripture:"Then said Jesus unto his disciples, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. Matthew 16:24; "For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." Romans 6:23

Introduction

Have you ever made a choice? We've all made choices in life concerning a variety of subjects. Some of our choices were wise and prudent, others were foolish. We choose our friends, husbands and wives, and our professions. We choose the amount of education we will obtain, the kinds of clothes we will wear and even what parties we will attend. We choose the kind of car we will drive, clothes we will wear and what channels we will watch on television. We make choices every day. There is one truth we also learn, for every choice we make there is consequence which will either punish us or reward us.

Remember the story of the Pied Piper? According to legend, the German town of Hamelin in the year 1284 was totally over-run by rats. The popular poem by Longfellow claims that the rats were even big and bad enough to scare away cats, and the people were beside themselves. One day, a mysterious stranger appeared and offered to take care of the problem – for a hefty fee. The townspeople agreed, and then watched in wonder as the stranger piped his way through the streets, luring all the rats out of town and depositing them in the nearby river. Voila! Hamelin no longer had rats, and the people were happy.

However, when the Piper returned for his payment, the townspeople refused to give him his due. Understandably angry, the stranger piped his way through the streets again. But this time he lured the children away from their homes and up inside the mountain, where they disappeared forever.

From this story a number of proverbs have been used over the years including: "You must pay the piper" and "If you dance to the music, you must pay the piper."

The cute story forces us to consider the consequences of our choices in life; and that's really the sum total of our lives, the results of our choices.

We can choose to study or not study, but there are consequences.

We can choose to refrain or to engage, but there are consequences.

We can choose to smoke or be smokeless, but there are consequences.

We can choose to sleep in one bed or many beds, but there are consequences.

We can choose the high road or the low road in life, but there are consequences.

Consider the man who had a pet turkey that would not stop gobbling. He put the turkey in a closet but it kept gobbling loudly. He locked it in a guest room, but it kept gobbling even louder. He locked it in a cabinet and turkey gobbled even louder. Finally, he decided to lock the turkey in the refrigerator. In a few moments the turkey stopped gobbling. In fact, he became so quiet that the man became worried when he open the door the turkey was sitting quite still and began to speak. It said, "I'm so sorry for gobbling so much. I you won't have any trouble out of me anymore, I promise." Astonished the man asked the turkey, "What changed your mind?" The turkey answered, "Well, I saw a chicken in one bowl and a duck in another; I don't know what they did, but I think it's best for me to keep my mouth shut." -He considered the consequences.

Every choice we make in life has consequences, that's the important life lesson each youth must learn.

That includes our choices about obeying God and following Christ. There is a major life choice that each person must make in life at some point. It is the choice of whether to accept Christ or deny him. There are consequences for those who choose to deny him and rewards for those who choose to follow Him.

Truly, life is about choices, but so is our eternal life; it's about choices as well.

As Christians, we have decided to follow Jesus and take no chance of getting lost. We know if choose to dance to the music of the world, one day we'll have to pay the piper. However, if we choose to follow Christ, heaven will be our reward.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus encouraging his disciples to follow Him, instead of the world.

Jesus explained the nature of living for the kingdom of God; it is sacrificial living. He told His disciples that those who choose to follow Him should be prepared to accept their particular lot in life and work with it in a spirit of self denial.

He described our lot in life as our "cross." Our cross is our set of talents, gifts and traits, that is also inclusive of our limitations, fears, flaws and doubts. Our cross is our particular circumstance in life. Christ challenged his followers to pick up their divinely appointed crosses, and use them for God by following Him.

Christ was not asking them to carry His cross, but He challenged them to pick up their own crosses and follow Him. Their crosses would be their daily frustrations, troubles and setbacks, coupled with their hopes, dreams and aspirations. Each believer must deal with the issues and choices that life presents in a spirit of self denial for the purpose of advancing the kingdom of God. Following Christ means to approach life in a manner that follows the example of Christ, using whatever we have been given to his glory.

In this text, Christ presents the choice. However, Paul, in Romans 6:23 presents the believer with the consequences of the choices. He breaks it into two parts: The wages of sin and its consequence, which is death; and following Christ and that consequence which is eternal life.

Each person is given the option of choosing whether to live for God or to live for the world; but the consequences of our choices are waiting ahead of us; they will be there when we get there.

Life Choices

Youth are faced with more choices than any generation before them.

The television channel is symbolic their dilemma. In their grandparents day the only choices were CBS, NBC and ABC. Today there is also FOX, BET, CNN and hundreds of other channels available. Their great grandparents chose between radio and black and white TV. Today, youth can chose radio and Color television and can watch and listen to both at the same time.

That may explain the difficulty youth have making life choices. There are so many channels.

PARENTS MUST TEACH CONSEQUENCES: Small children have very few choices. They must attend school, church and eat their vegetables. There is no discussion. Parents are obligated to exercise control over children; often making choices for them. Proverbs 22:6 "Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it." This training often requires parental control over the people, places and things that impact the lives of their children. A small child is unable to make choices about what to watch on television, listen to on the radio or what time to go to bed. Left to himself a small child will watch television all night, eat ice cream and candy for all three meals and never go to school. Often that control requires punishment as a way to teach children that there are consequences for wrong action. Proverbs 29:15 says, "The rod and reproof give wisdom: but a child left to himself bringeth his mother to shame." Thus, parents are compelled to help children learn to make wise choices through loving, but strong discipline. It is a parent's responsibility to teach children to make wise choices and to show them that bad choices have consequences.

YOUTH CAN'T STRADDLE THE FENCE: Many youth have not decided whether to follow Christ or embrace the world. In effect, many of them are the citizens of two worlds: God's world that of secular society. Even intelligent youth have difficulty making choices. That's why many Christian youth have music libraries filled with secular music that contradicts their spiritual lives. Many youth attend church and religious activities, but bring their IPods with them. On one channel they listen to Marvin Sapp, Tye Tribbet and Kurt Franklin and on another they hear: Lil Wayne, Lil Boosie and Alicia Keys. On Sunday morning and Wednesday night they, sit down, praise God and put a dollar in the offering, but when the concert comes they spend $35, stand up and raise the roof. Many have not made up their minds, whom they will serve and have resolved to hedge their bets by keeping one foot in both worlds. This was the dilemma that the children of Israel faced when they came into the Promised Land. In Egypt they had few choices, but in the Promised Land they had so many, some tried to remain loyal to God while enjoying the gods of Canaan at the same time. That's why Joshua said in Joshua 24:15"And if it seem evil unto you to serve the LORD, choose you this day whom ye will serve; whether the gods which your fathers served that were on the other side of the flood, or the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell: but as for me and my house, we will serve the LORD." Today, Christian youth are encouraged to hear the call of Jesus saying, "Follow me."

CHOICES HAVE CONSEQUENCES: All choices have consequences. Our lives are not predestined and detailed day by day, but the consequences of our choices are predestined. We are free to make choices but each choice has a consequence. A youth that chooses a criminal path knows the consequences of that choice: jail or death, it's just a matter of time. A youth who chooses not to study in school reaps the consequences which is academic failure. Those who choose to engage in premarital sex know that there are consequences for that choice. The youth who chooses not to get job training faces the consequence of trying to find a job without a skill; that means unemployment. The choices come with consequences. Living without salvation has its consequences as well. That is the reason for Paul's warning: those who choose to live a life of sin will pay with their souls; "The wages of sin is death." We have been given the free rein to make choices that impact our lives but we are reminded that if we dance to the music, we must pay the piper.

The Gift of God

Finally, brothers and sisters we should remember that while bad choices reap unpleasant consequence, those who follow Christ will receive eternal life.

Following Jesus has its rewards.

Following Jesus presents us with the promise of eternal life and a heavenly home.

What is in store for those who choose to live for Christ is indescribable. 1 Corinthians 2:9 But as it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him.

That's why every child of God should make up in his/her mind to follow Jesus.

We can choose to dance to music of the piper and skate right into hell or we can walk with the king.

If we walk with the king, heaven is our reward!

To follow Jesus, you must trust him with all your mind body and soul.

As I close, I'm reminded of little boy whose two story house caught afire. As the flames grew hotter the father said, "Follow Me" and I'll get you through." As the smoke filled the room, the boy saw and open window and turned loose his father's hand. He became lost in a maze of smoke and fire. When he reached the window he found himself trapped with fire all around. He heard his father's voice on the ground saying, "jump into my arms!" but the boy wouldn't jump. He yelled out, "I can't see you! I can't see you!" The father said "I told you to follow me but you let go of my hand, don't make the same mistake twice! Now jump!" The boy yelled back, "But I can't see you!" and the father answered, "It doesn't matter you can't see me, what matters is that I see, you!" The boy jumped safely into his father's hand.

We should follow Jesus because even when we can't see him, he's got His eyes on us!

Follow Jesus and he'll bring you light in the darkest of night!

Follow Jesus and he'll bring you hope in the midst of despair!

Follow Jesus and he'll bring you happiness in the midst sadness!

Follow Jesus and he'll bring you strength in the midst of weakness!

Follow Jesus and he'll bring you peace in the midst of confusion!

Follow Jesus and he'll bring you Understanding in the midst of Misunderstanding!

Follow Jesus and hell carry you to mountains of joy and bliss. He'll lift you from the valleys of sorrow and despair!

I heard a songwriter declare, "Follow Jesus, take no chance at getting lost. Follow Jesus, he's got rivers you have to cross, Follow Jesus, he's got a safe mountain plan. If Jesus can't take you to the top, there's nobody else who can!

Jesus, the lily of the valley!

Jesus, who Daniel saw as stone carved without hands!

Jesus, who Ezekiel saw as a wheel in the middle of the wheel!

Follow him to Calvary!

Follow him to Resurrection morning!

Follow him to Paradise!

Send in the Clowns!

SCRIPTURE: "But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned. " 1 Corinthians 2:14

Introduction

Have you ever been to the circus? If so, you have probably been fascinated by all of the excitement of people in costumes, strange animals, music and the assortment of people you saw. Some circuses feature a variety of dare devil acts that range from men being shot from cannons to high wire trapeze acts. There is always plenty of popcorn, cotton candy and fun.

One of the largest circuses in the nation is the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus. It travels on a huge train and often performs in civic arenas. Large circuses like these usually host three rings of activities at the same time. A lion is performing in one ring, elephants are kneeling in another, and juggling in still another.

A three ring circus is a busy event. It's often hard to keep up with all of the activities. The main attraction is usually in the center ring and is accompanied by considerable fanfare before it begins. It generally features a tight rope walker or netless trapaze act; designed to thrill and chill the audience.

Even with all of the animals, music and drama of a circus the part nearly everyone likes the most are the clowns. With huge feet, big lips, colored faces and outrageous costumes the clowns make us laugh. Their antics bring smiles to our faces as they present comedic caricatures of life in a slapstick fashion that amuses us. They are simple, sincere, naive and trusting and appeal to the childlike qualities in all of us.

Every circus is filled with drama, danger and possibility of death, but in needs the clowns. In fact, in most rodeos the clowns are the ones who distract bulls and raging bucking horses to save the lives of bronco riders. It's the clowns that save the day. If someone is about to be hurt or there is danger approaching someone will yell, "Send in the clowns!" The people laugh, but it is the clowns that save the lives of many riders.

Sometimes life is like a three ring circus. We are constantly walking a tight rope trying to keep from falling. Many have no safety net to catch them. Every step is a danger to them. There are many who face angry lions, caged in by invisible walls that threaten their lives every day. There are many whose daily lives are juggling acts in which they juggle their families, careers and personal interests just as a performer in the circus.

There are times when all three rings of life's circus are happening in our lives at the same time: We walk the tight rope, fight the lions and juggle all at the same time. Sometimes all of this drama, tension and trouble makes us ask, "Where are the clowns?" "Send in the clowns!"

Several years ago there was a song by Judy Collins entitled, "Send in the clowns!" In the song Collins notes that sometimes our lives get out of joint and gets so mixed up that it becomes like a circus with its uncertainty, confusion, loves sought and loves loss that it all gets frustrating. Then in the song Collins sings: "But where are the clowns? There ought to be clowns!"

The clowns may seem to act foolishly but they are men and women who have a specific purpose: They bring joy. They practice joy making, keeping our spirits high and bringing smiles to those who are frustrated with life.

In this world those who believe and trust in God are often considered the clowns of society. There are many who believe that Christians are foolish. They don't party hard and get drunk; they take a tenth of their money and give it to a church, stay married to one person, won't use drugs, don't gamble, and often take considerable abuse from their enemies. In worship they cry, sing loudly, and clap their hands uncontrollably. They give much of their money to help others and often do without themselves.

The world says we are the clowns! There world says we are foolish!

But when the three ring circus of life gets too much for it to bear, danger is pending, hope is lost and the world is on the verge of despair, someone says, "There ought to be clowns? Where are the clowns? Send in the clowns?"

As Christians, we believe whole heartedly in God. We trust Him, obey Him and place our hope in him. It may seem foolish to others, and at times we may appear as the clowns of life, but trusting in God is the centerpiece of our faith.

Exposition

This text explains that spiritual things may seem foolish to those who do not understand the way God operates.

Paul, writing to the Corinthians, explained that the mysteries of the Christian faith have baffled the wisest, smartest people of all times. In 1 Corinthians 2:6 he notes that even the great princes of the world have not been able to understand our faith, unless they themselves were believers. The truth Paul explained is that only spiritual people are able to receive spiritual truths.

Believers receive God's word as divine because it has been revealed to us by the Holy Spirit. We see the wisdom in what we do, those who have not been led by the Holy Spirit cannot see this wisdom and see our faith and works as foolishness.

To them we are little more than clowns, religious fanatics who are humorous to watch and sometimes comical.

However, those who know the Lord, not only understand the story of Christ, and him crucified, but also understand the deep and mysterious ways that God moves

Fools for God

In a strange way God has used many people in biblical history in ways that appear foolish, but exemplified the strange way that God works:

NOAH LOOKED LIKE A CLOWN: Noah spent 100 years building an ark in the desert. The sight of a huge boat the size of a small battleship in the desert must have appeared very foolish to those who saw Noah. In fact he looked like a clown. He was a man nearly 600 years old and his sons, themselves elderly, building a boat in the wilderness. Yet, Noah operated on faith that God would do as he promised. In a similar manner, believers today must continue to act on our faith in God no matter how foolish it looks to others who snicker and laugh at us. Noah looked like a clown until the rains came. As those who laughed saw the waters rising the clowns were safe inside the ark. Those who trust God have the same assurance, he will never abandon us on any promise that he makes. We can safely trust him regardless of what people think of what we say and do.

MOSES LOOKED LIKE A CLOWN: Moses, at 80 years old, must have looked like a fool standing in front of Pharaoh with nothing but a staff, commanding the most powerful leader of the known world to "Let my people go." We can almost hear the laughter as they saw him standing in dusty sandals and tattered clothes claiming to speak for an unknown, unseen God. Yet, Moses stood courageously because he knew that no matter how foolish it appeared to Pharaoh and his advisors, God not one to be mocked or intimidated. The laughter of Pharaoh stopped as God brought down 10 plagues on Egypt, killing even the son of the Pharaoh. When he could not take it anymore, he must have asked, "Where is the clown? Send in the clown and ask him to stop this madness." Today, there are many who are intimidated by the boldness of believers. We stand firm in our beliefs even if that means tackling the most powerful in our nation. It looks foolish to those who do not know God as we know him, but just as Moses knew God's plan, we too know God's plan. We stand boldly against injustice, immorality and evil, even though we may stand alone and people laugh. We know God is not mocked and His word will not return void.

SARAH LOOKED LIKE A CLOWN: At 90 years old Sarah was pregnant. She must have been an odd sight to see, almost a circus attraction as people stared and wondered at how a 90 year old woman and her 100 year old husband could produce a child. Behind closed doors they probably laughed alone. In fact, Sarah herself laughed when she hear it for the first. Yet, God was true to his promise to Abraham. Even though faith may seem humorous to those who do not know the Lord, those who have tried God for themselves know that faith in God is always rewarded because no matter how foolish it might sound to others, if God has promised it, it shall be.

PAUL LOOKED LIKE A CLOWN: He spent a lifetime traveling the country speaking against Christians, yet after his Damascus Road encounter with the Lord, Paul returned to the very places where he spoke against Christ and became his greatest spokesman. He must have looked very foolish to those who remember what he once was and compared it to his new identity. In a similar way, there are many who don't understand our transformation from the people we were many years ago to our present lives. We changed the people we run with, the places and go and the things we do. They think we look strange because we are not what we once were. They don't know we know. They don't know what the Lord has done for us. We may look foolish to them, carrying a bible and attending bible study. We may look foolish praying before we eat and staying away from the clubs, but they don't know what we know about the Lord. If they did, we would not foolish to them.

Send in the Clowns

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should not be discouraged by those who mock our faith, for Jesus surrounded himself with many who critics called clowns!

Paul said the natural man can't understand the things of God for they appear to be foolishness.

Those who trust in him and follow him appear to little more than naïve clowns.

I don't know about you but I don't mind being a clown for the Lord because I know when things get tough, God is only a prayer away.

It's strange how people who laugh at you, know how to find a child of God when the going gets tough. When times get tough, somebody will remember the clowns!

The clowns who live across the street and go to church on Sunday morning!

The clowns who study their bibles and praise God in worship!

The clowns who are rejected by the socialites because they refuse to defile themselves with the world!

Where are the clowns?

It seemed a foolish thing for a man who claimed to be the son of God to surrounding himself with publicans and sinners, prostitutes and tax collectors. To them it was an assembly of clowns.

Clowns who closed their businesses and markets because they heard him say, "Follow me and I'll make you fishers of men!"

Clowns who boarded boats in the midst of stormy weather on faith that he could speak to the winds and the waves and they would obey his will!

Clowns who believed that he could speak to a blind man and make him see again!

Clowns who believed that he could help a man who had been lame for 38 years by just telling him to take thy bed and walk!

Clowns who believed that they could be healed if they could just touch the hem of his garment!

Clowns who believed he could feed 5,000 with two little fishes and five loaves of bread.

Clowns who believed that a man who had been buried in his tomb for four days could rise by just speaking the words, "Lazarus come forth!"

Clowns who believed him when he said, If you destroy this temple I can build it again in three days.

Clowns who believed that even if they nailed he him to an old rugged cross that they could not take his life, but he would lay it down for his friends.

Clowns who believed that even if they buried him in a borrowed tomb and posted a guard in front of the door that Early Sunday morning He would rise again!

I don't know about you, but I don't mind being a clown for Jesus!

If you want to know what he Lord has done…

Send in the clowns!

The Fix-it Man!

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 28, 2008

SCRIPTURE: "But also on that Judgment Day I will restore David's house that has fallen to pieces. I'll repair the holes in the roof, replace the broken windows, fix it up like new. David's people will be strong again" Amos 9:11 (Msg)

Introduction

Have you ever needed the service of a fix-it man? The fix-it man is that fellow who seems to have the ability to tinker with everything from the breaks on a car to an air conditioning system. You break it and the fix-it man can put it back together. Tinkers have unique gifts. They understand how things work. They can dissect the most complicated machinery and in a short time, analyze how it works and put it back together again.

There is a fix-it man for just about every problem.

If the refrigerator breaks, call the repairman; he can fix-it.

If an appliance fails to operate, there are people who specialize in making them work again.

If there is a hole in your wall, call a carpenter; he can fix it.

If there are holes in the soles of your shoes, call the shoe repairman; he can fix it.

If the car doesn't operate correctly, see a factory trained mechanic, he can fix it.

If there is a leak in your house, call the roofer; he can fix-it.

There are even people who let us talk to them and they fix our psychological maladies.

Doctors fix our broken bones, cuts and bruises.

If we don't like the way we look plastic surgeons try to fix that, too.

There is a fix-it man for just about every problem that exists.

Yet, despite our best efforts, there is no one in the yellow pages that can fix a broken heart. There is no specialist that can heal a wounded spirit. There is no website that can save a lost soul.

He's not in the yellow pages, but there is a divine fix-it man. His name is Jesus.

As Christians, we are encouraged to remember that Christ is heaven's fix-it man. Whatever we need, God's got it. Whatever is broke, He can fix-it. Truly God is a great God.

Exposition

This text focuses on the prophet Amos as he projects that the house of David would suffer loss and distress but would be fixed and expanded beyond its expectations.

This text is prophetic because it was delivered at a time of Israel's prominence. It was given at a time when many of the descendants of David were doing well professionally, succeeding in business, thriving politically and educationally. It came as both a warning and a promise. The warning was that despite the apparent successes that lay in the future, that the family of David would suffer losses and deaths.

It wasn't a happy picture that he painted. It meant that there would be times when they would mourn and experience hurt, despite their apparent successes. During this time there would be a sense of terrible loss, and emptiness. In those times they would remember the days of happiness, and joy. They would remember the happy days when they enjoyed family, friends and festive celebration. They would remember the days when they gathered and sang Zion's songs and cheered each other.

Yet, the day would come when they would mourn the death of a generation. In that day they would count their losses, like so many sheep, and lament the decline of the Davidic family circle.

The prophet Amos, who was not very popular when he talked about days of mourning, broke from his typical discourse in this text and also offered words of hope

He began to talk about a time when that which is broken would be fixed; that which is hurt would be healed and that which is mourned would be restored.

Amos said to Israel that when it sat in mourning, red and teary eyed, that God would fix the broken places and restore the joys of times past.

The prophet pointed them to the coming of a descendant of David who would reestablish his kingdom, restore the family prominence and would rule forever.

Amos referred to Christ who would raise the tabernacles again and rebuild them as he lifted the spiritual state of the family to a level that would far exceed anything it had ever known, even under David at his height.

Beyond that, in verse 12 Amos projected that in the years ahead, despite the coming of periods of mourning that God had great things in store for the descendants of David. Their territories would be expanded to include Edom and even lands possessed by the heathen. In the years to come, those who would be called "by my name" will be the heirs of the Promise made first to Abraham and continued Isaac, Jacob, David and his descendants.

The prophecy points to one person as the hope of those in despair; Jesus the Son of God. It is Jesus and the establishment of his kingdom that provides the hope for those who suffer loss. He is the wonderful restorer of loss joys. He is the perpetuator of diminished capacities. Through faith in Him, though in exile and in gloom the people would find hope, because God has anointed and appointed him to fix their vulnerabilities to the point that we will never hurt again.

The text speaks to every family similarly situated as Israel, to focus on the promise of God, not its losses; not that which is broken, or its hurts. The text looks beyond the immediate loss and sees Jesus, who will come in the hour of name and fix that which has been broken and restore the joy of the Lord to all who are called by his name.

Three Fixes

Christ is the personification of the prophecy of Amos. He came in person to announce the establishment of his Kingdom and now, today, he makes Himself available to all who are called by His name to act as their personal fix-it man. How does it do that? He does the three things that are unique to every fix-it man.

HE REPAIRS THAT WHICH HAS BEEN BROKEN: There are many reasons why things break. Sometimes they break because of negligence on our part. At other times it is just wear and tear. Sometimes it's not broken at all, it's a matter of loose connections. In our lives as well, there are a few things that are broken. There are a few problems that we have caused on our own. There are others that are the result of years of wear and tear, and strain of shouldering burdens for so long. There are still other problems that we have that are just the result of loose family connections; loose church connections, and loose connections with life itself. To these Jesus says in John 10:10, "I am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly." He comes to fix that which is broken. He comes to repair the broken family, the altered relationship and lost hope. He comes to say that you may have broken your life, but I'm here to help you put it back together again. He's here to help us connect with God again and restore the power of his love.

FIX ARRANGE AND REARRANGE: Some problems that exist in our lives are the result of misalignment. To fix us, God has to rearrange a few things. A man experienced difficulty with his computer and called the repairman complaining that every day between 2-4 p.m. the computer went haywire and would not function. The repairman didn't take a second to see the problem. He said the computer sat next to a window. Between 2 and 4 p.m. the sun shined through the window and overheated the computer. All the repairman had to do was to rearrange the location of the terminal and the problem was solved. Sometimes our lives need to be arranged and rearranged to fix what is wrong. If things are not going exactly right, perhaps we need to let the heaven's Fix-it man rearrange us. Psalm 37:23 says, "The steps of a good man are ordered by the LORD: and he delighteth in his way." The song writer said, "Order my steps in word dear Lord, lead, lead me, guide me every day. Send your anointing father I pray. Order my steps in your word.

TO FIX IS TO STRENGTHEN: A good fix-it man not only attempts to address our problem but to make adjustments that will strengthen and extend the length of operation of the repaired part. To do that he cleans, lubricates and makes necessary adjustments. These adjustments increase the life expectancy of the product and extend its operative life. The spirit of God has a way of working in our lives to give us strength. If we are patient he will renew us. Isaiah 40:31 says, " But they that wait upon the LORD shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint." We are strengthened when we worship, study and hear the preached word. In his presence the belts are tightened if they are loose, drained spirits are restored, and we are inspired by the spiritually lubricating ideas sent to us from the throne of God. Even when we are weak, after a loss, God fixes that, too; by the presence of His spirit which carries us through the dark into the light.

Jesus will fix It

Finally, brothers and sisters, we need to remind ourselves that, no matter what problem we have or how low we feel at the moment, Jesus can fix it.

Amos told Israel that the day would come when tears would fall from their eyes. He said the day would come when there would be hurt in the family circle, but he reminded them of something that offered us all hope, that God's fix it man would be available to all of those who are called by His name.

When we look for a fix-it man we might looking in the phone directory and see many listings.

There is Jones and Son, they fix air conditioners!

There is Smith and Son, they fix washing machines!

There is Edwards and Son, they fix refrigerators!

There is Washington and Son, they fix automobiles!

There is Jackson and Son, they fix plumbing!

Very seldom can we find a universal fix-it man; somebody who can fix everything. But God is a universal fix-it man.

You won't find Him listed in the Yellow Pages but your find in the pages of the Bible.

You might find Him listed under Omni, which means all or everything

Omni-present, He can fix it anywhere and anytime.

Omni-scient, He knows everything and how to fix every problem.

Omni-potent, He's got all power in his hands.

If you look a little further you might find Him under Jehovah:

When you are walking the valley of the shadow of death he's listed as Jehovah-Rohi, "The Lord is my shepherd and I shall not want."

When you are sick and in pain, you'll find him under Jehovah-Rapha, "I am the Lord that healeth thee!"

When your pocket book is broke, your bank account is broke and you can't see your way, you'll find Him under Jehovah-Jireh, "The Lord is our provider."

When you can't find any peace because there's trouble everywhere, you find him under Jehovah-Shalom because "God is our peace."

When your efforts have failed and you feel down and out, you'll find him under Jehovah-Nissi, "The Lord is our banner of victory!"

It all means that even as we sit here, troubled by the concerns of this sad moment, Jesus will fix it!

Though tears may fall from our eyes, Jesus will fix it, after while!

He died out on Calvary But Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave!

Every day, I'm glad to know, if I am broken in my spirit; Jesus will fix it after while!

No. 9323-Blessing

Thou art now blessed of the Lord

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

July 13, 2008

SCRIPTURE: "And the LORD appeared unto him the same night, and said, I am the God of Abraham thy father: fear not, for I am with thee, and will bless thee, and multiply thy seed for my servant Abraham's sake. And he builded an altar there, and called upon the name of the LORD, and pitched his tent there: and there Isaac's servants digged a well. Genesis 26:24-29 " That thou wilt do us no hurt, as we have not touched thee, and as we have done unto thee nothing but good, and have sent thee away in peace: thou art now the blessed of the LORD." Genesis 26:29

Introduction

Has your life been blessed by the Lord? No matter what our short comings, disappointments and failures, most of us would agree that, despite our misgivings, we have been blessed. Blessings come in a variety of ways. Sometimes are blessings are financial. Sometimes they are spiritual. Sometimes we enjoy the blessing of reasonable health. There are many who have both spiritual and material blessings in abundance.

Charles Dickens once wrote this memorable statement: "Reflect upon your present blessings, of which every man has many; not on your past misfortunes, of which all men have some."

Dickens had it right, when we actually reflect on our present blessing we are amazed at what God is doing for us right now. In fact it only takes a minute to see the gift of life itself, the warmth of friendships, the riches of good health, the power of love, the glory of a sunrise, the privilege of prayer, the joys of music, the satisfactions of work, the treasures of books, the beauty of art, the warmth of summer, and the grace of God.

All of these are indications that God is blessing us right now!

That may be what the song writer had in mind with the words, "The Lord is blessing me, right now. Yes he is. He woke me up this morning, and he started me on my way.

The Lord is blessing me, right now."

Another song writer put it this way:

When upon life's billows you are tempest tossed,
When you are discouraged, thinking all is lost,
Count your many blessings, name them one by one,

And it will surprise you what the Lord hath done.
Count your blessings, name them one by one,
Count your blessings, see what God hath done!
Count your blessings, name them one by one,
And it will surprise you what the Lord hath done.

Sometimes we can't see that we've been blessed because we can only see the mess. If you purchased a new Volkswagen and waken the next morning to find out that it had stripped clean by the neighbors, you wouldn't feel blessed. So you move to a different part of town and buy a new Volvo, completely loaded, but find that the neighbors there stole the tires, panels, seats and the stereo system, you wouldn't feel blessed there either. So, you move one more time to a bigger, finer neighborhood and this time you purchase a BMW 760, but your neighbors strip that one, too. This time you move into an elite neighborhood, and purchase a Lincoln Navigator, this time it is not stripped but standing in your front yard are all of your former neighbors wanting to know what they can do to be blessed like you. Even when it appears that we are not being blessed God is working it out.

As believers, we know that God takes everything life throws at us and turns it to our advantage. We praise him because even at this very moment, he is blessing us in ways that we cannot see.

Exposition

This text focuses on how God blessed a believer so well that even his enemies had to beg his pardon.

The central character of the text is Isaac, the son of Abraham. It takes place as Isaac and his family lived in the land of the Philistines. The Philistines watched Isaac closely and it seemed that he was been blessed: his crops flourished, his people were at peace and there seemed to be a spirit of happiness and joy in his camp.

Envious of his blessing the Philistines filled up all of Isaac's water wells with dirt. Isaac moved to another section of the land, dug new or reopened old wells and God blessed him more. The Philistines in every section he moved to, filled up his wells with dirt.

Driven away by the Philistines Isaac camped in the Valley of Gerar. He dug three wells there, but the Gerarites claimed that two of the three wells Isaac dug were theirs.

In what looked like a cowardly move Isaac never fought over the wells, he just moved on, dug news ones and then God went to work blessing his crops and his enormous family.

Soon his enemies noticed that the more they harassed Isaac, the more God blessed him. They decided to meet him personally and declare a truce. When they met with him they were forced to acknowledge that "thou are now blessed of the Lord."
When God has blessed

God blesses believers continuously, even in the presence of their enemies. The text indicates that God has blessed the people in three frameworks of time: the pas, the present and the future.

GOD HAS BLESSED US IN THE PAST: God appeared to Isaac in Genesis 26:24 and identified himself as the same God that blessed his father, Abraham. "I am the God of Abraham." His father was blessed with health, strength, wisdom and a business sense. God told him to travel from place to place and God opened doors for him in every place he went. In the past God had been good to Isaac's family. Today, each believer should reflect upon the many ways that God has blessed his/her family. Through many toils and dangers we have come to arrive at our present point. Your house, employment, education and finances did not have the capacity that it has today. God has blessed each of our families in so many ways: We've moved from Ice boxes to refrigerators, wagons and buggies to brand new cars, from shot gun houses with holes in the roof to fine apartments with air conditioning. God has been good to us. He has blessed us in so many ways. We too, can say, we have now been the blessed of the Lord.

GOD IS BLESSING US NOW: God told Isaac in Genesis 26:24 to "fear not, I am with thee." That was active statement in the present tense. It meant that God was with Isaac in the present and thus he had no reason to fear. It was obvious. Everywhere Isaac went, God opened doors for him. He made ways for him out of no way. God was not simply an anachronism, but a living presence. Today, believers have that same assurance. Jesus told his disciples in Matthew 28 "And lo, I am with thee alway, even unto the end of the world." That makes God a God of the here and now. He is a God of today's situation, today's challenge, today's difficulty, today's blessing. Today, God is opening doors for believers. He is solving problems and answering prayers. Even as we speak God sent the answer to someone's prayers down the shaft of time to reach them just in the nick of time.

GOD WILL BLESS US IN THE FUTURE: In Genesis 26:24 God told Isaac that 'I will bless thee" that is a statement of future intent. It declares that God plans to bless him and his posterity for generations to come. Thus, Isaac had the assurance of knowing that God planned not only to bless him in the moment but as days unfolded he would continue to bless him. That should be encouraging news for believers. Those who are faithful can expect God to relate to them the same way. Not only is he blessing us today with health and strength but those who are faithful can rightfully expect to be blessed well into the future, because of their love and devotion to God.

The Blessed of the Lord

Finally, brothers and sisters, this text shows us what we should do when we have been blessed.

When we realized that God has blessed us more than we deserve, what should be our response? Genesis 26:25 notes, "And he builded an altar there, and called upon the name of the LORD, and pitched his tent there.

Isaac built and altar and began to worship and praise the Lord, and offer sacrifices.

Today, believers who have been blessed should take note of Isaac's example; when we have been blessed, we should not hesitate to praise the Lord and offer sacrificial service.

We should praise the Lord even if we are given a cross, because if there is no cross there will be no crown!

If we are given a sip of sadness, drink it because there's a gallon of gladness on the way!

If we are given a taste of failure, swallow it because real success is on the way!

If we experience a few days of sickness, endure them because there will be years of better living ahead.

If we share a day of defeat, bear it because there will be a year of victory coming soon!

I don't know about you, but I've found out that when God blesses; it's a real blessing.

When God blesses the impossible becomes possible!

When God blesses the unreachable becomes reachable!

When God blesses the unattainable becomes attainable!

God blesses the Christian. We don't know how he does it, but he does!

That's why we come to the house of prayer, thanking him for our back then blessing, looking for our right now blessing, and waiting for our "yet to come" blessing

Maybe that's why the songwriter wrote, "There's a blessing in this house for you. Even though you can't see it the Lord knows you need it! There's blessing in this house for you!

It's a blessing that was paid for on an old rugged cross!

It's a blessing that was secured with a crown of thorns!

It's a blessing that was guaranteed when Jesus died out on Calvary!

But Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

He's still blessing…

He's still blessing everyone of us, right now!

Just A Little Nip

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Holy Trinity Baptist Church
Chicago, Il

July 6, 2008

SCRIPTURE:Wherefore say unto the children of Israel, I am the LORD, and I will bring you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians, and I will rid you out of their bondage, and I will redeem you with a stretched out arm, and with great judgments: And I will take you to me for a people, and I will be to you a God: and ye shall know that I am the LORD your God, which bringeth you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians. Exodus 6:6-7 "And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and said, take this, and divide it among yourselves: For I say unto you, I will not drink of the fruit of the vine, until the kingdom of God shall come. 19 And he took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them, saying, this is my body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of me. 20Likewise also the cup after supper, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you." Luke 22:17-20

Introduction

Have you had a little nip? Just a little bit? There was a time when some believers were in the world and indulged at the fountains of insobriety! While there are a few exceptions, most have had a taste of whiskey, wine, scotch, gin, Vodka or beer. Whether it was at a teenage party, a fraternity or sorority rush, or while fishing in the bayou, there are many who have had a nip, even if only a "little nip." Once we became believers, Baptist pledged to stop nipping and sipping because our little nips might cause someone to become a drunkard.

Folks outside of our faith think Baptists are a little too conservative. What's wrong with a little nip? "A little wine is good for the belly," they claim. In fact, there are many denominations of believers that do not go as far as the world's Baptists. They don't promise not to nip or sip or drink a fine wine with their dinner. They have no prohibitions against a nightcap or sherry every now and then. They say the Baptists are a little backward and behind the times.

Most of us know at least one person who can't stop at a little nip. There are some places where it has been reported that some even need a nip to make it through the work day. Most find it very hard to restrain themselves. They must have another nip. Consider the town drunk who left a church revival and decided to stop drinking. However, he felt he wasn't strong enough to stop cold turkey, so he decided to reduce his drinking and stay sober longer. On the way home from the revival he stopped by the local bar and sat at the counter. "I am a new man" said the town drunk. "Yes sir, bring me four bottles of Johnny Walker Red!" The bartender brought four full bottles of the cheap wine and everyone at the bar watched as the town drunk emptied each bottle one after another. He gave a slight hiccup. The ordered again. “Bring me three bottles of Johnny Walker Red.” To the amazement of everyone around he summarily drank all three of the bottles in what seemed like single gulps. As he wobbled on the seat and struggled to keep from falling, he struggle to straighten himself and said, “Bartender, bring me two bottles of Johnny Walker Red!”

Everyone in the bar stopped and watched as the town drunk emptied two more bottles of red wine.” Finally, the drunk held up one finger. Hardly able to sit on the stool he said, “Bring me one bottle of Walker Red Johnny.” He sat on the stool a long time and stared at the bottle. Then he told the bartender “I made up in my mind to drink less so I could stay sober longer, but something ain’t working. I ordered four bottles, then three, then two, now one. Something ain’t working because it seems likes the less wine I order, the drunker I get!” Some people don’t know when enough is enough!

The alcohol industry makes it hard for many to say, “This is my last little nip!” Black young adults are special targets of the alcohol industry. They make it hard to resist a little nip because the industry spends millions each year to get inside the heads of young people. Studies show black youth listen to an average of 17 hours of radio each week, so liquor companies target them with commercials, inserted in the lyrics of songs glamorizing drinking. In the six major markets of New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Houston, Detroit, and Dallas black youth were exposed to more alcohol based advertising than other races combined.

Radio has been used to hit from one side, but Cable TV has been used to hit from the other. The shows blacks watch get the most alcohol advertising, especially shows watched by the young: CSI, Without A Trace, Girl Friends, and others rank high as targets for African American youth.

If that doesn’t do it, then the industry pays millions each year for stars to appear in movies drinking 40 ounce bottles of malt liquor or gin and juice.

If that doesn’t do it, black oriented magazines such as VIBE and others feature more advertising in the print media and hundreds of billboards in black neighborhoods about alcohol.

The end result is that it gets real hard for us to say, “This is my last little nip!”

Spiritual Emphasis

This text focuses on the spiritual importance of the Passover meal.

A part of the meal was wine. Each Passover participant was served four cups of red wine. If a person was poor and could not afford the wine the person was expected to sell his clothing, or pledge himself as a laborer to acquire his four cups of wine. If unable to work, then the wine was to be provided from the public treasury. In addition to the wine, the meal consisted of bitter herbs, unleavened cakes of bread, and the Passover lamb.

Participants at the Passover followed a specific order or ritual. Exodus 6:6-7 formed the basis of the use of the four cups.

I WILL BRING YOU OUT: As the ceremony opened the first line was recited or chanted "I am the Lord, and I will bring you out from under the yoke of the Egyptians." It was a reminder of God's promise to Israel that he would free them from their 400 years of bondage. After the opening chant everyone drank the first cup of wine.

I WILL FREE YOU: After the second cup was poured, the son of the house or someone who represented him would ask "Father, what does this mean?" Then the father would explain the story of Jewish slavery and how God lifted them from slavery and allowed them to leave Egypt and come to the Promised Land, crossing the Red Sea on dry land and surviving desert journeys. After the story is told, then the second line of Exodus 6:6-7 would be recited "I will free you from being slaves to them." Then the family would drink from the second cup of wine.

I WILL REDEEM YOU: The meal was eaten at this time. After the meal an,after meal grace, was given and the third cup was filled. The third cup was preceded by reciting the third line from the Exodus text: "I will redeem you with an outstretched arm and with mighty acts of judgment."

I WILL BE YOUR GOD: Then a fourth and final cup was poured, with the 4th line of the text, "I will take you as my people, and I will be your God." When they drank the last cup they sang Psalm 115 to Psalm 118, which closed the observance.

Just a little nip

In the New Testament Jesus met with his disciples in the Upper Room he met to observe the traditional Passover. The bitter herbs, unleavened bread, wine and Passover lamb were all present, but they were to take on a new meaning from that time forth. There would only be bread and wine. No bitter herbs. No lamb. Jesus himself would be the lamb. The bread would represent his body and the wine would represent his blood shed for the redemption of sin.

There was a time when people observed the Lord's Supper (1 Corinthians 11:20-34) with big parties. There was plenty of food and lots of wine. People actually became drunk at the Lord's Supper. He told them that the purpose of the wine at the Lord's Supper is not for people to get drunk! The purpose of the bread is not for participants to get full! It was just a little niplet!

Paul encouraged them to eat and drink at home, but not at the Lord's Supper. The purpose of the Lord's Supper is to help believers remember not to get full or to get drunk.

Four Cups in One

This marked the day that the Passover became the "Lord's Supper" in the Christian community.

He gave us a four in one cup that compresses the original four cups into one cup. However, this four-in-one cup was still to serve as a reminder to believers about the God we serve. It should remind us that:

God will bring you out! It does not matter what part of Egypt has kept us enslaved, this cup should remind every child of God that God can and will bring you out! The Three Hebrew Boys were asked as they were about to be thrown into the fiery furnace, "Is your God able to deliver you?" Their answer is our answer today. Our God is able!

This cup is just a little nip but:

Let this cup remind you that our God is able, to open up a way out of no way!

Let this cup remind you that our God is able, to be a shelter in a time of storm!

Let this cup remind you that no matter what you may have gotten yourself into, God can bring you out!

God will set you free! It doesn't matter what type of chains hold you in bondage God is able to set you free! Jesus met a lame man who had been struggling under a crippling bondage. He told the man, "thy sins are forgiven..rise up take thy bed and walk!"

Let this cup remind you, that you don't have to suffer under bondage for something you did a long time ago! God will set you free!

Let this cup remind you, that whatever guilt that you are suffering based on something that you have done wrong, God is able to set you free!

I heard Jesus say, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free!"

God will redeem you! No one should ever forget that our God is the God of the second chance. He will redeem us from our sins. Jesus told the parable of a man who came upon a fig tree that was not bringing forth figs and the owner gave word to have it cut down. But the garden worker asked for permission to fertilize and work with the tree and it was spared destruction. In the same way Jesus gave me and you a second chance!

Let this cup remind you that God is still giving second chances to those who have walked in the wrong direction!

Let this cup remind you that God is still offering a second chance to those who have fallen and can't seem to get up!

I'm glad that God gave me a second chance!

Finally this cup should remind us that God is still God!

Despite the trials and tribulations that may suggest otherwise, God is still God!

He still sits high and looks low! He wants to be our God, and he's only a prayer a way!

Let this cup remind you that whatever comes your way that "God is still on the throne!"

Let this cup remind you that Jesus died on an old rugged cross!
Let it remind you that he was buried in a borrowed tomb!

Let this cup remind that after three days and nights that he arose from the grave!

God is able !

God is able!

Three Trips Home

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE:"Who is there among you of all his people? His God be with him, and let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judah, and build the house of the Lord God of Israel, (he is the God,) which is in Jerusalem." Ezra 1:3; "And I John saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God." Revelation 21:2-3

Introduction

Have you ever attended a reunion? It's a time when everyone who has a common bond returns to celebrate life and to compare the old with the new. Generally, it is a time to remember. The year 2008 is the reunion year of the eights: 1998, 1988, 1978, 1968, 1958, 1948, or 1938. Next year will be the year of the nines. Reunions and celebrations are generally joyous and sometimes heart breaking as tributes are paid to classmates lost along the way. They are celebrations when they salute each other's achievements, praise dedicated teachers and reflect on old times.

Family reunions, unlike, class reunions don't have specific years. They are held whenever they can get everybody together. There are some that are annual events, others are Pentennials. Still others are held whenever someone in the family assumes the headache of assembling the family Klan together.

In the church world, reunions are called homecomings. Theoretically, it's a time when those who are away find an excuse to come home and share a moment of celebration in the place where their faith began.

In many respects, churches are like incubators, giving spiritual birth to great souls who will one day be able to live outside of the protected, incubated environment of home and breathe on their own. However, no matter how far we go in life, we never forget our first love or our first church experience.

The place where we learned about the Lord is always called home even though we may be miles away from our original locale; the little church where we began is always thought of as "home." Often, when we leave this earth, our hearts desire is to be brought back home.

Believers are on a spiritual journey. This world is not our home. Like Abraham, we are pilgrims, looking for a city not made by hands. We will make three stops along the way, all of which are moments of great celebration.

As Christians, we celebrate because when we finally get home, it will be a day of rejoicing. When we all see Jesus we'll sing and shout the victory.

Exposition

This text focuses on three homecomings of Israel detailed in the Old Testament records. It also points to a fourth homecoming that will not be limited to the Old Testament event and personalities but will be the homecoming of the Saint's as detailed in the New Testament record.

In these trips home detail the journey of Israel, and the journey of the saints as we all make a pilgrimage to a final place we will call home.

The text details the Old Testament journey of Israel from exile back to Jerusalem. The people had been away from Jerusalem for many years. They yearned to go home. They wanted to relive the days of their youth, the grandeur they knew under Solomon and enjoy the national prominence they shared as a powerful force in the community of nations.

Cyrus, as King of Persia, issued a decree that allowed them to return home. Everyone did not want to return, but in the first trip home there were: 42,360 Jews, 7,337 servants, 200 singers, 736 horses, 245 mules, 435 camels, 6720 asses and 5,400 gold and silver vessels. When they returned home the built an altar to worship God and laid the foundation for the temple.

They were sidetracked and all work on the temple stopped.

It took about 20 years to complete the rebuilding of the temple, but it was not as great as the temple that Solomon built. It did not have the splendor and lavish display of wealth and finery of the first temple. They had a building, but there was no worship. The people were too busy building lives for themselves to pay attention the details of worship.

That prompted the 2nd homecoming, in which Ezra returned with another 1,754 men, more gold and silver and a divine charge to restore the spiritual life of the people. Ezra impressed upon the people the importance of placing the Torah or the scriptures at the center of community life. He succeeded in accomplishing this goal, despite the fact that people had almost abandoned their study of the scriptures, worship and preeminence of God in their lives.

But even, as that happened the entirety of Jerusalem was vulnerable to attack by its enemies. They had no walls.

That prompted the 3rd homecoming, in which Nehemiah, not with a large contingency, but to lead a rebuilding effort. He came and led a masterful effort to rebuild the massive walls around in the incredible short period of only 52 days.

Yet, the decree which Cyrus read was part of a greater prophetic picture. Initially, it pointed to the Jews returning to Jerusalem, but it also began the countdown to the time when there would be one final homecoming; not in Jerusalem but to the New Jerusalem.

The prophets, using Cyrus' decree as a starting date, prophesied the coming of Christ, the time and place of his birth, the date of his crucifixion and even projected the period of the revelation when all of God's children, will get together for a great homecoming.

That's the scene in Revelation 21:2-3. It is a scene of all believers on their way home from the Old Testament, the church, and those who came out of the tribulation and those who died for cause of Christ. All of these believers, trillions of them are called the "Bride of Christ." This number will consider of a vast number that cannot be counted of all races and nationalities: blacks and whites, Jews, Arabs, Pakistanis, Hispanic, Greeks, Germans, Polish, Irish, Italian, Native Americans, Russians, Slovaks; you name the race, they will all be there!

All believers are looking for the great homecoming that is on its way. What a day of rejoicing that we will.

Three Homecomings for Believers

RETURNING BACK HOME: The first homecoming occurred when we who strayed away from God came home; that is, we returned to the spiritual path we began. Many of us grew up in the church. We were taught the difference between right and wrong, but at some point, most of stray a little too much one way or the other. Like the Prodigal Son, we had to adventure into the world and give it try only to be confronted with the realities of life: the whole world loves you when it thinks you are somebody, or when you have something to offer. What we ran to differs from person to person, but at some point, most believing adults came to a cross roads where we had to decide for ourselves, what would be our final destiny. Would we live for God or die vainly trying to be happy. For the prodigal the moment of decision came when he was penniless and hungry, he said "I will arise." That personal decision changed his life. For all of us, the first homecoming in our experience is when we reach a decision to return to God or stay the course and never lead. We made our decision, we found our Lord willing to accept us with arms wide open.

HOME GOING: The second stage in our journey will be our home going. Hebrews 9:27 says, "And as it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment." The great re-assurance that every believer has is that after this life ends that there is a home-going. We rejoice in the fact that this home going is instant. 2 Corinthians 5:8 reminds us that when we are absent here, we are present with the Lord. Home goings are celebrations of lives lived and journeys almost complete. When we leave this place we will not be completely finished. We cannot receive our rewards or complete the celebration until two things happen: Christ must himself be crowned King of Kings and Lord of Lords, then he will bring us all into his kingdom.

Until that happens all of the saints from Old Testament and even to the present are waiting patiently. In Revelation 6:10-11 the tribulation saints are pictured as waiting impatiently. They ask "How long?" and are told, in 6:" And white robes were given unto every one of them; and it was said unto them, that they should rest yet for a little season, until their fellow servants also and their brethren, that should be killed as they were, should be fulfilled." The second stage of the journey is our home going. It will be quick, painless and a joyous reunion, but even is not the best. The best is yet to come.

THE GREAT HOMECOMING: The great homecoming of Revelation is the third and final part of our great homecoming celebration. It is foretold by John when he saw the New Jerusalem coming down out of heaven like a bride adorned for her husband. It will be a great of the saints of all ages. It will come at a time when there will be a new heaven and a new heart.

The New Jerusalem, will be a square shaped golden city, approximately 1500 miles square. It will sit on 12 foundations and have twelve gates. Its streets will be made of gold and there will be dwelling places for millions of people. The occupants of that city will be the righteous of all ages. Believers past and present will make up that moment.

What will make it such a great celebration is because all of those that we loved who knew the Lord will be there. Parents, grandparents, spouses, brothers and sisters, best friends…all will be there. Who won't be there? Regardless to what television says, everybody won't be there. Only those who knew Christ in the pardoning of their sins will be there. Outside of the New Jerusalem, says Revelation 22:15 will be the wicked, described as dogs, sorcerers, whoremongers, murderers, cheats, liars and other unrepentant sinners. It will be a great celebration because it will be a family affair.

The Last Homecoming

Finally brothers and sisters, believers should be happy because the third homecoming of our experience will be our last homecoming.

In Revelation, John painted a picture of the Last Homecoming. He saw a picture the Old Testament believers and departed Saints had been resurrected from the dead and living Saints had been raptured in the air! He saw a picture of the Tribulation converts receiving the mark of lamb in their foreheads and 144,000 Jews marching toward the throne.

Then John said he saw another number that no man could count, on their way to the last homecoming, marching out of the great tribulation. What are these? These are they who have washed their robes in the blood of the lamb!

I don't know about but I think that's going to be a wonderful day when we celebrate our last trip home.

That will be the day when all of our:

-Doubts will be dissolved
-Longings will be satisfied|
-Tears will be dried
-Hearse wheels won't roll
-Problems will be solved
-Thirsts will be quenched
-Burdens will be lifted
-Debts will be canceled
-Mountains will be made low

-Valleys shall be exalted

Maybe that's what the song writer had in mind when he said, "When all God's children get together, what a time, what a time, what a time. We gonna sit down by the backs of the river, what a time!

When we all get to heaven..

-There will be no more crying

-There will be no more tears in the midnight hour

-There will be no sickness and pain!

I don't know about you but I don't want to miss homecoming day, when we all get to heaven. What a day of rejoicing it will be. When we all see Jesus we'll sing and shout the victory!

It's a victory paid for by Christ himself!

It's a victory that shouts hallelujah for sins forgiven and mistakes forgotten!

It's a victory that proclaims "I've been washed in the blood of the crucified lamb and I'm on my way!

It's a victory that paid for on Calvary!

It's a victory that confirmed by three days in a borrowed tomb!

It's a victory that was ratified Early Sunday morning, when Christ rose from the dead, with all power in his hands!

"Come and go with me, to my father's house there is Joy! Joy! Joy!

Good Fortune in My Misfortune

SCRIPTURE: It is good for me that I have been afflicted; that I might learn thy statutes." Psalm 119:71

Introduction

Has life ever given you a wake up call? Those who have traveled are familiar with a service of hotels to offer a wakeup call to their guests. At a certain hour, we are disturbed from our sleep and awakened. It's usually a constant ring of the telephone until we awake. There is never anyone on the other end of the phone; the call itself was sufficient. Life has a way of giving us a wakeup call, bringing us into maturity and helping us to see the world through different eyes. Until that happens we sleep through our nights and most of our days, unaware of the passing of time or the urgency of the moment. For most of us, our wakeup call comes as the result of a trial, test and challenge that forces us to see life from a different perspective.

Often our wakeup calls come in a "Moment of truth" experience. In that moment, we realize great truths about ourselves and life in general. It's in a moment of truth that we see just how fragile the gift of life is and how little control we have over life itself.

It's in a moment of truth that we realize the importance of the little things and the insignificance of fame, popularity and wealth.

Usually, moments of truth come as the result of crises; when our peaceful slumber receives its wake up call. Then our slumber is disturbed by stark realities and we awaken to new truths. Nothing highlights this moment of truth better for us than affliction, adversity, extreme difficulty, life threatening situations, prospect of death, failure or destruction. In the face of crises, we reach a moment of truth, when we discover that which has been hidden for many years.

Many have found God in their moment of truth; in the midst of their affliction. In those moments the suddenly realized that despite all of their education, contacts, friends, social status, resources and connections, what they really needed was to be in the presence of God. That's when they decided they needed his grace, forgiveness, love and mercy.

These moments vary. For some it came as they faced a health crises. For others, it came as result of a marital problem. Others reached their moment of truth while dealing with issues related to their children. Still others faced their life crises when they experienced the death of someone they depended upon for guidance in life.

These moments of crises and what the word calls misfortune. Yet, the word of God reminds us that there is good fortune in every misfortune; especially when we are prompted to change our direction for the good because of our misfortune.

As Christians, we do not relish afflictions and difficulties. However, we know that every situation, even an unfortunate one offers a nugget of good fortune. God has promised that all things, including misfortune, will work to the good of those who called according to his purpose. That's the good news: There is good fortune in every misfortune.

Exposition

This text focuses on David explaining that his troubles and misfortunes turned out for the best because the refocused his attention to God.

Psalm 119:56-72 is a passage in which David explains his discovery that God deals with him according to His word. He asks for instruction to prevent himself from straying. In Psalm 119:69-70, he declares that his trust in God even though has been slandered. In Psalm 119:71 he admits that through his affliction he realize more great truths about God, which really worked to his advantage.

David used the word affliction in verse 71. Affliction does not always mean a physical sickness or disease. Affliction is a term used to describe a variety of misfortunes that include physical attacks, loss of fortune, misunderstandings, family disputes, and trouble in general.

David was a good man, who occasionally strayed. In misfortune, he found good fortune when he returned to God. That's when he was able to see clearly that even his difficulties had a divine purpose that would work to His good.

The New Testament records the same truth: Romans 8:28 says, " And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose."

That means that there is good fortune, even in our misfortunes.

The value of our misfortunes

Misfortunes prompt us to think seriously. It is easy to take life lightly. When life is one big party filled with drinking, food and sex, who has time for serious thinking. We don't worry about education, futures, family or our spirituality. It is only when we are deprived of the means to achieve our leisurely pursuits by a misfortune that we take time to think. When lose our money or our health then the spell of our life in the fast lane is broken; then we start to think seriously. When did the prodigal son start to think seriously about the depth to which he had fallen? When he had wasted his substance! When did Elijah move from beside the brook and start to move as God commanded? When the brook dried up! When did Jonah decide to go to Ninevah and preach as God commanded? After he was swallowed up? Sometimes misfortunes swallow us up. We are swallowed up by drugs, criminal activity, laziness, and a general sense of apathy. Sometimes it's only when the brook dries up that we start to think seriously about our situation. Often we don't attempt think seriously about our preparing for a career change until we hear news that the company that employs us is about to shut down. We think seriously about our finances, when the money runs short. We start to watch our gas consumption when the price of gas begins to escalate. We didn't worry about it much before, but our misfortunate situation often makes us become experts. On the Damascus Road, Saul was stricken with blindness for three days. In that time he gave serious thought about his direction and in life and arose from that dilemma as one of the greatest ambassadors for Christ. The misfortune of his blindness turned out to be his good fortune, according to the will of God.

Misfortune awakens our faith. Often we are prompted to renew our faith in times of misfortune. David was completely absorbed in his personal concerns and follies. When he was a youth, he prayed regularly and possessed faith so strong that he even challenged Goliath the giant. As king, however, he became absorbed in the quest for power and lust. His faith weakened, his prayer life almost vanished. While he was riding high David did not write many psalms. However, in the middle of his trouble when his kingdom suffered and he personally developed a disease, he found his way back to God. Psalm 51:10 records his personal plea for restoration, " Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me."

In Psalm 121:1 he then wrote, "1 I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help." It is strange how we sometimes take the Lord for granted until misfortune come. While we are doing well, we can't find the time or interest to pray, attend bible study, or worship. The bible in our home is often unread. But when plagued with misfortune we open the bible searching for consolation, and brush off the cobwebs from our prayer skills. The prophet Daniel developed a prayer life that was unique in times of good fortune and misfortune. During periods of good fortune he prayed three times a day. When he was elevated to a high position in the kingdom, he prayed three times a day. When misfortune came and he faced the prospect of death; he prayed three times a day. He did not start praying three times a day and stop when his misfortune passed. If there is a nugget of good fortune in our misfortune it might be that it awakened in us a renewed quest to be in the presence of God and to communicate with Him on a regular basis.

We empty ourselves in our misfortunes. In our moment of misfortune we suddenly realize the need to empty ourselves and start again. The story is told of the man who kept a jar of rocks on his desk. When asked why he kept a bottle of rocks on his desk he answered that the jar represents his life in Christ? Answering questions ,he said, once he filled his life with things he thought brought happiness: cars, money, status, and social status. He said his jar was filled with sand and small pebbles. Although he knew he needed God, prayer, worship and bible study in life, which were like large stones, he had no room for them because the sand and pebbles took up all of the space. One day he faced a crises in his life, that no money, friends or connections could help. He needed God but then realized that his life was so full of unimportant things that he had no room for Godly things. At that moment he dumped out the sand small pebbles and put the rocks in first. He was amazed to learn that even though there were large godly rocks in the bottle that when he poured in small pebbles and shook them up there was room for more. He added sand of wealth, career, and shook it up and found there was still room for more. He added the water of joy and happiness and found that he could have a full happy life; if he put the things of God first. But it was in his moment of misfortune that he finally understood Matthew 6:33 "See ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness and all of these things shall be added unto you.

There are many who emptied themselves and started over when they reached a moment of truth that was prompted by an unfortunate situation. When they found God they found good fortune in their misfortune.

The value of Misfortunes

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that we learn to trust God more in our misfortunes and usually arise stronger.

Our afflictions, in a sense our proving ground in which our faith is tested.

A new automobile is tested in situations that it will likely to experience before it is placed on the market. The test reveals what needs to be done to improve it efficiency, safety and performance.

The Christian life is tested as well; our proving ground, however is in the middle of our affliction.

We never know how strong we are until we are tested.

We never know how strong our family bond is until it is tested.

We never know how strong our relationship is until it has been tested to the limit.

We never know the strength of our loyalty until we get an invitation to betrayal.

We never know what we will do when the chips are down, until the chips actually run out.

What we learn in our misfortune is that regardless of the situation, God is still good.

I don't know about you but I've found that God is good all the time!

In the midst of the misfortune of sorrow, God is good, because he brings us joy!

In the midst of the misfortune of conflicts, God is good, because he brings us courage!

In the midst of the misfortune of danger, God is good, because he brings us safety!

In the midst of the misfortune of weakness, God is good, because he bring us strength!

In the midst of defeat the misfortune of, God is good, because he brings us the victory!

In the midst of our darkest hour, he will show us the way!

That's when we realize that God will flip our misfortune and work it to our advantage, according to his will.

I don't know about you, but I am convinced that no matter what the misfortune, God can turn it into good fortune!

No matter how big the battle, God has a victory!

No matter how wide the chasm, God can help us to cross it!

No matter how big the adversary, God can help us to defeat him!

We serve a God who takes hollows out of valleys and levels mountains!

We serve a savior who walks on water, floats on clouds and sits on the right hand of God.

He's the same savior; he came to this earth

And suffered the misfortune of Calvary!

Endured the misfortune of three days in a borrowed tomb!

But Early Sunday morning, he turned misfortune into good fortune!

He arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

SCRIPTURE: "I will hear what God the LORD will speak: for he will speak peace unto his people, and to his saints: but let them not turn again to folly. Psalm 85:8 "He shall call upon me, and I will answer him: I will be with him in trouble; I will deliver him, and honour him." Psalm 91:15

Introduction

Suppose each time you talked on your phone, several of your neighbors could hear your entire conversation? It would definitely be an inconvenience and an invasion of privacy. Yet, there was a time when all residential telephone service was available only with a "party line."

A party line was a shared telephone line where several residents acquired service through the same local phone loop. If the phone rang in one house it rang in all of them at the same time. Each subscriber knew their calls by knowing their special ring. Phone calls were not private; there were plenty of opportunities for neighbors to listen to conversations and feed community gossip mills.

The time of party lines was very impersonal as well. Phone customers depended on operators to make long distance calls. The operator, sometimes a neighbor or associate, had to be given the name and number of the person you were calling and your billing information. When your call finished, the operator knew who you called, when you called and how long you talked. The operator could also listen in on our phone call.

As technology improved party lines, and two party lines, decreased. There are still a few places in the country that still have party lines such as Santa Anna Canyon, CA that has 81 phone customers hooked up on a party line.

As the party lines decreased, they gave way to the mainlines or direct calling. With mainlines, the callers placed their own calls directly, could talk in private and did not have to worry about unauthorized eavesdroppers.

It's good that heaven doesn't have a party line; if it did the devil might listen in when we call to pour our hearts to the Lord. When we need to talk to God there is a mainline; a direct line to the throne of Grace. That mainline is prayer, and through prayer we can speak to God and He speaks to us.

As Christians, we are always happy to know that God is only a prayer away. When we call, He answers, when He speaks we listen.

Exposition

The text focuses on David as he proclaims his decision to wait to hear God when He speaks.

David constantly talked to God. He talked to God in moments of weakness and in strength. He found his conversations with God to be encouraging and rewarding, soothing and healing.

This text finds David saying, "I will hear what God the LORD will speak. When we believe that God hears us, it is but natural that we should be eager to hear him. Only from him can come the words which can speak peace to our troubled spirits; the voices of men are feeble in such a case, but God's voice is power; He speaks and it is done, and hence when we hear him our distress is ended."

When our soul is troubled, God will speak peace.

When our soul is confused, God will speak direction.

When our soul discouraged, God will speak encouragement.

When we are feeling lost, God will speak salvation.

In Psalm 91:15 David records God saying that when a believer calls on Him, that He will answer. He also noted God's promise of deliverance to those who are in trouble. He will respond to every believer by being accessible to him.

Thus, we are free to talk to God at anytime. When he speaks however, we should be ready to listen.

Calling on God

Whenever a believer puts in a call to heaven, he can expect a response. Since that is the case, believers must be aware of three truths:

WE MUST RECOGNIZE WHEN GOD SPEAKS: Believers must be able to distinguish the voice of God from the plethora of other voices that they hear around them daily. Often, when we call friends, someone may answer that sounds similar to the recipient, but those who know the voice of the recipient may hold their message until the right voice is on the line. Sometimes it's hard to distinguish God's voice. Samuel was a young boy, sleeping in the temple, when he first heard the voice of God calling upon him in the night, but he did not know that it was God. He sought the help of the priest who told him what to do. God spoke to Moses from a burning bush and told him to lead Israel to freedom. God spoke to Elijah while hiding in a cave. Elijah had many experiences that could have been interpreted as the voice of God: A strong wind, and an earthquake. He finally found God in a still soft voice. When Jesus was baptized all of those standing by the bank heard the voice of God as He spoke in the form of a dove saying, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." Jesus said in John 10:27, " My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me."

WHEN WE CALL ON GOD, HE WILL ANSWER: David notes in Psalm 91:15 that when a believer puts in a call to heaven, there will be no answering service on the other end. God will answer directly. Look what he says again in Psalm 91:15, "He shall call upon me, and I will answer him." It is often irritating to call someone and receive their answering service or answering machine. Often the recipient is standing beside the machine listening, deciding whether to pick up. When we call, God won't tell us to leave a message after the beep and He'll get back with us later. He says, "He shall call upon me and I will answer." That's important for every believer to know, that we have access to heaven in time of trouble. We have a direct line in heaven. In the White House the President has several telephones; one of them is a red phone that is tied directly to top Pentagon officials in case of military urgency. There are no receptionists or recordings, when it rings; it gets through to the president. Since God is omnipresent, He is able to respond to all of us at the same time. That means we all have a main line, a red phone, that we know he will answer in our time of need.

WHEN GOD SPEAKS, WE SHOULD DO WHAT HE SAYS: Many people have a list of emergency numbers that they call in time of trouble. If we get the person we need on line, what good does it do us if they tell us what to do and we refuse to do it? If we get a lawyer, doctor, or Emergency Medical Specialist on the line and they give us instructions but we refuse to carry them out, we wasted their time. The same should be true when God speaks to us. When God gives us our direction, we should do what He says. To fail to do what he says amounts to wasting His time. Sometimes the instruction is awkward and embarrassing. That's what Naaman found out when he was told to publicly bathe seven times in muddy water. Sometimes he tells us to do what we don't want to do. That's what Jonah found out when he was told to preach to the people of Nineveh and ended up in the belly of a whale. Sometimes we want a quick answer right now, and he says wait. Isaiah had to remind Israel that "They that wait on the Lord shall renew their strength." As believers, we must be prepared to not only to call on the Lord, but to listen when the Lord calls on us and to be ready to call on Him.

When you call on God, expect action

Finally, brothers and sisters, when we call on the Lord, we should expect action.

God is a God of action, when we call on him we should be prepared to move at His command, recognizing that He has the authority to be our problem solver.

Often when we call agencies in our city or state they will listen to our problem, then tell you that they can't help you because your problem is not in their department.

The good thing about calling on the Lord, is that all problems in his problem.

A blind man found new sight in the Optometry department.

A lame man found new legs in the rehabilitation department.

A wild man that had been running through the graveyards found new sanity, in the psychiatric department.

Lazarus found new life in the new life division.

Five thousand people found food to eat in the food service department.

A wretched man found himself in the Lost and Found department; he came out saying "Amazing Grace how sweet the sound that saved a wretch likes me. I once was lost but now I'm found, blind but now I see."

It's good to call on the Lord because he's able to deal with our issues. A woman came to Him, with an issue of blood. She'd been dealing with the issue for 12 years, he dealt with her issue with one touch dialing, she just touched the hem of his garment and was made whole.

It makes no difference when you call on the Lord, Jesus is always by the phone.

One song writer said, "I come to the garden alone, while the dew is still on the roses. And the voice I hear, falling on my ear, the Son of God discloses. And he walks with me and he talks with me and he tells me I am his own. And the joy we share as we tarry there, none other has ever known."

Jesus is on the mainline, tell him what you want. He can take:

—THE UGLINESS of this world and make it beautiful, tell him what you want!

—SADNESS and turn it into gladness, tell him what you want!

—DIFFICULTIES and make them easy, tell him what you want!

—BURDENS and make them light, tell him what you want!

—DULL THINGS and make them interesting, tell him what you want!

—BAD THINGS and make them good, tell him what you want!

—FALLEN THINGS and lift them up again, tell him what you want!

—BROKEN THINGS and put them back together again! , tell him what you want!

Call on the Lord, and He will answer!

His name is Jesus, the Lily of the Valley!

His name is Jesus, the answer to all questions!

His name is Jesus, the solution to all problems!

His name is Jesus, the bright and morning star!

He died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning….

Strength for the Victory

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me. Philippians 4:13

Introduction

Have you ever began a task only to learn that it was more formidable a task than you thought? Many of us have had that experience. Whether it was the household handy man who decided to add a room to his house only to learn that he has termites, or the shade tree auto mechanic who started out to change spark plugs but discovered that there is a major engine problem; often tasks that, at first appear simple turn out to be major challenges. Yet, while they may require more attention than we had planned the room can be added and the car engine can be repaired. That's one of the great discoveries that we have made in life, that no matter how big the mountain, God has the power to move it or help us to scale it. For every mountain God has an army of believers ready to climb to its summit and claim the victory.

Unlike the world which faints at the prospect of a frustrating mountain in a path, believers in Christ are never intimidated. We have learned from our Bible history that whenever there is a mountain God has mountain men and mountain women who are ready and willing to scale it, move it or drill a hole right through it.

In fact, in biblical times the presence of courageous believers, intent on achieving victory, despite mountains of difficulty was common. It was not unusual for men to leave their homes for days as they climbed mountains to herd sheep, pitch their tents, pray or fight their enemies.

Today, God still has a generation of warriors who believe that when they commit themselves to working to accomplish his will, that they can do anything; even move mountains.

For every mountain God has always had a set of mountain people. For every problem he has always had a solution. For every question God has always had an answer.

As Christians, we are not intimidated by the challenges that each new day presents to us.

The tasks that face us may be more than we expected, but the God we serve is more than we can imagine.

The mountain before us may be bigger than we are, but serve a God who is bigger than the mountain.

He is able to lead us, inspire and direct us. If we follow Him he will lead us to a great victory in his name.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he shared his belief that people committed to do God's will can accomplish God's purposes through Christ.

In its historical context, the passage finds Paul responding to the generosity of the Philippian believers after he had placed the need he had for the church before them. He was trying to carry out the will of God in establishing church ministries in many places. That required a united effort, a committed people and resources. It was a huge mountain in his path.

Yet, despite the enormity of the problem, Paul placed the challenge before the people and trusted God for its fulfillment.

Faced with such an enormous challenge, Paul remained amazingly content and unintimidated by the size of the task before him. He had learned the lesson of contentment. Changing circumstances did not affect the inner contentment he enjoyed. His contentment was rooted in a divinely bestowed feeling of sufficiency despite the circumstances.

Since he had learned to live in abundance and with meager means he had learned that in every circumstance God gave him the strength to accomplish God's purposes. He soon learned that if God wants it done, no matter how high the mountain, he would be able to scale its peaks. No matter how wide the sea, he would be able to cross safely to the other side.

Those committed to doing God's will, will be able to do any and everything, even the impossible, through the Power of God and his continual strength.

Thus, this mountain we face together, can be scaled or removed, with God's help and victory will be our result.

God had people for every mountain

Often believers consider the challenges we face in modern times and believe that they are insurmountable. Whether it's individuals struggling to save their homes from foreclosure or poor families trying to pay rapidly increasing fuel costs; it seems that the mountains get higher. Even churches, normally bastions of faith and strength, sometimes shudder at the sheer size of the tasks they face.

Yet, the biblical record serves to remind us that God has always had dedicated men and women in every generation who could tackle the mountains placed before them and accomplish his will.

Esther was a mountain woman. While she did not scale a physical mountain like many of the men of the bible, she never-the-less scaled the mountain of opposition, bigotry and sexism to save God's people from destruction. It was a formidable task to take a lowly girl of no imperial status and raise her up to be the Queen of Persia, but God proved through her that those who trust in the Lord can do all things.

Moses was a clear example of faith in the face of frustrating mountains. On Mount Sinai he talked to God and received instructions about challenging the physical and institutional slavery of the Jewish people. It was a challenge because Egypt was a great power of the world. Its military arsenals were packed and its mighty chariots, 600 in number, were used to destroy many armies. Moses went to free them from slavery and bring them to the Promised Land. That was a tall order for one stuttering man and his brother to accomplish. But despite the difficulty of this problem, God proved that those who trust in the Lord can do all things.

Noah faced a mountain of problems, too. After the flood Noah found that the ark he rode for almost a year had settled on Mount Ararat. With the flood waters gone along with the population of the earth, Noah found himself facing the task of reestablish order in the world and kept his family focused on God. He successfully acted on God's word, trusted in his promise and received God's security. It was a mountain of a task for a man to spend 100 years building an ark on dry land, but Noah's faith proved that those who trust in the Lord can do all things necessary to accomplish his will.

Elijah faced the mountains before him with great courage and strength. He was a tower of strength as he challenged the prophets of Baal on Mt. Carmel. His victory there was unquestioned and his influence was broad. Our challenge is to face the prophets of doom of this generation, who tell us that what God wants cannot be done with the same courage of Elijah. We are challenged to stand boldly, act courageously, and wait for God to rain down his blessings upon our efforts. By continuing in faith, we say to the world that those who trust in the Lord can do all things necessary to accomplish his will.

Strength for Calvary

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should note that Jesus was the ultimate example of how to tackle a mountain of frustration and obstacles and come out victorious.

When Jesus began his ministry he went in the wilderness for 40 days and nights and Satan carried him to the top of a high mountain.

That mountain posed a great temptation for him because it presented him with an opportunity to stray away from his mission.

On that wilderness mountain, Jesus was presented with Satan's plan of failure and God's plan of salvation for the lost.

On that wilderness mountain Jesus demonstrated what we should do when we are faced with the temptation to quit or be discouraged and he showed the world, his response, "Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God…get thee behind me Satan! "

As we march forward we should remember that when:

—The storms of opposition rise, we can do all things!

—The winds of frustration blow, we can do all things!

—The thunder of troubling times rolls, we can do all things!

If we fall upon misfortune God's promise remains true, "I will never leave thee!"

If we fall upon temporary disgrace or public scorn, his words still resonate, "I will never leave thee alone."

If there are mountains that stand in our way we should never forget that, "we can do all things."

That means the:

—IMPOSSIBLE can become possible; the IMPROBABLE can become probable!

—Mountains can be reduced to molehills!

—Rough places can be made plain, crooked places can be made straight!

One evening over 2,000 years ago Jesus tackled a mountain called Calvary!

He carried the sins of the world on his shoulder!

He died that evening. They buried him in a borrowed tomb..

But…early Sunday morning he arose from the grave, with the victory, all Power, and

All things in his hand!

The Gold is the Goal

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 2008

SCRIPTURE: But he knoweth the way that I take: when he hath tried me, I shall come forth as gold. Job 23:10

Introduction

Every four years all eyes around the world are focused on the Olympic Games. At the Olympics, athletes from around the globe come together to compete to win a gold medal. But did you know that the gold medal they win is not really gold? It's actually a silver medal plated with five percent goal!

Very few medals that honor achievement in the world are pure gold. Most are gold plated or gold colored but not pure gold. Even though the highest medal in Olympics is the gold medal, it's not what the winners receive. Olympic medals all carry a similar design and size, but are never pure gold. Only two medals received by recipients are pure gold: The Congressional Gold Medal and the Nobel Prize winner's medal. All others have what looks like gold but it's not really gold.

The goal of every believer is, after being tried in the fire, to come through this life's experience as pure gold.

That's the goal of every pastor as well; to promote the kingdom of God in such a grand way that when the Lord comes to evaluate our stewardship he will find that we have achieved the ultimate goal, which is to achieve the gold!

The gold that God has for the effective and faithful pastor won't be gold plated like the medals of the Olympians, but it will be a crown of righteousness made of pure gold, tried in the fire of sacrifice, suffering and pain.

As Christians, we are proud to know that God has a reward in store for every believer that is pure and true. It is a crown of life. Achieving our crown of gold is every pastor's goal.

Exposition

This text focuses on Job as he looks forward to the outcome of his labor of faith, service and sacrifice.

Job had a very peculiar witness. He was selected to witness to the strength of all believers in impossible situations. The devil was given the privilege of trying to detour Job from his faith by any means short of stealing Job's soul. After losing his wealth, health and children, Job still maintained a positive witness and ministry of faith for God.

In the text he continues a statement of faith he began with Eliphaz in chapter 22. He maintains that God knew of his works, faith and commitment. He resolved to serve faithfully with the full knowledge that when his testing ended he would come through as pure gold.

The difficulties that Job encountered in his ministry of faith were not designed for his hurt but it is for his honor. God allowed Job to be tested for the very purpose of honoring him with victory because he was confident he would evolve the victor. He was experiencing a trial of his faith.

Such trials, once ended, have two results the person being tried realizes the purity of their spirit and faith. Moreover, the person who is tried becomes precious in the eyes of the refiner. They emerge both approved and improved.

Thus, those who are plunged into a ministry of service for the Lord may find themselves tested by the difficulties and challenges of the service, but when they emerge they will fine their own motivations pure, strong and unadulterated. They will be viewed by God himself as precious in his sight.

Winning the Goal

The pastor's goal is to win the goal. Not the approval of cheering crowds in an Olympic stadium but the approval of a loving God. To come forth as pure gold the successful pastor must:

FIGHT A GOOD FIGHT: Today, more than ever, the people of God need pastors who are willing to fight what the Apostle Paul calls a "good fight." It is a fight against corruption, racism, poverty, homelessness, violence and crime. We need pastors to lead the people of God to speak out against and take action to improve the degenerating social conditions that are corrupting our communities. We need to join the growing crescendo of voices that cry out for pastors who are not afraid to stand for that which is right and fight a good fight. Those pastors who fight a good fight will win the gold, which is their goal.

CARRY OUT THE MISSION: Every pastor that God places in a congregation is given a mission, or a course to run. Some are just relay runners, expected to carry a congregation to a certain point as another receives the baton. Others are marathon pastors, given large assignments, and thus a long and challenging course with little to run with but faith and hope. Pastors must carry out the mission that Christ gave to his disciples in Matthew 28-19-20 when he challenged them to "Go ye therefore" into all the world. We must carry this mission beyond the Islands of the Bahamas and onto the main land. It must go as far as we can reach. Even when we have reached as far as our means will allow we should support the missionaries on foreign shores and reach further. When we have carried out the mission, we will win the goal, which is our goal.

PREACH THE WORD: More than anything else every pastor should preach the word. He must remind the world that Jesus is alive and that God is still on the throne. It is through the preaching of the Gospel that the pastor is able to lift us and inspire Christian living.

There will not be a reward for those pastors who keep the faith, therefore pastors must preach the word until the last:

—Battle has been fought;

—Tear has been shed.

—Enemy has been conquered;

—Fear has been faced

—Hill has been climbed;

… and the last cross has been carried..

Then we can claim the victory. The race is not given to the swift or to the strong but unto those that endure to the end. Those who endure to the end get the gold, which is the goal.

Real Gold

Finally, brothers and sisters, there is a reason why medals are not made of pure gold, that's because even pure gold is not strong enough to stand alone. In a similar sense, in our good intentions and lofty ideals and righteous living, we are still not good enough to claim victory on our own, we must be covered by the blood of Jesus.

The good pastor rises as gold, but he can only stand the test if his ministry is standing on the blood of Jesus.

When gold is mined and refined it is crushed, bathed in cyanide, smelted and fired at temperatures of 1064 degrees Celsius, and then molded. Only the real gold makes it through the process all other materials are left behind. Gold is measured in karats where 24 karats is pure gold. Rings and jewelry that bear the stamp 24k are pure gold. It's that 24k stamp that tells the real story.

The experience of every pastor is similar to the perfecting of Gold. Sometimes we are crushed by circumstances, relationships and events. Sometimes we can feel the cyanide poisons being poured over us. Sometimes the heat of the fire is hot and almost unbearable. Yet these trials of our faith are necessary because they bring out the best in us...pure gold.

The pastor who passes the test of service builds up his faith and comes through as pure gold

The pastor who passes the hard times test and refuses to give up hope even in the midst of trouble, builds up faith!

Such trials of faith produce a faith that "is more precious than gold!"

Although gold is tried in the fire and is a brilliant product, it will perish but faith in God will persevere until the Saint receives praise, honor and glory from God.

Every Saint should make obtaining that 24-karat kind of faith his goal.

In essence, the "gold is the goal."

The 24-Karat golden crown that every Christian will receive in glory will tell the real story!

It will tell the story of how we found:

—Joy in the midst of our sorrows!

—Happiness in the midst of our infirmities!

—Safety in the midst of dangerous situations!

—Comfort in the midst of loneliness!

—Encouragement in the midst of our failures!

—Strength in the midst of our weakness!

—A Song to sing in the midst of the night!

I heard the song writer declare, "I'm going to put on my robe and tell the story, how I made it over..."

When the question is asked, "Have you been tried in the fire?" I want to be able to say "I bore my burdens in the heat of the day but I held on because I knew the Lord would make a way!"

Come what may, I will trust in the Lord!

I will trust in the Lord, who died for me on Calvary!

I will trust in the Lord, who arose Early on Sunday morning!

I will trust in the Lord until I die!

What in hell do you want, when heaven is much better?

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 10, 2008

SCRIPTURE: "And in hell he lifted up his eyes, being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom. And he cried and said, Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue; for I am tormented in this flame." Luke16:23-24.

Introduction

There are three subjects that are very unpopular these days; do you know them? We don't like to talk about them, discuss them or consider them. We definitely don't want to hear sermons about them or attend classes where they are the subject of instruction. What are these subjects? The subjects that trouble us the most and we want to hear about least are: Sin, death, and hell. While we don't like to think on these three, they are extremely important aspects of our faith:

Our faith is based on biblical teachings about two conditions and two places: Heaven and Hell. Heaven as a condition describes a state of paradise where all needs are met and conditions are more than satisfactory. As a place, it describes the homeland of the soul and the place of our eventual end. Hell when viewed as a condition is a state of misery, discontent, trouble and despair. As a place, hell describes a place of torment and destruction populated by the devil and the false prophets.

The Old Testament refers to hell as "Sheol" or the place of the dead. Old Testament scripture teaches us the following about "Sheol"1:) There is no remembrance in Sheol (Psalm 6:5). There is no knowledge, plotting or planning, work or wisdom in "Sheol" (Ecclesiastes 9:10). The New Testament uses the Greek word "Hades" and its meanings are the same as those in the Old Testament.

There is a second word in the New Testament that also refers to hell; that word is Gehenna. It means the place of whining and torment. Hell is described as a lake of fire and brimstone into which the ungodly shall be thrown to receive their eternal judgment. Romans 6:23 says that the "Wages of sin is death but the gift of God is eternal life." Those who follow Satan, and false prophets will be thrown into this lake of fire (Rev 19:20) where they shall receive the punishment promised in Romans 6:23. Satan, and the false prophets will burn and be tortured without even receiving the mercy of death. (Rev. 20:10).

Hell won't be a cool place. The temperature of boiling water is 100 degrees Celsius; molten lava is about 1,160 degrees Celsius. Hell will be hotter that volcanic lava.

That means there will be no ice cream in hell. Neither will there be air conditioning, cool dips in the pool, Icees, frozen margaritas, snow cones, window fans, or ice water.

If there is no cool aide, ice tea, frozen daiquiris, or snow; if there is no cool summer breeze or chilling winter wind; if there is no skiing, snowmen, ice skating or snow boarding; if there are no bully pops, push ups or Eskimo pies…What does hell have to offer that you want?

For believers the answer is simple, there is nothing in hell that we want, especially since heaven is so much better.

Satan offers non-believers a life bathed with Jalapeno peppers and sprinkled with hot sauce. He offers us both men and women that make us "hot." He offers us hot cars, and sells us hot CD's, hot purses, hot clothes and even hot pork chops and steaks. The late Marilyn Monroe guessed it right in her hit movie, "Some like it hot."

However, the word of God reminds us that the day is coming when those who like it hot, will get more than they ask for because hell is waiting for those who like the hot life.

Believers may eat spicy chicken and hot wings, but when it comes to living; we have no attraction to Satan's program. What is it in hell that we want? Nothing!

As Christians, we know about hell, but we focus on heaven. There is nothing in hell that we want, because heaven is so much better!

Exposition

This text focuses on a story Jesus told to illustrate the reward of the righteous and the punishment of the unrighteous.

At the time Jesus walked on earth the Jews believed that, at death, that all persons went "Hades/Sheol" or hell. They believed Hades was divided into two parts: a place of paradise, called Abraham's bosom and a place of torment for those who were evil.

The New Testament teaches that there are no believers, either past or present in the grave. All believers are in the presence of the Lord. 2 Corinthians 5:8 notes that when a believer dies he/she instantly joins all other saints in the presence of the Lord. All others, remain in their graves until judgment. When that judgment comes, many will come to Christ looking for mercy but Matthew 25:41 says Christ will say "Depart from me" and they will be thrown into a literal lake of fire that will burn forever. This is the place that is prepared for the devil and his followers. The followers will go to hell and be eternally separated from God after suffering a miserable torment. Satan, the false prophets will suffer eternally in this lake of fire (Rev. 20:10)

This text, shows Christ using the belief that Jews had at that time to illustrate the reward of the righteous and the punishment of the unrighteous. He gave them another parable or story to illustrate his point.

A certain poor man by the name of Lazarus was treated wrongly by a wealthy man. They both died and went to the place of the dead; because of his evil spirit, the rich man went to the tormenting section and Lazarus went to the bosom of Abraham.

Being tormented in flames the rich man cried out for "Father Abraham" to let Lazarus dip his finger in cool water and cool his tongue. Abraham reminded him of his horrible life and reflected on the good life Lazarus led and the results of each. He noted that even if he wanted to do as he asked, that there is a gulf that separates them.

The rich man begged Father Abraham to send Lazarus back to tell his five brothers to straighten up or they will come to the place of torment, of fire, brimstone and misery. Abraham refused because they had ample opportunity through the teaching of Moses and all the sermons of the prophets, even if someone came from the dead to warn them, they still would not listen.

The parable emphasized one truth: The righteous will be rewarded in paradise. The ungodly will experience hell. No one in the place of the dead can warn those who are living: There is ample opportunity given through the preached and written word of God to know their future, but some will not hear.

The Ungodly want hell

There is no way a message can be sent back to warn those of us who are living about the dangers of hell, but that message is being declared to millions daily. Many hear the sermons and read the scriptures but ignore them because there is something about the hellish lifestyle that attracts them.

In 1971 a Motown group called the "Undisputed Truth" released a song called, "You make your own heaven and hell right here on earth." It didn't make it any further than #72 on the charts but its message is nonetheless true: We determine our own destination right here on this earth.

Living for Hell

In this life hell means: misery, torment, discomfort and trouble; there are many of us today who are living in hell and want what hell has to offer. They know there is a risk but they want what their living hell offers so badly that they are willing to risk death, imprisonment, disease and failure to go to hell.

Lazarus said,"Send word to my five brothers so they can avoid hell." Many don't want to hear. Many hear the warnings, but there is so much in hell that they want.

They want sex even though the threat of the living hell of AIDS, syphilis and gonorrhea is real.

They want drugs even though the living hell of drug addiction and death awaits them.

They want the thug life even though it promises, in most cases, early death and for the most part a living hell in a jail cell.

They want to drink alcohol even though life without working livers and poor health means living in a literal hell.

They want to be pedophiles even though they know they will be hunted down, charted, identified as molesters forever making their lives a literal hell.

They want more than they can afford so they steal, shoplift, rob, and embezzle to get it, even though the prospect of ruined lives and reputations will make their lives hell.

While all of us live in hellish conditions, from one degree to another, the ungodly person is tragic because not only does he live in hell here, but after he dies he goes to hell.

Heaven Offers More

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that there is nothing in hell that a real Christian wants, because heaven is so much better.

There was a time when believers were attracted to the world, but we have found a better way and a better place, that offers so much more.

Many reached what Tyrone Davis called, "A turning point" in our lives. That was the day we decided to make heaven our home.

That was the day we read 1 Corinthians 6:11, "And such were some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God."

From the day we accepted Christ, there is nothing in hell that we want, because heaven is so much better!

In heaven, we will live our lives in the presence of God; that is so much better!

In heaven, we will never thirst or hunger or be in want; that is so much better!

In heaven, we will never grow old, get sick or die, that is so much better!

In heaven, we will never cry, feel pain or hurt; that is so much better!

In heaven, we will never experience the loss of a child, parent or sibling; that is so much better!

In heaven, we will never be poor or experience the lack of anything, that's so much better!

In heaven, we will never be discriminated against, hated on, cheated or robbed; that's so much better!

In heaven, we will never worry, wonder or doubt for all doubts will be settled; that's so much better!

1 Corinthians 2:9 makes it clear, "…Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."

There is nothing in nothing in hell that we want! What we want is in heaven!

To get heaven, we must have Jesus!

But you can't have heaven and hell at the same time. You must turn loose one and grab hold to the other!

Jesus came and offered himself as a sacrifice for our sins, to give us a choice

He died on Calvary and early Sunday morning he arose.

Today, every believer declares, "You can all this world, give me Jesus!"

A Focused Church

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 2008

SCRIPTURE: And they continued stedfastly in the apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers. And fear came upon every soul: and many wonders and signs were done by the apostles. And all that believed were together, and had all things common; And sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all men, as every man had need. And they, continuing daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house, did eat their meat with gladness and singleness of heart, Praising God, and having favour with all the people. And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved." Acts 2:42-47

Introduction

In changing times, how does the church stay focused? The church has remained strong throughout the centuries because it is founded on faith in Jesus Christ. It has had one perpetual goal that is to evangelize the world, saving the lost and preserving the saints in the name of our Lord.

This church has been laboring to witness for Christ for many years. It has been a witness for Christ for generations, all thirsty to hear the word of God. It has been a voice for Christ for all who would hear the gospel message.

After successfully serving God as a witness and a being beacon of hope, the church remains positioned to bring a word of hope in the midst of changing times.

The challenges are the same as they were when this church was founded: we must focus on building the kingdom of God, adding to it, expanding it and preserving it through the power of God.

There are many changes in our world today that can easily distract the church; it must remain focused. There is a growing demand for the mission of the church to switch from Christ and him crucified, to prosperity; but the church must remain focused.

There is a desire to define the nature of our relationship with God from uniting with the church to serve God to uniting with the church for God to serve us; but the church must remained focused.

With advances in communications there are thousands of distractions such as: cell phones, text messaging, Instant messaging, Email, and the world wide web. For some these distractions have become so intense that they have begun to neglect the main mission of believers, which is to save and preserve the lost. That is all the more reason for the church to remain focused on building the kingdom of God.

To do that we can't remain in the past, using the techniques of methods that were modern many years ago, but we must use what is available today to promote God's kingdom; but in all that we do we should never lose focus on the Kingdom of Christ.

As Christians, we must not be distracted or dissuaded away from the cause of Christ. We must continue in his word, pray and fellowship together, help those in need and lift Christ up continuously as we look forward to the day of his glorious return.

Exposition

This text gives us a clear picture of a focused church in changing times.

In Acts 2 the church was in its infant stages surrounded by a world that changed frequently as the Roman Empire expanded. The church was exposed to the influence of Greek literature, art and the Roman concept of government called a democratic republic. There were different races in Jerusalem from all over the world; it was a large bouquet of cultures creeds and religions.

It would have been easy for the church to lose its focus, but it employed four tools to stay focused on the kingdom of God all represented in Acts 2:42-47: They remained steadfast in their doctrine, fellowship frequently, helped each other and worshipped God passionately.

Using these four tools the church of Acts 2 remained focused and committed to the cause of Christ.

How to stay focused

We can use the example of the Church in Acts as our guide for staying focused today:

THEY REMAINED STEDFAST IN THEIR DOCTRINE: Even though there were many doctrines being taught all around them, they remained focused on the doctrine of Christ as revealed the apostles. The Jews had a doctrine based on Old Testament tradition, but they remained focused on Christ. The Romans had a doctrine that saw Ceasar as a god, but they remained focused on Christ. The Greeks had many gods and even statues to unknown gods, but they remained focused on the doctrines of Christ. They were steadfast in fixed truth; they did not belong to the shifty generation of men who changed their view with every popular notion. They were consistent to the words of the song write who wrote, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweet frame but wholly lean on Jesus name. On Christ the solid rock I stand, all other ground is sinking sand. All other ground is sinking sand."

THEY WERE REGULAR IN THEIR FELLOWSHIP: They were stedfast in fellowship with each other. The one aspect of the New Testament Church that stood out over all others was their fellowship one with another. They associated with each other constantly, whether it was at their weekly communion dinners called "love feasts" or prayer meeting, it soon became very obvious that they loved each other, and they continued doing so. They conversed with one another about the things of God, and they did not give up the conversation. There are many people in the church today who do not fellowship with other members of the church. They come together to worship but they are not a part of the regular fellowship. They do not eat together, shop together and talk about life together, that is; life from a Christian perspective. To remain focused, the church today must tear a page from the Church of Acts and learn to love and fellowship with others in the faith.

THEY HELPED THOSE IN NEED: The church of Acts 2 was steadfast in its commitment to help those who were in need. The early church members were sensitive to personal needs of others and were quick to respond. They shared what they had with others in need. Today, the church should remain focused on this aspect of ministry. We must respond to the needs of those among us who are in need and we must also see the needs of those around us and respond accordingly. We should not lose focus of our purpose, which is to witness to those who have been discarded by society through the loving acts of kindness that are inspired by the very hand of God himself. Helping those in need is just as important today as it was in the beginning.

THEY WERE STEDFAST IN PRAYER: The church in Acts 2 remained steadfast in prayer. God cannot bless a church which does not pray, and churches must increase in supplication if they would increase in strength. The church that prays maintains a connection with God. It is a church that speaks to God about the needs of the people but also hears from God in response to the needs of the people. No matter how busy the world becomes it should never get so busy that it cannot prayer, because prayer changes things.

Stay focused on Praising God

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must never lose sight of the importance of praising God for all that he has done.

We praise God because he is good and his mercy endureth to all generations. The church should never lose focus on the importance showing gratitude to God for blessings shown.

We praise God because he blessed us by showing us his love.

It was a love that was:

—higher than the heavens
—deeper than the oceans
—lovelier than the sunsets
—sweeter than the honeycomb
—stronger than the wind
—fresher than the morning dew

It was a love that could not be:

—measured for it is immeasurable
—described for it is indescribable
—evaluated for it is invaluable
—comprehended for it is incomprehensible
—explained for it is unexplainable

There's no other love that can:

—bless and benefit

—penetrate and saturate

—glorify and magnify

—satisfy and beautify

—encourage the discouraged!

We should give praise and show love for God because he showed us the way. No wonder the songwriter declared, "Oh How I love Jesus. Because he first loved me."

I said I wasn't going to tell anybody but I can't keep it to myself.

I've got to tell that we serve a God who turns:

—Darkness into light; failure into success;

—Weakness into strength; lost hope into fulfilled dreams;

—Who will tell the story of the goodness of the Lord?

Who will tell the world that those who trust in the Lord can:

-Face the unfaceable; conquer the unconquerable

-Bear the unbearable; suffer the insufferable

The Lord needs believers in this generation who are willing to use all available means to witness to this present age that God is still a good God!

Who will tell the story of how God take poor families from North Carolina, Louisiana and Mississippi and hundreds of places around the world and lift them up to high heights!

Who will tell the story told by our forefathers?

Whoever tells the story must decide to live the life and walk the walk, before they try to talk the talk!

If you are going to tell the story, you must know Jesus for yourself!

You can't tell your story until you can tell his story!

Tell them about Jesus, the Lily of the Valley!

Tell them about Jesus, the bright and morning star!

Tell them how he died on Calvary! Tell them how he arose after three days and nights!

Who will tell the story to this present age?

The church should say, "Here we are, Lord…send us!"

We've Got Work to Do!

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 30, 2008

SCRIPTURE: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. Amen." Matthew 28:19-20

Introduction

Have you ever made a to-do list? A to do list is a list of all the things you need to do in a specific day. Often major jobs are subdivided into smaller lists of specific things that must be done; they are called tasks. One job may consist of five or six smaller tasks necessary to complete the job. Everyone has a to-do list of some sort whether they are kept posted on the refrigerator door at home, in a special file on their computers, or written on post it notes stuck all over the place. All of the reminders, post its and notes, serve one purpose and that is to remind us that we have "work to do."

It's pretty easy to make the to-do list. It's just a matter of writing down what needs to be done. It's harder to stay on task and work the list.

Everyone who succeeds in life knows the importance of working their individual task lists involving everything from personal career goals to spiritual development. People who do not succeed have one of two things in common: they either have no specific tasks mapped out for themselves or they have tasks but they do not complete them. Either way, it is prescription for failure.

The presence of unfinished tasks reminds us that we have work to do.

In 1972 The Isley Brothers released a song that made it to number 52 on the charts. It was entitled "I've got work to do." It was about a man who had little time to be with the woman that he loved because he had "work to do." He was extremely busy all of the time but none of his busi-ness had anything to do with her. He said she should understand that he had "work to do."

Is it possible that many of God's people could be like the man in the Isley Brother's song? We are extremely busy pursuing our tasks, but there is nothing on our task lists related to service in the kingdom of God. Is it possible that many believers love God and trust him fully, but have overbooked their lives to the point that he has been pushed completely out?

Jesus has given all of his disciples a great command. It is time consuming. It requires tremendous commitment, but it also has great reward.

As Christians, we are reminded that our charge is to work in the kingdom for God. We have been assigned the job of reaching as many people as we possibly can, saving as many as we can, teaching as many as we can and baptizing as many as we can in the name of the Lord. That's the big job. It breaks out onto hundreds of small to-do lists. We have little time to waste; we have work to do.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus giving an assignment to the eleven remaining disciples; it was a challenge to home and world mission.

The events of the crucifixion had dispirited the disciples but the events of the resurrection encouraged them. They had seen the risen Christ and enjoyed fellowship with him. As Jesus prepared to return to heaven he left them with a mission that was humanly impossible without God's help. In previous missions Jesus had sent his disciples only to the Jews, their mission from here forward would be to go to all the nations.

Because they would be going where no disciple had gone before, into lands and areas they had not visited before; and because this commission was greater far more reaching in its scope, it is often called the Great Commission. The disciples had been trained well, and they had seen the risen Lord. They were ready to teach people all over the world to obey all the commands that Jesus had given.

The commission was to declare the gospel message to the entire world. The plan was for the eleven to reach and teach others and they, in turn, would reach and teach still more. Aided by the power of the Holy Ghost, it would not take long for the good news of God's way of life and his coming kingdom would be spread around the world.

That was a particularly challenging mission, especially since they were being challenged to go countries that spoke different languages. Yet, they were told to wait until they received the power. They waited, even though they did not quite know what they were waiting for. On the day of Pentecost, the Holy Spirit, came upon them and they immediately understood by people of different races and nationalities. It was an amazing power they were given for their work.

They were divinely appointed and charged to work to build the kingdom.

As they watched Jesus ascend into heaven on a cloud, the Apostles arose and plunged into the mission. They had no time to waste..they had work to do.

What is the work?

Jesus talked to eleven men and charged them to begin the work. They, in turn, organized others and broke down the work into smaller to do lists, breaking it down to the individual believer's roll in the overall plan for kingdom building. Each congregation and every member has no room for "bench" membership because we all have work to do.

WE MUST SAVE THE LOST: The immediate mission of the church is to save the lost. Evangelism is the primary goal of every church congregation reaching out to those who do not know Jesus Christ as their personal savior. Jesus said that the church should go into the entire world. Today the church still has that mission to evangelize the world. Through outreach efforts at home and foreign mission efforts abroad the church reaches out in every nation of the world. Despite the advances in technology, there are still places in the world who have never heard the name of Jesus; and those within in our community who know nothing of the saving grace of God. There are thousands around us who know of the church building but do not know Jesus. There are thousands more who do not know him. We have the challenge of going into the bars, saloons, and wayward places to seek out the lost. We have the challenge using television, radio, and the internet to make salvation known, even in places where it is least expected. We cannot afford to sit idly resting upon what we have done in the past..We have work to do.

WE MUST MAKE DISCIPLES: Inherent in Jesus' command to "teach them" is the command to make disciples. Teaching the world to live the Christian life is more than a notion. It means showing people who believe how to live the Christian life in the world in which they live. It means showing families how a Christian dresses, acts, reacts, lives and breathes in the context of the world in which they live. Discipleship is more than just a new member's class it is hands on instruction in how to be a good husband, how to be a good wife, how to be a Christian in business, how to be Christian statesman rather than a politician; how to be a Christian youth. Discipleship is learning how to apply the principles of Christ into the very fabric of our lives. Although we have a program here and a program there, it is far too shallow an effort. There is much more to be done, so many lives to be taught and hearts to be touch. What we have done is miniscule when compared to the enormity of the task. We have little time to sit idly by...we got work to do.

WE RESPOND TO ALL THINGS AS AMBASSADORS FOR CHRIST: When Christ told his disciples to help believers to observe "all things whatsoever I have command you" that was a huge assignment stuff into one little phrase. He commanded us to show mercy and benevolence to those in need. We are compelled to open our doors and hearts to help those in need and to show compassion to them that hunger and thirst. We are commanded to "feed the flock" with the essentials of spirituality necessary to sustain us in difficult. We are compelled to pray for one another and to be supportive in times of trial. We are commanded to hold each other accountable when we stray from the path while defending each other against the attacks. "All things" includes his command for us to speak against evil, regardless to whom it offends, as strive to advance the kingdom of God on earth. While we have responded in some form to many of these missions, we have not satisfactorily addressed any of them. "All things" is so big, so all encompassing that it would take all of us working in complete concert, to adequately address them. When we look at what has to be done, we can only conclude ...we've got work to do.

And Lo

Finally, brothers and sisters, while Jesus gave us this great work, he did not live us comfortless; he promised never to leave us alone.

He told his disciples then and still speaks to us today, "And lo, I'll be with you."

There is a lot of hope in that simple word "Lo" because we have heard it before.

We heard Isaiah used that word as he encouraged Israel in Isaiah 25:9 "And it shall be said in that day, Lo, this is our God; we have waited for him, and he will save us: this is the LORD; we have waited for him, we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation."

And "Lo"-We heard Jeremiah lift the spirits of God's people in Jeremiah 30:10, "Lo, I will save thee from afar, and thy seed from the land of their captivity, and Jacob shall return and shall be in rest and be quiet and none shall make him afraid."

And "Lo"-We heard Daniel use that term standing at the fiery furnace in Daniel 3:25, "He answered and said, Lo, I see four men loose, walking in the midst of the fire, and they have no hurt; and the form of the fourth is like the Son of God."

And "Lo"-we heard Ezekiel use that word standing at the valley of Dry Bones. In Ezekiel 37:8 "And, lo, they are very dry."

In many instances when the "Lo" shows up, we have reached a point of exhaustion and depleted our own energy. That's when God steps in and we start serving on "Lo"

One truth that every saint who has stepped out on God's word has discovered is that if the Lord gives you a "Go" there is always a "Lo." For every "Go ye therefore" there's is always a "Lo, I'll be with alway."

We have work to do and it can't be limited by what we don't have, we have to go on lo.

Lo represents the promises of God!

Lo represents our faith that God will make a way!

The gospel must be preached, we have work to do, even if we have to go on lo!

The Poor among us must be helped, we have work to do, even if we have to go on lo!

The good news of the kingdom must be declare, we have work to do, even if we have to go on lo!

We know what it means to go on Lo!

When storms rise, "Lo" means he'll say peace be still.

When sickness comes, "Lo" means he'll be a doctor in your sickroom

In the middle of failure, "Lo" means he will give you victory.

In the middle of doubt, "Lo" means he'll give you assurance. No wonder the song writer declared, "Blessed Assurance, Jesus is mine oh what a foretaste of glory divine"

A traveler drove his automobile through the plains and the desert. When he came to the mountains, his passenger wondered how such an old car would make the high mountains. The traveler looked at his passenger and said, "When I travel the plains, I can make alright, but when I make it to the mountains, I put it in low and away I go"

I don't know about you, but I have found out that you can do amazing things when you remember the promises of God and count on lo!

A Widow woman who was down to her last barrel found she could eat on lo!

A woman sick with an issue of blood found she could be healed if she touched lo!

Peter found that as long as he kept his eyes on Christ he could walk on lo!

When your mountains get high, just remember Jesus said, "Lo" I'll be with you

When your burdens get heavy, just put it on Lo and remember Jesus said, "Come unto me all ye that are burden and heavy laden and I will give you rest!"

If you get tired a along the way we have his promise!

Even though they put a cross on my shoulder..lo!

Even though they nail me to a borrowed cross..lo!

Even though they pierce me in my side...lo

Even though they bury me in a borrowed tomb..lo!

Keep on working, because Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

We can still hear him say," Lo, I'll be with you, even until the end of the world!

Happy to be Going Home

By Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 2008

SCRIPTURE: I will greatly rejoice in the LORD, my soul shall be joyful in my God; for he hath clothed me with the garments of salvation, he hath covered me with the robe of righteousness, as a bridegroom decketh with ornaments, and as a bride adorneth with her jewels. Isaiah 61:10-11

Introduction

Have you ever had a wonderful time in a distant place, but found yourself happy to be going home? No matter how beautiful our surroundings may be in a distant place, there is no place like home. Some have lived in fine hotels, slept on sleep number mattresses, enjoyed room and maid service and for a time have lived lavishly. However, at the end of the stay, despite all of the good times they enjoyed, they were happy to be going home.

In the movie "The Wizard of Oz" the character Dorothy learned that while she was fascinated living in the land of Oz, there was no place like home.
Home may not be as fancy as the place you visited, but for some reason we are always happy to go home.

There is no room service; and you have to wash your own dishes, but we are always happy to go home.

There is something about home that makes us want to shout, when we think about. Our brother has visited on this earth for 86 years. During that time he has lived through one world war, the Korean Conflict, Vietnam, and Desert Storm. He has enjoyed the creation of new inventions from the television to the microwave. He saw the world around him change miraculously bringing comforts and great joy. Yet, despite all of his experiences, he always longed for home. Even when he thought about home, he shouted, at loud and didn't care who heard.

What he thought about was so grand and so glorious that he could not keep it to himself. He knew that soon he would be going home.

We are happy about going home, when we have a home to go to. There are many people in the world today who are all dressed up with no place to go. Those who have a home have something to be happy about. When you have a home you can sing that old song, "I've got a new home, over in glory and its mine, mine, mine."
Some have a home but it is not a happy home. To them, going home is not an appealing idea.

Consider the man who sat at the bar drinking one whiskey after another until it became obvious to the bar tender that he was about to hurt himself. The bartender asked, "What's the matter? Are you having troubles with your wife again?" The man nodded his head and began to cry. The bartender said, "Your wife should be ashamed of the way she belittles you, talks about you and hits on you in front of other men." The man heard that and started crying again. "What happened this time?" The bartender asked. "My wife told me she was leaving me for 30 days" the man said as he cried like a baby. "Well you should be glad" said the bartender, "As mean as your wife is to you, you should praise God for a joyful month of peace. Don't be sad, be happy, go home in peace!" At that the man started to cry even more. "What are you crying about?" The man answered "My wife left me for a month...and today is the last day!" For some, going thinking about home is not a happy experience.

Believers are pilgrims who are passing through this world on our way home. When we think about it, it's too much for us. It is so wonderful.

As Christians, we enjoy every day that God gives us on this earth, but when it's time to go, we are happy to be going home.

Exposition

This text focuses on the prophet Isaiah as he anticipates the coming of the Messiah and the final journey home of believers.

The closing chapters of the book of Isaiah speaks to the people of Israel directly but they are also Messianic; they also look to the coming of the age of the church. Isaiah details the struggles of the people but he closes his book in its final chapters by looking to Jesus. It is Isaiah that tells us, thousands of years before it occurred, that he "was wounded for our transgressions and bruised for our iniquities."

At the point of this text, there are words of reassurance for Israel as Isaiah looks beyond the present and looks to the future. That's why he encouraged the people to "be joyful."

He looked beyond the present to the time which loomed on the horizon.

He went beyond the time of wars and second class citizenship. He went beyond the time of pushing hard and being pushed. He looked beyond the time of health then sickness, deprivation and loneliness. He even looked beyond Israel's brief period of physical restoration. He looked to the return of the Lord and the beginning of the Kingdom of heaven.

He showed them a picture of the kingdom of God that inspired the people and made them uncontrollably happy.

Reasons we are Happy

There are many who amazed when they saw our brother in worship. While they were accustomed to seeing people shout at the end of a great sermon, this brother was different. He could shout at the mere thought of God's goodness.

God has given every believer something to shout about, too.

WE SHOUT BECAUSE GOD PROVIDES OUR NEEDS: A great truth that ever believer knows about God is that he will provide for their needs.

In our prayers, we say, "Give us this day our daily bread." That's a prayer that says we count on God everyday for what we need to survive and thrive in this world. It's a truth that we learn we are children, that God will make a way.

When his disciples had such concerns Jesus told them to look at the natural activity around them. In Matthew 6:25 he said, "Behold the fowls of the air: for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns, yet your heavenly father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they?" Birds go out each day, not knowing what they will find but yet God arranges for them to fall upon what they need for that day. He challenges us to think, "If he will do that for the birds, then he'll do that for me. That's the truth imbedded in the song, "Why should I be discouraged. Why should the shadows come. Why should my heart be lonely and long for heaven and home. For Jesus is my portion. A constant friend is he. His eye is on the sparrow and I know he watches me."

The fact that God watches over us, makes us happy and can bring on a shout.

WE SHOUT BECAUSE GOD HAS BLESSED US: Often we thank God for physical blessings, but we should also thank him for the unseen spiritual blessings of salvation, heavenly promise and peace of mind. This spirit of thanksgiving is supported in scripture. The verb ''to give thanks'' occurs thirty-eight times and the noun ''thanksgiving'' another fifteen times in the New Testament. The Word of God makes it clear that it is very important to give thanks.

We should also be thankful for any blessings we receive. Jesus gave thanks before a meal (Matt. 15:36). And when he healed ten men who had leprosy and only one came back to thank him, Jesus asked where the others were (Luke 17:15-18). He expected people to be thankful for good things.

We give God thanks for the seen and the unseen.

We thank him for the greens and butter beans, but we also thank him for being able to sleep soundly at night.

We thank him for fried chicken, rice and a little gravy, but we should also thank him for spiritual gravy: Joy, love, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, faith, meekness, and temperance.

When we think about the ways he has blessed us we feel like shouting.

WE SHOUT WHEN WE REMEMBER GOD'S MERCY TO US: There are times when we are overwhelmed at the goodness and mercy of the Lord. This often happens when we achieve a long sought after goal or receive a blessing that we desired but felt unworthy to receive. When David succeeded in the getting the Ark of the Covenant returned to Israel, he was so excited and happy that he stripped his clothes to his loin cloth and danced naked in the streets, leaping and jumping and shouting with joy.

That's the way we feel when God has really blessed us. We have to shout.

When the Lord blesses us financially in a way that we did not expect, it''s shouting time!

When a wayward child starts showing signs of hope, it's shouting time!

When a lost family member finds the Lord, it's shouting time.

As Jesus came into Jerusalem, his disciples wanted to quiet the crowd but Jesus said, "If these hold their peace the rocks would cry out!" -It's shouting time.

Going home at last

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that this brother shouted because he was going home at last.

There is a saying that, "Absence makes the heart grow fonder." It means that when we are away from the people, places and things we love we yearn for them and grow and cherish them more.

The longer we are away, the more we yearn to be close to them.
On this earth, we are away from home. Every believer yearns to go home and gets happy just thinking about going home.

Whenever the Lord has done something good for you, there's a whole lot of shouting going on.

Whenever you think about how God has blessed us, there's a whole lot of hand waving going on!

Whenever we think about how God has picked us up and turned us around, there's a whole lot foot patting going!

Whenever we think about how he provides food for us when we are hungry, there's a whole lot of hand clapping going on!

When Christ, the bridegroom, comes for the church he come to take us to our eternal home.

That will be the day that we'll walk the streets of gold and live eternally in his presence.

It's the reason that we are constantly filled with joy and happy to be going home! One of this brother's favorite song's was "Life is like Railroad." He loved to sing that song. He'd get happy all over again. When I think about that song I'm reminded of a man and his daughter as they stood at a train depot waiting to catch a train. A pretty shiny train pulled up, but it seemed to be filled with people who were gambling. The little girl said, "Let's ride this train daddy!" -But papa wouldn't get on board.

A while later another train appeared, it had people who seemed to be drinking and having a wild party on board. The little girl said, "Let's ride this train!" But papa still wouldn't get on board. Late in the evening when the sun was almost down, a single engine train pulled up and papa prepared to get on board. The little girl was surprised, "Papa, the other trains were pretty and filled with people and they were going that way. This train doesn't have many people on it and it's going in the opposite direction. Why this train?" Papa looked back at his daughter as he handed the conductor his ticket and said, "This train don't carry, no loafers, hobos and cigarette smokers. This train is bound for glory, and I'll shout and tell the story!"

Believers are happy to be going home because they have a story to tell. It's a story of rising and falling.

It's a story of battles fought and victories won. It's a story of family, friends and a song to sing!

That's what the song writer had in mind when he wrote, "This is my story, this is my song, praising my savior all the day long!"

It's a story that says, "I've been tried in the fire" and I have come through as pure gold!

It's a story about Jesus who said I'm going to prepare a place for you that where I am ye may be also!

It's a story of a place where the wicked will cease from troubling and the weary will be at rest.

It's a story of a place where Joy will never end!

It's a story that began in a manger in Bethlehem, was interrupted on a cross outside of Jerusalem; accentuated by an empty tomb;

..and when he comes back we'll all go home together..

in the New Jerusalem!

I think I feel a shout coming on!

A Pastor Who Walks by Faith

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 2008

SCRIPTURE: "But without faith it is impossible to please him: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." Hebrews 11:6

Introduction

Have you ever considered how far you have come, then wondered how you made it? It has been a long journey for all of us. We have endured considered hardship, sacrifice and suffering to reach our present plateau in life. It has not been easy, but thanks be to God we have succeeded in making the journey, not walking by sight, but by faith.

Those who have served in the ministry have had an even more difficult path to walk. Not only have they had to walk their personal path, they have also had to labor with those in need of spiritual care. For every preacher of the Gospel, this journey has been a faith walk with God; without him they would surely have failed.

This pastor has been walking this journey, living in the public eye for a long tim. After all these years in the pulpit, what can the preacher say that he has not said before? What text can he deliver that he has not addressed before? What theme can he developed that he has not developed before?

That is best answered by remembering the grandfather who made a practice of reading to his granddaughter every night before he put her to sleep. He tried to find many different stories to read to her each night, but as soon as he finished reading the new story, she would always ask him to read the old story again. He wondered she always wanted to hear the same story, and she said because "every time you read it, it gets gooder and gooder."

What can the preacher say after after all these years? He can tell the old story of Jesus, his death and resurrection; it gets gooder and gooder everytime!

As Christians we are sure that our journey has been a walk of faith. Over the years, we have made it, not by our own strength but we were sustained by the power of an almighty God.

Exposition

This text focuses on the importance of faith for any believer.

New Testament believers are reminded that faith is essential to the Christian life. It's very nature is the unseen. It is belief without sufficient physical evidence to confirm.

Much of what believers know about God has been through our past experience. Based upon our past experience, combined with what we read in the word, we make a projection about the future. That projection is what is called faith. It is a hope rooted in the nature of God and our past experience with him. Without faith we cannot please God because we must accept that he is God and come to him first.

Without faith in God we cannot make this journey. That's why the anonymous writer of the Hebrews lists so many great men who achieved much for God's kingdom operating on faith alone. Collectively, the text demonstrates that those who live by faith succeed in making the journey.

Preachers Operate on Faith

Any pastor who succeeds in ministry is a walking example of faith. Dealing with our kind of people is not an easy task. Sometimes we can try the patience of the best pastors and bring them very close to the point of giving up.

Not only have pastors survived by faith, but so have thousands of believers in small churches and great cathedrals. They all have one thing in common: They have made it by faith alone.

There are three truths we should consider as we focus on this ministry that has obviously been strengthened by faith:

THROUGH FAITH WE MAKE THE JOURNEY: We who are trying to please God sometimes stumble. We are only able to make the journey because of our faith. Sometimes Christians forget the power of their faith.

When faith seems to falter, we need to remind ourselves that although it looks dark and defeat appears imminent God is still on the throne. Every child of God believes ina miraculous God. We constantly remind ourselves that no matter how frustrating the situation might seem it never reaches a point of complication beyond the miraculous power of God.

The songwriter said, "God is still on the throne, within you bosom you have the phone" Your miracle is just a prayer away, God is on the line.

Another songwriter said, "Jesus is on the mainline, tell him what you want, if you're sick and you want to get well, tell him what you want."

THROUGH FAITH WE NEVER GIVE UP: In effort to please God there are many who have made great personal sacrifices as they have worked to build the church. They worked in faith but never gave up. If we listen closely we can hear them say, "I've come this far by faith, I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now!"

Some have lifted their voices as members of choirs, others have washed dishes and mopped floors, but still they proclaim "I've come this far by faith, I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now!"

Some have preached and others have licked stamps, folded envelopes and passed out programs. Some have given their last dollar and others have given until they felt the pain, but still they proclaim, ""I've come this far by faith, I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now!"

Some have emptied trash cans; others have stood behind television cameras, snapped pictures, worked with youth, or just been in the midst of the saints for moral support. All have one thing in common. They all say, ""I've come this far by faith, I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now!"

" We all say, "I've come too far to turn around."

THE BIGGER THE GOAL THE STRONGER THE FAITH: Those who acting on great visions that God has given them, must be reminded that the bigger your goal the stronger the faith that is needed to achieve the goal. It's what every Boy Scout knows. If you put up a big tent you need be stakes to hold it down. The bigger tent, the bigger the stakes.

If you have a big dream you can't keep it in place with a small peg of faith. Big faith is fed by regular worship and praise. To feed that faith our worship and bible study habits must change.

Big dreams require big faith experiences; and big preachers have big dreams can't be staked out if our dreams faith does not grow to fit our dream.

How do we build faith? First by hearing the word of God regularly. Romans 10:17 says,

"So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God."

Today, we have seen this three attributes reflected in the ministry we salute with this special worship. What we have seen demonstrated before us is a life that has been walking by faith.

Living by faith is our goal

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must encourage the honoree to continue living by faith in the years to come, even though what lies ahead is unseen.

The very definition of faith tells the story in Hebrews 11:1 "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for and evidence of things not seen."

To live by faith is to always believe that godly goals can be achieved even though, at present, there is no evidence to support the belief.

If doors are closed in your face, God will make a way!

If enemies surround you on every side, God will make a way!

If we fall down more than we stand up, God will make a way!

Living by faith, means we never doubt that the Lord will make a way somehow!

After many years of preaching pastors should not be discouraged but should continue to preach the word and plant the Gospel seed, God will do the watering.

After all these years, what shall I preach? The answer to the question is simple, Preach the word!

After all these years, tell them that the wages of sin is death but the gift of God is eternal life!

After all these years, tell them that God is a good God who is a shelter in a time of storm and bridge over troubling water!

After all these years tell them that the God we serve can scale the highest mountain and span the widest valley. He can lift a bowed down head and can traverse the loneliest wilderness.

After all these years, tell them about Jesus!

Jesus, the lily of the valley and the bright and morning star!

Jesus, the fairest of ten thousands and a rock in the wilderness!

After all these years, tell them Jesus!

After all these years, tell them about Calvary!

After all these years, tell them that Early Sunday morning Jesus rose from the grave with all power in his hands!

After all these years, tell world that Jesus said, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me"

Tell them about Jesus, and continue walking by faith!

Men Who Walk With God

SCRIPTURE: In the way of righteousness is life; and in the pathway thereof there is no death. Proverbs 12:28

Introduction

What does it take for a man to walk uprightly before God? That is a question that requires us to know what God expects of a man. We know how the world measures a man; we see that everyday. The world measures a man by his possessions, his physical strength, handsomeness, virility and his power and influence. Yet, that measure is not how God measures a man.

God measures a man by the righteous life that he lives reflecting a saved soul dedicated to living out his purpose for his life. The bible sums it all up by saying that such a man has a "righteous way of life."

There are many today who are completely confused about what it takes to be a real man in God's sight. They think that all it takes is a pair of pants, a checkbook and the ability to father a child. There is one truth that we have all come to know: all males are not necessarily men. Further, all men are not necessarily righteous men who are walking in the paths of God.

A tall pine tree stood for many years in the great forest. Its branches spread in all directions. It loomed high over the other trees and its thick trunk suggested it had endured many years. At the foot of the pine there was a little pine cone that lay around on the ground. He boasted to the other seeds that lay around that he was a mighty pine and would someday grow strong and tall. Meanwhile, he simply lay around and enjoyed the shade from the father pine's strong branches. The father pine constantly talked to him to show him what life was all about. However, the cone was content to know that he could one day be a pine and he idled away his time.

One night, lightning struck the mighty pine and down it fell with a mighty thud. In the days that followed the pine cone stood in the same place where the mighty pine stood and tried to take his place. He stretched out his arms, but they were not huge branches. He gave off no shade and did not tower over the other trees as did the mighty pine. His heart dropped in frustration. Then he heard the voice of the mighty pine whistling through the wind, "within you is the potential for greatness, for you are the offspring of a pine. But to achieve your greatness, you cannot lay around. You must bury yourself in fertile soil, take root, sprout and grow with a made up mind.

Then you will be a tree my son, then you will be a pine."

For men to walk righteously before God three things must happen: They must know the Lord for themselves, walk with the right crowds, and pursue life with a made up mind. Many young men with great potential are lost because they do not know the Lord for themselves, run with the wrong crowds, and cannot discipline themselves to do what is necessary to achieve their life goals.

As Christians, we desire to know the Lord and to commit ourselves to walk in his paths. When we walk in God's path, blessings, rewards and life will follow.

Exposition

This text focuses on a truth that those who walk righteously before God will be blessed.

The teaching of this text reflects the general teaching of the bible about believers who live righteous lives: they will be blessed by God. David, in Psalms 1, notes that men who refuse to take the counsel of ungodly men and reject seats among the scornful shall be "blessed."

This text, written by Solomon by the inspiration of God, reflects the same theology: those who live righteous lives will receive temporal blessings or a better, blessed life, because of their commitment to God.

Even though this text seems to suggest that living righteously can earn salvation, a closer inspection reveals that the "life" referred to involves the temporal things in this life, not eternal life, which only comes as a gift from God that is not a result of our works.

The text indicates that living the righteous life is a pathway to favor with God who blesses our lives in such as way that there is not only life at the end, but life along the way; a life of spiritual comfort and peace that is pleasing to God.

In Proverbs 20:7 Solomon says, "The just man walketh in his integrity. Ezekiel says, He that "has walked in my statutes, and has kept my judgments, to deal truly; he is just, he shall surely live," (Ezek 18:9, 21; 23:15).

In all truth, the man who walks righteously shall be blessed.

Men who choose to walk righteously will find many blessings because there are certain fruits of righteousness

Righetousness delivers us from troubles (Proverbs 11:6); gives us better life (Proverbs 11:19); keeps the upright (Proverbs 13:6); and gives us peace and quietness (Isaiah 32:17).

When men walk in righteousness, blessings from God are the immediate result.

Three Things Men Must Do

In light of the declining morality of our times, there are three things that men must do to walk righteously before God.

MEN MUST KNOW GOD FOR THEMSELVES. The inclination in modern times is for men to become less spiritual. In the past, it was the men who lead the worships in our homes and churches; today it is our women. In many instances it is because some men believe showing a fear of the Lord diminishes their manhood. More than ever, we need men who are willing to stand up for the Lord. We have too many men who are living on the spiritual down low: They give lip service to Godliness on Sunday but have a secret relationship with the devil the rest of the week. We need men who will stand up for God, because they have tried him for themselves and are sure that he is a way maker in their lives.

MEN MUST WALK IN THE RIGHT CROWDS: Christian men must carry themselves as Christian men. It means that they must reflect the Christian life in three areas: the places they go, the people they associate with and the things they do. There is an old saying, "Birds of a feather, flock together." That applies to men as well. There are many men who attend worship on Sundays but they still hang out with all of the ungodly types as ungodly activities are being conducted, conversations are being held and plans are being made. The places we go, the things we do, and the people we hang out with, reflect the degree of our transformation. The man who walks righteously does not walk with those who steal, cheat, murder or condone violence. The man who walks righteously does not support ungodliness in any way. The word of God says the ungodly are like the "chaff which the wind driveth away." Since that is the case, the ungodly men should not attach themselves to those who are spiritual chaff, offer them no spiritual support and can only lead them to ruination before God.

MEN MUST HAVE A MADE UP MIND: The righteous man is mindful of the word of God that teaches him in Romans 12:2, "And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God." Too many men fail to receive all of the blessings that God has for them because they are double minded; and they are not completely committed. One day they are for the Lord and the next day they are for the devil. Men who walk righteously are those who go through life with a made up mind. These are the men who have been transformed by the spirit of God and are new creatures, "old things are passed away." We can't be a father and husband one day and then turn into a woman chaser on another day. We need to make up our minds. We can't be men who work hard all week, then the next week throw away our earnings on loose living that threatens the safety and security of our families. We need to make up our minds. We can't stand up for God one day and disown him among our friends on another day. We need to make up our minds. The best resolve for men is to tear a page from Joshua and say, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

The Reward of Walking Righteously Before God

Finally, brothers and sisters, there is a reward for the man who walks righteously with God.

The man who lives righteously earns the favor of God and God's favors opens the windows of heaven and provides peace, comfort and opportunity for those who please him.

The man who walks righteously is a man who lives a good life before his children and his wife, but most importantly, he lives a good life before God.

The man who walks righteously is an example of trusting in God and holding to his word.

The man who walks righteously has a story to tell. He tells the story of mountains climbed and valleys traveled!

He tells the story of answered prayer. A man who knows the Lord knows that the Lord will answer prayer.

He tells the story of a man who bows down before God to worship and praise him!

The man who walks righteously tells the story of salvation and redemption.

The man who walks righteously is quick to testify that one day the savior "picked me up and turned me around and planted my feet on solid ground"

I heard the songwriter declare, "Shackled by a heavy burden, neath a load of guilt and stain, but then the hand of Jesus touched me, and now I am no longer the same"

This is the man that can declare, "He touched me!"

He touched me! And oh the joy the floods my soul!

Something happened and now I know, he touched me and made me whole.

The man who walks righteously has to tell somebody about Jesus!

Jesus, who carried an old rugged cross!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who stayed in the grave for three long days!

But Early, Early Sunday morning he arose from the dead!

The man who walks righteously has to tell somebody that Lord is my light and my salvation, "Whom shall I fear?"

He's got to tell somebody!

He's got your ticket

SCRIPTURE:"If he hath wronged thee, or oweth thee ought, put that on mine account;" Philemon 1:18 "But he was wounded for our transgressions. He was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed." Isaiah 53:5

Introduction

Have you ever gone out to dinner, enjoyed a great meal, then had the pleasure of someone volunteering to pay for your meal? It doesn't happen often but those few times when we are subject of such a meal, courtesy of the good will of a friend, we leave with a pleasant feeling. Certainly we were able to pay for our own meal, but the gesture is humbling. Very seldom do we refuse.

Many people who learn that someone will pick up their tab, only regret that they didn't get more. It seems that the day someone decides to pick up our tab, is always the day when we purchased the least. It's always the day you had a soup a sandwich and not the day you really chose to pig out.

The idea of paying for someone else's lunch is a friendship blessing. It's a way of passing on a blessing that God has given you to someone else. In theory, those who have had their ticket paid by someone should repay the gesture by paying for the meal of two other people sometime in the near future. That way goodwill and friendship is spread around the world by something as simple as treating someone else to a lunch or dinner.

The blessing cycle operates the same way. We are blessed, so that we can bless. When we receive a blessing we should share the blessing with others; in that way the continuum is uninterrupted.

Unfortunately, there are many who have had their tickets paid by others, but they have never returned the favor as the tradition requires. The blessing chain stops with them as they became receivers of the blessing but failed to pass it on to others.

Did you know that Christ has picked up the Tab for our sins? Many of us have a full plate when it comes to sin. Sin carries a heavy price that is spelled out in Romans 6:23, "For the wages of sin is death but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." Yet Jesus, through his own goodwill, literally picked up the ticket for our sins and went ahead of us to the heaven's check-in counter; and there served notice that when we arrive that our ticket has already been paid.

When we stand before the judgment bar and hear that our sin bill has been paid, it won't be because we have paid it ourselves, but it will be because, Christ paid it for us and put our charge on his account.

As Christians, we rejoice in knowing that Christ is the source of our salvation. We praise him because he paid the price for our salvation and with his stripes we are healed.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he offers to assume the debt of a fellow brother in Christ.

The words of Paul to Philemon were included in his personal appeal to Philemon to accept his returned runaway slave, Onesimus, as an equal in Christ. Onesimus had been converted to Christianity in Rome and Paul wrote his owner, a friend of his, and appealed for him to allow him to be a messenger for the Lord.

Paul said if anything was owed by the slave, that it should be charged to his personal account and he would make it good on his return. He was willing to take upon himself all indebtedness incurred by the slave and pay it himself.

Isaiah gave a prophetic picture of the suffering of Christ. In the 53rd chapter believers are given the picture of Christ being afflicted or wounded. In a sense each wound or bruise was being absorbed to pay for the sins and indiscretions of those who would follow him at a later time. It is because of Christ's suffering on Calvary that we have an opportunity to be healed. Through it he stores up enough credit in heaven to be able to pay the debt for our transgression, thus prompting the phrase, "and with his stripes we are healed."

Picks up the ticket

The goodwill and benevolence of our Lord has made it possible for us to have a chance for salvation. He has picked up our ticket in so many ways.

HE FORGAVE US: All of us have sinned, whether we are preachers in the pulpit or ushers at the front door, all have sinned. We are unworthy to eat at the table that Christ set before us because we have made so many mistakes in life. We are all guilty of some bad judgments, dumb acts, stupid deeds, and just plain sinful deeds. What Christ did for all of us is the same thing he did for the woman in John 8:11. There, a woman had been caught in the very act of adultery.

Her sins were undeniable because she had been caught and observed. Though she deserved to be stone Jesus said in John 8:11 "Neither do I condemn thee: go and sin, no more." He gave that woman a second chance, just as he has given each of us a second, third and fourth chance. What mistakes have we made? What did they indicate about us? It showed that we are very human. Given the right set of circumstances, anyone of us could easily, commit adultery, steal, cheat, act foolishly with our spouses, or fail to act in loving ways. These human weaknesses within put us at odds with God. Christ forgives us and puts the punishment for our weakness on his account, picks up our ticket and gives us another chance.

HE RAISED US: Despite our best efforts sometimes we are crippled in our efforts to pick ourselves up and walk on our own. Whether it's in our educational pursuits, struggles to build our families, keep our business afloat or just to survive the rigors of the school campus; we are often crippled. We are tempted to pity ourselves as we sit and say, "no one will help us." We look at our race or the side of the track in which we were born and start to make excuses for our inability to stand tall. Then, along comes Christ who inspires us to rise up and start again. In John 5 a cripple man sat by the pool of healing waters for 38 years trying to his chance but never found anyone to help him get to the healing waters first. Jesus came and asked him if he desired to be made whole and told him to take up his bed and walk. The man was healed. We are familiar with John 5:11 where Jesus tell him to "take thy bed and walk" but verse 14 doesn't get that much attention, it occurred a few days after the healing, Jesus told him "Behold thou art made whole, sin more, lest a worse thing happen." What has caused us to slip so much? Was it lack of determination, commitment or focus? What caused us to sit by idly? What the power of God does, if we will let him, is to put us back on our feet again. He raises up our hope, enthusiasm and drive to the point that we want to try again. Once given enough chance, he says to us point blank: I have forgiven you another chance, whatever it was that you did to get yourself in this fix, don't do it anymore! Through his blood he paid the price for our failures and will raise us up, if we will let him.

HE SAVED US: We are able to enjoy salvation today because Christ died for us. Isaiah noted he was wounded for our transgressions but our salvation is not in the torturous stripes placed on his back, as necessary as they were; but rather in his death on the cross. Romans 5:8 says, "..While we were yet sinners Christ died for us." When he died for us on Calvary, what he said to us in no uncertain terms was, "I am picking up your ticket." When you stand before the judgment you will find your bill already paid with a check drawn on the bank of heaven and endorsed by the blood of Calvary. He's got our ticket

Paul said to Philemon if you find that Onesimus owes you anything, put that on my account. If he has taken anything from you, put that on my account.

What Paul said to Philemon about his runaway slave is exactly what Jesus says to those who have been slaves to sin.

I hear Jesus in a sense saying, "If you've been burdened by the heavy weight of sin, bring me all your tickets."

"Come unto me that are burdened and heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

Bring me the tickets that deal with weakness of your flesh, and I will give you rest!

Bring me the tickets that have destroyed your sense of personal worth, and I will give you rest!

Bring me the tickets that have wrecked your happy home and taken away your joy, and I will give you rest!

He can pick up our ticket because 2000 years ago Jesus:

—Our friend that never forsakes us!

—Our Shepherd that never overlooks us!

—Our Supplier that never quits!
—Our Joy that never subsides
—Our Hope that never fades
—Our rock in a weary land
Picked up an old rugged cross and died on Golgotha's hill!
But early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with all power in his his!
"I got your ticket, in my hand!"

In the time of trouble who will bail me out?

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

September 28, 2008

SCRIPTURE: "For in the time of trouble he shall hide me in his pavilion: in the secret of his tabernacle shall he hide me; he shall set me up upon a rock. And now shall mine head be lifted up above mine enemies round about me: therefore will I offer in his tabernacle sacrifices of joy; I will sing, yea, I will sing praises unto the LORD." Psalm 27:5-6

Introduction

As you watch the news do you get the idea that we are facing a time of trouble? There are troubles on the foreign front as our nation responds to threats from Iran and Afghanistan and tries to restore Iraq. There are troubles domestically as prices keep rising, jobs keep disappearing and our financial security gets threatened.

These are tough economic times. In September of 2008 we saw big financial institutions such as Lehman Brothers and Merrill Lynch stumble. We heard other big company names including AIG and other huge conglomerates, facing trouble too.

For most of us, all of this is confusing because we can't figure out how it affects us.

In short, many of the big companies made loans to banks and other big companies in the billions of dollars. Most of the loans were secured by portfolios of loans made to purchase and build houses. Now, that many have defaulted on their mortgages, folks are losing their homes left and right. The banks and big financial companies now have loans that they can't repay and millions of dollars in foreclosed homes that they can't sell.

That means nobody wants to loan money to anybody, even one bank to another. New business can't open, new loans are hard to get, money is drying up, unemployment looms and times are getting tougher.

Experts say it will take $5 trillion to solve the problem; and they are guessing that $700 billion plug the hole for a while.

If all of that sounds frustrating, just remember that all of these tough times have been predicted in scripture. It is a sign of the last days.

Revelation 13:17 says, "And that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name."

That prediction means that as the last days of this life approach, it will get harder to buy, sell or conduct business; the beast will be in our business.

When we are face with these hard times how should we respond? Should we dig in or bail out?

The notion of bailouts makes those not privy the circles of high finance nervous because somehow we that while such talk is merciful and compassionate, it doesn't apply to me. Instead, it conjures up images of someone being saved at the considerable risk of loss to others. During World War II army air force rescue pilots carried "bail out" kits with them on every mission. The kits contained: a chocolate bar, chewing gum, fishing line, fish hooks, safety pins, matches, a saw blade, whetstone, a sling shot, bottle of mercurochrome, eye salve, sulpher tablets, eye salve, gauze and other items. The pilots were trained to save themselves and never went on a mission without a bailout kite design to make sure that they survive with a little damage as possible. Whenever large companies face collapse, many people suspect that the pilots of these big companies have bailout kits to save themselves, even if their planes go down and everyone else loses. That's what makes people nervous.

If we have ever faced a time a trouble, we are facing it now. People are losing their homes by hook or crook. Prices are soaring above our ability to pay and unemployment is rising. There are many who are tempted to "bail when life fails!" Today, the word of God reminds us that even in this time of trouble God is still in control.

As Christians, we are confident that whatever the crises; on land or sea, that our heavenly father watches over us. In a time of trouble he shall shelter us and protect us in his secret place and will ultimately lift us up.

Exposition

This text focuses on David as he explains his confidence that God would readily be available to help him in a time of trouble.

David was familiar with troubling times. His entire life, at some point or another, seemed to be surrounded by a variety of troubles that ranged from attacks by animals, or giant sized villains.

As a child he attended the flocks of his father and was faced with troubling situations repeatedly. Wild animals such as lions and bears came to attack his sheep, David responded to each instance by staying calm and taking control. Even when he faced the giant Goliath, David knew what to do. His life was in imminent danger, yet he displayed confidence. As a musician for King Saul his life was often threatened as the King threw his spear at him in rages of jealousy. As a hunted outlaw he was repeatedly surrounded by the armies of King Saul and faced life-threatening circumstances in every circumstance. David remained calm, did what was necessary, and always called on God.

In the 27th Psalm David responded to trouble in two ways. The first aspect of his plan was to trust in God. His statement of trust was in Psalm 27:1, "The Lord is my light and my salvation." That statement was an affirmation of his belief that God was in control of every circumstance, every situation and every emergency. In Psalm 27:5 David maintains that he would seek protection and security in the presence of God. This was significant because in biblical times the temple was a place of sanctuary. Invaders, even soldiers respected it as holy ground. Those who found refuge in the house of the Lord found security and safety from their enemies. One of David's descendants, young King Joash found this to be true because he was hidden from enemies in the sanctuary for six years. (2 Kings 11:3)

In the temple or in the presence God David offered sacrifices, worship and an upright spirit. Regardless to what when on around him or how the world came against him, he found solace in the presence of God.

When trouble came David was prepared to respond. He was confident in God, knew what to do, and most importantly, that in his time of trouble, God was able to bail him out.

God's Bailout Plan

Whenever large financial institutions face crises there is always talk of bailing them out, protecting them or shoring up their operations. We hear the discussions on the news but have difficulty relating to bailout discussions because they never involve us personally. While everyone is concerned about bailing out the rich and affluent, is there anyone concerned the lowly retiree who may be forced to re-enter the job market in their golden years because of financial failures in other places. Who will bail him out? Who will bail out the couple who is struggling to keep their little business open but can't because of the rising cost of supplies? Who will bail out the struggling parent who doesn't live on Wall Street or main street, but in a back alley saddled with rising bills and very little income? Is there a bailout plan for the righteous, god fearing family that seeks to do God's will? Today, brothers and sisters, the word of God reassures us that in the time of trouble, if no one else will, God will bail you out!

CONSIDER DAVID'S CONFIDENCE: In times of trouble we must consider David's confidence. He surely trusted that God would not abandon the righteous. In difficult times it is this feeling of confidence that inspires the believer to say "all is well." Even when those around them are panicking believers are able to stand boldly, assured that God is still on the throne and still hears and answers prayers. Such confidence inspires believers to sing the words of the songwriter, "The Lord will make a way somehow.

Like David our confidence is rooted in the knowledge that God knows the troubles that we face and he will show up and act out his will. We can say that confidently because God has actually moved and acted in our lives. He has made ways for us. He has opened doors for us and made a way out of no way. Thus, in troubling times we act in confidence because we know that our God is able.

This spirit of confidence might be what the song writer had in mind when he penned the words: "Jesus knows all about our struggles, he will guide till the day is done; There's not a friend like the lowly Jesus, no not one; no not one!"

DAVID TOOK CORRECTIVE ACTION: David took action to correct inequities within his power. In some instances, David was the instrument of forgiveness and compassion. In others, it was necessary to correct himself that he might be able to act quickly to resolve a national dilemma. That's what happened in the 51st Psalm when David declared, "Create in me a clean heart and renew a right spirit within me." The principle is thus established: If you want God to bail you out, you must take corrective action. There are many upset with government bailouts because often the public loses. In 1971 we lost $19 billion bailing out Penn Central Railroad; in 1984 we lost $185 million bailing out Franklin National; we lost $1.8 billion bailing out Continental Illinois Bank. Just this year alone we have bailed out Bear Stearns, Freddie Mac, Fannie Mae, and AIG at a cost of $330 billion. Now there is consideration of a $700 billion bailout of assets from a grab bag of companies.

The biblical model requires corrective action and humility if we want to be bailed out. On a personal level, if we want God to bail us out, we too must take corrective actions. We can't expect God to bail us out if our people, places and things remain the same. We must humbly correct ourselves. 2 Chronicles 7:14 makes it plan, "If my people which are called by name, shall humble themselves and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then will I hear from heaven and will forgive their sin and will heal their land."

DAVID NEVER STOPPED PRAISING GOD: David resolved to continue praising God even though times were troubling. In Psalm 27:6 he says, "And now shall my head be lifted up..I will sing praises unto the Lord." It's important for believers to lift up their heads in times of trouble. Believers are not defeated, although they may endure setbacks or difficulties. The defeated are those who have no God on their side. We raise our heads because we know that our God is working behind the scenes to help us correct our situation. We raise our head because we are sure that all things work to the good of those who love the Lord.

David emphasized the immediacy of his response by noting "And now.." That is a statement of faith in the time of trouble, not some undetermined date.

"And now.." is an assertion of a sure response. Believers should assume the same posture. "And now" in the midst of the crises, we will lift up our heads and praise the God of our salvation as we remember David's words in Psalm 37:25, "I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread." In response, we will lift his name up high for he is a good God and his mercy endureth forever."

God will bail you out

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should note that if you are willing to humble ourselves, correct our deficiencies and remain loyal to God, he will bail you out!

When trouble was all around him David called on the Lord. In Psalm 121 we hear him declare, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help, my help cometh from the Lord who made the heavens and the earth."

That means, just stay prayed up and remember that God is still on the throne, he is able to deliver us!

The Hebrews faced death in the fiery furnace but the Lord cooled the flames and bailed them out!

Daniel was lowered in the den of lions, but the Lord turned them into kittens and bailed him out!

A woman caught in the act of adultery was about to be stoned, but Lord challenged her self-righteous accusers to cast the first stone, and then he bailed her out!

The woman at the well told the whole city, "Come see a man who told me all I've ever done." She was excited because the Lord had bailed her out!

When the Lord bails you out:

—IMPOSSIBLE can become possible; the IMPROBABLE becomes probable

—MOUNTAINS that stand in your way can be reduced to MOLEHILLS!

—ROUGH PLACES can be made plain, crooked places can be made straight!

Let us approach these difficult times with confidence that, come what may from day to day, my heavenly father watches over me!

If I fall down, he'll pick me up!

If I make a mistake, he will forgive me!

If I stumble, he'll hold my hand!

If I can't find my way, he'll guide me! That's why I'll say, "Guide me oh thou great Jehovah, pilgrim through this barren land. I am weak but thou art mighty; hold me with thou powerful hand!"

With a little help from the Lord..the weary can be at rest!

With a little help from the Lord..the lonely can get comfort for their souls!

With a little help from the Lord..the weak can find new strength!

In tough times call on Jesus!

Call on Jesus because he can:

-Rebuild what Satan has destroyed

-Recover what Satan has stolen

-Clarify what Satan has confused

-Beautify what Satan has made ugly

-Release what Satan has bound

Before time began God had a bailout plan. But he didn't put it in the hands of Republicans or Democrats, bankers of financial analysts; he put it in the hands of his son!

And whosoever believeth on him shall be saved

He lived down here for 33 long years!

He died out on Calvary!

But early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave

And he's ready to bail you out!

SCRIPTURE: Romans: 7:3-5 " So then if, while her husband liveth, she be married to another man, she shall be called an adulteress: but if her husband be dead, she is free from that law; so that she is no adulteress, though she be married to another man. Wherefore, my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ; that ye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead, that we should bring forth fruit unto God. For when we were in the flesh, the motions of sins, which were by the law, did work in our members to bring forth fruit unto death."

Introduction

Do you know anyone who is living on the downlow? The downlow is a term that was popularized around 2001 to describe men who lived normal heterosexual lives but maintained secret lives just the opposite of their public persona. Their alternate lives, kept hidden, disguised their propensity for the gay life. Their traditional lives made it difficult to discover or even suspect them of embracing an alternative arrangement. The shocking reality split families and marriages when it became known that they were living on the DL.

In one life they are married men with beautiful wives and children. They are often professional men whose reputations in professional circles are impeccable. They are active in their churches and are considered stalwart examples of the traditional family. Yet, in their alternative life they have a fascination for men and frequent establishments, web sites and gatherings that facilitate easy encounters.

As an increasing number of monogamous black women, married and faithful to one man, started contracting the AIDS virus, the DL activity was revealed as a culprit. The stats prompted an investigation. Something was wrong when 2/3 of the women in the United States who discovered they had AIDS were black. The connection is easily made. The Center for disease control says 1 in 3 black men who have sex with another male partner contract AIDS. Those on the DL bring it home to their wives.

Living on the DL is the 21st century term for living in the closet, except it now applies to married men as well. There are literally millions of men in America who are living on the DL according to NY Times Magazine.

If that revelation is thought provoking, consider this question. Is it possible to be a part of the family of God, but also have another entirely separate family that is not of God? Is it possible that there are millions of men and women who believe in God, attend church and may even be church leaders but they secretly live another life, in the world, outside of the prying eyes or knowledge of the church?

As Christians, we strive to remain faithful to Christ. He is our all and all and there is none other beside him.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul writing to the Romans explaining that believers are now married to Christ and are dead to the world.

Jews who became Christians had to establish a new relationship with God. Prior to becoming Christians they adhered to the teachings of Moses, known as the law. The law consisted of the 10 commandments and about 600 more. They strictly ordered their lives to living the letter of the law. They were faithful to the law in every respect. For all practical purposes they were married to the law. Using that example, Paul told them that when Christ died on the cross that relationship with the law died. It was the same as a person who had been once married and their partner died. They are now free to marry another. Christians, said Paul are now married to Christ, not bound by the law.

Because Christians are married to Christ they are no longer married to sin. They have forsaken the world and committed themselves to living for Christ: for better or worse, for richer or poorer, in sickness and in health, until death separates us.

Our relationship with the world responds to our flesh. However, in our new relationship with Christ we are spiritually monogamous.

Jesus remains the center of our joy.

Down Low Living

Living on the downlow is repugnant and offensive to those affective. Yet, living on the spiritual downlow is just as offensive to God.

There are two levels of living on the spiritual downlow:

THE CHRISTIAN WHO CHEATS ON CHRIST WITH THE WORLD: The first method of downlow living involves the Christian who is a part of the family of God, but secretly embraces the world. When we speak of the spiritual downlow, the subject can either be male or female. She is the one who loves the church and works in its ministries, but has an affair with the world every weekend. He is the one who devotes time and energy to worship, praise and personal growth, but also has an affair with drugs, alcohol and worldly pleasure. It's the worshipping college student that believes in God but also believes in the party life as well. It's the young person who aspires to the Christian life on Sunday but stays far away from it on Monday. When that happens we are on the spiritual downlow. We are married to Christ but we cheat on him with the world.

The Christian (not just Church member) who cheats on Christ usually finds it difficult to do in good conscience. He may convince himself that his actions for Christ in ministry give him a free pass to sin in his other life, but on the inside he knows God is not pleased. There is a war going on internally because a true believer can't sin in peace. The word of God says in Hebrews 12:6 "For whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth." That means that when we are saved, God works on our spirit and conscience. He whips us until we repent.

Paul referred to this war in Romans 7:15-20, "For that which I do I allow not: for what I would, that do I not; but what I hate, that do I. If then I do that which I would not, I consent unto the law that it is good. Now then it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me. For I know that in me (that is, in my flesh,) dwelleth no good thing: for to will is present with me; but how to perform that which is good I find not. For the good that I would I do not: but the evil which I would not, that I do. Now if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me."

When we became Christians our old relationship with the world died. Our woman chasing; died. Our drinking and gambling; died. Our party life, died. Our lives of crime and deceit; died. That old marriage to the world was broken when it was nailed to the cross of Christ and we were buried with him in baptism. Romans 6:6 puts it this way, "Knowing this, that our old man is crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin." When the angels in heaven see us kissing up to the world their reaction is the same as the one we have when we see to men kissing…uggh! That's Nasty! Living on the spiritual downlow is repugnant to God.

THERE ARE SOME IN THE WORLD ON THE DOWNLOW: Just as there are many in the church who are cheating on God, there are many in the world who secretly believe in God, but don't want it really known. There are millions of people who are closet believers. Even though they are living a truly deviant life, something inside of them keeps pointing them to God. They read the bible. On occasion they slip away and go to a church service. They even help ministries of the church financially. In their private moments they abhor the life they live but seem as though they can't break free.

There are some who really want to break their ties with the devil but they are ashamed to let anyone know that they have been kissing up to the devil for so long. They are ashamed because their friends will laugh and ridicule them. They are ashamed to admit that they are not really as mean, tough, thuggish and worldly as everyone thinks. They are ashamed to admit that they need God to help them.

For this reason some are trying to live on the flip side of the spiritual downlow: They want to give the appearance of worldliness but get them a relationship with God at the same time. It's the relationship with God that they want to keep secret. Yet Christ made it plain that he expects those who follow him to let it be known to others. In Luke 9:26 he said, ""For whosoever shall be ashamed of me and my words, of him shall the Son of man be ashamed, when he shall come into his own glory…" Christ told his disciples that those who are ashamed to own him before men, those who keep their true feelings about him locked up in the closet, that he would be ashamed to own them before his father which is in heaven. Christ wants us to come out of the closet. He wants us to turn from our wicked ways and he will forgive and make a change in your life.

Before the most high God

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember there is no blessing in living on the downlow, but in living faithfully before the most high God.

While Paul talked to the Romans about dying in Christ and turning loose the old worldly life, he also talked about being resurrected with Christ to a brand new life.

In Romans 6:5 he said, "For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection:"

That means if we have died to the horrors of the old life, we have been resurrected to a new life that is lived faithfully in the presence of the most high God.

I don't know about you but I'd rather live a day in the presence of an upright God than a thousand years downlow.

I'd rather lift up mine eyes to the hills from whence cometh my help, than to keep living in hell downlow.

I'd rather stand up and praise the most high God than celebrate certain death with the demons downlow.

There is a blessing to serving an upright God.

Because he is an upright God, if I have a:

—PROBLEM he has a solution: QUESTION he has an answer

—THIRST he has the living water; WORRY he has a consolation

—CRISES he has the miracle I need

You might choose to take the down road, but as for me and my house, we'll take the high road because that's where Jesus is.

Living on the downlow is to live in sin.

Living on the downlow is to take something that is good and turn it into something evil.

Living on the downlow is to take something that's holy and turn it into something vulgar.

Living on the downlow is to take something that's pure and turn it into something corrupt.

Living on the downlow is to take something that is precious and turn it into something worthless.

Some might choose to live on the downlow but I think I rather be blessed in the presence of the most high God.

His name is Jesus, the Lily of the Valley!

His name is Jesus, the Bright and Morning Star!

He died out on Calvary!

But Early Sunday morning!

Which way are you running?

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

October 2008

SCRIPTURE: Whereupon the king took counsel, and made two calves of gold, and said unto them, It is too much for you to go up to Jerusalem: behold thy gods, O Israel, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt." -1 Kings 12:28; But they that wait upon the LORD shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint. Isaiah 40:31

Introduction

Have you ever found yourself constantly running? Have you made some serious decisions about the direction in which you are running. We are all running trying to get somewhere but it looks like we're going nowhere fast.

We are running to work, school, meeting, appointments, rehearsals, practices, and assignments. It seem that most of our lives are spent running.

We're busy running trying to move up in the world without ever really deciding which way is really up.

Is it possible that we could be running but not in the right direction? Consider the country boy who became fed up with backwoods life. In all his life, he'd been no further than the country store and he decided that it was time for him to move up. He packed his suitcase and bid his parents farewell. Before leaving his mother, aware that he'd never been anywhere before, advised him to "keep your eye on the Silver Eagle, #402 it passes here every day going straight to Chicago." The boy kept his mother's advice in mind. He never took his eye off the Silver Eagle. Even in the huge depot with scores of other Silver Eagles, he kept watching train number 402. He boarded the train and laid down in the sleeping car and fell fast asleep. When he awoke the next morning he expected to be near Chicago. However, instead of Chicago he learned that the train was pulling into New Orleans. Upset he ran to the conductor and said, "I kept my eye on the train just like mama said, #402. What I am doing here in New Orleans?" The conductor answered. In the mornings the 402 is South Bound on Track 2, in the evenings it's Southbound on Track 1. I'm sorrow to tell you young fellow, but it looks like you're on the right train, but you're on the wrong track!"

As Christians, when we consider all of the running we do, we should make sure that we are running toward God and not away from him..

Exposition

This text focuses on an ambitious young king who wanted desperately to move up in the world, but took the wrong road.

Jeroboam was a man of great talent an ambition. He rose to prominence as the chief foreman of Solomon's laborers as they worked to build the temple. He did such a great job that he was quickly promoted. He was everywhere, running hard to prove his superior administrative skills. He was promoted but he wanted to go even higher. He capitalized on the complaints and grumblings of the people and tried to organized them to revolt against the king but was discovered. He ran away to Egypt until after the death of Solomon. When 10 of the 12 tribes revolted against the rule of Solomon's son Rehoboam, they remembered Jeroboam and made him king.

Jeroboam was running fast. He had position, power and money but to maintain his position he went to serious extremes. First, he was aware of the loyalty that the people attached to worship at the Temple in Jerusalem. The people loved to worship God so much that they walked for days and weeks just to sit within his presence at the temple. Even though most traveled down from the Northern Kingdom to worship at Jerusalem, they always referred to their journey as going "up" to Jerusalem. In nearly every scriptural passage in the bible that refers to journeying to Jerusalem, the journey is referred to as going "up." They referred to Jerusalem as "up" for two reasons. First, because the city sat squarely on two mountains: Mt. Moriah and Mt. Zion. Any person coming to Jerusalem would have to climb up. Secondly, the designation of "up" to Jerusalem indicates the high esteem that the people placed on the city as the place where they worshiped God.

This posed a problem for Jeroboam. If the people of the North held a spiritual tie to his rival in the South eventually, he felt, they would once again become a part of the Southern kingdom. His solution was to get them to run in a different direction.

To do that he changed the direction of 'up." The people would appear to be worshipping but they would actually never get to be in God's presence because they would be running in the wrong direction.

How did he do that?

He erected two golden calves for the people to worship. He placed one at Dan in the North and the other at Bethel in the South. These were to be the shrines of public worship for the people. Theologians differ as to whether he intended to introduce idol worship or to give his people a visible shrine before which to worship. No one doubts however, that he intended to dissuade Israel from going "up" to Jerusalem.

He devised a cute trick to keep the people running in what appeared to be worship but was actually a misguided devotion to an idol god. They were on the right train, but on the wrong track.

Isaiah 40:31 tells us a great truth. If we wait on the Lord we shall have renewed strength to soar like eagles and run without being weary. Even if we walk a great distance we will not faint. Our challenge is to be sure that we are running and walking in the right direction.

Which way are you running?

Today there are many people who are similar to Jeroboam in that they are ambitious and desire to move up and they are running in many directions. The desire to move up was not Jeroboam's problem. There is no scriptural ban on prosperity, ambition and success. His problem was that he was willing to do just about anything to move up and then once up, would compromise himself to stay up. In that respect there are many today who are just like Jeroboam who concluded that the ends justify the means.

There should be no confusion on our part as to the direction of our run. Every Christian should know exactly where he or she is going in life. That implies that we should also know where we are NOT going as well. In our quest to move up we should be careful to avoid undertakings that might cause us to run in the wrong direction.

Career opportunities often place many young adults in awkward positions. Many take on great responsibilities to advance their careers, usually at the expense of their family life. If we move up on the job and make more money but lose our family, shouldn't it be time to stop and ask, in which direction am I running?

Sometimes our careers seriously disrupt our religious life. Families accustomed to worship, working in the church, bible study and other activities are placed in the cumbersome position of choosing between their careers and their religious life. If we are running ourselves into the ground trying to move up on the job but lose our relationship to God, it may be time for us to question the direction in which we are running.

We should resolve that we are not going run anywhere or any direction that will take us further away from God. We shouldn't stop running, but we should be sure that we are running in the right direction.

Run in the direction of God

Jeroboam's problem was complicated because the people saw Jerusalem as the place where they found God. Although he built statues and gave royal decrees he found that he could not successfully change the direction of "up" because going "up to Jerusalem" represented going to be with God.

In today's perplexing times many are really confused and do not know which way to go. They are asking themselves the question: "What shall I do? Which road should I take?" In essence they are asking the question "In which direction should I run?"

In answer to that question the answer comes: "Run to wherever God is?" If God is not in it, we are running in the wrong direction.

If we are running to make millions, but God is not in it, then we are running in the wrong direction.

If we are running to build a great house but God is not in it, then we are running the wrong direction.

If we get running to get a new car, and that car will take us away from God, then we are running in the wrong direction.

If we running to get married without the godly values of truth, honesty and love, then God's not in it, we're running in the wrong direction because it'll all fall apart.

We should run to wherever God is!"

If we move up without God then we are on our way down!

No wonder the song writer declares: "Without God, I could do nothing. Without him, I'd surely fail. Without God I would be drifting, like a ship without a sail."

If you are going to run you have to put on your running shoes you can't run in:

BROGANS because they may cause you to walk on people.

TAP SHOES because all you will do is make a lot of noise

DRESS SHOES because you'll be to pretty to do Lord any good.

DANCE SHOES because you'll party your life away!

HIGH HEELS because you may get too high for lowly work

HOUSE SHOES because you'll never want to leave home

If you are going to run you must put on your running shoes.

Ephesians 6:15 says we should "shod your feet with the preparation of the gospel of peace."

That means we've got to put our running shoes and run in the right direction!

Joshua, if asked the question, "Which way are running?" might have answered, I'm running to war family devotion to God. "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

Job, you are suffering a long period of difficulty, Which way are running? I can hear Job answer, ""All the days of my appointed time, I wait until my change comes."

David, which way are you running? Hear him declare, "I will lift up my eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help, my help cometh from the Lord, which made the heaven and earth."

Ruth, Which way are running? She answers by saying running in the right direction is following God, "Your people shall be my people, your God shall be my God."

Isaiah, which way are running? I'm running to answer the call of service "If the Lord needs somebody, here am I, send me."

Joshua was running to build a stronger family devotion.

For David running in the right direction was running toward a place of refuge;

For Ruth, running in the right direction was running toward a commitment to follow

For Isaiah, running in the right direction was to answer the call to service...but there is one other we must consider…

What about Jesus?

Jesus, which direction are you running? For Jesus there is only one direction to run, it's the way to salvation for Acts 4:12, says "Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved."

If you run on and take up your cross , I will lift you up.

For one of these days I'll be lifted up, but don't worry about it for "I, if I, be lifted up from the earth, will draw all me unto me."

You are running in the right direction if you feed the hungry and help the poor!

You are running in the right direction if you console the broken hearted and encourage those who have lost hope.

You are running in the right direction if you visit the sick and pray for the lost.

You are running in the right direction if you teach a child and reach soul for Jesus!

You are running in the right direction if you tell somebody about Jesus!

Tell them how he died! Tell them how he rose again!

I don't know about you but I believer I'll run on and see what the end will be!

Lazarus, Come Forth!

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 26, 2008

SCRIPTURE: "And when he thus had spoken, he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth. And he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with graveclothes: and his face was bound about with a napkin. Jesus saith unto them, Loose him, and let him go."—John 11:43, 44.

Introduction

Do you believe in Zombies? Most of us have seen movies at one time or another about these fabled lifeless creatures who walk the streets terrorizing and destroying everything they touch. During this time of the year there are many movies on television about vampires, zombies and the walking dead.

The idea of Zombies came from the Afro-Caribbean religious belief called Voo-Doo. Many refer to it is "Hoo-Doo." The Voo-Doo belief is that a dead person can be raised by a witch doctor called a Bokor. After being raised the witch doctor can control the actions of the Zombie.

Louisiana is rich with Voo-Doo culture but the rest of the world knows about it through books and movies. In 1968 a scary movie "The night of the Living Dead" really scared a whole generation of teenagers. The Zombies walked the streets with arms stretched out in a mindless cadence. They were hit with boards, shot with guns and set afire but they kept coming. Zombies and Vampires, at least in some of the movies, seemed to have an aversion to the sun. With a few exceptions, they preferred to be creatures of the night. At Halloween, many of the Zombie movies are resurrected and play repeatedly on television.

We laugh at the idea of Zombies, but is it possible for people to be spiritual zombies? Can a person be walking and talking among us and be spiritually dead?

The bible teaches that people who live without Christ are spiritually dead. They walk and they talk among us but they have no life. That's why Jesus came, to make their lives real and to offer them hope.

As Christians, we don't believe in Zombies or Voo-Doo. We put our trust in God and through him we live resurrected lives that are witnesses to his greatness.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus after the death of Lazarus.

In this text, we have an opportunity to see not one but two eternal truths demonstrated in one incident. Lazarus died and had been in the grave for four days. Jesus had been called by the sisters of Lazarus, Mary and Martha, but he arrived after the death and the funeral had ended.

The text highlights the resurrection of the dead. It gave Christ a chance to demonstrate his power over death and the grave. In old times, the resurrection was preached by the apostles and they were familiar with the idea in theory. Jesus used the death of Lazarus to give them a living example of what the resurrection would really mean.

Christ came to the grave site and told them to roll the stone away. He then called out for Lazarus to come forth and instantly Lazarus came forth still wearing his grave clothes. Jesus then commanded that they would loose him and let him go.

However, there is a greater truth. The resurrection of Lazarus is a type of the spiritual death of every believer and his resurrection to a new life at the command of God.

We are Lazarus

Many of us have much in common with Lazarus and with the response of Christ to his situation.

SOME ARE WALKING DEAD: Lazarus had been in the grave for four days and his physical state was deteriorating. When Jesus appeared at the gravesite, he came at the point when everyone around acknowledged that Lazarus was dead. Those who live in sin are dead to real living. Their hopes are dead, their dreams are dead, and their ambitions are dead. For all practical purposes those who live in sin are walking dead. It's the only explanation of why people drink alcohol excessively, although they know it's destroying their organs. It's the only reason why the drug addict would forsake family, and risk personal health to continue on a path that will lead to sudden death. There are millions today who are among the walking dead, virtual zombies, moving around each day without life, but spiritually lifeless. There are marriages that are dead; students who are dead; friendships that are dead; churches that are dead, and whole communities that are dead; and like Lazarus have been done for a long time.

THE STONE WAS ROLLED AWAY: When Jesus came to the grave of Lazarus, he ordered the stone rolled away. John 11:41 says, "Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead was laid." The stone was erected in front of the tomb but it wasn't to keep Lazarus in, but to keep others out. For Lazarus to resume a new life, the stones had to be removed. The same is true for anyone that expects to get a new start: the stones must be rolled away. The stones that blocked tombs were huge, if they were moved at all they had to be moved from outside, anyone trapped within would be powerless to move them. It's the same way with a person who is trying to come from an old dead life and step into a new one, he or she needs help outside of themselves. Addictions, distractions, weaknesses and bad habits are huge stones that stand between a new life and the old life. Despite a man's best desires, the stones prove too heavy for a single effort. However, with God these stones can be rolled away. God can give the command on behalf and obstacles that block our path and make life miserable for us can be removed.

THE DEAD WAS GIVEN NEW LIFE: Though Lazarus was dead, Jesus gave him new life. It's the spirit of God that gives us life. That's what Jesus came to bring to each of us. In John 10:10, Jesus said, "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." Without God's spirit we are spiritually dead, unmotivated, uninspired, moving through life aimlessly and without purpose. Without God we are powerless to respond to the issues of life with any amount of passion or purpose.

Without him we lack the means necessary to grow and achieve. There are many today who are attempting to live without God, but their best efforts repeatedly result in their joining the growing ranks of the walking dead. What can revive such a person? For Lazarus it was the presence of Christ. For those who are lost, the answer is the same.

WE MUST BE LOOSED: When Lazarus arose, he was alive but he stilled looked dead. The reason that he looked dead was because he still wore his grave clothes. The grave clothes gave him a confusing presence. It was obvious that he was alive but yet he was still tied wrap up and tied up as if he was dead. Jesus commanded that he be loosed. There are many today who have been given new spiritual life, but like Lazarus they are stilled wrapped up in their grave clothes. They still frequent people, places and things that were associated with their death. They are still tangled up in the same doubts and fears that troubled them before they met the Lord. They present a striking contrast. They are saved on one hand but are wrapped up, tied up and tangled up in grave clothes. To have a true witness for Christ we must be loosed from our grave clothes. To follow him freely we must cut loose anything that associates us with our dead life, so that we can have life and have it more abundantly.

A Miraculous Witness

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must note that once raise, Lazarus became a walking example of the miraculous power of God.

Christ had performed many miracles prior to raising Lazarus. An impotent man was given new strength. A blind man had his sight restored, but the raising of Lazarus was the last of the great miracles. Because Lazarus had been dead so long, it was undeniably a miraculous act that raised him.

Everywhere Lazarus went he became a billboard for the Lord, advertising his power to resurrect the dead and give new life. In a similar sense, we who were once among the walking dead, also become walking reminders of the miracle working power of God.

Those who know what we used to be are convinced of the power of God when they see our new life.

As the spirit of God begins to consume us it impacts us and changes our direction. People will begin to notice that our conversation changes, the places we go change, and the things we do change. They will whisper among themselves.

The devil is not happy when we live our new resurrected life. Crowds followed

Jesus because of Lazarus. John 12:9 says the crowd came to see Jesus but "That they might see Lazarus also."

Everyone won't be happy that you have stopped your old way of living and have turned to Christ. There will be some who will "hate" on you. John 12:10-11 says, "But the chief priests consulted that they might put Lazarus also to death; because that by reason of him many of the Jews went away, and believed on Jesus."

Lazarus had new life but they tried to kill him all over again because of what Christ had done for his life!

Those who have been raised and given new life have a testimony.
They can testify that God is able to take our BURDENS and lighten our load!
PROBLEMS and help us find the answers!
DARKNESS and turn it into light!
WEAKNESSES and turn them into strengths!
SET BACKS and turn them into come backs!
STUMBLING BLOCKS and turn them into stepping stones!
He was able to raise me up and turn me around.
He was able to deliver me!
Who is this deliverer?
His name is Jesus!
The mighty God!
Jesus, The Rose of Sharon!
Who died out on Calvary!
But early Sunday morning arose from the grave!
His name is Jesus and because he lives, we have new life today!

Arise, Barak and set thy Captivity Captive!

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 2, 2008

SCRIPTURE: Awake, awake, Deborah: awake, awake, utter a song: arise, Barak, and lead thy captivity captive, thou son of Abinoam. Judges 5:12

Introduction

Have you ever been so excited about something that you started the celebration early? That's the way it is sometimes in life. It's called anticipation.

Although history has warned us about the dangers of celebrating victories before they are won, there are times when the temptation to celebrate early is tempting. If we get too excited, we can lose focus and what should have been a victory could turn out to be a defeat. Many remember the infamous 1948 election for President of the United States in which Thomas Dewey was ahead in all polls against Harry S. Truman. In fact, the media announced that Dewey was so many points ahead that he was unbeatable. He had the money, the popularity, drew huge crowds and was a shoo-in. Dewey's campaign began celebrating early. They were so confident that the Chicago Tribune published a headline before the polls closed "Dewey Defeats Truman!"-but when it was over Dewey lost, big time.

Remembering history, we know that while it's tempting to celebrate before the victory is won, especially when the victory is obvious to so many, there is a need for caution.

Even with caution, the sheer thought of victory after years of defeat is titillating and exciting.

So whenever these situations exist in our lives we approach them with cautious anticipation and deliberate determination to become completely victorious.

This truth exists in all spears of life. We should never assume victories are imminent and lay down our shields and spears. We should, however, anticipate the victory but remain ever vigilant, watchful and ready to march at a minute's notice.

As Christians, we stand ready to fight this life's battles. We face each one with an anticipation of victory because we sense the hand of God moving. Even as we arise to sing the victory song, we must watch, fight and pray every step of the way.

Exposition

This text focuses on a song of praise for the victory of Deborah and Barak. Barak had routed Sisera, Jabin's captain, and all his hosts. With ten thousand men he had completely demoralized and destroyed his enemies, all that was left was the victory party. Here, Deborah, the great champion of the Judges and Barak the careful, insightful but formidable leader of a great army become the objects of the song of victory that the people sang, since most of the hard work had been done and very little was left to do but celebrate.

This song of victory admonishes Deborah to awake and Barak to rise and claim the victory that will set the captives completely free.

This text focuses on two characters: Deborah and Barak. Deborah was one of the few named women who were called to leadership in the Old Testament. She was a prophetess, a judge and a military leader. As a judge she decided the disputes between the people under "Deborah's tree". As a military leader she actually led men into battle and arose victorious. This text focuses on her role as a prophetess.

In an earlier chapter Deborah was commanded by God to speak to an obscure young man by the name of Barak and tell him that God would use him to assemble a large army of followers for what seemed to be the impossible task of lifting the people to victory against tremendous odds.

He was called to assemble this army from diverse tribes who often opposed each other.

Moreover he had to convince them that they could arise victorious after having suffered defeat for so long. When they complained that the enemy was too great Barak was called to inspire them to remember, "Yes, we can!"

Responding to Deborah's call, the weapons of war were collected and Barak prepared for battle, having little experience, but moving at God's command. Thousands rallied to him from two tribes that were of the same nationality but different interests. However, under Barak, they combined forces to form a mighty army.

Just before it was time to march in victory Deborah presents him with a new song.

This song is a song of victory! It is a song of celebration for the victory of Deborah and Barak specifically, but it is also a type of the song of victory our savior will have when he finally ascends the throne to his great victory over sin, the devil and the grave.

The phrase "set thy captivity captive" is not isolated; it has been used before in scripture. Most often it refers to Christ in his triumph. In Psalm 68:18 David, speaking of the millennial Christ, declares, "Thou hast ascended on high, thou hast led captivity captive: thou hast received gifts for men; yea, for the rebellious also, that the LORD God might dwell among them." He sees the triumphant day in which the Lord prepares to dwell among men as the ultimate victor. This is the same text referred to in Ephesians 4:8, "Wherefore he saith, When he ascended up on high, he led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men, " in celebration. This phrase is a forceful expression of victory for our Lord who went into the captivity of death and the grave to arise the victor through his resurrection.

The song's theme "Arise Barak", was a call to rise up and claim the victory. It was also a call to the people to do what needed to be done to insure that the triumphant march succeeded in setting captivity captive.

We Have been held Captive

There are millions in this nation that have been held captive and we wait anxiously for God to make our captivity captive. We long for the day that Amos saw when he declared that "Justice will run down like waters and righteousness like a mighty stream." When the prospect of realizing Martin Luther King's dream seems closer than ever, there is a general excitement in those who have been distant from realizing the American Dream.

The cry "Arise Barak and set thy captivity captive" is a call to arms. It is similar to the call that the Children of Israel gave anytime they engaged in battle. They placed the ark of the covenant in front of them and chanted 'Rise up, O LORD! May your enemies be scattered; may your foes flee before you.'

While the cry of this text was to Deborah and Barak, we who live on the fumes of hope raise our cry of victory, not to Barak but unto the Lord. From the disenchanted today the cry goes out:

ARISE OH LORD, END OUR HUMILATION. When we as a people make this plea, we follow Israel's example, we put God in front of us and pray to march. We cry out for God to arise and lift the humiliation of our condition. We have been slaves and second class citizens for so long, but it is time for our humiliation to end. We have been the objects of blunted jokes, poison tinged slurs and lynching ropes for so long, Arise oh Lord and end this humiliation. Our prayer to God is that he would usher in a day when no person will be humiliated because of color or ethnicity. We look for the day when we will be judged by the content of our character and not by the color of our skin. This long night of hatred and prejudice has held us captive for so many years, but we get anxious when we can sense the break of day. Our prayer should be that God would rise up and through someone, lead us to a point where our humiliation would end. We look to God for he is the source, he will find the man or woman make this captivity captive.

ARISE OH LORD, END OUR SUFFERING: We make this plea to God because he alone knows what we have suffered. The old warriors sang, "Nobody knows the trouble I see, nobody knows but Jesus." That's why we lift our voices to him. He knows our suffering. He has seen the scars on the backs of our great grandfathers, shackled in slavery. He has seen the Native American locked away on a reservation, with both his land and his identity stolen from him. He has seen Asian American shuttled away into little towns of obscurity. He has seen the Hispanic American hated for his willingness to work and desire to be free. He has seen the Jews of this world tortured in ovens in the Holocaust and tortured by public opinion on these shores. He has seen the women of the world pushed to the back seat and treated and non-entities. We cry out to Christ in our prayers and in our songs. That was the cry when the song writer wrote, "Jesus knows all about our struggles He will guide till the day is done There's not a friend like the lowly Jesus

No, not one! No, not one!" That's why we cry out, Arise oh Lord and end this suffering. We look to God to speak to our suffering. We rejoice, because we know God will find a man or woman to make this captivity captive and set us free.

ARISE O LORD, SET AN END TO OUR DESTRUCTION. We see our families falling down around us. Where can we go but to the Lord? The destruction is so intertwined into our system that it is bigger than we alone can fight and hope fades. Too many of our men are abandoning their families! Too many of our boys are being locked away or killed. Too many of our girls are becoming mothers before they finish being children. Too many of our families are dissolving leaving our children as orphans living in unhappy homes. Too many of our schools are graduating illiterates. Too many of our children are aspiring to live the thug's life and are satisfied to not only live in the ghetto but to have their ghetto in them; with sagging pants and even lower aspirations! We are watching the social order that has sustained us for generations crumbling around us. We have tried government programs, grants, and social initiatives, yet none seem to work. That's why we look to God and cry out, Arise oh Lord and end this destruction. Before the destruction can stop, hope must be restored, we must begin to believe in ourselves again. That's why we look to God, to inspire and motivate us to see that we can do better! We can rise higher! We can overcome. We look to god to speak to this destruction in his own way. We are singing Deborah's song with anticipation because we can sense that God will, in his own time and in his own way, find a man or woman to make this captivity captive and set us free.

Praise God for Victory!

Finally, brothers and sisters, Deborah's song was a call to victory and triumph.

The victory that Barak was being called to celebrate was not his own, but it was God's victory over the forces that held justice, mercy and compassion captive.

When the Children of Israel marched out of Egypt after 400 years of slavery they celebrated and sang a song of triumph, but it was their exodus they celebrated but God was the victor!

When David danced in the street to celebrate the return of the Ark, he rejoiced, but God was the victor!

When the psalmist declared in the 150th Psalm that we should let "everything that hath breath praise the Lord." He celebrated the goodness of God!

When we think about the goodness of God and what he has planned for those whom he loves we get excited. We have good reason because the scriptures have declared in 1 Corinthians 2:9 "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."

Arise Oh Lord, alter the paths of events in the world to make our captivity captive!

To insure the victory, the people of God must not become idle. We must fight until the victory is won.

Those who know the Lord must keep busy assured by our confidence that despite the destruction we see, God is in control.

Arise people of God! We must be busy showing compassion to those who have become the casualties of sin!

Arise people of God! We must be busy praying for the will of God to be known and shown!

Arise people of God! We must be busy raising hope to a world that has been devastated.

Arise people of God we must lift up the cross of Christ! In the cross is a hope that is based on nothing less than the blood of Christ.

That's why the songwriter wrote, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame but wholly lean on Jesus name."

Arise people of God and embrace the faith of Christ! In him the victory lies!

On Christ, the author and finisher of our faith!

On Christ, the one mediator between God and man!

On Christ, the Prince of Peace and Lord of Lords!

Who came and died for us!

On Christ, who arose early on Sunday morning!

On Christ, the solid rock I stand, all other ground is sinking sand!

The Faith of Barak

SCRIPTURE:" Then sang Deborah and Barak the son of Abinoam on that day, saying, Praise ye the LORD for the avenging of Israel, when the people willingly offered themselves" Judges 5:1

Introduction

Isn't it amazing how God uses little things and little known people to accomplish his will? In course of our lives we have seen God move in many ways to set sequences of events in motion that resulted in his will being accomplished. Often he selected obscure people who appeared to have little hope of achieving anything significant then turned their lives into tremendous forces for good.

David had no idea that one day he would be King of Israel.

Jeremiah had no idea he would be a prophet and Saul certainly did not expect to be among the greatest missionaries in biblical history. They were all obscure persons who had one thing in common, faith in God and faith in themselves.

When we study the lives of great men and women of the bible it helps us see how their faith translated into action. We also see how God used them to accomplish his will.

In modern times, whether in politics, economics or in our families, men and women of faith can learn a few things from looking at the great heroes of the bible.

As Christians, our desire is to be used by God in the same way that the heroes of scripture were used. They stepped out on faith to tackle impossible odds, confident that if they pursuit was God's will, it could be accomplished.

Exposition

This text focuses on the leadership of Barak as one used by God to accomplish his will.

Who was Barak? He was a military leader of the Old Testament who has been listed among the heroes of faith of all times.

The Children of Israel were subjugated by the Canaanites. They were routed economically and politically and lived second class existences. God selected a woman, Deborah to be the judge or ruler at that time. Deborah, a dynamic personality in her own right, devised a plan to defeat the enemies of Israel and she went to Barak to get his support.

Barak was a charismatic personality. People followed him. He commanded an army of 10,000 men, which at the time was a huge force for Israel considering it subjugation. He lived in Kedesh-Naphtali and is thought to have been a member of the tribe of Issachar. The people of his area of the country had been afflicted the most by the Canaanites. Many had been taken into bondage and held prisoner. Some were killed.

Deborah's plan required a man of courage to execute it because this man would be moving against all odds. He was to move his 10,000 men of Naphtali and Zebulun in the direction of Mt. Tabor while she made moves to attract Sisera's army towards the same place. It was a brilliant plan on paper, but it would take tremendous courage to execute its details. Deborah promised that she would deliver Sisera into Barak's hands.

Barak was deliberative. He considered all of the variables and the danger of taking on such a large adversary as the Canaanites, alone. He told Deborah that he would fight the battle with Sisera but only as a part of troops following her command, as God's appointed leader.

Deborah assured Barak that the expedition would be victorious. He would arise the victor but a woman would actually get the credit for laying the groundwork for the victory.

In obedience, and operating in blind faith in God's anointed, Barak marched his men into battle. When he reached the point of the encounter he rushed his men down the side of a mountain and fought them there. Barak pursed them to Haroshet, determined to defeat this resourceful enemy.

As Barak sought out Sisera to capture him, Sisera was greeted by a woman, Jael who deceived him with kindness and a glass of milk. As he lay down in her tent to rest, the woman took a tent peg and nailed his head to the ground. When Barak arrived he found Sisera lying dead with a tent peg through his head. It was Barak's courage that forced the battle and defeated Sisera's army. It was his faith that caused Sisera to run eventually into the tent of Jael. However, it was a woman, Jael that received the final credit for killing Sisera. She got the credit for the death, but Barak went down in history as a man of faith. When the song of victory was sung in Judges 5:12 Barak's name was listed alongside that of Deborah the prophetess.

Attributes of Barak

There are three attributes of Barak's character that should be noted by every believer:

FAITH TO WORK WITH ALL PEOPLE: Barak is often misjudged. Some have accused him of being too deliberative and cautious because he refused to attack Sisera without Deborah in the lead. They saw it as a man trying to hide behind a woman. However, believers see Barak as a man who wanted to acknowledge and follow God's anointed leader. Barak was a soldier, Deborah was the leader. Barak was not a prophet, neither did he hear from God directly as did Deborah. His request for Deborah to lead was not a hesitation to lead or a desire to hide behind the skirt tails of a woman. It was his desire to follow God's anointed for the moment, who happened to be a woman.

The ability to accept and work with persons of a different tribe or even a different sex was a unique quality of Barak. In fact, any person today who hopes to succeed cannot be blinded by the incidence of gender and nationality. Just a generation ago, women were considered the weaker sex, incapable of thinking and leading. They were thought of a followers and certainly not leaders. Any man that would take direction from a woman was considered a "wimp." Yet today, the wise leader recognizes the value and importance of women in every walk of life. Barak himself was from Issachar but lived in Naphtali. He as a man of two regions and pulled the best of both regions together to form the mighty army that would lead the nation to victory.

USED AS AN INSTRUMENT OF GOD: Both Deborah and Barak were instruments of God's plan. 1 Samuel 12:11 lists Barak as being among those that God used to deliver Israel "from the hands of your enemies on every side so you lived securely." The source of the victory was God, not Barak, he was only an instrument. Even today, God uses people, causes and even nations as instruments to accomplish his will. For Israel in Egypt, Moses was the instrument. For Israel facing the Promised Land, Joshua was the instrument. And today God uses people as instruments to accomplish his will. People of faith allow themselves to be used as an instrument in God's hands to lift the downtrodden and improve the quality of life of the masses. When the poor are fed by missionaries, God has responded using the volunteers in homeless shelters and disaster centers around the world as his instruments.

In our time, the nation is suffering economic devastation. There is a famine of trust and hope seems lost. In response to the prayers of millions, God, from time to time, has raised up men and women that he has used as instruments to address the concerns of the nation. Sometimes those leaders were unaware that they were instruments of God, but people of faith recognized their role immediately.

Barak was an instrument of God in this text. Even today, there are millions of Baraks that are allowing themselves to be used as instruments for God's will. These are the millions who are visiting the sick, feeding the poor, helping the homeless, visiting the jails and listening to wounded spirits. There are even a few that are being used to change governments and even nations as instruments in the hands of God. People of God can see God moving when we see these people arise on the scene. Like an excited Israel when Moses appeared, we too are excited because it means God is responding to our needs.

GOD WENT BEFORE HIM: At first, Barak was hesitant about taking on such a great campaign. Defeating Sisera would be a formidable task. Then Deborah asked a question in Judges 4:6-7. Hasn't God commanded you to respond? That's what she asked. Then she told him to take 10, 000 men and not worry about the victory. God spoke through her to Barak and said, "I will deliver them into your hand." Barak went forth but the victory was already guaranteed. God had already set the forces at work that would guarantee his win. God had arranged the tent for Sisera to sleep in. He had the tent peg in the right place and God had arranged the route that Sisera would flee and the woman that would bring him milk. All Barak had to do was act, the victory was guaranteed.

It is the same today. When God commands believers to act, he goes before us to insure that his will is done. The necessary doors that need to be opened will be opened. Traps will be avoided. Plots will be circumscribed. When God commands, he goes ahead to insure that what he has promised comes to fruition. This is how God works. He raises up an instrument, commands, then goes ahead to insure that the instrument achieves its ultimate purpose. Whether it is a personal matter in our families or a national matter dealing with millions, when God goes before those whom he has decided to use as his instruments, victory is a certainty. Our God is a living God, who anticipates and goes before us. God has always been ahead of those he selected for a cause, whether it was Moses who was crossing the Dead Sea, whether it was the disciples who had to go with Jesus to face the cross and the Resurrection, whether it was Paul on his journeys or whether it was Deborah going into battle, God was always ahead, paving the way.

The Path to Victory

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that God shows those he appoints the path to victory.

Deborah told Barak that God had gone ahead and guaranteed the victory and responded although he could not see how that would be achieved.

Have you not heard the story of the man who wanted to explore the jungles of Africa on a Safari. The region he wanted to explore had rarely been traveled and there was no map. When he went to a local village to hire a guide they pointed him to an old man who was known as the best guide in the bush. As they set out on the journey the old man, never picked up a map or consulted a drawing but he proceeded straight for the thickest part of the trail. The tourist whispered to one of the African helpers who carried their baggage, "Why is he going through the thickest part of the jungle instead of looking for a path that will take us through. There is nothing there but jungle." Then the young helper looked at him and said. "He is the best guide in the area because he is able to see what is not there. There was once a path but it no longer exists because the jungle has overgrown and taken it back. Only he seems able to see where the path was, and where it leads. You see, my friend, he IS the path. We must follow him."

When God gives the command he creates the path. Christ himself is our path. He said, "I am the way, the truth and the life, no man can get to the father except he come by me."

He is the path.

We may walk the path to victory, but it is God who has blazed the trail.

Barak was successful in finding the path to victory because he knew the trailblazer.

Despite our origins and backgrounds, we can find the path to eternal life, if we know the trailblazer.

Even if we come from an obscure background of poverty and despair, we can find the path if we know the trailblazer!

We can overcome the barriers of race and class and educate ourselves and put others on the right path, if we know the trailblazer!

We can endure the agony of defeat and ecstasy of victory in politics, government and other paths of life, if we know the trailblazer!

We who know the Lord, are not mistaken. We do not place our hopes in the strength of Barak or the courage of Deborah, we place our hope only in the Lord.

While there are many who are path finders and know the right path, there is only one trailblazer. 1 Timothy 2:5 says, " For there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus.

Jesus, every path finder knows him by name!

Jesus, follow his path and it will carry us to forgiveness, clean hearts and humble spirits!

Jesus, follow his path and it carry us to repentance and praise of God!

Jesus, follow his path and it will show us the way to salvation!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary and arose after three days, blazed a trail from Calvary to Glory!

He has blazed a trail now, we who have the faith of Barak must rise up and walk in that path!

Yes, We Can!

SCRIPTURE: "Jesus said unto him, If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth. Mark 9:23

Introduction

Is there anything impossible for God? Is there any height so high that God cannot reach it? Is there any river so wide that God cannot cross it? Is there any valley so deep that God cannot descend to it? As believers, is there any goal beyond our reach, with God's help. Men and women of faith have known for years that the God we serve is an awesome God. We also know that as long as we stay on his side of any battle, there is nothing that we cannot achieve.

In January of 2008 Baraka Obama electrified the nation when he made a speech after winning the State of South Carolina and used three words that resonated around the nation, "Yes, we can."

Obama achieved an unprecedented victory that night and seemed to symbolize what millions in America wanted to believe. He said, "This election is about the past versus the future. It's about whether we settle for the same divisions and distractions and drama that [pass] for politics today, or whether we reach for a politics of common sense and innovation — a politics of shared sacrifice and shared prosperity," Obama said.

Many across the nation doubted that the jangling discords of national unity could ever been be rejoined but Obama offered hope and crystallized it in the structure of a simple saying that has been chanted around the world since. Millions chanted it for months in barbershops, beauty shops, street corners, and from pulpits. Eleven months later they chanted it in their hearts as they voted with their ballots and made Obama the first African-American President of the United States.

What Obama said was,

"Don't tell me we can't change. Yes, we can.

Yes, we can change. Yes, we can.

Yes, we can heal this nation.

Yes, we can seize our future.

And where we are met with cynicism and doubt and fear and those who tell us that we can't, we will respond with that timeless creed that sums up the spirit of the American people in three simple words — yes, we can."

The three words Senator Obama used that night electrified the nation as millions watching by television chanted them along with him, "Yes we can!"

While Obama's statement was made in a political context, the same can be said outside of the political arena, especially for those who believe in God.

The idea of achieving the impossible seems illogical and improbable to those outside of the faith community. They see mountains and throw up their hands in defeat asking, why? People of faith see mountains and begin to climb them asking, why not? The difference is obviously in our faith in God. We believe that God is all powerful and that through Him we can achieve the impossible.

God didn't have a candidate in the 2008 campaign. God is neither Republican nor Democrat. God has a stake in raising the lost hopes of his people. He has a stake in the outcome of our lives. We're sure he wasn't wearing a campaign button or taking sides in any election, but he will definitely be on the side of a believer who is trying to accomplish his will.

As Christians, we continue to trust God to provide for our needs. We also trust Him to help us achieve in life, according to His purpose. With that knowledge we are able to stand and boldly say, "Yes we can!

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he responded to a plea for help from a man whose son suffered from a severe illness. He seemed possessed by demons. The father had approached Christ's disciples but they were not successful in removing the demons.

When the man saw Jesus he approached him with his dilemma, but he approached with an attitude of doubt. The man said his son had experienced near-fatal convulsions from childhood. All attempts by others to heal him had failed. The failure of so many to heal him, even the failure of the disciples, had shaken his faith that anything could be done.

Jesus challenged the man by noting his use of the word "If" when he approached him. The "If "in this context should not have been addressed to God but rather to his own doubts.

The doubting man had three words: "If you can." There were only three of them but these words formed a barrier that delayed the response he should have received from heaven. Jesus took up the father's words of doubt, If You can, to show that the point was not His ability to heal the boy but the father's ability to trust in God who can do what is humanly impossible. Jesus then challenged the father not to doubt: Everything is possible for him who believes.

This action brings to focus an essential component of our faith, that as long as God is the object of our faith, anything is possible.

Triggering Our Faith

OUR FAITH TRIGGERS ACTION: Our faith often triggers our action. Without faith we come to a complete standstill. Consider the man who sat on a park bench for 40 years and did absolutely nothing. One day a friend asked, "What has kept you on this bench these 40 years?" The man answered, "If." Asked to explain he said, "If I had gone to college, I might have graduated and bought a house. If the financial markets collapsed then I might have lost my home and become homeless. I walk because if I ride the bus the bus driver might have wreck. If I get hurt in the wreck I would have a major problem because I have no insurance, so I walk. I sit in the park because if I sit inside, the roof could fall in and that would mean plenty of trouble. So you see, if has kept me on this bench for 40 years." The friend then gave an insight trying to help him see the error of his thinking. "You obviously have faith in something," said the friend. "For 40 years you have sat on that bench but never doubted what would happen if it fell." The man thought about that an immediately stood up, and spent the last 20 years of his life standing in the park, afraid of what might happen if he sat down."

What hinders us from achieving any goal? Wondering about "what if" is usually the culprit. Many are so afraid of failure that they hardly try and even if they do they listen to the pundits and detractors who tell them how impossible their goal is to achieve. The Lord can do everything; but when He has a rule, that according to our faith so shall it be unto us, our unbelief ties the hands of His Omnipotence. Because we refuse to ring the doorbell of opportunity, he never answers.

OTHERS HAVE ACHIEVED, YOU CAN TOO: Often we read of the accomplishments of others with faith. Hebrews 11 is filled with long lists of believers who have successfully acted on faith. Sometimes, however we can find ourselves believing that God acted in the lives of others but doubt that he can act in our lives. We see what they did and rejoice in their achievement but we have trouble believing that we can do the same. We hear of and celebrate the exploits of others who have acted on faith; how they overcame; how they were strengthened in moments of weakness; how they were revived once dispirited; and how they endured despite great persecutions; but we say in our hearts, "That can't happen to me because I'm not a great saint, I'm a nobody. " In that instant we demonstrate our lack of faith and the door of opportunity shuts. In reality, there is nothing that one saint achieves, through Christ, that you cannot achieve. Spurgeon says, "There is no elevation of grace, no attainment of spirituality, no clearness of assurance, no post of duty, which is not open to you if you have but the power to believe." Believing in yourself and trusting in God is essential. To climb higher we must rise to the dignity of our true position through faith in God. One song writer said, "It is no secret what God can do. What he's done for others, he'll do for you." If others can, you can too.

IT MAY HAVE BEEN TRIED, TRY AGAIN: Many today fail to try because others before them tried and failed. The person who succeeds does not ignore the failures of the past but studies them and tries again avoiding the mistakes of the past. Frederick Douglass was the first African-American vice-presidential candidate.

Afterwards Shirley Chisholm ran for President followed by Julian Bond, who was too long, Jesse Jackson, and Alan Keys. They all failed, but that didn't mean it couldn't be done. Obama learned from each person's failure and rose quickly confident that it could be done. The father that approached Jesus had experienced failure repeatedly. He approached Christ with a great "if thou." Jesus flipped his words and made them apply to his own faith, Not "If God" but "if thou." In the same context, we should not approach our challenges thinking that they cannot be accomplished. In the past, the father went to everyone except Christ himself. Now standing in front of the savior it was time for doubts to be settled. Jesus' reply to him seems to say, "If thou canst lies not with me, but with thee. It is not if I can, but if thou canst." We receive according to our faith in our ability to achieve with God's help. "It may have been tried, never give up. Try again.

Yes, God Can

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that we should never underestimate God's ability to respond to our needs. No matter what problems we have or how dark our nights may be, God can.

After the election of President Obama the news commentators spent days analyzing just how it was done. They presented large charts covered with red states and blue states; they analyzed campaign strategies and considered hundreds of reasons why Obama was successful. However, none of the television analysts put their finger on the right reason.

While they focused on the numbers and voting patterns they forgot to see the unseen hand of God moving in America. God moved to change America for the better. What many missed is the truth that regardless of the outcome of the election America was destined for change, it was a matter of degrees. It would either change slowly in a trickle down conservative approach or it would change abruptly with a more liberal approach. It would change from the top down or it would change from the bottom up. The election decided how it would change, but God decided that it would definitely change.

While some in the nation saw a man a chanted 'Yes, we can" other s saw a powerful God at work and shouted, "Yes, he can!"

As always, our faith is never in a man, but our faith is in God. We have hope that "we can" because we know that God can.

Our father which is in heaven can do anything.

We know we can do anything because we have a father who can:

We have a father who can take —Sadness and turn it to gladness; Misery and turn it into delight!

—Failure and turn it into success; Loneliness and turn it into happiness!

—Poverty and turn it into riches; Defeat and turn it into victory!

No wonder the song writer wrote: I cannot take the lightning and flash it across the land. I cannot take a piece a clay and mold it into a man, but I have a father who can!"

Anyone who asks the question,"Is God able?" is not acquainted with the Lord and his mighty works.

Is God Able? Ask Abraham and he will respond that when there was doubt that his wife could give him a son in his old age he found out there was nothing too hard for the LORD?

Is God able? Ask Moses who will testify that God can be a bridge over troubling water!

Is God able? Ask the widow woman who was down to a last cup of meal and cup of oil how God keep the barrel from running dry!

Is God able? Ask the three Hebrew Boys who were protected in the midst of the furnace by the cooling wings of the Son of God!

Is God able? Ask Ezekiel who will remind us that God can take dry bones and make them live again!

He has demonstrated his power over and over again, demonstrating that he is able.

Saints, you say "Yes God can" but just what can God do? What is able to do?

Eph 3:20 sys He is "able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think"

Philippians 3:21 He "is able even to subdue all things unto himself."

2 Timothy 1:12 "He is able to keep that which I have committed unto him"

Heb 2:18 He is "able to help them that are tempted."

Heb 7:25 He is able to save them to the uttermost that come unto God

Jude 1:24is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of his glory

Is God Able?

He's able to take my darkness and turn it to light! Yes he can!

He's able to take my failure and turn it into success! Yes, he can!

He's able to despair and turn it into delight! Yes, he can

I know he's able, because one day, over 2000 years ago, he picked up an old rugged cross...

I know he's able because he died out on Calvary!

I know he's able because early Sunday morning he rose up from the grave!

He's able!

He's able!

He's able to make everything all right!

What's Left in the Ark? Nothing but the promises of God

A sermon by Roosevelt, Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 23, 2008

SCRIPTURE: Nothing was in the ark except the two tablets of stone which Moses put there at Horeb, when the Lord made a covenant with the children of Israel, when they came out of the land of Egypt. 1 Kings 8:9

Introduction

Has there ever been a time when you felt as though you lost everything? There are situations in which we feel as though all is lost. When they come they are devastating. Sometimes what is lost is tangible, such as possession. Sometimes it is intangible such as the loss of a friend or close relationship. When that happens we are devastated and if we are not careful can easily assume that all is lost.

The believer's attitude in face of loss is always to give God praise and thanks, because we know that as long as he is on the throne he will work our worst situations out to our advantage.

Recently the testimony of a Christian family was reported on national news. The family had suffered a total loss as their home burned in the wake of the California Forest fires. Thousands of acres of land had been destroyed as well as hundreds of homes. The news media questioned many of the survivors about their losses. Many of the survivors gave the same account of houses, automobiles and personal belongings lost. Many of them looked despondent and appeared to be beaten by the tragedy. However, when the news crews interviewed the Christian husband, they were pleasantly surprised. When the question was asked, "After this great fire, what do you have left" the man pulled his family close to him and said, "Our house has burned down to the promises of God, that's all we have left, but that's enough!!"

That answer says it all for believers. As long as we have the promises of God, we have enough.

As Christians, we, like all Americans, are facing difficult times all over the nation. Plants are closing, homes are being lost and savings accounts are being depleted. Some are feeling abandoned and lost, but the faithful see things differently. We don't see what we have lost, but what we have left. What we have left are the promises of God, and that's enough!

Exposition

This text focuses on Solomon as he celebrates the Ark's placement into the temple even though it was missing two of its components.

When Solomon finished the construction of the temple he ordered the Ark of the Covenant to be returned. It was carefully placed on long poles and carried on the shoulders of the priests to its position inside the temple.

The Ark was special to the people. It represented the presence of God. It inspired them and gave them confidence. There were three important items placed inside of the Ark: A pot of manna, which fed Israel in the wilderness for 40 years; Aaron's budding rod, which symbolized God's anointing and appointing of the Levites to provide for religious services and the tablets of stone upon which were written both the commandments and promises of god.

The text notes the pot of manna was not in the Ark. Some have speculated that it was secretly hidden in the mountains and caves by the priests who feared Israel's enemies might destroy it.

Not only was the pot of manna missing but Aaron's budding rod was missing too. Some believe that some of Israel's enemies such as the Philistines or others may have stolen the rod.

While the other two items were missing, the two stone tablets of the Law placed in the ark by Moses were still there. They served to remind the people of the promises of God.

Solomon didn't waste time lamenting what he did not have. He celebrated what was left; which was the promises of God, and that was enough!

God watches over us

In today's difficult times, it is easy for believers to get frustrated. The recent collapse of so many Wall Street financial institutions, the drop in the stock market, the closure of banks, the tightening of credit and the closure of plants and companies across the nation have caused many to become frustrated.

Many have looked at their savings accounts that have dwindled to pennies on the dollar. Many have lost their homes. Many have lost their retirement accounts. While this is happening still more are battling sickness, death and other personal tragedies.

Some have thrown up their hands as they watch their dreams disappear as vapors.

All that many have left are the promises of God, but that's enough!

God sees our daily needs. He scrupulously separates our needs from our wants and knows exactly what we need to both survive and thrive. Physiologically, we need food, clothing and shelter at the offset. Beyond that we need health care and emotional support. The scriptures indicate that God sees the need of even the most ordinary person. A widow woman who struggled to provide for family saw God meet her need by giving her what she needed on a daily basis.

Whether our needs are financial, involving the payment of loans, meeting daily demands or just making ends meet; God sees our need. This should be a reason for hope for every believer because we know that our individual situation is not unnoticed by the savior. Therefore, the songwriter asks, "Why should I be discouraged? Why should the shadows come? Why should my heart be lonely and long for heaven and home? For Jesus is my portion. A constant friend is he. His eye is on the sparrow and I know he watches me."

We have seen God part impossible waters before, so when he promises to make a way for us, that's enough.

We have seen God stretch our meager resources beyond our wildest imagination, so when he tells us to fear not, that's enough.

We have seen God dry our weeping eyes in times of sadness, so when he says, "weeping endures but a night and joy comes in the morning, we say, that's enough.

1. God has promised His people eternal life. Those who believe in Christ and accept him as Savior shall be saved. My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me: And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand. John 10:27-28.

2. He has promised to supply every need we have. The Bible says: "But my God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus". That's Philippians 4:19. God has obligated Himself only to the extent of our needs. That would include food, clothing, shelter, companionship, love, and salvation thru Jesus Christ. It would not include the multiplicity of luxuries that we have come to think of as needs.

3. God has promised that His grace is sufficient for us. The bible says in 1 Corinthians 12:9 "And he said unto me, my grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness. Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me. "He has made provision for our salvation by His grace through faith.

4. God has promised that His children will not be overtaken with temptation. Instead, He assures us that a way of escape will be provided. "There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it." Jude wrote: "Now unto Him that is able to keep you from falling and to present you're faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy" (Jude v 24).

5. God has promised that all things work together for good to those who love and serve Him faithfully. "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." Romans 8:28 No matter how frustrating a situation gets, it will work to the advantage of true believers.

God's Promises will see us through

Finally, brothers and sisters we must consider that as long as God is on the throne, we have more than we need to weather this storm.

We must consider how Solomon responded to the nation's loss of its most cherished national heirlooms. He did not get despondent over what was loss but rejoiced over what was left. He did not cry over the loss of the golden pot of manna or the lost rod but celebrated what he had left, the stone tablets representing the promises of God..that was enough.

What's left after any difficult time are God's promises.

It's God's promises that give:

STRENGTH to those who are weak; INSPIRATION to those who are frustrated and confused!

HOPE to the hopeless; RENEWAL to those who are in despair!

PICKS UP those who are let down; LIFTS UP those who have been let down!

SAVES those who are lost and gives NEW ENERGY to those who wait on him. For I hear the word declare that "they that wait upon the Lord shall mount up on wings as eagles, they shall run and not be weary. They shall walk and not faint!"

Has your experience proven God's promises to be enough?

Has God's promises proven to be enough?

Has his promise to supply your every need, proven to be enough?

Has his promise to be with you, even through the valley of the shadow of death, proven to be enough?

Has his promise to be with you alway, even to the end of the world, proven to be enough?

Has his promise to take every bad thing that happened to you and work it out to you advantage, proven to be enough?

I don't know about you, but I found out that God is a dependable God, if he promised it, I can count on it; and that's enough.

He promised to:

-Take my mountains and turn them into molehills and that's enough

-Take my sadness and turn it into gladness, and that's enough

-Take my agony and turn it into ecstasy, and that's enough

-Take my darkness and turn it into light, and that's enough

-Take my failure and turn it into success, and that's enough

I know that promise is good because he sealed by picking up an old rugged cross!

I know that promise is good because he carried that cross up Golgotha's Hill!

And he died!

But Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave will all power in his hands, and that's enough for me!

Lift Him Up

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 2008

SCRIPTURE:" "And I, If I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me." John 12:32

Introduction

Today, the world is facing a multitude of challenges, that are demanding a response, how shall we, as the body of Christ, respond? As the representa tives of Christ, we must be prepared to show them the answer that has been revealed to us in the written word of God.

The answer is Jesus.

If the question is what do we do about the growing homeless problem in America? The Answer is Jesus. Although he himself told his disciples, "Foxes have holes and birds have nests, but the Son of man hath no place to lay his head," he has commanded us to reach out to the homeless with an extended hand of love and provision.

If the question is what do we do about those struggling to survive the current financial crises; the answer is Jesus. We remember the words of the apostle who said, "Silver and Gold have I none, but such as I have, give I thee." Thus, thus we have been commanded to maximize our resources to respond to those struggling to survive. We respond in Jesus' name.

If the question is what do we do about the hungry and destitute; again, Jesus is the answer. Jesus himself fed the hungry before he tried to preach to them. Using meager resources of fish and bread, God blessed his work so that if fed thousands. We have the same mission, feed the hungry in Jesus' name.

The mandate that we have as representatives of Christ is to lift him up. When we lift Jesus up, the power of his compassion, and deity will draw all men to his bleeding side.

Lifting him up does not mean just idle talk. It doesn't mean that we preach about him on Sundays. Lifting him up means that we will get busy showing the world through precept and example that Jesus is the answer. As the world watches us walk the walk as well as talk the talk, then it will be convinced that Jesus is the answer.

As Christians, we know that there is no power on earth greater than the power of God. If we lift up the name of Jesus high enough for the world to see, certainly we will reach the masses and evangelize the world.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he predicts his crucifixion and its aftermath. Jesus often told his disciples about his death. Normally, a Jew that would have been put to death would have been stoned, but Jesus, knowing what lay ahead made reference to being "lifted up" referring to the crucifixion on the cross.

He made it clear to his disciples that his crucifixion would lift up the kingdom of God for the world to see and once revealed, it would draw men of every persuasion, race, creed and color unto the father.

He pronounced the drawing power of his blood and the cross. His drawing power would not be based on his personality or special charisma, but on the incontestable fact that he died on an old rugged cross and rose from the dead for the remission of sins.

When that message and fact is presented to the world with a practical application for the lives of men and women everywhere, Jesus said "I'll draw all men unto me."

The challenge of the Church

Today, the church is challenged to do one thing..lift Jesus up!

It may be tempting to get involved in a myriad of sidebar activities, but our single function is to lift Jesus up!

The extent of our involvement in any project, venture or movement should be to better posture ourselves to lift Jesus up. We should do this because it is only through the preaching of the cross that the world can come to know Christ. It is only through knowing Christ that the world can find the peace of God needed for these turbulent times.

Where are some places that Jesus must be lifted up?

JESUS MUST BE LIFTED UP TO OUR FAMILIES: The Black family needs the church more than ever. The church must challenge the culture and forces that have hurt the black family and community, including those who "demean, degrade and belittle our mothers and daughters. To do this the church must partner with others to provide senior citizen housing, charter schools, mental health clinics, opportunities for first-time home-buyers, even restaurants to train people for work.

Such action puts the word of God into concrete forms that people can see and helps families survive and thrive. Jesus says, when he is lifted up, he'll draw all men unto himself.

JESUS MUST BE LIFTED UP TO THOSE WHO HAVE LOST HOPE: There are many men and women today, who are throwing up their hands in defeat, resolved that they are in a lost cause. The defeated need the church. The defeated need to know that God is able to respond to their needs. When they feel that God does not know or care about their situation they lose hope.

Parents who have talked to and chastised wayward children with little or no visible effect have dropped their heads and dismissed them as reluctant lost causes. They need the church.

Many marriages have ended in the divorce courts because husbands and wives, frustrated with the presence of uncomfortable symptoms, have thrown up their hands in defeat. They have dismissed their sacred vows as a lost cause.

Many men and women who have been living on the wrong side of the right track take a low opinion of themselves and think because they are not, did not, and could not, that they cannot, will not and should not ..be anything less than a failure and have dismissed themselves as lost causes.

That's why we need to lift Jesus up. When we lift Jesus up we let the world know that there is no reason to lose hope because God is still on the throne.

WE MUST REACH OUT TO LIFT JESUS UP: The church must go into the world and bring the message of God's grace in both precept and example.

There are many churches today who are involved in various forms of outreach for a variety of reasons. In each case they are attempting to reach into the world in the name of Jesus.

Outreach may include providing food for the hungry, assistance to battered families, housing for the homeless, assistance to wayward youth, or promotion of benevolent causes.

Outreach is essential to kingdom building. We must reach out and touch the wounded and the lost of the world in the name of Jesus. Yet, even our outreach must come from the heart. It must be pure in its intent, not a mere photo opportunity designed to promote other goals and causes. When we help others it must come from the heart.

The church must show and tell the world that God cares; thus, we are compelled to go into all the world.

He'll draw

Finally, brethren, we must not lose sight of the magnetic power of the cross.

We must not let the enthusiasm and passion that we have for ministry become stagnant.

We must keep our eyes on the cross and keep lifting Jesus up!

Our growth is directly related to how high we lift Jesus up!

The cross is magnetic. It is has the natural power to draw men to it because it's positive impact attracts and draws out the negatives of every person, re-arranges them and gives them a new charge!

People who have been trampled are drawn to the cross because it draws out those negative experiences and offers a chance for a new beginning. The world offers:

—Disturbance but the cross offers peace of mind

—Defilement but the cross offers purity of spirit

—Hate but the cross offers uncorrupted love

—Darkness but the cross offers light

—Weakness but the cross offers strength

The inscription on the statue of Liberty says: "Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free, the wretched refuse of your teeming shore. Send these, the homeless, temptest-tossed to me, I lift my lamp beside the golden door." It is the expression of the American desire to draw the wretched of the earth to its shores.

But the cross has an even greater magnetic appeal for it speaks to the souls of men and women around the world. It's an inscription that echoes through the corridors of time and says, "Give me your tired, your poor and huddled masses yearning to breathe free and I will show them the way to:

—Patience in the midst of problems

—Contentment in the midst of criticisms

—Support in the midst of suffering

—Stability in the midst of strain

—Hope in the midst of hardship

—Long suffering in the midst of trial

The cross has drawing power because it offers the hope of Salvation.

The higher the cross is lifted the more men are drawn.

So let's lift Jesus up, so the world can receive the gospel message of hope.

We must lift Jesus up and the good news of salvation.

We must lift Jesus up with the gospel message of compassion and concern.

We must lift Jesus up knowing that if we lift him up he will draw all men to himself.

We must go into the world so that it will know that the power of God can change lives.

We must go into the world so that it will know that the power of God can change communities and nations!

I hear the words of the song writer who said, "How to reach the masses, men of every birth,

For an answer, Jesus gave the key: "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, Will draw all men unto Me."

Lift Him up, lift Him up; Still He speaks from eternity: "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, Will draw all men unto me."

We must lift him up because He saw a world filled with hatred and tried to bring love!

We must lift him up because He saw a world filled with defeat and brought a message of victory!

We must lift him up because He saw a world filled with weakness and brought a message of strength!

He saw a world filled with darkness and challenged it to walk in the light!

They called him Jesus; he made a world of difference!

Before he left he told his disciples to stay ready because "I'm going to create another world! "That where I am ye may be also!"

In that world, every day will be Sunday and the Sabbath will have no end!

In that world, it'll always be howdy and never good-bye!

In that world, hearse wheels will not roll!

No wonder the song writer declares, “When we all get to heaven, what a day of rejoicing that will be! When we all see Jesus, we’ll sing and shout the victory!”

In that world we’ll see Jesus, who died out on Calvary and arose early Sunday morning!

Until he comes back again..

Lift him up!

Lift him up!

Lift him up!

If Thou Canst Believe

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 29, 2008

SCRIPTURE:"Jesus said unto him, If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth." Mark 9:23

Introduction

What is the secret to a long life? There are many who have been searching for the secret for many years and have compiled volumes of research to determine what to do to insure a long life. There are thousands today who are reading books and reviewing biographies of those who lived to be 100 years old or more, searching for nuggets of information that can guarantee a long life for all willing to follow the same regimen.

In the beginning, man was created to live indefinitely but because of the sin of Adam and Eve God set the human body clock to ticking backwards, declining from infinity. The oldest recorded life in the bible is that of Methuselah who lived 969 years. Adam, the first man lived 930 years. By the time of Moses, the human life span was much shorter. Moses was 120 years old when he died. Life expectancy, because of wars, disease and infant mortality declined to about 40 year.

In modern times, science and new knowledge about health and fitness has managed to increase the life expectancy of the average person from 47.3 years for someone born in 1900 to 77.3 years for someone born in 2002.

Even with these increases the world is still amazed when it encounters anyone who lives 100 or more years and searches for the secret.

When comedian George Burns made it to the century mark all of those who knew him asked,, how'd he do it? What brand of vitamins did he take? Did he eat a high-fiber diet? Did he pass on saturated fats? Were his doctors the best that money could buy? Did he eat from the four food groups every day? Whose exercise video did he work out to? According to George, his secret to a long life was simply this: "Love what you do, and get up and do it every day."

Depending on whom is asked the advice has one common strain: Don't smoke, gets lots of exercise and sleep, and eat a balanced diet, trust God and don't worry as you take life one day at a time.

Those who believe in God place heavy emphasis on the latter. Trusting in God and worrying less, adds years to our lives because they are free from the stress and anxieties that often age us beyond our years.

As Christians, we believe in God. We believe that God will provide for us, open doors for us and help us in times of need. Those who believe that truth and act on it, have often lived happy, fulfilled lives whether they were long or short.

Exposition

This text focuses on a father whose son is possessed by a demonic spirit and Jesus' response.

In reply to Jesus' compassionate inquiry, the father said his son had experienced such pathetic and near-fatal convulsions from childhood. The lad's condition was long-standing and critical. The words, "If You can do anything" indicate that the disciples' inability to expel the demon had shaken the father's faith in Jesus' ability.

Jesus took up the father's words of doubt, If You can, to show that the point was not His ability to heal the boy but the father's ability to trust in God who can do what is humanly impossible. Jesus then challenged the father not to doubt: Everything is possible for him who believes. Faith sets no limits on God's power and submits itself to His will.

The father's response was immediate. He declared his faith (I do believe), but also acknowledged its weakness: Help me overcome my unbelief!

Five Secrets of Every Believer

There are many today who have many prescriptions for long life health and strength. They even try to sell it to others and patent their prescriptions.

What is the secret to the happy, fulfilled Christian life? What is the secret to gaining God's favor?

If we ask many of the people Jesus healed they would say, that the secret is to be touched by God. These would claim that the real secret is in his touch, thus they leave singing, "He touched me, he touched me. Something happened and now I know, he touched me and made me whole."

If we ask others they would say they have to be fed by Christ himself. These would claim that if Jesus takes just a two little fishes and five loaves he can feed thousands, so the secret to remaining full is to be fed by Jesus. They leave singing "Bread of Heaven, feed me till I want no more."

One man who was healed after bathing seven times in the river said the secret to living the fulfilled life is go down to the river and dip in the water. Such a man leaves singing, "Down by the Riverside"

Then there is the testimony of those who were changed by Jesus, but were never touched by him, never bathed in a river or ate food in the large crowds. These were the ones who were blessed based on their faith alone. These are the ones who leave singing, "Only Believe, all things are possible if you only believe."

There are many who hear that saying and reduce it to a cliché, doubting what can happen if they believe.

What secrets have believers discovered that unbelievers have yet to learn? There are at least five life secrets that each can experience if they only believe:

1. If you believe, you can rise to achieve your potential. It doesn't matter whether you are born in a poor rural area to poor parents, if you believe, you can rise to your potential. Too many today fail to realize their potential because they do not believe it is possible. Like the prodigal son they waste their lives in riotous living. Yet there are believers who constantly sing the same tune,"Reach high, never give up! All things are possible if you only believe!"

2. If you believe, you can have peace in your life. There is something about the faith in God that gives a believer a sense of peace and security in hard times. It doesn't matter how strong the winds blow or how hard the winds assail, they sing mightily, "My Soul is anchored in the Lord." The older the get the more peaceful they seem, content that God is in control despite the encroaching years. If you want peace, they recommend trusting in the Lord and believing in his promises.

3. If you believe, you can have a fruitful life. Jesus told believers that he came that they might have life and have it more abundantly. Those who believe truly live abundant lives; they are fruitful, productive and meaningful well into their senior lives. Such faith in the promises of God helps those who down to have jolly spirits even in their infirmities and continue to guide and instruct despite their immobility. Even in their golden years, like Moses, their spiritual constitution remains strong even if their bodies fail, and they bear fruit. That can't happen when we doubt. It does happen if we believe and trust in the Lord.

4. If you believe, we can have long life. Generally, the bible says most of us who leave an ordinary life can expect to live about 70 years or three score and ten. Those who have an extraordinary strength of faith could see four score and beyond. A driving force that propels us beyond 70 is our faith in God. When we see 80 its called our reasonable strength. When we see 90 we reach the point of Sarah's laughter. When we reach 100 we have climbed the mount of Abraham's faith. It doesn't take much faith to race through the first 30 years of your life or to glide through the next 40. Those of great faith however have found it possible to meander the valleys and streams of sickness and declining health to reach the summit that Abraham realized feeling fresh and new as his young son Isaac was born. Reaching the summit of our potential cannot only be done if we believe.

5. If you believe, we can have eternal life. More than long life on earth, those who believe have God's great promise and that is eternal life. Romans 10:9 says, "That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved." That means that believing is the secret to Eternal Life as well. It's good to live to be 80, 90 or even 100 and beyond, but the great blessing is to know that even beyond this life that there is another in which we will live eternally with the Lord. Like all of the other blessings of believers, it is possible, if we can only believe!

Those who believe are rewarded

Finally, brothers and sisters, those who believe and trust in God on earth shall be rewarded in heaven.

Trust is the ultimate way that a Christian demonstrates his belief in God.

Trusting in the Lord is the secret to long life. That's what Enoch learned for the Word says Enoch walked with God until he "was not."

Those who trust in the Lord are confident that all things are possible if they only believe.

If we can only believe that God is able, anything is possible.

I don't know about you, but I believe that God is able to make a way.

If we can only believe God will take our:

— Failures and turn them into successes; Defeats and turn them into victories!

— Weaknesses and turn them into strengths; Despair and turn it into confidence!

— Sadness and turn into gladness; Sorrow and turn it into joy!

— Stumbling blocks and turn them into stepping stones!; Candles and turn them into a floodlights!

If we can only believe, when we have reached the summit of our lives God will help us to mount up on wings as Eagle, run and not get weary, walk and not faint!

I don't know about you, but I've found out that If I can believe only believe, all things are possible because the Lord is always by my side!

In whom shall we believe?

His name is Jesus, the lily of the Valley!

Jesus, the bright and morning star!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who arose after three days and nights!

If we can believe in Jesus' promise that beyond this world, we have a home beyond the sky!

If we can only believe in the power of God, we'll all be able to sing, "One glad morning when this life is over, "I'll fly away!"

Seasonal Showers

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 2008

SCRIPTURE: "And I will make them and the places round about my hill a blessing; and I will cause the shower to come down in his season; there shall be showers of blessing." Ezekiel 34:26

Introduction

If you had to describe your blessings by associating them with the weather, how would you describe your blessings? There are many who describe their blessings as droughts. They see all that they do not have and spend their lives angry because others seem to have more.

There are many who describe their blessings as sunshine. They feel that blessing come on clear days but cannot come when there are clouds. Thus, they praise God for the sunshine but scorn him for the clouds.

There are many who describe their blessings as storms because they come with a rage and they are unable to handle the prosperity they leave behind.

Then there are those who describe their blessings as showers. They come regularly, not hard enough to cause a problem but just enough to fertilize, revive and refresh for as long as they need.

There are many ways that our blessings come, and because of that there are many who do not recognize that they have been blessed.

A man who owned a small estate wished to sell it. Sending for a real estate agent, he asked him to write an advertisement describing the house and land.

When the ad was ready, the agent took it to the owner and read it to him. "Read that again," said the owner.

The agent read the description of the estate once more. "I don't think I will sell after all," said the owner. "I have been looking for an estate like that all my life, and I did not know that I owned it!"

Count your blessings — yes, but start by asking God to open your eyes to see your possessions in Christ. Begin by recognizing all that you have in Christ. That will change your entire perspective and enable you to praise God for what you have.

As Christians, we see how God showers us with blessings and we are eternally grateful, for truly he is great and his mercy endureth forever.

Exposition

This text focuses on the Prophet Ezekiel as he foretells the coming of the church through which the world would be blessed.

Israel was in ruins. This once great nation, at the time of the text, was scattered all over the known world. Their homeland was destroyed and its the best minds co-opted. They were so scattered and broken in spirit that at one point the prophet Ezekiel saw them as dry bones in a valley. Yet, God constantly sent them a word of hope that they would be revived.

The bones could live again and great blessings were on the way.

This text is another of those places in which God told Israel they would be restored. Verses 11-16 speak of how the people were scattered because of ungodly leaders, who often posed as religious leaders and destroyed their heritage and their faith. (v. 2-6) Yet God says he himself would seek out his people and promised to intervene personally on Israel's behalf. Specific to Israel, God promised to restore Israel to her land and to pasture her like sheep in good grazing land.

Moreover, God indicates that the Jews, and Zion, God's hill are to be sources of blessing, not merely to themselves, but to the surrounding heathen. Matthew Henry says, God's promise is that they shall enjoy a spiritual plenty of all good things, the best things, for their comfort and happiness: They shall no more be consumed with hunger in the land.

It is important to note in this text when and how God promises to bless his children. The text does not say, "I will send them drops," but "showers." So it is with grace. If God gives a blessing, He usually gives it in such a measure that there is not room enough to receive it. Plenteous grace! We want plenteous grace to keep us humble, to make us prayerful, to make us holy; plenteous grace to make us zealous, to preserve us through this life, and at last to land us in heaven. We cannot do without saturating showers of grace. Again, it is seasonable grace. "I will cause the shower to come down in his season."

The great promise that God made to Israel and to all believers is that the congregation of the broken hearted, dispirited, lost and hopeless will have a shepherd set over him them (v 23-24)and through him God would bless the people and resurrect their lost hope.

Through the great Shepherd, which would be Christ, believers or the church would be the recipients of showers of blessings as he worked to restore the people and bless them with peace and joy.

Five truths about showered blessings

The word of God is replete with reminders that God blesses those who are obedient and faithful to him. Deuteronomy 11:27 says, ""A blessing, if ye obey the commandments of the Lord your God, which I command you this day …" We also learn that His blessing brings righteousness (Psa. 24:5), life (Psa. 133:3), prosperity

(2 Sam. 7:29), and salvation (Psa. 3:8). Some instances the "blessing" is portrayed as a rain or dew.

In a few cases, the Lord made people to be a "blessing" to others.

As we reflect on God's blessings its good for us to remember about the way God blesses us with showers of blessings.

The "Showers" are abundant. The great Creator does not give the rain stingily, but opens the windows of heaven, and pours down His blessings upon the dry and thirsty land. So, spiritual blessings come upon the thirsty and longing hearts of men. There is a slogan used by the Morton Salt Company that shows a girl walking holding an umbrella, the slogan underneath the picture says, "When it rains it pours." That's the way it is when God blesses, he really pours it on. Jesus speaking to his disciples said, "I am come that they might have life, and have it more abundantly." When God blesses us he is not stingy, he gives us the best of that he has and gives it in abundance.

The "Showers" are repetitious. When God blesses us once he often blesses us with the same blessing over and over again, year after year and season after season. That's the good thing about our God, what he does once, he can do it again. It's encouraging to know that God is not just a onetime God. He can bless us again and again. As the rains descend water the earth repeatedly with the latter rain, and by repeated showers the earth brings forth and buds, and gives seed to the sower and bread to the eater. So in the history of the Church, and of every individual believing soul, there has been given grace for grace, that there might be progress from strength to strength in the journey toward the heavenly land

The "Showers" are gratuitous. The blessings we receive come to us from the bounties of God. They come down freely from the clouds, without money and without price. There is nothing that we can do to buy them or pay for them because they come from the treasuries of heaven. There are many who think they can earn the blessings of God, but they cannot be earned because we are not good enough, nor will we ever be worthy enough to receive the blessings that God showers on us. We could not purchase them, for the silver and the gold belong to God, as well as the cattle upon a thousand hills. So all spiritual blessings are free; indeed, they are priceless, as well as peerless. That's why we love to sing "Amazing Grace" because it is God's grace causes us to receive salvation and showers of blessings.

The "Showers" are suitable. God knows exactly what each of us needs. He also knows what we need. There are times when we might believe that we need torrents of blessings or even floods of blessings, but he knows what we need. Just as the spring showers fall upon the earth and make it soft, and drop fatness into the soil, the blessings of God come to us in the same way. He does not send us more than we need, but always what we need, just when we need it most. The blessings that crown our lives are suitable to our needs and adapted to minister to our well-being and joy. Especially is this true of spiritual blessings.

The "Showers" are gentle. God's blessings come upon us gently, like the soft rains that pity pat on the leaves during a summer shower. Isn't it refreshing when it comes? It's just as refreshing as a blessing from God that eases upon us gently, without notice or fanfare. It's that gentle blessing that helps us get the unexpected check in the mail or receive the unsolicited opportunity. It's pleasant when it comes. It comes softly and it is so refreshing and soothing. The blessings that refresh our spirits and revive our faith, they fall gently upon us while we pray and praise, and nestle upon our hearts while we engage in Christian work and worship.

We thank God for the showers

Finally, brothers and sisters, we note that God showers us with blessings and we should shower him with praise.

God has spared no pains when it comes to blessing us. Neither should we be stingy when it comes to praising him and thanking him for his goodness.

The word of God says, "Let the redeemed of the Lord say so!" So, if God has showered us with blessings we should be prepared to "say so."

We shall praise his name and say thank you Lord!

Thank you Lord, for blessing me despite the mess that I've made of my life!

Thank you Lord, for taking my weakness and turning it into strength!

Thank you Lord, for taking my doubts and giving me assurance!

Thank you Lord, for taking my failure and giving me victories!

Thank you Lord, for taking my discouragement and giving me hope!

Thank you Lord, for taking my test and giving me a testimony!

Thank you Lord, for looking beyond my faults and shortcomings and seeing my need!

Over 2000 years ago, Jesus came into a messed up world to make it a blessed up world!

In the middle of the world's mess, God sent his best!

In a shower of blessings he allowed them to convict him and sentence to death

In a shower of blessings he allowed them to put an old rugged cross on his shoulder!

In a shower of blessings he allowed them to nail his hands and feet!

In a shower of blessings he allowed them to stick a spear in his side!

And he died, out on Calvary!

But early Sunday morning, he arose from the dead with all power in his hands!

I'm not worthy for all these blessings but every day the showers keep on coming!

Thank you Lord, for blessing me one more!

Lord, Send Down the Rain

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 2008

SCRIPTURE:Then I will give you rain in due season, and the land shall yield her increase, and the trees of the field shall yield their fruit. " Leviticus 26:4

Introduction

If your experiences in life were compared to a weather condition, what would best describe your life? There are some who would say that the word "drought" would best describe their experience. No matter what they have tried to do they seemed to always come up dry.

Some would say "Storms" describe their experience because it seems that life's events always hit them with hurricane force winds that just blow them away.

Still others would say that "tornado" describes their lives because they have spent most of their time going around in circles and being tossed to and fro.

However, there are some that would describe their lives as blistering sunshines and cooling showers. It's the showers, they say, that make the rains feel so much better.

Almost everyone would rather have sunshine than showers. But just imagine what our world would be like if it never rained again.

An example of such a place is in Northern Chile. Franklin Elmer, Jr., described a region between the great Andes mountain range and the Pacific Ocean where rain never falls. He wrote, "Morning after morning the sun rises brilliantly over the tall mountains to the east; each noon it shines brightly down from overhead; evening brings a picturesque sunset. Although storms are often seen raging high in the mountains, and heavy fog banks are observed far out over the sea, the sun continues to shine on this favored and protected strip of land. One would imagine this area to be an earthly paradise; but it is not. Instead, it is a sterile and desolate desert! There are no streams of water, and nothing grows there."

Elmer then made this application: "Too often we long for total sunshine and joy in life. We have wished to be rid of burdensome responsibilities. But, like this sunny, unfertile part of Chile, life without its burdens and trials would not be creative, productive, or challenging. We need sunshine and showers."

God favors his creation with just the right amount of sunshine and just the right amount of rain. He knows what it takes to keep us in balance.

That's the way he blesses us too. He sends blessings in showers, not torrents or floods, but in sprinkling showers just sufficient enough to supply all of our needs and many of our wants.

As Christians, we know that our blessings are showered upon us from heaven above. When we endure droughts, dust storms and hard times we fall on our knees and earnestly plead to God, saying "Lord, please send the rain" and he always answers at the appropriate time by sending us showers of blessings from the windows of heaven.

Exposition

This text focuses on God's promises to rain blessings on Israel if they remained obedient to him.

This text is preceded by the word "if" nine times and it has to do with the conditions on which they would occupy the Promised Land and receive its blessings.

While God said "if" nine times, God says "I will" twenty-four times. God will act and react according to their responses to the "if". God gave them the land, but their occupancy of it is determined by their answer to the "if". Obedience is the grounds for blessing in the land. This chapter is not only the calendar of their history, but it serves as the barometer of their blessings. Their presence in the land, rainfall, and bountiful crops denote the favor of God. Their absence from the land, famine, and drought denote the judgment of God because of their disobedience.

Rain in this text represents the shower of God's blessing. It is significant because God placed them in a land where they would depend upon heaven for their sustenance, not in the land itself. The land they were given had no great rivers such as the Nile, to water it and make it fruitful, but it was a land which depended completely on the gracious rain of heaven. In the Promised Land the key to their prosperity was kept in God's own hand. If the people needed a blessing they were obliged to ask God to send the rain.

In due Season

When God promised Israel rain, he promised it "in due season." The word used for "In due Season" is the Hebrew word "et" which means, at the appropriate time. That brings to mind the blessings that God has in store for those who believe in him; that they shall come at the appropriate time. There are nuggets of truth for modern believers in both the rains and when God chooses to send them upon us.

The nuggets are suggested in the various ways that the word "et" is used in the bible.

GOD DECIDES WHEN THE RAINS COME: The first way the word "Et" is used indicates that God is the orderer of life's event. He sends the rains and harvest, the seasons of the year, orders the migration of the birds and announces the mating season. For believers it means that God orders the events of our lives. He controls when the showers of blessings come in our lives. He also controls how long they will last and when they begin again. There is no other power or source that can send the rain that we need, so we pray to him, "Lord send the rain."

GOD DETERMINES THE APPROPRIATE TIME FOR THE RAINS: "Et" is used to indicate recurring events such as the seasons, but "Et" is also used to indicate unrecurring incidents such as death. The bible's use of "ET" indicates that God controls birth, death and all of the events in between. He alone decides the appropriate time for us to receive blessings. Thus in the text the phrase, "In due season" indicates "When God deems it appropriate." Today, believers may request a variety of blessings from God but he grants or denies our prayer requests based solely on whether he feels it is the appropriate season. He is sovereign over the rain. This is the same God that told Job (Job 38:32) that he has control of the stars and the Psalmist recorded in Psalm 104:27 that he controls the seas and all that are in them. We learn from this that God sends the showers of blessings that we need at times that will suit his purpose; those times always seem to come just in time for what we need to both survive and thrive. No wonder the song writer declared, "He's an on time God, yes he is. He may not come when you want him, but he's always on time."

GOD HAS A FIXED TIME FOR THE RAINS: The word "Et" finally indicates a fixed or set time. That means that God not only considers the appropriate time, but he has a fixed time in which he intends to move and act in our lives. There are some things that are hidden from us. We will never know about these things because God controls them and never chooses to reveal them. We know that Jeremiah 8:12 talks about God's appointed time of judgment. We know that God has an appointed time for this world and will bring it to an end in what he calls the "fullness of time." Thus, believers today have learned to be patient with God because he moves at his own time and pace. "You can't Hurry God, no matter how hard you try," that's what the song writer says, and the words are true. God moves in mysterious ways his wonders to perform and we cannot hurry him.

Send The Rain!

Finally, brothers and sisters, since we now know that God controls our showers of blessings and sends them at the appropriate time; we are now convinced more than ever that God's mercy will shower us with blessing if he chooses to send down the rain!

We are living in difficult times and experiencing a great drought, Lord please send down the rain!

We are struggling to survive financially, and many are losing their homes and jobs, Lord, please send down the rain!

We are battling with social ills that are destroying our families and stealing our children; Lord, please send down the rain!

Saints of God, be of good cheer, because we serve a God who specializes in sending down the rain!

Jesus said, "I come that they might have life and have it more abundantly"

So, we plead to the Savior and say, "Send down the rain upon our:"

-Tragedy and turn it into triumph!
-Defeat and turn it into victory!
-Despair and turn it into hope!
-Sadness and turn it into joy!
-Failure and turn it into success!
-Weakness and turn it into strength!

A blind man, cursed with blindness from the day of his birth, found that Jesus can send down the rain and change the curse darkness into a marvelous light.

A lame man, who never made a step in his life, found that Jesus can send down the rain and of and give a crippled soul and brand new walk.

A woman standing at the well found that Jesus can send down the rain and take a soul lost in sin and save it and make it whole again.

Lazarus, who died and was buried in his grave found that Jesus can send down the rain and take the plague of death and give a brand new life.

In his own time, Jesus took the curse of the cross and changed it from a symbol of defeat to a sign of eternal triumph.

The cross says to the world that there is power in the name of Jesus!

No wonder the songwriter declares, "At the cross at the cross where I first saw the light and the burden of my heart roll away. It was there by faith I received my sight and now I'm happy all the day."

When Jesus rose on Sunday morning death lost its sting! The grave lost its victory!

When Jesus rose from the grave weakness vanished forever; for all eternity heard him declare:

"All power is in my hands!"
"All Power"
"All power is in my hands!"

Lord, you have all power, so please, send down the rain!

Zachariah's Song

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

SCRIPTURE:Blessed be the Lord God of Israel; for he hath visited and redeemed his people, Luke 1:68

Introduction

When do you sing or hum the melody of your favorite song? When things are going well? What about when things are not going so well? Can you sing your midday songs at midnight? When the financial news is gloomy and job layoffs are possible do you still sing the same song or do you sing the blues? One of the unique qualities of the Christian life is that our song never changes. We lift up Christ in the morning and evening, during good times and bad because regardless of our situation we know he is still a good God.

The songs we sing reflect our experiences and expectations. The lyrics of our songs may change from moment to moment, since our lives are in constant transition. The most meaningful songs that we sing give us a snapshot of who we are, where we have been and where we are going. Each of us has a song that tells the story of our faith journey

Consider the man who sang a song as he drove along thinking of how blessed he was to have so many possessions. He sang "count your blessings." When he stopped and proceeded to get out of his BMW, suddenly a truck came along and hit the door, completely ripping it off. When the police arrived at the scene, the man was complaining bitterly and singing a different song. The people standing around were thanking God. It was a miracle that the man survived and they expected the man to be singing, "I never would have made it without you, Lord." It was just the opposite. The man stopped singing altogether. He looked at the door of his car lying in the middle of the street and complained about the damage to his precious BMW.

"Officer, look what they've done to my Beemer!" he whined.

The police officer, who was a devout Christian, said "You are the obvious recipient of a great blessing. A truck just tore of the door of your car, there is debris everywhere and all you can see is the damage to your precious BMW. You should be singing, " I won't complain" but you are so busy grumbling that you haven't even noticed that your left arm was ripped off!"

"Oh no!" replied the man, finally noticing the bloody left shoulder where his arm once was. "I've lost my Rolex, too."

As Christians, we sing to praise the Lord. This month, regardless of gloomy news we will hear on television or the forecasts we will hear from economists, we will continue to praise God because he is good and his mercy endureth forever and ever.

Exposition

Zacharias and his wife Elizabeth were an elderly couple who had worked faithfully in God's service all of their lives.

There were about 20,000 priests among the Levites, so many that only a small handful of them ever had a chance to actually enter the temple and perform a ceremonial service. There were so many priests that it was almost a given that if chosen, a man would only get one chance in his life to perform the ceremonial service. Zacharias considered his advancing age and thought his chance would never come, since those selected were chosen by lot. However, God ordered the lottery so that Zacharias could be selected, because there was a divine purpose in his selection. On his appointed day Zacharias followed the ritual followed by thousands of others for hundreds of years. The priests ascended the steps leading to the Holy Place. When they arrived at the top they spread coals on the golden altar, arranged the incense, and departed, leaving Zacharias alone before God. As the appointee for the ceremony, Zacharias was to offer his prayers of intercession for the people of Israel and then put incense on the coals of the altar as a powerful, beautiful symbol of the prayers of Israel rising to God.

While he did this, outside in the court of the temple, a great multitude of people waited laying face down on the floor in prayer, praying with the priest who represented them in the Holy Place.

While alone in the sanctuary an angel appeared to him inside the Temple. He was told that he and his wife would have a child who would be the forerunner of the Messiah; his job would be to prepare the people for the coming of the Lord. Zacharias doubted that possibility, again looking at his old age, and was told that he would have a child but because of his doubt he would not be able to speak until it had come to pass.

For nine months Zacharias was unable to speak but when the child was born his speech was restored and the words that came from his mouth, bottled up for 270 days, burst forth to form a song of praise called the "Benedictus," because of the prophetic nature of the first Latin words of the passage.

What Zacharias saw was the fulfillment of all other prophecies of the Old Testament. They were coming true right before his eyes. It was prophetic because Zacharias was looking ahead, beyond the miracles that had just happened in his life to the greater miracle that was about to happen in the world. He was so confident that he spoke in the past tense, noting that the prophecy was a "done deal." His "benedictus" offered praise to God for his greatness, noting how God "has" visited his people and "redeemed" his people. Both of the prophecies would come to pass in the birth, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Then, beginning at Luke 1:76, he looks at his own child, focusing on his role in the mighty plan of God. Zacharias said, "And thou, child, shalt be called the prophet of the Highest: for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways."

Zacharias was able to see the full picture of what God was unfolding for the people. He was happy over the role that God allowed him to play in unfolding the historic events. He was even happier that his son would play an even bigger role, as a forerunner of the Lord, introducing God's redemption.

He was so happy that he sang repeatedly, "Belssed by the Lord God of Israel, for he hath visited and redeemed his people."

Our Song

Today, there should be rejoicing in the land because it is evident, that despite the terrible times in which we leave that God is visiting us with an intent to redeem this land. When we read the lyrics of Zacharias' song, we too could share the same excitement.

BLESSED BE GOD: The phrase "Blessed by God" occurs frequently in the Old Testament such as Psalm 72:18-19, Blessed be the LORD God, the God of Israel, who only doeth wondrous things. And blessed be his glorious name for ever: and let the whole earth be filled with his glory; Amen, and Amen. We can say the same today. "Blessed be God" because he does so many wondrous things. We have seen him move across the landscape of time and shake the foundations of the world with his might. In the words of the Battle Hymn of the Republic, "He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored. He hath loosed the fateful lightning of His terrible swift sword; His truth is marching on!" We bless God for the same reasons of this text. Luke 1:71, we praise him because it so apparent that his mighty hand is moving to save us from those who hate us; Luke 1:72 we praise him because it is apparent that he is sending a new spirit across this land as he has promised great grandparents in the bowels of slavery. Luke 1:74, we praise him because it is apparent that he is slowly and meticulously changing history to free us from our captivity so that we can live as free and equal men and women.

As a people, we have seen God move in the land but we have also seen him move in our own families. We have seen him lift us up when we should have been down, and give us new direction when we should have been lost. We have seen him champion our causes, put food on our tables and forgive us when we strayed. If we had ten thousand tongues we could not praise him enough. If we had 10,000 hands we could clap loud enough or long enough to give him, so we sing, "Bless the Lord, oh my soul and all that is within me, bless his holy name."

HE HAS VISITED: The Greek word used for visited in Luke 1:68, means to visit with a view toward help. When God visits his people he does not visit like the friends of Job who sat at his house for seven days without saying anything, then when they finally spoke they condemned him for some unknown sin. When God visits he evaluates and acts. God is said to have visited his people in bondage when he delivered them. Exodus 3:16 is an example, "…The LORD God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob, appeared unto me, saying, I have surely visited you, and seen that which is done to you in Egypt." The same phrase is used to describe how God visited Israel in times of famine and gave them bread in Ruth 1:6. It seems clear that whenever God visits himself, he comes to help. The coming of the Christ child would mark a visit by a person of the God head, Christ himself, taking on the form of a child, staying long enough to become a man.

God has visited us, too. In the hour our bereavement, God visited us and consoled us. In the hour of our greatest need, he visited us and provided for our needs. In the hour of despair, he visited us and gave us hope. There is no time as joyous in our lives as the time when we realize that God is visiting. When God shows up, he definitely will show out. When God visits, whatever it is that we are worrying about disappears. When God shows up, the weight of the burdens that we are carrying gets lighter. When God shows up the trouble that plagued us is defeated. When God shows up, He will show out. So, lift our voices in praise, to a God who does more than pass by the neighborhood but stops by every house.

REDEEMED HIS PEOPLE: Israel was held captive in two respects. They were captive to the strict dictates of the Mosaic Law and they were captive to their own lost hopes. Jesus came to immediately address those conditions and to set in motion a third that would even release them from the captivity of the Roman Government. The Greek word for Redemption used in the text means the recovery of something and someone by payment of a ransom. That's what Jesus came to do. He came to pay the price for sin and release those who believe in him from the penalties of sin. Moreover, he came to save the people from their own defeatist thinking. His words to them were very simple, believe and trust God and seek the truth and the truth will make you free. He freed them from ceremony and ritual and set their minds thinking on a higher order. He's doing the same today. If we trust him, he is offering us salvation. If we trust him, he will change our thinking to a more positive, optimistic outlook. He has saved us from sin and equally important, he has saved us from our destructive ways of living that were leading us no-where fast. Today, the savior is showing us how to walk right, live right and think right. He's preparing us for the Kingdom by giving us a little piece of heaven on earth. There we should join Zacharias in singing "Bless be Lord!" for he is good and his mercy endureth forever.

Because of Christ, we sing a new song

Finally, brothers and sisters, as we consider Zachariah's song, we should also consider our own song, because God has given us something sing about.
It is true the Zacharias is attributed with speaking the first Christmas Carol with his Benedictus, announcing the good things that God has done, but every child of God could very well write our own Christmas Carol.

Like David, we should sing unto the Lord a new song.

Our song has to be a new song because it's different from what the world sings.

You see the world sings about chestnuts roasting on an open fire, a frosted snowman and reindeer that fly.

When the world sings its song, it sings, over the river and through the woods to grandmother's house we go, there we will sing about jingle bells and silver bells. Our song is a new song because it's more than just a happy holiday and a time to say Happy Kwanzaa.

Our song is a new song because the season is more than a time for colorful trees, glowing lights and shopping sprees.

Our song is a new song because the season is more than, get-to-gethers sing-a-longs and family dinners.

Our song is a new song because we are singing about the mercies of the Lord.

Our song is a new song because we are celebrating Jesus, coming down out of heaven entering the realms of earth.

Our song is a new song because we are singing about him leaving the celestial for terrestrial.

Our song is a new song because we are singing about his setting aside his glorified body and putting on a body of flesh.

Our song is a new song because we are singing about a savior who came down here and visited us for a while.

Our song is a new song because we are singing about a savior who did something for us that we could not do for ourselves, he saved our souls.

Our song is a new song because he came down here to quench our thirst and satisfy our hunger.

Our song is a new song because we are singing about Jesus.

We sing about him because although he was the creator, he became the created.

We sing about him because although he was the master he became the servant.

We sing about him because although he was the King of King of Kings he became a baby born in a manger.

We sing about him because although he was the good shepherd, he became the Lamb of God

When we sing our song we should thank him for the mountain tops and for the valleys as well.

When we sing our song we should thank him for the sunshine and thank him for the rain!

When we sing our song we should tell the story of how he picked us up turned us around!

It ought to tell the world how he planted our feet on solid ground!

It ought to tell the world how he gave us a new walk and a new talk!

It ought to tell the world how he gave us a new song to sing!

"I've been washed in the blood of the crucified lamb!"

Who died on Calvary but Early Sunday morning arose up from the grave!

Bless the Lord, oh my soul for he is good and his mercy endureth forever!

A Special Delivery

A Sermon By Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 2008

SCRIPTURE: "And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord." Luke 2:10-11

Introduction

Have you ever had the feeling that God has something special in store for you or your children? It's that feeling you get when you look into the eyes of a newborn and conclude that this child will be different from all of the others. He is special.

It's natural for parents to say that about their children. A woman with ten children looks at each of her children and concludes that they are all special. It is a mystery to us what the Lord has in store for every little child that is born. Those who have become mothers this year have joined millions of mothers before them wondering what God has in store for their sons and daughters.

When something is unique it is in a select category. However, to be special places it in a more exclusive category of uniqueness.

There were six unique births in scripture. Isaac and Jacob were the first two. They were uniquely born to parents in their old age. The third was the birth of Joseph, whose birth was granted after a special prayer request from his mother Rachel. The 4th was Samson, born a Nazarite with supernatural strength for a supernatural purpose. The 5th was Samuel who was the answer to Hannah's prayers but who was given up to the temple for the service of God. The 6th was John the Baptist, he too was born of old parents and was given a special mission.

While all of these were unique, the 7th and final unique birth, went beyond just being different, it was a special delivery. It was the birth of Jesus.

What is a special delivery? Between 1885 and 1997 the Postal Service offered a special service to postal customers. For an extra fee, letters could get special handling and faster delivery from the system. They called it "Special Delivery." When someone received a package marked "Special Delivery" they knew it contained something that was very important and "special."

When Christ was born the world witnessed a special delivery from heaven. It was a bundle of hope wrapped in swaddling clothes.

As Christians, we thank God for sending his son to this world. His birth was not ordinary or just unique. His birth had a special purpose for a special people. He was a special delivery.

Exposition

This text focuses on the good news brought by the angel to shepherds watching their fields. It was news that would bring them "great joy." The announcement of Christ's birth was not an ordinary announcement. It was the announcement of special delivery.

It was highly unusual primarily because it was announced by Angels themselves. The angels told them not to fear because they were bringing news of "great joy." The Greek word for "great" is Megas, which means big, enormous, colossal. It's the word we get the English word "Mega." When mega precedes something it is going to be super big. The angel announced news that was going to bring "mega joy." It would be mega joy for of Israel. It would be mega joy for the shepherds. It would be mega joys for every believer; that means mega joys for us.

The good news, of course, was the birth of Christ. That is the same good news that lifts our spirits today. The reality that God is with us, should lift our spirits and give us reason to be hopeful, cheerful and excited about life and all it offers.

Why His Birth was Special

The birth of Christ was a special delivery for the inhabitants of this world. It was special for three specific reasons:

HIS BIRTH PLACE WAS SPECIAL: We have read and heard the accounts of Jesus' birth in Bethlehem. That in itself is not unusual because hundreds of babies were born in Bethlehem each year. What is special is that Jesus was born in Bethlehem in the first place.. His father and mother were residents of Nazareth. They only came to Bethlehem to register for the special tax, but in so doing fulfilled the prophecies that the Messiah would be born in Bethlehem. What's special about all of this is that God ordered the events according to his will. He moved Caesar Augustus to call for the taxation and even the designation of where each person was to go enroll their families. Joseph, being of the tribe of David went to Bethlehem. In so doing, he highlighted the special nature of the Christ Child.

In the same sense, God orders events for his children today. We are special to him and he arranges events in ways that will always benefit us as long as we are operating in his will. In fact he says, "All things work to the good of them that Love the Lord." That means God is working it out for his children. No matter how difficult the problem or situation, God is working it out in special ways for some very special people; all believers. When that blessing comes just when we need it, it's a special delivery.

HIS PHYSICAL DELIVERY WAS SPECIAL: The baby Jesus was born in a manger, designed for animals in a stable because there was no room for him in the inn. That was not an accident, it was by design. Jesus came into the world in the lowliest of conditions so that he could appeal to all men, especially those who were poor and without means. He was wrapped in swaddling clothes and placed in a manger. Obviously, he was not born in the best of physical conditions yet his delivery was special because it demonstrated that even though he was "God with us" he would also be accepted as "one of us" by the people with whom he would encounter over the course of the next 33 years.

God has blessed all of us in very special ways. The accident of our birth in one location or another has no bearing on our access to God. Whether we were born in a hospital, surrounded by nurses and attendants, or on a living room sofa we are special. Whether we had special doctors and midwives or whether we were born on the back seat of a taxi cab, we are all special in God's sight. In the eyesight of the savior all of his children are special. That's the significance of his being born in a stable. He is accessible to all. He was truly a special delivery.

THOSE WHO WITNESSED HIS BIRTH WERE SPECIAL: Luke introduces the people who first saw Jesus…and they were not the kind of guests most of us would have over for Sunday dinner. They were not the cream of the crop. They were not the kings, priests, scribes or others of the ruling classes that were gathered to witness this special event. Those who witnessed this birth were shepherds. Shepherds were looked down upon because of their work. It took very little skill to be a shepherd; it didn't rank high on the most desirable profession list. Kenneth Barker and John Kohlenberger III made note of this in their commentary where they wrote, "Among the occupations, shepherding had a lowly place. Shepherds were considered untrustworthy and their work made them ceremonially unclean." Despite the fact that they were considered socially lowly people they were selected by God to witness a special even. They were the first to see the Newborn King and they were thrilled to see Him! In Luke 2: 15 – 18, we see their excitement: "When the angels had left them and gone into heaven, the shepherds said to one another, "Let's go to Bethlehem and see this thing that has happened, which the Lord has told us about." After seeing the Newborn King, the "lowly" shepherds became the first evangelists as they went and told everyone about whom they had seen…and what they said had an effect on others because they were amazed at what the shepherds told them.

That's important to believers today. It's important for us to know that we are not required to have a high station in life to be a witness to the goodness of the Lord. We don't need plenty of money or high positions in government to testify to his greatness. While an extended education is great, we don't need a PhD to tell the world about the goodness of the Lord. Even the most humble person can be a witness for the Lord. That's what makes our Lord's arrival a special delivery, because his mercy became available to everyone, regardless of race, creed or color! When God gets ready to shower down a blessing he sends through the hands of all who will make themselves available. When it comes it is a special delivery!

His arrival was special

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that the birth of the Christ Child was a sign from the Lord that he was about to visit his mercy on us, and it wouldn't be from a distance, but by special delivery.

A sign from the Lord is confirmed in the word, empowered by the Holy Spirit and instituted by the hand of God!

The prophecy had been given, a virgin shall conceive and bear a son! His name shall be called Immanuel, God with us.

This child would make his way through 42 generations to be born in Bethlehem. His birth would be a special delivery.

The delivery of this child was a sign to a world groping in despair that there is still hope!

This child was God sign to us:

—When darkness covers the land, that I am able to turn darkness into light!

—That although war is talked about in every corner, there will be peace on earth and good will toward all men!

—That although problems make life difficult, that God will make a way somehow!

This child is a special child, for Isaiah said in 9:6 for unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; And the government shall be on his shoulder; his name shall be called:

—Wonderful. Counselor. The Mighty God. Everlasting father. Prince of Peace!

This delivery will be a sign of God's unending love. I heard John 3:16 say "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life."

This delivery will be a sign that God will save us. I hear Romans 10:13 saying, "Whosoever will call upon the name of the Lord, shall be saved."

This delivery will be a sign that when it's all over down here I have a home on the other shore:

—Where the wicked will cease from troubling

—The weary will be at rest

—Every day will be Sunday

—Always howdy, never good bye!

This special delivery would be superseded only another miracle that happened 33 years later.

That's when the baby born in Bethlehem, took up an old rugged cross in Jerusalem!

He was delivered to a special cross and died a special death.

We know his death was special because we still hear the centurion soldier saying "surely he must be the Son of God."

He died a special death and was buried in a special tomb!

But Early Sunday morning he an angel of the Lord rolled the stone away and gave the world another special delivery!

He arose with all power in his hands!

And he's still delivering special blessings everyday!

God With Us

SCRIPTURE: Behold, a virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us. Matthew 1:23

Introduction

Have you ever had anyone to tell you "I'm with you" only to discover that you were all by yourself? There are many people who begin projects thinking that they have the support of friends and family only to learn that once difficulties arise that they are often standing alone. It happens on the job, when co-workers put you up to speak to the boss about a problem, then you learn that you are all alone. It happens in the community when you are selected to lead a time consuming and expensive project only to hear those who pushed you up front give excuses for not giving you help. It most definitely happens in the political world. It even happens in the family. Just about everyone has experienced what it means to be alone when you thought you had a crowd with you.

Wouldn't it be nice if each of us were like the people in the Verizon cell phone commercial? In that commercial each time a subscriber picks up the phone there is a whole network of people standing behind him. The idea is that there is a small army of supporters backing up every call. It would be great if we had our own network of support, "with us" everywhere we went.

Sometimes we can have people with us, but their presence means nothing. A man complained to his wife that he wasn't going to play golf anymore because he couldn't see where the ball fell after long drives. His wife reminded him that he was 70 and his eyesight was not what it once was. She suggested that take her brother along with him. The husband laughed as questioned what good that would do since her brother was 85 years old. "Don't let his age fool you," said the wife. "He's 85 but he can see a fly blink his eyes at 100 yards. His eye sight is so good that he can read the license plate on a car four blocks away." Convinced, the husband took his brother in law, Jack, with him on his next golf game. When he teed off the ball soared into the air. "Can you see it, Jack?" asked the husband. "Sure can!" The husband felt good, but as they started to walk he asked Jack, "Where did the ball land?" Jack gave a blank stare and said, 'I can't remember." Then the wife blurted out, "oh I forgot to tell Jack's got perfect eyesight, but he can't remember a thing." Jack was with them that day, but his presence meant absolutely nothing.

One of the joys of the Christmas season is that it reminds us that we are not alone. The arrival of the Christ child jogs the memory of the whole world and gently reminds them that "God is with us."

As Christians we are happy to know that we are not alone. We are happy to know that despite the difficulties of the times that the God we serve empathizes with us every day of our lives. Even before we pray to him he knows our needs, because he is with us.

Exposition

This text focuses on a prophecy recited in Matthew that Christ would be born of a virgin mother and whose birth would come to signify that God had come to live among men.

This prophecy makes reference to a similar prophecy made in Isaiah 7:14. In Isaiah, King Ahaz had suffered considerable defeat at the hands of his enemies. In one day 120,000 people were killed and another 200,000 were taken prisoner. Much of Judah's riches were carried away as spoils. God sent Isaiah to him prepared to give him a sign that he would not be destroyed.. The King was so distraught that he would not ask for a sign. He had made a deal with Assyria to rescue him and felt he did not need God. So God gave him a sign anyway that a virgin would conceive and bare a son and his name would be called "Immanuel" –The strong God with us. In the time it would take for the child to be born and weaned to a point of being able to eat butter and milk the King's problem would be resolved.

Matthew drew the connection between the prophecy is Isaiah and the birth of Christ, noting that the prophecy given 740 years earlier also referred to the birth of the savior with noted differences: in Isaiah the virgin maiden who would give birth referred to an pure bride; however, in Matthew it referred to a miraculous, immaculate conception. The birth Matthew referred was that of the Son of God.

The birth was Christ was miraculous. Matthew 1:18 indicates that his birth was caused by the Spirit of God himself. The birth of Christ required a special explanation to all involved. Matthew 1:20 shows how an angel appeared to Joseph to explain that his bride would be used by God to introduce Christ into the world. Isaiah 7:14 indicates that the birth of Christ as the fulfillment of a prophecy seven centuries earlier.

Immanuel, means "God with us." It states that the baby Jesus was actually God being born into this world. As a human he would face the same milk and butter issues as any other human. Yet, the fact that he came to the world would be a source of hope. The text notes that they child would be called Immanuel. That would not be his name, but he would be referred to as "God with us," or God with us. The text does not indicate that "Immanuel" would be his official name, but only that "Immanuel" would describe his presence and work on earth.

Even deeper, Emmanuel does not mean just a close association, the Greek form of the word "with" used in this text is the strongest form of "with." It is not merely "in company with us "as another Greek word would signify, but "with," "together with," and "sharing with." It indicates a very close fellowship. God is peculiarly and closely "with us." If God took on our nature and lived as we live, that's a close as "with" as one can get. It would be the same as a friend moving into your house and living "with" you every day of your life. That's "with" by any definition.

"With" means that God has taken upon our nature our: flesh, blood, bone, everything that made a body; mind, heart, soul, memory, imagination, judgment, everything that makes a rational person. It is a wonderful assurance to know that God is so close to us that he can hear us think breathes with us every moment of the day.

Significance of "God With Us"

There is a significance to the three words of this text "God with us." It should an encouragement to believers in difficult times. It should remind us that:

GOD IS WITH US IN OUR TROUBLES: Jesus was born into the world as a child so that he could respond to the feelings and troubles of his creations from the standpoint of having "been there." Were you ever a child living under parental authority? Jesus has been there. Did you grow up in a small town or a small section of town not known for producing anything of value? Jesus has been there too? Were you often talked about criticized and persecuted for no reason at all? Jesus has been there too. Have there ever been times when you were pretty close to living on the streets? Jesus has been there too. There is no situation that we can experience that he cannot in some way understand how we feel from being born out of wedlock to being crucified for crimes he didn't commit.

When look to the savior for support and strength we are looking to someone who has been there with us. He knows what it means to be in trouble. He also knows what it means to feel all alone. Being alone is an awkward feeling. Most of us feel better when we face a situation in the company of those who make them feel safe and secure. When we are alone, fear sets in and anxiety is heightened. When we are alone, we feel uncomfortable. We feel safer when we are not alone. That's why Jesus promised never to leave us alone.

GOD IS WITH US IN OUR RELATIONSHIPS: The beauty of the Christian family is that God lives in a Christian home. He is present in a Christian marriage and is the unseen chaperone when Christian singles date. When God is in a home we have the constant presence of a spiritual advisor that helps our families to grow stronger. In a marriage or a single relationship God's function is the same. That's the difference between a Christian Home and people who live together. Those who shack up, do it without God. Couples who date without God is their chaperone, usually end up physically attached but spiritually detached.

Even though God is present in every family, he doesn't act like a meddling in-law, butting in while saying "I'm not trying to tell you how to run your family, but." He doesn't butt -in his advice must be requested; and it should not be requested if it's not going to be followed. How do we get God to intervene? We pray and ask him to intercede. We pray and ask him to show us the way.

There are many marriages, relationships and families that have been rescued from the brink of destruction only because three words "God with us." If it had not been for the Lord on our side, where would be?

GOD HAS BEEN WITH US WHEN WE WERE NOT WITH US: There have been times in our lives when we have given up on ourselves. That's the time when we considered our losses, failures and defeats and decided to throw in the chips. Like Samson, we lost our strength and were ready to accept a life of weakness and darkness. Like David, we lost our favor from God because of our sinfulness and lost the special connection we had with God. Like the woman at the well, we were so caught up in sin that we thought we were doomed to community scorn forever.

Yet, at the point when we all of these had given up on themselves they found that God had not forsaken them. Samson had his strength restored. David had the joy of his salvation restored, and the woman at the well ran through the city saying "come see a man told me all I've ever done." Even when they had abandoned themselves, God was still with them.

Even today, there are some who have given up on themselves. They look at the shambles they have made of their lives and believe that all is lost. They have forgotten that God is with us always. Sometimes he's with us shaking his head at our failure to use what he has made available to us.

A father watched his son striking to push a huge rock. Frustrated the boy started to cry, prompting his father to ask why. "I tried to push the rock but it won't move" said the boy. "Have you used everything available to you?" asked the father. "Yes, sir." said the boy. Then father took the boy's hands and placed them back on the rock and together they pushed it until it rolled. Then the father said, "You said you had used all that was available to you, but you never asked me."

Those who are frustrated and have given up on life should remember that God is with them. He's waiting for them to ask for his help. With his help, every stone can be rolled away.

In every situation, God is with us

The great satisfaction of every believer is that no matter how deep the valley or dark the alley, there is always hope.

It is tempting in difficult times to believe that we are all alone. As we read of massive layoffs in companies as large as General Motors and as small as the local corner store, we tend to get nervous and believe that we are alone in this struggle.

Yet, the word of God constantly reminds us that we are not alone. God is with us. With that kind of backup, we are better connected than Verizon, we have all of the resources of heaven working for us.

We have the promise of God that he is with us to support us, defend us, and protect us, according to his will.

I hear Jesus say "lo, I am with you!"

If you are worried about the economy and the downsizing of your income, just keep the faith and remember God is with us.

When God is with us

-It doesn't matter how dark the night, because he can take darkness and turn it into light!

-It doesn't matter how much rain falls, because after every rain he makes the sun shine!

-It doesn't matter how many ditches your enemies dig for you, he can take your enemies and make them your footstools

-It doesn't matter if you don't have a dime in your pocket, if you take the Lord with you, David said, "I have been young, but now I'm old, but I've never seen the righteous forsaken or his seed begging for bread!"

When we wake up in the morning, God is with us.

At the noon day, God is with us

At the midnight hour, God is with us.

No matter how difficult the terrain or treacherous the path, as long as God is with us, there is always hope!

No matter how frustrating the moment or aggravating the circumstance, as long as God is with us, there is always hope!

No matter how challenging the obstacle or intimidating the foe, as long as God is with us, there is always hope!

That's why the songwriter declares, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame but wholly lean on Jesus name!

We have hope that"

If we stumble and trust in the Lord, he'll help us to stand!

If we are discouraged but trust in the Lord, he'll give us new inspiration!

If we get weak and trust in the Lord, he'll make us strong!

If we get lost and trust in the Lord, he'll help us find our way!

If we find ourselves in the valleys and alleys of despair, he's able to deliver us!

I don't know how long it will be, nor what the future holds for me, but this I know...

If Jesus, who gave his blood for us on Calvary..

If Jesus, who was buried in a borrowed tomb..

If Jesus, who arose after three days and nights

If Jesus is with me, through the storm and the rain!

If Jesus is with me, through heat of day and chill of the midnight hour!

If Jesus is with me, through trials and tribulations!

If Jesus is with me, everything will be alright!

Is there any room?

SCRIPTURE: And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn. Luke 2:7

Introduction

Have you ever traveled and stopped for a hotel only to be told that there were no vacancies? That's one of the problems of those who travel, finding a room where you want to stay.

Today there are a plethora of places for a person to find lodging. The internet provides a wealth of opportunities that did not exist a decade ago. Now, a person can find a hotel online, get a list of all of the services that the hotel offers and even get a virtual tour of the hotel featuring photographs of the rooms, restaurant and pool areas. There are maps showing the distance of the hotel from shopping centers, major highways and other pertinent information.

Yet, with all of the technology available to us, it is still possible to get the same response that visitors have received for thousands of years, -There's no room in the inn.

That's a really frustrating feeling. It's complicated more when there is money in your pocket but you can't find a place to lay your head for the night.

No room! It's terminal.

No room! It's final.

There is a curious scene in Revelation 3:20. It shows Christ standing at the door of the church at Laodicea and asking to come in, making himself available. The text of the verse says, "Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me."

Today, that statement is being made to every believer. "Behold I stand at the door." Our challenge is to open up the door and make room for him in our lives.

As Christians, we know that the spirit of God desires to reside within us, but we must open the door to let him in. We must make room for him and invite him into our lives.

Exposition

This text considers the place where Jesus, the son of God, was born.

The known world was ordered to enroll for the Roman tax. Those who were descendants of David were ordered to travel to Bethlehem to register themselves and thereby Joseph and Mary came to travel with other pilgrims in obedience to the law.

Once in Bethlehem Joseph looked for lodging and found none. In each instance he was told there was no room because the city was filled with travelers looking for a place to stay.

There are two types of inns generally referred to in scripture.

One is what we might call a motel. Luke 10:34 tells of the Good Samaritan who found an injured man along the road and carried him to a nearby town and put him up in an inn. The verse says, "And went to him, and bound up his wounds, pouring in oil and wine, and set him on his own beast, and brought him to an inn, and took care of him." The word used for inn in this text is "pandocheion" (Pan-do-kay-on) which means an all receptive lodging place.

The second type of inn is indicated in our text is a katalyma (Katalooma). It is a place to break up a journey, a small rest area or campground. More than likely a katalyma was just a stopover for caravans on their way through Jerusalem to Galilee or Egypt.

Such "inns" were simply crude stone walls encircling an area for the animals. The nicer of these inns would be two story structures where the overnight guests would sleep on the upper level while their animals rested underneath.

To one such katalyma, Joseph made his appeal for a room for himself and his wife, and heard the disappointing response: "There is no room at the inn."

Places to make room

Mary and Joseph went into Bethlehem and were given a secondary accommodation because the main places were occupied.

Often, Jesus knocks at our door but we are too busy to let him in. How does he knock? Does he appear in person and ring our doorbell or tap on the door? Usually he calls us gently to serve him through serving others, while many respond; there are others who have no room. Sometimes he calls us to commune with him in prayer, public worship and private prayer time. While many hear his knock and open to him there are others who respond, there is "no room, no time, no way possible to do what he wants because their schedules are filled." In this sense, there are many today that have no room for the savior and relegate him to second place on their agenda while desiring to be first place on his.

CROWDED LIVING ROOMS: There are many who have no living room space for Christ. The living room of a house suggests the place where the family gathers to fellowship, relax and enjoy each other. Many families today have little room for Christian living. Many have modified their living to include much that the world has to offer. Some have subscriptions to pornographic cable services and literature. Many have computers that have bookmarked sites that include music, videos and other materials not indicative of Christian living. If the living room of our lives is filled with so much worldliness that the spirit of God cannot dwell then we should consider Ephesians 5:3, "But fornication, and all uncleanness, or covetousness, let it not be once named among you, as becometh saints" When it comes to Christian fellowship, there is little time or interest in the things of God. We should resolve to make room for Christ by clearing out all of the worldly distractions that have kept our focus away from. When he knocks, our living will be an invitation to his presence.

UNATTENDED WASHROOMS: Every house has a wash room or a place where dirty things are stored until they can be washed. The wash room, by its very nature is where the family goes to clean its clothes and linens. In the spiritual context, the washroom is the collection of sins and offenses for which we have not repented. When we sin and pile up the sins one on top of another and fail to address them they send up a stench in the nostrils of God. Before we invite God into our lives, pray to him for blessings or ask him for mercies, we must attend the washroom. We must take care of the dirty laundry, the outstanding sins, and present ourselves repentant to God. To repent is not simply to throw all of our sins in the washroom and close the door so that God won't see them, but to repent is to clean up. T

CLOSED BEDROOMS: There are many who would invite Christ into their lives, but they would have to close the bedroom door first. If there is a place where many believers have a weakness, it would relation to our love lives. There are still many who are active in their churches and believe passionately in Christ, but they shrivel up if he asks to see the bedroom of their lives. There are some who are still struggling with faithfulness in their marriages; they are still tipping around and cheating on their spouses. There are some singles who break their vows of abstinence regularly even while maintaining a hearty church life. Yet if Christ comes to visit, will he find the bedroom of our lives locked? Can we freely open this area of our lives up to godly inspection and say to him "And this is our bedroom" and not be ashamed. The church is the bride of Christ, we must present ourselves to him spotless and pure. If your bedroom door is not in order, let this become bed making time. Why? Because we are expecting a visit from the king and want him to be able to visit every room of our lives.

THE DINING ROOMS: The dining room is where the family eats and communes. Families usually commune together. That definition has changed in this generation. Dining room tables are only used for special occasions like Thanksgiving and Christmas meals. The remainder of the year many families eat, but they do not commune together. In a spiritual sense believers do not forsake opportunities to commune together. The Lord's supper is an occasion in which all of the saints of a congregation are in the same room and they all are on one accord with one purpose and that is to commemorate the life, death burial and resurrection of Christ. Yet, there are many times each year when some saints do not commune together. Just as they do at home, they skip the family meal and catch a little some some on the run. If that has been your situation during the year, why not resolve to make room for communion fellowship with your church family? It is a special day that should not be ignored, just as eating and fellowshipping with your family should not be ignored. Jesus said, "This do, in the remembrance of me."

THE PRAYER CLOSET: Every house has some type of closet where things are stored. It's a secluded room or place, even if it's behind a door, out of sight. In Matthew 6:6 Jesus said, “But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly.” Your closet is your prayer place. Christ was not suggesting that in order to pray that we have to go in a dark room and close the door just as he is not suggesting that we must always bend our knees to pray; but it does mean that our homes should be places of prayer and its members should pray regularly. Many homes have become houses. There is no room for prayer except for a quick grace at mealtime. Prayer is essential for families. We pray for God’s protection. We pray for healing. We pray for forgiveness. We pray for strength. The old adage is true, “Prayer is the key to kingdom and faith unlocks the door.” If your home has not been a praying home, why not make room?

Prepare him room

Finally brothers and sisters, we must consider that Christmas season celebrates the birth of the Christ child meaning that God is coming to be with us, as we celebrate we should make room.

A lyric from “Joy to the World” says, “Let every heart prepare him room” and that be our desire, to prepare room for Jesus this Christmas.

It is perfectly acceptable to join in the festivities surrounding Christmas but be sure to make room for Jesus.

It is fine to have a beautiful Christmas tree that is decorated with pretty lights and candy cane, but we don’t want to have Christmas without Jesus!

It is exciting to have tables full of food and the best cakes and pies in the world, but we don’t want to have Christmas without Jesus!

It is an enriching experience to exchange gifts and expressions of love, but we don’t want to have Christmas without Jesus!

Christmas without Jesus is like a brand new car without gas!

Christmas without Jesus is like a cake made without sugar!

Christmas without Jesus is like a new toy but the batteries are not included!

Christmas without Jesus is like a cell phone with no minutes, a computer with no internet connection, and a copy machine with no paper!

Christmas without Jesus is like a coffeepot with no coffee, a bank account with nothing in it; and a magazine with empty pages!

Let every heart prepare him room because when he comes in he will -Comfort us in our sorrow; Assure us in our difficulties!

-Strengthen us in our weakness; encourage us in our trials!

He’s on his way!

On his way to our lives, he stopped down in Bethlehem and made a stop in Nazareth!

He stopped by a place called Calvary and spent three nights in a grave!

On his way to our lives, he died but Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

Joy to the world, the Lord is come. Let earth receive her king!

Why Nazareth?

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 28, 2008

SCRIPTURE: "And he came and dwelt in a city called Nazareth: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophets, He shall be called a Nazarene." Matthew 2:23

Introduction

If you could pick a city in which to live where would it be? Many have toyed with that idea at one point in their lives, speculating on one city another.What makes a location ideal as much to do with with want to do in life

A person who wants to succeed in arts: music, dance and theater might favor living in New York or California.

A person who attracted to life on the seas might be attracted to areas bordering great bodies of water.

The painter might like the scenic grandeur of the mountainous areas.

Each generation of African Americans has seen America from a different perspective. There was a time when every Southern African-American wanted to go North, anywhere North, because that would mean freedom. Those who were up North dreamed of returning to Mother Africa.

Then there came a great migration of Blacks who saw New York City, Chicago and Detroit and the Mecca's of opportunity for Blacks created a new Renaisaance man in the Black community.

In the 1950's California was was seen as the place that provided the best opportunities for Blacks.

Today, many young Blacks are trying to get to Atlanta because it has the image of being a place where young upwardly mobible blacks can survive and thrive.

While that migration is happening among the young, the older adults who are living up North are making a full circle and return home to the South.

The ideal place to live depends on what you are trying to achieve in life.

What if you were the son of God shopping a town in which to live, in the whole world, what town would you choose?

Some are surprised to learn that Jesus picked a small town, Bethlehem in which to be born, and Nazereth, an even smaller town in which to grow and mature.

The fact that God would choose a small town to launch a world wide ministry says a lot about the nature of the savior and how important each person is to him.

As Christians, we should be proud to know that our God is a God of the big city, but he is also the god of the village and hamlet. Wherever we are God can use us to do his work.

Exposition

This text focuses on the life of the baby Jesus after the birth in Bethelehem.

It is significant to note that while Jesus was born in Bethlehem he was not reared in Bethlehem. Because Herod sought find the child and kill him Joseph and Mary fled to Egypt for a while. The family returned to Nazereth.

This decision had been predicted by the prophets Matthew refers to what "was spoken by the prophets" that he should be called a Nazarene.

There is no single Old Testament passage that says Jesus would be called a Nazarene. The closest we get is Isaiah 11:1 in which the prophet refers to Christ as a branch of Jesse. The word for Branch is "Netzar" which means Nazarene. So what is the meaning of the phrase that suggests that prophets prophecied that he would be a called a Nazarene.

Nazarene is term that means to be despised. It's synoymous to be called "Trailer Trash","Hick","Ghetto" or "hillibilly" in modern times. To be called a Nazarene meant that you would be object of jokes, ridicule and scorn. It also mean that no one would ever take anything you did or said seriously. This was a fact that prompted Nathaniel to ask, "Can anything good come from there?" (John 1:46, NIV).

Nazarene and Nazarite are two terms in the bible that are often confused. A Nazarite was a special, honored person who life was consecrated and set aside for the service of God.

A Nazarene was a person who was despised and looked down upon.

Jesus was not a Nazarite, but a Nazarene.

God chose the town of Nazereth with all of predispositions against progress and affinities with the world to rear his son, Jesus.

This choice in itself signified that not only was God "With us" but he was accessible to even the lowest and most despised among us.

Why Nazereth

What reason would God have for picking Nazereth.

TO FULFILL HIS DESTINY: The scriptures had prophesied the Christ would be a despised person. Psalm 22:6 noted that he would be considered a worm. In Psalm 69:19 the words reproach, and shame are used to describe him. Isaiah 53:3 used the terms despised and rejected to describe him. It became obvious that his life in Nazereth would fulfill this part of his destiny. Jesus was to be a man who would rise up from the lowest ranks of the people; it had been prophesied, so Nazereth was the place.

Today, each of us has a destiny, a purpose for which we were placed on this earth. The Prophet Isaiah tells us that the purpose of the Christ Child was to become the Prince of Peace, the Almighty God and Counselor. With a clear purpose, Christ's spiritual life was easier to shape because his purpose was clear to him; he was to be the savior of his people. This fact was indicated even by his name, "Jesus", which meant he would save his people. The fact that he would be called a Nazarene indicated that he would not have an easy route ahead. Each of us should strive know God's plan for our lives and pursue it, despite the difficulties ahead.

MIRACLES WOULD BE MORE OBVIOUS: Since no one expected anything of importance to come from Nazereth, when any great person or thing out of Nazereth its importance was heightened. The fact that a great thinker would evolve from Athens, the home culture, literate and scholarship would not be considered great, but from Nazareth that would be a different case. The fact that a healer was attracting great crowds would not make the news in Rome, but if the person was from Nazereth, it would make it obvious that there was something great going on.

Sometimes we question why God placed me in this company, in this region and in this town. We wonder why we were not given stations in places that appear to have more opportunity. The principal dreams of leading the super school. The coach dreams of heading the championship team of super talented players. Those or the times that we question why we were given "Nazareth?"

When a coach takes a team of misfits and turns them into champions, his greatness is underscored. When he wins with a team of champions, winning is expected. A principal of a school of scholars is expected to do well, but the principal who turns arounds an under achieving school raises eyebrows.

Why Nazereth? It is the place that gives God the glory when you achieve because the world will know that it had to be God working with you to make it happen, because nothing good comes out of Nazereth.

HIS WORK PUT THE TOWN ON THE MAP: Very few people outside of the region had ever heard of Nazereth. Those that did, thought little of the town. However, the ministry of Christ put them on the map. The people even started referring to him as Jesus of Nazereth. Suddenly, Nazereth became a place to be from, especially after the church was established and Christianity spread around the world. Jesus put the town on the map.

Is it possible that God may be using you to put your town on the map. Are you the one who will cure cancer, if so you will put your town on the map. Are you the one that will reduce the poverty of the world? Are you the one that will save millions from dying sickness and disease? Any person who takes on a life tasks and succeeds will put his town of origin on the map of public respect.

In all of America, there was one littl college that turned out a stream of professional football players from nearly 40 years; that school was Grambling State. Despite the fact that it is located in one the poors areas of the country and state, the college put the town on the map.

What Jesus did, he did well. He did it with such excellence that the world took a second look at the town called Nazereth.

Circumstance Does not matter

Finally, brothers and sisters we must also note that by selecting Nazereth God sent us the message that with God's help even those from the smallest, morst remote corners of the world can achieve.

Each believer has a purpose and a destiny with respect to the kingdom of God. Wherever we are in life is not by chance, the God we serve as ordered events and circumstances to place us where we are. That means our circumstance does not matter; what does matter is our willingess to work with what God has given us to achieve his purpose.

Even though you may be from Nazereth, there is a reason for the blessings you are receiving. You are being blessed so that you can be a blessing to the kingdom.

When the Christ child grew up he recognized the he was being blessed for a purpose. Even at the tender age of 12 he said "It's time for me to be about my father's business."

Even though we may be from Nazereth the Grace of God smiles on what we do.

God smiles on us because of the children that we help along the way.

God smiles on us because of the elderly spirits that lift every day!

God smiles on us because of broken hearts we help to mend on our journey

Even though we may be from Nazereth,God's grace is upon us,is smiling on us and is guiding our footsteps.

Maybe that's why the song writer wrote, "Guide me oh thou great Jehovah, pilgrim through this barren land. I am weak but thou art mighty, hold me with thy powerful hand!"

It's the powerful hand of him who was born in a manager in Bethlehem and reared in a little town called Nazareth; he made a world of difference!

He saw a world filled with hatred and tried to bring love!

He saw a world filled with defeat and brought a message of victory!

He saw a world filled with weakness and brought a message of strength!

He saw a world filled with darkness and challenged it to walk in the light!

They called him Jesus; he made a world of difference!

Before he left he told his disciples to stay ready because "I'm going to create another world! "That where I am ye may be also!"

In that world, every day will be Sunday and the Sabbath will have no end!

In that world, it'll always be howdy and never good-bye!

In that world, hearse wheels will not roll!

No wonder the song writer declares, "When we all get to heaven, what a day of rejoicing that will be! When we all see Jesus, we'll sing and shout the victory!"

In that world we'll see Jesus, who died out on Calvary and arose early Sunday morning!

In that world we'll live eternally!

Come and go with me to my father's house!

In my father's house there is joy! Joy! Joy!

Forward March

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 6, 1980

SCRIPTURE: "And the LORD said unto Moses, Wherefore criest thou unto me? speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward" Exodus 14:15

Introduction

What do you think about when you are poised to begin a new experience? Often we are apprehensive, troubled or even fearful when faced with the prospect of the future. We know what has happened in the past but we do not know what the future holds. We are not afraid of the future, we are afraid of the unknown. That's all the more reason for us to trust heavily in what we do know. We do know that as long as God is in the future, he will control its outcome to the fulfillment of his will.

For that reason we march forward with the precision and determination of a soldier proceeding into the unknown.

Those familiar with the military know the meaning of the command to "forward march."On the command "forward march", the soldier smartly steps off straight ahead with the left foot, taking a 24-inch step and places his heel on the ground first. The hands will be cupped with the thumbs pointed down, and the arms will hang straight, but not stiff, and will swing naturally. The swing of the arms will measure 6 inches to the front and 3 inches to the rear.

There is an order to marching forward. It's on command and by the rules. It indicates a soldier about to move forward in unison with others in full faith in the commanding officer.

That's the way it is with believers. As we prepare to march forward we should be prepared to move at God's command in an orderly fashion, obedient to his commands. When we do that, we know that he will tell us when to halt, when to stand at ease, or even when it's time to do an about-face.

When considering the new year ahead there is no real reason for the people of God to be apprehensive or jittery. God is still on the throne. He will control the events of the New Year just as he has controlled the events of our past.

As Christians, we are confident that God does not change. While we may be weary of what the future holds, we are encouraged however, because we know who holds the future. God is in control and that means everything will be all right.

Exposition

This text focuses on a command God gave Moses to tell Israel: to rise up and go forward.

Having left Egypt Moses was faced with a complaining people who were troubled because all they could see was trouble in front of them in the form of the Red Sea and trouble behind them in the form of Pharaoh's approaching army.

Moses boldly told the people to fear not but to stand still and see the salvation of the Lord. Soon after he made those bold statements to the people, Moses himself became dispirited. Then God issued him a spiritual wakeup call and told him in no uncertain terms: "Why are you crying out to me? Stop crying! Get up! Arise! Tell the people to go forward!" And Moses did.

It is a word of faith that is echoed throughout the scriptures as believers become weary or fearful of the days ahead.

Paul reminded the Galatians not to be weary but to keep doing good in the days ahead. "And let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not" (Galatians 6:9).

The believers at Corinth were encouraged not to miss a beat but to be steadfast in their forward march. "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord" (1 Cor. 15:58).

Marching forward with boldness and courage is the command to every believer. It's the same command that was given to Moses and is given to every believer today.

Going forward

When God freed the people of Israel from their bondage in Egypt they fled to the banks of the Red Sea. To the right and left they were bordered by high mountains and behind them was Pharaoh's army. In front of them was the Red Sea. They had no way to go that would not present a highly impossible circumstance.

However, listening to the dictates of God they decided to march forward in blind faith that God would open up a way for them.

As we enter the decade of the 1980's it is tempting for all of us to look behind us with a certain amount of nostalgia and to face the future with a degree of reluctance.

Man by his nature is a creature that harbors a fear of the unknown. Certainly the prospect that we may live to see a day that is vastly different from the present looms over each of us

All we know about the 80's is what we have heard and read. We have heard that the 80's will be a decade of challenge to us as a nation and individually. The prospect of radical changes in the status quo scares many of us. Miniature cars and homes,

$2.00 per gallon gasoline, test tube babies, and regular trips into space for the average citizen are but a few of the changes that are destined to come, not to mention the four day work week, a computer in every home and social order that will be highly socialized and controlled by inanimate technology.

The prospect of the 80's faces us, but where do we go from here is the question.

We most certainly cannot go backward although that is the road that is prescribed by right wing conservative elements of our nation. We can't simply stand still either because if we do we will be swallowed by the past or drowned in the tidal wave caused by the future.

The only way for us to go is forward.

We must enter into the 80's with an optimistic spirit that we will place the banner of Jesus in front of us and march forward in faith.

Affirming Life

Sigmund Freud in his book "The Ego and the Id" noted that every life operates on two psychological principles governed by the Eros and Thanatos or the libdo and mortido instincts. He theorized that we either have a life instinct or a death instinct. It is a part of human nature, he says.

The Eros is the reproductive or life instinct, the desire to drive forward and to live and seek life on whatever level we can find it. The thanatos seeks the instinct to return life back into its inanimate state or death.

Freud theorized that our actions are either life affirming or life denying.

To go backward is life denying. To go forward is life affirming.

In the 1970's we have seen many life affirming trends: There was a focus on the elderly in the 1970's as we discovered a new appreciation for our elders. There was also heightened acceptance of women as equals. Even though it has not come to full fruition it began immensely in the 70's. There was also the adoption of less imposing lifestyles in the 1970's. Living simpler became more acceptable that opulence, although opulence is still the main drawing card.

We also see some life denying trends when we look back at the 70's. We saw a revival of the death penalty in the nation. We also saw a quickened erosion of the family, as we have known it, since Adam and Eve. Adam and Steve is on the brink of becoming acceptable. There was a decline in the work ethic in the 70's, it began in the late 60's and continued through as more people wanted something for nothing and became comfortable living on the goodwill of others. We also saw the rise of social apathy in the 70's. An entire generation began to develop a very laid back attitude about the society in which we live without any feeling of responsibility.

With that look back, we must approach the 80's with a life affirming attitude about the issues of the day, our community and our personal lives.

We must assume what columnist Max Lerner calls the "attitude of the possibilist" and what Jesus referred to as faith. Faith is what makes us assume a life affirming stance and assume the role of possibility thinker saying, "With God all things are possible."

Go forward or die

Finally, brothers and sisters, as dark as the approaching years may seem, we have only one choice and that is go forward or to die. We must step out on faith for if we stand still we will be consumed by time which marches on.

Moses called Israel to "see the salvation of the Lord" and we too must stand still and see the salvation of the Lord, prepared to move at his command.

On the command forward march, the challenge of every Christian should be to answer, if the Lord needs somebody, here am I, send me.

As we proceed forward, we should be sure to keep our eyes on Jesus, the rock of our salvation.

In the days ahead there will be some scorching summers, but the Rock is a shade on your right hand, for the sun shall not smite thee by day nor the moon by night, so forward march!

Believers can expect to be attacked in the days ahead, but the Rock gives them a special vantage place, a higher ground, so forward march!

There are some dry days ahead, but there is also refreshment in the Rock, so do not be afraid; forward march!

No matter how bad things get just remember that no situation is terminal because "Our God is able!"

The world doesn't understand how we march forward with boldness although we don't have everything!

They don't understand how we can be so happy when:

—Our bank accounts are so low!

—We are not driving a Rolls Royce!

—We don't have expensive furniture in our homes!

—Our closets are not filled with brand-new clothes!

—Hard times seem to come our way so often

—Death just left our door

What they don't understand about us is that we serve a God who specializes in taking the obstacles in our paths and turning them into footstools.

I don't know about you but I've found out that God can take my:

--WEAKNESS and turn it into strength; DEFEATS and turn them into victories.

--DARKNESS and turn it into light, HUNGER and turn it into satisfaction.

--SADNESS and turn it into gladness; EMPTINESS and turn it into fullness!

--SORROW and turn it into joy; SIN and turn it into salvation!

It doesn't matter what the New Year brings, I found out that there is deliverance in the rock!

Rock of Ages, Cleft for me, let me hid myself in thee!

This Rock is Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

This Rock is Jesus, who arose after three days and nights!

Be very sure your anchor holds and grips the solid rock ….

Faith for the Race

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 2009

SCRIPTURE: "Wherefore seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God. Hebrews 12:1-2

Introduction

What makes a person a true champion? A champion is a hero who defies the odds and arises victorious. A champion displays strength of character in the pursuit of high goals and objectives. Those who are champions are not the ones who begin a race, but those who run their race to its end and bring home the victory.

This summer when we watched the Olympics we saw men and women stand bold with gold medals around their necks representing their countries. The public saw the triumphant end of a journey for Olympians that carried them through years of preparation, disappointments and setbacks before they received the ultimate victory; the golden crown.

We watched the Olympics on television but every Christian actually runs a race for the kingdom of God. There is more at stake in the Christian race than in the Olympics. In the Olympics the winners receive the praise of the world a gold plated (not solid gold) medallion. However, runners in the Christian race, receive a crown of pure gold and the praise of the almighty God.

Our champion was a superior athlete with a tremendous heart, determination and character..

Despite an athlete's accomplishments in competition the greatest race is not on the track field but as a runner in the arena of Christian life.

In that respect athletes are like every believer who is striving to live the Christian life. We are running for Jesus. The strength and training regimen however, makes the comparisons clearer and easier to understand.

As Christians, we all are striving to live a life that pleases God. Like competitors on the track field we run the race that has been set before us. We are sure that when that race ends we shall receive a golden crowd.

Exposition

This text focuses on the Christian life as a race and each individual as a runner in a race in pursuit of a golden crown.

Hebrews 12 impressively follows Hebrews 11 which presents a long succession of faith runners, all described as running by faith. Among the listed were: Abraham, Moses and others, all described as great runners or people of faith who ran their leg of this great relay.

Hebrews 11 begins by describing those who ran before as a "great cloud of witnesses" who have run their part of the race and are now counting on each believer to run their leg of the race.

Athletic contests were common images in the Greco-Roman era in which this text was written. Races and competitions were common and so popular that many cities built their own stadiums to host the game. These contests were divided into two classes, the pancratium, consisting of boxing and wrestling, and the pentathlon, consisting of leaping, running, hurling the spear and wrestling.

To prepare for the race the competitors required a long and severe course of previous training during which a particular diet was enforced. The training often lasted for ten months, during the last of which they were conducted under the supervision of appointed officers. The contests took place in the presence of a vast multitude of spectators,

The winners of the contests were announced to cheering crowds and heralds of trumpets. In the original games the winners did not receive a medal but a wreath of victory to wear upon their heads. The crowds shouted their names and they took their places among the great cloud of previous winners.

The writer of Hebrews used the illustration of the games to extract certain truths about the life quest of believers and to underscore the fact that we are running a race for the cause of Christ.

The Quest

The life of the deceased mirrors this text in many ways. As we reflect on this life lived we see several truths extracted from its deeper meaning.

WE ALL HAVE A RACE TO RUN: Each believer has a race to run. While there are some exceptional athletes that excel in five or more areas, there has never been an athlete that has won all of the competitions: boxing, swimming, skiing, running, etc. That seems to suggest that each believer has a special area of life that has been set before them. It is a race that has been run by others before us and recorded in the word of God with examples of faithful servants, called a cloud of witnesses that have run the race successfully. When God sets us in a race, there is a course to be run, a time limit set for that race and a prize that awaits us at the end.

What is your race? Is it to be a grandmother or grandfather to exercise leadership over your family for many years? Then perhaps you are a marathon runner, destined run many miles. You don't run fast you are a strong runner whose job is to endure, inspire and guide.

Are you the strong member of your family that shoulders the burdens of others and helps resolve problems? Then perhaps you have been set to be the power lifter in your family.

Are you the member of the family that is a problem solver who helps the family around the many obstacles that entangle many of its members? Then perhaps your race is that of the hurdler whose race is filled with obstacles but has proven to be skilled at leaping over obstacles with style and grace.

If you are the member of the family who acts quickly, decisively and wastes little time, then maybe you are the sprinter in the family that can move with laser like speed and reach the goal quickly.

Where does the deceased fit in? What was his race? In the spiritual arena, each of us is a relay runner. A relay runner catches the baton of the person before them and runs their part of the race with all of the energy and might that they can muster, then skillfully places the baton in the hand of another and joins the cloud of witnesses that cheers on the next runner.

RELAY RUNNERS HAVE TO PASS THE BATON: Since believers are like relay runners, there is a lot to learn from watching relay runners on the track field. The nature of a relay runner has an interesting comparison to the life she lived. In a relay race there are usually several runners, each with a specific race to run, but neither of them running the entire race.

Sometimes we are starters, with our fingers on the line, our heads back in line with our spines, and our eyes on the course ahead. As the starter our job is to run as quickly as we can, then pass the baton to another team mate.

If we receive the baton from other runners our job is to begin running with our hands extended behind us looking forward all of the time, then to run our race with all of our might and power.

If we are the the anchors in the race, we have to receive our batons then head for the finish line with all of the power and strength we can muster to claim the victory.

Essential in the relay race is the ability to pass the baton. Relay runners must pass the baton. Even if it's dropped it must be picked up, so besides running those in this race also practice passing the baton.

Isn't that what we all do? As parents we try to pass on what we know to our children because we know that one day they will have to run their leg of life's race. So we lecture, beg, plead, teach, and preach constantly to those who will follow us because we know that one day the baton must be passed and the victory depends heavily on a smooth transition.

RELAY RUNNERS DON'T HAVE TO WIN THE WHOLE RACE: A unique quality of relay runners is that they don't have to win the entire race, just their part of the race. So it is with each of us in a family. The family of the deceased is running a race, along with all of the other families that are here today. No individual member of the family can win the relay alone; each one must win their leg of the race.

The spouse has a leg to run. The spouse must run the race that is presented and prepare to hand the baton to all offspring, who must, in time, run his part of the race, then pass the baton to his children.

No one in the family runs the entire race; neither does any member run at the same time or same pace.

However, if the family is to win its race, once the baton has been passed, the race must continue. It is important that each family member stays in the race.

That is the challenge of those who survive the death of a family member. The challenge is to pick up the baton and to run the family's race.

The deceased has completed one part of the race, now the baton is in the spouse's hand.

Looking to Jesus

Finally brothers and sisters, we must remember that to win our race, we must keep our eye on Jesus.

Verse two of this text notes that the runner should be "looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith."

That's the beauty of the great relay race. It's beautiful to watch how the successful runners can receive the baton while looking forward and running at full speed.

Whoever is running the anchor, the last person in the race, is looking at the finish line. It inspires her, motivates her and gives her the energy to push harder.

In the Christian race the word of God tells us that we do the same. Once we receive the baton we should keep looking to Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith.

We don't know how long our race will be. We might set a world record, we may not, but we know who will be waiting on us at the finish line!

So brothers and sisters, let us lay aside any weights, problems or frustrations that will slow us down.

Even in our grief, let's look to Jesus the source of our strength and get ready to run with patience the race that has been set before us. We will need patience to encounter the difficulties that lie in our way. We will need perseverance to resist all temptations to desist or turn aside.

Even in our grief, we should keep looking to Jesus, he is our example because he looked at the race that was set before him with joy even though that race included jeering crowds and an old rugged cross.

To those who mourn, we must hear the essence of the entire life testimony of our deceased friend echoing in our ears, "Stay in the race!"

Though you may stumble my son, never give up, look to Jesus and stay in the race!

Though you may get weary my husband, never lose hope, look to Jesus and stay in the race!

Though you may get tired my friends, never despair, look to Jesus and stay in the race!

I have fought the good fight. I have finished my course, but you must stay in the race!

Stay in the race and keep your eye on the prize!

If we keep our eyes on Jesus, we will make it to the finish line and receive the prize.

The prize that every Christian will receive in glory will tell the real story of our race.

It will tell the story of how we found:

—Joy in the midst of our sorrows!

—Happiness in the midst of our infirmities!

—Safety in the midst of dangerous situations!

—Comfort in the midst of loneliness!

—Encouragement in the midst of our failures!

—Strength in the midst of our weakness!

—A Song to sing in the midst of the night!

Until your race ends keep on running!

Run and tell the world about Jesus!

Run and tell the lost that He is still saving souls!

Run and tell the blind that He is still giving sight!

Run and tell the infirmed that He is still healing the sick.

Run and tell the skeptics that He is still alive today

Run and tell the world that over 2000 years ago that they crucified him on an old rugged cross but Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hand.

Cry, if you must..

Grieve if you must..

But stay in the race until he says, “Well done!”

No. 9356-New Year

Never would have made it

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 4, 2009

SCRIPTURE: "If God hadn't been there for me, I never would have made it." Psalm 94:17 (msg)

Introduction

Have you ever considered how you made through last year? Today, we are happy to celebrate another year, but at second glance, last year was an extremely difficult year that touched our lives in many ways.

We saw a near meltdown of the financial markets, including the collapse of some of the nation's largest financial institutions. We saw billion dollar companies coming to the government asking for welfare. Even auto dealers and big newspapers were asking for help.

We saw gas prices rise to astronomical heights and watched the news daily to hear reports of more plants closing; even some close to home.

We saw new enemies developing in foreign lands, more terrorist attacks planned and money getting tighter.

Despite all of that God saw fit to help us get through. There is very little we can do in any given year that does not require God's miraculous intervention for us to survive. Without God's help, we would not have made it through. Even those of us who were touched by some of the problems, still made it. God kept his word to us. He said that he will never forsake us or leave us.

The fact is that the grace of God surrounded and strengthened us last year. God's grace placed someone by our side in times of trouble and helped us. The grace of God caused a full plate to be placed on our table when we hungered and it was the grace of God that placed us in the hands of the right doctor, teacher, coach and mentor. It wasn't luck, it was the grace of God.

As Christians, we approach the New Year with renewed hope and enthusiasm. We are enthusiastic because when we look back we saw how God helped us. We know that since God helped us last year, he will do the same again in the months to come.

Exposition

The 94th Psalm is a unique Psalm which focuses on Israel praise to God during their wilderness journey.

Generally, David is noted as the principal writer of the psalms, but not all of the Psalms were written by David. David wrote 73 of the 150 Psalms. There are 50 psalms that are anonymous. Moses wrote the 90th Psalm. The 72nd and 127th Psalm were written by Solomon. Some were written by Aspah and others by the sons of Korah.

Psalm 90-94 were written during Israel's 40 year wilderness journey. During this time they were attacked by enemies, which the Lord destroyed in the Red Sea.

Because of their unwillingness to follow God's directions given to them through Moses, they wandered around in circles in the desert for 40 years. Often they demonstrated a foolish nature by ignoring God's direction bringing trouble upon themselves.

Yet, God provided for them. When they were to the point of thirsting to death, God provided water for them from a rock. When they had no food, God provided bread from heaven that appeared on the ground every day for 40 years. When they had no meat, huge flocks of quail appeared every day. Their clothes did not wear out; they never had to change shoes.

The 94th psalm describes a period in Israel's national life when it had reached a point of giving up completely. They could not get it together. The land of promise was so close but they simply could not make themselves reach out and grab the promise. They constantly fell into faithlessness, sometimes idolatry and wickedness that caused them considerable trouble.

The psalm looks back over the distance traveled and realized that God chastised Israel for its wayward ways but never stopped loving them. Psalm 94:12 uses the word "chastenest" to describe their experience. To be chastised is to be taught a lesson or to be trained. The object of chastisement is that the student will arise, wiser and stronger having learned an important lesson.

In the wilderness, Israel was certainly chastised. They learned through their suffering that they should be obedient to God and trust in him wholly. They also learned that God will not allow those who wronged them to escape without punishment. Psalm 94:13 notes that a pit is being dug for the wicked who troubled God's people during their chastisement.

The psalm raises the question "Who stood up for me against the wicked? Who took my side against evil workers?"

The answer came in verse 17 "If God had not been there for me, I never would have made it."

Through their faith in him, Israel made it through the wilderness and marched into the Promised Land, stronger, wiser and better than they had been in the wilderness. When they looked back, they concluded, "We never could have made it, without the Lord."

Ways God Helped

Like Israel, now we stand on the threshold of a new experience, and we look back we see what God has brought us through.

HE PROTECTED THEM AGAINST ENEMIES: When Israel began their journey they were attacked by Pharaoh who tried to reenslave them. God buried the entire army of Egypt in the Red Sea. When we look back we can see the many ways that God has protected us from those who would do us harm. Sometimes those who threatened us were outside of our families, but sometimes our worst enemies were family members. Last year, there were many who wrestled with problems that were caused by their enemies whether it was on the job, in relationships or in academic or professional pursuits. Despite the tricks plans and plots, of the devil you survived; not because of your own cunning, but because the Lord covered your back.

In Psalm 124:2-3 David said, "If it had not been the LORD who was on our side, when men rose up against us: Then they had swallowed us up quick, when their wrath was kindled against us."-You survived because God has something better in store for you. There is a Promised Land awaiting you; it has been assured.

Looking back we are happy because we know that we did not have the strength to protect ourselves from the devil but God is able. In our time of trouble he was our help. Psalm 146:5 says, "Happy is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help, whose hope is in the LORD his God."

HE PROVIDED FOR US: In the wilderness Israel ate everyday and people are still trying to figure out where the food came from. They had clothes to wear and no cloth, and people are still trying to figure that out. In the same way, God has provided for us. Last year things were terrible. Gas prices went up, electric bills went, people were laid off their, some lost their houses, plants closed and yet God led you through the wilderness and kept food on your table and clothes on your back. People are still trying to figure that out. Even when sickness came in your family and financial troubles hit, God worked that out for you to. God blessed your plans and decisions and made them work for you. God opened up doors for you and prepared a table for you. That's what Psalm 23:5 means when it says "Thou preparest a table before me.." It means that God provides for our needs. Philippians 4:19 puts it this way, "But my God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus." No matter what came up last year God provided just what we needed, when we needed it. No wonder the song writer declared, "We are our heavenly father's children ..and he knows, yes he knows, just how much we can bear." Last year God provided us what we needed and disallowed any burdens that we could not bear. If it were not for his provision we would not have made it.

HE SAVED US FROM OUR FOOLISHNESS: Israel made several foolish decisions in their wilderness journey. Once, they decided to abandon God altogether and build them a golden calf to worship. Yet despite their foolishness God saved from themselves. He's had to do the same for us today; save us from ourselves.

What is foolishness? Proverbs 19:3 "The foolishness of man perverteth his way: and his heart fretteth against the LORD." When do the opposite of what God wants while claiming to be his children, it is foolishness. We have done some foolish things. Some of us gambled heavily last year, knowing full well that it was not wise, but we were drawn in by the parlors and casinos that allow us to win a few. It was foolish for us to get involved romantically in relationships that were going nowhere but we did it and caused ourselves great pain. It was foolish to squabble with our wives and husbands and threatened our marriages and families, but we plunged stubbornly ahead. Some of the business decisions we made were plain foolish, but we did them anyway. We know that it was foolish for us engage in worldly pursuits and to involve ourselves in criminal activities but we did it anyway and it caused us all kinds of problems. It was foolish for us to cheat on our spouses, but someone did it.

Yet, in all of our foolishness, God never abandoned us. He did not embrace our foolishness, he punished us good, but he never gave up hope on us. Last year, he saved many of us even though we acted very foolishly. Without his mercy and grace, we would not have made it through.

Made it by Grace

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that we made it last year only by the grace of God and it is grace that will see us through the year ahead.

The grace of God looks down on us in our mess and continues to bless.

The grace of God showers opportunities upon us even though we do not deserve them.

God is not foolish; He is not naive. There is a reason for why He continues to bless sinful people like us.

His grace has a divine purpose.

We made it through the trouble and trials of last year because there is a divine plan at work.

Those who know the Lord have arisen from last year's struggles, stronger, wiser and better.

That might have been the divine plan in the first place.

We should have learned to trust God more and "lean not unto thine own understanding."

We should have learned to pray before we act and to seek God's will.

We should have learned that in our weakest hour that God can make us strong.

We made it last year but it was not luck, it was the hand of God gently nudging us in right direction.

Now, facing a new year we are stronger, wiser and better.

Now, having overcome the slippery slopes we came upon last year we are better prepared to serve God to the fullest in the year to come.

Now, facing a new year we should be encouraged to know that the same God who saw us through last year is still on the throne!

We made it, because God heard our prayers in the midnight hour!

We made it, because God raised up our bowed down heads!

We made it, because God lifted us up when we fell down!

We made it, because God gave us:

—STRENGTH when our burdens became heavy.

—ASSURANCE when everything seemed to go wrong.
—INSPIRATION when difficulties arose.
—COMFORT when disaster struck.
We made it because God's grace gave us the strength to:
—Keep on going, when our road gets rough.
—Keep on singing, even though our pain becomes intense.
—Keep on working, even when our bodies get weary.
We made it because God smiled on us.
I don't know what the future holds, but I know that if God smiles on us, we'll have:
—Joy in spite of our sorrows: Peace in spite of our problems
—Contentment in spite of our burdens; assurance in spite of our frustrations
—Comfort in spite of our pain; Victory in spite of our defeats
No wonder the song write declared, "God has smiled on me. He has made me glad!"
I'm glad that He is a wonder working God!
I'm glad that He is a favor giving God!
I'm glad that He is a soul saving God!
I never would have made if he had not decided to pick up an old rugged cross!
I never would have made if he had not carried that cross to Golgotha's hill!
I'm glad that He died for me out on Calvary!
But I never would have made if not for the fact that Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!
I never would have made it without the Lord.

No. 9357-New Year

Set your hearts on God

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 2009

SCRIPTURE: And he said unto them, Set your hearts unto all the words which I testify among you this day, which ye shall command your children to observe to do, all the words of this law. For it is not a vain thing for you; because it is your life: and through this thing ye shall prolong your days in the land, whither ye go over Jordan to possess it. Deuteronomy 32:46-47

Introduction

Is there a way to guarantee that we can please God, and possess the opportunities of the New Year? Most of us search for ways to do better in the New Year. If you are like most people you have already searched through last year's events and have found areas in which you were weak and other areas in which you were strong. We've reviewed our successes and our failures; our strengths and our weaknesses. We made some good moves last year, yet, despite our positives, we also see some glaring negatives. The negatives trouble us because it is those negatives that can keep us from fully possessing what God has in store for us this year.

One area in which many of us fell short last year was the purity of our relationship with God. Last year there were many times when we were less than holy in our thoughts and actions. There were also times when we disobeyed God's commands with the full knowledge that we were displeasing him. That's why we have pledged that we will do much better spiritually in the coming year.

This year, we want to be more holy.

This year, we want to have cleaner hearts and motives.

This year, we want to dedicate our lives to living by his words

This year, we want to make our bodies the temple of the Holy Ghost, welcoming the presence of God.

We want a clean heart this year because that's the only way that God will bless us.

The place where a man expects to meet God first is within the narrow confines of his consciousness. The place where he should expect to commune with God is within the hallowed sanctuary of his heart.

The spirit of God dwells in his house (our hearts), and if we want an encounter with God this year, we must prepare to meet him at his house. If we want to show gratitude for what God has done, it begins with the attitude of our heart. We can't meet God in a public demonstration unless we've first had a talk with him in a private situation. But God's spirit will not dwell in an unclean temple. If we want to make our hearts temples of the Holy Ghost, we must clean up act our acts.

David said, "Create in me oh Lord a clean heart". .."Let the words of my mouth and the meditations of my heart be acceptable in thy sight, oh Lord, my strength and my redeemer."

A song writer penned these words, "I'm not asking for the riches of the land, I'm not asking for high men to know my name ...but give me Lord a clean heart...a clean heart, that I may follow thee."

This year, we should be more determined than ever to live a cleaner, closer life with God, thus guaranteeing that he will bless us in the New Year.

As Christians, we want to improve our relationship with God. The best way for us to do that is to present him with a mind and body that is dedicated totally to his service.

Exposition

This text focuses on Moses telling Israel that their tenure in the new land counted heavily upon their obedience to the command of God.

In Deuteronomy, Moses gives Israel a review of what would be needed for success in the new land. They had come from slavery to freedom. They stood on the banks of a new experience. Now, Moses gave them a warning laced with a blessing. The warning in this chapter is that they should seek to obey God with all of their heart, mind and soul and to teach obedience to their children. In return, Moses said, God would prolong their stay in the new land and help them to possess it.

His immediate command was for Israel to "set your hearts on the words." It is one thing to hear the word but it is yet another thing to "set your heart on the words." When a person has his heart into a cause, his mind, body and soul follows. By challenging Israel to "set your hearts" God challenged the people to give him first place; to make Him their first priority.

The words of God were filled with both promises and curses. He promised to bless them, protect them and to expand their territory if they were faithful. Yet, the words also contained curses for those who failed to "set their hearts" on Him. God promised to remove His protection and provision from them. Without God's protection and provision their stay in the new land would be short and they would not be successful in their efforts to possess the new land.

To succeed the people would need hearts that were in tune with the will of God. That's what God expected from Israel and He promised rewards if they complied.

Three Considerations

The same considerations that were given to Israel in this text apply to believers today.

WE SHOULD SET OUR HEARTS ON GOD: In the year to come we should set our hearts on living a more spiritually defined life that is closer to God. In the year to come we should do more than just "go to church" we should put our hearts in it. We should not just put on a choir robe and sit in the choir stand; we should put our hearts in it. We should give it everything that we have.

Moreover, we should "cleanse ourselves" if we want to succeed in spiritual things in the coming year. This means we should make sure our motives and reasons for doing things are pure. Jesus said, "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God." When we do any work for the Lord it should be with one objective only, "that God be praised."

God expects us to keep clean hearts totally committed to him. Not only does he expect it, God commands it." Remember, it's one of the commandments "And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might." (Deut. 6:5). If we set our hearts on God we obey His command.

This year, we should resolve to approach God with a clean heart and motives so that our service will be accepted and blessed by Him.

WE MUST TEACH OUR CHILDREN: We teach our children by precept (talk) and example. God commands each parent to teach his words to their children both by the way we live in front of them and by the words we say to them. The word of God requires that children be disciplined in their obedience to God and in the development of their character. The three aspects of discipline are: self control, character and order. Every child should be taught self control. It begins at home when he or she learns to obey the rules of the home. That's when the child learns that there is a time and appropriate place for certain actions. Speaking out of turn, interrupting the conversation of others, and disrespect behavior are all signs of an undisciplined child. Controlling the impulses, selecting friends and deciding upon acceptable activity are other areas that indicate discipline. Character involves values. There are 13 important values that every child should be taught at home, at school and in every organization or group in which he or she participates: Honesty, loyalty, helpfulness, friendliness, courtesy, kindness, obedience, cheerfulness, thrift, courage, cleanliness, respect for God and a good education. These values develop the essentials of character.

Every parent is commanded to teach these values to their children. To expect success and blessing from God in our endeavors means that we must be faithful in this area to; if we fail, a generation will grow up before us that does not know the Lord and this generation of parents will bear the wrath of God for failing to carry out his command.

POSSESSION REQUIRES DISCIPLINE: When we move into a new opportunity we are promised that God will help us possess the new opportunity that presents itself, according to his will. However, the word teaches us that we must approach each new task with self control and respect of purpose. There is a discipline associated with possession. To possess and be blessed we must establish a personal discipline designed to possess that which God has in store for us and hold on to what he has given. For 40 years Israel was content with its life in the wilderness. Their routine was rather mundane: Each morning they arose, went outside and gathered manna that had appeared overnight, drank water from the rock, took a few quick peeks at the pillar of cloud that hovered over the camp, did a few chores and their day ended. They made it through a day, but they did not come one step closer to possessing what God had in store for them. Possessing required something different. It required a new discipline and even a new way of thinking to possess what God had waiting for them on the other side of Jordan.

This new way of thinking requires that we focus our heart on God and his kingdom, first; then prepare to possess in light of his promises.

If we intend to do more than simply make it through this year, then we must switch from an existence mode to a possession mode. That means our whole approach to life shifts from "making it through" to possessing what God has for me. For Israel, that meant learning to do things differently. To possess the Promised Land they had to learn new skills. Farming was new to most of them who grew up in the wilderness. They had to learn the technology of the day and develop ways to maintain themselves. The land that they were destined to possess would be one that required them to do everything differently from the past.

In the same way we must be prepared to discipline ourselves to possess and hold on to the opportunities that God will make available in the coming months. Both the possession of opportunities and maintaining them will require a closer walk with God.

We Need Spiritual Strength

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that those who wish to move into the New Year with boldness must strengthen themselves spiritually and approach God with a clean heart.

To be prepared spiritually means we must acquire the power that is generated by the presence of God in our lives.

When Christ met with his disciples he talked with them constantly about the need for pure hearts. He often told them that "blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God."

Those who possessed pure hearts were commanded to host a memorial meal in which they reaffirmed their commitment to kingdom building and remembered his sacrifice. He said the bread would represent his body and the wine would represent his blood.

The two elements represent the sum total of a believer's commitment to serve and glorify God. When believers eat the memorial meal, they indicate that they are in full communion with God.

While the nutritionists say there are five food groups, the word of God only gives us two for the spiritual person and that is the body and blood!

Without the body and blood there would be no:

-Regeneration available for the ruined;

-Compassion available for the condemned;

-Deliverance for the depressed;
-Cleansing available for the corrupt
-Strength available for the weak;
-Rest available for the weak and tired!

Every now and then you get a little tired, but when you start to think about the body and the blood and the goodness of the Lord you start to sing the words of that old spiritual, "I don't feel no ways tired, I don't believe he brought me this far to leave me!"

The body and the blood represent the presence of the Lord. If we are going to make this journey we must do so in the presence of the Lord!

With a clean heart, take the Lord with you, and your greatest enemies can be conquered!

With a clean heart, take the Lord with you, and your greatest obstacles can be overcome!

With a clean heart, take the Lord with you, and your gravest doubts can be overcome!

With a clean heart, take the Lord with you, and your heaviest burdens can be lifted!

With a clean heart, take the Lord with you, and your highest mountains can be climbed!

The New Year is not an impossible journey as long as God is by your side.
If you want to make this journey, you got to walk with the King!
Storms may rise, but you got to walk!

Winds may blow, but you got to walk!

All along this tedious journey, tell the world, I want Jesus to walk with me!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who arose Early Sunday morning!

I want Jesus to walk with me

I know what you did last year

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 2009

SCRIPTURE: For all our days are passed away in thy wrath: we spend our years as a tale that is told. Psalm 90:9

Introduction

Did you see the movie, "I know what you did last summer?" Many who love to watch movies about blood and gore were fascinated by the movie. It was scary for some because in the movie several people who committed a wrong the summer before were terrified a year later when they started receiving strange notes that read, "I know what you did last summer." It was even more terrifying when some of the movie characters started dying.

That was in the movies, but suppose we all received anonymous letters that read, "I know what you did last year." Suppose the letters were signed..God?

For many such a letter would not pose a problem because we spent our year doing everything we should have done. We stayed on course, our lives were full of praise and we were obedient to God. Yet, there are others who would be completely terrified if God sent them a note, saying, "I know what you did last year." There would be many who would instantly start to think of everything they have done this year, some of which they are too embarrassed to even think about.

We may not get a mysterious note, but God does let us know. He has written it in his word. Psalms 139:2-3 says, "Thou knowest my downsitting and mine uprising, thou understandest my thoughts afar off. Thou compasseth my path and my lying down, and art acquainted with all my ways." It means God knows just how we spent the year because he has been with us every step of the way..

This year, some of us have charted a steady course. We began right and we have ended it just as we began. However, there are some of us who have wondered off course.

The times in our lives when we have been off course are those times when we strayed from the goal or mark that we set for ourselves. We started in the right direction then found ourselves sidetracked for one reason or another.

At the beginning of this year, many set goals for themselves, but somehow strayed. Was it a commitment you made to your family? Your church? Or was it simply a commitment you made for self improvement that has been placed on the "back burner" of your life or now occupies the bottom rung of your priority list.

There are various reasons why we strayed but generally we strayed because we lost focus of the source of our strength, which is God.

There are some who did well in the work place and financially. There are some whose family lives stayed on target, but spiritually they strayed. We are spiritually off course when we start out to make the kingdom of God our first priority, but get side tracked by other priorities such as careers, money making opportunities, romance, politics, and social concerns. We can get so side tracked that spiritually we are only a shell of what we once were, going through the motions without substance or strength in any of our actions.

As Christians, we now sit on the threshold of a new year, evaluating what we have done and where we have been. The God we serve knows all that we have done. He also knows our weaknesses. To do better in the year ahead we need to return to the source of our strength. Those who were strong this year can testify that our strength is in Him. Our hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. We dare not trust the sweetest frame but wholly lean on Jesus' name. On Christ the Solid Rock we stand, all other ground is sinking sand!

Exposition

Our text first considers the relative shortness of the years of our lives.

The psalmist spells out that the standard years of a man, or the average life span is 70 years. Those who have a stronger relationship with God can expect 80 years or more.

Since life is relatively short then we should evaluate how we spend every year.

That we should be aware of the shortness of our lives and the brevity of our life experience is the essence of this text. Believers here are taught to look upon themselves as dying and passing away, and not to think either of a long life or of a pleasant one; for the decree gone forth against them was irreversible (v. 9): All our days are likely to be passed away in thy wrath, under the tokens of thy displeasure; and, though we are not quite deprived of the residue of our years, yet we are likely to spend them as a tale that is told.

Thus, it behooves every believer to pause a moment or two and reflect on what we have done with the 365 days that have preceded. We may have lost track of what we have done, but God can account for every minute and second.

What did we do last year?

In the past, we did some things right, but there were a few things that we left undone or only partially addressed.

SOME PROCRASTINATED LAST YEAR: When we think about it, we know that we could have done better, but we never seemed to get started. That's what happened to many of us last year we were crippled by procrastination, or putting things off. Now, next year's list is already filled because of this year's leftovers. Parents, students, and Christians have really procrastinated immensely, especially when it comes to improving their relationship with God. We said we would study our bibles more, but put it off. We said we would pray more but put that off too. We found it so hard to do what we said. Joshua 24:15 says, "..choose you this day whom ye will serve; whether the gods which your fathers served that were on the other side of the flood or the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell; but as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." In the year ahead let's throw away procrastination.

WE COMPLAINED SOME, BUT GOD WAS GOOD: We complained some last year. In fact, we complained too much. Despite our complaints, God was good to us. Though we may have complained about some of our food, whether our clothing was fashionable, or the size or location of our homes, most of us would have to agree that God was faithful in providing us with all three.

Just as Israel was in the wilderness for 40 years depending upon the faithfulness of God, we have done the same. In the wilderness the people of Israel found that God provided them food on time every day, even though they complained.

He fixed it such that the material that formed their tents held up for 40 years without need of repair. He arranged it so that they wore the same shoes and clothes for decades and they never wore out. The food came on time every day. There was water just when they needed it most.

God was faithful to Israel as he provided for them in ways no one could explain. He has been faithful to us in the same way. No matter how we look at it, when look at how we spent our year, we see ourselves sustained by the powerful hand of God who blessed us.

WE SHOULD NOT FORGET THE LITTLE THINGS: When we remember last year, it's tempting to recall the big moments of the year. Yet, for every big moment there were hundreds of little moments, little blessings that God sent our way. Don't underestimate the power of the little things.

Howard Thurman once wrote that "Little things make big differences."

A little thank you is big when someone feels unappreciated.

A little kindness can soften an angry response.

A little time can bring more lasting please than a lot of gifts without the giver.

Little things can make the difference.

That applies to our relationship with God, too.

There is a bible verse in Numbers 16:9 that says, "Seemeth it but a small thing unto you, that the God of Israel hath separated you from the congregation of Israel, to bring you near to himself to do the service of the tabernacle of the LORD."When we look back and evaluate the big things we have experienced this year don't underestimate the little things.

SOME WERE A LITTLE STUBBORN: Last year many of us tried to live our lives according to God's will, but there were times when we were a little stubborn. There are two ways to approach life goals. One is the way popularized by a song written by the late Frank Sinatra called “My Way.”

In that song Sinatra boasts that he lived his life, “My Way.”

He was not alone. There are many who are trying the “my way” approach: living, loving and dying according to their own rules. To do it “my way” is to do it alone without any divine assistance. It is also a formula for unhappiness and often failure. That’s what happened to many people last year.

Some used or sold drugs or became addicted to something or someone.

Some lived so wild that they slipped way off course.

Some never got started; they procrastinated

Some nearly died.

Things work out a little better on the God side of life. That’s when you decide to do it “God’s way.” The difference is that God’s way gets us godly support and favor for our efforts because what we do is according to his plan. The bible says in Proverbs 14:12 “There is a way which seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death.”

Last year we received confirmation of an eternal truth: “When we do it God’s way we may fall down..but he picks us up and we try again.”

Let’s do it again

Finally, brothers and sisters we must consider that we spent last year praising God with everything we had; let’s do it again this year!

What made our praise so important to God is that he knows what we went through last year.

He knows the struggles that we have dealt with and the problems we have faced.

He knows the enemies who set out to destroy us and the battles that we have fought.

God knows our experiences!

And because he knows what we did last year it makes our praise even sweeter in his ears.

We praised God last year, let’s do it again this year.

We praised him last year because he lifted us, carried us and breathed life into us.

Let’s do it again!

Last year we praised the Lord because His:

—Grace is always sufficient; Love is always abundant!

—Mercy is everlasting and; promises are sure!

We should praise the Lord for the burden he’s going to lift off our shoulder!

We should praise the Lord for the hill he’s going to help us to climb!

We should praise the Lord for the bills he’s going to help us to pay!

We should praise the Lord for the job he’s going to help us to find!

We should praise the Lord for the home he’s going to help us to buy!

We should praise the Lord for the old man who’s going finally to start acting like a husband!

We should praise the Lord for the old lady who will finally want to become a wife!

For everything that God is going to do, we ought to praise the Lord!

Even though the Lord blessed us last year, we ought to be glad that our sins didn't follow us over into the New Year, for they have been purged and made pure.

Last year we clapped our hands; let's do it again!

Last year we sang and shouted praises; let's do it again!

Last year we testified about his goodness; let's do it again!

Last year we witnessed to his mercy; let's do it again!

Last year we gave him all that we had; let's do it again!

Praise his for just being God!

Praise him for his blood that answers the question, "What can wash away my sin? What can make me whole again? Nothing but the blood of Jesus! Oh precious is the flow that makes me white as snow, no other fount I know, nothing but the blood of Jesus!"

Jesus, the prized son of Palestine!

Jesus, the epitome of perfection!

Jesus, who is the Prince of Peace!

Jesus died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

We spent last year praising him, let's do it again!

Is this the Promised Land?

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe,La

January 11, 2009

SCRIPTURE:"Now Joshua was old and stricken in years; and the LORD said unto him, Thou art old and stricken in years, and there remaineth yet very much land to be possessed. This is the land that yet remaineth: all the borders of the Philistines, and all Geshuri, Joshua 13:1-2

Introduction

As we journey further into this New Year, we must now ask ourselves the question, "Have we arrived? Is this the Promised Land?" From 1621 to 1865 most of our people suffered as slaves, indentured servants and second class citizens. We dreamed of a day that we would be seen as equals in economic, social and political arenas. When that day came we believed that we would be in the Promised Land.

In 1865 we saw the end of slavery in America. Suddenly millions of former slaves were free from slavery but were held hostage to a general ignorance of the societal skills necessary to survive. Even as we walked away from farms and began lives as sharecroppers down south and laborers up north we had to ask the question, "Is this the Promised Land?"

The answer came "There is much more to be done."

We then plunged ourselves into social reconstruction. We learned to read, write, operate businesses and own land. We saw women like "Madam C.J. Walker" become millionaires and members of our race become stars in the movies. We even watched Hattie McDaniel win an Oscar for "Gone with the Wind." Buoyed by such accomplishments we asked, "Is this the Promised Land?"

The answer came "There is much more to be done."

We rolled up our sleeves in the civil rights movement and broke down the laws that kept us segregated, put a black man on the Supreme Court and listened to Martin Luther King announce to the world that he had a dream. We heard him say, "I have been to the mountain top and seen the Promised Land. I may not get there with you but I have seen the Promised Land."

When we saw the civil rights and voting rights acts passed and watched as Negroes were elected to public office all over the nation, someone asked the question again, "Is this the Promised Land?"

The same answer came, "There is much more to be done."

When we saw Colin Powell and Condoleezza Rice both serve as Secretary of State advising the President of United States on matters and state and watched as blacks rose to power in politics, business and world affairs, we walked away from the first eight years of the 21st century asking the question, "Is this the Promised Land?"

Now, as the nation celebrates its first predominately African-American mixed race president, some are asking the question we've been asking for more than a century, "Is this the Promised Land?"

Even as we ask the question the same answer floods our ears, "There is much more to be done."

God is moving to fulfill his promise to his people. We see him moving in so many ways, but there is still much more to be done before we can declare that the day Martin Luther King envisioned has arrived.

As Christians, we continue to hope, watch and pray that each of God's promises to us will come to fruition. One thing is certain, we may not completely possess all that God has in store for us, but the Promised Land is not far away!"

Exposition

This text focuses on God's reminder to Israel that the nation still had work to do.

The children of Israel were enslaved in Egypt for 430 years. God promised to deliver them and carry them to a land flowing with milk and honey. He led them out of Egypt and across the Red Sea. He fed them food in the wilderness and water from a rock.

When they reached the new land he rolled back the waters of the River Jordan and caused them to walk across on dry Ground.

Joshua led the people into several battles to secure the land.

In this text, there was still a great deal of land to be conquered by Israel although Joshua had broken the back of the enemy, conquering all the major city-states throughout Canaan. By conquering the major city-states and fortresses of Canaan, he eliminated the possibility of any significant resistance being formed by the enemy against the people of God. Only small and weak cities, villages, and hamlets remained to be conquered. Conquering these smaller and weaker cities would be the responsibility of the individual tribes.

The text describes these territories in Joshua 13:2 as "This is the land that yet remaineth:"

Each of the tribes was perfectly capable of conquering any enemy that still remained in the territory the tribe was to inherit.
It would require many small battles.

What Remains

BIG BATTLES OPEN DOORS: Joshua achieved the major victory of breaking the back of the enemy. However, each tribe had to take care of its own little battles. In the socio-political arena, in many ways the big social barriers have fallen but thousands of small barriers remain that must be won to secure the full impact of any victory. In 1954 the Supreme rule that school segregation is illegal. That was the big battle, but there were thousands of small battles in courts across the country for 30 years to put the law in place. In 1964 Congress passed the Civil Rights act but thousands of battles are still being fought across the nation.

It means the same in every respect, big battles are won but thousands of small battles must be won before we reach the Promised Land.

SPIRITUAL VICTORY IS WON BUT SMALL BATTLES CONTINUE: It is the same spiritually as well. The big battle against Satan is already won, but there are millions of small battles that must be won to secure the full promise.

After the South lost the Civil War, for years there were people who tried to continue as if nothing had changed. A hundred years later those battles are still being fought.

Satan does not get it, no matter what he throws against a believer, he loses. Romans 8:37 puts it this way, "Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us."

We have been given the victory. Christ secured it, but there are local, personal battles that must be won for us to achieve the full promise.

IT WON'T HAPPEN ALL AT ONCE: While Joshua laid claim to the Promised Land, the full promise did not happen all at once, even as the people celebrated. In fact, God never intended for the people to inherit the land all at once. Exodus 23:30 says "By little and little I will drive them out from before thee, until thou be increased, and inherit the land." It was part of the divine plan for each tribe to demonstrate its faith and ability to be obedient to God before God gave them an increase and full inheritance. Their test would be whether they could be obedient to God without mixing themselves with world. Look at Exodus 23:32-33 "Thou shalt make no covenant with them, nor with their gods. They shall not dwell in thy land, lest they make thee sin against me: for if thou serve their gods, it will surely be a snare unto thee."

The same principle applies to individual believers today. God has brought us to the brink of the Promised Land but we must demonstrate our ability to step out on faith, remain obedient to him, and not engage ourselves with the world. We have possession of God's promise but it needs our constant faith; there must be no compromise with the enemy, no tolerance of his spirit, no cessation of our warfare. Only the God who brought us into the land can see us through.

WE MUST PERSEVERE TO CLAIM THE FULL PROMISE: If we, as believers, intend to secure the full promise that God has given us then we must persevere. We must fight the spiritual battles that loom in front of us. We cannot get tired or be lulled into thinking that the battle has been won, "I am now a member of the church." Satan doesn't stop bothering you because you belong to church. We must continue acquire the full promise. Galatians 6:9 reminds not to get tired:"And let us not be weary in well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not." Yet, 1 Peter 5:8-9 goes further "Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour: Whom resist stedfast in the faith, knowing that the same afflictions are accomplished in your brethren that are in the world".

To really hang tough and win the full promise we must be stedfast. 1 Corinthians 15:58 says, "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord"

The Promised Land

Finally, brothers and sisters, until we have acquired the full promise, we must never stop trusting in God.

For Israel it meant a day of celebration when the walls came tumbling down, but for us it means years of continued trust in God in hundreds of local arenas to finally win the promised.

The journey to the Promised Land for Israel began with prayers in their distress. They expressed hope and faith that God would free them.

Their journey began trusting God and it ended trusting God.

Likewise, our journey must be rooted in our faith in God.

If we are to get there without wasting another generation in the American wilderness, we must put our trust in God and tackle the future.

Are you pursing your own Promised Land? If you are, remember the big battle to achieve it has been won but you must now do what needs to be done to secure it.

God has opened the door for you to get an education, but you must win the personal battle to claim it.

God has opened the door for you to advance in the workplace, but you must win the battle to train yourself to take advantage of the opportunities.

God has opened the door for you to improve your financial position but you must win the battle over wild spending and loose financial controls.

The big victory we need has been won already but there are still many battles we have to fight.

To fight these battles and win, we need to trust in the Lord.

God told Joshua, if you want to enter the Promised Land, put one foot in the water and step out on faith.

Trusting in God, Israel crossed the river Jordan!

Trusting in God, they fought and won the battle of Jericho!

Trusting in God, they won scores of battles as God locked the sun in the sky!

As we travel toward the Promised Land, we should tear a page from our history and keep trusting in God!

Despite the hardships of slavery, and poverty the old slaves kept calling out to God "It's me, it's me, it's me oh Lord, standing in the need of prayer!"

We need prayer on the journey because prayer can:

—Muzzle the mouths of lions!

—Quench the flames of our enemies
—Conquer the strongholds of devils
—Penetrate the walls of the deceitful
—Still the raging storms of the scornful

That's why the old warriors still sing, "I know the Lord will answer prayer, I tried him for myself!"

Trust in the Lord, because he has won the victory for us!

He won the victory one evening when he picked up an old rugged cross!

He won the victory when he died on Golgotha's hill.

He won the victory when they buried him in a borrowed tomb!

He declared the victory, Early Sunday morning when he arose from the grave.

1 Corinthians 15:55-57 "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? The sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

No. 9360-Reunion

When we all get together

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 2009

SCRIPTURE:"And Esau ran to meet him, and embraced him, and fell on his neck, and kissed him: and they wept." Genesis 33:4

Introduction

Here we are again, has anything changed?

Reunions are grand celebrations that provide an opportunity for those who have been apart to rejoice in their longevity. When we get together we reflect on old times and give God thanks for helping us to make it through.

This assembly today is a classic picture of a great reunion. We are here, from different walks of life and different corners of the world, bound together by a common past and a common connection with the same Lord.

Since we have met last America has changed. Gas prices went up higher than we could pay then suddenly came down again before we knew it, in a virtual see-saw of risings and fallings.

Since we met last, we have elected the first mixed raced president who identifies himself as black.

Since we met, last the Iraq war is winding down and troubles between Israel and Gaza are starting up again.

Since we met last, there has been a financial failure on Wall Street and we have plunged into an economic recession.

Since we met last, the world has changed considerably, but there is one sure thing; God has not changed. He is still in control.

We have come together again to celebrate the power of God to raise His people triumphant in tough times.

More than anyone or any other group, we are symbolic of how God can make a difference in tough times.

We are together again to celebrate the basic truth that every life will experience tough times, but we also celebrate the fact that tough times don't last always.

Today, we are together again to pledge our loyalty to God to pursue the furtherance of his kingdom. To do that we also come together to pled our continued mutual love respect for each other today and in the years to come.

As Christians, we know that God is still on the throne. We come together to celebrate his power to bridge gaps, heal wounds, and open doors of opportunity. This reunion today is a reunion of hope and faith in the wonder working power of our almighty God.

Exposition

This text focuses on the reunion of Jacob and Esau after a 20 year separation. The brothers had been estranged for two decades after the two parted ways because of differences over inheritance rights.

Earlier Esau traded his right to become the primary heir of the family to Jacob for a bowl of porridge. The subsequent rift between the two brothers resulted in Esau threatening to kill his brother the next time that he saw him.

Jacob fled and lived with his Uncle Laban for 20 years, accumulating great wealth, two wives and many children.

Upon his return home he wrestled with himself about how to approach his brother and worried whether Esau would make good on his threats to kill him on sight.

Just prior to his return, Jacob wrestled with an angel of the Lord over the matter and as a result was blessed and reassured of God's intervention.

When the brothers met, Esau arrived with 400 of his men. Unsure about Esau's intention, Jacob offered Esau a drove of 550 head of cattle as well as presents. He also humbled himself before Esau calling him "my Lord" while Esau referred to him as "my brother."

They left under awkwardness but the reunited in love and peace and God blessed the restored fellowship.

Reunions heal

There are several ways that a godly reunion benefits the participants:

WHEN WE ALL GET TOGETHER, RIFTS ARE HEALED: Often those who have been separated for many years harbor some ill feelings. This gets worse if one party felt injured by the other; such injuries are held for years.

Few people hold feelings against others as deeply and strongly as Esau did against Jacob. He was determined to kill his brother because Jacob had stolen the inheritance that was legally his. There was little, if any chance, that reconciliation could ever take place. But it did. A miracle happened, and each brother shared in the miracle and joy of the reconciliation.

Today's reunion is symbolic because it represents a reunion of love and reconciliation of any ill feelings that might have developed over the years, prompted by circumstance, race or past events.

God's spirit heals any rifts and becomes a strong motivation in the healing process. When God gets in the business healing begins and that does not apply just relationships as well. God heals rifts between husbands and wives, parents and to general reunions but to breaches involving children, bosses and employees, neighbors, relatives and friends and even heals rifts between student and teacher, leader and follower.

Godly reunions are important because they demonstrate that God is concerned about healing differences. Since this is his purpose, God will lead and help us just as He did with Jacob.

WHEN WE ALL GET TOGETHER, WE DEMONSTRATE HUMILITY: Jacob demonstrated a spirit of humility when he approached his brother. He was a wealthy man and had a large entourage with him. He could have ordered his men to prepare to fight but he chose the humble path. He presented gifts, his family and a humbled spirit.

Today, true reunions also present a spirit of humility. When we look back over the years it is humbling to see how God has worked with us. Like Jacob, we wrestle with ourselves and with God over issues that we once thought were important but they were actually divisive.

Our reunion today marks the celebration of an unusual spirit of humility that was displayed many years ago between those who were differing parties many years ago. Today, a spirit of humility exists, fostered over the years nostalgia and by faith in God.

Those who truly desire to facilitate a godly reunion demonstrate a spirit of humility that puts aside old difference and offers the olive branch instead. The lesson we learn from Jacob and Esau is that we should always be ready for reconciliation even if that means humbling ourselves before those who were once our enemies. The spirit of Godliness within us makes it happen.

WHEN WE ALL GET TOGETHER, WE DEMONSTRATE BROTHERHOOD: What lies at the heart of any great reunion is the spirit of brotherly love. Consider the way Jacob and Esau addressed each other for a case in point. Genesis 33:8-9 gives us a powerful insight. In verse eight Jacob refers to Esau as "My Lord" indicating a spirit of humility before his aggrieved sibling. However, in verse 9 Esau refers to Jacob as "My brother" indicating that the spirit of brotherhood erases barriers and recognized that both of them were Isaac's children.

The word of God encourages all believers to "Let Brotherly Love Continue." (Hebrews 13:1) It would have been very easy for the reunion between Jacob and Esau to be a disaster, but it resulted in brother love because God was in the arrangement. It is the same with us, whenever God is in the mix, the ultimate goal of brotherly love will be achieved.

It is hoped that this reunion we celebrate today will result in continued brotherly love between our descendants in the decades to come. When they celebrate, our desire is for them to also pledge to "let brotherly love continue."

Reunions celebrate victory

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember that reunions celebrate our victories.

Over the years, we have been separated by time and circumstance. We have struggled along the way in separate quarters dealing with the issues of life.

Reunions mark a point in time when we can celebrate our victories.

Today, we celebrate a reunion of friends and our victory over division and separation.

Yet, there is a day coming that will be even greater. It will be a reunion of all of the saints.

When we get together again in that final reunion there will be neither black nor white, Jew of Gentile. A song writer tried to describe that moment and could only write "When we all get together at river, what a time, what a time, what a time."

When we get together again we will celebrate the fact that we have overcome.

Those who are the victims of race related troubles on the job, in school and in the community, can still sing, "We shall overcome!"

John asked the question, "Who is he that overcometh?

He that overcometh is the man who believes that the God I serve is bigger than the problems I have!

He that overcometh is the woman who believes that no matter how tough the road gets, the Lord will make a way somehow!

He that overcometh is the man who believes that you must stand for something in life or you'll fall for anything!

He that overcometh is the man who declares that God is able, as for me and my house we will serve the Lord!

John said in the Revelation of Jesus Christ, "He that overcometh, shall inherit all things!"

When we all get together for that last time, we'll celebrate the day when the wicked shall cease from troubling and the weary will be at rest!

When we get together again we'll celebrate the day when the mountains will be made low, rough places will be made plain and the crooked places will be made straight!

Storms may rise! But he that overcometh shall inherit all things!

One of these days, by and bye, it'll all be over down here!

Until we get together again we will keep telling the story!

We'll keep telling the world about Jesus and a place called Calvary!

Bye and Bye when the battle is over, we'll tell the story!

How He died on an old rugged cross!

We'll tell the story!

How He rose from the grave

When all of God's children get together..

What a time!

What a time!

What a time!

The Coronation of the King

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 18, 2009

SCRIPTURE: And Zadok the priest took an horn of oil out of the tabernacle, and anointed Solomon. And they blew the trumpet; and all the people said, God save king Solomon. And all the people came up after him, and the people piped with pipes, and rejoiced with great joy, so that the earth rent with the sound of them. 1 Kings 1:39-40

Introduction

Have you ever witnessed the installation of a national leader? It is a sight to see. When the President of the United States is inaugurated the nation celebrates the moment with a series of events that mark both the joy and the importance of the moment. If an American President were a King he would have a coronation, a formal event in which he is crowned the Lord of the empire. Since Americans have no king, the inauguration is the closest thing to a coronation.

The inauguration itself is generally a simple ceremony in which the president places his hand on a bible and swears to uphold the constitution of the United States. After doing so he formally becomes the leader of the free world. However, an inauguration goes further. It becomes a celebration of the victors as a series of inaugural balls are held to celebrate his rise to power. Over the years there have been many official inaugural balls, plus as many as 50 balls held by each state. The President and the first lady attend all of the official balls and usually dance one dance before they dart out of the door to the next.

The crowds at inaugurations have grown in size from 600,000 fifty years ago to an expected three million for the inauguration of Barack Obama.

Inaugurations cost big money too; so supporters raise huge sums to insure that the inauguration has everything needed. When Harry Truman was inaugurated the cost was $229,000. The nation staggered when George H.W. Bush spent $23 million on his second inauguration only to be topped by Bill Clinton's $30 million party. When George W. Bush hosted his second inauguration the price tag was $42 million. Barack Obama's inauguration will have a $75 million price tag.

The pageantry, parades and formality of an inauguration is a grand affair designed to inform the world that the recipient of the honors has the full support of the United States.

Yet, with all of its formal trappings, parades and ceremonies, the inauguration of the President cannot hold a candle to the Coronation that is coming for Jesus Christ. It will be attended by billions, and his worthiness will be heralded by angels.

All other ceremonies will be but faint memories compared to the great day when he is crowned Lord of Lords and King of Kings.

As Christians, we look forward to the day that the eternal Kingdom of God begins. We also wait anxiously for the day when the wicked will cease from troubling and the weary will be at rest. All this begins with the Coronation of the King.

Exposition

This text focuses on the coronation of David as the king of Israel.

The rise of David to the throne was meteoric. He arose from someone who was just a shepherd boy to a man who stole the people's hearts with his boldness and pleasantness. David arose at a time when the people were ready for change. They had suffered under the leadership of King Saul, whose battles had plunged them into unnecessary confrontations with their enemies, depleting the treasury and killing many of their young men. They had suffered under Saul's leadership because of his disobedience to God.

When Saul died, David was anointed King. The people were so overjoyed with David's coronation that they contributed lavishly to the celebration so that they could have a joyous worship and celebration of God's goodness.

The coronation of David was a grand affair but it was superseded by the coronation of his son, Solomon. Solomon's coronation was a high day of worship and praise to God. Many sacrifices were offered to God on his coronation day including: 1,000 bulls, 1000 rams, 1000 lambs, a host of drink offerings and many other sacrifices and offerings. There was plenty of fellowshipping, eating and drinking as the people celebrated with great joy in the presence of the LORD.

Immediately after his coronation Solomon set about the business of restoring prosperity to the land. He enjoyed the full political support of his officials, military commander and David's other sons.

Three Coronations

Today, the Christian world is waiting on the coronation of the King, but this coronation will be different from the coronation of kings in the world today.

In England, the queen is crowned in a lavish ceremony in West Minister Abby while she is anointed with oil by the Arch Bishop of the Church of England.

The Pope who chooses a coronation is crowned with a papal Tiara in St. Peter's Basilica in Rome.

In Thailand the king is given a nine tier umbrella as a symbol of his power. He vows to make the people happy and to please Buddha.

In Malaysia the new king is selected from nine royal rulers. At his coronation he kisses a copy of Quran and pledges his love for Islam.

In Japan the ruler becomes an Emperor. At his coronation, he is presented with a sword, a jewel and a mirror but not a crown. After his coronation the emperor will present the Sun Goddess a bowl of sacred boiled rice.

In Swaziland the king is installed on his 21st birthday and his wife receives a dowry of 100 or more heads of cattle from all of the Swazi chiefs.

The ways that men install their leaders will be no match for the wonder that will awe the world at the coronation of the King.

What makes the coronation of Christ so unique and awe inspiring is that his coronation involves three steps:

The Coronation of Palms

On Palm Sunday the people lined the road leading to Jerusalem when Jesus was to enter the city. The people gathered in crowds to watch him as he entered riding a new colt. The broken palm branches and along with pieces of the clothing waved them into the air and threw them in his path while crying out "Hosanna in the Highest." They were welcoming him as the promised King. Their shouts were so loud that he was asked to quiet down his disciples and he answered them by saying, "If these hold their peace that the rocks would cry out." In answer to the crowds who asked, "Who is this?" they boldly answered, "This is the prophet, Jesus, from Nazareth of Galilee." His entry into Jerusalem was a coronation of the people. It was fickle and mortal in nature and would not last a week.

One of the paradoxes of the coronation of palms is that the same people who waved palm branches and shouted Hosanna on Sunday were shouting a different tune a few days later.

Instead of waving palm branches they were shouting crucify him!

Instead of crowning his glory with palms they humiliated him.

The coronation of palms showed that their praise was worthless to him who was precious.

The coronation of palms showed how pathetic was their praise for him who was perfect.

The coronation of palms showed how miserable was their adulation for him who was magnificent.

The coronation of palms showed how weak was their glorying for him who was so strong.

The coronation of palms reminds all believers not to be too overwhelmed by the praise of men because the same men who praise us one day will be in the crowd that will shout crucify him on the next.

The Coronation of Thorns

Christ, after a trial before Pontius Pilate in which he was found not-guilty, was never the less sentenced to be scourged and beaten by the Roman Guard. The soldiers added to his humiliation by giving him a make believe king's robe, scepter and a make believe crown platted from fresh thorns and leaves.

The crown of thorns was intended as a gesture of humiliation, degradation, and the inability of Israel as represented by its announced king, to stand victorious before the forces of Rome.

But although they intended for the thorns to be a badge of shame, God had a different mean in mind. God was preparing to reverse the intrinsic meaning of the symbol of the crown of thorns.

Instead of a badge of humiliation, God transformed the crown of thorns into a symbol of pride.

Instead of a sign of dishonor, God reshaped the thorns into a symbol of glory.

Instead of representing the national condemnation, God made the thorns represent spiritual salvation.

Instead of representing the glory of the forces of evil, God made the thorns represent the triumph of the powers of heaven.

Instead of representing the defeat of a deranged martyr, God made the thorns represent the victory of the son of God.

Every child of God should remember that often Satan will give us a crown of thorns.

Satan will give us:

—Vinegar instead of sweet water

—Scorn instead of praise

—Push down instead of a lift up

—An epitaph of failure rather than a testimony of success

—Falling tears rather than rising cheers

The crown of thorns is the mark of victory for saint's because we are blessed when we are persecuted for His name sake. The thornier the crown, the greater our victory.

The Coronation of Crowns

Finally brothers and sisters the high point of the great coronation is the coronation of crowns.

This coronation is unique in that only those who have shared the utter despair and frustration that result from the coronation of Palms and the coronation of thorns can participate in the coronation of crowns.

Only those who know the agony of abandonment felt when the crowds that once called your name called for your death, can share in the coronation of crowns.

Only those who know what it means to suffer the slings and arrows of hate and trouble felt while wearing the thorny crown can share in the coronation of crowns.

The coronation of crowns is a grand picture of perfection painted for us by John while exiled on the Isle of Patmos who said, "I was in the spirit on the Lord's Day" and saw a revelation from Jesus Christ concerning the things to come.

In preparation for the coronation, John said he saw the 24 elders surrounding the throne, saying "who is worthy" to open the book of life and unloose the seven seals. Standing in the midst of the elders, dressed in a long white robe, was the Lamb of God. John said he saw the Lord in all his glory and he had "many crowns" on his head.

In speaking of the crown that the Lamb of God will weare he used the word "diadema" which means a royal crown.

The "diadema" is a symbol of God's eternal authority, God's complete dominion over the earth, and power over the elements of the universe. He who wears the "diadema" is the Lord of Lords, and King of Kings.

The coronation of crowns is different from the coronation of kings on this earth, because when Jesus gets His crown, then He in turn will give all of those who stood with him a crown of victory.

We can't claim the victory until the coronation has been completed. We can't claim the final triumph until the inauguration ceremony has been performed. We can't claim our glorious reward until our Lord gets his royal crown.

That's why saints anxiously await the coronation of the king, because when He gets his crown, we get our crown!

Our crown will be a symbol of our triumph over sin.

Our crown will be our reward of victory over the trials and tribulations of this world.

Our crown will be our token of glory earned through a lifetime of suffering and sacrifice.

We shall wear a crown, but our crown won't outshine the Lord's crown

If our crown shines, the crown of the Lamb of God will shine a little brighter.

If our star sparkles, His star will sparkle a little brighter for his crown is the crown of ultimate authority.

Let the coronation begin!

Let the host of heaven declare, worthy is the Lamb of God!

I hear the song writer declaring, "All hail the power of Jesus name, let Angels prostrate fall, bring forth the royal diadem and Crown Him."

Crown Him, because when you crown him the battlements of hell will be shaken.

Crown Him, because when you crown him every knee shall bow and every tongue confess that he is Lord of Lords.

Crown Him, because when you crown him his first official act will be to give crowns of victory to warriors waiting and faithful.

Crown Him, because He bore his burdens in the heat of the day!

Crown Him, because He had to walk this lonesome valley all by himself!

Crown Him, because He had to die on an old rugged cross!

Crown Him, because He was buried in a borrowed tomb!

Crown Him, because Early Sunday morning He arose from the dead to claim the victory!

Crown Him, Lord of Lords,

King and Kings,

Crown him Lord of all.

Comebacks Can Change the Game

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 1, 2009

SCRIPTURE: "Rejoice not against me, O mine enemy: when I fall, I shall arise; when I sit in darkness, the LORD shall be a light unto me." Micah 7:8

Introduction

Have you ever made a comeback? Generally, we are said to make a comeback when we fall behind beyond the point of recovery then, miraculously, we start to recover, gain momentum and end up winners. That's when the underdogs are become the Top Dogs; when losers become winners.

Many who will watch Super Bowl XLIII that pits the Arizona Cardinals against the Pittsburgh Steelers know that the outcome of the game cannot be determined by early game scoreboard totals because both teams have a history of making last minute comebacks that have changed their games.

In fact, the ability to comeback is what separates champions from mere competitors. Every team falls behind at one time or another, but only the champions can come back and win.

Super Bowls are filled with comeback stories. In Super Bowl XXV the Giants trailed the Bills by nine points in the second quarter, 12-3. Although they trailed by more than a touchdown and they made a comeback to win the game.

In Super Bowl XXII, the Washington Redskins trailed the Denver Broncos 10-0 at the start of the second quarter. Washington then scored 35 points in the second quarter to set a Super Bowl record for points in a quarter. Washington won the game 42-10.

In Super Bowl XLII Eli Manning-led a scoring drive in the last moments of the game to come to victory. It was a reminder that even when you're favorite team is down by six touchdowns (or starts their season 0-2) winning is always a possibility. Comebacks are possible.

Teams make comebacks but so do individuals. Arizona Cardinals quarterback Kurt Warner has his own comeback story. Although he is the former NFL and Super Bowl Most Valuable Player for the St. Louis Rams he spent most of the past five seasons as a backup. He's making a Comeback.

Jennifer Hudson will be making a comeback from a family tragedy when she sings the national anthem.

Super Bowls prompt us to think about comebacks, but there are spiritual parallels.

If we have failed spiritually, can we make a comeback?

If we have been behind in life and seem to be losing, is it possible for us to regain our momentum and end up winners?

If we are fallen out of favor with God, can we come back?

The good news for believers is that the God we serve specializes in granting "assisted comebacks." He showers grace and mercy on all who will believe.

As Christians we praise God for his willingness to help us comeback from setbacks and experience life's victories.

Exposition

This text focuses on the prophet Micah as he speaks to Israel about its national dilemma.

At the time of the text the people were suffering considerable hardship. They were in a depressed condition. All they heard was bad news about the nation's economy and security. The nation's enemies gloated and rejoiced at the relative helplessness of the Israelites to recover and get back in the game.

Micah painted a dreary picture for Israel that portrayed them trailing, losing ground, fumbling and making sinful errors that would cause them to fall out of favor. However, the prophet offered a word of hope. Though the situation was dark, Micah 7:8 says, "Rejoice not against me, O mine enemy: when I fall, I shall arise; when I sit in darkness, the LORD shall be a light unto me."

Though down, the nation would recover said the prophet.

Though depressed, the nation would arise out of its depressed situation.

Though out of favor, the nation would recover as it comes back from its national scorn.

Micah made it plain that setbacks because of sin, mistakes, errors and fumbled plays can be expected. However, God's people should never lose hope because despite setbacks God would help them make a comeback that will baffle their enemies.

Personal comeback

The prophet Micah spoke to the nation of Israel but his words also show believers how to respond in difficult times.

IT'S NOT UNUSUAL TO FALL BEHIND: No team has ever played a football season without falling behind at some point in the game. Not just a season, very few games are played in which the winning team hasn't been behind at least once in points or yards on the ground. Falling behind at times is part of the game. Isn't life the same way? Look at Micah 7:8 again and you will see him say, "When I fall." It means that there is a reasonable expectation that each of us will fall behind in some area of life.

Sometimes we fall behind in many areas. No marriage is perfect; there are times when the best marriages get in trouble over one issue or another. There is no such thing as the perfect financial game because sometimes our best plans fail and we fall behind. We fall behind in career pursuits and other avenues of life, often because of our own neglect and stubbornness. We fall behind our enemies gloat; they rejoice because we seem defeated. They should heed Micah's warning at the beginning of Micah 7:8 "Rejoice not against me, O mine enemy"- that means it ain't over until it's over. That's why we are reminded that though we may suffer setbacks we shall rise. Just as the scripture predicts that we shall fall, it also predicts that we shall recover and stand again.

DARK SITUATIONS ARE EXPECTED: There have been many teams that have looked at the scoreboard with desperation. Some have been two or three touchdowns behind with only minutes left to play but never lost hope. Veterans of Super Bowls know that dark situations are expected. That's what Micah tried to say to Israel: They should expect dark situations. He said, "When I sit in darkness." It's a prediction of times of confusion, trouble, despair, depression and fear. These feelings come to every believer. It's those dark periods of life when we can't seem to get motivated to do what's necessary. That's when our get up and go has got up and gone. When our inspiration to sing, teach, lead, or be a parent has just slipped away. When that happens we are facing a dark situation. Life does that to us sometimes. Yet, we have the word of God saying, "The Lord shall be a light unto me." We may find ourselves at the two minute warning, several touchdowns behind, but it's not over. In football, two minutes is a life time. In life, God comes in time to give us time to win our game. It's never too late.

WE MAY FALL BEHIND SEVERAL TIMES: Just like a football team can fall behind in a game several times, we should not focus on the fact that our team is behind at the moment but on its comeback potential. Solomon in the book of Proverbs notes in Proverbs 24:16 that a man or woman who is living according to God's rules falls. He did not say that there is a probability that the good people will fall or that that it his highly possible. He noted that the just fall not once but seven times. Winning teams are not expected to never have a fumble or turnover. Neither are they expected to stay ahead all through the game. They are expected to come back! In essence that's what the song writer had in mind when he wrote: "We fall down, but we get up." If anyone judges you when you are down, they make a mistake, tell them they will find your final end behind the comma. Don't watch a saint get behind on the scoreboard, watch him comeback! Don't watch his mistakes and errors, watch him comeback!

With God's Help

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must see ourselves as the recipients of God's favor, thus despite what the scoreboard of life says, with his help we can make a comeback.

When Bill Clinton made his first run for the Presidency of the United States he lost several key states, but they refused to count him out because he had a reputation for being the "comeback kid."

When Barack Obama lost a primary or two in his presidential bid, observers refused to count him out because he too was a comeback kid.

Today, there is good news for every believer; because of Christ every child of God can become a comeback kid.

Our challenge is to let the power of God use us in a way that we rise up and regain our momentum.

I don't know about you but I'm glad to know that we serve a God that can help us to come back even in the fourth quarter of life, when we have failed miserably and fallen behind.

We serve a God who can take:

—Defeat and turn it into victory; failure and turn it into success

—Misfortune and turn it into good fortune; Tragedy and turn it into opportunity

—Blunders and turn them into wonders; Doubts and wipe them out!

They say Clinton and Obama are comeback kids, but I know another comeback kid.

He was born in the worse of circumstances and lived in the worst of towns, but he made a comeback!

He was put down by the people of his own home town and run down by the leaders of town, but he made a comeback!

He had no house or a place to call home, for I heard him say, "Foxes have holes and birds have nests, but the son of man hath no place to lay his head." He had no home but, but he made a comeback!

He did good all of his life, but the people he helped put him down, but he still made a comeback!

He was lied on in court and falsely accused, but he still made a comeback!

He was stripped of his clothes and whipped all night long, but the game wasn't over, he made a comeback!

He nailed him to an old rugged cross and stuck a spear in his side, but even on the cross, it was not over, he made a comeback!

At Calvary, the world thought the Savior was defeated.

When they saw him placed in borrowed tomb and started to watch the clock count down.

All night on the first night!

All night on the second night!

All night on the third night!

But early, Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

He was the God's son!

The King of Kings, Lord of Lords!

When he was down, but the world found out he was the comeback kid!

Women at the Well

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE:The woman then left her waterpot, and went her way into the city, and saith to the men, Come, see a man, which told me all things that ever I did: is not this the Christ? John 4:28-29

Introduction

What is the role of women in America today? Today, women are increasingly seen in a variety of arenas that have often been forbidden to them in the past. Whether it's in government, business, academia, or in entertainment, women have risen to great heights. Obviously, the role of women has changed considerably over the years. It wasn't too long ago that women were not allowed to go to school or to vote in America. The workplace was often closed to them and opportunities to succeed were limited. The glass ceilings in many areas began to fall with amendments to the constitution and the passage of the 1964 Civil Rights Act. Now, more than ever, women are pursuing new roles in the greater society.

Despite the added roles that women have assumed, biblically there is one role she must also fulfill, even if she chooses not to pursue others. Women are theologically and biologically charged to bear and nurture children. God breathes life in the bodies of their children but women are primarily responsible for breathing life in their substance and being. The role of motherhood has not changed, cannot be delegated and has not diminished in its importance.

In 1972 Helen Reddy had a number one song which symbolized the quest of women to rise out of the shadows of life. Some of her words said:

"I am woman, hear me roar
In numbers too big to ignore
And I know too much to go back an' pretend
'cause I've heard it all before
And I've been down there on the floor
No one's ever gonna keep me down again"

Around the world the right of women to determine their own destinies are being promoted aggressively. In third world countries where women must still walk behind their men, never go to school or lead, eyes are opening. Even in this country, women are still striving for parity in the work place, in government and in society as a whole. The never ending quest for equity is constant reality among most women.

What about Black women? Black women have a double dilemma in America; they are female and they are black. While Black women face twice the problems of white women in America, they are in union with all women; they want the same. Historically the Black woman has always wanted to love and be loved; to care and to be cared for; to protect and to be protected; to live respectfully and to be respected. At the center of her struggle for self determination, the Black woman still wants parity in the eyes of those who see her, work with her and embrace her.

Women of faith draw strength from the knowledge that our Lord and Savior was the first to begin breaking down barriers of sexism, when he talked to a forbidden woman at the well. At that well, he opened doors of expectation and opportunity that have never been closed since.

As Christians, we are encouraged to know that our savior loves all of his creation equally, because "both male and female made he them." We praise him for giving all of us the opportunity for happiness, fulfillment and salvation as children of the king.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus breaking an old taboo by speaking to a woman at a public well.

The passage notes an instance when the disciples were astonished to find Jesus talking to a woman in public. Jesus had broken two cultural taboos: (1) Jews did not speak with Samaritans, and (2) a male did not normally speak with a female stranger.

The role of women up to this point in biblical history was second class subservience. It was an accepted role and no Jewish man dared to break the traditional barriers that existed between men and women.

When Jesus spoke to the woman at the well in this text he found her not only coming to the well seeking water for her family, but thirsty for living water, which he offered her. She was so excited about what was said to her, about her and for her that she left her water pot and ran through the city shouting, "come see a man" who revealed to her the secrets of life.

Women at the well

There are three important truths that today's women should draw from this text:

HE CHANGED THE WAY SHE SAW HERSELF. John 4:28 says "..the woman then left her water pot…" That is a significant insight into the change in her thinking at that moment. The fact that she left her water pot spoke to the woman's excited state of mind; her action of leaving her water pot beside the well as she went back to the village indicated her thirst for true life and satisfaction. The living water that Jesus spoke of could not be contained in water pots of social custom and sexist distinctions; he raised her expectations for herself and she left her water pot behind.

When women of faith go to the well of opportunity they must not be confined to "water pot" definitions of themselves. The world still sees women as the toys of men. The world still sees them as mindless objects to be possessed and displayed for the amusement and gratification of men. The water pot definition of womanhood is that women are somehow less than men in God's sight and therefore should find them in a place in the shadows and be comfortable. But the word of God does not see women as less than men. When it comes to grace, opportunity and blessings, the scriptures teach just the opposite. Acts 10:34-35 says, "Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: but in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him." Romans 10:12 says, ""For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek: for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon him" (Romans 10:12). Then, Galatians 3:28 says, "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus"

Clearly, women at the well of opportunity today should leave the water pot definitions of themselves behind and leave excited that the God they serve sees them as equal in his sight without reservation.

HE OFFERED HER OPPORTUNITY: What excited the woman at the well most was the opportunity Jesus offered. She had been engaged in a worldly profession but he offered her hope. The idea that life could be better; that doors could be opened was exciting. African-American women, more so than Black men, have been given limited opportunity in a historical perspective. Black women worked as domestics when Black men couldn't get a job. Black women worked as house slaves when their men were relegated to the fields. The quest for opportunity extended to a variety of areas but has seldom come without a struggle.

When believers come to Jesus they too want "opportunity." It's what happened when a woman came to Jesus with an Alabaster Box filled with fine oils. When she proceeded to serve him by anointing his feet with oil, Judas complained that she was wasteful. He said the woman was using her resources unwisely because, if sold it could be used to feed the hungry. What the woman wanted was an opportunity to serve Christ by giving the best she had to him. Jesus rebuked Judas, and allowed the woman to serve. The opportunity to serve as a member of the family of God is not restricted, but is open to all. If women want opportunity, then Christ offers it to all.

HE OFFERED HER RESPECT: What really excited this woman is the fact that Jesus offered her the opportunity regain her respect. He knew her domestic situation. He knew she had several failed attempts in relationships but still presented her with the chance to get living water. That was an exciting prospect. In 1967 there was a popular song by Aretha Franklin that sold millions of copies and is still sung today, "R-E-S-P-E-C-T." Despite her strength, beauty and intrinsic power, Black women have found it difficult to get respect. Zora Hurston in her book "Their eyes were watching God" painted a picture of grandmother who wanted her granddaughter to achieve what she called "high ground" reaching a level of living that would bring her respect. She kept her granddaughter away from men who would not respect her or would lead her away from the high ground. The "high ground" has been elusive for Black women. Even today, Black women endure the stinging insult of a generation of men who think it's humorous to refer to them as garden tools or female dogs . Despite her best efforts, the Black woman still craves just a little of what Aretha Franklin sang about, "Respect!"

While Aretha sang about what women want from the world, the Staple Singers had another song, that had an equally important message, "Respect yourself." It is a word of warning especially to young women who want respect. If you want someone to respect you, you must first respect yourself. That means if you dress like a garden tool, talk like a garden tool, and act like a garden tool, don't get upset when you are treated like a garden tool. You must first respect yourself to get respect.

A woman was brought to Christ who had been caught in the very act of adultery. He told her to go and clean up her act. He gave her another chance when the world condemned her, but the key is that she had to start respecting herself first.

What Christ offers women is a chance for restoration and respect, not more discrimination and disrespect. That excited that women and it still excites women today.

The well of salvation

Finally, brothers and sisters, the woman was excited after talking to Christ because she found salvation at the well.

At the well, the woman heard Jesus speaking to her about the abundant life and living water.

The thought of abundant life was intoxicating to her and she became thirsty for salvation.

No doubt the well became an important landmark for this woman because it was there that she met the Lord.

Each woman that comes to the well of opportunity finds God in a different way.

When Hagar came to the well, she was feeling low and despondent but she heard the voice of God that gave her a new revelation.

When Zipporah came to the well, she was attacked by men who tried to steal the water, but she found protection in the hand of Moses.

When Rachel came to the well, she found romance and happiness ordained by God.

When the Samaritan woman came to the well she met a man whose father was rich in houses and land and he holds the wealth of the world in his hand."

She met a man who owns all the cattle on a thousand hills.

She met a man who holds title to the mountains and valleys, rivers and seas, for the scriptures say "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof"

She met a man who was not only willing to respect her but was willing to die for her. For Jesus said in John 15:13, "Greater love hath no man than this that a man would lay down his life for his friends."

She met a man who changed the way she looked at herself and she ran through the city saying, “Come see a man” who told me all about myself!

Somebody here has met the man at the well!

Somebody here can testify that he gave me a well of salvation that runs freely in my soul.

Somebody here can testify that I met the man and “I found in him a resting place and he has made me glad”

Somebody here can say, “I tried the man and the man is all right!”

Somebody here, like the woman at the well has decided to tell the world “come see a man” —who is a bridge over troubling water

—lawyer in my courtroom

—doctor in my sickroom

—counselor in my time of troubles

—who picked up an old rugged cross

—who was crucified for my iniquities

—who died for my sins

But come see man who, early Sunday morning

Rose up from the Grave!

Come see a man!

A Strong Man in the House

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 15, 2009

SCRIPTURE:Matthew "Or else how can one enter into a strong man's house, and spoil his goods, except he first bind the strong man? and then he will spoil his house." Matthew 12:29

Introduction

Who is the world's strongest man? For centuries there have been great contests to decide that question as men from around the world competed to demonstrate their power to lift weights, break stones, and show other feats of physical power and strength. Each year someone earns the title the "The world's strongest man."

Historically, there has always been a quest for a strong man in the African-American community. The presence of strong men helped our families survive slavery, the great depression and the civil rights era. However, that presence has always been under attack by social and political forces designed to weaken the strong men of our homes. Despite the attacks, the strong man still exists, supported and by an invisible power that seems to help him to stand despite efforts to bring him down.

Our community has a vested interest in developing families headed by strong men. We must invest our energies and time to help salvage boys and young men who seem to stray and help build them into the strong men that our community needs. Athletes are the greatest symbols of strength to young men. They are seen as men of strength. Entertainers are next positioned to influence the masses of our youth. Professionals in a thousand venues exercise a great influence, as well. The millions of working fathers who are not athletes, entertainers or professionals but love their wives, protect their families and mentor their children, are the immediate front line of this quest.

There is no role model more influential than that of a strong man in your house.

When Barack Obama was campaigning for President, we saw him risk angering the media when he lashed out at people who became overly critical of his wife; or after being elected stood with his wife in demanding that his children not be commercialized with dolls bearing their names. It was an example of a strong man in action, not as President, but as the leader and protector of his family.

The quest is for every wife, or child to say, "The strongest man I know, is my daddy or my husband."

For years there has been an effort afoot to destroy the strong black man, yet he continues to rise. Black men are still graduating from universities, championing causes, creating new products, succeeding in business and excelling in sports, despite efforts to denigrate us and to minimize our influence.

Despite attempts to destroy all black men, still we rise.

How is this so? How is it that many black men are targeted for special education by the 4th grade, encounter a police officer by age of 12, begin failing in school by the 7th grade, drop out by the 10th grade and see the inside of a jail or get killed before they are thirty years old? How is it that with so much negative happening to us, that some are making it through?

Despite the attempts to destroy us, we rise by the grace of God alone.

As Christians, we count on the grace of God to build our strength and sustain us through the most difficult of times. With his help, we will continue to have strong men, empowered by God in our homes.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he describes what it would take to defeat a strong person.

The immediate context of this passage came in response to criticism that Jesus was actually the devil in disguise, casting out devils from people. Jesus, facing his critics said "a housed divided against itself cannot stand." He characterized the devil as a strong presence and anyone who planned to displace him had to find a way to strip him of his power to do so.

He used this illustration to note that since he was speaking against Satan and casting out devils, he was so far from being in league with Satan. To the contrary he was openly opposed to him.

In making this case, Jesus described the nature of anyone that is strong. The Greek Word is "ischurou" which means strong or mighty. The literal translation of "ischurou" is "strong one." How can one enter into a strong man's house, and plunder his goods, and carry them away, except he first bind the strong man? And then he may do what he pleases with his goods.

He compared Satan's power over the world to the same influence that a strong man has over his household. As the Messiah, he came to strip Satan of his influence and take possession of the people and things he control, in the name of God.

As he explained the nature of his mission, that is to defeat Satan," Christ also describe the nature of any person who is a strong one and what would be necessary to destroy that person.

To destroy a strong man, it would be necessary to find a way to tie his hands and render him powerless. Once the strong man is made powerless whatever he posses can be taken away or spoiled.

Christ encouraged all believers to hope that, whatever power Satan might usurp and exercise in the souls of men, that Christ by his grace could break it. In this way some of the worst of sinners were sanctified and justified, and became the best of saints. They became strong one, unmovable and unshakeable, sanctified by the power of God.

Measure the man

The text shows a strong man. In the context of the world in which we live, how do we define a strong man? What is the measure of his strength? It cannot be physical strength because there many who are physically strong but weak in every other way.

Measure a man by his strength of character. If the chips are down, can he think straight and keep his family on a steady course? When he himself faces life threatening sickness, failure or defeat, can he weather the storm? Can he resist the temptation to succeed by evil devices or triumph at the expense of others? These are questions that form the basis for an analysis of strength. A man of strength displays character when it is needed most. It is an inner strength that is hidden from the naked eye but is displayed in moments of crises. In 2006 Will Smith starred in a movie titled "The pursuit of happyness." In it we saw a strong man of extraordinary character, who despite hard times, living in a homeless shelter and enduring an endless stream of conflicts remained faithful to his son and his dream. When times are tough, the strong man shows his character.

Measure a man by the strength of his integrity. There are many men who have come up short with respect to commitment. A real man has a commitment to his wife and children. Measure him by his faithfulness to his wife. Measure him by his willingness to stand by her in sickness and health, for better or worse, and to protect and provide for her with every ounce of his being. Measure him by his willingness to forsake all others and put her first. Also measure him by his sense of commitment to his children, to provide for them and to care for and protect them. There are many men who have weak commitments to their wives and some have even weaker commitments to their children. A strong man assumes the responsibility for the care and protection of his family, despite circumstances.

Measure a man by the strength of his faith. Faith, is acting on the unseen in hope that God will take over and make a way. Strong men are good planners, providers and sober thinkers. However, strong men are also men of faith. They are men who know and acknowledge that there are some things they cannot control that God must provide. These are men who learn to lean on the Lord. These are men who join with the songwriter and declare, "I learned how to lean and depend on Jesus. And I found out that if I trust him he will provide."

Strong Men Must Be aware

Our community must be aware that our battle for complete freedom is not over. Obama slipped through, but the plans to destroy the strong men of millions of families are still in operation. The are so subtle that often we do not see what is happening.

The word of God says we can't come into the family of a strong man until you can find a way to tie his hands. There has been a continuous attempt to tie our hands for many years; the wise have seen the plan and worked to avoid its grip on our families.

Strong men are destroyed if we can kill their capacity succeed.

If they fail in school, drop out, then their hands are tied; they will never be President, Governor, judges or great business leaders.

If they smoke dope, participate in gang activity, or get involved in crimes; they will never work for the government, become an FBI agent, head an agency or work in areas sensitive to our community's growth but are background sensitive. Their hands are tied.

If they walk around with sagging pants and dragging minds, refusing to read or apply themselves their hands will be tied.

If they ever stop dreaming their are destroyed!

If our men forsake the leadership of their and families become "baby daddies" instead of fathers, our hands are tied.

If we are present at basketball and football games, but absent from circles of leadership, our hands are tied.

To remain strong a man must put himself under the power and control of an almighty God.

When an ordinary man is in God's hands he becomes a strong man.

Strong Men know the Lord

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that a strong man knows and fears the Lord.

The man who fears the Lord is a man who lives a good life before his children and his wife, but most importantly, he lives a good life before God.

The man who fears the Lord is an example of trusting in God and holding to his word.

When the young men of a congregation see men tell the story! They tell the story of mountains climbed and valleys traveled!

They tell the story of a young man who came to himself in a pigpen and decided that "in my father's house" there is plenty of what I need.

I heard somebody testify, "I met God one morning, my soul feeling sad, heart heavy laden, with a bowed down head. He lift my burdens and made me so glad all that I know is there is something within."

They tell the story of answered prayer. A man who knows the Lord knows that the Lord will answer prayer.

You don't have to be an old man to talk to the Lord!

You don't have to be a rich man to talk to the Lord!

You don't have to be an educated man to talk to the Lord

All you need is a clean heart and contrite spirit and you can tell him what you what!

Men who fear the Lord tell the story of salvation and redemption.

Men who fear the Lord are quick to testify that one day the savior "picked me up and turned me around and planted my feet on solid ground"

I heard the songwriter declare, "Shackled by a heavy burden, neath a load of guilt and stain, but then the hand of Jesus touched me, and now I am no longer the same"

He touched me!

He touched me! And oh the joy the floods my soul!

Something happened and now I know, he touched me and made me whole.

A man who fears the Lord has to tell somebody about Jesus!

Jesus, who carried an old rugged cross!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who stayed in the grave for three long days!

But Early, Early Sunday morning he arose from the dead!

A strong man who fears the Lord, testifies that "Lord is my light and my salvation, "Whom shall I fear?"

Anointed to Serve

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 2009

SCRIPTURE: And it came to pass, when they were come, that he looked on Eliab, and said, Surely the LORD'S anointed is before him. But the LORD said unto Samuel, Look not on his countenance, or on the height of his stature; because I have refused him: for the LORD seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the LORD looketh on the heart. 1 Samuel 16:6-7

Introduction

Did you know that there is a difference between the appointed servant and the anointed servant? Unfortunately there are many people who have not learned the difference and their service has been marked by diminished performance as a result. The appointed servant, especially the self appointed servant, serves for the pleasure of himself or others. The anointed leader serves AT God's pleasure and FOR God's pleasure. His aim is to please God and not to please man.

When men appoint us to serve they usually have an agenda that they expect us to follow and a purpose that they want us to help them achieve. Sometimes that purpose is far from godliness. It gets even worse when we appoint ourselves, without a higher calling, just a personal desire.

Consider the monkey who always wanted to be king of the jungle. The monkey watched the lion every day. He watched how the lion walked proudly through the jungle, smiling and nodding his head, roaring and basking in the glory that comes with being king. Atop his head sat a giant golden crown and the Lion wore it with pride. The monkey wished that he could be a great king, just like the lion.

On the occasion of his birthday several of his chimpanzee friends decided to give the monkey a present and appoint him king. In the quiet of night they stole the crown from the king's head, wrapped it in a package and brought it back to give to the monkey. When the monkey saw the crown he was thrilled. Finally, he would get to be king. He placed the crown on his head and walked proudly like the lion. The same day when all of the animals assembled for their monthly meeting, the monkey walked in with the crown on his head and all the animals laughed at him.

When the lion entered the room, the animals bowed in respect. That amazed the monkey, because the lion had no crown. The old owl tried to explain: "The crown doesn't make him the king, but because he is the king, he wears the crown." The monkey still looked confused, so he went further. "If the chimpanzees placed a crown on your head then you are just a monkey wearing a crown. However, if the creatures of the forest bow before you, you are the king, with or without the crown." With that the monkey understood, returned the crown to the king and joined the rest of theanimals who bowed in humble respect.

The greatest servants are those who don't just wear the title but understand that the authority of the position comes through the anointing of God.

As Christians, our desire is to enter anointed service in the kingdom of God. The mere appointment of men won't do because we need the power of God to succeed.

Exposition

This text focuses on the anointing of David to serve as the second King of Israel. Israel had a failed experience with King Saul, its first king. According to 1 Samuel 9:2, Saul was a good looking man on the outside. In terms of physical appearance, he was head and shoulders above the rest. He had all the outward appearances of attractiveness and charisma that pleased the crowds. The people were happy. Soon however, they discovered that what Saul had on the outside did not match what he had on the inside. First, they found that despite his manly physique, that he was a coward before the dreaded Goliath. Later, they found that he possessed a jealous spirit, a vengeful and violent personality and an uncontrollable anger. The flaw that seems to stand out most was his lack of humility before God and unwillingness to repent. This made him undesirable before God.

This text introduces the next king, David, who was selected not because of the strength of his physical appearance but because of his strength of character. Samuel went to the home of Jesse and without announcing his purpose reviewed all of his sons. First to come before him was Eliab who appealed to Samuel because of his stunning physical presence (1 Samuel 16:7). God warned Samuel not to concern himself with the outer looks, but to be guided by the character. Other sons came: Abinadab, Shammah and four others. One son did not come because he did not have the look of a king. He was a shepherd boy who loved to play the harp, write psalms and sing. When Samuel saw him, bright eyed, with sun tanned rough skin (v12) the Lord said, "Arise, anoint him, for this is the one." David was selected to serve as king of Israel because of his character rather than his outward appearance.

David succeeded as King, not because of his perfection; he was far from that, but because he was anointed by the power of God.

The Anointed Heart

There is power in the servant whose service is anointed. The power is not in the appointment but in the anointing of God. There are strong parallels between the anointing of David and the ordination of servants in the church today. From these comparisons we can learn much about the power needed to succeed in the Christian ministry.

SAMUEL'S CHOICE WAS NOT GOD'S CHOICE: (1 Samuel 16:6-7). When Jesse and his sons first arrived at the worship service, Samuel's attention was immediately drawn to the oldest son, Eliab. The young man was tall and attractive, with a charismatic personality (1 Samuel 16:7). Samuel thought that surely this was God's choice. But immediately the Lord rebuked Samuel. He was not to consider the young man's appearance nor height, for the Lord had not chosen Eliab to be king.

That is often the case in the church today. Our choice for a pastor or deacon or other servant of the church is usually based on what appears to be the obvious characteristics: accomplishment, financial support, charisma, knowledge, and faithfulness. We look at those among us who seem to have the best combination of these. Yet, God looks deeper. He looks at the heart of the person. Often what he sees is betrayed by the outer appearance. Like David, the best person is not always the smartest person or the one with the most money or experience; God knows the best person because he knows his heart.

THE BASIC QUALIFICATION IS IN THE HEART: God's direction to Samuel causes us to focus on the basic qualification of God for any service: it is not physical appearance but the heart that matters most to the Lord. Man usually looks at the outward things, but the Lord looks at the heart of a person. The Lord judges a person by his heart and his heart alone.

Someone once asked General Colin Powell to run for President of United States. He had the knowledge, wisdom, experience and popularity. Men thought he would be the obvious choice for America. Yet Powell declined the invitation of party leaders because being president was not in his heart. In obscurity, God selected a little known man, with a strange sounding name and quicker than anyone could imagine, he became president of the United States…Barack Obama. His rapid unexplained rise to power can only be attributed to a divine anointing for "such a time as this."

The basic qualification for the Christian service is a pure heart. It is such acherished commodity in spiritual circles that Jesus himself would say, "blessed are the pure in heart for the shall see God." Those who want to qualify themselves to receive the anointing of God must have a pure heart as well as the usually credentials of eligibility.

THE LAST CONSIDERED WAS MOST QUALIFIED: David was selected to serve but he was not the first choice of Samuel or of his father. Jesse brought each of his seven sons before Samuel and had them to stand in descending order by age and pass in front of Samuel. After the oldest son Eliab had been rejected, Jesse presented Abinadab to Samuel. But Abinadab was rejected. Then Jesse had Shammah pass before Samuel, but he too was rejected. One by one in descending order, Jesse had his sons pass before Samuel. But in each case, Samuel pronounced the fateful words, each was rejected. Had it been left to Samuel and Jesse, one of these seven would have been chosen to be the future king of Israel. But God knew the hearts, and the heart that He was after was not present.

In the church today, we have developed elaborate strategies for the selection of leaders. We have search committees, pulpit committees, personnel committees, and committees to oversee the committees. We have interviews, background checks, and a variety of other methods to consider persons we recommend. Our goal is similar to that of Jesse, we want to rank the best possible persons for the position and line them up one after the other. Yet, in all of our searching, we ask for God's spirit because his spirit will lead us through our own choices to the person who will serve "after God's own heart." Sometimes that person is the most qualified but least obvious of the group. When we find that person we have found a gem.

WITH THE ANOINTING DAVID WAS EMPOWERED: Samuel asked Jesse if these seven were all the sons he had. Jesse replied that he did have a younger son who had been left behind to tend the sheep. Hearing this, Samuel immediately sent for David. When David arrived, note the favorable impression he made upon Samuel, and keep in mind that he was just a young boy. He was "ruddy" which means that he had a healthy bronze complexion. And he was good looking with piercing, bright eyes. As soon as young David walked into Samuel's presence, the Lord immediately identified David as His choice to be king. But keep in mind why he was God's choice: not because of his striking physical features, but because of his heart.

1 Samuel 16:12 notes Samuel saying, "this is he." He was anointed with oil, which in Old Testament times was a symbol of the Holy Ghost or God's presence. Verse 13 says that spirit of God was with David, "from that day forward."

Empowered by God, David defeated the enemies of the nation and forged it into a great nation with a multitude of resources.

The servant today who is anointed by God will have that same power. With God's help he can turn dreams into reality and visions into practical programs that will lift and empower the people of God. The empowerment does not come from simply wearing the title, but it comes from the presence of God's spirit on a life, leading and guiding every step of the way.

Guided by God's hand

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that the servant who has been anointed is guided by God's hand not his own plan.

When David became King he had no campaign promises to fulfill, no political platform or even a written plan for Israel. He was simply an anointed man in God's hand.

The wise servant today seeks first to put his life in God's hand before he develops a plan for the church, because God already has a master plan, he just anoints a man to work his plan.

The most powerful person on earth is an anointed man in God's hands.

I'm reminded of the church deacon who was always so confident that the Lord would make a way. The young men of the church asked him one day, "Tell us why you are so confident." The old man said, "When I was a boy, my father taught me to ride my bicycle and he ran beside me. I could feel his hand holding me as I paddled along. One day, I rode a long distance. When I stopped I realized that daddy wasn't beside me. I asked daddy, how was it that he was not there but I still felt his hand.

He told me that he gave out of breath but he knew the Lord was beside me. I didn't see his presence, but I felt his hand. Ever since that day, I've learned that if God's hand is in the plan, everything is gon' be all right!"

The anointed servant recognizes God's hand in the plan.

If you have made advancements in education, it was God's hand in the plan.

If you have made career advancements, it was God's hand in the plan.

If you have made achieved family goals, it was God's hand in the plan.

The anointed servant must always remember that when God's hand is in the plan..

—The world may kick you down, but God will pick you up!

—The world may strike you out, but God will give you a home run!

—The world may think you are a loser, but God will make you a winner!

—The world may think you are weak, but God will make you strong!

As this ministry begins the anointed servant should always keep his hand in God's hand because the power of the ministry is when the servant hands are in God's hands.

When God's hand is in the plan the impossible becomes possible!

When God's hand is in the plan, the improbable become probable!

When God's hand is in the plan, the unthinkable become thinkable!

It's the same hand that touched a blind man's eye and made him see!

It's the same hand that touched a small lunch and made it feed five thousand

It's the same hand that saved Peter from drowning in the sea.

It's the same hand that carried an old rugged cross to Calvary one day.

It's the same hand that three days later was raised to the world with all power

Anointed servant…keep your hands in God's hands and everything will be all right.

Celebrating work done, work to do!

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 2009

Scripture: "So built we the wall; and all the wall was joined together unto the half thereof: for the people had a mind to work." Nehemiah 4:6

Introduction

What is a church anniversary? Every year churches around the world celebrate their anniversaries with a variety of programs and activities, noting another year of service.

A Church anniversary is a commemoration of the service of others. There are many warriors who have gone to their reward carrying the promise for this church in their hearts. They never realized the promise of a day the church would have a modern building, various ministries and technology, but it was promised.

Today, we stand on promised ground. Anniversaries remind every believer that God does not back down on anything he has promised. No wonder the song writer records, "Great is thy faithfulness, great is thy faithfulness, morning by morning new mercies I see. All I have needed thy hand hath provided. Great is thy faithfulness, Lord unto me!"

A church anniversary is also a call for the mobilization of its present members for work yet to be done. During anniversaries we see what has been done by others, but we also see what remains to be done by those in the present generation.

Today, the church mobilizes itself to continue the great work that is ahead. We must roll up our sleeves and prepare to work in the vineyard of the Lord: feeding the hungry, tending the sick, nurturing families and saving souls. It is a great work that can only be done when church is organized and motivated to pursue this worthy goal.

Moreover, a Church anniversary is a celebration of God's grace toward us as instruments of his will. The church is not a building, but an assembly of baptized believers in Christ, doing his will. Occasionally, along the way, we stop to celebrate Him for his grace.

We have celebrated by lifting our voices to God in empty barns without sawdust floors.

We have celebrated by praising him in the stormy season even with shutters over our windows.

We have celebrated him in blistering summers, without air conditioning, in the humid and scorching heat of a thousand summers.

We celebrate him because God has used our feeble assembly, worship and praise experiences to bring forth glory to his name.

Through the church God has delivered us from the Egypt of harsh times to the borders of the Promised Land.

Through the church, God has sustained us through lynchings, murders, discrimination, depressions and unbelievable hardships.

Without a doubt, the church has been the instrument God has used to save us when we were lost, lift us when we were fallen, and restore us when we were rejected by the world.

No wonder the song writer thought of the church and declared, "Tis the old, Ship of Zion. She has landed many a thousand. King Jesus is the captain. Get on board. Get on Board."

As Christians, we pause to see where we have been, but also to rededicate ourselves to the work ahead and give God the glory, for He is a good God worthy of our praise and celebration.

Exposition

This text focuses on the people of Israel whose commitment to rebuilding the walls of Jerusalem resulted in it being done because they had a mind to work.

Almost 100 years after the Jews had returned from Babylonian exile to Jerusalem, the walls around the city and the gates had remained in ruins. The people were disillusioned, in debt and intimidated by the awesome commitment that rebuilding the walls would require.

When Nehemiah returned to Jerusalem he was shocked at what he saw. They had a variety of excuses they gave for why the walls had not been rebuilt. Anything he suggested, they said it would not work. Every new idea he presented, they said, "we've tried that before."

Nehemiah was an unusual person. He was strong yet persuasive. He was humble enough to be a cupbearer to the king but he was strong enough to push the project to the end. He was a man of action; he got things done. He knew he could reason with the people but he also knew how to use the power of his office.

Nehemiah presented the challenge and the people responded to the challenge with the common consensus "let us rise up." It was a testament of faith for a people that had sat idle for so long. The work began.

Nehemiah refused to accept their excuses. Despite the danger, he inspected the walls at night (2:15). He then called an assembly and convinced the people of the need for a building program. He was an excellent leader who demonstrated engineering knowledge and brilliant organizing ability (ch. 3). He encouraged them while reminding them that they would have to watch, fight and pray. The work began.

The people had a mind to work and the massive task of rebuilding the walls was continued. It was a massive work requiring thousands of workers spread out over miles of landscape. Even as the people worked, enemies both within and without, kept a steady stream of delaying tactics flowing.

Mobilizing for Service

As the church reflects in this moment of celebration, each person should know that the part they play in helping the church reach its milestone is important. The janitor that cleans the floors, the widow that gives a folded dollar, the lay member that prepares food in the kitchen or the person that is seen out front on a program; each does a great work. The work is not measured by the volume of its notoriety, but by the appreciation of the one person that matters...God!

Equally important is the task that remains. To accomplish its full goal the church should mobilize itself in three ways:

MOBILIZE ITS MIND: To do a great work the church must develop a mind to work; it must resolve that the task can be done and we will achieve it for the Lord. When we develop a mind to work we are not held back by negative thinking or even the lack of resources. There are some people who fail to do anything because they consider themselves too small. They feel that anything they do would be a waste because they don't have the size or resources of others. They see others who participate have cars, education, jobs and other resources. From their perspective what they have to offer is too small to measure. Their potential is minimized because they have a "grasshopper complex" they see the task as being so huge that they are grasshoppers in comparison. When the church gets it's "mind" right, each member will himself as an important instrument in the hand of God. A focused, mobilized, mind can do wonders to promote God's kingdom. Motivation is the key to growth because it will take dedication. We can fulfill great goals if we have a mind to work.

MOBILIZE ITS HANDS: The church with a mind to work, organizes its hands for the work that God has given it to do. Often churches complain that they don't have the money to do great works for God. They reach that conclusion before they inventory what is actually available in the congregation. How many typists, artists, musicians, decorators, planners, bookkeepers, bricklayers, mechanics, cooks, etc. are there in the local congregation? Most churches would be surprised to learn the hidden abilities of individual members.

The question that God asked Moses in Exodus 4:2 when he spoke of his lack of resources, is still important, "What is that in thine hand?" Moses only had a rod but God said use what you have! What you have may seem small, but in the right hands it is big enough. When the church mobilizes the resources it has available to work, it can make a world of difference!

MOBILIZE ITS HEART: When a church has a mind to work it plunges into worship and service for the express purpose of building the kingdom of God. The task of church leaders is the same as that of Nehemiah's, to get the people accept God's program in their hearts. We must open their eyes so they can see the need for the church's ministries, then work to get their heart to accept the challenge to serve. Many who hear the sermons and presentations know the need that has been ignored because of an unwillingness to "see" with the eye of faith, what could be done. Yet, the challenge must be met.

When their eyes are opened they will "see" their situation with eyes of faith and commit to it in their hearts.

Like Israel, those who are mobilized with a heart for the work will succeed, because they have a mind to work together.

Despite opposition, we must put our heart into it because we have a mind to work.

Despite grumbling, we must put our heart into it because we have a mind to work.

We must "Strengthen our hands" and their hearts and do what is needed to be done in the name of the Lord.

Celebrating the challenge

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must celebrate the challenge of building the kingdom of God.

This anniversary today, looks back over the years and considers the importance of our struggle while at the same time celebrating the challenge that lies ahead.

The savior challenges us to build the kingdom of God.

We are challenged to establish reasonable and attainable goals

We are challenged to develop a sense of mission.

We are challenged to act with confidence when obstacles arise.

We are challenged to stand tall in the faith, ready to execute the will of God.

To meet the challenge, leaders must stay focused on the mission.

The church should not be dissuaded from its mission and should rise to meet the challenge.

To meet this challenge we need the power of God. We can't meet this challenge on our own.

There are some things we cannot do by ourselves. We need the Lord, he's like American Express; we don't leave home without him.

We must mobilize our lives so that we can receive his blessing, because we can't bless ourselves. No matter how hard we work, we cannot bless ourselves.

While it is true that we can be a blessing to someone else we can't bless ourselves. If we need a blessing, we have to call on the Lord.

Our work will need answered prayers, but We can't answer our own prayers. No matter how clean and moral we live our lives, we do not have the capacity to answer our own prayers. Getting an answer to a prayer requires us to call on the Lord.

Our work will require save souls, but we can't save our own souls. Salvation is the act of cleaning the slate and restoring a good relationship with God. We can't save ourselves, because there is only one name under the heavens whereby we must be saved. It's not our name, but the name of Jesus!

While we take on the challenges, we must always remember to celebrate the victory of the cross.

Come and go with me out to Calvary and celebrate the victory of the cross!

Hanging out on the cross, a great work was criticized and despised!

I hear the critics at the cross saying your great work seems to be:

A battle lost; A horrible defeat; A pathetic end to a glorious beginning

It didn't seem like much, sitting out on a hill, but they did not know that the great work of salvation was already underway!

We celebrate the cross because it represented the greatest of all victories.

We celebrate the cross because it was highest of all accomplishments!

We celebrate the cross because it was the finest of all hours!

We celebrate the cross because it was noblest of all events!

We celebrate the cross because of the man on it, who would not come down.

I heard somebody say to him, "If you are who you say you are, why don't you come down?"

He didn't come down, but Early Sunday morning, he got up!

He got up, with determination in his heart!

He got up, with vision in his eyes!

He got up, with salvation in his blood!

He got up, with all power in his hands!

I'm so glad that he got up with the power to mobilize my mind!

I'm so glad that he got up with the power to mobilize my hand!

I'm so glad that he got up with the power to mobilize my heart!

I'm glad!

I'm glad!

So Glad...

The First Feet in the Water

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 1, 2009

SCRIPTURE:"And it shall come to pass, as soon as the soles of the feet of the priests that bear the ark of the Lord, the Lord of all the earth, shall rest in the waters of Jordan, that the waters of Jordan shall be cut off from the waters that come down from above; and they shall stand upon an heap" Joshua 3:13

Introduction

Have you ever been the first to accomplish a feat? There is a certain amount of courage needed to be the first to attempt something. It is courageous because those who attempt to do so do not have the advantage of history for assurance or the support of others who have shared the same experience. Those who are first in any area are heroic in the least because they accomplish what others before them have failed to do.

African-Americans celebrate the "firsts" as heroes of our race. They are members of the armies of the valiant who dared risking the unknown to achieve their personal goals and to open the doors of opportunity for others that followed them in subsequent years.

Across the nation, we study and celebrate the "firsts" among us. In 1853 when William Wells Brown wrote "The President's Daughter" he became the first black man in America to write a novel, it opened opportunities for others that would follow. When Oscar Dunn was elected Lt. Governor of Louisiana, he became the first of our race to hold such a position. The nation watched his every move, which made it possible for another to follow who became the state's first Black Governor, P.B.S. Pinchback in 1872.

In 1901 Negroes were excited that a black man, Booker T. Washington, was the first of our race allowed to eat in the White House at the invitation of the President.

In 1908 two great firsts broke down barriers for our people: Jack Johnson became the first black heavyweight champion of the World and John Traylor became the first African-American to win a gold medal in the Olympics. In 1940 Hattie McDaniel was the first African-American to win An Oscar for her role in "Gone with the Wind." In 1947 the world celebrated the great Jackie Robinson who became the first African-American to play Major League baseball.

After 1950 the list of firsts began to increase as walls came tumbling down: Ella Fitzgerald and Count Basie won the first Grammies, Marion Anderson sang at the Metropolitan Opera. Many knew walls were tumbling down when Jennifer Jackson became the first black centerfold in Playboy Magazine.

Thurgood Marshall became a Supreme Court Justice, a fiery young black woman named Shirley Chisholm challenged the system by becoming the first black woman to run for President in 1968. In 1983 singer Vanessa Williams was named Miss America, opening the doors for others to follow.

In the 21st century barriers are still falling. Colin Powell became Secretary of State and Condoleezza Rice became the first Black national security advisor to the President. That same year Beyonce' Knowles became the first Black to win the ASCAP songwriter of the year award.

As walls continued to tumble down, in 2008 Barack Hussein Obama was elected the first African-American president of the United States and his wife Michelle, became the first Black first lady in history.

As long as barriers exists there will continue to be "firsts." These are those who step into an arena before others and perform in an honorable way that makes it easier for others to follow. These certainly would be the trailblazers of our history. There are millions of "first blacks" in every community across the nation around nation. Often their names are never called but they were the first whose feet touched the troubling waters. We move toward the Promised Land because of their faith, strength and courage.

As Christians, we praise God for opening doors for us and rolling back the waters. We also praise the men and women of our heritage who stepped forth in faith to claim the inheritance were denied in so many arenas, over so many years.

Exposition

This text first considers Israel as it stands at the bank of the River Jordan entering into new and uncharted territory. Without the use of boats, floats or ferries they were about to walk across the River Jordan during the season of high water.

On the other side of Jordan lay the fulfillment of the great promises of God. On the other side was the Promised Land, described as flowing with milk and honey. The dream of prosperity, security and independence was only a stone's throw away.

But, before they could enter the new land, they had to first cross the Jordan!

Crossing Jordan was a formidable task. Flowing from the Sea of Galilee to the Dead Sea the Jordan had no less than 27 great rapids and cascades with many smaller rapids that averaged four to five miles per hour in low tide with even faster currents in high water.

Crossing Jordan in a boat would have been difficult. Swimming across Jordan would have been impractical. Walking across Jordan, during high water, was impossible.

Despite the impossibility of the problem, God commanded Moses to tell the priests to go three football fields in front of the people and proceed forward carrying the Ark of the Covenant on their shoulders.

Nearly a million people stood behind the first men. If they failed in courage or strength, no doubt the others would have also faltered. Yet there is no record where any of the men who carried the covenant flinched in any way. They walk forward in faith, confident that the promise of God would quiet the waters and roll them back.

God promised that when the first foot touched the water that it would roll back in a heap and the people would be able to cross on dry land.

The priests moved out on faith alone. They faced uncertainty, danger and possibly death. True to his word, when their feet touched the water, it rolled backwards and heaped up, allowing Israel to cross over to the Promised Land.

If it were not for the faith of those first men, the day of their crossing Jordan might never have come.

Their names are not recorded, but their actions paved the way for others to enter into the blessings of the Lord.

Three Characteristics of the First Feet

There are at least three characteristics of the first twelve men to cross the Jordan that should strike our attention:

THEY WERE NOT INTIMIDATED: The men selected to bear the ark were priests of the tribe of Levi. There were hundreds, even thousands of priests, but these men were chosen to bear the ark. They traveled 1000 yards ahead of the others into the face of danger, yet they were not intimidated. In a similar way those who broke barriers in our history marched forward into a thousand arenas undeterred by certain danger. Nine children faced angry mobs, threats and guns to open school doors in Little Rock. James Meredith faced similar obstacles when he integrated Ole Miss. In a thousand communities across the nation, people faced the same threats as they dared to apply for jobs at banks, sit in white waiting rooms, drink out of white water fountains, or sit at lunch counters. People of God should not fear when we are on God's side of history. We remember that the word says in Psalm 27:1 "The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear?"

THEY CARRIED THEIR FAITH IN GOD WITH THEM: The priests carried the ark of the covenant on their shoulders. It was not a good luck charm; it was the symbol of the presence of God. They moved boldly because they were sure God was with them. The historical accounts of the organized attempts to break racial barriers in this nation are filled with accounts of community prayer meetings and rallies that preceded the actions of those selected. Privately, those who ventured to go forth offered prayers to God for his grace and protection as they moved into the unknown. They moved in obedience to the command of God and walked by faith alone. Even today, we must not venture to do anything unless we first go to God in prayer. If we take the Lord with us, we are assured that he has the power to take us through the Jordan and to the other side.

THEY WERE CONFIDENT THAT GOD WOULD MAKE A WAY: The priests who carried the ark were sure that God would fulfill his promises. What he promised to do had never been done in their lifetime. They had heard the stories of the wonderful way God opened up the Red Sea for their grandparents, but they had never seen it for themselves. Despite not having seen that miracle they had seen others in the wilderness, they knew God could make a way. Those who stepped forward to integrate schools, universities, bus terminals and other areas forbidden to our race were a part of a mighty movement across the nation. The hand of God was moving, shaking the very walls of racism and prejudice; they plowed forth with the full knowledge that the "Lord will make a way somehow."

Wonders Tomorrow

Finally, brothers and sisters we must consider that those, whose feet first touched the waters, were touching water but they were standing on the promises of God.

They had a reason to be bold and confident because they had the promise of God. In Joshua 3:5 we read, "And Joshua said unto the people, sanctify yourselves: for tomorrow the LORD will do wonders among you."

For Israel those words brought them confidence, "..for tomorrow, the Lord will do wonders among you." They marched forward and God did a wonderful thing. He rolled back the waters of the Jordan but he didn't stop there.

In scores of tomorrows he continued to do wonders. He brought down the walls of Jericho. He made the sun stand still in the sky and gave an unttrained and unwarlike people victory in a land filled with milk and honey.

Today, God is still making good on that promise, not just to Israel but to all believers everywhere "Sanctify yourselves" and get ready for God is going to do wonders tomorrow.

When tomorrow comes, ghettos will be a forgotten nightmare, racial profiling will no longer exist and the "Nigger" will no longer be spoken by blacks or whites.

When tomorrow comes, there will be black women on the Supreme Court and women in the white house, because the barriers or sexism will have fallen.

When tomorrow comes, Black history month will be joined by Hispanic History month, Asian History Month, Jewish History Month, Italian History and every culture will be celebrated because we will see the beauty in every race.

When tomorrow comes, opportunities for employment will be extended to every person based on their ability without considerations of their race, age or sex.

When tomorrow comes, racism will be a faint memory only recalled by the aging historians.

I'm confident that there will be wonders tomorrow because we serve a wonder working God who can take our fears about tomorrow and give us confidence today.

We serve a God who can take:

—Tomorrow's uncertainty and turn it into today's assurance!

—Tomorrow's fears and make them today's courage!

—Tomorrow's doubts and make them today's hope!

A blind man met him one day, and he gave him new sights to see! He's a wonder working God!

A lame man met him one day, and he gave him a new walk to walk! He's a wonder working God!

Lazarus, dead in the tomb for four long days, found out that he gave him another life to live! He's a wonder working Lord!

He worked a wonder at the Red Sea!

He worked a wonder at the Jordan River!

But two 2,000 years ago he worked another wonder. He carried an old cross up Golgotha's hill and died out on Calvary.

The women cried for three days and three nights, but on the last night there must have been a whisper in heaven that repeated that old promise, get ready for a wonder tomorrow.

Early Sunday morning….

Touched by an Angel

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 8, 2009

SCRIPTURE: And as he lay and slept under a juniper tree, behold, then an angel touched him, and said unto him, Arise and eat. And he looked, and, behold, there was a cake baken on the coals, and a cruse of water at his head. And he did eat and drink, and laid him down again. And the angel of the LORD came again the second time, and touched him, and said, Arise and eat; because the journey is too great for thee. And he arose, and did eat and drink, and went in the strength of that meat forty days and forty nights unto Horeb the mount of God. 1 Kings 19:5-8

Introduction

Have you ever been helped by someone you did not know? Did that person respond to you in your hour of need by chance? Most of us have been assisted in some task, goal or endeavor by someone we did not know at the time. It gives us an eerie feeling when that mysterious person appears out of nowhere to lend a hand, say an encouraging word, perform a task or otherwise help us. Sometimes the person disappears and is never seen again. There are other times when we see that same person helping someone else. There are times when that person seems to linger around us, with no ulterior motive, encouraging, helping and assisting us in so many ways.

Without thinking, we often say, "Thanks, you're an angel." On other occasions, we sometimes say, "The Lord must have sent you. You are certainly an angel." The words rolled out of our mouths easily, but we probably had no idea how close those words were to the actual truth.

Angels are God's messengers. He uses them to protect, push us and position us to accomplish his will. Sometimes we see them but fail to recognize them. Often we don't see them at all, but we know they have touched our lives in ways that only God can do.

There is a legend about a woman who walked the streets begging for many years. She lived in the graveyard and wore burlap sack clothing and old ragged clothes. They called her Honey Babe. She had been a school teacher in another life whose husband and six children died in a great fire. She never recovered from that trauma and spent the rest of her life mourning her children and begging. For nearly 30 years she begged but never spent a single dime of the money she received, instead she buried the money in glass jars all over the town. People followed her to find where she buried the money but no one could find it. They knew the money existed because each time a mother needed money to save a child a jar stuffed with money would mysteriously appear on their porch. It would always be just enough to pay for a child's treatment. When they saw the muddy jars and the soiled coins they knew it must have been part of Honey Babe's treasure. She was an unlikely angel of the most high God.

As Christians, we believe that God still has angels. We believe he uses them to accomplish his will for us. He works through them to make his will apparent in the world. We feel safe and secure in the knowledge that all night and all day, angels are watching over us!

Exposition

This text focuses on the help that God dispatched to the prophet Elijah when he experienced a low point in his life.

The text comes in the aftermath of a great contest on Mt. Carmel, in which Elijah completely humiliated the prophets of Baal. He challenged the false prophets to get their God to answer them by answering from heaven with a fire that would consume an animal sacrifice. Despite the dancing, wailing and pleading of the Baal prophets, there was no answer. When his turn came, Elijah quietly called on God and he immediately answered with fire from heaven that consumed the sacrifice as requested.

Afterwards, Elijah became a hunted man. He won a great victory on Mt. Carmel, but he was also a defeated man. He was tired of running and was fatigued. He laid himself by a Juniper tree and simply hid from Jezebel. He cried as he hid under the Juniper bush, "Lord, I have had enough. It was bad enough facing four hundred priests of Baal but when this one woman gets after me, that is too much." She was threatening his life. "Lord, I have had enough - take my life,"

For a while a raven brought him food and he quenched his thirst from water in a brook. Yet, while he retreated God sent an angel to bring him food to eat and water to drink. He was awakened when he was touched by an angel who said, "Arise and Eat." On a second occasion, the angel provided him with food to eat again. This time the angel noted that Elijah should eat because the journey ahead of him was great.

The word used for angel in this text is Malak (Mal-awk). It is a word which means "dispatched" from God. It indicates that an angel is a being who has been sent by God. An angel is a messenger, an ambassador, a representative, an emissary of God. In the New Testament the word angel is "Angelos" (ang-el-os) which means messenger from God. John was given a message or revelation for the angels of the seven churches of Asia Minor. Each of the pastors of the seven churches was referred to as angels. In Revelation 2:1 he says, "Unto the angel of the church of Ephesus write; …" In Revelation 2:12 he says, "And to the angel of the church in Pergamos write…" Angels are spirit beings and have no form of their own. They have been recorded in scripture as appearing in some instances as winged creatures, known as Cherubim (four wings, Ezekiel 1:4-15) and Seraphim (six wings, Isaiah 6:2-4). This accounts for the numerous paintings we have seen over the centuries of angels with wings

In other instances they have been recorded in both the old and new Testaments as men. In Genesis 18:1-4 angels appeared to Abraham as normal men. Luke 24:3-5 shows angels appearing to the apostles in the normal form of men.

Thus, when the text notes that an angel touched Elijah it could have been a Seraphim with six wings or a person dispatched from God to minister to him in his time of need. In either instance, the result is the same; Elijah was touched by someone or something that was dispatched from God himself.

The Angel's touch

Elijah lost faith for a while and lingered under a Juniper tree. Three actions of the angel should catch our attention.

THE ANGEL AWAKENED HIM: Elijah had become comfortable in his retreat, hiding under a Juniper tree while being fed by a raven. God sent an angel to him and the angel's first act was to wake him up. The angel touched him. How often we can slip off into a dream world that won't allow us to face the realities around us. Like Elijah, we can retreat from problems and try to keep from facing them, then God sends an angel to wake us up. Many believers have received a wakeup call at one time or another. That's when we were forced to face the realities of this world. When misfortunes come, there are many who lull us to sleep by telling us it will be alright. We often wallow in self pity until that special someone comes along and gives us the wake up call and shocks us back into reality. It was the angel that touched Elijah but it was God that sent him the wake up call. Likewise, God sends us wake up calls, in strange ways. The angel could be the voice of a parent or spouse. It could be the warning of a teacher or coach. Then sometimes God may use circumstances in ways that get our attention when everything else fails.

A giant fish brought Jonah his wake up call. Blinded eyes brought Samson his wake up call. It's what they were tellingShug Avery in "The Color Purple"-"God is trying to tell you something." The near fatal accident, the unusual outpouring of bad news, the string of near misses..may have all been wake up calls in which God sends us messages that it is time for us to wake up from our slumber and take action. When we are shackled by the burdens of this world, God also sends angels to set us free. Acts 12:7 tells us that even when Peter thought his situation was at its worse that God sent an angel who touched him on his side and to him to get up quickly, and in obedience he responded. When he did his chains dropped from him. Has God sent an angel to talk to you? Has that angel's words shocked you, angered you and prodded you to take action? If so, why not do as Peter did, arise and watch God work!

THE ANGEL PROVIDED FOR HIM: The next thing the angel did for Elijah was to prepare him a meal to sustain him. The text notes that Elijah ate the food, drank the water and went back to bed. Even today God has sent his angels to provide for and protect us, but there are many who receive the blessing and take it for granted.

There are many who take for granted the way God keeps food on our tables. Even in hard times, God continues to make a way for us. Yet there are many of us that take that for granted. When the raven brought food every day, Elijah took that for granted. When the Angel prepared food for him daily, he took that for granted, too and went back to sleep.

Many act as if the world owes us something. We take for granted the kindness of neighbors, the goodwill of parents and unsolicited help of those who help us. These are done for us out of love, but they are not owed to us. The philosopher Ayd Rand put it this way, "A person who has the absurd notion that anyone, particularly "the world" owes him anything is destined not only for a lifetime of failure, but tremendous bitterness and frustration as well. Until such a person gets such a presumptuous notion out of his head, he'll never get out of the starting gate, much less succeed."

Elijah rolled over and went back to bed, waiting on the next meal. It would be a tragedy for those who are recipients of God's goodwill to do the same; to just roll over and do nothing, as if God owed us success, blessings and our next meal. God puts the food on the table for us but we should never take it for granted.

THE ANGEL SUSTAINED HIM: 1 Kings 19:7 notes that the angel touched him a second time, but this time he was motivated to move on. Elijah was prepared for a long journey ahead and given the strength to endure. The last meal he received lasted 40 days.

The angel touched him once to wake him up, spoke to him twice to feed him and touched him a last time to get him moving. Sooner or later every one of us must move at God's command. There is one certainty in life, "When God gets ready you've got to move."

God did not abandon Elijah he sustained him miraculously. He sustained him by making what he had be enough. Believers have learned this to be a truth, that God has often shown us his power by taking what we have a making it enough!

He sent an angel in our kitchens to show us dozens of ways to stretch what we have. We took light bread and raisins and stretched it into bread pudding. We took old cornbread and stretched it into dressing, then took the dressing and poured browned flour and grease over it and called it dressing and gravy. We took hog guts and called them chitterlings, and even found ways to etch out a meal from the hog's feet, ears, tail, tongue and brains. God took what should have killed us and made it sustain us for nearly three centuries.

When God touches us he sustains us.

He keeps his arms around us.

Finally, brothers and sisters we cannot ignore the fact that whether he sends a family member, neighbor or a winged cherubim from heaven; every child of God can always say, God always has an angel watching over me.

There is never a time when we are left alone when God does not dispatch an angel to respond to our need.

In the middle of challenging financial times when jobs are disappearing and unemployment is rising, the child of God says I will not be discouraged, for I know an order has been dispatched from the battlements of heaven, to provide for me, I've got an angel watching over me!

In these troubling times, when home values are dropping and foreclosures are increasing children of the king are dispirited, the child of God says, I will not be dispirited, for I know that my equity has been considered in the bank of heaven and help is on the way because I've got an angel watching over me!

In these meddlesome times when my stack of bills is higher than my paycheck, I will not be disenchanted because my father is rich in houses and land and he holds the wealth of the world in his hands, I've got an angel watching over me!

No wonder the old warriors use to sing with voices lifted up to heaven, "All night and all day, Angels watching over me my Lord. All night and all day, angels watching over me."

When your life has been touched by an angel bad things are turned around and you start to see the light of day.

When you've been touched by an angel, your sadness is reversed and you begin to see a reason for gladness.

When you've been touched by an angel. your bitterness is reversed and you begin to taste life's sweetness one more time.

When you've been touched by an angel, the sting of failure is reversed and you begin to see how God will take your failure and make it the stepping stone to success.

When you've been touched by an angel, the deadly pangs of divorce is reversed and you begin to realize that there is life after marital death.

When you've been touched by an angel, the gnawing criticisms of haters is reversed and you begin to realize that the more people talk about you more you are blessed!

When you've been touched by an angel you say with confidence, the Lord will make a way.

That's when you can sing the words of old hymn "Be not dismayed what ere' betide, God will take care of you. Beneath his wings of love abide. God will take care of you."

Through every day!

Over all the way!

God will take care you…yes he will!

I don't know about you but I've got an angel watching over me..

His name is not Gabriel because all he can do is blow his horn!

His name is not Michael because all he can do is carry out commands!

I've got an angel and his name is Jesus!

He died out on Calvary, but early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

I'm so glad that I've been touched by the hand of God!

A Focused Faith For a Focused Pastor

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 2009

SCRIPTURE: But without faith it is impossible to please him: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." Hebrews 11:6

Introduction

Do you ever find it hard to stay focused? Many of us have seen clear paths for our lives and started journeys toward them. However, somewhere along the line we lost our focus and redirected our energies in other areas. That suggests the initial problem that we all share. We are share the need to see what God wants us to do, then remain focus on that task until it has been completed. That's easier said than done because we are surrounded by so many distractions.

How many believers begin each year with a promise to improve their bible study habits, only to get distracted by family problems that cause us to focus on something else instead?

How many of us have promised to improve our service to the Kingdom of God by working more diligently with the church, only to find ourselves sidetracked along the way?

Each time we are sidetracked, the original goal is delayed at best, and forgotten at worse.

If losing focus is a problem for those leading families, imagine how difficult it must be for a pastor who leads an entire congregation, to remain focused. He is a man who has been given a vision for the local congregation and has committed himself to promote the vision with all of his strength and ability. However, no sooner than he can get started he is distracted.

There is trouble in the choir and he has to deal with that.

Then, there is trouble on the Usher Board and he has to take care of that.

Then, there is trouble on the deacon board and he has to take care of that.

Then, there is trouble with the youth, the mission and the Sunday school, and he has to take care of those.

In fact, often the pastor spends so much time dealing with various issues in the church that he hardly has the time or the energy to push the vision the Lord has given him. Of course that is the devil's plan in the first place; to keep the church in disarray and confusion and off-task. In disunity, trouble or confusion the devil prospers and the work of the church falls behind. That's why it's important for pastors to remain focused on the task that God has given them.

In a way, he should study the way pigeon's operate to learn a little wisdom. Pigeons have a strange way of walking. Their heads seem to stretch forward, then they take a few steps, then their heads stretch backward. There is reason for the strange walk. Pigeons focus on where they are going, take a few steps, then pull their heads back and refocus. As they walk it becomes automatic: Focus, walk, refocus, repeatedly. What the church needs is a pastor who can do the same: Focus on what God has given him to do; take a few steps, then step back and refocus on the original task.

To remain focused the pastor will need a focused faith.

As Christians, we should constantly pray that our pastors remain focused on the vision that God has given them for the local congregation. To carry out God's will successfully requires a focused faith from a focused pastor; with that all things are possible.

Exposition

This text focuses on the importance of faith for any believer. It reminds us that faith is the "substance" of everything we hope for, but it is the essence of all that we want but cannot see.

No believer can successfully live the Christian life without keeping a sharp focus on their faith.

New Testament believers are reminded that faith is essential to the Christian life.

Its very nature is the unseen. It is belief without sufficient physical evidence to confirm.

Much of what believers know about God has been through our past experience. Based upon our past experience, combined with what we read in the word, we make a projection about the future. That projection is what is called faith.

It is a hope rooted in the nature of God and our past experience with him. Without faith we cannot please God because we must accept that he is God and come to him first.

Without faith, Godly men, who are leading the Lord's people, will lose their way and become lost in a maze of activity of this world. Maintaining a focused faith guarantees that even when times get difficult and distractions are numerous that the leader of the congregation will never lose sight of the direction the congregation should follow.

With a sharply focused faith he can lead the people of God through the endangered paths of this world to the destinations God has provided for his people.
Keeping Focus

It is important for the pastor to remain focused on his mission despite life's challenges.

What does it mean to focus? It means to concentrate all of our energies on one objective or goal. It is the intense pursuit of a single aspiration by directing our time, talents, and resources toward achieving its end. When life's goal is clear and the direction of our energies is sure, we are said to be in focus.

Those who have tried to take pictures with a camera know that an image in the lens can be sharp and clear but if the subject comes closer or moves away, adjustments have to be made to keep the image in focus. Likewise, in life it is easy to focus on a goal while standing still, but as the constant ebb and flow of life impacts us as various points, adjustments have to be made to stay in focus.

AVOID BLURS. If we lose sight of our objective, our energies and activities are spread out over a variety of patterns that are blurred and unclear. Moreover, even if we keep our objective in sight but fail to concentrate our energies, our lives still become a blur.

There are three conditions that the good pastor must avoid to remain focused:

NEAR SIGHTED: There are many members in the congregation who are near sighted. The near sighted can't see their goal because they can only see things that are close to them. They live for today.

Therefore their energies are not concentrated on achieving a goal because all they can see is today. They follow the general creed that they should eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow may never come.

The pastor must stay in focus and keep his eye on the mark of the high calling which is Jesus Christ.

FAR SIGHTED: There are other members of the church that are just the opposite; they are far sighted. These are members who are able to see the goal but can't see how to manage the daily flow of time, talents and resources to achieve the goal. They see their goal but can't discipline themselves to make it happen.

The focused pastor must keep his eye on the goal but not lose sight of the small details needed to insure the goal. He must insure that members remember the importance of worship, service, and giving in the present, while they look forward to goal of the future.

ASTIGMATISM: A third set of people also have a focus problem, those who have astigmatism. These are those who can't see the goal and neither can they influence the energies of their lives. They wander aimlessly in a blurred existence. The pastor must remain focused so that he is never leading the congregation a blur. In a blur, he sees something but he's not sure what he sees, it simply can't make it out. The people are counting on him to remain focused and to see clearly the path that the Lord has provided for the congregation.

Faith Keeps Focus

Finally, brothers and sisters we should remember that when the man of God is in focus, he keeps the congregation focused; and when God sees our faith and sees our sacrifice, he will provide for our needs.

A focused faith inspires and motivates the pastor to push the people of God to higher heights of faith and hope.

A focused faith helps the pastor fulfill the Biblical mandate to make disciples.

A focused faith will result in dramatic, even radical transformation of lives, families, and ministries.

A focused faith will result in the world around you being impacted for Christ.

When the Pastor is in focus, he is not distracted by life's sideshows because he knows that God is bigger than any difficulty we might encounter.

That's what faith is all about; knowing that God will make a way.

Faith reminds us that whatever we need, God will supply.

When we go to God with medical needs, he says, we call him JEHOVAH-RAPHA because that means 'I am the Lord that healeth thee.'

When we go to God for peace amidst terrible storms, we call him JEHOVAH-SHALOM because that means that God is our peace. In this troubled world we must experience God as our peace.

When we go to God for victory over adversity, we call him JEHOVAH-NISSI because that means the Lord is our banner of victory. He is the lord of hosts and commands the vast heavenly army. He will fight the battle for us and give us the victory.

When we want our needs met, we call him JEHOVAH-JIREH because he both sees our needs and provides.

We walk by faith, we step out each day, confident that God sees what we are going through and he will make a way. That's why the song writer wrote, "We are our heavenly father's children, and he knows just how much we can bear!

God sees our tears in the midnight hour!

God sees our concern for our families and loved ones!

God sees our despair over our current situation and while we are still praying about it, help is on the way!

I know he'll make a way because he loves us. John 3:16 says, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life!"

Stay focused and every day faithfully work to please him!

Stay focused and every day faithfully work to glorify him!

Stay focused and every day faithfully work to lift him up!

Stay focused on the King of Kings!

Stay focused on the Lord of Lords!

Stay focused on the Alpha and Omega!

His name is Jesus!

He died out on Calvary!

But early Sunday morning He arose from the dead!

Stay focused on Jesus and He will direct thy path!

The Rewards of Drinking from the Right Cup

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 15, 2009

SCRIPTURE: Ye cannot drink the cup of the Lord, and the cup of devils: ye cannot be partakers of the Lord's table, and of the table of devils. 1 Corinthians 10:21

Introduction

Have you ever watched someone prepare a cup of coffee? No two people are alike, especially when they are preparing their coffee. They can use the same Styrofoam cup, but what goes in the cup varies. One person has black coffee while another has black coffee with a varying amount of sugar: one, two, three maybe even five or six packets of sugar are needed for some. Others need a little cream. There are those who use cream but no sugar, sugar with no cream and then there are those who drink black coffee but water it down to make it weak. For some their coffee must be so strong that hairs stand up on their heads, while there are others who drink warm cream water because of its dilution. Each cup on the outside looks the same but the contents differ greatly.

Leading a happy, fulfilled life deals with choices, much like deciding what to put in our coffee. Each person brings to their life a set of choices that reflects their tastes, ambitions, values and goals. No one has exactly the same life plan as another. What one favors the other frowns upon, just as those who must have sugar raise an eyebrow at those who drink their coffee black.

Theologically, God gives each of us the free will to choose the direction of our lives. Scripture generally refers to our particular life set as a "cup." God has a cup for every believer and Satan has a cup for his followers, too. How far we climb in life and the direction which we travel depends heavily on which cup we choose.

Whether or not you enjoy a good cup of coffee depends heavily upon what's in the cup. The same is true of life in general. Whether we enjoy the trials, struggles and rewards of life depends heavily upon whether or not we are sipping from the right cup.

As Christians we acknowledge that Christ has prepared a cup for us that is filled with all the spiritual condiments needed for an abundant life. The cup he has prepared for us is the cup of salvation and blessing based on our faith in him. Like Maxwell

House, “It’s good to the last drop.”

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul writing to the Corinthians about the nature of the Lord’s Table.

Paul notes that those who participate in the Lord’s Supper drink from the cup of blessing. In 1 Corinthians 10:16 he says, “The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ?” He notes that those who drink from God’s cup indicate that they are the recipients of God’s blessing, favor and protection. They also indicate they are in step with his will for their lives.

However, the text notes that there is a problem if a person attempts to drink from the Cup of God’s blessing while at the same time drinking from the devil’s cup. There is a certain incongruity and inconsistency between a person being the guest and friend of Christ, and the guest and friend of evil spirits at the same time. It is as impossible as thinking that the same man can be wicked and holy at the same time.

In Corinth there were many believers who had abandoned the communion service to eat food that had been offered to idols. Regardless of their motives, these Christians were opening the whole movement to criticism from unbelievers. It was charged that Christians had a dual allegiance—that they were hypocrites.

A Christian says by his presence at communion, “I am in fellowship with Christ.” If a man is really in fellowship with Christ, he cannot be in fellowship with demons. If a man has really been to the table of the Lord Jesus, there are also some things on the tables of the world he does not touch.

Paul warns in 1 Corinthians 10:22 that those who try to drink from both cups anger God so he says, “Do we provoke the Lord to jealousy? are we stronger than he?”

The idea Paul noted is that communion represents those who are a part of one Lord, one faith and one baptism. In 1 Corinthians 10:17 he says, “For we being many are one bread, and one body: for we are all partakers of that one bread.”

Thus, the text notes that there is a blessing for those who drink from the right cup. Those who drink from the wrong cup provoke God’s anger.

What’s in the cup?

Look at the two cups from which we must choose:

THE DEVILS CUP: The devil’s cup offers us the illusion of happiness and joy. He offers us a spiritually decaffeinated life. He offers condiments that are marked sweet or creamy but turn out to be filled with defeat and sadness. Many fooled, by the devil’s cup, pursue lives of crime to get riches quickly only to end up in sadness. The devil’s cup is filled with many attitudes that destroy us such as fear, failure, defeat and low self esteem. There is no way for us to climb life’s ladder if we get up each morning and consume several cups of defeatist self talk filled with “I can’t” and “I’m Afraids."

Defeatist thinking is what the devil desires and he offers you a fresh cup every morning and all through the day. When Jesus was tested in the wilderness, that's the cup that the devil offered him, but he refused saying, "Get the behind me Satan. It is written that man shall not live by bread alone but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."

Those who drink from the devil's cup wake up thinking about who they can cheat, whose husband they can take, what woman's will can they break, how much money they can make illegally, and many other things that are foreign to the will of God.

GOD's CUP: God's cup is filled with everything we need for the abundant life. It is the right cup and it is filled with godly things such as salvation, and forgiveness. It is also filled with a multiplicity of positives that are reflected in Philippians 4:8 "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."

The Folgers Coffee Company has a slogan that says, "The best part of waking up is Folgers in your cup." A Christian could easily modify that slogan to say, "The best part of waking up is looking up to the hills from whence cometh my help, my help cometh from the Lord who made the heaven and the earth."

DRINKING FROM BOTH CUPS: Life can be frustrating if you try to drink from both cups at the same time, especially for believers because it stops us from tasting the goodness of the Lord. Psalm 34:8 says, "O taste and see that the LORD is good: blessed is the man that trusteth in him. But that is complicated if we are also trying to taste the devils cup too.

Paul told the Corinthians in 1 Corinthians 10:23 "All things are lawful for me, but all things are not expedient: all things are lawful for me, but all things edify not. " In essence, I could sip out of the other cup but it would not edify me or build up my life in Christ, so I stick with Christ.

Although another cup is offered believers should be mindful of the frustrations and problems that come with sipping from both cups.

If we try to drink out of both cups one has a tendency to cancel out of the other and we are in a miserable state.

If a believer is handed the cup of optimism that the day ahead is going to be great; then sips out of the cup of doubt that things could go very wrong. One cancels out the other.

If a believer is handed the cup of trust that God will make a way; then also sips from the cup of skepticism and fear. One cancels the other out.

If a believer is handed the cup of hope that despite bad times God is able; then sips from the cup of despair and defeat. One cancels the other.

If we are going to trust in the Lord then resist the temptation to sip from the wrong cup after tasting the goodness of the Lord.

The Cup of Salvation

Finally, brothers and sisters we should remember that the cup that Christ offers us is the cup of salvation and blessings.

The communion cup is a reminder of the sacrifice made by Christ on Calvary. It is also a reminder that those who drink from this cup draw upon the power of God to assist them in their daily walk.

Therefore, believers should let this cup remind you that God is able.

Let this cup remind you that our God is able, to open up a way out of no way!

Let this cup remind you that our God is able, to be a shelter in a time of storm!

Let this cup remind you that no matter what you may have gotten yourself into, God can bring you out!

Let this cup remind you that every day of your life God knows what to put in your cup.

There are times when life gets, bitter but the Lord knows just how much sugar to add to make it alright.

Only people who know you well can fix your coffee. They know how much cream you want or whether you want cream at all.

When things get dark he knows how much lighter things need to be. That's why David declared, "The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear. The Lord is the strength of my life of whom shall I be afraid?"

When days get a little bitter he knows how much sweetness to add. The song writer said, "He's sweet I know. He's sweet I know. Dark clouds my rise and storms may blow but he's sweet I know!"

Whatever cup God prepares, we must obey his will.

I see Jesus in the garden talking to his father!

Father you have given me a strong cup that is black. I don't like it black.

If I take it black, they are going to persecute me!

If I take it black, they are going to beat me and persecute me!

If I take it black, they are going to whip me all night long!

If I take it black, they are going to spit in my face!

If I take it black, they are going to nail me to an old rugged cross!

I don't like it black, but nevertheless, not my will but thy will be done!

He drank his bitter cup and died out on Calvary!

But early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hand!

Just when you think life is slipping away from you, Wake up and smell the coffee..God is still on the throne!

A Rich Past, An Exciting Present and a Glorious Future

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 2009

SCRIPTURE: Walk about Zion, and go round about her: tell the towers thereof. Mark ye well her bulwarks, consider her palaces; that ye may tell it to the generation following. For this God is our God for ever and ever: he will be our guide even unto death. Psalm 48:12-14

Introduction

Take a look at you life; has God been good to you? Most of us will agree that God has been better to us than we have been to ourselves. When we consider all that we have experienced in life we can only say "Hallelujah" and "Praise God" for giving us a rich past, an exciting present and a glorious future.

Think about it. Some in this room were here when the first man walked on the moon. Some were here when cell phones were first used or even microwaves. Some experienced the sting of racial segregation and others saw the first of our race make strides in many areas including the election of the first person who looks like us as the President of the United States.

Certainly we can all say God has been good to us. Our paths have brought us through a myriad of experiences that have included successes and failures. Along the way, we have witnessed many changes and have learned to take them in stride. Our joy is to know that despite the road that we have traveled that there has been one constant in life that has never changed; that is the love of God. It never changes.

The most senior among us have seen the most miles, tallest of mountains and the deepest of life's valleys. The younger among us have traveled a journey too. It is just as real to them as the distances traveled by those who walked before them.

As Christians, we give praise to God for bringing us through our troublesome past. We also give him praise for the exciting life that he is giving us today and high praise for the glorious future that lies ahead of us.

Exposition

This text celebrates the greatness of Jerusalem for its past, present and future glory.

The central focus of the text is Jerusalem. It was the center of the worship and focus of God's people at the time of this text. It symbolizes the blessing and anointing of God and as such, it reminded Israel constantly of the presence of God in the Promised Land.

Yet, here Jerusalem is also a type of the church and all true believers of God. What is said about Jerusalem is the same that can be said about the church and individual believers.

This text says three things to the church collectively and individually: Review where you have been and see what God has done, consider the palaces or the great blessings that God has given you in the present and consider all of the great blessings that God has in store for the future.

Walk Around Zion

If we take a good look at our journey we will see what God has done for us. That's why Psalm 48:12 encourages us to Walk about Zion. To consider the beauty and magnificence of the temple, count the towers by which it is fortified. In essence, see the rich past God has given you.

Today, every saint who takes a walk about Zion can see the many ways that God has enriched their lives both materially and spiritually.

Like Noah, we have survived floods of trouble. We have remained afloat even though at times it appeared that we would sink.

Like Abraham, we have seen difficult times when our faith has been tested and the very lives of those we loved the most have been threatened. It was moments such as those that strengthened us when we learned that God truly does have a ram in the bush.

Like the Israelites crossing the River Jordan into a new land, we have seen the hand of God bring down the walls of Jericho and perform miracles on our behalf.

Walk around Zion and see the wonderful works of God as he blessed us immensely in our past.

Consider His Present Protection

Even today, God is still providing for us and protecting us. That's what the Psalmist referred to in Psalm 48:13 when he notes that we should "Mark ye well her bulwarks" or see the many ways that Jerusalem is defended. The city was protected from invaders and enemies by a series of moats and protective works called bulwarks. Just as the Psalmist challenge Israel then to see how God protected Jerusalem with bulwarks, today we should see how God is providing for us and protecting us.

God is providing for us and protecting us right now. Despite his provision some are complaining but he provides us with an ample supply of food, clothing and shelter. Even those who complain must agree that God has been faithful in providing us with all three. Just as Israel was in the wilderness for 40 years depending upon the faithfulness of God, we have done the same. In the wilderness Israel found that God provided them food, on time every day; even though they complained about it. He fixed it such that the material that formed their tents held up for 40 years without need of repair. He arranged it so that they wore the same shoes and clothes for decades and they never wore out. The food came on time every day. There was water just when they needed it most. God was faithful to Israel as he provided for them in ways no one could explain.

God is doing the same today.

Every saint should face each new day with exciting expectation, with the full knowledge that "This is the day that the Lord hath made; I will rejoice and be glad in it."

No matter how we look at it, we are being blessed, right now, by the powerful hand of God.

Believers have the reassurance that any good thing that true believers desire will not be withheld from them. Good things are those things which are according to God's will. If what we want is in God's will it is a good thing and it will never be withheld. That's a promise that is reaffirmed in Psalm 84:11 which says, "No good thing will He withhold from them that work uprightly"

Consider your palaces

The text urges us to "Consider your palaces." A palace is not just a home but that which goes beyond the basics into the extraordinary.

As we consider the goodness of the Lord we should consider our "Palaces" the extra favor that he gives us every day.

Look around. Do you sleep in a comfortable bed at night? Consider your palace!

Do you eat reasonably well? Consider your palace!

Is your home reasonably safe and secure? Consider your palace?

Are you able to keep food on your table most of the time? Consider your palace!

Your palace is what God has given you above and beyond the mere basics.

Yesterday, the psalmist told Israel to walk around Zion and consider your palaces.

Today, believers are reminded to just take a look around and see what God has done and consider your palace.

God will bless us in the future too!

Finally, brothers and sisters we are celebrating today not only because we have a rich past and an exciting present but also because we have a glorious future ahead. .Our rich past is a great testimony to our God.

Our rich past has provided us with evidence that God can make a way. In the richness of our past we have experienced:

—Suffering, but the Lord has given us support in the middle of suffering.

—Strain, but the Lord has given us stability.

—Hardships, but the Lord has brought us hope.

—Trials, but the Lord has brought us longsuffering.

—Tragedy of the midnight, but the Lord has given us a song in the middle of the night.

James Weldon Johnson said, "We have come over a way that with tears has been watered. We have come treading our path in the blood of the slaughtered. Out from the gloomy past till now we stand at last where the white gleam of our bright star is cast."

But, when I think about how far we've come, I hear the words of James Cleveland ringing in my ears.

"I don't feel no ways tired. I've come too far from where I've started from. Nobody told me that the road would be easy."

I don't believe...

I don't believe He brought me this far, just to leave me.

That's the beauty of verse 14 when it records, "For this God is our God forever and ever: he will be our guide even unto death"

It means that God has been our God in the past. He is our God today, but he will continue to be our God into the future, forever and ever.

I don't know what tomorrow will bring, but I know what God has done in the past.

I know what God is doing right now!

"I do not know how long it will be or what the future holds for me, but this I know, if Jesus leads me, I will get home someday!

It doesn't matter what the future brings as long as the Lord is on our side!

If the Lord is on our side there will never be a:

—CROSS that we won't be able to bear; MOUNTAIN that we won't be able to climb!

—ENEMY that we won't be able to defeat; BATTLE we won't be able to win!

—DARKNESS so dark that we won't be able to see the light!

—TRIAL that we can't make it through; TEST that we won't be able to pass! He is our hope for tomorrow.

There is a glorious future ahead of us but we must hold firm to our faith in Jesus, He is our only hope!

I heard the song writer declare "The only hope we have is in Christ Jesus. Confusion is great in the world today. Persecutions my come with such a heavy weight but we have this hope and it's in Jesus!"

Jesus, somebody here today knows Him!

Jesus, the Lily of the valley!

Jesus, the Bright and Morning star!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary and rose up early Sunday morning!

He has given us a rich past, an exciting present and offers us a glorious future!

The Recipe for An Abundant Life

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church

March 2009

SCRIPTURE: Jesus said unto him, If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth. Mark 9:23

Introduction

There are recipes for just about everything: cakes, pies, desserts, and assorted dishes, but is there a recipe for life? Is there a special recipe that we can follow that would guarantee an abundant life that is filled with joy, peace, love, longsuffering, gentleness, and meekness?

A recipe is a special list of ingredients and procedures used to achieve a desired result. It is usually detailed enough so that those who follow it to the letter will get the predefined result. We remember recipes with fondness because there are a few in every family: Grandma's pound cake recipe. Uncle Joe's secret bar-be-que sauce. Aunt Mary's potato salad. Mother's special giblet gravy. Granny's Christmas fruitcake. They were all made from special recipes.

Those who have a special way of cooking or preparing an item that produces their unique result usually guard their recipes. Coca Cola has a special mixture of ingredients that produces its unique taste. It has kept that recipe secret nearly a century. Kentucky Fried Chicken keeps its special blend of herbs and spices used to produce its "finger licking good" taste under lock and key. Even the franchise owners in local communities are not told the recipe. It's a trade secret.

There are some secrets that can't be reproduced, even with the best recipe. Consider the grandchild who had always been impressed with the way grandma made pound cakes. Now a newly married microwave bride, the grand child decided to make a pound cake, just like grandma made. She went up and down the isle at the grocery store getting ingredients that she remembered sitting on the counter at grandma's house. When she came to the spices, she stood there for a long time reading every box and bottle, searching for something. An elderly woman stood nearby and watched, seemed frustrated at her inability to find what she was looking for. Finally, the woman approached the young woman and asked if she could help. The frustrated grandchild turned quickly and said, "I'm trying to find something grandma use to put in her cakes, but I can't find it!" Puzzled, the woman asked what it was, only to hear the woman respond: "She called it scratch!" The old woman responded: That's love and patience baby, you won't find it on a shelf, it came from her heart.

Today, friends there is good news. God has a recipe for living abundantly that is available for everyone. Such a recipe would be worth millions, but believers have found it and it is free.

It's not on a shelf and it's not in a box. It's from his heart. It is not a secret. In fact we have been commanded to go into all of the world and tell everyone about the recipe, then show them how to blend its ingredients to produce the abundant spirit filled life.

Jesus said he came that we might have life and have it more abundantly. The bible is a detailed recipe for believers to follow to achieve the spirit filled life. It begins with one simple idea "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness and all of these things shall be added unto you."

As Christians, we strive to live according to God's plan. He has given us the recipe for spirit filled living. If we obey his word and follow the result will be a life that is both fulfilled for and pleasing in his sight.

Exposition

This text focuses on a father whose son is possessed by a demonic spirit and Jesus' response.

In reply to Jesus' compassionate inquiry, the father said his son had experienced such pathetic and near-fatal convulsions from childhood. The lad's condition was long-standing and critical. The words, "If You can do anything" indicate that the disciples' inability to expel the demon had shaken the father's faith in Jesus' ability.

Jesus took up the father's words of doubt, If You can, to show that the point was not His ability to heal the boy but the father's ability to trust in God who can do what is humanly impossible. Jesus then challenged the father not to doubt: Everything is possible for him who believes. Faith sets no limits on God's power and submits itself to His will.

The father's response was immediate. He declared his faith (I do believe), but also acknowledged his weakness: Help me overcome my unbelief!

Herein lies the key to living the abundant life. The main ingredient that was missing from this father's experience was faith. We need faith to achieve our life's purpose. Everything is possible for the person who believes.

Life Receipe

Across America today many congregations are searching for the recipe for the abundant life that Christ promised. The number of recipes that churches have tried is astounding. There are churches that promote Yoga classes, health spas, recreation, business development, mystical living and even acupuncture. Despite all of their efforts they always seem to miss something. In grandma's pound cake it's called "scratch." In building a spirit filled life it's called faith in God's promises.

Churches that grow in prayer, worship and faith based action, latch on to the essentials necessary for helping members living the spirit filled life.

In a way, the recipe for a spirit filled church is similar to the recipe for baking bread.

What's the recipe?

FLOUR: Flour is associated with our spiritual life. Flour is the product of all of God's creation: the sun, wind, earth, and rain. From the depths of the earth God gives the life sustaining presence of wheat for bread and corn for meal. In a similar sense God's graces work together to provide the essentials of life for every believer. Without the flour there is no bread; it is the essential element. For the believer, Christ is the essential ingredient for a spirit filled life. He is what makes life meaningful, joyful and fruitful. Without Christ there is no Christian marriage. There may be a house, but there is no home. There may be a few things, but unless Christ is the main thing, all of the thing will have little importance to us. Faith in Christ, is finely ground in the crucible of life's experience and is essential to all of the breads that we know.

WATER: Water is associated with spiritual health. Water is used in the baking of bread. Jesus met the woman at the well and offered her living water. In essence, his spirit would be the essence of real living. There are many today whose hearts are beating but they are not living. They move around each day but they are not living. They have a few things but they may as well have nothing because they are not really living. To really live we need the constant stream of spiritual support that only comes from God. Jesus is the living water that constantly flows. Anything that tries to live dies soon, without water. Marriages, careers, even relationships. Nothing else will substitute; it must be water. There are many today who are spiritually dehydrated. They are trying to live without drinking spiritual water. Professionals report that we need eight glasses of water a day to keep our systems functioning. Often we substitute coffee, cold drinks, alcohol and other wet substances for water and get by; but soon we learn that nothing takes the place of water. Likewise, many are substituting many things for Christ. They all serve their purpose but can't take the place of water. To have a healthy spiritual life we need worship, bible study, prayer and the presence of the Holy Spirit in our lives. He brings the living water.

SALT: Is associated with nourishment. Jesus told believers "Ye are the salt of the earth." Bread is made with a small amount of salt. Salt preserves, freshens and flavors. Before there were refrigerators, salt was used to preserve meat and other foods. In rural areas salt was even used to brush teeth and combined with soda was used as a deodorant. Salt also flavors. When Jesus said that believers are the salt of the earth he meant we should be all three: a source of preservation, sanitation and inspiration. Jesus said he was the bread of life and that he was the living water. Without the salt, the people of God, the world lacks what it needs to sustain itself.

YEAST: Yeast is associated with abundant living. In bread, yeast works like magic. The yeast causes the bread to rise. Without yeast, it stays flat. Yeast is composed of living elements that grow quickly, producing a pan of bread much larger than was first made. Jesus said, "I have come that ye may have life and have it more abundantly." What is abundant living? Is it the accumulation of possessions, money and power? Persons who seek Christ for that purpose usually interpret his words for that end. But does the Christ who urges us to live humbly, despise showy displays, and rid ourselves of as many possessions as possible, really mean by abundant living, that we should seek "living large" as a lifestyle. The abundance that he speaks about involves those variables associated with the kingdom of God. These are an abundance of love, peace, joy and overall happiness and contentment. The abundant life is not measured by how much we have, but how we are able to enjoy what we have. If we have boats but never enjoy them, what good are they? If we have families but never experience the love of family members, what good is the home? If we have money constantly accumulating but we have no peace because of it, are we really living? The abundant life is a Christ centered life that gets great joy out of every blessing it receives no matter how great or small. The abundant life that Christ speaks about has nothing to do with cars and houses; stocks bonds and investments. The abundant life is the life that is filled with as much gratitude for a pork chop as it is for an 18 ounce steak. We know we have it when we are able to "count it all joy."

Put it in the mix

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that while every recipe tells us the ingredients, that list alone is not the whole story. Under the list of ingredients there are some instructions that tell us what to do.

The instructions tell us when to stir, whip, garnish, and grease the pan.

The instructions tell us that we might have to beat something or chop something into small pieces.

All of the ingredients might be on the table but the best recipe tells us what to do with them.

That's the way God's word works. God shows us in his word, not only what ingredients to assemble but then he shows us how to mix them together and what to expect.

He show us how to break yokes, for he says, "take my yoke upon you, for my yoke is easy and my burden is light."

He shows us how to prepare for the heat, by reminding us that, "blessed are ye when shall persecute and say all manner of evil against thee for my name's sake."

If you want the recipe for a spirit filled church start with a spoonful of faith.

Soak faith in your soul for few minutes then add a touch of hope, because, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness."

Now throw in a spoonful of confidence that will help you say, "The Lord will make a way somehow."

You need a dash of optimism because when things look bad you remember, "All things work to the good of them that love Lord!"

You need a pinch of forgiveness because Jesus said we should say, "forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors."

You need a few drops of patience because, “They that wait on the Lord, shall mount up on wings as Eagles. They shall run and not be weary, walk and not faint.”

Now sprinkle it over with two dashes of assurance; it’s what the song writer meant when he said, “Blessed assurance, Jesus is mine, oh what foretaste of glory divine.”

Get two stalks of righteousness and blend them together with a faithful walk. That’s why the old warriors sang, “I want Jesus to walk with me. While I’m on this tedious journey. Lord I want Jesus to walk with me.”

The recipe is not complete without a tablespoon of praise. Praise Him in the morning. Praise him in the noonday. Praise him in the midnight hour. Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord.

But what is the main ingredient in this recipe?
What makes this recipe work is the blood. It’s the blood of Jesus!
I know it was the blood!
I know it was the blood that saved me!
To make this recipe work and to save my soul
One day when I was lost, He died upon a cross!
I know it was the blood that saved me!
He died! Yes he died!
But Early Sunday morning, he arose like self rising bread!
I know it was the blood that saved me!
It’s the main ingredient in my recipe for a spirit filled life.

Living godly in an ungodly world

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: "But Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the portion of the king's meat, nor with the wine which he drank: therefore he requested of the prince of the eunuchs that he might not defile himself." Daniel 1:8

Introduction

Have you ever tried to do right but everybody around you seemed to be doing wrong? It's hard to do right when the world is doing wrong, but that's exactly what every Christian is compelled to do. It is extremely difficult for youth to walk the straight and narrow path of godliness when all of their friends seem to find it acceptable to do just the opposite. Conformity with the crowd is a high priority with youth and many find it difficult to resist the pressures placed upon them to conform by adjusting their values and tastes music, clothing, and lifestyle nuances to fit the expectations of the crowd. It's even harder for Christian youth who strive to please God, but also want to be accepted by their friends as well.

Whether you are young or old it is not easy to resist the temptation to go along with the crowd.

Sometimes, walking right is harder for the elderly than it is for the young. Consider what happened when the church committee decided to honor Uncle Willie, its oldest member on his 106th birthday. They figured being a man of 106 years he would have a powerful story to tell the young people about resisting the temptations of the world and walking the straight and narrow. When they came to his house they saw a rather young looking man sitting on the porch. The found out that he was Willie III. He pointed them to his father was standing by the barn, but looked about the same age as his son. Willie Jr. told them the Willie that they were looking for was taking a naked bath in the river. The committee became concerned that a 106 year old man was taking a bath alone in the river. The son answered, "Well he's got to take a bath, even if the river is freezing because he's getting married today." –The committee was astonished, then the son added, "He wouldn't listen, we told him to leave that young woman alone, now he got to get married!"

The bible warns believers to beware of following the crowd, especially if the crowd is ungodly. At the same time, Jesus warned his disciples that the road to destruction is wide, but straight is the gate and narrow is the way that leads to the kingdom of God. The masses seldom follow the narrow path but take the super highway approach to life. Believers are encouraged to take the narrow road, even if they have to walk by themselves.

As believers, we praise God for showing us the right path. We praise him for giving us the strength to resist temptation and live for him constantly; because it's not easy to live the godly life in an ungodly world.

Exposition

Our text first considers Daniel, as a young man, before the court of the King of Babylon. Judah had been conquered by invading Babylonian armies and the best minds and talents of the Jewish people were brought to Babylon for re-education to the Babylonian mindset. Among the hundreds of captives were four, who history remembers as: Meshack, Shadrack, Abednego and Daniel.

Those who were being groomed were educated by the king's scholars, housed in quarters provided by the king, and fed with food from the king's table.

The Babylonians had great interest in what Daniel had to offer, since he was noted for possessing a scientific mind. Science, as we know it, began in Egypt and Babylon with the birth of mathematics, anatomy, metallurgy and astronomy.

The three Hebrew boys offered the best potential of their race. Young men, they were being groomed for a life associated with Babylon's highly intellectual but less godly lifestyle. It is a lifestyle that they rejected because they had a higher purpose.

Verse 8 reveals that Daniel had a purpose and that purpose was to obey the will of God. Because he had a purpose, he knew that whatever circumstance he encountered he would prevail if he obeyed the will of God. Even verse nine points out that despite the condition of Daniel's slavery, "God had brought Daniel into favor."

Factors in Godly Living

LIVING GODLY BRINGS GOD'S FAVOR: Those who choose to live by godly principles earn the "favor" of God. Daniel 1:9 says, "Now God had brought Daniel into favor and tender love with the prince of the eunuchs."The Hebrew words for "favor' in this text refer to "loving kindness" and "mercy." In essence they received many courtesies and specialties because of God's loving kindness and mercy (called favor). These young men had great potential. Daniel 1:4 says, "Children in whom was no blemish, but well favored, and skilful in all wisdom, and cunning in knowledge, and understanding science, and such as had ability in them to stand in the king's palace, and whom they might teach the learning and the tongue of the Chaldeans." It was obvious that God had blessed them with brains, looks and skills. They were favored. Youth who are tempted to run with the crowd should remember that they are the recipients of God's loving kindness and mercy. If the crowd is about to engage in unlawful, immoral or disrespectful activity, then they risk losing God's favor. God's favor is the source of the blessings, opportunities, and goodwill that they have received. God favors those who choose to live for Him.

LIVING GODLY MEANS REJECTING UNGODLINESS: The Hebrew Boys quickly learned that living Godly often means rejecting what the world has to offer. Youth today must exhibit the ability to discern that which is good from that which is bad and reject anything that will have a deleterious effect on their spiritual lives as saints or will have a negative impact on their future. What affect will an invitation to smoke marijuana, steal, skip school, cheat or to engage in sex outside of marriage have on one's spiritual relationship with God or on one's long term goals? Note that the Hebrew Boys did not reject everything the king had available. They refused the meat sacrificed to idols and the wine but they drank his water and ate his pulse or vegetables. (Verse 12). In a similar sense youth must think before taking action and only engage in those activities that will not put them in disfavor with God and jeopardize their future. Living Godly does not mean that you do not participate in anything, but it does require you to reject anything that will cause you to lose favor with God.

GOD WILL SUSTAIN THE GODLY: Youth who make godly choices even though the world around them is living ungodly will be sustained by God. He will not abandon them but help them to grow even stronger because of their choices. Daniel 1:15 says, "And at the end of ten days their countenances appeared fairer and fatter in flesh than all the children which did eat the portion of the king's meat." It means that even though they refused to participate in ungodly activities they lost nothing that was essential to their being. It also says to youth today, that those who choose to live for God won't lose anything that is important. Everything essential to your future happiness and success, God will provide. The Hebrews looked better, felt better and fared better than all of the others in the long run, and so will young believers who trust God. God will reward you for refusing to do ungodly things, even if you are the only one who chooses to do right.

The result of Godly living

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that the result of living godly is the unlimited blessing of God upon our lives.

The Hebrew Boys chose to live for God and he protected them, nurtured them and elevated them to high positions.

Daniel 1:17 says, "As for these four children, God gave them knowledge and skill in all learning and wisdom: and Daniel had understanding in all visions and dreams."

God gave them knowledge, skills, learning and wisdom: all of the ingredients necessary for their success. They went to be listed among the greatest of their generation.

Young believers who trust in God have the same promise if they choose to live for God in this ungodly world.

When the world issues its invitation Christian youth should remember Psalm 1:1 "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful."

How will God bless you for living Godly although your friends are doing wrong? Psalms 1:3 says, "And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper."

It means that youth who choose to make Godly choices should not hear the laughter of their so called friends because they resist evil or immoral activity, they should hear the promises of God.

These words should ring in your ears, "his leaf shall not wither, and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper."

In the classroom, football field, basketball court, cheerleader squad, flag team, track team, or on the hallways of your school, let the promise of God ring in your ears, "and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper."

Lift God up and he won't let you down!

Praise God through you living and he will raise you in the eyesight of your peers!

Your friends may laugh and snicker because you live for God and give him praise but praise God anyhow!

Just remember, whatever it is that we need, God's grace is sufficient and he will supply it, so we praise God anyhow!

If we need to be forgiven, God's mercy is sufficient to forgive us, so we praise God anyhow!

If we need comfort, God's peace is sufficient to comfort us, so we praise God anyhow!

If we need to be satisfied, God's storehouse is sufficient to satisfy us, so we praise God anyhow!

If we need healing, God's touch is sufficient to heal us so we praise God anyhow

If we need to be strong, God's power is sufficient to strengthen us, so we praise God anyhow!

If we need to be challenged, God's work is sufficient to challenge us, so we praise God anyhow!

If we need to be refreshed, God's fountain is sufficient to refresh us, so we praise God anyhow!

Praise Him on the school campus!

Praise Him in the classroom!

Praise Him on the school bus!

Because He is great and his mercy endureth forever and ever!

The God you serve loved the world so much that he gave his only begotten son.

His name is Jesus, we ought to praise him!

He died on an old rugged cross, we ought to praise Him!

But early Sunday morning He arose from the grave…

Ride on King Jesus

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 5, 2009

SCRIPTURE: And when he was come nigh, even now at the descent of the mount of Olives, the whole multitude of the disciples began to rejoice and praise God with a loud voice for all the mighty works that they had seen: Luke 19:37

Introduction

Have you ever started a task, only to leave it unfinished because of an interruption? Life is filled with interruptions that make it difficult for us to complete tasks, objectives and goals. It may be as simple as a homework assignment at school or an unfilled grocery list. It could be a list of household chores or special business matters that need attention. There are times when we begin with the best of intentions but find ourselves delayed because of interruptions.

Staying on task is one aspect of time management that many are still learning. Staying focused, avoiding distractions and pursuing a task to its natural end is a quality that is admirable.

Sometimes we try to stay on task but people won't let us. That was the case when the old farmer sued a trucking company for injuries incurred in an accident. On the witness stand the farmer tried to tell His story but was constantly interrupted by the defense lawyer.

"Didn't you say, at the scene of the accident, 'I'm fine'?" said the lawyer.

The farmer said, "Well I'll tell you what happened. I had just loaded my favorite mule Bessie into the...."

"I didn't ask for any details," the lawyer interrupted, "just answer the question." "Did you not say, at the scene of the accident, 'I'm fine'!"

The farmer said, "Well I had just got Bessie into the trailer and I was driving down the road...."

Each time he tried to tell about Old Bessie the lawyer interrupted. Finally the judge let the family speak without interruptions.

"Well as I was saying, I had just loaded Bessie, my favorite mule, into the trailer and was driving her down the highway when this huge semi-truck and trailer ran the stop sign and smacked my truck right in the side. I was thrown into one ditch and Bessie was thrown into the other. I was hurting real bad and didn't want to move. However, I could hear ole Bessie moaning and groaning. I knew she was in terrible shape just by her groans. Shortly after the accident a State Trooper came on the scene. He could hear Bessie moaning and groaning so he went over to her. After he looked at her, he took out His gun and shot her between the eyes. Then the Patrolman came across the road with His gun in His hand and looked at me. He said, "Your mule was in such bad shape I had to shoot her. How are you feeling?"—The truth came out without the interruptions.

When God gets ready to bless us, can anyone or anything hinder Him? Will He be sidetracked as He journeys toward us with forgiveness, mercy, and salvation?

When Jesus entered Jerusalem riding on a donkey, the crowds praised Him because He was coming to bring them a victory. However, in the course of a few days there would be many interruptions, discouragements, false accusations and distractions designed to get Him off task and to lose focus. Despite those obstacles He rode on with His eyes on Calvary and the victory over death and the grave.

As Christians, we are thankful that Christ rode into Jerusalem prepared to die for our sides. He was not distracted then, and neither will he be distracted from responding to our needs. Thus, we say, Ride on King Jesus, no man can-a-hinder thee!

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he rides into Jerusalem on a borrowed donkey focused on Calvary.

After purposefully staying out of the limelight during most of His ministry, Jesus deliberately comes into Jerusalem in a fashion that would strengthen the people's conclusion that Jesus was the Messiah.

The Book of Zechariah says, "Rejoice greatly, O Daughter of Zion! Shout, Daughter of Jerusalem! See, your king comes to you, righteous and having salvation, gentle and riding on a donkey, on a colt, the foal of a donkey." Zech 9:9

By coming into Jerusalem Jesus was in effect proclaiming that He was the one they have been waiting for; the one who was righteous and was bringing salvation. The people cheered for Jesus using the words of Psalm 118. This Psalm was commonly used to greet pilgrims coming to Jerusalem for Passover. But this greeting seemed different. The people knew that the King of kings upon whom they had waited for hundreds of years was now riding into the city of Jerusalem.

As Jesus rode into the city the pilgrims who had come to Jerusalem for Passover took off their coats and put them on the ground for the donkey to walk upon. They took Palm branches and waved them and also threw them on the ground in front of Him. And they cried "Hosanna" which in Aramaic means "Lord Save Us" or "Lord, help us."

The palm branches were equivalent to rolling out the red carpet today.

The journey into Jerusalem on the donkey was largely symbolic, but the task ahead of Him was full of substance.

Between the entrance of Jerusalem and Calvary there would be many distractions and attempts to alter His course, but he forged ahead to complete a mission.

He came riding in to Jerusalem to complete the salvation of the lost.

He came riding into Jerusalem to seal a new covenant between God and man

He came riding into Jerusalem to bring hope to all believers that God's promises would be fulfilled and that His power can never be diminished.

Ride On

There is an Old Negro Spiritual that focuses on Jesus riding into Jerusalem. The words are simple: "Ride on King Jesus, no man can-a-hinder thee. No man can-a-hinder thee."

Those words had significance to the slaves, especially towards the end of the Civil War when hundreds of thousands of Union Troops were marching across the South bringing freedom into every town they entered.

Ride on King Jesus was a spiritual about hope that our God would "trample out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored." Glory, Glory Hallelujah, His truth is marching on!

Even today when we see Jesus ride in to the face of certain death to bring us hope and salvation we too say, "Ride on King Jesus!"

RIDE ON, BECAUSE HE BRINGS VICTORY: When the king rode into the city, it was a sign of victory. The bands played, the people cheered and the king marched into the city signaling that the victory had been won. As Jesus marched into Jerusalem, He was claiming the victory in advance. He would arise the victor over death and the grave and He would not be distracted from that charge.

Even today, if we invite Him he brings us the prospect of victory.

Ride on King Jesus, because he brings us the victory over fear and failure.

Ride on King Jesus, because he brings us the victory over Satan and His attempts to defeat us.

Ride on King Jesus, because he brings us the victory over the frustrations that this life presents. We hear Him declare in no uncertain terms, "He that overcometh shall inherit all things."

Ride on King Jesus, let no man hinder thee.

RIDE ON, BECAUSE HE BRINGS SALVATION: The main reason that Jesus came to Jerusalem was to offer salvation to the lost. Those who had been separated from God by sin could be restored and redeemed through His sacrifice on Calvary. His blood brought redemption in Jerusalem, but His blood also brings redemption today. That's why we say:

Ride on King Jesus, because you bring forgiveness of sins to those of us who have fallen along the way.

Ride on King Jesus, because you bring a chance for new life to those who thought they were beyond saving.

Ride on King Jesus, because you are not coming to accuse us but to forgive and give us a brand new start.

Ride on King Jesus, let no man hinder thee!

RIDE ON, BECAUSE HE BRINGS US HOPE: In Jerusalem the people had lost all hope. They felt God had abandoned them and they were left to the mercy of the Roman government and their own wits. Yet, when Christ came riding through the city, they saw hope restored and a new enthusiasm in their lives.

Even today, there are many who have given up.

But just when we thought all hope was lost, in rides Jesus!

Ride on King Jesus, because you bring us hope when all others have failed.

Ride on King Jesus, because you lift our spirits when we are down and out!

Ride on King Jesus, because when life brings us nothing but bitter tears, you remind us that "weeping may endure for a night, but joy comes in the morning!"

Ride on King Jesus, let no man hinder thee.

Lord help us

Finally, we must consider that the people cried out Hosanna to Jesus as he rode in because he was riding to bring them help from God.

They lifted their hands and cried out, "Hosanna, Lord Help us!"

We too are looking forward to the coming of the King and we are say, Lord help us!

We too, lift our hands into the air and say, "Hosanna, "Lord, help us."

When the King comes, we shall be satisfied, for I heard David declare, "The Lord is my shepherd and I shall not want!

When the King comes, we shall lift up our heads, for I heard the psalmist declare, "Lift up your heads oh ye gates and the king of glory shall come in. Who is the king of glory? Lord strong and mighty!"

When the King comes, he shall bring light to our darkness; for I heard David declare, "The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life of whom shall I be afraid.

When the King comes, we'll bow in His presence, for the word declares that at the name of Jesus, "Every knee shall bow and every tongue shall confess that Christ is Lord of Lords!"

They tried to stop the king from coming and interrupt His journey to Calvary, but no man could hinder Him.

He prayed in the garden and they came to Him with swords in hand; that arresting Him in the garden could not stop Him, Ride on King Jesus!

They tried Him before witness who lied on Him, but that did not stop Him; Ride on King Jesus!

They brought before Herod and ridiculed Him, but that did not hinder His journey, Ride on King Jesus!

He tried before Pilate but the crowd cried crucify, Ride on King Jesus!

They whipped and beat Him, but would not turn around! Ride on King Jesus!

They put a purple robe on His shoulder and crown of thorns on His head, but even that did not interrupt Him, Ride on King Jesus.

He carried an old rugged cross up Golgotha's Hill.
They drove nails into in His hands!
They stuck a spear in His side!
And he died! Yes He died!
They buried Him in a borrow tomb, but early Sunday morning He arose from the grave with all power in His hands!
Ride on King Jesus!
Ride on down to our poor city!
Ride on down to my little old house!
Ride on down to my little lost soul!
Ride on King Jesus, No man can-a-hinder thee!

Living a resurrected life in a crucified world

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: And as they were afraid, and bowed down their faces to the earth, they said unto them, Why seek ye the living among the dead? Luke 24:5

Introduction

Have you found it a challenge to live your new life in Christ while surrounded by so many who live your old life? One of the great challenges of Christians, especially new Christians, is to live the new Christ inspired life in the midst of friends and acquaintances who are still in bondage to their old way of life.

There is a marked contrast to the Christian life and that of the world. The Christian life is a life that has risen from the ashes, like a phoenix, triumphant over difficulties and adversities. It is a life that is buoyed by faith, encouraged by hope and motivated by a desire to please God.

The old life they left behind is one that is filled with fear. It is marked by symbols rather than substance; quests for external happiness rather than joy and material possession rather than spiritual treasures.

These two types of lives are best typified by the resurrection of Jesus Christ. He rose to offer a new resurrected life to all believers; while those who reject him continue to live in the pessimism and hopelessness of a life without Christ.

Believers remember the crucifixion of Christ with all of its harsh realities, horrors, and condemnations; just as they remember when they were in the world, miserable, estranged and unhappy. While we remember the crucifixion, we do not celebrate the crucifixion, we celebrate the resurrection because it marks the new life we are trying to live in Christ.

We celebrate our new resurrected lives, but the majority of our neighbors and friends still live in a crucified world; they don't know the joy of Christ and neither do they have the same reason to celebrate the resurrection of Christ.

As Christians, our challenge is to live for Christ boldly and joyfully every day of our lives, even though we are surrounded by those who are still in spiritual bondage, living in a crucified world.

Exposition

This text considers the events that took place immediately after the crucifixion of Christ. Three days and three nights earlier Christ had been crucified and buried in a tomb belonging to Joseph, a friend of the cause. The women, including Mary Magdalene, Joanna and Mary the Mother of James (Luke 24:10), prepared spices to anoint his body and waited until both the Sabbath involving the Feast of the Passover and the Weekly Sabbath had past then came to the tomb to complete their task "very early" in the morning on the first day of the week. They found that the stone had been rolled away and that the body of Jesus was missing.

The women were perplexed. They fully expected to find a body in the tomb because they came prepared to anoint it. When they found no body, the women were disturbed. John's record of this same event (John 20:13) shows Mary Magdalene telling the angel that the body of Jesus had been removed and they did not know where it had been taken. It never dawned on her that Jesus had risen from the dead. She wept because she could not find the body. Mary wept and the others were afraid. In their fear, two angels appeared, and told them not to be afraid. Then they were asked the probing question: "Why seek ye the living among the dead?"

The tomb was the place of the dead. The angel's question and explanation prompted them to remember the words of Jesus. Had they believed them when he spoke them they would not have come expecting to find a body, but an empty tomb. However, they came to the place of the dead, looking for the dead.

The angel told them, "He is not here, but is risen." The angel explained how Jesus predicted his resurrection and how its fulfillment resulted in the empty tomb. When the women remembered his words, they returned to the disciples excited an inspired as they told what they had seen. They had come to the place of the dead seeking a dead leader and they left knowing that they were serving a living God.

The Differences in views

There is a difference between those who live the resurrected life and those whose lives reflect the pessimism of the crucified world.

THE CRUCIFIED WORLD IS FILLED WITH FEAR: Just as the women who came to the tomb were afraid, there are many today whose lives are filled with fear. It is a mark of those whose courage as been crucified, slaughtered, destroyed and vilified. Fears have a tendency to creep up in our lives as the world seems to close in on us on every side. Fears begin to mount up and anxieties begin to build as we worry about first one thing then another. But the story of the resurrection morning should serve to remind us that the God we serve is still alive and there is no reason to fear. Yet, even though fear is all around us, those who live the resurrected life keep hearing the angels voice, "fear not." That means if disappointment comes your way; fear not, God is able.

It means that when turbulent winds seem to toss your life, fear not, God is still in control. When the forces of evil knock constantly at your door, fear not, God is still on the throne!

THE CRUCIFIED WORLD IS PESSIMISTIC: Those who came to the tomb on Easter morning were pessimistic; they did not expect to find the tomb empty though Christ had promised his resurrection. They came expecting the worst. In a similar sense there are many who people approach life the same way. They apply for a job, without expecting to be hired. They begin a venture, preparing for failure. They begin a marriage expecting a divorce. They start a new job, expecting to be fired and laid off. Yet those who are among the resurrected are hopeful. Instead of tears they shout with joy. Even in tough times, they shout. It's easy to shout when we are being blessed. It's harder to shout in our troubles and tribulations; but the resurrected can do that. The resurrected are always optimistic because they know that tribulations lead to patience and patience leads us to experience and our experience leads to hope and renewed joy in Christ. What the experience of the faith teaches us is that even in the midst of our problems, God is still good. If there is nothing in your refrigerator but ice cubes, the optimist says, God is still good; they get excited about the fact that they still have a working refrigerator and utilities and they start shouting over the ice cubes. If you lose your job and are forced to walk the street looking for a job, the optimist shouts over the fact that you still have two feet! Those who live in the resurrected world are truly optimistic because they know that "all things work to the good of them that love the Lord."

THE CRUCIFIED WORLD IS FILLED WITH LOSERS: The crucifixion is associated with condemnation and death. From the Roman point of view those crucified were the losers. In a greater sense even today, the world accepts a certain amount of defeat. We are defeated whenever we give up; lose our initiative and will to succeed. The world today is filled with those who are presently wallowing in pity parties, feeling sorry for themselves and wandering aimlessly from gloom to despair. This view is the exact contraposition of those who live resurrected lives. Instead of wallowing in self pity the saints get back up and try again. Their theme seems to be "We fall down, but we get up." That's the whole idea of the resurrected life, though threatened by the failures of the world, those who are resurrected refuse to stay down, but they continue to rise again. We do not accept defeat as an ultimate end, unless God himself declares it; even then we know He will take what seems to be for our bad and turn it around for our good. If the crucified world knocks us down, we stand up. If it pushes us down, we snap back; if it moves us backward then we snap forward. The resurrected refuse to accept the devil's handiwork as our destiny, not as long as God sits high and looks low and holds the earth in the palm of his hand.

A Resurrected Life

Finally, brothers and Sisters, we rejoice and celebrate the resurrection because through it God reaffirms his promise never to leave us alone.

The angels on Easter Sunday morning asked the question, "Why seek ye the living among the dead?" Today, that same question reverberates into our social order. There are too many who are looking for believers among the spiritually dead of this world.

If you want to find people who are happy with themselves, striving to get closer to God, why are you looking among those who are committing suicide? Why seek ye the living among the dead?

The resurrected life is not shackled by the doom and gloom of the crucified life. It is free and filled with praise for the Almighty God.

It was nothing but a living God that —Encouraged Daniel though thrown into the Lion's den.

—Protected the three Hebrew Boys while in the fiery furnace.

—Kept a widow's woman's barrel from running dry.

The crucified world focuses on:

DEFEAT but the resurrected life celebrates VICTORY! That's why Revelation 21:8 says, "He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son."

FALLING DOWN but the resurrected life celebrates being LIFTED UP. John 12:32 says, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me."

DARKNESS but the resurrected life celebrates LIGHT Psalm 27:1 says, " The LORD is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the LORD is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?"

The resurrected testify to the power of the cross and blood of Jesus.

The resurrected testify to the power of the living God.

Only a living God can:

—Take our valleys and raise them to mountain tops.

—Take midnight's and turn them into noon days.

—Take our briny tears and turn them into mighty cheers.

—Defeats and turn them into victories.

—Take our losses and turn make them work for our gain.

Even though we live in a crucified world, Sunday morning reminds us that we are serving a living God!

Because there was a resurrection morning we have the assurance that the God we serve is not just another relic of religious history, but a living presence with us every day.

It is no wonder then that the songwriter would say, "Because he lives, I can face tomorrow. Because he lives, all fear is gone. Because I know, he holds the future and life is worth the living because he lives."

Today, we celebrate the victory of life over death and joy over sadness.

Today, we celebrate because we know the God we serve is alive and well!

I serve a risen savior; he's in the world today. I know that he is living no matter what men may say. I see his hand of mercy. I hear his voice of cheer. And just the time I need him, he's always near. He lives, He lives! Christ Jesus lives today. sk me how I know he lives, he lives within my heart!

When Sunday Comes

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 12, 2009

SCRIPTURE: In the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre. He is not here: for he is risen, as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay. Matthew 28:1;6

Introduction

If you were to describe your life as a day of the week, which day would you choose? There are some who are Monday people. These are the ones who can't wait to begin a new work week, filled with new challenges and goals. On Monday, they arrive early and come full of energy ready to tackle the week ahead.

There are some who are Tuesday people. It takes them a little longer to get started, organized and really moving. By Tuesday they have a better hold of their time and are running at full speed.

Wednesday people are like those who have paced themselves to reach a milestone, a rest stop. They call Wednesday their hump day, the middle of the week with just a few more days to go.

Thursday people are survivors. They manage to get through most of the week without incident and try to do what they can to finish out the week.

Friday people wake up excited saying, "Thank goodness it's Friday." For many, Friday marks the end of the week, when they can finally start to live their own lives instead of daily existences dictated by someone else.

Saturday is a day of recreation. Some take the day for shopping, entertaining and family fellowship. Others see Saturday as the party day. They embodied the spirit of what the Ojay's called, "Living for the weekend."

Then there are the Sunday people, these are people who relish a day of faith, worship and family. It is the first day of their week, not the last; and for many, it is the most fulfilling and satisfying day of the week.

There is a marked difference between Sunday people and all of the rest. They seem to handle all of the other days differently because there is something different about them. Generally, Sunday people are God's people. What they do on Sunday bubbles over to all of the other days of the week and each day becomes a great day. They resolve in the words of Psalm 118:24, "This is the day which the LORD hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it."

As Christians, we are excited about the prospect of living our Sunday life, every day of the week. When Sunday comes we celebrate the resurrected Christ and the renewal of his blessings and promises for our lives.

Exposition

This text focuses on the women who came to visit the tomb of Jesus on Sunday morning, the first day of the week.

The crucifixion and resurrection of Christ are two important events in the lives of every Christian. The entire faith is built upon these foundation truths.

The crucifixion of Christ was the sacrifice that allowed each believer to have the forgiveness of sins and the hope of new life. The resurrection marked Christ's triumph over the grave and the hope of all believers in the promises of God.

Many evangelical denominations celebrate the resurrection of Christ every Sunday. All place special emphasis on the resurrection on Easter Sunday morning.

The text marks the only place in scripture where the day of the week of the resurrection is clearly spelled out. Luke makes sure that all readers know that it was Sunday: "Upon the first day of the week, very early in the morning." Jesus arose before dawn, before the sun arose on Sunday morning.

It is significant for Christians to note Sunday, because on Sunday morning Jesus arose from the grave. He had been in the grave for three days just as He had said. His resurrection from the dead was a triumph, a conquest over death. He was in the grave on the Sabbath, unable to observe the laws governing the great season of the Passover and the Sabbath. He was dead; therefore, the law and its observances had no authority over Him. When a man believes in Jesus Christ, God identifies the man with Christ, in particular with the death of Christ. God counts the man as having died with Christ. Very simply, in Christ's death believers become dead to the law. When Jesus arose from the dead we identify with that, too. We are alive with Him.

These truths were significant to the early Christian believers, so significant that they broke away from the common day for worship which was the Sabbath or Saturday. They began to worship on Sunday, the day of the resurrection of their Lord.

Christians today meet on the first day of the week to celebrate. The celebration of the new resurrected lives of Christians prompt them to live holy and sanctified lives every day of the week, including the Sabbath, which is Saturday. Christians meet, however, on Sunday to celebrate the glories of the resurrection.

What We Expect on Sunday

There are at least three things that those who are Sunday people expect when Sunday comes:

THEY CAME LOOKING FOR THE LORD: The women came to the tomb, looking for Jesus. They fully expected to find his body that's why they brought oils and fragrances. That's the way it is with believers as Sunday gets close; they want to see Jesus and be in his presence. We have discovered that our lives require a constant connection with the faith. Unlike weekday people who can disconnect themselves from God's presence and feel no loss; those who know the Lord, get a sense of connection.

When Sunday comes, they wake up singing, "I woke up this morning with my mind, staid on Jesus!" These are the saints who walk in the door of the sanctuary ready to clap their hands, stomp their feet and otherwise praise the Lord. They come looking for Jesus. They want to find Jesus because they have discovered that when Jesus shows up he also shows out.

THEY CAME IN FAITH: The women came to the tomb with the full knowledge that there was a huge stone standing in front of the tomb; yet they came despite the obstacles. Those who are believers are not dissuaded by the obstacles; they act on faith. There are many in the world today who never achieve their goals because they encounter an obstacle or a frustration along the way. The women came to the tomb on Easter morning confident that somehow they would be able to embalm the body of Jesus. In the same way Sunday people face the frustrations of life, confident that the Lord will make a way somehow. That's why they love the Sunday celebration because it reminds them that no matter how difficult their trail in life, God will make a way. Just as the stone was rolled away for the women on Easter Sunday morning, believers today know that God is still rolling stones away.

When Sunday comes, faith is renewed. Just about the time we are about to succumb to the apparent impossibility of circumstances that surround us and we conclude that it cannot be done. That's when Sunday comes.

When Sunday comes, we remind ourselves that although it looks dark and defeat appears, imminent God is still on the throne.

When Sunday comes, we remind ourselves that no matter how frustrating the situation might seem it never reaches a point of complication beyond the miraculous power of God.

THEY RECEIVED THE GOOD NEWS: When the women came to the tomb they received the good news. They were the first to hear the gospel, "He is not here; for he is risen as he said, come see the place where the Lord lay." That's what really inspires and motivates Sunday people today.

The true saint declares, "I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord!"

When Sunday comes saints hear the good news one more time!

When Sunday comes every believer gets a chance to praise the Lord because he has purged us of our sins.

When Sunday comes we are reminded that he was "wounded for our transgressions and bruised for our iniquities……with his stripes we are healed."

When Sunday comes, we tell the world: "I'm not what I want to be. I'm not what I'm going to be, but thank God, because of Jesus, I'm not what I was."

When Sunday comes saints hear the good news that no matter what happens from day to day as long as God is in control, everything will be alright.

Rejoicing

Finally, we need to consider that after the women received the Good News, they began rejoicing and spreading the word that He lives.

That explains the excitement that believers have when Sunday comes.

When Sunday comes we hear the word preached and we are reminded of the power of God over all the troubles that plague us.

When Sunday comes the word helps us:

—stay CALM in midst of crises.

—have PEACE in the midst of problems.

—enjoy GLADNESS in the midst of sorrow.

—receive ASSURANCE in the midst of afflictions!

—PRESS ON in the midst of pain.

—be FRUITFUL in a time of famine!

When Sunday comes, we think of the resurrection! We are reminded that God raised his Son from the dead as He promised! We get excited because what God has promised us, He will do as well!

I'm reminded of the man whose wife took him to the doctor and explained that he had come down with a sickness that she could not explain. She said, "Doctor his knees bend frequently, and his hand keeps extending. His head keeps bowing and he seems to have developed a bleeding heart, and this thing gets worse, the closer it gets to Sunday."

The doctor asked the man what was his problem and the man responded that he had recently gone to a revival and had accepted Christ and it looked like right after that his strange behavior began:

—A STRANGE CASE OF THE BENDED KNEE: Because every time he faced a difficult moment he found himself on his knees talking to the Lord.

—AN UNEXPLAINED CASE OF THE HELPING HAND: Whenever someone needed help he was quick to respond. He found himself humming, "If I can help somebody as I pass along then my living shall not be in vain."

—UNPREDICTABLE SPASMS OF THE BOWING HEAD: Whatever happened in life he bowed to the will of God, saying, "Not my will, but thy will be done."

—UNCONTROLLED INSTANCES OF THE SWOLLEN HEART: He has learned to love people that he could not stand before; and he's learned to forgive and to forget.

The man said he's alright on Monday and Tuesday, but the closer it got to Sunday, he found himself anxious to make it to the house of God. The doctor said there is nothing wrong with you because when Sunday comes, you'll be alright!

There is somebody here today wants to become a Sunday person!

There is somebody here today who wants to celebrated the joy of the Lord everyday of the week!

There is somebody here who wants to tell the good news!

They want to tell somebody that He died!

They want to tell somebody that He was buried in borrowed tomb!

They want to tell somebody that Early Sunday morning, that He arose from the grave!

When Sunday comes, I'll sing my song!

When Sunday comes, I'll clap my hands!

When Sunday comes, I'll tell the world that He lives, he lives, Christ Jesus lives today!

When Sunday comes, I'll declare to the world that I know He lives, because He lives within my heart!

Something Within

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 19, 2009

SCRIPTURE: "So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them." Genesis 1:27

Introduction

Have you ever been told that you resemble someone else? There are many who have the physical characteristics of someone who is well known in the community or a famous personality. Some have resemblances that are so striking that they make careers acting as doubles or impersonators. There are thousands of Elvis Pressley impersonators. There is a George Bush impersonator and a Barack Obama impersonator, too. Impersonators study the speech, mannerisms, and appearance of those they impersonate to imitate them.

Impersonation is the hallmark of identity thieves. They try to steal everything that officially identifies a person, usually to get access to their financial information. To become you in the financial world a person does not need to look like you; only to have your personal information. Since it's illegal to have more than one Social Security number, a person who has possession of your Social Security number has one of the most valuable keys to your identity. Add your name, address, mother's maiden name and your birthday and in many areas your identity is sufficiently stolen.

With your identity a person can acquire a credit card, buy a house, take out subscriptions, get access to online information, get a background check, and set up a variety of accounts on the internet and in local stores; all without you knowing anything about it.

Despite identity thieves, impersonators, and imitators, there is something unique about each person that cannot be imitated. Even identical twins who have the same facial features, height, weight, voice and eyes are different and unique. Ask anyone who has dated identical twins and they can tell you that twins may look the same, but they are not the same. Parents can tell. Friends can tell. Teachers can tell. They are biological twins but they are not the same.

There is something within each of us that makes us different. It's not visible. It's part of our makeup. It's not our hair, voice or eye coloring. It's not anything that can be seen; it cannot be duplicated, imitated or impersonated. It's the secret to what makes us what we are and who we are.

Each of us has been created by processes designed by God himself. As such He certifies that each of us, though outwardly similar is individually unique. The scientists call it Deoxyribonucleic acid (De-Oxy-ribo-nu-cle-ic acid) otherwise known as DNA. Your DNA is the blueprint to your identity and contains the instructions from the creator to make you the person you are.

Yet even a DNA identification is not a sure match. DNA can narrow down the identity choices to 1 in 1.1 million but there is always that remote possibility of error.

That means we need to look at identity from a theological perspective. While the creator gave each person a DNA that is traceable by modern science there is another DNA component that cannot be tracked by science, microscopes, and instruments. We can call it our "Deistic Natural Asset" or our spiritual DNA. It's God's special stamp, that we are hand made by the creator himself. This is so amazing that Psalm 139:14 says, "I will praise thee; for I am fearfully and wonderfully made: marvelous are thy works; and that my soul knoweth right well."

As Christians, we know we are the wonderful creations of God himself. We praise him for making each of us unique and imbedding a piece of himself within us. We can't quite tell what it is, all that we know is that there is something within.

Exposition

This text shows how God made man in his image and likeness.

Genesis gives a description of God's creation of the world by singular spoken phrases such as, "Let there be light," and "Let there be a firmament," and "Let the earth, or waters, bring forth."

However, in Genesis 1:26 when God decided to make man it switched from a singular act into a word of consultation, "Let us make man." The creation of man was a collaborative effort between the Father, the Word and the Holy Ghost, indicated by the phrase, "let us."

Let us make man so he can have dominion over the rest of creation.

Let us make man and ally him with the elements, from the dust, but full of life; of the animals but far superior, but just lower than the angels.

Let us make man in our image. In the image of the fatherly God. In the image of the obedient son. In the image of the empowering, forceful and inspirational Holy Ghost.

The Hebrew word for image in this text means "fashion" or "resemblance." Likewise, the word "likeness" means "similitude, or manner." It does not mean that we look like God or that we are Jr. gods. It means that there are unique qualities within us that are similar in nature to that of the creator. We are similar to God in many ways, but we are by no means God.

Each creation has built within them the capacity to do good, forgive wrongs, accomplish, to act and react as God would in the same circumstance. It's stamped in our spiritual make up, unseen and undiscovered by modern science.

What's In Us

Vol 19-4555

We are wonderful handmade products of God. As such, there is much more to us than meets the eye. We are more than our biological makeup.

We are more than just a mass conglomeration of bone and tissue.

Each of us has 206 bones (That includes 28 skull bones, 26 vertebrae, 24 ribs and 120 arm and leg bones), but we are more than just bones.

We each have 600 muscles and 970 miles of blood vessels.

We have 400 cups on our tongues for taste, 20,000 hairs in our ears to tune into sound, 40 pounds of jaw pressure, 10 million nerves and branches in our bodies; but we are more than that.

There are 600 million air cells that breathe in our lungs and each heart beats 4,200 times an hour and pumps 12 tons of blood every day; but we are more than that.

There is something within us that cannot be measured as tissue, bone or fluids.

We have the attributes of God himself within us; often lying dormant, unused untapped, waiting to be released.

WE HAVE THE CAPACITY TO DO GOOD: Within every believer is the capacity to do good. The worst crook, the most notorious gangster, even murderers have the capacity to do good. It's within them. There is no person that is completely bad through and through, even though it may appear that way. When we see people who are doing evil, we are looking at people who have allowed an evil presence into their lives, burying the good in them. Those who are successful counselors, mentors and teachers are the ones who can not only see the bad that has worked its way in but they can also see the good trying to work its way out. Goodness is an attribute of God. He is always good. We are made in his image. We are not always good, but we have goodness at our core.

WE HAVE THE CAPACITY TO CHANGE: While God is unchanging in his nature and attributes, he often changes his direction, methods and tactics when dealing with mortal men. God sent Jonah to destroy Ninevah but when the people changed, Jonah 3:10 says, God "repented" and decided not to destroy them. God changes directions and gave us the capacity to do the same. No matter how notorious our past, we can change; its in us to do so. No matter how we have failed in the past, we can start again. We have the capacity to be better; to repent and change course. We have the capacity to turn from a life, relationship, or experience that strangles us and go a different direction. It's a part of our nature. We can change.

WE CAN SUCCEED: God is a God of excellence. He does not half do anything. Anything he does, he does with precision and perfection. He is so good that Psalms 8:9 says, "O LORD our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth!" He is a God of excellence. He has put within us the capacity for excellence. We don't know why but we aspire to excellence. We want to bake the perfect cake, sing the perfect song, play the perfect game, we want to barbeque the perfect ribs, and cook the perfect pot of mustard greens. We have within us the capacity for excellence. There is a straight A report card in every bright student. There is a successful business in every entrepreneur. There is a perfect union in every relationship, because the capacity for excellence is built in our spiritual DNA.

We are guided from within

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that every Saint is guided by something within.

Many new cars on the market come complete with a global positioning system, called GPS, that can give a driver specific direction. Yet, God gives believers something better, we can call it a Godly Positioning System.

Old folks called it "something." They said "Something told them not to do this or something told them to do that." If you love the lord, you have that something.

It's the same something that tells the ducks when its time to fly South for the winter.

It's the same something that tells the flower that it's time to bloom.

It's the same something that can guide a lost dog or cat back to your front door!

It's the same something that warns a mother in the middle of the night that a child is in danger.

If you have that something you able to see what others can't see.

If you have that something, you can hear what others can't hear.

The Reverend James Cleveland wrote a song that said:

"I've got a feeling and I feel so strange; everything about seems to have changed.

Step by step, I got a brand new walk;

Something's got a hold on me!

An old blind lady was trapped in a burning apartment building and firefighters couldn't find her. They shouted directions to her from below but she could not hear them. Miraculously she made it to a window and dived out and landed on the inflated shoot below. When asked how she was able to make it through the fire and dive directly in the right spot the woman said, "I don't have I eyes so I could not see. I could not hear for the roaring of the flames. But in church on Sunday I sang, "Guide me oh I thy great Jehovah, pilgrim through this barren land. And in that fire something within me told me to turn to the left. Something within me told to jump and trust in the Lord."

I don't know about you but every now and then there is something within me that makes me cry when I don't want to cry!

Something within me that makes shout when I don't want to shout!

The old folks called it something, but we all know what they were talking about. It wasn't nothing but the Lord!

You might call it something but it's Jesus!

Jesus, the Lily of the Valley!

Jesus, the Bright and morning star!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

and Early Sunday morning…

The Joy of the Obama Mama

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 10, 2009

SCRIPTURE: Hearken unto thy father that begat thee, and despise not thy mother when she is old. Buy the truth, and sell it not; also wisdom, and instruction, and understanding. The father of the righteous shall greatly rejoice: and he that begetteth a wise child shall have joy of him. Thy father and thy mother shall be glad, and she that bare thee shall rejoice. Proverbs 23:22-25

Introduction

How much of what you are and what you have become is attributable to your mother? No matter where we go, what we do, or what we become, a large part of the credit or the blame goes to our mothers. They leave an indelible imprint upon us when they are present and even a genetic trail if they have been absent. We cannot escape the impact that our mothers have on our own development.

The world has been fixed on the life of President Barack Obama. However, there has been little attention focused on his mother; except to note that she was white, raised him alone and died in 1995 of cancer. Yet, the man who stands before the world is the product of her life, just as the sons and daughters of every mother reflect the degree of the nurture, care and concern she showered upon them.

Obama's mother, Ann Sutoro, spent a great deal of her life helping people. According to Eric Stone, she was in charge of a microfinance program in Indonesia that made small loans to poor people to help lift them out of poverty. She was not poor but lived among the poor and worked desperately to help them. She helped villagers get refrigerators for their huts, stock medicine to help cure blindness and administered small donations that helped them plant and harvest food for their families.

She returned repeatedly to help villagers in Indonesia. She was as smart as a whip, believed in helping people and was never intimidated by the odds. She had a sense of humor, was extremely decent, and dedicated her life to making the world better. The only part of the world she touched directly with her compassion were the poor villages of Indonesia.

Her arms were too short to reach around the world, so she touched the world she saw.

One day her little boy who studied for five years in the schools of Indonesia, listened to her frustrations, saw her efforts and felt her desire to change the world. He emulated her sense of humor, feel for people and desire to change the conditions for the poor.

He grew up to be the most powerful man in the world, whose reach, unlike the short arm span of his mother, could touch every village in the world.

Through him Obama's mama touched the world.

Just as President Obama's humble beginnings at the feet of his mother influenced his life, so does the life and teaching of every mother promise the same today.

Every woman who strives to be a good mother looks at her child and hopes his arms can touch the things that are out of her reach. She hopes he stands taller than she did in the crowd and speaks to life with a voice that that can be heard louder than her own. Every mother can feel the joy of seeing the signs in her children that with the proper training, opportunity and favor from God could help them reach higher plateaus in life than they even dreamed.

Like Obama's mama, there are some who see the potential in their children even though they know they may not live to see the final result. They will rest in peace knowing that standing on their shoulders that they can see above the frustrated masses of civilization and see the bright sky of hope for tomorrow.

That's the unique character trait of every Obama Mama: they never give up hope. They believe and trust and move forward to do their part to lift, preserve and advance the causes into which they plunge themselves. Behind every child that sleeps soundly in the cradle there should be a mama who could be nurturing another Obama. Those who neglect them, forsake them and reject the little bundles in the cradles could easily be thrusting upon the world an Osama instead of an Obama and that would be a tragedy.

So we praise women of God who, like Hannah, place their children in God's hand and pray that God will use them to his glory.

As Christians, we salute our mothers who have passed on to us a spirit of faith, hope and love that is sustained by a powerful trust in the Lord. We salute the women of faith who have nurtured us and loved us because whatever we shall become, or have achieved is a testament to her life, love and legacy.

Exposition

This text notes that children who seek the truth and follow it honor their parents and give their mothers reason to rejoice.

In Proverbs, being wise does not mean the simple accumulation of knowledge and experience. Godliness is equated with being righteous and godly and therefore the source of wisdom. Fathers and mothers are encouraged to teach the virtues of godliness to their children with the promise that those who follow after their parent's instructions about wise living will be reason for fathers to be proud and mothers to rejoice in their old age.

The text implies that wise, godly living, in obedience to parental discipline, not only benefits the child; it also benefits the parents.

Thus, a mother who teaches her children the attributes of godliness through precept and example pleases God. Her reward will be the knowledge that long after she is gone her children will enjoy the favor of the Lord. That knowledge brings her joy beyond measure.

Truths about Mama

Good mothers anywhere in the world seem to share four unique truth traits. It doesn't matter whether she is located in the chill and cold of Alaska, the sweltering heat of a village in Africa or a cotton field in Mississippi, good mothers have a few things in common. Proverbs 31:25-26 touches on all four: "Strength and honor are her clothing; and she shall rejoice in time to come. She openeth her mouth with wisdom; and in her tongue is the law of kindness." These truths are taught by every good mother in the world and absorbed by her children.

MAMA IS STRONG: Good mothers teach their children to be strong. Strength, in this sense, is not a physical measure. It is a measure of will and fortitude. It is the capacity to continue when it appears impossible or improbable that success will result. This is the spirit of Ephesians 6:10, "Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might." Strong mothers persevere and inspire strength in their children who have witnessed her strength in difficult times. It is a strength drawn from the wells of God's power.

MAMA IS WISE: Good mothers teach their children to act wisely and do so themselves. When they know what to do they act. When they don't know what to do they ask so that they can make prudent decisions that are in the best interest of the family. Wisdom is not a measure of her intellect or her scholarship, but her ability to weigh available options and act responsibly. Acting wisely is a truth that touches many areas of life: If in love, act wise. In money matters, act wisely. In business affairs, act wisely. In life pursuits, act wisely. Much of mother's wisdom comes from learning from her own mistakes over the years, some she learned from her mother, and some is part of what the old timers call "mother wit" something that God gives every godly woman.

MAMA IS HONORABLE: "Stand for something or you will fall for anything." That's a truth taught by millions of mama's all over the world as they encourage their children to live their lives in ways that demonstrate integrity, dignity and respect. The godly mother is one who has a sense of honor and impeccable integrity. It is her quest to do the right thing and to carry and present herself in an honorable fashion. Many children have heard their mothers say, "Take pride in the way you look; you may be poor but you don't have to be dirty." She promotes the dignity of giving an honest day's labor for an honest day's pay; and refusing charity unless it was unavoidable.

MAMA IS KIND: "Do unto others as you would have the do unto you." That's the golden rule a godly truth that good mothers follow. It is a call to compassion. Godly mothers are compassionate toward others and they demonstrate their kindness to their children through their acts and deeds. Many children have fond memories of their mothers visiting hospitals, preparing food for shut-ins, or giving to help the less fortunate. Good mothers literally define the word kindness: "She is considerate of the feelings of others." Somehow mothers can feel the pain of others, both inside and outside of her family. She can sympathize and empathize with the losses and frustrations of others and is always ready to listen, help and support. This sense of kindness heightens her appeal to her children and her neighbors.

She rejoices

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember a final truth that is taught by every godly mother, that our lives are controlled by an unseen hand.

The most powerful truth that good mothers teach their children is to place their lives in the hand of the Lord and hold to God's unchanging hand.

In his hands, mama endured difficult times but refused to steal, accept illegal items or survive on ill gotten gains.

In his hands, they made it known that they would rather endure difficult times than be known as less than godly women.

Not only have mothers placed their own lives in God's hands, there are many who have also placed the lives of their children in God's hands. When Jocebed realized that her son could bedrowned she made him a straw basket and placed the baby Moses in it. When she let that basket float on the water, she was placing little Moses in God's hands. When Hannah carried young Samuel to the priests to be trained as a priest, she placed him in God's hands. Even while many mothers carried us in their wombs they were whispering silent prayers to God, placing us in his hands. Sometimes mothers have been overheard praying, "Lord, please take care of my child."

Somebody here today has been raised from a mortifying deadly life, because a momma somewhere took your case to the Lord in prayer.

Somebody here has been literally pulled from the gaping jaws of riotous living; because of a mama put it all in the hands of the Lord.

Somebody here has been snatched back from the chilly grips of alcoholism, drug abuse, and criminal activity, because a mama, unseen by human eyes, placed a petition before the Lord.

Some mama somewhere fell down on her knees and cried, "Lord you didn't give me much, but I've tried to do the best I could. I didn't have a lot of money, but I gave you my all, if it be your will, Lord, save my son!"

The bible says a good mother rejoices when she sees a son or daughter stand up after having fallen down!

A good mother rejoices when she sees her children reaching higher, showing compassion and embracing life to its fullest.

A good mother is happy when she sees her children placing their hands in Gods hand.

She's happy because it's the same hand she held as she reared them.

It's the same hand she held as she tried to put clothes on their back!

It’s the same hand she held as she tried to put food on their table!
It’s the same hand she held as she tried to make their lives happy!
It’s the same hand she held as she tried to hold on!
It’s the same hand that sustained her and gave her strength in troubling times. It was nothing but the hand of Jesus.
So the godly mother keeps teaching the greatest truth, Keep your hand in the Lord’s hand and he will direct your path.
Never forget the name of Jesus!
Jesus, who died out on Calvary!
Jesus, who arose Early Sunday Morning
Hold my hand Lord, Hold my hand!

Hope is Enough

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 3, 2009

SCRIPTURE: "Let Israel hope in the LORD: for with the LORD there is mercy, and with him is plenteous redemption." Psalm 130:7

Introduction

What do you really need to make it through tough times? There are many experts who are offering loads of advice about how to survive the difficult times we are facing today. Financial experts are giving tips about investments and management. Health experts are giving check lists for citizens to follow to protect themselves from the Swine Flu. Security experts are warning that crime might increase so gun sales are increasing and everything that offers protection is in demand. Employment experts are showing the thousands of laid off workers how to retrain themselves for the workplace after layoffs. Everyone seems to know what we need to survive and prosper in times like these. Yet, the bible's answer is very simple: we should take all of the precautions that we can but never lose hope, because all we really need is God's grace; that will be enough.

Sometimes we don't hope in the Lord, we take matters into our own hands. That's what happened when the local cleaners found itself short on business. To boost business he started a new promotion. Every person who came to his business with a child during the hot days of summer would get free ice cream cones with three scoops. The owner's friends were skeptical that such a promotion would help the laundry business. They were critical of his high hopes, to which the businessman replied, "High hopes has nothing to do with it because it's a proven fact that little children will waste chocolate ice cream over everyone's clothes, all I need is for the sun to keep shining and free ice cream and that's enough."

All of our precautions are wise and advisable but in reality all we ever need in any situation is God's Grace. Israel was being attacked by a huge army of enemies and it tried to amass an army big enough to meet the coming attack. Gideon first assembled thousands of warriors, and then finally reduced them to 300. He soon found that his 300 soldiers were too many because God took action and in the middle of the night the entire army of the enemy had run away. He had 300 men but needed none of them. He had the power of the Lord on his side, and that was enough.

Hope is often defined as believing in a positive outcome related to situations in one's life. Hope is the feeling that what is wanted can be had or that events will turn out for the best In Greek mythology Pandora had had a special box that contained all of the dangers and calamities that a humans could face. Once opened, Pandora would release all of the misfortunes upon a person but hold back hope. Just as humanity struggled dealing with every malady that had come from her box, Pandora then let out hope and the society survived.

Our hope as believers is often reflected in our songs. In 1956 Gospel Singer Dorothy Love Coates released a song that was immediately popular. Its simple words echoed a great faith that our Lord was sufficient to help us through any storm. Her song said

"Well all the mean things you said don't make me feel bad
I can't miss a friend, Lord that I never had I've got Jesus, Jesus and that's enough.
You may scorn me and turn your back on me
I've got God's arms wrapped all around me
I've got Jesus, Lord and that's enough"

In 1968 Roberta Martin recorded a song that is still popular among African-Americans around the world. It' lyrics say, "I have hope, when trouble comes my way
I have hope, since Jesus has come to stay
I have hope, oh yeah, when things are not well with me
I have hope, it's a beautiful hope that sets me free"

Hope is one of the 12 qualities of the Christian described in Galatians 5:22 as the fruit of the spirit. It is based upon our faith that no matter how difficult our times, God is able to deliver us.

As Christians, we rejoice in the knowledge that Jesus knows all about our troubles and that when the time is right, he will respond to our need. That is our hope. It's a beautiful hope that sets us free.

Exposition

This text focuses on David as he considers the distress that surrounds him and places his hope in the Lord.

David has been characterized as a man after God's own heart but one whose life mirrors that of the average man; filled with flaws. In this text he is deeply distressed and laments the troubles of the nation. He offers hope to Israel by pointing to his own personal iniquities and troubles and testifying as to how God delivered him from them.

In Psalm 130:1 he says, "Out of the depths have I cried unto thee" noting his personal troubled history and adding how he placed his hope in the Lord.

Additionally, he shares his experience that he waited or hoped or trusted in the Lord, even as those around him trusted in their own devices. So, at Psalm 130:5-6 we read, "I wait for the LORD, my soul doth wait, and in his word do I hope. My soul waiteth for the Lord more than they that watch for the morning: I say, more than they that watch for the morning. "

His conclusion is that when we are surrounded with trouble, we should place our hope in the Lord. That's the meaning of Psalm 130:7 "Let Israel hope in the LORD: for with the LORD there is mercy, and with him is plenteous redemption. " Hoping and trusting in the Lord has two results, mercy and plenteous redemption.

It is better to place our hope in the Lord rather than the devices of men.

How to Hope

When times are tough the Word of God teaches us not to misplace our hope and trust but to place it solely on God. There are three considerations in this respect:

HOPE IN THE LORD: Believers are given direction about where to place our hopes. Psalm 130:7 says, "Let Israel hope in the Lord." It means that we place the focus of our belief and faith in the hands of God. It does not mean that you do not till the soil and plant the seeds; it means that your hope is not in the soil or the seeds but that God would provide the increase one way or another. That's the secret to overcoming difficult times and achieving perfect peace when all around you are in a panic. Those who hope in the Lord focus on the fact that God is the deliverer and provider. Focusing on God is not naivety; it is not irrational, it simply recognizes that there is a power beyond anything in this world. So rather than fear what you will do if your job plays out, focus on the fact that even if it does play out God can make a way, has made a way, and will make a way.

Rather than fear what may happen if you get a bad diagnosis from your doctor, focus on the fact that even if the news is bad, that God is able!

In every situation, no matter how bad it is God keeps saying, "Keep your eyes on me." That's why David declared, in Psalm 121:1-2 "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord who made the heavens and the earth."

WITH HIM COMES MERCY: When times are difficult each of us pleads for mercy. "Lord, Have Mercy!" is a common saying among believers. "Have mercy" alone is insufficient because we are reminded that "With him" we have mercy. Mercy is relief from our troubles even though we might have brought them on ourselves. Mercy is the granting of favor that we do not deserve. Mercy is receiving another blessing in a time of need although we have squandered all other blessings we have received. Lamentations 3:22-23 is a passage that addresses this subject. The profit Jeremiah lamented over the condition of Israel but at the same time recognized that every day God was actually giving them a new blessing and a new act of mercy. It reads, "It is of the LORD'S mercies that we are not consumed, because his compassions fail not. They are new every morning: great is thy faithfulness." This is the idea of the song writer who wrote, "Great is thy faithfulness. Great is thy faithfulness. Morning by morning new mercies I see. All I have needed thy hand hath provided. Great is thy faithfulness, Lord unto me."

WITH HIM COMES PLENTIOUS REDEMPTION: When we hope in God he promises of restoration and redemption. Psalm 130:7 uses an adjective "Plentious" to describe the nature of our restoration. Young's translation uses the word "abundant." The living bible describes "Plentious" as armloads. It has in its range of meanings great growth in grace, abounding usefulness, high spirituality, and perfect preparedness for heave. It all means that by placing our hope in God we will be restore in a whole lot of ways both spiritual and physical. Underscores the reason believers have hope in difficult times.

He has promised us plenteous redemption. That means those who have hope can:

—stay CALM in midst of crises!

—have PEACE in the midst of problems!

—enjoy GLADNESS in the midst of sorrow

—receive ASSURANCE in the midst of afflictions!

—press on in the midst of pain.

—be FRUITFUL in a time of famine!

Because of this beautiful hope believers are able to sing, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame but wholly lean on Jesus name. On Christ the solid rock I stand, all other ground is sinking sand. All other ground is sinking sand."

Keep hoping in the Lord

Finally, brothers and sisters, believers should resolve that no matter how tough conditions become we will continue to trust in the Lord.

We will trust in the Lord because God is our refuge; our strong place to hide in storms.

In times past, God proved himself to be a refuge or place of shelter in times of storm.

He is the same God we have served in the past and his power has not diminished.

Come what may, it's a good idea to keep trusting in the Lord.

We trust in the Lord because history has shown us that those who trust in the Lord face the unknown without fear.

We trust in the Lord because saints who have trusted him have been rewarded with answered prayers, a few earthly pleasures and heavenly glory!

We are not by ourselves:

—Noah trusted the Lord and he brought him through the great flood!

—Abraham trusted the Lord and he showed him the Lamb in the bush!

—Ruth trusted the Lord and she found happiness while gleaning fields!

—Moses trusted the Lord and he lead Israel out of bondage

—Daniel trusted the Lord and he protected him in the Lion's Den

—Three Hebrew Boys trusted the Lord and he shielded them in the fiery furnace!

Job declared that though his health was slipping away, his children were gone and his wealth was lost that he would still trust the Lord. I hear him across the centuries declaring, “Yea though he slay me, yet will I trust him.”

We will continue to place our hope in the Lord because when we are:

—Sad, the Lord will be our fountain of joy!

—At Fault, the Lord will be our stronghold of forgiveness!

—Weak, the Lord will be our pillar of strength

—Discouraged, the Lord will be our pool of inspiration!

—Defeated, the Lord will be our crown of victory!

—Darkness, the Lord will be our light!.

—Lonely, the Lord will be our friend

—Helpless, the Lord will be our help.

The Lord is my refuge and my strength a very pleasant help in a time of trouble!

I heard the song writer declare, “ I trust in God wherever I may be. Out on the land or on the raging sea. Though come what may, from day to day, my heavenly father watches over me!

I trust in God, I know he cares for me. Upon the land or on the raging sea, Though billows roll, he keeps my soul! My heavenly father watches over me!

I’m reminded of a family in the hill country that often walked a path over the hills and through the valley to visit relatives. One night the father walked with his wife and children along that beaten path, but a sudden fog appeared. No one could see anything because of the thick fog but the father kept moving at the same pace. The son called out to his mother, “Mother shouldn’t we slow down. We can’t see where we’re going.” The mother said, “I can’t see how to put one foot in front of the other myself. But your father has walked this trail since he was a boy. When he walked backed and forth to grandma’s, he walked this trail. When he carried wood for Aunt Carrie, he walked this trail. When he came home late at night from working in the fields, he walked this trail. No, son, I can’t see anything, but your father knows the way, we’ll just hold his hand!

You may not be able to see how to put one foot in front of the other, but your father in heaven knows the way!

Hold to his hand! God’s unchanging hand!

The same hand that was nailed to an old rugged cross! Hold to his hand!

He died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning, he arose from the dead!

Hold to his hand, the Lord knows the way!

No More Tears

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 7, 2009

SCRIPTURE: " They shall hunger no more, neither thirst anymore; neither shall the sun strike upon them, nor any heat: for the Lamb that is in the midst of the throne shall be their shepherd, and shall guide them unto fountains of waters of life: and God shall wipe away every tear from their eyes." Revelation 7:16-17; "and he shall wipe away every tear from their eyes; and death shall be no more; neither shall there be mourning, nor crying, nor pain, any more: the first things are passed away. " Revelation 21:4.

Introduction

Can you imagine a world without tears? We spend considerable time shedding tears over one thing or another; some warranted and others unwarranted. Every second there is someone crying about something somewhere. Sometimes there are tears of joy, but most often our tears represent our frustration over the presence of so much pain, suffering, grief, hurt, injustice and abuse, sickness, death, and disappointments. Tragedies, accidents, doctor's reports, family strife, poverty, tensions, failures, and spiritual struggles are also the source of many tears.

We sing about tears and crying. In the 1920's Ella Fitzgerald produced a song called "Cry me a river" that was used in a movie. In the 1960's Bobby "Blues Boy" Bland released "Cry,Cry,Cry" in which he said, "I want you to cry me a river, then cry me a sea. Somebody hurt you, just like you hurt me." Ray Charles posted a best seller when he produced, "It's Crying Time again."

Even when we read the Bible there are tears being shed. Shedding of tears seems to be a part of the realities of life. While tears are a reality, David in Psalm 56:8 asked God to take his tears and put them in a bottle and take note of every one.

One of the times when we cry most is when we watch a loved one suffer. We cry when we watch them in pain and seem to wither in front of our eyes. Then suddenly there are no more tears. If you ever bathe young children, then you quite likely think of Johnson's Baby Shampoo when you hear these words. After all, "NO MORE TEARS" has long been this product's slogan. Johnson's baby shampoo says those who use "No more Tears" will find that it is gentle and mild and does not hurt the skin or eyes in normal use. When we see the commercial it must call to mind God's promise to all believers that He will wipe the tears from our eyes and there shall be no more crying or pain or hurt.

As Christians, we are sustained by the promise of God. He promises us a day when crying days will be over. We look forward to that day with great hope.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus' revelation to John about the future state of the church and the relationship of all believers to God.

John painted a picture of the New Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven like a bride adorned for her husband. This is the beautiful home of the saints, the final destination of the church and millions of believers. They will be in the presence of God.

A voice will announce some very important words, "Behold the Tabernacle of God is with men and he will dwell with them and they shall be his people and God himself shall be with them and be their God." It is a statement of finality. It suggests the end of a long struggle to achieve oneness!

John lists several conditions that could be described as painful: death, sorrow, and crying, all products of painful experiences.

John reminds us in this prophecy that a time is coming quickly when these painful conditions will no longer exist.

In Revelation 7 John points to the saints who will suffer during the last days. Their tears and pain will be wiped away with the final reward of Christ. The promise is that "God shall wipe away every tear from their eye."

In Revelation 21 John shows us a picture of the world after Christ returns to establish his kingdom. Here the varied promises of Christ are fulfilled including the promise that he will eliminate tears, death, pain and agony. All of these are considered part of the "former things" and they will pass away into oblivion.

Three Types of tears

Our father created us to live on this earth and thereby equipped us for life on this planet. One of the physical attributes of humans is the capacity to generate and shed emotional tears. Tears have three purposes:

TEARS KEEP OUR EYES WORKING: There are always tears in our eyes. These tears are called "Basal tears" they are the wet tears that keep our eyes from drying out. Our bodies produce 5 to 10 ounces of basal tears every day. Without them our eyes would stop working. It's sad to observe a person who has dried out. They can't see the beauty in the flowers or the worth of a single rose. When we dry out we don't see anything worthwhile in anybody. Such people can't see the forest for the trees and can't see anything beyond the present. Our quest as believers is for the spirit of God to water our eyes so that we can see His wonderful works. In Psalm 119:18 David said, "Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold the wondrous things out of thy law." When that happens we see the world the way we should. We even see death with a clear eye because we know the progression of life moves from this world back to God.

TEARS PROTECT YOUR EYES: Tears protect your eyes when they are irritated by smoke, onions, strong dusty winds and other irritants. What happens is that your brain senses there is a problem and sends a signal for your eyes to produced tears to get rid of the irritating substance. These tears are called "Reflex Tears." They help protect us from those things that trouble us. In this life there are many things that irritate us. The song writer is correct; life gets tough when "Smoke gets in your eyes." When we are faced with troubles, heartaches and sicknesses they trouble our spirit. When we see injustices we weep, just as Job did in Job 30:25-26 when he said, "Did not I weep for him that was in trouble? was not my soul grieved for the poor? When I looked for good, then evil came unto me: and when I waited for light, there came darkness." We see faithless people and it troubles us just as it did Jesus in John 11:35 which records and "Jesus Wept." Sometimes we cry when we see friends and loved ones suffering. We cry for the same reason that Jesus wept and for the same reason that Job mourned and then declared, "Yea thou he slay me, yet will I serve Him;" and Jesus "nevertheless, not my will but thy will be done." When trouble comes we cry and hide ourselves in the Lord because is the Lord is our strength in times of sorrow and a very present help in our time of need.

TEARS REGISTER OUR EMOTION: The third type of tears is emotional tears. We cry when we are overwhelmed by an emotion. Sometimes we cry when we are sad; sometimes we cry because we are happy. That's the kind of feeling that David had when he wrote, "Thou anointest my head with oil, my cup runneth over." When we cry emotional tears, our cup runs over. Sometimes when we have experienced a loss, a hurt or a sorrow it's therapeutic to "have a good cry." Some doctors say it's good for us to cry, to release and to let go. Psalm 86:3 says, "Be merciful unto me, O Lord: for I cry unto thee daily." Once we've had a good cry, we should do like David when he cried day and night for his sick son. When the son died, David stopped crying and put on his robes. The time for crying had passed, God had decided. Just as our tears register our sadness, they also register our gladness. After crying tears of loss at the death of a loved one, one day, in the sweet bye and bye we shall cry tears of joy when we are all united again. It will be the last time we cry about anything good or bad, because after that crying days will be over.

No More Tears

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that when it's all over down here, God has prepared a place for all true believers in the land of "No More."

That's the best way to describe the heavenly placed that God has prepared for all believers. It is a perfect place that will be void of all things that trouble us in this life.

It's the place that Abraham traveled all of his life looking for; it's the city not made with hands!

One of the great features of the land of "No more" is that there will be no more tears.

There will be no more basal tears because our spirits will never dry out but be freshly watered by the spirit of God.

There will be no more Reflex tears to protect us from trouble, because there will be no more trouble.

There will be no more emotional tears because there will be no more sadness, and pain; every day will be Sunday ; it will always be howdy and never goodbye.

There will be "No more tears in the land of No more"-but that's not all. When we get there we will all be happy throughout all eternity in the land of No More.

Methuselah walked with God and walked right into it.

Elijah caught a fiery chariot and step right into it.

It's the place called heaven, but it is better described to those who mourn as the land of "No more."

In that land there will be no more:

-WARS because there is only peace, in the land of no more!

-HATRED, because there is only love in the land of no more!

-WEAKNESS, because there is only strength in the land of no more!

-DEATH, because there is only life in the land of no more!

I know there is such a place because I heard Jesus say, "I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am ye may be also!"

It is the place the song writer described as a land, on a far-a-away strand where we will never grow old.

It will have perfect streets, made of solid Gold!

It will have perfect lighting, because it will be illuminated by the glory of God!

It will have perfect medicine, because there will be a tree in its midst that will be good for the healing of the nations!

I don't know about you, but I want to go to the land of "No More!"

A long time ago our friend prepared for the journey from the land of too much suffering to the land of no more crying.

She expressed a belief in Jesus the Son of God.

He lived in the land of too much pain.

He died on a cross of too much agony.

He was buried in a tomb of too much defeat!

But He arose early Sunday morning with all power in His hands inviting every believer to come with him to the land of "No More." If you believe He lived a perfect life and died a perfect death

Come and go with me, to my father's house!

No more dying there, in my father's house!

No more crying there, in my father's house

There is peace, peace, peace!

On May 1, 2009 Sister Lorene Edwards went home to be with God. We cried a lot for her here, but now she is in the land where there are "No More Tears."

Bread for Today

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 17, 2009

Scripture: "Give us this day our daily bread." Matthew 6:11

Introduction

What if God gave us all of our blessings in advance, would we be happy? Think about it; would it be a blessing or a curse? If we received everything that God has in store for us at one time, at first would seem to be a happy time, but on second thought we would end up miserable. We would surely waste it and not have what we needed when we the time really came.

Would your life be better if you received your entire year's paycheck on the first day of the year? If you received all of your Social Security checks, tax refunds, rents due, allowances, retirement funds, dividends, capital gains, loans repaid and even the $200 for passing "go," would you be happier?

If you received five or six get out of trouble cards, a get out of jail free, card and two of three healing cards, along with a few bonus cards that contained 12 generic blessings that you could use at any time, would that make you happy?

What if after receiving your advanced blessing you also received instruction that you should live the Christian life of worship, praise and service as you normally do, but with the full knowledge that you have already received everything you are going to get? Would there be some Sunday's you would miss worship? Would there be some nights that you neglect to pray? Would your bible study slip? Would you serve as diligently?

Most of us would be seriously challenged if we received all of our blessings at once, especially if we received them in advance. What if you paid your lawn service a year in advance? Your doctor, the grocer, the utility company or other providers, would their diligence be challenged?

God knows our weaknesses and our strengths, that's probably the reason that he doesn't give us everything we ask for at the same time; many of us would mismanage it so badly that would be beggars in an instant. What child that is given his entire week's allowance on the first day would not be tempted to spend it all on the first day? How many of us have taken a vacation and rather than spend our money proportionately over the course of the vacation chose to blow huge amounts on fancy meals, entertainment, clothing items or long wanted toys? We are all too weak to handle that much of a blessing at one time.

When Israel traveled in the wilderness God supplied them with bread and meat, one day at a time. With the exception of the Sabbath, in which allowed them to gather enough for two days, God provided what they needed one day at a time. They did not have warehouses for manna or stockpiled inventories of meat and bread ready to moved from the desert warehouse; God issued it to them as they needed them, one day at a time.

Today, God does the same for us. Knowing our weaknesses, he rations our blessings to us according to our ability to manage, one day at a time. He blesses us daily because we would use up our healing blessings on every small scratch. We'd spend our finance blessings on every new sale item. We would squander our emergency blessings on situations that we could easily handle ourselves. God sends us new blessings every day; just enough for that day. Lamentations 3:23 says, "They are new every morning: great is thy faithfulness."

We don't want tomorrow's blessing today; that would be demanding and unappreciative. We are grateful for today's blessing and thank God for every crumb.

As Christians, our quest should be to approach each day with an attitude of gratitude. In the morning we give him thanks for what is coming. In the evening we give him thanks for the bread we have received today.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus' teaching his disciples when to pray and what to pray for.

The disciples often asked Christ to teach them to pray. In this context Jesus gave them a model prayer, showing them the elements that should be in a prayer.

Included in that prayer is the short phrase, "Give us this day our daily bread." In the Greek the phrase literally means "Give us our needful subsistence daily," or "Give of what we need to subsist each day."

The term "bread" in this context involves more than just food, but everything it takes to survive. When we say, "Give us this day our daily bread," we are asking God for the necessary supports and comforts we need for this present life. We ask for this support to strengthen us as we work to build his kingdom on earth.

Bread for today

The purpose of our request for any blessing from God should be to build the kingdom of God. We never ask God for blessings so that we can look good to our neighbors, win a completion for glory and fame, or bring praise and accolades on ourselves. The purpose of any request for a blessing is that it will benefit the kingdom of God. The key is in Matthew 6:33 "But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." So, it is in this context that we ask God for bread. This short verse contains a wealth of meaning if we look at all of the words.

GIVE US BREAD: We ask God for bread, that which is necessary for our subsistence as we work to build his kingdom. It is a vanity to ask God for dainties for our own gratification. We ask God for what we need; he favors us with some of things we want. We ask God for a dress, not a gorgeous gown that will make them all eat their hearts out with envy. We ask God for a meal, not a gourmet ten course meal with all of the trimmings. We ask God for bread, He gives us desserts as well out of His favor. We ask God for what we need to be of assistance in building His kingdom. We do not ask for superfluities but only those things which will strengthen us in kingdom work.

OUR BREAD: We ask God for the portion of blessing that he has reserved for us; we do not ask for bread that must come out of someone else's mouth. We don't ask him to help us with scams and plots to cheat others out of their bread. We don't ask him to help us successfully burglarize the homes of our neighbors so we can steal their bread. We ask only for the blessings that have our name written on them. Because blessings are individualized, we know that our blessings are intended to sustain us as we work to build God's kingdom on earth.

THIS DAY, DAILY BREAD: We ask God for what we need for today. We consider tomorrow but we don't worry about it because we know that God provides for us on a daily basis. Abraham began a strange day in his life, following God totally. He had been told to sacrifice his son and he was moving do just that. But on the mountain God provided him with a ram in the bush. He learned that God provides each day the ram in the bush. Jesus taught his disciples not to spend large amounts of time worrying about tomorrow, but to look to consider the lilies of the field and remember how he clothes them. Consider Matthew 6:34, "Take therefore no thought for the morrow: for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof. "- Don't ask for tomorrow's blessing today, deal with what you need today.

GIVE US, OUR BREAD: Our prayer to God is to be blessed, but we also pray that God would bless others as well. Note the emphasis on give "us" and "our" daily bread. We are connected to each other, we pray that God will bless us collectively. A family member prays that God will bless his family, not just one member of the family. A football player prays just before the game that God will bless the entire team, not just one player. Yet, we are blessed to be a blessing so we share our blessing with the less fortunate, the poor, and the hungry. We can't pray that God would bless us with food but not pray that God will help others to eat as well.

Daily Blessings

Finally, brothers and sisters, we rejoice that God continues to bless us one day at a time.

There are times when we doubt that we will be able to make it through, that's when we should remember that God is still in the blessing business.

In fact, whatever we need God has promised to supply. Philippians 4:19 "But my God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus."

Today, our supply of food may be running low, it is good to know that the Lord will provide for us one day at a time.

Today, our money is low and provisions have nearly disappeared, it is good to know that no matter how low it gets, God will continue to provide, one day at a time.

Today, there is disruption, or insecurity all around, it is good to know that God can bring peace in the midst of confusion, one day at a time.

Most importantly we should rmember that our daily bread is the daily presence of the spirit of God in our lives. Jesus reminded the Jews that the Israelites had manna in the wilderness but he is the bread from heaven that refreshes every believer.

When Jesus broke the bread and blessed the cup he reminded them that they symbolized the new covenant, that every day he would be our bread and the power of His blood would forgive our sins.

John 6:51 "I am the living bread which came down from heaven: if any man eat of this bread, he shall live forever: and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world."

As our daily bread he would be a lawyer for us in our courtroom!

As our daily bread he would be a doctor for us in our sick room!

As our daily bread he would be the enabling presence that would put food on our table!

No wonder the song writer declared, "Bread of Heaven, Bread of heaven, feed me till I want no more!"

I'm glad that keeps blessing me one day at a time because every day I have a —Cross that I need him to help me to bear!

—Mountain that I need him to help me to climb!

—Doubt that I need him to help me to remove!

—Burden that I need him to help me to carry!

—Battle that I need him to help me to fight!

—Trial that I need him to help me to get through!

—Test that I need him to help me to pass!

Today, I need the Lord to be Jehovah-Rapha, my healer in times of sickness.

Today, I need the Lord to be Jehovah-Shalom, my peace in times of confusion.

Today, I need the Lord to be Jehovah-Nissi, my victory in the over life's battles.

Today, I need the Lord to be Jehovah-jireh, my overseer and my provider!

Everyday we should praise the Lord!

Praise him for being such a wonderful God!

Praise him for blessing us!

Praise him for saving our souls!

Praise him for picking up an old rugged cross and dying for our sins!

Praise him for staying in the grave for three days and nights!

But early Sunday morning, he arose from the dead as the supplier of our daily bread!

Praise the Lord!

That Baby Don't Look Like Me

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 2009

SCRIPTURE: Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? he that hath seen me hath seen the Father; and how sayest thou then, Shew us the Father?" John 14:9

Introduction

How much do you resemble your father? Do you have his eyes? Hair? Skin color? What about some of his character traits? It is unavoidable; every child will bear some resemblance to his/her father, if not physically then certainly through other traits.

A father will certainly bear children that resemble him. Initially, we look for the physical comparisons. First we look for skin color. If daddy is high yellow and mama is high yellow and the baby is shoe black, there will be a flurry of denials about the identity of the father of the baby. If the mother has kinky hair and the father has kinky hair; and they are both tar black but the baby is light skinned with wavy hair, it's no doubt that there will be instant denials forthcoming and tons of explanations. Newborns usually bear some resemblance to their parents, sometimes one is more dominant than the other, but there is a trace of physical resemblance of both parents.

As the child matures, the child will also begin to demonstrate some personality traits of both father and mother. If one of the parents has a high aptitude, it is likely that it may be reflected in the child. If one parent, say the father, is inclined to be athletic, there is a chance that a son or daughter might be athletically oriented as well. Generally, a man's sons or daughters reflect his physical traits and often some of his talents or flaws.

Character traits are not visible. You can't look at a baby's eyes, ears or nose and conclude that a baby will be honest, brave or gentle. Those traits show up later. However, it due time, those who know both the father and the mother will be able to quickly identify the source of the personality resemblance.

Much has been said about children who bear no resemblance to their fathers, especially when legal paternity is at issue. In fact that was the essence of a humorous song released by rapper "Lil John" a while back. The song was entitled, "That baby don't look like me." In it, Lil John said:

"That baby ain't mine

I ain't buyin no carseat
And I ain't finna take care of no freak
Not me (not me) You ain't gettin no trust up outta my check
But I will pay for that DNA test
I ain't buyin no huggies, don't dress him like me that ain't my lil buddy Dem ain't my lips and them ain't my eyes you can keep them big pitchas and the wallet size.

The accompanying video on YouTube was widely popular. It seemed to be what many men were saying as they tried to deny paternity and the eventual child support that would follow.

We are children of God. He is our father, do we resemble him? Can the world look at us and conclude from the way we walk, talk and respond to the world that we are children of God.

When Jesus was baptized the Holy Spirit descended on Him in the form of a dove and said, "This is my beloved son in whom I'm well pleased." Can our heavenly father say the same about us today, or will he be forced to respond, "That baby don't look like me."

As Christians, our goal is to emulate our father in heaven in every way possible. We do so because we are a reflection of Him at all times. Jesus told his disciples, when you have seen me, you have seen the father. Let it be the same with us.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he explains the nature of his relationship to His father in heaven.

Jesus explained that while he is not the same person as God the Father, He does have the same nature as His father. In that respect he demonstrates the nature, character, substance and perfection of God.

This is the theme that Christ repeatedly tells his disciples. "He that seeth me seeth Him that sent me" (John 12:45). He expressed the same truth again in John 14:7 "If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also: and from henceforth ye know him, and have seen him."

By representing God as Father Jesus indicates that he operates the same as a godly earthly father. He is: loving, just, helpful, good, responsible, directing and caring.

The concept is simple: Jesus and God are one. When you see one you see the other. When you call on one it is the same as calling on the other.

We should look like our father

With regard to our character and spirituality, we should look like our Heavenly Father. When God looks at us He should see men and women who obedient to His word and walking in his footsteps. There are three ways that we should look like our father:

GODLY MEN REPRESENT GOD IN THEIR HOMES: Each family is a microcosm of the church. The wife and children represent the body of Christ and the husband is the high priest of the family, feebly trying to the best of his ability to represent Christ. Every man should strive to represent Christ in his family by loving his wife, caring for his children and protecting his household. 1 Peter 2:9 reminds us that each of us is a priest. We can be easily recognized because we are a Royal Priesthood. The priest of Old Testament times was a special person because he spoke to God on behalf of the people. The priest was easy to recognize. He was always close to the house of prayer and was always talking to God. We can recognize a Godly man because he is close to God and regularly talks to God on behalf of himself and his family. Jesus prayed to God regularly and talked with him constantly. Men today have that same responsibility.

A man who does not pray does not reflect the spirit of godliness that God intends.

A man who stays away from worship or study of the bible does not look like the godly man he was created to be.

If men are distant from God, but claim to be children of God, our Father in heaven could easily say, "That baby don't look like me."

GODLY MEN ARE AVAILABLE TO THEIR FAMILIES. In Matthew 28, Jesus told his disciples, "And lo, I will be with you always." It is a reminder that God never leaves us alone. Godly men are available to their wives and children; they never leave them alone. Today, there are thousands of men who are estranged from their wives or divorced but they remain close to their children and friends with the mothers of their children. They are always available, just as God is always available to us. Today, our society is mourning the absent and emotionally distant fathers. They are not necessarily doing anything bad, they are simply disconnected. However, the lack of connection is taking its toll upon the African-American family. Moreover, there are many who present in the homes but are irrelevant. They are so "out of it" that they may as well not be there. According to the Family Research Council, the average father spends just under eight minutes a day in direct conversation with his children.

Our Heavenly father is always available to us. He is definitely relevant in our lives. We should be able to sing that old hymn, "And he walks with me and he talks with me and he tells me I am his own. And the joy we share as we tarry there, none other has ever known."

If men do not have a relevant presence in the lives of their wives and children, but claim to be children of God; our Father in heaven could easily say, "That baby don't look like me."

GODLY MEN ARE HOLY MEN: Every godly man is a holy man, just like his heavenly father. In a perfect world, a wife or a child should be able to look at the spiritual life of the father in the family and see godliness and holiness. To be holy means to set apart or sanctified for the service of God. There were certain places Israel could not go because it was special! There were certain drinks it could not drink because it was special. There were certain acts it could not perform because it was a holy nation, dedicated to serving God. They were easy to recognize as Children of God because of their actions and also because of their inaction. Today, we can recognize a holy man by what he does and also what he refuses to do. There are some places that holy men do not frequent. There are some drinks that holy men don't drink. There are some things that holy men refuse to do. Holy men are often seen praising God, serving others, edifying their families, and building a better community in clean and uplifting ways. Today, men of God have the challenge to reflect the holiness of God in the way they live their lives in the community. Drinking, gambling, using and selling drunks and running after the opposite sex (and the same sex) is not what a man of God does. If we follow the way of the world, but continue to say we are children of God, God will be prompted to look down on us and say, "That baby don't look like me."

Resembling God

Finally, brothers and sisters, We should strive to resemble God so much in our actions and deeds that the world instantly recognizes us as children of God.

Our father in heaven is a merciful God who has purchased our salvation with his own blood. I hear Paul saying in 1 Corinthians 6:19-20 "..And ye are not your own, for ye are bought with a price!"

Because he bought us with his own blood, we joyfully reshape ourselves to fit his image.

We are children of the most high God because we are:

—Purchased with a great price!

—Touched by the hand of God!

—Pardoned from all guilt and sin!

How do you recognize a child of God? It's not by looking at his eyes, hair color, fingers and body shape, but by whether he has been washed in the blood of the lamb.

The old warriors still sing, "I know I am a child of God, although I move so slow."

You can recognize a child of God because he's always saying good things about Jesus.

He says Jesus is:

—A TABLE that can never be bare!

—A FOUNTAIN that can never run dry!

—A ROCK that can never be moved!

—A SHIELD that can never be broken!

—A WAY out of no way!

—WATER when you are thirsty!

—BREAD When you are hungry!

We don't have to worry about our Father saying, "That baby don't look like me" because every day of our lives, we are walking with the king.

Everyday day of our lives, we are talking with King!

We are testifying to the world through the life we live that God is real!

We are telling the world that we serve a savior who loved us so much that He came down to this old wretched world and gave His life for the pardoning of our sins!

We'll tell everybody that one evening He picked up an old rugged cross and carried it to a place called Golgotha.

We'll tell the world that He died out on Calvary, but Early…

Early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave, with all power in His hands!

Every man should strive live his life where God does not disown him but says, this is my beloved child…in whom I'm well pleased!

A Soror's Legacy

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 27, 2009

Scripture:"For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother, and my sister, and mother." Mark 3:35

Introduction

What does it mean to be a soror? We hear the word most often when it refers to a woman who is a member of a sorority. Those outside of the world of Greek life may not be aware that to be called a soror is a great honor because it means a person is more than just a member of an organization but that person shares a lifelong bond with others of the same persuasion.

Soror is a Latin word that means sister. Those who are referred to as sorors are among those who have shared a common experience and lived by certain codes of conduct and rules of order. Those who are sorors are part of something that is bigger than any single person but predicated upon the intrinsic worth and importance of the individual.

Generally, a person is called sister in one of three situations: in a family, in a fraternal order and in the kingdom of God. In the family, one becomes a sister through birth or adoption and is sometimes our best friend, worse critic, fiercest competitor and biggest supporter. In a sorority, one becomes a sister by pledging loyalty to a fraternal order that espouses scholarship, high ideals and standards of life and service. In the kingdom of God a person becomes a sister by professing faith in Jesus Christ and living a life devoted to building the kingdom and service to others.

There are several sisters of note in the Bible. Joanna, Mary Magdalene, Mary, and Martha who were united by a common bond; they knew Jesus. Phoebe, Priscilla and Junia all shared in the work of Kingdom Building. Some of them had been lifted from failed experiences. Some of them had access to great resources. All of them worked to promote the kingdom of God. Throughout the ministry of Jesus these women were present as He healed the sick, fed the hungry and raised the dead. In so doing they developed a fraternal bond that was unbreakable. In scripture, they are routinely referred to as sisters.

As Christians, we are all united in a fraternal effort to build the kingdom of God. In our struggles and victories, successes and failures, we share a common bond that makes us all sisters and brothers with God as our heavenly father.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he answers the question "Who is my mother, my brother or my sister?" The question was posed on the occasion that Mary, Jesus' brothers and at least one sister came to a place where he was teaching and wanted to see him. A message was sent into the meeting room and given to him. It indicated that his mother, brothers and at least one sister, were waiting for him outside. Jesus used the occasion to teach a lesson to his followers about the nature of brotherhood, sisterhood, and parenthood. In his familiar way, He answered a question with a question.

The obvious answer to many that heard Christ was simply that a sister or brother is simply a person that shares an incident of physical birth. A mother is one who gives birth to a child! Sisters and brothers are those who shared that same experience, but Jesus went further.

His answer had nothing to do with natural ties. In fact, His answer ignored natural ties altogether. He wanted them to see a greater truth so he expanded upon a known concept with an unknown response. When Jesus explained his definition of brother and sister, he connected it to another binding factor: "shared experience." Those who share the common desire to obey God and do his will, develop a spiritual bond and become sisters and brothers. Those who work together to achieve the common goal of realizing the will of God become sisters and brothers.

The idea of "shared experience" rather than simply incidence of birth as a definition for brotherhood, sisterhood and parenthood, made it plain that persons who are not our biological kindred could very well share a spiritual bond because of shared experiences. Those who share the experience of Christ and His love easily refer to themselves as brothers and sisters in Christ. It is that "shared experience" that makes those who profess Christ brothers and sisters, despite not having shared the same biological history.

Three attributes of a Soror

Those who are sisters in any endeavor share three common attributes:

A Soror demonstrates dignity and professionalism. Sorors share mutual respect for themselves and others and carry themselves with a level of professionalism that separates them from others. If you find a soror, you will also find a woman who is constantly striving for those things that strengthen the community; raising the cultural level of her husband, family and acquaintances. This is the spirit of dignity and refinement that brings honor to her name. The way she selects her involvements and the professionalism she brings to each involvement are indicative of what Proverbs 31:25 means when it says, " Strength and honor are her clothing; and she shall rejoice in time to come." In this spirit, sorors often sing, "By merit and culture we strive and we do."

A Soror demonstrates service to others. One of the more salient attributes of sorors is their service to others. Whether the service is working to help girls discover the route to finer womanhood or plunging into efforts to help the poor, educate the masses, cure diseases or to respond in times of disaster; true sorors are always involved in one level of community service or another. Somehow they are not content to sit on the sidelines and bemoan; there is something within a true sister that pushes her to roll up her sleeve and be a part of the solution rather than the problem. Those who spend their lives in such endeavors are usually remembered as the "greatest" sorors because of their service. Indeed, this is what Jesus had in mind when he said in, Matthew 20:27 " And whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant." It's the spirit of helping others that prompts sorors to sing, "Armed with a smiled, we help each other for we know no other." It is this spirit that makes a true soror great.

A Soror demonstrates faith in God. The history of most great sisters is marked by the fact that they demonstrated a strong faith in God. Whether they are Catholic or Protestant, Jew or Gentile, the greatest of the sorors have discovered that only those who trust in the power of God can weather the storms of this life. It is only their trust in God that empowers them to strive against all odds to accomplish the impossible. It is this trust that prompts them to rise up when they have fallen, rebound when they have failed, recover when they have been wounded, and stand tall when they are being knocked down. Sometimes we think we know, but godly sisters remember the word of God which teaches in Proverbs 3:5 "Trust in the LORD with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding." It's what prompts them to serve in their churches, sing in choirs, work in mission fields, and pray fervorently. Those who trust in God understand the meaning of the song that says, "I trust in God, wherever I may be, upon the land or on the raging sea. Though come what may, from day to day, my heavenly father watches over me." Those who trust in God work for His honor and His glory. They stand on His word and constantly reach upwards. When godly sorors join hands the words of their solemn hymn have meaning when they say, "for thy honor and glory today." They trust Him in all that they do.

A Soror's Legacy

Finally, brothers and sisters, when a soror's work is done she leaves behind a legacy of sisterhood and service for others to follow.

The greatest women among us left legacies worthy to be followed by coming generations. Women such as Rosa Parks and Coretta Scott King stand tall in our memory, but the work of lesser known virtuous women lingers in the hearts of all who knew them because they also lived with dignity, served others with compassion and believed in God with a deep rooted faith.

It is the legacy of dignity, service and faith that we celebrate today.

It is what Proverbs 31:30-31 refers to when it says, "Favour is deceitful, and beauty is vain: but a woman that feareth the LORD, she shall be praised. Give her of the fruit of her hands; and let her own works praise her in the gates."

This is the legacy of a woman who carries herself with dignity and honor and works to help others do the same.

This is the legacy of the woman who gives of herself to help others in a flood of deeds that flows from her typewriter, word processor, immense energy, and the depths of her meager resources.

This is the legacy of a woman who spends her entire life singing, serving, helping and ministering to others in the service of the Lord.

This is the legacy of a woman who knows what it means to be a soror, but more than that, she knows what it means to be a sister in Christ.

Such a woman may be a citizen of two sisterhoods, one known as the Alpha Kappa Alpha but the other, more important one, is headed by the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end.

This is the kind of woman who knows that prayer changes things!

When we think about it, there is nothing like being a sister who knows the Lord!

A sister who knows the Lord, knows that whatever discouragements life brings, God is still on the throne.

A sister who knows the Lord can sing with cheer, "be not dismayed what ere' betide, God will take care of you!"

Such a sister can stand firm in the midst of dark times because she knows that "weeping endures for a night, but joy comes in the morning!"

A sister who knows the Lord, can brave difficulties because she knows, "The Lord will make a way somehow!"

A sister who knows the Lord can stand in the face of death and declare, "Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for thou art with me."

A sister who knows the Lord, looks up with eternal hope because she knows "one glad morning when this life is over I'll fly away!"

A sister who knows the Lord, confesses with her life that she serves a savior who is worthy of praise and glory.

A savior who died on an old rugged cross but Early Sunday morning arose with the victory in his hands; who is now sitting at the right hand of God welcoming, one by one every sister as she arrives.

The life and legacy we salute today seems to shout across the abyss between time and eternity to say, "If you miss me serving down here, come on up to bright glory, I'll be serving up there!"

On Friday, June 19, 2009, Doris Jean Smith Welch took her last breath. She was a soror who left a legacy of faith, sisterhood and service.

A Recipe for A Spirit Filled Church

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

July 2009

SCRIPTURE: "But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." Matthew 6:33

Introduction

What is required for a church to be filled with the spirit of God? Is there is a universal formula, a magic potion or a special incantation that can be employed that will result in a church that is filled with the spirit of God. When we examine the word of God we find that the ingredients are spelled out in scripture, the problem is that we often don't know what they are, or we try to achieve godly perfection leaving out one ingredient or another. If we fail to follow God's instructions, we will never realize a truly spirit filled church.

Many years ago there was a common bread that was made by wives at home. For lack of a better word the bread was called Daily Bread. It was a simple bread, made without any additives, chemicals or other embellishments. Those who followed the simple recipe usually ended up with a tasty bread that was nourishing, and filling. It was so simple that it could be made quickly every day, producing the exact same results.

The secret to making daily bread was its simple recipe. Those who tried to add to it made it complicated and hard to execute. It wasn't supposed to be difficult. The recipe called for it to be extremely simple but filled with great taste and nourishment.

Daily Bread only has four ingredients: water, salt, flour and yeast. Nothing more, nothing less.

Every ingredient was essential to the final product, but equally essential were the steps spelled out in the recipe. When made according to the recipe the bread was extremely tasty and almost heavenly to the pallet.

Every church should be filled with born again believers whose lives feast on the bread of heaven. Christ explained to his disciples that He was the bread of heaven that would feed and fill them until their souls were satisfied. It would appear therefore, if we are to achieve a spirit filled church, we must keep our focus upon Christ. Those who are filled with his loving spirit will show it in their worship, fellowship and service one to another.

The church often strays away from its main focus. Often our emphasis is on subjects that are fashionable and pleasing to the pews. We often spend considerable time preaching and teaching about financial prosperity and expanding our territories. We discuss programs, budgets, conventions, politics and current events often more than we discuss Christ and the mission of the church. Sometimes our sermons barely mention Christ's life, death, burial and resurrection. A new theology now teaches new preachers that sermons need not necessarily point to the cross as long as they are biblical. Yet, it is the preaching of the cross that pricks are conscious, stirs our souls and motivates us to live closer to God's ideal. We feed on the knowledge that Christ is alive and moving in our lives every day.

If the church is to remain spirit filled we must lift up Jesus. It's a simple recipe. We may have fancy rituals and liturgies, songs and orations, but when it is all said and done, the secret to maintaining a spirit filled church is to lift up Jesus. He said, "And I, If I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me."

As believers, we must make Jesus the main thing. Then we must make the main thing, the main thing. We must first seek Christ and his kingdom and all of the other things will be added in the course of time.

Exposition

This text focuses on Christ as he encourages his disciples to zealously work for the building of the kingdom.

The text follows Christ's discourse to his disciples concerning worry. He told them to focus on the work of kingdom building and pleasing God and not so much on worrying about what they would wear or eat. If their focus remained firm on the kingdom all other essentials would be supplied to them.

Serving in the kingdom, lifting up Christ is the focus of every believer. This is what Christ told his disciples. If we keep the cross foremost and lift him up, the kingdom of God would be realized on earth. When that happens, all other things will be added, including, bread, water and other essentials of life.

Building the kingdom of God is fulfilling to a believer. We are never as filled as we are when we are trusting and acknowledging God while doing kingdom work; putting our hands to the plow and plowing; working and not looking back. We are never as filled as we are when we are working and trusting the results to God. God says He will see to it that such a trusting person will always have the necessities of life.

The recipe for a joyous and happy church that is filled with the spirit of God seems to revolve around our active service in kingdom building, the intensity of our faith, and our dependence upon him for our daily bread.

When we are working for the kingdom the spirit fills us.

When we are praising God, the spirit lifts us!
When we are glorifying God, the spirit strengthens us!
We are filled to serve and we serve to please God in every way that we can.

Recipe for a Spirit Filled Church

To build the kingdom of God and to thrive spiritually, the church needs to follow the biblical recipe. That recipe calls for four ingredients:

FLOUR: Flour is associated with our spiritual life. Flour is the product of all of God's creation: the sun, wind, earth, and rain. From the depths of the earth God gives the life sustaining presence of wheat for bread and corn for meal. In a similar sense God's graces work together to provide the essentials of life for every believer. Without the flour there is no bread; it is the essential element. For the believer, Christ is the essential ingredient for a spirit filled life. He is what makes life meaningful, joyful and fruitful. Without Christ there is no Christian marriage. There may be a house, but there is no home. There may be a few things, but unless Christ is the main thing, all other things will have little importance to us. Faith in Christ, is finely ground in the crucible of life's experience and is essential to the spirit filled life. A spirit filled church must be a church of faith.

WATER: Water is associated with spiritual health. Water is used in the baking of bread. Jesus met the woman at the well and offered her living water. In essence, his spirit would be the essence of real living. There are many today whose hearts are beating but they are not living. They move around each day but they are not living. They have a few things but they may as well have nothing because they are not really living. To really live we need the constant stream of spiritual support that only comes from God. Jesus is the living water that constantly flows. Anything that tries to live dies soon, without water that would include: marriages, careers, and even relationships. Nothing else will substitute; it must be water. There are many today who are spiritually dehydrated. They are trying to live without drinking spiritual water. Professionals report that we need eight glasses of water a day to keep our systems functioning. Often we substitute coffee, cold drinks, alcohol and other wet substances for water and get by; but soon we learn that nothing takes the place of water. Likewise, many are substituting many things for Christ. They all serve their purpose but can't take the place of water. To have a healthy spiritual life we need worship, bible study, prayer and the presence of the Holy Spirit in our lives. A spirit filled church cannot exist without the Holy Spirit.

SALT: Is associated with nourishment. Jesus told believers, "Ye are the salt of the earth." Bread is made with a small amount of salt. Salt preserves, freshens and flavors. Before there were refrigerators, salt was used to preserve meat and other foods. In rural areas salt was even used to brush teeth and combined with soda, was used as a deodorant. Salt also flavors. When Jesus said that believers are the salt of the earth he meant we should be all three: a source of preservation, sanitation and inspiration. Jesus said he was the bread of life and that he was the living water. However, he charged believers to be the "salt" of the earth. He said "Ye are" the salt of the earth. We have the responsibility of bringing the bread of life to a starving mal-nourished land. We must be the ones to inspire the world to bring the love of Christ to every challenging situation. We must help the poor and needy. We must champion the cause of the downtrodden. We must stand up for justice. At the same time, we must bring new hope and inspiration to a world that has lost hope. We cannot afford to lose our savor and become stuck in the shaker because it's damp in the world. A spirit filled church is a church that is taking action in the name of our Lord.

YEAST: Yeast is associated with abundant living. In bread, yeast works like magic. The yeast causes the bread to rise. Without yeast, it stays flat. Yeast is composed of living elements that grow quickly, producing a pan of bread much larger than was first made. Jesus said, "I have come that ye may have life and have it more abundantly." What is abundant living? Is it the accumulation of possessions, money and power? Persons who seek Christ for that purpose usually interpret his words for that end. But does the Christ who urges us to live humbly, despise showy displays, and rid ourselves of as many possessions as possible, really mean by abundant living, that we should seek "living large" as a lifestyle. The abundance that he speaks about involves those variables associated with the kingdom of God. These are a plethora of love, peace, joy and overall happiness and contentment. The abundant life is not measured by how much we have, but how we are able to enjoy what we have. If we have boats but never enjoy them, what good are they? If we have families but never experience the love of family members, what good is the home? If we have money constantly accumulating but we have no peace because of it, are we really living? The abundant life is a Christ centered life that gets great joy out of every blessing it receives no matter how great or small. The abundant life that Christ speaks about has nothing to do with cars and houses, stocks, bonds and investments. The abundant life is the life that is filled with as much gratitude for a pork chop as it is for an 18 ounce steak. We know we have it when we are able to "count it all joy."

Follow the Directions

Finally, brothers and sisters, the recipe for a spirit filled church requires us to not only assemble the ingredients but we must mix them according to the directions.

There are many who try to bake bread, cakes and pies, without following the directions and end up with bread that doesn't rise, crust that is burned or a product that so hardened that it cut not be cut with a chain saw.

Many churches seeking spirit filled experiences are doing the same thing.

Many have plenty of music and praise, but no service.

Many have plenty of formality and instruction but without spirit filled lives to go with all of the instruction.

Many have plenty of shouts, but have nothing to shout about!

But there is one thing that all spirit filled churches have in common, it is essential to the power of their spirit filled ministry…it works just like making daily bread.

When bread is made, a small portion of the flour, water, and yeast is mixed together and pulled to the side. It is separated from the rest for several hours. This allows time for the powerful acids to form. Once mixed in with the rest of the mix they cause the loaf to rise high.

Why do they rise? Because they have been filled by that small portion of fermented dough! It was just a little leaven but it leaveneth the whole loaf.

That's what happens when the pastor and leaders of a church go down in prayer. Away from the rest of the church they pray for power themselves. They pray for God's spirit. Sometimes they pray for hours. Sometimes they pray for days, but when they return they are on fire.

And their fire and spirit is contagious, the whole church is on fire!

I don't know about you but I've found out that there is nothing more powerful than a spirit filled, prayed up church!

When the church is prayed up and filled with the spirit, it is able to climb the highest of mountains!

When the church is prayed up and filled with the spirit, it is strong even though surrounded by weakness!

When the church is prayed up and filled with the spirit, it is able to stand when the world is trying to knock it down!

A praying church is a powerful church!

Prayer can open up doors that have been closed in your face!

Prayer can create opportunities where none exist!

Prayer can chisel victories out of mountains of defeat!

If you want the recipe for a spirit filled church, keep your eyes focused on Jesus!

Seek first the kingdom of God, and keep on praying!

Keep on praying in Jesus' name!

Do you know him today?

His name is Jesus, the Lily of the Valley!

His name is Jesus, the Bright and Morning Star!

His name is Jesus, the fairest of ten thousand!

Jesus, who died on Calvary and early Sunday morning, arose from the grave!

His is the power of the church!

Jesus, He is the savior of our souls!

Jesus, He is our Lord!

He is the whole recipe by Himself!

His name is Jesus!

God's Health Care Plan

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

July 26, 2009

SCRIPTURE: In the midst of the street of it, and on either side of the river, was there the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and yielded her fruit every month: and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations. Revelation 22:2

Introduction

Do you have a health Care plan for your family? A health Care plan is a strategy that family will use to receive medical care in event of emotional, psycho logical or physical sickness. It also includes preventive actions designed to help us prevent or detect life threatening conditions. A health Care Plan usually involves selecting a doctor, a medical service provider and providing a way to pay for services if the need should arise. Health Care is one of the awesome responsibilities of families that has existed from the first illnesses of the ancients unto this day.

There is an ongoing debate in the nation today about providing health care to the nation. As African-Americans, we are intently interested in that debate since health concerns plague our community disproportionately. The statistical record illustrates this fact, 63,500 African Americans will die from cancer next year. Approximately eleven percent of all African Americans have diabetes. Breast cancer is the second leading cause of cancer death among African American women, exceeded only by lung cancer. African American men have far higher death rates from prostate cancer than any other racial or ethnic group. Each year 130,800 new African American cancer cases are expected to be diagnosed.

Many of our people have little or no health insurance. The Kaiser Foundation reports that there are nearly 46 million Americans without insurance and 15.1 percent of all African-Americans have no health insurance plans at all.

President Barack Obama is pushing to provide health insurance for everyone by devising a Medicare type system for everyone, not just the elderly. Everyone would have to pay something, premiums or deductibles or be fined and ultimately one payer, the government, would pay the bills. There is opposition to that plan because it will shut down nearly all insurance companies, put the government in control of who lives and dies, and astronomically drive up taxes. Even if it passes Mr. Obama's plan will still leave about 15 million people with no insurance when it begins in 2013.

For models of what a universal Health Care Plan looks like we are told to look at Australia, France or Canada, but there is another health care plan that is available to believers, one that is not of this world. It's a plan devised by God himself.

Today, we are talking about health insurance, but God has a health care plan.

Today, we are talking about affordable health insurance, but God has a plan that insures good health for all.

Today, we are talking about Medicaid and Medicare, but God has a plan that provides heavenly care for all.

As Christians, we know that God has been a healing force in our lives. We trust his word and his power to heal our wounded souls and mend our bodies. Even as the nation debates health insurance, we still trust God because he is the only one with a health care plan.

Exposition

This text focuses on John's vision of the kingdom of heaven while he was exiled on the Isle of Patmos.

While on Patmos, John was shown a vision of the world to come. It was a symbolic vision, not detailed in specifics, but enough for those who read the account to get an idea of what is in store for believers who enter God's kingdom.

Chapters 21-22 of the Revelation are of particular interest to believers because of the picture of the life we hope to share. It is here that we see the beautiful New Jerusalem descending down from heaven and establishing itself on earth (Revelation 21:2).

In the midst of the city, the tree of life will once again be placed among men. Its presence symbolizes God's plan to provide an abundant health life for his people. All of the symbols associated with the vision of the tree of life suggest an abundance of everything and an eternity of good health.

It was God's intention from the beginning that there would be no sickness or scarcity of resources for his people. When he created man he placed him in the Garden of Eden, which was located in a vast terrain between Kenya on the continent of Africa and what is now modern day Iraq. In that garden he placed this same tree of life. In Genesis 2:9 it is noted that the tree of life was among the various trees God caused to grow in the garden. In Genesis 3:3 a warning was given that it was not to be touched. It was a tree with fruit that was not designed to be eaten. It symbolized the life, provision and health that God promised.

When Adam and Eve ate from the forbidden fruit, they broke God's command and the tree of life was removed from the earth. Immediately the Garden of Eden disappeared and was turned into a parched desert land. Immediately, the promise of life, health and provision also vanished. Man had to till the ground to survive, his health began to fail and for the first time death came into the world.

The perfect health that God initially promised was breached by sin. As a result a multitude of sicknesses began to result that ranged from failing hearts, kidneys, and thyroids, to brain tumors, strokes and thousands of others.

However, throughout scripture the hope of restored health has been given to God's people. This hope has always been tied to the elimination of sin. In 2 Chronicles 7:14 God told Israel If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."

The Prophet Ezekiel said God would bring back the tree of life, if the people repented. In Ezekiel 47:12 he prophesied that God would bring back the health and provision he began in the garden. Ezekiel said, "it shall bring forth new fruit according to his months, because their waters they issued out of the sanctuary: and the fruit thereof shall be for meat [food], and the leaf thereof for medicine."

Now in Revelation, John is shown that same tree again. It appears in the New Jerusalem where there will be no sin or even the thought of evil. It will bear twelve manner of fruit on a regular basis, with leaves that will be filled with medicine. It will never be touched or used because its presence only symbolizes the presence of God's plan to provide for the health and security of his people eternally.

God's Health Plan

It is clear from the opening chapters of the Bible that God intended for his people to live forever with perfect health. However, because of our own weaknesses, mankind has touched the forbidden fruit of this world and has reduced our life expectancy and contributed to the demise of our health.

While His perfect health plan is not in place, yet; God is still in the healing business. In response to the prayers of the Saints:

HE HEALS IN RESPONSE TO FAITH: God has responded to the faith of millions who have trusted Him. These are those who believe and trust in their hearts that if they could get a prayer through, He would respond. A woman with an issue of blood had this faith and pushed her way through a crowd believing that if she could just touch the hem of His garment she could be made whole. Today, there are millions who have placed their faith in God and have drawn near to Him and he has heard their request. His perfect healthcare plan is not in place yet, but He is still in the healing business.

HE HEALS WHEN DOCTORS CANNOT: Although doctors and physicians are able to perform intricate operations, when the procedures are finished they must step back and wait for God to work. Doctors know medicines and procedures they do not have the power to command wounds to heal, tumors to disappear or hearts to revive themselves, despite all of our technology. Even in scripture there were instances when people went to the disciples seeking healing but found that they were unable to heal them. In Matthew 17:16 a man carried his son to the disciples only to learn that despite having studied under Jesus they were not able to help; he turned to Jesus and the son was healed. Today, there are millions who trust their doctors, but they trust God more. They believe in modern medicine, but they trust the intervening power of God more. So they pray to God for healing and ask God to use the doctors, hospitals and medicines or whatever way he chooses to heal them. Even though his perfect health plan is not in place, when we see miracles happen every day, we know God is still in the healing business.

HE HEALS BROKEN LIVES, TOO: All sicknesses are not physical. Some are mental and others are related to moral issues. There are millions of people today who suffer from a plethora of mental problems from depression to schizophrenia. Drug addictions, alcoholism and ADHD are just a few that plague our community. These maladies have broken and shattered lives, yet even here God has proven to be a healer. When a man with mental disorder ran through the cemetery naked, he found sanity at the foot of Jesus. When a man was possessed with legions of demons, he found healing relief when Jesus cast out the demons. When a woman accused of immoral living was about to be stoned, Jesus forgave her sin and told her to go and sin no more. He restored her broken life in a way that made her so happy she ran and shouted, "Come see a man who told me all I've ever done." No matter how broken our lives seem, God can put them back together again. No matter how complicated our mental or moral situation may seem, God can work it out. While his perfect healthcare plan is not in place, yet; we've seen enough to know He's still in the business of putting lives back together again.

Cover Every Situation

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that God's life and health plan will cover every situation.

He has shown us how it will work in his written word, but more importantly, he has shown what he can do every day of our lives.

When the prophet saw all of the sickness in the world he asked in Jeremiah 8:22, "Is there no balm in Gilead; is there no physician there? why then is not the health of the daughter of my people recovered?"

New Testament saints can answer from our own experience, "There is a balm in Gilead..His name is Jesus!"

The same Jesus, who cleansed the lepers of their leprosy!

The same Jesus, who unstopped the ears of the deaf!

The same Jesus, who revived paralyzed arms and legs!

The same Jesus, who stopped an issue of blood!

The same Jesus, who delivered the demon possessed!

The same Jesus, who brought the dead back to life!

The same Jesus hears and answers prayers today. His in the medical intervention business!

If there is anything that saints should remember it's that when you are sick and in pain, that God says I am Jehovah-Rapha, "I am the Lord that healeth thee!"

That means that God is in the healing business.

It doesn't matter, what you may be facing in your life!

It doesn't matter, what has been troubling you night and day!

It doesn't matter, what agony and misery you've been dealing with!

It doesn't matter, what the doctors may have informed you of!

Don't give up because the Lord is still in healing business!

You don't have to pay a premium because it's already been paid. All you have to do is fall on your knees and say "Lord, I have not done all I am suppose to do but look beyond my faults and see my need."

God can touch your life and turn things around and you won't get a bill because Jesus paid it all, all to him I owe. Sin had left a crimson stain, but he washed it white as snow!

On Calvary, Jesus paid the premium with nails in his hands, a crown of thorns on his head and a spear in his side!

He died on an old rugged cross but Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

I don't know about you, but I'm glad He's still in the healing business today!

Only When the Time was Right

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 1976

SCRIPTURE: "But when the fullness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law" Galatians 4:4

Introduction

Have you ever tried to rush an important event? Most of us can remember a time that we tried to rush important events, especially those that we have anticipated for long periods of time. When we are anxious about an event it seems that it will never come even though we want to rush it.

If left to most of us, some special days would come early, much earlier than the calendar shows. We have a tendency to rush things. That was the case when a man rushed his wife to a hospital many days before she was due to deliver their first child. The man was really impatient. The man was a little upset that the doctor was not in a rush to help him speed up the process. Despite his impatience that man waited patiently in the waiting room. After a few minutes, the doctor came out and asked the assistant for a wrench; that really concerned the husband. Then, after a couple more moments, the doctor re-entered the room this time he asked for a screwdriver. The man grew worried and began to pace in circles. Then, a little later, the doctor burst through the doors screaming for a hammer. At that, the husband, in a state of frenzied terror, ran up to the physician and asked, "Doctor, what the heck is wrong with my wife?" "I don't know," replied the doctor, "But I don't know what's wrong with my lunch box, I can't get it open."

You just can't rush things, everything must happen in its own time.

You can't hurry God either. He has his own time schedule and he operates by heavens time table, not our time table.

That's what happened when God prepared to respond to the need for a savior on earth. He picked the time, place and method that his son would come. It was the right time and the right place.

As Christians, we know that God always responds to our prayers and request. We are confident that he will always answer us, but only when the time is right.

Exposition

The text focuses on Paul's letter to the churches in Galatia explaining the method God used to bring salvation to the world.

Paul underscored that the coming of Christ into the world was not by chance. He came according to the timing that was set prearranged by God. His coming was not one day before or behind the appointed time.

That time was important because it acknowledged that God was in control of the salvation process. A child who is placed under the control of guardians is under their control until "the date fixed by his father." God and God alone decided the fullness of time for the coming of Christ.

Christ was born of a particular person, at a particular time, in a particular way under a particular system.

Until It's Time

When we consider the advent of Christ there are several thoughts we should observe:

JESUS WOULD NOT COME UNTIL THERE WAS PEACE: Christ made his appearance in the world at its most peaceful time. Rome dominated the world and its strong control brought the world into a relatively peaceful stance. Wars had persisted for many years with many dominating powers including the Egyptians, Chaldeans, Persians and the Greeks. Now, with Rome at the helm there was relative peace. In a time of Peace Christ came into the world and often those who seek Him today must seek Him in an atmosphere of peace. God is not the author of confusion, whether that confusion is in the church, home or within individual lives. If we want God's presence we must seek Him at a peaceful time, and in a peaceful place.

WHEN THE TIME COMES CHRIST WILL COME: When Christ made His arrival God had set the stage where his arrival would be anticipated, welcome and facilitated. World conditions had changed such that the Greek Language dominated the world seen. It was almost a common language. To arrive at this time would make communication easier. John the Baptist had come preaching in the wilderness of Judea announcing that a savior was coming, raising the anticipation of the people. In addition there was a general conviction among the people. They were searching for the true God and a source of universal salvation. When Christ came the social, intellectual and political landscape was right. The circumstances of his birth gave indication of his destiny and in such challenging times.

The circumstances of Christ's parentage and birth gave an indication of his destiny. While Mary and Joseph knew the nature of his being, they were not sure, at His birth, the nature of his final destination.

Jesus was born in a small town, to poor parents, in very restricted and impoverished circumstances. His destiny, in these circumstances was not clear it had to be discovered. By the age of twelve it appears he had learned his destiny because after being found in the temple with the scholars He said, 'It's time for me to be about my father's business."

When the time comes, Christ will come into each of our lives and he will take care of the business. However, He won't come before the entire landscape is set and in place. There are adjustments we must make to invite Him to move into our lives. When the time and condition was right, He came. We the time and condition is right He will respond to us as well.

THERE IS A TIME FOR THE LOST TO BE SAVED: Jesus was constantly asked when God would intervene in world affairs and address many of the wrongs that afflicted God's people. Jesus constantly told those who heard Him that God would take action in His time. Once he told them that wheat and tares often grow up together and the tares choke the wheat. He said in God's on time, the tares would be separated from the wheat, but not before.

Everything has a time and nothing happens before its time. Ecclesiastes 3 tells us that there is a time and a season for everything, but nothing happens before its time. In youth, we are impatient and want the privileges of adult life without the maturity to handle the responsibilities. This was the case with the prodigal son, who could not wait for his inheritance. He wanted it quickly and instantly. He wanted it long before he was ready to handle what he would receive Adults often hurry God. We can't wait for Him to move. We pray and ask Him for a blessing but then take matters into our own hand when God doesn't move fast enough for us. We ask Him for a mate, then grab the first pretty looking thing that comes along, before God has a chance to move. Sera found this to be true. God promised she and her husband Abraham that they would have a child. Years passed and she was well passed the normal child bearing age. She tried to arrange for her husband to have a child by a surrogate because it appeared that God moved too slow. Then she heard the words, "Is there anything too hard for God to do?"

Galatians 4:4 tells us that when, " the fullness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law." In essence, when the time was right, God made hHs move.

In our lives today, we must remember that when God is ready, he will act!

When the days are accomplished, the prayer that we have prayed will receive an answer!

When the days are accomplished, the answer we seek will be delivered!

When the days are accomplished, the opportunity we seek will present itself!

God has a reason for Waiting

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember that God has a reason for waiting; usually he spends more time on the inside than he does outside.

There is an interesting passage in Job 9:25 (NCV) That reads this way, “”My days go by faster than a runner. They fly away without my seeing joy.”

That can easily describe many of us. We can get so busy trying to do so many things that we don’t have time for the joy of each day to really soak in. We can be so busy cooking, shopping, attending programs and activity after activity that we simply become too tired to enjoy it all. Unlike us, God knows how to do things decently and in order and He will not be hurried.

God won’t be hurried because He spends more time working on our contents than he does on our package.

God won’t be hurried because He spends more time working on success rather than rushing through our failures.

God won’t be hurried because He spends more time working on our climb to the level above rather than our fall to the level below.

God won’t be hurried because He spends more time trying to dry our tears than He does watching us crying our own rivers.

When the time was right, Jesus came as God’s gift to the world. John 3:16 says “For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life!”

When the time was right God sent Jesus into the world not like a king, with armies all around him and trumpets blowing, but as a little, tiny baby.

When the time was right Jesus came, born in a stable and laid in a manger.

When the time was right Jesus came as a small child born in poverty appeared to be marked who tagged as an “Article of no value.”

When the time was right the world found out that He gave us:

—Courage in the face of trial. Now they boldly say, “The LORD is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the LORD is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?” Psalm 27:1

—Satisfaction in times of want. “The Lord is my Shepherd and I shall not want.” Psalm 23:1

—Guiding Hand in times of darkness. “Guide me oh thou great Jehovah, pilgrim through the barren land!”

When the time was right, He carried old rugged cross!

When the time was right He was crucified on Calvary!

When the time was right He was buried in a borrowed tomb.

He did not get up on any of the three days and night He was in the grave but..

But Sunday morning the world discovered that the time was right and He arose from the dead with all power in his hands.!

Just as He waited until the time was right, we too must wait patiently for his imminent return, where He will tell each believer..”Servant, thou has been faithful over a few things, come on up and let me make you master of many!”

My Father's Will

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 2, 2009

SCRIPTURE: And this is the will of him that sent me, that every one which seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life: and I will raise him up at the last day. John 6:40

Introduction

Have you ever been mentioned in someone's will. How would it make you feel if you learned that a distant relative whom you had never seen had included you in his will? Suppose that relative left you a great inheritance but he placed conditions upon you receiving it? Would you still be interested? Most of us have read books or seen movies about people who suddenly learned about large inheritances due them by virtue of being named in someone's will; secretly some of us have dreamed how our lives would be different if we could get our hands on something more than what we have thanks a benefactor that made it possible for us.

A will is a written expression of a person's wishes concerning their property and assets. It gives instructions as to whom and when the property is to be given and it sometimes states conditions that must be made for the beneficiaries to receive the bequest.

We've heard of some famous wills in recent years.

Michael Jackson's will named his mother as guardian of his children, and gave three lawyers the power to handle his affairs of his almost $1 billion estate.

James Brown left his fortune to his six grown children and nothing to his five year old son, James Brown, Jr. or his mother.

Napoleon Bonaparte left his son his books, a saddle and a few items and left millions of dollars to a long list of friends and associates.

Walt Disney left the greater portion of his vast fortune to his wife and children.

Singer Isaac Hayes, left a good part of his fortune to the Isaac Hayes Foundation which will promote literacy, music, and nutrition.

Marilyn Monroe left a sum of $10,000 each to seven people, and $100,000 in a trust fund among other things.

Elvis Presley left his children as the beneficiaries of his fortune.

It's important to have a written will because often survivors make claims that the deceased wanted them to have the car, boat, television set, jewelry, money and other assets but no one heard those claims. Unless it's in writing no one knows for sure, just what the last will of a person may be; it may have been the will of a person at one time but it's the last will and testament that counts.

Did you know God has a written will he has written will in which he names his beneficiaries, spells out their inheritance and tells the conditions that must be met to claim their inheritance? In addition, God's will has intentionally left out some people; not everyone is included. Yet, there are some who will not claim what he has in store for them, because, they don't show up for the reading of the will, and don't meet the conditions he prescribed.

God's will is spelled out in a 66 book document called the bible. He has not only a will and testament, he has two testaments, an old and a new. A testament is an agreement. It's a promise of what God will do for his heirs, if they meet certain conditions.

As Christians, we should be especially concerned about executing God's will. He has offered us eternal life and blessings of paradise, but there are a few things we must do to be eligible to collect. It starts with faith and it ends with obedience. It's all in God's last will and testament.

Exposition

This text focuses on Christ explaining that any person who believes on Him will be saved because it is the will of God.

Verses 39-40 of this passage give a clear picture of God's will for all of mankind. His will is that we might be saved. Through every temptation, trial, trouble, setback or tragedy it is God's will that none would be lost. Jesus' words in John 6:39 are that "I should lose nothing." That means God desires that anyone who places himself in God's hands will not be abandoned or lost, regardless of circumstance.

God wills a most wonderful thing: Jesus shall save every true believer through all, even up until the final hour of the very last day—the day of the resurrection. The Lord's salvation is complete, ultimate, and final. No matter the trials, the heartaches, the hurts, the attacks of the enemy and the evil persecutors, Christ will save true believers and He will raise them up at the last day. God wills that His Son lose no one—saved right up to the point of being raised up at the last day.

Verse 40 also concerns God's will, but it differs from the former point in that it centers upon those who see and believe on Jesus. In the former verse the stress is upon God choosing those who come to Christ, whereas in this verse, the stress is upon man choosing Christ. If we choose to follow Him we are assured that we shall have eternal life.

Christ, carrying out his father's will, begins to detail to every follower what we must do to remain in his father's will. His words have been recorded and explained in the last will and testament given on earth, the New Testament. It contains, directions and instructions for believers about how to seek, find and walk in the will of God.

Our guarantee is that as long as we, in good faith, continue to trust God and live according to the parameters of His last will and testament, Christ will raise us up on the last day and present us heirs to the kingdom of God.

The will of God

FAITH GETS US IN THE WILL: There may be many people in a family and hundreds of close friends, but everyone is not named in a will. How do we get in God's will? Our faith gets us in the will. Everyone does not believe in God or that his Son Jesus died and was raised from the dead. The inheritance that God promises is not for everyone, only those who put their trust in Him. Faith alone, gets us named in the will. "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life" John 3:16. Through our faith we become children of God and God names all of his children in his will. Because we are children of God we can expect to be heirs. Romans 8:17 says, "And if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together."

WE CAN'T WRITE OUR OWN BEQUEST: We can't tell God what to put in the will for us. We can't write our own bequest. God's has a job for each of us today and a reward, but often we try to tell God what his will for us should be. A young man came to church alone and he wrote a note to God. The note said, "I would like to have success in career and finances. I would like to have perfect health, a beautiful wife, loving children and a life with few, If any problems. In return, I will worship and praise you, study your word, serve others in your name, give liberally to support kingdom work and living according to your direction." The young man left the paper under a bible on the altar where it could not be seen and went home. He prayed that God would reveal to him whether or not his requests and promises were acceptable. A week later, the young man was awakened in his sleep and told to return to the church and retrieved the paper. To his amazement the entire paper was blank. As he stared at the paper he seemed to hear the voice of God speak to him and say, "This is not the way. If you want to find my will for your life, just sign your name and leave the entire paper blank for me to fill in." Often we go to God, with a prepackaged will, waiting on him to sign off on it. We want success, riches, fame and many other things and we are asking him to endorse it. However, the humble saint does just the opposite. He comes to God with a blank agenda, saying show me the way you want me to go, and I'll do it for you. Spell it out in the will Lord, and I will obey your will.

OBEDIENCE KEEPS US IN THE WILL: Once we are saved by our faith in Christ, our next job is to live saved. Living a saved life means to live our lives according to the father's last will and testament, the bible. To stay in the will, we must love each other and treat each other with dignity and respect. Moreover, we cannot live immorally expect to remain in God's will. 1 Corinthians 6:9-11 says, "Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? Be not deceived: neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with mankind, Nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortion-ers, shall inherit the kingdom of God." We cannot live any way we choose and expect to remain in the will. If we shall not inherit the kingdom of God it means that we have removed ourselves from the will because we don't meet the conditions. Christ has the job of keeping us in the will and to deliver us on the last day. That means that He may have to discipline us to keep us in the will. Hebrews 12:6 says, " For whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth, and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth."

OUR PRAYERS ACKNOWLEDGE HIS WILL: Those who live by the will of God are always ware that God's will is what is important, not our will. Our will is always subservient to God's will. Phillip Brooks reminds us that every prayer has both a foreground and a background. "The foreground of prayer is the intense, immediate desire for a certain blessing which seems to be absolutely necessary for the soul to have; the background of prayer is the quiet, earnest desire that the will of God, whatever it may be, should be done." In the foreground we ask for a job, a promotion of special blessing, but in the background we also want the will of God to be executed regardless.

When God wills

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that unlike other wills that don't take effect until after you die, God's will is a living will.

The will of God makes promises to believers after this life is over, but the will of God, starts to act in the lives of believers on this side of heaven as well.

Those who live in God's will find that He often makes things happen that are not supposed to happen and open doors that would have ordinarily been closed.

When God wills, even empty cabinets can be filled again. That's what a widow woman learned when she was down to her last cup of meal and her last Cruz of oil. She found out that when it's the will of God that the barrel will never run dry.

When God wills, that which is lost can be found.

When God wills, those who are weak can find their strength again.

When God wills, those who are discouraged can find new inspiration.

When God wills, those who have fallen get up and start all over again.

When God wills, those who are confused find clarity and meaning.

When God wills, those who are separate and apart can be brought together again.

When God wills, those who have been the victims of life's tragedies will find restoration and joy.

Every believer should strive to stay in the will of God. If it is not God's will we don't want it. If it is God's will the world can't stop us from getting it, "Thy kingdom, that will be done."

Not only that what we watched him in the Garden of Gethsemane and heard Him to tell his father, "not my will but thy will be done."

It was God's will that He would carry an old rugged cross. It was God's will that he would die out on Calvary.

It was God's will that He would be buried in a borrowed tomb.

But it was also God's will that early Sunday morning that He who was buried in weakness would rise in strength!

It was God's will that He who was crucified in shame would be raised in everlasting glory!

And it's God will that He will come back again and be raised us up on the last day!

I don't know about you, but I want keep my life in God's will!

When a man Loves a Woman

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 9, 2009

SCRIPTURE: Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it; That he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the word,That he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish. So ought men to love their wives as their own bodies. He that loveth his wife loveth himself. For no man ever yet hated his own flesh; but nourisheth and cherisheth it, even as the Lord the church: For we are members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones. For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and shall be joined unto his wife, and they two shall be one flesh. This is a great mystery: but I speak concerning Christ and the church. Nevertheless let every one of you in particular so love his wife even as himself; and the wife see that she reverence her husband. Ephesians 5:25-33

Introduction

What happens when you love someone? There are millions of books, movies, stage plays and songs that all attempt to describe what happens when people love each other. It has been romanticized, politicized and fantasized, but still, after thousands of years of the debate the world seems no closer to defining in clear, succinct terms, what actually happens when we love someone.

Our natural curiosity regarding this subject draws our interest to anything that tries to answer the question. In 1966 Percy Sledge released a simple tune entitled, "When a man loves a woman." It became an immediate number one seller in the Billboard Top 100 and around the world people sang his tune. It seemed that every big star wanted their own version of the song including: Bette Midler, Esther Phillips, Kenny Rogers and even the legendary "Mae West." In 1991 Michael Bolton released it and won a Grammy Award.

What did the song say that makes it so popular more than 40 years after its release? What's the magic? Some of the lyrics of Sledge's song say:

When a man loves a woman
Can't keep his mind on nothing else
He'll trade the world
For the good thing he's found
If she's bad he can't see it

She can do no wrong
Turn his back on his best friend
If he put her down

When a man loves a woman
Spend his very last dime
Tryin' to hold on to what he needs
He'd give up all his comfort
Sleep out in the rain
If she said that's the way it ought to be

Today, there is still a natural curiosity about what it means to really love someone. There are understandably different kinds of love. The first that comes to mind is romantic love (Eros) that happens between people of the opposite sex. There is the kind of love that develops in friendship or brotherly love (Philia). There is biological love between sisters and brothers, parents and children (Sturge). Then there is unconditional love that that exists even if it is mistreated, wronged or not returned. It's called "Agape" or Godly love.

The world has searched for centuries to discover what happens when we are truly loved, but the answer has been in front of us, in the written word of God for centuries. God has given us the clearest definition of real love that we can see and the best example to follow.

When we are really loved, we are loved as God loves, unconditionally in ways that are indefatigable, inexhaustible, limitless and boundless.

As Christians we know that God has given us an example of real love. He gave his only begotten son that we should have everlasting life. Christ went the way of the cross so that we could have eternal life. It was an example of what it means to really be loved.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he compares the way Christ loves the church to the way a man loves a woman.

The church is often referred to as a Bride of Christ. As such, Christ loves her and demonstrates His love for her through his words and deeds.

The entire passage spells out the manner that a man will show his love for a woman and conversely how a woman will show her love for a man.

Men in a relationship are told to style the way they love their wives after the way Christ demonstrated his love for the Church. Men are commanded to love their wives as they love themselves.

Since a Christian man represents Christ in his home, the way he responds, reacts, provides for and protects his wife is an example of the way that Christ does the same for the church.

The text says clearly, when a man loves a woman, he loves her with the same passion that Christ showed for the church which was to stand at very gates of death to deliver her and raise her up.

How does a man love a woman?

Today, there are many men who simply do not know what is expected of them as Christian husbands. To some their role is to be a roommate, pay half the bills, and be served. Others have learned that being a Christian husband is an awesome responsibility because they represent the way Christ would respond to his wife, which is the church. There are millions of Christian men are doing it right; some are still struggling to learn just how a Christian man loves a woman.

In that respect, Christian men could very well present every woman with a four point check list for their relationship. A single Christian man should remember that if he is dating a Christian woman she is double checking this list in the back of her mind.

THE CHRISTIAN MAN WHO LOVES A WOMAN DESIRES TO LIVE A CHRIST CENTERED LIFE. The first and most important of the six items on the how to love a woman for the Christian man is his desire to live a Christ centered life. A Christ centered life is a life that is rooted in the principles of faith, honesty, integrity, strength, loyalty, industry, respect, service, and worship. If he does not desire to live a life that represents these virtues then the prospect of having a successful Christian marriage is doomed from the start. The bible warns against striking up relationships with women who do not know Christ. 2 Corinthians 6:14 says, "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness?" Being a Christian means more than just going to church occasionally, it means that you embrace the Christian lifestyle and have a personal relationship with Christ.

A Christian man is looking for a woman to love like Christ loves the Church, but she too must desire to fellowship with Christ and let herself be loved by a real godly man.

WHEN A CHRISTIAN MAN LOVES A WOMAN SHE HAS NOTHING TO FEAR: A man who loves a woman insures that she feels safe in his presence. The feeling of safety involves both the internal and external. External safety involves those outside of their home that may injure her. A man who loves a woman protects her reputation, and to the best of his ability protects her from hurt harm and danger. Internally, his wife feels safe to share her fears and doubts with him. Her true feelings about life and the world are safe with him. She feels that her secrets are secure with him and will not be trampled upon or ridiculed. She also feels physically safe with him knowing that he will not abuse her or misuse her, cheat her, short change or belittle her character or reputation in the eyes of her children. When a man loves a woman in this way he builds the relationship to perfection. 1 John 4:17-18 says, "Herein is our love made perfect, that we may have boldness in the day of judgment: because as he is, so are 'we in this world. There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear: because fear hath torment."

WHEN A CHRISTIAN MAN LOVES A WOMAN HE IS WILLING TO SACRIFICE HIS LIFE AND EVEN HIS CAREER FOR HER. When Ephesians 5:25 says "and gave himself for it" it spells out the spirit of sacrifice that exists when a man loves a woman. The Greek word used for "gave" means to willingingly surrender or deliver. Since the text is intentionally meant to compare the Christian man to Christ then it means that the Christian man who loves a woman is willing to deliver or surrender his life, career or personal pursuit to help his wife survive and thrive. There have been many men who have not received their full education because they worked two and three jobs so that their wives could reach higher. There are many who have backed away from power to stand by their wives. Recently, a United States Congressman resigned because the responsibilities of the job were keeping him away from his duties to his wife and family, political critics chuckled at that as an excuse, but in reality there are many men who refuse to take jobs in other cities, accept promotions on the job, or back away from power because it would diminish their ability to be friend, lover and supporter of their wives. A man who loves a woman like Christ loves the church, puts her interests first, and makes sure that she knows it. He will stand by her when life gets tough, when she is afraid or weak. He will support her when she is vulnerable. He will sacrifice his own pleasure to insure that she has what is needed to be happy, safe and secure.

WHEN A CHRISTIAN MAN LOVES A WOMAN HE SANCTIFIES HER: Fidelity is a key part of any relationship. A man who loves a woman does not dishonor her by soiling their relationship. Ephesians 5:26-27 spells it out using the word "sanctify" which means to set apart as special. A man who loves a woman in the context of this text does not soil his marriage with impurities that blemish, wrinkle or otherwise spoil a marriage. He does not run around on her, cheat or defile the marriage bed. The married Christian man loves his wife both emotionally and physically and satisfies her needs. He sets himself aside for her and her alone. A single man who dates a woman keeps her in high honor until they are married. Since the way he acts as a single man is a rehearsal for the marriage to come, he does not cheat or play the field in his dating relationship either. We are encouraged to love our wives as we love ourselves. Ephesians 5:28 " So ought men to love their wives as their own bodies. He that loveth his wife loveth himself."

It's not too late

Finally, brothers and sisters every man should know that if he does not know how love a woman like Christ loves the church, it's not too late to learn.

If a man has fallen short is it too late? If he has been married for many years but his wife still gives him a failing grade on this four point check list, what can he do?

Then he might take a page from a song Barbara Mason recorded in 1965 entitled, "Yes, I'm Ready." The lyrics said:

I don't even know how to love you
Just the way you want me to
But I'm ready [ready] to learn (to learn)
Yes, I'm ready [ready] to learn (to learn)
To fall in love, to fall in love, to fall in love with you

When a man loves a woman like Christ loved the church he first gets to know God for himself. He can't love a woman unless he knows God because God is love.

When a man knows God, the way he loves starts to change.

The love of God differs from the love of men. The love of a man who does not know God is often superficial and shallow and is hinged upon performance.

Love of this kind is marked by the word "Because.."

—Because you are there when I need you; I love you.

—Because you buy me gifts on special occasions, I love you.

—Because you're always by my side, I love you.

—Because you work so hard to make me comfortable, I love you.

There is a danger in this kind of love because it says if you ever stop cleaning up, buying me gifts or standing by my side, I won't love you any more.

When a man loves a woman, he doesn't use the word "because" that has limitations, but he uses the word "although" which is unconditional.

When a man loves a woman he says, "Although."

—Either of us is perfect, I love you anyway!

—Sometimes we don't see eye to eye, I Love you anyway!

—We don't have all of things we'd like to have, I love you anyway!

—We don't look the way we did a few years ago, we love each other anyway!

It's a good thing to love a woman, but it's an even better thing to love a woman like Christ loved the Church. It's a good thing because his wife is no longer alone.

When a man loves a woman he says:

—If trials come our way, we'll go through it together!

—If there are burdens to bear, we'll bear them together!

—If there are disappointments to face, we'll face them together!

—If there are joyous moments to be shared, we will share them together!

Now, Jesus showed us one last thing. Jesus said in John 15:13 "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for His friends. "

Yes, Jesus loves me! Because the bible tells me that one day He picked up an old rugged cross and died for me out on Calvary's hill!

..But early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave loving me every day, every step of the way!

When a Woman Loves a Man

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 16, 2009

SCRIPTURE: Submitting yourselves one to another in the fear of God. Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord. For the husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the church: and he is the saviour of the body. Therefore as the church is subject unto Christ, so let the wives be to their own husbands in every thing. Ephesians 5:21-24

Introduction

What is it like to really be loved? Can you answer that question? There are millions today who speak of relationships, dates, boyfriends, girlfriends, romances, and one night stands. They know about instant gratification, good feeling and emotional highs, but only a few of them have ever known the joy and satisfaction that comes from being truly loved.

True love is patient, kind, gentle, and enduring. True love is hard shelled against adversity and soft shelled, forgiving and merciful in the face of weakness. Many are blessed with semblances, look-a-likes and clones of love, but those who have experienced the real thing probably embraced the words of Marvin Gaye and Tammy Terrell when they sang, "Ain't nothing like the real thing."

A man who enjoys the love of a woman is blessed. If he makes a godly woman his wife the bible says in Proverbs 18:22, "Whoso findeth a wife findeth a good thing, and obtaineth favour of the LORD." He finds favor because a Christian woman knows how to love a man in ways that elevate him, strengthen him and glorify him before the Lord. In fact there are millions today who maintain that a man is not a real Christian man until is the recipient of the love of a Christian woman.

James Brown said, "This is a man's world, but it wouldn't be nothing without a woman or a girl."

There is no denial that a man is full and complete when he knows the love of a real Christian woman; because she knows God and God is love.

When a woman loves a man she loves him as God loves, unconditionally and in ways that are indefatigable, inexhaustible, limitless and boundless. She loves him as the Church loves Christ, fully, totally and undefiled.

A single woman reads scripture to learn how to love as God loves. A married Christian woman steps closer to the ideal of godly love every day with perfection as her goal.

It is not easy loving a man like the Church loves Christ, but when a woman loves a man with all the passion and inspiration that the spirit of God can stir; she will take his breath away.

As Christians we know that God has given us an example of real love. He gave his only begotten son that we should have everlasting life. Christ went the way of the cross so that we could have eternal life. It was an example of what it means to really be loved.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he encourages partners in a relationship to subject themselves to one another with obedience to Christ as the main focus.

The 5th chapter of Ephesians addresses the relationship of men and women to each in marriage. For those who are single, it gives a standard of expectation by which potential partners can be measured.

The chapter points to men as types of Christ in a relationship and women as types of the Church. Men are to relate to their wives as Christ relates to his bride which is the church: Provide for her, protect her, sanctify her, and to sacrifice for her. Wives are to relate to their husbands as the Church would to Christ.

A greater appreciation of this text is gained if we back up to verse 17 first. Beginning at verse 17 the atmosphere and attitude of a Christian household is described.

Ephesians 5:17 says, “Be ye not unwise, but understanding what the will of the Lord is.” It means that in a Christian household both Husband and wife wisely seek the will of the Lord for their family and relationship. This also applies to Christian singles; both partners seek the will of their lord for the dating relationship.

Ephesians 5:18 encourages both parties of the relationship to sober in mind and body, not intoxicated with drink, drugs or other hallucinogens. A Christian relationship is filled with the Spirit of God.

Ephesians 5:19 describes the atmosphere in a Christian relationship, it is one filled with singing and praise and positive words where each builds up the other in the glory of the Lord. Thanking God continuously for all that he has done and will do.

A key element to the Christian relationship is verse 21. Ephesians 5:21 says, “Submitting yourselves one to another in the fear of God.” It means that each one makes themselves accountable to the other to insure both operate in the will of God, to insure that neither of them strays.

Verses 17-22 paint a picture of a marriage or relationship that is sober in mind and body, in which both partners seek to build up each other in words of praise and song, thanking God for his blessing and seeking his will. In addition, it is the picture of a relationship in which partners count on each other for correction if they begin to stray. In the context of verses 17-21, we note Ephesians 5:22, “Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord.”

When a woman loves such a man, he feels strong, empowered and lifted.

When a Christian woman loves a Christian man, he feels the earth shake in his soul. He is committed to her, body and soul because there is no joy he'll ever know greater than that he'll experience when a Christian woman loves her man.

How does a woman love her man?

Today, there are many women who simply do not know what is expected of them as Christian wives. To some their role is to be a roommate, pay half the bills, and serve. Others have learned that being a Christian wife is much more because they represent the way the Church would respond to her husband, which is the Christ. There are millions of Christian women are doing it right and some are still struggling to learn just how a Christian woman loves a man.

In that respect, Christian women could very well present every man with a four point check list for their relationship. A single Christian woman should remember that if she is dating a man, she should be double checking this list in the back of her mind.

THE CHRISTIAN WOMAN WHO LOVES A MAN DESIRES TO LIVE A CHRIST CENTERED LIFE. The first and most important of the four items on the "how to love a man list" for the Christian woman is her desire to live a Christ centered life. A Christ centered life is a life that is rooted in the principles of faith, honesty, integrity, strength, loyalty, industry, respect, service, and worship. A Christian wife desires to represent the role of the Church in her marriage and sees her husband as representing Christ. If, for any reason, she does not see herself as the kind of woman who can represent the role of baptized believers before God then she will find it literally impossible to love a man as the Church loves Christ. If she is a Christian woman she will find it almost impossible to assume her biblical role if the man she marries or shares her relationship with does not live a Christ centered life. She can love him if he's not a Christian but it will be a difficult task because he does not see himself as a type of Christ. Although he may respect her religious views he does not see her as a type of the church in the relationship. A Christian woman is looking for a man she can love and relate to freely, like the Church does to Christ. A man who finds such a woman truly finds a "good thing."

WHEN A CHRISTIAN WOMAN LOVES A MAN SHE WILL SHARE HIS INTERESTS: A woman who loves a man shares his dreams, goals and interests. She uses every skill in her repertoire to help him achieve his dreams, attain his goals and pursue his interests. She becomes his life partner in every respect. His dream becomes her dream. His goal becomes her goal and whatever he's interested in whether its football, racing cars, weight lifting or planting flowers; whatever attracts his interest becomes her interest as well.

When a woman loves a man she learns his language and communicates with him in a language he understands. Gary Chapman in his book, "The Five Love Languages" suggests that couples grow stronger when they communicate in a language they both understand: The five he listed are: 1)Words of admiration. Some men respond well to truthful compliments and words of support. 2) Quality time. There are some men who are at their best when they are doing what they like to do, they talk, laugh and are open. Women who know how to love men learn quickly that for some men, this is when they communicate best, the walls are down and talk comes freely. 3) Visual Symbols. Some men need visual symbols. When a woman loves a man she may often give him symbols of love such as a gift, but more often she gives herself to him; she's there for him when he's low, hurting or alone and there for him when he is celebrating and victorious. Her presence is a language he understands. 4) Acts of love. A woman who loves a man finds ways to demonstrate her love through acts of service he appreciates. This is not servitude because it is not forced or demanded but done out of love. When it is done it opens a door of communication that will never close. 5) Physical touch. A woman who loves a man knows how and when her man needs to be touched. She knows when he needs a hug, a touch, a kiss or intimacy and freely shares. Many marriages have died because one partner or the other refused or underestimated the value of the physical touch.

WHEN A CHRISTIAN WOMAN LOVES A MAN SHE IS WILLING TO LET HIM LEAD. When Ephesians 5:22 says "submit yourselves to your own husbands" it spells out the spirit of followship of the Christian woman. In household where husband and wife routinely hold follow each other in areas of their expertise, it is not difficult for a Christian woman to follow the leadership of a man who is prayed up, trying to follow God's will and loves her like Christ loves the Church. In fact, there are millions of Christian women who even encourage their husbands to lead by refusing to make decisions unless he makes the final call. When a woman loves a man she pays no attention to what the feminist say; that she should exercise her sense of authority and not be relegated to a secondary role. The Christian woman does not see following her husband's lead as demeaning, but as enhancement of her role in the marriage to represent the church in the relationship. The Church follows Christ. It may pray and ask for one direction or another, but in the end, the church says, "Where is leads, I'll follow. I'll go with him, with him all the way."

WHEN A CHRISTIAN WOMAN LOVES A MAN SHE LOVES HIM ONLY: Fidelity is a key part of any relationship. A woman who loves a man does not dishonor him by soiling their relationship. She does not cheat on him or otherwise defile the marriage bed. The married Christian woman loves her husband and has no desire to share what she gives to him with others or to advertise or flirt with others in ways that may infringe on something that is his and his alone. Ephesians 5:22 and 24 both contain the phrase "own husband." Verse 24 ends with "in everything." It means that everything about him is for him and him only. Her desire is to please him only. She dresses for him, and not for others. She parades herself before him and not before others. She reveals herself to him and not before others.

You must Love The Lord

Finally, brothers and sisters every woman should know that it will be difficult to love and follow her husband if she has not learned to love and follow the Lord.

There are many marriages and relationships today that are "on the rocks" instead of standing on the rock.

Many relationships are breaking up today because either the husband has not been assuming the role of Christ in the family or the wife has not been responding to her husband like Church would to Christ.

A woman who loves the Lord wants a man who will love her like Christ loves the church.

A woman who loves the Lord is above all others:

Adam had eve; Abraham had Sarah; Isaac had Rebekah;

Jacob had Rachel; Boaz had Ruth

But Christ had the church!

Church shows every woman how to love a man by showing us how to love the Lord!

When we really love the Lord, he responds to us.

When we love the Lord, In times of:

—CRISES he becomes our comfort: WEAKNESS he becomes our strength;

—ANXIETY he becomes our assurance; DANGER he becomes our refuge;

—ADVERSITY he becomes our shelter; FEAR he becomes our courage;

—LONELINESS he becomes our friend; SICKNESS he becomes our doctor;

—DIFFICULTY he becomes our inspiration; SORROW he becomes our joy

When a woman knows the Lord, it's easy to love man who acts like him.

When a woman loves a man who loves her like Christ loves the church she'll stand by him: In sickness and in health, for better or for worse, if he doesn't have a dime in his pocket, she'll stay right there, with the help of the Lord.

A woman who loves a man says the same thing to her godly husband that she says to the Lord:

"I love you in the morning!

"I love you in the noon day!

"I love you in the midnight"

We love the Lord because one day he picked up an old rugged cross and died for me out on Calvary's hill!

I love him because early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave!

Oh how I love Jesus, because he first loved me!

When Singles Love Each Other

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

August 23, 2009

SCRIPTURE: "Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another." 1 John 4:11

Introduction

We have an idea how married couples love each other, but how do singles love? That's a question that troubles many Christian singles as they try to sort out what it means to be Christian, single and free.

Christian singles covers a large category of individuals that ranges from high schoolers, to college students, young adults, widows and widowers and even senior citizens. There are millions of single Christians who read the rules in the bible about marriage and family but struggle to decipher what the bible says about the single Christian life.

There is a considerable amount of misinformation given to Christian singles that has caused confusion among many and has prompted others to fall away from the faith. This has happened primarily because of what we have seen in the movies, read in books and witnessed in music videos. Singles are portrayed as wild and loose, ready to get drunk and dive into bed with the first person they see of the opposite sex. Their are millions of others who make marriage promises to each other and start playing house before they walk down the isle. That's the Hollywood picture. However, there are millions of Christian singles who are being led by the Holy Spirit in their relationships as they attempt to present themselves as holy vessels of God.

There are two kinds of singles: Christian singles and worldly singles. A worldly single is a person who defines love biologically and responds physically. A Christian single is a person whose life is dedicated to the leadership of the Holy Spirit.

A worldly single thinks about "self" and seldom considers the other person. A Christian single thinks about "the other person" and whether or not God would be satisfied with any action taken. Put another way: A worldly single gets in a fast car with a friend and drives 120 miles an hour on a straightway just to see how fast he can go. A Christian single considers what could happen to others if there is a crash and is always aware that there is a speed cop on the highway watching for speeders. One doesn't care but just wants to please himself. The other is concerned about how others will be affected and what God thinks.

Singles search the scripture to learn how to love as God loves. A single man wants

God to be pleased with his actions. A single woman wants to please God first, by demonstrating her ability deny herself for him.

As Christians, we know that God showed us how to love. It is an all encompassing love that never lets go. Singles try their best to emulate that love in their lives leaving it up to Him to guide their steps day by day.

Exposition

This text focuses on John as he encourages individuals to love God and one another.

All believers are encouraged to love God and to obey Him. The idea of the text is that those who love God will desire to carry out His commandments and to help others to do the same.

The text lays out the principle that those who have been saved by the blood of Jesus love differently than others. They try to love is God loves and therefore relate to one another as a mirror of that love

God loves the world with an unconditional love that prompted sacrifice. Those who follow His example love each other the same way.

The ideal relationship state of a Christian is to be a single person who is free to love others they way God loves, in word and deed. In 1 Corinthians 7:32 Paul says that the single believer is free to spread the love of God and serve the kingdom without responsibilities that come with marriage. Those who marry, said Paul, have "worldly troubles" or increased responsibilities. These responsibilities decrease one's ability and availability to respond to the outreach and evangelistic needs of the church.

Single living makes it easier to put the love of the kingdom and service to others at the top of our priority lists.

John and Paul both underscore the importance of singles loving one another. However, the love that is spoken of is not an erotic love but one that shows concern, compassion, friendship and empathy with others to the extent of personal sacrifice.

Paul notes that when that love goes beyond the areas of: service, compassion, friendship and empathy and becomes erotic in nature, it's time to get married. If, in the process of sharing, friendships singles become erotically inclined 1 Corinthians 7:9 says they should marry. "But if they cannot contain, let them marry: for it is better to marry than to burn."

How do singles love each other?

Today, there are millions of singles who interact with each other in loving ways. They listen to each other, help each other, defend each other and sacrificially serve each other. That's the way God loves. So, how do singles love each other? Consider that:

THE CHRISTIAN SINGLE HAS A CHRIST CENTERED APPROACH TO ROMANCE. Christian singles are those who have turned their lives over to Christ and as a result their entire approach to love has changed. Because Christian singles place their lives in God's hands they have a different view of love, purity, and the freedoms associated with being single. Before becoming Christians, singles concerned themselves with what felt good for themselves and they were consumed with thoughts of passion and romance. A saved single brings a different attitude into a relationship that is not so much about "having a good time" as it is an opportunity to love another person as God loves: from the soul rather than from the body.

CHRISTIAN SINGLES SEEK FRIENDS NOT LOVERS: Those who are Christians should seek friendship not romantic encounters. The way the world sees relationships is for a woman to see a fine hunk of a man and desire to strike up a romantic relationship with him. A man sees what the Ohio Players once called a "Brick House" and starts fantasying about romance. The Christian single is different. The Christian single seeks friendship and fellowship; romantic encounters are not a consideration. Friends talk, share, support, and engage each other intellectually and communicate frequently. Friends share secrets, faith and weaknesses. Friends work together for a common cause and enjoy each other's company. It's possible for a person to be a lover without being a friend. Friends can love each other with a godly love without being lovers, if friendship is the real purpose of the relationship.

Christian singles protect themselves against the weakness of the flesh, because it is possible and highly likely that friendships can lean to erotic attractions. To guard against passionate weaknesses Joshua Harris, in his book "I kissed dating goodbye" warns that Christian singles should avoid romantic dates because they present too many opportunities for temptation. He asks, "How many times can you lick a Tootsie Roll before you get to the crunch?" If you keep licking sooner or later it will be crunch time.

So singles should: 1) Avoid Premature intimacy. Avoid situations that will encourage intimacy outside of marriage. Associate with friends of the opposite sex in "social units" of three or more sharing people. 2) Serve others with others. Friends share through service to others. They feed the homeless, help the poor, stand for a cause with others. In the sharing, friendships often develop but the presence of others keeps the line clear. Moreover, sharing in social units with a godly purpose helps singles to honor and respect each other. Romans 12:10 says we should "Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love; in honor preferring one another." Our friendships should honor God and they should honor the persons with whom we share them. Seek friends not lovers.

CHRISTIAN SINGLES MUST GUARD THEIR HEARTS: A Christian single loves God with all of his/her heart, body and soul. For that reason singles must protect themselves from falling away from the love of God. They must guard their hearts. 1 John 2:15-16 reminds us that we should love God and avoid loving like the world loves. Look at 1 John 2:16. It describes how the world loves, "For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world." To guard against lust of eyes and ears Christian singles must avoid things and situations that open this door. Watching lusty videos and music that arouses your erotic passions stirs passions that can get out of control. Listening to erotic and sexually suggestive music has the same effect. It opens the door to the heart. Once opened it is hard to close. Just as lust can open the door to our hearts, many singles have plunged into relationships out of feelings of loneliness. They see their friends with mates that seem to be happy and start feeling worse off. Soon, they jump into the first relationship they see and start taking the wrapper off the Tootsie-Roll.

It is difficult to guard your heart; often the spirit is willing but the flesh is weak. That's why Christian singles pray regularly and associate with other Christian singles who are sharing the same experience. If we are not careful to stay prayed up our hearts can condemn us. 1 John 3:20 says God is greater than our hearts and he knows everything. The best way to guard your heart is to stay prayed up.

WHEN SINGLES SENSE EROTIC ATTRACTIONS THEY PREPARE TO MARRY OR BREAK OFF: When friendship moves from agape relationships into erotic relationships, it is then time for singles to plan their marriage or break off. When the partner starts to arouse romantic interest that's when the Christian single pulls out the check list to see if the person to whom they are attracted is a desirable mate. Prayerfully evaluate the person on the issues of life that are lasting; not those that appeal to life eye or passion. Josh Harris suggests that we should: 1) Evaluate a person's character not their looks or body. Looks change but character is enduring. A good rule of thumb is ask yourself can you love the way the person will look 30 years from now. For a glimpse, look at their parents, they will one day look just like them. 2) Evaluate Person's relationship to God. 2 Corinthians 6:14 warns us not to be unequally yoked. A person who does not share your love of God will pain you in the years ahead. 3) Evaluate how he/she deals with other people. If the person has trouble respecting authority, is argumentative and domineering he/she may have difficulty holding a job or even submitting to God's will 4) Evaluate his/her friends. Your prospective will be influence by the actions of his/her friends. How they act and what they value and how they have fun will influence him/her 5) evaluate his/her personal discipline. Watch how he/her uses money, spends time and whether or not they are preoccupied with what others think. 6) Evaluate Attitude. Assess the person's attitude about following God's will, humility, work and contentment.

If you are attracted to a person but cannot see yourself marrying the person, then break it off. Don't waste time in a relationship that is going nowhere. Whatever you do, don't unwrap the Tootsie Roll.

You must Love The Lord

Finally, brothers and sisters we must consider that the ultimate goal of any relationship is to love like God loves.

Because God loves us unconditionally, He is a forgiving God.

Because God is a forgiving God we may have messed up in our past, but he gives us another chance.

There are many singles who became intimate too early and made mistakes. Thank God for grace; because of grace God gave us all a second chance.

Our goal today should be to love more like God loves and less like ourselves.

If we loved like God loves we would have:

-A little more peace and little less confusion;

-A little more gratitude and little less ungratefulness;

-A little more prayer and little less lip service;

-A little more compassion and a little less heartlessness;

-A little more real Christian love and little less imitation;

-A little more "do as I do" and little less "do as I say"

-A little more "bended knee" and little less "crooked hearts"

Every day we should demonstrate the love of God through our willingness to honor our partner and not cause him/her to sin.

We should wait before we become intimate because the bible says, "They that wait on the Lord shall renew their strength, they shall mount up on wings as eagles. They shall run and not be weary, they shall walk and not faint.

We should demonstrate love through our acts and deeds but not consummate love until we have made the ultimate commitment before God.

That's what God did for us. He demonstrated love through acts and deeds, and then Christ came and made the ultimate sacrifice.

God showed his love:

-When he opened the Red Sea for Israel to cross on dry land.

-When he rained down bread from heaven for them in the wilderness.

-When he made the sun stand still for Joshua in the Canaan land.

-When he woke me up this morning, and clothed me in my right mind!

-When he showed compassion on me and put food on my table!

"God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son..."

One evening on a hill called Calvary God showed His love!

But early Sunday morning, we saw the life giving power of his grace!

When He got up that Sunday morning He gave us all a new song to sing, "Love lifted me!"Love lifted me! When nothing else could help love lifted me!

What's in your Back Pack?

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

A Parable Sermon

August 30, 2009

SCRIPTURE: Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light. "Matthew 11:28-30

Introduction

Have you ever carried a heavy load? Have you ever wished that there was a way that you could lighten your load or at least get a little help carrying it? Each person carries a load of burdens. The burdens are associated with what we call life and the things we think we need to survive.

Each of us carries a back pack, much like the back pack that children carry to school. Just like those back packs, our back backs are often filled with things that make us uncomfortable. The pack itself is not heavy, it's what's in the back packs that make them so heavy.

As Christians we should consider giving our what's in our back packs to Jesus. He has promised to make them lighter.

Exposition

In Matthew 11:28-30 Jesus tried to explain to believers that faith in Him lightens our load and gives even greater satisfaction. He told them to take his yoke upon them because His burden is light. The people knew what Jesus referred to because they were farmers. They knew that yokes were used by animals to pull wagons. Sometimes people placed yokes on their shoulders to help them carry large loads. The yokes often became heavy. Jesus applied the heavy yokes idea to people who tried to be happy by obeying the hundreds of items in the law without really knowing God. The bible also refers to sin as a great yoke upon us too.

In both cases Jesus asks every believer to let him give them a lighter load, but of course it would mean they would have to take a chance on him, and let go of the world.

The Parable

Two strangers met three men and gave them the opportunity to be completely happy. Each one was given a back pack that was to contain their future. They were warned that their happiness would be determined by whether they held on or let go. Each of them smiled as the back packs were filled one at a time with bricks that they could exchange for happiness when they reached the end of the journey. Each was given a large brick for riches, fame, success, partying, possessions, popularity, and power. They were all excited because they had in the packs everything that could guarantee them full happiness. As they began the journey the weight of the packs became a problem. At first they noticed it but did not worry about it because they were strong. After a while the weight the weight of the packs began to bother them a little. The straps began to cut into their shoulders. They leaned forward to try to distribute the weight, but still they walked on. The more they walked the heavier the backpacks became. When they sat down the packs made them uncomfortable, they squirmed in their seats often and could never quite settle in because the back packs took up so much space.

Noticing that they were struggling with the packs the second stranger offered to take their packs from them and store them away. Instantly, they remembered their warning that their happiness would be determined by whether they held on or let go. Each of them refused to let go of their packs. Their faces began to weary as each step they made seemed to become harder and harder. It was not the steps, it was the weight of their load.

As they walked they were given a chance to remove some of the items. They opened their bags and looked and considered the contents. What should they remove? Riches weighed the most but they could not imagine happiness without lots of money. Neither could there be happiness without partying, lots of possessions and popularity. As they pondered what to remove they remembered the warning again that their happiness would be determined by whether they held on or let go.

As the days passed they slumped in their walk, and seldom smiled. The back packs had became a heavy burden that constantly troubled them. They were supposed to bring happiness at some point but they were causing so many problems. Everywhere they went the backpacks got in the way.

The second stranger came one last time and spoke to each of them one at a time. “Give me your back pack and you take mine; then your journey will be easier,” said the stranger. “No,” responded the first , if I let go I’ll lose my happiness.” When he approached the second he received a similar response, “No, I know it’s heavy but I’m willing to bear it all to get happiness.”

The stranger said, “The pack you have is very heavy because it represents a life without God. It promises happiness but without God happiness can never be achieved. You may never know who your real friends are, you will never know real peace and joy. The pack is so heavy that you will never really know God. This pack represents all of your sins.”

However, the third man felt the weight of the load. Like the others he wanted happiness but the load was heavy. He decided to swap back packs with the stranger. Instantly he noticed that the new pack looked like the old one but it was lighter, much lighter.

The man asked, "Is there anything in this pack? Am I losing my chance at happiness?"

The stranger said, "This is a 6:33 lite pack."

"I've never heard of a 6:33 lite pack. What's that?"

"It's from Matthew 6:33 "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness and all of the these things will be added unto you."

The man thought: this pack is too light is there anything in it?" The stranger told the man to look in the pack. He found several pieces of fruit. He held them up one at a time as he said, "This 6:33 lite pack is loaded with 5:22's."

"What's 5:22's," asked the man

"It's from Galatians 5:22-23 "But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, Meekness, and temperance.

The stranger said, "You seek happiness, but the pursuit of happiness requires you to carry a very heavy load. The pack that I present you offers you joy instead. Joy in the little things, peace of mind, the ability to endure tough times with a spirit of compassion and humility. I present you the wisdom to be temperate to know when to hold on and when to let go. I present you faith in God; with that faith you can achieve the impossible."

The stranger then took the man's heavy pack and placed it on his back. When the other two men noticed this they wanted lite packs too. They gave the stranger their packs too. And he carried them away over his shoulder and on his back.

Somewhere up the road they heard the crowds shouting "Crucify him!" The three men looked through the crowd and saw the second stranger carrying an old rugged cross. They were whipping him and pushing him and he often fell down. That cross was heavy, but it was even heavier because the stranger carried on his shoulder three back packs that contained all of their sins! He could have taken them off but he didn't.

The men were sad when they learned that he died but Sunday morning, they were excited. Early Sunday morning they learned that he had risen from dead, ready to show millions of others how to lighten their load.

They saw him standing before them with outstretched hands but he didn't have their back packs? What happened to their backpacks?

Then they looked at the cross on the hills and saw them nailed to that cross.

He took their heavy load and nailed it to the cross!

He took their sins and nailed them to the cross!

And now he announces to the word "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.

The Gift of Godly Grandparents

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

September 13, 2009

SCRIPTURE: For thou, O God, hast heard my vows: thou hast given me the heritage of those that fear thy name. Psalm 61:5 "The daughters of Zelophehad speak right: thou shalt surely give them a possession of an inheritance among their father's brethren; and thou shalt cause the inheritance of their father to pass unto them." Numbers 27:7

Introduction

Each of us has four grandparents; have we ever stopped to think how differently our lives would be today, if none of them knew the Lord? It's possible for one or two of our grandparents not to know God, but the fact that at least one of the four knew God has made a great impact on our lives. It was our grandparents who, in many instances, influenced our parents to know, fear and worship the Lord. Our parents in turn had a strong influence on our lives. If all four of our grandparents lived outside of the faith, there is no doubt we would be different people today.

There are some of us who were not reared in the presence of our biological grandparents, but we fell under the influence of those godly men and women who acted as god-parents, for our sake. These were men and women who were not our blood relatives but for all practical purposes were our grandparents because they brought us before God and kept us under his protection and favor.

What would have been our direction without them? If your grandparents had not tried to teach godly values in their homes, what are the odds that your parents would have learned them own their own? If at least one of your parents had not known the power of God and insisted on family members worshipping together and living godly lives, where would you be today?

When we think about it, God has blessed us tremendously by giving us at least one godly parent or grandparent. Those who have had four godly grandparents, and even more when great-grandparents are counted in the number, should rejoice today because it is obvious that God started laying the ground work for blessing us long before we were born and He is doing it today through the godly heritage that we have inherited.

Grandparents have been the source of strength of every godly family because they are seen as the unmovable models of godliness in the family circle. It has not been easy for them to accomplish this goal because preserving the family has cost many of them their good health, fortune and the best years of their lives. Godly grandparents are the living gift to their children and grandchildren that seems to keep on giving.

All of that giving leaves its mark. Consider the little girl who watched her mother ironing clothes. For nearly 15 minutes she stared strangely at her mother but never said a word. Suddenly she notice that her mother has several strands of white hair in her head. There were only about four or five of them but yet they were there. The girl then asked her mother, "Why are some of your hairs white, Mama?" Her mother replied,

"Well, every time that you do something wrong and make me cry or unhappy, one of my hairs turns white. Remember, when you took that dollar bill out of my purse and said you didn't do it? One of my hairs turn white after that. Remember when you and your brother were fighting and you almost blinded him? Another one of my hairs turned white after that. It looks like every time you made me cry or worry another white hair appeared on my head." The little girl thought about that for a minute, then she ran into the next room and stared at her grandmother's head. She quickly ran back and said, "Wow, mama; I just looked at grandma's head and all the hairs on her head are white. You must have been something else!"

Actually, the bible says in Proverbs 16:31 " The hoary head is a crown of glory, if it be found in the way of righteousness." A head full of white hair is not a sign that someone has made someone cry, but it is a sign of a wise and godly centered life; especially if the person who wears it has the age an experience that accompanies such a prize.

As Christians, we recognize that among the many ways that God has blessed us is that he placed us in a family that has been influenced by one or more godly grandparents. Thanks to that rich godly heritage we now know the Lord ourselves and prepare to face each day with the boldness that comes from possessing a godly heritage.

Exposition

This text focuses on David as he pledges perpetual service to God in response to the godly heritage he was given.

In a moment of solitude David reflected on all the good deeds God performed for him in his life: protecting him and providing for him. He noted in Psalm 61:2 that God has been a high rock for his inspiration. In Psalm 61:3 he noted that God had been a shelter and a strong tower of protection against his enemies.

In the text, David pledges to keep his vow because God gave him a godly heritage that has protected him, nurtured him and supported him through all his days. He was the offspring of Abraham, a godly grandfather, generations removed. His entire family had remained faithful to God over the years and this combined influence, which David called a godly heritage, has been a source of his strength.

The influence of a godly heritage opens doors. That's what happened in Numbers 27:1. Here, five women who were daughters of a godly family which had no sons found that the reputation of their family, through their parents, grandparents and great-grandparents was of such that they received the inheritance on the basis of a respect and credibility created generations before them by their grandparents.

The reputations of their parent and grandparents were spelled out. The women were the great grandchildren of Joseph whose godly and moral character was unquestioned in Israel. Because of his godly character, his son Manasseh lived a godly life; and because Manasseh lived a godly life, his son Makir lived a godly life. Because Makir lived a godly life, his son Gilead lived a godly life; and because Gilead lived a godly life, his son Hepher lived a godly life. And because Hepher lived a godly life, Zelophehad lived a godly life. As Zelophehad was the father of these five godly daughters, the godly heritage was carried through the entire line of Manasseh, who had a godly father, Joseph himself.

David referred to the heritage of godliness given to him by his grandparents as a source of his strength.

The five daughters of Zelophehad learned that a door that would have ordinarily been closed to them was opened because they were blessed to have been given "The gift of Godly grandparents."

Grandparents are a gift

Today, every grandchild should look at your family and see how God has blessed you. Of your four biological grandparents at least one of them knew the Lord; if not God saw to it that you fell in the hands of a godly aunt, uncle or friend of the family who pushed you in a godly direction. It's an unseen gift that often we don't recognize because it is intangible. It cannot be readily seen or recognized until we step back and see the whole picture; how God has really blessed us through giving us a godly heritage.

GRANDPARENTS GIVE US A SPIRITUAL INHERITANCE: Godly grandparents give us a spiritual inheritance. They show us through their example what it means to live a spirit filled life. What makes it work so well is that we also know that they are not perfect, sometimes lose their tempeers and can get a bit rough when they have to, but beneath it all there is a layer of faith in God that guides them. Children see that faith layer and try to emulate it in their lives; to a large extend their parents received it from their grandparents. Faith is not automatic it comes with time and from constantly hearing about the power of God. In fact, Romans 10:17 says, "So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God." Where does a child first hear about trusting God? Not at church, but at home! Where does a child see faith and trust in God in action? He or she sees it in the example of his mother and father. Godly grandparents have a repetitious litany of sayings that have been burned into the ears and hearts of their grandchildren: "Trust in the Lord, child, and he will provide;" "The Lord will make a way somehow;" "I know the Lord will answer prayer." They all seem like empty phrases until you watch your grandparents step out on their faith and stand tall, even in the face of danger, sickness and death. If you are a man or woman of faith today, know where it came from, and give God the praise.

GRANDPARENTS KEEP UP WITH THE ACTS OF THEIR GENERATIONS: The word of God encourages grandparents to teach their grandchildren the way of the Lord. Why grandparents? Often grandparents have more influence about godly matters than parents because they are perceived as seasoned, experienced and wiser. So, it behooves grandparents to keep up with their grandchildren, especially those who have tendencies to run wild. In times past, grandchildren came to visit grandparents often and stayed long; the entire family lived on the same farm or just up the road. Today, there is a different dynamic; grandchildren are often in other cities and communicate differently. Just as grandparents of the past had to learn to use a telephone, those of this generation must learn 21st century communication. If granny had a good cell phone she could keep up with her grandchildren through voice or text messages. Grandpa could see their pictures and keep up with their social lives on Facebook, Myspace and Twitter. In fact, many grandchildren would tone down their online activities considerably if they knew their grandparents were reading their posts. Wouldn't it be something if Grannies started posting little spiritual reminders to their grandchildren on their Facebook pages? Grandparents must keep up with their grandchildren because they are commanded to do so by God. Deuteronomy 6:7 says "And thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up."

GRANDPARENTS PASS TO US THE FAMILY LEGACY: Families have legacies that did not begin with the present generation but began with great grandparents. In 1957 Alex and Mary Chandler a poor family spent all they could earn chopping cotton and stripping corn to send all nine of their children to college. They all graduated and now the third generation of their family passes on that heritage of academic excellence, all of their grand children are now college graduates and the great grands are planning to do the same. They were featured on CBS news nationally as an example of a family legacy passed on from one generation to the next. So grandparents, even more than parents, keep reminding the family of its legacy. "You are a Johnson, and Johnson's don't take charity." "You are a Jones, and Joneses don't drop out of school." "You are a Jackson and Jacksons don't steal." Grandparents pass on the family legacy of prayer, faith in God and strength to each succeeding generation and rarely pass up a moment to tell the story. A grandparent's family speech might be their way of passing on the legacy and doing what Proverbs 22:6 says, "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." That training does not end with children but it extends to every generation.

Grandparents greatest gift is Jesus

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that the greatest gift that God gives us is a grandparent who introduces us to Jesus.

Without knowing the Lord, our lives would constantly be filled with hopelessness and helpless frustration, that's why grandpa recommends the family to Jesus.

Can't you hear a godly grandparent saying, "Sometimes difficulties can cause anxiety attacks, severe indigestion, sleepless night, atrocious attitudes, and swings in your mood, but when that happens, I recommend Jesus!"

Can't you hear grandpa saying, "Troubles in life are never convenient; they are inconvenient, they always come at the wrong time. Troubles are never pleasant, they are unpleasant. Troubles are never comfortable, they make us uncomfortable, but when trouble comes, I recommend Jesus!

Godly grandparents are gifts to us because they show us what it means to have faith in the Lord.

A godly grandfather teaches his grandsons how to work for a living, love his wife and trust God to keep food on the table.

Grandpa didn't have much education but he knew enough to know that you should treat people the way you want to be treated. He constantly teaches his grandchildren to never give up on a godly dream, because the Lord will make a way somehow!

Godly grandmothers spent much of their time praying for their children and grandchildren.

Only God knows the number of nights that grandma spent on her knees praying for her children.

Some of us are surviving today, because we are still living on grandma's prayers.

Those who have weathered the storm know the power of God.

Ask any godly grandparent and they'll tell you...God is able!

Ask grandma and she'll tell you that God is able to take our:

—BURDENS and make them light; DISAPPOINTMENTS and give us renewed hope!

—FRUSTRATIONS and give us encouragement; DOUBTS and give us confidence!

—WEAKNESSES and give us strength; FEARS and give us courage!

As I close, I'm reminded of the granddaughter who came to her grandmother one day and said, "Grandma, I need to know your secret. You always seem to be in control. When the winds came and took the roof off of your house, you never complained. That year when the flood ruined our house you came over smiling and helped us dry things out. That year daddy was worried about paying the bills you came over and prayed for him and soon after, things improved. What's your secret? What do you know that I need to know?" The grandmother answered, "Well chile, It's not what I know but who I know. It's not WHAT you know but WHO you need to know. When winds blow, I know a man who can speak to the winds and say peace be still. When waters rise, I know a man who can roll back the waters and make a path on dry land. When money runs out, I know a man who makes a way out of no way. It's not what I know, but who I know and His name is Jesus.

"I know the Lord will answer prayer, for I tried Him for myself!"

Grandparents you are God's gift to your family telling the story!

Tell them about the beauties of heaven and horrors of hell

Tell them that they must know the Lord for themselves!

Tell them about Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Tell them how early Sunday morning he arose from the grave!

Tell them in the morning!

Tell them in the evening!

Tell them in the midnight hour!

Tell them no matter what comes their way...God is able!

The Call and The Answer

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church

SCRIPTURE: Also I heard the voice of the Lord, saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then said I, Here am I; send me. Isaiah 6:8

Introduction

Have you ever known people who accept a challenge only to give it up later? There are many people who quickly announce that they will accept an assignment, task, or duty but abandon it if the task proves to be difficult.

Often when a person accepts a task all of the possible difficulties and frustrations associated with it are not considered. Those who do not consider the cost of their commitment are often frustrated along the way, especially when the task proves to be cumbersome or loaded with frustrating moments.

Some approach their commitments like the man who had a secret girlfriend on the side; one that he had committed to care for with an apartment, money and attention. Soon the woman demanded more and he regretted his committment because she made his life extremely difficult. After a few years of the torture and frustration over her constant threats to tell his wife about their relationship the woman suddenly died, much to his sadness but also to his relief. The man attended her funeral and sat in the rear. At the end of the service the pall-bearers accidentally bumped into a wall, jarring the casket. The church was shocked to hear a faint moan from within the casket. They quickly opened the casket and found that the woman was actually still alive. In fact, she lived for ten more years giving the man even more frustration. Then she died again. The man attended the second funeral, held at the same church. Again he hid himself in the crowd. At the end of the ceremony, the pall bearers began carrying out the casket. As they walked, the man jumped up from his corner in the crowd and yelled, "WATCH OUT FOR THAT WALL!" -That was one commitment he wanted to break.

Commitment is a character trait that is unique among God's great prophets. To accept a ministerial calling requires a great sense of humility, awe and respect for God. That's often the reason God selects certain men to champion his call. Many pastors are humbled to consider that God could have chosen anyone to do what we do. Yet he chose us. We ask, "Why me?"

We are not alone in the query, many others before us have also asked the same question. David said in Psalm 8:3-4, " What is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him? " Job asked in Job 7:17, "What is man that thou should magnify him?" Psalm 144:3 asks, "What is man that thou takest knowledge of him?"

The humble pastor charged to shepherd a congregation asks, "Why me?

The humble pastor who has been lifted to lead large assemblies, associations and conventions, often asks, "Why me?"

The very fact that a man is humbled before God points to the reason God has selected him. Psalm 89:19, "I have laid help upon one that is mighty; I have exalted one chosen out of the people."

Everything that happens has a reason and purpose, according to God's divine plan. When a man or woman of God is given a gavel or pulpit, it is not a coincidence of nature. God is in the plan. When that pulpit is accepted, it should be done with a sense of dedication and commitment to building the kingdom of God regardless to the frustrations that lay ahead.

As Christians, we know that God looks for the humble and dedicated servant to lead his people. He considers those who often consider themselves worthy and elevates them to his service. Blessed is the man who accepts God's calling by responding, "If the Lord needs somebody, here am I send me."

Exposition

This text focuses on Isaiah's call and acceptance into the ministry as a prophet of God.

The 6th chapter sets the time of Isaiah's calling as the year that King Uzziah died. Uzziah had been a dominating figure in Jewish history and in many respects the people placed him before God. Many could not see God's hand in their national affairs because of the overpowering presence of King Uzziah. Yet, when Uzziah died many were able to see that he was just a shadow of the awesome power of God. They could not see God because Uzziah, to many, became the person upon which they depended. In that context, Isaiah says, "In the year King Uzziah died I also saw the Lord."

Isaiah saw the Lord in a vision that showed him standing in the presence of God who was high and lifted up, surrounded by cherubim with six wings and a host of angels. In this vision, Isaiah heard God ask for an ambassador, spokesman and prophet to speak for him among the people. Isaiah's first response was to note that he was unworthy for the calling that God wanted because he had unclean lips; but that excuse was resolved when an angel appeared in the vision and purged his lips with a burning hot coal.

With his reservation resolved, Isaiah answered "Here am I, send me."

Isaiah accepted the call on faith in God alone because what God wanted him to do was spelled out after Isaiah accepted, which was unique. Isaiah accepted first then was told what he was to do.

In comparison to others Isaiah accepted his call quickly: Seven others were slow to accept their calls to ministry including Moses who had many excuses; Barak who was hesitant, Gideon who wanted signs; Jeremiah who claimed inexperience; Jonah who did not agree; Balaam who at first refused over money issues; and Peter who claimed himself unworthy. Unlike, these Isaiah accepted his calling immediately and remained true to it throughout his life.

Isaiah's sense of commitment to his call demonstrated the commitment that every minister of God must have to carry God's word to the furthermost parts of the earth, under the worst circumstances and in the face of clear and present danger. That commitment is what God expects from those He elevates; it is also the commitment that He will reward in the Kingdom of Heaven.

What is the Pastor's Call?

PASTORS MUST KNOW THEIR CALLING: Today, many respond to God's call and plunge themselves into the ministry. They quickly say, "Here am I, send me" without listening for the rest of the call. Isaiah came forth first and accepted then call then listened to his assignment. There are many today who have listened to the rest of their call and have plunged themselves into arenas for which they are not equipped.

The call to ministry may not always be a call to Pastor a church. It may not even be a call to be a great orator. A man who has trouble managing his own house, despite his best attempts is obviously not called to manage the house of God. A man who does not possess oratorical skills is not called to be a great preacher. Yet, there is a call; a call to do what?

Some are called to teach others and not pastor. Some are called to counsel the wounded and build up those who are dispirited. Some are called to minister through music, song and dance. Some are called to show compassion to the poor and needy and to respond to the human needs of those who are in distress.

So, the believer who responds to the call of God by saying, "Here am I, send me" must be sure that he or she is aware of the nature of the call. Whether it's the pulpit or the pew, the front room or the back room, front lines or background. there must be a serious committment.

PASTORS MUST APPROACH THEIR CALLING WITH A GODLY SPIRIT: This pastor we salute today is one of millions around the world who approaches his call to ministry in the manner that Isaiah responded. Isaiah accepted his calling with a spirit of joy and thanksgiving. He completely surrendered himself to his calling.

Today, the committed pastor must have a similar approach being totally committed to their calling, forsaking all other pursuits to concentrate totally on perfecting the ministry.

Every pastor should have a spirit of readiness that demonstrates but a desire to minister for the Lord and a willingness to serve. There are many who desire to follow God in their hearts but they are unwilling to make the total commitment. We must have both a desire and a commitment to be true to the call.

In addition to desire and willingness a pastor must also approach his calling with determination. Determination is that aspect of his character that is often called resolve. It's the ability to go forth despite difficulties and frustrations. It is spiritual tenacity. It is the ability to go forth against the winds of public opinion and raise high the standard of God.

The pastor must also trust the Lord. There can be no commitment to the call unless the pastor trusts the Lord for the outcome. The success of a venture that has been inspired by God is guaranteed even if that success is not immediately seen. The pastor who knows this, trusts God to make a way for the ministry to succeed through his miraculous power.

Therefore, a committed pastor is one who is determined to carry God's word, despite problems, with the full knowledge that if he plants the seed, God will do the watering.

PASTORS MUST BE WILLING TO GO ANYWHERE: The Pastor who is committed to the call must be prepared to go anywhere and do anything to lift up the cause of Christ. There are many preachers today who want to pick and choose their fields of ministry, even though God's spirit leads them in a different direction than they want to go. There must be no limit to the places will go or things we will do to help spread the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

We must be willing to go to the jails and minister. Those who are incarcerated are hungry for the word of God. They seek knowledge about him and want to hear from the Lord. However, many preachers won't go to the jails to carry the word because that is beneath them. We must be willing to go there.

Likewise, we must be willing to minister to the homeless, drug addicts, the poor and destitute and those who are not able to make large contributions to our church but may require help and assistance. We cannot cast them aside along the highway of life.

Those who are committed to this call tell the Lord, "Here am I, send me to the worst neighborhoods and poorest sections of town and I'll witness for you!"

Here Am I, send me among the powerful and influential and I will not be afraid to speak a word of truth.

Here Am I, send me among the tired, beaten and trampled upon masses and I will lift you up in their eyes.

Here Am I, send me in the crowded housing projects or in suburban neighborhoods. Send me to towering condominiums or to the squalor of those condemned to live in cardboard boxes, and I will bring your word of hope.

Here am I Lord, send me!

Praise Pastors for their Christian Walk

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should praise pastors who are committed to their call. We should never fail to lift them up before God.

Pastors who have walked the walk as well as talked the talk, deserve our praise and prayerful support.

Our praise and acts of gratitude encourage weary pastors to continue walking the walk themselves as they also show us how to walk.

Isaiah had a powerful message to bring to the people that was direct from the throne of God. Often his message was thankless but it was direct from the throne of grace.

When members of a congregation notice that the pastor is committed to the call they draw inspiration from each of his steps.

Committed pastors, especially those who have risen from the ranks of the smallest of God's congregations know what it means to respond to the call; for them the words, "If the Lord needs somebody," takes on a new meaning.

When the committed pastor answers Here am I send me he joins the ranks of the watchmen who have done everything from lifting their voices as members of choirs, to watching dishes and mopping floors.

The committed pastor preaches the gospel but if it will help reach a lost soul, some have licked stamps, folded envelopes and passed out programs. Some have given their last dollar and others have given until they felt the pain but in all of their doing they resolve, "I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now!"

The committed pastor has gone to great lengths to answer his call. Some have preached the gospel on Sunday morning and emptied the church's trash cans on Sunday evening. Some have taught bible classes on Wednesday then washed the church van on Thursday. In all of their doing they don't complain they just remember their response to God's call and said, 'If the Lord needs somebody, here am I send me."

So we are here to salute the pastor but we are also here to salute his commitment to the call.

We salute the pastor because he has taught us to walk in faith.

We salute him because he has taught us how to call on the name of the Lord!

We salute him because he has taught us that when our strength is failing that the Lord is El-Shaddai, the almighty God.

We salute him because he has taught us that when we are walking through the valley of the shadow of death, that the Lord is, Jehova-Rohi, "The Lord is my shepherd and I shall not want.

We salute him because he has taught us that when we are feeling like we're making this journey alone that the Lord is "Emmanuel" the everlasting God.

We salute our pastors because they continually remind us that, there is a name we need to hear; it's the sweetest name on earth.

It is the name the songwriter wrote about when he declared, "I come to the garden alone. While the dew is still on the roses. And the voice I hear ringing in mine ear, the son of God discloses. And he walks with me and he talks with me and he tells me I am his own. And the joy we share as we tarry there, none other has ever known."

The pastor who is committed to the call never lets us forget that there is a name that reaches beyond the narrow confines of my loneliness and brings me comfort!

The committed pastor constantly reminds us that there is a name.

There is a name that reaches below my deepest failure and guides me to success!

There is a name that transcends our weakness and brings us strength.

What is that name? That's what the world wants to know.

The committed pastor says if the Lord needs somebody to lift up that name, "Here am I, send me!"

Send me to tell the world that there is no other name under the heavens whereby we must be saved except by that name!

Send me and I'll tell the world that the name they need to be saved from sin, is the name of Jesus!

Send me and I'll tell the world that the answer to the world's confusion is in the name of Jesus!

Send me and I'll tell the world that provision that the world needs and the salvation is seeks is in the name of Jesus

No wonder the song writer declared, "There is a name I love to hear. I love to sing its worth. It sounds like music in mine ear, the sweetest name on earth. Oh how I love Jesus. Oh How I love Jesus. Because He first loved me."

He loved me so much that He hung out on Calvary!

He loved me so much that died for my sins!

But early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave with all power!

All power in his hands!

If the Lord needs somebody, here am I send me!

Sopping Your Plate

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

September 20, 2009

SCRIPTURE:"He then having received the sop went immediately out: and it was night." John 13:30

Introduction

Have you ever tasted a meal that was so tasty that you wanted to get it all, even the crumbs and the juice? If so, then you were probably among those who threw the etiquette book out of the window, grabbed a slice of bread and sopped it all up?

There many who can remember when plate sopping was routine in African-American family life. It seemed that some food was made to be sopped.

What's your favorite sopping dish? Chicken and dumplings was a favorite of some. It was just understood that the biscuit on the table was made for the purpose of sopping up the dumpling broth on the plate. Ever used your pancake to sop up the syrup left on your plate?

Cornbread sops gravy, oh so well.

It seems that corn bread and biscuits could sop anything.

Some can remember when family members not only sopped up the remnants on their plates with their bread but they also ate with their fingers. Remember the old warriors sitting on the porch with a "mess" of mustard greens in a bowl? Remember how they took that cornbread and mashed it into the greens then ate the whole bowl with their fingers. Long before Colonel Sanders started Kentucky Fried, folks who sopped their food with their fingers were saying "It's finger licking good!"

Sopping our plates or eating with our fingers is not common anymore, but there are still thousands in our community, who still sop up the gravy and lick their fingers when no one is looking.

That's the way it is when God blesses us. Sometimes we get a bowl of happiness and plate full of answered prayers and we enjoy those times so much that we want them to last. We savor those moments and sop our plate.

It's in those moments that we remember Psalms 34:8 O taste and see that the Lord is good: blessed is the man that trusteth in him. Those are times when we say things the way that Forrest Gump would say it, "Life is like a big plate of biscuits and gravy, sometimes you got to sop it up!"

As Christians, we are thankful to God for every blessing we have receive. We don't intend to waste and single one. In fact, we intend to sop our plates clean.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus at his last meal before He went to Calvary.

At this meal He announced that one of them would betray him. Immediately the disciples looked among themselves asking, "Lord is it I?"

Jesus answered the person who betrays him will be the one who is recipient of the sop that He will give him.

A sop was a morsel of food dipped in a sauce and eaten with the hand. At a meal such as the Passover it was traditional for one common meal to be prepared in what we would call a stew and would be set in front of the guests. It would have been lamb briskets, bitter herbs and unleavened bread. Eating utensils such as spoons and forks were rare, most dinner guests would have eaten with their hands. Each person would take his bread and dip it in the sauce or stew and feed himself.

The first sop would have been the bread and the bitter sauce, an appetizer. Later the sop would have included the bread, lamb briskets and a cup of wine.

Jesus prepared the sop and gave it to Judas. It was a mark of respect for the host of a meal to present a sop to a guest. In the East, even today, hosts in many areas greet guests and honor them as they host dip a choice piece of meat or bread into the sauce with his finger and thumb and serve it to the guests, often putting it directly in their mouths.

It was considered an honor and blessing to be the recipient.

When Jesus gave Judas his sop He said something to him that was not said to the others. After receiving the sop John 13:27 says these words: "And after the sop Satan entered into him. Then said Jesus unto him, that thou doest, do quickly." Verse 28 says they had no idea what Jesus meant. They knew that Judas "had the bag" or kept the money and suspected that Judas was being instructed to make a special arrangement of some kind.

John provides a detail about the Lord's supper that Matthew does not tell. Matthew 26:25 mentions that Judas asks Lord is it I? then in Matthew 25:26-28 he notes, "And as they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; this is my body. And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of it; For this is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins."

Matthew doesn't tell it. Mark doesn't tell about it in Mark 14, but John says when Judas received his sop he left the table and was not there to get the blessing that was given over the main course of the sop. He took the little sop he had been given and the devil got him and he destroyed himself.

John 13:31 begins with Therefore when he was gone out, indicating the rest of the supper table conversation Jesus said to his disciples. Matthew tells of the blessing of the elements John does not.

Jesus blessed the bread and the wine and told them to drink ye all of it, don't leave anything. Drain your cup, clean your plate, and fulfill your destiny.

Thus, believer are likewise challenged to receive the blessing that God has given them and to use every minute of every day, every opportunity that presents itself and every chance that avails itself, to advance the kingdom.

In essence, whatever life has put on our plates and put in our cups we should carry our mission until the end.

Everything on Your Plate is Good

Life does not always serve us what we desire, but whatever is on our plate we should work with it.

Each life has a God ordained purpose that may or may not be appealing; we should strive to achieve our purpose. The Center on a football team is rarely seen and usually ends up on the bottom of the pile, but he has a valuable purpose. In a similar sense, God has placed our destinies on our plate; we should not push it aside but clean the plate.

The Passover meal was not the best meal that Israelites ate, yet everything in the meal was ordered by God and had a reason, even the not so tasty herbs instead of the fine seasoning were ordered by God. He wanted them to remember the bitterness of their slave experience. The bread and all of the food was unleavened and all of the food was served in a sop, soaked in bitter herbs. Yet, the disciples were sopping it up.

At age 80 Caleb was served a mountain when all others received rich pasture land but he sopped it up and said, "give me this mountain."

Esther was forced to serve as wife and queen to a foreign king but she sopped it up and ultimately saved her people from destruction.

Noah was ordered to build a boat in the middle of nowhere and was laughed at for 100 years but he sopped it up and found safety and protection in the ark.

Joshua was ordered to conquer the promised land with an army that had no weapons, but he sopped it up and found that God made the walls fall down.

Life may have given you a bowl of lemons, if that is the case then learn to make lemonade.

Everything on your plate in life may not be exactly what you desire, but everything has a purpose, sop it all up!

When your plate is full

What if you are dealing with what's on your plate but it is full and never seems to empty?

That's the way we often feel when we are dealing with many issues in our lives. Just when we thought we were clearing our plates something else happens to keep us faced with full plates.

That's when we start to feel like Job. Within the scope of a few days his plate was filled quickly. On one day they told him that all of his cattle had been stolen. On another day they told him that his children had been killed. Before he could finish dealing with that then he broken out in sores. His plate was full, but he sopped it all up and said, "Yea though he slay me, yet will I serve him."

No matter how full your plate gets we must remember that God will not put more on your plate than you can handle. 1 Corinthians 10:13 says, "There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it."

Even with a full plate the believer prays and asks God for strength. The faithful believer tackles the full plate in front of him with determination.

To be determined means no matter how difficult the situation, there will be no turning back.

To be determined means no matter how exhausting the work, there will be no quitting.

To be determined means no matter how frustrating the circumstances are, we are going through.

This is the determination that the song writer wrote about when he said, "I determined to walk with Jesus, yes I am. Through hard trials, tribulations, persecutions, I'm determined to walk with Jesus, yes I am."

Let the Lord bless your plate

It doesn't matter what life puts on our plate, if God blesses it, it will turn out for His glory; therefore, we must not ever stop seeking his blessing.

The main course of the Passover meal was served last. After Judas left the blessing was given to the others.

There are too many who think they have been served the wrong plate, don't like what's on it and storm out into life and destroy themselves. Then there are others, like the remaining eleven disciples who allow the Lord to bless what's on their plate. After that, they sop it all up.

When God blesses your circumstance, it's bound to work out for your good. It may appear that you are about to be crucified, but that too will work to your advantage, when God blesses it.

One reason we bless our food is to ask God to allow what we eat to be good for the nourishment of our bodies and to strengthen and build up our health. We may not like milk or spinach or okra, but our prayer is that God will take these undesirable things on our plate and flip it so that they help us.

There are many marriages that have grown stronger after having suffered problems first. There are many ministers and bold witnesses that have arisen from prison experiences. There are many great souls in the church who were former drug dealers, alcoholics, prostitutes and adulterers, but God worked out all of that tragedy and used it for their good when they allowed him to do so.

Romans 8:28 says, “And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose.”

That means whatever is on our plate in life will be good FOR us, even if at the moment it is not good TO us.

Get the right plate

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should make sure that our plates are big enough to handle what God puts on it!

There are many in life that approach God with the wrong plate. He’s passing out blessings, but they look like something we don’t like, so we approach God with saucers instead of plates.

At some social events the hosts only serve finger foods and the only dishes that are available are saucers, not plates. That’s because the guests were not being fed the main course. Saucers are provided at such events because guests are not encouraged to get full but to taste and nibble.

But when God sets our table he doesn’t fill it with saucers and tea cups and tell us to nibble and sip; when you sit at his table be prepared to drink it all up and eat it all up.

We know that God prepares our table with the expectation of blessing our faith because Psalms 23:5 says, “Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.”

God’s table in life is prepared from his heavenly cabinet that is filled with any kind of plate we want. How far we can go is only limited by our faith and our plate.

What kind of plate are you? There are some who are:

PAPER PLATES: They run through life quickly and are destined for the garbage pile.

VANITY PLATES: They serve no purposed but to remind others where they’ve been and what use to be.

PLASTIC PLATE: They are too good to be thrown away but not good enough to be used constantly.

CHINA PLATES: Only serve on special occasions and even then have to be handled with care.

DINNER PLATES: Are meant to serve, with stoneware faith, are meant to be washed and used but don’t break easily.

It doesn’t matter what kind of plate life has given us, we are expected to serve not to sit on the shelf.

Whether our plates are round or square, plain or decorated, single or part of a set, when God gets ready to bless us we need to be ready to sop it all up!

When you sit at God’s table get ready to be blessed!

God’s table is never bare!

God’s fountain is never dry!

When it looks like it’s all gone, He keeps coming with more pots!

Just when you thought you had all that you could get, God started giving you more!

Just when you thought you had all the children you could get, God gave you some more!

Just when you thought you had all the clothes you needed, God gave you some more!

Just when you thought you had all the money you needed, God gave you some more!

The only thing that stands in the way of you and your blessing is the size of your plate!

The only thing that stood between believers and eternal salvation was an old rugged cross.

Jesus had been given a full plate and a bitter cup. I can hear him in the Garden saying Father, I don't like what's on this plate or the pain and agony that's in this cup, but never-the-less, not my will but thy will be done! He decided to sop his plate and drink his cup!

When He carried that cross up Golgotha's hill, he was still sopping the plate!

When they drove nails into His hands, he was still sopping the plate!

When they stuck a spear in his side, He was still sopping the plate!

But out about the 9th hour I heard him cry out "Father, why hast thou forsaken me?..It is finished!"

They buried him in a borrowed tomb and he stayed in the grave for three days and nights, but Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

He drank the bitter cup!

He sopped the bitter plate clean!

Good Children, In God's hands

SCRIPTURE:And the woman conceived, and bare a son: and when she saw him that he was a goodly child, she hid him three months. And when she could not longer hide him, she took for him an ark of bulrushes, and daubed it with slime and with pitch, and put the child therein; and she laid it in the flags by the river's brink. And his sister stood afar off, to wit what would be done to him. Exodus 2:2-4

Introduction

Have you paid attention to the increasing number of assaults on children that are happening around our nation? There seems to be an epidemic of massive proportions that is making the quietest neighborhoods, unsafe places for our children.

Everyday it appears that we read of someone who has abducted a child for some sordid purpose causing grief to parents.

The news is filled with accounts of sexual abuse, beatings, burnings, and rapes of children as young as three and four years old. The accounts weary us. We try to tune them out by changing the channel on our television sets but the same accounts appear on every station and newscast and they are the substance of many newspaper headlines.

Such news is especially discomforting to those with children and grandchildren because they can empathize with the parents they see on their television screens or read about in the papers. The assaults get personal and they cut deep. For many parents the wound is so deep it takes years for it to heal.

New laws now show us the names and pictures of pedophiles that live in our neighborhoods. Amber alerts put us on guard when children have been abducted and television programs such as Nancy Grace, inform us of every minute detail of the horrors children face.

No community is immune from abuses to children. There is no safe place on this planet; our children are happy and growing to be fine men and women, but they are at risk.

In a world so focused on self destruction, is there any hope for a Christian parent? Is there any word from the Lord?

There is a word from the Lord. The word is that parents should exercise due vigilance themselves and then trust God for the rest.

As Christians, we must do all that we can to provide nurture and protection for our children; they are God's gift to us. When we have done all we know how to do, then we must put their future and destinies in God's hands.

Exposition

This text focuses on how Moses' mother protected him and placed him in God's hands.

Israel had been in bondage in Egypt for over 400 years. For four centuries they had prayed for a deliverer, a leader, that would help them break the shackles of their bondage and return them to the "Promised Land." When Pharaoh, heard that the slaves expected the birth of a deliverer he decided to protect the future of Egypt by ordering that all boys would be drowned in the river. Exodus 1:22 says, " And Pharaoh charged all his people, saying, Every son that is born ye shall cast into the river, and every daughter ye shall save alive."

Moses' mother, Jocebed, looked at him and concluded that he was "goodly" or that he was an especially good child with a divine purpose. She sought every way possible to conceal the fact that she had a son from the soldiers who went from house to house looking for boys to destroy. After three months she could no longer hide him she decided to make him a small boat, called an ark, made of straw and pitched it with slim and place the ark in the water near the place where Pharaoh's daughter came to wash from time to time. She did not know what would happen but there was a chance, if God willed, that she too might see the child as a special child with a divine purpose.

The little baby was discovered by Pharaoh's daughter and named Moses because he was "drawn out" of the river. Moses' sister appeared and suggested that a Hebrew woman might make a great nanny for the child. God arranged it so Moses was reared in another woman's house, but in his own mother's arms.

Moses lived to achieve his destiny because his mother did what she could to protect him then placed him in the care of God.

Keeping them safe

Today parents should look closely at Jocebed's method and apply it to our present circumstance. We should consider that:

THE CHILD WAS NOT SAFE: Pharaoh heard that the Jews expected a deliverer to be born and ordered all the boys killed to prevent him from rising to overthrow Egypt. Today, like in biblical times, children are at risk from forces outside of the family. What is the risk? Children are the targets of predators that want to molest them, sexually abuse them, enslave them, and otherwise manipulate them for their own purposes. With the explosion of the internet, the market for child pornography has expanded. To make movies children are being stolen from play grounds, supermarkets and even their own yards. Increasingly, children are becoming the victims of violence and abuse as well as parents and guardians who are brutalizing them in horrible ways. Not a day passes without another account of a child who has been drowned, locked in a cellar for years, kept chained like a pet or even abused by misbehaving guardians. In Moses' time the fear was that soldiers would destroy the children; today the fear goes far beyond the fear of government but extends itself to a network of threats that if left unaddressed could lead to a child's destruction. The devil never sleeps. In fact he is constantly going to and fro looking for someone to devour. Parents today must be vigilant, cautious and mindful that there is no neighborhood, school, church, or community that is completely safe. In fact, the devil is more successful in safe areas because there, parents let their guards down. Parents today, cannot let their guards down, the risk is too great.

SHE SHELTERED WHEN AS MUCH AS SHE COULD: Moses' mother protected him as much as she could for three months. Today, parents should try to protect their children from predators. Today, many mothers want to make their daughters little beauty queens and dress them up like grown women when they are five years old and sometimes earlier. Sometimes they enter them in beauty pageants at age five, wearing lipstick and rouge. Each one is like a magnet attracting attention. Old school mothers saw to it that girls dressed modestly, not revealing their sensuality, but today even the smallest children are wearing revealing attire that attracts stares from would be predators. Even inside our homes we must be cautious; sometimes the predators are guardians and relatives. Youth are often not aware of the dangers that threaten them, so it is incumbent upon parents to protect their children to the best of their ability. Parents should scrutinize those who care for their children, teach them in school, mentor them in extra-curricular activities, and otherwise influence them. A parent who wants to know the background of a child's friends, takes seriously the ratings of movies and music, and insists upon adult supervision at all activities, is not being overprotective; that parent is doing what is expected of a parent. Jocebed protected Moses despite the fact that she was a slave who worked all day every day. She managed it for as long as she could; it was her duty.

SHE PUT HIM IN GOD'S HANDS: Moses' mother put him in the ark, and put his life in God's hands. There is just so much that any parent can do. All of the precautions in the world will not guarantee that children will be completely safe, there comes a time when we must put them in God's hands. The ark was not a completely safe place. It was a straw basket floating down a river filled with hungry crocodiles; so it was obvious that Jocebed was placing Moses in God's hands. Every parent must see to it that their children are placed in God's hands, the earlier the better. 1) Parents must pray constantly for God's protective grace. 2) Parents should take steps to insure that their children are spiritually strong by bringing them to church and religiously educating them at home. Jocebed took every precaution, she daubed the ark with slime to help it float, but she knew it would not float forever, but long enough for it to reach God's destination. 3) Parents should completely trust God. Jocebed put Moses in the ark and left. His sister stayed behind, just to see what would happen. Parents should never stop trusting God for their children's protection.

In God's Hands

Finally, brothers and sisters, Jocebed's faith and parenting had a positive result because in God's hands, Moses' life was guided to its final destination.

Pharaoh's daughter reared Moses, gave him the best possible education and trained him in personal discipline. When the training was complete, he was ready to achieve the next part of his preparation.

God guided the ark, touched Pharaoh's daughter, and provided his growth and maturity through the hands that touched his life.

Children should be aware that their lives are in God's hands. It is He who guides and protects them. It is His spirit that is placing them in the hand of the right parents, teachers, coaches, mentors, scout leaders, big sisters and brothers, Sunday School teachers and youth leaders, whom He uses to shape their destinies.

Therefore it behooves us all to stay in God's hands.

In God's hands, our lives may seem to drift on the rivers of life but God will see to it that we fall into the right port.

In God's hands, we are directed through the reeds and brush of the river bank, into the hands of those who will hear our voice when we cry.

In God's hands, we will be safe and our destinies will be secure.

Parents, worried about their children's future should do all that they can, then trust them put them in God's hands, then step back and watch him work.

God's hands are the same hands that hollowed out the valleys and bulged the mountains up.

God's hands are the same hands that clap and make the thunder roll; that wave and cause the rain to trickle down from the clouds.

God's hands are the same hands that heal us when we are sick, lift us up when we are down and push us to move when we have come to a complete stop.

God's hands are the same hands that wake us in the morning and tuck us in at night.

It's these hands that David wrote about when he said, In thee oh Lord do I put my trust.

These are the hands that we reach up to when we sing, Father I stretch my hands to thee, no other help I know. If thou withdraw thyself from me, whither shall I go.

These are the same hands that wrapped themselves around an old rugged cross one day and were stretched out wide in victory!

These are the same hands that were pierced with nails and bruised for our iniquities.

These are the same hands that rolled the stone and away to arise, lifted and glorified, Early one Sunday morning.

It is into these hands we place our trust!

Glad to be in the service

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: And they, continuing daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house, did eat their meat with gladness and singleness of heart. Acts 2:46

Introduction

Have you ever seen people who look excited to be in worship? There is a look of enthusiasm about them and excitement seems to envelope them. When we are excited we are motivated to do more than we would normally do, go further than we would normally go and withstand more than we would normally withstand.

There is an old song we like to sing that says, "Glad to be in his service, Glad to be in his service one more time. He didn't have to let me live; he didn't have to let me live. Glad to be in his service one more time."

The thought of those simple words describe the joy of all believers when they render another service in the kingdom of God.

Anticipation contributes to our gladness as well. Consider the man who was rolled into the church in a wheelchair for an entire year because he didn't have strength to walk. They called him Clapping Charlie. All week long Clapping Charlie barely had enough strength to raise his hand but he insisted on worshipping every Sunday. From the moment they rolled him in the door Clapping Charlie started clapping his hands. He clapped when the choir sang. He clapped after the announcements were read. He clapped during the altar call and even during the sermon. After a while someone asked him, "Charlie, why do you clap so much when you are so sick." Charlie looked at the man and said, "I'm celebrating." The man was puzzled, "Celebrating what Charlie, you are in a wheel chair, we are praying for your healing but it hasn't come yet, what are you celebrating?" At the thought of healing Charlie started clapping again, "I know the Lord's going to help me win this battle, so I can't wait until the battle is over, I'm clapping and celebrating now!"

When God has done something for us, we are glad.

When God is doing something for us, we are glad!

When we are expecting God to do something for us, we are also glad.

When the Church gathers for worship, praise and prayer every saint comes before the throne, together with friends and family in a spirit of joy and happiness. Together, we lift holy hands, lift our voices in song and proclaim the joy of the Lord.

As Christians, we enjoy kingdom service. We enjoy serving others, worshipping with others and praying with others. Each time we gather we say the words of the old song, "Glad to be in his service one more time."

Exposition

This text focuses on Luke as he describes the gladness and singleness of heart of the early church fellowship.

Luke notes that the early believers were enthusiastic about worship; it was not considered a chore, burden or obligation. They came together as one body "with gladness and singleness of heart." In doing so they prayed for the sick and constantly praised God. The power of their praise, according to verse 47, attracted others to the fellowship and many were added to the church on a regular basis.

This constant praise, prayer, fellowship and communing from house to house was generally called the communion of the saints.

The church joined in the regular praise of God and partook in the ordinance of breaking of bread celebrating the memorial of Christ's death.

They enjoyed praising God. They lifted his name with fervor and passion because they were excited about the prospect of eternal life.

Thus, the text indicates an important ingredient for unity in the body of Christ is regular praise and worship because it strengthens faith and builds the bond of Christ tightly together under one Lord, one faith and one Baptism.

What it means to be glad.

When there is true fellowship, a spirit of gladness is the result.

To be glad is to have a feeling of joy and exhilaration that bubbles and illuminates.

Gladness is hard to conceal. It is obvious and visible. It emanates from a feeling of security and warmth that is generated from a loving relationship.

Gladness is a cousin to joy, which comes from the inside. Described in Galatians 5 as a "fruit of the spirit" Joy is not conditional and is an endearing part of the Christian life experience. A Christian is joyful regardless of his circumstance or condition. If a Christian is bathed in riches he is joyful. At the same time, the word teaches us that the Christian is also joyful even in abject poverty. Whether he enjoys the best of health or is lying in a sick bed, the Christian is always joyful.

WE ARE GLAD BECAUSE WE HAVE BEEN BLESSED: Blessings from God make us exceedingly glad. That's one of the rewards of the Christian fellowship, the blessings. Whether the blessings we receive involve finance, health, peace of mind or happy homes, we celebrate when we have been blessed. Every person feels a sense of gladness after receiving a blessing. What person is not glad when they are blessed with a new house, car or long sought after appliance? When we see the hand of God blessing us with a few of the things we desire, there is "gladness." That's why we are glad to be in his service because he rewards us with blessings.

WE ARE GLAD BECAUSE HE GIVES US ANOTHER DAY. Every day we get from the Lord is a blessing. Each day we open our eyes we are glad that we have one more day to serve and praise him. No matter if it's raining or the sun is shining we are glad. We view each day with wonder, respect and amazement. That's when we remember Psalm 118:24, This is the day which the LORD hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it. This is the type of gladness that comes after one has considered the universe and how God controls it. Gladness in this context is to feel protected because of the knowledge that we are the children of an all powerful God. When we say we are glad to see another day it brings to mind the little song the Mighty Clouds of Joy had in mind when they sang, It's another day's journey and I'm glad about it. He gave me health and strength and I'm glad about it. No matter what the day brings, it is a day created by an all powerful God and "I will be glad in it!" We are glad to be in his service every day he allows us to see.

WE ARE GLAD BECAUSE WE HAVE SOMETHING TO BE GLAD ABOUT: Someone asked why a mother, tired from working all day still finds time to come to choir rehearsal or an usher practice. Why is it that a man beaten by a hard day's labor still meets with the brethren of his church or gathers to perform a personal service for the church. The really wonder how these and others are able to serve with they are tired and weary and noticeably fatigued, but with smiles on their faces. They are glad because they have something to be glad about. That's what David had in mind in Psalm 126:3 when he wrote, The LORD hath done great things for us; whereof we are glad the word used was sameach which means to show gladness.

It's O.K. to feel gladness but when the church is unified and on one accord, it shows its gladness

Every child of God ought to show a little gladness sometimes.
We can show our gladness through the smiles on our faces!
We can show our gladness when we clap our hands!
We can show our gladness by paying our vows to God!
Showing gladness should not be difficult if we have something to be glad about!

Praising God

Finally, brothers and sisters if you pay close attention you will notice that verse 46 ends with a comma. The comma suggests that after the worship in the temple; after the house to house ministry to each, and enjoying the spirit of gladness in their hearts, there was something else.

After the comma, verse 47 picks up with, Praising God and having favor with the people.

There is a reason why we are glad to be in his service, because we have been blessed ourselves and we want to bless others. Those who have no testimony have had no test that they have passed because there is no testimony without a test.

Consider the case of Sad Sally who came to church frequently but rarely moved her lips whenever the congregation sang. She sat politely and stared at the choir and other members, but never sang a word herself. She continued this practice for many years and it disturbed some members who entertained bad thoughts about her because she would never sing. One Sunday however, the entire church was pleasantly surprised when they saw Sad Sally singing. Her face lit up and she was beaming with enthusiasm. After the service several members surrounded her and asked why she seemed so jubilant. Sally told her friends that she had been fishing the day before and was caught out in the middle of the lake when a storm suddenly came up from nowhere. It blew the waters and top sized her little boat. She prayed to God for mercy because she knew she was seeing her last day. Just as quick as the storm started it stopped and soon she could see the sun again. When she was plucked from the water and brought to shore she thanked the Lord.

"This morning I had to sing along when I heard the choir say 'When the Storms of life are raging..stand by me.' I've heard it many times but somehow I understood it when we sang, 'I was sinking deep in sin far from the peaceful shore, very deeply stained within sinking to rise no more, but the master of the sea heard my despairing cry and from the waters lifted me, now safe am I.'

I almost shouted when I heard the words "Love Lifted me!"When you saw me grinning, it was because the choir was singing, "There's a bright side somewhere. My lips couldn't be still when I heard the choir say "Amazing Grace how sweet the sound that saved a wretch like me. I was lost but now I'm found, blind, but now I see."

At that point the church members knew why Sally was singing so much in the service ....She had found something to sing about. She was glad to be in his service!

I don't know about you but I'm glad to be in his service!
I'm glad to lift my hands in praise!
I'm glad to bow down in prayer!
I'm glad to help somebody as I pass along!
I'm glad to tell somebody about the savior!
Do you know him today?
His name is Jesus, the Lily of the Valley!
Jesus, the fairest of ten thousand!
Jesus, the bright and morning star!
Jesus, my bridge over troubling water!
Jesus, my lawyer in the courtroom
Jesus, my doctor in my sickroom!
Jesus, who picked up an old rugged cross and died out on Calvary!
But early Sunday morning, He arose from the grave, with all power in His hands!
I don't know about you, but I'm glad to be in His service!
I'm glad that He picked me up and turned me around!
I'm glad that He planted my feet on solid ground!
I'm glad! Glad to be in His service, one more time!

House to House Faith

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

September 2009

SCRIPTURE: And they, continuing daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house, did eat their meat with gladness and singleness of heart, Act 2:46

Introduction

There is a children's song entitled, "The more we get together." In it the children sing "The more we get together the happier we'll be. For your friends are my friends and my friends are your friends, the more we get together the happier we'll be." Another verse also sung in some quarters, "For your house is my house and my house is your house, the more we get together the happier we'll be."

One of the great joys of the Christian faith is the fellowship of men and women who are committed to living the Christian life. Those who share the same common purpose enjoy hanging out with each other. They support each other and entertain each other and thereby increase their faith and strength as they strive to live for Christ.

Not too long ago in our history there was a feeling of "Your house is my house and my house is your house." That was a time when most of your neighbors were Christians and they cared about each other, visited often and shared each other's burdens. Many of our ancestors have told us about the days when one neighbor looked after the house of the other. Those were the times when one neighbor was concerned if the other fell on hard times and experienced difficulty. Have you not heard of the spirit of fellowship that existed in some areas to the point that if there was death in the family that the entire neighborhood brought food for the family, men volunteered to help with domestic chores and women volunteered to help with cleaning and cooking long after the funeral passed.

Those same neighbors met on Sunday to worship and praise God together. They were among friends who frequently fellowshipped, sang, prayed and rejoiced from house to house, and person to person.

That's what God expects of every believer. He expects each of us to demonstrate a spirit of friendship and kindness that fosters a desire and appreciation for Christian fellowship.

As Christians, we enjoy each other's company. We enjoy the company of those who know the joy of the Lord. It is a blessed fellowship that is based on faith and runs from heart to heart and house to house.

Exposition

This text focuses on Luke as he describes how the early disciples strengthened their faith, one house at a time.

The text notes that they were continually "breaking bread from house to house." They maintained this communion among themselves, meeting in the homes of other believers. Even as the church grew to over 5,000 believers they continued meeting, teaching, encouraging and supporting each other.

This constant fellowship was called the communion of the saints.

The church joined in the ordinance of breaking of bread and celebrating the memorial of Christ's death. They were not ashamed to own Christ or to acknowledge him as their crucified Lord. They could not forget the death of Christ, yet they kept up this memorial of it, and made it their constant practice because it was commanded by Christ who told them to "do this in remembrance of me." They broke bread from house to house; they administered that ordinance in private houses and they went from one to another turning these houses into little churches where they worshipped God.

The breaking of bread regularly built their faith. Breaking bread with others in the faith, from house to house, made it even stronger.

Thus, the text indicates that the two main ingredients for unity in the body of Christ is regular observance of the Lord's Supper because it strengthens faith and bonds the body of Christ together as one unit before God.

Rewards of Fellowship

When the church began it grew rapidly because there was great fellowship among the members. Even today those who are the strongest and most dedicated to the church are connected to its fellowship activities in some way. Those who are disconnected keep themselves out of the loop of faith.

FELLOWSHIP HELPS FAITH TO GROW: The church community survives and thrives on Faith, Fellowship, Fraternity. Any church that involves its members in these three components develops a Christian life that is strong and meaningful.

Romans 10:17 reminds us that Faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the word of God. When believers share with others from house to house, they hear of the faith activities of different families, it helps them to grow as well. Yet, many members of local congregations have very little contact with others. As soon as worship activity ends, they rush to their cars avoiding interaction with others. Interaction and the sharing of joys, accomplishments and failures, helps us to grow and it builds faith.

There are so many believers who do not participate in the fellowship activities of the church. When children have an enjoyable interaction with other children they call it fun. When adults do the same it is called "fellowship." Fellowship activities are occasions when the church family shares fun moments with each other. Fellowships are not always held at the church facility but they do involve believers. They include everything from baby and wedding showers, birthday parties, shopping trips, Super Bowl parties, teas, and other celebrations.

FELLOWSHIP FOSTERS FRIENDSHIPS: Through fellowship, we develop a circle of Christian friends who can appreciate our accomplishments and can understand the weight of our losses. The mark of true friends is that they are aware of what is precious to us. They know how we have striven to achieve a goal so they help us celebrate the achievement of that goal. They know how important a certain occasion is to us so they make it a point to help us mark that moment. They know the burdens that we bear, and they try to help us share those burdens. That's the spirit of Galatians 6:2 which encourages us to bear one another's burdens. When there is a strong fellowship, you'll find that when you celebrate or hurt, you will never be alone because these moments will be shared with you by a cloud of friends in the faith. Those who choose not to fellowship with the church, generally cut themselves off and decide to operate alone. Even then, true friends in the faith become a nagging presence that will not let us comfortably stand alone; they insist on helping us and allowing others in the faith to do the same. There is no substitute for that kind of personal house to house faith.

FELLOWHIP ELICITS SUPPORT: No matter how strong we are there will come a time when we need support either physically or spiritually. We need the presence of another strong believer who can encourage us when we are down, set us straight when we are wrong and give us sound advice. We may not want to admit it but we actually depend upon each other to keep our Christian light shining.. Outside of the body of Christ it is easy to get distracted and get our lives off track. We depend upon each other to stay on track.

We depend upon that phone call from another believer who questions our sustained absence. We depend upon words of encouragement and even the words of chastisement we receive from our teachers and ministers to help keep us in the faith. We depend upon the support of friends of the faith who are strong enough to help us and strengthen us.

One of the rewards of great fellowship is that we have a tendency to gravitate to that handful of believers that will help us in our Christian walk.

When we are sad, they cheer us!

When we are angry, they calm us!

When we are disappointed, they give us reason to rejoice!

They can do this because they keep helping us restore our faith.

When our faith gets weak, it's good to have someone close to us, whose life is in tune who can help us tune in to the life we should be living; to get in tune with God.

The greatest fellowship

Finally, brothers and sisters we must consider that while there is a reward in possessing house to house fellowship and faith, there is a greater fellowship coming that is better than any joy we have ever known.

We enjoy fellowshipping with each other down here, but can you imagine the joy we'll share when we get to the kingdom of heaven?

When worship is over sometimes we stand on the parking lot and talk with each other and share the joys of the Lord, long after the worship has passed, but can you imagine what it's going to be like when we get to the kingdom and have a chance to talk with the elders, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob?

We would be remiss if we did not peek into the future and take a glance at the great fellowship that God is planning for us.

One of these days, in the sweet bye and bye, God's going to bring us into the greatest fellowship we've ever known. That's the day we come into the presence of Jesus.

In that day there will be neither white nor black, Jew or Gentile, slave or lower class!

In that day, there will be no rich people or poor people, Southside and North side, Eastside or Westside.

In that day, we will all live on the same side of the track!

In that day, we're going to have a good time!

In that day, we'll all get together. The lambs will lay down with the wolves, soldiers will beat their swords into ploughshares.

When we all get together, we'll sing and shout as, "My soul looks back and wonders how I got over!"

When we all get together, we'll tell the story of how we struggled together cried together and overcame together!

When we all get together, we'll tell the story of the savior, who gave his life for our sins!

We will tell the story of how he died out on Calvary!

We will tell the story of how early Sunday morning he arose from the grave, with all power in his hands!

When we are together again, at the foot of our savior, that's going to be a powerful meeting day.

I don't know about you, but I want to be at that meeting!

I want to be at the meeting!

I want to be there when they declare Him King of kings!

I want to be there when they crown hHm Lord of Lords!

I don't know about you, but I want to be at the meeting!

I want to be there when the saints go marching in!

When we all get together, what a time!

"What a fellowship, what a joy divine, leaning on the everlasting arms!

Every day, we'll be leaning! What a time!

Every day will be Sunday! What at time!

It'll always be howdy and never goodbye! What a time!

What a time!

What a time!

What a time!

An Indivisible Church

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

September 2009

SCRIPTURE: "And they, continuing daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house, did eat their meat with gladness and singleness of heart," Acts 2:46

Introduction

Remember when you learned the pledge of allegiance to the flag? If you are like most you probably did well until you came upon that word "Indivisible." Many of us called it "Invisible." We had no idea what it meant; we just knew that we had to learn to recite it or face failing grades.

Later we learned that it meant our country announced to the world that we were one nation, under God, that could not be divided-That's what indivisible means. We cannot be divided against each other.

Even as the original words were written in 1892 the nation was divided but not divisible. It had endured a civil war and many internal conflicts. Yet, children stood every morning and said we were indivisible.

In 1954 the pledge was changed for the fourth time and the words "under God" were added. Since then the nation has been greatly divided with court suits being filed to have it removed.

Even though President Barack Obama's election sent a bold statement to the world that our nation was growing beyond is divisions, in an important joint session of Congress, an unknown congressman, Joe Wilson, called him a liar in front of the whole nation. The outburst meant the nation was still not on one accord; our divisions are healing but they are still deep.

Is the church as we know it today indivisible? Are we on one accord?

While we all agree that there is one Lord, one faith and one baptism the church itself remains divided.

There are over 38,000 known Christian Denominations, and there is even a new denomination that calls itself non-denominational. Each of the 38,000 denominations claims to be correct and the other 37,999 are incorrect. Some work together for the common good but there has never been an instance in which all 38,000 worked together on any single undertaking. Even local church communities seem divided. There seems to be a church on every corner. Churches form, split, then later on the split splits.

Internally, many local churches find that even among its membership there are often differences that divide the church. Some won't sing in the choir because they can't stand another person. Some won't usher for the same reason. Some leave and join other churches because they can't stand to work with, worship with, or even look at another member of the same church.

To a large degree there are many churches that are everything but "indivisible."

Is God pleased with all of this division among us? Can the work that needs to be done evangelizing the world, saving the lost and lifting up Christ be done when the church is divided?

Psalm 133 notes that is sweet when brethren dwell together in unity. When that happens, God's spirit can move and his power can be felt.

As Christians, we are convinced that if we work together on one accord, we can change the world as we know it. To do so the church must put its trust in one God and trust him only; then we will be indivisible.

Exposition

This text focuses on Luke as he describes the unity and fellowship of the early church.

When Jews accepted Christ as savior, at first they continued to worship in the temple and synagogues along with other Jews. Here they learned the Torah and received other instructions that were unique to life as a Jew.

However, they also maintained a fellowship among themselves, meeting in the homes of other believers. As the church grew there were over 5,000 believers, all meeting quietly in various homes, teaching, encouraging and supporting each other.

This constant fellowship was called the "communion of the saints."

The strength and unity of this new fellowship was totally dependent on constant interaction between believers as they supported each other in the faith.

The text indicates that worship and fellowship was regular, whenever there was an opportunity. The more often it is done publicly the better. In addition to regular gatherings the text also notes that they were with one accord; not just the lack of discord and strife, but a great deal of holy love among them; and they heartily joined in their public services.

Thus, the text indicates that two main ingredients for unity in the body of Christ are regular worship and fellowship.

The result of this constant fellowship and worship was the development of a spiritual bond that tied them to each other as sisters and brothers in Christ.

When the church is united

When the church is united in worship, prayer, service and praise it creates an atmosphere of unity and peace that is unparalleled. Old quarrels and differences are settled and a sense of re-union, redemption and forgiveness exists.

IN AN INDIVISIBLE CHURCH, DIFFERENCES ARE PUT ASIDE: Often those who have been separated for many years harbor some ill feelings. This gets worse if one party felt injured by the other; such injuries are held for years.

The one common denominator that each church member possesses is Christ. The fact that he died for the remission of all sins is the common bond that church members possess. We are all sinners, flawed, broken and frail. We are the recipients of his grace. Reconciliation happens by the power of God.

When the church is united there is a reunion of love and reconciliation of any ill feelings that might have developed over the years, prompted by circumstance, or past events.

God's spirit heals any rifts and becomes a strong motivation in the healing process. When God gets in the business, healing begins and that is not restricted to only physical problems but relationships as well. God heals rifts between husbands and wives, parents and to general reunions but to breaches involving children, bosses and employees, neighbors, relatives and friends and even heals rifts between student and teacher, leader and follower.

When God's spirit moves, the church is truly indivisible.

IN AN INDIVISIBLE CHURCH, KINGDOM SERVICE IS A PRIORITY: Whenever the church is united, service to the kingdom of God is a priority. What is kingdom service? It is feeding the poor, educating children, building Christian families, standing against immorality and promoting Christian lifestyles in the community. When the church is united, it stands as one person against all of the forces of darkness and evil in the community.

The concerted action that the church needs to take cannot be done if it is at war with itself. When pastors and deacons are fighting, members are backbiting against church leaders, and leaders themselves are planning plots against other leaders. Where there are disputes over money, ministry turf wars, power grabs, and personality clashes, kingdom service is not a priority. Yet, we are mandated to "Go ye therefore into all the world." We are mandated to reach, teach, baptize and evangelize our neighborhoods, communities, cities, states, nation and the world. That mission requires an indivisible church.

To serve our fellowman with the kingdom message, the church must become and remain indivisible.

IN AN INDIVISIBLE CHURCH, A SPIRIT OF HUMILITY EXISTS: The church is indivisible when we realize that each of us is a sinner saved by grace. We work better together when we respect the journey that each of us has traveled. When we look back over the years it is humbling to see how God has worked with us. The things that we have differed over, in retrospect, seem small when compared to the enormity of the challenge ahead of us.

Those who truly desire to facilitate the indivisible spirit of the Christian church demonstrate a spirit of humility that puts aside old differences and offers the olive branch instead. The lesson we have learned from listening to the journeys of each member should humble us and help us to be ready for reconciliation even if that means humbling ourselves before those who were once our enemies. The spirit of Godliness within us makes it happen.

That journey could begin if there are times when each member gets a chance to tell his/her story to the whole church, perhaps in a worship service or testimonial period. As we listen to each other, one by one, we start to learn that we are not that much different, we share a mutual history, a common hope and common need for a savior.

When the church can collectively say, "I need thee." It becomes indivisible.

IN AN INDIVISIBLE CHURCH, A SPIRIT OF FRATERNITY EXISTS: When the church is divided there is a fraternal spirit of brotherhood and sisterhood that does not exist. There are many churches today in which members do not feel like brothers and sisters. They do not feel that anyone is there that will help them when they are in trouble, listen to them when they need a sounding board, encourage them when they are despondent and share their moments of triumph and joy. If that feeling does not exist, it is easy for the church to become divided as each goes his separate way.

If the truth be told, there are many believers who have two sets of friends: A church set of friends and those outside of the church. When a person is celebrating an important moment, many invite one group of friends or the other, rarely both. The church is indivisible when a member does not even consider an important moment that does not include his church family in good times or bad. Until that happens, the church is existing on a fragile arrangement.

The word of God encourages all believers to "Let Brotherly Love Continue" (Hebrews 13:1) Whenever God is in the mix, the ultimate goal of brotherly love will be achieved.

Focus on the Cross

Finally, brother and sisters, if the church wants to become and remain indivisible it must focus on the cross.

The church is only divided when it forgets that the enemy is on the outside, not on the inside. As long as the church keeps its eye on the prize of the high calling of Jesus Christ it can never be divided.

The indivisible church will not be dissuaded from its mission, because its eyes are focused on the cross!

The indivisible church shows sympathy to the homeless and the helpless, because its eyes are focused on the cross!

The indivisible church teaches and reaches the masses with the word of God, because its eyes are focused on the cross!

The indivisible church feels the pain of the poor and wounded and responds with love, because its eyes are focused on the cross!

The indivisible church embraces children and the elderly through programs that promote and protect them, because its eyes are focused on the cross!

All of the Patriarchs before us have done great works, like them we should keep our eyes focused on the Lord!

If we remain focused on the great work that is before us souls will be saved and lives will be turned around!

If we remain indivisible and strong in the word and power of God, Christ will be lifted up.

When Christ is lifted up, He said, "I'll draw all men unto me."

Helping the poor and the needy is work we have to do!

Offering prayer for the sick and shut in, is work we have to do!

Fighting injustice and comforting the lonely, is work we have to do!

But there was another great work that we need to tell you about.

It was a great work that did not seem like a great work at all, but more of a disgrace.

Come and go with me out to Calvary and see a great work in progress!

Hanging out on the cross, a great work was being criticized and despised!

I hear the critics at the cross saying your great work seems to be:

A battle lost; a horrible defeat; a pathetic end to a glorious beginning

It didn't seem like much, sitting out on a hill, but the great work of redemption was underway!

The cross was a great work because it was the greatest of all victories!

The cross was a great work because it was highest of all accomplishments!

The cross was a great work because it was the finest of all hours!

The cross was a great work because it was noblest of all events!

I heard somebody say to Jesus, "If you are who you say you are, why don't you come down?"

They wanted to divide Him against His great work. But our Lord and his father were indivisible! He had work to do!

Jesus didn't say a word; He allowed them to drive nails in His hands! They drove nails into to his feet and He would not come down!

He cried out to his father, "Father forgive them for they know not what they do!" but he would not come down!

I heard him cry out "It is finished!" but He would not come down!

He died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning, He got up!

With all power in His hands!

We must remain indivisible today, because we have great work to do!

Obtaining Godly Swagger

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 4, 2009

SCRIPTURE: " Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." 2 Corinthians 5:17

Introduction

What is swagger? Well according to the Hip Hop dictionary a person's swagger refers to his/her style. It often refers to a smooth and unique overall presence. It is personified in a man's walk, talk, and dress. A man's swagger is: convinced, authentic, kind-hearted, classy and sexy. A woman's swagger is: stylish, smooth, dignified and sensuous.

What is called swagger depends on the situation. What one group calls swagger another group hates. What one group holds up as a standard, another group laughs at as ridiculous.

Swagger usually falls into three groups: Let's look at the first two. 1) Thug Swagger, it's the man or woman that is identified with a thug walk that looks like he's about to wrestle a 600 pound gorilla. It's a ghetto fabulous look of flash, glitz and bling that calls attention to her expensive tastes and exquisite body. It's a smooth talk, fresh pick up lines and an ability to disarm a girl with just the right words. Thug swagger is arrogant, cocky, confident and sometimes boisterous. To some thug swagger is even sexy. 2) Buppie Swagger, it's the style of the black upwardly mobile professional called Buppies. The Buppie swagger is the man who walks into a room standing tall and walking with a gait that says he owns the world. It's just enough flash to show a touch a class and the designer labels on her dress. It's his witty conversation, laced with humor, insight and charm. It's the way she wears her hair, loose enough to run her fingers through and soft enough to feel like feathers. Many find Buppie swagger appealing. Buppie Swagger is bold and confident, sometimes bodacious, speaks and listens just enough to appear interested but confident that everyone is really aspiring to emulate them.

That's the definition that the world gives for swagger. Immediately we see images of Kayne West, Pditty, and Chris Brown in one and Barack, Michelle, Ophrah and Denzel in the other. Neither of those caricatures adequately describe Godly Swagger, as appropriate as they may be for their admirers. Each of these categories leaves us missing a few things that would be present in the Christian man or woman with swagger.

If swagger refers to our personal style, conversation, attitude, words and feeling about others, then believers definitely have swagger. How does Christian swagger differ from the first two? Godly Swagger is the man or woman who enters a room with the knowledge that the king of the world empowers him/her but they remains humble enough to keep the common touch. They don't attack the room like the gorilla or appear to condescend to the level of mere mortals but they float into a room in a way that attracts attention rather than commands it. It's the man or woman that makes himself interesting by listening attentively to others, speaking little of himself and heaping praise on others, with just the right words, phrases and pauses to make those around them want more. Spiritual swagger dresses for the occasion, with taste and restraint, not too much here or showing so much there. Godly swagger is confident, yet humble; it is sensitive to the feelings of others, polite and mannerable. Many find spiritual swagger as refreshing, attractive, charismatic and even Godlike.

As Christians we want to walk the Christian walk, talk the Christian talk and do everything we can to reflect a lifestyle that is confident, humble, spiritual and godly. Those who are able to exhibit these characteristics have Christian swagger and favor with God.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he explains the nature of the new life in Christ.

Jewish believers were often confused about the relationship of their new Christian life to their Jewish upbringing. Many viewed Christianity as simply an important addition to their Jewish faith. They believed they could continue their devotion to ritual and Mosaic Law and simply add a few Christian components that would make their lives complete.

Paul echoed the teachings of Christ when he told them that the Christian life was a completely new experience, not an addition to their former faith. The old faith, the old allegiance to ritual was no longer meaningful.

In addition, he challenges the old way of life that is based upon appearances rather than true faith. It was a matter of turning from superficial living or doing that which appeared real but was actually not real. The emphasis, he noted, should be from the heart, which is the way of the new believer.

Thus, he concludes that any person who is truly a believer of Jesus is a "New creation"- a believer from the inside out rather than the outside in. His walk, talk and attitude about life experiences are completely different.

Elements of Godly Swagger

There are several aspects to a person with Godly swagger that makes him/her appealing to others and to God:

SWAGGER IN TALK: What does a man or woman with Godly swagger talk about? Before they became Christians their conversation did not always reflect godly principles. There are some who cursed frequently, were argumentative with others, gossiped incessantly, and were constantly trying to build themselves up while low rating others. They loved to talk themselves up and talk others down. However, when they obtained godly swagger their conversation noticeably changed. They spoke encouraging words more often, criticized less frequently and chose their words more carefully. They talked very little about themselves and more about what they could do for others. They also began to talk about the goodness of God; not so much that they became a bore to others but their happiness and new life was reflected in their new conversation: less about sex and more about love; less about getting and more about opportunities to serve; less about receiving the attention and more about paying attention to the needs of others. Those who obtain Godly swagger have a completely new conversation because their lives now reflect faith in God which also changes the way they talk.

SWAGGER IN WALK: A person with Godly swagger carries himself in a different way. Your walk in life involves the people, places and things that surround you. The worldly walk carries us to places that do not reflect the spirit of Christ. Often this includes bars, saloons, dance halls, houses of pleasure, and some places that are dark and smoke filled. Our intent has no godly purpose. We are surrounded with people who enjoy ungodly lifestyles; who sometimes plan and execute ungodly activities. Our walk in the worldly context, also carries us to things that we use for ungodly purposes. These things are often innocent in themselves but because of our worldly intent, they become tools of the devil. However, when we develop a godly walk, people, places and things change. We may still have associates who are in the world, but they no longer influence us or define where we go or how we entertain ourselves. The godly walk changes the places that we go. We are no longer regulars at the local clubs, gambling halls, and pleasure spots. We are frequently present where God's work is being performed and God's people assemble. The things that we do change as well. Instead of planning ungodly activities we now plan activities that will strengthen, build and glorify the kingdom of God. When we have Godly swagger people instantly notice that there is something different about us in an attractive way because the spirit of God is reflected in all that we do, every place we go and the people with whom we choose to associate.

SWAGGER IN THOUGHT: Proverbs 23:7 says, "For as he thinketh in his heart, so is he." There is a difference between the way a person with Godly swagger thinks and all others. The person with godly swagger has a different attitude and approach about life and its various circumstances. Instead of being a pessimist Godly swagger prompts believers to be optimists and approach the world with the confidence that God is in control and is guiding their footsteps. Godly swagger has a lot to do with what we think about, plans we are making, and goals that we are pursuing. A person with Godly swagger is always planning something great and pleasing to God; always seeking ways to improve, encourage and build. He/she reflects the meaning of Philippians 4:8 "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." In contrast, the person without Godly swagger constantly complains, is depressing, defeated and generally not an attractive person. Godly swagger comes from the faith that believers have in Jesus Christ it lifts their thoughts to a higher plane.

How to obtain Godly Swagger

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that it is impossible to obtain Godly swagger without accepting Christ in your life.

Godly swagger deals with the spirit and the soul not in the superficial. It deals with what comes from the inside and is reflected on the outside.

It's possible to imitate the walk of Denzel Washington or President Obama. It's possible to copy the smile of Michelle or the words of Ophrah Winfrey, but it won't give you Godly swagger, just a walk like a movie star or a President.

Those who want Godly Swagger must have God in their lives and attempt to let the confidence, boldness and assurance that he gives us change the way we walk, talk and think.

To obtain Godly swagger you must be willing to change your life, straighten up and fly right.

The bible makes it clear in Ephesians 4:22-24, " That ye put off concerning the former conversation the old man, which is corrupt according to the deceitful lusts; And be renewed in the spirit of your mind; And that ye put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness."

To obtain Godly swagger we must hear God. He who lies, should start speaking the truth. (Ephesians 4:25)

He who is angry should not let the sun go down on his wrath. (Ephesians 4:26)

He who listens to the devil should not give him place. (Ephesians 4:27)

He who steals should steal no more. (Ephesians 4:28)

He who curses and talks dirty should let no corrupt communication come out of his mouth. (Ephesians 4:29)

If you want Godly swagger it cannot be obtained from a book, or by copying what you see others do; it has to come from knowing the Lord for yourself.

Godly swagger is a character trait and trademark of all who are a part of God's kingdom. Jesus made it clear in John 3:3 ".. Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God."

To obtain Godly swagger you must be, you got to be, born again.

To be born again means that you no longer trust in the world, but you trust in God.

To be born again means that you no longer doubt yourself but you put your faith in the power of God.

To be born again means that you that no longer see the world through defeated eyes, but you now see the world through the eyes of God.

To be born again means that the old swaggerless you has died and the new man or woman in Christ is alive.

When you've been born again you'll have that fire and a Holy Ghost that the song writer said makes you move, makes you shout and makes you cry within!

Folks who have been born again can sing with new meaning, "been to the river, been baptized, been converted and I feel alright, I've been born again!"

When you've been born again, you have a new way of carrying yourself that makes people ask, what's happened to you? It's then that you can answer:

"I got a new walk, over in glory and it's mine, mine, mine. I've got a new talk!, over in glory and it's mine!"

When you've been born again, you've got a new story to tell.

Every now and then we have to tell somebody about the goodness of the Lord!

We have to tell somebody how he picked us up and turned us around and planted our feet on solid ground!

We have to tell somebody how he died out on Calvary and stayed in the grave for three days and nights but Early Sunday morning he came walking out of that grave with a swagger that would put Pdiddy, Denzel and Barack to shame because he had all power in his hands!

Giving the devil hell

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 11, 2009

SCRIPTURE: Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour: 1 Peter 5:8; Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. James 4:7

Introduction

Have you ever wished you could take all of your problems, tie them up in a bag and dump them? We are often inundated with problems, frustrations and troubles that make our lives miserable. We can't help but wish, if only occasionally, that we could rid ourselves of so many troubles.

When there are clothes that don't fit anymore, many people give them away.

When there is an appliance that doesn't work and can't be repaired, we throw it away.

Generally, when something is bothering us, causing us a problem we either fix it or get rid of it.

If that's our attitude about clothes that don't fit or appliances that don't work, why is it that we try to hang on to things that trouble us, frustrate us and cause us a world a problems? Why don't we simply get rid of them?

Consider the drunk man who was bothered by a self righteous lady on the bus. The drunk had been drinking constantly for a day and his clothes reeked with alcohol. Yet, he was courteous to everyone he met on the bus speaking to each person as he passed saying, "Good Morning Madam," and "Please excuse my appearance, I hope I don't make you too uncomfortable." Everyone on the bus accommodated the drunk, especially since he was so apologetic; everyone except one woman who stood as he sat comfortably. She looked at his clothes and humped up her nose. He was a drunk and was sitting and she was a fine upstanding woman who had to stand. She frowned at him in disgust and thought it a shame that a drunk would sit next to decent people. Finally, the woman pointed her finger at the man and said, "You are going straight to hell!" When he heard that, the drunk instantly pulled the chord to stop the bus. He looked at the woman and said, "I'm sorry madam, I didn't know this bus was going to hell, I have to get off; but you can have my seat!"-She was giving him hell, but he gave it back to her.

That's what we have to do in life sometimes. When the devil sends us a day full of hell, we have to send it back to him, marked "Returned to Sender." Give it back to him. Don't begin a day his way. Don't start a week his way. Give it back to him unopened. When the devil threatens to invade your home, church or school, don't accept it; give it back to him, unopened.

As Christians, there is nothing that the devil has to give us that we want. What he offers we refuse, what he gives we return. We are determined to live for Jesus and give him the best that we have.

Exposition

This text focuses on Peter as he instructed Christians who were enduring persecution in the early church.

He warned them to be strong in the faith because persecution was rampart. Peter encourages believers to pray and trust God's love in the present with the full knowledge that the forces of evil will not rest without finding ways to meddle in our lives.

In the Old Testament evil was represented as Satan the accuser; Peter refers to him as the "adversary," The "devil" is literally the "slanderer," carrying the same connotation as the adversarial accuser. Jewish teachers recognized that, as in the book of Job where he "went about" over the face of the earth Satan sought in this present age to turn people to apostasy from the truth, although his power was limited because he ultimately had to answer to God.

Thus, believers are urged to constantly be on Guard because the devil will cause them to fall from the faith or get frustrated along the way.

Fully aware that the devil is trying to destroy us we should prepare ourselves to resist the devil when he attempts to attack and he will flee.

Three things to give the devil

Today, Christians are encouraged to respond to attacks by the devil in three ways: Being sober or serious in our responses to life situations, vigilant in our readiness, and constantly resisting the devils attempts to make inroads into our Christian life and attitude. We should give the devil hell when he tries to:

STEAL YOUR JOY: The devil works daily to steal your joy. When that happens you gradually become bitter, remorseful and reclusive. Life loses its excitement, challenge or inspiration and everything becomes boring at the most, or not worth the effort at the least. How does the devil do that? He does it by painting every situation with dark colors. In times of celebration, the devil will remind us of what you lost instead of what we have gained: lost loved ones, lost fortunes, lost dreams, lost opportunities. So, instead of celebrating the moment we dwell upon the past. There is a Latin phrase "Carpo Tripudium" that means "seize the joy." Certainly there have been sad moments in our past, but must leave them behind. That's the spirit of Philippians 3:13 "Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing

I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before," When an opportunity to celebrate a happy moment with your family, friends or church comes, we should not let Satan steal the joy of the moment but we should "seize the joy" and relish the blessings that God has given.

LEAD YOU ASTRAY: The devil's job is to lead you astray. He has many tricks and devices to lead us away from God. In fact, scripture reminds us not to be ignorant of his devices (2 Corinthians 2:11.) This is not an idle truth because even in the church there are some who are being led astray, this very day. What are his devices? 1)He uses anger, envy and jealousy to turn us against each other 2)He uses music, literature, movies and television to change our spiritual tastes 3)He uses sexual attractions, infatuations and other strong emotions such as love and hate to lead us away. When Satan attacks us with these he is often successful in causing many believers to stray. In fact, 1 Timothy 5:15 says, "For some are already turned aside after Satan." When it happens their kingdom service slackens, and their Christian walk meanders off the path. So, we are encouraged to be vigilant and resist Satan's invitations to stray just as Jesus did when he said, in Luke 4:8 "Get thee behind me Satan." –Resist the devil when he tries to lead you astray and he will flee.

STEAL YOUR FAITH: The Devil fights a continuous battle to steal our faith. His goal is to get us to doubt God, lose our hope and walk away from our the source of our deliverance. How does he do that? He raises questions in our mind. Why is God allowing this problem in my family? That's the issue of Mary and Martha when they blamed Jesus for not coming when they called him at the death of Lazarus. Why is God allowing this tragedy to befall my family? That's the issue that Job dealt with after the loss of his health, family and fortune. Why is my marriage suffering so badly? That is the issue that Hosea dealt with after his wife left him repeatedly for other men. In circumstances like these, it is easy for the devil to steal your faith in God if you do not resist. When death came, Mary and Martha were reminded of the power of the resurrection. Job resolved to stay firm and hold on rather than give up his faith. And even in a marital crises Hosea never abandoned the Lord. When you lose a job or experience a loss that's when Satan gets busy raising doubts in your mind. That's why we are encouraged to be vigilant, resist him and resolve like Job in Job 13:15 "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him: but I will maintain mine own ways before him." Paul summed it up this way, Romans 8:38-39 "For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

Give It to the Lord

Finally, brothers and sisters if you really want to give the devil hell, put your trust in the Lord.

Satan cannot endure the presence of God, soon he will have to let you alone.

When Jesus stood before a man infested with devils, they cried out, "let us alone."

Soon after they had to go.

That's the way it is when believers who are tempted by the devil begin to call on God, he will leave you alone. However, if he can get a foot in the door he will set up house.

That's why the song writer declared, "Don't let the devil ride, if you let him ride he'll want to drive, don't let him ride."

When the devil comes you must resist him because if you don't he will:

—rob us of our joy, peace, and contentment.

—destroy our marriages, our families and church fellowship.

—destroy our courage and make us afraid of "what could happen.

—deceive us and blind our eyes from the truth.

To resist the devil we must be powered up. However, we can't be powered up with an up and down faith. Here one Sunday and miss the next. Prayed up one day and down the next. We have to "be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the word."

To resist the devil we need the power of God.

It is the power of God that enables us to withstand storms and overcome powerful obstacles.

It is the power of God that enables us to bear our burdens and to survive terrible tragedies.

It is the power of God that enables us to win difficult victories and to fulfill awesome responsibilities.

When we have the power of God we can:

—Fight spiritual battles and reach spiritual goals.

—Become faithful servants and defeat vicious enemies.

—Solve stubborn problems and conquer worldly habits.

—Uphold biblical principles and live by Godly standards.

We should resist the devil with confidence that there is nothing the devil can do to destroy us if we keep our faith in the Lord. God promises that, "No weapon formed against thee will prosper."

When saints put their trust in the Lord, all of the devils weapons lose their power.

The devil shoots bullets of hate but they bounce off a wall of love!

The devil sets booby traps of failure but saints keep finding success!

The devil tries to break our defenses but we keep seizing the offensive!

The devil tries to knock us down, but we keep getting back up because we keep hearing God say, "No weapon formed against thee shall prosper.

If he tries to call us everything but a child of God, it will not prosper!

If he tries to stop us from claiming blessings God has for us, it will not prosper!

That's the lesson that the devil still has not learned.

It was taught to him when he tampered with David, "and David said, restore unto me joy of my salvation."

It was taught to him when tampered with Job, but Job said, "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord."

It was taught to him when he tempted a blind man who said, “I was once blind, but now I see.”

It was taught to him in a way that he should have learned but he still didn’t get it.

On a hill far away, stood an old rugged cross. He tried to take that cross and give the Savior hell, but instead he gave it right back!

They falsely accused Him, They physically abused him, but he gave it right back!

They put a crown of thorns on his head, it humiliated him, but He gave it right back!

They ridiculed him and belittled Him, but he gave it right back

I heard him give it back when he said, “Father forgive them for they know not what they do!”

He died out on Calvary,

But early Sunday morning, He arose as a living testimony that if the devil gives you hell, you can rise again if you give it right back!

Unforgettable

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 18, 2009

SCRIPTURE: Remember these, O Jacob and Israel; for thou art my servant: I have formed thee; thou art my servant: O Israel, thou shalt not be forgotten of me. Isaiah 44:21 ;And when he had given thanks, he brake it, and said, Take, eat: this is my body, which is broken for you: this do in remembrance of me. 1 Corinthians 11:24

Introduction

Have you ever forgotten anything? If you are like most people you have forgotten something in your life. It may have been something as simple as forgetting your keys or an appointment or something more serious. It's frustrating when we forget and try our best to remember, but it just slips away.

If it's frustrating to forget what you want to remember its equally frustrating to keep remembering something that you have been trying to forget. It would be great if we could forget painful experiences but sometimes they flashback in the night or creep into our dreams. Sometimes we want to forget events or experiences; there are even times when we want to forget some people and wipe them out of our memories but they keep coming back.

Then there are those experiences that we never want to forget. The perfect honeymoon, a great family dinner, the look in the eye of the perfect mate, a touch, the aroma of a rose petal, the championship game, and the day of the ultimate victory are experiences that we never want to forget.

The late Nat King Cole wrote a song that became a hit in his day. It was rerecorded with his daughter Natalie digitally mixed to sing the song as a duet with her famous father. The song was entitled "Unforgettable." The lyrics spoke of a man who had found a woman who made such an impression on him that he could never forget her. Remember the lyrics?

Unforgettable, that's what you are Unforgettable though near or far
Like a song of love that clings to me
How the thought of you does things to me
Never before has someone been more Unforgettable in every way
And forever more,

that's how you'll stay
That why, darling, it's incredible
That someone so unforgettable
Thinks that I am unforgettable too.

The song became an instant hit probably because everyone can recall at least one person that made such an impression on them that they will never be forgotten. No one ever forgets their first boy friend or first girl friend, even though the years have passed.

You never forget the turning points in your life either: Your first driver's license, your high school graduation, your marriage, your first child, your first car. All of these are unforgettable moments.

For believers, there is another unforgettable moment: the day they accepted Christ as their savior. It was such an important moment that many remember the exact date. Some don't remember the date but they remember the experience it is engraved in our memories and in our hearts.

The day we accepted Christ is the day we realized that God never forgets about us. They day of our salvation is the day that he became unforgettable to us as well.

As Christians, we only think of God on two occasions: both day and night. He is never out of mind and words of praise for him are constantly falling from our lips. He is truly unforgettable.

Exposition

This text focuses on Isaiah as he explained that God will never forget His people.

Prior to this text Isaiah explained how there had been many times that the people of God had proved themselves unfaithful to God by worshipping idols. In their infatuation with idols they had forgotten God, but he had not forgotten them.

So in this passage God gives the people of Israel two charges: They should remember that they are servants of God there he will not forget them. Conversely, they should never forget him as well.

The fact that neither of them will forget the other is given in Isaiah 44:23 as a reason for rejoicing and celebrating.

In this chapter Isaiah addresses Jacob and Israel, representing the people of both the Northern and Southern kingdoms, both of whom would endure hardships in the years to come but were being reminded in advance that despite anything that happens the people should remember that God will never forget them, and neither should the people forget him.

We should not forget each other

Today, the people of God should remember each other. Isaiah referred to Israel and Jacob, symbolically, speaking to both the Northern and Southern Kingdoms, separated for years over political divisions that pitted them against each other.

Together, they were the recipients of God's protection in slavery, deliverance to the Promised Land and their rise to prominence in the community of nations.

In their journey there were many who were unforgettable. Moses, Joshua, Saul, David, Solomon, were all giants who help them achieve great heights with God's help.

Even today the church has many saints whose lives and contributions were unforgettable. Those who built the buildings, established the traditions, and maintained the faith for decades cannot and should not ever be forgotten. They are the silent army of warriors whose marching feet ploughed paths through the uncharted waters of time.

Those who worked to bring us thus far are unforgettable!

Those whose sacrifices of time, talent and resources made it possible for this generation to reach this milestone in the journey are unforgettable!

Those who gave their lives in service as preachers, teachers, and ministry leaders and workers dedicated to nurture each succeeding generation are truly unforgettable.

Just as we remember the patriarchs of the church: Peter, Paul, Timothy, Titus, John and the others, we also remember the works of thousands of unsung heroes of the faith who have given of themselves to help us reach this day. They are unforgettable.

God will not forget us

There are times when we believe that God has forgotten us, especially when we experience difficulties. Yet, we have the promise of God in this text that regardless of circumstances He will not forget us.

In response to this feeling Isaiah talked to Israel then and to us today when he said in Isaiah 49:14 " But Zion said, The Lord hath forsaken me, and my Lord hath forgotten me." That's the feeling that Israel had when difficulties beset them but in the very next verse Isaiah answered by saying, in Isaiah 49:15 "Can a woman forget her sucking child, that she should not have compassion on the son of her womb? yea, they may forget, yet will I not forget thee."

No matter how far we travel, God will not forget us.
No matter how distant we are from him at times, God will not forget us.
No matter how far our lives get off course, God will not forget us.

Just as a mother cannot forget a child she is nursing, the God who birthed us and breathed into us the breath of life, will never forget us.

That's why Job declared in his adversity, "Yea thou He slay me, yet will I trust Him."

That's why David declared in Psalm 121:1, "I will lift up mine eyes to the hills from when cometh my help, my help cometh from the Lord who made the heavens and the earth…He that keepeth Israel shall neither slumber or sleep."

We should not forget God

Finally, brothers and sisters we should keep it mind that while it is good that God will not forget us, it is even more important for us to remember not to forget God.

On many occasions Israel forgot about God. He became distant and out of their minds.

When they were in Egypt they thought about God all the time, but as soon as they entered the Promised Land they forgot about him.

When they wandered in the wilderness, they never forgot his commandments, but once they entered the Promised Land they followed after strange Gods.

When they built the great temple under Solomon, they kept God in their thoughts, but in their prosperity, they divided themselves and worshipped golden statutes.

Today, brothers and sisters we should not forget about the Lord, because He never forgets about us.

We have good reason to keep the Lord on our minds; what he has done for us has been unforgettable.

He brought us through some tough times!

He has sustained us in the midst of our difficulties.

He's so unforgettable that when we wake up in the morning we are thinking about Him. That's why the song writer wrote, "I woke up this morning with my mind, staid on Jesus."

"Walking and talking with my mind, staid on Jesus"

"Singing and Praying with my mind, staid on Jesus"

It's hard to forget about the Lord because everyday he's blessing us in a new way.

That's why the song writer declared, "Great is thy faithfulness, morning by morning, new mercies I see. All I have needed thy hands hath provided, great is thy faithfulness Lord unto to me!"- He's unforgettable.

Yet in our prosperity, we must not only hear that God will not forget us, we must not forget Him!.

It's easy to forget him, if we put our bibles down and don't read them.

It's easy to forget him, if we fail to worship regularly.

It's easy to forget him, if we start our days without talking to him.

It's easy to forget him, if we don't commune with him.

That's why the song writer sad, "Lest, I forget, Gethsemane. Lest, I forget he died for me, lead me to Calvary."

When we think of Calvary we see Jesus, taking bread and blessing it saying, "Take eat, this is my body."

When we think of Calvary we see Jesus saying, "This is my blood which is shed for the remission of sin, do this in remembrance of me."

Lest I forget, lead me to Calvary!

Lest I forget, show me the crown of thorns that was placed on hHs head!

Lest I forget, show me the purple robe that was placed on His shoulders!

Lest I forget, show me the cross that He carried up Golgotha's hill!

Lest I forget, show me the nails that were driven in his hands!

Lest I forget, show me the blood and water that streamed from His side!

Lest I forget, show me the grave where the buried Him and the stone that blocked the tomb!

Lest I forget, I forget tell me how Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave!

He's alive today. I can't forget Him because He walks with me and He talks with me and He tells me I am His own.

..And the joy we share as we tarry there, none other has ever known.

Genuine Knockoffs

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

October 25, 2009

SCRIPTURE:"By their fruits ye shall know them, do men gather grapes of thorns of figs of thistles?" Matthew 7:16

Introduction

Have you ever bought something thinking it was authentic only to learn that it was a cheap fake? It bore a trade mark that was strikingly familiar to what we were accustomed, yet it was not real.

What is a knockoff? A knockoff is a version of a design that is not as valuable as the original; it's not always a fake, but it is most certainly a cheaper version of something more expensive.

Today there is a battle underway in the clothing design industry. An American clothes maker by the name of Seema Anand is making millions by legally creating knockoff versions of famous clothing designs. It appears that there is no copyright on clothing designs, so Ms. Anand has set up a computer outfitted factory in India. Once she sees a new design on an American website, she emails the image to her factory and in two weeks the 2,000 workers in her plant can turn out finished items, ship them back to America and sell them for $250 instead of the $750 designer price before the originals hit the street.

What Ms. Anand sells is genuine, but it's a genuine knockoff.

She is not alone; an entire industry has been developed around selling knockoffs: A $10,000 Rolex watch was once a catch, but the knockoff version sells on the internet for $49. Offshore companies now sell genuine knockoff auto parts. A $100 genuine part is only $25 if you get the knockoff version. No brand escapes knockoffs: Prada, Coach, Christian Dior, Louis Vuittton, Ray Ban. An original Prada handbag can cost as must as $1,000 or more but the knock off version is just $189.50 anywhere on the internet.

Why are there so many knockoffs? Aren't the items copyrighted? They are, but there is a loophole. You can copyright a new fabric you create, but it's hard to copyright the way you drape it, cut it and shape it. So, knockoffs often avoid the copyrighted fabric; they don't use real leather, they use lizard skin for example. They use computers to copy the way it is shaped and cut and whammo! –A knockoff is born. What they market is a genuine knockoff!

The phrase a “Genuine Knockoff” is an Oxymoron. An Oxymoron uses two contradictory terms such as: “Same Difference” or “extremely average”,”organized mess”, or “open secret.” In each instance one word contradicts the other.

What if some church goers could be described with Oxymorons such as: “Doubting believer”, “Devilish Saint,” “Shacking Christian,” or “The Living Dead?” What if there were genuine Christian knockoffs who look like Christians but on close inspection we learn that that they are not made out of the same fabric although they may have a similar cut and flow to their lives as real believers.

It’s possible that there may be some knockoffs among us: Knock-off preachers, Knockoff choir members, knockoff deacons, ushers, trustees and members in the pews. Everyone who belongs to a church is not genuine. There is a large number of people who are genuine knockoffs.

As Christians, we must strive to make our relationship with Christ one that is real and meaningful; not one that is artificial. While our family and friends may not know the difference, God who knows both our down sitting and our uprising knows the difference between what is genuine and a knockoff.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he warns believers not to be deceived by those who pass themselves off as the Messiah.

As Jesus taught his disciples, he warned them that there were many people who were representing themselves to be ambassadors of the kingdom but were actually false prophets. While they appeared genuine they were not completely truthful about the nature of their role in the kingdom.

He warned that they would come disguised as sheep, or children of the kingdom, but they were actually wolves on the inside. He warned that believers should look beyond just the surface into the character of a person to determine truth or a lie.

Be warned, Jesus said, everyone who claims to be of the kingdom is not an ambassador of the kingdom.

Jesus gave his disciples one surefire way to determine whether or not such imposters were real; “Ye shall know them by their fruits.”

The fruits

Today, we should be able to determine that which is genuine from knockoffs by looking at them closely.

KNOCKOFFS AND GENUINES ARE NOT MADE FROM THE SAME MATERIAL: Often a person buys an expensive watch that appears to be gold at first glance, only to discover that it has a Swiss gold back. Too often we discover these truths about friends and acquaintances. Are those who call you their friends, genuine or knockoffs? Friends are the real deal, but there are often a large number of others who are not friends but they appear to be until the chips are down, then we realize that they are knockoffs. When is a friend, really a friend? When the chips are down; that's also when the knockoffs disappear. Is your relationship genuine or a knockoff? Does he really love you? Is she really as crazy about you as she says? The test comes when one of you asks for a commitment, then you discover whether it's genuine or a knockoff. Is your relationship with God genuine or a knockoff? When things go wrong do you doubt him or does your faith remain intact? When the pendulum of events swings against you do you deny him and back away? If so, then it's not a genuine faith but something made from a different material.

A real relationship with God is based on your belief that God is in control of every situation, no matter how bad it seems. A knockoff looks real until things go sour; like fake gold turns green after a while, the same is true of a knockoff godly relationship.

Genuine faith is developed over time. Romans 10:17 says, "Faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the word of God." That means genuine faith comes from hearing, studying, worship and prayer. It comes from watching God work over the years. Knockoff faith is a quick "show my face" once a twice a month that will change colors the first time we wear it in life's rain. Those who trust Christ, have the real deal! He's genuine, not a knockoff.

KNOCKOFFS HAVE A SIMILAR LOOK BUT DON'T FEEL THE SAME: Ever bought that item that resembled leather only to discover that it didn't feel like leather? Ever bought that knockoff dress and realized that while it looked the same on the rack, you could feel the difference once you put it on? There are many people who attempt to duplicate the Christian life by doing what they see Christians do, but even as they do, it does not feel the same. There are many who believe that we are happy people because we worship with the Church family; so they dress like we dress sit where we sit and sing the same songs, but it doesn't feel the same; nothing happens for them. In fact, there are many who are absolutely bored in church. They are so bored that they pull out their cell phones and text friends or play games. Yet, they feel somehow there is a blessing in sitting where Christians sit and appearing to do what they do.

What those outside of the faith do not know is that the true believer does not attend a Sunday worship to become happy, he or she participates because they are already happy. They get up on Sunday morning ready to worship and praise God because they realize he has blessed them and protected them. They stand with the other saints and praise him because they are happy about what he's going to do for them in the future! They clap their hands, wave their hands, nod their heads and say amen because they leave home confident that no matter what comes; if they stay on God's side they will be victorious.

That feeling cannot be duplicated. Knockoffs can wear what we wear, sit where we sit and sing what we sing, but they won't be able to truly say, "I sing because I'm happy, I sing because I'm free. His eye is on the sparrow and I know he watches me."

KNOCKOFFS DON'T HAVE GOD'S TRADE MARK: In many ways knockoffs replicate genuine articles closely. Yet, when it comes to the trademarks, knockoffs are usually altered in some way that keeps them out of court. They leave out a letter of a name, add a letter or alter a logo in some way that is hardly noticeable. When a person becomes a Christian, God places his trademark on him; it is clearly visible and impossible to hide.

Even though two people may attend the same church and worship together, if one places more emphasis on things of the world than he or she does about God, it's not hard to see that the trademark is a knock off.

The Christian youth wears God's trademark. It's in the way they walk, talk, and conduct themselves.

The Christian husband has God's trademark written all over the way he handles and relates to his wife and children.

When we become Christians, it's hard to hide the fact that we love the Lord!

When his trademark is on us people will notice that we smile even when we are burdened down; we rise when we are knocked down and laugh when everyone else is crying! Why? It's because he's got His hands on us.

Those who have a knockoff faith crumble under pressure, fall apart when attacked, and completely dissolve when their backs are against the wall.

If our faith is genuine, it can take a licking and keep on ticking!

When It's Genuine

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must all admit that when you have had the best, you don't want the rest; when you've had the genuine, knockoffs won't do.

While there are some who happy to have knockoffs, those who have had a genuine experience won't settle for anything less.

Those who have worn real pearls, always find something lacking about paste filled knockoffs.

Those who have owned even a small diamond, always find something short with a cubic zirconium knockoff.

Those who have worn a good pair all leather shoes, feel something different when they wear a pair off knockoffs with plastic soles.

Those who have experienced the joy of real love instantly know that a one night stand is just a knockoff.

The same is true about those who have had a genuine relationship with the Lord.

Those who have experienced the love of God up close will never settle with knowing him from a distance, because that's a knockoff relationship that will not work.

Those who know the Lord have a story to tell because he has left his mark on them.

When your relationship with God is genuine and not a knockoff, the Lord is real to you and you begin to see things differently.

When your love of God is genuine and not a knockoff the:

—SKIES seem to be bluer; SUN seem to shine brighter;

—BIRDS seem to sing sweeter; FLOWERS seem to blossom fuller;

—AIR seems more refreshing; STARS seem to have more luster;

—BURDENS seem lighter; FAITH seems stronger;

—HEAVEN seems closer!
Because God is genuine not a knockoff, he can:
—Take our valleys and raise them to mountain tops;
—Take our midnights and turn them into noon days;
—Take our briny tears and turn them into mighty cheers;
—Take our defeats and turn them into victories;
—Take our losses and make them work for our gain!
Somebody asks, “How do you know He’s genuine and not a knockoff?”
Don’t you hear the answer?
“I know the Lord is genuine because I can feel Him in my hands!
I can feel Him in my feet!
I can feel Him in my heart!
I can feel Him all over me!
He’s so genuine that He picked up an old rugged cross and carried it to Calvary!
He’s so genuine that He died for all of my sins!
But Early Sunday morning He arose from the dead with all power in His hands!

Sleeping With the Enemy

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 1, 2009

SCRIPTURE: And she made him sleep upon her knees; and she called for a man, and she caused him to shave off the seven locks of his head; and she began to afflict him, and his strength went from him. Judges 16:19

Introduction

Has anyone ever flirted with you? Have you ever flirted with anyone? Have you ever toyed with the idea of doing something that you shouldn't? If so, you are not alone just about everyone has flirted with someone or something that was dangerous to their well being. It may have been a romantic flirtation, but it could just as easily have been an opportunity to gain by becoming involved in questionable opportunities.

Temptation is all around us. It is not limited to one specific type of experience. We are tempted when we have the opportunity and ability to do that which may be good to us even though it may not be good for us. As a general rule, we are only tempted to do things that will be good to us.

Sometimes we can't even worship without being tempted. One Sunday a pastor told his congregation that the church needed some extra money and asked the people to prayerfully consider giving a little extra in the offering plate. He said that whomever gave the most would be able to pick out three hymns. After the offering plates were passed, the pastor glanced down and noticed that someone had placed three $100 bills in the offering. He was so excited that he immediately shared his joy with his congregation and said he'd like to personally thank the person who placed the money in the plate. All the way in the back Rosie shyly raised her hand. The pastor asked her to come to the front. Slowly she made her way to the pastor. He told her how wonderful it was that she gave so much and in thanksgiving asked her to pick out three hymns. Her eyes brightened as she looked over the congregation, pointed to the three most handsome men in the building and said, "I'll take him and him and him!" -There are many who worship but they are really looking for hims!

The bible describes the world and its evil influences as "the enemy" of God. Those who become too friendly with the world are described as being like people who commit adultery, flirting with the enemies of God. James 4:4 puts it this way, "Ye adulterers and adulteresses, know ye not that the friendship of the world is enmity with God? whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God."

We must deal with the world because of the nature of our secular relationships, as well as our professional and social networks, but we are encouraged to not be part of what the world does or conform ourselves to worldly activity. We were commanded to think on a higher level in Romans 12:2 that says, "And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God."

As Christians, we must not flirt with the enemy of the cross; if so we make the sacrifice of our Lord of no use and expose ourselves to greater temptations than necessary.

Exposition

This text focuses on Samson, a young man whose purpose in life was cut short because he allowed himself flirt with the devil.

Samson is heralded as the strongest man that ever lived. His feats of strength were unparallel. He picked up the gates of a city and carried them away. He caught 300 foxes and tied torches in their tails and loosed them in the fields of his enemies. He killed a lion with his bare hands. He killed thousands of Philistines, including one instance when he killed over a thousand using the jawbone of a donkey as his weapon.

He was born a Nazirite. The Nazirite's vow had two forms. One was based on a vow by the individual for a specific period; the other was a lifelong devotion prompted by God, making special revelations to the parents before the child is born. No special strength or power came from being a Nazirite. Any special gifts they exercised came because of God being with them.

According to Easton, Delilah was a Philistine woman who was bribed by the "Lords of the Philistines" to obtain from Samson the secret of his strength and the means of overcoming it (Jdg 16:4-18). She tried on three occasions to obtain from him this secret in vain. On the fourth occasion she wrung it from him. She made him sleep upon her knees, and then called the man who was waiting to help her; who "cut off the seven locks of his head," and so his "strength went from him."

The source of all strength

Today as believers review Samson's experience with and without God we should glean the following truths:

THE SECRET OF OUR STRENGTH IS GOD: The Philistines wanted to know the secret of Samson's strength. Although he had a massive physical frame, he was able to do perform his powerful acts of strength because God worked through him. That is also the secret of every believer's strength. Our faith in God makes us who we are. It is the reason that we are able to stand when all around us are falling. It is why we are able weather the storms of life that seem to sink all others. It is why we are able to smile when others are crying. When we seem to do superhuman feats, it is because God empowers us. He sings through us, helps through us and creates through us. He it is he who stands tall in such moments. Psalms 62:7 says, "In God is my salvation and my glory: the rock of my strength, and my refuge, is in God. In the time of trouble we find that God is our refuge; he helps us to recover from the onslaughts of the world and to thrive when others are just trying to survive. This faith we have is strengthened through regular prayer, worship, and bible reading. It is the faith that the songwriter wrote about when he said "Without God I could do nothing. Without him I'd surely fail. Without him my life would be drifting; like a ship without a sail."

THE ENEMY SEEKS TO AFFLICT AND DESTROY: The enemy sought not only to find the secret of Samson's strength; they also wanted to know how to afflict him and destroy him. That's what Delilah sought; she needed to know how to weaken him. Today, there is a similitude between ourselves and Samson. Each of us has an enemy or two who constantly look for our sources of strength and search for ways to weaken or destroy us. Is it an adversary who looks to defeat you? Is it a subordinate that seeks to get you fired? Is it a competitor that seeks advantage? Enemies seek out your trade secrets in business or attempt to compromise your professional relationships in the workplace. The enemy of every Christian is the devil who seeks every opportunity to kill and destroy us. 1 Peter 5:8 Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour: Satan has found that the best way to destroy a believer is to disconnect them from their source of power. Look around you: An unplugged iron, refrigerator, light bulb, television or computer network is powerless. Satan is able to destroy us if he can separate us from our relationship with God. We should the Apostle Paul's resolve in Romans 8:38-39 "For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

IF WE SLEEP WITH THE ENEMY WE WAKE UP WITHOUT GOD: Samson flirted with Delilah often, thinking that he would be strong enough when the enemy came; but he woke up one morning and God had left him. Today, there are many who involve themselves with the world on so many levels that they are in danger of losing their faith. We are sleeping with the enemy if we engage in worldly activities that would not please God. We are sleeping with the enemy if spend more time focusing on our worldly pursuits than we spend on God. When our job, professional pursuit, or ambition comes before God's will for our lives, then we are sleeping with the enemy. Ephesians 4:27 warns us to "Neither give place to the devil." We should not give the devil one inch of space in our lives. If we give an inch, he'll take a yard, then a mile. In our folk culture the old timers watched young men flirt with trashy women, or saw families patronizing criminal types, or witnessed youngsters involving themselves with the wild and loose types; they gave a stern warning that said, "If you play with dogs, you will surely get fleas."

Without God

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should recognize that without God we are powerless, but with God all things are possible.

When Samson rose he "wist not" that God had left him. It is a frightening thing for anyone whose talents or skill has been blessed by the power of God and then discovers that "something is missing!"

Samson knew instantly what was missing; God had left him!

Brothers and Sisters, terrible things happen in your life if God leaves you!

If God leaves you, your:

—Happiness turns into sadness; Joy turns into sorrow!

—Victories become defeats; Strength turns into weakness!

—Home becomes a house; Husband is reduced to just another man!

—Upward climb becomes a downward fall!

When God is in your life, beyond just rituals and symbolic religion, things are different.

When God was with Saul he conquered enemies and rose to fame, but when God left him, he fell on his own sword!

When God was with David he became a man after God's own heart, but when God left him, he lost the joy of his salvation!

When God is really in your life he takes your:

—Despair and turns it into delight; Failure and turns it into success

—Loneliness and turns it into friendship; Hatred and turns it into love!

—Shame and turns it into glory; sin and turns it into salvation!

Jesus is a mighty powerful God!

Jesus is a very present help in a time of trouble!

Jesus is like American Express you should "never leave home without him!"

No wonder the song writer declares " "I don't know what I'd do without the Lord!...I can't even wave my hand, without the Lord!"

Everyday of my life I've got to tell the story!

Tell the world about Jesus!

Tell the world about Calvary!

I've got to tell somebody that he died; and he lives today!

The Last Biscuit

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 15, 2009

SCRIPTURE: She said, "I swear, as surely as your God lives, I don't have so much as a biscuit. I have a handful of flour in a jar and a little oil in a bottle; you found me scratching together just enough firewood to make a last meal for my son and me. After we eat it, we'll die." Elijah said to her, "Don't worry about a thing. Go ahead and do what you've said. But first make a small biscuit for me and bring it back here. Then go ahead and make a meal from what's left for you and your son. This is the word of the God of Israel: 'The jar of flour will not run out and the bottle of oil will not become empty before God sends rain on the land and ends this drought.' " 1 King 17:12-14 (MSG)

Introduction

Have you ever scrambled to get the last biscuit on the plate? There are many who grew up in large families and understand what it means to have a large plate of biscuits placed on the breakfast table, normally enough for everyone until your siblings decide to eat your share. There is an uneasiness that comes over us when we are eating those tasty morsels, then find that there is only one biscuit left on the plate. Everyone chomps hard on their plate of grits, eggs and bacon but keeps a sharp eye out for that last biscuit. Suddenly, without hesitation, every hand at the table reaches for the last biscuit at the same time; holding on to it as if it were a treasure.

There is something about the last biscuit; it seems that it goes further and tastes better.

Whenever we are enjoying something, we seem to savor it more when we get to the last portions. The last drops of juice in the cup, the last piece of chicken in the box, the last ear of corn, the last slice of pie, the last day of a vacation, the last kiss, the last game of a winning season, or the last French Fry; all seem to linger with us; we want them to last forever.

There are some who are literally living on their last blessing. They are driving the last blessing, sleeping on their last blessing, wearing their last blessing, living in their last blessing, and being supported by their last blessing. Some are losing faith because it's been a long time since they've had a new blessing ; they don't know when or if the next one will come and they are literally struggling to hold on to the last biscuit.

Today, we should remember that the same source that provided the last blessing will be the source of the next. Our God never runs out of blessings, but we often run out of faith that He will make a way.

As Christians, we should remember that no matter how difficult times become that our God is able to sustain us and keep us from falling. He never runs out of blessings, we may be down to the last biscuit, but our plate is never empty.

Exposition

This text focuses on a widow woman who trusted God even though she was down to her last biscuit.

Elijah was a great prophet who had been commanded by God to speak out against the evils of his time. He challenged King Ahab and his evil wife Jezebel for their evil ways. Idolatry was prevalent in the land. There was a general disrespect for God. Elijah told the king that there would be no water in the land until he adjusted his ways. The prediction angered the king and a death warrant was issued for Elijah.

God took care of Elijah while he was in hiding. In one instance God arranged for a raven, considered an unclean animal, to feed him every day while he was by a brook until it was time for him to move on.

Then God sent Elijah into the land of the Gentiles where He commanded a gentile woman to provide for Elijah. She was an unlikely source of resources for a hungry, thirsty and tired traveler.

She was impoverished. She had only a little flour, a little oil and two sticks with which to make a fire. It was enough flour and oil to make a small biscuit. She and her son would share the same biscuit, then surely die.

Yet, Elijah commands the woman to take her last flour and oil and make him a biscuit, then make a smaller one for herself out of what remained. God, speaking through Elijah, promised that she had no reason to fear because each time she made it to her last biscuit there would be another one, provided by the hand of God himself.

The woman acted on the prophet's words, in faith. Just as He promised, God kept providing her daily sustenance, one day at a time. 1 Kings 17:15 says "and she, and he and her house did eat for many days" without scrambling over the last biscuit.

Biscuit Theology

True believers can learn much about faith actions from just a little biscuit theology.

IT DOESN'T TAKE MUCH TO MAKE BISCUITS: The woman had only flour and oil to make her little cake. In Eastern cultures the biscuits or cakes were flat. There was no need for leaven or yeast. She had what she needed to make a little biscuit; it would have been nice to have more but she had what she needed. Today, there are many who are similarly situated. We have what we really need to live happily. It would be nice to have more, but if we could keep getting more of the same; we'd be happy. We have a roof over our heads, a place to sleep, and a reasonable portion of health and strength. When we consider life fully, we soon learn that we are short of our wants but not our needs. While it doesn't take much to make biscuits, the core ingredient is flour; without it there is no biscuit. Jesus said in John 6:48, "I am the bread of life." He is to happiness and joy what flour is to a biscuit, He is the core ingredient; He is love.

It doesn't take much to have a happy family, but it takes a whole lot of love. Your family could be homeless, living in a shotgun house or a rundown apartment complex and still be happy, if there is love. It doesn't take much to have a happy marriage, but it takes a whole lot of love. You could be struggling for dear life but still remain closer than ever, if there is love. No, it doesn't take much to make biscuits, but we must have the essence of what makes life worth living and that is the love of God.

A LITTLE DOUGH CAN GO A LONG WAY: The woman had only enough material to make one biscuit, but she soon found out that a little dough can go a long way. Have you ever watched a cook make homemade biscuits. After they roll out the dough they cut it into little circles and place it in a baking pan. Then they take the leftovers and re-roll them and make even more biscuits. It's call biscuit economics: Don't throw away anything. Today, we eat grits and throw away what's left in the pot, but great grandma re-served those grits later with a little giblet gravy poured over the top. Today, we eat a few bites of bread and throw away the rest, but granny saved all that light bread and made bread pudding and the cornbread came back to us as dressing. At Thanksgiving some throw away the turkey scraps but smart grannies had turkey sandwiches, and turkey salads for days. The key is that God often puts in our hands what we need, but too often we squander what he gives us. Often we look at our W-2 forms at the end of the year and marvel at how much we made, then ask, "Where did it all go?" Much of it was squandered, literally thrown away. It's not that God didn't give it, but that we didn't master biscuit economics: make a little dough go a long way.

SHARED BISCUITS ARE BLESSED BISCUITS: The woman was told to share what little she had with Elijah. What she shared was blessed. There are many today who have learned this truth, we are blessed when we share what little we have with others. There are many who are struggling themselves but are sharing what little they have with others. Whether it's food on the table or meager resources, there are many who are willing to share their last biscuit with someone in need. Shared biscuits are blessed biscuits, the person who shares receives an even greater blessing from the Lord. Jacob shared a meal with his brother Esau but because there was a bad spirit in the sharing, the meal turned out to be a curse between the two of them. However, Abraham shared a meal with the angels on their way to Sodom and Gomorrah and because of his sharing spirit Lot and his family were saved. A little boy shared his lunch of two fishes and five loaves of bread and found that he had a blessed lunch. Those who share their last biscuit with others will come to learn that a shared biscuit is a blessed biscuit.

In God's Hand

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that in God's hands, the only biscuit you have left is never your last biscuit.

It may appear at times that you are running out, but we're here today to tell you that you may be down to all you have left, but what you have left is not all you are going to get!

Why don't you rewind the tape and listen to the woman talking to Elijah? She said there is a famine in the land and times are tight. It's hard to keep food on the table or even to get fuel with which to cook. This little flour and oil is all I have left. It's just enough to make one more biscuit.

Can't you hear Elijah saying, right now you have enough to make one more biscuit, but if you trust in the Lord the biscuit you make won't be your last biscuit.

Our biscuits might be our obligations and resources in life.

Our monthly rent and house note is due, and there's somebody worried that they only have enough to make one more biscuit, but if you put your faith in God and obey his will, the one biscuit you have left won't be your last biscuit.

Our car note and insurance is due, but there's somebody worried that they only have enough for one more biscuit , but if you put your faith in God and obey his will, the one biscuit you have left won't be your last biscuit.

You light bill is due and the gas is too, but there is just enough for one more biscuit, but if you put your faith in God and obey his will, the one biscuit you have left won't be your last biscuit.

Medical bills are piling up high and the cost of some prescriptions are more than you can pay. If you buy your medicine, you may not have any food, you seem to be down to nothing but flour and oil, but if you have faith in God, what you have left won't be your last biscuit.

That widow woman took God at his word and stepped out on faith. When she went to the barrel it was enough in the barrel for her to share with Elijah, enough for her to make biscuits for her son and enough to make biscuits for herself.

If you you're feeling depressed because what you have now is all that you have left, be of good cheer, what you have may truly be all that you have now, but if you put your faith in God, it won't be your last biscuit.

You serve a God who can:

—Bring light when the night is dark and grim.

—Bring comfort when our burdens are too heavy to bear.

—Help us to stand tall, when the clouds of failure hang low.

—Smooth out the rough places when the going gets tough.

—Help us to cross when the valleys are deep and wide.

Don't ever give up on God, He'll make a way.

"Be not dismayed what ere' betide, God will take care of you. Beneath his wings of love abide, God will take care of you."

He started taking care of you from the beginning of time.

When He created the earth in the palm of his hand, he was getting ready to take care of you.

When He spat out the seven seas and spangled the night with the moon and stars, he was getting ready to take care of you!

When He clapped his hands and made the thunder roll or batted his eyes and made the lightning flash, he was getting ready to take care of you!

When He came down through 42 generations of time and eternity, He was on his way to take care of you.

He stopped by Bethlehem and grew up in a little town called Nazareth, but He was on his way to take care of you!

He stopped by to tell the world in John 6:36 "I am the bread of life, He that cometh to me shall never hunger. and he that believe on me shall never thirst."

Moses brought the first bread in the wilderness, it rain down from heaven and covered the ground every day. But here in the upper room was the last bread, it wasn't on the table, but it stood before them.

That's why Jesus said, this bread is my body, and this is my blood which is shed for the remission of sin.

No wonder Dr. Watts said:

Bread of heaven, who carried his cross up Calvary's hill!
Bread of heaven, who let them drive nails into His hand!
Bread of heaven, who let them stick a spear into His side!
Bread of heaven, who dropped His head and died!
Bread of heaven, who was buried in a borrowed tomb!
Bread of heaven, who arose early Sunday morning!
Bread of heaven, feed me till I want no more!

To Seek and Save The Lost

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 2009

SCRIPTURE:" For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost." Luke 19:10

Introduction

Have you ever been lost? Some will answer 'Yes" but there are many that will answer 'No." Among those who answer 'No' are some who are actually lost right now; they just don't know it.

It is easy to help a person who is lost find his way home. It is harder to help a person who is lost and does not know that he is lost.

How can a person be lost and not know that he or she is lost? Can you hear him speaking?

"Don't tell me that I am lost. I live around the corner in the big white house. Don't tell me that I'm lost I can show you my house on Google-Earth. My GPS system has my location pinpointed; I know exactly where I am. Even if I thought I was lost, I can call "On Star" and they will tell me where I am. I know I'm not lost."

If you are not lost then why is it that sometimes you cry when you are alone? Why is it that sometimes you throw up your hands in despair? Why is it that sometimes you feel all of your efforts are in vain? Why is it that sometimes you can't hear from God?

You may know your address exactly. You may be able to find location on a GPS system, but there are times when even the best of us get lost, disoriented and can't find our way. That's what happens when we get spiritually lost. In the physical world we know where we are but spiritually we are trying to get back.

That's when we know we have lost something.

Losing things can be frustrating. Perhaps some of the most frustrating moments in life are those when we can't find something we have lost. Generally, we remain frustrated until we find our way back.

Usually losing things causes more worry for the owner than for the lost object because that which is lost usually doesn't know that it is lost. The sheep that wandered away from the fold did not know it was lost, but the shepherd did. The coin that was lost in the house did not know it was lost, but the woman did. The prodigal son did not know what he had lost until he came to himself, but his father knew all the time. Sometimes those who are lost don't know it, while others all around them see it sharp and clear.

Personally have we lost anything? Has there ever been a time when we felt spiritually stronger? Has there ever been a time when we read our bible more, attended Sunday school, sang in the choir, or served in a special position of service with intensity and vigor? Has there ever been a time when you actually enjoyed serving the Lord, looked forward to meetings with other brothers and sisters in the faith and were excited about the fellowship?

There are millions of church members who are lost in the house. They have not wandered into the highways and byways nor roamed into the world; they are lost in the house!

When we are lost in this way, we are like David who lost his joy. It was a long time before David realized that he had lost something, but once he came to himself he cried out to the Lord: "Create in me a clean heart O God; and renew a right spirit within me. Cast me not away from thy presence; and take not thy holy spirit from me. Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation and uphold me with thy free spirit." (Psalm. 51:10-12).

As Christians, we rejoice in the knowledge that we are close to God daily, but if we lose our way, that our savior will come looking for us to bring us safely home again.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he helps a man who thought he had it all to find himself.

This text is drawn from an incident in which Jesus came through a crowded street and was seen by a wealthy and influential man by the name of Zacchaeus. Despite his influence Zacchaeus was not able to see Jesus because of the crowd that surrounded him, so he ran ahead of him, climbed into a sycamore tree and waited for a chance to see him. Jesus saw him and instructed him to come down immediately for Jesus wanted to stay at his house. This was more than Zacchaeus had hoped for, so he welcomed Him gladly.

At the meal it is supposed that Zacchaeus heard the gospel message and realized that in his present state that he would not be a part of the kingdom of God. In the presence of Christ he found himself and voluntarily announced that he would give half of what he owned to the poor and repay fourfold all he had wronged. He publicly wanted the people to know that his time with Jesus had changed his life.

Zacchaeus, a son of Abraham by birth, had a right to enter the kingdom because he found himself in Jesus. That was Jesus' mission—to seek and to save those who are lost.

Just as it was Jesus' mission then to seek and save the lost, so is the mission of the church to do the same.

Ways to be lost

There are several ways for people to get lost today:

SOME ARE LOST TO THE SERVICE OF GOD: There are some in the world today who have chosen to live outside of the saving Grace of our Lord. These are those whose choices have been to live their lives by their own rules, and accept the consequences. Too often such choices have ended in moral decadence and spiritual decay. Although they have disassociated themselves from God, God has not divorced himself from them. The message that the gospel brings is one of forgiveness and compassion. His message is reconciliation. His forgiveness ignores our past failures and shortcoming and peers beyond our present miserable estate. God only cares that those who are lost are his children and he is willing to come the first mile to offer another chance to those who know him not.

SOME HAVE LOST THEIR TRUST IN GOD: There are many who have stopped trusting God and placed all of their trust in their own abilities and in other people. In March of 2009 Financier Bernard Madoff pleaded guilty to 11 criminal complaints and confessed to cheating thousands of people out of billions of dollars. In court documents, prosecutors put the amount of the fraud at $64.8 billion. Thousands of people put their trust in him and lost billions of dollars.

Madoff's victims included individuals, trusts, pension funds, hedge funds and nonprofit organizations. The scheme wiped out people's life savings, ruined charities and foundations, and apparently pushed at least two investors to commit suicide.

What he offered his victims was impossible to achieve: profits and protection. They trusted him and lost.

Unfortunately there were many believers who placed all of their hopes in man and not in God.

But all is not lost. God is still on the throne. Today, He's still looking for the lost to show them that the way to real spiritual wealth and prosperity is through faith and trust in Him.

God is seeking the lost who have trusted their investments rather than Him!

God is seeking the lost who have trusted their education rather than Him!

God is actively looking for those who want more than a motto on a dollar bill. They want more than "In God we trust." The want to sing again, "I will trust in the Lord until I die."

SOME HAVE LOST THEIR FAITH IN GOD: In difficult times such as these when jobs are disappearing, homes are being lost and finances are disappearing, there are many who have lost their faith in God. They somehow believed that they would be immune to any of the problems of the world once they accepted Christ and are shell shocked now that they see that Christians endure problems and troubles just as the rest of the world does. The difference is that we never lose our faith in God.

When faith seems to falter, we need to remind ourselves that although it looks dark and defeat appears imminent God is still on the throne. Every child of God believes in miraculous God. We constantly remind ourselves that no matter how frustrating the situation might seem it never reaches a point of complication beyond the miraculous power of God.

The songwriter said "God is still on the throne, within your bosom you have the phone" Your miracle is just a prayer away, God is on the line. Another songwriter said, "Jesus is on the mainline, tell him what you want, if you're sick and you want to get well, tell him what you want."

If you are lost, Jesus is the key!

Finally, brothers and sisters, if you lost we want to let you know that Jesus is the key to your restoration.

No matter how bad your situation looks at the moment, Jesus is the key!

No matter how terrible your sins look to you, Jesus is the key!

No matter how many doors are shut in your face, Jesus is the key!

No matter how many failures you have endured, Jesus is the key!

Jesus is the Key...

—to turning defeat into victor!

—to turning briny tears into broad smile!

—to turning hard times into happy days!

—to turning bowed heads into lifted hearts!

—to turning raging storms into sunny days!

The best way to find Jesus, if you have found yourself lost, is to backtrack over your life. If you'll start coming back to him you'll find that he's already started coming toward you with his arms wide open.

Mary and Joseph took Jesus to Jerusalem and they lost him in the crowd, but after a while they missed him and began to backtrack until they found him.

If it has been some time since you've opened up to God, do like the song writer and say, "Lord take me back, take me back dear Lord, to the place where I first received thee, take me back, take me back dear Lord to where I first believed."

Somebody will find him in a bible verse, "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want."

Somebody will find their lost key in a children's verse, "Yes Jesus loves me, because the Bible tells me so."

When you backtrack far enough you find Jesus on a special day in a special way.

Jesus is looking for the lost, to save them from their sins!

Jesus is looking for the confused, to give them direction!

Jesus is looking for sinners, to cover them with his blood!

He carried an old rugged cross, looking for the lost!

He was wounded for our transgressions, because He was looking for the lost!

They buried Him in a borrowed tomb, and he stayed their three days and nights!

But Early Sunday morning, He arose from the dead, and today, He's still looking for souls who want to be washed in the blood!

Double Duty Service and Double Duty Honor

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 2009

SCRIPTURE: Let the elders that rule well be counted worthy of double honor, especially they who labor in the word and doctrine. For the scripture saith, Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn. And, The laborer is worthy of his reward. 1 Timothy 5:17-18

Introduction

Have you ever had a double portion of anything?To have a double portion of something is to have twice as much as others would have. Those who have the salaries doubled get twice what they were earning. Those who buy trailer homes that are twice the normal size buy "double wides." Chewing gum that has twice the amount of mint than using is called "Double Mint." Those who jump rope two ropes instead of one do what is called "Double Dutch." When two couples go on at date together it's called a "Double Date."

When the prophet Elijah prepared to return to heaven on the fiery chariot his young student desired to have a double portion of his Elijah's gift.
It's good to get a double portion of something that is good, it's bad to get a double portion of anything that is bad.

The idea of a double portion is what God had in mind when it comes to dealing with Pastor and Elders of the church. God says these leaders deserve a double honor because of their walk and their teaching responsibility.

The Christian life is one that is challenging and rewarding. Those who live that life receive one honor, but those who lead that walk are deserving of a double portion. During anniversaries and other milestones we pause to give honor to those who have been leading us in the journey.

As Christians, let us also salute the pastor the Lord has given us to guide us along the way, for truly he is a servant worthy of a double honor.

Exposition

This text finds Paul instructing the church on how it should respond to those who are in leadership.

This text finds Paul instructing the church on how it should respond to those who are in leadership.

In his instruction to Timothy, Paul gave numerous instructions as he prepared to assume the role of ministry leader in Paul's absence. The entire book of Timothy is filled with instruction about pastoral care of the flock, administration of the ministries and dealing with internal conflicts.

In this passage Paul gives instructions about the proper respect due to elders of the church. When Paul uses the term "elder" many scholars agree that the term includes the preaching elders and the support elders or deacons. They both comprise the leadership circle of the church.

The passage of scripture urged young Timothy in two matters: How to handle complaints against an elder and how to respond to the honorable work of an elder.

The passage actually begins at verse "Rebuke not an elder" (v1) and continues with instructions until verse 20 by saying "Rebuke an elder who sins before all."

In between the instructions on how to correct an elder are the rules about honoring elders both for their age and position and for their service to the church.

Every older person in the church is due honor by virtue of their age and experience.

However, an elder who also leads in the ministries of the church is worthy of "double honor."

Servants of the church are its elders and there worthy all courtesies and respect due to them by virtue of the age and position. The church be careful in the way it rebukes them or criticizes them while at the same time remembering its obligation to show concern, respect and honor for its leaders who teach and preach the word.

Whether in discipline or praise and respect the church is instructed to treat its elders, and its deacons with the appropriate honor that is due their position.

The first honor

Every member of the church who labors to build the kingdom of God through their service is considered worthy of honor and respect. In fact Paul said in 1 Corinthians 12:23-24 that the church should take extra care to show respect and honor to everyone, regardless to their status. In verse 25 of that same passage he said, "That there should be no schism in the body; but that the members should have the same care one for another."

The work that deserves the first honor is the work of kingdom building. Those members who visit the sick, help the poor, attend the affairs of the widows, comfort the lonely, provide family nurture and who evangelize on domestic and foreign shores are all deserving of the first honor.

They are honored with words of praise, prayer, moral support and assistance if needed. This first honor is one of the greatest rewards that can come for an average member of a congregation.

The second honor

While every member of the church who labors is worthy of honor those who preach and teach the word and who exercise leadership by the word are worthy of double honor. The preaching and teaching elders are of special note here because they labor in the word exclusively. The congregation depends on their knowledge and discernment for their guidance and nurture.

These elders deserve double honor because that have been appointed by God and given authority associated with their office. In addition, it is God that gives them the strength and grace to carry out their duties.

The double honor that they deserve is not conditioned on the way that we feel about our elders. They are not honored because we always agree with them, approve of what they do or because they are rich and influential; they are honored because of the double portion of the work that they perform for Kingdom of God.

How do we honor them?

Churches around the world honor their elders in a number of ways.
Some read, 1 Tim. 5:18 "For the Scripture says, You shall not muzzle the ox that treads out the grain, and, The laborer is worthy of his reward."

While some take this passage to mean that the pastor's salary should be double or that he should earn double that of other church staff members, it really means that as the pastor sacrifices his own family's needs to build the ministries of the church, the church respond in proportion to its ability, to the needs of its spiritual leader, as an act of love rather than a specific command.

Although it is not commanded many share the increase of the ministry with the elders. This double honor is reflected in the way the church responds to the needs of its elders, all given out of love and concern. For some this is observed through financial gifts and fiscal observances. For others, the care of the elder's medical needs, insurances and other concerns is a honor extended.

Yet there are other ways that double honor can be given as well:

—We show double honor when we are obedient to the pastor and obey his instructions!.

—We show double honor when we refuse entertain gossip and evil talk about the pastor!

—We show double honor when we consider the needs of his family and children!

—We show double honor when we call the pastor's name personally in our family and public prayers!

Honoring the pastor is just a small way that believers show their love and appreciation for a servant who is truly worthy of double honor.

Honor Pastors for their Christian Walk

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should honor our pastors because they have walked the walk as well as talked the talk; they deserve our praise and prayerful support.

They deserve double honor for living the life of Christian themselves then showing us how to do the same.

They deserve double honor because they have weathered the storms of difficult times themselves and then have helped us to stay afloat.

They deserve double honor because they have often neglected their own good while trying to help us achieve our highest potential.

Our praise and acts of gratitude encourages weary pastors to continue walking the walk themselves as they also show us how to walk.

We honor them because we watch the walk of the pastor and draw inspiration from each step. They resolve that no matter how long they have been on the battlefield they will continue.

We honor them because often our pastor has assume double duties.

Some have lifted their voices as members of choirs, others have washed dishes and even mopped floors.

Some have licked stamps, folded envelopes and passed out programs. Some have given their last dollar and others have given until they felt the pain, but encouraged by their pastors they resolve.

They have performed double duty so it's only logical that they receive double the honor.

Some have emptied trash cans, others have stood behind television cameras, snapped pictures, worked with youth, or just been in the midst of the saints for moral support. All have one thing in common. They all watch the pastor's walk and say, "I wouldn't take nothing for my journey now."

Why do we salute our pastors? Because they have taught us to walk in faith.

Why do we honor them with special days? Because they have taught us how to call on the name of the Lord!

When our strength is failing, we may not remember to call on El-Shaddai, the almighty God..but there is a name!

When we are walking through the valley of the shadow of death, we may not remember, Jehova-Rohi, "The Lord is my shepherd and I shall not want!"..but there is a name!

When we are feeling like we're making this journey alone, we may not remember "Emmanuel" the everlasting God, but there is a name!

We give double honor to our pastors because they continually remind us that, there is a name.

It is the name songwriter wrote about when he declared, "I come to the garden alone. While the dew is still on the roses. And the voice I hear ringing in mine ear, the son of God discloses. And he walks with me and he talks with me and he tells me

I am his own. And the joy we share as we tarry there, none other has ever known."

There is a name that reaches beyond the narrow confines of my loneliness and brings me comfort!

There is a name that reaches below my deepest failure and guides me to success!

There is a name that transcends my weakness and brings me strength.

It's the name of Jesus! There is none other name whereby we must be saved!

It's the name of Jesus!

It's the name that the angels will declare "Worthy is the Lamb!"

Jesus is worthy of all praise and glory, because he loved us.

He loved me so much that he hung out on Calvary!

He loved me so much that died for my sins!

But early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave with all power!

All power in his hands!

"Worthy is the Lamb!

Consider the Source

A sermon By Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE:" As well the singers as the players on instruments shall be there: all my springs are in thee." Psalm 87:7

Introduction

Have you ever looked at all the ways you have been blessed? Just count your blessings and you will discover that you are the recipient of many blessings. Whether you calculate your blessings in physical things or those things intangible, most of us can truthfully say that we have been blessed immensely.

Have you ever stopped to consider the source of those blessings? Sometimes, we take that source for granted. In 1965 Douglas Turner Ward wrote a play entitled "A Happy Ending." In the play a young man is upset because his mother works as a made for a white couple and comes home worried about their affairs daily. He chides her for her slave mentality mourning and complaining about whites, until the mother reminded him that their fate is tied to the white couple. If they divorced then there would be no more steaks, closets full of designer clothes. When the son considered the source of his prosperity he too started being concerned about the white couple and joined his mother in tears.

Often children forget the source of their designer clothes, cell phones and vast opportunities when they demonstrate spirits of ingratitude.

Considering the source is what led to the founding of this great nation. In 1623, three years after the Pilgrims settled at Plymouth Rock, the Governor of Massachusetts proclaimed that all Pilgrims must assemble in their churches, listen to their preachers and give thanks to God for providing them with an abundant harvest, sparing them from sickness and disease and giving them freedom to worship. In 1941 Thanksgiving became a law.

Yet, thanksgiving to God cannot be legislated; it must come as revelation from the heart. True Thanksgiving comes when we can say in the words of Ruben Studdard:

Jesus You're the center of my joy
All that's good and perfect
Comes from You
You're the heart of my contentment

Hope for all I do

Jesus You're the center of my joy

When we consider that Jesus is the source of our joy, contentment, provision and salvation, then everyday becomes a day of Thanksgiving.

As Christians, we give thanks to God for His goodness and for His mercies. Unlike the Pilgrims who waited three years until they experienced good times and then assembled only after being ordered, we thank Him for everything, the good and the bad. Because we have not forgotten the source, we celebrate and give God thanks.

Exposition

This text is a vision of Zion as the source of all of Israel's blessings.

The text paints a picture of the greatness of the people, citing great accomplishments of great men over time, all pointing to one Zion Mt. Zion or the inspiration of God. The rejoicing and celebration that is recorded in this chapter show a triumphant procession of people playing a variety of musical instruments with one single purpose that is to praise God as the source of their success and blessing.

The singers and players will be reveling in the joy that comes from knowing that God has been their strong tower and their hope. In this passage there is a spirit of Thanksgiving as Psalmists and pipers, unite their efforts and make a joyful procession to the temple, inspired by the downpours they have received from the source of all good, of which they each one sing

It is significant to note the last phrase of the chapter "All my springs are in thee."

Springs are the sources of fresh water and from them come a constant flow of help and love.

All my springs are in thee notes David saying God is the source of all of his inspiration, comfort, strength, joy and life. It expresses the believers home that "the springs of my faith and all my graces; the springs of my life and all my pleasures; the springs of my activity and all its right doings; the springs of my hope, and all its heavenly anticipations, all lie in thee, my Lord.

Without that spring believers would be like a dry well.

Those David looks at the life he has before him, but recognizes that God is the spring from whence it has all come.

Source of Life

Believers count "blessings" and refer to the favor when we have received; none believers usually refer to their great luck or fate. When we count our blessings rather than our luck we automatically indicate that we acknowledge the source of growth as being from God. If we say we are lucky then we refuse to acknowledge the real source of our good fortune.

HE IS THE SOURCE OF OUR ACHIEVEMENT: God is the source of our achievements. No matter what kinds of achievements we have to our credit, God is the ultimate source. Is it academic, secular, political, or business oriented? No matter what it is, God is the source.

Marian Anderson was a famous Black contralto. She was described by music critics as having a voice that only came along every 100 years. Though her voice was awe inspiring she was often refused opportunities to sing because of her race. The daughters of the American Revolution would not let her sing in Constitution Hall in 1939, but 75,000 people gathered to hear her at the Lincoln Memorial because of the refusal. At the age of 53, she became the first Black soloist to sing with the Metropolitan opera. As the crowds came to her backstage door, Marian appeared still in her concert gown. She stood silent and motionless as thousands cheered her. Her response to the audience was to look up to heaven and then say, "thank you, for letting me sing." It was her way of recognizing the source.

HE IS THE SOURCE O OUR PROVISION: God is the source of all our provisions whether it food, clothing or shelter. What we have may come through a variety of streams but we must know that at the head of each of those streams is the well spring of God's grace. Jesus made this clear in Matthew 6:28-30 "And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin: And yet I say unto you, That even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which today is, and tomorrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?" We give thanks to God for providing for us. We have a house, a car, a little money, small bits and pieces of property and few possessions, all flow from the spring of God's grace, He is our source.

HE IS THE SOURCE OF OUR SALVATION: Most believers readily admit that they are stronger today than they were a few years ago. Yet, the strength that we have to weather the storms of life does not come within ourselves, we must consider the source, with is God himself. He is the author and finisher of our faith. Hebrews 12:2 says, "Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God." God is the source of all our blessings although they may have traveled a great distance and rounded many meandered corners to make their arrival within our grasp. He may have had to bend us in many strange was to get us to where we are today but the source, the author of our salvation, is Christ Jesus. We are saved not by our good works, education, skills or connections, but only by the grace of God. Every time we think of his goodness despite our unworthiness, we must acknowledge, "If it had not been for the Lord on my side." I would have been drifting and lost on the sea of life.

When we consider the source

Finally, brothers and sisters, when we consider the source of our blessing, all we can do is praise the Lord.

In many ways, God has blessed us since the last Thanksgiving season.

Since the last Thanksgiving, there are some who would have given up, if it had not been for the Lord

Since the last Thanksgiving, there are some who would have been overwhelmed by despair, if it had not been for the Lord.

Since the last Thanksgiving, there are some who would have suffered intense despair, if it had not been for the Lord.

Since the last Thanksgiving, there are some who would have been destroyed by their own weaknesses, if it had not been for the Lord.

Since the last Thanksgiving, there are some who would have abandoned their marriages and relationships, if it had not been for the Lord.

We give thanks to God because we know we didn't work it by ourselves, it was nothing but the Grace of God.

In the midst of disparity he has provided a continuous stream of blessings for us.

In Psalm 105:1, David said, "Oh give thanks unto the Lord..make known His deeds upon the people."

Every child of God has a similar testimony and stands on the premise that the Lord has been good to us, in fact He has been better to us than we have been to ourselves.

In the midst of my:

—Burdens, He's shown me His benefits

—Hardships, He's given me His helping hand

—Midnights, He's given men a song to sing

—Challenges, He's given me confidence to go on —Infirmities, He's given me inspiration

—Sorrow, He's given me comfort

—Dangers, He's given me the safety of His everlasting arms.

The Gospel of Luke gives the account of 10 lepers who asked the Lord for a healing. After receiving their healing all of them turned to walk away, but one of them thought about the source of that blessed and returned and told the Lord, "Thank you" for the blessing of healing.

Every true child of God is like that grateful leper. We don't need a holiday! We don't need a presidential proclamation! We don't need to wait until the last Thursday in November, but every day of our lives we tell the Savior: Thank you Lord!

Thank you Lord, for waking me up every day!

Thank you Lord, for closing me in my right mind!

Thank you Lord, for mountains and thank you for my valleys!

No wonder the song writer would declare "Thank you Lord, Thank you Lord, I just want to thank you Lord! You've been so good ..I just want to thank you Lord."

I want to thank you for picking up an old rugged crosses and dying for me out on Calvary!

Thank you rising up in my soul!

Thank you Lord!

Thank you Lord!

I just want to thank you Lord!

A Patriarch's Legacy

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

November 30, 2009

SCRIPTURE: "Altogether, Abraham lived a hundred and seventy-five years. Then Abraham breathed his last and died at a good old age, an old man and full of years; and he was gathered to his people." Genesis 25:7-8

Introduction

Have you ever listened to the advice of the senior member of your family?Those who have lived long lives have much to share with a family as they try to tell the family's story, it's legends, journey and destiny. Each responds to a silent command to tell the story to the next generation.

The Patriarch of the family is the oldest man. He is the one who tries to give directions to the coming generations who often won't hear him at the least or dismiss him as an anachronism .

Our elders seek to teach us, direct us and to keep us on the path; often we don't hear them until it's too late.

Consider the grandpa who tried to show his very arrogant grandson how to ride the family's special breed of horses. He said, "Son, this family has raised these horses for over 100 years. Our horses only understand two words: Thank God and Amen. If you want the horse to go forward you say, "Thank God." However, if you want the horse to stop you must say, "Amen." But you need to sit down and let me tell you when. The young boy was not about to get hooked into another one of the old Patriarch's lectures. He quickly said, 'I got it grandpa. Thank God to go forward and Amen to Stop. It's a piece of cake." The boy mounted the horse and yelled, "Thank God" and the horse riled up and went forward. He yelled, "Thank God," repeatedly and the horse raced toward the edge of a cliff. In the excitement, the boy forgot what to say to make the horse stop but just as the horse made it to edge of the cliff he remembered and yelled "Amen" and the horse came to a screeching halt, but was leaning over the edge. The Boy looked back at his grandpa and with a cocky but confident smile, wiped the sweat off his brow and said, "Thank God." - he was never seen again!

The Patriarch's of our families try to talk to us, but often we are not willing to listen, even though they are the depositories of our family's heritage, traditions and beliefs. In life, they try to direct us. In death they leave us a legacy of memories, examples and goodwill that will carry us the rest of our lives.

As Christians, we embrace the legacy of our families, but even more we embrace the legacy of Jesus Christ, the great head of the church. We strive to emulate him in every way, holding to the standards that he set for us in his written word.

Exposition

This text focuses upon the death of Abraham the patriarch of one nation and three religions: Judaism, Christianity, and Islam.

Abraham was the patriarch of a sprawling and highly productive family of Jews whose influence changed the direction of thousands for years to come.

He was born in the land of Ur and spent most of his life living in tents and traveling from place to place. God showed Abraham that one his family would be great and that he would own Great amounts of land. In promises that began in Genesis chapter 12 God promised Abraham that he would be the patriarch of a large family whose impact would be felt for generations.

Abraham spent most of his life directing and guiding his family toward the promised future that God had presented to him. Though they encountered a variety of secular beliefs that ranged from polytheism to atheism Abraham guided his family to believe in one God and to trust him fully. He ruled his family with a sure but stern hand, guiding each generation to achieve its best and to stay focused.

Abraham lived a relatively long life for his generation. Although Methuselah lived to be 969 years old, by Abraham's time a man who lived more than 150 years was considered to be one who was relatively seasoned. When he died he was 175 years old. He was 140 years old when Isaac and Rebekah were married. He was 160 years old at the birth of his grandsons Jacob and Esau. He then lived another 15 years, long enough to pass the baton to his son Isaac with whom he lived quietly until his death. He lived long enough to secure a burial place, make his own final arrangements, and to give instructions and provision to his heirs to secure their posterity.

In this text he is described as a man who was full of years. To be full of years is to be satisfied, satiated, full of blessings, and nourished by God.

As patriarch of the family, Abraham set the standard for what was expected of his descendents. As Abraham's children, his family was expected to continue their belief in the one true God. They were expected to be industrious, productive, and always willing to make sacrifices to accomplish God's will.

As each succeeding generation passed, the legacy of Abraham continued through Isaac and Jacob and Jacob's twelve sons who became known as the Children of Israel.

The family's story did not begin with Abraham, but he was the one who received the promise from God and it is through him that God showered blessings upon each succeeding generation.

What was Abraham's legacy?

Abraham was a family man: Abraham spent a great part of his life nurturing his family relationships. When there was dissension in the ranks such as that between Lott and his herdsmen Abraham was a peacemaker. When trouble threatened members of the family he labored to protect as many members of the family as he could even those who live in the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah. He provided for his children and for his wives. He used every resource at his disposal to both provide for and protect his family. Abraham's example is worthy of emulation today. Every family leader should strive to be a peacemaker, provider, and protector. Until his dying day, Abraham gave advice and instruction to the family about its legacy and its duty to be stewards of that which God has given. The importance of the family, its support and security is the central focus of a patriarch and it is a key element of his legacy.

Abraham was a God fearing man: While Abraham was not a perfect man it was obvious to members of his family that he was one who was willing to both fear God and trust him fully. The family knew he believed in God when they saw him take sacrificial steps that seem to threaten them but were dictated by God such as sacrificing Isaac on the altar or traveling from place to place in unfriendly lands. His willingness to follow his faith endeared him to many members of the family because they knew he was a God fearing man. Today, those who are heading households have the responsibility of leading their families in the fear of the Lord. In times of danger, distress and peril the family must know that there is one at the helm who has his eye on the promised land and is ready to move at God's command. This spirit of godliness and obedience to God's command is an important part of the patriarch's legacy.

Abraham was both a politician and businessman: Abraham received his inheritance from his father Terah and through shrewd dealings and political contacts translated it into a sizable fortune at his death. Sometimes Abraham was called upon to negotiate for his people with foreign Kings and on other occasions he had to strike business deals to purchase lands or right of ways. Throughout his life Abraham used his political skills and business acumen for the safety, security, and prosperity of his people. Today, family leaders should apprise themselves of the issues of the day that will affect their family. Whether those issues involve education, economic development, racial equality, or healthcare is the responsibility of every family leader to study and influence the course of events that may improve conditions for family members in the present or in the years to come. In addition, each family leader has the responsibility to be sober in his handling of the business affairs of the family, making wise investments and assurances that will contribute to the safety and security of the family. This aptitude for wise management and civic awareness is also an important part of the patriarchs legacy; it will be duplicated in some form but each succeeding generation.

He was looking for a city

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that while Abraham was a successful businessman, politician, and family man, he was still a man who traveled from place to place looking for a city.

Despite all of Abraham's accomplishments he was a man who lived every day of his life with the full understanding that he was just living in a tent on insecure ground.

Despite the fact that Abraham had land and financial resources to spare, he was still just a man who spent the entirety of his life looking for a city.

Despite the fact that Abraham helped thousands in his life's journey, he was still just a man who walked mile after mile looking for a city.

He was not just looking for any city, he was looking for a city with foundations. He was looking for a city built by the hands of God.

Many people only saw Abraham the businessman, who could buy land or make investments, they didn't see Abraham the praying man who would set up an altar and offer sacrifices to God everywhere he stopped.

Many people saw Abraham the politician negotiating with leaders of the land and important people in the community; they didn't see Abraham the worshiping man who often called on God in the wee hours of the night and heard him speak to his soul.

Many people saw Abraham the wealthy man who had considerable resources and land; they did not see Abraham the giving man who took the first fruits of his crops, cattle and increase and presented them to the Lord.

Just as Abraham moved from place to place, living here then there, every Patriarch today is also looking for city.

We are looking for a city that cannot be bordered by the Beouf River, Bayou Macon or the Ouachita.

We are looking for a city that cannot be reached by driving a few miles up the interstate or its well worn back roads.

When our eyes begin to dim and our steps slow, we will find our way to an altar to give praise to God for securing our place in that city.

When our hearts begin to fail, strokes pin us to our bed, and our voices become inaudible whispers, our failing heart still sings with words lifted to cosmic proportions, "Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord, glory hallelujah!"

And when the Lord comes, he'll come with the city!

John said, he said, "I saw a new heaven and a new earth...and I saw the holy city New Jerusalem coming down from God out of heaven prepared as a bride adorned for her husband."

In that city the wicked will cease from troubling and weary will be at rest!

In that city every day will be Sunday, always howdy and never goodbye!

In that city the patriarchs of every family will gather: Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

The big names and the little names, both the majors and the minors, will be in that city!

What is this city? It's the place the song writer wrote about when he said, "I have heard of a land on a far away strand, it's the beautiful home of the soul. Built by Jesus on high, where we never shall die, it's land where we'll never grow old."

It's a city not made by the hands of men!

It's a city with 12 foundations!

It's a city with 12 gates!

It's a city that measures 1500 miles square with 300 foot walls

It's a city that houses the tree of life whose leaves will be good for the healing of the nations!

It's a city called heaven!

When we all get to heaven, what a day of rejoicing that will be. When we all see Jesus, we'll sing and shout the victory!

This patriarch has gone one before us, but every descendant must follow the trail of the cross to secure his place in the city!

Follow that trail to love of family!

Follow that trail to lifting the lives of the lost!

Follow that trail to the altar in a God centered life

Follow that trail to Bethlehem!

Follow that trail to Jerusalem!

Follow that trail to an old rugged cross!

Follow that trail to an empty tomb!

He's not there because early Sunday morning he arose from the grave!

Come and go with me to my father's house!

There is joy! Joy! Joy!

A Blessing worth waiting for

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 6, 2009

SCRIPTURE: And Jacob begat Joseph the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus, who is called Christ. So all the generations from Abraham to David are fourteen generations; and from David until the carrying away into Babylon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Babylon unto Christ are fourteen generations. Matthew 1:16-17

Introduction

Have you ever waited a long time to receive a gift? When you received it, was it worth the wait? There is one thing common to this season: long lines. No matter how we try to avoid them, long waiting lines are a staple of the Yuletide season. Some are frustrated with all of the waits from the ATM machine to the Checkout line. Others have accepted waits as part of the process; they are neither frustrated nor intimidated by the process.

There are some things that are worth the wait. Some would argue that fifteen minute oatmeal and thirty minute grits are worth the wait. Some say homemade hamburgers, pound cakes made from scratch, or tomatoes grown in your own garden are worth the wait. Still others say the bargains they received on black Friday were worth standing in line at 3 AM in the morning and fighting the crowds to get to them. Still others would argue that hot footage that covers the entire ice cream sundae is worth the wait.

The romantic will tell you that finally embracing your true love is worth the wait.

The investor will tell you that the profit gained from buying low and selling high is worth the wait.

The educator will tell you that the rewards of a full college education are ultimately worth the wait.

The football fan will tell you that standing in long lines to get box seats at the Super Bowl is definitely worth the wait.

Most people will agree that they don't mind waiting as long as they can be assured that what they are waiting for is worth the wait. No one wants to waste their time.

Yet, there are many who believe that they are wasting their time in one endeavor or another because they believe that what they will finally receive won't be worth the wait. That's why some drop out of school because they believe the jobs that they will ultimately receive, if any, won't be worth the sacrifice of time and energy required to complete their education. Others abandon once special projects because they have lost faith in the ultimate reward they expected to receive.

Does that apply it to our faith, too? Is all that we do a waste of time? Will the reward that we receive at the end be worth the sacrifice that we are making in this life? There are some who are asking these real-life questions and have concluded that the life of faith won't be worth the ultimate reward. They count the number of hours they will spend in worship, Bible study, rehearsals and practices, and in service to others and they ask will all of these hours be worth it? They count the amount of money that they contribute to ministries and the donated talents that they loan to kingdom building and they ask the question, "Will all of my service pay off in the long run?"

The true believer has one response and it comes from the word of God. 1 Corinthians 2:9 says, "But as it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." The Reverend Jasper Williams puts it this way, "Serving the Lord will pay off after while."

Just as a long awaited birthday present brings us great joy, or a much anticipated Christmas present fills us with excitement, those who labor in the service of the Lord, keep the faith, and never stop trusting Him will discover sooner than they think that what God has planned for them is a blessing that worth the wait.

As Christians, we wait patiently upon the fulfillment of God's promises. We know that He has never made a promise to us that he has not kept. At times, we became frustrated because he didn't show up by our time schedule. However, our experience has taught us that God may not show up when we want him, but He's always on time.

Exposition

This text focuses upon the genealogy of Jesus Christ through his earthly father Joseph.

The text shows us the long journey through which the Messiah came to reach Earth and to fulfill the promise of God.

The text and its preceding verses is a genealogy of Joseph's family. A second account in another of the Gospels presents a genealogy of Mary's family.

This genealogy shows how Jesus appeared in the family of Joseph after 42 generations of descent. These texts present the descendents of Abraham in three groups of 14 generations of each.

Matthew records the names beginning with the oldest and moves to the most recent.

The long list of names included in the genealogy indicates how God systematically brought into the ancestry of Joseph and Mary varied instances of intermarriage between races, nationalities and cultures pointing to the fact that once the Savior made his arrival upon this earth he would be a Jew by his biology but he would be a child of every nation based upon his diverse ethnic background.

The Savior's arrival was promised by God, but this 42 generation journey seemed an unbearable length of time to some. During these 42 generations the people waited for God to answer their prayer, and to give them the promised Savior. When the Savior was finally born he was a blessing to the entire world. History has proven that it was a blessing worth waiting for.

God's Blessing

Has God made you a promise that He seems slow answering? Are you becoming frustrated because the job you seek, the opportunity you chase or the open door you're trying to find seems to always elude you? In the meantime are all the hassles you are enduring trying to wait on God complicating things for you? Are you tempted to take matters in your own hands because you see yourself going down rapidly? If so then you should consider these three truths:

TIME PASSES QUICKLY WHEN YOU ARE BUSY WITH HIS WORK: If we sit around our homes everyday waiting for God to get that job, solve that problem or open that door, it will seem like an eternity. We know that God is moving because He has promised us that before we even ask that our help is on the way; however, it's frustrating if we are running to the window checking on every car that passes, jumping each time the telephone rings and spotting the mailman a half mile down the street trying to shake the blessing out of his bag. There is an old saying "Watch pot, never boil." It means if you spend all of your time watching the pot it will seem like the water will never boil. It's the same way with God. Since God has promised us a blessing let's get busy doing something else other than just waiting on your "shrimp boat" to come in. When we are helping others, assisting the sick, encouraging the lonely or otherwise helping to build the kingdom, the time seems to pass quickly. Busy yourself serving and praising God and watch that blessing come. God is working it out, so busy yourself praising him and working for him. Psalm 52:9 says "I will praise thee forever, because thou hast done it: and I will wait on thy name; for it is good before thy saints." Pray, Praise and serve and before you know, God has worked it out!

EVEN WHILE YOU WAITING, GOD'S GOT YOUR BACK: If we are in a jam and we're waiting on the Lord to bless us with a solution, it gets frustrating if we forget that even while we are waiting, that God's got our back. This happens when we have prayed to God and asked for deliverance and the blessing that He promised seems so slow coming. It makes us anxious when our notes are due, the utilities are about to be disconnected and our jobs are on line. It gets really frustrating because in our weakness we start to look at the clock that brings our eventual demise closer and closer. For some these are shaky moments because we are waiting, but we doubt that what we are waiting for will be sufficient to handle the magnitude of the problem or enormity of our depressed situation. That's when we should remember Psalm 33:20 that says "Our soul waited for the LORD: He is our help and our shield." It may appear that enemies are surrounding us on every hand but God's has your situation under control. Don't worry if the enemy is at your front door and the back door and crawling through the keyhole, just remember that the Lord is your shield and in his own time He will deal with them and in the meantime he's got you covered behind his shield.

IF YOU RUN OUT OF STRENGTH, HANG ON A LITTLE WHILE LONGER: There are many who have been waiting on God for what seems to be an eternity but he has not yet answered with the blessing they need. Some are handling household matters, holding families together by threads, tending frail marriages, treating wounds and diseases, and trying to revive failing finances with little success. Some are actually down to their last ounce of strength, and still it seems that God is taking so long. Doesn't He know that we are running out of strength? We have reached the point where we are sick and tired of being sick and tired. We have waited so long that we have worn out wait. We know very well what Psalm 130:6 says, "My soul waited for the Lord more than they that watch for the morning, I say, more that they that watch for the morning." Remember, God knows just how much you can bear, and if you hold on, he'll make it worth your while. In fact, Isaiah 40:31 says, "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint!" When that blessing comes we'll conclude that it was certainly worth the wait! When you get to the end of your rope, tie a knot and hold on; help is on the way.

When you wait

Finally, brothers and sisters we must not focus on how long it's taking the blessing to come, but what is going to happen when it comes!

We must constantly remind ourselves not to hurry God, because when the time is right God will shake things up and make them happen on our behalf!

If we can wait on everything else we should be able to wait on the Lord.

If we can wait for the coffee to brew and the toast to brown, we ought to be able to wait on the Lord!

If we can wait for water to boil, popcorn to pop, and for all the commercials to pass before we can watch a rented DVD, then we ought to be able to wait on the Lord!

If we can wait for the train to pass, the cake to bake and the washer to go through three spin cycles, we out to be able to wait on the Lord!

If we can we wait in lines at stores or wait for another batch of fries at Mickey D's, we ought to be able to wait on the Lord!

If we can call someone on the phone and wait while they put us on hold because they have call waiting, we ought to be able to wait on the Lord

If you wait on the Lord, the blessing you will receive will be worth the wait.

If you wait on the Lord burdens get lifted.

If you wait on the Lord your heavy loads get shared.

When you wait on the Lord, bowed down heads get lifted.

When you wait on the Lord eyes wet with tears get wiped dry.

When you wait on the Lord, ways get made out of no way, storms seem to subside, bright skies return, bad habits are broken, addictions cease, and yokes are broken.

The world cried out and said, Father we're lost down here, we need a redeemer!

Lord, send us a blessing that will give us a brand new start.

While they were still praying, they didn't know that their blessing was already on the way.

What they didn't know was that 42 generations ago:

Abraham begat Isaac; and Isaac begat Jacob; and Jacob begat Judas and his brethren;

Judas begat Phares and Phares begat Esrom; and Esrom begat Aram;

Aram begat Aminadab; and Aminadab begat Naasson; and Naasson begat Salmon;

Salmon begat Booz; and Booz begat Obed of Ruth; and Obed begat Jesse;

Jesse begat David the king; and David the king begat Solomon of her that had been the wife of Urias;

Down in Israel the people were getting impatience but what they didn't see was that God was already working because:

Eliud begat Eleazar; and Eleazar begat Matthan; and Matthan begat Jacob;

Jacob begat Joseph the husband of Mary, and down and Bethlehem a child was born!

Somebody said, "What shall we call him?" and the answer came "Emanuel" God with us!

He's the blessing that we've been waiting for, and He's well worth the wait.

He is a prayer answering God, He's well worth the wait!

He is a body healing God; He's well worth the wait!

He is a soul saving God; He's well worth the wait!

Wait on the Lord; He'll make it worth your while!

Wait on the Lord because one evening a picked up an old rugged cross!

Wait on the Lord because He died out on Calvary!

Wait on the Lord because early Sunday morning, He arose from the Grave with all power in His hands!

Wait on the Lord; He'll make it all worth your while!

E Pluribus Unum

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 2009

SCRIPTURE: "There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus." Galatians 3:28

Introduction

Have you ever wondered about that Latin phrase that's written on all of our currency? If you'll look close, you'll see that it says, "E. Pluribus Unum." Those unfamiliar with Latin probably thought it meant "In God we trust," but what it really means is "Out of many comes one." It's a statement that our nation is the product of many different races, cultures, religions and heritages that are bound together in a common purpose that has made us one.

It's not quite "one" yet, but the push to diversify and to accept differences is at an all time high.

Wouldn't it be great if there was a world in which color, national origin, or ethnicity were celebrated, appreciated, and embraced? In such a world it would not matter about the color of a person's skin, the country from which they came, or their cultural differences. The only thing that would matter would be the content of their character, their ability to contribute, and their personal effectiveness.

That is the world that Martin Luther King Junior envisioned when he said he dreamed of a day when "men will be judged not by the color of their skin but by the content of their character." Those words were spoken over 40 years ago by Dr. King but are slowly being embraced in the American workplace, as well as they social and religious communities. The fact that it would take 40 years for the process to incorporate itself into the fabric of American society intimates the challenge that diversity presents as well as the reward that it offers.

Diversity is more than simple nondiscrimination. It is even more than equal opportunity. It transcends the legal requirements of the law and challenges each person, institution, and community to focus on the differences and similarities that people bring into the arena of life beyond the mere letter of the law. The challenge of diversity is to be inclusive of everyone. It mirrors the nondiscrimination compliance components of the law but caricatures the ideal relationships between people of varied races and cultures. Diversity is about learning from others who are not the same, about dignity and respect for all, and about creating environments and practices encourage learning from diverse perspectives of others.

Dr. King's words were very simple but their implications were dramatic. His call for a diverse society challenged the entire nation to review how it perceives itself and then to examine how it perceives others. Our perception of others impacts the way we interact with people who differ from us racially, culturally, or sexually. The demand for diverse involvement in the social community prompts us to recognize the need to accept our differences and embrace our commonalities.

The call for diversity did not originate with Dr. King, he only reflected the teachings of our Lord who was often criticized for recognizing the value of individuals and ignoring the differences. He often fraternized with sinners and publicans, was seen publicly with Samaritans and often talked to women in public. He challenged the social standards of his time by assembling a diverse array of disciples who were businessmen and even government tax collectors. What Christ called for then is what we as a nation are trying to accomplish now: true diversity that begins with changes in our personal attitudes and reflects itself in our relationships with others in the workplace and the general community.

The fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man is a major tenet of the Christian faith. The love of God assumes the acceptance and the love of all people as children of God and that would include even those who differ with us by virtue of their race, color, or ethnic origin. God loves diversity. One writer put it this way, "God must love variety. Even plants of the same species are different—some tall, some leafy, others with a profusion of flowers. He is not the God of an assembly line creation, but One who loves and appreciates the differences."

As Christians, we recognize and embrace all people as children of the King. When we all get to heaven there will be a beautiful bouquet of races, cultures, and nationalities all bound by one unique characteristic; they have been saved by the blood of Christ. When we all get to heaven there will truly be a celebration of "E Pluribus Unum."

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he explains that despite the diverse makeup of the church, it is one body in Christ.

Christ foretold that if believers would lift him up that "all men" would be drawn to him. That prophecy literally fulfilled itself as people from all races, cultures and creeds joined the church. As it grew, however the Jews among them adopted an attitude of superiority over others, thinking themselves more worthy because Christ was a Jew and Jews were God's chosen people. Paul addresses this misconceived attitude and makes it clear that the diverse nature of the church does not lend itself to superiority of any specific group or race.

The church is a diverse body of believers who come from all walks of life. No preconditioned status confers rank in the church, all our equal. Likewise, there is no single member or group of members that are spiritually superior over others, that is, a believing Jew is not more privileged before God than a believing Gentile; a believing slave does not rank higher than a believing free person; a believing man is not superior to a believing woman.

This was important to note because some Jewish men prayed, "I thank God that Thou hast not made me a Gentile, a slave, or a woman." Paul made it clear that such distinctions do not exist in the body of Christ so far as spiritual privilege and position are concerned.

While the first part of the text removes discriminatory barriers, the second part is where unity is established. If all believers are being made like Christ, if all believers have professed faith and joined the body of Christ, then this unity sets aside all other superficial distinctions. Although the body of Christ is diverse, Paul holds to the claim that unity must be exalted. He says, we are one in Christ Jesus. All difference become secondary.

The barriers broken down in this passage set the stage for a social revolution that would ultimately change the way the world viewed diversity. It may not seem so radical to our day, but they were astounding in ancient Roman culture. This made Christianity unique and attractive-it valued each individual, yet it provided a unified body. All believers are one in Christ Jesus. All are equally valuable to God. Differences arise in gifts, in function, in abilities, but all are one in Christ (Ephesians 2:15).

The call for the church to be "one out of many" is what gives it the ability to morph itself into every culture around the world. The idea is to accept the differences among members then pledge to work together as one team to achieve a common goal, building the kingdom of God.

Diversity breeds Growth

When Paul urged the church to accept he set in place a principle that has been copied by people around the world in a large array of arenas, even the workplace. It's plain and simple: diversity is good for the church, but it's also good for the community and for business.

WHEN WE ARE DIVERSE WE ADAPT EASILY. Every company has learned the Pauline principle. As the church grew it adapted its methods to reach diverse cultures and nations. That required utilizing people with gifts of languages, and the ability to interpret the meaning of the church's message to every nation. In the secular community the principle remains the same. When a community or business embraces the talents of those of diverse backgrounds a whole new array of individual talents and experiences are focused on meeting the needs of an ever changing community. Isolation breeds stagnation, but those who open their arms to "whosoever will" usually discover a wealth of ways to get their message out to the world. The black church must learn this lesson, many white churches have already worked to diversify their membership base, but black churches, for the most part are still isolated. Yet, the believing community of today is a reflection of the greater integrated community from which it evolves. It is not a reflection of the racism of the 60s. As long as the church remains a segregated institution and refuses to seek diversity, it will be doomed to be a relic of the past that is irrelevant to a more diverse community looking for a savior who embraces all.

DIVERSTY BROADENS THE AREAS OF SERVICE: Recently a funeral service in Texas involved a Hispanic woman who had married a Black man. The congregation was half black but the other half was Hispanic, many of whom spoke no English. The church was prepared. Hispanic interpreters read scripture in English and Spanish, so were the songs. The bulletins were multi-language and reflected color schemes that were familiar to both cultures. The result was a pleasing experience for all and Christ was praised. When churches, communities and businesses diversify they too become relevant to a larger ministry area. When a company, for example, diversifies it broadens its ability to communicate through languages and cultural understanding. It allows the community, a business or a church to reach out to those who would not ordinarily be a part of its contact base. It reaches out in different ways, but there is only one message; that's the impact of diversity.

DIVERSITY ENCOURAGES CREATIVE EXECUTION: The church at its beginning thought it would stay in the realm of Jerusalem and Antioch. But as it began to expand into different nations the word of God had to be translated into new tongues and it needed ideas. Those ideas came from the Greeks, Africans, Romans and others that made up its membership. From them, the church gleaned ideas and methods that helped it to grow in large numbers. Ever wonder why on some occasions the church grew by thousands on a single day? It's because it reached out to everyone who would respond. Businesses that grow solicit patronage from every race and culture. Marketing campaigns reflect strategies drawn from the input of its diverse workforce. They know the needs of their diverse customer base and respond to it effectively. It becomes obvious that if the simple Pauline principle of diversification worked for the church that it can work for a company, a community or for a nation. The goal of diversification is to build one message and one mission from a diverse membership. That is the essence of E. Pluribus Unum.

Out of many, one

Finally, brothers and sisters we must consider that we may have traveled different paths to get to this point but thanks to Christ we are all walking the road to glory.

While the church is diverse in it's makeup, it speaks to the world with a single heart.

Though it reflected a variety of classes and cultures, it was united in it's commitment to tell the world about the risen Lord.

Though there were Africans and Greeks , Jews and Gentiles in the number whose backgrounds and homelands were far apart, they were united in their quest to make heaven their home.

Out of our diversity we have risen together as one plurality that believes in the fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man.

Out of our differences we have learned that when it comes to our faith in God, we are one and the same. We are all leaning and depending on the mercy of God.

If the beautiful bouquet that God has created is to be fully appreciated then the cause of reaching out to the church must be expanded as we open our arms to every creed and nation.

A great song by the late Michael Jackson, raised the consciousness of the world about the need to include all of God's children, it was called "We are the world."

The lyrics are these:

There comes a time when we heed a certain call
When the world must come together as one
There are people dying and its time to lend a hand to life
There greatest gift of all

We can't go on pretending day by day
That someone, somewhere will soon make a change
We are all a part of Gods great big family
And the truth, you know,
love is all we need;
We are the world, we are the children.
We are the ones who make a brighter day, so let's start giving."

Jackson said in the 20th century what Jesus said on a mountainside in Judea, "we are all a part of God's big family."

It's not a matter of Jew or Greek, Black or White, Christian or Hindu, it's a matter that we are all intertwined together.

Jesus carried that message to all who would listen.

He preached it in the valleys and on the mountainsides!

He preached it in private homes and in the synagogues!

He preached it in season and out of season!

What did he preach? That God loves the world and every creature in it.

And Christ himself loved us so much that he died on Calvary without ever denying the truths upon which he stood.

And every Christian testifies to this day that Early Sunday morning that he arose and is alive today.

He's pushing us to love each other, include each other, respect each other and work together.

Dr. King said, when that happens it will speed up the day when Black men and white men, Jews and Gentiles, protestants and Catholics will be able to sing in the words of the Old Negro Spiritual, "Free at Last, Free at Last, thank God almighty, I'm free at last!"

Who gets the most Toys?

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright Jr.
for the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, Louisiana

December 20, 2009

SCRIPTURE: "And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him: and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh." Matthew 2:11

Introduction

Have you ever noticed how children evaluate the quality of their Christmas experience? Despite the fact that you took your good time to wrap the presents under your tree, on Christmas morning the children usually run to the tree and instantly start to tear paper from a variety of boxes. The general procedure is to tear open the box, glance at the contents, then look for the next box. After all the boxes have been opened then they start to count the number of gifts they have received. They measure the size of the gifts and older ones equate the quality of the gift with its actual costs. It appears that the number of gifts under the tree and the size of the boxes determines whether or not there has been a successful Christmas. After playing with their toys for few minutes many will run to the phone to tell their friends how many toys they received and how big they were. Who received the most toys, and what kind, is the nature of the entire conversation. Somehow we assist them in relating the number of toys they receive to the happiness of their Christmas; we know we shouldn't but we do it anyway.

When parents can't buy a large number of toys they feel as if their children will not have a Merry Christmas primarily because we have inadvertently taught them that their happiness is tied to the number of things under the tree.

Just a generation or two ago the valuation of Christmas was a little different in the African-American community. There are some who can remember the joy of getting fresh fruit for Christmas, apples and oranges, a piece of peppermint, and maybe a dress or a pair of shoes. The idea of getting a large number of items, including clothing, toys and other items was not even a consideration. The joy of Christmas was in the family fellowship, decorating the tree, preparing foods, and entertaining family friends who often came from a distance to share the Fellowship. If someone received more than one gift it was a rare occasion. The emphasis was placed upon the Christ child and family Fellowship. Obviously, that time has faded into memory. Today, a child would probably cry for a week if all they received for Christmas were apples and oranges with only one gift under the tree.

The advent of television and mass marketing has all but eliminated the old family traditions. Children's television shows are filled with advertisements for electronic games, gadgets, and fun machines that all promise immediate happiness if they appear under the tree at the same time. After each advertisement children's wish lists stretch longer and longer. With so much advertising there is no way possible for children to be satisfied with just one gift under the tree in these commercialized times.

The emphasis of modern times is not upon giving gifts but upon receiving them; and that mentality is not limited to children alone. There are many adults who also measure their Christmas by the number of gifts they receive and the cost of each. There is an old saying that says, "the only difference between men and boys is the size of their toys." If that is true then there are millions of adults who are looking for toys for Christmas too; except instead of play cars they want real cars, real cell phones, and real fur coats. Just like their children, there are many adults who also count their toys to determine their joys.

What is the real joy of Christmas? Is it about the number of toys under the tree? Even though trees are pretty, festive, and decorative, are they the real reason for the season? Do we sing Joy to the world only if there is a large number of presents under our tree? Will a large number of electronic games and new toys bring peace on earth? I think not; some will agree that they won't even bring peace in the house on Christmas day. So, there has to be something more than just counting the number of toys; whether it's big boy toys or little boy toys. Our joy simply cannot be predicated on the number of boxes wrapped with bright colored paper that we open on Christmas morning. Those who know the Lord, have found that there is more to it than just wrappings and paper. They have learned that families that focus upon the Lord celebrate their joys and not their toys.

As Christians, we celebrate the true meaning of Christmas. We celebrate the birth of Jesus Christ. We celebrate the hope that the Christ child brings to a world that is filled with pessimism and negativity. We celebrate the birth of the Prince of Peace and the King of King's, the number of toys we receive, if any at all, is incidental.

Exposition

This text focuses on several wise men from the east who came to worship Jesus bearing gifts.

The birth of Christ had been foretold in prophecies that noted the birth would be accompanied by a great star that would shine in the heavens and point the way to His location. In the east astrologers familiar with the prophecy followed the star to Judea where they worshipped the growing Christ child sometime after his birth.

The entourage was laden with gifts that represented the wealth of their respective countries. They brought gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh. The gifts were their tribute to one they believed to be a king, worthy of adoration and respect.

These three gifts were timely for Joseph and Mary; primarily because they were poor, working class people who had lived in Exile for two years in Egypt, barely making ends meet. The gifts from the Magi must have been a great relief. Over the years, some scholars have studied the symbolism of the gifts in that they offered Him gold, as a king; frankincense, as God, for they honored God with the smoke of incense; and myrrh, as a man that should die, for myrrh was used in embalming dead bodies. Probably, at the time, Joseph and Mary didn't see any symbolism, they just received the gifts as an immediate answer to their temporal needs.

The Magi's act of giving, not the gifts themselves, is the point of significance to us. True worship is giving, it is not receiving. Like the Magi when we come to see Christ we should never do so without giving him our

The gifts

Who gets the most out of Christmas? When we were children we focused on the gifts we would receive at Christmas time. The more gifts we receive the merrier the Christmas. As we mature in the faith however, we soon learn that the joys are not in the toys. So who gets the most joys at Christmas time? Those who experienced the most at Christmas time are those who look beyond the number of toys, whether those toys are for adults or children, and revel in the joys of the season. What are those joys?

THE JOYS OF LIFE LIVED AND NEW LIFE. One of the joys of Christmas time is the celebration of life, both past and present. Some families have experienced new births during the year that are a reason for celebration. There is no joy greater than the excitement prompted by a family that celebrates a child's first Christmas. It is indescribable. It is a moment that is memorable. Some have overcome obstacles, serious illnesses, and professional setbacks that should have robbed them of their lives, hope and happiness, but they are still standing. That is a cause for celebration. Even those who have lost loved ones find reason to celebrate the joy of Christmas time because they celebrate the lives that were lived with them as they cherish the memories and continue the traditions that have brought them happiness over the years. If we have not learned to celebrate the gift of life and to embrace its many forms then no number of toys will bring us the joys that we seek.

THE CELEBRATION OF MERCIES RECEIVED. As we celebrate the birth of the Christ child we also celebrate the fact that God has showered each of our families with new mercies just this year alone. He has allowed us to overcome obstacles that have been placed in our way as well as stumbling blocks that were meant to deter us. The family celebrates new mercies that he has showered upon each family member despite our own inadequacies. Like the wise men, we bow humbly before our God and present him with the gifts of our spirit. In our humility we say like the psalmist "if it had not been for the Lord on our side" where would we be? As the family gathers and rejoices and reminisces about old times it will also reflect upon the mercy and goodness that God has shown toward each individual family member. If we have not learned to give thanks to God for all of his mercies then no number of toys will bring us the joys that we seek.

THE JOYS OF ANTICIPATED GOOD TIMES: The birth of the Christ child was important because it symbolized a brighter future for all believers. The very name of the Christ child "Jesus" means he shall save his people. That was the word of hope to those who were lost, defeated, and trapped. The wise men came because this child represented the glorious future that God had in store for Israel. Similarly, that's what Christmas should mean to every believer; that God has great plans for those who believe and trust in him. Just as we look at any babe and see unlimited possibilities, so should we see our futures when they entrusted to the hand of God. Christmas is a celebration of Hope. It's a celebration of renewed faith that we can rise beyond the difficulties of the moment and achieve our greatest potential. It's a celebration of a revived trust that no matter how dark or dreary it seems that God will keep every promise that he has made to us; Central among those promises is that he would never leave us alone. The reminder of this Christ child known as Emmanuel, God with us, is that God is always by our side. If we can't see the bright future that God has in store for us, then no number of toys will bring the joys we seek.

The Joy of the Savior

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember that Christmas is not about the number of toys and gifts we get, but it's about the joy of salvation that we receive.

When the wise men came to celebrate the arrival of the Christ child they did not come expecting to receive anything, they came prepared to give. They understood the importance of this child's birth and the reason for the season.

The wise among us are still following their example even to this day.

The wise men made the long an arduous journey to Judea despite the darkness of the times because they believed a child had been born that could turn night into day.

The wise men traveled from the East searching for a child who would bring joy to the world, but today men are searching the world looking for toys that can heighten their joys.

In the search for joy, 38.2 million live Christmas trees have been erected in our homes this year.

In the search for joy, we've spent more than $17 billion decorating our homes with ribbons, poinsettias, Christmas tree ornaments and shining lights.

In the search for joy, the average household will spend a thousand dollars or more on toys for big and little boys, and make believe doll like worlds for big and little girls.

In the search for joy, the lines in stores will grow long as shopping carts are filled with video games, Playstation 3's, xbox360s, Tickle Me Elmos and Dora the Explorers.

In the search for joy, finance companies are making millions of short term loans at rates of 30 percent or more, while credit cards are being maxed out and household bills have been put on hold, so that everyone in the house can have one day of happiness.

There is a mad scramble in the land to see who gets the most toys. Grown folks will call each other and list off what they received: bracelets and necklaces, big screen TV's and brand new cars.

However, there is somebody here today who can testify that the quest is not to sit around on Christmas day and count our toys, but rather, our quest should be to sit down and take a family inventory and count our joys.

If the Lord has brought your family over hills and valleys, count it is a joy!

If the Lord has brought you strength in the middle of your weakness, count is as another joy!

If the Lord has brought you comfort in the middle of your confusing situation, count is as another joy!

If the Lord has picked you up after you fallen flat on your face, count is as another joy!

If the Lord has given you health and strength, count it as another joy!

When the angelic choir prepared to sing on that silent Christmas night. They were not counting the number of gifts that the wise men would later bring!

They were looking down at a baby, wrapped in swaddling clothes, laying in a manger.

They sang in words we still hear today "Joy to the world, the Lord has come. Let earth receive her king."

Joy to the new born king, who will take:

—The ugliness of this world and make it beautiful again!

—Our sadness and turn it into gladness

—Our difficulties and make them easier to bear!

—Our lost souls and give us brand new life

Joy to the new born king who will spend 33 years living among men, pointing the way to paradise!

Joy to the baby in the manger who would grow up to be the man who carries old rugged cross up Calvary's hill!

We have joy because Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

Joy to the world, let earth receive her king!

Promise Made, Promise Kept

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 27, 2009

SCRIPTURE: And he came and dwelt in a city called Nazareth: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophets, He shall be called a Nazarene." Matthew 2:23

Introduction

Has anyone ever made you a promise? Did they keep it? Did they even try? Most of us have had a mixed bag of experiences when it comes promises; very few can claim that they have never had a promise broken.

When a promise is made a cycle of events is triggered that is dependent upon the fulfillment of the promise. Consider the day the chickens promised to deliver the cook dozens of eggs each day. Based on that promise the cook advertised that he woulf have hash browns and eggs for sale every morning. Anticipating a large number of sales, the cafe owner ordered more bread coffee and sugar. The delivery man needed a new truck to deliver all of the supplies to the cafe so he mortgaged his home to get the banker to lend him the money to get a new truck. The gas station owner ordered more gas and hired another employee because of the new truck and it's fill up needs. Life seemed to be going great until the chickens decided that delivering so many eggs became a problem. Despite their promise, they refused to lay anymore eggs. "Get over it," the chickens said, "You don't have to lay all of these eggs, we do." Without the eggs, the cafe stopped it's breakfast sale and extra orders for coffee and sugar stopped. The delivery man could not make the notes on his new truck and lost both his house and his truck. Without the truck the gas station fired its new employee and the gas truck brought no more gas. When told how their broken promise caused so much trouble. The yard birds commented, "What's the big deal? You knew we were not brave from the start. You should not have counted on a bunch of chickens." The next day a sign in Cafe window read "One day only, chicken and dumplings, all you can eat."

There are many people who make promises loosely without considering that when they fail to do their part they create a wave of problems for others far greater than they can imagine.

Our society has come to doubt any promises it hears because so many have not been kept from elected officials all the way down to the local weather man. We've seen it all.

The one bright spot that we have is that our God has never made us a promise He did not keep. No matter what He promised to those who trusted him, He delivered just as He said He would.

As Christians, we are confident that God is not slack in the fulfillment of his commitments to us, even if that promise meant presenting His son to the world as a precious gift for the remission of sin.

Exposition

This text focuses on the return of Mary and Joseph to Nazareth thus fulfilling the last of the prophecies concerning the birth of Christ.

When wise men in the East saw the prophetic star in the sky they journeyed to toward the location of the birth of the Christ Child. It was a long journey for the Magi but when they arrived in Judea they inquired of the child's whereabouts from King Herod. The king pretended to be interested in worshipping the king but secretly wanted to kill. He asked the Magi to notify him of the child's location. When the Magi didn't return the King became angry and ordered the deaths of all of the children under the age of two years old so that that was considerable weeping in the city.

Joseph was warned in a dream to flee to Egypt and he followed without hesitation.

After Herod died he returned to Nazareth and raised the Christ child in the city.

The entire passage is filled with the fulfilled promises of God. The first occurs at Matthew 2:15 "And was there until the death of Herod: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying, Out of Egypt have I called my son." this refers to God's promise that he would call his son home from Egypt, which was accomplished once Herod died.

The second fulfillment is noted in Matthew 2:17-18 "Then was fulfilled that which was spoken by Jeremy the prophet, saying, In Rama was there a voice heard, lamentation, and weeping, and great mourning, Rachel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted, because they are not." This refers to the escape of the Christ child to Egypt and the slaughter of the Innocents and the crying of the mothers in the street.

The third fulfillment is noted in this text Matthew 2:23 "And he came and dwelt in a city called Nazareth: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophets, He shall be called a Nazarene. " It was fulfilled when Jesus returned to Nazareth and was henceforth referred to as a Nazarene or a resident of Nazareth.

The passages illustrate that all of God prophetic promises whether they involve the pleasant or the unpleasant will be fulfilled.

If God makes a promise it will be dutifully kept.

Five Great Promises to Believers

GOD HAS PROMISED SALVATION: God has promised that those who believe in Jesus and are baptized for the forgiveness of sins will be saved. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned" Mark 16:16.

GOD HAS PROMISED TO SUPPLY OUR NEEDS: He has promised to supply every need we have. The Bible says: "But my God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus". That's Philippians 4:19. God has obligated Himself only to the extent of our needs. That would include food, clothing, shelter, companionship, love, and salvation thru Jesus Christ. It would not include the multiplicity of luxuries that we have come to think of as needs.

GOD HAS PROMISED SUFFICIENT GRACE: God has promised that His grace is sufficient for us. The bible says in 1 Corinthians 12:9 "And he said unto me, my grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness. Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me. "He has made provision for our salvation by His grace through faith.

GOD HAS PROMISED HE WON'T TEMPT YOU BEYOND YOUR ABILITY: God has promised that His children will not be overtaken with temptation. Instead, He assures us that a way of escape will be provided. "There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it." Jude wrote: "Now unto Him that is able to keep you from falling and to present you're faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy" (Jude v 24).

GOD HAS PROMISED TO WORK IT TO YOUR ADVANTAGE: God has promised that all things work together for good to those who love and serve Him faithfully. "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose." Romans 8:28 No matter how frustrating a situation gets, it will work to the advantage of true believers.

Stand on his promise

Finally, brothers and sisters, even though it appears a long time coming; stand on the promises of God.

When God made his prophetic promises about the birth of Christ they seemed farfetched and unrealistic but millions of believers stood on his promises.

When Isaiah announce the promise of God that "Behold a virgin shall conceive and bear a son and shall call his name Immanuel"

The government shall be on his shoulders! They shall call him Wonderful, Counselor, The mighty God, The everlasting father, Prince of Peace!

It seemed impossible but believers stood on the promises of God.

Today our testimony should be same, no matter what comes our way, we will stand on the promises of God.

There is somebody here today who can testify that God promises to them have been faithful.

Has His promise to supply your every need, proven to be true?

Has His promise to be with you, even through the valley of the shadow of death, proven to be true?

Has His promise to be with you alway, even to the end of the world, proven to be true!

Has his promise to take every bad thing that happened to you and work it out to your advantage, proven to be true?

God does not make idle promises. If He makes us a promise it will be kept.

If it seems as if it is taking a long time for those promises to get to you, just keep standing on his word.

When things get rough for you, stand on the promises of the Lord!

When mountains get too high, he promises that every mountain shall be made low!

When valleys get too deep, he promises that every valley shall be exalted!

When rough places get too rough, he promises that rough places shall be made plain!

As I close, I am reminded of an old man who heard the voice of God one night in sleep. God told him to invest in a house that stood on the corner of 3rd and Main. God told him to take the contents of the house and throw it away and he would be blessed. Sight unseen the man took all of his savings and bought the house. When his children found that their father had bought an old run down house that had been abandoned for years. They became concerned. Every day he moved out a piece of furniture and stood on the porch. The trash pile became increasingly larger as he emptied the house and stood on the porch. The last thing he took from the house was an old picture that was hanging on the wall.

As he threw the picture on the trash pile, an art dealer had stopped at the red light. He recognized the picture, jumped from his car and took the old man to the gallery. Within a week, the picture was determined to be a collector's item and the man was paid several million dollars. The art dealer asked, "Why were you just standing on the porch every day! When you had a fortune on the wall!" The old man answered, "I didn't know what was in this old house. You thought I was standing on the porch, but I was standing on the promises of God!"

I don't know about you, but I've decided to stand on the promises of God!

Storms may rise!

Winds may blow but I'm standing on the promises of God!

I don't know what tomorrow will bring but I'm standing on the promises of God.

I know He'll keep his promise even though they crucified him on an old rugged cross!

I know He'll keep his promise even though they buried him in a borrowed tomb!

I know He'll keep that promise because Early Sunday Morning he arose from the day just as He promised!

I don't know but I believe I stand on the promises of God.

On Your Mark

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 2009

SCRIPTURE: "For I know the forwardness of your mind, for which I boast of you to them of Macedonia, that Achaia was ready a year ago; and your zeal hath provoked very many." 2 Corinthians 9:2

Introduction

Have you ever conceived of an idea but had to wait to put it into action?We often have brilliant ideas but for a variety of reasons find we have to wait until the appropriate time. There is nothing more frustrating than to have an idea that is not accepted. Yet, on the other hand there is nothing more powerful than an idea whose time has arrived.

Those who conceive of ideas, plans and direction are thought to be the forward part of a movement. Forwardness is the act of being part of the leading element. To be forward is to be out front. To be forward is to lead in the direction of progress.

The person who is forward is different from others who are wishful thinkers. Consider the old teacher who wanted to teach her students a lesson about procrastination. She walked into the class one day and posed a question, "If seven toad frogs sat on a log and one took a notion to jump off, how many would be left?" All hands in the class instantly went into the air as all of the children performed the instant calculations. They anxiously yelled at the same time, "six!" -The teacher shook her head and said they were all wrong. The students were puzzled. If there were seven and one took a notion to jump off, one from seven left six. The teacher then looked at the students and said, "The answer is seven." One student asked, "How's that?"- The teacher answered, 'One frog took a notion to jump, but he never got around to it." -He was a procrastinating frog!

Those who are forward minded are not procrastinators in life or when it comes to matters of faith and kingdom building.

It was the forward mindedness of men like Martin Luther, Calvin and John Wesley that gave us the freedom to worship God without the tyranny of the pope. It was the forwardness of great leaders like Patrick Henry, George Washington and Thomas Jefferson that led to the founding of the United States. It was the forwardness of men like Frederick Douglass, Booker T. Washington and Martin Luther King that opened the door of freedom for Blacks in America.

It is our bold faith in God that prompts us to prepare ourselves for kingdom building work. All we wait for is God's command. Like a runner in a track meet we are on our mark, anxiously awaiting the command to move forward.

As Christians, we don't focus on that which is behind us but rather we look to the future and its great promise. We are not procrastinators; we are ready to march forward into the unknown valleys of the future whenever our savior gives the word. Right now, we are on our mark, ready to move at God's command.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul's effort to gather support for poor churches by gathering offerings from others.

Paul's appeal to the churches pointed to the churches of Metropolitan Corinth as examples of enthusiasm and readiness to serve.

A year earlier the church in Achaia had encouraged Paul to take an offering to help the poorer congregations. They pledged to give first and to lead the fundraising effort. They were excited, like a runner on his mark, but were told to wait until the right time. While they waited Paul moved among the churches drumming up support by pointing to Achaia's example.

In This text Paul notes their excitement but asks them not to back down on their pledge or their enthusiasm.

"Your enthusiasm has stirred most of them to action" (v. 2, niv) Paul said. He paid special attention to their forward attitude. They were excited, ready to serve and unusually eager to do what they had promised to do.

The special offering they were going to give was described as "bounty" or blessing. He wanted them to look upon it as an opportunity to both be a blessing and get a blessing.

The emphasis of the text is upon giving with a spirit of bounty, but that same spirit also applies to every aspect of our faith walk. When believers are forward in any aspect of their service they approach it with a bountiful spirit that is both a blessing to the believer and to the recipient.

Forward Minded Service

As believers approach the future, we should do so with a true spirit of forwardness that will result in our work being a blessing to others. At the same time our service itself will be rewarded as bounty or blessing in our own lives.

BE FORWARD IN PRAYER. The church at Corinth was forward in its willingness to assist others; that forwardness also included their prayers. When it comes to praying for the sick or those in distress believers should be ready to respond. There is power in prayer. Prayer opens the door to blessings and ushers us before the throne of grace. We have survived this year because of prayer. Even when we were too mean to pray for ourselves, some forward minded believer prayed for us. That's what the song writer had in mind when he wrote, “Somebody prayed for me, had me on their mind; took the time to pray for me. I’m so glad they prayed. I’m so glad they prayed, I’m so glad they prayed for me.”

BE FORWARD IN SERVICE. The offerings Paul collected were designed to sustain the ministry and expand its work. Just as they were forward in their attitude about the work of the church, we should be equally excited. In the year ahead there is much to be done. The poor must be fed and sheltered, the lost must be shown the way, and those who are distressed must be reassured that God is still in control of their situation. We should have a forward spirit when it comes to our ministry of service. We should reflect the spirit of the song that says, “If I can help somebody as I pass along then my living shall not be in vain. If I can cheer somebody with a word or song then my living shall not be in vain.”

BE FORWARD IN YOUR GIVING. The Christians were excited about giving. They were first to pledge financial help to assist Paul’s ministry. They gave and received a bounty. In a similar sense every believer should be a forward minded bountiful giver. Even before Paul asked, they were ready to give. Likewise, believers today should assume the attitude that they have been blessed so that they can be a blessing. When we give we’ll prove the words of the songwriter to be true, “You can’t beat God giving, no matter how you try. The more you give, the more he gives to you.” In days ahead let us resolve to be forward minded in our giving.

On your mark

Finally, brothers and sisters as we prepare to begin another leg of this great race, let us approach tomorrow with that forward spirit and prayer and faith that we will need to succeed.

Like the runner patiently waiting, let’s get on the mark.

We seek the mark of the high calling of Christ. The call to get on our mark is a call to let the world know about Jesus.

On your mark, means to take your place and prepare to run your race.

On your mark, means pick up your cross and prepare to run the race that is set before you.

On your mark, means forgetting those things which or past.

Get set, means to get your mind focused and ready.

To get set is to focus on the finish line.

To get set is to watch your lane.

But then you must hear the command to go! Go where?

Go ye therefore...

With a forward mind go to fallen and tell them God will help them rise again!

Go to the lonely and bring them a word of hope!

Go to confused and show them a better way!

Go to the sick and bring a spirit of healing!

With a forward mind say, “If the lord needs somebody here am I send me.”

Tell somebody about the savior.
Tell somebody about Jesus!
Tell them how he died on an old rugged cross!
With a forward mind tell them that early Sunday morning he arose from the dead.
On your mark, get set...
Go!

If God waited until tomorrow

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 2009

SCRIPTURE: "Boast not thyself of tomorrow; for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth" Proverbs. 27:1

Introduction

Have you ever put off doing something that was important until another day? If so you are probably like most people in the world; most of us are chronic procrastinators who routinely place distasteful tasks just beyond the reach of the day.

The farmer enjoys harvesting the crops, but plowing under the field is something he'd rather do tomorrow.

The fisherman enjoys making a fine catch, but cleaning his catch is something that can wait until tomorrow.

Painting the house, scrubbing the floors, paying bills or visiting the dentist are all tasks that always appear to be better suited for tomorrow.

One day the mice were running around the farmyard until they were suddenly caught by a mean and hungry cat that planned to eat them for supper. "Stop" yelled one of the mice as he made a last minute pitch for his life. "What good what it do you to eat us today when tomorrow we'll be twice as ready to eat because we will simmer over night?" The cat thought about the little mouse said and decided to wait until tomorrow to have his dinner. At dinnertime the next day the cat came for his evening meal but once again the mouse made his appeal. "If you wait until tomorrow there will be more of us and your meal will be even better," said the smart little mouse. The thought of having more mice for his supper intrigued the cat, so he decided to wait until tomorrow. On the third day the little mouse convinced the cat that the mice would be even tastier if he would fatten them up. So for several days the cat brought the mice slices of cheese, bread and other foods. Each day the mice convinced the cat to wait until tomorrow. While the mice were getting fatter the cat was getting thin for almost 2 months he had nothing to eat while he waited for his dinner to fatten and prepare itself. Soon the cat was sick and weak, unable to lift a paw. As the mice walked past the ailing cat, the smart little mouse look back and said, "Your meal is walking away because you put off your dinner for another day, our joy is your sorrow; we're walking away because you kept waiting for tomorrow."

There is a Spanish proverb that says, "The road of by-and-by leads to the house of never.'' Usually when one says, "I'll get around to it tomorrow," it really means, "Never.'' It is not that there is no intention of doing the thing in question. It is just that we put it off. We have another proverb that puts it very bluntly. "The way to hell is paved with good intentions.''

It is the tendency of man to put things off until tomorrow. It seems to be a part of our nature. There are many of us who simply cannot force ourselves to do what needs to be done when it needs to be done. We are perpetual procrastinators.

There are many people who made wonderful pledges at the beginning of the year, but now looking back, they still have not done what they said they would; even worse, many have not even made the first step.

Is there something that you know you should be doing but you are not doing it?

For some there are moves they need to make in their relationships, but as of yet, nothing really has been done. Why not? What's taking you so long?

There are others who have important business decisions that are constantly being put off. They need to be made for betterment of the business, but they have not been done. Why not? What's taking you so long?

Suppose God was a procrastinator; the world would never have been created because he would've put it off until tomorrow. In fact, there would be no tomorrow because he never would have gotten around to creating a day. In fact, if God was a procrastinator the universe as we know it today would not exist; we would still be waiting for God to make up his mind about the placement of the galaxies and constellations. Thankfully, God is not a procrastinator. He moves in a timely way and responds to the needs of his creation. He hears and answers prayers and supplies blessings, direction, and correction just in the nick of time. He never puts off anything for tomorrow because He is bigger than time. He's never late and always provides our blessings just when we need them. The old saying is true; "He may not come when you want him, but he's always on time."

As Christians, we often put off until tomorrow those things that need to be done today. However, our God never sleeps or slumbers; He is always protecting and providing for us in the present rather than waiting until tomorrow. If God waited until tomorrow to give us a blessings that we need today, our lives would be miserable. Thank God, our Savior provides what we need one day at a time and never waits until tomorrow.

Exposition

This text focuses upon a wise word of advice given by Solomon to those who may put off until tomorrow what they should be doing today.

The text looks closely at the fallacy of boasting and procrastination. Those who boast brag about their own abilities. They take credit for their accomplishments and attribute their successes to their own abilities. So, while they live today they make several self anointed prophecies about tomorrow; prophecies that they do not have the power to fulfill. Boasting in itself is a flawed character trait that suggests one operates without God or the need of God.

The text makes it clear that we cannot boast about or anticipate anything that we will do tomorrow because we do not know what the future holds and neither can we control its outcome. We have no idea what troubles await us all what good fortune lies around each corner. There is no crystal ball that will allow us to peer into the future, we have to live our lives one day at a time.

Since we don't know what the future holds then we should not put off until tomorrow those things that should be done today; especially those things related to our faith and relationship with God.

The Scriptures teach us that we know not the day or the hour when the master will call for us. Genesis 27:2 reminds us that we know not the day of our death. Second Timothy 4:6 reminds us that we don't know the day of our departure. James 4:13 years as that we should not boast of a year's continuance because we don't know what will come from one day to the next.

This text underscores the importance and urgency of now as opposed to waiting and boasting about what we will do in the future.

We don't know what the future holds but we know who holds the future. We don't know what tomorrow will bring but we know what we can do today that will give us something to bring into tomorrow. It is better to praise God today, and live each day as if there would be no tomorrow and when tomorrow comes we will praise God just the same.

God Has been On Time

As we reflect upon the year that has passed, we recognize immediately that God has not procrastinated in any area of our lives. He has provided everything we have needed and he provided it right on time.

HE DIDN'T WAIT TO FEED US: Look back over the last year. Did God wait until next year to put food on your table? Did he wait to clothe you? Just as Israel was in the wilderness for 40 years depending upon the faithfulness of God, we have found that God has not hesitated to feed our bodies and spirits either. God arranged it so that Israel wore the same shoes and clothes for decades and they never wore out. Their food came on time every day. There was water just when they needed it most. God has a storehouse that is not on earth. It stores our blessings and He does not hesitate to deliver them to us on a daily schedule. Each day when we rise, it shouldn't take us long to recognize that God is blessing us today; not tomorrow. One day at a time God is feeding us from His storehouse and he is always on time. He did that last year, He's doing it today and we are confident that he will the same in the year to come.

HE DIDN'T WAIT TO OPEN DOORS FOR US: Think about it! God opened doors for you in the recent past that he did not have to do. He could have waited until tomorrow. Do you remember Jabez? Jabez went to God and asked that he would expand his coasts and boundaries. God heard Jabez and made good on his promise, giving him exactly what he prayed for. He didn't wait until some distant time, he began moving as soon as the request came and he decided to respond favorably to it. We should rejoice that God opened the door of opportunity for us this year! For some it was financial. For others it was a career opportunity. Still others found that God was truly a blessing in the nick of time and they praise him for not waiting until tomorrow.

HE WON'T WAIT, SO DON'T RUSH HIM: Some hear this message today and they are confused because they feel that God is waiting until tomorrow to bless them, because they have not received what they need, yet. God doesn't wait until tomorrow to bless us, but he does wait to bless when the blessing will do us the most good. We may bless a child with ice cream at dinner, but good parents know that it is wiser to give the ice cream after the meal rather than before the meal. God responds to us the same wait. If we pray today and don't get our answer today it doesn't mean God is procrastinating, it means that God has heard us, but his response will not come before its time.

Nothing happens before its time. Ecclesiastes 3 tells us that there is a time and a season for everything, but nothing happens before its time. We often try to hurry God. We can't wait for him to move. We pray and ask him for a blessing but then take matters into our own hand when God doesn't move fast enough for us. We ask him for a mate, then grab the first pretty looking thing that comes along, before God has a chance to move. Galatians 4:4 tells us that when, " the fullness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law." In essence, when the time was right, God made his move.

In our lives today, we must remember that when God is ready, He will act!

When the days are accomplished, the prayer that we have prayed will receive an answer!

When the days are accomplished, the answer we seek will be delivered!

When the days are accomplished, the opportunity we seek will present itself!

We must increase our faith in God

Finally, brothers and sisters, if this is to be the year of our increase then it must be the year we learn to patiently wait for God to move in His own time.

When we look back on the year that has past we should happily praise God for his presence in our lives; providing our daily bread.

I don't know what you think about it, but I'm glad that in the days ahead, I can count on God to be a "nick of time" God rather than "tomorrow" God.

When I'm down and out I'm glad to know that God won't wait until tomorrow to lift me up!

When my body is racked with pain and I need relief, I'm glad to know that God won't wait until tomorrow to soothe my aching body

When I'm sick, I'm glad that God won't wait until tomorrow to restore my health.

I'm glad God won't wait until tomorrow to hear and answer my prayer!

I'm glad God won't wait until tomorrow to build me up where I'm torn down!

Last year we were weak, but God didn't wait He turning our weakness into strength.

Last year we were defeated, but God didn't wait, He started turning our defeats to victory.

Last year we were discouraged, but God didn't wait, He started turning our discouragement to hope.

Last year we were lonely, but God didn't wait, He started turning our loneliness into comfort

Last year we were troubled, but God didn't wait, He started turning our troubles into peace of mind.

In the year ahead we have the confidence of know that the God we serve won't let us down. He'll do what needs to be done and he'll do it on time.

He won't wait until tomorrow, but in the fullness of time, what He has for us will find its way to us.

If we increase our faith this year we can do the impossible!

If we increase our faith we can reach the unreachable!

If we increase our faith we can achieve the impossible!

This faith we need for the year has been secured for you by a God who loves you.

I know it's true because John 3:16 says, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son that whosever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life."

This faith has been assured to you by a savior who said in John 15:13, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

This is the faith that has been declared to you by a savior who promised us that no weapon formed against you shall prosper as long as you stay in the will of God.

This is the faith that was proven to you on an old rugged cross on Calvary's Hill!

This is the faith that was proven with nail scarred hands, a wounded side and a bowed down head!

This is the faith that was proven Early Sunday morning when he arose from the grave!

I'm so glad that God won't wait until tomorrow, but every day in the New Year my blessings will be right on time.

Trusting the God who goes before and behind

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

December 2009

SCRIPTURE:" And the angel of God, which went before the camp of Israel, removed and went behind them; and the pillar of the cloud went from before their face, and stood behind them: " Exodus 14:19

Introduction

What stands between you and your future? There are many who approach the last day of the year with anxiety as they review days gone by and anticipate the days ahead. As the year ends, there never seems to be enough time to complete unfinished work or to explain the unexplained. When the year ends, the work ends for that year and shifts into the year ahead. What obstacles did we encounter? What vicious attacks did we survive? How did we arrive at this point? When we look at the days most recently passed it doesn't take us long to realize that we trusted God to keep our enemies at bay and make ways for us when there seemed to be no way.

Despite the massive recession that the nation has faced in which millions of people have suffered economic losses, we have managed to survive with our faith unsinged by the embers of despair. Although some encountered some difficulties and setbacks, we have been kept on our feet by an unseen hand, and buoyed by an unfaltering faith that will not allow us to lose hope. The dogs of despair and defeat have been barking at our heels but have not been able to snare us; their mouths were tightly shut by the muzzling power of God's grace. We've had some bad times in the past, but God has seen us through.

As Christians, we make one recurring resolution and that is to continue trusting the God of the year behind us as we approach the year ahead of us.

Exposition

This text focuses on how God protected Israel on its journey to the Promised Land by leading them in their forefront and protecting them from behind.

Israel had endured slavery and harsh treatment at the hand of the Egyptians but they prayed to God constantly that he would deliver them from their depravity. God heard their prayers and sent Moses as his spokesman to demand that Pharaoh let his people go.

After ten national plagues that brought both death and natural disaster to Israel Pharaoh decided to release the people, all 2 million of them, to return to their homeland. However, as they left Pharaoh had a change of heart and decided to return the people to Egypt.

When pharaoh pursued them he learned that God had sent an angel to protect them from his armies and to lead them to their destination.

When the waters of the Red Sea came crashing down, it became obvious that the God of Israel was a God who was both before them and behind them in their journey.

Before and Behind

As we reflect upon the year that has passed, we recognize immediately that God has been a wall of protection to us, holding back the enemies that sought to destroy us. The pillar of fire kept the Egyptians in darkness, but at the same time it provided light for Israel. When we look back we see that God has responded to us in the same manner. While holding back our enemies in the last year He has:

PROVIDED OUR ESSENTIALS: Though we may have complained about some of our food, whether or not our clothing was fashionable, or the size or location of our homes; most of us would have to agree that God has been faithful in providing us with all three. Even while God held back the demons of hell that were seeking to destroy us, He kept providing our essentials at the same time. Yet, even as God held back the Egyptians, Israel complained about the Red Sea in front of them, we too have been tempted to complain about the difficulties that lie ahead. Yet, even in their faithless moments God continued to bless them. He has been faithful to us in the same way. No matter how we look at it, we have been blessed by the powerful hand of God.

HE OPENED DOORS: From behind, while holding back the enemies of our progress, God has faithfully opened doors for us and to make opportunities for the abundant life available to true believers. Look back over the year. Some of us have done more than just survived; we have actually improved our spirituality, financial condition and family relations. Some expanded their boundaries last year by taking advantage of every opportunity God made available to grow both spiritually and materially. There are many who have experienced stronger family relationships this year, in addition to other quality of life measures that cannot be ignored. God has been faithful to provide us with a window of opportunity, even while He held back our enemies.

PROVIDED OUR SPIRITUAL SUPPORT: When Israel saw the approaching armies of Egypt their spirits dropped low. They believed that all was lost and that there was no hope. Yet, while God stood between them and destruction he provided strong support for them as they wondered how they would make it. It was Moses who ultimately declared, "Stand Still and see the salvation of the Lord." He has given us emotional support as well. This has been an extremely difficult year for some of us. There are some families that have encountered physical sickness and death. There are others that have experienced strained relationships. Most believers who will quickly testify that if it had not been for the Lord on their side, they would not have been able to stand the trials and difficulties of these tough moments. Despite the enemy behind us and Red Sea in front of us we have been sustained by the eternal presence of God in our life situations this year. When difficult times were upon us, God was there like a wall of fire to protect us. Someone can recall how the Lord lifted a burden from their shoulder and gave them renewed strength in the midst of weakness. When Jesus told his disciples, "Lo I'll be with you alway" that meant exactly what it said, He planned to be with us continually protecting our back.

God will bless us in the future too!

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that God did more than just keep our enemies at bay in the past year, he has also breathed upon the troubles that are ahead of us and has already made a way out of no way. We rejoice today because the God who goes behind us also goes before us!

As Israel worried all night long, God was moving all night long.

While Israel wondered how they would escape the problems they faced, God was stirring the waters getting ready to move them to another level.

While Israel moaned in frustration, God was working out their deliverance.

Today, brothers and sisters we need to remind ourselves that the same God who kept back the destructive forces that sought to destroy us during the past year; that same God is working ahead of us in the year ahead.

If there is a Red Sea in front of us blocking our way, he'll find us away around it, or he may just plough a path straight through the middle of our troubles and create dry ground.

Whatever we might expect to face in the coming year, we should be encouraged to know that God is already in front us, scouting out our future.

I don't know what the tomorrow will bring, but I know what God has done in the past. I know what God is doing right now! I also know that He's already ahead of me, making a way for true believers.

"I do not know how long it will be or what the future holds for me, but this I know, if Jesus leads me, I will get home someday!"

It doesn't matter what the future brings as long as we are on the Lord's side! If we are on the Lord's side there will never be a:

—CROSS that we won't be able to bear; MOUNTAIN that we won't be able to climb!

—ENEMY that we won't be able to defeat; BATTLE we won't be able to win!

—DARKNESS so dark that we won't be able to see the light!

—TRIAL that we can't make it through; TEST that we won't be able to pass!

The Lord is our bridge of troubled water!

The Lord protects us from our enemies from behind, but he opens doors ahead!

The Lord holds back the hell hounds of defeat, but he makes new possibilities for victory every day!

The Lord holds back the demons of destruction, but he unlocks new constructive opportunities along our way

The Lord is the foundation of our hope for the future.

I heard the song writer declare "The only hope we have is in Christ Jesus. Confusion is great in the world today. Persecution my come with such a heavy weight but we have this hope and it's in Jesus!"

Jesus, somebody here today knows him!

Jesus, the Lily of the valley!

Jesus, the Bright and Morning star!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary and rose up early Sunday morning!

We don't worry about the future because the God we serve is already ahead of us, it is him that we put our hope.

That's why the song writer declared, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame, but wholly lean on Jesus name. On Christ the solid rock I stand...

Behold I will make all things new

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church

SCRIPTURE: "And he that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new. And he said unto me, Write: for these words are true and faithful." Revelation 21:5

Introduction

Have you ever had a virus on your computer? Over time even the best computers pick up so many viruses, Trojans, bugs, spyware and other miscellaneous debris that we can hardly use them. When that happens, ordinarily fast computers move very slow. Sometimes they lock up and despite several restarts they can't get going again. At the repair shop the technician says, what we need is a "wipe and reload." -That means they will wipe out everything on the computer, including what makes it operate, and restore everything to factory condition.

When there is a wipe and re-load, all of your old programs have been removed. It's like brand new. It moves quickly again, accesses the internet and retrieves information at lightning speeds again. Many of us like the old programs we had, so we reload them on our restored computer. We have certain sites that we preferred so we returned to the same ones. We also had bad habits such as forwarding emails that unloaded viruses on our computers in the background; we resumed that habit too. Soon our computers are moving slow again, locking up and standing still. We learned expensive lessons from all of this: If we clean our computers, we can't reload the same stuff that caused the problem in the first place.

Sometimes our lives are like that. In the course of a year we go to places that we should not go; we pick up viruses, bugs and Trojans that start to eat away at the efficiency of our lives. Slowly but surely our lives grind to a halt. As the year ends we come to the conclusion that we need to do something because our lives are not moving anymore. Nothing is working. So, during the first week of the new year we wipe and reload. Some attend a church worship, and make a few other changes in the first few days of the new year. Because our slate is clean we feel better and our spiritual energy is high.

We create a problem for ourselves if we start reloading the same virus infected programs back into our daily routine.

For God to use us to our maximum potential we need to, wipe and reload, avoid infective people, places and things, and get us a virus protector to watch out and alert us to any viruses that are trying to destroy us. Even then, we must constantly update the virus protector so that we can be protected from any new threats. God is our virus protector, but we must stay upgraded, in touch and connected to get the full benefit of his protection.

In the year ahead, if we plan to truly make all things new, we should prepare to wipe out the old and begin a brand new operation. God is getting ready to do a new thing in our lives, to usher in a season of spiritual strength and renewal in every aspect of our lives from our finances to our relationships, from our health to our personal development.

As Christians, we thank God for uncharted season that lies ahead. We know be good for us and we are excited because he has promised to make all things new.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus' revelation to John about the new life and world God will be creating for all believers.

John painted a picture of the most glorious of the end time events, the coming of the New Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven like a bride adorned for her husband. This is the beautiful home of the saints, the final destination of the church and millions of believers. They will be in the presence of God.

The emphasis of verse five is that everything in the new order will be new. New implies that it will be unused, untarnished, untouched and pure. The new order that God promises will be wonderful because it will be a place where believers will be in the presence of God.

Throughout the Book of Revelation God is depicted as sitting quietly on his throne as the end time events occur. However, in verse five we hear one of the few times, if not the only time, that God speaks in the Revelation. His words recorded by John have meaning even today. "Behold, I make all things new."

The newness of life followed closely the destruction of the world order as we know it. Following the final judgment the devil, anti-Christ and the False Prophet will be thrown in the lake of fire and the old system of things is totally destroyed by fire. With that destruction will be all suffering, pain, death, agony, tears, and trouble.

God speaks it Himself so that there will be no confusion, "Behold I will make all things new."

John saw a picture of what will be in the last days. Today, believers hear the same words as we prepare to live in his presence in that city. We are preparing new lives that will be ready to live in the presence of God throughout eternity.

Steps to becoming new

God has promised to make all things new both in the present and the future. There are a few steps we must take to prepare for the new season that God has in store for of us.

YOUR NEW SEASON REQUIRES A NEW YOU. There are many who want God to give them a new experience without first making some fundamental spiritual changes in their lives. Becoming a new you is not as easy as getting a fresh hair cut, a toupee, implants or a hair weave. That's a new look but it's the same old you. To get what God has in store for you requires an extreme makeover. It's so extreme you can't do it yourself; God has to do it for you. John 3:3 says, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." That means our old selves must be wipe completely out and we must let God make us over again. It won't be the old you dressed up in church clothes, it will be a brand new you. 2 Corinthians 5:17 says, "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." When God looks for a "new you" he's not looking for a new hairdo on you, but a new spirit in you. He's not looking for a Nutri-system, Jenny Craig Bo-Flex version of you, He's looking for a new spirit in you. If you truly want a new season, you must be willing to let God make you over again.

TO APPRECIATE YOUR NEW SEASON YOU'LL NEED A NEW SPIRIT: You won't appreciate the value of the new season that God has in store for you unless your old sinful spirit man dies.

We won't fully appreciate what God does for us unless we have a new spirit. In the Movie "Precious" Monique played an abusive mother with a spirit of ungratefulness. Precious prepared her a full plate of soul food after laboring in the kitchen. The mother's response was to be angry because there were no collard greens and refused to eat it. Without a godly spirit we won't be able to appreciate what God brings us in our new seasons. Our cold stony hearts will want more and blame God for not blessing us with the collard greens, too. So Ezekiel 36:26-27 says, "A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you: and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh. And I will put my spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep my judgments, and do them." Many spent all of last year praying for a new season and it happened all around them and they didn't recognize it. They had money to ride the city bus every day to work or school and complained because God didn't give them a limousine. Many had a roof over their heads every night and were angry that God didn't give them a 15 bedroom mansion. When we get a new spirit we can see God moving in everything; we can see the season when it arrives. We get happy over the little things. We get happy watching T.V., driving the car, riding the bus and when we think about how God is helping us get through college, no matter how many complaints we have, we just start smiling in the middle of the professor's lecture. When we have a new humble and grateful spirit, then God is ready to give us a new season.

PREPARE NOW FOR A SEASON OF HARVEST: God has promised a season of harvest for every believer. The harvest is the time when the trees are filled with fruit, the fields are filled with melons, corn, cotton, peas, greens and wheat. The harvest is the end result. However, before there is a season of harvest, there must be a season of tilling and planting. Ecclesiastes 3:2 says, "there is a time to plant, and a time to pluck up that which is planted;" To pluck up is to harvest, but before the harvest there is planting time. What is planting time? Completing your education, that's planting. Sharpening your job skills, that's planting. Investing your money wisely, that's planting. Choosing Godly friends and associates, that's planting. Increasing your knowledge of God's word, that's planting. Carefully selecting the people you hang out with, the places you go and the things you do, that's planting. A farmer who plants is not intimidated by the fact that at planting time he's field is empty. He's not intimidated that it looks barren day after day. He knows that in due season, the fields will be ripe for the harvest and he keeps that picture in his head. So keep your picture in your head: Visualize your season. Visualize a happy marriage. Visualize a successful career! Visualize a successful ministry. Visualize graduation! Visualize a happy God centered family! Visualize your season and keep it in your mind as you live for God each and every day.

New Season

Finally, brothers and sisters, we need to remember that the new season we seek cannot be created by our own ingenuity, because God said "Behold, I will make all things new."

We can strive to get the best education possible, but that's just tilling the soil; the harvest we seek is in God's hand because He said, "I will make all things new."

We can start a business and try our best to make it work, but the successful business we seek is not in our hands, because God said, "I will make all things new."

We can strive to overcome adversity and arise triumphant and bold, but the victory we seek is not in our hands, because God said, "I will make all things new."

Man is able to closely forecast the weather but he can't control the seasons. There is a season of spring and a season of summer. There is a season of autumn and a season of winter and they all come in God's appointed time.

John on the Isle of Patmos saw a new season of creation. A new heaven and a new earth, all of the old things are passed away.

To claim your new season, you must have faith in the power of God. You must believe that you serve an awesome God who can open doors you can't see.

In closing, I'm reminded of an old lady who lived in an old house in an area that was being purchased by a casino. The old lady refused to sell her old house so the casino pulled strings and had her house condemned. The demolition officials told the old lady she had thirty days to fix the old house or it would be torn down. The old lady just sat on the porch and read her bible. While she read, her friends became concerned because the old lady wouldn't move. She had helped so many people that no one wanted to see her hurt. They put their heads together. At the end of the month the casino owners came to serve her eviction papers but to their surprise the neighbors had built a fine, brick house that could not be demolished. The old lady looked at the casino owner and said, "You thought you were going to build a new casino, but the God I serve said, "I will make all things new. Mr. Casino owner, behold the work of an almighty God."

I don't know about you but I'm glad to know that we serve a God who can make all things new.

As we move into this new year, we need to keep hearing God's words, "Behold, I will make all things new."

Last year, we have stumbled along the way, but we keep hearing the Lord say, "Behold, I will make all things new."

Last year, we may have may have been troubled by doubt and confusion, but we should keep hearing the Lord say, "Behold, I will make all things new."

Last year, we have may have been plagued by financial troubles, but we should keep hearing the Lord say, "Behold I will make all things new."

Last year, we may have been troubled sickness and bad health, but we should keep hearing the Lord say, "Behold, I will make all things new."

Last year, misfortune seemed to follow us on every turn, but in the year ahead, just keep hearing the Lord, say, "Behold, I will make all things new."

In the year ahead, if I fall down, He'll pick me up again and say, "Behold, I will make all things new."

If I fail, He'll give me another chance and say, "Behold, I will make all things new."

If I suffer, he'll give me his encouragement spirit and say, "Behold, I'll make all things new."

If I shed briny tears in the middle of the night, God shall wipe away my tears and say, "Behold, I'll make all things new."

I'm so glad that God can take my weakness and give me strength!

I'm so glad that God can take my confusion and give me direction!

I'm so glad that God can take my desperation and give me determination!

To make our new season possible, the Lord took it upon himself to bear the iniquities and sins of the world!

To make our new season possible, the Lord took the punishment for our sins. For the word says, "He was wounded for our transgressions, bruised for our iniquity and the chastisement of our peace is upon him!"

To make our new season possible he died out on Calvary, on an old rugged cross!

For three days he endured the season of darkness and death, but Early ....

Early Sunday morning, He arose from grave with all power in His hands!

Even today, we can still hear Him say, "Behold, I will make all things new!"

Moving Forward with a Unified Vision

Scripture: "As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him: Rooted and built up in him, and stablished in the faith, as ye have been taught, abounding therein with thanksgiving." Colossians 2:6-7

Introduction

When the church steps out on the word of God, is there any limit to its possibilities? When those who believe in the power of God ban together as one solid unit that is rooted in Him, sustained by Him and directed by Him, there is no limit to its potential.

When the church is on one accord it can move mountains of frustration and achieve what others think is impossible.

A praying church can do more than anyone suspects. Consider the church that conducted a two month prayer vigil in which each member was asked to pray without ceasing for two months for something they really wanted in God's will. A little boy in the church decided to pray that he would have a baby brother. When he told his dad, his father took his cue from the church's prayer vigil and said, "Son, if you pray every day for two months, I guarantee God will give you a baby brother." Excited, the boy began his prayer vigil, asking God for a baby brother. After a month had passed he heard other boys talking and learned that no one has ever been able to get a baby brother in two months. So, with only a few days left in his two month prayer vigil the boy stopped praying. On the last day of the second month the boy's mother was rushed to the hospital. When the father and son entered her hospital room the mother was in bed with a bundle lying next to her. When the boy pulled back the blanket he found not one little boy but three boys! The father looked at his son and said, "Aren't glad you prayed?" But looked the babies and counted them, then said,"Yeah, but aren't you glad that I stopped praying when I did?"

Wonderful things happen when the church decides to prayerfully move forward in unity with vision of Christ beaming in the horizon.

We must hold on just as our fore parents held on. We must march forward in unity, just as those before us marched. If we feel weak along the way we must remember that "help is on the way."

The world asks a penetrating question about this little community that has been witnessing for this many years. It asks the same question asked in the biblical record, "Can any good thing come out of Nazareth?"

We answer by saying that for all these years this church has brought forth God fearing men and women who have made a difference.

This is the community from whose womb many great minds have come forth. As we celebrate the history of this church, in a greater sense we also celebrate the victory of every believer around the world.

As Christians, we are determined to walk in love and in unity of purpose. The God we serve will never forsake us and we will never forsake Him as we boldly move into each new horizon of ministry.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he writes to the Christians at Colossae to continue their unified walk in Christ.

The church at Colossae was one that reflected many of the struggles of the Gentile believers. The gentile world was surrounded by many philosophical ideas that kept them meandering in and out of the faith. In one instance the church dealt with mystery cults and in another it was mysticism. From Gnosticism to Qumran style Judaism, the church at Colossae found itself debating how all of these beliefs related to its own experience.

Paul wrote to the Colossians as the elder statesman of the church, but he had never visited them or seen them personally. His word of encouragement to them was simple: keep focused on the main reason you became Christians, faith in Christ. He urged them to walk in Christ, remain rooted and built up in Him and to maintain the faith.

Paul constantly presented them with the vision of Christ and he challenged the Colossians to know Christ. Knowing God would promote unity of spirit. In Colossians 2:2-3 Paul wrote, "That their hearts might be comforted, being knit together in love, and unto all riches of the full assurance of understanding, to the acknowledgement of the mystery of God, and of the Father, and of Christ. In whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge." The phrase being knit together in love emphasized the need for unity and oneness as they sought to live Christ centered lives.

Moreover, Paul encouraged believers to continue their faith walk with the same commitment and determination they showed when they first came to Christ. Colossians 2:6 says, "As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him:" Simply put Paul encouraged the Colossians not to turn away from Christ, or to dream of going beyond him." Their power and effectiveness would come from keeping a clear vision of Christ in front of them.

Moving Forward

As we consider what Paul said to the Church at Colossae, today believers should apply the same principles to our current circumstance. We should move forward in Christ in three areas:

MOVE FORWARD IN THE WISDOM OF CHRIST: The church must remain unified in its knowledge and understanding of Christ. The vision of the church unified and glorified must be crystal clear in the mind of each member as the church marches forward. It is that vision that helps us march forward in confidence. We don't know the way but we constantly have God to show us the way.

Every now and then we ask the Lord....show me the way. Doctor Watts put it this way "Guide me o thou great Jehovah, pilgrim in this barren land, I am weak but thou art mighty, hold me in thou powerful hand."

The church is the instrument that God has used to bring forth "HIS" blessing to God's people.

The church is not a building, but an assembly of baptized believers in Christ. Yet, God has used the assembly of believers in ways that have brought forth his favor.

Our people have been blessed because of the church, the Old Ship of Zion.

We have worshipped under brush arbors and abandoned saw mills.

We have lifted our voices to God in empty barns with sawdust floors.

We have praised Him in the chill of winter with logs burning in huge heated stoves.

We have sweltered, without air conditioning, in the humid and scorching heat of a thousand summers.

Yet, God has used our feeble assembly, worship and praise experiences to bring forth His "water" in a thirsty land.

Through the church God has shown us the wisdom of Christ and that wisdom has deepened our trust and faith in Him.

Through the church, God has raised our bowed down heads and lifted our broken spirits.

No wonder the song writer thought of the church and declared, "Tis the old, Ship of Zion. She has landed many a thousand. King Jesus is the captain. Get on board. Get on Board."

MOVE FORWARD IN THE WORK OF CHRIST: The church must move forward in unity as it pursues the work of Christ which is saving souls and reaching out to the world with a hand of compassion. We seek to save souls because we ourselves have been saved. Today, many believers are ministers, deacons, deaconesses, and prominent church personalities. That has not always been the case. There have been changes. That's why 1 Corinthians 6:11 says, "And such were some of you:, but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God." That's a result of the forgiveness of Christ. Even more have been touched by the mercy and compassion of Christ as the church reaches out to help the less fortunate and to respond with love and compassion to the needs of people.

MOVE FORWARD IN THE WORSHIP OF CHRIST: We must resist all temptations to detour to other paths and remain firm in our worship of Christ. When we worship we ring a bell that resonates throughout the community and declares that our God is king. When we worship we testify to the importance of God in our lives. In Matthew 5:14 Jesus said, "Ye are the light of the world, a city that sits on a hill that cannot be hidden." When we worship we let our lights shine. When we worship God we agree with Johann Neethling and, "declare the truth about God's worth, God's honor, God's greatness, and God's love. We declare it to Him, we declare it to host of heaven, and we declare it to all creation."

When we assemble on Sundays each believer says to the world, God is a good God and we believe it!

As we move, tell the story

Finally, brothers and sisters, as we review where we have been and see the challenges ahead, we must prepare to move forward telling the story of our journey as we go.

Who will march forward into the future telling the story of our past as we hold up the blood stained banner?

Who will tell the story of how God brought us a mighty long way?

Who will tell the story of our march through hardship and trouble into this present day?

Who will be willing to face tomorrow with confidence and say like Joshua, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord!"

The church at Colossae was encouraged to stay unified in the wisdom of Christ, to walk together as one unit to perform the work of Christ and to maintain its worship of Christ.

Today, the church must do the same. We must go forward committed to tell the world about our risen savior.

We must tell the world of our determination to go forward into the unknown.

I don't know what tomorrow will bring, but I know what God has done in the past.

I know what God is doing right now!

"I do not know how long it will be or what the future holds for me, but this I know, if Jesus leads me, I will get home someday!

It doesn't matter what the future brings as long as we are on the Lord's side! If we move forward on the Lord's side there will never be a:

—CROSS that we won't be able to bear; MOUNTAIN that we won't be able to climb!

—ENEMY that we won't be able to defeat; BATTLE we won't be able to win!

—DARKNESS so dark that we won't be able to see the light!

—TRIAL that we can't make it through; TEST that we won't be able to pass!

As we move forward we should keep the vision of the He who has saved clear in our mind.

His name is Jesus!

Jesus, somebody here today knows him!

Jesus, the Lily of the valley!

Jesus, the Bright and Morning star!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary and rose up early Sunday morning!

Move forward in unity and never lose hope. Sing together the words of the old hymn,

"My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame, but wholly lean on Jesus name. On Christ the solid rock I stand...

All other Ground!

All other Ground is sinking sand!

Don't Just sit there, do something

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
for the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 10, 2010

SCRIPTURE: "And there were four leprous men at the entering in of the gate: and they said one to another, Why sit we here until we die?" 2 Kings 7:3

Introduction

Have you ever failed at anything in your life? If you are like most people, you have probably failed several times in your lifetime. It may have been a test in school or on a job performance examination. It could have been a military examination or the loss of an athletic competition. Most of us have failed at one time or another. There are many sociologists who think that everyone should experience a little failure in their lives because it prepares them to better approach the realities of a world in which they do not always win, come out on top or get their way.

Peter Bergman in a recent issue of the Harvard Business Review wrote an article entitled, "Why you need to fail." In it Bergman notes that there are some who can get comfortable doing the same thing and will only live up to their potential when pushed to do more. Without an occasional failure many will not climb higher.

It's safe to never fail; to achieve that many stay within a comfort zone that quickly becomes comfortable; its a life game they understand and always win. It's like slam dunking a basketball in a two foot high goal; it's safe but not rewarding. A slam dunk is only noteworthy when made in a regulation sized goal which may require a few misses before it's perfected. It's like buying a jigsaw puzzle with 100 pieces and successfully completing it quickly. Those who are afraid of failing always buy the same size puzzle and will stay away from the 500 piece puzzle and won't even think about a 1000 piece puzzle. It's only in the attempt to reach a little higher do we move to the next level.

Those who succeed in life are not the ones who never fail, but the ones who succeed after failing many times. These are the people who look at every failure as a stepping stone to success and not an end in itself. Michael Jordan, arguably the world's best basketball player, has a growth mindset. Most successful people do. In high school he was cut from the basketball team but that obviously didn't discourage him: "I've missed more than 9,000 shots in my career, I've lost almost 300 games. Twenty-six times I've been trusted to take the game winning shot and missed. I've failed over and over and over again in my life. And that is why I succeed."

In 1984, Anita Whittaker became the first African-American woman to win the Miss Louisiana Pageant, but before finally winning Miss Whittaker, lost five times. She failed, learned from each failure and kept coming back until she won.

In a speech in 1910 President Theodore Roosevelt said, "The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena; whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood; who strives valiantly; who errs and comes short again and again; who knows the great enthusiasms, the great devotions, and spends himself in a worthy cause; who, at the best, knows in the end the triumph of high achievement; and who, at worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly, so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who know neither victory nor defeat.

It all means that it is not a problem to fail; the problem is letting life count you out without ever trying to go another round. That's why America loves the movie character "Rocky," because he refused to stay down but though battered and torn kept coming back until he won.

Those who place their faith in God should be among those who keep coming back.

We will have our share of failures in life, but we who are men and women of faith must always rise to the occasion to keep trying without ever giving up.

As Christians, we praise God for lifting us up when we have fallen. He has helped us to overcome obstacles and often to rise victorious. He is the source of our strength and our motivation to do something rather than to simply accept defeat. When we are about his business, we will ultimately claim the victory because we know that all things will work together for our good according to God's purpose

Exposition

This text focuses on four lepers who had to make a decision about their future in the face of a pending crisis.

The people of Samaria were surrounded by a powerful enemy known as the Syrians. They protected themselves from invaders by hiding behind great walls that stood between them and immediate death. The Syrian army decided to surround the city and prevent the delivery of any new provisions. The siege, once begun, did not allow anyone to go into the city or to leave. Soon starvation began to take its toll on the inhabitants. Food was so scarce that some elements of the citizenry even resorted to cannibalism. Those inside the city were surely doomed to die.

Outside of the city there was a camp of lepers. Lepers were individuals who had one of several varieties of skin diseases. Today we would call some of the disorders attributed to leprosy by different names including: Psoriasis, eczema, favus and seborrheic dermatitis. Lepers were not allowed to live in the regular community but were banned to live outside of the gates. Their food was normally brought to them from a distance but since there was starvation inside the gates, there was no food to bring to the lepers. The lepers were trapped in the middle with the Syrians on one side and a starving city on the other. Either way it became obvious that if they took no actions at all death would be their final outcome.

Inside the city God spoke to the prophet Elisha and told him to tell the people that by the next day there would be plenty of food for them to eat and that it would be bought very cheap. The lepers outside of the gate were unaware of the prophecy that had been given on the inside but only considered their present situation. Four of the lepers looked at their options and decided that it did not profit them to sit idly and die of starvation because they reasoned that if they went back into the city they would die and if they sat idly they would also die. So, they decided to take their chances by going to the enemy camp and asking for help, food and shelter.

When they arrived at the Syrian camp they were surprised to learn that the Syrians had fled in the night. God had caused them to hear what sounded like the noise of thousands of chariots rumbling across the Earth. They suspected that other nations were coming to assist the people of Samaria so they fled for their lives before they were slaughtered in the night. When the four lepers reached their camp they discovered that the Syrians left their tents, clothing, food supplies, and other resources as they hastily exited. The lepers stuffed their bellies with food and began to cart away much of the gold and silver they found. Then one of the lepers thought about their good fortune and surmised that it was not right for them to enjoy the food and money that was available to them without telling others of the great blessings that God made available to them.

They returned to the city and told the people what good things the Lord provided and what a mighty work he had performed. There was a celebration among the Samaritans because God had defeated enemy and given them the spoils of war.

Had not been for lepers decided to get up and step out on faith they would've died of starvation without even knowing that God had already paved the way for them.

Deciding to choose God

The decision of the four lepers should be important to every believer today. As we look at the way God dealt with them we can get an idea of how God deals with us when we are in similar situations. When we look at the lepers we see these concerns:

SOMETIMES THERE IS NO PLACE TO TURN. The lepers were between a rock and a hard place. They were hated by the Israelites, abhorred as lepers, and would not be welcomed by the Syrians. Their options were simple either act now or die a slow death. Today there are many people who face a similar dilemma. There are many who find themselves between a rock and a hard place. They are darned if they do and darned if they don't. Many are deciding whether to jump in the skillet or whether to dive into the frying pan. When situations like that occur some throw up their hands and give up. Some wallow in self pity and asked the question, "why me?" Then there are others who look at their options and boldly decide to do what's necessary to respond to the present crisis. It could mean getting a new job. It could mean selling an item of value. It could mean breaking a relationship or making a final commitment on a relationship. It could mean a career move such as quitting a job or taking a new position. When caught between a rock and a hard place believers have only one place to look and that's where David looked. In Psalm 121 David said, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help my help cometh from the Lord who made the heavens and the Earth." When we get between a rock and a hard place we should look up to the source of our help.

GOD WORKS EVEN WHEN WE CAN'T SEE HIM. Inside the gates the prophet Elisha had already prophesied that God was going to solve their problem by the next day, the lepers were not aware that God was already on the move. Even today there are those who miss great opportunities because they believe that speaking there would be fruitless. Many do not receive the blessings they need because they don't ask. The word of God teaches, "you have not because you ask not." Someone here today is worried about a problem without knowing that God is already on the move. Just as the lepers did not know that God was moving to address this situation, today many of us are not aware of the doors that God is opening for us unseen to our eyes. God is already confusing the enemy that wants to stop you. God is already providing the food that you would need to eat. And even while you are sleeping God is answering your prayer. If the lepers had not decided to get up and take action they would have never known the great work that God had already done on their behalf. If we sit idly by and fail to do what needs to be done we will never realize the great blessings that God has in store for us.

IF WE FALL, WE SHOULD GET UP AGAIN. The lepers had so many strikes against them. They were outcasts, starving, and lepers. It seemed that the whole world was against them. They were knocked down because of their leprosy, knocked down because of their lack of food, and knocked down because of their race. Yet, despite having been knocked down so many times these four lepers decided not just to sit there, but to do something. They are many today who are frustrated because they have failed so many times in life. Some have already begun to characterize themselves as useless. Today we need to note that the failure is not in being knocked down, we only fail if we refuse to get back up. Proverbs 24:16 says, " For a just man falleth seven times, and riseth up again: but the wicked shall fall into mischief." That makes it abundantly clear that even good people will fail, slip, make mistakes, or make wrong turns in life. The fact that you have fallen does not mean that you are "bad people" it means that you are human. When we fall that's when we dig deep into our spiritual reservoir and muster the courage necessary to stand one more time. If we choose to throw in the towel then life will definitely count us out.

Bless God

Finally, brothers and sisters we must consider that when God has blessed us we must tell somebody else the good news!

The lepers tried to keep their good fortunes to themselves, but they had to return to the city and tell others about what they discovered.

They had to tell others how God ran away their enemies!

They had to tell others how God gave provided more gold, silver and food than they could handle.

Today, there are many believers who have a story to tell. There are many who can testify that like these four lepers there was a time when they were between a rock and hard place, but they decided to step out on faith.

Are dark clouds forming over your horizon? If so, why are you sitting there instead of heading to the rock of our salvation

Is trouble brewing on all sides? If so, why are you just sitting there instead of putting your hands in God's hand?

Are enemies attacking you from every possible angle? If so, why are you just sitting there instead of letting God build a fence all around you.

Have your detractors and haters pointed their weapons at your life? If so, why are just sitting instead of reminding yourself that God says, 'No weapon formed against me shall prosper."

Don't just sit there, do something. Don't just do anything, step out on faith.

By faith, we believe that no matter how tough our times get, God is still in control!

By faith, we are strengthened when we remember that our God is a God whose:

-Power never weakens; Grace never disappoints

-Love never leaves; Promises never fail

-Glory never diminishes; Joy never ends

-Foundation never shakes;Truth never changes

-Supply never shrinks; Blessings never stop coming!

And when God picks you up, you ought to tell somebody

Tell them that God is able! Yes, he's able!

He's able to see our tears in the midnight hour!

He's able to see our concern for our families and loved ones!

He's able to feel our despair over our current situation and while we are still praying about it, help is on the way!

We ought to tell somebody that 2000 years ago when the world was in trouble that he didn't just sit there, but did something about it.

Tell somebody that he picked up an old rugged cross!

Tell somebody that he died out on Calvary!

Tell somebody that Early Sunday morning, he arose from the grave

I don't know about you but I've got to tell somebody...

About the goodness of the Lord!

The Impossible Dream?

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
for the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 17, 2010

SCRIPTURE: "And he said, The things which are impossible with men are possible with God." Luke 18:27

Introduction

Has anyone ever laughed at your dream and told you it was impossible? When our dreams are in their formative stages there are many who are amused at the extent of our dreams and our willingness to believe that they can be achieved.

Barack Obama, in his book "The Audacity of Hope" often refers to the defeatist attitude that some have about life that keeps them chained to their present level of achievement. It's only when someone dares to break out of normal expectations and even "hope" of moving to another level that changes become real.

When Martin Luther King gave his historic "I have a dream " speech in 1963, he had the audacity to dream that America, which was saturated with race hatred and division, could ever rise above its division. He had the audacity to dream that the nation could overcome its deep seated history of bias and class struggle and function as one nation under God.

When Dr. King dreamed of a nation where his four little children would be judged by the content of their character and not by the color of their skin, many thought that was impossible. Even today there are still many who believe that unless a Black man is light skinned or speaks with no Negro dialect he won't be accepted. Yet, all around us we see more signs that color is being seen more for its beauty and diversity than as a barrier.

When Dr. King dreamed of a day when black boys and girls would join hands with whites as sisters and brothers. That seemed impossible at the time because the Klan burned crosses, bombed churches and killed freedom riders on buses all over America. Yet, today all over America we not only see blacks and whites walking together as brothers and sisters but as husbands and wives, friends, co-workers, and equals in many spheres of American life. It is not fully embraced, but the spirit of oneness is growing with each generation.

When Martin Luther King spoke he echoed the teachings of the bible about the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. He boldly stated what many had forgotten about the God we serve; that there is nothing our God can't do.

That even applies to individuals. Our godly inspired dreams are not impossible; God can make them happen, if we trust him and keep our hands in his hands.

As Christians, let us strive to keep our hope and faith intact. Our history has shown that there is nothing that is impossible; if we can believe it, with God's help it can be achieved.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he reminds believers that what seems impossible to men is possible with God.

The affirmation of God's power came as Jesus ended an exchange in which he told his disciples that the self-sufficient can only gain entry into the kingdom by humbling themselves before God. In mortal terms, he said this is an impossibility, but not in terms of God's unlimited power.

The disciples were under the mistaken impression, like the Pharisees, that persons who were wealthy and self-sufficient were the recipients of God's Grace and blessings. They were surprised when they heard Jesus say that those who were secure in their wealth or their own abilities would find it hard to get into the kingdom of heaven. The kingdom requires men women of humble spirit. The kingdom requires those who will submit themselves to the leadership of God and the Lordship of Christ. The symbols of their own self-sufficiency must become second place to the will of God. That seemed to be an impossibility. Jesus said in the realm of human understanding such humility is an impossibility but in the sphere of God's understanding it is not only possible but very likely. All things are possible for those who put their lives, their destinies, and their dreams in the hands of the Almighty God.

There is no height that is too high for God to reach. There's no depth so low that God cannot go beneath it. And there is no valley so wide that God cannot expand it. Lives in God's hands can do the impossible, reach the unreachable, cross the uncrossable as they reach heights never imagined. There is nothing that believers cannot achieve when God is paving their way.

Impossible dreams

There are many today who are pursuing their personal dreams. Their dreams may not be as grand as those of Martin Luther King but they are dreams that are important to their own life experience. The truth that Christ told his disciples should fuel the aspirations of believers who have set their sights on high and lofty goals. There are several thoughts that believers should submit for their consideration:

NOTHING TOO HARD FOR GOD: The first truth is that there is nothing too hard for God to do. God can do anything but fail. Even things that appear ridiculous to others can be accomplished through the power of God.When God informed Abraham that his wife who was nearly 100 years old would have a child it seemed like a cruel joke. In fact, Sarah herself started to laugh only to learn that a promise from God should not be a laughing matter. Genesis 18:14 records the angel of the Lord asking, "Is anything too hard for the Lord? At the time appointed I will return unto thee, according to the time of life, and Sarah shall have a son." In that moment they learned not to laugh when God ordained something to be. Ben Carson was the subject of considerable ridicule in his childhood because he was a failing student. The thought of such a student becoming a world-renowned surgeon was a laughing matter to many. Yet, his young life, placed in God's hand ultimately raised him to become one of the world's greatest and most renowned surgeons. Today those who have dreams must not be frustrated by the unbelief of their detractors and haters. It may seem improbable that someone like you can achieve your dream but we must remember the words of Luke 1:37 "For with God nothing shall be impossible. "

GOD CONTROLS THE POSSIBILITY YOU CONTROL THE PROBABILITY: There are two things that control whether you achieve your deams in life, one of them depends on God, the other depends on you. God makes the way for your dream to happen but the probability of achieving it is in our hands. Probability has to do with the chances that someone like you can make it to the top. If success lies at the top of a giant stairway with a door at each level, possibility comes into play when God moves ahead of you and unlocks each door just before you get there. Probability comes into play when you decide to make the climb.

God can make a college education possible, but we control the probabilities through hard work and determination. Probability looks at the factors that work against you, but the believer keeps focusing on the possibility which is that God is working for you. If he has opened the doors at each level we must work to get there and beat the odds. What were the odds of a single baby boy escaping Egyptian soldiers in a basket and growing up to be a prince of Egypt. What were the odds that the three Hebrew boys could survive the fiery furnace? They knew one thing, God was able and they were prepared and ready for any challenge they faced. As we work to defy the odds we must remember the words of Jeremiah 32:27 "Behold, I am the Lord, the God of all flesh: is there anything too hard for me?"

EVERY DREAM IS NOT GOD'S WILL: Believers must be sure that your dream is God's will for your life. There is a temptation to ask God to endorse our dream instead of prayerfully asking God what is his will for our lives. Our dream should be to work the work of the Lord and live out our purpose. In return for doing that, God has promised that the happiness and fulfillment that we seek will follow. Matthew 6:33 says, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness and all of these things shall be added unto you."

Sometimes God has a purpose for our lives that is totally different from the direction we want to go. We want fame, money and popularity but he may intend for us to be a teacher because there's one child that will come in your path in a few years that he wants you to inspire to become the next doctor, lawyer, mayor or president. Some may reject

God's will and go after their own, but that dream may turn out to be a nightmare. When faced with the same decision Jesus told God in the garden that he did not really want to go to the cross and he asked God to take this cup away, but he humbly submitted his life to God's will. In that prayer he said, in Mark 14:36. "And he said, Abba, Father, all things are possible unto thee; take away this cup from me: nevertheless not what I will, but what thou wilt. " He knew God had all power, even the power to move the cup of the cross, but he chose to go forward with his destiny even if it did not square with his personal desire. We have been promised, however, that when our dream and God's dream for us are the same, that he will stop at nothing to see to it that our dreams become realities." Godly dreams are not impossible because they are really God's plan for your life. Whatever we need to make such dreams happen God says all we need to do is ask he'll make it happen, "John 15:7 "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you."

The God We Serve

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must also consider that those who laugh at the possibility that someone like you could live the life you live today, obviously don't know the God you serve.

The rich young ruler had an opportunity to achieve the impossible, but he was not willing to put his hands in God's hand.

Had he chose to humble himself before God, and trust Him at his word He would have soon discovered that the impossible can become possible.

Who would have thought that a lowly shepherd boy could defeat a mighty giant and grow up to become king of Israel. Yet, David put his trust in the Lord and rose to become a man "after God's own heart."

Who would have thought that a woman by the name of Esther could ever rise to become the queen of Persia. She put her trust in God and he made the impossible possible.

Who would have thought that Abraham who dreamed a great family would ever father a child at 100 years old, but he wholly leaned on the word of God and impossible became possible.

Who would have thought that Moses who was found drifting in a basket could ever lead an entire nation to the Promised Land, but God took the impossible and made it possible.

We don't have to go way back there, we can pose that same question to our own situation.

Who would have thought that someone who comes from your neck of the woods, would ever have chance to do what you are trying to do.

Who would have thought that anyone who came from your background could ever hope to achieve anything in life.

Who would have thought that anyone who is dealing with all that you are dealing with could really hope to be anything in life.

Who gave you the audacity to believe that you could succeed and rise high in the sight of God and man?

Who gave you the stubborn determination to believe that you could climb the mountains of obstacles that face you every day?

Who gave you brash self assurance to believe that if your mind could conceive it and your heart could believe it, that you could achieve it?

Who gave the idea that you somebody like you who knows very little, hasn't been many places, doesn't have much and doesn't know many people in high places can expect to do anything in this life.

I may not know a lot of things about life, but I know that the word of God says in Philippians 4:13 "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

If it's going to help me do my master's will and will strengthen me, I can do all things.

If it's going to put me in a position to help somebody along the way, I can do all things.

If it's going to help me to realize the will of God for my life, I can do all things.

Dreams die when we stop believing.

When we stop believing that I can learn, then we drop out of school.

When we stop believing in our marriage, then we start thinking about divorce.

When we stop believing in God's healing power, we lose hope of being healed!

When we stop believing in future, then we give up and stop trying.

But I heard a song writer declare, "Only believe, Only believe, all things are possible, if you only believe!"

If you believe and hold to God's unchanging hand, God will take your:

—Hunger and give you a satisfied soul!

—Darkness and bring you into the marvelous light!

—Defeat and show the way to victory!

—Frustrations and give you new determination!

—Sadness and give you unspeakable joy!

I know he can do the impossible because down in Bethlehem an impossible thing happened. A child was born of a virgin and wrapped in swaddling clothes.

For 33 long years he did impossible things.

The blind were able to see because He did the impossible.

The lame were able to walk because He did the impossible.

Peter walked on water because he did the impossible

Five thousand people were fed with two fishes and five loaves of bread, because He did the impossible!

He told his disciples that he would do some impossible things.

When he said that if the temple would be destroyed he'd raise it up in three days, it sounded impossible.

When he said "If I be lifted up from the earth, I'll draw all me unto me." -that sounded impossible.

When they crucified Him on an old rugged cross, He died out on Calvary

But early Sunday morning, an impossible thing happened. The stone was rolled away and he arose from the dead with all power in his hands!

That same God is doing impossible things today, if you can believe in him!
That same God is lifting up bowed down heads, if you can believe in him!
That same God is mending wounded hearts, if you can believe!
All things are possible, if you only believe.

Life's not served on silver platters, but Grace is

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

January 24, 2010

SCRIPTURE: "I have given you a land for which ye did not labor, and cities which ye built not, and ye dwell in them, of the vineyards and oliveyards which ye planted not do ye eat. Now therefore fear the Lord and serve him in sincerity and in truth and put away the gods which your father served on the other side of the flood, and in Egypt and serve the Lord." Joshua 24:13-14 "Being justified freely by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus." Romans 3:24

Introduction

Have you ever had opportunities made available to you that you did not earn? Generally, whenever we receive something without have labored to attain it is said that we have received it on a silver platter.We know about silver platters. Our platters are those things we enjoy that we did not work to provide. Many adults have resources today that were provided by parents: land, finances or standing. Many children today have plenty of opportunities available to them, thanks to the good will of their parents.

Lest any child should become too self assured he or she should consider that they grow up in homes where they do not pay the rent or house not. They enjoy color television, inside bathrooms, showers, cell phones, clothes and often computers that they did not buy. All these things were handed to them on silver platters.

Life does not serve us opportunities on silver platters. Anything we have is the result of the grace and good will of someone.

Students study in college but much of their educational maintenance comes from the grace and good will of scholarship donors, grant providers, student work opportunities and loving parents.

Very few people today can claim that they earned everything they have today without help from anyone. Most of us began our adult lives on the strength of someone else's signature as our co-signers, riding in someone else's car and even borrowing clothes and food from someone else's panty and closet.

God's goodness to us opens the door of opportunity for us. It's all the more reason we should praise him. He is given us more than we deserve.

As Christians, we should be eternally grateful that God loves us and gives us his grace. Through his grace we are enjoying life. We should freely return that favor by praising God in every way that we can.

Exposition

The text focuses on Joshua as encourages Israel to remember the goodness of God and never to stray away from him.

The occasion of the text involves Joshua speaking to the young men and women who would follow him. Now, in the closing days of his life, Joshua told Israel the many ways in which they had been blessed by God.

From verse 2-13 Joshua explains how God has blessed them in Egypt and through their many journeys.

In the Promised Land, the wars had been fought, the victories had been won and this generation now enjoyed the fruit of prosperity for which they personally made no investment. When their fathers came to the Promised Land they marched around the walls of Jericho, fought off the Canaanites and even battled so hard that God held the sunlight long enough for them win. With their victories they were able to move into cities that were built through someone's hard work, and lived in houses constructed by others.

When Israel stepped into the Promised Land they lived a life that was easier than it would have been had they had to do it all themselves.

So, now in his last days Joshua reminds the people that it was God who caused them to enjoy the Promised Land. It was given to them on a silver platter. At the least, said Joshua in verse 14, we can serve God with sincerity and purity of heart.

He encouraged them not to make the mistake that some have made and that is to ignore their allegiance to God and serve pagan idols.

Normally, what Israel received would have been impossible, but the grace of God came into play. Normally, it would have been impossible but the grace of God made it possible.

Romans 3:24 notes that while life doesn't give us anything that we as believers in Jesus Christ have been freely given opportunities for salvation through the sacrifice of Jesus Christ. Life doesn't give us anything, but there is one that that is given to every person on a silver platter and that is salvation.

Nothing in life comes free, but grace does.

No Silver Platter

Today, believers must focus on one understanding; life itself offers nothing on a silver platter except by the grace of God.

THOSE WHO ACHIEVE MUST WALK BY FAITH AND TRY: Joshua's generation left a great legacy for the young men and women who followed. Forty years before they marched into the Promised Land spies gave a report that the land was flowing with milk and honey, but it was filled too many challenges, of which was the presence of giant sized men that made the Israelites appear as grasshoppers. They saw the opportunities that were available to them but chose to wander for 40 years. They learned a lesson, "You can't achieve a victory if you are afraid of losing the battle." A running back will never score touchdowns if he's afraid of being hit. A race car driver never will a race if he's afraid he might turn over. A businessman will never achieve success unless he ventures into the unknown. We cannot be afraid to step out on faith. So, what's stopping you from achieve that goal? What's holding you back? It's usually our lack of faith. Israel learned that those who refuse to step out on God's word usually end up wandering around aimlessly. Don't wait for your future to be served to you on a silver platter. Don't refuse to pluck a rose because it is surrounded by thorns, try and let God do the rest. If Israel had done that they would have saved themselves 40 years of wandering.

WALK THE RIGHT PATH: Success requires each individual to walk the right path. Our parents, with God's help, fashioned programs to discipline our children, educate our people, train our boys, groom our girls and protect our homes. Yet, despite a history of blessing there are many who have chosen to walk the same path of the Israelites in biblical times, the path to least resistance. Israel became distracted several times in their journey the worshipped idols that angered God. What are the false gods of our times? They are not statues before which we bow prostrate and humble. They are more than likely ideals and lifestyles that cause us to abandon the values of our people. Among false gods that are eating away at our community from the inside are: drugs, alcohol and crime. There are only two paths in life: our path and God's path; but too often we are easily distracted from the godly path because of the lure of the world. We must resistance temptation and follow the path to glory.

NOTHING COMES EASY: The world gives up nothing without a struggle. Anything worth having is worth is worth sacrificing to get it. Today, there are many who desperately want to succeed in life but they want it given to them on a silver platter. Some want the short paths. They have the ability to be a doctor but it's easier to be a nurse's aide. They have the capacity to be a teacher but they settle for being an aide. They have the skill to be a lead singer but they settle for being a backup because it's easier. History has shown us that those who have achieved high heights in life are those who were willing to struggle to achieve their goal. That's the difference between the C student and the A student, both may have the same capacity but one is willing to do the work necessary and the other is satisfied to just get by. More than any other nation, Israel should have known what God can do. Their national history was filled with struggle from the meanderings of Abraham to their struggles and slaves in Egypt. Life gave them nothing, they worked hard for everything. Even today some believe that life owes them something. Some believe teachers should give them grades they have not earned and employers should pay them work not performed. As we mature in the faith we soon learn that there is a connection between our faith and our works, because James said, "Faith without works is dead." We should expect to struggle just as a farmer expects to till the soil; the earth will yield but only after the ground is thoroughly tilled.

Then there is grace.

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must recognize that while Life is not served to us on a silver platter, the grace of God is ours for the asking.

When Paul wrote to the Romans he made it clear that we have salvation, not because of our own ability but that it is freely given to us. The grace of God is the one thing in life that is given to us on a silver platter.

Life won't give up anything but thank God for Grace, because through His grace we are able to see our way.

Life gives us a litany of hard times, but God's Grace gives us hope and inspiration.

Life gives us frustration, but the grace of God, give us the determination to say, "I believe I'll run on and see what the end's going to be."

Life gives us a platter full of failure but the Grace of God gives us a second chance.

Life gives us a platter full of defeat but the Grace of God offers us the complete victory! That's why the saint sings, "Victory is mine. Victory is mine. I told Satan to get thee behind, victory today is mine."

Life gives us a platter filled with moans and groans, but the Grace of God offers us happiness and joy.

When Israel made great accomplishments they sang a song of praise unto the Lord. That's what Joshua told Israel to do.

Joshua reminds us today. We have many things that we didn't really work for, but they came by the grace of God so we should continually praise God and sing unto him a new song.

Joshua told Israel to look back over its journey and told them to see the many ways God has blessed them.

When you sing to the Lord, don't just praise him for one experience, but we praise him for the entire experience.

Don't just thank him for the mountain top experiences, but sing a new song that thanks him for the valleys as well.

Sing a new song that thanks him for the sunshine and thanks him for the rain!

Sing a new song that thanks him for the good times and thanks him for the bad times too!

Sing a new song that thanks him for accomplishments we've made but also sing a song that thanks him for the lesson learned from failures and setbacks!

Our new song should tell our story.

It ought to tell how he picked us up and turned us around!

It ought to tell how he planted our feet on solid ground!

It ought to tell how he gave us a new walk and a new talk!

It ought to tell how he gave us a new song to sing!

We sing because life never offered us a chance at salvation, but thank God for the blood of Jesus!

We sing because life never offered us a chance start over again, but the Blood of Jesus purges our sin and gives us a new song to sing.

”I’ve been washed in the blood of the crucified lamb!”

We ought to sing about Jesus, Mary’s baby!

Who died on Calvary but Early Sunday morning arose up from the grave!

Life knocked me down, but I’m so glad that Jesus lifted me and has given me salvation on a silver platter.

Cords of old Rotten Rags

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 2010

Scripture: "And Ebed-Melech the Ethiopian said unto Jeremiah, Put now these old cast clouts and rotten rags under thine armholes under the cords. And Jeremiah did so. So they drew up Jeremiah with cords, and took him up out of the dungeon: and Jeremiah remained in the court of the prison." Jeremiah 38:12-13

Introduction

Have you ever considered how God has saved us by using the very things that should have killed us to help us survive?We are amazed today at the growing number of deaths and sicknesses that are being attributed to causes unheard of in our history. It seems that if we breathe we get a cancer; if we eat processed food there is cancer in the can, if we eat fresh food there is cancer in the herbicides. If our children play with toys there is a possibility of lead poisoning. If we eat pork chops we get high blood pressure, if we drink water from the tap we get a thousand germs, if we shake the wrong hand we could contract the Swine Flu. We have reached a point when it seems that just about everything that is supposed to be good for us is actually killing us.

It hasn't always been that way, even though there have been dangers. We as a people have survived mainly because God has manipulated the adverse situations, troubles and hardships of our past and turned them to our advantage. In many instances he used the symbols of our low estate to lift us and in so doing to lift the nation as well.

As Christians, we are grateful that God has used our ragged and troubled experience as a tool to help us raise ourselves to our present state.

Exposition

This text focuses on how a black man used old cords and rags to save the prophet Jeremiah from his enemies.

The prophet Jeremiah was not popular among many of his countrymen. His message of condemnation for the nation's sins did not resonate with the rich and powerful; many wanted him killed. Jeremiah's prophecies that the kingdom of Judah would be destroyed by the Babylonians was not good news. Many were concerned with the impact that such prophecies on the morale of the armed forces and the people in general. Apparently, without the knowledge of the king Jeremiah was imprisoned to silence him.

Although Jeremiah was the most prominent prophet of his day, no official in the government would intercede on his behalf. Ebed-Melech who was a Cushite from the area of upper Egypt; a black man. He was serving as an official in the royal palace. His exact position in the palace was not described, but he had access to the king. Ebed-Melech went to the Benjamin Gate where the king was supervising Jerusalem's defenses against the siege. His urgent message to the king was that the other officials had acted wickedly by throwing Jeremiah... into a cistern where he would starve to death. Evidently King Zedekiah had not known about the plan to kill Jeremiah or else he had not believed that they would carry it out. However, it became obvious that Jeremiah's death was imminent.

The king ordered Ebed-Melech to take thirty men who were probably on duty at the gate and lift Jeremiah from the cistern before he died. Thirty men would be needed to pull Jeremiah out of the mud and to stand guard against the officials who might oppose the rescue attempt. Ebed-Melech led the soldiers to a room under the treasury in the palace where the opening to the cistern was located. Old rags and worn-out clothes were passed down to Jeremiah to place under his arms to pad the ropes. Jeremiah was then pulled... up with the ropes and freed from the cistern. He was again put in the courtyard of the guard.

Through this courageous act Ebed-Melech save the prophet of God from death and saved Judah from what would have been the terrible wrath of God.

Ebed-melech's acts demonstrated faith

The acts of this courageous black should serve as a guide to believers today. We should note at least three things about this courage act:

EBED-MELECH SHOWED COURAGE IN THE FACE OF DANGER. It was dangerous for him to speak out when he saw an injustice but Ebed-melech did so anyway. This has been the legacy of thousands in our History who chose to speak out against the injustices that inflicted on our people. Whether it was Frederick Douglass in his newspaper or Booker Washington from the halls of Tuskegee or Rosa Parks from the back of the bus, our history is filled with men and women who have risked their own lives and security to sound the trumpet and raise the banner of freedom for all. We cannot afford to pass up opportunities to correct a wrong if we blindly walk past each situation and ignore it because of the risk. Justice gives nothing without a demand. Even today there are thousands of men and women who are illegally or wrongfully imprisoned, we must not forget them or ignore their status out of self interest. The courage to stand up comes from God. The men and women of our past who have spoken to our slave experience lifted us from our enslavement by their courageous acts and we should do no less.

EBED-MELECH SHOWED INGENUITY IN THE FACE OF DEPRAVITY. When

Ebed-melech reached Jeremiah's dungeon site there was no easy stairway available to lift him out. He made a way to rescue him by using the ingenious idea of lifting him out using cords of old rotten rags. We are an ingenious people. It seems to be a gift that God bestowed on us and others similarly situated. We have been able to use our knack for ingenuity to lift ourselves from the outhouse to the White House. We took scraps of old bread and turned them into dressing. We took discarded hog parts and turned them into plantation gourmets with fancy names such as "Chitterlings, tripe, and mountain oysters." When we look back we realize that it was food that should have killed us, but for the grace of God. We have shown our ability to improvise, invent and create in every aspect of our existence. We have written books, designed cities, commanded armies, and perfected inventions. We have shown a unique ability to adapt and overcome. We have taken the cords and old rotten rags of this life and lifted ourselves to new levels of living. Using the simple salves and potions of the old people we have treated our sick. It was the simple economy of saving for a rainy day that brought many financial security. It was ingenious the way our mothers made our clothes from old cotton sacks or curled our hair using strips of paper bags, but it was this type of ingenuity that helped us survive with the help of the Lord.

EBED-MELECH LIFTED UP THE MAN OF GOD. Ebed-Melech recognized Jeremiah as a prophet of God whose voice was been muffled and life threatened because he spoke the word of the Lord. His actions lifted Jeremiah up from the pit so that the word could continue to be declared. Our people have been inspired in our journey by legions of men of God who have stood firm on their faith like Moses and declared to Pharaoh that God says, "Let my people go." We have lifted up these giants who ranged from Nat Turner to Sojourner Truth to Martin Luther King because they boldly declared the word of God to the adversaries of equality. In lifting up these men we also lifted up our faith in God. Just as Moses' hands were held up on the mountain side, we have held up the arms of our pastors and prophets who have prophesied to the powers of this land that God would no longer tolerate injustices and indignities being showered on his people. We lifted them up so that our people could hear the challenging and inspiring words of God. It is only the power of God that ultimately freed us from our physical enslavement, and it will be the word of God that ultimately frees us from the new chains that bind us today. We still give ear to God's word because in his word there is a message of hope and deliverance. In his word there is assurance that "trouble don't last always."

Cords and old rags

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that while it is true that Ebed-Melech used old cords and rags to lift up Jeremiah, it wasn't really the rags or the cords that lifted him but the power of God.

God has used many people and situations to help us over the years, but we should never lose sight of the fight that it wasn't our wit, ingenuity or imagination that has brought us thus far, but the power of the almighty God.

Our faith in God has helped us to withstand the troubles of our of our history.

Our heritage is one that is filled with struggle and difficulty. Whether it has been our ethnic struggle as a people of color or as individuals striving to overcome our personal fights with life threatening situations, we have reason to celebrate because God has helped us to survive our difficulty and even to escape death itself.

It is no wonder then why the song writer would say, "If it had not been for the Lord on our side, tell me where would I be. Where would I be?"

God has both lifted us a people and used us to lift up the world. Ebed-Melech lifted Jeremiah and in the same way we have lifted America.

By the thousands we have served as nannies and cooks, mentoring a tutoring generations of men and women who became the leaders of this country.

By the thousands we have worked by the sweat of our brows, tilling the fields, building the roads and fighting the battles for this nation's freedom!

By the thousands we have written the songs that have touched the heart of the nation and inspired it to move forward.

And yes, by the thousands we have given our blood.

We have shed so much blood that James Weldon Johnson wrote, "We have come over a way that with tears has been watered, We have come, treading our path through the blood of the slaughtered."

Yet, we stand today to sing gallantly "I know the Lord will make a way!"

Now, we must march forward into the future telling the story of our past as we hold up the blood stained banner?

Who will tell the story of how God brought us a mighty long way?

Who will tell the story of how we marched through hardship and trouble into this present day?

Who will be willing to face tomorrow with confidence and say like Joshua, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord!"

I don't know what tomorrow will bring, but I know what God has done in the past.

I know what God is doing right now!

"I do not know how long it will be or what the future holds for me, but this I know, if Jesus leads me, I will get home someday!

It doesn't matter what the future brings as long as the Lord is on our side! If the Lord is on our side there will never be a:

—CROSS that we won't be able to bear; MOUNTAIN that we won't be able to climb!

—ENEMY that we won't be able to defeat; BATTLE we won't be able to win!

—DARKNESS so dark that we won't be able to see the light!

—TRIAL that we can't make it through; TEST that we won't be able to pass!"

We must stand on faith that when there seems to be no way out, our God is a God who can even use cords and old rags and do miracles!

We must stand on our faith that God will turn our:

—Backward steps into forward motions; Failing health into growing strength!

—Losses and defeats into gains and victories; Hard times and bad times, into easy days and good times.

When we stand on the rock we are on secure ground. No wonder the song writer wrote: “On Christ the solid rock I stand, all other ground is sinking sand, I dare not trust the sweetest frame but wholly lean on Jesus name!”

On Christ, Mary’s baby and the lion of Judah!

On Christ, Ezekiel’s wheel in the middle of the wheel!

On Christ, My bridge over troubling water!

On Christ, who carried an old rugged cross to Calvary’s hill!

On Christ, Who died and was buried in a borrowed tomb for three days and nights!

And early Sunday morning arose from the grave, with all power in his hands!

On Christ the solid rock I stand, all other ground……

All other ground!

All other ground is sinking sand!

When the saints go marching in

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 7, 2010

SCRIPTURE: "After this I beheld, and, lo, a great multitude, which no man could number, of all nations, and kindreds, and people, and tongues, stood before the throne, and before the Lamb, clothed with white robes, and palms in their hands; And cried with a loud voice, saying, Salvation to our God which sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb. Revelation 7:9-10

Introduction

Are you a saint? All across America the question is being asked "Who Dat?" It's in reference to the New Orleans Saints football team, uniquely named saints because the team is located in a predominately Catholic city where there are patron saints for just about everything. In fact there are over 10,000 Roman Catholic saints. In the Catholic faith, believers pray to the saints to intercede for them in certain circumstances. For example, those who travel pray to St. Christopher to protect them on their journey or when they are traveling in storms. Some never travel without wearing a St. Christopher medallion around their necks. There is Saint Peter Claver, the patron saint of Negro Missions, highly respected among Black Catholics as a symbol of God's concern for the Black man. If you have lost something you pray to St. Anthony for help finding it. If you are trying to sell your home many Catholics bury a statue of St. Joseph to guarantee a quick sale. There is even a saint of the Internet. The Vatican has recently declared St. Isadore of Seville as the patron saint of computer users who will protect believers from spam, identity theft and other mischief on the world wide web.

It appears that every denomination has its interpretation of just what it takes to be a saint with equally divergent definitions of what saints do. Lutherans believe that saints are special holy people who have received special grace from God. They believe the saints pray to God for the good of the church but they don't pray to the Saints. Jehovah's witnesses don't use the term saints but "Holy Ones" and they believe there will be 144,000 holy ones who will rule with Christ in the new Kingdom. Methodists believe that all Christians are saints, they admire the biblical saints and use the term "saint" only in reference to them, but not to each other.

If you are Baptist, Pentecostal or generally evangelical, the term "saint" means that you are a born again believer in Jesus Christ who has been set aside to live a holy and spirit filled life with Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior. We are all saints, we pray with each other and for each other but not to each other. We pray to God, in Jesus' name.

Those who are saints proudly wear the saints symbol. The New Orleans Saints football team's logo is designed after a French Catholic symbol called the "fleur de lis" which is supposed to symbolize the wings of the angels hovering over the Ark of the Covenant. There has been controversy over the football teams logo because it seems that the National Football League is claiming ownership.

The saints logo is not the symbol of the Christian saint. The original symbol of the Christian faith was the fish, because Christians promoted themselves as "fishers of men." About 600 years after the crucifixion Christians started using the cross as the symbol of our faith.

The cross, not the fish or the fleur de lis is the symbol of the saints of God. On the cross Christ paid for our salvation and through the cross we have an entry into the kingdom of God.

As Christians, we are proud to be saints. We are proud to display the cross as the symbol of our faith. Today, we are preparing ourselves for the kingdom that will come. In that day, we shall boldly march into the new Jerusalem, as victors over sin and death. It will be a great day when the true saints of God go marching in.

Exposition

This text focuses on John's vision of the last days in which the saints who come out of the great tribulation are sealed and given white robes.

The Revelation tells the events which will take place in the last days. It describes two specific periods of time which are yet to come. One is a seven year period that is called the great tribulation. At the end of this period the New Jerusalem descends out of heaven like a bride adorned for her husband. The second is a 1000 period in during which Christ rules on earth and Satan is bound. Before the heavenly kingdom begins there are many who will come to know Christ in the last days who will be persecuted because of their faith; these will be rewarded.

Revelation 7:4-8 describes the selection of 144,000 Jews who accept Christ and become saints after observing the events of the tribulation.

Verses 9-10 focuses on another number of saints who will come out of the tribulation. It was more than 144,000. In fact, Revelation 7:9 describes it as "a great multitude, which no man could number, of all nations, and kindreds, and people, and tongues."

In Revelation 7:14 the question is asked, "What are these?" or who are these people? The answer came, "These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." These are the saints of God.

These saints were important by virtue of their presence and attire; both are prophetic and symbolic. Their presence is prophetic in that it shows us what will happen in the last days. It is symbolic in that it represents the triumph of every believer over the plots and plans of Satan for their lives.These saints represented in the vision came through great tribulation, imprisonment, loss of property and goods and even the loss of life itself. Their victory shout that is released at the end of the tribulation period equals the victory shout of every believer who has suffered, sacrificed and endured loss for the sake of the kingdom.Of special interest is that each of them is wearing a white robe that has been washed in the blood of the lamb. The fact that their robes will be washed indicates that at one time they had been stained, but cleansed through the sacrifice of Christ on Calvary. The robes were made white by power of the blood of Christ. Thus, they will stand before the throne of God as victors. Their once stained robes will symbolize their triumph over the impact of evil in their lives.

The image shown in this passage shows believers today a grand picture of what we can expect when all of the saints go marching in. These will come from the tribulation period. Other saints will come from the Old Testament times and be joined by the raptured saints. It will be a grand time when the saints go marching in!

Truth about Saints

When we consider the saints of God there are three truths that we must recognize.

ALL BELIEVERS ARE SAINTS: The saints of God are those who believe in Jesus Christ, have repented of their sins and are living their lives by the Godly standard. Those who live by this rule follow biblical teachings and are described as saints. We call each other saints because in Romans 1:7, Paul addressed the Roman letter to "all who are in Rome, beloved of God, called to be saints." In I Corinthians 1:2, we read these words "the church of God which is in Corinth, to those who are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints." True saints are not fans, we are believers who are worshippers and followers of Christ. Saints are those who have faith in God and exercise that faith on a daily basis. No one has a patent on us, there is no copyright, we are children of the king!

SAINTS DON'T GIVE UP EASILY: Many who follow football teams are taking heart because the New Orleans saints did not give up. They believe their destiny is in the numbers. Numerology tells the story for them. They point to the fact that Barack Obama is the 44th President, and that there are 44 days from Christmas to the Super bowl, the Saints Franchise is 44 years old, that on Super bowl Sunday it will four years and four months since Hurricane Katrina; that the Saints won their way into the Super Bowl in four minutes and 44 seconds of overtime and against Bret Favre who had just turned 40 wearing number four. Those who believe in numerology say it's in the numbers but the saints of God don't go by the numbers we go by the word of God. We don't give up because like the three Hebrew Boys we know "our God is able to deliver us." Even in the face of adversity and insurmountable odds, we stand firm like Job and declare "yea thou he slay me, yet will I serve him." We've been on our journey a long time, but we still declare, "I don't believe he brought be me this far to leave me."

SAINTS WILL BE REWARDED. There are many saints who have remained faithful to the cause because they have been standing on the promises of God. He has promised to reward our faith. The word of God tells us in Revelation 21:7 "He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son." Revelation 2:26 says "And he that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations:" We may not know when it's coming, but we know what the end shall be!

Rev 3:5 says He that overcometh.... shall be clothed in white raiment; and... I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels.

We don't give up, even though the road may be rough sometimes, because the God we serve has promised us everlasting life!

In that day

Finally, brothers and sisters, we looking for to the day when the saints go marching in.

John's vision did not stop with the sealing of the 144,000 or the giving of white robes to the great multitudes. His vision painted a glorious picture of the great day when the saints of God will march into the New Jerusalem.

The excitement that the saints will share will be greater than watching a Super Bowl game. It will be the day we see the new Jerusalem.

When the saints go marching into the New Jerusalem life will be heavenly.

When the saints go marching into the New Jerusalem

—Worship will be wonderful!

—Mercy will be magnified!

—Grace will be glorified!

—Love will be everlasting!

The New Jerusalem is a place where:

—Satan never deceives and sin never tempts

—Love never fails and glory never fades

—Joy never ends and peace never parts

—Shackles never bind and storms never threaten —Rusts never corrupts and thieves never steal

—Death never happens and night never comes!

Over in glory there will be a new life for every Saint. When the saints go marching in there will be:

—Rest from our earthly toils!

—Relief from our earthly burdens!

When the saints go marching in, we'll:

—Praise the Lord for our mighty deliverance

—Enjoy the absence of worries and cares!

—Celebrate the end of all our troubles

—Shout the victory over misery and death

I heard a song writer declare, 'Lord I want to be in the number when the Saints go marching in."

I can see them lining up alphabetical order and I can see them answer the roll one by one:

Somebody said:

A—Abraham and Aaron moved to the front the line.

B—Boaz and Bartholemew " "

C—Centurion Soldier saved at the foot of the cross, step forward

D—Daniel, fresh from the Lion's den, and David, a man after God's own heart, stepped to the front of the Line.

E—Ezekiel and Elijah, who flew away on a chariot of God...

F—Five bridesmaids who kept the lamps trimmed

G—Gideon, who won great battles with only 300 men

H—Hosea and Hannah who gave her son Samuel to be a priest for the Lord

I—Isaiah and Isaac, whom the Lord saved by providing a lamb in the bush.

J—I saw Judas try to slip to the front of the Line but an Angel said get back Judas, because you betrayed our Lord with a kiss on the cheek.

K—Lot but he didn't see his wife, for she turned to salt at Sodom and Gomorrah.

M—Moses and Malachi still asking "will a man rob God?"

N—Noah and Nehemiah, still rebuilding the walls.

O—Obadiah

P—Paul and Peter, who showed us the power of a midnight prayer.

Q—Queens and Kings of the Earth who humbled themselves before God

R—Rebekah, Ruth and Rachel

S—Samuel, and Stephen who was stoned to death for his faith

T—Thomas and Timothy who was commanded to "preach the word"

U—Uriah because David had you killed and stole your wife. But I also saw you, from choir stands and the pews.

W—I heard them say Woman at the well for you told the world to come see a man!

X—Xerxes because you raised up Esther and made her queen

Z-Zechariah because you saw the vision of the Red Horse Pawing in the valley!

I wasn't there when they put an old rugged cross on his shoulders!

I wasn't there when they drove nails into his hands!

I wasn't there when they stretched him out wide!

I wasn't there when he died out on Calvary!

I wasn't there when he arose the grave early Sunday morning!

But I want to be in that number when the saints go marching in!

I want to be there when they crown him Lord of Lords!

I want to be there when they call him King of Kings!

I want to be in that number when the saints go marching in!

Dry Ground

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 14, 2010

SCRIPTURE:"And Moses stretched out his hand over the sea; and the Lord caused the sea to go back by a strong east wind all that night, and made the sea dry land, and the waters were divided. And the children of Israel went into the midst of the sea upon the dry ground: and the waters were a wall unto them on their right hand, and on their left. " Exodus 14:21-22

Introduction

Have you been through many storms in your life?Many of us have experienced a wide array of storms, floods and misfortunes in the course of our lives. The question is not so much whether we have seen or experienced storms in our lives but whether we successfully meandered the slippery slopes that separated success and failure. We have experienced our hard times and we have experienced deliverance. In hindsight, we now know that our deliverance came as a result of the hand of God moving to assist us in so many ways.

As a people we have seen our share of difficulties. We have endured the dehumanizing effects of slavery. We have stumbled through the nations attempt to reconstruct itself while patronizing our existence. We have fought long and hard to demand our rights under the Constitution. In that process we have been reduced to a caricature of citizenship which has been the object of ridicule and subjective review. We have been lynched from trees, our houses have been burned and some of our most vocal leaders have been assassinated, incarcerated or persecuted. Through it all we have maintained a steadfast hope that God would make a way somehow. We have seen the waters rolled back as we marched through depressions, wars and racial intimidation in our quest to reach the promised land.

Surely God has sustained us as a people, while keeping our enemies at bay. Surely God has held back the economic waters and the social injustices that should have destroyed us while blazing a trail for us to see our way through. We can only give him thanks and praise for helping us to reach dry ground.

As Christians, we give God thanks for making a way for us out of no way; for bringing us through. It is through his mercy and grace that we have been able to come thus far on our journey.

Exposition

This text focuses on Israel as it passed through the Red Sea walking on dry ground.

For over 400 years the children of Israel lived in the land of Egypt, first as guests then as slaves. God delivered them from their enslavement and pointed them toward a land that would be flowing with milk and honey. The land of Palestine became known as the promised land and became the quest of all Jews even to this day. Israel encountered a problem despite being freed from their slavery; the Red Sea was in front of them and the armies of Egypt was behind them. They faced an impossible dilemma for which there seemed to be no answer.

God gave them a command to move toward the promised land even though it appeared that it was an impossible task. The word of God records how He began to move through the natural elements to make a way for his people. God prepared to perform a great miracle for his people. What he prepared to do was scientifically impossible, and philosophically illogical. God planned to split the Red Sea in half and to allow his people, along with their flocks and herds to walk through on dry ground. This would not be a small trail but a wide chasm large enough to accommodate the passage of two million people.

What God was going to perform was an obvious miracle. He intended to use a strong wind to blow back the waters and to hold them back until the children had passed through. Some would think that that was no big miracle because strong winds in this area were not unusual. A strong south wind blows from October to May, raising the sea level several feet; but it is correspondingly lowered between May and October when the wind blows from the north. However, God chose to use neither the north wind or the south wind but the caused a strong east wind to blow all night long, indicating that what was being done was in no way the usual blowing of the wind.

When the time came the waters rolled up like a scroll on the left-hand side and the right creating a path through which Israel traveled to safety. It was not an anomaly; it was an act of God. That's what the Egyptians found when they attempted to follow them through the Red Sea. The walls that held back the waters of the sea collapse upon the Egyptians and they were drowned as the entire nation of Israel stood on dry ground.

The word for wall that is used in the text is used in many places in Scripture to signify fortification and protection is "Homa". This text is the first of about 120 instances in the Hebrew Bible that this word is used to indicate God's protective presence." It is that presence that helped Israel to survive its 40 year journey in the wilderness and to ultimately cross over into the promised land to stand proudly on dry ground.

He has been our Protection

As a people we can relate to the children of Israel. Their national history is similar to our own and God's dealings with them is seen as a type of his dealings with all believers. From observing them modern believers extract truths about our own circumstances:

HE GIVES US A WALL OF PROTECTION: God protected Israel by acting as a shield, barrier, or guard that kept them sheltered from the attacks of their enemies. When Egypt attacked He stood between them as a pillar of fire. When the waters of the Red Sea would have consumed them God held them back and then used the same waters to destroy their enemies. He was the Homa. When we reflect on our own personal history we too can see the many ways that God has protected us from our enemies. There are many families that have been the subject of attacks, plots and tricks bu our families survived each attempt at their destruction thanks to the grace of God. That's why, Psalms 124:2-4 says, " If it had not been the LORD who was on our side, when men rose up against us: Then they had swallowed us up quick, when their wrath was kindled against us: Then the waters had overwhelmed us, the stream had gone over our soul:" It is the Homa" of God that has kept us safe throughout our history, not our own power of the acts of men. God and God alone has been our protector.

WHILE HE HOLDS BACK ENEMIES HE WORKS THROUGH THE NIGHT: Egyptian armies were held at bay by the Pillar of fire but the sea seemed unmoved to many, but God was working it out. The emphasis of the text is that God "caused the sea to go back by a strong east wind all that night." When they looked at the sea all they saw was another storm raging over the sea, they didn't know that God had begun to move on their behalf. Often we don't understand how God moves to help us. At times, it looks like his acts create more storms, yet just as he did for Israel, God has caused an unusual wind to blow that is working to create a wall of protection for us. Many saw Martin Luther King marching in the streets and the subsequent jailings and beatings as just another storm; they did not see God moving in the mass movements of people of all races to bring down the walls of segregation and racism in the country; yet God was moving on the hearts of congressmen and senators and that stong east wind gave birth to the Civil Rights Act of 1964. It rolled back the waters and allowed thousands of communities to march forth on legal dry ground, protected by non-other than the constitution itself. It's the same way in our personal lives. We can't see how another strong wind or storm is paving the way, but we should be confident that God has a reason for everything and all things will work to our good if we love the Lord and try to do right by him.

IT TAKES FAITH TO WALK THROUGH A MIRACLE: When the waters rolled back, it took a tremendous amount of faith for Israel to walk through, even though they could see the other side. The prospect of death and failure was imminent; there were some among them that wanted to turn back. Wasn't that the case in our history? There were many who lost heart even in the face of their deliverance. That's why Harriet Tubman carried a shotgun; it wasn't for the enemy, it was to force the faint hearted runaways to keep going forward. Their deliverance was a miracle in itself, but it took a leap of faith to claim their miracle. Today, we ask God for miracles but we must have the faith to walk through our miracle. Whether that miracle is sickness, death, financial trouble or dysfunctional relationships it takes faith to walk through your miracle. What is faith? Hebrews 11:1 says, "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." When God is preparing to do a miracle for you it may be a scary experience; you may even get nervous. That's when you draw upon your faith and take that examination or undergo that surgery or invest in that opportunity. The miracle might look scary but we should proceed with confidence that God will bring us through on dry ground. Hebrews 11:29 says, "By faith they passed through the Red sea as by dry land: which the Egyptians assaying to do were drowned." It's faith that no matter scary it looks that the same God who rolled back the waters and made the opportunity available can insure that you make it through to dry ground.

God will make a way

Finally brothers and sisters, we should be confident that no matter how difficult our road may seem, God will make a way; we don't know how, but we know he will.

For Israel, God made a way for them to escape the treacheries of Egyptian bondage and move toward freedom. He made a way for them to cross the Red Sea and he made a way for them to survive for 40 years in the wilderness. Without a shadow of a doubt he proved that he would make a way for them to achieve their purpose.

From the depths of the Red Sea with water stacked up on both sides of them, Israel had only one goal in mind; to reach dry ground.

Dry Ground is that which is within the protective care of the Lord.

Dry Ground is Holy Ground, anointed by God himself for the nurture and strengthening of heavenly pilgrims.

The quest of every believer today is to escape the Red Seas that threaten to swallow them in this life and reach, sanctified dry ground.

There are many today who are walking on everything except dry ground.

Some are walking on SOGGY GROUND. Soggy ground is messy, sloppy and leaves an ugly trail that shows where you've been.

Some are walking on MUDDY GROUND. Muddy ground, slips under your feet and makes it hard to get traction and hold on.

Some are walking on SANDY GROUND. Sandy ground is not stable and your feet sink with each step. It's hard to run on Sandy ground; when you walk you have to slow your pace.

Some are walking on WET GROUND. Wet ground is slippery making it hard to stand up. Those who walk on wet ground fall a lot, because life is slippery when its wet.

Those who trust in the Lord try to avoid the low ground and they constantly reach for "higher ground."

That's why the song writer wrote, "Lord lift me up and let me stand by faith on heaven's table land. A high plane than I have found, Lord plant my feet on higher ground."

When we reach high ground we walk above the soggy, muddy mess that traps everyone else because we are walking in the favor of the Lord.

Those who reached the high ground are now standing on the rock.

When we stand on the rock of our salvation we are standing on dry ground.

Standing on dry ground we can hear the voices of the old warriors reminding us that no matter how tough it gets, "The Lord will make a way!"

When we stand on the rock, God will turn our:

-Backward steps into forward motions; Failing health into growing strength!

-Losses and defeats into gains and victories; Hard times and bad times, into easy days and good times.

When we stand on the rock not only are we standing on dry ground, we standing on are on secure ground.

No wonder the song writer wrote: "On Christ the solid rock I stand, all other ground is sinking sand, I dare not trust the sweetest frame but wholly lean on Jesus name!"

On Christ, Mary's baby and the lion of Judah!

On Christ, Ezekiel's wheel in the middle of the wheel!

On Christ, My bridge over troubling water!

On Christ, who carried an old rugged cross to Calvary's hill!

On Christ, Who died and was buried in a borrowed tomb for three days and nights!

And early Sunday morning arose from the grave, with all power in his hands!

On Christ the solid rock I stand, all other ground..

All other ground!

All other ground is sinking sand!

When God Makes a Man

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

February 21, 2010

SCRIPTURE: "And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth." Genesis 1:26; "For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind." 2 Timothy 1:7

Introduction

If you could make the perfect man what he be like?If given the assignment to make the perfect man how tall would he be? What color would you make his eyes. How old would he be? Would he have six pack abs, bulging biceps, and a barrel size chest? Would he have dazzling bedroom eyes, luscious lips and a deep, romantic voice?What about his personality? If he had all of the above but had no money would he be acceptable? Desirable? Loveable?

Obviously, all of us would have a hard time creating the perfect man just as many have spent years searching for him but have always come up short. It seems that every man has something missing from the list. If he looks good, he doesn't have a job. If he has a job and looks good, he doesn't have a body. If he has a body, job, youth, looks and dazzling eyes, he's not romantic. If he's romantic, he's too short. If he's tall, he can't dance. If he has the perfect package of looks, body, job, attitude, and romance, you might find out that he's gay. There will always be something too long or too short in our search for the perfect man.

The Marine Corps advertises that it is looking for a few good men. What does that mean?

Experience has taught that the measure of a man is not by his shoe size, shirt size and the width of his belt. Neither is it determined by the depth of his wallet or the muscles in his arms. There are characteristics about a real man that often do not appeal to the eye but are evident in his character.

Real men are strong, courageous, loving, sound thinking and god fearing. All of the other attributes are extras that make him even more appealing.

God made man in his own image. He made him in such a wonderful way that the psalmist asked the question, "What is man that thou are mindful of him?" Man and his kind are the wonderful creations of God himself. The body is the outer shell, but because a godly man is made by God himself, the qualities went in before for the name went on.

As Christians, we know that God is responsible for all creation. We are all wonderfully made in his likeness. We glorify him for creating mankind and we revel in the fact that his creation was perfect in every respect, because when God makes a man, the man he makes is shaped by the hand of God himself.

Exposition

This text shows how God made man in his image and likeness.

Genesis gives a description of God's creation of the world by singular spoken phrases such as, "Let there be light," and "Let there be a firmament," and "Let the earth, or waters, bring forth."

However, in Genesis 1:26 when God decided to make man it switched from a singular act into a word of consultation, "Let us make man." The creation of man was a collaborative effort between the Father, the Word and the Holy Ghost, indicated by the phrase, "let us."

Let us make man so he can have dominion over the rest of creation.

Let us make man and ally him with the elements, from the dust, but full of life; of the animals but far superior, but just lower than the angels.

Let us make man in our image. In the image of the fatherly God. In the image of the obedient son. In the image of the empowering, forceful and inspirational Holy Ghost.

The Hebrew word for image in this text means "fashion" or "resemblance." Likewise, the word "Likeness" means "similitude, or manner." It does not mean that we look like God or that we are Jr. gods. It means that there are unique qualities within us that are similar in nature to that of the creator. We are similar to God in many ways, but we are by no means God.

Qualities of Godly men

When a man's life is shaped in God's hand, he is molded in many ways to reflect the character of God. He's not a perfect man, but in many respects he demonstrates godly attributes. There are four attributes of a godly man that can be drawn from 2 Timothy 1:7: "For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind."

GOD MAKES COURAGEOUS MEN: There is a courageous spirit that flows from the heart of every godly man; it is the calling card of every man whose life is shaped by close encounters with the Lord. Courage does not mean that men are never afraid, it means that they have the strength to do what must be done in the face of danger, ridicule or failure. Courage should not be confused with thoughtless actions, knee jerk responses, and foolish acts of bravado. Courageous men know what is right and after considering the costs decide to do what needs to be done to right a wrong, protect against evil or to bring about a rightful conclusion to a situation. The courageous spirit is something that comes from God. All men are not born with courageous spirits, they develop courage as God works with them. Peter was one the boldest of the apostles, but he didn't start out bold; in fact he showed cowardice when he denied Christ. Christian men become courageous as their faith and love increases. We are afraid whenever our faith decreases. When we love completely we get bold. 1 John 4:18 "There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear: because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love." Men who have put their lives in God's hands develop a strong faith and capacity to love the way God loves. God remakes him into a man of courage.

GOD MAKES STRONG MEN: God makes strong men, not necessary physically strong like Samson. Strength in this sense is not about muscles but about the ability to be firm, decisive and resolute. The strength of a man is not measured by his education, financial status or physique. There are many men who are well educated, financially secure and muscular but are weak. They have no backbone, stand for nothing and fall for everything. 2 Timothy 1:2 points to another attribute that God give believing men, strength or power. Jesus had 12 disciples, all 12 of whom were weak at the beginning; one was so weak he betrayed Christ and hung himself. Even when Christ agonized about his future there were so who couldn't even stay awake to protect him. Matthew 26:40-41 says, "And he cometh unto the disciples, and findeth them asleep, and saith unto Peter, What, could ye not watch with me one hour? Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak." Yet, eleven of these men ultimately put their lives in God's hands and they grew in strength by studying the words of Christ, close fellowship with each other leaning heavily on their faith in God. Paul, writing to the Ephesians encouraged them to build their strength. Ephesians 6:10 "Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might." He encouraged every believing man to put on the who armor of God to protect against the wiles of the devil. Moreover, men are urged to get a real relationship with Christ because it's through him that they find strength. In John 15:5 he said, "I am the vine, ye are the branches: He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit: for without me ye can do nothing. That's what Samson learned and every believing man after him. Without God, every man is weak. With God every man is strong.

GOD MAKES LOVING MEN: When God makes a man he gives him a piece of himself. The Word tells us that God is love. Real men have the capacity to love. Love is an "action" word. Love is spoken with the mouth but more than anything else love is demonstrated through action. Love is demonstrated when men interact with each other and men also demonstrate love when they interact with others and respond to each other in ways that will build up rather than tear down. It takes time for men to learn because it is a man's nature to want to outdo others or "win" the most accolades. Even among the Disciples James and John earned the title of the "Sons of Thunder" and sought seats of importance over the other brethren. Yet, in the course of their ministry they became men of love and compassion so much so John was referred to in 1 John 4:7 as the apostle of love. When God makes a man he gives him a sense of compassion, a driving desire to do something to help those who are desperately in need and help those who are lost. It is an agape love that drives them to act even if the love is not returned. When God makes a man he makes him a loving man.

GOD MAKES A SOUND THINKING MAN: Not every man is sound in his thinking. Until God remakes them, many men are selfish in their thoughts and seek to do things that build themselves up often at the expense of others. Without sound thinking men make hasty decisions or react out of impulse that drives them to destruction in the years to come. The Greek word in the 2 Timothy 1:7 that is used for sound mind refers to moderation and self-control. It denotes a man of prudence, discretion and balance. When God makes a man he has to add balance to his life and stabilize him because too often some men make knee jerk decisions without praying about them. A sound mind is a praying mind that is disciplined in the art of listening to God. Men are not born with sound minds but as they mature in the faith, God remakes and reshapes their thinking to the point that they no longer act brashly or on impulse without thinking through their decisions. A sober thinking man comes when men focus on pleasing God in all of their actions. When the world sees a sound thinking man it sees a man who has given both his thoughts and his actions over to the Lord.

When God Makes a man

Finally, brothers and sisters we cannot ignore the fact that there is nothing greater than a good man in God's hands.

In the Garden, the father, Son and the Holy Ghost said, "Let us make man." In the garden it was a call to create out of the dust of the earth the first of mankind. Today, they are making men from the dust of crumbled lives and reshaping them into what they should be.

There are many men who can testify that their lives changed when they were placed in God's hands.

Elijah was a good man. By any standard, he was a real man. He was strong, independent and courageous. But what made Elijah more appealing is the same quality that made many of the strong men of the bible great; they were real men in godly hands.

Abraham was a good man, but when he put his trust in God and moved at his command, he became a good man in Godly hands.

Jacob was a good man. He prospered with material wealth and became respected as a man with a head for business. But one night he wrestled with the Lord and refused to let him go. From that night forward, he became a better man, because he was a good man in godly hands!

David was a good. He was a great leader and military strategist. But one day he realized his own vulnerability and said, "Create in me a clean heart oh God and renew in me a right spirit." -He became even greater because he was a good man in Godly hands.

When God makes a man, he is a powerful man because God uses him!

When God makes a man, he is an influential man because God controls him!

When God makes a man, he is an effective man because God directs him!

He's a good man because he's as courageous as Moses who stood before Pharaoh and said, "Let my people go."

He's a good man because he's as strong as Joshua who declared "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

He's a good man because like Hosea he could love even though he was not being loved in return

He's a good man because like David he could stand and say without a doubt, "The Lord is my shepherd and I shall I not want."

When God makes a man, he gives him and job to do but never leaves him alone.

Every man whose life has been shaped by the hand of God should remember to always take the Lord with you!

If you take the Lord with you, your greatest enemies can be conquered!

If you take the Lord with you, your greatest obstacles can be overcome!

If you take the Lord with you, your gravest doubts can be overcome!

If you take the Lord with you, your heaviest burdens can be lifted!

If you take the Lord with you, your highest mountains can be climbed!

If you want to make this journey, you've got to stand on the Lord' side; you got to walk with the King!

Storms may rise, but you got to walk!

Winds may blow, but you got to walk!

All along this tedious journey, tell the world, I've got to walk with the King!

Who died out on Calvary!

Who arose Early Sunday morning!

I've got to walk with the king!

Wake up Sleeping Beauty

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church Bapist Church
Monroe, La.

February 28, 2009

SCRIPTURE: "Wherefore he saith, Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light. See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, Redeeming the time, because the days are evil. Wherefore be ye not unwise, but understanding what the will of the Lord is." Ephesians 5:14-17

Introduction

Is it possible for people to live in a dream world, literally sleeping with their eyes open as the world passes them by? Across the nation there are millions of women who are victims of what has been called the "Sleeping Beauty Syndrome." This is the sociopolitical idea that while millions of women are active in the social order, most are unaware of or unconcerned about social and economic factors that impact their lives. Many have accepted discriminatory practices as inevitable and still more have not claimed the opportunities that are available to them. Like the fictional sleeping beauty, many are alive but they are insensitive to the struggles all around them.

What happened to sleeping beauty? There are several versions of Sleeping Beauty but the story told to school children most often is that recorded by the Brothers Grimm. They told of a beautiful princess who was cursed by an evil fairy to fall into a deep sleep for 100 years. When the princess pricked her finger on a spinning wheel all those around her fell asleep as well. During the course of her long sleep she was aware but unable to respond to attempts to revive her. At the end of the 100 years a handsome prince climbed through the briars and weeds that locked her into the castle and rescued her. Once awakened, the sleeping beauty awakened to become the bride of the prince and both lived happily ever after.

Regardless of the version you have heard, the one told in the 1959 Disney movie is the one that seems to linger today. Every year millions of people attend one of the Disney theme parks and view the legendary castle of sleeping beauty. Unlike all of the other attractions of Disney World the castle of Sleeping Beauty is a hollow shell that offers very little for tourists to see with the exception of a few novelty shops.

It's really ironic that Sleeping Beauty's castle would be empty today because the story itself presents the picture of a woman who lived a hundred years in a trancelike sleep waiting for prince charming. It is a sad epitaph; a sullen footnote to a life spent waiting for good fortune to climb the walls, fight back the weeds and vines and wish her away into the happy ever after.

That's why America loves Disney. Disney fills us with wonder and anticipation as we fantasize in the land of fairies, where the good guys always win, the frogs turn into princes and little girls who wait long enough can live happily ever after.

Unfortunately there are many women today who are the best and most beautiful part of God's creation who are living in fairytale world where they are waiting to be whisked off their feet by a handsome prince while failing to use the gifts that God has given them to use to their advantage.

Like the empty castle of Sleeping Beauty their lives have become empty shells of existence: surfing the internet, attending parties, buying clothes and dreaming. Many are just waiting for success to arrive and knock on their door. Many are waiting for prince charming and are upset that all they get are frogs. So, they sleep with their eyes open and dream as the years pass by.

This idea of sleeping while the world passes you by was the subject of a 1979 book by Madonna Kolbenschlag entitled "Kiss Sleeping Beauty Good Bye. She writes that many women imagine themselves in a state of readiness, of expectancy, of waiting for life and for their real existence to begin. In fact, it has already begun — it is passing them by; they are sleeping beauties who may never wake up."

In the fairy tale, the good fairies gave the little child several gifts and a bad fairy gave her a curse. We don't believe in fairies but we do believe that God has given every believer special gifts, talents and skills associated with their life's purpose. We also believe that while there are no fairies there is a devil and at some point in life he tries to lull believers to sleep or put them in trances to let the years pass until they forfeit unclaimed dreams.

That's from time to time God sends everyone a wakeup call. It sounds off loudly and awakens us to the real world around us.

As Christians, we are aware that God has given us special gifts and abilities. We are challenged to awaken from our slumber and use those gifts to the glory of his kingdom.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul's words to the church in Ephesus as he encouraged them to arise and live bold lives of faith.

Like many Jews who accepted Christianity there were some among the Ephesians who believed in the false notion that they could hang on to Judaism and be faithful to Christ at the same time.

In addition, there were many unbelievers who were dead in their sins, lulled to sleep by a notion that they could eat, drink and be merry without concern for their sins. They lived as if God did not notice or care what they did or how they lived.

Believers too, while not being caught up in the sins of unbelievers had become comfortable with a "different strokes for different folks, live and let live attitude."

They began to live in a fantasy world in which they could serve God, be blessed and make it to heaven without ever addressing the evil around them.

That's why Paul challenges both the unbelievers and the church to awake from their sleep and prepare to live the life of faithful service that has been set before them.

Three truths

Today, there is a great challenge to women of God; that challenge is to rise to the potential that God has given each for the purpose of advancing his kingdom.

AWAKE AND RISE: Ephesians 5:14 says, "Awake thou that sleepest and rise from the dead." There is a divine call for every woman to rise from the death of failed experiences. Women are struggling with many frustrating experiences that threaten their own existences. Many are being literally buried alive by unjust rules and practices associated with a male dominated society. Women are literally losing their jobs, families and careers as they struggle to survive the game of life because too often the rules of the game favor men. Women are struggling to survive abusive relationships in which someone chooses to beat them like punching bags or otherwise torture their souls. Women have been beat down so long that it seems like every day there is another shovel full of hard times and frustrations thrown and their faces.

Yet, the word of God says, you are not dead! Wake up and rise to the occasion!

Don't let the tragedy of your circumstance lull you into a hundred year sleep. Awake, woman of God and seize the day. How? It is too dark to see our way out? That's why the text says, "And Christ shall give thee light." Plunge yourself into the word of God. You will find strength in God's promises, power in his word, and renewed enthusiasm to face the challenges set before you. Whatever your situation, you can't deal with it by simply waiting for it to go away, you must awake and seize the day!

USE YOUR TIME WISELY: Ephesians 5:15-16 warns believers to act wisely and not waste time because evil is all around us. No woman has time to idle watching one television program after another waiting on your fairy godmother to send a carriage to your door and put glass slippers on your feet. In the movie "Precious" Precious kept fantasizing about a successful life but it wasn't until she decided to do something about it until things began to change. Women who plan to succeed must not waste time idling with those who do nothing but idle themselves. Careers don't drop out of the air, you must make them happen. Happy homes are not made in fairytale land and delivered to you by flying fairies. The godly man you are looking for may be on his way right now but you won't know him if you have not made yourself a godly woman that will recognize him when he shows up. The scriptures teach us to "redeem the time" and to live, talk and walk wisely. The great women of history were not slackers, busy bodies or gossips; they were women of courage and industry who prepared themselves to stand up against the evil that this world offers. This world will make it difficult for a black woman; so be prepared to stand on your faith in God as the evils of the world come at you from every side. You cannot afford to sleep, awake, use your time wisely as you prepare to tackle your dream.

MOVE IN THE WILL OF THE LORD: Look at Ephesians 5:17. It encourages each of us to understand the will of the Lord. Each of us has been given gifts from God to achieve a specific purpose without lives. When we work in the will of the Lord we understand fully what we are about and why we do what we do. There are many however, who have dozed off when it comes to the will of God. They began their lives seeking the will of God then they started nodding often waking up to find themselves in the wrong lane of life and quickly stir themselves back on the right side of the dividing line. There are some who have fallen asleep at the wheel and if they don't wake up they are set for a crash! When we wake up that's when you start to ask, "What am I doing? Where am I going? What is this all about anyway?" When we stop to think about our actions, many find that we have strayed away from the will of God for our lives, living in a fantasy land in which we hear the accolades of our peers giving us awards, plaques, trophies and headlines. We relish that dream of personal glory, triumph and success. It consumes us and it becomes a lullaby that puts us to sleep. Yet, God has a purpose for us and from time to time he shakes us. Sometimes he shakes but we are so sound asleep that we can't hear him. So he shakes our checkbook. He shakes our happy home. He shakes our health. He shakes our career or business. It's the only thing he can do to get our attention; to get us to ask, 'Lord what do you want me to do? Whatever it is, I'll do it for you." Wake up sleeping beauty, God has work for you to do.

Stir up the gift

Finally, brothers and sisters, to awaken from our sleep we must stir up the gift that is within us.

Paul, writing to Timothy in 2 Timothy 1:6 said, "I put thee in remembrance that thou stir up the gift that is within thee."

That is a call for all true believers to awaken from their slumber and rise to their true potential.

When God evaluate our lives he won't look at what we have, but what we could have had with what he gave us to work with.

He won't look at where we've been but at where we could have gone with the abilities that he bestowed on us.

He won't look at the education we received but at the education we could have received with all of the opportunities he made available to us.

When Moses was ordered to go down and tell old Pharaoh to let my people go, Moses thought he made a mistake. However, it wasn't a mistake because God knew what was in him, Moses had to stir up the gift!

When God selected Gideon to stand before the armies of the Midianites, Gideon wanted a whole lot of signs, but God knew the man on the inside, Moses had to stir up the gift.

When Esther was pushed into the beauty contest to become queen of Persia she didn't think she had a chance, but God had prepared her for "such a time as this," all she had to do was to stir up the gift.

That's the challenge of women and all believers today; we must stir up the gifts that God has given us and step out on his word.

You may have been sleeping on your potential but it is time to rise and shine!

Walt Disney and the Brothers Grimm told us about a beautiful girl who was awakened from her sleep by kiss of a handsome prince, but the word tells it better.

Luke 8:51-56 tells the story of the real sleeping beauty.

In this passage there is a young girl who came to symbolize all of the misplaced trust and faith of the people around her. All of her neighbors said she was dead and would never rise again. Jesus told her father Jarius in Luke 8:51 that your daughter is not dead, she is just sleeping. The Christ spoke to her and said "Maid, arise" and her spirit came again.

I don't know about you but I believe that God is speaking to somebody's spirit today saying, "Wake up sleeping beauty, it's time for you stand on your feet again!"

Wake up sleeping beauty! The power of God awaits you!

Wake up sleeping beauty; there is no night so dark that you cannot endure it!

Wake up sleeping beauty; there is no fear too great for you to face!

Wake up sleeping beauty; there is no enemy too mighty for you to conquer!

Wake up sleeping beauty; there is no crisis too critical for you to confront!

Wake up sleeping beauty; there is no burden too heaven for you to bear!

Wake up sleeping beauty; there is no doubt too strong to weigh you down!

Wake up sleeping beauty, for Isaiah 6o:1 saying, "Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the LORD is risen upon thee."

Wake up sleeping beauty, for I hear Jesus saying, "With God all things are possible!"

Wake up sleeping beauty tell the world that you were shackled by a heavy burden, 'neath a load of guilt and shame, but then the hand of Jesus touched me!

He touched me, the man who picked up and old rugged cross and carried to Calvary's hill!

He touched me, the man who let them drive nails into his hands!

He touched me, the man who dropped his head into the locks of his shoulders!

He touched me, the man who died and was buried in a borrowed tomb!

He touched me, the man who stayed in the grave for three days and nights but Early Sunday morning arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

He touched me and made me whole!

A King Who Knew Not Joseph

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church

March 7, 2010

SCRIPTURE: "Now there arose up a new king over Egypt, which knew not Joseph." Exodus 1:8

Introduction

What happens if a generation grows up among us that does not know the source of its blessing? There are many families that have been helped because of an ancestor who was favored. Some were given land, money, and opportunities because of the favor that was earned by a grand parent or great grand parent. In many small towns, a person's good works lives on after them and courtesies are extended to family members because of the memory of an ancestor. However, sooner or later, a generation will arrive that is not familiar with that ancestor and feels know allegiance to continue granting us favors. That's when the favors run out.

In a similar way, it is possible for a new generation to appear that does not remember or consider the benevolence of its benefactors. Neither will it appreciate its journey toward freedom.

African-Americans have endured a long journey to reach our present level of achievement. The way has not been easy; in fact the road to our success is littered with the bodies of our martyrs. We have arrived where we are today because of the sacrifices of thousands, both white and black, to help us overcome racism and its destructive influences.

What role did God play in all of this? If we are not careful to pass on the knowledge of our journey, we may focus on the names of our history, Douglass, Washington, King and Obama and forget that it was God was behind the names, moving to orchestrate our deliverance. It would be a tragedy if a generation grows up among us that does not know the Lord.

So, we preserve our history and teach each new generation about the goodness of the Lord. As long as we do that we insure that our blessings will continue.

As Christians, we know the source of our blessings is the grace of God. We must now insure that our children and grandchildren know the same.

Exposition

This text focuses on a new king who rose to power in Egypt who did not acknowledge Israel as favored friends.

Joseph came to Egypt as the nation was threatening a national famine. He wisely advised the pharaoh to take steps to weather the approaching hard by storing grains in good years to avoid starvation during the famine. The pharaoh followed his advice and Egypt avoided a disaster of national proportions. In gratitude for his wise leadership pharaoh showered favors on Israel that continued long after his death. Each succeeding king continued the favors in respect for Joseph.

When Joseph and his family moved to Egypt, there were only about 70 people involved in the move. At the time of the text there were over 500,000 Jews living in Egypt as farmers, craftsmen and laborers. As the years passed their numbers grew so did their potential power. They posed a possible military threat because of their sheer numbers and their penchant for rapid reproduction. As long as Egypt remembered Joseph this possibility was never considered a probability.

While Israel enjoyed the comfort of it's favored status living in Goshen an area outside Egypt a foreign element began moving into lower Egypt; the group was called Hyksos. Like Israel they were Semites and foreigners. As the years passed the Hyksos grew in number and eventually they took over the leadership of Israel and displaced the reigning dynasty in Egypt.

The Hyksos were hated by the Egyptians. They were foreigners who had taken over their country. Since they looked like Jews their hatred also extended itself to Jews as well. In 1570 b.c. Ahmose I defeated the Hyksos and restored Egypt to it's traditional leadership under a new king.

The new king was was aware of Egypt's historic obligation to respect the descendants of Joseph. However, what he saw was a large tribe of people whose population was growing rapidly as the Hyksos had grown. Instead of being viewed as friendly descendants of Joseph, the Jews were viewed as national threats who could possibly join with Hyksos and overthrow them once again. Once the Egyptian dynasty was restored there was a wave of Egyptian nationalism which included a hatred of the Hyksos and all Semites, including the Israelites; they were all viewed with suspicion. The text notes that Pharaoh voiced two reasons for his concern: the alarming increase in the number of the Israelites and the fear of their aligning politically with a foe in time of war. He planned to stop their population increase and exploit their labor at the same time.

In the aftermath of this action the Israelites became slaves and were held in bondage building the Egyptian cities as second class citizens.

The bondage began when a new king ascended the throne. He was a king who knew not Joseph.

Know your Journey

We need to know the road we've traveled: Anyone who is attempting to move forward in life should be aware of the ground that has already been covered. There are many people who move through life like the person who sleeps through a long journey and awakens upon arrival. They know where they came from but have no idea what terrain they traveled. Each generation of any race should seek to learn about it's journey and to leverage that information in ways that help the present learn from the past. If we do not know the mistakes of the past we may be doomed to repeat them. Also, if we don't know the successes of the past, if we repeat them we think we are breaking new ground.

We need to know the challenges we face: When the new king took control of Egypt it posed new challenges to the Israelites. The government of Egypt targeted it's infant birth rate and systematically began to change their legal status. The changes posed as a challenge that proved insurmountable until God himself interceded. Today, there are challenges that are before our people that are just as challenging. Our homes are being destroyed from the inside. Our moral character is being attacked on the outside. We are being surrounded by economic and political challenges that threaten to enslave us all over again. Whether it is the threat of drugs, increased crime and violence, or declining character of our youth, we are faced with a multiplicity of frustrating challenges. Israel overcame its bondage because God raised up a leader among them who revived the faith of the people and struck fear in Pharaoh's heart. Today, the answe for this generation is the same as it was for Israel; we need God's power. This cannot be a generation that does not know God. We can't meet the challenges without Him. We need to know who helped us over

If this generation knows not God

This generation must not be one that wears the label, "A generation that knew not God." Yet, that seems to be the goal of the enemy. There are signs that this generation is becoming less aware of its history, heritage and connection with God as it focuses on activities of the moment and instant prosperity. The result is staggering for our people.

Recent studies have revealed that by the age of 16 the average child will watches 200,000 acts of violence on television; in addition to 33,000 murder, 20,000 sex acts, 35,000 naked bodies and will hear 150,000 songs that will urge him to have sex, drink alcohol, shoot someone, or get high. Even among those who worship, there is alarming number in this generation that can't focus on God without reaching for their cell phones to receive or send a text.

In addition, this generation is developing a taste for things that are vulgar, violent, and sexy and many have dismissed the faith of the parents and grandparents as old school and unnecessary.

If this becomes a generation that knows not God, with the same or greater passion and faith as their parents and grandparents, then trouble looms.

That's why millions of young people of this generation are reaching back and dusting off the old time religion and singing "It was good for my old mother. It was good for my old father; it's good enough for me."

That why millions of young adults are flocking to bible studies, worships, praise services and on spiritual online chats, so that they hang on to the faith that has brought us over.

They want to join the chorus of the faithful who now recognize the importance of the last verse of Lift every voice and sings, "God of our weary years, God of our silent tears, thou who brought us thus far along the way. Thou who has by thy might led us into the light, keep us forever in the path we pray."

We should never forget the God who saved us

Finally brothers and sisters, we must never forget the God who saved us.

The African-American family has a heritage of rich, emotional and heart felt expression of our faith in God.

Through nearly two centuries of slavery, our families maintained a faith in God.

In our weary years, we have wallowed in the spit of American racism, sustained only by the faith that one day God would lift us from the bottom rail and bring us to the top.

When we were not allowed to talk to God about the problems in our lives, entire families would steal away to brush arbors and bow as grandpa or grandma put their heads under tubs to muffle their voices and cried, "Lord, I'm out here on your word!"

When somebody says we should stop singing the Dr. Watts Hymns, the preacher should stop whooping, the deacons should stop moaning and the choir should stop rocking and we should show some intelligence; we should be intelligent, but not so intelligent that we forget the bridge that brought us over!

We are a people whose heritage reflects the fact that that we have been sustained by an unfaltering trust in God.

When Israel moved into the Promised Land there were many who felt they no longer needed the God that brought them over.

They forgot how they wore the same clothes for 40 years but they never wore out.

They forgot how they were protected from their enemies despite their own ability to defend themselves.

They forgot how they were provided water out of nowhere despite a drought situations. God bless them, but they could not see.

There many in our community who believe we have arrived in the Promised Land and we don't need that old stuff anymore.

Some say we have an African-American president now, we've made it to the promised land

Some say, we attend integrated schools, and can buy homes in formerly all white neighborhood, we have made it to the Promised Land.

Some say, we can sit at the lunch counter now and ride in the front of the bus; we have made it to the Promised Land.

Now that we have a good job, access to an equal education and equal rights, we don't that old time stuff anymore.

But I heard the final words of James Weldon Johnson ringing in my ear, "Lest our feet, stray for the places our God where we met thee, Lest our hearts, drunk with the wine of the world we forget thee. Shadowed beneath thy hand, may we forever stand, true to our God, true to our native land.

We must hold to God's unchanging hand always that we are still in the wilderness and not the Promised Land..

In this wilderness, God has been our rock in a weary land.

In this wilderness, God has been our shelter in the time of storm.

In this wilderness, God has been our way out of no way.

In this wilderness, God has been out of bridge over troubling waters; even if we could

In this wilderness we must never stop calling on the name of the Lord because in our despair he shows us the joy that will come in the morning.

There are so many people today who don't know the Lord, they laugh at us and call us old timey. All we can say is, "You don't know what the Lord has done for me. You don't know you wasn't there, you don't know when and you don't know where. You don't what the Lord has done for me."

I heard an old warrior say, "I don't know what I'd do without the Lord. When I look around and see what the Lord has done for me. I don't know what I'd do without the Lord."

I can't even wave my hand without the Lord. When I look around and see what the Lord has done for me, I don't know what I'd do without the Lord.

It was the glory of the Lord that gave us

-WATER in the wilderness

-FOOD when you were hungry,

-CLOTHES on your back

Hang on brothers and sisters, bye and bye, the glory of the Lord shall be revealed!

No wonder the songwriter said, "Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord, he is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored. He has loosed the faithful lightning of his terrible swift sword, his truth is marching on!"

Glory, Glory Hallelujah, his truth is marching on!

It started marching over 2000 years ago!

It started marching to a hill called Calvary!

Jesus died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning he arose from the dead!

In the morning, we shall see his glory!
Glory!
Glory!

SCRIPTURE: "thus says the Lord of hosts: 'Once more (it is a little while) I will shake heaven and earth, the sea and dry land; and I will shake all nations, and they shall come to the Desire of All Nations, and I will fill this temple with glory,' says the Lord of hosts.'The silver is Mine, and the gold is Mine,' says the Lord of hosts. The glory of this latter temple shall be greater than the former,' says the Lord of hosts. 'And in this place I will give peace,' says the Lord of hosts." Haggai 2:6-9

Introduction

Have you ever seen people in their comfort zones? Our comfort zone is that area of our lives in which we feel safe, secure and comfortable. It may involve our daily routines at home or work or our expectations in our leisure or even in the church. Once we settle into our comfort zone it is difficult to get us to make changes, especially if the changes threaten our present circumstance.

We have become comfortable with many things. We rarely change our hairstyles because we are comfortable with our present style. The decor of our houses change when wear and tear demands it but rarely before then. Our diet is relatively the same, our friends are the same, and most everything else about us usually remains the same.

When we get things the way we like them, we resist any effort to change them.

For many that also applies to their relationship with God. Many are comfortable in their present state even if they are far away from what God expects of them. Some have reached a point where they are happy that they have improved their situation but have no desire to uproot themselves or make any major changes. They have settled into their comfort Zone and have decided to let the status quo stand.

If we have settled on a level beneath that which God desires for us, then there is only one course of action available that will position us to improve our relationship with him; he has to shake us up, turn us around then replant our feet on solid ground.

We rarely embrace change, so in order to help us God has to shake up our whole situation so that we can be used by him.

As Christians, we know God has great things in store for us. We know that at times we get too comfortable in our zones and become slack in our faith and service. Every now and then God has to shake us before he can use us, then and only then are we fit for service in the kingdom.

Exposition

This text focuses on the prophet Haggai as he tells Israel that it has become too comfortable with its laid back attitude about the house of God.

The temple in Jerusalem had been destroyed by invading armies and Israel's finest citizens were carried away into captivity. When they returned, they saw the deplorable shape of their homeland and bemoaned its decline. Yet, despite their frustration they took no action to rebuild God's house. Instead they focused on restoring their own properties. They were content to pass the site of the once glorious temple and just shake their heads.

Haggai was specifically raised up by God to encourage the exiles returning from Babylon that they might take fresh hope and build. He spoke to their present building effort but also pointed to a day in the future when the glory of the new temple will be provided by the Messiah. The people obeyed the command because they recognized that God spoke through Haggai. However, less than a month after they began the people lost hope and God had to renew his promise to shake things up to rekindle their zeal and encouraged their flagging spirits.

The passage spoke to their present circumstance but it spoke mostly of the coming of the Lord. According to Matthew Henry, the phrase, "I will shake the heavens, and the earth, and the sea, and the dry land" refers to the setting up of Christ's kingdom in the world, God will once again do for his church as he did when he brought them out of Egypt; he shook the heavens and earth at Mount Sinai, with thunder, and lightnings, and earthquakes; he shook the sea and the dry land when lanes were made through the sea and streams fetched out of the rock. This shall be done again

Before Israel entered the land of promise they were shaken and prepared. In the crucible of suffering. In a larger sense all believers must be shaken well to ready themselves for use by God while God at the same time shakes the world around them to secure their blessings.

Shaking things up

Why would anyone need shaking before they can be used in the service of God?

There are at least three good reasons why God shakes us up.

He shakes us up to unsettle us: When medicine sits in a bottle for a while many of the elements essential to the cure have settled to the bottom. Shaking the bottle unsettles those loose components and makes them ready to use. We get that way sometimes. We settle into our comfort zones and become lax. In our spiritual lives, we become comfortable with our present level or spirituality. That's when we fail to maintain regular bible reading, prayer or become irregular in our worship. We settle into a routine that becomes mundane, dry and spiritually dead. All of our gifts and talents sink to the bottom. We have them, but they are useless to God because they are on the bottom. That's why God has to shake us and shake us well before using us in his service. If he does not shake us the service and worship we give will be half hearted at best.

God shakes to motivate us. It's very easy to lose our motivation, especially if our reason for ministry was not God centered in the first place. There are many who serve to please others, gain public praise or out of obligation. This type of service rationale is easily discouraged and is maintained as long as what we do pleases people. However, those who serve to please God are generally highly motivated even if they are frustrated along the way. When our motivation wanes, God has to shake us to help us to refocus our attention on Him. When we see the homeless we are reminded of why we started ministering to the poor. When we see lost souls wandering aimlessly then we are reminded why we launched into evangelism. When we feel the pain of families that have experienced loss, then our commitment to healing broken hearts is renewed. We regain our motivation when we regain our commitment to serve the kingdom through our ministry to others.

Shakes us up to save us. Jesus came to the earth to shake up the present order of things and to save those who lost. He said in Luke 4:18-19 "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the brokenhearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised; to preach the acceptable year of the Lord.." In John 10:10 he reminds us that he came that we might have life and have it more abundantly. To do that, He would have to save us from the influences of the devil and from ourselves. Often we are like the non-swimmer who is fighting the person trying to save him. The only way that the non-swimmer can be saved is to punch him. The same is true with people who panic and get hysterical; often a good shake brings us back to reality. It even works that way with our own lives; God often has to shake us to save us from ourselves. There are many who can truthfully say that God literally saved them by allowing them to be arrested. Jail or prison saved them. A day in traffic court saved them. A loss of a job made them aware of the money they wasted and they changed their management styles; it saved them. If an experience taught us to look to Jesus to author and finisher of our faith, then we, like others, were literal shaken up so that we could be saved. That's when we came running to ask, "What must I do to be saved?"

All Shook up

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that we can do more for the Lord once when he gets through shaking us up.

The late Elvis Presley once wrote a song that said, My hands are shaky and my knees are weak I can't seem to stand on my own two feet Who do you thank when you have such luck? I'm in love I'm all shook up!

Elis was all shook up because he was in love, but any saint can tell a better story.

They can tell How God touched their lives and shook them all up.

Jonah was told to go to Nineveh and preach the Gospel, but he chose to go the opposite direction and do his own thing, until one day he swallowed by a fish, Three days later he came forh saying "I'm all shook up."

Saul was on the road to Damascus doing just the opposite of what God wanted him to do, but one day on the Damascus Road met the Lord. He arose after three days ready to do God's will, he was all shook up.

Isaiah said he wasn't worthy to preach the Gospel but God pressed a hot burning coal to lips and charged him to declare the word to all nation. Isaiah answered, "If there Lord needs somebody, here am I send me." -He was all shook up.

When God shakes us up, he gives us:

—Courage to stand in the face of opposition!

—Resolve to stay with a task until it is completed!

—Assurance to keep us calm in the midst of a storm!

—Strength to shoulder heavy responsibilities!

—Determination to continue despite disappointment!

You may feel that you're not ready to do whatever it is that God wants you to do, but I can tell you one thing, "When God gets ready, you've got to move!"

The scribes and Pharisees were not ready for him, because he called the hypocrites and imposters! They were all shook up!

The money changers in the temple were not ready for him because he turned over their tables saying, "My father's house is house of prayer but ye have turned into a den of thieves" They were all shook up!

The Sanhedrin Council was not ready for him because turning organized religion upside down. They were all shook up.

They didn't what to do about the man from Galilee who could turn water into wine and raise the dead, they were all shook up.

Pilate didn't know what to do with him and couldn't sleep at night, he was all shook up!

He washed hands and ordered him crucified.

They whipped him all night long, but he never said a mumbling word; and they were all shook up!

They nailed him to an old rugged cross and he died between two thieves.

When he died, the sun refused to shine.

When he died, the moon seemed to hide its face!

When he died, the thunder began to roll and the lightning began to flash.

A soldier at the foot of cross declared, "Surely, he must be the son of God"—He was all shook up.

They buried him in a borrowed tomb where he stayed for three days and nights, but Early Sunday morning..

The ground began to shake, the stone was rolled away and arose from the grave.

When the women arrived they were all shook up!

When the apostles heard about it, they were all shook up"

Because they were all shook up, they were then ready to "go ye therefore into all the world and preach the Gospel!

Because they were all shook up, they were now ready to declare the year of the Lord!

Because they were all shook up, they were willing to say the words of the old him "And I promised him that I would serve him till I die, I'm on the battle field for the Lord!

Transformed by the blood

SCRIPTURE: "If you are generous with the hungry and start giving yourselves to the down-and-out, Your lives will begin to glow in the darkness, your shadowed lives will be bathed in sunlight. I will always show you where to go. I'll give you a full life in the emptiest of placesâ€" firm muscles, strong bones. You'll be like a well-watered garden, a gurgling spring that never runs dry. You'll use the old rubble of past lives to build anew, rebuild the foundations from out of your past. You'll be known as those who can fix anything, restore old ruins, rebuild and renovate, make the community livable again. Isaiah 58:10-12; "And they overcame him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their testimony; and they loved not their lives unto the death." Revelation 12:11

Introduction

Do you sometimes look around in your community and see the wretched state of affairs and ask is there any hope? Is there any way that conditions can be improved? Is there any way that changes can be instituted? If you have asked these questions then you are not alone damn millions of people just like you will also wondering is there anyway that we can make things better?

For centuries great leaders have tried to change conditions through the might of their armies and the power of the sword. Whether it was the 400 year crusades of the middle ages or the rise of communism under Stalin and Lenin, the efforts of man to transform society into the Utopian state that Plato envisioned have been futile.

The list of would be transformers grows with every generation. Huey Long promised to make every man a king. Franklin Roosevelt promised a new deal when he started Social Security. Lyndon Johnson envisioned a great society when he started the welfare program, and Barack Obama sees a better, healthier, greener world as strives to implement his agenda.

Even in our own families we have been frustrated in our attempts to transform that wayward son, misguided nephew, or deviant sister-in-law. We have lectured, preached, threatened, ranted and raved tirelessly but all of our expostulations seem to fall on deaf ears. This is especially true when see conditions worsen instead of improving.

History has shown us that real change happens when the eyes of the people seek God's face and are guided by his hand.

Real change happens when God gets in the picture. Without his presence and power things may change but they also remain the same.

As Christians, we are committed to transforming the communities in which we live through the power of the blood of Christ.

Exposition

This text focuses upon what happens when the people of God refocus their attention upon godly principles.

The book of Isaiah is in many ways similar to the entire Bible in its makeup. The first 39 chapters of the book are filled with doom and gloom. However, the remaining 27 chapters beginning with chapter 40 give words of inspiration and hope. The text, coming from the 58th chapter of Isaiah, points to the deplorable conditions of the nation but at the same time it gives the people a reason for hope.

The people had immersed themselves in a plethora of activities that were intended to demonstrate their spirituality. Included among the various activities in which they plunged themselves were fasting and increased religious fervor. Isaiah, in this text, noted that it was better for them to live out the principles of their faith rather than to simply internalize their faith in acts that had personal meaning but had no practical impact on the problems that existed around them.

Isaiah basically told the people that God would prefer their hearts to be bowed to him rather than just their heads. Their words of praise were appreciated but their service and obedience to His will were more important. Therefore verses six through eight of the text indicate that God would prefer that the people look around them and put the power of his word into action as they respond to the needs of the community rather than spending all that time in acts that were symbolic and meaningful but empty with respect to the power of God to transform people and conditions.

In verses 8 to 12 God promises people, through the lips of Isaiah that if they demonstrated their inner righteousness through their outward acts then He would bless them with light in the midst of darkness, healing in times of sickness, and He would allow them the satisfaction of enjoying future generations as they grow stronger as a result of their work.

Those who act on the power within them to transform conditions will be blessed because they become the living embodiment of the blood of Christ in Action.

In the Revelation, John saw a striking scene. He's saw the Saints of God who were battling the effects of Satan during the tribulation period. He saw the damage that Satan had done to the world but he also them arise victorious. He noted that they were able to rise victorious against the forces of Satan because of the power of the blood of Christ and their great testimony among the people.

Whether in the Old Testament or the new, the scriptures say one thing: we must believe in God and then act on our faith to transform the community around us.

Three transformations

The transforming power of the blood of Christ affects us personally and it affects our community. It changes lives and it changes the quality of life for those around us today and in the life to come. The blood of Christ affect us in at least three ways:

The blood of Christ takes away your sin: The first thing that the blood of Christ does for us is that it takes away our sins. Christ's death on Calvary became the eternal sacrifice that was made on our behalf giving us a chance to the tree of life. That's why John would write in John 3:16 "For God so loved the world that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life." Before anyone can think of transforming the world, the community or his own family; first the person must avail himself to the blood of Christ in his or her own life. The text from Revelation noted that the Saints were victorious against by the power of the blood and by the strength if their own testimony. We must have a story to tell. Trying to transform others without first transforming ourselves is futile. We must know the Lord as our savior and testify to our transformed lives before we can hope to transform our neighbors, friends and family members. Our lives should be the best testimony about the power of God to completely remake and rebuild lost lives.

The blood of Christ sensitizes our conscience. Believers are under a mandate from Christ to spread the gospel and the love of Jesus throughout of the world. It's known as the great commission. We are charged to reach and teach everyone we can with God's message of salvation and compassion. Once saved by the blood, believers become extremely sensitive to the demands of our mission. We are troubled when we see the homeless sleeping on the street. We are disturbed when we see the increasing number of children who are dropping out of school and into prisons and welfare lines. We are disturbed when we watch our home disintegrate right in front of us. Those who are saved find it extremely difficult to look the other way; we are compelled to roll up our sleeves and do something that will help transform and our communities into something better than what we see. The blood of Christ turns us all into Good Samaritans, helping the fallen, the wounded and those in need. Each time we help someone we are sustained by the power of the blood. Each transforming act helps the world to better see Jesus as source of all blessings and transformations.

The blood of Christ gives us access to the throne of Grace. If the blood of Jesus does anything, it gives believers access God. Having access to God gives us a reasonable expectation that God will at least hear us when we need him. Hebrews 4:16 says, Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need." To act boldly means that we ask God expecting a response in at least two situations: 1)When we've messed up and know that we've messed up. In that case the blood of Christ convicts us, humbles and forgives us. Once humbled we have an opportunity for mercy. This is the time when we are desperately in need and want a little help. There are times when we must sing the song that says, “Where can I go but to the Lord?” It’s the time when we say like David, “I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help, my help cometh from the Lord who made the heaven and the earth.” The blood of Christ insures that we have access to grace and mercy, without which we cannot make it through our daily trials.

It was the blood

Finally, brothers and sisters, every chance we get we must testify to the world that we ourselves have been transformed from what we used to be; it was nothing but the blood.

There is transforming power in the blood of Christ.

Only the blood can transform a nobody into a somebody!

Ask Matthew and he will tell you that only the blood can transform a tax collector into a Missionary!

Ask Peter and he will tell you that Only the blood can take a man off the fish pond and make him a fisher of men!

Ask Paul and he will tell you that only the blood can persecutor of the church and transform him into a perpetuator of the kingdom of God!

Ask the woman and the well and she will tell you that only the blood can transform a life so much that should would run through the streets saying “come see man who told me all I’ve ever done!”

Ask Esther and she will tell that only the blood of the lamb can take a lowly Jewish girl and make her the queen of Persia!

The power of the blood transforms our despair into a never dying hope. That’s why the song writer declared, “My hope Is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness. I dare not trust the sweetest frame but wholly lean on Jesus’ name.

On Christ the solid rock I stand, all other ground is sinking sand.

Some may say it was my education that gave me chance in life, but I disagree because I know it was the blood.

Some may think their hard work has brought them thus far, but I disagree because I know it was the blood.

Some may envision themselves as the source of their own good fortune, but I disagree because I know it was the blood.

There are some things in this world that we cannot attain without the blood.

There is a fountain from which you cannot drink, but the power of the blood brings you to that fountain!

There is a promise that you cannot claim, but the power of the blood allows you to claim that promise!

There is a hope that you cannot enjoy, but the power of the blood allows you to enjoy that hope!

The song write asked the question, “What can wash away my sins?” Then he answered what every born again Christian already knows, its “Nothing but the blood of Jesus!”

What can make me whole again? Nothing but the blood of Jesus!

Oh precious is the flow that makes me white as snow, nothing but the blood of Jesus!

When you’ve been washed in the blood, you sing with new meaning, “I know it was the blood. I know it was the blood that saved me.”

I know it was the blood that took my hatred and transformed it into love!

I know it was the blood that took my despair and transformed it into hope!

I know it was the blood that took my disgrace and transformed it into honor!

I know it was the blood that took my enemies and transformed it into friends!

I know it was the blood that took my worries and transformed it into confidence!

One day when I was lost, he died!

He died up on a cross! I know it was the blood that saved me!

He died to give me a chance to turn my life around!

He died to give me a chance to get a clean start!

But early Sunday morning arose, to guarantee my salvation!

Double Crossed

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 27, 2010

SCRIPTURE: "On the next day much people that were come to the feast, when they heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem, took the branches of the palm trees and went out to meet Him, and began to shout, "Hosanna! BLESSED IS HE WHO COMES IN THE NAME OF THE LORD, even the King of Israel." John 12:12-13; "But Pilate said to them, "Why, what evil has He done?" But they shouted all the more,"Crucify Him!" Mark 15:14

Introduction

Have you ever been double crossed? You have been double crossed when those you thought were with you actually turned out to be against you. It's a frustrating feeling of betrayal and abandonment that is difficult to shake in the short term and leaves a lingering distrust for many years.To successfully execute a double cross a person must spend an enormous amount of time as a double agent. A double agent works for both sides initially, then changes sides at the end, betraying one in favor of the other.

We read about double agents and are fascinated when we read about Benedict Arnold in American History or see them operate in James Bond movies. We even see Professor Severus Snape in the Harry Potter series who works for three sides and triple crosses them all.

Candidates for political office are constantly on the lookout for moles and double agents, who work as volunteer in the campaigns of their opponents to gather information for the other side. Although they cheer at rallies and praise their opponent's publicly, they are secretly gathering information that is designed to destroy them.

There are some who are not double agents who play both sides, or moles or gather information, they are simply turn-coats; they are loyal to one side today and change their loyalties tomorrow.

Is it possible that there are people who are turn coats, moles and double agents in the church? Is it possible that sitting on the pew beside you is a person who is a double agent for the devil, praising God on Sunday but turning coat back to the devil on Monday?

Just as there are thousands of double agents, spies and moles; there are even more who pretend to be Christians, join in the crowd, but are really loyal to the devil.

Those who know the Lord are loyal to God alone. Their words of praise are the same when times are great as they are when times are not so favorable. They are not turn-coats but have vowed to praise Him and give him their best regardless to what the world think.

As Christians, we have no intention of double crossing our Lord. We will stand with Him because He stands with us. We live for Him because he died for us. Come rain or shine, we will praise the Lord.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he made his triumphant entry into the city of Jerusalem.

The arrival of the Messiah had been predicted by the prophet Zechariah many years before. The people of Jerusalem expected a champion to come into the city and establish himself as the one person who would lift their domination by the Romans. In Zechariah 9:9 the prophet wrote, " Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion! Shout aloud, O daughter of Jerusalem! Lo, your king comes to you; triumphant and victorious is he, humble and riding on an ass, on a colt the foal of an ass"

Intoxicated with the idea of liberation the people met Jesus outside of the city singing and shouting "Hosanna (save now)." The expected Jesus to announce a rebellion against the Romans. They expected to see the Roman legions running in fear of the power of Israel. So they sang, "Hosanna" -Not just "save us" but save us "now!"

They shouted Hosanna because they wanted a blessing and success.

They shouted Hosanna because they wanted their special interest taken care of immediately.

They shouted Hosanna and showered praises on Jesus because he was seen as the one that would bring them what they expected.

Later, in the same week, Mark 15:14 notes that many in the same crowd that shouted "Hosanna" were still shouting, but they were shouting "crucify him" when it turned out that Jesus would not meet their expectations.

They cried crucify him when he spoke of being persecuted and making sacrifices! They cried crucify him when he refused to take up the sword even in his own defense, saying he that lives by the sword will die by the sword.

Their shouts of praise turned to shouts of death, once Jesus failed to meet their expectations.

Their demand for his crucifixion was the ultimate double cross.

Christ was victim of the Double Cross

Jesus dealt with the spirit of the double cross on many fronts; it caused Him considerable problems. As Christ assembled His disciples he often spoke of the Kingdom of Heaven and a new world order. Two of the disciples, James and John, secretly desired to have positions of power in that kingdom. Mark 10:37 says, “They said unto him, Grant unto us that we may sit, one on thy right hand, and the other on thy left hand, in thy glory.” Jesus had to reprimand them but the other disciples were angry; they felt they had been double crossed by James and John who sought secretly to trick them out of their posts. At the Lord’s supper Jesus said someone sitting at the table would double cross Him and betray Him. The secret agent at the table looked around at the others, then later that night in the garden Judas betrayed Christ with a kiss. Peter stood with Christ and declared that he would never betray Him, but before the rooster crowed the next morning he had betrayed Christ, not once, but three times. So when the crowds cried out “Crucify Him” Christ had been double crossing for a while. No believer is immune from the double cross. There will be many who claim they support you but will betray you. There will be many who will hug your neck and tell you they are behind you all the way but will abandon you when the chips are down. There will be many who will approach you in friendship so they can gather information about you to gossip to others. Therefore we should not put our trust in men but place our trust in Lord. He will not betray you or double cross. He will never let your down.

He bore a double cross

Jesus came to a double crossing, godless world and was condemned to die on a double cross. Jesus was put to death in the Roman tradition; crucifixion on a cross or a stake. Some artists depictions of Roman crucifixions showed victims tied, lashed or nailed to a single stake. Thus, in some places in scripture the cross is referred to as a stake, pole or a tree such as in Acts 5:30 “The God of our fathers raised up Jesus, whom ye slew and hanged on a tree.” While there was a single pole in the ground many of those who were condemned were required to carry a cross beam upon which they were tied or tied and the cross beam would be lifted up. The cross beam or the horizontal cross was then attached to the Vertical cross, making a T- or a double cross.

The fact that Christ who was doubled crossed was crucified on a double cross should mean a lot to Christians.

It just looks like he bore one cross for the world and one for me.

One cross for the sinful nature of mankind and one cross for my personal misgivings.

One cross for the shortsightedness of the world, and one cross for personal near sightedness.

One cross for the wayward heart of the world, and one cross for my own hard and callused heart.

He who was double crossed by the crowd, was also crucified by people like us who praise Him on Sunday but betray Him.

Yet, while we double crossed Him, he bore a double cross for us.

Perhaps that’s what prompted Dr. Watts to ask, “Was it for crimes that I had done,

He groaned upon the tree? Amazing pity! grace unknown! And love beyond degree!

He was raised on a double cross

Finally, brothers and sisters, we cannot ignore the fact that while Jesus was condemned by a double cross, and nailed to a double cross, he was also lifted up on a double cross, for salvation of the world.

The cross was intended to be a sign of shame. It was intended to be a sign of disgrace.

When Satan led the Romans to give Jesus a double cross it was intended to humiliate him; but the double cross itself became a double cross..

Instead of representing shame and humiliation, the cross became a symbol of pride.

Instead of representing defeat and failure, the cross became a sign of victory.

The world has doubled crossed many people, giving them empty promises, destroying many dreams.

Many people stepped out believing what the devil told them but he brought them pain and despair.

I'm so glad that I serve God who can uncross the double cross, with the power of the Old Rugged Cross.

Your enemies might try to destroy you by digging ditches in your path, but the God I serve can undo the double cross and make you enemies your footstool.

Your enemies might try to persecute and call you everything but a child of God, but the God we serve can undo the double cross and bless you when men persecute and say all matter of things about you for his name sake.

Your enemies might be forming weapons and planning your downfall, but the God we serve can undo the double cross by reminding you that no weapon formed against you shall prosper.

The crowds cried crucified him and lift him up high! It was the cry of a double crossing crowd!

But I hear Jesus saying, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, I will draw all men unto me."

The power of the cross can give us the victory by undoing the devil's double cross.

The old rugged cross undoes the double cross that causes broken hearts. Jesus says in Luke 4:18 "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me...he hath sent me to heal the broken hearted and to preach deliverance to the captives.."

The old rugged cross undoes the double cross that runs people from the father house. Jesus says in John 14:2-3 "In my father's house are many mansions: if it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you ...that where I am ye may be also."

When you have the power of the cross you —are able to endure things you thought unendurable!

—are able to move things you thought unmovable!

—love things you though unlovable!
—forgive things you thought unforgiveable!
—bear things you thought unbearable
—face things you thought unfaceable!

No wonder the song writer wrote “The consecrated cross I bear till death shall set me free, and then go on my crown to wear, for there’s a crown for me!”

On a double cross, stretched out wide, he died for you me!

They buried him in an borrowed tomb, but Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with power of the cross in his hands

At the cross, at the cross where I first saw the light,
And the burden of my heart rolled away, It was there by faith I received my sight,
And now I am happy all the day!

Scripture: Then cometh Simon Peter following him, and went into the sepulcher, and seeth the linen clothes lie, And the napkin, that was about his head, not lying with the linen clothes, but wrapped together in a place by itself. Then went in also that other disciple, which came first to the sepulcher, and he saw, and believed. For as yet they knew not the scripture, that he must rise again from the dead. John 20:6-9

Introduction

Have you ever dined at a restaurant where the waiter took your plate before you were finished? It's supposed to be a courtesy, but it's really more of an irritation at times. As you enjoy your meal, you may taste from several different dishes, leaving morsels here and there. However, only a few minutes after you begin the waiter returns and asks to take your plate and leave you the dirty fork? For those accustomed to saving the best for last, such a practice is irritating because although we may appear to be finished, we're definitely not through.

There are some who enjoy eating the crispy tails of a whole catfish..don't take my plate!

There are some who enjoy stripping all of the meat off a T-Bone steak...don't take my plate.

There are a few people left who still sop the gravy off the plate with their biscuit...don't take my plate!

Maybe there should be a universal signal that we are finished; maybe a sign or a little card that a server can recognize as a true signal that we are finished. That would solve a lot of problems.

Life has a tendency to respond to us that way. There are many who want to count us out because we appear to be finished, when in fact there is plenty left on our plate; it only appears that we are finished. In fact, we are a long ways from being finished.

Didn't do well in school? Don't take my plate, I'm not finished!

Your business idea has fizzled? Don't take my plate, I'm not finished!

Your relationship looks totally consumed? Don't take my plate, we're not finished yet!

Has your life taken some bad turns onto dirt roads? Don't take my plate, I'm not finished yet.

The wonderful truth about our God is that he is a wonderworking God. He is so powerful that he can work miracles in lives that seem to be fractured, broken and beyond repair. When the world counts us out, our God can give us another chance to rise again. It may appear that life has picked us to the bones and there is nothing left, but faith teaches us to say, "I'm not finished yet"

As Christians, we rejoice in the knowledge that we are a work in progress. Just as the angry crowd thought it had defeated Christ on the day of Crucifixion but learned different on Resurrection Sunday; so shall we rise from the table of despair, victorious and redeemed. Don't take my plate, I'm not finished yet!

Exposition

This text focuses on what the disciples found when they arrived at the tomb on Resurrection morning.

Jesus had been in the grave for three days and three nights and in the dawn of the first day of the week several women came to the grave site to complete his burial dressings. They had hurriedly wrapped him in a shroud with sweet smelling spices and placed a traditional napkin over his face because the special, middle of the week, Sabbath was approaching.

When they arrived at the tomb they found it empty and ran to tell the disciples that his body had been stolen. Hearing what the women said, two of his disciples, Peter and John, ran to the tomb. Upon their arrival they found an empty tomb and folded clothes. Although the two men saw the same thing, they had contrasting opinions about what they meant.

Luke 24:12 says Peter's reaction involved six steps he: arose, ran, stooped, saw, departed, and wondered. Peter's immediate reaction at the tomb was not one of excited faith, but of doubt. He wondered.

He saw an empty tomb and folded clothes and was not sure about the resurrection. The empty tomb could have been caused by robbers, but the folded clothes were another matter. If the Scribes and Pharisees had stolen Jesus' body to prevent his disciples from claiming his resurrection, it would have been callous of them to strip the body naked and fold up the clothes and leave a suggestion that he left on his own power.

The folded napkin has been the subject of considerable research since two whole verses focus on the fact the folded napkin was neatly folded but separate from the remainder of the grave clothes.

The first body of thought is that that the folded napkin represented the work yet undone, since towels and napkins were closely associated with humble service.

The Second body of thought is that the folded napkin represented work undone that would be completed on Christ's return.

This view pointed to what has been said was a mealtime tradition in homes. When the servant set the dinner table for the master, but he made sure that he did not touch that table, until the master was finished. If the master was done eating, he would rise from the table, wipe his fingers, his mouth, and clean his beard, and would wad up that napkin and toss it onto the table. The servant would then know to clear the table. The wadded napkin meant, "I'm done". But if the master got up from the table, and folded his napkin, and laid it beside his plate, the servant would not dare touch the table, because the servant knew that the folded napkin meant, "I'm not finished yet." The folded napkin meant, "I'm coming back!"

Both views indicate that he arose. Both views indicate his body was not stolen and they both point to the fact what happened on the day of the crucifixion was not over, but only just begun.

Three parts

The redemption story has three parts, when taken together reveal how mankind will be reconciled back to God.

The Crucifixion was not all. We are a wicked people. Our sins have caused God to turn his back on us many times over the years. In Noah's time the entire world was destroyed with a flood. In the days of Abraham the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah were destroyed because of sex sin. The military war machine of Egypt was drowned in the Red Sea. In his anger with our sinfulness God has declared that "The Soul that sinneth, it shall die." Yet, God implemented a plan to restore us to the family of God and yet be true to his pledge of death to all sinners. His son chose pay the death penalty for us. The cruel punishment of Calvary was actually Christ making himself a sacrifice for us. The crown of thorns were for us. The 39 lashes across his back were for us. The nails in hands and feet were for us. When he gave up the ghost he completed phase one of the godly redemption plan. When he gave up the ghost on the cross he had seven last sayings; one of them was, it is finished. The crucifixion finished phase one but there was more to come. Salvation had been secured, but there was more to come. The price of redemption had been paid but there was more to come.

The resurrection was not all. On Sunday morning the women came to the tomb to embalm Jesus' body and found that the stone had been rolled away. They found the tomb empty. The disciples found his burial clothes and folded napkin. He had risen from the grave as he promised. As miraculous as was his resurrection, even that was not all. He had a few appointments to keep. He showed up in a meeting with disciples that evening and ate fish and bread. They saw him and Thomas almost touched him, even that was not all, he was not finished yet. He walked down the road Emmaus with two men who did not know who was and open their eyes, but even that was not all, he was not finished yet. He met with his disciples on the side of mountain and told them to go ye therefore into all the world and preach the gospel and baptize them in the name of the Holy Ghost. Even that was not all, he was not finished yet.

The resurrection was the completion of phase two of the divine plain. It demonstrated his control over the forces of nature and all of the created world. Yet even this divine demonstration was the ultimate end, there was more to come.

The Holy Spirit was not all. When Jesus commissioned his disciples to go into of the world he gave them the Holy Ghost, the indwelling presence of God that would guide them. It was the Holy Ghost that would give them ability to cast out demons, heal the sick, raise the dead and to perform miracles as proof of their divine mission. It was the Holy Ghost who would make them bold enough to stand tall against enemies and look the devil in the eye. It was the Holy Ghost who gave them the knowledge to teach and wisdom to discern the spirits. Yet, as phenomenal as it was, even the Holy Ghost, was not all. He was not finished yet!

Coming back again

Finally, brothers and sisters we must note that while salvation was secured on Calvary, hope was restored on resurrection morning and power was visited upon us at Pentecost, that's not how the story ends, his work won't be finished until he comes back again.

I know he's not finished because Acts 1:11 says, " Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven."

I know he's not finished because he said in John 14:2-3 "In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also."

Christ died on Calvary but he's coming back again.

He's coming back to complete an unfinished agenda and to usher in the day of the Lord.

When you think about that resurrection morning, let the folded clothes remind you that he's not finished yet.

He sees somebody that wrestling with a spirit

Defeat and he has to turn that defeat into victory. He's not finished yet.

Failure and he has to turn that failure into success. He's not finished yet!

Misfortune and has to turn that misfortune into good fortune. He's not finished yet.

Tragedy and he has to turn that tragedy it into an opportunity to heal. He's not finished yet.

Pain from a broken heart, he has to mend that broken hear. He's not finished yet.

Blunders and turn those blunders into wonders; He's not finished yet

Doubts and he has to take those doubts and wipe them out. He's not finished.

Every time I think that folded napkin I think about how the world tries to count us out and take our plate.

Sometimes I try and fall flat on my face, but don't take my plate, I'm not finished yet!

Sometimes I run and get a little weary, but don't take my plate, I'm not finished yet!

Sometimes I get lost and can't find my way, but don't take my plate, I'm not finished yet!

Sometimes I get frustrated and feel all alone, but don't take my plate, I'm not finished yet!

Sometimes I feel defeated because I've lost so many rounds, but don't take my plate, I'm not finished.

I heard a songwriter declare, "Please be patient with me, God is not through with me yet. When God gets through with me, I shall come forth as pure gold."

I'm reminded of Uncle Doug's hound dog. Every morning that hound dog would greet Uncle Doug as he walked out of the front gate. All day long he chased away strangers, protected the yard and kept a watch out for varmints that would slip up on the farm. Long about sun down every day that old hound dog would lift his lazy eyes. His tail would begin to wag. His ears would stick up straight. Anybody who was visiting would always ask, "Why is that old hound dog suddenly barking and pacing back and forth on the porch?" Aunt Jenny would answer, "Every morning that hound dog sees Uncle Doug leave. But on the way home from the mill Uncle Doug stops by the local cafe, and gets a fresh bag of scraps for that old dog. That dog is excited because he knows he's going to get a reward when his master comes home!"

I don't know about you but I know there is going to be a reward, when the master comes home!

When he comes back again the bottom rail will come to the top!

When he comes back again those who are last shall be first!

When he comes back again the wicked will cease from troubling and the weary will be at rest.

When they heard the crowd say, "crucify him" they thought it was over, but he wasn't finished yet!

When they saw the nails pierced into his hands and feet, they thought it was over, but he wasn't finished yet!

When they buried him in a borrowed tomb, they thought it was over, but he wasn't finished yet!

Bur early Sunday morning he arose from the grave with all power in his hands!

But that's not how the story ends, because one of these days he's coming back again...

I want to hear him say, "Servant! Servant! Well done!"

SCRIPTURE: "From henceforth let no man trouble me: for I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus." Galatians 6:17

Introduction

Have you noticed the increasing number of people who are displaying body tattoos?Two generations ago tattoos were frown upon by society in general. Those who wore them were cast as deviants and malcontents. Since the 1990's however, tattoos have become a hot property. It's so popular that the American Society of dermatology reported in 2005 that one in every four of all Americans between 18-50 years old has a tattoo somewhere. The tattoo industry is growing. There are an estimated 20,000+ parlors operating in the United States, according to a U.S. News & World Report article, which said, on the average, an establishment is being added in the country every day. It is one of the fastest growing industries in America.

Times have really changed. Once only men wore tattoos; now it's fashionable for women to have tattoos. It's becoming so fashionable that employers have relaxed the rules in some work places. A bank teller, sales representative or anyone that meets the public may be frowned upon by their employers, while the dishwasher, cook or warehouse worker may be ignored. As a general rule, the higher you plan to go in life, the less visible the tattoo. If you're not planning to move up, then the general opinion is tattoo up.

Speaking of going up. Consider the man who attended church occasionally but died unexpectedly. Instantly he appeared at the gates of heaven but was stopped at the gate because he had a tattoo. "You can't get inside because you have a tattoo" said the Angel. "I know I have a tattoo" answered the man but it's O.K. I I love the Lord and I tattooed his name right there on my arm." Curious the angel looked at the Tattoo and said, "That's not God's name, that says 'Andy" The man said, "That's right. That's God's name." The angel laughed, "If you had said Jehovah-Jireh, Jehovah-Nissi, or even Wonderful, or Counselor you might have gotten through, Andy is not God's name." Just as the angel was about the shut the gate the man insisted, "I know his name is Andy! I know it!" 'What makes you think his name is Andy?' the angel asked. "I know it because at church we use to sing his name in a song that said, 'Andy walks with me,

Andy talks with me, Andy tells me I am his own!"

-The angel could only laugh and said, "Thank God for grace, come on in!"

Why are tattoos frowned on in religious circles? It's because there is a command that God gave Israel in Leviticus 19:28: "Ye shall not make any cuttings in your flesh for the dead, nor print any marks upon you: I am the LORD."

It appears that views about tattoos are different today as many people dismiss traditional bible teachings and remove the taboo from the tattoo.

While there may never be 100 percent agreement on whether there should be tattoos are not, believers all agree that we all bear the mark of Christ on our lives. We show it in a variety of ways. Some people mark their cars with fish bumper stickers or wear "Got Jesus" t-shirts. Some wear WWJD bracelets, or cross necklaces, or crosses inscribed on their book bags and t-shirts. It's a way of saying that we're marked; we are followers of Christ.

We bear the mark of Christ not by what we have tattooed in our skin or the jewelry we wear around our necks. We show that we are Christians by the way we live and relate others as ambassadors of Christ.

As Christians, we live for Christ. In fact we are marked and we boldly identify with that faith through our words and deeds. We bear the marks of suffering in our spirit and we respond in gratitude with a life of service to the kingdom. That mark says to the world, "I was lost but now I'm found, blind but now I see."

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he testifies that his life is a testimony to his faithfulness to God.

Paul wrote that the Marks of a true Christian are not on our bodies, on our clothes, or even in our loud professions of faith.

For Paul, the cross of Christ was what he chiefly gloried in it was the mark of his high calling. The false teachers were afraid of persecution, and this was the great reason why they were zealous for circumcision to show a sign to the crowd that they were a part of the "club."

Paul said he needed no sign at all. His life was a living testimony to his faith in God. If others needed to see a mark he noted that he bore in his body the marks of the Lord Jesus, the scars of those wounds which he had sustained from persecuting enemies, for his steady adherence to him, and that doctrine of the gospel which he had received from him.

I need no mark except the life I live, was Paul's testimony. It's there for the world to see.

Marked

Every one of his has been marked one way or another, the trick is to find out who has marked whom.

Who marked you?

MARKS ON OUR LIVES TELL OUR PAST: There are many of us who have been through storms in our lives and we have the marks to show it. The world has marked us in one way or another and many have either been helped or hurt by what has been left behind. An abused child is marked for life and will always wrestle with the mark left on his troubled memory. A struggling student is marked often fatally when a teacher calls him dumb or a misfit. When we have failed, our taste for relationships is marked in a dark way. There are very few people who enter adulthood without bring a few marks with them. Our marks tell our story. That's why there are some believers in the church now who have tattoos on their bodies; many of which they acquired at a time in their lives when they did not know better or were wondering. It tells a story of how they felt at that time; it may not represent the way they feel now, but they have a mark that will not be removed. What is the mark? The name of an old boyfriend? A lost love? A reminder of a time when you were a little more worldly than you are now? Our marks tell our story. For many those marks tell of a time before they found the Lord; these are marks of anger, frustration and loose living. These are the marks that remind us of 1 Corinthians 6:11 And such were some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God.

MARKS TELL OUR PRESENT: There are marks that tell our past but there are marks on our lives that tell our present. They tell what God is doing to us and for us right now. This week someone has contemplated going to a parlor and getting a mark placed on their body somewhere. What will the mark say? Will it reflect your faith in God and your obedience to him? Right now the bible says Satan wants you to do something for him. The Book of Revelation says that in the last days that Satan will attempt get men to trust their lives and destinies to his hands. In Rev. 13:16-17 Satan will cause his name to be written in the right hands of those who follow him. As we watch the tattoo phenomenon grow it gets scary it means that we are living in the last days. Satan writes HIS name on your body so you won't forget about the pain, trouble, hardship and trouble he has caused you. Satan does just the opposite of what God does. Look at Isaiah 49:16. It says, "Behold I have graven thee upon the palms of my hands; thy walls are continually before me." God writes YOUR name in HIS hand so he won't forget YOU. Right now, God has all of our names marked in the palm of his hands! He won't forget us and he won't leave us alone.

MARKS ARE PAINFUL TO REMOVE: Those who specialize in putting tattoos on us remind us that they can be removed but the process is both expensive and painful. Most people who want them removed simply try to cover them up with more art that resembles their skin. That is what happens to many people today. The world has put so many marks on their lives that they are too painful to remove; so they try to cover them up; but the pain and the marks are still there. What Christ does for each of us is to help us deal with what he have now? Does that mean that if you want to be a Christian that you have to run out and try to get your marks removed to be saved?

No it doesn't mean that. That's been done. It'll be your story as long as you are in this life. Neither does Christ offer to remove your physical marks. What he does offer is the opportunity to remove the pain and the penalty associated with your marks and to replace with peace and perfection that can only come from God. This is what comes with a life that is born again in Christ.

Marks show where we met the Lord

Finally, brothers and sisters, the day we met the Lord is the day that we were marked for life.

The day you met the Lord you did not go to a tattoo parlor but you were marked for life!

You didn't look for a rose to put on your leg or an Eagle to put on your arm, but you were marked for life!

You didn't look for a lover's name to place on your thigh or along your neck, but you were marked for life!

The day you met the Lord is the day he changed your life forever.

Moses climbed to the top of a mountain and stayed 40 days and nights and there came into the presence of God. When he came down from the mountain, his hair had turned white and his face shined brilliantly; he was marked for life!

At one time or another every Christian has met the Lord. He remembers the day and the hour because since that time he has never been the same.

When you meet the Lord he leaves his mark on you and you begin to see things different. When you meet the Lord the:

—SKIES seems to be bluer
—SUN seems to shine brighter
—BIRDS seem to sing sweeter —FLOWERS seem to blossom fuller
—AIR seems more refreshing
—STARS seem to have more luster
—BURDENS seem lighter
—FAITH seems stronger
—HEAVEN seems closer

No wonder the song writer declared "I met God one morning, my soul was feeling sad, heart heavy laden with a bowed down head. He lift my burden and made me so glad, all that I know there was something within."

Jacob wrestled with Lord all night long and as the morning sun began to rise he refused to let go until he was blessed by God. The Lord blessed him and touched him with his finger and left a reminder in the lameness of his thigh.

When you have been touched by the Lord, it leaves a mark and you're never the same again. When you've been touched by the Lord:

—Sadness turns into gladness

—Fear turns into courage

—Defeat turns into victory

—Problems turn into opportunities

—Failures turn into successes

—Despair turns into hope

—Discouragement turns into inspiration

No wonder the song writer declared: "He touched me, he touched me, and oh the joy that floods my soul, something happened and now I know, he touched me and made me whole!"

When he carried the cross for me he touched me and marked me for life!

When he died out on Calvary for me, he touched me and marked me for life!

And when he arose early Sunday morning he touched me, and now I am no longer the same.

Don't Start Nothing and there won't be Nothing

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 17, 2010

SCRIPTURE: I tell you that, if these should hold their peace, the stones would immediately cry out." Luke 19:40

Introduction

Has there ever been a time when you said you were not going to get involved in a situation but you got involved anyway?It happens on many fronts and in many arenas: You want to be quiet but they draw you in. Your first words were "I said I wasn't gon' say nothing but..." or "I hadn't planned to get in this but you just had to keep on pushing me."

In the language of the streets there is a phrase that says, "Don't start nothing and there won't be nothing." That means that I'm trying to walk away from this without taking it to another level. If we stop now, it will end right here.

We now use that phrase to describe a variety of situations.

A husband and wife are about to argue: Don't start nothing and there won't be nothing.

Two youth are about to fight: Don't start nothing and there won't be nothing.

It also applies to excitement as well. On the Campaign Trail Barack Obama rallied a crowd with the chant "Yes, we can." At his next stop it took nearly 15 minutes to quiet the crowd and to hold back its excitement. He was advised by his staff not to use the phrase at this stop because he would stir up the crowd all over again and he'd never get to his speech. His staffers in effect said, "Don't start nothing and it won't be nothing."

It's that way whenever we start talking about the Lord, too. Once we get started it hard to stop. He's done so much for so many. Talking about the Lord in the presence of a person who has been blessed just opens a flood gate that cannot be closed.

That's what happened whenever Sanctified Sally came to join a church. Sanctified Sally was the only person in Froggy Bottom who had been put out of every church in the bottoms. First it was the Catholics; then the Lutheran and Episcopal church turned her out. The Methodist Church, including AME's, AME's and UME's turned her out too. It seemed that Sanctified Sally just could not keep silent in church. She had to praise the Lord and she had to do it loudly. The last church in town was a large church on the hill where all the quiet people in town went to worship. She sat next to a judge who became a bit disturbed that the new member stood on her feet, waved her hands and shouted AMEN every time she heard the name of Jesus. For weeks the church leaders wondered what they could do about this new member who disturbed others with her shouting, but the couldn't think of any way. One day got a speeding ticket for going one of the limit and she was hauled in the front the judge she sat next to in church. The Judge told Sally she could avoid a $500 fine and 30 jail sentence if she could go church Sunday and not say a word. So, on probation Sally sat quietly as a visiting preacher from the country came to the church. He talk about the goodness of the Lord and Sally began to squirm in her seat. He piled it on: God is forgiving, merciful and kind. Sally squirmed more and more until the preacher said, "God can do anything but fail!" At that Sally jumped and shouted, I'm sorry judge you gpn' have to put me in jail, but I serve a God who can make my bail. If you don't start nothing it won't be nothing."

As Christians, we are always ready to testify about the goodness of the Lord. Sometimes, when we get started we don't know when to stop. We praise him for his wonderful works and for his mercy and grace. If you don't want to hear it then don't start nothing. If you don't start nothing there won't be nothing!

Exposition

Our text first considers Jesus as he focused on the sheer impossibility of a saint holding back praise in the presence of their king.

The Sanhedrin Council worked feverously to keep down excitement about Christ. It seemed that each time they had quelled one bit of excitement news of another healing, or other miraculous act starting the people buzzing about him all over again.

They wanted the crowds silenced because Jesus was troubling the status quo. The healing of an impotent man on the Sabbath (John 5), A blind man on the Sabbath (John 9:16) and the raising of Lazarus from the dead had attracted many people to Jesus who viewed him as the one person who could unite them in battle against the Romans and restore the kingdom. The Sanhedrin plotted to kill Lazarus so that he would not be walking proof of Jesus' power and they plotted to have Jesus himself crucified.

When he entered the city, the scribes and Pharisees saw the crowds and were visibly upset that his followers were shouting and praising him for his Lordship. They warned Jesus to tell his disciples to be quiet.

That's when Jesus declared to them that if they were to be silent the very rocks would cry out to him.

Trying to hold back the excitement of that day was impossible task.

Worship is from the heart

In one simple act Jesus gave us a lesson on worship by precept and example.

WORSHIP IS EXCITING: When the crowds praised Jesus they were excited. They were excited about what they expected him to do. In other places he had healed the sick and raised the dead. In other places the blind were given the sight and even those caught in sin were forgiven. When the people worshipped him they were excited about what he had done and what they expected him to do in Jerusalem. Believers are the same way. We are excited about what Christ has done for us in the past and what he's going to do for us in the days ahead. We're excited about the healings that could be coming! We're excited about the job that we've been trying to land. We're excited about the renewed spirit of growth we share today. We can't help it but all of that good news makes us wave our hands, stand on our feet at times, smile at others and for the most part we give God praise for being a just God.

WORSHIP IS FROM THE HEART: True worship is from the heart. It is spontaneous. It cannot be orchestrated. When Jesus entered the city there was no one outside the gate who ran in to tell the crowd that it was time to shout, on call or to wave the palm branches in the air all at the same time in the same direction. It was from the heart. In a similar sense today, worship is from the heart. We clap when we are moved to clap, not because we are told. We stand on our feet, wave our hand or even do our dance when we are moved to do so; when our hearts demand we respond. There are many who orchestrate praise. In some choirs the singers clap when they are told to clap, jump when they are told to jump and lift their hands in praise on cue. Yet, true worship is spontaneous, it has not particular order, it comes as the spirit gives utterance. Some may cry. Some may shout. Some may sit still and soak in the atmosphere. Others may dance the holy dance. No matter what method is used, true worship is from the heart.

TRUE WORSHIP CANNOT BE HINDERED: The scribes and Pharisees soon learned that true worship cannot be contained. Jesus did not make any effort to restrain his followers or tell them to stop praising his name; yet the scribes continued. That's when Jesus pointed them to the impossibility of muzzling a person who has been blessed and one who expects to be blessed.

When Jesus healed a man whose lives were plagued with demons he told them man not to tell anyone, but the man couldn't keep it to himself. The woman at the well couldn't keep it to herself she had to run all over the city saying "Come see a man who told me all I've ever done."

There was somebody in the crowd, named Lazarus, who had been dead for several days but given new life, when he saw Jesus riding into the city, he just couldn't hold his peace.

There was somebody in the crowd, that had been blind, but the hand of Jesus touched him and made him whole, and he just couldn't hold it, he had to tell somebody.

There was somebody in the crowd, whose life had been made whole because Jesus passed by, and they couldn't hold their peace.

When Jesus has touched you and made a change in your life, it's hard to hear his named called and not respond with praise.

The Rocks

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must consider that if we don't praise him that the rocks will tell his story!

It would be a tragedy if the silence of the lambs caused the trees, the wind and earth rise up and testify. That would be a tragedy because whenever the Lord has blessed us we should be willing to testify.

Whenever the Lord has done something good for you, there's a whole lot of shouting going on.

Whenever you think about how God has blessed us, there's a whole lot of hand waving going on!

Whenever we think about how God has picked us up and turned us around, there's a whole lot foot patting going!

Whenever we think about how he provides food for us when we are hungry, there's a whole lot of hand clapping going on!

When we think about how he brought us out of nowhere and carried us to somewhere. There's a whole lot of shouting going on!

We're shouting because of what he has done.

We're shouting because of what we expect him to do.

We're shouting because he's been good to us and we just can't keep it to ourselves.

Jesus said if you don't want to praise him that the rocks will cry out.

What could inanimate objects with no mouths his praise testify too?

What could lifeless chunks of granite, limestone and clay say that we could not say?

What could be the testimony of the rocks?

What could immobile specimens of creation with no hands to clap or tongues to speak his name have to say that would could not say?

In my imagination I hear the rocks saying don't call on us because we have a lot to say, Don't start nothing and it won't be nothing!

The grains of sands were ready to testify. "I heard Jesus say, any man who heard his words and refused to do them would be like a man who built his house upon sinking sand." Then he turned around and said in Psalm 139 that his thoughts about the saints are greater than the number of the sands. Psalms 139:18 "If I should count them, they are more in number than the sand: when I awake, I am still with thee." If you don't want to praise let us tell his story!

When the grains of sand take their seats the pebbles rise to speak. The pebbles said, "Don't start nothing and it won't be nothing" because if you want to know about the Lord, I can tell you how David stood in front of Goliath without a sword or shield. All he had in his hand was slingshot and five little pebbles; but the those pebbles in God's hands felled a mighty giant. Don't start nothing and it won't be nothing.

When the pebbles sat down the stones stood up and said, "Don't y'all start talking about Jesus. If don't start nothing it won't be nothing, because we can tell you how the scribes and Pharisees caught a woman in adultery and were about to stone, but Jesus said "He without sin, let him cast the first stone." and the never threw the first stone.

If you want to about Jesus, and his power to forgive

If you want to talk about Jesus and his saving grace

If you want to talk about Jesus and his soul saving love...don't start nothing and we won't be nothing because we could talk all day.

When stones sat down the rocks then stood up saying, "Don't start nothing and it won't be nothing, because we'll have tell you that David said, "He's my rock, my sword and shield." The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear. I heard him tell Peter "Upon this rock I'll build my church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

No wonder the old timers said, "He's my rock, my sword and shield. He's my wheel in the middle of the wheel." He hideth my soul in the cleft of the rock and covers me there with his hands!

All of the stones sat down as the mountain filled up the room. Don't start nothing and it won't be nothing because I heard Jesus tell his disciples that if they had the faith of a mustard see they could speak to the mountains and they move out of their way.

I don't know about you but I've had my share of my mountains and hills to climb!

But the God we serve can take mountains and turn them into molehills. Don't start nothing and there won't be nothing.

When the Lord has: (You ought to feel a shout coming on!)

—Saved you through his grace

—Forgiven you through his mercy

—lifted you through his love

—comforted you through his assurance

—strengthened you through his power

—encouraged you through his promise

—revived you through his glory

We ought to be glad to tell somebody how he was wounded for our transgressions and bruised for our iniquity.

We ought to tell somebody how they whipped him all night long and put a crown of thorns on his head.

We ought to tell somebody how they nailed him to an old rugged cross and he died out on Calvary

We ought tell somebody that Early Sunday morning he arose from the dead with all power in his hands.

If you start talking about Jesus, I won't be able to keep my peace!

Don't start nothing and there won't be nothing!

Born to serve the most high God

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

April 21, 2010

SCRIPTURE: Take the sum of the sons of Kohath from among the sons of Levi, after their families, by the house of their fathers, From thirty years old and upward even until fifty years old, all that enter into the host, to do the work in the tabernacle of the congregation. This shall be the service of the sons of Kohath in the tabernacle of the congregation, about the most holy things: Numbers 4:2-4*

Introduction

Have you ever notice that there are some families that seem as if they all do the same types of things?There are families of school teachers, doctors, athletes, musicians and singers. It seems that certain gifts run in families. Daddy does it, his daddy did it and his daddy before him.

It seems that certain children were born with a special mission in mind. Those who were born to be teachers seem as if they were born with certain intellect. The child that's born to be an inventor starts tinkering with things apart and investigating before he can even walk. Those destined to be singers were singing even when they were children. They were born to do what they do.

There are people in the church who represent another generation of choir members, preachers, teachers and ushers. Their parents were ushers and so were their great aunts and uncles. It just seems that they were born to be on the usher board; they work in many areas of the church but they are most comfortable on the usher board.

Consider the Tater Family that lived down by the creek. Every member of their family had been in the service of the Lord for nearly 50 years except Uncle Potater. One Sunday, to nearly everyone's surprise Uncle Potater showed up at church. It was a big surprise. At the end of the service the preacher shook hands with the members of the Tater family, all wearing their usher uniforms. When Uncle Potater shook hands the preacher said, "All the members of the Tater family have been faithful ushers for nearly 50 years. Why don't you do like the other members of your family and join the army of the Lord?"

"I'm Already in the Army of the Lord," answered Uncle Potater.

"What do you mean?" said the preacher, "If you are already in the Army of the Lord, how come we don't see you except mostly on Easter and Christmas. We don't never see you." At that Uncle Potater leaned over to the preacher and whispered, "Don't tell anybody, but I'm in the Secret Service."

There are probably many people like Uncle Potater born to serve but are serving in the Secret Service.

As Christians, we are happy to serve in the army of the Lord. We're not in the secret service, we are in the regular service, "we've got to fight although we have to cry. We have to hold up the blood stained banner. We have to hold it up until we die."

Exposition

This text focuses on the book of Numbers as it details the particulars of the selection of families of Levites who would serve the Tabernacle.

Before Solomon built the Temple of the Lord, Israel had a tent as the dwelling place of the Lord. It was called the Tabernacle. In it was the Ark of the Covenant wherein God's presence was manifested.

The care for the Tabernacle, worship and offerings was delegated to 212 families, each with a specific duty regarding the temple. This duty was carried out from one generation to the next in the same family.

Some were Priests, others were temple guards, and some were responsible for maintaining the sacrificial fire.

The job of breaking down the Tabernacle, packing it and moving it was assigned to one family of what we would call ushers known as the Kohathites. They were responsible for caring for and moving the ark, table, lamp stand, altars, vessels of the sanctuary, and the screen (Num. 3:29-31). The Kohathites could not touch these objects and could move them only after they had been properly prepared by Aaron and his sons. The result of attempting to move these objects without their first being fit with poles for carrying was death .

According to Holman, when David was King, he appointed 120 Kohathites under the leadership of Uriel to bring the ark to Jerusalem (1 Chron. 15:5). When the Israelites returned from the Exile, some of the Kohathites were placed in charge of preparing the show bread every Sabbath (1 Chron. 9:32).

Born for Service

There are many areas of service in the church, but those who are best fitted to serve are those who are born to serve. Many boards have experienced problems over the years because although the group had a large membership that serve, there were many in the group who were church members but who were not born again. To be an effective usher, a member must be born again. A Christian is guided and enabled by the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit is given to him of God. The inward power of Christian living that causes a Christian to live as he lives, is "Christ in you, the hope of glory" (Col. 1:27).

An usher who is not born again is not born to serve.

Those who have been born again see themselves as soldiers in the army of the Lord.

Tested for Service

Only those who have been born to serve can serve as ushers. It is one of the most challenging and demanding areas of service in the church.

They are important because they are usually the first persons that worshippers meet when the enter into the house of the Lord.

Doorkeepers are important, so important that the Wal-Mart Stores have hired special doormen to greet their customers as they enter and to say goodbye to them as they leave. Schools have been established, across the nation, to teach butlers and valet the fineries of personal service.

In the secular community good doorkeepers are in demand and are a valuable asset to the community.

Can a church, looking for a warm personality to greet worshippers, go out and hire a people to be friendly to its visitors?

Can a congregation take someone, distant from the faith, run him through a class, stick him in a uniform, and place him at the doorway of God's house to greet the faithful as they come to worship the Lord?

Only those who are born to serve can past the test of service: 1)Will you serve when you don't feel like serving? Will you serve when they don't want you to serve them? Will you serve when you don't have to?

If your answer is no to any of these three then there is a possibility that you were not born to serve.

A doorkeeper in God's House is not an imported professional smiler, trained in appearing friendly but is a born again Christian who serves by choice to usher believers into the presence of the Lord.

Reward for Service

Finally, brothers and sisters there is a reward for those who are born to serve and choose not to be in the secret service.

Those who are born to serve are born to serve are among those who sing, "I am on the battlefield for my Lord. And I promised him that I would serve him till I die. I'm on the battlefield for my Lord."

Those who answer the call of service as doorkeepers don't get a paycheck, but they are showered with Godly rewards.

The rewards they receive reflect the level of trust they have in God.

Those who are born to serve have God's presence that he will be with them wherever they may be.

If they take the wings of Eagles and fly in the sky, behold God is there!

If they go to the depths of the sea, God is there!

He'll wipe tears from their eyes; he'll encourage them when they are low. "He's always right there by their side."

Those who have been born to serve have the assurance that God will supply your daily needs.

Philippians 4:19 declares “My God shall supply all your needs”

Those who are born to serve hear the words of the savior in Luke 12:28 “If then God so clothes the grass, how much more will he clothe you”

I heard John 14:2 declare “In my father’s house are many mansions, I go to prepare a place for you.”

I heard a song writer declare “Come and go with me to my father’s house” there is Joy, Joy, Joy!

If you have been born to serve in the house of God:

— Don’t let your service get limited to mortar and bricks!

— Be determined by the color and style of the uniform!

— Don’t be selective about which places you will serve!

— Don’t worry about whether you can hold an office

— Don’t restrict your service to things made by man!

I heard Dr. Watts declare, “To serve this present age my calling to fulfill, oh may all my powers engage to do my master’s will!”

I don’t know about you but I’ve found out that good things happen when you serve the Lord.

Serve the Lord who can take darkness and turn it into light!

Serve the Lord who can take defeat and turn it into victory!

Serve the Lord who can take sadness and turn it into gladness!

Serve him as an usher, but also serve him as you teach in the Sunday school

Serve him as an usher but also serve him as you minister to the needy

Serve him as an usher but also do the work of an evangelist and tell a dying world about Jesus!

Jesus, who died on Calvary!

Jesus, who rose on Sunday morning!

When You Put It In His Hands

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 2, 2010

SCRIPTURE: "Into thine hand I commit my spirit: thou hast redeemed me, O LORD God of truth. I have hated them that regard lying vanities: but I trust in the LORD. I will be glad and rejoice in thy mercy: for thou hast considered my trouble; thou hast known my soul in adversities; Psalm 31:5-7

Introduction

Has anyone ever taken anything out of your hands?When a circumstance is in your hands you have control of the outcome. You determine the nature of the situation and to a large extent, its planning and execution.

Henry David Thoreau in his treatise "Self Reliance" maintained that every man is the captain of his own soul and charts his own destiny independent of any forces outside of his own will. However, we have come to learn that Thoreau was obviously in error, we do not control our own destinies; our fate lies in the hands of a power much higher, stronger and more controlling than ourselves.

We have come to learn that God is always watching us and directing us. He constantly urges us to follow the divine path and corrects us when we error. The wise among us have learned that it is best to put our lives in his hand from start to finish.

When our lives are in God's hands we let him pilot us. We don't even try to co-pilot; we just let him give the orders and we execute them. We constantly pray that He will give us wisdom and common sense to navigate the meandering channels of life.And when life gets tough? Well, when life gets tough we do the exact same thing; we put it all in his hands.As Christians, our faith allows us to trust God completely with our lives on this earth and our secured place in the kingdom to come. As each new day begins, we joyfully say, "It's in your hands."

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus as he places his circumstance in God's hand.

Many will recognize the words of the text as one the last sayings of Jesus on the cross.

As God, He remained omnipotent. He had the power to deal with his circumstance from the resources of heaven as the embodiment of the word among men. However, as a man he was dealing with a situation that was completely out of his control.

As a man, he had been nailed to the cross.

As a man, he had been humiliated, beaten, and falsely accused.

At his lowest, weakest point, Jesus called upon God by quoting David in Psalm 31:5 when he said, "Father, into thy hands I commit my spirit." In Psalm 31:7 David acknowledged that he knew God was aware of his trouble and his situation, but he trusted God to handle it according to His will. It is worthy to note that while David rejoiced in the knowledge that God was aware of his situation his rejoicing did not assume that because God knew, that the remedy David sought would be received. Regardless to what action God took regarding his situation he resolved that God would work it out to his good, therefore he rejoiced with just the knowledge that God "considered" his trouble.

As a man, he limited himself to only those responses available to believers who would follow after Him. It is this carnal response that gets our attention because it is in this circumstance that we find ourselves most often.

Though facing pain, rejection and death he continued to trust in God, setting an example for all believers to follow.

What to put in his hands

Today, believers should consider putting three things in God's hands.

OUR TIMES ARE IN GOD'S HANDS: We are living in dangerous times that that seem to defy all logic and good sense. These are confusing times in which Men are marrying men, women are loving women and children are growing up with two mothers and no father. These are times when nickel and dime pushers on the Southside are arrested for selling drugs to Hummer driving junkies in three piece suits from the North side own by stuffy white shirts from the west side and flirty little skirts from the east side and every day it seems somebody gets shot, stabbed or dies. These are times when nearly every home has a battery of dead bolt locks, iron bars and burglar alarm systems to protect their homes when their gone and their lives when they are home. These are dangerous times; yet in all of that despair there is still hope. It is not beyond God's ability to deal with the situation; he can handle it, if we do not become spiritual vigilantes and try to handle it all by ourselves. It's obvious that our times are growing more complex at rate that only God can handle it. We must do what we can do to resolve matters then put the rest in God's hand. Our times are in the hands of God.

OUR BURDENS ARE IN GOD'S HANDS: Many of us are handling a number of burdens at the same time. Sometimes, those burdens get frustrating. There are some who trying to relationship issues with education issues that get complicated because finance issues and health issues get introduced into the mix. Add to that all of the problems that seem to pile one on top of the other and soon we get a picture of a believer who feels the need to scream. When our hands are full we get frustrated and sometimes in the quiet of it all we start to feel sorry for ourselves. Yet, David in Psalm

31:7 says that even with his hands full he found a reason to be glad because he knew God knew about his troubles. He also knew that if God was aware of his trouble that God would respond in his own way, so instead of having a pity party, David said he decided to rejoice. Roberta Martin put it this way, "We are our heavenly father's children and we all know he loves us one and all, just ask for strength and keep on toiling, though the tear drops fall. We have the joy of this assurance that our heavenly father, he hears and answers prayer, and he knows, yes he knows, just how much you can bear."

OUR HANDS ARE IN GOD'S HANDS. In all of David's troubles he constantly trusted in God. He was confident that God would eventually work his situation out to his advantage because he knew that God is "for me." Likewise, when we as Christians face similar trials, we should remember that God will work it out to our advantage. Cliff Jones in his book, "Winning Through Integrity" tells of his frustration in trusting God by noting that once, while in Vietnam, he sought very hard to make it to an air pick up spot and prayed to God that he would help him get there on time. When he arrived the plane was just leaving. Jones was frustrated and angry because he had to take a boat, unshielded from the sun, in a day long trip that could have been taken in 30 minutes on the plane. In his solitude he chided God for not delivering for him. When he made it to his destination he learned that the plane he missed was shot down by enemy fire and everyone on board was killed. God worked it out his dilemma to his advantage.

Romans 8:28 puts it this way, "..All things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are called according to his purpose." It simply means in times of trouble, trust God to work it out to your advantage. Trust God to twist the events in such a way that you are better off by them. Trust God to manage the affairs of the world in a way that will benefit his children the most.

It is often difficult to understand the perplexities of the moment and know that God has a purpose for everything. Perhaps that's what the song writer had in mind when he wrote: "Farther along we'll know all about it, farther along we'll understand why, cheer up my brother, live in the sunshine, we'll understand it all by and by."

In God's Hands

Finally, brothers and sisters there is a Latin phrase "In Deus Manus" which means in God's hands; that's where we should put it all, in His hands.

In Deus Manus has a simple meaning to believers; it means that situations change when they are in God's hand.

In Deus Manus means we who have fallen can get back up again, when we put our fallen condition in God's hands.

In Deus Manus means we who have lost our way can find it again, when our missing location is placed in God's hands.

In God's hands, the impossible becomes possible and the unreachable becomes attainable!

In God's hands, waning strength can be restored. I know it's true because I heard the word say, "They that wait on the Lord, shall renew their strength. They shall mount up on wings as Eagles, they shall run and not be weary, walk and not faint."

In God's hands, what appears to be lost causes can be changed to acts of restoration.

As I close, I'm reminded of a story that was told of a mother who worked hard to send her son through college.

Upon his graduation he sent for her and notice that all through the visit that she wore gloves on her hands and held them close to her side.

Finally he asked her about it and she took off the gloves and showed him a pair of hands that were scarred and wrinkled and as she held out her hand it began to tremble and shake.

The son wanted to know how her hands were injured so and she said "I got these scars on my knuckles from washing clothes on rub board to pay for your first year's tuition." "The chemicals and detergents in my mop water dried out my hands as I worked to pay for your second and third year's tuition."

"My hands started trembling and shaking, as I worried all through your last year, of how I would make it through". "But had a little talk with the Lord and I told him that I tried the best that I know how, but it's in your hands now! Lord, take my hand, lead me along the way." Her favorite song became "Precious Lord, Take my hand!"

I don't know about you but I think I'll put in the hands of the Lord!

Every believer should say: "Lord, I'm putting it in your hand because your..:

—GLORY is much greater than mine; POWER is much stronger than mine

—METHODS are much wiser than mine; UNDERSTANDING is much broader than mine!

—WAYS are much safe than mine; HEART is much bigger than mine;

—BURDEN is lighter than mine; and LOVE is much deeper than mine!

The hands of Jesus were scarred hands!

The hands of Jesus were bruised hands!

These hands had touched a blind man's eyes and made him see!

These hands had touched a lame man's legs and made them walk!

These hands were raised against the winds that obeyed his will!

These hands fed 5,000 with two fishes and five loaves of bread!

These hands were nailed to an old rugged cross!

I'm putting it in God's hands because, like the savior's example, I don't know what the future holds but I know who holds my hand!

On day out on Calvary I heard him cry out:

Father, Father, into thy hands, I commit my spirit!

But early, one Sunday morning he rose up from the grave and declared to the world that "all power" is in these hands!

"All power!"

"All power!"

No. 9435-Mother's Day

Muhdear's Blessing

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 2010

SCRIPTURE: "Then saith he to the disciple, Behold thy mother! And from that hour that disciple took her unto his own home. " John 19:27

Introduction

There are many children who know their mothers by a number of names before they really know their real names; do you remember the names you once used to describe mother?If you are like most people the first name you called your mother was probably associated with your infant verbal skills. Scholars tell us that at about four months old, babies can understand all the basic sounds that make up the native language. Between this time and six months of age, babies develop the ability to make some vocal sounds, which means mothers may hear the words they've been dreaming about, namely "ma-ma." While child development experts say it's too early for your baby to connect those sounds with the actual persons associated with the words, mothers are nevertheless still excited.

It will be a few more months before children start to associate the words "mama" to the person they will later know as mother.

Once the association is made, many continue to refer to their mothers as "mama."

Others will adopt other terms of endearment that refer to her. One of the terms is mother but to millions that term is "Muhdear" or even shorter "Muh."

Muhdear is the term for mother that sticks among those who associate the woman who nurtures them with a name.

Many children can't use the term "Muhdear" or any other term because they do not really know their mothers.

There are many who live in the same house with the mother in their families and do not know them. Of course, we know their names and their vital statistics: birthday, maiden name, education and other information available on any resume"; yet with all of that knowledge can we answer the question, "who is my mother?" There are many children who live under the same roof with their mothers and do not know them yet? They are familiar with her but we don't really know the woman we call mother.

Motherhood is not always a matter of biology but it is a matter of relationships.

Those who are fortunate had not just one Muhdear but scores of supportive relationships that make it necessary to thank God for my birth, but also for those who gave me nurture after birth. There was a neighborhood of mothers, but only one Muhdear.

As Christians, we give God thanks for our mothers. We celebrate who they were, who they are, and they have helped us to be. Whether we call them mama, Muhdear or mother, we praise God for them every day.

Exposition

This text give us striking snapshots of Mary, the mother of Jesus as she stands by her son at the foot of the cross and as she stands with other women waiting for the descent of the Holy Spirit.

John shows us Mary at the cross. No one but a mother can understand how she must have felt standing at the foot of the cross watching the child she carried in her womb fastened to a Roman cross by both hand and foot. John records the words of Jesus from the cross as he looked down at his mother and commended her care into John's hands. His words, "behold thy mother" were an invitation to John to embrace Mary as his own mother and for Mary to embrace John as her own son. His words to Mary were, "Woman behold thy son."

The Act of the Apostles shows Mary for the last time. She is gathered with other women who were praying for the power or of the Holy Spirit which had been promised by Christ in his last days. Even though she was the mother of Jesus, she did not neglect joining the other women in prayer and supplication. No one knows what happened to Mary after that. She is never mentioned again in the New Testament. The Bible does not say what she did, where she lived, or where she died.

What we know about Mary is that she spent most of her adult life being a mother to her son; through miraculous good times and tragic bad times, she was always by his side.

Jesus referred to her as mother. She was the kind of mother that we call "Muhdear."

Who is Muhdear?

The first thought that comes to mind when many think of Muhdear is the loud, vociferous, and comical character in the Tyler Perry movies. Perry's Muhdear curses, carries a pistol doesn't think much of church. She's the stereotype of the absurd, but certainly not typical of all of those known as Muhdear in millions God fearing homes around the world.

Who is the woman many call Muhdear?

Consider the little girl who became separated from her mother in a busy train station. The little girl began to cry and was afraid. A new worker at the information desk found the little girl and tried to console her. She was Polish and not familiar with the way things work in the African-American community. She asked the girl, "What's your mother's name?" The little girl responded, "Muh-dear!"

Armed with a name the Polish attendant, announced over the intercom, would the African-American woman who answers to the name “Muh-Dear” please come to the information desk. In a few seconds there were 40 Black women standing in front of the counting saying, “You asked for me? I’m Muh-Dear.” As the mother came forth, glad to see her daughter, the attendant looked at all the other women standing at the counter and said, “Do all of you have the same name?” The grateful mother said, “Ma’am, in our neck of the woods, every mother is named “Muh-dear.”

Muhdear is there

One of the Perry movies is entitled, “Muhdear Goes to Jail.” It was hilariously funny, but when you think about there is not a place that a real Muhdear wouldn’t go for her children.

Good Muhdear are “there” for their children.

Today, there are millions of mothers who are making personal sacrifices to be “there” for their children. In today’s time that is much more demanding than in biblical times, but yet good mother’s today are finding ways to “be there” for their children. They are attending school events, participating in school PTA, selling cookies for the Girl Scouts, cheering their children on the athletic fields and traveling countless miles to watch their children perform with school teams. .

If a movie was made with a title depicting all the places that real Muhdears have to go for their kids the movie trailers would read, “Come and see Muhdear as she makes uniforms for the band, it’s Muhdear goes to band practice!” Another commercial might say, “Muhdear meets her match as she takes on the referee, see Muhdear goes to the game.” Muhdear goes to the Principal’s office. Muhdear goes to dance school. Muhdear goes to piano lessons!

We all have fond memories of one of those scenes or another. What happened then, could have easily been made into a movie.

In reality, there is not a place that a real mother won’t go for her children, including jail. Moreover, there is nothing that a real mother won’t do to support, protect and advance her children who are involved in honorable pursuits. She will go to jail if necessary or even stand in food lines, and work multiple jobs.

Muhdear is more than just a term of endearment; it is a badge of honor.

Muhdear shares her children’s life

Beyond the demands of biological motherhood, being a Muhdear also means being a mother who shares the experiences of her children.

There are some who subscribe to a show your face relationship with their children. In such a relationship the mother gives symbolic support to a child but does not give her all. Real Muhdears are “there” for their children in every respect. Being “there” is more than showing up occasionally, it means being a part of a child’s life experiences, which can be very traumatic at times.

Being “there” sometimes means listening when children talk, paying attention to their doodlings and drawings and praising them.

Being there means teaching life skills necessary for success and providing quality time for relationship building. Just as Mary was "there" for Jesus to hold his hand and support him, that spirit of "being there" is what is celebrated by children who know instantly that in every respect, good mothers have done their best to "be there" for them.

Muhdear in God's hands

Finally, brothers and sisters, Muhdear makes sure that her children are securely placed in the hands of God.

Not only does Muhdear go to football practice, piano lessons, band rehearsals and PTA meetings, Muhdear also goes to church. Muhdear knows how to talk to God.

Muhdear insures that her children know the Lord.

In many ways Muhdear is like Hannah. Hannah told the Lord that she would put her child in God's hands if she were blessed to give birth. No sooner than the boy Samuel was old enough, his mother brought him to the place of worship and put him in God's hands.

In God's hands, Samuel became a great scholar!

In God's hands, her son became a great prophet!

In God's hands, her son became spiritual leader of the nation!

Jesus said made it clear that in the Kingdom of Heaven believers may have many Muhdears, those who are doing the will of God.

We are certainly blessed to have had somebody named Muhdear in our lives.

These were the women who saw to it that you came to church and saw to it that you acted correctly once you got there!

It was Muhdear who taught us to say your prayers and to sing, "Yes, Jesus Love me."

Who is my Muhdear? She is the one who is concerned about who am I am in the world and who I am before God.

Who is my Muhdear? She is the one who insures that her child has:

—Food to eat here, but she is also concerned that her child be fed the Word of God, for she has heard the scripture say "Man shall not live by bread alone but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."

—Clothes on his back, but she is also concerned that he wears the breastplate of righteousness and that his feet are shod with the Gospel of the preparation of peace, that he wears the helmet of Salvation and carries the shield of faith.

—Has a place to call home, but she also worries about whether he'll have a home in the kingdom of heaven.

—Birth and delivery in this world, but she also is concerned that he is born again into the kingdom of God.

Who is my Muhdear? She is the one that will teach her children to trust in the Lord.

Somebody here can remember a time when the family was in a tough spot and mother mumbled, “We’ll just have to put our trust in the Lord.”

Every Christian mother knows there is wisdom in trusting the Lord.

If I trust in the Lord I will:

—Overcome strong temptations

—bear heavy burdens

—withstand mighty persecutions

—cross the loneliest of valleys

—endure the saddest of sorrows

—live through darkest of nights

—sail through the roughest storms

—climb the tallest of mountains

Who is my Muhdear? She’s the one who knows how to call on the name of Jesus!

Jesus, Who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, Who arose after three days and nights!

Who is my Muhdear?

She’s a woman who knows how to call His name!

Jesus!

Jesus!

Jesus!

Ain't no sense in going Son, Jody's got the people and gone

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Youth Minister of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

March 1971

SCRIPTURE: "The beginning of the word of the Lord by Hosea. And the Lord said to Hosea, Go, take unto thee a wife of whoredoms and children of whoredoms: for the land hath committed great whoredom, departing from the Lord." Hosea 1:2-9

Introduction

Many have been unfaithful to God and it grieves Him. Do you know someone who has been unfaithful? Often we watch what appears to be the smartest, wisest people become involved in entanglements that seem beneath their intellect, experience and character. Like a disease, unfaithfulness infects every strata of our community. The businessman, farmer, laborer, educator, auto mechanic, athlete and the preacher all seem vulnerable to its contagious venom. Unfaithfulness is destructive to say the least.

Unfaithfulness is immediately associated with marriage and romance. However, unfaithfulness pokes its ugly head into a variety of arenas. The military is constantly plagued by those who would sell national secrets to the enemy. Political candidates are plagued by unfaithful staffers who defect to the other side. Millions of "kiss and tell" books have been written by those who betrayed the confidences of the rich, powerful and influential.

In a greater sense any person is unfaithful whenever that person comprises the principles by which he or she lives. The pacifist who goes to war; the vegetarian who eats meat; The dodger fan who yells for the Yankees. There are many ways to be unfaithful.

There are many who are unfaithful to their own dreams, goals and aspirations.

Others are unfaithful to promises made to themselves or others.

There are also those who are unfaithful to God.

How can we be unfaithful to God? When we commit our lives and souls to God and Him alone, then turn away from what we promised; then we are unfaithful t

Exposition

This text focuses on the prophet Hosea who was told by God to preach to the people of Israel.

The immediate command that Hosea was given was to tell the people that they were an evil and adulterous generation and that they were living in whoredom.

Hosea was commanded to illustrate this whoredom by marrying a woman of whoredom. Her deviant actions although married to a loving husband would illustrate Israel's relationship with God.

This must have been a troubling relationship but Hosea obeyed God's command. His wife, Gomer, signified corruption, defilement, contamination and pollution. It was a demoralizing relationship in which her determinations were captured by her lusts.

As Gomer bore children for Hosea he gave them names that demonstrated the ruin of the people. He named the first Jezereel which means scattered people. It suggested the destruction of the royal family of God as His creations scattered away from Him. The second child was named Lo-Ruhamah, which means "not beloved." It showed how Israel had abused its relationship with God and its refusal to reform itself to God's will. It also indicated that God would not always bear the burden of dealing with an unfaithful people.

A Look at Jody

WE BECOME JODIES TO GOD: Johnnie Taylor's hit song, "Ain't no use in going home, Jody's got your girl and gone" depicted a man who worked hard all week to provide a living and a life for his woman. He remained faithful to her and provided for her every need. Yet, while he was away working she cheated on him with another man that Taylor described as "Jody." A Jody is a person who takes advantage of an ideal situation such as a loving but absent husband and a willing wife. Jody cares nothing about breaking up a happy marriage or soiling the marriage bed of another. Jody has but one goal and that is to get all he can, while he can at any cost. In a greater sense many of us have become the unfaithful wife in our relationships with God. He is faithful to us and prepares for us but we have flirted with the devil, our Jody, and cheated on God. The fervor of our faith has diminished because of our affair with Jody. Many of us have become politically stagnant, refusing to involve ourselves in movements that will help our community. We have socially isolated ourselves from any and everything that benefits the kingdom, and we have become religiously eccentric and economic misers. Jody has stolen our hearts away from God who still loves us mightily.

WE SEEK THE PERCEPTION OF HAPPINESS: We often allow our determination to be captured by our lusts rather than our needs. As a result we often meander into a make believe world to achieve our perception of happiness.

In this pursuit we seem to follow every bright light that flashes and lures away from out faithful path. For some the lure is the opposite sex, for still others it's the same sex.

There are some who are lured into unfaithfulness by the specter of accumulating large amounts of money. Some fall into the chilly and deathly hands of drugs, dope use and sales, and other forms of immorality. Moreover, there are others who see their life's work as the quest for social status, so important that it excels over their commitment to the God they serve.

These intense determinations envelope us and as a result become the vultures of our own dreams that feed upon us while we are yet living, robbing us of everything of value.

WE SEEK TO GRAB ALL THE GUSTO WE CAN: There is a popular television for Budweiser Beer that uses the slogan "You only go through life once, so grab all of the gusto you can." It encourages the public to abandon any rules that restrict their quest for fulfillment because they will only have one chance to enjoy what life offers. Based on that concept, there are many who have chosen to abandon their spiritual foundations in favor of instant gratification.

What is abandoned? Lost is the abandonment of godly ideals is the quest for brotherly love, community concern, political awareness, moral restraint and forgiving hearts. These are all abandoned as we chase after our own determinations. While we philander, God who is the father of these principles, sheds a tear for our wantonness, as we travel throughout the world looking for personal satisfaction. While we run around, our God who loves us so much that He gave His only son for us is left holding the bag.

We, like an unfaithful wife, have drifted into an adulterous world while our God, the lover of our souls, works day and night to provide us with the necessities for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

We can return

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should remember that even if we have flirted with Jody, God is still welcoming us home.

Hosea continued his love for his wife even though she cheated on him and ran around with Jody. Despite her estrangement, he actively sought and welcomed her return.

In that same sense, God seeks to restore those who have strayed from Him. The words of the old song are clear and appropriate, "I've wandered far away from God, now I'm coming home. To long the path of sin I've trod, Lord I'm coming home. Coming Home, Coming Home, never more to roam. Open wide thine arms of love. Lord, I'm coming home!"

It's good to know that we serve a God who forgives our transgressions and opens his arms to receive us.

Many of us found out that the Jodies of this world have not meant us any good.

Jody used us and abused us until we couldn't see our way.

Jody told us we would be HAPPY but all we received was SADNESS;

Jody told us we would be RICH but when we got a little everybody tried sponge off of us;

Jody told us we could be popular if we acted STUPID but when we did everybody laughed at us;

Jody told us not to work and to be LAZY, but all we got in return were handouts instead of handups;

Jody told us not to STUDY or train, but all we got were turn downs for every opportunity we sought;

Jody told us we could get DOPED UP, but when we did we were so high we didn't know where we were.

Jody told us we could drink alcohol, but when we did we got all bent out of shape.

Jody told us we could GOSSIP and talk bad about people, but what we got was talked about ourselves.

Jody told us we could get all we could get, but in the process we started losing everything we had;

Jody told us we could make it right by going to church, but all we became was well dress .

We turned our backs on God and ran after Jody and Jody only gave us heartbreak.

But I'm so glad that God is a forgiving God, because in our mess, God decided to still bless.

Today, God is standing with His stretched wide willing to give us second chance.

His appeal is that we would come home!

Come home, and He'll wipe the tears from your eyes!

Come home, and He'll open doors that have been closed in our face!

Come home, and He'll heal wounds that have hemorrhaged in your life!

Come home, and He will save your soul and give you a brand new start!

You don't need any more money because your debt has been paid!

Jesus paid it all!

Out on Calvary, Jesus paid it all!

With an old rugged cross on his shoulder, Jesus paid it all!

With nails driven in His hands, Jesus paid it all!

With a crown of thorns on His head, Jesus paid it all!

He died out on Calvary, but Early Sunday morning He arose from the dead with all power in His hands!

Come home, because Jody is gone, but God is still on the throne!

The Rope Holds

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

Scripture: GOD takes the side of the helpless; when I was at the end of my rope, he saved me. Psalms 116:6 (MSG)

Introduction

Have you ever been at the end of your rope?Being at the end of the rope is a term used to suggest we have reached the extent of our endurance. Even though certain failure will result if we let go there comes a time when we feel that letting go is our only option.

Consider the woman who fell from a cliff and yelled for someone to rescue her. For hours no one came to save her; then suddenly a rope was thrown over the side and it dangled in front of her. A voice yelled out, "Grab the rope and hold on." The woman grabbed the rope and dangled over the edge with her legs kicking in the air. The longer she dangled the more fatigued she became. The woman yelled more until a second rope with a large loop in it dangled just in front of her. A rescuer from above shouted, "Put your free hand through the loop and hold on." After doing so the woman dangled a few more minutes until finally she was completely exhausted. She closed her eyes, thought of her children, whispered a prayer and let go. Minutes later when she opened her eyes; she saw people standing all around her. When she asked what happened the teachers said, "You couldn't hold on so you let go, but the loop in the second rope closed tight around your wrist, you couldn't hold on to the rope but the rope held on to you. It's a good thing that your hand was in the loop."

When we can't hold on, that's when God holds on to you.

God is sure; He will not let you go.

There's a line in C.S. Lewis's book A Grief Observed on the death of his wife, that is salient: "You never know how much you believe in the strength of the rope until you're hanging by it over a cliff."

One of the pleasant aftermaths of enduring a hardship that dangled us over the edge is to discover that the rope holds. The rope that keeps us from falling is God.

As Christians, we rejoice in the knowledge God will never fail us; he is able to keep us even when we lose hope and let go.

Exposition

This Psalm of David offers hope to those who are afflicted from one who has experienced the deliverance of God.

In the course of his life, David experienced many moments that were life threatening. On more than one occasion his life was threatened either by wild animals as a boy, or as a fugitive under King Saul. In each instance he saw the power of God at work saving him from danger and allowing him to skirt capture by his enemies.

This psalm sings of David's thankfulness to God for: Pulling him back from the brink of despair. In Psalm 116:5 he characterized God as considering his situation and then being merciful to him. Realizing God's mercy, David came to himself and God literally snatched him back from the brink of despair. In the purest sense the text in the Message version says, "GOD is gracious—it is he who makes things right, our most compassionate God. GOD takes the side of the helpless; when I was at the end of my rope, he saved me."

Thus, David pens a psalm of thanksgiving To God for saving him from himself; for showing him that even when we think there is no reason to go on, the Love and power of God prevails.

The Ropes

Big Burdens need strong ropes: There are many who approach their life's burdens without the benefit of a strong faith. Burdens are heavy and they weigh us down. That's why Jesus constantly challenged believers to give him their burdens. In Matthew 11:28 Jesus says, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." Yet, despite Jesus' invitation many try to handle their own problems instead of giving them to God. Instead of a rope, many tie a thread around their problems then find that the thread does not hold. Threads have their purpose, but they are not able to handle God sized problems because God sized problems need a God sized solution. When your family is trouble would you want to trust your knowledge and understanding? What about all of your business skill and knowledge? What about your horoscope? They are just threads that will surely break under the load. The word of God says in Proverbs 3:5, "Trust in the LORD with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding." Faith in God, that is the rope that holds.

The right rope must be secured with the right knot. There are many who know God but they are secure in the faith. They are loosely connected with him. Many of our associations with God are connected by slip knots and half hitches. A slip knot and a half hitch will lose their connection under any type of pressure. Yet, there are many in the world who have a slip knot relationship with God. They are loosely connected to their church, worship, bible study, giving and service. They know God but they are loosely connected. David in Psalms 31:1 said, "In thee, O LORD, do I put my trust; let me never be ashamed: deliver me in thy righteousness." In verse four David said, "Pull me out" of the net that has been set by others. Tie the right knot, hold on and God will pull you out.

God will untangle the knots: There are many who are so tangled up that they can hardly make any sense out of their lives. They spend most of their lives trying to straighten things out. Often, the more we try to straighten things out, the more we mess them up. A rope that is all knotted up is hard to untangle, just as a life that has been wrapped up and tangled up in the world. You can't untangle it yourself, trying to make yourself good enough to earn God's grace and favor. You will never be able to straighten out the mess you have made, but God can straighten it out and will keep you from falling again. What are the knots? Moral issues? Matters of faulty relationships? Do we have histories that haunt us? Let God straighten it out. He will take hold of it. Let him straighten it out, then hold on.

Your Rope will hold

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should approach every difficulty with the confidence that as long as we hold to God's hand he won't let us go.

God's grace is the rope that holds our hand. Despite the fact that grace is available to every believer there are still many who fail to hold to God's hand because they don't know how.

To hold God's hand successfully, we must not try to hold on to his hand, as much as we ask him to hold our hand.

When God holds our hand he guides us.

When we allow God to guide us, we allow him to take control of our lives and guide us along the way. That's what the song writer had in mind when he said, "Lead me. Guide me along the way. Lord if you lead me I will not stray."

When God holds our hand, he holds us because we might be tempted to let go.

When life gets difficult and tiresome, our hands tend to sweat and to tire and we may start to slip in our faith, church attendance, giving and general spirituality.

When God holds our hands, even if we slip a little, he still holds on!

No wonder the old warriors sang, "Lord hold my hand while I run this race, I don't want to run this race alone!"

Hold my hand Lord, while I try to take care of my family, I don't want to run this race alone!

Hold my hand Lord, while I try to deal with the raging storms in my life, I don't want to run this race alone!

Hold my hand Lord, while I try to make sense of the madness that surrounds me;

I don't want to run this race alone!

We should let God hold our hand because we can be sure that if he holds our hand that he won't let go.

I'm reminded of the old lady who became lost in a snow storm. The guide gave her a rope before the storm began and told her to hold on to the rope in case she couldn't see her way. "No matter what you do," said the guide, "hold on to the rope, it guide you to us or help us find you." In the storm a sudden blizzard seperated the party. The old lady reached out her hand but she couldn't find the rope. As the snow began to build higher over her, the townspeople began to worry. They decided to search for the rope and follow it back along the trail. The old lady was too weak to move under the snow that was covering her, but the townspeople kept searching for the rope. Just before daybreak a townsman spotted the loose end of the rope and began to dig through the snow. They found old lady with her hand curled closed as if she had been holding something.

After they dug her from the snow and warmed her by a fire, the rescuer said, "We never would have found you if you had not been holding the rope. How did you hold on so long? The old woman said, she searched in the dark but could not find the rope. I lifted up my hand and said, "Father I stretch my hands to thee, no other help I know."

I wasn't holding on to the rope I was holding on to the grace of God."

Every saint should hold on to the grace of God

The Grace of God can make the weak strong and give rest to the weary!

The Grace of God can lift the fallen and raise up a bowed down head!

The Grace of God can bring victory to the defeated and joy to those who are sad.

The Grace of God comes through the blood of the crucified lamb.

The Grace of God is from Jesus, the son of the living God, who died out on Calvary!

He stayed in a borrowed tomb for three days and nights, but early Sunday morning he arose from the grave all power in his hands!

Life looks better when you color inside the lines

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

SCRIPTURE: The steps of a good man are ordered by the LORD: and he delighteth in his way. Psalm 37:23

Introduction

Have you ever watched a small child color a picture? Have you noticed that sometimes they color outside of the lines? As children we are taught to color inside the lines. For some that is difficult. Not only can we not color inside of the lines, we also have difficulty choosing the right colors to use. As we mature we not only learn how to stay inside the line but to choose tones and colors wisely.

One of the basic things that we teach children is color distinctions. While that may appear simple, in reality there are many children who do not know the difference between their colors; some call red blue, orange blue and yellow blue. Everything is blue. They can't tell the difference.

Teaching colors, along with language skills, and other intangibles is one of the primary teaching tasks of parents and educators.

First, we teach them to differentiate between colors, because at an early age recognizing colors is a difficult task.

Those who teach preschoolers have developed a variety of techniques to show children how to distinguish one color from another. However, despite the technique used, it is often shown that the ability to make the distinctions is usually associated with a child's maturity level and age.

Not only do we teach children to recognize colors but also teach them the proper application of colors, tone and most importantly, how to put the right color in the right place. This is the time when we show them that grass is not black and the moon is not green. This is when they learn about keeping their colors in the proper place and order.

Sometimes children color beautiful pictures but use the wrong color and color outside of the lines.

How important is it to color inside the lines? It's important because it makes the picture look better. Any picture could be drawn outside the lines; in fact there are many artist called impressionist who follow none of the established rules or patterns at all, they simply paint colors and lines as they see them. The shapes are sometimes contorted, meshed or fractured in so many strange ways that many of us don't perceive of them as works of art alone. If presented with the art of Michelangelo and that of Monet most of us would choose Michelangelo every time. He seems to color inside the lines.

There is a sense of order when the lines are clear and we keep whatever colors we choose to use inside the lines.

What about God? He has given each of us a life to live and to beautify. He's also given us an outline of what the Godly life is supposed to resemble. He allows us to use our imaginations to determine the color; all He asks is that we stay inside the lines.

As Christians, our desire is to live a life that is pleasing to God, ordered by his rules but free enough to express ourselves in a variety of ways.

Exposition

This passage paints a picture of a godly life that is ordered in the word of God.

David had many experiences in the course of his life from which he drew wisdom. He learned that God blessed believers with a happy life if they lived their lives within his rules. That's the truth he unraveled in Psalm 1 when he said, "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful, but his delight is in the law of the Lord and in his law doth he meditate day and night." David could make this observation because there was a point in his life when he crossed the line and walked a crooked path. He took another man's wife and killed her husband in an attempt to hide his sin. He was depressed, sick in his soul and afflicted with venereal disease in punishment for his deeds and his soul cried out "create in me oh Lord a clean heart and renew in me a right spirit." In reflection he concludes that his life was better, clearer and happier when he stayed within God's law.

In Psalm 37:23-24 he notes that when we order our lives according to his will, he protects us and establishes us. In Psalm 37:25-26 we are promised that he will provide food for those who obey him. In verse 27-29 he promises security for the righteous.

It all seems to say that there is a great blessing in store for us when live by God's law. That's why he adds in verse 25, "I have been young and now I'm old, but yet I have never seen the righteous forsaken or his seed begging bread."

Applying the Colors

KNOW YOUR COLORS: With our eyes we see only three basic colors: red, yellow and blue. Everything else is a mixture of the three. In print, as many who have color printers have learned it takes four colors of ink for you to see color on paper, Cyan, Magenta, Yellow, and black. All of the other colors are formed when they are mixed together. Just as a child learns his/her colors so should we. It is said that colors represent our mood, that why some who are depressed say they have the blues, those who are envious are said to be green with envy, and those who are happy are said to be tinkled pink. As we grow in our relationships we should be aware of the moods of our friends and life partners. There are days when we are happy and days when we are said and they impact our mood. When we start shifting from one mood to the other on a regular basis, the therapists call us bi-polar. There many bi-polar church members: We love the Lord one day, but don't love him much at offering time. We sing God praises when we get a new tire, then curse when we get a flat tire. Even worse, there are some who work hard for the Lord's kingdom and tear it down by their lifestyle, language and dress. An ordered life is one where all of the moods are in check. We are not spiritual ADHD cases, unpredictable, explosive or uncontrollable. The ordered spiritual life that has periods of happiness, mourning, and achievement but it never shifts into disbelief, distrust, and hate. When we rise angry, distrustful and filled with vengeance, we have selected the color for the day, we have ordered up a day. Those who wake up thinking, "This is the day that the Lord has made, I will rejoice and be glad in it," color that day with hope and optimism. That day will be a day in which your steps are ordered by the Lord. Color that day blessed.

RIGHT COLOR WRONG TONE: There are many today who wear the right colors but the wrong tones. Our lives our out of order when can can't get control of the tones. When we have the wrong tone, we may say the right words but the tone suggests the opposite of what we want. Tone is the difference between wearing a splash of red here and there and wearing blood red shoes, shirt, hat, socks, and tie. Tone is knowing how far to take it. Tone is knowing what to say and when to say it; what to wear and when to wear it; what to do and when to do it; who to call and when to call them; what to eat and when to eat it; Tone indicates levels of degrees. Tone and balance is one of the things that we learn as we mature. We don't want to be wild and crazy, but neither do we want to be dull and sad. With maturity, we learn to balance the tones in our lives. That's why Psalm 39:1 encourages us to bridle our mouths and tones, so that we don't say the wrong thing, or say the right thing but at the wrong time. Learning to order our lives means that we learn to discipline ourselves so that we live according to the word of God. When David spoke of ordered steps, it included controlling the tone of our relationships with each other so that they give God the greatest glory.

STAY INSIDE THE LINES: There are many who want to paint a pretty picture for themselves but they have difficulty staying inside the lines. What are the lines? The lines are the moral laws of God. We get an ugly picture when we color our lives outside of the lines, no matter how pretty the colors. Two people who live together without being married paint their relationship with the bright color of love, but shacking is outside of the line. The person who furnishes a beautiful home with stolen merchandise paints his home with the color of success, but receiving stolen goods is outside of the line. Selling food stamps is outside of the line? Selling your children's social security number for cash is outside of the line; dealing drugs, shoplifting and buying bootleg DVD's on the street corner is outside of the line. It's easy to get outside of the line, especially when we color real close to the line; unlike the little child that can't tell the difference, we know how to stay inside the line but we flirt with the line and sometimes cross it. Is that not what happened to David and Bathsheba? Every day, he watched her from his window and finally he crossed the line. That was also the case with Samson and Delilah. Some want avoid God, the church or any people who might show them the lines. Like the impressionist artists, they want to live life as they feel it without restrictions or rules and if God wants them he'll have to take them just as they are by their take it or leave it rules. Yet God's lines are not erasable. Like the lines in a coloring book you can't change them. If you color outside of them you mess up your life's picture. That's what the devil wants us to do but we should resist that temptation. That's why James 4:7 directs us to "Resist the devil" and he will flee from you. David concluded that the person who orders his life according to the will of God lives a blessed life that is pleasing to the almighty.

Ordered lives look good

Finally, brothers and sisters, it is important that we consider that when we color our lives inside of the will of God we are blessed.

David said the steps of a good man are ordered. These are the ordered strides of a man who is confident that no matter what life brings, God will make a way.

The true believer's life is colored with measured steps. They are colored in confidence that each step made in the spirit of truth will draw closer the goal.

Believers who color their lives are not in a hurry, but are willing to wait for God to provide the opportunity at the right moment and at the right time.

The believer who colors his life with faith also colors his life with prayer and devotion to God. Through prayer he can:

—Reach out for the intangible; look up for the invisible

—Listen for the inaudible; Long for the incomparable

—Believe in the incredible; Wait for the inevitable

A believer whose life is colored with the Crayon of faith is one who has learned to:

—Follow where God leads; and to Listen when God speak;

—Claim what God promises; and to receive what God gives.

A believer knows his colors and won't get the mixed up.

Blue represents peace, tranquility, and confidence. David must have been wearing blue when he said, "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want."

Black is the absence of light and represents power, sexuality, sophistication, formality, and elegance, in some occasion it also associated with mourning. The psalmist might have been wearing black when he wrote, "Yea thou I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil."

Green represents nature, environment, health, good fortune, renewal, and youth.

David might have been wearing green when he said, "Remember now thy creator in the days of thy youth."

Yellow represents joy, happiness, optimism, idealism, imagination, hope, caution and sunshine. David might have been wearing yellow when he wrote in Psalm 111:1, "I will praise the Lord with my whole heart."

White is what we see when all colors come together in perfect balance. It represents reverence, purity, simplicity, cleanliness, peace, and sterility. Saints will be wearing white when the question is asked, "Who are these who are dressed in white robes?" These are they who have come out of great tribulation. These are they who have washed their robes in the blood of the lamb!

Red is associated with love, danger, desire, speed, strength, violence, anger and the blood. The song writer must have been wearing red when he declared "The blood shall never lose its power. It reaches to the highest mountain. It reaches to the lowest valley. The blood that gives me strength from day to day, it shall never lose its power.

It must have been a bright yellow day when Jesus rode in Jerusalem because the crowds called out Hosanna in the highest.

But it must have been a dark brown when they arrested him in the garden.

It must have been hazy gray when they put a purple robe on his back.

It must have been a dark gray day when they put an old rugged cross on his shoulder

It must have been dark day when he called out to his father, "Forgive them for they know not what they do."

It must have been black night, when they buried him in a borrowed tomb!

But Early, Sunday morning he arose from the grave wearing the color of victory!

Victory over death!

Victory over pain!

Victory over despair!

Great Expectations

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

May 30, 2010

SCRIPTURE: "Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us," Ephesians 3:20

Introduction

Is it logical to expect Great things from God? When God says we can expect beyond our imagination does that sound possible?We often hear that passage from Philippians, you know the one that says we can do all things through Christ which strengthens us, but do we really believe what it says? Does that sound too good to be true. We remember Grandpa's steady advice: "If it seems too good to be true, it probably is."

Are God's promises like the infomercials we see on television: Lose 30 pounds in 30 days while eating all the pizza, ice cream, nachos you want? This knife cuts nails like it cuts warm butter! Infomercials often raise our expectations higher than they can deliver.

At worship we often hear words of inspiration that tell us that with God we can do anything or that we can be all that we want to be if we put our mind to it. However, even as some hear those words and say "Amen" in agreement, there are many who simply cannot see themselves doing any more in life than they are presently doing.

At graduation, the speakers are inspiring. Graduates are told that there is no mountain too high for them to climb and no goal they cannot achieve. The words were like ear candy but how many of the graduates actually believed what they heard?

Soren Kierkegaard tells a parable about a community of ducks, waddling off to duck church to hear the duck preacher. The duck preacher spoke eloquently about how God had given the ducks wings with which to fly and with these wings there was nowhere that the ducks could not go. There was no God given task that the ducks couldn't accomplish. With those wings they could even soar into the presence of God himself and the duck congregation quacked, "Amen." And at the conclusion of the service the ducks left commenting on what a wonderful message they had heard. And waddled all the way home. Not a single one lifted a wing and tried to fly.

How many of this graduating class actually believe they can become doctors, nurses, school teachers, bankers or other professionals? If they really believed in that possibility why have so many already made up in their minds that higher education is not for them? Not necessarily college, but academic training beyond high school in the field of their choice. If we believe it's possible why have so many in every graduating class given up so easily?

Many are probably victims of low expectations. Today, Holy Spirit reminds each believer that there is nothing impossible for them to accomplish but we must believe to achieve. We must believe in God and believe in ourselves.

Let's not be satisfied with merely walking across the stage of life, but let's develop a hunger to do a great work; something bigger than anyone ever expected, more important than anyone ever dreamed and more lasting than anyone would have ever imagined.

Having said that listen to the words of the text again, "Now to him who by the power at work within us is able to accomplish exceedingly abundantly far more than all we can ask or imagine" (v. 20).

The text makes it clear that without God working in us the greatness we desire will be elusive. We need him to show us how to work our program.

As Christians, let us be willing to step out on faith and do a great work for God. Let us prepare to dream big, and imagine big as the world becomes our mission field in the name of the Lord.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul as he closes his letter to the Ephesians with a doxology of hope and encouragement. Paul was trying to accomplish the impossible in Ephesus. He wanted Jews and Gentiles to work together in Christ and to love each other in the Lord. To those who said such a feat was impossible and unheard of he responded that God is able to do all things, even those things we have not even imagined.

Paul told the Ephesians that there is a power working within every believer that, when unleashed can do much more than we ever imagined. In verse 18 he noted that this power within us prepares us so that we "May be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height;" It is the hidden power of God that will help us to understand and interpret the events we will face and to know the limits of our own ability while trusting the limitless grace of God.

What we expect

GOD IS ABLE: Every believer will face a number of difficulties in the years ahead; those years must be faced with the confidence that regardless to what happens, God is able to help us handle every situation. The future looms in front of us like a wide valley, gorge or expanse. We don't know how we will cross each hurdle, what we do know is that God is able.

We are not quite sure how we will handle the next phase of our lives, semi-independent from our parents. When that doubt comes we should remember, God is able.

We are not sure about our financial situation, whether we will be able to have enough resources to see us through. When that worry comes, we should remember, God is able.

We are not sure whether we are really ready to be a young adult with all of the freedoms that come with this period of our lives. When that feeling of insecurity comes, remember, God is able.

We are not sure whether we can keep it together and do all of the things that are expected of us by others as well as our own personal expectations. When that feeling peeks its head into your life, remember God is able.

That's what the three Hebrew Boys said when they faced the fiery furnace; three young men whose futures and very lives could have been ended by the flames. They responded that, God is able to deliver them.

When the difficult years come and feel that there is no way out, remember God is able.

TO DO EXCEEDINGLY ABUNDANTLY ABOVE WHAT WE ASK: How much is God able to do to help believers achieve their purpose? How far is he willing to go to make it happen? To answer those questions Verse 20 uses two adverbs back to back to give us an idea of how much God is able to do. An adverb modifies any words other than nouns. It usually answers a question. The statement is made that God is able to do above all that we ask. How much is God willing to do? Exceedingly, abundantly! In what way will God do these great things for us? Exceedingly, abundantly! To what extent will do these things for us? Exceedingly, abundantly! There are not enough words to express what God is willing to do for those who trust him, so two adverbs and stacked together to say that what God is willing and able to do: Exceptional, extraordinary, unusual, intense to the point of excessive, inordinate, uncommon, liberal, substantial, profuse, generous, exuberant, bountiful, plentiful, enormous, excessive, remarkable, striking, inspiring, superior, superlative, awesome and humongously great. That's why the two adverbs are side by side. They summarize all that believers can expect God to do to help us achieve our purpose in furthering his kingdom. A song writer looked at this text and penned the words:

God has provided for me every day
And if I need more, He'll just make a way
I may not have everything, still I lack nothing
It's hard to believe it, so I'll just receive it
Exceedingly, wondrously, marvelously, gloriously
All needs supplied, He is right by my side
I may not have everything, still I'm abundantly.....
Blessed.

A POWER WORKING IN US: Every believer has the power of God working on the inside. The power of God directs us when we can't find our way and it restrains us when we are going a little too fast. This same power motivates us when we are slow to start and stimulates us when we need a little more just to keep going. Paul said the power of God works within us.

We have the power of God in us so we should not hesitate to work the power. What's wrong with dreaming big? What's wrong with dreaming of being the first woman president? What's wrong with dreaming of being the first scientist to find the cure for the common cold? What's wrong with dreaming being the best parent that the world has ever seen? A better preacher than your pastor? A better musician than the world's best? What wrong with dreaming of changing the world and bringing out peace? One thing the power of God does for us is releases us to dream and imagine. One of the problems with old people is that we dream dreams of yesteryear but we have trouble dreaming visions of years to come. The man or woman who keeps dreaming visions is forever young. Work the power!

To that dream happen, work the power. Enroll in school, work the power!

Resist the temptation to stop your studies just because you graduated from high school. Work the power!

Even if you have a child out of wedlock, have to work two jobs and find yourself struggling, work the power; don't stop dreaming!

Even if you have to double your efforts and wear out your knees in prayer, don't give up, work the power!

You have within you the power to achieve whatever you can imagine; whatever you can dream, so don't waste the power on little dreams.

Two men dream of owning cars and they prayed that God would answer their prayers. A few years later a box was delivered to each of their doors. When they opened the box each found a single item. One man found a model car that completed his set. He was happy that he received his dream. The other man had a key. It was the key to an auto dealership through when he owned not one car but hundreds of cars. Both men received an answer to their prayers the difference is that one dared to dream big!

Dreaming big is the difference between being a football player and owning the team!

Dreaming big is the difference between being a movie star or the producer who owns both the studio and the star.

Dreaming big is the difference between being a teacher who changes the lives of a hundred children or the U.S. Education Secretary who changes the lives of millions.

Dream big, and shoot for the stars, if you miss at least you'll hit moon.

Work the power within.

It's that something within us that prompted the songwriter to sing, "Something within me that holdeth the reins. Something within me that banishes pain. Something within me, I cannot explain, all that I know, there is something within."

God expects Great things from us

Finally, brothers and sisters we should remember that while we expect great things from God along our journey, God expect great things from us as well.

There is an old saying, "To whom much is given, much is required." That applies to young believers as well.

God expects a few things from us.

God expects us to keep the faith and never let go of our passion and love for Him.

God expects us to resist the temptation to flirt with world as soon as we are out of mother's sight!

God expects us to get up after we stumble and try again!

God expects us to continue to worship Him and give him praise!

God expects us to get up if we fall, fail or experience defeat!

God expects us to keep trying, never stop striving and always move forward!

God expects us not to doubt Him. As long as God is still on the throne, God expects you to remember that if you are:

—Praying for Rain, you need to get your umbrella ready!

—Praying for bread, you need to grease the pan!

—Praying for a job, you need to get your resume ready!

Why? Because God is able!

Don't stop expecting God to bless you!

Don't stop expecting God to make a way for you!

Don't stop expecting God to open doors for you!

There is only one door. I heard him say in John 10:14, " I am the door: by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved"

The Lord expects for you to remember to call His name!

His name is Jesus!

He came and died to raise our expectations and give us new hope!

He died on an old rugged cross to give us hope!

Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave offer us great expectations!

No wonder the songwriter declares, "My hope is built on nothing less than Jesus blood and righteousness, I dare not trust the sweetest frame, but wholly lean on Jesus name!

On Christ the solid rock I stand.

All other ground is sinking sand!

All up in my business

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 6, 2010

SCRIPTURE: " And there was in their synagogue a man with an unclean spirit; and he cried out, Saying, Let us alone; what have we to do with thee, thou Jesus of Nazareth? art thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art, the Holy One of God. And Jesus rebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him. Mark 1:23-25

Introduction

Does it irritate you when someone meddles in your business?Most people prefer to handle their affairs privately without interference from others. In an ideal world each of us would be able to conduct our affairs the way we want without others jumping in uninvited.

You know the feeling because you have had it to happen to you.

Buy a new car and your friends are all up in your business: how much did it cost?

Who signed for it? What was your interest rate? How were you able to get it that cheap when no one could?

Get a new friend? Who is he? Where is from? Does he have any money?

Get a new job. Who are you working for? How much do you make? How did you find out about it?

Get a raise. Why did he give you a raise and not me? How much was it?

Have a family dispute? What were you fighting about? Who hit whom? Did you call the police? Are you planning a divorce? Who's going to get the house?

Unless you are a public figure, you have a right to expect to be left alone. Even so, your friends will get in your business, so will your parents and your co-workers and the neighbors across the street. People are so nosy that when they come to your home they read your mail left on the table, try peek at your computer screen and inspect everything they see. They can't stay out of your business.

When you were young, your parents stayed in your business; they were always asking questions. They made you take your medicine, eat your food and they wouldn't let you drive because you were not old enough. They wouldn't let you date because you were too young.

Now they are old, and you're all up in their business telling them what to eat, when to take their medicine, snatching their car keys because they are too old and not approving their special friends and dates because you think they are too old.

Everybody is up in everybody else's business.

There are times when we just want to be left alone. Those are the times that we want to reach in our pockets and give that nosy person a dime and tell them to buy themselves some business and leave ours alone.

What do you do when God decides to get up in your business? You can't shut Him out or ignore Him. You can't raise your hand and give Him the brick wall. Unlike your neighbors, when God gets in your business He can straighten it out and work it out.

As Christians, we invite the Lord into our lives. He is always welcomed in our business because He will always lead us in the right way and help us do the right thing.

Exposition

This text focuses on Jesus bringing his ministry to Capernaum after having experienced the rejection of his hometown of Nazareth. Now in Galilee he went to the synagogue for the Saturday morning service and spoke and taught as one with authority.

And in the synagogue there was a man with an unclean spirit and he spoke out with the voice of the devil saying "Let us alone."

This occasion did not occur in a house of ill repute, tavern, or in location of disrespect, but in the synagogue.

The man spoke on the behalf of others similarly situated for he said "Let Us Alone" in the first part of the verse and spoke for himself in the latter part of the verse when he said "I know thee who thou art?"

Whether the evil spirits were spread among many people or all concentrated is not known in this instance. But on Mark 5:9 Jesus spoke to a graveyard wild man and the devils in him identified themselves as "Legion" because they were many and all in one man.

The cry of the bedeviled man was the cry that comes from all those entrenched in devilish activities, "Let us Alone."

Leave me alone

SAINTS WANT TO BE LEFT ALONE: We often desire to be left alone. The reasons vary. Some want to be alone to be creative. Those who are blessed with creative talents and abilities often find themselves unable to function creatively without a block of time in which they can think and reflect. As schedules become busier and quality time diminishes they are only able to produce spurts of creativity every now and then.

There are others who need to be alone to think and study. Students need quality time to think, study and reflect on their lessons and on their own self-development. Professionals whose jobs require expertise and concentrated thought often need time alone to do the best work.

There are some who need to be alone to weep, to emotionally unload, and re-gather themselves after a personal loss, failure, death or serious illness.

This need to be left alone is often misinterpreted by those close to us who think we are rejecting them, but a retreat is often necessary to regroup, restore and start again.

There are others who still find they must be alone to talk to God. They need quality time when the radio is not blaring, phone not ringing, and children are not crying; a quiet time to talk to God.

Our Savior often sought such times to talk to God. He began his ministry with a 40 day retreat into the wilderness to talk with God. When the crowds pressed he often retreated to a boat or to the other side of the lake to be alone and talk to God.

That's why the song writer wrote, "I come to the garden alone, while they dew is still on the roses, and the voice I hear falling on mine ear the son of God discloses. And he walks with me and he talks with me and he tells me I am His own. And the joy we share as we tarry there, no other has ever known."

SINNERS WANT TO BE LEFT ALONE: We are rebuffed the most by those who are irritated because people are all up in their business. Sinners are disturbed that church folks are always questioning their drinking habits, why they party; why they are shacking; why they never save their money, why they fight or cuss. You see the man with the bad spirit was at the synagogue; he was a worship with an evil spirit that did not want God in his business.

It would be more comfortable for sinners if Christian folks would stay out of their business. Hasn't an angry son told his parents, "why you up in my business?" Hasn't a daughter told her mother, "I wish you would let me alone?" Sinners can't be comfortable in the presence of righteousness. The evil spirits that possessed the man in the text were extremely uncomfortable in the presence of Jesus. They would not be able to operate successfully in his presence and although Christ had not said a word to them, they blurted out in one voice "Let us alone!" In the same way the demons inside of us respond when a friend, a parent or co-worker gets in our business in ways that threaten our fun or question our unrestrained sinful acts. We, too scream, "Why don't you let me alone."

GOD WON'T LET THE RIGHTEOUS ALONE: Just as a child, even a grown child, gets a call from mother regularly offering help, advice and listening ear, God does the same for the righteous. He often intervenes, especially when we are misdirected, disturbed, confused and losing hope and strength. God is always there.

Unlike, the bedeviled man, we want Jesus to get in our business because we know he can speak to the evil situations in our lives. He can speak to the pains in our bodies. He can speak to the trouble in our homes. He can speak to evil influences that have troubled us on so many levels.

When a sinful word attacks us we don't want to be left alone. We want God to intervene because He's a God that can speak to our situation and evil will flee. Isaiah 31:2 (MSG) "Still, he must be reckoned with, a most wise God who knows what he's doing. He can call down catastrophe. He's a God who does what he says. He intervenes in the work of those who do wrong, stands up against interfering evildoers."

We may enjoy occasional moments when are alone with ourselves, but we glad to know that God won't let us alone.

God will intervene when he has to; if His intervention will save us.

God won't let us alone to sulk in pity after a great loss.

God won't let us alone to wallow in defeat.

God won't leave us alone to deal with the problems of our careers and families.

God won't leave us alone to shoulder the responsibilities that we have assumed singularly.

When we need Him but are too often stubborn to ask him, God will get all up in our business.

King Ahaz worried about his nation's situation and God told him to ask for a a sign, but the King wouldn't ask. That's when God decided to get up in his business and give him the sign anyway, " Isaiah 7:14 Therefore the Lord himself shall give you a sign; Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel."

Sometimes God has to get in our business and remind us that in his Son, there is victory.

God won't leave us alone

Finally, we should rejoice in the knowledge that not only will God not let us alone, neither will he leave us alone.

The great joy of the Christian life is knowing that God will never leave us alone.

No matter what situation confronts us we will never be totally alone.

As Jesus prepared to return to heaven he assembled his disciples and told them that he would not leave them alone saying: "I will not leave you comfortless: I will come to you." John 14:18. His final charge to his disciples was to remind them that he would be with them constantly. "..and lo; I will be with you alway, even until the end of the world." Matthew 28:20.

Christ's reminder to his followers is still the same, "be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." His words of faith and confidence now become the watch words of his followers: "..yet I am not alone, because the Father is with me." (John 16:32)

I'm reminded of three elderly ladies who had to stay at home alone. One of the women grew confident and bragged that she had a .357 magnum to protect her if anyone came to bother her. The second lady said she had a .44 and knew how to use it. The third lady said she had 1-44 and a 27:1 and she was ready no matter what came her way. That night burglars came to all three homes and the women met the next day o talk about their experience. The first woman said "I tried to use my .357 but I forgot to load it and the burglar took all my belongings. The second woman said she fired her .44 but it knocked her through the door and the burglar got away. The third woman said "Nothing happened at my house, nobody came in." The two ladies wanted to know her secret and she replied: "While you carried a .44 I carried Psalm 144:1-2 which says 'Blessed be the Lord my strength...my goodness, my fortress, my high tower, my deliverer, my shield, in whom I trust.." To her friend she said "You carried a .357, but I carried Psalm 27:1 ' The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear. The Lord is the strength of my life of whom shall I be afraid?' When you went home you were alone, but I've got somebody who will never leave me alone!"

I don't know about you but I'm glad that God won't let me alone!

I'm glad that He won' leave me alone!

No wonder the song writer declared, "I've seen the lightning flashing and heard the thunder roll. I've felt sin's breakers dashing, which tried to conquer my soul. I've heard the voice of my savior he bid me still fight on. He promised never to leave me, never to leave me alone!

No never alone!

He promised never to leave me ..never to leave me alone!

They put an old rugged cross on his shoulder, but He promised never to leave me alone!

They drove nails into his hands, but He promised never to leave me alone!

He died out on Calvary, but He promised never to leave me!

They buried Him in a borrowed tomb, but He promised never to leave me alone!

Early Sunday morning he arose from the grave, with all power in His hands because He promised never to leave me alone!

The Definitive Father

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 2010

SCRIPTURE: "And he said, Abba, Father, all things are possible unto thee; take away this cup from me: nevertheless not what I will, but what thou wilt. Mark 14:36

Introduction

What is your definition of a real father? The answer to that question varies depending on the respondent because the definition is in constant transition. When we think of fatherhood in the modern setting the images are not the same as those evoked a generation ago. Many make distinctions between real fathers and those who are just "Baby Daddies" or sperm donors. To many children being a father only means being a man who pays child support.

Yet, the real father is much more than just a title or a tongue and cheek "baby daddy" or a name on a check. A real father is a man who loves, protects and provides for his children. Prerequisite to being a real father is being a male who can do the right thing when all others around him are doing wrong and is willing to shoulder responsibility for the care of himself and those in his charge. Those who have mastered this truth have also learned the secret to real fatherhood.

As Christians, godly men have learned through generations of trial and error that those who have the courage to love and protect their wives, nurture their children and stand for what is right are real fathers in the sight of God.

Exposition

Peculiar to this text is the idea of God as He is perceived in the New Testament context and in the hearts of believers.

The text notes the words "Abba" and "Father" being used together. The latter is translated into English while the former is not translated at all, but remains in its Greek form. A key to a greater understanding of biblical teachings about father and God's role as father is indicated by the two words.

Abba is Greek word which means father. In fact, it is closer to "daddy" than father, because of its personal implications. Abba is used in the New Testament because it is written in Greek. The Old Testament which is written in Hebrew only has one word that comes close in meaning and that is "Ab" which refers to "father."

Abba is the Aramaic word for Papa, a term of great intimacy and affectionate respect. It was normally the first word a child would utter, but adults could use it for their fathers as well; students sometimes used it of their teachers. Perhaps because it implied such intimacy, Jewish people never used it of God (though they did call him a heavenly father) except in an occasional parable by a charismatic teacher.

The Old Testament idea of father differs from that of the New Testament. In the Old Testament the father was Lord and Master of his home, closer to what modern times would describe as a dictator. He was a provider, decision maker and ruler. It was permissible, in the Old Testament context for a father to have many wives. So Abraham, Jacob, and many other patriarchs had several wives, as their resources allowed. Fathers were also given permission to destroy their children if they sinned, pick their marriage partners or to sacrifice them to God. Such authority is why Abraham could take young Isaac, bind him hand and foot and place him on the altar of sacrifice without thinking of any legal retribution. The father's right to sacrifice was understood.

The image of father in the Old Testament was one of respect, but rarely of love and compassion. "Ab" usually refers to a human father in the Old Testament. While there are only a few occasions in which "Ab" is used to refer to God in the old testament, they serve to paint a picture of God as a mean spirited, vindictive personality that is willing to punish generations of the innocent for the sins of a few.

The New Testament's idea of God's intimate relationship to humanity is a distinct feature of Jesus' teaching. God relates to believers as a father relates to his child.

In the New Testament context father is perceived differently. They are perceived as one wife husbands, loving their wives as Christ loved the church. Instead of being head and masters of their homes, they are perceived as an equal partner in the family, who assume the leadership role by common agreement as both husband and wife try to symbolize the relationship between Christ and the church. Instead of being a terror to his children, empowered to kill them if necessary, fathers are urged to provoke not their children to wrath. They are perceived as personal, friendly and concerned about the wives and children.

It is in this context that Jesus began a litany of different teachings referring to God as "Our father." His was a different view of father. It was a compassionate, concerned father who was strong, yet willing to do whatever is necessary to promote, protect and provide for his children.

When Jesus used the term Abba He referred to a personal God. He was talking to daddy! Father characterized God has a man of compassion and love for the entire family of God.

Paul, writing to the Romans used the term "Abba" to remind believers that they had been adopted into the family of God by their faith. Because of their belief in Christ and their willingness to accept him as their Lord and Savior they could claim membership in the family of God with all rights and privileges.

Jesus redefined the meaning of father. We recognize God as our father and humbly submit to him as the stern but loving commanding presence in our lives.

The Black Father's image

The black father has been defined by nearly every entity other than himself. He has been told who he is, where he is now, and how far he can go. Even his image of fatherhood is shaped outside of his own experience. Once perceived as the provider and protector of the home, father in the context of the African-American experience, has been reduced to a mere caricature. Earl Ofari Hutchinson, author of "The Assassination of the Black Male Image" writes that the image of Black men in America has been carefully shaped by the national media which has pounded, twisted, and slanted Black male stereotypes into sensational headlines and T.V. sound bites whose combined message is that Black men are non-achievers, brutes, shiftless, lazy and criminal.

Even more than the national media, the music industry, mostly owned and controlled by groups outside of our community has played a pivotal role in shaping the definition of black manhood. The only images that America projects forcefully of the Black man is that he is either the ignorant Sambo or the hate filled Savage. When Hollywood wants to make a movie about Black life that shows Black men, the men in the movies will reflect one extreme or the other, the ridiculous antics of Step-in-fetch-it or the sheer rage of "Boyz in the Hood."

The black father should redefine himself in light of the word of God, not by images created of him in the media. The word of God teaches that every man is made in the image of God. Like every man he is charged with the responsibility to exercise dominion over the earth. He must be obedient like Abraham, faithful like Job and as sure as Joshua who declared "As for me and my house we will serve the Lord!"

Godly fathers are men of integrity

Godly fathers have a sense of integrity that is rooted in Godly principles.

Some have the notion that a man should do anything to feed himself and his family.

This is true, if by anything it is meant any "moral and just" thing. On the contrary, it is the real man who trusts God to strengthen him to be a provider as he uses every legal and moral channel available to secure his household.

The godly road is the high road; it is the path that men of integrity travel. The high road is not an easy path, in fact it is often difficult and treacherous path. Unfortunately, there are many men who have taken the road to least resistance. Too many are selling drugs, bootlegging movies, compact discs, and stolen merchandise, while involving themselves in a variety of unlawful activities all under the guise of feeding themselves and their families. They brush off the illegality of their actions by saying, "A man's gotta do, what a man's gotta do."

Despite hard times our history shows that we have lived through wars, slavery, floods and depressions, but, for the most part, the men of our families refused to steal or involve themselves in wrongdoing in the name of "doing what we gotta do."

The three Hebrew Boys are prime examples of integrity in action. They were presented with many opportunities to promote themselves professionally and to survive the threat of death, yet they refused to eat from the King's table or bow to political demands that impugned their relationship with God. Their refusal took moral courage, but they stood on their principles.

Great fathers make tough choices to prepare themselves for leadership of their homes and the community in general. This important because real men complete the training they need to be competitive in the economic market. A young boy who claims he's a man but can't force himself to study or complete his education, may wear a man's pants, but he's still not a man. The man who throws his money away gambling, drinking and living large, may have fun, but he's living loosely like a boy, and is a far cry from the man he wants to be.

These attributes of manhood are taught by fathers around the world; they form the foundation upon which strong families are built.

Our character is refined like gold in the fire

Finally, brothers and sisters a Christian father is defined by his ability to withstand the fiery flames of the world with his character intact. Trial by experience is the best judge of our character because those who come through this experience are refined in the faith and closer to the ideal.

Whenever gold or other precious metal is extracted it has to be refined. The process is to heat the ore to such temperatures that the gold separates itself from rock, mud and other minerals in which it may be surrounded. Biblically, it is called being "tried in the fire." The trial by fire is when a father proves himself to his wife and children by passing the tests that life puts before him. The nature of the tests vary from health issues to finances, relationships, career challenges or career difficulties. These challenges have a tendency to reveal

Those who have weathered such storms know what it means to be tried in the fire. When we come through, like pure gold that is refined, all of the raw ore seems to float away leaving behind a purer spirit, a more sensitive nature, and a closeness to God. We went into our situation crudely but we arose more refined and able to stand whatever life throws at us. The Holy Spirit is the refining agent.

The Holy Spirit separates and then polishes us as we prepare for greater service.

Anyone who has been to God's refinery has no trouble praising God.

My father doesn't reside in Monroe or New York or Kansas City, but He sits high and looks low and He's with me wherever I go!

Whether you say, Abba or father, we are reassured that the God we serve us loves with an Agape love.

Some call Him Abba, others call Him father, but it all means one thing: we are His children and He will work it out for us.

The definitive father is one who can stand tall but can reach low!

The definitive father is one who is defined not by the size of his wallet but by the depth of his heart.

The definitive father is one who is defined not by the physical strength of his body but by the moral fiber or his soul

The finest definition of father is that when we need him he is there; when nobody else can; he can.

I have a father who can take:

—Sadness and turn it to gladness; Misery and turn it into delight!

—Failure and turn it into success; Loneliness and turn it into happiness!

—Poverty and turn it into riches; Defeat and turn it into victory!

No wonder the song writer wrote: "I cannot take the lightning and flash it across the land. I cannot take a piece a clay and mold it into a man, but I have a father who can!"

I am reminded of the little girl who had nightmares when she was young and was always afraid in the night. In the middle of the morning when her fears got the best of her she'd cry out, "Papa, it's dark, hold my hand!" No matter how many times she called him papa would get up and hold her hand every night. That picture of her papa sitting by her bed holding her hand, never left her mind, even after he died. Many years later she came to God. When the troubles of the world surrounded her she cried out "Lord, it's dark outside! Hold my hand!"

No wonder the song writer declared, "Lord, hold my hand, while I run this race.

I don't want to run this race alone!"

I don't know about you but I want Jesus to walk with me! He walked with my father, but I want Him to walk with me!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary!

Jesus, who rose after three days!

I want Jesus to walk with me!

Owning God, Disclaiming the devil

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 13, 2010

SCRIPTURE: But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven. Matthew 10:33; "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek. For therein is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith: as it is written, The just shall live by faith." Romans 1:16-17

Introduction

Have you ever seen the disclaimers on various products? They are rather humorous especially when they go to extremes to disclaim some of what they claim.

A disclaimer is an oral or written statement that details expectations, clarifies risks and limits liabilities between parties in a relationship.

In some instances a disclaimer says whose responsible if the rules are not followed. "If the sign says that there is no life guard on duty, swim at your own risk it means your family's ability to sue if you drown is limited or eliminated all together.

Whenever there is a disclaimer, someone is distancing themselves from any blame or leaving themselves a way out with a minimum of loss.

Have you seen the disclaimers in television ads? The web site howstuffworks.com says "Sometimes the disclaimer is in tiny fine print stuffed at the bottom of the screen for a handful of seconds. Other times it's actually spoken by a voice-over artist. Beer advertisers encourage Americans to "please drink responsibly." Extreme auto spots show cars tearing through empty streets and either tell audiences, "Please do not attempt," or assure them that the driver is on a "closed course." Drug manufacturers apply an odd disclaimer to erectile dysfunction drugs — "If it lasts for more than four hours, please consult a physician."

Some who are church members but not Christians have disclaimers on their lives that make excuses for their unwillingness to follow Christ fully. In fact every believer is a walking commercial for the Christian community. Sometimes we remember the disclaimers more than the testimony they give. Their commercial says, "I am a Church member. I believe in God. I am a follower of Christ."

Then the disclaimer comes: "The faith I talk about on Sunday may not be reflected in my everyday living so any recordings or videos of what I say and do cannot be made without my written permission. Be advised that my actions are subject to change without notice. If any of my actions resemble actual Christians, living or dead, it is purely unintentional.

I can be washed in the blood but hand washed only in water warmed to my pleasing. Handle me with care and do not expose me to any situations that may bend me, fold me or otherwise get on my last nerve.

I am a Christian but this claim is void where it is prohibited or unpopular. You must accept me on an "as is basis" without any warranties expressed or implied.

Be on guard when you hear me speak because some of you may find my language objectionable with explicit lyrics, so parental guidance is advised.

I am able to show love in limited quantities on a one time per day per family basis, but I don't always come with a pleasant attitude, some assembly is required.

I'm a church member but I don't do much, you see, action figures are sold separately. I don't pray much so I don't have much power and batteries are not included.

If your dealings with me result in rash behavior, irritating conversation or swelling develops discontinue your dealings with me for a while. I must not be placed in stressful or flammable situations because I blow easily; I must not be punctured, cracked on or laughed at or I could be hazardous to your health.

I'm saved but don't deal with me if you see that my safety seal has been broken or tampered with by the devil. Sometimes I might make you sick to your stomach, if so, do not induce vomiting and if my behavior persists remember me in your prayers.

If I promise you anything allow four to six weeks for delivery but don't expect me to help in case of flood, hurricanes, lighting, volcanic eruption, tsunami, earthquakes, oil spills or acts of God unless you pay me.

I tend to get settled in my ways so shake well before using me in any service. Being a church member is easy but being a Christian could be a challenge. If you see me acting as a Christian I am dysfunctional; if this condition exists for more than four hours, something is seriously wrong consult a physician at once.

The real Christian needs no disclaimers; he or she trusts in God without reservation and his praise is on their lips continuously.

As Christians, we gladly acknowledge God's presence in our lives. We are not ashamed of the gospel of Christ. We tell of His goodness where ever we go.

Exposition

This text focuses on Paul asserting to the Romans that he was not ashamed of Christ in any way.

For Paul, there was a great deal at stake. He was one who lived completely opposite from what the gospel taught. Instead of lifting the church he persecuted the church with a passion that identified him as a zealot of the destruction of all Christians. Now, after encountering God himself, Paul boldly tells those who will hear him that he is not ashamed of Christ or his message of salvation and deliverance.

He was not ashamed to announce that he believed that Jesus was a man and God.

He was not ashamed to testify that he believed that a man who was crucified on a cross and buried in a grave actually arose from the dead three days later. Neither was he ashamed to admit that that he himself came face to face with God on the Damascus Road. Moreover, Paul made it known that he was not ashamed to announce that he lived by faith in Christ on a daily basis.

In verse 17 Paul speaks of the righteousness of God. The righteousness of God cuts off all pretenses. The righteousness of man is based upon situations and can be taken on or off like a coat or a jacket in response to the situation. Therefore, the self righteous can sound holy on Sunday and sound totally different on Monday. Their righteousness is not based on God but on self preservation and self elevation. In other words they are righteous if it protects them or elevates them in life. If it will threaten either of these then God, the people of God and the teachings of God are disclaimed. Paul made it known that there were no disclaimers that professed and attested to the righteousness of God 24/7. It is a righteousness of which he was not ashamed.

The phrase "faith to faith" points to progressive nature of our relationship with Christ. We accepted him on faith alone but we grow from one level of faith to another. Our baptismal faith is our root; it is our beginning. Our ceremonial faith is our worship, prayer and spiritual development and ministerial faith demonstrates itself in our willingness to serve others: to help the poor, the aged, infirmed and the disenfranchised, without thought of pay or commercial advantage. To some that is foolishness. Paul says, he's not ashamed to move from faith to faith and to live by that faith from day to day. He boldly announced that the just shall live by faith.

Paul's willingness to own Christ and his teachings in the face of a hostile world reflected the faith that Christ requires of each of us. Jesus told his disciples that those who disclaim him through their actions or words will also be disclaimed when they stand in judgment. His words ring in our ears: "whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven."

Dealing with Claims

Claiming God means to claim what he teaches and receiving what he offers. It also means denying the devil and his works. To do this there must be:

ANNOUNCING YOUR CLAIM: One visible attribute of the true believer is his willingness to acknowledge God. There is never an instant in which believers fail to see God's providential hand in their lives, so they proclaim His greatness. We glorify God by acknowledging Him as the source of every good thing we do.1 Corinthians 10:31 reminds us to acknowledge God in everything, including the seemingly small and mundane things such as eating and drinking. In essence we reflect the biblical teaching that "whatsoever we do, do all to the glory of God." This is not conditional or seasonal It never ends. In good times or bad we proclaim Him as our king. There is never an occasion when we deny Him or disclaim Him. Our testimony is sure, "God is good all the time; all the time God is good."

STAKING YOUR CLAIM: Believers have been promised that any good thing that true believers desire will not be withheld from them. Good things are those things which are according to God's will and plan for our lives. If what we want is in God's will it is a good thing and it will never be withheld. That's a promise that is reaffirmed in Psalm 84:11 which says, "No good thing will He withhold from them that work uprightly." Even though God has promised us His favor, many have not staked their claim. Paul writing to the Romans challenged them to move from "faith to faith." That means to step out on faith and stake your claim in life. Those who are planning to do big things for God should step forth on the belief that God has inspired their actions and stake their claims. When this nation spread West the government gave away lands in Nebraska and other areas. Those who wanted acres of free land had only to line up in a great race, reach the parcel of land they wanted and drive a flag in the ground and stake their claim! If you have not achieved your potential don't blame it on God, the promise has been made, but you must move from faith to faith to stake your claim. don't say God let you down. Don't disclaim him, go out and stake your claim!

RECLAIMING A DENIED CLAIM: There are many who have denied Christ and are reluctant to reclaim Him. Somehow they don't want to turn loose the world; they want one more party, one more weekend; one more wild fling, one more drunken orgy, one more plunge. The real Christian life requires complete dedication, with no disclaimers and some find that difficult. Consider the Pedestrian when he was suddenly hit by a car. As he flew through the air he felt instantly that he was breathing his last breath and wouldn't make it. As he lay on the sidewalk a minister ran to him and after calling for help, talked to him. The minister starting asking him to make his peace with God and renounce the devil and all his deeds. The man said, "Lord, forgive me for all my sins!" The minister said, "that's good but you need to renounce the devil and all of his deeds!" The man lay on the sidewalk quietly, then whispered, "Lord, forgive me for all my sins, I believe!" Again the minister said, "You must also tell the devil that you renounce him and all his deeds!" The man looked up at the preacher and said, "Until I know where I'm going, I don't think it would be a good idea to aggravate anybody!" Even at the point of death there are some that don't know which direction they are going! The prodigal son showed us the way. After coming to himself he said, "I will arise and go to my father and say father I have sinned against God and against thee, make me one of your hired servants." The father welcomed him home.

Own Up to Him

Finally, brothers and sisters, we should not disclaim the Lord we should own up to Him to an unbelieving world.

When the world looks at us funny it's easy for some to disclaim the Lord. That's what Peter did when Jesus was being tried in an unjust court, Peter denied Him three times.

However, we can't show love for someone if we claim them when things are going well, but dump them when they are not.

Sometimes we disclaim family members. We require of them a level of perfection before we will love them.

That's our sister over there, but we don't claim her because she likes to drink and party.

That's our brother over there, but we don't claim him because he dropped out of school and hangs out on the corners.

That's our uncle over there, but we don't claim him because he curses and cheats on his wife. That's my auntie over there, but we don't claim her because she's a constant flirt and likes to steal other women's husbands.

That's our stepfather over there, but we don't claim him because he smokes and gambles all of his money away.

Yet, there's always somebody in the family that says, my brother may be in Jail, but he's still my brother and I love him anyway

My sister may be on crack and wasting her life away, but she's still my sister and I love her anyway.

True love doesn't require perfection; neither does it require us to endorse loose living and wrong doing; but true love looks beyond our faults and sees our need.

I'm glad that Jesus has laid claim to each of us. He said in John 10:14 "I am the good shepherd, and I know my sheep, and my sheep know me."

There may be a few black sheep in the fold, but he loves them one and all.

Christ doesn't claim us because we are perfect and have done nothing wrong, instead he claims us despite our imperfections.

The only thing that will make him disclaim us is that we won't claim Him.

If we deny him he will deny us!

I don't know about you but we should be glad to claim Christ as our savior and to praise His name!

We should claim the Lord and praise Him because His:

Grace is always sufficient; Love is always abundant.

Mercy is everlasting and; promises are sure.

When God has done something good for us, we should be willing tell everybody and the God we serve.

We should tell it on our jobs! Tell it in the songs we sing! We should tell it in the joy that bubbles in our soul! We should never back down from a chance to say to the world, "I just want to thank God for being so good to me!"

Don't be ashamed to tell the world that it was God's grace that turned my:

—Bitterness and turning it to sweetness; Sadness and giving me joy!

—Loneliness and give me companionship; Emptiness and giving me fulfillment!

—Failure and showing me the victory; Discouragement and giving me encouragement!

More than that, tell the world that one day he saved my soul.

I don't know about you, but every now and then, I want to tell somebody that I serve a good God!

I want to tell somebody that he carried an old cross for me!

I want to tell somebody that he died out on Calvary!

I want to tell somebody that early Sunday morning that he arose from the dead!

Thank you Lord!

Thank you Lord!

...for you've been so good to me!

Who's afraid of the Boogie Man?

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

June 27, 2010

SCRIPTURE:"Fear not; for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am thy God: I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness." Isaiah 41:10

Introduction

Have you ever been afraid of things that creep in the night My father's home was next to the cemetery. I slept in the back room only about 15 feet from a row of tombstones that were harmless in the day but struck fear in my heart at night.

In my room, the wallpaper was loose and hung from the wall in places. However, at night the room was dark. I was alone and it seemed that someone from the graveyard was looking in the window. The hanging paper seemed to breathe. I was terrified because I was told that when I did wrong that the Boogie Man would get me. I remembered I was supposed to feed the chickens that day and didn't. I was terrified that the Boogie Man would get me. I hid my head under the covers and would not move. I was too afraid to go to the bathroom or run for help. I believed that the Boogie Man would get me.

The next day I looked out the window only to learn that the graves had not opened.

The wall paper still hung and that there was no one lurking in the bushes. The boogie man didn't get me.

For many years my actions were controlled by the threat that the "Boogie Man" would get me if I strayed.

Many children today are still afraid of the Boogie Man; but did you know that many adults are afraid of the Boogie Man, too?

The Boogie Man" is the composite of everything that we fear. He's the unseen character that lurks behind every bush, corner and turn, looking for a chance to prey on us.

The fear of the Boogie Man, ghosts or monsters has been something that has been used to control the unsuspecting for generations. The Klan tried to frighten thousands of blacks during reconstruction by wearing sheets and burning crosses.

George Bush frighten the whole nation into a war in Iraq by making Saddam Hussein into a Boogie Man who had weapons of mass destruction aimed at America.

Consider the little boy who was deathly afraid of the Boogie Man because his big brother always threatened him that the Boogie Man would eat him up. One day the big brother came into the room with a big bag of candy that he would not share with his little brother. There was no place he could hide the candy so he conjured up the bright idea of hiding it in the closet. He told his little brother that the bag of candy was the Boogie Man's and the Boogie Man was in the closet guarding the candy. For days the little boy wouldn't go near the closet, afraid of the Boogie Man. Then one day the bag fell over a piece of candy rolled on the floor and the little boy ate it and nothing happened. When his brother returned his little brother was holding the empty bag in his hand. "How did you get that bag? Didn't I tell you that if you go in the closest that the Boogie Man would get you?" The little boy answered, "At first I was afraid, but then I got me a bigger Boogie Man and he beat up your Boogie Man." The older brother asked, "What happened to the candy. When my boogie man was beating up you boogie man he got hungry and ate up your boogie man and the candy too and left me this bag!"—When he overcame his fear, the little boy couldn't be frightened by the Boogie Man anymore.

What's your Boogie Man?

It's the fear of the unseen and the unknown. Those who are afraid of their Boogie Man live in a constant state of fear, apprehension and doubt, always afraid could happen.

Some fear losing what they have and dread the thought of a day when they will have nothing. They become miserly and support few, if any charities. The prospect of insecurity is their boogie man. Some are paranoid; they feel everyone is out to get them. Everyone is a boogie man to them, and no one can be trusted.

Some fear sickness or death. Others fear failure or loss of public acclaim or social standing. In every instance, that which they fear most is always close by to haunt them, like the boogie man.

If the unknown is frightening you, then you need someone who controls the unknown on your side. You need someone bigger than the Boogie Man in your corner.

Men and women of faith look to Jesus as the their provider and protector. With him there is no fear of the unknown.

As believers we trust God every step of the way. He has promised to protect us and deliver us from all evil there is no reason to fear anything in this life, even the Boogie Man.

Exposition

Our text considers the Prophet Isaiah as he shares an inspirational prophecy with Judah. Judah had fallen to the Babylonians who took the brightest and best talents of the land back to Babylonia. The nation was destroyed and spiritually decimated (destroyed).

However, Isaiah issued a prophecy that told of future events that would disturb the world when they happened, but would finally result in Israel being set free. He closed the 40th chapter encouraging Judah to be patient and wait on the Lord. His words to them were simple, "They that wait on the Lord, shall renew their strength, they shall mount on wings as eagles, they shall run and not get weary, walk and not faint."

In the 41st Chapter he projects the rise of the Persian Empire, 150 years before it actually happened. In 44:28 he even names the King that will first move to set Israel free, by name, King Cyrus.

In a nutshell, Isaiah says to Judah, do not fear when you see these things come because they are necessary for the will of God to manifest itself.

Then comes our text words in verse 10, which say simply that no matter what others may do, people of God should "fear not." Why? "For I am with thee."

Be Not Dismayed

The bible reminds believers who may be disturbed about the events they see unfolding on the daily with one phrase, "Be not dismayed." What is dismayed? What does it mean? To be dismayed means to lose courage or faith.

Those words ring out in our ears.

Be not dissuaded.

Be not horrified.

Be not apprehensive.

Be not appalled.

Be not disheartened

Be not disillusioned

Be not destroyed

The reason that we should not be dismayed is because God is still God and he is still in control. When Israel stood at the Red Sea, Pharaoh's army approached them from the rear and the Red Sea loomed in front of them they were afraid of the unknown, but they received one command from Moses, "Stand still and see the salvation of the Lord."

In difficult times believers should heed that same admonition, "Stand Still and see the salvation of the Lord.

God will help us

Today, there are many people who see the rapid deterioration of our social order and have become overly afraid, yet we should hear God's words, "I will help thee."

If God has promised to help us why should we be afraid of the unknown.

Certainly there is reason for concern. Crime is rising, while interest in the things of God seems to be falling.

Jail cells are filling, murderers are killing, and our young people are dropping out of life "illn" and "chilling."

Too many people have smut in the brains, dope in their veins, and can't get along without heartaches and pains.

Many people look around them and even nature strikes fear in their lives.

Summers are getting hotter and winters are getting shorter. Leaves are falling early, hail drops out of nowhere on a sun shiny day, and cities are collapsing as earthquakes rumble.

Isaiah told Judah, not to be overly concerned because God has promised to help us.

Romans 8:31 seems to sum up the matter when it declares, "What shall we then say to these things? If God be for us, who can be against us?"

Others around you who do not understand the plan of God may get themselves overly upset about what they see, we hear God saying, "I will help thee."

Others may seek soothsayers, palm readers, witch doctors, quacks, hacks, voodoo, hoodoo, and try to go with the "mojo", but we know we can depend on the promise of God, "I will help thee."

God will Uphold the Righteous

There are many who are concerned that the unrighteous seemed to dominating our society, supported by the courts and a shift in governmental ethics.

The bible warns believers not to be overly concerned about evil doers; they are false Boogie Men who seem to be gaining today, but their fall is imminent.

Psalm 37:1-2 " Fret not thyself because of evildoers, neither be thou envious against the workers of iniquity. For they shall soon be cut down like the grass, and wither as the green herb."

Don't get too excited about the rise in homosexuality now endorsed by the President of the United States because it's been predicted that in the latter days, men would become lovers of themselves. Before.

We can claim what God has in store for us, these things must be.

Don't get too perturbed about increasing absentees in the churches over all the land. Jesus said in the final years before his coming, there would be a great falling away. These things must be!

I don't know what you think about it, but I've decided that David was right when he declared "The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear?"

When I hear about atrocities at home and abroad, I don't get too disturbed because I know that "all things work to the good of them that love the Lord, according to his purpose."

Maybe that's why the song writer wrote, "I do not know how long it twill be or what the future has for me. But this I know, if Jesus leads me, I will get home someday."

No reason for fear

Finally, brothers and sisters, we who know God should not be overly frustrated or dismayed because God is still on the throne.

Those who are dismayed are at the verge of giving up. Dismay implies disillusionment.

When you are dismayed, you lack the courage that it takes to go on!

When you are dismayed, you lack the vision that it takes to see your way clear!

When you are dismayed, you lack the hope that it takes to believe that no matter how bad it gets, the Lord will make a way!

When you are dismayed, your spirit gets low and you hang your head in defeat!

When you are dismayed, your smiling face is replaced by frowns and doubt.

But I heard the Lord say, "Be not dismayed, for I"-The all powerful God:

For I:

—Who rounded the earth in the palm of my hand

—Spangled the night with the moon and stars

—Batted my eyes and made the lightning flash

—Clapped my hands and made the thunder roll

—hollowed the valleys and bulged the mountains up!

"I am thy God..and I will strengthen thee!"

Oh brothers and sisters, these are perilous times in which we live but we should not despair or be dismayed.

Satan may be in the saddle for a while, but remember God is still on the throne!

Hatred might be all around us, but Jesus is still trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored!

Sin may be on a rampage, but Jesus is still Lord of Lords!

The world may be extremely wicked, but remember Jesus is still king of Kings!

If you think the world is getting out of hand, just remember what the little children say: "He's got the whole world, whole world in his hands!"

If the storms rise, be not dismayed

If the winds blow, be not dismayed

If your mountains get hard to climb, be not dismayed

If burdens seem too heavy to bear, be not dismayed

No wonder the song writer declared, "Be not dismayed what ere betide, God will take care of you. Beneath his wings of love abide. God will take care of you!

He started taking care of you in the beginning of time when He said, let us make man!

He kept on taking care of you when made ways for us out of no way!

He kept on taking care of you when he put food on your table and answered your prayers.

He was taking care of you when he picked up an old rugged cross and carried it to Golgotha's Hill.

He was taking care of you when died out on Calvary!

Dancing in the Desert

A Sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For The Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La.

July 4, 2010

SCRIPTURE: "Then shall the lame[man] leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb sing: for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert.;"and the ransomed of the LORD shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads: they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away. "Isaiah 35;6, 10

Introduction

Have there ever been times in your experience when you felt like dancing with joy? When great moments comes most of us make some type of expression of joy whether it's clapping our hands, stomping our feet or shouting with joy.

There are times when we dance. After a long and grueling campaign for the White House, Barack and Michelle Obama took to the floor at an Inaugural ball, with Beyonce Knowles singing at tune by Etta James. We watched as they danced to "At Last."

When the New Orleans Saints won their first Super Bowl the people of Louisiana danced down Bourbon Street and main street in hundreds of cities to the sound of "When the Saints go marching in."

When David successfully returned the Ark of the covenant to it's proper place in Israel, he was so happy the he began to dance up and down the main street. He didn't stop there, the scripture says he stripped off his clothes down to his under wear and unashamedly started leaping, jumping and dancing as the entire city watched. His wife was embarrassed, but he did not care he celebrated his joy.

We know the feeling. Not only do politicians and football teams dance after victories, but we dance after weddings, graduations, and birthdays. Solomon, in his great wisdom, said in Ecclesiastes 3:4 that there is a time to mourn and a time to dance. This dance is a holy dance, one that is dedicated to God and responds to his goodness.

This is probably what song writer Fred Hammond had in mind when he wrote, "When the Spirit of the Lord comes upon my heart, I will dance like David danced. I will dance. I will dance. I will dance like David danced."

As Christians, we get excited when we think about the goodness of the Lord. It's those grand moments when we are filled with joy an anticipation we feel like dancing, not dirty dancing, but dancing to the glory of the Lord

Exposition

This text focuses on a prophecy of Isaiah that told them of a great day when Israel, after having been exiled, would return home with much shouting, singing and dancing.

The events of this section of Isaiah, which cover several chapters, are important to Jewish history. These particular events are recorded three times in Scripture — 2Kings 18-19, 2Chronicles 29-30, and here in Isaiah. The fact that they are recited repeatedly emphasize their importance.

Here, God promises a deliverance of Israel and an eventual restoration. Three specific miracles are performed to give them reason for eventual joy.

—The death angel destroyed 185,000 Assyrians (Isa. 37:36-38).

—The sun retreated ten degrees on the sundial of Ahaz (Isa. 38:7-8).

—God healed and extended Hezekiah's life fifteen years (Isa. 38:1-5).

The highlight of this passage is the prophecy that speaks about Israel's homecoming. Isaiah projects that there will be great excitement when Israel returns to Zion. The excitement will be so great that the lame will leap with joy, the mute will sing and dry springs will bring forth water in the desert.

When the righteous return to Zion there will be singing, shouting and dancing in the desert. Their rejoicing will reach to glory, praising God for his mercy and his goodness.

Reasons to celebrate

There are many reasons that we celebrate, some are public while others are personal. Each is a testament of our joy as recipients of the goodness of the Lord.

WE CELEBRATE WITH REUNIONS: Isaiah said Israel would celebrate when the people return home. The same is true with believers today. Many return home for class and family reunions. It is a time of renewal, reflection and celebration. There is plenty of laughter and nostalgic reflection on the struggles of the past.

When reunions are celebrated each person know that God has helped them to see their way through each that has passed. Each may have changed in their appearance but the God that brought each person through has not changed. He is still God and He is still blessing them today.

There is excitement in the voice of each person who tells how God healed them and brought them back to life.

Many voices are raised and eyes are widened as we are told how God touched lives and changed them.

Those who were failing but now stand on the pinnacles of success tell of their epiphanies and life changing experiences.

It all makes each person desire to testify to the goodness and greatness of God.

They get excited

Kirk Franklin in his classic song said, "I can't explain it, I can't obtain it, Jesus your love is so amazing, it gets me high up in the sky and when I think about your goodness it makes me wanna stomp, it makes me clap my hands, makes me wanna dance and stomp."

When we think of how God has been better to us than we have been to ourselves, we all feel like dancing in the desert.

WE CELEBRATE OUR VICTORIES: When we reflect on the road we have traveled we see our difficulties and frustrations but we also see our victories, thousands of them, over the frustrations that life has given us. Through it all, it has been God who has helped us withstand all of these troubles.

Our journey is one that has been filled with struggle and difficulty. Whether it has been our ethnic struggle as a people of color or as individuals striving to overcome our personal fights with life threatening situations, we have reason to celebrate because God has helped us to survive our difficulty and even to escape death itself.

When our world was turned upside down by tragic events God's grace kept us from becoming cynical and disillusioned with life.

When we witnessed how evil some people can be, His love helped us to keep loving others despite the fact that there are some who are hard to love.

When failure was all around us, God's constant encouragement pushed us to "run and see what the end would be."

We celebrate because we know that God will never forsake us or leave us alone,.

We celebrate because God has shown us His great faithfulness. No wonder the song writer declared: "Great is thy faithfulness. Great is thy faithfulness, morning by morning new mercies I see. All I have needed thy hands hath provided. Great is thy faithfulness, Lord unto me."

WE CELEBRATE WHAT WE HAVE BECOME: More than anything, those who have found the Lord get excited each time they think about what they have become in the Lord. Who would have thought that the hottest girl in the senior class would be the coolest mother of the church. Who would have thought that Mr. Hot lips would ever open his mouth to witness for God? Who would have thought that the class failure would actually turn out to be one of the most successful members of his class? Individuals should also look back over the journey they have traveled. Today, many are ministers, deacons, deaconesses, and prominent civic personalities. When we think back were remember the way we were and recognize that this has not always been the case.. There have been changes. That's why 1 Corinthians 6:11 says, "And such were some of you:, but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God."

The King's Highway

Finally, brothers and sisters, we celebrate great accomplishments on this side of heaven, but when we get home, there will be dancing in the streets of heaven.

The path we have chosen is taking us to heaven. In the wilderness of our experience, God has created a literal "highway of holiness" that is referred to in Isaiah 35:8. It is the path that God is opening to lead us to the fulfillment of our individual destinies. Those who know the Lord can see how he has blazed a trail for us through this wilderness experience, showing us the way around and through difficult times on our way to the Promised Land.

On this side of heaven, the Promised Land is different for each person, but collectively we are all on our way to paradise.

The song writer has declared, that there is a "highway to heaven. None can walk up there but the pure in heart. There's a highway to heaven. I am walking up the king's highway."

Everyday we are walking up the king's highway.

When we get there we will return home with songs of joy and praise for our deliverance.

When we get there we will return home rejoicing because of our triumphs over adversity.

When we get there we will return home singing and shouting "How I got over, How I got over. My soul looks back and wonders, How I got over."

When we get there we might sing with Mary, Mary, "I just wanna dance, dance, dance" because he took the "shackles off my feet."

A generation ago the Staples Singers angered many people because they had a song that made people so happy, they wanted to dance. For many it was the beat, but for others it was excitement generated when Mavis Staples said, "I'll take you there."

Like Mavis, I know a place where "ain't nobody crying, ain't nobody worried, ain't no smiling faces lying to the races."

I don't know about you but I know a place where:

-There are no wars because there is only peace;

-There is no hatred, because there is only love;

-There is no sadness, because there is only gladness;

-There is no weakness, because there is only strength;

-There is no death, because there is only life;

I know there is such a place because I heard Jesus say, "I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am ye may be also!"

This place is a land, on a far-a-away strand where we will never grow old.

I know a place that will have perfect streets, made of solid Gold!

I know a place that will have perfect lighting, because it will be illuminated by the glory of God!

I know a place that will have perfect medicine, because there will be a tree in its midst that will be good for the healing of the nations!

I don't know about you, but I want to go to the place called heaven. I want to be at the meeting!

I want to be at the meeting around the throne!
After, separating, from the right and the wrong
I want to be in the number, When the saints go marching home
Trouble will be over, sorrows will be gone
Then we'll have a meeting around the throne
Somebody will be dancing but they won't be jigalating!
Somebody will be dancing but they won't be Walking the Dog!
Somebody will be dancing but they won't be doing the Stanky Leg!
They will be leaping and jumping for joy, singing "I never would have made it without you Lord!
If you want to get there, come and go with me!
Come and go with me to an old rugged cross on a hill called Calvary!
Come and go with me to see His nail scarred hands!
Come and go with me to see His empty tomb!
Come and go with me and I'll show you the place where the disciples must have been dancing in streets, because Early Sunday morning He arose from the grave!
Come and go with me to my father's house!
In my father's house there is joy! Joy! Joy!

Yet, I will rejoice in the Lord

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: "Although the fig tree shall not blossom, neither shall fruit be in the vines; the labor of the olive shall fail, and the fields shall yield no meat; the flock shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stalls: Yet I will rejoice in the LORD, I will joy in the God of my salvation. Habakkuk 3:17-18

Introduction

When do you find it easiest to praise the Lord? If you are like most people, it is easiest to praise the Lord after you have received a great blessing. During those times you are filled with excitement and joy and the urge to testify is intense. There are other times however, that some find it hard to praise the Lord. These are the times when events did not unfold as well as we expected. These are the times that we lost the game, flunked the test, failed an evaluation or missed the mark in some way. During times such as those many find it difficult to praise the Lord.

On a good day we are really in the mood for praise. On these days we stand on our feet, clap our hands and let the joy of the Lord be known and shared. We call it a good day when we everything goes as planned. When our ideas are accepted and we are rewarded. When our enemies are eluded and victory becomes our partner we know we are having a good.

What about bad days? Which days are those? Well, you know you are having a bad day when you call 911 and they put you on hold! You know you having a bad day when your twin brother forgets your birthday! You're having a real bad day when your birthday cake collapses because of the weight of the number of candles. When you read the obituary column of the paper and you see your name and picture; you're having a bad day. What do you do on a bad day? We should still praise the Lord.

We praise the Lord in ways associated with our personalities. Everyone doesn't stand and clap, so we shouldn't misinterpret the body language. Neither should we assume that everyone who claps their hands is having a good day. Consider the minister who was full of energy and enthusiasm for the Lord. One day he went to the hospital to visit one of his parishioners who was critically ill. The minister entered the room and saw the man lying in bed with a whole host of tubes and wires attached to his body. Without any delay, the minister strode to his bedside and began to exhort him to be of good cheer. Soon the man became agitated and started to wave his arms. This encouraged the minister, and so he exhorted him more and more enthusiastically. Finally, the minister ended with a rather lengthy prayer. At the final "Amen" the minister opened his eyes just in time to see the man reach for a pad of paper and a pencil. Quickly he wrote something and handed it to the minister. Then he looked at the pad and read these words: "You are standing on my oxygen tube!"

As Christians we have come to recognize that God is good all the time, and all the time God is good. Since He is good all of the time then we should praise Him all the time; not just when someone is standing on our tube.

Exposition

This text focuses on the prophet Habakkuk as he encourages the people of God to have faith despite difficult times.

The prophet Habakkuk had the difficult task of preaching to God's people as their country was threatened with distant prospect of war and trouble.

God speaks to Habakkuk personally and shows him how he is working in the events that will unfold to work out His will, even to the point of using what is obviously evil to accomplish an eventual good. Tough times were on the way, tougher than the nation had ever experienced. This prophecy showed both the trouble ahead and that which would linger afterwards.

Habakkuk 3:17-18 are displays of resignation and confidence. God showed Habakkuk an unavoidable evil that was forthcoming, yet he announced his trust in God's promise to raise Israel up as a great nation. His declaration to trust God displayed his unshaken confidence.

Habakkuk announced that the world is in God's control and not controlled by those who worship idols, wreak violence or seem to be victorious in their evil ways. He proclaimed that God is still in control and is still the master of the universe.

Thus, Habakkuk concludes that although there are difficult times ahead and troubles all around, the just should not give up the faith.

Living by faith has implications. Its implications are spelled out in verses 17 and 18. "Although the fig tree shall not blossom, neither shall fruit be in the vines; the labor of the shall fail, and the fields shall yield no meat; the flock shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stalls; yet I will rejoice in the Lord, I will joy in the God of my salvation."

The fig tree, the vine, the olive, the fields, and the cattle were symbols of success and prosperity. Even without the symbols, Habakkuk noted that he found a reason to rejoice; the rejoicing is in God himself. If God is still on the throne then there is a reason for hope tinged with joy, because in the end he and those who follow him will be victorious.

Tough times are threatening and trouble is all around, the just and believers must resolve like Habakkuk, "Yet will I rejoice in the Lord."

The Theology of "Yet"

There is great power in the word yet. It implies that despite present circumstances there is something else remaining.

Yet implies that there's still something else to be considered.

The theology of yet is what motivates believers today to continue steadfastly in our faith in God.

Yet, implies a faith in the goodness of God and his ability to deliver him from his circumstance. That's why Job considered that while his personal and financial affairs were crumbling around him, he still held firm to his belief in God and announced, "Yea though he slay, yet will I trust him."

It is the theology of yet that prompted a widow woman to take her last cruse of oil and meal and act on faith that her barrel would not run dry.

It was the theology of yet that prompted a woman who had an issue of blood to push our way through a crowd to touch the hem of his garment even though the prospects for success were dim.

It is that same theology of yet that gives us inspiration to continue, even today.

An oil spill has caused tremendous damage to the environment and to economic life of the people in the Gulf regions of our nation, yet we will rejoice in the Lord.

Unemployment is high, forcing hundreds of thousands across the nation to worry on a daily basis about the mere essentials for survival, yet we will rejoice in the Lord.

We are confronting enemies on foreign shore and defending ourselves against enemies trying to attack us on our own land. The threat of terrorism is rising and trouble is in the air, yet we will rejoice in the Lord.

The theology of yet, transcends the frustrations of the moment and looks with a hopeful eye into the glorious realities of the future.

Yet, helps us to look beyond our present difficult situations to the time when God will work it out. That's when we are able to look beyond our tight financial situations, frustrating personal dilemmas, and career setbacks and realize that if we can just hold on, God will bring us through according to His will.

It's that hope that keeps us saying with Habakkuk "Yet, will I rejoice in him."

The theology of the "I"

Just as there was considerable theology involved with the word "yet" there is an equal amount of theology in the "I" of this text.

Although Habakkuk addressed his announcements about the doom and gloom to the entire nation of Israel, his response in this text was not a direction for what they should do, but he narrowed it down to what he would.

Thus, he speaks in the first person, "I will rejoice in the Lord."

It's the theology of the "I" that catches our attention.

It's the theology of the "I" that prompted Joshua to look at how other families were deserting God and choosing a different paths. It was this "I" theology that inspired him to conclude that regardless to how others responded, “As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord.”

The same theology of the “I” prompted David to consider what he should do when surrounded by tough and difficult times. David said in Psalm 121:1, “I will lift up mine eyes to the hills from whence cometh my help, my help cometh from the Lord who made the heavens and the earth.”

It doesn’t matter whether everyone else gives up in tough times, “I will look to the Lord.”

It’s the theology of the “I” that prompts believers to stand firm in their faith regardless of the darkness of the hour and sing, “I will trust in the Lord until I die.”

That same theology declares “I am on the battlefield for my Lord. And I promised him that I would serve him till I die. I’m on the battlefield for my Lord.”

The theology of “rejoice”

The word rejoice is used in the text differentiating it from the word “joy” which is used in the same verse.

The “pre” prefix usually means that something is about to be done again.

To repeat is to do the same thing again.

To remix is to take the same elements, shuffle them, and do them again.

To recite is to give an oral account again.

To remember is to call up stored information for current use.

To reenter is to enter again.

To “Re” anything means we are going to do it one more time.

So, when Habakkuk said he would rejoice it means that he will have the same amount of joy in the present that he once had at some point in the past.

In Habakkuk 3:18 he says he will rejoice and joy in the Lord. This is the theology of rejoicing. It’s the idea of celebrating and praising in hard times just as much as we do or more than we did when situations were better.

The difference between the two in this context is a reflection of the circumstance and the hope.

To rejoice in this context, Habakkuk takes into account all of the troubles that Israel faces and uses the word “rejoice” to indicate joy in the midst of tough times, with the same level of intensity and faith that was shown in better times. The latter phrase “I will joy in the God of my salvation” speaks to the present moment.

We can rejoice when we remember how God has blessed us in the past as He brought us to the present.

We can rejoice when see what God has done and is still doing today.

If God has blessed us before, He will bless us again, so we rejoice.

If God has healed us before, He can heal us again, so we rejoice.

If God has lifted us before, He can lift us again, so we rejoice.

We rejoice in the middle of hard times, even before we are delivered.

We don’t have to wait until the battle is over, we can shout now.

Yet, I will rejoice

Finally, brothers and sisters we must remember that since we have been promised that God will be with us, we should take joy in knowing that it will be alright after while.

We are tempted to experience depression and the blues when things don't go well, but we should find a reason to rejoice, even when it doesn't go so well.

We should rejoice as long as the Lord is with us.

When the Lord is with you, it won't matter how rocky the road or how high the mountain. When the Lord is with you there is:

-Peace in the midst of your Problems

-Calm in the midst of your crises

-Gladness in the midst of your sorrows

-Assurance in the midst of your affliction

I don't know about you but I have decided that I will rejoice and lift up the name of Jesus because. If the Lord stands by me, he'll give me a:

-light to shine in my darkness

-Straight path to walk, when I can't find my way

-Lift up when I've fallen down

-Strong hand to hold, when I'm feeling weak

Don't be discouraged if it appears that you surrounded by misfortune and trouble is always on your heel, rejoice in your spirit because you know what the world doesn't know. God is working it out.

There may be sorrow all around me, yet I will rejoice in him, because he brings us joy!

There is conflict all around me, yet I will rejoice in him, because he brings me courage!

There danger all around me, yet I will rejoice in him because he brings me safety!

There is weakness all around me, yet I will rejoice in him because he bring me strength!

There is a spirit of defeat all around me, yet I will rejoice in him, because he brings me the victory!

There are storm clouds gathering in my sky, yet I will rejoice in him, because he speaks to the wind and waves!

I will rejoice because God sent his Son to die for us on Calvary and wash away our sins!

I will rejoice because our God looks down on us every day and showers us with blessings from heaven!

I will rejoice because the Lord is blessing me right now!

I will rejoice because He woke me up this morning and started me on my way!

Rejoice because the Lord is blessing you right now!

A bargain with the devil, A promise from God

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.

SCRIPTURE: Then one of the twelve, called Judas Iscariot, went unto the chief priests, And said unto them, What will ye give me, and I will deliver him unto you? And they covenanted with him for thirty pieces of silver. And from that time he sought opportunity to betray him. Matthew 26:14-16; And Jesus answered and said unto him, Get thee behind me, Satan: for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve. Luke 4:8; But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you. Matthew 6:33

Introduction

Do you have a price? Can you be bought? Is there something that you can be offered that will prompt you to compromise your basic principles and beliefs?In the safety and security of a worship service many believers immediately respond that they cannot be bought and would never compromise their principles for anything in the world.

In 1734 an old Maxim attributed to Wyndham began to circulate. It said, "Every man has his price, if you can but come up to it." That saying acknowledges what some believe to be a moral weakness in most people and that is that if given the right incentive there are many who are willing to do just about anything.

Unfortunately, we have seen this principle played out before our own eyes.

We have seen businesses that were willing to endanger the lives of millions by reducing the quality of thousands of products from baby cribs to toothpaste, to reach or maintain a certain level of profit.

We have seen workers exposed to killer toys from China painted with lead and low cost FEMA trailers lined with asbestos.

We have seen men and women become spies for the nation's enemies in return for envelopes stuffed with cash.

We have seen politicians vote to relax dangerous rules that endanger thousands to continue received donations from wealthy donors.

There are men who literally sell their souls to the devil to achieve fame and wealth. They begin with lofty ideals until they are offered enough zeros behind a single digit number of their choice.

Have we not seen young women who exchanged their chastity for rent money, clothing, or fifty cent bags? Haven't we seen men become gigolos and strippers for the same reason?

We have seen students trade their integrity and buy answers to tests or risk prison to download music and videos from the internet without paying for them.

A person can only be bribed if that person has a price. A person who offers a bribe assumes that each person has a price, it must be discovered then offered.

In a fit of self righteousness, many of us claim that we have no price but if the opportunity presented itself many of us learn something about ourselves.

If suddenly someone walked in the backdoor the church and offered $10 for the first person who will stand on their feet and announce God has not blessed me today, then walk out of the worship service there may be no takers. What if the offer was raised to a $100 bill? What if was raised to ten $100 bills? A hundred $100 bills? For $10,000 someone would be easing out of their seats. When you answer the question in your mind how much would the offer need to be for you to move, you have named your price.

Two movies illustrate the point. In 1993 Robert Redford and Demi Moore starred in a movie entitled "Indecent Proposal." Moore and her husband were struggling financially and were about to lose all they owned when wealthy man played by Redford made Moore's husband a tempting proposal. "Would you take $1 Million for one night with your wife?" The offer came with no strings, no threat of disease, discovery and would never be repeated. The question plagued the entire nation for an entire year as talk shows around the country tried to get answers. In 2009 Cameron Diaz starred in movie entitled "The Box." In this movie Diaz, who was facing financial trouble was given the option to push a button on a black box that was delivered to her door anonymously. She was later told that if she pushed the button that she would receive a briefcase stuffed with $1 million in cash, however somewhere in the world someone that she did not know and would never know would die. She had to make a choice.

If given that choice would we push the button? Would we trade the fidelity of our marriage for one night for a $1 million check?

If that seems a moral challenge then we should realize that there are people who are making this decision on a daily basis, but on a smaller scale. Shall I trade a strong relationship with my family for my financially profitable career? Shall I risk my future by selling drugs or robbing a corner store?

Let's bring it closer to home. If it came to your salvation what could separate you from the love of God? How much would it take to get you to stop going to worship, reading your bible or assembling with the saints? If you were offered a large check that would increase each week on the condition that you do not attend a worship service, read a bible or acknowledge God in any way, would you accept the offer?

There was once a play entitled, "The Devil and Daniel Webster" in which a man made a deal with the devil. He offered his soul for seven years of prosperity. The devil did better, he gave him ten years, but soon after the devil came to collect.

The devil always comes to collect, that's why believers have resolved to stay close to God and never trade anything for our faith in Him.

As Christians we have resolved to make make no bargains with the devil that will separate us from the Lord. Like Paul, we stand firm on the words of Romans 8:38-39 "For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

Exposition

This text focuses on Judas as he strikes a bargain with Christ's enemies to betray Him

Judas was a member of a revolutionary group that wanted to fight against the Romans and return Israel to a free and independent state. Many scholars believe that Judas was frustrated that Jesus would not take advantage of his immense popularity to mobilize the people into an army that could defeat the nation's enemies and establish the kingdom of heaven at the same time. He was even more frustrated, they believe, when he heard Jesus speak about turning the other cheek and loving your enemies.

There are generally two schools of thought when it comes to Judas' motivations. Some scholars believe Judas went to the religious leaders hoping that Christ's arrest would push Jesus into action and motivate the people to revolt. It was not a matter of money with Judas, because the 30 pieces of silver were worth only about $15.00; he betrayed Christ for what he believed to be a higher cause, the freedom of the people.

Another group of scholars believes that Judas was simply greedy. They say he saw an opportunity to profit personally from Jesus' arrest and he seized it. This was the same Judas who complained when a woman took oil from an alabaster box and an anointed Jesus' feet; he thought that was a waste of good oil that could have been sold. Judas was the keeper of the disciples funds and had a mercenary interpretation of nearly everything.

In either instance Judas did not expect Christ to be crucified; he expected Him to use His divine powers to free himself and liberate the people. When Jesus didn't do that, Judas gave back the money but found that he would not be excused from his bargain; he hung himself.

When Jesus began his ministry just the opposite of Judas' situation happened. While Jesus fasted and prayed the devil appeared to him and offered not one but three bargains. Each of the bargains sought to tap what the devil thought would be human vulnerabilities, but Christ turned down each one choosing to depend on the promise of God for the salvation of mankind.

Some are chasing the devil to make a bargain

One of the unique things about this text is that the religious leaders did not come to Judas, he came to them.

There are many today who are doing the exact same thing. The devil, in some cases, probably did not have us in his radar, until we went to him, trying to make a deal.

When two people commit adultery, it is not likely that both of them approached each other at the same time. One made the first move, and the other accepted.

There are many today who are not being chased down by the devil, they are chasing the devil down trying to make a quick dollar.

Street corner drug dealers just stand on the corner with the merchandise, people come to the devil and make a deal.

The man who sells hot videos and CD's he just walks around with a bag full of ripped CD's and the people are chasing him down waving their money in the air.

If this text shows us anything, it should reveal to us that when you run to the devil, he won't turn you down.

Judas struck a bargain with Christ's enemies, and they did not turn him down.

Devil Makes a Deal

Judas made one deal with the religious but the devil presented Jesus with three deals 1) To turn stones into bread and satisfy his human needs and desires 2) To worship the devil and free himself from being plagued by the devilish plots and tricks that would follow him all through his ministry and 3) Throw himself off the side of mountain in the full view of thousands of people below who would witness when God sent angels to catch him before he hit the ground.

All three of the temptations would have jump started Jesus' career with popularity, fame and certain world power. There would be no doubt that he would be the one true Messiah because he would be the one man who could turn stones into bread and be rescued by angels dispatched from heaven.

He could change the world from such a position. He could order governments to follow his rule. He could outlaw hypocrisy and open the floodgates of opportunity for thousands.

He was presented with a quick opportunity to do many things, but it would not do the one thing he came to do, obey God and carry out his will.

Jesus recognized Satan's three offers for what they were: temptations. He refused them and went the long way around. It was a way of sacrifice and pain, but it provided.

The devil wants to make a bargain with each believer today. He's trying his best to get us give him our souls, but we should not fall prey to his enticements.

Promise

Finally, brothers and sisters, while some are running to the devil and others are being propositioned by the devil himself, we need to maintain our trust in the promises of God.

Bargains with the devil are fruitless because they usually end with our destruction in some way or form. But they that wait on the Lord shall renew their strength and mount up on wings as Eagles. They shall run and not be weary, walk and not faint.

God has proven time and time again that if we seek him first that he will make a way for us.

The same promise that God made in biblical times still applies today because God is still the same.

When the devil tries to make a bargain, we should tell him to get thee behind because we have decided to keep trusting in the Lord!

We trust in the Lord because history has shown us that those who trust in the Lord face the unknown without fear.

We trust in the Lord because saints who have trusted him have been rewarded with answered prayers, a few earthly pleasures and heavenly glory!

We are not by ourselves:

—Noah trusted the Lord and he brought him through the great flood!

—Abraham trusted the Lord and he showed him the Lamb in the bush!

—Ruth trusted the Lord and she found happiness while gleaning fields!

—Moses trusted the Lord and he lead Israel out of bondage

—Daniel trusted the Lord and he protected him in the Lion's Den

—Three Hebrew Boys trusted the Lord and he shielded them in the fiery furnace!

I don't need a bargain with the devil because, If am:

—Sad, the Lord will be my fountain of joy!

—At Fault, the Lord will be stronghold of forgiveness!

—Weak, the Lord will be my pillar of strength

—Discouraged, the Lord will be my pool of inspiration!

—Defeated, the Lord will be my crown of victory!

—Darkness, the Lord will be my light!.

—Lonely, the Lord will be my friend

—Helpless, the Lord will be my help.

No wonder the songwriter declares! "The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear!"

Hold to his hand! God's unchanging hand!

The same hand that was nailed to an old rugged cross! Hold to his hand!

He died out on Calvary, but early Sunday morning, he arose from the dead!

Hold to his hand!

SCRIPTURE: For here have we no continuing city, but we seek one to come. Hebrews 13:14

Introduction

Have you ever been away from home and made lists of all the things you planned to do once you return?Those who have been away for any length of time may have a long list of acquaintances to renew and landmarks to revisit. Those who have been away a short while may have a shorter list that may include chores, business items and personal privileges. Regardless of the time we have been away, most of us have a to-do list that awaits us when we get home.

Sometimes our thoughts about home become concerns. Thinking about home a Mormon was riding an airplane back to Utah. When the pilot announced that the plane would be landing shortly, a woman sitting next to the man said, "They told me that in this state some men have nine wives, is that true?" The man answered, "Yes ma'am you are correct. In fact, I have nine wives myself." The woman said, "That's disgusting, you should be hung!" The man said, "I've been gone for two weeks, lost all of my money and don't have a single gift for any of my wives, You may just get your wish, I most certainly will be hung by one of them."

When we are at home we are in familiar territory. Consider the man that amazed his friends every time he went home. One day he went fishing back home with a friend and he excused himself saying he had to use the restroom. He promptly stepped out of the boat and began to walk on the water all the way to the bank. The next day, with two friends watching, he did the same thing again. Both of them were thoroughly amazed. They were equally amazed that he never walked on water when he was upstate, only when he was home. Finally, one of the men asked him, "How is that you never walk on water when we are upstate, but you always walk on water at home." To that, the man said, "When I step out of the boat at home, I don't worry because at home, I know where the rocks are." - When we are at home, we know our way around. In fact, we know it so well we almost seem to walk on water.

God has promised believers eternal life, free of troubles and filled with joy. He has promised us an eternal life in his presence that will continuously reflect his love and radiate his presence. That promise is every believer's hope.

As Christians, we cling to the hope of heaven. It is the central purpose of our life.

We look forward to all of the joy we will share as "soon as we get home."

Exposition

This text focuses on the concluding thoughts of the Book of Hebrews which is for believers to dedicate themselves to seeking their heavenly home.

The writer of Hebrews spent considerable time trying to explain the nature of the Christian life. More than anything else he explained that it was a faith walk that did not require the rituals and symbols of Judaism.

After rehearsing all of the principles of faith listed in chapter 11, the writer closes by reminding each believer that Christ himself became the sin offering of the people and symbolically moved it outside of the gate just as the bodies of sacrificed animals were taken outside of the gate.

Believers were reminded to stay outside of the old ways of Judaism because they were on their way to a different destination. The text describes it as having "no continuing city but we seek one to come."

Until they get to that city they were encouraged to: live sacrificially and give thanks to God. (Hebrews 13:15) Do good works. (v16); Obey them that have rule over them. (v17) Pray and live honestly. (v18).

In verse 23 he seems to close with a phrase familiar to our ears, "I'll see you."

Start saving for your heavenly home

The home the believers seek has a different set of values than we experience in this life. In this life, we often value a life by how many dollars a person accumulates. We value a job by how much money it pays. We value a prospective husband by the amount of money he can make. We are not supposed to do it but sometimes we even value members of the church by how much they can give. However, the home to which we are traveling values men and women by their character their money won't mean anything.

What's valuable in this life won't have any value when we get home. When a person leaves one country and enters another his currency must be exchanged for the currency used in his destination country. The value of currency varies from nation to nation. A man may leave France with 7 francs but they are only worth 1 U.S. Dollar. He may leave Italy with 2,191 Lire but when he gets to America he'll only have $1. He may leave Korea with 1,280 "Won" but he'll only have $1 when he gets to the U.S. He could leave Tanzania with 886 Shillings but would only have $1 when he made it to the shores of the U.S. He could leave Vietnam with 14,953 "Dong" and still have just $1 when he made it to America. That same man could leave America with $100 and be a millionaire in Vietnam because his $100 American dollars would exchange to $1.5 million "Dong"

We are challenged to build up treasures in heaven where they will not rust and corrode. These treasures maintain their value because they are guaranteed by the glory of God.

When we get home, money won't matter at all because even the streets will be paved with gold. What will matter will be the love of God that runs from heart to heart.

Choose your home now

Some people have difficulty choosing between God and idols. Elijah challenged the prophets of Baal to a contest on the mountaintop as a demonstration of the power of God. He said "Choose ye this day, whom you will serve." It was the same situation with Joshua as he challenged Israel to either side with God or leave. He said, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

Likewise we have to choose whether we want to go heaven or hell. You can't go to both.

The story is told of the day that the pimp, known for his generosity in the neighborhood, was hit by a bus and he died. There was a mix-up and his soul arrived in heaven where he was met at the Pearly Gates by St. Peter himself.

"Welcome to Heaven," said St. Peter. "Before you get settled in though, it seems we have a problem. You see, strangely enough, we've never once had a pimp make it this far and we're not really sure what to do with you."

"No problem, just let me in," said the pimp. "Well, I'd like to," replied St. Peter, "but I have higher orders. What we're going to do is let you have a day in Hell and a day in Heaven and then you can choose whichever one you want to spend an eternity in."

"Actually, I think I've made up my mind, I prefer to stay in Heaven," said the pimp.

"Sorry, we have rules..." And with that St. Peter put the pimp in an elevator and it went down-down-down to hell. The doors opened and he found himself stepping out onto fine green carpet. There was plenty of food, ribs, chicken and some of the finest women he had ever seen. Some of the women who were once in his stable were there; they cheered for him. They ran up and kissed him dead on the mouth and they talked about old times. They danced a little and drank a little. The pimp met the Devil who was actually a really nice guy who dressed very well in designer threads. He had a great time telling jokes and dancing. He was having such a good time that before he knew it, it was time to leave. Everybody shook his hand and waved good-bye as he got on the elevator. The elevator went up-up-up and opened back up at the Pearly Gates and he found St. Peter waiting for him.

"Now it's time to spend a day in heaven," he said. So he spent the next 24 hours lounging around on clouds and playing the harp and singing. He had a great time and before he knew it his 24 hours were up and St. Peter came and got him. "So, you've spent a day in hell and you've spent a day in heaven.

Now you must choose your eternity," he said. The pimp paused for a second and then replied, "Well, I never thought I'd say this, I mean, Heaven has been really great and all, but I think I had a better time in Hell." So St. Peter escorted him to the elevator and again he went down-down-down back to Hell.

When the doors of the elevator opened he found himself standing in a desolate wasteland covered in garbage and filth. Old watermelon rinds were everywhere.

There were flies, chicken bones and garbage for miles. He saw some of his friends who were dressed in rags and were picking up the garbage and putting it in sacks. The Devil came up to him and put his arm around him.

"I don't understand," stammered the pimp, "yesterday I was here and there was green grass, pretty women, parties and fun. Now all there is, is a wasteland of garbage and all my friends look miserable."

The Devil looked at him and said, "Face it my brother, Yesterday we were recruiting you, today you are an employee. Welcome to hell."

Nothing compares to heaven

Finally, brothers and sisters we must consider that we may travel to many places in this life, but there is no place we have been that can compare to place the saints will call home.

We have traveled many miles in this life searching for the perfect place, only to learn that no car can drive us there, and no plane can fly us there, but there is a highway to heaven that meanders through a place called. Calvary.

Abraham took a journey in faith "looking for a city with foundations."

Moses, led Israel but Hebrews 11 says, "for he was looking to the reward"

Paul labored to witness for Christ in spite personal peril. He expected to receive, "a house not made with hands eternal in the heavens."(2 Corinthians 5:1)

Believers who make sacrifices to glorify God will be rewarded. Colossians 1:5 says there is, "hope laid up for you in Heaven"

It does not matter how extensively you have traveled, after a few days, we start thinking about home and what we'll do when we get there.

You may travel to New York City and see the Statue of Liberty, the United Nations and historic Harlem but after a while you find yourself saying, "As soon as I get home."

You may travel to St. Louis and see the famous Gateway Arch but after you have seen arch and toured its historic streets, you find your self think about home and musing out loud, "As soon as I get home."

You may travel to New Orleans and see Superdome, but after you have seen it and witnessed the pageantry of Mardi Gras, your soul starts crying out, "As soon as I get home."

You may travel to Atlanta and see the tomb of Martin Luther King, peep inside of CNN or peer into Atlanta Underground, but after awhile something starts yanking at you and you start thinking all of the things you are going to do "As soon as I get home."

You may travel to Hawaii and stick your feet in the cool beach waters of Wai Ki Kie and enjoy the romance of an evening luau, but after awhile, your heart gets in a hurry and you speak out loud about "Soon as I get home."

You may travel to The Alamo of San Antonio and shout out “Remember the Alamo” but after you see where the last shot was fired and visit the last memorial then you start think, “As soon as I get home.”

Whether its Stone Mountain of Georgia or Lookout Mountain in Tennessee; whether its the rumbling waters of Niagara Falls, bustling streets of Hollywood, no matter how fancy the city you visit you still cry out “As soon as I get home.”

You may sleep in fine hotels that offer bouquets of flowers, chocolates on your pillow and morning paper under your door, but no matter how great the service or soft the beds, after a while you are ready to pack your bags because there is no place like home.

That’s what the believer says today, there is no place like my heavenly home

As soon as I get home I’m going to put on my robe and tell the story of how I made it over!

As soon as I get home, I want to see Abraham, Isaac and Jacob!

As soon as I get home, I want to see the streets paved with gold!

As soon as I get home, I want to see the city that sits on twelve foundations with twelve gates!

As soon as I get home, I want to see the city where hearse wheels won’t roll!

As soon as I get home, I want to see the city where everyday will be Sunday and it’ll always be howdy and never be goodbye

I don’t know about you, but as soon as I get home, I want to see Jesus!

Jesus, the author and finisher of my faith!

Jesus, who said I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am, ye may be also!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary, but arose early Sunday morning!

Come and go with me to my father’s house!

No more dying there!

No more crying there!

No more sickness and pain!

Come and go with me to my father’s house!

There’ll be joy, joy, joy!

I the Lord will hold thy hand

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr
Pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church

July 2010

SCRIPTURE: I the LORD have called thee in righteousness, and will hold thine hand, and will keep thee, and give thee for a covenant of the people, for a light of the Gentiles; Isaiah 42:6

Introduction

What do you do when the task ahead of you is formidable and beyond your abilities? If you are a person who believes in the power of God, you forge forward confident that through His strength you will be able to succeed.

What lies before believers is a vast array of challenges that will require us to use every ounce of our ingenuity to succeed. Over the years we have accomplished much, but there is so much to be done and so many lives to be touched.

Spreading the gospel message is not an easy task, even in our modern era, yet we must stand firm on the promise of our savior that He will be with us always, even until the end of the earth. God has promised us His help and that is no small matter.

Sometimes we trivialize God's promise to help us and to hold our hand. Consider the little boy who lived in the country in backwoods of South Carolina. It gets dark in the woods at night, so dark you can't see your hand in front of your face. This little boy was afraid of the dark. One night his mother told him to go out to the back porch and bring her the broom. The little boy turned to his mother and said, "Mama, I don't want to go out there. It's dark." The mother smiled reassuringly at her son. "You don't have to be afraid of the dark," she explained. "Jesus is out there. He'll look after you and protect you." The little boy looked at his mother real hard and asked, "Are you sure he's out there?" "Yes, I'm sure. He is everywhere, and he is always ready to help you when you need him," she said. The little boy thought about that for a minute and then went to the back door and cracked it a little. Peering out into the darkness, he called, "Jesus? If you're out there, would you please hand me the broom?"—

God has promised to help us, but not to bring us the broom, help us win lotteries, or wash the dishes for us. His promise to help us and hold our hand extends to any good work that will ultimately help bring the Kingdom of God into reality.

As Christians, we must continue to do good work, help the poor, reach the lost and lift up the name of Jesus, depending on God to hold our hand every step of the way.

Exposition

Our text first considers God speaking to Israel, through Isaiah, encouraging them to be strong in the face of doubts about their future as a nation. The 40th through 66th chapters of Isaiah are dedicated to the subject of helping Israel to look beyond its coming captivity, to the day when God would restore it as a nation. Isaiah's constant reminder to Israel was that the nation should not be discouraged or disenchanted for God was both willing and able to deliver them from their ensuing circumstance.

In this text God speaks to Isaiah about the coming Messiah but in ways that were also applicable to Israel's immediate situation. In these "Servant Songs" Isaiah the prophet could peer into the future while Isaiah the visionary could see God speaking to the servants of his time. Speaking both of the Messiah and the present moment God assured the Messiah that He had been called to perform the will of God and in so doing would demonstrate a sense of responsibility to be obedient to God's command.

God told Israel that he would take the Servant's hand and the Messiah would have the power to carry out God's will. God also promised that the Messiah would be a light unto the world, including the Gentiles. As a result of God's strengthening hand the glorious kingdom of God would be the end result.

The prophecy had practical applications to Isaiah, just as it does for believers of all generations: Those who are laboring to bring about the kingdom of God and his righteousness will be sustained and strengthened by the hand of God, if they continue to labor and hold to his hand.

The mission

Today the church has both a mission and a promise. We have the mission to reach out in the name of Jesus. We have the promise that God will strengthen us in the work.

THE MISSION: Just as the Messiah's mission was to reconcile men back to God, the church's mission is similar. We must speak a prophetic word to our times. Look around. We have fighting a war in Afghanistan that has been longer than world War II and the Korean conflict combined and daily young men and women are dying on the battlefield with no end in sight. Despite billions of dollars in government bailouts our national economy is in shambles, unemployment remains high and millions are surviving on shoe string aide provided by unemployment benefits. Homosexuality is on the rise as our standard of godliness declines. In the midst of all of this God has given us a word of hope. Our hope is in God. Just as God predicted difficult times for Israel but eventual restoration, the church must also point to Jesus who will guide us through these tough times. It is our mission to lift Jesus up so that the world might be reassured that as long as God is on the throne, "Weeping may endure for a night but joy will come in the morning."

THE WORK: We know the commission, but what is the practical work we must do to carry out the mission? For Israel, the restoration came when Cyrus set the nation free to rebuild and restore its home land. When Christ came He announced that the spirit of the Lord was moving Him to set the captives free and promote freedom and liberty to those bound by custom, rituals and tradition. The church must speak to the social dilemmas of our times. We must reach out to an entire generation of our men who are locked away in prisons. We must speak to the plethora of social ills that are destroying our families, under-educating our children, and eating away at the souls of our community. We must lift up the cross and the gospel of salvation through Christ, rather than a gospel of prosperity that misleads and ignores the great commission of God. Whether individually or in association with others, the work must be done.

THE PROMISE: The mission before us does not come without a promise. The promise to the coming Messiah was that God would hold his hand, he did. The promise to the church is the same; He's doing that right now. God promises to stand by us and strengthen us in our mission, to hold our hand so that it does not shake and we do not fail. God has call the church into action and given us a mission: Those whom God calls he will own and help, and will hold their hands. With God holding our hands we will be victorious. That's why we sing, "Lord hold my hand while I run this race, I don't want to run this race alone."

I the Lord

Finally, brothers and sisters, we must remember who has called us into battle and for whose cause we serve, "I the Lord."

No matter how difficult the struggle that we may face we have the continued assurance of our savior that "I the Lord will hold thy hand."

That should be a reassuring thought for us as we reach to a merciless and critical world in the name of our savior. It is reassuring because it means that our God will stand with us and hold our hand.

As we move forward let us keep the words of God ringing in our ears, "I the Lord will hold thy hand!"

We can march forward knowing that "I the Lord" will give me:

—Serenity in the midst of our storms;

—Assurance in the midst of our afflictions;

—Courage in the midst of our challenges;

—Boldness in the midst of our battles;

—Encouragement in the time of our difficulties;

—Composure in the midst of our calamities;

—Support in the midst of our suffering

Storms may rise, winds may blow, but I'm glad that the God we serve isbetter than "Allstate" for when you're with Jesus "You're in good hands!"

No wonder the song writer wrote, "Safe in the arms of Jesus. Safe on his gentle breast. There by his loved over shadowed, sweetly my soul shall rest. I'm safe in the arms of God."

When the church marches forward with the banner of Jesus before us the walls of sin will fall and the devil will flee. We do not march forward under our own power but we are sustained by He who holds our hand.

Hold my hand Lord, for there's no:

—Power that rises that you cannot conquer

—Fear that frightens that you cannot calm

—Door that's closed that you cannot open

—Prayer that's prayed that you cannot answer

—Problem plaguing us, that you cannot solve!

God has promised that He will keep us, direct us and guide us.

I don't know about you but I've found out that the church accomplishes miracles when we let God hold our hand.

When God holds our hand:

—CIRCUMSTANCES can be changed;

—DOORS can be opened;

—ENEMIES can be defeated;

—PROBLEMS can be solved;

—DOUBTS can be dissolved;

—FEARS can be conquered;

—FRIENDSHIPS can be restored;

—MARRIAGES can be salvaged

—SOULS can be converted;

—LOST lives can be saved;

Gospel warriors, keep the faith and keep telling the story!

We must tell the world about He who came down through 42 generations!

We must tell the world about the man who was born of the Virgin Mary and Baptized in the Jordan river.

We must tell the world about the man who healed the sick and raised the dead!

His name is Jesus!

Jesus, the bright and morning star!

Jesus, the fairest of ten thousand!

Jesus, the sweet Rose of Sharon!

Jesus, who died out on Calvary but Early Sunday morning arose from the dead!

Tell the world about Jesus, who still proclaims, "I the Lord will hold thine hand!"

Living in your Empowerment Zone

A sermon by Roosevelt Wright, Jr.
For the Tabernacle Baptist Church
Monroe, La

August 1, 2010

SCRIPTURE: "But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judaea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth." Acts 1:8

Introduction

Have you ever felt powerless? There are many situations that we encounter that are beyond our personal abilities. We cannot change them or alter them because they are outside of our range of talents and skills. times such as these frustrate because we feel helpless and don't know what to do. These are the times that we recite the old proverb of theologian Reinhold Niebuhr, Which says, "Lord, grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, the courage to change the things I can, and the wisdom to know the difference."

The business world defines empowerment in terms of motivating people to succeed in their work, or motivating people to be strong leaders. Empowerment is usually associated with advocacy groups that seek to help "individuals and communities achieve self actualization and full citizenship.

There have been many attempts by government leaders to pass laws or make changes in the social order that would empower the masses but most of them fell short of the mark. Each effort seemed fruitless and impotent. President Franklin Roosevelt tried to lift the burden of the poor with his new deal. President Johnson tried it with his "War on Poverty."

When the smoke cleared we still had poverty and very little empowerment.

In 1994 President Bill Clinton instituted a nationwide competition to empower six urban communities and 65 enterprise communities with $100 million and $3 million respectively to jumpstart the local community's effort to build a strategy to create jobs and opportunities. The theory is that the prize money will jump start the planning and even if a community didn't get the money they would have developed a plan.

It turned out that the government can create all of the zones it desires, but true empowerment comes from the Lord who changes the hearts, minds and attitudes of men.

We may not understand all the government plans but the old folks said, "You can take a horse to water but you can't make him drink."

True empowerment comes when men and women are inspired to step out, trusting the power of God, and lift themselves while they hold to God's unchanging hand.

As Christians, we recognize that we can't do anything without the power of the Holy Spirit to direct and strengthen us. In his presence we receive the power, then leave his promise to use the power he has given to change the world in His name.

Exposition

This text focuses on the disciples as they received empowerment to carry out a mission to carry the gospel to the entire world.

In Matthew 28:19, Jesus gave his disciples a great mission. He charged them to "go ye therefore and teach all nations" the gospel message. This was a challenging charge to Galilean commoners who were not schooled in languages other than their native tongue and the Aramaic, which was the language of commerce and diplomacy. Since the confusion of the languages at Babel in Genesis 11:9 people of different nations were not able to communicate. To bridge the gap, persons who moved from country to country were able to vaguely communicate with each other by speaking Aramaic which was the closest to a universal language, but was still crude and useful only in the basic sense. Jesus himself often spoke Aramaic when he moved to different regions. He used the terms: Abba (father) (Mark 14:36), talitha, qumi (maiden, arise) (Mark 5:41), lama sabachthani (why hast thou forsaken me?) (Mark 15:34) all of which were Aramaic phrases.

Despite the absence of an ability to command foreign tongues, Jesus commissioned his followers to go to their immediate neighbors and then spread out around the world and preach the gospel. Jesus told them not to leave Jerusalem (Acts 1:4) until they had received the power to carry out this mission. In obedience they waited faithfully until, on the day of Pentecost, the power came! They were given the extraordinary gift of communication! They were able to speak in such a way that people of every nation under the heaven (Acts 2:5) understood what they were saying.

Once empowered by God it was now their task to take the word of God and go out and change the world.

Keys to empowerment

If we are to learn the keys to receiving the power of God in our lives we need to look closely at the Matthew 28 and the first chapter of Acts to get more clarity.

PURPOSE OF THE POWER: Why do you want God's power in your life? Why do you want more money? Why do you want to win an election? Why do you want that position you seek? Before we seek the power of God in our lives we should look again at the purpose the apostles received their power in Acts 1. They received it for the purpose of advancing the kingdom of God, not to advance themselves. Their prayer was not that they could use their gifts to get jobs as interpreters for the government, or high paid consultants. There was a purpose for the power. Similarly, we should be sure that the power we seek from God is not selfish. We do not ask for more money so we can be rich. We don't ask to win an election so we can be a big shot. We don't seek the position so that we can have dominion over others. Whatever we seek, our ultimate purpose is to use it to advance the kingdom of the savior. If what we do is according to his purpose he will order events to give you the power you need. Romans 8:28 "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose."
